NORTHERN ASSEMBLY IN CONFUSION OVER SEMINARY QUESTION

At 12:30 Tuesday, When Recess Was Taken for Lunch, Union Theological Seminary Matter Was Still Unsettled

NEGOTIATIONS PROBABLY WILL BE DISCONTINUED

This is Indicated by Applause Which Has Greeted Every Such Suggestion—Dr. Brown Replies to Dr. Monfort

In the midst of the utmost partisan confusion, with the Union Theological question still unsettled, the northern assembly adjourned at 12:30 Tuesday for lunch.

It will reconvene at 3:30, and will drink out the seminary question to a finish, regardless of the time required. All other matters on the docket will be held in abeyance until the seminary matter is disposed of.

Indications are that the seminary matter will consume all of the Tuesday afternoon session, and perhaps run into the Wednesday afternoon session.

The whole time devoted to the seminary matter Tuesday morning (from 11 until 12 o'clock) was taken up by Dr. Hendrix Brown, president of the seminary, who spoke in behalf of the faculty and directors.

DR. BROWN DEFIANT

The substance of his speech was that the seminary should be itself an institution separate from and independent of the assembly, that it will continue its own program without dictation from the assembly, and that if the assembly does not approve this program, then negotiations looking to re-establishment of relations between the assembly and the seminary might as well be terminated.

Dr. Brown was calm, cold and conciliatory in his delivery. His attitude was defiant and defiant. His remarks, in the course of his reply to Dr. F. C. Monfort's sensational charge, made Monday afternoon, that the seminary is teaching Hindu philosophy under the guise of Christianity, that the charge is untrue and unfair, and that he (Brown) is extremely difficult to hold his temper when he thought of it.

The applause which greeted every [illegible] Brown's remarks [illegible] indicated that the disposition of the majority of the assembly is to [illegible] the seminary.

He again reminded the assembly that the seminary was not present on its motion. That the seminary was asking nothing and proposing nothing, but that the whole procedure was initiated by the assembly.

He said the committee made only one proposal to the seminary, which simply was that the seminary provide special training in Presbyterian theology for the Presbyterian ministry. He said the seminary readily agreed to this proposal by offering to provide lectures, so that the only difference between this and the committee's proposal is that the committee suggested a professorship.

Discussing the three reports of the committee, Dr. Brown said it seemed incredible that the assembly could adopt or consider the report of Dr. Monfort (minority No. 1).

"To invite us to friendly conference, and then to make us your threatened with that report, would be like using a club on your guest," said he.

He argued at length in support of the contention that the seminary is an independent institution, and that the conferences involved in the negotiations with the committee were and are whether the seminary will provide special lectures in Presbyterian doctrine and polity for Presbyterian students.

DIRECTED TO REASON.

In regard to the majority report No. 1, which recommends the dissolution of the committee on the ground that re-establishment of relations is impossible, Dr. Brown indicated that the seminary has no objection to terminating negotiations, but does object to the reasons assigned in this report, namely, that the doctrinal statement of the seminary directors and faculty does not conform to the standards of the Presbyterian church.

In regard to the majority report, which recommends continuance of negotiations, Dr. Brown said, almost in as many words, that it was a matter of indifference to the seminary whether the negotiations are continued or not.

Unless the assembly unanimously and definitely voted to continue negotiations, the seminary, he said, would not send a respect deputy or take part in a continuation.

Before concluding, Dr. Brown spoke a word in regard to Union seminary graduates who have been disgraced to the Presbyterian ministry. He made the assertion that no graduate who has been branded has failed to affirm his belief in the deity of Christ, the authority of the Bible and other essential articles of the Presbyterian faith.

PREFERS TO TERMINATE.

In conclusion, Dr. Brown told the assembly, frankly and briefly, that the seminary preferred the negotiations to terminate.

For fifteen minutes following the close of Dr. Brown's remarks, Moderator Stone explained to the assembly in detail the matter of procedure which had been agreed upon between himself and the four leaders. Before he finished, Dr. Howard Agnew Johnston arrived in Dallas the whole matter. The moderator restated the motion (not, on a rising vote without a count, but a count was demanded, and the result was 666 to 314 against the motion.

Commissioners were on their feet all over the floor, clamoring for information and to make motions, which rendered the situation an extremely trying one for the chair, and more, especially

"BRIEF STATEMENT" BRINGS BIG ROW IN SOUTHERN ASSEMBLY

Dr. T. S. Knox, of Texas, Declares Statement Full of "Bad Grammar, Bad Language and Bad Theology"

DR. STRICKLER EXPECTED TO QUELL THE STORM

Confidence Expressed That His Address During Afternoon Will Shed New Light on the Matter

A minority fight on the special committees' report on the "brief statement" which came up as a special order at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning before the Presbyterian assembly in the United States, in which the committees recommended the adoption with certain amendments, threatened for a moment to split the conference and developed a mild sensation that was quelled with difficulty.

Dr. Wells, chairman of the committee, had finished its reading and asked that the recommendation be adopted at once, though taking into consideration the few changes that had been made. There were calls for the question when Dr. T. S. Knox, of Texas, arose to protest. He was granted the floor by the moderator and at once began an attack on the statement in its present form. He declared that there was no call for such a statement and that the west did not want it.

"It puts danger in the way of our proposed union with other branches of the Presbyterian church," he said. "If it passed the same question must be decided by them as well as ourselves. Too much rain has been allowed the committee and I arise to protest against it."

Well-Known Attorney Fights Three to Five Men, According to Varying Opinions, at Court House Tuesday

C. W. WALTON WAS FIRST TO RECEIVE A BLOW

Then W. H. Byrd and Several Others Got Into the Fray, Mr. Smith Claims He Was Insulted—Story of Fight

Burton Smith, prominent Atlanta lawyer, was the central figure in what for a moment or two is free-for-all fight shortly after 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the corridor about Judge Andrew Calhoun's court room.

The number of men opposed to Mr. Smith is an open question, as the estimates of startled bystanders vary from two to five, and Mr. Smith himself declares he doesn't know.

The trouble occurred while Attorney James M. Anderson, as editor, was taking testimony in the receivership proceedings in the famous old Crawford will case.

While there was a lull in the proceedings Mr. Smith was in the corridor talking with Mrs. Cash, one of the masses of startled bystanders vary from two to five, and Mr. Smith himself declares he doesn't know.

The trouble occurred while Attorney James M. Anderson, as editor, was taking testimony in the receivership proceedings in the famous old Crawford will case.

While there was a lull in the proceedings Mr. Smith was in the corridor talking with Mrs. Cash, one of the [illegible] in the courtroom in the case, when C. W. Walton came up and a second they were in a fight.

W. H. Byrd, of 41 West Twelfth street, then came in to separate the combatants, he says, to assist Walton, Mr. Smith says, and in another second or two the melee became general.

PART AND PURPOSE

Mr. Smith is a powerful figure, standing well over six feet, and is very athletic, but the force of numbers gave him a very warm few minutes.

According to Carroll Latimer, an attorney opposed to Mr. Smith in the case, he was "knocking them down just as fast as his arms could swing."

According to Captain W. C. Massey, court reporter, who rushed in on the scene, when he heard the noise of the conflict, "there were about five men hitting Mr. Smith at the time I got there and I thought it was the proper thing for me to do my part."

Captain Massey, Mr. Arnold, assisted by Deputy Sheriff John Owens, county policemen and bailiffs stopped the fight after an exciting few minutes.

Walton and Byrd, both of whom received several blows, are said to have made an effort to have an accusation against Mr. Smith sworn out, but the clerks were informed that the recorder's court is not the proper place for such a proceeding.

CAUSE OF TROUBLE.

As to the start of the trouble Mr. Smith declares that Mr. Walton came up and spoke in a very insulting manner to him, while he was conversing in the corridor with Mrs. Cash, whom it seems is some connection of Walton's.

Mr. Smith then struck the first blow.

The Crawford will case has been in the courts about five years. More than a score of heirs, who are represented by Attorney Carroll Latimer and J. S. James are trying to wrest an estate valued at approximately $50,000 from Mrs. Mary Bells Crawford, widow of the late Joshua R. Crawford, who is represented by Mr. Smith and Mr. Arnold.

As the result of the conflict Mr. Smith bears a very flattened hand, while Mr. Byrd has a deep gash over the eye, and Mr. Walton shows signs of the fight on his face. The other alleged participants escaped unscathed.

This makes the fourth fight in two months in the corridor about the court room on the fourth floor of the Traveler building, and the corridor has now been dubbed by court attaches as the "county prize ring."

ANOTHER DECISION IN FAVOR OF PROHIBITION

Intoxicating Liquor Can't Be Sold Even by an Employe of a Club

A decision handed down Tuesday by the state court of appeals in the case of Joe Rothschild, attorney for the Brunswick-Oglethorpe club, of Brunswick, is being received with great satisfaction by the prohibitionists.

Rothschild was convicted in the Glynn county superior court for the illegal sale of whisky and sentenced by Judge B. Conyers to twelve months on the chaingang or the payment of a $900 fine. He appealed the case, and the lower court in affirming the verdict and sentence, ruled as follows:

"On the trial of an indictment for selling liquor is no defense that the accused sold the liquor as an employe of a social club to the members thereof. Intoxicating liquor cannot be sold in this state by an individual or a corporation as a beverage, and where a steward of a social club sells to the members of the club intoxicating liquors he is guilty of a violation of what is known as the prohibition law, although in making the sale he is acting solely for the benefit of the club.

"The evidence of the state demanded the conviction, and the statement of the accused, to the effect that in selling the intoxicating liquors to members of the club he was acting for the club, and that he received no personal benefit from such sales, constitutes no defense."

The decision in this case was written by Judge B. H. Hill, chief judge of the court of appeals. Taken in connection with a Savannah case decided last week by the state supreme court, it, according to leading prohibitionists, will make the enforcement of the prohibition law much easier.

In the Savannah case the supreme court held that the illegal sale of liquor constituted a blind tiger within the meaning of the law, that blind tigers are nuisances and that any citizen or citizens, without indictments or warrants, may apply for injunction against such nuisances, and upon a proper showing the courts must grant the injunctions sought.

Militants Threaten To Ruin the World's Best Golf Course

(By Associated Press.)

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 20.—This little town is almost in a state of siege because of threats uttered by the militant suffragettes that they will destroy the Putting Greens and thus render play impossible in the world's amateur golf championship, which is to be competed for here next week.

Intense excitement prevails among the townspeople, who depend largely for their prosperity upon the golf links, while members of the Royal and Ancient Golf club are extremely anxious. They say the citizens have organized a vigilance committee, whose members, together with 5,000 volunteers, will guard the greens night and day.

HENRY M. FLAGLER DIES AT FLORIDA HOME

Millionaire Railroad and Oil Magnate Had Been Ill for Long While

(By Associated Press.)

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., May 20.—Henry M. Flagler, aged eighty-three, the noted capitalist and railroad magnate, died at his winter home here this morning, after an illness of several weeks.

The octogenarian sustained a fall from the steps in his home and because of his advanced age his recovery had not been anticipated.

For the past few weeks Mr. Flagler had been sinking practically all of his faculties and his death was momentarily expected. Several of his relatives and business associates had been summoned to the financier's bedside.

DEAT I WAR PAINLESS.

Death came quietly and without pain to the noted capitalist.

The body will be buried in a mausoleum at St. Augustine, in the yard of the Memorial church which he gave to the Presbyterian.

Mr. Flagler was born at Canandaigua, N. Y., in 1830. Little is known of his early life except that he was clerk in a country grocery in Orleans county, Mich., while yet in his teens. Later he removed to Saginaw, Mich., where he engaged in the manufacture of salt.

Becoming interested in the possibilities of the petroleum industry he removed to Cleveland, Ohio, where he organized the company of Rockefeller, Andrews & Flagler, engaging in the refining of oil. The Standard Oil company was the outgrowth of this venture, and Mr. Flagler has constantly remained actively connected with the management of the great corporation since its inception.

In 1885 Mr. Flagler paid his first visit to Florida, and became impressed with the business possibilities presented there by the related field, in connection with the development of winter resorts.

CATECHISM DECLARING CREED OF PRESBYTERIANS IS A VITAL DOCTRINE, SAYS WM. T. ELLIS

Union Seminary Debate Will Be Forgotten, but This Will Live—Rigid Orthodoxy of Assemblies Revealed in Many Ways

By William T. Ellis

TWO of the three Presbyterian assemblies have come up to the dangerous rock of theology. Today is a day of debate and discussion in the U. S. and U. S. A. meetings, and the issue that lies beneath the questions is whether Presbyterians hold to the old faith or are lax and "liberal" in their doctrinal views.

The crowds that thronged the Tabernacle yesterday at the hour of debate over the Union Theological Seminary report were couler evidence of the intense and widespread interest in the subject. A great debate was expected, and nobody was disappointed. The greatest convictions of the human mind and heart were stirred.

The onslaught made upon Union Seminary was terrific. A veteran editor compared his attack with the charge that the seminary taught Hindoo philosophy, and cried "If the Lord be God, follow Him; if this Baal of pan-theistic philosophy, follow it."

To a good many commissioners, all this seems a bit beside the issue, and does a real injustice to the New York institution. The president, Dr. Francis Brown, pointed out that Union Seminary asks nothing of the assembly, and did not itself initiate these conferences for closer relation. The assembly asked Union to meet with its committee, which assignment the seminary cordially and courteously accepted. Having come into the composite Presbyterian dwelling as a guest, the unexpecting seminary is being branded and kicked down stairs.

THE REAL DOCTRINAL ISSUE

The real doctrinal issue, which is in the Union Seminary case only by implication, was up when the catechism report was presented yesterday morning. This was a straight-cut statement of credal belief. It told the world what the Presbyterian church believes on all essential doctrines. It puts these teachings into form for even the children to learn. It is theology in modern language. Here are clearest and most unequivocal statements concerning the inspiration of the scriptures, the Virgin birth, the incarnation, the Resurrection. Upon this momentous document, the assembly voted in an overwhelming affirmative. After the Union Seminary debate has been forgotten, this catechism, which is the first, by the way, that the Presbyterian church in this country has ever adopted, will be affecting the thinking of ten of thousands of persons.

That every one of these three assemblies is rigidly orthodox is revealed in many ways. When the Northern church was passing resolutions favorable to a world conference on faith and order, it was particularly stipulated that "No church shall be invited to participate in the proposed conference which does not positively declare its faith in and obedience to Jesus Christ as God and Saviour."

AN EMBARASSING OVERTURE

In this connection arose the first embarassing situation that has been created between the U. S. and the U. S. A. churches. It has been clearly understood that the desire of the U. S. church was that no negotiations looking to formal organic union should be initiated at this time. Leaders in the larger church have been talking for months about the possibility of some enthusiastic commissioner arising and proposing such a resolution, which might be carried under the impulse of the dominant fellowship of the occasion. That is exactly what has been done, only, instead of some guileless commissioner, it was the astute and veteran stated clerk, Rev. Dr. William H. Roberts, who made the motion for closer organic union of all Presbyterian bodies, the same proposition to be submitted straightway to the U. S. and U. P. assemblies. The matter was brought forward through the action of the Reformed church in the U. S., and while the largest of the three assemblies was putting it through with cheers, the assembly in the North Avenue church was taking action in favor of a more cautious and deliberate procedure. Now the U. S. assembly is confronted with the embarassing condition of having to say that it is not prepared to enter into union negotiations with the U. S. A. assembly at the present time.

SOUTHERNER THE CAUSE.

If a brilliant southern orator had but made a speech which swept the Northern Assembly clear of its moorings, the sense of deliberation would not have been lost. Rev. Dr. Thornton Whaling, president of Columbia Theological seminary, had brought fraternal greetings: "The salutations of your nearest living relative." He made the greatest speech of the assembly thus far. It was oratory at its best—perfect mastery of men, the witchery of words, and a passion of idealism that spoke to the heart. Dr. Whaling alluded to notes as the vision which haunts our homes, said with consummate grace and tact, he paid a tribute to Union Theological seminary, where he, the head of the most conservative seminary in the land, once had been a student. An ovation transcending anything the assembly yet had seen followed the peroration, which was a quotation from scripture, "God having some better things in store for us, that you, without us, could not be made perfect."

In connection with the discussion of ministerial relief and sustentation, several interesting facts were brought forward. The average salary of the Presbyterian minister in active service is $720 a year. A maximum annuity of $600 is now allowed to retired ministers. Missionaries, home and foreign, lay and clerical, men and women, also may become beneficiaries of this board.

A POWERFUL SPEECH.

Several great speeches were made on this theme, but the most powerful, and, it was a real triumph, was the maiden speech of the new secretary of the board, Rev. William Hiram Foulkes, D. D., of Swarthmore, Pa. Dr. Foulkes held that great throng enraptured for forty minutes. The other end of the ministerial question, the recruiting of candidates, was up later in the day when the secretary of the board

PHAGAN CASE GOES TO THE GRAND JURY IN PRESENT FORM

Solicitor and Detectives Are Ready With Evidence and Will Present Bills for Jury's Consideration Friday

CAN FRANK INTRODUCE WITNESSES IN DEFENSE?

This Question Is Being Considered by Solicitor—Another Report That Mary Phagan Was Seen Saturday P. M.

The Fulton county grand jury will commence its investigation of the murder of Mary Phagan on Friday, not Thursday morning, according to an announcement from the solicitor general's office.

Unless there is an important development before that time, and none is considered likely, the names of only two suspects, Leo M. Frank, superintendent of the National Pencil factory, and Newt Lee, negro night watchman, will be presented to the grand jury by the solicitor.

The grand jury hearing may consume two or three days, although it is possible that the body will be willing to return either a true bill or a no bill in one or both cases, after hearing only the principal witnesses.

While it has never been the custom of Solicitor Hugh M. Dorsey to allow defendants and witnesses for the defendant before a grand jury hearing, it is said to be probable that an effort will be made to introduce witnesses in behalf of Mr. Frank.

Solicitor Dorsey would not be quoted on the matter, but he is said to be looking up the law on the subject in order that he may be ready to combat any effort of Mr. Frank's counsel or friends to introduce testimony favorable to him.

Only a short time ago members of a grand jury called Dr. W. H. Gilliam, against whom a bill was pending, before the body to answer the charge, but Gilliam appeared there in the presence of the solicitor general.

A solicitor friend of another circuit declares that in his opinion members of the grand jury may call anyone they desire before them, regardless of whether the person summoned has business to offer the grand jury.

The only test of this opinion of the law which is said to exist is if members of the grand jury should attempt to introduce any evidence which will be calculated to "upset" the theory of the crime held by the state.

The four-cornered hunt for the slayer of Mary Phagan was very active Tuesday, the entry of C. W. Tobin, the Burns investigator, into the case having served only to intensify the interest of the other investigators. There are now in progress two practically separate probes of the crime. On the one side of this case is Solicitor General Dorsey and his attaches; on another or any other detectives; on the third side the Pinkertons, and on the fourth side the Burns men, who have been brought into the case by Attorney Thomas B. Felder.

The fact that Solicitor General Dorsey is now ready for the case to go before the grand jury, is regarded as evidence that he considers the investigation as practically complete. While Chief of Detectives Newport Lanford will make no direct statement, he intimates that he, too, considers the case at practically complete.

The Burns investigators were reported Tuesday to have found evidence that would establish as a fact that Mary Phagan had been alive between noon and 1 p. m. on Saturday, April 26. Whether they have a witness who will testify to this or have unearthed circumstantial evidence to substantiate the story is not known.

C. W. Tobin, the Burns investigator, left his hotel early Tuesday morning and had not appeared at his office up to noon in the afternoon.

Attorney Thomas B. Felder states that he has heard nothing from Tobin since Monday at 11 o'clock.

To Office Workers

May is the month of changes in office help and the stenographer or clerk who is out of a position, or wants a change can profit by the opportunities that are being presented every day.

These chances are not going to come to you. You must seek them out and the place where you can find them ALL is in The Journal Want Columns. There they are, every day, if you will only look them up.

Sometimes, however, merely reading Journal Want Ads doesn't bring the results required. In order to make a sure thing of it you should spend a few cents and run a little Journal Want Ad of your own, telling just what you want. This is almost certain to bring the desired position to your door.

WOMEN'S MEETINGS CAME TO A CLOSE ON TUESDAY

Sessions Have Been Held Since Thursday—Some of the Exhibits

With meetings Tuesday afternoon at the Central Congregational church, the conference of the Woman's Board of Home and Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian church U. S. A. will come to a close.

This, the twenty-fourth annual meeting has been in progress since Thursday with morning and afternoon sessions daily at which much work has been done and in all its phases and some of the foremost women workers in the country have addressed the assembly.

The home mission board has been material for meetings in the main auditorium of the church, the foreign board in the assembly room in the basement. The exhibits of the foreign board take up the whole lower floor of the building and are some of the most interesting that have ever been shown in Atlanta. Begins the age of the foreign board (Tuesday afternoon Tuesday) morning, but the exhibits may be seen throughout the rest of the week.

Here are strange objects from countries and nations whose workers have prayed and had maps which show will outline after the program of the work engaged in by the workers of every description to tell of their experiences and their gratitude and the triumphs of the cause they represent.

One side of the room is almost totally covered by a wonderful map of the world showing the prevailing religions and the extent of the progress which Christianity is making in each. On long tables are arranged in length and breadth and fantastic exhibits from Africa, Australasia and the South and Far East, with a collection of some bribal average placed within a few feet of a table of exhibits shipped from Japan.

Although the exhibits of the foreign board are not the least interesting figure in the assembly the meetings in the main body of the church under the auspices of the home board have been more strongly general crowds daily.

There are nearly fifty accredited delegates present, every school in the United States being represented save one. Besides the regular delegates, hundreds of visiting women have attended every meeting.

Tuesday morning the chief address was by Mrs. D. H. Wells of Chicago, Master of the Bible, who has been at the new mission book which will be used for study next year. Following an interesting half hours talk from Mrs. Wells she was asked hundreds of questions by interested workers in the audience. These were given to her in written form and, in hardly ten minutes she had successfully replied to nearly all of them.

A Conference was held following Mrs. Wells' talk between the presidents and secretaries and treasurers of the home mission work especially the relation between headquarters and officers in the mission field were discussed.

The morning was ended by the recognition of the life and honorary members constituted during the past year. The payment of $100 at one time makes a life member, and an honorary member and a life member on payment of $25. Honorary members are accorded special privileges.

The list showed that there are now 1,000 life members, about all but 50 of whom have joined during the past year. Pennsylvania leads the list with twenty-five.

The morning session adjourned at 12:45 o'clock.

Tuesday afternoon business will be resumed mostly with routine work this being the closing session of the home board meeting. Reports and resolutions of the committees have all been worked up out of the time.

The home board has not yet decided on a president. Mrs. D. H. Wells of New York will be elected first vice president and Mrs. A. Crane of New Jersey will be chosen second vice president. Other officers will be elected.

The field on Tuesday afternoon will be devoted more for young people. Some of the topics which will be discussed are: who is responsible for the young people's loyalty, practical methods, "Are special rallies for young people advisable?" a small debate upon the question of the young people's "Should gifts from young people be applied on the war of the woman's society?" "What are we doing to prepare leaders?" Home and Mission.

of bad grammar, bad English and bad theology. Immediately cries for the previous question were heard and the sound of the moderator's gavel could scarcely be heard above the calls.

"It is outrageous," he declared, "that such things could happen in a Presbyterian gathering." His voice was drowned in more calls for the question when, Dr. Clyce acting as moderator finally restored order and announced that the moderator was fully able to cope with the situation.

"We only contend," said Dr. Wells, "that the statement be approved with the amendments and distributed in printed form merely as a tract for the information of church members, and ask the committee on publication to attend to this matter for us."

Dr. Mahn, on a point of personal privilege, was again given the floor and made an earnest plea to the assembly to vote down the favorable report of the special committee and continue on the old platform of the church.

At the conclusion of his speech a motion to allow each commissioner five minutes in which to express his views was lost and the arguments continued. In support of the minority, E. L. Wilson, of Oklahoma City, declared that the two catechisms of the church were sufficient for a brief statement and that no other form was necessary.

Supporting the committee's report several ministers and commissioners declared their belief that the brief statement would prove of great value to the poorer classes and make plain to them the doctrines of the church in its condensed form.

DR. STRICKLER SPEAKS

There were calls for Dr. G. B. Strickler of Union seminary, to deliver an address on the statement expressing his view thoroughly on the question. By a vote of 86 to 41 the assembly decided in favor of Dr. Strickler speaking on the question for an unlimited period at the afternoon session.

DROPS WORD POPULAR

The brief statement as presented to the assembly by the committee drops the word "popular" in the caption and reads as follows:

"A brief statement drawn from the standards of the Presbyterian church in the United States." Originally it stood, "A brief popular statement of the belief of the Presbyterian church in the United States."

Only a minor change is made in the first paragraph of the statement. The second, however, has been changed to read as follows:

"The scriptures of the old and new Testaments written by men inspired by the holy spirit are the word of God. They are the revelation of God's will for man and of man's duty to God, and are the only infallible and authoritative rule of faith and life."

SOME MORE CHANGES

There is one minor change in paragraphs seven, ten and twelve.

Paragraph eight, "Christ the Redeemer," has been changed to read as follows:

"The Lord Jesus Christ, being the eternal Son of God became truly man, being conceived by the Holy Ghost and born of the Virgin Mary, yet without sin, so that he is both God and man, and the only perfect mediator between God and man by whom alone we can come unto the Father." The remainder of this paragraph remains intact.

Following the discussion on the committee's report, Dr. Clyce said that he understood that Dr. R. E. Reed, one of the original committee named to prepare the statement, would open it with the amendments despite the fact that he did not put his name on the original. This was heartily endorsed by applause.

Champions of the report, who are greatly in the majority, are confident that the address of Dr. Strickler during the afternoon will throw light on the matter and put an end to all debate that marred the tranquility of the morning session.

Under the agreement of the text fathers the question came to a vote immediately following this speech.

At 12:45 the conference adjourned until 2 o'clock.

COMMITTEE REPORTS

Lengthy committee reports submitted to the assembly on Monday and read in the minutes occupied the first half hour of the session following the usual devotional service from 3 until 3:15 o'clock.

The regular announcements of Dr. Richard Orme Flinn, pastor of the North Avenue Presbyterian church called special attention to the middle meetings in the Grand opera house under the direction of Dr. Goodewill. He urged all who could do so to attend these gatherings and lend their hearty support to this phase of the assemblies.

The second manifestation of the good will of the United Presbyterian church toward an organic union with the Presbyterian church in the United States came shortly after the opening of the session when Dr. George McCormick, pastor of the United Presbyterian church of Salinas, Cal., was recognized by the moderator as a fraternal delegate from the United assembly.

SPEAKS UPON UNION

Dr. McCormick referred directly to the proposed union of the two bodies and to the report of the "basis of union," prepared by a joint committee from the two assemblies and adopted by both with the provision that action be deferred for a year.

In expressing the greetings of his church, the speaker declared that he believe the union, if not completed, his likened the matter to an old Scotch story in which the main explanation to an anxious maid that he intended to wed her but was "not quite through with the courting."

"That is just the position on our part," he declared. "We, the union of these two great Christian bodies is sure to come, but we are not quite through with our courting."

He made direct reference to the action of the Southern Presbyterians in declining to appoint an "ad interim committee" to confer with certain other churches toward a union with the general western presbyterian, and expressed the appreciation of the united church that their overtures would be considered.

FRATERNITY ACKNOWLEDGED

Dr. McCormick was received warmly and answered by Dr. J. R. Lyons, the moderator, who expressed the same fraternal feelings for the other branch of the church.

A further incident of the feeling of good fellowship among the three branches of the church was brought out in a request through Dr. Lyons from Dr. J. P. Bone, moderator of the northern church, that a special prayer be offered for the guidance of the general general assemblies.

MORE MINISTERS WANTED BY THE U. P. ASSEMBLY

United Presbyterians Spent the Morning With Routine Committee Business

The United Presbyterian assembly spent the entire morning Tuesday in the routine of committee reports which were read with little comment and without exception adopted by viva voce vote.

The only diversion from the routine was an attempt, later withdrawn, by Dr. John A. Henderson to have the question as to which board should handle the Sabbath school work referred to a special committee.

The assembly had wrangled over this question for two hours the afternoon before and apparently had no desire to reopen the discussion.

PROVIDE FOR DR. EMILEY.

Dr. L. W. Williamson said some provision should be made for Mr. W. B. Smiley, whose office of secretary of the Sabbath school board was abolished by the action of the assembly Monday afternoon. The moderator pointed out that the assembly had not dismissed Dr. Smiley, that his office had simply been abolished, and that the matter was apparently satisfactorily settled.

Dr. Henderson was warmly applauded when he withdrew his resolution and the assembly settled again into routine work.

The keynote of the session was plead by the committees on theological seminaries and the committee on visitation of the colleges for more theological students. There was a deplorable decrease, it was stated, in the number of young men studying for the ministry.

These reports were adopted with little discussion, however, also those of the committees on education and women's board.

REPORT ON WOMEN'S BOARD.

The report on women's board showed that during the past year the women have sent out the largest party of unmarried women missionaries in the history of the church, that "our bank offering is the largest in our history; that every department of the work is gradually increasing, and the year closes without a deficit."

The assembly heard inspiring addresses by Mrs. Ada Kerr Wilson and Mrs. H. C. Campbell, representing the board.

DESERTED BY FATHER AND WITH MOTHER IN ALMS HOUSE, TINY BLIND GIRL NEEDS ASSISTANCE

Associated Charities Appeals Through Journal for Funds With Which to Provide for Unfortunate Little Tot Until She Is Old Enough to Enter State Institution.

Does the thought of an exceptionally bright little girl, only three years old, who is totally and incurably blind, who has been deserted by her father, and whose mother is in the almshouse, appeal to you?

This little girl is now in the keeping of the Associated Charities and they are appealing for her through The Journal for the necessary funds to place her in an institution for the care of blind children until she is old enough to be received by the Georgia State Asylum for the Blind. She must be seven years of age to enter there.

For $180 a year she can be placed in an institution where she will receive the best medical attention and the best mental, moral and physical training and care.

She is a child with a particularly bright mind and with the proper training can be developed into a capable, self-supporting woman. The Associated Charities vouch for the deservedness of this case and want one or more persons to take care of the amount necessary to save this helpless little child. This would be a more lasting memorial than any that could be built.

This child must be taken care of by the Associated Charities for four years, and the investment of a few hundred dollars in this cause will pay untold dividends.

Won't you, who are more fortunate, or you who have suffered, help this pitiful little child?

Send the amount of your investment to R. C. Logan, secretary Associated Charities, Gould building, Atlanta.

NEW UNDERTAKING CO. BEGINS BUSINESS HERE

A. O. and Roy Donehoo Open Funeral Parlors on Marietta Street

Another undertaking establishment has been started in Atlanta by the Donehoo brothers, who are well known in Atlanta, having been engaged in business here for a number of years.

Handsomely equipped funeral parlors have just been opened by A. O. and Roy Donehoo at 28 Marietta street, just across from the First Presbyterian church.

The building occupied by this company was erected especially for funeral parlors. The chapel is spacious and shaped like a cathedral; the office and reception parlors are large, dry, comfortable and homelike; the display room carries with it a fine line of caskets.

The members of the new company are R. A. Donehoo, president, A. O. Donehoo, vice president, and A. O. Donehoo, secretary and treasurer. These men are all too well and favorably known in Atlanta to need any introduction.

The new company will maintain a private ambulance service and will furnish flowers, carriages and other incidentals to a modern funeral directing business.

...ny be stated to an individual whose name has not been divulged, that she had ...ard a conversation of importance in ...e case.

A man went to get this information ...rom the reporter; that one couldn't get it unless he took her to the Governor, and ...e wanted the state to pay the bill.

The matter appeared as an "alibi" to the effect that it was dropped.

Another rumor is the theory of the attorney that little Mary Phagan went to the pencil factory after she entered the building at noon on the day of the murder to get her pay, developed Tuesday morning in the shape of a letter to The Journal. Mrs. A. A. Brim, of 98 West Harlem street, write declaring that she overheard a remark made on the street following the murder to a girl who proved to be a friend of Mary Phagan, girl at work at the factory on Saturday, April 26. Her letter follows:

Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Editor: On Monday, May 5, 1913, between 4 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon, on Whitehall street in front of J. M. High's, I heard three ladies in conversation. One was a rather stout lady, who I guess was about 40 years old; the other two were girls. I did not see the expression of the two older ladies as closely as I did the younger one, for the reason that the younger lady did most of the talking.

These ladies were talking about the Phagan case. The younger one said she did not like the looks of Mr. Frank's face. She said that she believed Jeffries was the guilty man. She said that she knew Mary Phagan and said that she was a very good girl. She said that Friday afternoon about 4 o'clock on Memorial day after the parade had ended, one of the other ladies said if she knew that, she ought to tell it to the authorities.

I was deeply impressed with the sincerity of the lady without a name and have deeply regretted that I did not ask her name. I strongly have felt upon this subject that I have dared to write this card, hoping the ladies referred to in some way communicate with the editor of this paper. I suggest the editor, because I believe that the editor would favor the information and would see that the information given will be fairly used. I have no possible interest in the Phagan case, except to see justice done. Will no one give this matter such publicity as will bring a reply from the ladies mentioned? Very truly yours,

MRS. C. A. SMITH,

98 W. Peachtree street, Atlanta, Ga.
