Three Men Held for Mysterious Stabbing

Painter Slashed at Vaduct, Unable to Tell Who Cut Him, Is Also Arrested by Police.

Three men were held in the police station Saturday as the result of the mysterious stabbing of W. C. Joiner, a painter living at 455 Whitehall Street.

Joiner, who was badly slashed across the face, said he was cut by a man he did not know, who ran past him on Viaduct Way, near Peachtree Street. L. Edge, a salesman, of 731 Woodward Avenue, and T. C. Lampkin and W. F. Lampkin, father and son, of 33 Simpson Street, on the viaduct at the time, were arrested.

Edge admitted he ran through Viaduct Way to board a car, but denied doing the cutting.

Joiner is also held in the police station.

Sell Tags to Help Seek Missing Girl

NEWCASTLE, IND., May 10.—A tag day in every city in Indiana was planned to-day by friends of Dr. W. C. Winters, father of Katherine Winters, the missing Newcastle girl who has not been heard from since March 21.

Thousands of tags were being sold on the streets of Newcastle to-day in an effort to raise a large fund to be used in prosecuting the search for the little girl.

VIRGINIA MAN GROWS WONDERFUL CANTALOUPE

RICHMOND, VA., May 10.—Charles A. Gitchell, of Louisa, Va., has perfected a wonderful cantaloupe after years of patient effort and experiment in crossing the imported French seeds with the Rocky Ford and native varieties. He has produced a cantaloupe which will keep for months after it is cut from the vine and which is superior in flavor and quality to the melon which made Colorado

Bulgaria and Servia Agree to Peace Pact

Rumor of Threatened Hostilities Started for Political Purposes, Believed in Austria.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

VIENNA, May 10.—Threatened hostilities between Bulgaria and Servia have been avoided, according to dispatches published to-day in the official press. These said the two Balkan countries had reached an agreement respecting the redivision of the territory conquered from Turkey.

As a mark of pacific intention, each country has agreed to demobilize as soon as peace is declared.

Many persons in officialdom believe recent reports of dissension in the Balkan League were encouraged by the members of the confederation for political purposes.

FOURTH INNING.

Breen grounded in front of the plate and was out, Graham to Agler. Wares filed to Rohe. Jantzan filed to Rohe. NO RUNS.

Welchonce lined to Jantzan. Smith walked and was out at second trying to steal, Gribbens to Spratt. Bisland filed to Sloan. NO RUNS.

Vegetable Wagon Merely Liquor Van

Negro Seen Taking Sack From Vehicle, and, Pursued, Cornered With Contraband Goods.

When a countryman early Saturday drove through Haynes Street crying out fresh country vegetables for sale, James Crawford, a negro, was seen to step into the street and lift from the bottom of the wagon a half filled tow sack.

Other negroes thought him a thief and gave chase. Crawford ran into a building at Haynes and Dover Streets, where he was cornered and held until Police Call Officers Cochran and Long arrived. The sack was found to contain a wholesale supply of liquor.

The negro admitted to the police that he had bought the liquor from the "vegetable man," declaring the farmer was selling liquor from the wagon and was merely using the vegetables as a blind. A search was made for the farmer, but he could not be found.

Recorder Broyles fined the negro $50.75.

Bankers Look Upon Atlanta With Favor

Joseph A. McCord and J. K. Ottley Confident Convention Will Come Here After Invitation.

Atlanta has an excellent chance to be convention city for the American Bankers' Association in 1914.

Joseph A. McCord, vice president of the Third National Bank, returned Saturday from a meeting of the Executive Council of the association at Briarcliff, N. Y., expressing confidence that the annual gathering will be held here next year. Mr. McCord and J. K. Ottley, vice president of the Fourth National, carried the Atlanta Clearing House invitation. Mr. McCord said they met with a hearty reception.

"I think we shall have the honor of playing host," said Mr. McCord. "Up to the present time, no other city has extended an invitation. Competition, though, usually is keen when the general convention meets.

DARDEN SUES TO TAKE CHILDREN FROM HIS WIFE

Convicted Slayer of C. M. Goddard Swears Out Habeas Corpus Writ.

Elmer T. Darden, convicted slayer, swore out a writ of habeas corpus Saturday to take from his wife, Naomi Carter Darden, the custody of their four children, on the grounds that she is not a fit person to have the care of them.

Darden is under bond pending a hearing of an appeal of his case. He was sentenced to three years on the chaingang for killing C. M. Goddard, despite his plea of the "unwritten law."

A temporary injunction, granted by Judge J. T. Pendleton, was served on Mrs. Darden Saturday at her home on Crew Street, just as she was preparing to leave for the station to take a train for Vermont. Judge Pendleton named May 17 as the date for the trial, and in the meantime Mrs. Darden was commanded not to leave the county.

The children are Naomi, age twelve; Elmer T., Jr., age ten; Rodney, age six, and Emma, age three.

Darden alleged that his wife, from whom he is separated, intended to take the children to a permanent home outside the State of Georgia. He said the responsibility for their education and care rested mainly on him and he wanted them taken from her.

Darden is represented by Attorneys John S. McClelland and W. M. Smith.

Attorney Attacks Savannah Charity

SAVANNAH, GA., May 10.—James Gazan, an attorney, scathingly denounced the Savannah Associated Charities in police court to-day during the hearing of Annie May Bacon, a 16-year-old girl, charged with the theft of a bicycle. Miss Helen Pendleton, general secretary of the Associated Charities, was prevented from replying by a ruling of the Recorder. The girl was finally turned over to the attorney, who promised to look after her.

"All the Associated Charities does is to investigate and investigate," he said, "and while they investigate the unfortunates starve."

Miss Pendleton was visibly excited when she left the court room.

The action of Attorney Gazan was voluntary. He had not been retained to defend the girl.

Dental Inspection In Schools Urged

Chamber of Commerce to Ask Council for Appointment of Examiners for Pupils.

Proper dental inspection of the school children of Atlanta will be urged upon the City Council by the Chamber of Commerce. The appointment of dentists to make regular inspections and to see that children having teeth complaint receive proper treatment, will be recommended.

The city already has a method of medical inspection which has given material results. It is proposed to have dentists work in connection with the physicians, many of the children's ills being laid to the fact that their teeth are being neglected.

Dr. C. M. Barnwell, chairman of the dentistry committee of the Chamber of Commerce, has called a meeting of the committee for 5:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Finn Wins Marathon; Church Boy Second

NEW YORK, May 10.—Hannes Kohlemannen, the Finn, won the 13 3-8mile Marathon race run here this afternoon against a field of 1,500 starters. His time for the distance was 1 hour 5 minutes 15 3-5 seconds. Harry Smith, of the Bronx Church House Athletic Club, was second. He finished over one minute behind Kohlemannen.

GUARD OF SECRECY IS THROWN ABOUT PHAGAN SEARCH BY SOLICITOR

Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey declared Saturday afternoon that he was very well satisfied with the progress made in the investigation of the Phagan murder mystery and made the significant remark that he would not reveal the names of new witnesses so that manufacturers of public opinion could not get to them.

The Solicitor held a conference with Dr. H. F. Harris, of the State Board of Health, who examined the girl's body. Dr. Harris said he would rush his report in time for presentation to the Grand Jury when that body takes up the mystery next week. The Solicitor would not reveal just what the physician has learned so far.

The examination of the blood-stained shirt in the back yard of Newt Lee's home was also continued, and the Solicitor was far from convinced that its significance had been rightly determined.

Mr. Dorsey worked all day Saturday on the case and announced that he would continue all of Sunday so that he could present his evidence to the Grand Jury as early as possible next week.

Confers With City Sleuths.

A conference was held with the city detectives, who are working in co-operation with the State, but none of the details could be learned. Strict secrecy is being maintained regarding new developments.

Evidence "exclusive and valuable" in the Mary Phagan case has been obtained. So much the Solicitor said to-day, and no more, declaring details of the evidence would be revealed at the proper time.

The evidence is the result of work by private detectives engaged by the Solicitor, among them one whom he termed "the best detective in America," when speaking of him Friday.

He mentioned the important evidence when he discussed the statement by Monteen Stover, the 14-year-old employee of the National Pencil Company, that is in direct contradiction to the testimony by Leo M. Frank, the suspected factory superintendent.

Other Evidence More Important.

The Solicitor was interested in the girl's statement, but declared that the other evidence in his hands was far more important and tangible.

In opposition to the testimony of Leo M. Frank in the Mary Phagan inquest was the statement of the Stover girl. The evidence that she will bear is to the effect that she was in Frank's office at 12:05 o'clock and a little later on the Saturday afternoon preceding the discovery of the slain girl's body, and that she found it deserted.

According to Frank's testimony, he was in his office from 12 o'clock until 12:25, when Lemmie Quinn, his foreman, came in. During that time, he said, Mary Phagan came in, about 12:05 o'clock, to receive her pay.

Monteen Stover is certain that she reached Frank's office at exactly 12:05 o'clock. She has been retained as an important witness.

Remembers the Time.

"The minute I got to the office floor when I went up to get my pay," she said, "I looked at the clock. I wanted to know if it was time to draw my money. I would have looked at it, anyhow, I suppose, as it is always customary for me to punch it the first thing upon entering the place to go to work.

"It was five minutes after 12. I was sure Mr. Frank would be in his office, so I stepped in. He wasn't in the outer office, and I went into the inner office. He wasn't there, either. I thought he might have been somewhere around the building, so I waited.

"The whole place was awfully quiet. It was scary. When he didn't show up in a few minutes, I went to the door and looked around the machinery. He wasn't there. I stayed until the clock hand was pointing exactly to 12:10. Then I went down-

GLAD HAND FOR SHRINE SPECIAL ALL ALONG LINE

JACKSON, MISS., May 10.—(Special.)—Jackson men and women are going back to their Saturday afternoon duties with a smile that won't come off for days. They have just met the "Yaarab Special" from Atlanta that made its joyous way through the city, and they will not soon forget the meeting.

It is a wonderful party, this bunch that Atlanta has sent to the convention in Dallas to bring back assurance of the Shriners' convention in Atlanta for next year. At least, all Jackson feels that way about it.

And Jackson wishes them well. A fair bit of the city was at the station this afternoon to greet them and to tell them of their good wishes.

The crowd grew. A delegation was there at first to ask Forrest Adair and some of the others to speak, but everybody spoke. This was no day for formality. The more the talking the more the singing, the closer became the ties between Atlanta and Jackson.

Then one of the Atlanta men, whose name could not be ascertained because of the general melee leaped in full view of the populace. He was a stout blonde.

Sure, Everybody Was Happy.

"Is everybody happy?" he shouted.

Jackson, Miss., assured him everybody was.

Enterprising newspaper men of the Mississippi capital sought to interview dignitaries among the party. They were met by an imposing delegation, who, after much deliberation, produced a signed statement.

It was as follows:

"We are going to bring back the bacon.

"J. LEE BARNES.
"FRED PATTERSON,
"GRAHAM PHELAN,
"JESSE COUCH,
"W. A. FOSTER."

Then, all too soon, the train pulled out, according to the unsympathetic railroad schedule, which was not alive to the fact that Jackson, Miss., was having the time of its life and that there was an intermingling of souls not often experienced.

Jackson came to this conclusion: The men whom Atlanta Shriners picked to represent Atlanta's cause are irresistible.

Still Anxious About "Joy."

The "Yaarab Special" made its way west. The stout blonde gentleman was on the observation platform when the train passed into the distance, and he was still requesting information as to the happiness of Jacksonites.

stairs. I could see nor hear no one."

The testimony of Monteen Stover was obtained by detectives when they quizzed her the Saturday following the killing of Mary Phagan. The girl and her mother, Mrs. Homer Edmondson, of 171 South Forsyth Street, came to the factory to get the pay which the girl did not get the week before.

Stopped by Detectives.

In the office were detectives, eager to seize every available bit of information. They stopped Mrs. Edmondson and the girl, and were rewarded by Monteen's statement that she had been in Frank's office on the afternoon of the fatal day.

Monteen Stover said she did not know Mary Phagan, and probably had never seen her. She commended Frank as being popular with his employees, and kind.

Another development within the last 24 hours has been the elimination of another clew. The "woman in red," a mysterious figure reported to have been seen with Mary Phagan at the pencil factory, has been located. She is Mrs. Nancy Caldwell, of 10 Gray Street, an acquaintance of the dead girl. Examination revealed the fact, however, that she had not been with Mary Phagan in a year. The rumor of her association with the Phagan girl on the afternoon of the killing started in the mistaken statement of a girl at Mapleton.

Developed also evidence from a young woman whose name will not be revealed that the girl probably came to her death in the basement of the factory, and not in the upstairs lathe room. The following affidavit, subscribed to by a young woman who passed the factory about 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, April 26, is in the possession of Solicitor Dorsey, given him by Chief of Detectives Lanford.

The testimony is that as she passed the Forsyth Street entrance to the factory she was attracted by the shrill screams of a girl, coming, apparently, from the basement of the building. The cries were loud and piercing, and she stopped, hearing three sharp screams in rapid succession. Then the factory became quiet again.

Neither Chief Lanford nor Solicitor Dorsey would reveal the name of the young woman informant nor anything regarding her identity, except that she lives on Haynes Street.

MOVE TO STOP CONFIRMATION OF MRS. HAM

WASHINGTON, May 10.—A movement to have the name of Mrs. H. W. J. Ham withdrawn as postmaster at Gainesville is understood to be under way here, although Representative Thomas M. Bell, Congressman from the Ninth District, says he is not a party to it.

It is well known that Congressman Bell feels keenly the turning down of his recommendation in the Gainesville matter, as he thinks, Gainesville being his home town, his wishes should have prevailed. Then, too, the Congressman had an engagement with the President the day after Mrs. Ham's name was sent to the Senate, to discuss the Gainesville postmastership.

Name Sent Accidentally.

President Wilson addressed a note to Mr. Bell, telling him the name was sent in through inadvertance, as he had not intended making the nomination that day. He, however, said nothing about changing the situation.

Since the appointment was sent in, Congressman Bell has not been to the White House. The movement to have Mrs. Ham's name withdrawn has been inaugurated by friends of all the parties concerned, in the hope of avoiding that which now seems likely to develop considerable feeling in Congressional circles.

Bell Not to Ask Recall.

Congressman Bell said to-day: "I understand there is talk of a movement to ask the President to withdraw Mrs. Ham's name, one reason being that on the President's own admission the name was sent to the Senate inadvertently. I shall make no such request. However, I would do so if I had information that my candidate, Mr. A. S. Hardy, would be appointed. I have nothing directly against the appointment of Mrs. Ham, but I earnestly and sincerely desired the appointment of the man I had indorsed."

Mr. Bell said he knew nothing of any plan to make a fight on Mrs. Ham's name when it comes up for confirmation by the Senate, and the possibility of such a fight was denied at the offices of both Senator Bacon and Senator Smith.

It is the disposition of the Georgia delegation to leave the matter in the hands of the President. If he indicates that he would appoint Mr. Hardy, then Mr. Bell will ask him to withdraw the name of Mrs. Ham, but unless such information is forthcoming, Mrs. Ham's name will probably be confirmed.

The President was not at the White House to-day and no information could be obtained there.

Mrs. Longstreet talked with a number of friends in the capital and will go before the Senate nominating committee to protest against her removal. Her protest will be that her work has not been unsatisfactory to Gainesville people.

An announceemnt from Congressman Thomas M. Bell that he would issue a statement to the public regarding the Gainesville postoffice created quite a sensation among the Georgians here.

Socialists May Fly Red Banner in Ohio

Attorney General Rules Those Who Interfere Are Liable to Arrest. Trouble Expected.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., May 10.—Attorney General Hogan to-day gave City Solicitor Bennett a written opinion to the effect that the Socialists here are entirely within their rights in displaying a red flag over their headquarters and that persons who interfere with it are liable to arrest.

Further trouble is expected here, and the city officials are preparing to make arrests if necessary to protect the lurid banner that floats over the highest building in town.

GOVERNMENT PRINTERS PROTEST WAGE SYSTEM

MACON, May 10.—Justice Joseph of numerous transfers in the linotype force of the Government printing office, which carry a reduction in salary, the employees of the linotype division adopted resolutions of protest "against an unjust, unfair, inaccurate and oppressive system that denies to them the right to know how their averages are computed and requirements necessary to obtain a fair and accurate rating."

Bride-to-Be Was Bride-in-Fact

Wedding Date Fixed for June 1 But Miss Slater Chose April 27

MRS. HOWELL B. SCHUMPERT.

Becomes Mrs. Howell B. Schumpert on Day She Announced Engagement.

Not content to wait until the first Sunday in June to be married, once their engagement had been announced, pretty Miss Lillian Dua Juan Slater, of 136 Rawson Street, and Howell B. Schumpert, 185 Washington Street, went to the parsonage of the Rev. W. C. Schaeffer on April 27—the day their friends were given notice of the impending marriage—and were wed. Their friends—even the bride's parents—will be surprised when they read the news to-day.

From parents, friends and acquaintances the marriage has been kept secret. Miss Slater, or Mrs. Schumpert, going to her home and Schumpert to his boarding house. Since the marriage the newspapers have published the picture of the young woman as a pretty bride-to-be of June, and both have smiled, content to wait until a little rose-bower of a cottage in Stokes Avenue was finished for their occupancy.

Confesses When Shown Proofs.

Smiling gayly, Mrs. Schumpert admitted all the interesting details to-day when the records in the Ordinary's office were placed before her as conclusive proof that she had married ahead of time.

"Yes," she said. "Howell and I went to church on April 27, the day our engagement was made public. After the service he said he wanted to show me something, and he pulled out a marriage license he had bought. He wanted to get married right away, and I didn't see the use of waiting until June.

"So, with two friends, Miss Inez Roart and Marvin Beddingfield, whom we knew we could trust, we went around to Rev. Mr. Schaeffer's house and were married.

Even Father Doesn't Know.

"No, even my father doesn't know about it, but I don't think he will object, because he likes Howell, but I am sorry it came out to-day, as we wanted to wait until our house is finished before we told everybody.

"It was so funny to see my picture in the paper, saying that I was engaged, when I was really married, but we had decided not to tell, so we kept mum."

Wore Other Fellow's Roses.

Miss Slater, who works in the office of the auditor of the Atlanta and West Point Railroad, has been passing her husband's house in Washington Street every morning since the marriage. He has waited for her on the porch, and together they have strolled downtown, discussing the little house in Stokes Avenue, but saying never a word of the marriage.

"It was funny," said Mrs. Schumpert, "that I should have worn a bunch of roses on the night of my wedding that another fellow sent to me, but I didn't expect to get married until Howell showed me the marriage license."

COL. J. HAM LEWIS SETS WHITE HOUSE PRECEDENT

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, set a precedent to-day for all visitors to President Wilson at the White House.

He waited patiently long after the hour which Secretary Tumulty had fixed for him to see the President. When informed that his time had come he arose and apologized to the waiting company in the secretary's office for preceding them into the Executive's presence.

3,000 PUPILS IN FIELD CONTEST AT PONCY PARK

Spectacular drills and dances formed the feature of Saturday afternoon's program. Ranged in long, even rows on the baseball diamond, the white dresses of the little girls and blue trousers and white waists of the little boys waved in unison with the music of the band and the baton of the director. The children went through the intricate figures of the flag drill and the dances with a precision and beauty that gained for them generous applause from the crowded grandstand and bleachers.

At 5 o'clock the children who won medals in the athletic games Saturday morning will be given their prizes, and the point trophies will be awarded to the schools.

Eighty children competed in the games, about 50 being boys. The contests were conducted on the point basis, and up to 4 o'clock the judges had not yet completed their work of determining the winning schools and individuals.

Two Classes for Each Sex.

The boys and girls were divided into two classes each. Class A comprised boys over 13 years old; Class B boys under 13; Class A, girls over 13 years, and Class B, girls under 13 years of age. The events were the same for all classes, except the distance of the running races. Class A boys ran a hundred yards, Class B boys 60 yards, Class A girls 75 yards, and Class B girls 50 yards. Other events were the standing broad jump and the running high jump and chinning the bar. Instead of the latter event the girls hurled the basketball for distance. One entry was allowed in each class from each school.

In the feature event of the day, the running high jump for Class A boys, Mitchell Benton, 15 years old, of the Peeples Street School, tied with Russell Anstett, 15 years old, of the Edgewood School, for first place. Each jumped 56 inches.

Chamber to Work For Blue Sky Law

Bill Defeated in Past Years Will Go Before Next Legislature in More Complete Form.

The Blue Sky Law Committee of the Chamber of Commerce will meet Tusday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, H. M. Willet, chairman, issuing a call for the meeting Saturday morning.

The committee will consider a bill, drafted by Albert Howell, which it is proposed to submit to the Legislature. The measure is said to be much more complete than those the Chamber of Commerce has endeavored to have passed and conforms more to the wishes of some of the Legislators.

The proposed Blue Sky Law is to prevent the selling of wild cat stocks.

GLAD HAND FOR SHRINE SPECIAL AT EVERY STOP

will be served at Vicksburg, where the train crosses the Father of Waters and invades the West. Great doings are promised at the Hill City, though only a short stop can be made.

At 9 o'clock this evening the train is due in Shreveport, the second city of Louisiana. Shreveport has a bunch of live Shriners, and is in thorough sympathy with Yaarab's aspirations to play host to the Shrine in 1914.

A combination baggage car and coach, a tourist kitchen car, two standard Pullmans for the patrol and two Pullmans for the officers, representatives of Atlanta commercial bodies and nobles make up a train which never was surpassed in comfort.

"They travel like they owned the railroad," observed a train caller at Jackson.

Reach Dallas Sunday Morning.

John L. Meek, assistenat general passenger agent of the Southern, is in charge of the train. A. P. Matthews, division passenger agent of the Frisco lines, and N. C. Woodridge, southeastern passenger agent of the Texas and Pacific, assume charge when their lines are reached.

The special is to reach the Texas city at 5 o'clock Sunday morning. On arrival, Yaarab Temple drum corps will parade the streets. Returning, the special will come through Texarkana, Memphis and Birmingham. The return trip, it is confidently expected, will be a triumphal progress.

Atlanta Shriners Face Strong Competition.

DALLAS, TEXAS, May 10.—When Atlanta Shriners reach Dallas Sunday morning, they not only will find a warm welcome, but also some vigorous competitors for the 1914 Imperial Council.

The Georgians will be met at the train by Hella Temple Patrol and a band, not to mention a big reception committee. The delegation is due here at 5 o'clock. It has been arranged for them to parade to their headquarters at the Southland Hotel. Hundreds of adopted Texans from Georgia are "pulling" for Atlanta.

Fred Geisler, one of the advance guard of Atlanta Shriners, reached Dallas early yesterday and commenced to lay plans for capturing the 1914 convention for Atlanta.

"After a canvass of the situation," he asserted, "Atlanta stands the best chance. If Memphis were eliminated, I think he would win on the first ballot. With two Southern cities in the race, it will require much work to secure the convention. Baltimore is mentioned also as a strong factor, but I find Atlanta is in the lead."

Visit to Meridian as Lively as Circus Day.

MERIDIAN, MISS., May 10.—Circus day has nothing on to-day. All Meridian was astir early this morning to greet the Atlanta Shriners who passed through at 8 o'clock on their way to Dallas, where they will land the 1914 Council.

Meridian's patrol met the train in full uniform, and the Yaarab nobles, no longer sleepy, responded heartily to the welcome given them.

All the Atlantans were routed out and taken in autos to the best restaurant in town, where an old-fashioned Mississippi breakfast was served. Then began a trip around the city in automobiles. Thoughtful Meridian Shriners saw to it that a lady was put in charge of each car.

Mrs. D. F. White and Miss Bessie Kempton, of Atlanta, who are traveling with the Shriners, were the guests of honor, and were shown every courtesy the fertile genius of Mississippians could invent.

So enthusiastic were the Meridian hosts that the stopover had to be extended from an hour to an hour and a half.

Five Busy Days for Shriners at Dallas.

Monday: Registration; reception and luncheon to officers of patrols and bands at Scottish Rite Cathedral; entertainment for patrols and bands at Lake Cliff Casino; informal receptions at hotels and clubs for all visitors.

Tuesday: Escort of imperial divan from headquarters to cathedral by all patrols and bands; official opening of imperial council; entertainment for visiting ladies by the Federated Women's Clubs; Imperial Council dinner; automobile drives for wives of visiting nobles; band concert and races; grand parade and review.

Wednesday: Regular sessions of council; regimental review, massed band concert and exhibition drills; luncheon for Imperial Council; barbecue; ball.

Thursday: Delegates start on grand circuit tour of Texas; grand concert by all bands; polo games and athletic events.

2,000 Masons Wished Shriner Band Luck.

Fully 2,000 Masons bade Yaarab Temple "good-bye" and wished it luck Friday night at the Terminal Station when the Dallas special departed. The train pulled out at 10 o'clock for its long trip.

The drum corps led the march to the station, and roused reverberations which filled the ear drums of everyone who happened to be anywhere near the center of town last night.

Behind the drum corps marched the nobles, waving banners and shouting "Atlanta, 1914," which is the watchword.

Million Dollar Gift of Henry Phipps in Philadelphia to Eradicate in Disease Prevention.

PHILADELPHIA, May 10.—In the presence of many prominent medical men, scientists and philanthropists, the $1,000,000 Henry Phipps Tuberculosis Institute was opened here today. The institute is the gift of Henry Phipps, of New York, to the University of Pennsylvania. It is in the amount of money expended the largest gift yet made in the crusade against the white plague.

Henry Phipps, who was present, was presented with a degree of Doctor of Laws. Dr. Edward F. Smith, provost of the university, presided.

The Phipps Institute is not primarily a hospital, but an institute for the study, prevention of tuberculosis and education regarding the disease. Grosvenor Atterbury was architect. Dr. Charles J. Hattfield is executive director.

PLANS TO STOP MEN'S DODGING DUTY ON JURIES

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

Representative Minter Wimberly, of Bibb County, one of the few veterans to return to the Legislature, will introduce early in the forthcoming session a bill to abolish jury exemptions.

Primarily, this measure will be designed to stop the sale of jury exemptions to members of the military companies of the State, but it also will cover some other forms of exemptions now permitted by law.

The State now allows every military company regularly enlisted in the State's service a certain number of jury exemptions, and these may be used by members of the organizations, or sold to outsiders, as the company may elect. The practice has been to sell these exemptions for $25 per annum, the revenue resulting to the company to be applied to armory rent and other company expenses.

The result has been that the exemptions generally have operated to relieve well-to-do citizens in various cities, bankers, business men of large interests, and the like, from jury service, who otherwise would be required to do jury duty the same as the common or garden variety of folks.

Representative Wimberly thinks these citizens come from a class that should not be exempt from jury duty any more than others are exempt, and he particularly believes that there are many juries that need the services of bankers and business men of large interests, in order to insure fair and intelligent verdicts in matters involving the adjustment of financial affairs.

There has been a disposition in Georgia for a good many years to do away with these jury exemptions, and there is no doubt whatever that Mr. Wimberly's bill will receive hearty support in many quarters.

A great many people will sympathize with the Bibb County man's idea that all classes of citizens should perform their share of jury duty, unless prevented by illness, physical defect, extreme old age or positive disqualification for cause or interest in the persons or issues involved.

Believing that Georgia should have another United States District Court, and that Savannah should be the headquarters of the new district, a party of Savannah attorneys is now in Washington for a conference with the Department of Justice on the subject.

Those in the delegation are Judge Samuel B. Adams, W. W. Osborne, J. Ferris Cann, Anton P. Wright and T. Mayhew Cunningham. It is understood that General P. W. Meldrim will join the party in Washington Monday.

At various times in the last several years efforts have been made to have another District Court established in Southern Georgia, but nothing ever came of these efforts. At the time of the election of President Wilson, the old agitation was revived, and despite the fact that various grand juries in the United States Court have recently passed resolutions deploring such action as is now being taken by the Savannah lawyers, it was determined to make the effort to have the new court established there.

The presence of Joseph H. Davis, of Albany, in Washington just now has revived a lot of interesting talk as to the United States marshalship for South Georgia.

It is understood that Senator Bacon has considered Mr. Davis, but that Senator Smith has lodged an objection against him. Senator Bacon has not "indorsed" the Albany man, it is explained, but he has had him "favorably in mind." Whether the objection of Senator Smith will operate to eliminate Davis is the question.

Mr. Davis, it appears, is charged with not being "progressive enough" in his politics to suit the junior Senator—at least, that is the way The Savannah Press hands out the "dope," and, presumably, it speaks by the card.

And, anyway, Davis is in Washington looking into things for himself, and the outcome of his visit is being watched with genuine interest throughout the State.

Georgia politicians have been greatly interested in the development of the Gainesville and Rome postmastership situations, and now that both have been settled, further developments are being watched with even greater interest.

President Wilson in disregarding Congressman Bell's recommendation as to the Gainesville office—Mr. Bell's home office—has set aside a precedent very few expected to see broken. From time immemorial it has been customary for the President to name without question the man nominated by a Representative for his home office. Bell's recommendation of Mr. Hardy in Gainesville, however, was passed over, even before Bell got through talking to the President about Hardy.

Vital Questions Face Presbyterian Assemblies at Atlanta Meet

Proposed Union of United and Southern Churches Interests Dixie

Mark A. Matthews, D. D., Seattle, Wash., retiring Moderator.

General J. W. Foster, Washington, D. C., on Judicial Commission.

Rev. Wallace Radcliffe, D. D., Washington, D. C., pastor of President Wilson's church.

J. W. Patterson, of Atlanta, chairman of the Finance Committee of the Assemblies.

Vital questions of worldwide interest, will come before the Presbyterian assemblies in Atlanta. Perhaps the most interesting of these to the layman is the effort to be made in the Southern Assembly to change the "elect infant clause" to remove all ground for the supposition that all infants are not saved.

This will come up in consideration of section 3, chapter 10 of the Confession of Faith and will not be new work for a General Assembly of this church. The proposed changes have been thoroughly discussed and recommended by a number of assemblies, but no change proposed as yet has met the approval of three-fourths of the Presbyteries.

The proposed change in this paragraph which was approved by the Bristol Assembly causes the paragraph to read thus: "Being elect, all infants dying in infancy are regenerated and saved by Christ through the Spirit, who worketh when, and where, and how he pleaseth. So also are all other elect persons, who are incapable of being outwardly called by the ministry of the word," this wording to be substituted that now appearing in the Confession of Faith and which reads: "Elect infants dying in infancy etc."

Presbyteries Have Voted.

The Presbyteries have taken vote on the proposed change during the spring meetings and the action of the General Assembly in ordering a change in the wording of this paragraph of the Confession of Faith will be determined by the vote of the Presbyteries. It is hardly to be expected that three-fourths of the Presbyteries will favor the proposed change and it is not unlikely this question will be discussed as thoroughly during the Atlanta Assembly as has been true during other Assemblies.

There is a growing desire upon the part of some prominent ministers of the church for this paragraph to be stricken from the Confession of Faith and thus obliterate all ground for the supposition that any infant or other irresponsible person who dies can fail to be saved, and it is probable that more than one overture to that effect will be presented to the Assembly at Atlanta.

Among the questions of particular interest to the South is the proposed union of the United Presbyterian Church with the Southern Presbyterian Church and this question will be presented in the report of the Committee on Conference, appointed by the Assembly of 1912, which committee in joint meeting with a similar committee appointed by the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church has prepared a basis of union for the two churches and this basis of union will be presented to the General Assemblies of both churches for action.

Terms Not Made Public.

Just what this basis of union is has not been made known to others than the members of the two committees. The basis of union was agreed upon several weeks ago, but the two Committees of Conference decided that as a matter of courtesy to the Assemblies of both churches it should not be given publicity until officially presented to these two bodies.

Rev. R. C. Reed, D. D., of Columbia, S. C., is chairman of the Committee of Conference for the Southern Presbyterian Church and the following named ministers and laymen constitute the other members of this important committee: Rev. S. L. Morris, D. D., of Atlanta; Rev. J. F. Cannon, D. D., of St. Louis; Allen G. Hall, of Nashville, Moderator of the Assembly of 1906; and W. F. Stevenson, of Cheraw, S. C. The General Assembly will await the presentation of no other report with a greater degree of interest than the report of the Committee on Conference, and there is no matter of greater importance to come before the body than the question of the union of these two churches.

The standards held by the United Presbyterian Church are the same as those held by the Southern Presbyterian Church and in the same sense each church accepts them. The two churches possess the same Scotch ancestry, adhere to the same policy, and administer the affairs of benevolences under the same departments. The distinct point of difference between the two churches is the exclusive use of the Psalms in the service of praise in the United Presbyterian Church and it is around this point, in all probability, that the greatest discussion will center in the consideration of the union of the two churches.

Two Other Big Features.

There are two other questions to come before the General Assembly that will constitute outstanding features: The Federal Council and the brief popular statement of Doctrine of the Church.

During the Assembly of 1912, held at Bristol delegates were appointed to represent the Southern Presbyterian Church in the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, which held its quadrennial meeting in December, at Chicago. The report of these delegates will be heard with interest. It is not improbable that overtures will be presented to the Assembly urging that it withdraw again from membership in the Council, but it is likely that a second withdrawal from membership in the Council will be opposed as ably as it will be recommended.

Two changes in the form of government of the church have been proposed and will be considered by the Atlanta Assembly. One is with reference to cases of trial in the church and the proposed change, which was approved by the Bristol Assembly, would give the Synod and the General Assembly the power, at their own discretion, to commit any case of trial coming before them on appeal to the judgment of a Commission, composed of others than members of the Court from which the case shall come, this power to apply in all cases except those affecting doctrine and those shall be tried by the Court itself.

The other proposed change is with reference to the basis of representation in the General Assembly. The basis of representation at present is one minister and one ruling elder from every Presbytery except in those Presbyteries where there are more than twenty-five ministers and in those the representation in the General Assembly shall be two ministers and two ruling elders, but no additional number of churches increases the representation.

Plan Graduated Scale.

The change proposed recommends that every Presbytery shall be represented in the General Assembly by one minister and one ruling elder and that if the communicants of the churches in the Presbytery and ministers on the roll number more than four thousand, the Presbytery shall be entitled to increase its representation to the Assembly with one minister and one ruling elder and that the representation continue to increase in like proportion with the addition of every four thousand communicants and ministers.

During the year since the Bristol Assembly the Presbyteries have taken action with regard to the proposed changes in the form of government; the answers of the eighty-nine Presbyteries will be tabulated during the Atlanta Assembly and if three-fourths of the answers favor the proposed changes, the changes will become law, by the enactment of the Assembly.

The ad interim committee appointed by the Bristol Assembly to prepare a brief popular statement of the doctrines taught by the Southern Presbyterian Church is composed of fifteen representative men from all sections of the church, with Rev. R. A. Webb, D. D., of the Kentucky Presbyterian Theological Seminary, at Louisville, as chairman. This committee may be able to submit its report to the Atlanta Assembly, but it will not be cause for surprise if longer time is requested to complete this important work.

The preparation of this brief popular statement has been requested for use especially as a tract in mission territory as well as in other sections of the church; this statement will in no way displace the standards of the church, but will express the same in a simplified form and one that will be easy to handle, especially in mission territory of the church.

DEMOCRATS PICK CAMPAIGN HEADS

WASHINGTON, May 10.—The compromise reached at the meeting of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee apparently is satisfactory to all members, both in the House and Senate, and President Wilson. The meeting was short and the results accomplished were obtained by unanimous consent.

Representative Lloyd, of Missouri, and Mr. Page, of North Carolina, were selected as the temporary chairman and secretary of the committee until a permanent organization may be perfected. The motion was made by Representative Ben Johnson, of Kentucky, who is said to be slated to succeed Mr. Lloyd.

Following is the new membership of the committee:

Predicts Trouble in Cuba at Inauguration

"Moral and Political Conditions Are Awful," Says Henry T. Woodruff.

NEW YORK, May 10.—"The moral and political conditions of Cuba are awful," declared Henry T. Woodruff, a veteran of the Civil War, who has arrived from Havana.

Mr. Woodruff has spent the winter in Cuba for the last fifteen years.

"I have been informed on reliable authority that the rebels have obtained 12,000 rifles which belonged to the Federal Government. The people of Havana are seeking bloodshed, and it would not surprise me if murder was committed when Menocal is inaugurated on May 20."

Turn Down Pinero and Lady Nicotine

London Theater Managers Reject His Plan and Will Bar Smokers.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 10.—Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's proposal to allow smoking in the London theaters, was emphatically rejected by the Society of West End Theater Managers, who voted against the proposal with only one dissenting voice.

Sir Arthur's purpose was to alienate the patronage of the music halls, he believing that many men went there to enjoy nicotine rather than vaudeville.

RESINOL QUICKLY CURED HER BABY'S SEVERE ECZEMA

Had Not Had a Good Night's Rest in Eight Months.

Chelsea, Mass., Jan. 19, 1913.—"My son had been troubled with eczema for about one year. It first appeared when three months old. I tried everything that was recommended and also different prescriptions, but of no avail. For eight months my child did not enjoy a good night's rest. I was finally told to try Resinol. This I did, and from the first application the child got relief and put in a good night's sleep. In three days there was no sign of eczema—to-day he has as fine a complexion as any healthy child and is entirely cured." (Signed) Mrs. T. S. Brown, 54 Crescent Ave.

Resinol positively stops itching instantly and speedily heals eczema and other skin humors, dandruff, sores, burns and piles. Prescribed by doctors for 18 years. Sold by every druggist. Resinol Ointment in opal jars, 50 cents and $1.00. Resinol Soap, 25 cents. For generous free trial, write Dept. 19-S, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

Slayer of Countess, Convict, Seeks Death

Guards Watch Lieutenant Paterno, Who Would Escape Imprisonment Through Suicide.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

ROME, May 10.—Lieutenant Paterno, serving a life sentence for the murder in 1912 of the queen's waiting maid, Countess Trigona, was secretly conveyed to the penitentiary in Porto Longone to-day. Owing to the prisoner's dread of solitary confinement and determination to end his life, four warders have been detailed to watch him day and night.

The doctors ascribe his suicidal mania to cowardice. They have given him morphine to cause artificial sleep and thus prolong his life. The authorities have tried to hide Paterno's resolve to kill himself lest his example be followed by others desiring to evade sentences of solitary confinement.

Other convicts who have ended their lives generally concealed their determination, but Paterno calmly announced his intention to the officials. The latter are anxious to preserve his life at all costs that he may expiate his crime according to law.

Opera Stars Deny Any Estrangement

LONDON, May 10.—Six days at sea evidently soothed the distraught nerves of the grand opera singers who have arrived from New York.

Denial was made of the report that there was any estrangement of the forces of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company which would prevent their assemblage again next season. Conductor Toscanini, about whom there have been numerous rumors, said: "My contract has two years to run and as usual I will fulfill my contract."

All the singers except Emmy Destinn, who has taken a house in London, have gone to Paris. Mme. Destinn, who is an art connoisseur, has secured a large Rivviera picture. It was so big she had to hire a truck to transport it to the railway station.

Street Car Fight Won.

COLUMBUS.—After the city had appealed to the State Railroad Commission, the Columbus Railroad Company has rebuilt its tracks and resumed operations in Sixth Street.

Wilson in Dilemma, Says London Paper

President Sympathizes With Japan, It Adds—Cannot Enforce His Views.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 10.—The London Morning Post, in an editorial, says:

"No doubt the action of the California Legislature in passing a bill depriving Japanese settlers of the right to own land, placed the President in a very difficult position.

"Japan resents this legislation as descriminating unfairly against her citizens, and claims it is a violation of the treaty between herself and the United States. So far as known President Wilson recognizes the justice of Japan's complaints, but he has no obvious means of compelling the people of California to accept his view of the case. * * * * It is certain Japan will protest and will insist on some action to vindicate her rights."

"CASCARETS" MAKE YOU FEEL GREAT

Gently Cleanse Your Liver and Sluggish Bowels While You Sleep.

Sick headache, biliousness, dizziness, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath—always trace them to torpid liver, delayed fermenting food in the bowels, or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is reabsorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Salts, cathartic pills, oil and purgative waters force a passageway for a day or two—yes—but they don't take the poisons out and have no effect upon the liver or stomach.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels clean and regular for months.

A Word of Appreciation

The Presbyterians of Atlanta desire in this way to express our deep sense of appreciation for the generous hospitality offered by the hundreds of our fellow citizens of all creeds and denominations.

The tender of these beautiful homes will enable us to give our distinguished visitors a rare vision of true Southern hospitality that we are sure they will long remember.

We can only hope that every home privileged to have one or more of these godly men may in turn receive a blessing and a benediction thru the years to come.

How Dancing Develops a Beautiful Figure

The SUNDAY AMERICAN Will Tell You All About It

The World of Society

MRS. JOHN S. CLARKE entertained very informally at tea at her home on Peachtree Saturday afternoon in honor of Miss Helen Rowland, of Savannah, who is the guest of Mrs. O. Clifton Drew, Jr. Fifteen young married women were guests of the occasion. Mrs. Clarke was assisted in entertaining by her daughter, Mrs. A. D. Adair, Jr.

Garden flowers decorated the house throughout. The tea table had as its centerpiece a tall silver vase of Paul Neyron roses. All the minor details were carried out in pink.

Mrs. Clarke wore a beautiful lingerie gown, elaborately trimmed in lace.

Registered Nurses' Meeting.

The Atlanta Registered Nurses' Club will hold a special meeting at Grady Hospital Tuesday afternoon, May 13, at 3:30 o'clock.

All the registered nurses are urged to be present to vote on an amendment to an article in the constitution and by-laws.

Parties for Miss Barnes.

Miss Gwendolyn Barnes, of Uniontown, Pa., arrived Saturday afternoon to visit Miss Alice Vandiver, and will be tendered a series of parties.

Saturday evening Miss Nina Gentry entertains for Miss Barnes at the dinner dance at the Piedmont Driving Club. Sunday evening Miss Vandiver gives an informal supper party, and next week she will give a large dinner party for Miss Barnes. The following week Miss Vandiver will give a large afternoon bridge for her. Mrs. John J. Woodside, Jr., will also entertain for her.

For Miss Fisher, of Charleston.

Mr. W. V. Zimmer entertained a large number of guests Saturday afternoon at an old-fashioned barbecue at his farm, Kimballville. The company was invited at 2 o'clock. The barbecue was arranged in honor of Miss Marie Fisher, of Charleston, S. C.

Dance at East Lake.

An informal subscription dance will be given at the East Lake club house Saturday evening. A number of young people will be present.

Report of Home for Incurables.

At the annual meeting of the ladies' board of the Home for Incurables, held May 5 at the Carnegie Library, a splendid report was made of the year's work. Seventy-one patients have been cared for during the past year, and 19 new members have joined, making a total membership of 139. Mrs. Floyd McRae, president, presided. Mrs. Frank Holland, treasurer, presented a report showing the receipts and expenditures for the year, with a balance on hand May 1 of $1,383.88. Mrs. Whiteford Russell, recording secretary, presented a report of the year's work, and gave a detailed account of the great amount of good being done by this institution.

Mrs. Newman Entertains Club.

Mrs. William T. Newman entertained the Every Saturday History Class Saturday morning, the meeting being followed by luncheon.

Halcyon Club Dance.

The members of the Halcyon Club will give a dance Wednesday evening at their club house in Decatur.

Secretary Daniels In Georgia Sunday

SAVANNAH, GA., May 10.—Gorgeous flags and pennants of all nations will float from the spars and halyards of every vessel in the Savannah harbor to-morrow afternoon, upon the occasion of the visit to Savannah of Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, of North Carolina, concluding his first official tour of the naval stations on the South Atlantic and Gulf coasts.

Secretary Daniels is expected to arrive between 6 and 7 o'clock. The torpedo boat destroyer on which he will make the trip from Port Royal, S. C., will dock at the foot of Bull Street. The trip from Port Royal will be made through Callaboga Sound. Owing to the uncertainty of a journey by water, it is not known precisely when the Secretary will arrive.

Farmer Dies in Fire He Sets; Women Saved

Scheme to Cremate Family Fails When Neighbors Extinguish Burning House.

PITTSBURG, May 10.—Jacob Dewalt, an aged and well-to-do farmer, of South Fayette township, it is believed, burned himself to death during the early morning hours, but a scheme to cremate alive his wife and 18-year-old daughter failed, when a fire in dry fence rails piled against the house was extinguished.

Dewalt evidently crawled into a hay mow beside his barn during the night and set it afire. The flames spread to the barn, causing the death of two horses and two cows. The charred body was found, the head, arms and legs burned off, lying against the side of the building.

According to Dewalt's daughter and neighbors, Dewalt had frequently threatened to kill the entire family.

'Declining Morals Due to Immodest Dress'

Clergyman Likens Women's Gowns to Trousers With Only One Leg.

ALTOONA, PA., May 10.—The immodest fashions were blamed for the declining moral standards in America by Rev. J. H. Keller, a Lutheran minister, of Phillipsburg, Pa., speaking before Northeast Synod of the Lutheran Church. He said:

"If women want to wear trousers, why do they not wear them with both legs, instead of trying to stick both feet into one leg.

"With the immodest dress of the average girl of to-day it requires a great deal of nerve for the minister to look the ladies unblushingly in the face and give them a warm handshake at the door of the church."

Bride He Purchased Rifles His Pockets

Father of Wife Leaves Vicinity Because of Feeling Aroused by Exposure in Pennsylvania City.

BUTLER, PA., May 10.—The charge of larceny presented by Joseph Elies, of the West End, against his wife, a bride of a few days, brought to light to-day the allegation that her father, Joseph Solomon, had sold her to Elies.

$300,000 GARAGE FIRES LAID TO AUTO-MANIAC

CHICAGO, May 10.—Forty automobiles were burned and the lives of scores imperiled when fire destroyed the American Motor Livery Company's garage early to-day.

Sixty electric automobiles were destroyed in a garage fire here yesterday. The police believe a maniac with a particular aversion to automobiles is responsible for the fires. The loss in both fires is $500,000.

WOMAN, 60, SEEKS DIVORCE WHEN HUBBY, 26, DESERTS

SOUTH BEND, IND., May 10.—Mrs. Anna Beezy, aged 60, to-day was seeking a divorce from Roy Beezy, aged 26. The divorce complaint was filed after Mrs. Beezy failed in an attempt to have her youthful husband brought back to South Bend on a charge of wife desertion.

The Breezys were married two years ago.

Chuck Connor, King Of Chinatown, Dies

Picturesque Bowery Figure Famous as Tourist Guide Through New York's East Side.

NEW YORK, May 10.—"Chuck" Connor, known from coast to coast as King of Chinatown, died to-day in the Hudson Street Hospital.

Connor's real name was George Washington Connor and he was one of the most picturesque characters the Bowery ever produced. For several years Connor made a living by acting as guide for parties of tourists and his route lay through carefully staged "opium dens" and saloons frequented by "bad men."

Connor's name frequently appeared in the newspapers, and his interviews given in the lingo of the East Side, featured many a Sunday supplement. His age was uncertain. Some said he was 50, while others said he was 60. He died of heart disease.

Burglar Gets Money And Trousers, Too

Piedmont Avenue Resident, With Pistol, Vainly Chases Intruder in Early Morning Hours.

M. F. Sullivan, of 422 Piedmont Avenue, has a justifiable grouch against the burglar fraternity to-day. One played him the trick of not only taking his money, but fleeing with his trousers as well.

It was 4 o'clock this morning when Mrs. Sullivan, awakened by a noise, arose and discoveerd a negro calmly rifling her husband's trousers. The burglar had taken them from the bed room into the hall. Mrs. Sullivan screamed and Mr. Sullivan jumped out of bed and pursued the negro with a pistol.

The burglar jumped through an open window in the front of the house. He was in such a hurry that he failed to drop the trousers, which contained $16.

KEEP THE BALANCE UP.

It has been truthfully said that any disturbance of the even balance of health causes serious trouble. Nobody can be too careful to keep this balance up. When people begin to lose appetite, or to get tired easily, the least imprudence brings on sickness, weakness, or debility. The system needs a tonic, craves it, and should not be denied it; and the best tonic of which we have any knowledge is Hood's Sarsaparilla. What this medicine has done in keeping healthy people healthy, in keeping up the even balance of health, gives it the same distinction as a preventive that it enjoys as a cure. Its early use has illustrated the wisdom of the old saying that a stitch in time saves nine. Take Hood's for appetite, strength and endurance.

NO WASTE If your coal burns to a fine ash, with no clinkers or rocks left in the grate, you are burning good coal. Use our standard coal and you will be pleased at results. It's use saves money, time and worry—2 and 2 make 4. We have a yard near you and guarantee prompt delivery.

BOY FROM COLLEGE PARK LEADS IN PONY CONTEST

Has 18,535 Votes, but When Analyzed, There is Nothing in That to Frighten Other Contestants. Many Have "Something Up Their Sleeves."

Frank Ison, of College Park, has the best start in The Georgian and American's contest for the pony outfits. He had 18,535 votes yesterday. Probably he has many more to-day.

Fannie Cook, 488 Pulliam Street, has 6,600, and Florence Greenoe, 387 Pulliam Street, has 6,045—there's a close race in District No. 4.

Then there is a considerable number with 2,000 and 3,000 votes.

All this may seem discouraging to the boy or girl who has simply the original, which goes with the nomination. It should not be, however.

Look at Frank Ison's lead, for instance. He has 18,535 votes. Take off 1,000 for the nomination. That leaves 17,535. Five yearly subscriptions to The Georgian and American would yield 17,500. The 35 more which make up the total may represent the coupons clipped from the daily issues of the paper.

You can get five yearly subscriptions to The Georgian and American in no time at all, can't you? Then you will have done as well as Frank Ison. The only difference is that he, very wisely, has made a flying start.

We predicted yesterday that the votes polled by the contestants will leap up by thousands at a clip. Watch and see if they do not. The names of contestants and their standing will be published frequently that they may know how they and their rivals are getting along.

Daniels Fools Old Salts in Navy Office

Department Navigators Learn for First Time That Florida Has a Panama City.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—The wise old salts of the Navy Department thought they had caught Secretary Daniels in a land-lubber's blunder when they got a telegram from him ordering the gunboat Petrel to Panama City by May 10.

Even the youngest navigator at the department laughed over the message and called attention to the geographical fact that Panama City is on the Pacific side of the Isthmus, while the gunboat Petrel is now en route to Pensacola, Fla. It was suggested that the Secretary be so informed.

Then some one thought of looking up the maps. A search disclosed that there is a Panama City on the Florida coast.

Vincent Astor Host To Senatorial Party

NEW YORK, May 10.—Vice President Marshall and several United States Senators are guests for today and to-morrow of Vincent Astor.

The program is a trip up the Hudson on his yacht, Nona, as far as West Point for the annual inspection of the military post, a night at the Astor estate and a visit to Governor Sulzer.

In addition to the Vice President the party will include Senators Johnston, of Alabama; Fletcher, of Florida; Overman, of North Carolina; Vardeman, of Mississippi, and Chamberlin, of Oregon, as well as a number of New York business men.

ARKANSAS SAFE BLOWERS MAKE ESCAPE WITH $1,500

FORT SMITH, ARK., May 10.—A posse was searching the neighborhood of Bonanza, sixteen miles southeast of here to-day for three men who dynamited the safe in the First State Bank there at 1:30 o'clock this morning and escaped with between $1,500 and $2,000 in currency. The men left Bonanza on horseback, headed for Fort Smith.

SUFFRAGETTE BOMB IS FOUND IN POSTOFFICE

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 10.—A suffragette bomb, with an electrical appliance similar to that found in St. Paul's Cathedral, was discovered to-day in the package sorting department of the Reading postoffice. Finding of the infernal machine created a panic among the employees. The bomb was turned over to the police.

Another was found in the passenger waiting room at the busy Lime Street Railroad Station in Liverpool.

The fuse of the Liverpool bomb had been lighted, but had died out before it reached the gunpowder. The instrument of intended destruction consisted of a tin tobacco box filled with gunpowder and scrap iron.

The Reading machine was wrapped in a bulky parcel to which the attention of the postoffice employees was attracted by the sound of ticking. The police were called in and on examination found the parcel contained an electric battery connected to explosives and accompanied by quantities of suffragette literature.

The parcel was addressed to a municipal official of Reading, now on his vacation. The police believe it was timed to explode in his residence during his absence. The clockwork arrangement was in perfect working order.

CHATTANOOGA FURNITURE HOUSE HAS $10,000 BLAZE

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., May 10. The loss sustained by the Bowen-Jumper Furniture Company in a fire that threatened the West Side business district yesterday afternoon was reported to-day to have been $10,000.

BERRIEN CLERK RIDICULES GAME WARDEN CHARGE

Denies People of Milltownn Tried To Intimidate Boisclair, as He Complained.

Charles S. Parham, clerk of the Superior Court of Berrien County, in a letter to The Georgian to-day, ridicules the charges that lawless and disorderly tactics have been adopted by the people of Milltown to intimidate County Game Warden Boisclair.

The letter is an answer to the fear of State Game Warden Mercer that his deputy in Berrien County is being attacked. It is an answer, also, to the charges by Warden Boisclair that the town and surrounding section disregard the laws and authority of officers.

"If Game Warden Mercer will use different tactics from those of Mr. Boisclair," the writer concludes, "he will find any amount of co-operation in punishing those who knowingly violate the game laws, and will find no better people in Georgia."

His letter in part follows:

"Conditions Misrepresented."

To begin with, conditions at Milltown are not at all as represented by Mr. Boisclair. He intimates that the entire town and section is composed of people who disregard the laws of the country or the rights of man, when in reality there are no better class of citizens in Georgia than are found at Milltown.

Mr. Boisclair says that from 200 to 300 angry men gathered about him, threatening his life, etc. This statement is simply false. The writer was on the ground as a disinterested spectator at the time of the would-be trial, seeing and hearing a good portion of what was taking place, sizing up the crowd with fair accuracy, and feels sure that not more than 50 people were gathered there. Eighteen of this number were there from having been served with warrants to so be for trial; nearly all of the remainder had gathered there from idle curiosity and had no part in the proceeding at all.

No Demonstration.

No demonstration of any kind was evident, except that of mirth and fun which usually arises from such occasions. Those who had been arrested (or most of them, at least) took the matter as a huge joke, and had it not been that Mr. Boisclair went around there with a concealed weapon, everything would have passed off quietly and good-humoredly.

Mr. Boisclair says that Mayor Bill Pafford accosted him, leading, with vile epithets, an angry mob of 200 or 300 people, the crowd became menacing, etc., all of which the writer knows to be untrue. As before stated, there were not exceeding 50 persons on the ground and they were quiet and orderly, and had it not been for the fact that Mr. Boisclair was seen with a pistol on his person there would have been no words of any kind.

Bill Pafford is a high-toned, Christian gentleman, who is known all over this, as well as adjoining counties.

James Banks, the owner of the Banks Pond, says he has never objected to people fishing with hook and line in his waters, while R. T. Berryhill, a nephew of Mr. Banks, who has charge of the pond, has always been very liberal in his management of the fishing privilege, never refusing anyone that would ask him permission to catch as many fish as he wanted to.

THE PLAYS THIS WEEK

"THE GIRL" AT THE ATLANTA.

"The Girl From Out Yonder," the offering by the Miss Billy Long company at the Atlanta Theater this week, will be presented at a matinee this afternoon and again to-night. The play has proved immensely popular with patrons of the Atlanta, and Miss Long has won many new friends by her very capable acting. All the other members appear to advantage in parts which afford them abundant opportunity for the display of their special talent.

KEITH VAUDEVILLE AT FORSYTH.

Few acts presented at the Forsyth have attracted more attention than that of Gus Edwards' Kid Kabaret, which is the headliner this week. The number comprises fifteen girls and boys, who dance and sing and offer other pleasing specialties. Belle Story has proved a big hit. She sings delightfully. Williams, Thompson and Copeland have an unusually amusing sketch. The whole bill is one designed to please, and it succeeds admirably. Matinee this afternoon.

COLD WEATHER THREATENS MICHIGAN'S FRUIT CROP

BENTON HARBOR, MICH., May 10.—The fate of more than $1,000,000 worth of fruit in the great fruit region of Michigan to-day was hanging in the balance as the result of unusually cold weather. A further drop in temperature threatened a disastrous freeze.

Smudge pots were burning all of last night. A record crop is predicted if damage by cold is prevented.

ROUND-ABOUT-TOWN STORIES

Friedmann's Patients Bound by Common Tie.

"Six of Dr. Friedmann's tubercular patients are convalescing in Bellevue Hospital," said a physician just back from a visit to New York. "The fact that they have been treated with the serum has naturally caused a bond of sympathy among them, and they are generally to be seen together, strolling in their bathrobes along the sunny walks in the hospital quadrangle. Other inmates of the institution who lack the distinction of contact with the syringe of the Berlin physician are inclined to interpret their alliance as aloofness, and the sextet have come to be dubbed the 'guinea pigs.'"

Wanted to Know His Other Business.

A New Yorker who is stopping at one of the Atlanta hotels, tells this one:

A member of the Stock Exchange well known for his scorn of convention pulled the bellrope of a Long Island Railroad train the other evening because, as he said, he was "tired of being a perpendicular sardine" and he was determined either to have a seat or get out. He was arrested. When the case came up in court the railroad's lawyer said insinuatingly:

"Are you a drinking man, Mr. Blank?"

"That's my business," said the broker with dignity.

"Right," said the lawyer. "Now tell the court, Mr. Blank, if you have any other business."

Rear Seats Are In Demand.

"One thing I can't get used to," said the ticket seller at a downtown moving picture house, "is the demand for rear seats. All my life I have been under the impression that folks who went to the theater wanted to get as near the stage as possible, but in the moving picture business the reverse seems true. People want to get far back so they can get a better focus on the pictures. In this house the back seats fill up long before the front ones do. I got a jolt the other day, however. A fellow came to the window and said, "'Can you give me a seat in the first row? I'm hard of hearing.'

"I told him we didn't sell reserved seats—that he would have to take his chances with the rest. Anyhow, I assured him, the pictures were being run and it didn't really make any difference if he was hard of hearing."

CROWDS VISIT REVIVAL TO HEAR EVANGELIST HAWKINS

The revival which Evangelist Hawkins is conducting at the West End Christian Church continues to attract large crowds. Five converts were baptized Friday night before one of the largest gatherings of the week.

Following are sermon subjects for the coming week: Saturday night, "The Way of Faith;" Sunday morning, "The First Lord's Day;" Sunday evening, "Salvation;" Tuesday evening, "The Thief on the Cross;" Wednesday evening, "What Must I Do to Be Lost." There will be no services Monday.

SALOONS ASK COURT TO FORCE CITY TO TAKE TAX

HAMMOND, IND., May 10.—The first case on record in this State where taxpayers attempt to force a municipality to accept thousands of dollars was brought to-day in the Hammond Superior Court, where 80 Gary saloon men asked Judge Lawrence Becker to mandate the city of Gary to accept $200 apiece from them.

The Gary authorities hold saloon licenses to be $500 and refuse the $200 as provided by the City Council in an earlier ordinance.

NEGROES GIVE FUND FOR CONFEDERATE REUNION

GRAFT FOE PLANS REVENGE IF SLAIN

Directs $50,000 Insurance Be Used to Prosecute Assassins if He Is Killed.

NEW YORK, May 10.—George A. Sipp, former Raines law hotel keeper, who exposed the alliance of the police and underworld in Harlem's tenderloin, said today he had taken out $50,000 worth of life insurance and added a codicil to his will directing that the sum be spent in prosecuting his murderers should he be assassinated as the result of his exposures of the police graft syndicate.

Warden Hayes, of the Blackwells Island prison, is having a difficult time finding occupations for James F. Thompson, John J. Murtha, Dennis Sweeney and James E. Hussey, the four former police inspectors who were sentenced to a year for obstructing justice. None of the prisoners has received industrial training along any special line.

Sergeant Peter J. Duffy, charged with collecting graft for Sweeney, will be arraigned late this month or early in June. In connection with the search for more evidence, District Attorney Whitman has learned of a "clairvoyant trust" which has paid big sums for protection.

JOKERS GIVE BABY WINE; LITTLE GIRL NEARLY DIES

PERTH AMBOY, May 10.—Two men paid $45 in fines for giving a year-old girl a drink of port wine. The child went into convulsions, but was restored.

The child found her way into a barroom. Charles Webber picked her up and jokingly called for a drink. Benjamin Wonder, the proprietor, set a glass of port on the bar. Webber gave the child the wine.

Ricardi Sues Rigo For $100,000 'Loans'

NEW YORK, May 10.—That Mme. Ricardi, formerly the Princess DeChimay and originally Clara Ward, of Detroit, is suing Janezi Rigo, the gypsy violinist she eloped with seventeen years ago in Paris, for $100,000, became known to-day. Mme. Ricardi claims this was loaned Rigo in the three years they lived together.

In his apartments here, where he is living with his latest wife, who was Kitty Emerson, wife of Caspar Emerson, Jr., of Philadelphia, Rigo declared the Princess DeChimay is hounding him because he refuses to go back to her.

"My wife knows this," said Rigo, "but I will never do it. I love my wife madly. Nothing can separate us."

VOLS SCOURING UNIVERSE FOR GOOD HURLERS

NASHVILLE, TENN., May 10.—The incessant bombardment of the Vols' flingers has almost driven Bill Schwartz insane and his frenzied shrieks for "Hellup" on the hurling hill has completely upset Mr. Hirsig, who was jogging along so serenely, dreaming dreams of bunting fluttering next year in his nice, new ball park.

On the next platform we have seen Mr. Hirsig wigwagging the distressing news to every big league mogul north of the Mason and Dixon's line for an able bodied slabman who can not only get "em over, but can get em past em."

The first aid to the injured comes once more from Redland, whence cameth Cy Dalgren, who had oodles of stuff on the pill but who refused to put the pellet where any opponent could get a crack at it. Cy has been returned to Tinkertown with much thanks and in his stead comes 'Chick' Smith, who is alleged to be some pitcher.

Smith is a portsider and although this is his first season in fast society, coming from the corner lots in Cincinnati, he has shown the making of a great pitcher.

Hendee Goes to Cairo.

Sam Hendee, the titanic coal miner, has been shunted along to Cairo, Ill., in the Kitty League since no team in the Southern League could find a uniform to encompass Samuel. Charles Alabi Case, will in all probability be trade to some club in this circuit, the Turtles for instance, for Bill Bernhard, still remembers the high-grade stuff that the jinx flinger uncovered in 1908. Which was quite a few years back and old age doesn't seem to have the same effect on Case that it does on old wine.

Memphis has offered the Vols a pitcher for Case, but the deal is still hanging fire until waivers have been secured from all the other clubs.

Hirsig made a desperate attempt to land Rube Benton, the ex-Lookout from the Reds, but Reuben is one of the best ball players Cincinnati has had in some time, and although Mr. Hirsig gritted his teeth and offered a wheelbarrow full of regular money for Benton, the Reds refused to give him up.

Ebbets May Help Out.

Hirsig expects Charley Ebbets of the Dodgers to dig up a pitcher for the Vols, and Connie Mack of the Athletics has offered to help him out, too. Connie suggested that the Vols land Roger Salmon from Louisville, for Roger once wore an Athletic uniform, but if he isn't good enough for the Colonels, he surely won't be able to stop the big sticks in this league, which is just about as fast as the American Association, no matter if they do have A. A. tacked on to them.

After starting out like champions on the present road trip the Vols have suddenly developed into selling platers and poor work in the box is the cause of the whole trouble.

Beck is the only dependable slabman, and it takes more than one high-class flinger to hold any club in select company.

PELS SECURE WILSON.

CLEVELAND, OHIO, May 10.—Pitcher Finish E. Wilson, southpaw, who came to the Cleveland club from the Knoxville, Tenn., club last fall, yesterday was released to New Orleans Southern League team.

Banish All Skin Troubles

A Remarkable Remedy That Works Wonders Against Even Weeping Eczema.

Get a Bottle of S. S. S. To-day. It Is Certainly a Wonder.

If you have been fighting some blood trouble, some skin disease, call it eczema, lupus, psoriasis, malaria or what you will, there is but one sure, safe way to cure it. Ask at any drug store for a $1.00 bottle of S. S. S. and you are then on the road to health. The action of this remarkable remedy is just as direct, just as positive, just as certain in its influence as that the sun rises in the East. It is one of those rare medical forces which act in the blood with the same degree of certainty that is found in all natural tendencies. The manner in which it dominates and controls the mysterious transference of rich, red, pure arterial blood for the diseased venous blood is marvelous.

Out through every skin pore acids, germs and other blood impurities are forced in the form of invisible vapor. The lungs breathe it out, the liver is stimulated to consume a great proportion of impurities, the stomach and intestines cease to convey into the blood stream the catarrhal, malarial germs; the bowels, kidneys, bladder and all emunctories of the body are marshaled into a fighting force to expel every vestige of eruptive disease.

There is scarcely a community anywhere but what has its living example of the wonderful curative effects of S. S. S. Get a bottle of this famous remedy to-day, and if your case is stubborn or peculiar, write to The Swift Specific Company, 137 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Their medical laboratory is famous and is conducted by renowned experts in blood and skin diseases. Their advice is entirely free and always strictly personal.

Morris and Pitts to Hurl To-day

Tech Downs Georgia in Opener

By J. W. Heisman.

ATHENS, GA., May 10.—The game here Friday between Georgia and Tech bore out all previous history and traditions of these special contests. Dope went wrong once more and Tech won. This means that the crowd in attendance to-day will be gigantic, though it will have to be if it is to be any larger than Friday's. As for the game to-day, it is as hard to forecast a winner as it was in yesterday's contest. Both teams are in their very best shape of the season, and both will battle their heads off.

Morris will probably do the hurling for Georgia, and Pitts for Tech. Each team has now sized up the other's batting, fielding and base running, and they will therefore be in better position to watch and try to checkmate every strategic move of the opposition.

A special train will be run from Atlanta over the Seaboard for to-day's game, and that means that Tech at least will have many more friends and rooters on hand to cheer them on than they had yesterday, though the number of leather-lunged supporters of the Gold and White was surprisingly large.

Yesterday's game was Tech's right from the start. Wooten was the first man up for Tech in the first inning, and the first ball he swung at felt his deadly stinger for a slam into the distant branch and was a home run. Now, the very odd thing about this is that at a mass meeting Thursday in the Tech chapel Wooten, when called upon for a speech, said that he was going to do this very thing, smash the first ball he swung at into the ditch for a home run. Can you beat it?

Scores on Wild Heave.

Then after Moore and Pitts had grounded out Montague secured a life on Clements' error. On Harrison's error Pound also reached first alive and on a throw by the pitcher to second that went out into center field, Montague took third. Then Pound stole second. Next Corley again tried to catch the runner off second and again it went on through and Montague came home. Amason got a base on balls, but Donaldson fanned and Tech took the field with a big two to her credit on the scoreboard.

In Georgia's half of the first Ginn was first up for Georgia and he promptly walked. Then he stole second, went to third on an infield out, and scored on McWhorter's long sacrifice fly to center. That ended Georgia's scoring in this inning.

Tech got no more till the fourth, when Donaldson hit safely to right field, Attridge sacrificed and on Corley's error both men were safe. On Eubanks' sharp bunt Donaldson was thrown out at third, but Wooten got to first on the shortstop's error and the bases were full. Here Corley walked Moore, forcing Attridge in. Then Pitts flied out to left and Eubanks scored on the throw-in. This made four for Tech end ended its scoring.

This lead of 4 to 1 Tech held until the seventh. Then, with one on and one down, Attridge carelessly dropped an easy infield pop and both Clements and Ginn were safe. Tech got into trouble right here, for Harrison hit safely to left and scored Clements, Ginn taking third on the throw-in. McWhorter contributed his mite by placing a long one in center, which Wooten finally pulled down, but Ginn scored on the catch, bringing Georgia's total up to 3.

Well, well, both teams went out in one-two-three order in the eighth, and so did Tech in the ninth. Then, with one Georgia man out, Clements hit safely to left. Ginn grounded to Montague and Clements was forced at second. Then Harrison slammed a stem-winder to left that looked good for a homer and with it the game.

Both Pitched Good Ball.

Both pitchers hurled superbly. Corley gave up but four hits, while Eubanks yielded six. But the latter deserved the greater credit, because he kept these six so widely scattered and because he was hurling to much heavier hitters than was Corley. Besides, the latter forced in a run, which lost Georgia the game.

But for Attridge's muff Tech would have played an errorless game, thus living up to the best of Tech traditions in playing their best ball against Georgia in Athens.

The whole Tech team fielded superbly, but Wooten must be given special mention for his great work in center. Everybody admired it.

Ginn ran bases in great form for Georgia, and Hutchens, besides catching a fine game, slapped out three of Georgia's six hits. The Georgia team played a jam-up game in all respects save in the field, where their work was rather ragged.

Altogether, it was fine baseball. To-day is sure to produce a game equally as good.

LAGRANGE BALL CLUB WINS ATTENDANCE TROPHY

LA GRANGE, GA., May 10.—In addition to winning yesterday's game in a sensational manner, LaGrange has also won the atendance trophy of the Georgia-Alabama League. More than 1,900 people crowded the grounds on opening day, which is by several hundred more than any other opening game of the towns in the league. The LaGrange team is now in first-class condition. All those who have been out of the game are ready to play ball, and the outlook for the team to win from now on is splendid.

STAHL LEAVES HOSPITAL.

BOSTON, May 10.—Manager Stahl, of the champion Red Sox, whose foot was operated on Monday, left the hospital to-day and with the assistance of a cane was able to make his way about town. Although Stahl expects to join the Red Sox in the West early next week and resume the active management of the club, it will be some time before his name will appear in the line-up.

FATE OF GEORGE STOVALL TO BE SETTLED SUNDAY

ST. LOUIS, May 10.—At a meeting of the directors of the St. Louis American League club here to-morrow, which will be attended by President Ban Johnson, the fate of Manager Stovall will be decided. It is also likely that some action will be taken regarding the poor umpiring with which St. Louis has been afflicted this season.

The local club is going to have something to say about the penalty for Stovall. Colonel Hedges is the majority stockholder and the meeting of the directors seems superfluous, unless the Colonel believes there is safety in numbers.

ANDERSON AND MANDOT ARE WORKING FOR BOUT

LOS ANGELES, May 10.—With the arrival from Medford, Oregon, to-day of "Bud" Anderson, and Manager Dick Donald, both principals in the next lightweight battle here, are on the ground.

Anderson, who is matched to meet Joe Mandot in a scheduled 20-round bout before the Pacific Athletic Club at Vernon on the night of May 20, will reopen his old training camp at Doyle's Vernon camp.

Mandot has been in light training for the past week. Yesterday at the Venice camp he boxed four rounds, using "Dude" Clark and "Hobo" Dougherty as sparring partners.

FURCHNER WILL FACE BILLS IN THIRD BATTLE

By Joe Agler.

Crackers' First Baseman.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., May 10. The Crackers' new twirler, recently secured from Manager Finn, will make his debut against the Billikens in the third game this afternoon.

Manager Bill Smith is hard up for a pitcher and has decided to give his new hurler a chance. We have been getting some awful pitching while on this trip, all the boys being way off form.

Weaver was sent home, to Atlanta, after yesterday's game to rest his sore arm. Buck has not been right since way early in the season, and Smith has decided to give him a rest until the sore member is again ready for use.

The Crackers hope to cop the two remaining games, and with any kind of pitching should annex both battles on the right side of the ledger.

Whitey Alperman was the swatting king for Atlanta yesterday. Whitey pounded out three safe drives. Donahue secured two two-baggers for the Billikens. The final score was: Billikens, 10; Crackers, 2.

Bill Bailey's foot is getting along nicely, and he will be in the game against Memphis, if not sooner. Chappelle was in uniform yesterday, and says he will win many games for us. The boys are all pulling for Bailey to return, as we certainly are missing his trustworthy stick.

MOTORCYCLE STARS WILL RACE AT PRINCE'S TRACK

Jack Prince, owner of the new motordrome being built here, stated last night that twelve of the speediest riders on the coast are now on their way to Atlanta to compete in the first night's races here. Prince expects to hold the first series of races around the twentieth of this month.

Montey, Graves, Henry Lewis, S. A. Shields and Ed Hannon are among these who will appear here.

Inquiries have also come to Prince from Birmingham, Columbus, Ga., and other nearby cities from various riders, who are seeking information concerning the races.

TALBOTTON BEATS BUTLER.

TALBOTTON, GA., May 10.—The Talbotton boys defeated Butler here yesterday to the tune of 12 to 10. Ray Burt did the box work for Talbotton, while Chapman, for Butler, was knocked all over the field.

FOOD FOR SPORT FANS

By GEORGE E. PHAIR.

B. NELSON.

He fought and he fought and he fought,
That Dane with the yellowish hair.
He never knew how, with his yellow-haired brow,
But he fought all his fights on the square.
He fought like the fighter he was,
He took all the wallops that came;
But the son of a gun, when the fighting was done,
You will have to admit he was game.

Mr. F. Chance is beginning to realize that it is hard to be a Peerless Leader unless there is something to lead.

In other words, Mr. Chance threatens to burst into the archives of baseball as the teamless Leader.

One is glad to hear from Ban Johnson that the American League will not tolerate roughneck conduct. One is thereby led to expect that peanut peddlers will be expunged from the grand stand.

Scientists tell us that a hole driven straight through the earth will land in China. If Frank Chance does not have a care he may become a Chinaman.

Rube Waddell is said to be broke, which financial conditions is about two bits less than usual.

Nevertheless, there are kind words to be said about the Federal League. It never will be known as a gret-rich-quick scheme.

Possibly we are mistaken, but John McGraw once hired a youth known as Jim Thorpe.

From now on it will be hard to blame George Stovall if he develops a grouch against spitball pitchers.

Still, the penalty might not have been so strong if the Browns had not been playing too strong for the good of the league.

If Tyrus Cobb had been guilty of the same stunt he might have been given three slaps on the wrist and fined $50, which the club would have paid—again.

The difference between expectorating on an umpire and spiking an innocent bystander is merely the difference as a drawing card between the expectorator and the roughneck.

If Jimmy Clabby and Eddie McGoorty were to pull off one of their terrific battles before the Legislature, said Legislature would decide that pugilism is almost as dangerous as crokinole.

There seems to be a conspiracy among American League pitchers, in restraint of the athletes alleged to be working for F. Chance.

Ed Konetchy's pitching stunt ought to put a lot of our athletes to shame. Some of said athletes can't play one position.

Looking at it from a fair and impartial standpoint, we are willing to lay one (1) dollar that Reuben Marquard will not win nineteen straight games this season. In fact, when Mr. Marquard wins a game it is a winning streak.

One is willing to admit for the sake of argument that Luther McCarty is the best of our white heavyweights. A milk man's horse looks speedy among a flock of hitching posts.

Jake Stahl is troubled with a bone in his foot. These tidings will cause Ping Bodie to wonder whether the world is turned upside down.

A WAIL.

There was a man in our town
And he was wondrous dense.
He bought a seat a mile away
And laid down fifty cents.

Frank Chance is on the sick list again, but watching those Yanks in the act of perpetrating baseball is enough to make any manager sick.

We presume that baseball writers in New York have other duties aside from their daily task of trading Hal Chase.

The terrific rate at which the Pirates have been dropping has created grave fear lest the bottom be knocked out of the league.

Bonehead plays are not confined entirely to the baseball yard. For instance, there is the severe reprimand handed to Ty Cobb by the national commission.

The only conclusion to be drawn is that national commission is totally devoid of a sense of humor. Otherwise it could not refrain from laughing itself.

ROUGH HOUSE MERCHANTS.

A sack of peanuts now and then
Is relished by the best of men,
But not when peddlers block the view
And plant their feet all over you.

Ten Point Picked to Win Kentucky Derby

LOUISVILLE, KY., May 10.—This city to-day is alive with race enthusiasts. Thousands are already in town and each incoming train adds more to the throng. This is Derby Day here, the thirty-ninth running of the Kentucky blue ribbon event. The field will bring together some of the best racers in the country. Though a round dozen have been named to go in the big race to-day, it is doubtful if more than five face the barrier. Possibly six may start, and if the track is fast it is freely predicted that the record of 2:05 by Meridian will fall.

J. W. Schorr, the Memphis turfman, is scanning the skies thoughtfully. If it rains his great gelding, Leochares, will go to the post, and Foundation and possibly Ten Point will be scratched, leaving the Tennessee gelding a splendid chance of winning, if the track remains fast. Leochares, Gowell, Floral Park, Flying Tom, Lord Marshall, Donerail and possibly Sam Hirsch will remain in their stalls.

Despite the fact that Hawthorne and Helios, the two winter favorites in the big race, will not go to the post, there is sure to be a great race among the three choices—Ten Point, Foundation and Yankee Notions.

Ten Point is quoted at 8 to 5; Foundation, 3 to 1; Prince Hermis, 5 to 1; Lord Marshall, 8 to 1, and Donerail, 10 to 1, in the early morning betting.

No-Rim-Cut Tires 10% Oversize

Oversize Means This

Ten per cent extra air capacity over hooked-base clincher tires.

It means the same as extra width, which costs you extra money. It means, on the average, 25 per cent more mileage.

No-Rim-Cut tires, with this 10 per cent oversize, cost no more than clinchers.

More Than 10%

The oversize of No-Rim-Cut tires is more than 10 per cent.

Actual comparison with six makes of clinchers shows the average oversize 16.7 per cent.

That means that you get in No-Rim-Cut tires about one-sixth more air capacity than you get in clinchers. And air is what carries the load.

You get this extra without extra cost. For No-Rim-Cut tires now cost the same as standard clincher tires.

Statistics show that 23 per cent of all clincher tires become rim-cut.

Those are the reasons why clincher tires must go. Men will not stand this rim-cut ruin when a new-type tire prevents it.

Men are bound to demand an oversize tire when they know what it adds to their tire mileage.

When you know these tires, as legions do, you will never buy any others. Come let us show them to you.

Then Add This

BIRMINGHAM GOLFERS LEFT IN TOURNAMENT

By Tick Tichenor..

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., May 10.—The winner of the invitation tournament of the Country Club of Birmingham will be a member of the home club, as they eliminated every visitor yesterday.

In the first flight there were thirteen Birmingham players and three from Atlanta. In the morning round J. H. Doughty disposed of Captain E. T. Winston, while W. P. Ward beat W. R. Tichenor, and Rollo Steinmehl beat Lowry Arnold.

Steinmehl is just 14 years of age, but he is even now a fine tournament player. In his match with W. P. Ward in the afternoon both were out in 36, and Ward had him two down and three to play, but he evened the match on the eighteenth green and finally won on the twenty-first hole. George Oliver had to go 20 holes in the morning to win from V. Q. Prowell. In the afternoon he was defeated by Herbert Tutwiler.

H. C. Wood and Rollo Steinmehl meet in the semi-final, as do J. H. Doughty and H. Tutwiler, of the first flight.

* * *

ON the second flight George Adair meets C. E. Foust and F. G. Byrd plays B. Throckmorton in the semi-final. In the third flight two Atlanta men met in the first round—C. J. Holditch and Dowdell Brown—Holditch winning 7 up and 6 to play. The semi-final matches of the fourth flight were between R. P. Jones and Sanborn Smith, and A. M. Post and R. H. Baugh. In the fifth flight Dr. Frank Holland is one of the semi-finalists.

C. E. Corwin and W. R. Tichenor are in the semi-final in the junior division of the third and first flights.

* * *

THE results of the matches were:

First Flight—First Round: George. C. Oliver beat V. Q. Prowell 1 up in 20 holes; Herbert Tutwiler beat E. L. Brown 1 up; J. H. Doughty beat E. T. Winston 3-2; S. J. Cullum beat T. J. Watson 1 up 19 holes; W. P. Ward beat W. R. Tichenor 5-4; Rollo Steinmehl beat L. Arnold 5-4; H. C. Wood beat Frank Hewitt 2 up; Arch Henderson won from F. C. Stahlman by default.

Second Round: H. Tutwiler beat G. C. Oliver 2-1; J. H. Doughty beat S. Cullum 5-4; Rollo Steinmehl beat W. P. Ward 1 up in 22 holes; H. C. Wood beat H. Henderson 2 up.

* * *

* * *

SECOND FLIGHT—B. Throckmorton won from R. H. Thach 4-3; E. Crawford beat E. E. Ellis 3-2; R. T. Brooke beat J. S. Turner 7-5; F. G. Byrd beat T. Seibles 3-1; Ted Coy beat John Kimball 3-1; G. W. Adair beat W. E. Collier 2 up; S. Probasco beat George Macon 5-4; C. E. Faust beat D. Roberts 3-1.

Second Round.—B. Throckmorton beat E. Crawford 3-2; F. G. Byrd beat R. T. Brooke 4-2; G. W. Adair beat Ted Coy 1 up; C. E. Foust beat S. Probasco 1 up.

* * *

JUNIOR Division, Second Flight.—R. H. Thach beat E. Ellis 5-4; T. Seibles beat J. S. Tanner 2-1; John Kimball beat W. E. Collier 4-3; G. Macon beat D. Roberts 5-4.

* * *

THIRD FLIGHT.—Hampton Smith beat C. E. Corwin 4-3; Webb Offutt beat George C. Whatley 1 up; G. Martin beat L. C. Howard 4-3; Nash Read beat J. L. Bibb 2-1; E. M. Tutwiler beat J. B. Cobbs, 4-3; R. H. Gilbert beat George Watkins, 1 up; C. J. Holditch beat Dowdell Brown, 7-6; H. G. Seibles won from T. I. Webb, by default.

Second Round—Webb Offutt beat Hampton Smith, 1 up; W. Nash Read beat G. Martin, 6-4; R. H. Gilbert beat E. M. Tutwiler, 4-2; H. S. Seibles beat C. J. Holditch, 3-2.

Junior Division, Third Flight—C. E. Corwin beat G. C. Wheatley, 1 up, 19 holes; J. S. Bibb won from S. C. Howard, by default; D. Brown won by default.

* * *

FOURTH FLIGHT—R. P. Jones won from C. O. Locke, 7-6; Hampton Smith won from R. C. Munger, 5-3; W. A. Gunter beat P. Bowers, by default; H. Sanborn Smith beat W. M. Walker, 2-1; A. M. Post beat Hewett Smith, 3-1; J. C. Hardee beat C. Watkins, 4-2; T. B. Paine beat E. M. Kilby, 4-2; R. H. Baugh beat J. L. Kaul, 1 up, 19 holes.

Second Round—R. P. Jones beat H. S. Smith, 4-2; Sanborn Smith beat W. A. Gunter, 5-4; A. M. Post beat C. J. Hardee, 5-3; R. H. Baugh beat T. B. Paine, 5-4.

Nelson's Mgr. Praises McCarty

Says Luther Is Best Heavyweight

By Ed W. Smith

CHICAGO, May 10.—Not being swayed by any prejudices of section, color or previous condition, we should figure John Robinson, Bat Nelson's hustling manager, in a fine position to judge of the merits of a fighter, big or little, and when John says that Luther McCarty is the real thing in the heavyweight division we are inclined to think that John's opinion is worth considerably more than mere passing mention. Robinson was in New York the other evening when Luther lambasted Frank Moran, the Pittsburg heavyweight, for ten sharp rounds, and he got an excellent line on Luther's ring work. John's opinion is all the more valuable since he isn't friendly with Billy McCarney, Luther's manager, and hasn't been for some time.

* * *

JOHN isn't exactly "all smoked up" over Luther, but he figures him to be easily the best of the white heavyweights of the day, says his record proves it and sincerely believes that the future of a year or so will demonstrate it beyond the shadow of a doubt. Listen to some of John's chatter about the big man from Nebraska: "We had been told for months that Frank Moran was one of the very best of the latest crop of big fellows, and the Eastern friends of Dan McKetrick, who manages him, believed it. Naturally after being matched with McCarty his work was watched with the closest attention.

* * *

"NOW comes one of the interesting parts of the whole tale. After McCarty had bested Moran, and had done the job up beautifully, as I thought, he didn't get a bit of credit. He was scolded and nagged for not actually disposing of Moran more decisively, and that, too, in the face of previous boosts to the effect that Moran was one of the very best of them all. Not a bit of consistency to that line of work. If Moran was one of the best, then McCarty, after beating him, must naturally be one of the very best. Catch the line of reasoning?

* * *

"TO my way of doping it out, McCarty is a man who needs a lot of actual fighting to keep him fit. He is a lazy big fellow and inclined to slow down if he isn't punched continually. He couldn't have been at his best with Moran for that reason, because he had been idle for some little time previous to that encounter. I watched the battle carefully and in common with many others at the ringside tried to pick the flaws in this big fellow's work. I couldn't find many. Of course he is still a bit unpolished, but take it from me, he is picking up the inside stuff rapidly and is getting better every time he works.

* * *

"DURING the tenth round I saw him pull a Kid McCoy trick that enlightened me more than anything about him. Joe Jeannette, who was handling Moran, seeing the hopelessness of the cause, sent Frank out to do and die. Frank sailed in and slammed away like a threshing machine with both arms going wildly. Luther would have been a cherry ripe sucker to have mixed with him right there. Instead, he stepped in close and let go with his right exactly onto Moran's waist line. The punch didn't travel a foot, but it sunk in and instantly Moran was slowed down to a walk. I doubt if a dozen people in the crowd saw the punch or realized its importance. But Moran did. It was exactly the right thing at the right time and convinced me fully himself in any kind of company." that Luther will be able to care for

* * *

IT will not be long now before we find out what good Tom Jones has been able to accomplish with Jess Willard. Around here we figured that the chief fault with the tall man from Kansas was his disinclination to get out in the morning and do road work. Jones saw the point instantly and announced that if he got to handling Jess he would show him the error of his ways. He will get the test the middle of this month, when he slams into and is himself slammed into by Gunboat Smith, one of the toughest of the real tough trial horses of the day. It should be a grand old battle.

GIANTS-WHITE SOX WORLD TOUR IS NOW A CERTAINTY

CHICAGO, May 10.—John J. McGraw, of the New York Giants, clinched the round-the-world baseball tour which two big league teams, made up wholly or partly of Giants and White Sox, are to make next fall and winter by signing the contract in New York last night. It had previously been signed by President Comiskey, of the White Sox.

The trip will be on a bigger scale than the famous baseball tour of 1888, and may carry 75 or 100 persons. Tentative plans have it that the teams will leave Chicago about October 15 and play games in the South and West until they reach Vancouver.

They will sail from Vancouver on November 5. Japan will be reached on November 15, and a stay made in the Nippon Realm of six or eight days. Then Manila, Australia, Italy, Egypt and all European countries will be visited.

MURPHY AND HERRMANN ROW OVER RELEASED PLAYER

CHICAGO, May 10.—A little row between Prexies Murphy, of the Cubs, and Garry Herrmann, of the Reds, is enlivening the diamond atmosphere.

Manager John Evers is cutting his team down to the limit recently sent Knisley and McDonald to the Birminghan club in the Southern Association. When the Cubs traded Joe Tinker to Cincinnati, Knisley was included in the deal and Herrmann claims to have made a verbal agreement with Murphy, whereby Knisley was to be returned to the Reds if the Cubs could not use him.

CLEMSON WALLOPS AUBURN IN SECOND BATTLE, 18-4

AUBURN, ALA., May 10.—Clemson won the second game of the series from Auburn here yesterday, 18 to 4. The visitors got off with a good lead, due to Locke's wildness, and Driver, who relieved him, was hit hard during the balance of the game. The series is now even, and the deciding game will be played today, with Ezell on the mound for Clemson and Davis twirling for Auburn.

CALLAHAN REINSTATED.

NEW YORK, May 10.—The State Boxing Commission has reinstated Paddy Callahan, who was suspended March 19 for fouling Joe Coster.

BASEBALL

Diamond News and Gossip

The Reds got an even break in their series with the Giants, and if they continue to play the same kind of ball they did in Gotham town it'll be only a short time before they climb out of the National League cellar.

* * *

The suspension of Stovall has weakened the playing strength of the Browns fully 20 per cent, and the Naps and White Sox are moaning because the Eastern aggregations will have an easy time trouncing the St. Louis boys.

* * *

But even without Stovall the Browns can grab off an occasional victory. They fractured the winning streak of the Athletics yesterday, driving Pitcher Houck to the cooling shed in the first round.

* * *

Luderus, the Phillies' first sacker, after going hitless for nearly a week, cracked out a homer yesterday, which enabled his team to romp home a winner over the fast-traveling Cardinals.

* * *

The Dodgers walloped the Cubs again yesterday, sliding into second place, and are only a few points behind the leading Phillies.

* * *

Too bad the Yankees can't play against the Tigers all the season. They'd emerge near the top of the American League in October if they did.

* * *

The Red Sox may win the pennant again this year, but it will require some mighty humping. The Boston boys are over 400 points behind the flying Athletics and no club can spot the Quakertown athletes eight full games and expect to have an easy over-hauling job.

* * *

Only those who have been swatted with a crowbar can appreciate the feelings of the Pirate fans when they jumped the score boards yesterday and discovered that the lowly Boston Braves have trimmed the Pirates for the fourth successive time.

* * *

The White Sox bumped the Senators again yesterday, but Walter Johnson is due to do the flinging to-day for the Washington Athletes and perhaps there will be a different story to tell by nightfall.

* * *

Johnson, by the way, may establish a new pitching record if he goes into the box to-day. The record for consecutive scoreless innings is 45, established some years ago by "Doc" White, of the White Sox. Johnson already has pitched 42 2-3 scoreless innings.

* * *

Four decisions were rendered on one play by the umpires in the Brown-Athletics game yesterday. Ferguson called Oldring out at first and then declared him safe when Brief, the Browns' first sacker, fell. The Browns rushed up to Umpire O'Loughlin, who declared Oldring out, whereupon the Athletics ran over to Ferguson, made a roar and Ferguson again declared Oldring safe. Then play resumed.

* * *

The Red Sox polished up their batting orbs yesterday, pounded out 13 hits and beat the Naps 3 to 1, it being their first victory on the Western swing.

* * *

And now will C. Webb Murphy please issue forth and perform a little volplaning stunt from the most heavenward point of the Brooklyn grandstand? The Chicago gentleman said he'd make the 100-foot leap if the Dodgers took a series from the Cubs. The Dodgers have not turned the trick.

Mister Murphy, where art thou?

* * *

This is "Johny Evers Day" at the Polo grounds, and hundreds of rooters from Troy, N. Y., the home town of the Cubs' manager, went to New York on a special train to witness the first clash of the season between the Giants and the scrappy Chicagoans.

ITCHING PILES
Every sufferer from itching piles should read these words from H. S. Hood, of Bellaire, Mich., who was Cured by Tetterine
For sixteen years I had been a sufferer from itching piles. I got a box of Tetterine and less than half a box made a complete cure.
Tetterine gives instant relief to all skin diseases, such as eczema, tetter, ringworm, ground itch, etc. It has the right medicinal qualities to get at the cause and to relieve the effect. Get it to-day—Tetterine.

MARIST FIRST IN TRACK MEET; TECH SECOND

MARIST College won the annual Atlanta prep track meet Friday at Marist field with a total of 52 1-3 points. Marist was especially strong in the distance runs and the dashes. Three teams were entered in the meet—Marist, Tech High and G. M. A. Tech High was second with a total of 25 1-3 points, while G. M. A. brought up the rear with 12 1-3.

Lewis, of Marist, was the highest individual point winner with 16 points to his credit. He won the last event of the day, the quarter mile dash, which put him 1 point ahead of Fowler.

John Roberts, of Marist, was the only winner to break a local prep record. Roberts in the pole vault cleared the bar at 9 feet 6 inches. Meyers, of Tech High, was second in this event and also beat the former record. Meyers made 9 feet 4 and just barely missed the next height. Smith, of G. M. A., and Bedell, of Tech High, were tied with 10 points apiece for third highest point winner. Smith had things his own way in the broad and high jumps.

Charlie Allen must have had a grudge against Fowler. In the quarter mile run Allen was easily leading, but held back toward the finish in order to let his teammate, Lewis, who was running second, pass him. This gave Lewis a total of 16 points, just one more than Fowler had.

EVERS PLANS TO CONVERT ARCHER INTO FIRST SACKER

NEW YORK, May 10.—Johnny Evers, manager of the Cubs, who are playing a series with Brooklyn, today was quoted as saying that he would try to convert Jimmy Archer, one of the best catchers in the game, into a first baseman. Saier has not been entirely satisfactory to Evers as a first baseman, while Archer has shone as a fielding star at that point.

BRANDT OUTPOINTS HUFNAGLE.

KEARNS STOPS DAVIS.

PREP LEAGUE NOTES

Saturday morning and afternoon a monster track meet will be held at Ponce DeLeon Park by the Public Grammar Schools of Atlanta.

* * *

Both boys and girls are entered in the meet and three prizes are offered in each event. The morning exercises will commence at 9 o'clock and end at noon. The afternoon events will be finished at 5 o'clock. Moving picture men will be on hand to get some views of the drills and races.

* * *

The cadets of G. M. A. are at present encamped at Lakewood and are having a very enjoyable time. Friday they had a dress parade, which was attended by Governor and Mrs. Brown.

* * *

Emory College will meet Mercer at Macon Saturday in a dual track and field meet. Wilbur Carlton, the man who made such a wonderful showing in the inter-class meet at Emory a short time ago, is expected to win the greatest number of points for Emory. He is entered in seven events.

* * *

This meet is the first inter-collegiate contest that Emory has participated in for a number of years and a great deal of interest is being shown by the students of the school. It is barely possible that Emory will have inter-collegiate athletics in the near future, as the students and alumni of the school are working hard for it.

* * *

Prof. Alexander, of Tech, is considering a plan to enter a team picked from Tech students attending the summer school in the local city league this summer. "Aleck" says that many of the best players in school attend the summer session and a good team could be organized.

* * *

A few short weeks and the Prep baseball season will be a thing of the past. Boys' High appears to have the honors cinched this year. If they win it will be the first time in three years. The last two seasons Boys' High has finished second in the race.

* * *

The 100-yard dash in the Prep meet Friday was the closest race seen in a long time. Allen and Lewis, of Marist, were first and second, but Bedell, of Tech High, was right on their heels.

* * *

Fowler, of Marist, showed up mighty well in the meet Friday. He won three firsts—the hammer, mile and half-mile runs. A new Prep record was made in the pole vault by John Roberts, of Marist. He cleared the bar at 9 feet 6 inches.

* * *

Jim Lowery, of Marist, has been shifted from first to catcher. He was a good first sacker, but had to be sacrificed on account of lack of a backstop. He will no doubt be placed at first base on the all-prep selection this year.

* * *

Sam Armistead, the Boys High catcher, got four hits in the game with Marist Wednesday. Sam is now leading the Prep League batters with an average of over .400. He is catching a good game at present and not a man stole a base on him Wednesday.

* * *

Riverside has first place tied up in a bag in the G. I. A. A. pennant race, but the real fight is for second place between Gordon, G. M. C. and Stone Mountain.

* * *

Gordon and G. M. C. met in a double-header last week which resulted in a game each. Both are anxious to win two straight this time. Gordon is playing on the home grounds and will not take another road trip this season.

* * *

Tech High and Boys High will play again next week. If the Culverites win they will have a slim chance to cop the pennant. The defeat by Peacock was a great blow to the Tech High bunch.

ATHLETES OFF FOR JAPAN.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 10.—Twelve members of the Stanford University baseball club sailed for Japan today on the liner Nippon Maru to compete against the team of Tokio University. The Stanford men, intercollegiate champions of the Pacific Coast, will be the guests of the Japanese institution on the tour.

GIBBONS SIGNS FOR BOUT.

NEW YORK, May 10.—Mike Gibbons, of St. Paul, has just signed a contract for a fight here on May 16 with Tommy Connors, of Scranton, Pa.

FAMOUS PENN DIRECTOR IN SERIOUS CONDITION

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—Mike Murphy, one of the world's most famous trainers of athletes, and now director of athletics at the University of Pennsylvania, is thought to be dying at his home here. To-day the attending physicians reported that Murphy was sinking fast and that he had lost control of his faculties.

For several years Murphy has been afflicted with tuberculosis, but has refused to remain in the West, returning each fall and spring to coach the college teams.

CHANCE SIGNS A CATCHER.

DEROIT, MICH., May 10.—Manager Chance, of the Yankees, has signed Catcher William Reynolds, of the Houston baseball club, champion team of the Texas League in 1912.

A Bachelor's Diary

Jack Spencer's Infatuation for the Widow Becomes Serius and His Wife Notices It.

By MAX.

MARCH 25.—I had thought constantly this morning of our evening with the widow at the station last night; of Jack Spencer's evident infatuation; of the way in which he monopolized her, and the possessive manner in which he took her to the train, though I had hoped to have that privilege; of Sally Spencer's only half-concealed distress, and of the widow's triumphant look when she left us.

She is an unscrupulous woman. So many women who are fascinating are, and she holds a grudge against Mrs. Spencer because of the efforts Sally made last winter to prevent me from marrying.

All this made me uneasy, and knowing Jack to be weak, just as I am weak and just as all men are weak, I felt an apprehension that was almost womanish. I was not surprised during the morning to get a telephone message from Mrs. Spencer to come over for a little "plain talk," she said, and it was with a decided feeling of relief that I assented.

He Walked In.

With the privilege granted an old friend I did not stop to knock when I reached Mrs. Spencer's door, but walked in unannounced, making my way to a certain little sunny sitting room where she always spent her mornings making up her household accounts, sewing, writing letters and engaged in similar little tasks which take up so much of a methodical woman's time, and which we men neither can comprehend nor appreciate.

She had been engaged in running a ribbon through some dainty lace-trimmed garment, but it had fallen unnoticed to the floor beside her, and with her hands lying idly on her lap she was gazing intently through the window.

I stepped behind her and looked over her head to see what so engrossed her. The window commanded a view of my back lawn and the picture at which she gazed was so pretty I did not wonder at her absorption. Richards had placed a little table on the lawn, and Manette was giving a dinner party, with Sarah Rae Hartman, four dolls, the brown-eyed pup and two kittens as her guests. The dolls were sitting bolt upright in their chairs with faces so lacking in expression that they looked like real society ladies; the two kittens on one side, not so well bred, were lapping cream from tiny saucers on the table, and the pup, on the opposite side, was barking so fiercely it became necessary for Manette to pause while feeding a doll on her lap to pacify him by sticking a cake in his mouth. His anger at the kittens, plainly because of their ill-breeding, could not be choked off by cake, and we looked and he gave one bound across the table, the kittens fled without asking to be excused, and sought shelter up the nearest tree with the pup at their heels.

I am proud of Manette for many things, and one is that she seldom cries. With her tea table upset and her tea party broken up, she did not give a howl like most babies, but dropped the doll baby and ran after the pup. Tompkins caught him before he had caught the kittens and restored him to Manette's arms, who punished him by putting him to bed in a doll buggy. There he lay, with his head on a pillow, his brown eyes making a plea for pardon and his pink tongue hanging out.

She Weeps.

"Does life offer any greater pleasure than that?" I said to Mrs. Spencer when she had turned around and found me there. Then I noticed that her eyes were filled with tears.

"Max," she said, drawing up a chair for me, "that," looking to where Manette was tying a doll bonnet on the pup's head, preparatory to taking him for a ride, "is all there is in life worth while. The love men and women have for each other is only a means to happiness, and that is never attained unless there is a child.

"Your home, though you are a bachelor, is happier than mine because of the presence of a child. I tell you, Max, you don't know how well off you are."

"But," I argued, feeling that in some indefinable way I was put on the defensive, "there are lonesome moments even when there is a child. I am a man grown with all a man's longing for the companionship of his peers, and baby talk does not satisfy me. I get down to Manette's size every hour in the day, and when evening comes and she has gone to bed I long for the companionship of one who talks my own language. And," growing more emphatic because of the look of disapproval in her eyes, "it is a longing that the society of men doesn't satisfy, and as good and patient as you and Jack are with me, letting me come over here every evening to forget my loneliness, it is a craving that even the companionship of two such good friends can't gratify. Oh, Sally, you are a woman, and a woman never understands!"

A Suggestion.

"No," she said sadly, "a woman never understands. And a man never understands either, and here we are, tied together for life, and neither understanding the other. It is a wonder we are as happy as we are. You have no wife to 'understand' you," a little sarcastically, "and I have a husband who doesn't 'understand' me, but you have a child, and are better off than I."

"If you feel that way about it, why don't you adopt one? There's Sarah Rae, for instance. I have an idea her parents would be glad to give her away."

She paid no heed to what I had said, but gazed out of the window with her mind so far away that her eyes took no note of the efforts Sarah Rae was making to hold the pup in the doll buggy while Manette dragged it back and forth on the garden path.

She turned toward me very suddenly.

"What is Mrs. Brown's address?"

"But why—" I stammered.

"I intend to ask her here to spend a week," she replied.

"Sally," I said, "you are mad. If Jack is infatuated with the widow, why do you want to make his infatuation worse? She is gone. He will never see her again, and why, for the Lord's sake, give him a chance to play with fire by having her here?"

"You say a woman never understands. You are wrong; it is your sex that is stupid."

"But—" I began. Then I decided it was no use. There is never any use of arguing with a woman, so I pulled a notebook out of my pocket, copied Mrs. Brown's address on a card I found on the table, and handed it to her without a word.

"By the way," as if she had almost forgotten it; "Margaret Hill is coming also."

Margaret Hill! The girl I asked to be my wife, but who refused me when she learned there was a breach of promise suit pending against me. The good little Puritan, who was so good she was too good! I am sure my face showed my surprise.

A Bitter Cry.

"I tried to tell you at the station last night," she continued, "but you were so absorbed in the coming of the widow you refused to hear me."

"Max," abruptly changing the subject, "is a man's love ever won for all time? I won Jack Spencer's love when I was a girl twenty years ago, and I have been engaged in trying to keep it won ever since. I sometimes wonder"—a little bitterly—"if the love of a husband is worth the struggle a woman must make to hold it. It is fight, fight, fight, all the time; a fight to retain my personal charms, a fight to keep him interested, a fight to forget myself in satisfying every longing he may have, physical, mental or spiritual; a fight to give him just so much of myself that he will never know entirely and will always want more; a fight to keep him from the clutches of that Other Woman, always standing like a threatening phantom in the background; and then, when I have his love, what do I possess? Something about as lasting as a soap bubble, and never worth the price!"

"Look here, Sally Spencer," I said in real alarm, for this was so unlike her, "you are getting morbid, and I won't stand for it. Come with me," drawing her from her chair, and leading her to the door.

Five minutes later we were highly honored guests at the table of Sarah Rae, who was hostess this time, each holding a kitten and a doll as a special mark of honor.

But is that so, Diary, what she said about the love of man?

BEAUTY SECRETS OF BEAUTIFUL WOMEN

Effie Shannon Tells Why Twenty-five Years of Work Has Only Made Her Younger

By LILLIAN LAUFFERTY.

THE "Everybody's Doing It" of today is—trying to look young. Powder, pencil, patches, paint—art and artifice—these are the methods most of us accept; and these methods are all wrong; they "gild the surface" and scarcely deceive the most casual observer.

But there is a way to be so young and charming in spirit that the years creep on as friends, rather than enemies. There is a secret of eternal youth—and Effie Shannon knows it.

After a quarter of a century on the stage, Effie Shannon stands before us, slender, vibrant with life, magnetic and lovely, with the beauty of a clean-cut cameo. DELICATE, DAINTY EFFIE SHANNON HAS BEEN A WORKER FOR TWENTY-FIVE YEARS. Think of that, you little girls who fret lest your days of toil cheat you of youth and make you old before you have crossed life's threshold!

As the curtain falls on the evening-hushed rose garden in "Years of Discretion" at the Belasco Theater, Miss Shannon is happily echoing her lover-husband's, "It is wonderful to be old." IT IS WONDERFUL TO BE OLD, IF YOU HAVE THE INNER SPIRIT OF ETERNAL YOUTH—like Effie, of the play, and the charming woman who portrays her.

In the close intimacy of the dressing room, Miss Shannon is absolutely fresh and untouched by time, and yet she calmly said: "I am glad I am not young any more. Think of all the experience—the richness and fullness of life that I know. Think how high my spirit has fed. Do you think I'd give any of it—any line on my face—and retrace the years, and have a pretty mask with no background of life and feeling?

"Then to you true beauty is expression, is it not?" I asked.

Beauty Is Expression.

"Yes; true beauty IS expression—and to acquire beauty or to accent it, a woman must have imagination and sympathy.

"I never can sufficiently emphasize imagination and sympathy. Cultivate them—they are a woman's greatest friends. They give a deeper meaning to loveliness, and they veil plainness.

"Imagination means dreaming—seeing deep into life and interpreting it. Sympathy means being in tune with all of it.

"And as the years pass, a woman becomes more and more capable of them. So why should not a woman who cultivates these qualities become lovelier with the years?"

"'We must cultivate our garden. Do you remember that quotation? You seem to live it.'" I said.

Her lovely illuminating smile lit Miss Shannon's face. "I do remember—'The Beloved Vagabond' said it—and women who value their great gift, beauty, must cultivate the flowers of imagination and sympathy in the garden of mind and soul. And live! Live life in fullness. Remember you are an individual—a separate soul and learn to be your true self. Don't you think that will insure a beautiful expression—deep, tender eyes, a sweet mouth and a happy soul to illuminate the face?" asked the charming star earnestly.

Beware of Fat.

"I do, indeed," I replied. "We all must cultivate our gardens. But how about uprooting the weeds—fat for instance?"

"Fat is a noxious weed," laughed Miss Shannon. "Girls must never get fat if they want to be beautiful. People do eat too much in New York—in all the big cities where dinners and teas at home or in the restaurants are occasions. Beware of too much or too rich food!

"I will tell you how simply I live. Breakfast: Tea, toast and a bit of fruit. Luncheon—nothing. Not a bite. Dinner I have at five every day—and, it is a very simple meal. After the play I have a simple supper, too, if I am hungry. One needs to see people to keep in touch with life—to have moments of gayety and absolute self-forgetfulness—to be with friends. After the play happens to be my free time. So I go to simple little suppers and enjoy them.

"Food is not the only practical consideration in connection with keeping thin. A very important one is: DON'T TAKE NAPS. Those little afternoon sleepy times are dangerously fattening—and life is too short to sleep away. Keep busy—keep doing things, and you will grow in strength, but not in beauty-destroying pounds."

"Suppose all else failed to give you the modern 'straight silhouette,' would you wear painfully tight clothes and shoes as you do in the play in order to be young and alluring," I asked?

"NO!" said the graceful star emphatically. "Who could be charming with tight shoes on? TIGHT SHOES TORTURE YOUR MIND AS WELL AS YOUR FEET. And five pairs of garters' strapping you down firmly—you could not feel in tune with life—you would feel only pain—in this world full of beauty you would be conscious only of a body painfully striving for fashionable contours. Good corsets, shoes that fit, suitable clothes, they will, when properly adjusted and selected, help you give the impression of youth. But they are the lesser aids.

"Youth is a matter of spirit and feeling, you know. Feel young; think young eager thoughts; love life in its fullness of work and play and joy and sorrow.

"But to be beautiful, you must be young in spirit—not in years. TIME AND EXPERIENCE AND FEELING MUST CHISEL A FACE TO MAKE IT REALLY BEAUTIFUL; THE SPIRIT OF KNOWLEDGE MUST ILLUMINATE BEAUTY TO MAKE IT LOVELY AND PERMANENTLY ATTRACTIVE.

"Express your own true self always better and better—and then it is 'wonderful to be old'—for your spirit will be gloriously young, and your SPIRIT WIL' MAKE YOU GLOW WITH THE FIRES OF ETERNAL YOUTH."

And as Miss Shannon's voice, vibrant with imagination and sympathy, alight with feeling, and truly expressive of her own rare self, brought me her message, I knew I had heard a vital truth. Youth is deeper than powder and paint and clothes—Youth is Soul.

Miss Effie Shannon in Two Charming Poses.

"BE SURE TO BURN LOVE LETTERS"

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

DON'T keep love letters.

Unless you are receiving them from your own wife or husband or your fiance, you might better keep a box of dynamite in your kitchen or introduce an infernal machine into your household than to guard a package of love letters.

Let them perish in their own fires as soon as absorbed by the eye and heart.

If your engagement is broken, even though one or both swear never to marry, nevertheless it is worse than folly to keep the letters exchanged during the existence of tender relations.

Fate plays such strange pranks with us all. Your lover may some day be President of the United States, or your sweetheart the wife of a great celebrity, and unnecessary pain and annoyance ensue from the unearthing of those old letters by some accident.

Burn them, I say, burn them!

VERY FOOLISH.

IT is one thing to have your husband or wife tell you of an early rehearsal of Cupid's drama before you met. It is another to encounter the love letters written during that period—which seem to your exacting heart more realistic than the role you have been engaged to play for life.

Sometimes he is safely landed on shore by a happy turn of the wind or by the life-saving crew of Providence.

He hides his bruises, and no one knows of his brief disaster—unless he carries about with him the incriminating letter.

Oh, the folly of it!

BURN THEM ALL.

IT is no easy task, however, to burn or destroy, a letter that is dear to you. A genuine love letter breathes the very fragrance of the writer's soul. Who capable of understanding the grand passion has not felt the keen sense of pleasure that was twin to pain at the sight of the beloved one's handwriting? Where is the man or woman so stolid or commonplace who has not at some time kissed the page whereon a dear hand has rested and then hidden it near the heart whose accelerated throbs welcomed its approach?

And who of deep feeling and wide experience has not at some time felt his own heart scorching with the parcel of letters he tossed upon the coals?

But human hearts have a Phoenix-like propensity for rising from their own ashes, strong with new life and capable of new emotions. Let there be no accusing records of the old.

Let the dead bury its dead.

However it hurts, whatever it costs, burn your love letters.

An Eye to Business

"Prisoner at the bar," declaimed the learned Judge, "your offense is of such a nature that, if you plead guilty, I will let you off with a fine."

"Pardon me," and the prisoner's counsel popped suddenly up from his seat. "Before we plead guilty, it will be necessary for us to know exactly how much the fine will be."

"But this is unprecedented, sir!" exclaimed the Judge warmly. "You can not bargain with the Court."

"Well, it may be a little unusual, Your Honor," replied the lawyer, "but I am sure, when you learn the full circumstances of the case, you will entirely agree to my proposition. You see, the prisoner is in the possession of $60; my fee is $50, and so we cannot afford to plead guilty if you insist on fining him more than $10."

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"I knew her the instant I entered the house; and, remembering the Chanticler dress with its fowl's-foot boots, I guessed at once what those marks would prove to be when I came to investigate them. She must have stamped on the ground with all her might, to sink the marks in so deeply—but she meant to make sure of the claws and the exaggerated scales on the toes leaving their imprint. I was certain we should find that dress and those boots among her effects; and—Mr. Narkom did. What I wrote on that pretended telegram was for him to slip away into the house proper and search every trunk and cupboard for them.

"What's that? No, I don't think they really had any idea of incriminating Sir Roger Droger. That thought came into the fellow's mind when you stepped out and caught him stealing away after the murder had been committed. No doubt he, like you, had seen Sir Ralph practicing for the sports, and he simply made capital of it.

"The main idea was to kill his father and to destroy the will; and, of course, when it became apparent that the old gentleman had died intestate, even a discarded son must inherit. Where he made his blunder, however, was in his haste to practice his ventriloquial accomplishment to prevent your going into the Round House and discovering that his father was already dead.

"He ought to have waited until you spoke, so that it would appear natural for the old men to know without turning who it was that had opened the door. That is what put me on the track of him. Until that moment I hadn't the slightest suspicion where he was nor under what guise he was hiding.

"Of course, I had a vague suspicion even before I came and saw her that 'the cook' was in it. Her readiness in inventing a fictitious gypsy with a bear's muzzle coupled with what Nippers had told me of the animal marks she had pointed out, looked a bit fishy; but, of course, until I actually met her nothing really tangible began to take shape in my thoughts.

"That's all, I think. And now good-night and good luck to you, Miss Renfrew. The riddle is solved; and Mr. Narkom and I must be getting back to the wilderness and to our ground floor beds in the hotel of the beautiful stars!"

THE END.

Their Married Life

Helen, from a Box, Looks Down Upon Warren at a Banquet at the Astor-Ritz.

By MABEL HERBERT URNER.

IT was just 9:30 when Helen, in an evening gown and long white wrap, hurried down to a taxicab.

"The Astor-Ritz," she called to the driver as she gathered her chiffon skirts about her white satin slippers and stepped in.

To be whirling through the streets alone at 9:30 was for Helen a new sensation, and always self-conscious, she dreaded arriving at the Astor-Ritz unescorted.

It was the night of the annual dinner of the International Fraternal Society. Mr. Jennings had invited Warren to the dinner and had given him a box ticket for Helen. She was supposed to arrive about 10, to sit in a box overlooking the banquet hall and listen to the speeches.

With a fluttering heart she left the cab and ran up the awning-covered steps of the Astor-Ritz. Keenly conscious that she was alone, she hurried through the lobby to the nearest elevator.

At the entrance to the balcony of the banquet hall the doorman took her ticket and escorted her to one of the boxes in which were already seated three beautifully gowned women.

Below was the banquet hall with a long speakers' table at the end, and countless smaller tables crowded so close that the waiters could hardly pass between. It was a brilliant scene—the lights, the flower-decked tables, the high, gilded ceiling and gleaming chandeliers.

Helen's first impulse as she leaned over the red plush railing of the box was to find Warren. But it was not easy to locate any one in that great crowded hall, with all the diners in evening dress, and each with a white carnation in his buttonhole.

Not Warren.

Was that Warren with his back towards her at that table by the pillar? She leaned forward eagerly, but as she caught a glimpse of the man's side face her searching glance swept on to other tables.

The waiters were just bringing on the dessert—a pinkish ice in tall slender glasses. There were many things in the table appointments that Helen was eager to notice, but she could not be content until she had located Warren.

Then suddenly she saw him at a table near the center. Why had she not seen him at once? Surely no one else looked so distinguished!

If he would only look up! But he was talking to the man at his right. He had promised to look for her around 10, and it was that now, but he kept on laughing and talking, not even glacing towards the boxes.

The waiter had just placed before him his frozen ice and refilled his wine glass. Then Helen saw that every one at Warren's table was drinking champagne. Some of the other tables had champagne, some had claret, and at a few there were no wine glasses at all.

Warren was looking up now! He was glancing toward the boxes! He saw Helen and waved his napkin.

Helen flushed with pride as the other women in the box turned to look at her. In spite of their expensive gowns and jewels Helen felt certain that their husbands were not at handsome and distinguished as Warren.

The waiters had now all lined up by the door, each carrying a tray piled nigh with small white boxes—the dinner souvenirs. At a sign from the head waiter, they filed in and out through the tables, leaving a white box beside each plate.

Had the diners been women, they would have instantly opened the boxes, but the men seemed hardly to notice them. So Helen's curiosity was not gratified.

The Dinner Over.

At length the dinner was over. The waiters began carrying out the dishes and the pink-shaded candles, most of which had burned out. The orchestra that had been playing in a balcony above the boxes now stopped.

The chairman at the speakers' table rose and rapped for order. Helen wondered why he was chairman. He was small and insignificant with a thin voice that did not carry. After some tedious remarks which no one could hear, he introduced the first speaker of the evening, Dr. Olony, an eminent sociologist.

Helen leaned forward with eager interest. The speakers were all prominent men, and she felt thir addresses would be well worth hearing. But Dr. Olony began with the usual trite preliminary remarks about it being "an honor to address so distinguished a gathering." Then to Helen's dismay he produced a formidable manuscript and proceded to read it.

Everybody sat back resignedly. After the first few moments Helen did not pretend to listen. The women beside her kept up a running conversation. Several men had now come up to the various boxes to sit with their wives and friends. The eminent Dr. Olony was still reading in a monotonous voice.

Helen's glance never left Warren for long, and now she saw him push back his chair and leave the table. He looked up and nodded. He was coming up to her!

"Well, what do you think of it?" when he entered the box and took the chair beside her.

"Oh, dear, it's very interesting," happily excited now that she was with her. How wonderful he looked—how distinguished! Her eyes rested on him proudly.

"Rotten speaker," he grumbled. "A man ought to be mobbed for reading a speech at a dinner like this. What people want is short pointed addresses of say—five minutes. That boob's been spouting for fifteen."

"Oh, dear, you didn't bring me your souvenir. I wanted so much to see them."

"Forgot the blamed thing. Get it for you later. Woude, who that stunning woman is in that box over there?"

Helen followed his glance to the dark-haired regal-looking woman. She was undeniably beautiful. Her gown of white lace was cut strikingly low, and there were strands of pearls about her throat and in her hair. Helen was not often jealous, but somehow she felt suddenly plain and poorly gowned beside the striking loveliness of that woman.

The speaker finished now and sat down amid much applause. He bowed repeatedly, not seeming to realize that the applause was only an expression of relief that he was through. Again the chairman rapped for order.

This time a United States Senator was introduced. To Helen's relief he had no notes, his voice was deep and booming, and he was plainly used to talking on his feet. But his ranting eloquence was just words—empty phrases. He had nothing particular to say and was merely "orating."

Warren, who loathed after-dinner speaking, and who rarely attended big dinners because he would not be bored, was becoming restive.

"How many more of these guys do we have to stand for?" drawing from his pocket the dinner menu, on the back of which were the names of the speakers. "Suffering cats! FOUR more? Well, I guess not! We'll cut it and make for home."

"Oh, dear, we'd better wait a little longer! It'll look rude to leave so early, Mr. Jennings will think we didn't enjoy it."

"Guess he's bored stiff, too. Why in blazes don't they have some live talkers instead of ringing in a lot of dead ones?"

If the speech of the eminent sociologist had been long, the Senator's seemed interminable. He boomed on with high-sounding phrases about "The Achievements of the Nineteenth Century..... The Splendid Strides of Civilization .....The Advancement of Society," and something about "Shining Orbits in the Sky of Future Progress.....Blazing in Front of the Jeweled Crown of an Unconquerable Race."

Every one was becoming impatient and restive, even the chairman had his mallet poised as though anxious to rap it, but still the Senator kept on shouting his oratorical phrases.

Missed the Souvenir.

"Gosh, that fellow loves to hear himself talk," growled Warren. "He's good for another hour yet. Come ON!"

"But dear, we must wait—we can't leave while he's speaking," whispered Helen.

"Like to know why we can't? Here's where I get out!"

"And I didn't get the souvenir—I didn't even see what they were!" bewailed Helen, as Warren hurried her out through the crowded corridors of the Astor-Ritz.

"Souvenirs!" with a contemptuous sniff. "Well I wouldn't have stood for any more of that duffer's speech for a dozen souvenirs. I'll wager he's spouting there yet."

"Yes, he WAS tiresome," Helen admitted, sinking back in the taxicab with a sigh of relief. Then laughingly, "Dear, if you ever make an after-dinner speech, don't begin by saying you 'feel honored to address so distinguished a gathering.' And don't—PLEASE don't use a lot of fine phrases that mean nothing."

"Huh," snorted Warren, "don't you worry! If ever I make a public speech I'll have something to say, and I'll say it blamed quick, and have gumption enough to sit down when I'm through."

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

MA & me had a lot of fun yesterday at the dinner tabel in the hotel ware we are staying wile Pa is here catching fish. Pa was out following a streem, & Ma & me was all alone at our tabel until a yung traveling man caim in & the waitress put him at our tabel. He was vary yung and vary fresh. The minnit he got sat down to the tabel he looked oaver at us & sed You peepul are having a luvly spring this yeer up in the woods.

The day is butiful, sed Ma. Ma was dressed in a plain dress for walking in & I had on overalls so I cud be like the other littel boys around here, & I was bare-footed. Ma & me knew that the yung traveling man thot we was country peepul & we dident care, beekaus we have saw lots of peepul in the big cities that dident know half so much as country folks.

The seenery here is vary pritty, sed the yung man, but, of course, you peepul up here think moar of it than I do, beekaus I have traveled around a grate deel & saw seenery wich is sublimer than these little hills, small to a man like me, he asked Ma, a man wich has seen reel mountains?

But, of course, you peepul up here havent traveled & got broadened, sed the yung salesman. Jest think how majestik must be the site of a mountain peek like the kind you see not far from Chattanooga, Tenn.

I have never been in Chattanooga, sed Ma.

It Was a Pity.

That seems a pity, sed the yung man. One reely doesnt know what living is until one has been in Chattanooga. A littel place like this is all rite for peepul wich have nevver seen the glories of natur, but one who has traveled like I have it would soon beecum monotonous.

& so you travel? sed Ma.

Yes, indeed, sed the yung man. We knights of the grip are never still in one place vary long. I travel all the way from Chattanooga to Nashville on the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis, he toald Ma. Chattanooga is sum city. Thare is none of this humdrum life you have here. Why, think of a city with several theaters all within the city limits, & with the hum of St. cars & the roar of the traffic & the butiful stores & residences. That is life, believe me, sed the yung man. I doant know what the other big cities is like, he sed, but you have got to show me whare any one of them has anything on Chattanooga.

I was jest going to tell the yung man that Pa & Ma & me had been in every big city in the U. S., from Frizco to Portland Maine & from New Orleans to the Canadian line, but Ma kicked me under the tabel & I knew then that she was kidding the yung man.

I have offen thot that wen my littel boy grows up I wud have him be a traveling man, sed Ma. My sister's husband used to sell enlarged picters. He used to travel from Chippewa Falls to Boyd on the Wisconsin Central. I guess he mite have been with his firm yet only he used to lose his expense money playing nickel slot macheens.

The Pity of It.

That is the pity of it with us knights of the grip, sed the yung man. We are thrown into constant temtashun, traveling the way we do from one town to another. Doant let yure yung son get into this gaim, he sed. It is a pity that you can not move to Chattanooga or eeven sum smaller city, so he cud get the benefits of a education, like I dune.

Jest then Pa caim in & sed Wife, this is jest my luck. Jest as the fishing is good, here is a telegram that we must return to New York & leave the next day for Frisco.

Oh, good, sed Ma, we havent been in Frisco for nearly two years.

Then the yung man got kind of red in the face & dident say any moar about Chattanooga.

Just a Little Slip.

"Miss Sweet," the young man began, with a quaver in his voice, "may I presume so far upon our short acquaintance to ask you—"

"Please say no more, Mr. Matthews!" faltered the maiden. "I deeply regret to give you pain; and, if I have unconsciously encouraged you to entertain hopes that never can be recalled, I can not forgive myself. Believe me, I am—"

"Pardon me, Miss Sweet," interrupted the astonished youth, "but I was only going to ask you for the loan of fare home! I was stupid enough to come away without any money in my pocket this evening. Ah, thanks very much! I will return it without fail. Good night!"

The College of France, founded in Paris by Francis I, offers at the present day not only strictly academic instruction, but opportunities for the higher education in general. The following anecdote shows how far the college carries its scrupulousness. Every scientific subject, even the most abstruse, will continue to be taught there as long as one solitary individual in all Europe desires to pursue it.

Certain courses are followed by two or three persons only. They tell this story of a professor of mathematics: This professor, who was extremely absent-minded, had lectured for a whole year to only one pupil.

He was perfectly satisfied that it should be so, but it occurred to him one day that he ought to congratulate his rare disciple, and he accordingly did so.

"Monsieur does not recognize me," replied the pupil. "I am monsieur's coachman, and I always wait here until monsieur has finished his lecture."

CHAPTER 2.

JENNIE and THE MAN sat in the big, bright restaurant and listened to the music and watched the cabaret dancers, and Jennie's big brown eyes wondered at it all. At the beautiful dresses of the women diners, the bright lights, the thick, rich carpet on the floor and the noiseless waiters.

It was just like fairyland to Jennie, for she had never, never even imagined that things could be so lovely. The boys she knew could not afford such places, and the height of her social life had been walks in the park on Sundays and maybe the ice cream parlors for soda.

THE MAN did not urge her to drink much of the bubbly wine—for he knew she wasn't used to it and there might be explanations for her to make when she reached her boarding place, and that would NEVER do. For THE MAN was wise, and didn't want Jennie's good Southern friend, who kept the boarding place, to suspect anything—quite so soon.

Jennie realized at last that it was getting late and that she would have to get home, and besides it would take nearly an hour on the car to where she lived. When she mentioned the car, THE MAN wouldn't hear of such a thing. They must take a taxicab—and besides that would get them to Jennie's home much quicker than a car. A taxicab! —and poor little Jennie had never even ridden in one before—the cushions were so soft and warm and things zipped by so quick, 'til they just seemed to fly along. How different from the pokey old street cars, thought Jennie. THE MAN was polite as could be and talked of the delightful time they had that evening—and how lonesome he would be when she was gone, and they really MUST see one another quite soon again—but she mustn't tell any one where she had been that night—just that she had to work late and had hurried right home—and he would have the taxicab stop a block or so from her home, so no one would be the wiser.

Jennie was so proud of riding in a taxicab that she wanted to drive right up to her front door, but THE MAN explained that would NEVER do. So with a promise from her to "ring him up" the next day he had the taxicab stop a block down the street and very politely helped Jennie out with a promise to watch and see that she reached home safely. When she had gone he told the chauffeur the name of a prominent cafe, and with a chuckle got in and slammed the door.

Turning the Tables.

In some cases counsel receive answers to questions which they had no business to put, and these, if not quite to their liking, are what they justly deserve. The following story of Robert Harris, a celebrated negro minstrel, is a case in point:

"You are in the minstrel business, I believe?" inquired the lawyer.

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"Is that not rather a low calling?"

"I don't know but what it is, sir," replied the minstrel; "but it is so much better than my father's that I am proud of it."

The lawyer fell into the trap.

"What was your father's calling?" he inquired.

"He was a lawyer," replied Harris, in a tone that sent the whole court into a roar of laughter as the discomfited lawyer sat down.

Daysey Mayme And Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE.

WHEN a man says he has been discovered it is a confession that he has been found out. In other words, that his meanness has been exposed at last. But the women have a way of giving a higher, more soulful meaning to words, and when a woman says she has been discovered she means that her genius has found recognition.

Daysey Mayme Appleton had been discovered in this feminine interpretation of the word. Her genius had found recognition, and she had been given employment on a newspaper.

She had been sent to interview a famous authoress, and the famous authoress had told her she could give her just five minutes.

"What," she asked kindly, "do you wish me to talk about?"

The Interview.

Then she was ready for the interview.

"It doesn't make any difference what you talk about," she said. "I must remember I have my own personality. I am a graduate of Hardtack College; I was at the head of my class; I began writing poetry when I was seven, and prose when I was nine. I am going to become a great journalist. I feel that my genius is too great to be longer hidden. Robert W. Chambers and none of the other great ones had written poetry when they were seven. Every one says I have wonderful talent."

The five minutes were up, and Daysey Mayme, with a brain seething with thoughts, went home and wrote all day and all night, covering many, many pages.

There are those who use a special delivery stamp. Not so with Daysey Mayme. She writes "IN HASTE" across one corner of the envelope. "When the postman sees these words," she exclaimed to her father, "he just drops everything else and runs all the way to deliver the letter."

A Terrible Mistake.

The interview appeared next day, and Daysey Mayme read with pride. Suddenly her face paled, her eyes flashed and she dashed to the telephone, and called up the newspaper office.

"The managing editor," she said in tones that were imperious, and when she got him she cried in a voice of authority:

"Stop the press! You have put two t's in parting in the seventh line, third column, ninth page. This article is IMPORTANT, and must be right."

"It means so much to be correct," she said to her mother, "when one is engaged in moulding the opinions of the world."

Safe.

"Captain," said a wealthy passenger, who was about to take his first trip across the ocean, "I understand this ship has got several water-tight compartments."

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"Captain," the passenger went on, decidedly, "I want one o' those compartments—I don't care what it costs."

Falling Into Captivity

HENDERSON was wont to declare that the girl who wasn't popular was no girl for him.

"There's something wrong with a girl who can go to dances and not be asked to dance every time," he would say dogmatically. "Anyway, if she had any sense she wouldn't place herself in such a position."

Possibly it was his propensity for selecting the most sought after girl as the object of his devotion that caused him to remain a bachelor at the age of 38. He was, however, the slave of his niece, Margaret.

As a rule, he did without a word whatever Margaret asked him to do. However, when she came and sat upon the arm of his chair one evening, and it finally developed that she was planning to make him take her to the high school dance he almost rebelled. He assured her that his dancing days were things of the distant past and demanded to know where all the boys were. Margaret tilted her nose into the air as far as it would go and replied that she didn't know; and, anyway, she didn't care in the least; and, anyway, she wanted Henderson to take her.

"The girls will all be crazy about you," she assured him ingratiatingly.

"They'll be crazy at me," gloomed Henderson, "if they have to dance with me." But eventually he promised that he would go.

"You look perfectly sweet," Margaret cried ecstatically when he came down in all his glory ready to escort her. "I'm so proud of you that I don't know what to do about it."

"Just let me crawl off into a corner and smoke while you have a good time," begged Henderson. "And don't expect me to dance."

"All right," Margaret agreed.

Afterward Henderson remembered that Miss Patterson was the first person upon whom his eyes had fallen when he entered the hall, though he paid no attention to her at the time. Miss Patterson was the domestic science teacher and was present as a sort of chaperon. She was what is known in the vernacular as "chunky." However, with all her chunkiness, she was young and she had a passion for dancing. In her bosom there fluttered the faint hope that she would be asked to dance a few times, anyway.

Danced With His Niece.

This hope shown from her eyes when they met Henderson's as Margaret presented him. Henderson did not recognize it—in fact, he hardly realized that their eyes had met. She was merely a little, fat, uninteresting teacher, to whom he gave hardly a second thought.

He danced the first dance with his niece. "Am I off duty for the present, Peg?" he inquired when the dance was over. Margaret glanced at him appealingly.

"Oh, Sammy, dear," she said, "you know I'm on the committee, and I wish—" She paused and her eyes turned toward Miss Patterson. "But, never mind."

Henderson was not proof against Margaret's wistfulness.

"Well, Peg," he queried, "what is it?"

When told that she much desired that he dance one dance with Miss Patterson, who was perfectly sweet, even if she couldn't dance much, he looked aghast. "You certainly have picked out a fairy for me," he said, ruefully. "Still, for your sake, I'll do it."

Sat Where He Left Her.

Miss Patterson looked like a toy balloon and danced like a baby elephant. She hopped about and around and around, coming down for the most part on Henderson's toes. She did all the things that he hated most. When they had circled the hall a time or two the music mercifully stopped, Henderson being in a state of complete exhaustion and Miss Patterson beaming joyously.

He was too much overcome to know whether she could talk or what she really looked like, his one idea being to escape. As he sought refuge in the smoking room he was unaware that Miss Patterson's eyes were following him with a look of deep gratitude. When he emerged, however, their eyes met. Hers had a patient, wistful look.

Henderson turned away hastily. "Never again," he muttered to himself. But those eyes haunted him. He went back into the smoking room and tried to forget that look. When he had finished his cigar he skulked into the hall. Miss Patterson sat where he had left her, her round face beginning to look a little tired, but unfailingly cheerful, her brown eyes still wistfully hopeful.

Henderson dived back into the outer hall and there gloomily communed with himself. Presently he returned, walked bravely across the room and once more invited Miss Patterson to dance.

Strange are the ways of the little god Cupid! Twice again during the evening did Henderson immolate himself. Then at the close of the dance Margaret informed him that she'd be glad if he would take Miss Patterson home and that he needn't mind her, as she was going with Harold Bemis. So he went home with Miss Patterson without a murmur.

Some months later Miss Patterson asked Henderson shyly: "What made you begin to—to—care for me?"

Henderson at that moment was holding up her plump little hand for the purpose of getting an idea as to the size of the third finger on the left hand. At the question he gave the plump little hand—the comfortable little cushiony hand that yet was so capable and energetic—a contented squeeze.

"I think I began by being sorry for you," he said. "You did dance so abominably."

Saved the Situation

A steady queue had formed up at the money order counter of the local post-office, and it members were strongly agitated by different stages of acute irritation.

And all because a dear old lady had forgotten the address of her son, who lived in foreign parts.

"It's in China," she faltered.

The man behind the counter then scratched his head.

"China's a big vague," he said, and so audibly thought the queue.

"Well, sir," said the dear old soul, "I know it's a name something like the noise of a motor-car makes—"

"Hong—honk!" came in a quickly suppressed shrill from the sandy-haired telegraph boy who had been watching the proceedings with considerable enthusiasm.

"That's it—that's it, sir!" cried the delightful old lady. And the clerk filled in Hong Kong in the address.

CHAPTER IX.

A Legal Document.

Mary Turner spent less than an hour in that mysteriously important engagement with Dick Gilder, of which she had spoken to Aggie. After separating from the young man she went alone down Broadway, walking the few blocks of distance to Sigismund Harris' office. On a corner her attention was caught by the forlorn face of a girl crossing into the side street. A closer glance showed that the privation of the gaunt features was emphasized by the scant garments, almost in tatters. Instantly Mary's quick sympathies were aroused, the more particularly since the wretched child seemed of about the age she, herself had been when her great suffering had befallen. So, turning aside she soon caught up with the girl and spoke an inquiry.

It was the familiar story, a father out of work, a sick mother, a brood of hungry children. Some confused words of distress revealed the fact that the woebegone girl was even then fighting the final battle of purity against starvation. That she still fought on in such case proved enough as to her decency of nature, wholesome despite squalid surroundings. Mary's heart was deeply moved and her words of comfort came with a simple sincerity that was like new life to the sorely beset waif. She promised to interest her self in securing employment for the father, such care as the mother and children might need, along with a proper situation for the girl herself. In evidence of her purpose she took her engagement book from her bag and set down the street and number of the East Side tenement where the family possessed the one room that mocked the word home, and she gave a banknote to the girl to serve the immediate needs.

Had a Heart Yearning.

When she went back to resume her progress down Broadway, Mary felt herself vastly cheered by the warm glow within which is the reward of a kindly act, gratefully received. And, on this particular morning, she craved such assuagement of her spirit, for the conscience that, in spite of all her misdeeds, still lived was struggling within her. In her revolt against a world that had wantonly inflicted on her the worst torments, Mary Turner had thought that she might safely disregard those principles in which she had been so carefully reared. She had believed that by the deliberate adoption of a life of guile within limits allowed by the law she would find solace for her wants, while feeling that thus she avenged herself in some slight measure for the indignities she had undergone unjustly. Yet, as the days passed, days of success as far as her scheming was concerned, his brilliant woman, who had tried to deem herself unscrupulous, found that lawlessness within the law failed to satisfy something deep within her soul. The righteousness that was her instinct was offended by the triumphs achieved through so devious devices, though she resolutely set her will to suppress any spiritual rebellion.

There was, as well, another grievance of her nature, yet more subtle, infinitely more painful. This lay in her craving for tenderness. She was wholly woman, notwithstanding the virility of her intelligence, its audacity, its aggressiveness. She had a heart yearning for the multitudinous affections that are the prerogative of the feminine; she had a heart longing for love, to receive and to give in full measure. * * * And her life was barren. Since the death of her father, there had been none on whom she could lavish the great gifts of her tenderness. Through the days of her working in the store, circumstances had shut her out from all association with others congenial. No need to rehearse the impossibilities of companionship in the prison life. Since then, the situation had not vitally improved, in spite of her better worldly condition. For Garson, who had saved her from death, she felt a strong and lasting gratitude—nothing that relieved the longing for nobler affections. There was none other with whom she had any intimacy except that, of a sort, with Aggie Lynch, and by no possibility could the adventuress serve as an object of deep regard. The girl was amusing enough, and, indeed, a most likable person at her best. But she was, after all, a shallow-pated individual, without a shred of principle of any sort whatsoever, save the single merit of unswerving loyalty to her "pals." Mary cherished a certain warm kindliness for the first woman who had befriended her in any way, but beyond this there was no finer feeling.

This Was Dick Gilder.

Nevertheless, it is not quite accurate to say that Mary Turner had had no intimacy in which her heart might have been seriously engaged. In one instance, of recent happening, she had been much in association with a young man who was of excellent standing in the world, who was of good birth, good education, of delightful manners, and, too, wholesome and agreeable beyond the most of his class. This was Dick Gilder, and, since her companionship with him, Mary had undergone a revulsion greater than ever before against the fate thrust on her, which now at last she had chosen to welcome and nourish by acquiescence as best she might.

Of course, she could not waste tenderness on this man, for she had deliberately set out to make him the instrument of her vengeance against his father. For that very reason, she suffered much from a conscience newly clamorous. Never for an instant did she hesitate in her long-cherished plan of revenge against the one who had brought ruin on her life, yet, through all her satisfaction before the prospect of final victory after continued delay, there ran the secret, inescapable sorrow over the fact that she must employ this means to attain her end. She had no thought of weakening, but the better spirit within her warred against the lust to repay an eye for an eye. It was the new Gospel against the old Law, and the fierceness of the struggle rent her. Just now, the doing of the kindly act seemed somehow to gratify not only her maternal instinct toward service of love, but, too, to muffle for a little the rebuking voice of her inmost soul.

So she went her way more at ease, more nearly content again with herself and with her system of living. Indeed, as she was shown into the private office of the ingenious interpreter of the law, there was not a hint of any trouble beneath the bright mask of her beauty, radiantly smiling.

Suffered Injustice.

Harris regarded the client with an appreciative eye, as he bowed in greeting, and invited her to a seat. The lawyer was a man of fine physique, with a splendid face of the best Semitic type, in which were large, dark, sparkling eyes—eyes a Lombroso perhaps might have judged rather too closely set. As a matter of fact, Harris had suffered a flagrant injustice in his own life from a suspicion of wrongdoing which he had not merited by any act. This had caused him a loss of prestige in his profession. He presently adopted the wily suggestion of the adage, that it is well to have the game if you have the name, and he resolutely set himself to the task of making as much money as possible by any means convenient. Mary Turner as a client delighted his heart, both because of the novelty of her ideas and for the munificence of the fees which she ungrudgingly paid with never a protest. So, as he beamed on her now, and spoke a compliment, it was rather the lawyer than the man that was moved to admiration.

"Why, Miss Turner, how charming!" he declared, smiling. "Really, my dear young lady, you look positively bridal."

"Oh, do you think so?" Mary rejoined, with a whimsical pout, as she seated herself. For the moment her air became distrait, but she quickly regained her poise, as the lawyer, who had dropped back into his chair behind the desk, went on speaking. His tone now was crisply businesslike.

"I sent your cousin, Miss Agnes Lynch, the release which she is to sign," he explained, "when she gets that money from General Hastings. I wish you'd look it over, when you have time to spare. It's all right, I'm sure, but I confess that I appreciate your opinion of things, Miss Turner, even of legal documents—yes, indeed, I do!—perhaps particularly of legal documents."

"Thank you," Mary said, evidently a little gratified by the frank praise of the learned gentleman for her abilities. "And have you heard from them yet?" she inquired.

Praise for Mary.

"No," the lawyer replied. "I gave them until to-morrow. If I don't hear then, I shall start suit at once."

Then the lawyer's manner became unusually bland and self-satisfied as he opened a drawer of the desk and brought forth a rather formidable-appearing document, bearing a most impressive seal. "You will be glad to know," he went on unctuously, "that I was entirely successful in carrying out that idea of yours as to the injunction. My dear Miss Turner," he went on with florid compliment, "Portia was a squawking baby, compared with you."

"Thank you again," Mary answered, and she took the legal paper which he held outstretched toward her. Her scarlet lips were curved happily, but the clear oval of her cheeks blossomed to a deep rose. For a moment, her glance ran over the words of the page. Then she looked up at the lawyer, and there were new lusters in the violet eyes.

"It's splendid," she declared. "Did you have much trouble in getting it?"

Harris permitted himself the indulgence of an unprofessional chuckle of keenest amusement before he answered.

"Why, no," he declared, with reminiscent enjoyment in his manner. "That is, not really!" There was an enormous complacency in his air over the event. "But, at the outset, when I made the request, the judge just naturally nearly fell off the bench. Then I showed him that Detroit case, to which you had drawn my attention, and the upshot of it all was that he gave me what I wanted without a whimper. He couldn't help himself, you know. That's the long and the short of it."

That mysterious document with the imposing seal, the request for which had nearly caused a judge to fall off the bench, reposed safely in Mary's bag when she returned to the apartment after the visit to the lawyer's office.

CHAPTER X.

Marked Money.

MARY had scarcely received from Aggie an account of Cassidy's threatening invasion when the maid announced that Mr. Irwin had called.

"Show him in, in just two minutes," Mary directed.

"You ought to know," Mary returned, smiling a little. "He's the lawyer retained by General Hastings in the matter of a certain breach of promise suit."

"Oh, you mean yours truly," Aggie exclaimed, not in the least abashed by her forgetfulness in an affair that concerned herself so closely. "Hope he's brought the money. What about it?"

"Leave the room now," Mary ordered crisply. "When I call to you, come in, but be sure and leave everything to me. Merely follow my lead. And, Agnes—be very ingenue."

"Oh, I'm wise—I'm wise," Aggie nodded, as she hurried out toward her bed room. "I'll be a squab—surest thing you know."

Next moment Mary gave a formal greeting to the lawyer who represented the man she planned to mulct effectively, and invited him to a chair near her, while she herself retained her place at the desk, within a drawer of which she had just locked the formidable appearing document received from Harris.

Her Voice Was Cold.

Irwin lost no time in coming to the point.

"I called in reference to this suit which Miss Agnes Lynch threatens to bring against my client, General Hastings."

Mary regarded the attorney with a level glance, serenely expressionless as far as could be achieved by eyes so clear and shining, and her voice was cold as she replied with significant brusqueness:

"It's not a threat, Mr. Irwin. The suit will be brought."

The lawyer frowned and there was a strident note in his voice when he answered, meeting her glance with an uncompromising stare of hostility.

"You realize, of course," he said finally, "that this is merely plain blackmail."

To Be Continued Monday.

Men Are So Queer

To-day's Complete Short Story.

"TOM was terribly annoyed," said the young woman with the fluffy hair. "It is perfectly funny the way a man acts just because he is your husband—did you ever notice it?"

"It is indeed," said the others in chorus.

"How was I to know that sensible business men would take me so seriously?" pursued the fluffy young woman. "I thought they were supposed to have discernment and sense. Tom is always preaching about their superiority in that respect. Tom explained to me very carefully before we went to the automobile show last month that we couldn't buy a car. He said he couldn't afford it, considering my hat bills and his cigars and the notes coming due on the house we bought last year. I am sure I had it all perfectly clear in my mind, so I am positive I was not to blame.

"But did you ever notice what perfectly fascinating young men they put in charge of the exhibition cars at an automobile show?"

"I should say I have noticed them," said the brunette girl.

A Very Nice Man.

"And, anyhow, Tom had no business to run across two college friends the minute we got inside the show and pay so much attention to them that he couldn't pay any attention to me! Those three would cluster together over a chassis with a lot of crazy machinery stuck on it and talk like mad. So I simply had to do something to kill time."

"Of course you did!" agreed the others.

"So when at the first booth a good looking man who saw me studying a touring car asked me if I was interested I said I was. Then he was just as nice as could be. He told me everything about the car and made me get in it and explained just how I could run it myself and wanted my address to send me a catalogue. He said he'd be pleased to come out some day with the car and show me how it ran and give me a lesson. He was so set on coming that I hated to hurt his feelings, so I did not refuse.

"It was just the same way at the next place and ever after. Tom and his friends were so busy over horrid old machinery that I was considerably left out. However, I made lots of friends among the agents.

"All of them wanted to bring out their cars to demonstrate to me how superior they were and, as I had told one man he could come, it didn't seem a bit fair to the others to refuse any of them, so I said I'd be delighted. It had occurred to me that I owed a terrible lot of calls, and that it would be such a nice way to get around and pay them.

"I didn't think it necessary to mention the matter to Tom. He did remark that a huge lot of catalogues was coming to our house and it was a wonder where those fellows got people's names and, anyhow, thank goodness, he didn't have a machine eating its head off and making him poor. Men are so selfish.

"The Zero automobile man came out the very day after the show closed and we had a beautiful ride. I made six calls. However, I quite changed my opinion of him, because when I came out of the last place he seemed actually cross and said things about waiting in cold weather. I don't see how he expects to sell cars without showing a little consideration for customers. I told him I didn't think I liked his car at all.

"Then there was the Largo car man and the Allegro man and the Fortissimo man and the Solendiferous man, and about six different electric companies, and a lot more whose names I forget. When they came one at a time it was lovely.

"I did two teas one afternoon in the Largo car, but the man lost his temper, and when I came from the second tea the wretched creature had driven off and I had to go home on the street car!

Very Queer.

"The queer thing was that every one seemed so indignant when I refused to give an order for a car and said things about my leading them on. The worst of it was that Tom came home ill with the grip one afternoon just as seven different cars arrived all at once to take me out! He said he thought I was giving a funeral or a tea.

"When he understood—my dears, have you ever seen a man suffering from bad temper and grip simultaneously?

"I explained to him most carefully that it wasn't my fault at all, but he roared that he was ashamed to look a man in the face from that time on for fear he was one of the automobile agents I had shamefully deceived—yes, that's what he called it—and that he'd like to know what women had in place of consciences, anyway. What do you think of that? Aren't men utterly queer?"

"They surely are!" the other young married woman agreed. "When you hadn't done one single thing, either!"

Where the Shoes Pinched.

"Boots and shoes repaired neatly while you wait." So said a notice in the window. A small boy entered the shop and dumped a pair of patent leathers on the counter.

"Please, fahver wants 'em repaired," he ventured timidly.

"What's he want done to them?" inquired the tradesman.

"Wants 'em soled and 'eeled,'" piped the youngster; "also stretched."

"Stretched as well—eh? And where do they pinch him?"

"They don't pinch him," replied the ingenuous son; "he pinched them!"

COTTON MARKETS EXTREMELY DULL

Strength Shown in July Was Principal Feature — Shorts Cover, Causing Sharp Gain.

NEW YORK, May 10.—With Liverpool closed, the local cotton market was more than usually dependent on the weather conditions for inspiration at the opening to-day. First prices ranged 1 to 4 points higher than last night's close. Trading was of a light character and fluctuations after the call were narrow, holding within a few points of the opening figures.

The Liverpool market was closed on account of Whitsuntide holidays.

The weather map was very discouraging to those who sold yesterday on promises of rains in the Eastern belt, and they seemed eager to replace liquidated lines over Sunday. The ring and Wall Street covered considerable short cotton, while the larger spot houses were noticeable buyers. Offerings, however, were light and scattered. The advancing tendency continued throughout the short session. July showed considerable strength and was the heaviest pressed option on the list and at times the trade interest was centered entirely upon it. Distant positions, especially October and December, were under active buying and the three options rallied 5 points over the opening level.

Indications point to fair weather over the larger part of the belt over Sunday, with somewhat lower temperatures. West Texas will have unsettled showers, as will the Panhandle, while the rest of the State will be fair.

At the close, the market was steady, with prices at a net gain of 4 to 8 points from the final quotations of Friday.

Spot cotton at Savannah, Ga., is about 28 points higher than the highest option on the New York future list and about the cheapest in the South. Spots are quoted at 11¾ cents there and the buyer would have to add about 75 points on the present prices should he buy it so as to cover brokerage fees, insurance, interest, freight cost and charge for certification. There is a very small chance for any profit in such a transaction.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S DAILY COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, May 10.—Several localities in the Eastern states had good showers overnight, but there has not yet been any general rain. The range of temperatures continues very favorable. The river situation is much improved. The fall at Vicksburg is beginning to be rapid, and, from the overflowed section in the upper delta is encouraging. There is some reports indicating planting one to two months earlier than last year.

The market advanced a few points on the strength of July in New York, the reason for which is covering by shorts and the diminishing stock in New York.

New crops sympathized to some extent.

WHEAT MARKET OVERSOLD.

CHICAGO, May 10.—The Inter-Ocean says: "Those who are bullish on wheat regarded the market as oversold and said it would take considerable pressure from shorts to keep prices down. They consider the market on a healthy basis. The trade in corn at the moment is divided, but they see nothing for sensational developments on either side unless there might be a little congestion in May. Local traders in oats are rather bearish, but some of the country houses are buying."

NEW ORLEANS, May 10.—Hayward & Clark: The weather map shows cloudy over the Western States and North Carolina, generally fair elsewhere, with scattered showers in Mississippi, North Alabama, North Carolina and a good rain at Meridian, Miss. Indications are for increasing cloudiness generally, with increased prospects for showers in the Atlantics and cooler in the North portion of the belt.

Cordill wires from Augusta, Ga.: "Troy, Dothan, Thomasville to Macon, South Alabama and South Georgia conditions are irregular. Much cotton up to good stands and chopped out, but fully 25 per cent not yet up. Soil preparation near perfect. Light, widely scattered showers yesterday beneficial. General warm rain needed. Macon to Augusta, cotton is coming up more evenly but start late."

• • •

The New Orleans Times-Democrat says: "Cotton market equipoise has come to be a habit and profitless sessions have made the rings disconsolate. It is a queer paradox, this keen desire for the bull element to simulate the future, and when they have accomplished their purpose and the market stands still the inherent love of strife impels them to begin all over again. Yesterday a fair weather forecast for the Eastern belt sported shorts a little because the general rains over that section, upon which they have been depending, have not come.

"Now that the promise of general rain is gone, dry weather reports from Georgia and the Carolinas will seem more significant than ever. On the other hand, spinners' takings for the week were comparatively small, and the decrease in the world's visible supply contrasted unfavorably with the decrease in the corresponding week last year. Thus both factions had good talking points and the visible supply changes coming last gave the bear the closing advantage. Both factions appear ready to admit that the market as a whole is short. In the eyes of most professionals, the new crop positions have seemed attractive as a sale and the fact that many operators have sold them is responsible for much of the buying power that develops when reports of seed rotting in the ground and of the necessity for replanting come in."

'Pure Clothing' Bill Offered in Congress

Michigan Representative Declares 75 Per Cent of All Wearing Apparel Is Adulterated.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Seventy-five per cent of the clothing sold in the United States is adulterated, according to an investigation made by Representative Lindquist, of Michigan, who to-day introduced a "pure fabric and leather" bill in the House.

The Lindquist bill would make illegal the sale of inferior clothing for the genuine and provides that all clothes must be labeled as to actual quality.

"This bill, if enacted," said Representative Lindquist, "will give the consuming public pure fabrics in the way pure food is guaranteed to us now. By such a law I do not propose to prohibit the manufacture of inferior merchandise, but to make it unlawful to sell inferior goods for the genuine."

STOCKS ARE VERY DULL ENTIRE DAY

By C. W. STORM.

NEW YORK, May 10.—Delaware and Hudson was one of the weakest issues on the list at the opening of the stock market to-day, being sympathetically depressed by weakness in New York Central. Delaware and Hudson was 1¼ lower at the opening and later declined still further. New York Central continued under par, selling at 99¼ for a loss of ¼.

Trading was quiet and nearly all stocks suffered declines. Among the losses were United States Steel common, ¼; Union Pacific, ⅝; Reading, ⅝; Erie, ¼; Amalgamated Copper, ⅛; Baltimore and Ohio, ⅝; St. Paul, ⅝, and Canadian Pacific ⅛. At the end of half an hour some of the issues rallied.

The curb was dull.

There was a bank holiday in London and there was no session of the stock exchange there.

HESTER'S WEEKLY COTTON STATEMENT

Secretary Hester's weekly New Orleans Cotton Exchange statement of the movement of cotton, issued before the close of business Friday, shows an increase in the movement into sight compared with the seven days ending this date last year in round numbers 2,000, an increase over the same days year before last of 30,000, and an increase over the same time in 1910 of 29,000.

For the nine days of May the totals show a decrease under last year of 9,000, an increase over the same period year before last of 40,000, and an increase over the same time in 1910 of 29,000.

For the 251 days of the season, the aggregate is behind the 251 days of last year 2,128,000, ahead of the same days year before last 1,727,000 and ahead of 1910 3,353,000.

The amount brought into-sight during the past week has been 93,616 bales, against 90,579 for the seven days ending this date last year, 63,353 year before last and 73,803 same time in 1910; and for the nine days of May it has been 108,477, against 116,992 last year, 18,338 year before last and 79,420 same time in 1910.

The movement since September 1 shows receipts at all United States ports 9,342,267, against 11,610,302 last year, 8,284,646 year before last and 6,840,168 same time in 1910. Overland across the Mississippi, Ohio and Potomac Rivers to Northern mills and Canada 912,507, against 1,150,229 last year, 873,260 year before last and 731,799 same time in 1910; interior stocks in excess of those held at the close of the commercial year 207,143, against 185,753 last year, 188,800 year before last and 225,296 same time in 1910; Southern mills takings 2,464,959, against 2,204,714 last year, 1,953,484 year before last and 1,812,479 same time in 1910.

These make the total movement for the 251 days of the season from September 1 to date 13,927,022, against 15,155,077 last year, 11,300,198 year before last and 9,613,743 same time in 1910.

Foreign exports for the week have been 159,918, against 87,215 last year, making the total thus far for the season 7,787,733, against 9,842,512 last year, a decrease of 2,054,780.

Northern mills takings and Canada during the past seven days show a decrease of 25,876, as compared with the corresponding period last year, and their total takings since September 1 have decreased 397,442. The total takings of American mills, North, South and Canada, thus far for the season have been 4,721,083, against 4,733,350 last year. These include 2,188,543 by Northern spinners, against 2,456,185.

Stocks at the seaboard and the twenty-nine leading Southern interior centers have decreased during the week 90,210 bales, against a decrease during the corresponding period last season of 32,017, and are now 15,260 larger than at this date in 1912.

Including stocks left over at ports and interior towns from the last crop and the number of bales brought into sight thus far from the new crop, the supply to date is 13,391,135, against 15,442,051 for the same period last year.

World's Visible Supply.

Secretary Hester's statement of the world's visible supply of cotton shows a decrease for the week just closed of 67,-472, against a decrease of 261,274 last year and a decrease of 149,480 year before last.

The total visible is 4,550,270, against 4,617,802 last week, 4,167,000 last year and 4,194,000 year before last. Of this, the total of American cotton is 3,067,370, against 3,164,802 last week, 3,500,722 last year and 2,178,244 year before last, and of all other kinds, including Egypt, Brazil, India, etc., 1,482,900, against 1,452,800 last week, 1,167,000 last year and 1,194,000 year before last.

The total world's visible supply of cotton as above there is now afloat and held in Great Britain and Continental Europe 3,554,000, against 2,944,000 last year and 1,984,000 year before last; in Egypt 180,000, against 171,000 last year and 155,000 year before last; in India 923,000, against 692,000 last year and 641,000 year before last; and in the United States 883,000, against 881,000 last year and 632,000 year before last.

Spinners' Takings.

This week 191,000 this year, against 217,000 last year and 217,000 year before last.

Total since September 1, this year, 11,315,000, against 12,447,000 last year and 9,897,000 the year before.

Of this Northern spinners and Canada took 2,189,000 bales this year, against 2,496,000 last year and 1,951,000 the year before; Southern spinners 2,532,000, against 2,237,000 last year, and 1,987,000 the year before, and foreign spinners 6,605,000 the year before.

(By W. H. White, Jr., of the White Provision Company.)

Cattle receipts are heavier than usual. The market is 25 to 50 cents lower on the middle grades, with a heavy supply. Tops and choice in good demand and market steady.

One load of this E. T. Comer cattle were on the market this week and brought $7.37½ per cut, this being the top price for the week. These were mixed highbred Short Horn and Hereford young steers, fat and prime, bred and raised on the Comer farm at Millhaven, Ga., and would do credit to any beef producing section.

With the exception of this load and two loads of Short Horn steers from A. N. Brown at McDonough, all of which were sold to the Atlanta packers, the run was badly mixed, consisting principally of country pick up bunches of all sizes and kinds, which sold at prices fully as irregular as were the cattle.

Hogs continue to come freely. Market has ranged lower in sympthy with the Western markets.

Choice to good steers, 1,000 to 1,200, 5.75@6.50; good steers, 800 to 1,000, 5.50@6.00; medium to good steers, 700 to 850, 5.00@5.75; medium to good cows, 700 to 800, 4.50@5.00; good to choice beef cows, 800 to 900, 4.75@5.75; medium to good heifers, 650 to 750, 4.25@4.75; good to choice heifers, 750 to 850, 4.75@5.75.

Medium to common steers, if fat, 800 to 900, 4.50@5.50; medium to common cows, if fat, 700 to 800, 4.25@5.25; mixed common, 600 to 800, 3.25@4.00; good butcher bulls, 2.50@4.00.

Prime hogs, 160 to 200 average, 8.30@8.50; good butcher hogs, 140 to 160, 8.10@8.30; good butcher pigs, 100 to 140, 7.75@8.00; light pigs, 80 to 100, 7.00@7.50; heavy rough hogs, 200 to 250, 7.50@8.25.

Feeding Chickens For Egg Production

Should Begin When the Chick Is Hatched—Lay Foundation Early.

Feeding for egg production should be commenced when the chick is hatched, and there should not be a skip or a jump from start to finish; in other words, to lay the foundation for early and continuous layers the chicken must be well nourished from the time it is hatched until laying maturity.

One of the common complaints in the fall is that the pullets do not commence to lay as early as they should. The reason is they are not ready to lay; they are not fully developed. They have not had sufficient nourishment, and therefore run a month or two over the usual laying period.

A constant and varied supply of good, wholesome foods is the remedy that should be applied, and we know of no better way to accomplish the end sought than by the hopper feeding process. Where the pullet as a chick has been hopper fed with good mixed grains and beefscrap, where a large flock is maintained and the supply of insects is not sufficient to give the animal matter needed, the chances are that it will begin to lay early and keep it up through the winter.

When the feeding is done at intervals it is a difficult matter to feed all that is needed, and as a consequence the chick does not make the best possible growth.

To make good winter layers, do not yard or confine the pullets too early, but allow them to range as long as possible. They will then settle down to steady egg production when they are cooped and will continue through the winter. A convenient size for 50 growing chicks would be 12 by 20 inches at the top and 2 by 20 inches at the bottom and 20 inches deep, with a base extending 3 inches on each side, with 3-inch side to keep the grain from falling out; an inch slit at the bottom of the hopper to allow grain to come out into the tray part, where it is picked out by the chicks. The hopper should be kept under a shelter of some sort to keep the feed dry, which prevents it spoiling. A chicken may eat a little more the first day or two, but after that I do not believe it takes as much to feed them in that way as it does to allow them to become ravenously hungry and then gorge themselves; the repeating of which often causes indigestion and serious results.

Questions and Answers.

Judge Marshall: Can you tell me of some way to get soil stain from the shells of white eggs? I keep a fine lot of White Leghorns, laying pure white eggs, but the red soil here stains them so it can not be washed off so it will not show when sent to market. If you can be of any help to me, I shall certainly be thankful for the service. R. C. B.

Rome, Ga.

ANSWER—It would be a pretty hard matter to get anything that will readily take these mud stains off the shell without injuring the shell or its contents. We see no reason why any considerable number of your eggs should be stained. You should provide good nesting places for your hens, filling them with good litter of some kind that will keep them off the ground. You might try dipping them in alcohol and then rubbing them with a clean cloth. If nice, roomy nest boxes are provided and put in rather dark or secluded places, you should have but little trouble in getting all your hens to use them. Of course, you must have a sufficient number of them, so that hens will not get tired of waiting for room and be obliged to take to the ground.

Ducks.

WHITE RUNNER DUCK EGGS, $1.00 15; $5 100. Fischel Strain. Select birds. Guaranteed fresh and fertile. Mrs. J. M. Underwood, Box 120 LaFayette, Ga. 34-10-5

WHITE DIARRHOEA is the most dreaded of all diseases in little chicks, but if taken in time it can be cured easily. We sell Conkey's and Pratt's remedies for this disease and guarantee a cure. 25c and 50c package.

DON'T let the mites and lice get a start on you; disinfect the poultry houses and runs thoroughly with Pratt's Poultry Disinfectant. No germs can live where you use it and it leaves the place nice and clean. Quart 35c, gallon $1.00.

A GREAT many people advocate feeding baby chicks on a feed that has no corn. We have the Rice special feed that is absolutely free from corn. A good, clean feed at $2.50 per 100 pounds.

IF YOUR BIRD needs a new cage, come in and see how complete our line is; we have them ranging in prices from $1.00 up to $5.00.

Lousy Hens

are never profitable. They cannot lay when tortured night and day by lice and mites. Dust the hens with

Pratt's Powdered Lice Killer

to exterminate the body lice, and paint or spray the roosts and nests with

Pratt's Liquid Lice Killer

to sweeten them up and destroy mites. That means bigger profits.

The Railroads Can Rob the People IF---

Copyright, 1913.

In a cartoon printed several days ago our artist showed the Panama Canal with American ships held back by American locomotives.

All the solemn talk about "treaty obligations" about our duty to England, our national honor, is merely so much "railroad talk," a good deal of it well paid for by the railroads.

We are told that it is dishonorable, unfair, treacherous, etc., to permit American SHIPS to use an American CANAL, unless we also let English ships use the canal, without charge.

And the so-called friends of national honor—who are in reality gentlemen and newspapers subsidized or controlled by railroads—have actually managed to compel all but coastwise American ships to pay toll, like foreign vessels.

The railroads want no free use of the canal by American coastwise ships, and they fight such use through the politicians and newspapers that they own, for a simple reason.

The railroads make money carrying freight from the Atlantic to the Pacific. And the more they can CHARGE the more they can MAKE. Hitherto ships carrying freight from New York to San Francisco had to go all around South America. Therefore, the railroads could charge for freight carried 3,000 miles across the continent as much as it would cost to send a ship all around the continent. And, in addition, the railroad could add a charge for quick freight as against necessarily slow ocean freight.

Now ships will go from New York to the Pacific Coast through the canal, and the cost of water freight will be very small—UNLESS THE RAILROADS CAN MANAGE TO FASTEN A TOLL ON AMERICAN FREIGHT USING AN AMERICAN CANAL. This the railroads are trying to do, in the high-sounding name of national honor, treaty rights, etc.

For, don't you see, every dollar that railroad influence can lay as a tax on American shipping in the canal IS A DOLLAR THAT THE RAILROAD CAN ADD TO ITS FREIGHT CHARGES.

Let our Government charge American ships $2 a ton for using the canal, and the railroads can at once add $2 a ton to their freight rate.

Quite simple and clear, is it not?

Remember that when you hear the pitiful sobbing talk about protecting poor Great Britain against such an "outrage" as letting Americans, who built the canal and paid for it, give free use of it to American ships.

England, as a matter of fact, is very little interested in the matter, except that England's rich men own the Canadian Pacific Railroad, and they, like our railroad owners, are working to fasten a tax on American ships IN ORDER TO ADD THAT TAX TO AMERICAN FREIGHT SHIPPERS.

Fortunately the matter is pretty well understood.

This country will let all American ships use the canal without charge very soon. And our coastwise shipping will be free at once.

The Congress in this instance will not be used as a railroad freight collector. One Senator the other day introduced a resolution to set aside the existing treaty with England entirely—a thing we have a right to do at any time. There is no doubt that whatever may be necessary will be done to make and keep the American Canal FREE TO AMERICAN SHIPS.

Even the railroads, after they lose their foolish fight, will find it a good thing FOR THEM to help the general American prosperity.

Free use of the canal and low freight rates will bring lumber to the Atlantic Coast from the Far Northwest and bring fruit to the East from California and other Pacific States.

Eastern products will go at low freight rates through the canal to the Pacific. Business will grow, enterprise will find encouragement, labor, industry AND the railroads will share in the benefit of a canal UNITING THE COUNTRY MORE CLOSELY AND MORE CHEAPLY.

For every carload of cheap freight going through the canal and taken, apparently FROM the railroads, there will be two extra carloads of high priced freight FOR the roads. Profitable long hauls will increase and profitable short hauls as well.

And within ten years intelligent railroad men will thank the Panama Canal and free use of it by Americans for prosperity such as they have never seen.

MEANWHILE, IT IS IMPORTANT TO REALIZE THAT THE RAILROADS AND THEIR MANAGERS, NEAR-SIGHTED AS USUAL, ARE THE REAL POWER FIGHTING TO SHUT AMERICAN SHIPS OUT OF AN AMERICAN CANAL in the name of our holy duty to England.

How Your Mind Can Aid Health

By GARRETT P. SERVISS.

A GREAT DOCTOR once said: "Successful practice requires one-third science and two-thirds savoir faire" (knowing how to do it).

By that he meant impressing the imagination of the patient, and impressing it the right way. Any doctor can affect his patient's imagination, but many send its mercurial spirit dropping downward like a thermometer in a cold wave. If doctors ever really do kill their patients it is through what they administer to the mind.

We are only just beginning to learn something of the extent of the mind's control over health and disease. Many persons are willing to admit that the mind influences nervous affections, and that the imagination may either bring them on or drive them away; but they refuse to believe that mental influences which produce "lessons"—i. e., physical injuries to certain parts of the body.

Inspires With Confidence.

But they are wrong in their skepticism. The imagination can produce lessons as well as heal them. There never has been a great epidemic in which a large percentage of the mortality was not the result of mental upset. Mere fear kills like a lightning stroke by paralyzing the nervous system, whereupon the bodily machinery tears itself to pieces through loss of the central control.

I do not suppose that the imagination ever broke a bone or set one, but I am sure that it has either saved or lost the life of many a sick person, according to the way in which it happened to be directed, either by the will of the patient himself or by the guiding influence of a doctor or a nurse.

The successful doctor is the man who enters the sick room with his face full of cheer and of masterful confidence, and not with his pockets full of pills. The good nurse is worth her pay because she keeps her patient cheerful and confident. When you choose a doctor for your family, select one whose look makes you feel stronger. His presence will be like that of Napoleon on the battlefield.

It is not sympathy that heals; too much sympathy sometimes kills. It is confidence that does the good work. Away with your morose-looking doctor—unless it happens that behind the grave face there is an appearance of power, for that is worth more than all else in breeding confidence in the patient.

It has been suggested that "personal magnetism" is an actual, dynamic (moving) force proceeding from one person to another.

There is much to support that view. When Caesar in his scarlet cloak, with his bald head bared, rode through the lines of his soldiers at Alesia, something passed from him to them which enabled them to hurl back the assault of the three hundred thousand Gauls. It was the personal magnetism of Caesar that saved the day. It put courage into despairing hearts and energy into tired muscles.

But the best way to combat disease is to meet it with your own will. The patient who gives up can rarely be saved. Believe with all your might in your powers of resistance. Think of recovery, not of death.

Exerting Will Power.

A hot summer is before us, and it will bring its lassitude and its sicknesses, real or imaginary. Prepare yourself beforehand to meet these conditions by cultivating confidence, cheerfulness and will power. Joke about the thermometer when it goes up to ninety or a hundred in the shade, and don't draw a long face before it. If an epidemic breaks out, treat it as the Roman emperor treated the comet which terrified his friends. "Oh," he said, "that hairy star is after the king of the Persians, who has got whiskers. It won't trouble me."

And if you are doubtful about the power of the imagination to influence your body, read the stories of the "Stigmata" which appeared on some of the of old, when they concentrated their minds for days and nights together on the wounds of the Savior.

All Could See Them.

St. Francis, it is recorded, had all the marks of the Crucifixion upon him, though not produced by any hand or weapon.

Everybody could see them. St. Hieronyma Carvaglio had the spear mark in her side, which bled every Friday. St. Catharine, of Raconisco, had the marks of the Crown of Thorns on her head. All of these things, and many like them, are said to have been produced solely by pious meditations. You may smile at that, or you may not, according to your standards of belief, but you can hardly refuse to believe other things as wonderful that have been recorded on medical authority.

Whether you call it Christian Science, or mind healing, or blind faith, or anything else you may choose, there is no doubt that you have it in your power to influence by mental concentration the health and well-being of your body. Cultivate that power, and you will be the better for it. You will save, or shorten, many doctors' bills—but don't neglect the doctor, either; help him.

The Suffrage Parade---It Was a History Making Spectacle and Marks the Exit of the Doll Baby Woman From the Stage of Life.

By DOROTHY DIX.

WHAT did people see as they watched the Suffrage Parade in New York last Saturday?

They saw the first real democracy of woman.

They saw Judy O'Grady and the Colonel's Lady marching shoulder to shoulder. They saw the petted darling of the drawing room walking side by side with the girl of the sweat shop.

In that procession were millionairesses keeping step with scrubwomen; college professors with the pupils of night schools; Fifth Avenue hostesses with waitresses from cheap lunch rooms; old women with withered cheeks and gray hair with girls in the first flush and bloom of youth and beauty. All lines of wealth and class and social distinction were wiped out by the great cause that touches every woman high and low, and that has brought them together in one great sisterhood.

What did the people see when they watched the Suffrage Parade?

They saw one of the spectacles that make history. They saw the passing of the old order of things and the entrance of the new.

Exit of Doll Baby Woman.

They saw the exit from the stage of life of the doll baby woman of the past, of the woman who could find the whole of life in adorning herself, whose interests were no wider than her own home, and who saw no shame in getting what she wanted out of some man by cajolery, or flattery, or lying, or whatever other means was necessary.

Dull, indeed, were the eyes that did not see in those thousands and thousands of earnest-faced women the type of the new womanhood that is marching onward to a place beside man, no more to be his toy and plaything, but his equal and his partner in doing the work of the world and reaping its rewards.

What did the people see as they watched the Suffrage Parade?

They saw the spectre of injustice marching in every woman's shadow. The crowds through which those ten thousand white-clad women tramped were mostly silent, as well they might be with shame if they had eyes to see and a heart to comprehend the significance of the scene.

Own Millions; Can't Vote.

They saw women who owned millions of dollars' worth of property, but who were denied the right to say what taxes should be levied upon their property. They saw the representatives of six million working women, but who have no power in shaping the legislation that affected them.

They saw mothers whose little children's lives were crushed out of them in factories; housewives who must sweat every nickel to make it go a little farther when trusts put up prices; women who represented one half of the population, and who were affected by its every law, but who had no voice in making them. They saw highly educated women, brilliant professional women, noble women philanthropists, saintly church women, women who represented all that is finest and best in humanity, but who were denied the previleges that the most illiterate, the most debased, man enjoys.

What did the people see as they watched the Suffrage Parade?

They saw one of the most pathetic sights the world has ever witnessed. They saw womanhood humbling itself before man to ask as a boon the privilege that it should demand as a right.

They saw the wife who has grown gray and old in service to her husband, and who has given him the best years of her life, asking to be made his equal. They saw the mother who has borne his son in her arms going before him as a suppliant.

They saw the rich woman asking a dole of her butler and her footman.

They saw the woman college professor begging the ignorant and illiterate foreigner to share with her the right of government that he has and she has not. It was a silent, sad appeal to man to right the injustice he has done woman—to strike her political shackles from her.

Made Even the Doll Think.

No one except those who took part in it know what courage, what sacrifice of personal inclination, it took for quite, dignified, reserved women to tramp the streets, and make themselves a public spectacle for hundreds of thousands of curious eyes, and to be the butt of cheap wits and village cut-ups.

To most of the women every step of the way was the way of the cross, but they trod it unfalteringly, because there was no other means that could so effectually carry the message they had to give to the public. It was a spectacle that made even the dullest think.

What did they see as they watched the Suffrage Parade?

They saw victory marching on to its crowning. Every woman's face wore the uplifted look of a martyr, of one who would struggle on undismayed by defeat until she finally conquered. No one who witnessed that parade will ever jest and scoff again at woman's suffrage. He will know that it is a fact to be reckoned with, and that it is just as sure to come as is to-morrow.

THE LAST TOWN

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

Where is the Town at the end of the Line,
With its lure for the great and the small?
How shall we fare when we come to the sign
That was painted and hung for us all?
Long is the track and we can not go back
To wait for a faltering friend;
Through meadow and mart we are whirled from the start
To the wonderful Town at the end.

Some reach it in youth on a flying express
That passes the stations of strife,
And others grow gray while pursuing their way
On the laboring locals of life.
Some curse the Conductor and pray for the end,
And some think the pace is too fast;
Whatever the pace, we are nearing the place
Where we all leave the train at the last.

'Tis a mystical Town that no mortal has seen
Till the end of his long earthly ride;
But after the trip there is Knowledge to glean
About pomp and possessions and pride.
And perhaps we shall gain when we swing from the train
All the things we were forced to resign,
For the Agent is there, with each passenger's share,
In the Town at the end of the Line.

Johnson Hangs Up New World's Record

CHICAGO, May 10.—Walter Johnson broke the world's record for consecutive runless innings here this afternoon when he blanked the Chicago White Sox, 1 to 0. This gives Johnson 51 2-3 successive runless rounds.

The previous record was held by Jack Coombs in 1910. In that year Connie Mack's twirler hurled 46 innings without a run being chalked up against him.

GUARD OF SECRECY IS THROWN ABOUT PHAGAN SEARCH BY SOLICITOR

Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey declared Saturday afternoon that he was very well satisfied with the progress made in the investigation of the Phagan murder mystery and made the significant remark that he would not reveal the names of new witnesses so that manufacturers of public opinion could not get to them.

The Solicitor held a conference with Dr. H. F. Harris, of the State Board of Health, who examined the girl's body. Dr. Harris said he would rush his report in time for presentation to the Grand Jury when that body takes up the mystery next week. The Solicitor would not reveal just what the physician has learned so far.

The examination of the blood-stained shirt in the back yard of Newt Lee's home was also continued, and the Solicitor was far from convinced that its significance had been rightly determined.

Mr. Dorsey worked all day Saturday on the case and announced that he would continue all of Sunday so that he could present his evidence to the Grand Jury as early as possible next week.

Confers With City Sleuths.

A conference was held with the city detectives, who are working in co-operation with the State, but none of the details could be learned. Strict secrecy is being maintained regarding new developments.

Evidence "exclusive and valuable" in the Mary Phagan case has been obtained. So much the Solicitor said to-day, and no more, declaring details of the evidence would be revealed at the proper time.

The evidence is the result of work by private detectives engaged by the Solicitor, among them one whom he termed "the best detective in America," when speaking of him Friday.

He mentioned the important evidence when he discussed the statement by Monteen Stover, the 14-year-old employee of the National Pencil Company, that is in direct contradiction to the testimony by Leo M. Frank, the suspected factory superintendent.

Other Evidence More Important.

The Solicitor was interested in the girl's statement, but declared that the other evidence in his hands was far more important and tangible.

In opposition to the testimony of Leo M. Frank in the Mary Phagan inquest was the statement of the Stover girl. The evidence that she will bear is to the effect that she was in Frank's office at 12:05 o'clock and a little later on the Saturday afternoon preceding the discovery of the slain girl's body, and that she found it deserted.

According to Frank's testimony, he was in his office from 12 o'clock until 12:25, when Lemmie Quinn, his foreman, came in. During that time, he said, Mary Phagan came in, about 12:05 o'clock, to receive her pay.

Monteen Stover is certain that she reached Frank's office at exactly 12:05 o'clock. She has been retained as an important witness.

Remembers the Time.

"The minute I got to the office floor when I went up to get my pay," she said, "I looked at the clock. I wanted to know if it was time to draw my money. I would have looked at it, anyhow. I suppose, as it is always customary for me to punch it the first thing upon entering the place to go to work.

"It was five minutes after 12. I was sure Mr. Frank would be in his office, so I stepped in. He wasn't in the outer office, and I went into the inner office. He wasn't there, either. I thought he might have been somewhere around the building, so I waited.

"The whole place was awfully quiet. It was scary. When he didn't show up in a few minutes, I went to the door and looked around the machinery. He wasn't there. I stayed until the clock hand was pointing exactly to 12:10. Then I went down-

GLAD HAND FOR SHRINE SPECIAL ALL ALONG LINE

JACKSON, MISS., May 10.—(Special.)—Jackson men and women are going back to their Saturday afternoon duties with a smile that won't come off for days. They have just met the "Yaarab Special" from Atlanta that made its joyous way through the city, and they will not soon forget the meeting.

It is a wonderful party, this bunch that Atlanta has sent to the convention in Dallas to bring back assurance of the Shriners' convention in Atlanta for next year. At least, all Jackson feels that way about it.

And Jackson wishes them well. A fair bit of the city was at the station this afternoon to greet them and to tell them of their good wishes.

The crowd grew. A delegation was there at first to ask Forrest Adair and some of the others to speak, but everybody spoke. This was no day for formality. The more the talking became the more the singing, the closer became the ties between Atlanta and Jackson.

Then one of the Atlanta men, whose name could not be ascertained because of the general melee, leaped in full view of the populace. He was a stout blonde.

Sure, Everybody Was Happy.

"Is everybody happy?" he shouted.

Jackson, Miss., assured him everybody was.

Enterprising newspaper men of the Mississippi capital sought to interview dignitaries among the party. They were met by an imposing delegation, who, after much deliberation, produced a signed statement.

It was as follows:

"We are going to bring back the bacon.

"J. LEE BARNES,
"FRED PATTERSON,
"GRAHAM PHELAN,
"JESSE COUCH,
"W. A. FOSTER."

Then, all too soon, the train pulled out, according to the unsympathetic railroad schedule, which was not alive to the fact that Jackson, Miss., was having the time of its life and that there was an intermingling of souls not often experienced.

Jackson came to this conclusion: The men whom Atlanta Shriners picked to represent Atlanta's cause are irresistible.

Still Anxious About "Joy."

The "Yaarab Special" made its way west. The stout blonde gentleman was on the observation platform when the train passed into the distance, and he was still requesting information as to the happiness of Jacksonites.

stairs. I could see nor hear no one."

The testimony of Monteen Stover was obtained by detectives when they quizzed her the Saturday following the killing of Mary Phagan. The girl and her mother, Mrs. Homer Edmondson, of 171 South Forsyth Street, came to the factory to get the pay which the girl did not get the week before.

Stopped by Detectives.

In the office were detectives, eager to seize every available bit of information. They stopped Mrs. Edmondson and the girl, and were rewarded by Monteen's statement that she had been in Frank's office on the afternoon of the fatal day.

Monteen Stover said she did not know Mary Phagan, and probably had never seen her. She commended Frank as being popular with his employees, and kind.

Another development within the last 24 hours has been the elimination of another clew. The "woman in red," a mysterious figure reported to have been seen with Mary Phagan at the pencil factory, has been located. She is Mrs. Nancy Caldwell, of 10 Gray Street, an acquaintance of the dead girl. Examination revealed the fact, however, that she had not been with Mary Phagan in a year. The rumor of her association with the Phagan girl on the afternoon of the killing started in the mistaken statement of a girl at Mapleton.

Developed also evidence from a young woman whose name will not be revealed that the girl probably came to her death in the basement of the factory, and not in the upstairs lathe room. The following affidavit, subscribed to by a young woman who passed the factory about 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, April 26, is in the possession of Solicitor Dorsey, given him by Chief of Detectives Lanford.

The testimony is that as she passed the Forsyth Street entrance to the factory she was attracted by the shrill screams of a girl, coming, apparently, from the basement of the building. The cries were loud and piercing, and she stopped, hearing three sharp screams in rapid succession. Then the factory became quiet again.

Neither Chief Lanford nor Solicitor Dorsey would reveal the name of the young woman informant nor anything regarding her identity, except that she lives on Haynes Street.

DARDEN SUES TO TAKE CHILDREN FROM HIS WIFE

Elmer T. Darden, convicted slayer, swore out a writ of habeas corpus Saturday to take from his wife, Naomi Carter Darden, the custody of their four children, on the grounds that she is not a fit person to have the care of them.

Darden is under bond pending a hearing of an appeal of his case. He was sentenced to three years on the chaingang for killing C. M. Goddard, despite his plea of the "unwritten law."

A temporary injunction, granted by Judge J. T. Pendleton, was served on Mrs. Darden Saturday at her home on Crew Street, just as she was preparing to leave for the station to take a train for Vermont. Judge Pendleton named May 17 as the date for the trial, and in the meantime Mrs. Darden was commanded not to leave the county.

Darden alleged that his wife, from whom he is separated, intended to take the children to a permanent home outside the State of Georgia. He said the responsibility for their education and care rested mainly on him and he wanted them taken from her.

Darden is represented by Attorneys John S. McClelland and W. M. Smith.

Bride-to-Be Was Bride-in-Fact

Wedding Date Fixed for June 1

But Miss Slater Chose April 27

MRS. HOWELL B. SCHUMPERT.

Becomes Mrs. Howell B. Schumpert on Day She Announced Engagement.

Not content to wait until the first Sunday in June to be married, once their engagement had been announced, pretty Miss Lillian Dua Juan Slater, of 136 Rawson Street, and Howell B. Schumpert, 185 Washington Street, went to the parsonage of the Rev. W. C. Schaeffer on April 27—the day their friends were given notice of the impending marriage—and were wed. Their friends—even the bride's parents—will be surprised when they read the news to-day.

From parents, friends and acquaintances the marriage has been kept secret, Miss Slater, or Mrs. Schumpert, going to her home and Schumpert to his boarding house. Since the marriage the newspapers have published the picture of the young woman as a pretty bride-to-be of June, and both have smiled, content to wait until a little rose-bower of a cottage in Stokes Avenue was finished for their occupancy.

Confesses When Shown Proofs.

Smiling gayly, Mrs. Schumpert admitted all the interesting details today when the records in the Ordinary's office were placed before her as conclusive proof that she had married ahead of time.

"Yes," she said, "Howell and I went to church on April 27, the day our engagement was made public. After the service he said he wanted to show me something, and he pulled out a marriage license he had bought. He wanted to get married right away, and I didn't see the use of waiting until June.

"So, with two friends, Miss Inez Roart and Marvin Beddingfield, whom we knew we could trust, we went around to Rev. Mr. Schaeffer's house and were married.

Even Father Doesn't Know.

"No, even my father doesn't know about it, but I don't think he will object, because he likes Howell, but I am sorry it came out to-day, as we wanted to wait until our house is finished before we told everybody.

"It was so funny to see my picture in the paper, saying that I was engaged, when I was really married, but we had decided not to tell, so we kept mum."

Wore Other Fellow's Roses.

Miss Slater, who works in the office of the auditor of the Atlanta and West Point Railroad, has been passing her husband's house in Washington Street every morning since the marriage. He has waited for her on the porch, and together they have strolled downtown, discussing the little house in Stokes Avenue, but saying never a word of the marriage.

"It was funny," said Mrs. Schumpert, "that I should have worn a bunch of roses on the night of my wedding that another fellow sent to me, but I didn't expect to get married until Howell showed me the marriage license."

COL. J. HAM LEWIS SETS WHITE HOUSE PRECEDENT

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, set a precedent to-day for all visitors to President Wilson at the White House.

He waited patiently long after the hour which Secretary Tumulty had fixed for him to see the President. When informed that his time had come he arose and apologized to the waiting company in the secretary's office for preceding them into the Executive's presence.

3,000 PUPILS IN FIELD CONTEST AT PONCY PARK

Spectacular drills and dances formed the feature of Saturday afternoon's program. Ranged in long, even rows on the baseball diamond, the white dresses of the little girls and blue trousers and white waists of the little boys waved in unison with the music of the band and the baton of the director. The children went through the intricate figures of the flag drill and the dances with a precision and beauty that gained for them generous applause from the crowded grandstand and bleachers.

At 5 o'clock the children who won medals in the athletic games Saturday morning will be given their prizes, and the point trophies will be awarded to the schools.

Eighty children competed in the games, about 50 being boys. The contests were conducted on the point basis, and up to 4 o'clock the judges had not yet completed their work of determining the winning schools and individuals.

Two Classes for Each Sex.

The boys and girls were divided into two classes each. Class A comprised boys over 13 years old; Class B boys under 13; Class A, girls over 13 years, and Class B, girls under 13 years of age. The events were the same for all classes, except the distance of the running races. Class A boys ran a hundred yards, Class B boys 60 yards, Class A girls 75 yards, and Class B girls 50 yards. Other events were the standing broad jump and the running high jump and chinning the bar. Instead of the latter event the girls hurled the basketball for distance. One entry was allowed in each class from each school.

In the feature event of the day, the running high jump for Class A boys, Mitchell Benton, 15 years old, of the Peeples Street School, tied with Russell Anstett, 15 years old, of the Edgewood School, for first place. Each jumped 56 inches.

Chamber to Work For Blue Sky Law

Bill Defeated in Past Years Will Go Before Next Legislature in More Complete Form.

The Blue Sky Law Committee of the Chamber of Commerce will meet Tusday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, H. M. Willet, chairman, issuing a call for the meeting Saturday morning.

The committee will consider a bill, drafted by Albert Howell, which it is proposed to submit to the Legislature. The measure is said to be much more complete than those the Chamber of Commerce has endeavored to have passed and conforms more to the wishes of some of the Legislators.

The proposed Blue Sky Law is to prevent the selling of wild cat stocks.

will be served at Vicksburg, where the train crosses the Father of Waters and invades the West. Great doings are promised at the Hill City, though only a short stop can be made.

At 9 o'clock this evening the train is due in Shreveport, the second city of Louisiana. Shreveport has a bunch of live Shriners, and is in thorough sympathy with Yaarab's aspirations to play host to the Shrine in 1914.

A combination baggage car and coach, a tourist kitchen car, two standard Pullmans for the patrol and two Pullmans for the officers, representatives of Atlanta commercial bodies and nobles make up a train which never was surpassed in comfort.

"They travel like they owned the railroad," observed a train caller at Jackson.

Reach Dallas Sunday Morning.

John L. Meek, assistenat general passenger agent of the Southern, is in charge of the train. A. P. Matthews, division passenger agent of the Frisco lines, and N. C. Woodridge, southeastern passenger agent of the Texas and Pacific, assume charge when their lines are reached.

The special is to reach the Texas city at 5 o'clock Sunday morning. On arrival, Yaarab Temple drum corps will parade the streets. Returning, the special will come through Texarkana, Memphis and Birmingham. The return trip, it is confidently expected, will be a triumphal progress.

Atlanta Shriners Face Strong Competition.

DALLAS, TEXAS, May 10.—When Atlanta Shriners reach Dallas Sunday morning, they not only will find a warm welcome, but also some vigorous competitors for the 1914 Imperial Council.

The Georgians will be met at the train by Hella Temple Patrol and a band, not to mention a big reception committee. The delegation is due here at 5 o'clock. It has been arranged for them to parade to their headquarters at the Southland Hotel. Hundreds of adopted Texans from Georgia are "puiling" for Atlanta.

Fred Geisler, one of the advance guard of Atlanta Shriners, reached Dallas early yesterday and commenced to lay plans for capturing the 1914 convention for Atlanta.

"After a canvass of the situation," he asserted, "Atlanta stands the best chance. If Memphis were eliminated, I think he would win on the first ballot. With two Southern cities in the race, it will require much work to secure the convention. Baltimore is mentioned also as a strong factor, but I find Atlanta is in the lead."

Visit to Meridian as Lively as Circus Day.

MERIDIAN, MISS., May 10.—Circus day has nothing on to-day. All Meridian was astir early this morning to greet the Atlanta Shriners who passed through at 8 o'clock on their way to Dallas, where they will land the 1914 Council.

Meridian's patrol met the train in full uniform, and the Yaarab nobles, no longer sleepy, responded heartily to the welcome given them.

All the Atlantans were routed out and taken in autos to the best restaurant in town, where an old-fashioned Mississippi breakfast was served. Then began a trip around the city in automobiles. Thoughtful Meridian Shriners saw to it that a lady was put in charge of each car.

Mrs. D. F. White and Miss Bessie Kempton, of Atlanta, who are traveling with the Shriners, were the guests of honor, and were shown every courtesy the fertile genius of Mississippians could invent.

So enthusiastic were the Meridian hosts that the stopover had to be extended from an hour to an hour and a half.

Five Busy Days for Shriners at Dallas.

Monday: Registration; reception and luncheon to officers of patrols and bands at Scottish Rite Cathedral; entertainment for patrols and bands at Lake Cliff Casino; informal receptions at hotels and clubs for all visitors.

Tuesday: Escort of imperial divan from headquarters to cathedral by all patrols and bands; official opening of imperial council; entertainment for visiting ladies by the Federated Women's Clubs; Imperial Council dinner; automobile drives for wives of visiting nobles; band concert and races; grand parade and review.

Wednesday: Regular sessions of council; regimental review, massed band concert and exhibition drills; luncheon for Imperial Council; barbecue; ball.

Thursday: Delegates start on grand circuit tour of Texas; grand concert by all bands; polo games and athletic events.

2,000 Masons Wished Shriner Band Luck.

Fully 2,000 Masons bade Yaarab Temple "good-bye" and wished it luck Friday night at the Terminal Station when the Dallas special departed. The train pulled out at 10 o'clock for its long trip.

The drum corps led the march to the station, and roused reverberations which filled the ear drums of everyone who happened to be anywhere near the center of town last night.

Behind the drum corps marched the nobles, waving banners and shouting "Atlanta, 1914," which is the watchword.

Among those on the special train are: Forrest Adair, John Hynds, W. A. Foster, Claude Hutcheson, Fred Houser, J. C. Greenfield, S. L. Dickey, W. R. Joyner, H. G. Martin, J. B. Great Tuberculosis Institute Is Opened

Million Dollar Gift of Henry Phipps in Philadelphia to Eradicate in Disease Prevention.

PHILADELPHIA, May 10.—In the presence of many prominent medical men, scientists and philanthropists, the $1,000,000 Henry Phipps Tuberculosis Institute was opened here today. The institute is the gift of Henry Phipps, of New York, to the University of Pennsylvania. It is in the amount of money expended the largest gift yet made in the crusade against the white plague.

Henry Phipps, who was present, was presented with a degree of Doctor of Laws. Dr. Edward F. Smith, provost of the university, presided.

The Phipps Institute is not primarily a hospital, but an institute for the study, prevention of tuberculosis and education regarding the disease. Grosvenor Atterbury was architect. Dr. Charles J. Hattfield is executive director.

PLANS TO STOP MEN'S DODGING DUTY ON JURIES

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

Representative Minter Wimberly, of Bibb County, one of the few veterans to return to the Legislature, will introduce early in the forthcoming session a bill to abolish jury exemptions.

Primarily, this measure will be designed to stop the sale of jury exemptions to members of the military companies of the State, but it also will cover some other forms of exemptions now permitted by law.

The State now allows every military company regularly enlisted in the State's service a certain number of jury exemptions, and these may be used by members of the organizations, or sold to outsiders, as the company may elect. The practice has been to sell these exemptions for $25 per annum, the revenue resulting to the company to be applied to armory rent and other company expenses.

The result has been that the exemptions generally have operated to relieve well-to-do citizens in various cities, bankers, business men of large interests, and the like, from jury service, who otherwise would be required to do jury duty the same as the common or garden variety of folks.

Representative Wimberly thinks these citizens come from a class that should not be exempt from jury duty any more than others are exempt, and he particularly believes that there are many juries that need the services of bankers and business men of large interests, in order to insure fair and intelligent verdicts in matters involving the adjustment of financial affairs.

There has been a disposition in Georgia for a good many years to do away with these jury exemptions, and there is no doubt whatever that Mr. Wimberly's bill will receive hearty support in many quarters.

A great many people will sympathize with the Bibb County man's idea that all classes of citizens should perform their share of jury duty, unless prevented by illness, physical defect, extreme old age or positive disqualification for cause or interest in the persons or issues involved.

Believing that Georgia should have another United States District Court, and that Savannah should be the headquarters of the new district, a party of Savannah attorneys is now in Washington for a conference with the Department of Justice on the subject.

Those in the delegation are Judge Samuel B. Adams, W. W. Osborne, J. Ferris Cann, Anton P. Wright and T. Mayhew Cunningham. It is understood that General P. W. Meldrim will join the party in Washington Monday.

At various times in the last several years efforts have been made to have another District Court established in Southern Georgia, but nothing ever came of these efforts. At the time of the election of President Wilson, the old agitation was revived, and despite the fact that various grand juries in the United States Court have recently passed resolutions deploring such action as is now being taken by the Savannah lawyers, it was determined to make the effort to have the new court established there.

The presence of Joseph H. Davis, of Albany, in Washington just now has revived a lot of interesting talk as to the United States marshalship for South Georgia.

It is understood that Senator Bacon has considered Mr. Davis, but that Senator Smith has lodged an objection against him. Senator Bacon has not "indorsed" the Albany man, it is explained, but he has had him "favorably in mind." Whether the objection of Senator Smith will operate to eliminate Davis is the question.

Mr. Davis, it appears, is charged with not being "progressive enough" in his politics to suit the junior Senator—at least, that is the way The Savannah Press hands out the "dope," and, presumably, it speaks by the card.

And, anyway, Davis is in Washington looking into things for himself, and the outcome of his visit is being watched with genuine interest throughout the State.

Georgia politicians have been greatly interested in the development of the Gainesville and Rome postmastership situations, and now that both have been settled, further developments are being watched with even greater interest.

President Wilson in disregarding Congressman Bell's recommendation as to the Gainesville office—Mr. Bell's home office—has set aside a precedent very few expected to see broken. From time immemorial it has been customary for the President to name without question the man nominated by a Representative for his home office. Bell's recommendation of Mr. Hardy in Gainesville, however, was passed over, even before Bell got through talking to the President about Hardy.

Vital Questions Face Presbyterian Assemblies at Atlanta Meet

Proposed Union of United and Southern Churches Interests Dixie

Mark A. Matthews, D. D., Seattle, Wash., retiring Moderator.

Vital questions of worldwide interest, will come before the Presbyterian assemblies in Atlanta. Perhaps the most interesting of these to the layman is the effort to be made in the Southern Assembly to change the "elect infant clause" to remove all ground for the supposition that all infants are not saved.

This will come up in consideration of section 3, chapter 10 of the Confession of Faith and will not be new work for a General Assembly of this church. The proposed changes have been thoroughly discussed and recommended by a number of assemblies, but no change proposed as yet has met the approval of three-fourths of the Presbyteries.

The proposed change in this paragraph which was approved by the Bristol Assembly causes the paragraph to read thus: "Being elect, all infants dying in infancy are regenerated and saved by Christ through the Spirit, who worketh when, and where, and how he pleaseth. So also are all other elect persons, who are incapable of being outwardly called by the ministry of the word," this wording to be substituted that now appearing in the Confession of Faith and which reads: "Elect infants dying in infancy etc."

Presbyteries Have Voted.

The Presbyteries have taken vote on the proposed change during the spring meetings and the action of the General Assembly in ordering a change in the wording of this paragraph of the Confession of Faith will be determined by the vote of the Presbyteries. It is hardly to be expected that three-fourths of the Presbyteries will favor the proposed change and it is not unlikely this question will be discussed as thoroughly during the Atlanta Assembly as has been true during other Assemblies.

There is a growing desire upon the part of some prominent ministers of the church for this paragraph to be stricken from the Confession of Faith and thus obliterate all ground for the supposition that any infant or other irresponsible person who dies can fail to be saved, and it is probable that more than one overture to that effect will be presented to the Assembly at Atlanta.

Among the questions of particular interest to the South is the proposed union of the United Presbyterian Church with the Southern Presbyterian Church and this question will be presented in the report of the Committee on Conference, appointed by the Assembly of 1912, which committee in joint meeting with a similar committee appointed by the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church has prepared a basis of union for the two churches and this basis of union will be presented to the General Assemblies of both churches for action.

Terms Not Made Public.

Just what this basis of union is has not been made known to others than the members of the two committees. The basis of union was agreed upon several weeks ago, but the two Committees of Conference decided that as a matter of courtesy to the Assemblies of both churches it should not be given publicity until officially presented to these two bodies.

Rev. R. C. Reed, D. D., of Columbia, S. C., is chairman of the Committee of Conference for the Southern Presbyterian Church and the following named ministers and laymen constitute the other members of this important committee: Rev. S. L. Morris, D. D., of Atlanta; Rev. J. F. Cannon, D. D., of St. Louis; Allen G. Hall, of Nashville, Moderator of the Assembly of 1906; and W. F. Stevenson, of Cheraw, S. C. The General Assembly will await the presentation of no other report with a greater degree of interest than the report of the Committee on Conference, and there is no matter of greater importance to come before the body than the question of the union of these two churches.

The standards held by the United Presbyterian Church are the same as those held by the Southern Presbyterian Church and in the same sense each church accepts them. The two churches possess the same Scotch ancestry, adhere to the same policy, and administer the affairs of benevolences under the same departments. The distinct point of difference between the two churches is the exclusive use of the Psalms in the service of praise in the United Presbyterian Church and it is around this point, in all probability, that the greatest discussion will center in the consideration of the union of the two churches.

Rev. Wallace Radcliffe, D. D., Washington, D. C., pastor of President Wilson's church.

J. W. Patterson, of Atlanta, chairman of the Finance Committee of the Assemblies.

Two Other Big Features.

There are two other questions to come before the General Assembly that will constitute outstanding features: The Federal Council and the brief popular statement of Doctrine of the Church.

During the Assembly of 1912, held at Bristol delegates were appointed to represent the Southern Presbyterian Church in the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, which held its quadrennial meeting in December, at Chicago. The report of these delegates will be heard with interest. It is not improbable that overtures will be presented to the Assembly urging that it withdraw again from membership in the Council, but it is likely that a second withdrawal from membership in the Council will be opposed as ably as it will be recommended.

Two changes in the form of government of the church have been proposed and will be considered by the Atlanta Assembly. One is with reference to cases of trial in the church and the proposed change, which was approved by the Bristol Assembly, would give the Synod and the General Assembly the power, at their own discretion, to commit any case of trial coming before them on appeal to the judgment of a Commission, composed of others than members of the Court from which the case shall come, this power to apply in all cases except those affecting doctrine and those shall be tried by the Court itself.

The other proposed change is with reference to the basis of representation in the General Assembly. The basis of representation at present is one minister and one ruling elder from every Presbytery except in those Presbyteries where there are more than twenty-five ministers and in those the representation in the General Assembly shall be two ministers and two ruling elders, but no additional number of churches increases the representation.

Plan Graduated Scale.

The change proposed recommends that every Presbytery shall be represented in the General Assembly by one minister and one ruling elder and that if the communicants of the churches in the Presbytery and ministers on the roll number more than four thousand, the Presbytery shall be entitled to increase its representation to the Assembly with one minister and one ruling elder and that the representation continue to increase in like proportion with the addition of every four thousand communicants and ministers.

During the year since the Bristol Assembly the Presbyteries have taken action with regard to the proposed changes in the form of government; the answers of the eighty-nine Presbyteries will be tabulated during the Atlanta Assembly and if three-fourths of the answers favor the proposed changes, the changes will become law, by the enactment of the Assembly.

The ad interim committee appointed by the Bristol Assembly to prepare a brief popular statement of the doctrines taught by the Southern Presbyterian Church is composed of fifteen representative men from all sections of the church, with Rev. R. A. Webb, D. D., of the Kentucky Presbyterian Theological Seminary, at Louisville, as chairman. This committee may be able to submit its report to the Atlanta Assembly, but it will not be cause for surprise if longer time is requested to complete this important work.

The preparation of this brief popular statement has been requested for use especially as a tract in mission territory as well as in other sections of the church; this statement will in no way displace the standards of the church, but will express the same in a simplified form and one that will be easy to handle, especially in mission territory of the church.

DEMOCRATS PICK CAMPAIGN HEADS

WASHINGTON, May 10.—The compromise reached at the meeting of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee apparently is satisfactory to all members, both in the House and Senate, and President Wilson. The meeting was short and the results accomplished were obtained by unanimous consent.

Representative Lloyd, of Missouri, and Mr. Page, of North Carolina, were selected as the temporary chairman and secretary of the committee until a permanent organization may be perfected. The motion was made by Representative Ben Johnson, of Kentucky, who is said to be slated to succeed Mr. Lloyd.

Following is the new membership of the committee:

Representatives—Alabama, Richardson; Arizona, Hayden; Arkansas, Floyd; California, Baker; Colorado, Taylor; Connecticut, Reilly; Delaware, Brockton; Florida, Clark; Georgia, Lee; Illinois, Sabath; Indiana, Cline; Iowa, Pepper; Kansas, Taggart; Kentucky, Johnson; Louisiana, Watkins; Maine, McGillicuddy; Maryland, Covington; Massachusetts, Murray; Michigan, Doremus; Minnesota, Hammond; Mississippi, Candler; Missouri, Russell; Montana, Evans; Nebraska, Lobeck; New Hampshire, Reed; New Mexico, Ferguson; New Jersey, Scully; New York, Goldfogle; North Dakota, Webb; Ohio, Sharp; Oklahoma, Weaver; Pennsylvania, Diefenderfer; Rhode Island, O'Shaughnessy; South Carolina, Finley; Tennessee, Houston; Virginia, Flood; Wisconsin, Burke; West Virginia, no selection.

Predicts Trouble in Cuba at Inauguration

"Moral and Political Conditions Are Awful," Says Henry T. Woodruff.

NEW YORK, May 10.—"The moral and political conditions of Cuba are awful," declared Henry T. Woodruff, a veteran of the Civil War, who has arrived from Havana.

Mr. Woodruff has spent the winter in Cuba for the last fifteen years.

"I have been informed on reliable authority that the rebels have obtained 12,000 rifles which belonged to the Federal Government. The people of Havana are seeking bloodshed, and it would not surprise me if murder was committed when Menocal is inaugurated on May 20."

Turn Down Pinero and Lady Nicotine

London Theater Managers Reject His Plan and Will Bar Smokers.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 10.—Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's proposal to allow smoking in the London theaters, was emphatically rejected by the Society of West End Theater Managers, who voted against the proposal with only one dissenting voice.

Sir Arthur's purpose was to alienate the patronage of the music halls, he believing that many men went there to enjoy nicotine rather than vaudeville.

RESINOL QUICKLY CURED HER BABY'S SEVERE ECZEMA

Had Not Had a Good Night's Rest in Eight Months.

Chelsea, Mass., Jan. 19, 1913.—"My son had been troubled with eczema for about one year. It first appeared when three months old. I tried everything that was recommended and also different prescriptions, but of no avail. For eight months my child did not enjoy a good night's rest. I was finally told to try Resinol. This I did, and from the first application the child got relief and put in a good night's sleep. In three days there was no sign of eczema—to-day he has as fine a complexion as any healthy child and is entirely cured." (Signed) Mrs. T. S. Brown, 54 Crescent Ave.

Resinol positively stops itching instantly and speedily heals eczema and other skin humors, dandruff, sores, burns and piles. Prescribed by doctors for 18 years. Sold by every druggist. Resinol Ointment in opal jars, 50 cents and $1.00. Resinol Soap, 25 cents. For generous free trial, write Dept. 19-S, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

Slayer of Countess, Convict, Seeks Death

Guards Watch Lieutenant Paterno, Who Would Escape Imprisonment Through Suicide.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

ROME, May 10.—Lieutenant Paterno, serving a life sentence for the murder in 1912 of the queen's waiting maid, Countess Trigona, was secretly conveyed to the penitentiary in Porto Longone to-day. Owing to the prisoner's dread of solitary confinement and determination to end his life, four warders have been detailed to watch him day and night.

The doctors ascribe his suicidal mania to cowardice. They have given him morphine to cause artificial sleep and thus prolong his life. The authorities have tried to hide Paterno's resolve to kill himself lest his example be followed by others desiring to evade sentences of solitary confinement.

Other convicts who have ended their lives generally concealed their determination, but Paterno calmly announced his intention to the officials. The latter are anxious to preserve his life at all costs that he may expiate his crime according to law.

Opera Stars Deny Any Estrangement

LONDON, May 10.—Six days at sea evidently soothed the distraught nerves of the grand opera singers who have arrived from New York.

Denial was made of the report that there was any estrangement of the forces of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company which would prevent their assemblage again next season. Conductor Toscanini, about whom there have been numerous rumors, said: "My contract has two years to run and as usual I will fulfill my contract."

All the singers except Emmy Destinn, who has taken a house in London, have gone to Paris. Mme. Destinn, who is an art connoisseur, has secured a large Rivviera picture. It was so big she had to hire a truck to transport it to the railway station.

Street Car Fight Won.

COLUMBUS.—After the city had appealed to the State Railroad Commission, the Columbus Railroad Company has rebuilt its tracks and resumed operations in Sixth Street.

Wilson in Dilemma, Says London Paper

President Sympathizes With Japan, It Adds—Cannot Enforce His Views.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 10.—The London Morning Post, in an editorial, says:

"No doubt the action of the California Legislature in passing a bill depriving Japanese settlers of the right to own land, placed the President in a very difficult position.

"Japan resents this legislation as descriminating unfairly against her citizens, and claims it is a violation of the treaty between herself and the United States. So far as known President Wilson recognizes the justice of Japan's complaints, but he has no obvious means of compelling the people of California to accept his view of the case. * * * * It is certain Japan will protest and will insist on taking some action to vindicate her rights."

"CASCARETS" MAKE YOU FEEL GREAT

Gently Cleanse Your Liver and Sluggish Bowels While You Sleep.

Sick headache, biliousness, dizziness, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath—always trace them to torpid liver, delayed fermenting food in the bowels, or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is reabsorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Salts, cathartic pills, oil and purgative waters force a passageway for a day or two—yes—but they don't take the poisons out and have no effect upon the liver or stomach.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels clean and regular for months.

A Word of Appreciation

The Presbyterians of Atlanta desire in this way to express our deep sense of appreciation for the generous hospitality offered by the hundreds of our fellow citizens of all creeds and denominations.

The tender of these beautiful homes will enable us to give our distinguished visitors a rare vision of true Southern hospitality that we are sure they will long remember.

We can only hope that every home privileged to have one or more of these godly men may in turn receive a blessing and a benediction thru the years to come.

Secretary Daniels In Georgia Sunday

SAVANNAH, GA., May 10.—Gorgeous flags and pennants of all nations will float from the spars and halyards of every vessel in the Savannah harbor to-morrow afternoon, upon the occasion of the visit to Savannah of Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, of North Carolina, concluding his first official tour of the naval stations on the South Atlantic and Gulf coasts.

Secretary Daniels is expected to arrive between 6 and 7 o'clock. The torpedo boat destroyer on which he will make the trip from Port Royal, S. C., will dock at the foot of Bull Street. The trip from Port Royal will be made through Callaboga Sound. Owing to the uncertainty of a journey by water, it is not known precisely when the Secretary will arrive.

Farmer Dies in Fire He Sets; Women Saved

Scheme to Cremate Family Fails When Neighbors Extinguish Burning House.

PITTSBURG, May 10.—Jacob Dewalt, an aged and well-to-do farmer, of South Fayette township, it is believed, burned himself to death during the early morning hours, but a scheme to cremate alive his wife and 18-year-old daughter failed, when a fire in dry fence rails piled against the house was extinguished.

Dewalt evidently crawled into a hay mow beside his barn during the night and set it afire. The flames spread to the barn, causing the death of two horses and two cows. The charred body was found, the head, arms and legs burned off, lying against the side of the building.

According to Dewalt's daughter and neighbors, Dewalt had frequently threatened to kill the entire family.

'Declining Morals Due to Immodest Dress'

Clergyman Likens Women's Gowns to Trousers With Only One Leg.

ALTOONA, PA., May 10.—The immodest fashions were blamed for the declining moral standards in America by Rev. J. H. Keller, a Lutheran minister, of Phillinsburg, Pa., speaking before Northeast Synod of the Lutheran Church. He said:

"If women want to wear trousers, why do they not wear them with both legs, instead of trying to stick both feet into one leg.

"With the immodest dress of the average girl of to-day it requires a great deal of nerve for the minister to look the ladies unblushingly in the face and give them a warm handshake at the door of the church."

Bride He Purchased Rifles His Pockets

Father of Wife Leaves Vicinity Because of Feeling Aroused by Exposure in Pennsylvania City.

BUTLER, PA., May 10.—The charge of larceny presented by Joseph Elies, of the West End, against his wife, a bride of a few days, brought to light to-day the allegation that her father, Joseph Solomon, had sold her to Elies.

$300,000 GARAGE FIRES LAID TO AUTO-MANIAC

CHICAGO, May 10.—Forty automobiles were burned and the lives of scores imperiled when fire destroyed the American Motor Livery Company's garage early to-day.

Sixty electric automobiles were destroyed in a garage fire here yesterday. The police believe a maniac with a particular aversion to automobiles is responsible for the fires. The loss in both fires is $300,000.

WOMAN, 60, SEEKS DIVORCE WHEN HUBBY, 26, DESERTS

SOUTH BEND, IND., May 10.—Mrs. Anna Beezy, aged 60, to-day was seeking a divorce from Roy Beezy, aged 26. The divorce complaint was filed after Mrs. Beezy failed in an attempt to have her youthful husband brought back to South Bend on a charge of wife desertion.

The Breezys were married two years ago.

Chuck Connor, King Of Chinatown, Dies

Picturesque Bowery Figure Famous as Tourist Guide Through New York's East Side.

NEW YORK, May 10.—"Chuck" Connor, known from coast to coast as King of Chinatown, died to-day in the Hudson Street Hospital.

Connor's real name was George Washington Connor and he was one of the most picturesque characters the Bowery ever produced. For several years Connor made a living by acting as guide for parties of tourists and his route lay through carefully staged "opium dens" and saloons frequented by "bad men."

Connor's name frequently appeared in the newspapers, and his interviews given in the lingo of the East Side, featured many a Sunday supplement. His age was uncertain. Some said he was 50, while others said he was 60. He died of heart disease.

Burglar Gets Money And Trousers, Too

Piedmont Avenue Resident, With Pistol, Vainly Chases Intruder in Early Morning Hours.

M. F. Sullivan, of 422 Piedmont Avenue, has a justifiable grouch against the burglar fraternity to-day. One played him the trick of not only taking his money, but fleeing with his trousers as well.

It was 4 o'clock this morning when Mrs. Sullivan, awakened by a noise, arose and discoveerd a negro calmly rifling her husband's trousers. The burglar had taken them from the bed room into the hall. Mrs. Sullivan screamed and Mr. Sullivan jumped out of bed and pursued the negro with a pistol.

The burglar jumped through an open window in the front of the house. He was in such a hurry that he failed to drop the trousers, which contained $15.

KEEP THE BALANCE UP.

It has been truthfully said that any disturbance of the even balance of health causes serious trouble. Nobody can be too careful to keep this balance up. When people begin to lose appetite, or to get tired easily, the least imprudence brings on sickness, weakness, or debility. The system needs a tonic, craves it, and should not be denied it; and the best tonic of which we have any knowledge is Hood's Sarsaparilla. What this medicine has done in keeping healthy people healthy, in keeping up the even balance of health, gives it the same distinction as a preventive that it enjoys as a cure. Its early use has illustrated the wisdom of the old saying that a stitch in time saves nine. Take Hood's for appetite, strength and endurance.

Frank Ison, of College Park, has the best start in The Georgian and American's contest for the pony outfits. He had 18,535 votes yesterday. Probably he has many more to-day.

Fannie Cook, 488 Pulliam Street, has 6,600, and Florence Greenoe, 387 Pulliam Street, has 6,045—there's a close race in District No. 4.

Then there is a considerable number with 2,000 and 3,000 votes.

All this may seem discouraging to the boy or girl who has simply the original, which goes with the nomination. It should not be, however.

Look at Frank Ison's lead, for instance, He has 18,535 votes. Take off 1,000 for the nomination. That leaves 17,535. Five yearly subscriptions to The Georgian and American would yield 17,500. The 35 more which make up the total may represent the coupons clipped from the daily issues of the paper.

You can get five yearly subscriptions to The Georgian and American in no time at all, can't you? Then you will have done as well as Frank Ison. The only difference is that he, very wisely, has made a flying start.

We predicted yesterday that the votes polled by the contestants will leap up by thousands at a clip. Watch and see if they do not. The names of contestants and their standing will be published frequently that they may know how they and their rivals are getting along.

Daniels Fools Old Salts in Navy Office

Department Navigators Learn for First Time That Florida Has a Panama City.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—The wise old salts of the Navy Department thought they had caught Secretary Daniels in a land-lubber's blunder when they got a telegram from him ordering the gunboat Petrel to Panama City by May 10.

Even the youngest navigator at the department laughed over the message and called attention to the geographical fact that Panama City is on the Pacific side of the Isthmus, while the gunboat Petrel is now en route to Pensacola, Fla. It was suggested that the Secretary be so informed.

Then some one thought of looking up the maps. A search disclosed that there is a Panama City on the Florida coast.

Vincent Astor Host To Senatorial Party

NEW YORK, May 10.—Vice President Marshall and several United States Senators are guests for today and to-morrow of Vincent Astor.

The program is a trip up the Hudson on his yacht, Nona, as far as West Point for the annual inspection of the military post, a night at the Astor estate and a visit to Governor Sulzer.

In addition to the Vice President the party will include Senators Johnston, of Alabama; Fletcher, of Florida; Overman, of North Carolina; Vardeman, of Mississippi, and Chamberlin, of Oregon, as well as a number of New York business men.

FORT SMITH, ARK., May 10.—A posse was searching the neighborhood of Bonanza, sixteen miles southeast of here to-day for three men who dynamited the safe in the First State Bank there at 1:30 o'clock this morning and escaped with between $1,500 and $2,000 in currency. The men left Bonanza on horseback, headed for Fort Smith.

SUFFRAGETTE BOMB IS FOUND IN POSTOFFICE

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 10.—A suffragette bomb, with an electrical appliance similar to that found in St. Paul's Cathedral, was discovered to-day in the package sorting department of the Reading postoffice. Finding of the infernal machine created a panic among the employees. The bomb was turned over to the police.

Another was found in the passenger waiting room at the busy Lime Street Railroad Station in Liverpool.

The fuse of the Liverpool bomb had been lighted, but had died out before it reached the gunpowder. The instrument of intended destruction consisted of a tin tobacco box filled with gunpowder and scrap iron.

The Reading machine was wrapped in a bulky parcel to which the attention of the postoffice employees was attracted by the sound of ticking. The police were called in and on examination found the parcel contained an electric battery connected to explosives and accompanied by quantities of suffragette literature.

The parcel was addressed to a municipal official of Reading, now on his vacation. The police believe it was timed to explode in his residence during his absence. The clockwork arrangement was in perfect working order.

CHATTANOOGA FURNITURE HOUSE HAS $10,000 BLAZE

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., May 10. The loss sustained by the Bowen-Jumper Furniture Company in a fire that threatened the West Side business district yesterday afternoon was reported to-day to have been $10,000.

BERRIEN CLERK RIDICULES GAME WARDEN CHARGE

Denies People of Milltownn Tried To Intimidate Boisclair, as He Complained.

Charles S. Parham, clerk of the Superior Court of Berrien County, in a letter to The Georgian to-day, ridicules the charges that lawless and disorderly tactics have been adopted by the people of Milltown to intimidate County Game Warden Boisclair.

The letter is an answer to the fear of State Game Warden Mercer that his deputy in Berrien County is being attacked. It is an answer, also, to the charges by Warden Boisclair that the town and surrounding section disregard the laws and authority of officers.

"If Game Warden Mercer will use different tactics from those of Mr. Boisclair," the writer concludes, "he will find any amount of co-operation in punishing those who knowingly violate the game laws, and will find no better people in Georgia."

His letter in part follows:

"Conditions Misrepresented."

To begin with, conditions at Milltown are not at all as represented by Mr. Boisclair. He intimates that the entire town and section is composed of people who disregard the laws of the country or the rights of man, when in reality there are no better class of citizens in Georgia than are found at Milltown.

Mr. Boisclair says that from 200 to 300 angry men gathered about him, threatening his life, etc. This statement is simply false. The writer was on the ground as a disinterested spectator at the time of the would-be trial, seeing and hearing a good portion of what was taking place, sizing up the crowd with fair accuracy, and feels sure that not more than 50 people were gathered there. Eighteen of this number were there from having been served with warrants to so be, for trial; nearly all of the remainder had gathered there from idle curiosity and had no part in the proceeding at all.

No Demonstration.

No demonstration of any kind was evident, except that of mirth and fun which usually arises from such occasions. Those who had been arrested (or most of them, at least) took the matter as a huge joke, and had it not been that Mr. Boisclair went around there with a concealed weapon, everything would have passed off quietly and good-humoredly.

Mr. Boisclair says that Mayor Bill Pafford accosted him, leading, with vile epithets, an angry mob of 200 or 300 people, the crowd became menacing, etc., all of which the writer knows to be untrue. As before stated, there were not exceeding 50 persons on the ground and they were quiet and orderly, and had it not been for the fact that Mr. Boisclair was seen with a pistol on his person there would have been no words of any kind.

Bill Pafford is a high-toned, Christian gentleman, who is known all over this, as well as adjoining counties.

James Banks, the owner of the Banks Pond, says he has never objected to people fishing with hook and line in his waters, while R. T. Berryhill, a nephew of Mr. Banks, who has charge of the pond, has always been very liberal in his management of the fishing privilege, never refusing anyone that would ask him permission to catch as many fish as he wanted to.

THE PLAYS THIS WEEK

"THE GIRL" AT THE ATLANTA.

"The Girl From Out Yonder," the offering by the Miss Billy Long company at the Atlanta Theater this week, will be presented at a matinee this afternoon and again to-night. The play has proved immensely popular with patrons of the Atlanta, and Miss Long has won many new friends by her very capable acting. All the other members appear to advantage in parts which afford them abundant opportunity for the display of their special talent.

KEITH VAUDEVILLE AT FORSYTH.

Few acts presented at the Forsyth have attracted more attention than that of Gus Edwards' Kid Kabaret, which is the headliner this week. The number comprises fifteen girls and boys, who dance and sing and offer other pleasing specialties. Belle Story has proved a big hit. She sings delightfully. Williams, Thompson and Copeland have an unusually amusing sketch. The whole bill is one designed to please, and it succeeds admirably. Matinee this afternoon.

COLD WEATHER THREATENS MICHIGAN'S FRUIT CROP

BENTON HARBOR, MICH., May 10.—The fate of more than $1,000,000 worth of fruit in the great fruit region of Michigan to-day was hanging in the balance as the result of unusually cold weather. A further drop in temperature threatened a disastrous freeze.

Smudge pots were burning all of last night. A record crop is predicted if damage by cold is prevented.

ROUND-ABOUT-TOWN STORIES

Friedmann's Patients Bound by Common Tie.

"Six of Dr. Friedmann's tubercular patients are convalescing in Bellevue Hospital," said a physician just back from a visit to New York. "The fact that they have been treated with the serum has naturally caused a bond of sympathy among them, and they are generally to be seen together, strolling in their bathrobes along the sunny walks in the hospital quadrangle. Other inmates of the institution who lack the distinction of contact with the syringe of the Berlin physician are inclined to interpret their alliance as aloofness, and the sextet have come to be dubbed the 'guinea pigs.'"

Wanted to Know His Other Business.

A New Yorker who is stopping at one of the Atlanta hotels, tells this one:

A member of the Stock Exchange well known for his scorn of convention pulled the bellrope of a Long Island Railroad train the other evening because, as he said, he was "tired of being a perpendicular sardine" and he was determined either to have a seat or get out. He was arrested. When the case came up in court the railroad's lawyer said insinuatingly:

"Are you a drinking man, Mr. Blank?"

"That's my business," said the broker with dignity.

"Right," said the lawyer. "Now tell the court, Mr. Blank, if you have any other business."

Rear Seats Are In Demand.

"One thing I can't get used to," said the ticket seller at a downtown moving picture house, "is the demand for rear seats. All my life I have been under the impression that folks who went to the theater wanted to get as near the stage as possible, but in the moving picture business the reverse seems true. People want to get far back so they can get a better focus on the pictures. In this house the back seats fill up long before the front ones do. I got a jolt the other day, however. A fellow came to the window and said, "'Can you give me a seat in the first row? I'm hard of hearing.'

"I told him we didn't sell reserved seats—that he would have to take his chances with the rest. Anyhow, I assured him, the pictures were being run and it didn't really make any difference if he was hard of hearing."

CROWDS VISIT REVIVAL TO HEAR EVANGELIST HAWKINS

The revival which Evangelist Hawkins is conducting at the West End Christian Church continues to attract large crowds. Five converts were baptized Friday night before one of the largest gatherings of the week.

Following are sermon subjects for the coming week: Saturday night, "The Way of Faith;" Sunday morning, "The First Lord's Day;" Sunday evening, "Salvation;" Tuesday evening, "The Thief on the Cross;" Wednesday evening, "What Must I Do to Be Lost." There will be no services Monday.

SALOONS ASK COURT TO FORCE CITY TO TAKE TAX

HAMMOND, IND., May 10.—The first case on record in this State where taxpayers attempt to force a municipality to accept thousands of dollars was brought to-day in the Hammond Superior Court, where 80 Gary saloon men asked Judge Lawrence Becker to mandate the city of Gary to accept $200 apiece from them.

The Gary authorities hold saloon licenses to be $500 and refuse the $200 as provided by the City Council in an earlier ordinance.

NEGROES GIVE FUND FOR CONFEDERATE REUNION

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., May 10. A delegation of negroes called on Mayor T. C. Thompson to-day and, after donating $40 for the expenses of the Confederate reunion, assured him that they would do all in their power to aid in the entertainment of the gray veterans.

GRAFT FOE PLANS REVENGE IF SLAIN

Directs $50,000 Insurance Be Used to Prosecute Assassins if He Is Killed.

NEW YORK, May 10.—George A. Sipp, former Raines law hotel keeper, who exposed the alliance of the police and underworld in Harlem's tenderloin, said today he had taken out $50,000 worth of life insurance and added a codicil to his will directing that the sum be spent in prosecuting his murderers should he be assassinated as the result of his exposures of the police graft syndicate.

Warden Hayes, of the Blackwells Island prison, is having a difficult time finding occupations for James F. Thompson, John J. Murtha, Dennis Sweeney and James E. Hussey, the four former police inspectors who were sentenced to a year for obstructing justice. None of the prisoners has received industrial training along any special line.

Sergeant Peter J. Duffy, charged with collecting graft for Sweeney, will be arraigned late this month or early in June. In connection with the search for more evidence, District Attorney Whitman has learned of a "clairvoyant trust" which has paid big sums for protection.

JOKERS GIVE BABY WINE; LITTLE GIRL NEARLY DIES

PERTH AMBOY, May 10.—Two men paid $45 in fines for giving a year-old girl a drink of port wine. The child went into convulsions, but was restored.

The child found her way into a barroom. Charles Webber picked her up and jokingly called for a drink. Benjamin Wonder, the proprietor, set a glass of port on the bar. Webber gave the child the wine.

Ricardi Sues Rigo For $100,000 'Loans'

NEW YORK, May 10.—That Mme. Ricardi, formerly the Princess DeChimay and originally Clara Ward, of Detroit, is suing Janezi Rigo, the gypsy violinist she eloped with seventeen years ago in Paris, for $100,000, became known to-day. Mme. Ricardi claims this was loaned Rigo in the three years they lived together.

In his apartments here, where he is living with his latest wife, who was Kitty Emerson, wife of Caspar Emerson, Jr., of Philadelphia, Rigo declared the Princess DeChimay is hounding him because he refuses to go back to her.

"My wife knows this," said Rigo, "but I will never do it. I love my wife madly. Nothing can separate us."

VOLS SCOURING UNIVERSE FOR GOOD HURLERS

NASHVILLE, TENN., May 10.—The incessant bombardment of the Vols flingers has almost driven Bill Schwartz insane and his frenzied shrieks for "Hellup" on the hurling hill has completely upset Mr. Hirsig, who was jogging along so serenely, dreaming dreams of bunting fluttering next year in his nice, new ball park.

On the next platform we have seen Mr. Hirsig wigwagging the distressing news to every big league mogul north of the Mason and Dixon's line for an able bodied slabman who can not only get "em over, but can get em past em."

The first aid to the injured comes once more from Redland, whence cameth Cy Dalgren, who had oodles of stuff on the pill but who refused to put the pellet where any opponent could get a crack at it. Cy has been returned to Tinkertown with much thanks and in his stead comes 'Chick' Smith, who is alleged to be some pitcher.

Smith is a portsider and although this is his first season in fast society, coming from the corner lots in Cincinnati, he has shown the making of a great pitcher.

Hendee Goes to Cairo.

Sam Hendee, the titanic coal miner, has been shunted along to Cairo, Ill., in the Kitty League since no team in the Southern League could find a uniform to encompass Samuel. Charles Alabi Case, will in all probability be trade to some club in this circuit, the Turtles for instance, for Bill Bernhard, still remembers the high-grade stuff that the jinx flinger uncovered in 1908. Which was quite a few years back and old age doesn't seem to have the same effect on Case that it does on old wine.

Memphis has offered the Vols a pitcher for Case, but the deal is still hanging fire until waivers have been secured from all the other clubs.

Hirsig made a desperate attempt to land Rube Benton, the ex-Lookout from the Reds, but Reuben is one of the best ball players Cincinnati has had in some time, and although Mr. Hirsig gritted his teeth and offered a wheelbarrow full of regular money for Benton, the Reds refused to give him up.

Ebbets May Help Out.

Hirsig expects Charley Ebbets of the Dodgers to dig up a pitcher for the Vols, and Connie Mack of the Athletics has offered to help him out, too. Connie suggested that the Vols land Roger Salmon from Louisville, for Roger once wore an Athletic uniform, but if he isn't good enough for the Colonels, he surely won't be able to stop the big sticks in this league, which is just about as fast as the American Association, no matter if they do have A. A. tacked on to them.

After starting out like champions on the present road trip the Vols have suddenly developed into selling platers and poor work in the box is the cause of the whole trouble.

Beck is the only dependable slabman, and it takes more than one high-class flinger to hold any club in select company.

PELS SECURE WILSON.

CLEVELAND, OHIO, May 10.—Pitcher Finish E. Wilson, southpaw, who came to the Cleveland club from the Knoxville, Tenn., club last fall, yesterday was released to New Orleans Southern League team.

Banish All Skin Troubles

A Remarkable Remedy That Works Wonders Against Even Weeping Eczema.

If you have been fighting some blood trouble, some skin disease, call it eczema, lupus, psoriasis, malaria or what you will, there is but one sure, safe way to cure it. Ask at any drug store for a $1.00 bottle of S. S. S. and you are then on the road to health. The action of this remarkable remedy is just as direct, just as positive, just as certain in its influence as that the sun rises in the East. It is one of those rare medical forces which act in the blood, with the same degree of certainty that is found in all natural tendencies. The manner in which it dominates and controls the mysterious transference of rich, red, pure arterial blood for the diseased venous blood is marvelous.

Out through every skin pore acids, germs and other blood impurities are forced in the form of invisible vapor. The lungs breathe it out, the liver is stimulated to consume a great proportion of impurities, the stomach and intestines cease to convey into the blood stream the catarrhal, malarial germs; the bowels, kidneys, bladder and all emunctories of the body are marshaled into a fighting force to expel every vestige of eruptive disease.

There is scarcely a community anywhere but what has its living example of the Wonderful curative effects of S. S. S. Get a bottle of this famous remedy to-day, and if your case is stubborn or peculiar, write to The Swift Specific Company, 137 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Their medical laboratory is famous and is conducted by renowned experts in blood and skin diseases. Their advice is entirely free and always strictly personal.

Morris and Pitts to Hurl To-day

Tech Downs Georgia in Opener

By J. W. Heisman.

ATHENS, GA., May 10.—The game here Friday between Georgia and Tech bore out all previous history and traditions of these special contests. Dope went wrong once more and Tech won. This means that the crowd in attendance to-day will be gigantic, though it will have to be if it is to be any larger than Friday's. As for the game to-day, it is as hard to forecast a winner as it was in yesterday's contest. Both teams are in their very best shape of the season, and both will battle their heads off.

Morris will probably do the hurling for Georgia, and Pitts for Tech. Each team has now sized up the other's batting, fielding and base running, and they will therefore be in better position to watch and try to checkmate every strategic move of the opposition.

A special train will be run from Atlanta over the Seaboard for to-day's game, and that means that Tech at least will have many more friends and rooters on hand to cheer them on than they had yesterday, though the number of leather-lunged supporters of the Gold and White was surprisingly large.

Yesterday's game was Tech's right from the start. Wooten was the first man up for Tech in the first inning, and the first ball he swung at felt his deadly stinger for a slam into the distant branch and was a home run. Now, the very odd thing about this is that at a mass meeting Thursday in the Tech chapel Wooten, when called upon for a speech, said that he was going to do this very thing, smash the first ball he swung at into the ditch for a home run. Can you beat it?

Scores on Wild Heave.

Then after Moore and Pitts had grounded out Montague secured a life on Clements' error. On Harrison's error Pound also reached first alive and on a throw by the pitcher to second that went out into center field, Montague took third. Then Pound stole second. Next Corley again tried to catch the runner off second and again it went on through and Montague came home. Amason got a base on balls, but Donaldson fanned and Tech took the field with a big two to her credit on the scoreboard.

In Georgia's half of the first Ginn was first up for Georgia and he promptly walked. Then he stole second, went to third on an infield out, and scored on McWhorter's long sacrifice fly to center. That ended Georgia's scoring in this inning.

Tech got no more till the fourth, when Donaldson hit safely to right field. Attridge sacrificed and on Corley's error both men were safe. On Eubanks' sharp bunt Donaldson was thrown out at third, but Wooten got to first on the shortstop's error and the bases were full. Here Corley walked Moore, forcing Attridge in. Then Pitts flied out to left and Eubanks scored on the throw-in. This made four for Tech and ended its scoring.

This lead of 4 to 1 Tech held until the seventh. Then, with one on and one down, Attridge carelessly dropped an easy infield pop and both Clements and Ginn were safe. Tech got into trouble right here, for Harrison hit safely to left and scored Clements, Ginn taking third on the throw-in. McWhorter contributed his mite by placing a long one in center, which Wooten finally pulled down, but Ginn scored on the catch, bringing Georgia's total up to 3.

Well, well, both teams went out in one-two-three order in the eighth, and so did Tech in the ninth. Then, with one Georgia man out, Clements hit safely to left. Ginn grounded to Montague and Clements was forced at second. Then Harrison slammed a stem-winder to left that looked good for a homer and with it the game.

Both Pitched Good Ball.

Both pitchers hurled superbly. Corley gave up but four hits, while Eubanks yielded six. But the latter deserved the greater credit, because he kept these six so widely scattered and because he was hurling to much heavier hitters than was Corley. Besides, the latter forced in a run, which lost Georgia the game.

But for Attridge's muff Tech would have played an errorless game, thus living up to the best of Tech traditions in playing their best ball against Georgia in Athens.

Ginn ran bases in great form for Georgia, and Hutchens, besides catching a fine game, slapped out three of Georgia's six hits. The Georgia team played a jam-up game in all respects save in the field, where their work was rather ragged.

Altogether, it was fine baseball. Today is sure to produce a game equally as good.

LAGRANGE BALL CLUB WINS ATTENDANCE TROPHY

LA GRANGE, GA., May 10.—In addition to winning yesterday's game in a sensational manner, LaGrange has also won the atendance trophy of the Georgia-Alabama League. More than 1,900 people crowded the grounds on opening day, which is by several hundred more than any other opening game of the towns in the league. The LaGrange team is now in first-class condition. All those who have been out of the game are ready to play ball, and the outlook for the team to win from now on is splendid.

STAHL LEAVES HOSPITAL.

BOSTON, May 10.—Manager Stahl, of the champion Red Sox, whose foot was operated on Monday, left the hospital to-day and with the assistance of a cane was able to make his way about town. Although Stahl expects to join the Red Sox in the West early next week and resume the active management of the club, it will be some time before his name will appear in the line-up.

FATE OF GEORGE STOVALL TO BE SETTLED SUNDAY

ST. LOUIS, May 10.—At a meeting of the directors of the St. Louis American League club here to-morrow, which will be attended by President Ban Johnson, the fate of Manager Stovall will be decided. It is also likely that some action will be taken regarding the poor umpiring with which St. Louis has been afflicted this season.

The local club is going to have something to say about the penalty for Stovall. Colonel Hedges is the majority stockholder and the meeting of the directors seems superfluous, unless the Colonel believes there is safety in numbers.

ANDERSON AND MANDOT ARE WORKING FOR BOUT

LOS ANGELES, May 10.—With the arrival from Medford, Oregon, to-day of "Bud" Anderson, and Manager Dick Donald, both principals in the next lightweight battle here, are on the ground.

Anderson, who is matched to meet Joe Mandot in a scheduled 20-round bout before the Pacific Athletic Club at Vernon on the night of May 20, will reopen his old training camp at Doyle's Vernon camp.

Mandot has been in light training for the past week. Yesterday at the Venice camp he boxed four rounds, using "Dude" Clark and "Hobo" Dougherty as sparring partners.

FURCHNER WILL FACE BILLS IN THIRD BATTLE

By Joe Agler.

Crackers' Final Baseman.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., May 10. The Crackers' new twirler, recently secured from Manager Finn, will make his debut against the Billikens in the third game this afternoon.

Manager Bill Smith is hard up for a pitcher and has decided to give his new hurler a chance. We have been getting some awful pitching while on this trip, all the boys being way off form.

Weaver was sent home, to Atlanta, after yesterday's game to rest his sore arm. Buck has not been right since way early in the season, and Smith has decided to give him a rest until the sore member is again ready for use.

The Crackers hope to cop the two remaining games, and with any kind of pitching should annex both battles on the right side of the ledger.

Whitey Alperman was the swatting king for Atlanta yesterday. Whitey pounded out three safe drives. Donahue secured two two-baggers for the Billikens. The final score was: Billikens, 10; Crackers, 2.

Bill Bailey's foot is getting along nicely, and he will be in the game against Memphis, if not sooner. Chappelle was in uniform yesterday, and says he will win many games for us. The boys are all pulling for Bailey to return, as we certainly are missing his trustworthy stick.

MOTORCYCLE STARS WILL RACE AT PRINCE'S TRACK

Jack Prince, owner of the new motordrome being built here, stated last night that twelve of the speediest riders on the coast are now on their way to Atlanta to compete in the first night's races here. Prince expects to hold the first series of races around the twentieth of this month.

Montey, Graves, Henry Lewis, S. A. Shields and Ed Hannon are among these who will appear here.

Inquiries have also come to Prince from Birmingham, Columbus, Ga., and other nearby cities from various riders, who are seeking information concerning the races.

TALBOTTON BEATS BUTLER.

TALBOTTON, GA., May 10.—The Talbotton boys defeated Butler here yesterday to the tune of 12 to 10. Ray Burt did the box work for Talbotton, while Chapman, for Butler, was knocked all over the field.

FOOD FOR SPORT FANS

By GEORGE E. PHAIR.

B. NELSON.

He fought and he fought and he fought,
That Dane with the yellowish hair.
He never knew how, with his yellow-haired brow,
But he fought all his fights on the square.
He fought like the fighter he was,
He took all the wallops that came;
But the son of a gun, when the fighting was done,
You will have to admit he was game.
He bought a seat a mile away
And laid down fifty cents.

Frank Chance is on the sick list again, but watching those Yanks in the act of perpetrating baseball is enough to make any manager sick.

We presume that baseball writers in New York have other duties aside from their daily task of trading Hal Chase.

The terrific rate at which the Pirates have been dropping has created grave fear lest the bottom be knocked out of the league.

Bonehead plays are not confined entirely to the baseball yard. For instance, there is the severe reprimand handed to Ty Cobb by the national commission.

The only conclusion to be drawn is that national commission is totally devoid of a sense of humor. Otherwise it could not refrain from laughing itself.

ROUGH HOUSE MERCHANTS.

A sack of peanuts now and then
Is relished by the best of men,
But not when peddlers block the view
And plant their feet all over you.

Mr. F. Chance is beginning to realize that it is hard to be a Peerless Leader unless there is something to lead.

In other words, Mr. Chance threatens to burst into the archives of baseball as the teamless Leader.

One is glad to hear from Ban Johnson that the American League will not tolerate roughneck conduct. One is thereby led to expect that peanut peddlers will be expunged from the grand stand.

Scientists tell us that a hole driven straight through the earth will land in China. If Frank Chance does not have a care he may become a Chinaman.

Rube Waddell is said to be broke, which financial conditions is about two bits less than usual.

Nevertheless, there are kind words to be said about the Federal League. It never will be known as a gret-rich-quick scheme.

Possibly we are mistaken, but John McGraw once hired a youth known as Jim Thorpe.

From now on it will be hard to blame George Stovall if he develops a grouch against spitball pitchers.

Still, the penalty might not have been so strong if the Browns had not been playing too strong for the good of the league.

If Tyrus Cobb had been guilty of the same stunt he might have been given three slaps on the wrist and fined $50, which the club would have paid—again.

The difference between expectorating on an umpire and spiking an innocent bystander is merely the difference as a drawing card between the expectorator and the roughneck.

If Jimmy Clabby and Eddie McGoorty were to pull off one of their terrific battles before the Legislature, said Legislature would decide that pugilism is almost as dangerous as crokinole.

There seems to be a conspiracy among American League pitchers, in restraint of the athletes alleged to be working for F. Chance.

Ed Konetchy's pitching stunt ought to put a lot of our athletes to shame. Some of said athletes can't play one position.

Looking at it from a fair and impartial standpoint, we are willing to lay one (1) dollar that Reuben Marquard will not win nineteen straight games this season. In fact, when Mr. Marquard wins a game it is a winning streak.

One is willing to admit for the sake of argument that Luther McCarty is the best of our white heavyweights. A milk man's horse looks speedy among a flock of hitching posts.

Jake Stahl is troubled with a bone in his foot. These tidings will cause Ping Bodie to wonder whether the world is turned upside down.

A WAIL.

There was a man in our town
And he was wondrous dense.

Ten Point Picked to Win Kentucky Derby

LOUISVILLE, KY., May 10.—This city to-day is alive with race enthusiasts. Thousands are already in town and each incoming train adds more to the throng. This is Derby Day here, the thirty-ninth running of the Kentucky blue ribbon event. The field will bring together some of the best racers in the country. Though a round dozen have been named to go in the big race to-day, it is doubtful if more than five face the barrier. Possibly six may start, and if the track is fast it is freely predicted that the record of 2:05 by Meridian will fall.

J. W. Schorr, the Memphis turfman, is scanning the skies thoughtfully. If it rains his great gelding, Leochares, will go to the post, and Foundation and possibly Ten Point will be scratched, leaving the Tennessee gelding a splendid chance of winning. If the track remains fast, Leochares, Gowell, Floral Park, Flying Tom, Lord Marshall, Donerail and possibly Sam Hirsch will remain in their stalls.

Despite the fact that Hawthorne and Helios, the two winter favorites in the big race, will not go to the post, there is sure to be a great race among the three choices—Ten Point, Foundation and Yankee Notions.

Ten Point is quoted at 8 to 5; Foundation, 3 to 1; Prince Hermis, 5 to 1; Lord Marshall, 8 to 1, and Donerail, 10 to 1, in the early morning betting.

No-Rim-Cut Tires 10% Oversize

Oversize Means This

Ten per cent extra air capacity over hooked-base clincher tires.

It means the same as extra width, which costs you extra money. It means, on the average, 25 per cent more mileage.

No-Rim-Cut tires, with this 10 per cent oversize, cost no more than clinchers.

More Than 10%

The oversize of No-Rim-Cut tires is more than 10 per cent.

Actual comparison with six makes of clinchers shows the average oversize 16.7 per cent.

That means that you get in No-Rim-Cut tires about one-sixth more air capacity than you get in clinchers. And air is what carries the load.

You get this extra without extra cost. For No-Rim-Cut tires now cost the same as standard clincher tires.

Statistics show that 23 per cent of all clincher tires become rim-cut.

Those are the reasons why clincher tires must go. Men will not stand this rim-cut ruin when a new-type tire prevents it.

Men are bound to demand an oversize tire when they know what it adds to their tire mileage.

When you know these tires, as legions do, you will never buy any others. Come let us show them to you.

Then Add This

By Tick Tichenor.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., May 10.—The winner of the invitation tournament of the Country Club of Birmingham will be a member of the home club, as they eliminated every visitor yesterday.

In the first flight there were thirteen Birmingham players and three from Atlanta. In the morning round J. H. Doughty disposed of Captain E. T. Winston, while W. P. Ward beat W. R. Tichenor, and Rollo Steinmehl beat Lowry Arnold.

Steinmehl is just 14 years of age, but he is even now a fine tournament player. In his match with W. P. Ward in the afternoon both were out in 36, and Ward had him two down and three to play, but he evened the match on the eighteenth green and finally won on the twenty-first hole. George Oliver had to go 20 holes in the morning to win from V. Q. Prowell. In the afternoon he was defeated by Herbert Tutwiler.

H. C. Wood and Rollo Steinmehl meet in the semi-final, as do J. H. Doughty and H. Tutwiler, of the first flight.

* * *

ON the second flight George Adair meets C. E. Foust and F. G. Byrd plays B. Throckmorton in the semi-final. In the third flight two Atlanta men met in the first round—C. J. Holditch and Dowdell Brown—Holditch winning 7 up and 6 to play. The semi-final matches of the fourth flight were between R. P. Jones and Sanborn Smith, and A. M. Post and R. H. Baugh. In the fifth flight Dr. Frank Holland is one of the semi-finalists.

C. E. Corwin and W. R. Tichenor are in the semi-final in the junior division of the third and first flights.

* * *

THE results of the matches were:

First Flight—First Round: George. C. Oliver beat V. Q. Prowell 1 up in 20 holes; Herbert Tutwiler beat E. L. Brown 1 up; J. H. Doughty beat E. T. Winston 3-2; S. J. Cullum beat T. J. Watson 1 up 19 holes; W. P. Ward beat W. R Tichenor 5-4; Rollo Steinmehl beat L. Arnold 5-4; H. C. Wood beat Frank Hewitt 2 up; Arch Henderson won from F. C. Stahlman by default.

Second Round: H. Tutwiler beat G. C. Oliver 2-1; J. H. Doughty beat S. Cullum 5-4; Rollo Steinmehl beat W. P. Ward 1 up in 22 holes; H. C. Wood beat H. Henderson 2 up.

* * *

JUNIOR Division, First Flight.—E. T. Brown beat V. O. Prowell 5-4; T. J. Watson won from E. T. Winston by default; W. R. Tichenor beat I. Arnold 1 up; Frank Hewitt won from F. C. Stahlman by default.

* * *

SECOND FLIGHT—B. Throckmorton won from R. H. Thach 4-3; E. D. Crawford beat E. E. Ellis 3-2; R. T. Brooke beat J. S. Turner 7-5; F. G. Byrd beat T. Seibles 3-1; Ted Coy beat John Kimball 3-1; G. W. Adair beat W. E. Collier 2 up; S. Probasco beat George Macon 5-4; C. E. Faust beat D. Roberts 3-1.

Second Round.—B. Throckmorton beat E. Crawford 3-2; F. G. Byrd beat R. T. Brooke 4-2; G. W. Adair beat Ted Coy 1 up; C. E. Foust beat S. Probasco 1 up.

* * *

JUNIOR Division, Second Flight.—R. H. Thach beat E. Ellis 5-4; T. Seibles beat J. S. Tanner 2-1; John Kimball beat W. E. Collier 4-3; G. Macon beat D. Roberts 5-4.

* * *

THIRD FLIGHT.—Hampton Smith beat C. E. Corwin 4-3; Webb Offutt beat George C. Whatley 1 up; G. Martin beat L. C. Howard 4-3; Nash Read beat J. L. Bibb 2-1; E. M. Tutwiler beat J. B. Cobbs, 4-3; R. H. Gilbert beat George Watkins, 1 up; C. J. Holditch beat Dowdell Brown, 7-6; H. G. Seibles won from T. I. Webb, by default.

Second Round—Webb Offutt beat Hampton Smith, 1 up; W. Nash Read beat G. Martin, 6-4; R. H. Gilbert beat E. M. Tutwiler, 4-2; H. S. Seibles beat C. J. Holditch, 3-2.

Junior Division, Third Flight—C. E. Corwin beat G. C. Wheatley, 1 up, 19 holes; J. S. Bibb won from S. C. Howard, by default; D. Brown won by default.

Nelson's Mgr. Praises McCarty

Says Luther Is Best Heavyweight

By Ed W. Smith

CHICAGO, May 10.—Not being swayed by any prejudices of section, color or previous condition, we should figure John Robinson, Bat Nelson's hustling manager, in a fine position to judge of the merits of a fighter, big or little, and when John says that Luther McCarty is the real thing in the heavyweight division we are inclined to think that John's opinion is worth considerably more than mere passing mention. Robinson was in New York the other evening when Luther lambasted Frank Moran, the Pittsburg heavyweight, for ten sharp rounds, and he got an excellent line on Luther's ring work. John's opinion is all the more valuable since he isn't friendly with Billy McCarney, Luther's manager, and hasn't been for some time.

* * *

JOHN isn't exactly "all smoked up" over Luther, but he figures him to be easily the best of the white heavyweights of the day, says his record proves it and sincerely believes that the future of a year or so will demonstrate it beyond the shadow of a doubt. Listen to some of John's chatter about the big man from Nebraska: "We had been told for months that Frank Moran was one of the very best of the latest crop of big fellows, and the Eastern friends of Dan McKetrick, who manages him, believed it. Naturally after being matched with McCarty his work was watched with the closest attention.

* * *

"NOW comes one of the interesting parts of the whole tale. After McCarty had bested Moran, and had done the job up beautifully, as I thought, he didn't get a bit of credit. He was scolded and nagged for not actually disposing of Moran more decisively, and that, too, in the face of previous boosts to the effect that Moran was one of the very best of them all. Not a bit of consistency to that line of work. If Moran was one of the best, then McCarty, after beating him, must naturally be one of the very best. Catch the line of reasoning?

* * *

"TO my way of doping it out, McCarty is a man who needs a lot of actual fighting to keep him fit. He is a lazy big fellow and inclined to slow down if he isn't punched continually. He couldn't have been at his best with Moran for that reason, because he had been idle for some little time previous to that encounter. I watched the battle carefully and in common with many others at the ringside tried to pick the flaws in this big fellow's work. I couldn't find many. Of course he is still a bit unpolished, but take it from me, he is picking up the inside stuff rapidly and is getting better every time he works.

* * *

"DURING the tenth round I saw him pull a Kid McCoy trick that enlightened me more than anything about him. Joe Jeannette, who was handling Moran, seeing the hopelessness of the cause, sent Frank out to do and die. Frank sailed in and slammed away like a threshing machine with both arms going wildly. Luther would have been a cherry ripe sucker to have mixed with him right there. Instead, he stepped in close and let go with his right exactly onto Moran's waist line. The punch didn't travel a foot, but it sunk in and instantly Moran was slowed down to a walk. I doubt if a dozen people in the crowd saw the punch or realized its importance. But Moran did. It was exactly the right thing at the right time and convinced me fully himself in any kind of company." that Luther will be able to care for

* * *

IT will not be long now before we find out what good Tom Jones has been able to accomplish with Jess Willard. Around here we figured that the chief fault with the fat man from Kansas was his disinclination to get out in the morning and do road work. Jones saw the point instantly and announced that if he got to handling Jess he would show him the error of his ways. He will get the test the middle of this month, when he slams into and is himself slammed into by Gunboat Smith, one of the toughest of the real tough trial horses of the day. It should be a grand old battle.

GIANTS-WHITE SOX WORLD TOUR IS NOW A CERTAINTY

CHICAGO, May 10.—John J. McGraw, of the New York Giants, clinched the round-the-world baseball tour which two big league teams, made up wholly or partly of Giants and White Sox, are to make next fall and winter by signing the contract in New York last night. It had previously been signed by President Comiskey, of the White Sox.

The trip will be on a bigger scale than the famous baseball tour of 1888, and may carry 75 or 100 persons. Tentative plans have it that the teams will leave Chicago about October 15 and play games in the South and West until they reach Vancouver.

They will sail from Vancouver on November 5. Japan will be reached on November 15, and a stay made in the Nippon Realm of six or eight days. Then Manila, Australia, Italy, Egypt and all European countries will be visited.

MURPHY AND HERRMANN ROW OVER RELEASED PLAYER

CHICAGO, May 10.—A little row between Prexies Murphy, of the Cubs, and Garry Herrmann, of the Reds, is enlivening the diamond atmosphere. Maniager John Evers is cutting his team down to the limit recently sent Knisley and McDonald to the Birmingham club in the Southern Association. When the Cubs traded Joe Tinker to Cincinnati, Knisley was included in the deal and Herrmann claims to have made a verbal agreement with Murphy, whereby Knisley was to be returned to the Reds if the Cubs could not use him.

CLEMSON WALLOPS AUBURN IN SECOND BATTLE, 18-4

AUBURN, ALA., May 10.—Clemson won the second game of the series from Auburn here yesterday, 18 to 4. The visitors got off with a good lead, due to Locke's, wildness, and Driver, who relieved him, was hit hard during the balance of the game. The series is now even, and the deciding game will be played today, with Ezell on the mound for Clemson and Davis twirling for Auburn.

CALLAHAN REINSTATED.

NEW YORK, May 10.—The State Boxing Commission has reinstated Paddy Callahan, who was suspended March 19 for fouling Joe Coster.

BASEBALL

Diamond News and Gossip

The Reds got an even break in their series with the Glants, and if they continue to play the same kind of ball they did in Gotham town it'll be only a short time before they climb out of the National League cellar.

* * *

The suspension of Stovall has weakened the playing strength of the Browns fifty 20 per cent, and the Naps and White Sox are moaning because the Eastern aggregations will have an easy time trouncing the St. Louis boys.

* * *

But even without Stovall the Browns can grab off an occasional victory. They fractured the winning streak of the Athletics yesterday, driving Pitcher Houck to the cooling shed in the first round.

* * *

Luderus, the Phillies' first sacker, after going hitless for nearly a week, cracked out a homer yesterday, which enabled his team to romp home a winner over the fast-traveling Cardinals.

* * *

The Dodgers walloped the Cubs again yesterday, sliding into second place, and are only a few points behind the leading Phillies.

* * *

Too bad the Yankees can't play against the Tigers all the season. They'd emerge near the top of the American League in October if they did.

* * *

The Red Sox may win the pennant again this year, but it will require some mighty humping. The Boston boys are over 400 points behind the flying Athletics and no club can spot the Quakertown athletes eight full games and expect to have an easy over-hauling job.

* * *

Only those who have been swatted with a crowbar can appreciate the feelings of the Pirate fans when they lamped the score boards yesterday and discovered that the lowly Boston Braves have trimmed the Pirates for the fourth successive time.

* * *

The White Sox bumped the Senators again yesterday, but Walter Johnson is due to do the flinging to-day for the Washington Athletes and perhaps there will be a different story to tell by nightfall.

* * *

Johnson, by the way, may establish a new pitching record if he goes into the box to-day. The record for consecutive scoreless innings is 45, established some years ago by "Doc" White, of the White Sox. Johnson already has pitched 42 2-3 scoreless innings.

* * *

Four decisions were rendered on one play by the umpires in the Brown-Athletics game yesterday. Ferguson called Oldring out at first and then declared him safe when Brief, the Browns' first sacker, fell. The Browns rushed up to Umpire O'Loughlin, who declared Oldring out, whereupon the Athletics ran over to Ferguson, made a roar and Ferguson again declared Oldring safe. Then play resumed.

* * *

The Red Sox polished up their batting orbs yesterday, pounded out 13 hits and beat the Naps 3 to 1, it being their first victory on the Western swing.

* * *

And now will C. Webb Murphy please issue forth and perform a little volplaning stunt from the most heavenward point of the Brooklyn grandstand? The Chicago gentleman said he'd make the 100-foot leap if the Dodgers took a series from the Cubs. The Dodgers have not turned the trick.

Mister Murphy, where art thou?

* * *

This is "Johny Evers Day" at the Polo grounds, and hundreds of rooters from Troy, N. Y., the home town of the Cubs' manager, went to New York on a special train to witness the first clash of the season between the Giants and the scrappy Chicagoans.

MARIST FIRST IN TRACK MEET; TECH SECOND

MARIST College won the annual Atlanta prep track meet Friday at Marist field with a total of 52 1-3 points. Marist was especially strong in the distance runs and the dashes. Three teams were entered in the meet—Marist, Tech High and G. M. A. Tech High was second with a total of 25 1-3 points, while G. M. A. brought up the rear with 12 1-3.

* * *

Lewis, of Marist, was the highest individual point winner with 16 points to his credit. He won the last event of the day, the quarter mile dash, which put him 1 point ahead of Fowler.

John Roberts, of Marist, was the only winner to break a local prep record. Roberts in the pole vault cleared the bar at 9 feet 6 inches. Meyers, of Tech High, was second in this event and also beat the former record. Meyers made 9 feet 4 and just barely missed the next height. Smith, of G. M. A., and Bedell, of Tech High, were tied with 10 points apiece for third highest point winner. Smith had things his own way in the broad and high jumps.

Charlie Allen must have had a grudge against Fowler. In the quarter mile run Allen was easily leading, but held back toward the finish in order to let his teammate, Lewis, who was running second, pass him. This gave Lewis a total of 16 points, just one more than Fowler had.

EVERS PLANS TO CONVERT ARCHER INTO FIRST SACKER

NEW YORK, May 10.—Johnny Evers, manager of the Cubs, who are playing a series with Brooklyn, today was quoted as saying that he would try to convert Jimmy Archer, one of the best catchers in the game, into a first baseman. Saier has not been entirely satisfactory to Evers as a first baseman, while Archer has shone as a fielding star at that point.

BRANDT OUTPOINTS HUFNAGLE.

KEARNS STOPS DAVIS.

PREP LEAGUE NOTES

Saturday morning and afternoon a monster track meet will be held at Ponce DeLeon Park by the Public Grammar Schools of Atlanta.

* * *

Both boys and girls are entered in the meet and three prizes are offered in each event. The morning exercises will commence at 9 o'clock and end at noon. The afternoon events will be finished at 5 o'clock. Moving picture men will be on hand to get some views of the drills and races.

* * *

The cadets of G. M. A. are at present encamped at Lakewood and are having a very enjoyable time. Friday they had a dress parade, which was attended by Governor and Mrs. Brown.

* * *

Emory College will meet Mercer at Macon Saturday in a dual track and field meet. Wilbur Carlton, the man who made such a wonderful showing in the inter-class meet at Emory a short time ago, is expected to win the greatest number of points for Emory. He is entered in seven events.

* * *

This meet is the first inter-collegiate contest that Emory has participated in for a number of years and a great deal of interest is being shown by the students of the school. It is barely possible that Emory will have inter-collegiate athletics in the near future, as the students and alumni of the school are working hard for it.

* * *

Prof. Alexander, of Tech, is considering a plan to enter a team picked from Tech students attending the summer school in the local city league this summer. "Aleck" says that many of the best players in school attend the summer session and a good team could be organized.

* * *

A few short weeks and the Prep baseball season will be a thing of the past. Boys' High appears to have the honors cinched this year. If they win it will be the first time in three years. The last two seasons Boys' High has finished second in the race.

* * *

The 100-yard dash in the Prep. meet Friday was the closest race seen in a long time. Allen and Lewis, of Marist, were first and second, but Bedell, of Tech High, was right on their heels.

* * *

Fowler, of Marist, showed up mighty well in the meet Friday. He won three firsts—the hammer, mile and half-mile runs. A new Prep. record was made in the pole vault by John Roberts, of Marist. He cleared the bar at 9 feet 6 inches.

* * *

Jim Lowery, of Marist, has been shifted from first to catcher. He was a good first sacker, but had to be sacrificed on account of lack of a backstop. He will no doubt be placed at first base on the all-prep selection this year.

* * *

Sam Armistead, the Boys High catcher, got four hits in the game with Marist Wednesday. Sam is now leading the Prep League batters with an average of over .400. He is catching a good game at present and not a man stole a base on him Wednesday.

* * *

Riverside has first place tied up in a bag in the G. I. A. A. pennant race, but the real fight is for second place between Gordon, G. M. C. and Stone Mountain.

* * *

Gordon and G. M. C. met in a double-header last week which resulted in a game each. Both are anxious to win two straight this time. Gordon is playing on the home grounds and will not take another road trip this season.

* * *

Tech High and Boys High will play again next week. If the Culverites win they still have a slim chance to cop the pennant. The defeat by Peacock was a great blow to the Tech High bunch.

NEW YORK, May 10.—Mike Gibbons, of St. Paul, has just signed a contract for a fight here on May 16 with Tommy Connors, of Scranton, Pa.

FAMOUS PENN DIRECTOR IN SERIOUS CONDITION

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—Mike Murphy, one of the world's most famous trainers of athletes, and now director of athletics at the University of Pennsylvania, is thought to be dying at his home here. To-day the attending physicians reported that Murphy was sinking fast and that he had lost control of his faculties.

For several years Murphy has been afflicted with tuberculosis, but has refused to remain in the West, returning each fall and spring to coach the college teams.

A Bachelor's Diary

By MAX.

MARCH 25.—I had thought constantly this morning of our evening with the widow at the station last night; of Jack Spencer's evident infatuation; of the way in which he monopolized her, and the possessive manner in which he took her to the train, though I had hoped to have that privilege; of Sally Spencer's only half-concealed distress, and of the widow's triumphant look when she left us.

She is an unscrupulous woman. So many women who are fascinating are, and she holds a grudge against Mrs. Spencer because of the efforts Sally made last winter to prevent me from marrying.

All this made me uneasy, and knowing Jack to be weak, just as I am weak and just as all men are weak, I felt an apprehension that was almost womanish. I was not surprised during the morning to get a telephone message from Mrs. Spencer to come over for a little "plain talk," she said, and it was with a decided feeling of relief that I assented.

He Walked In.

With the privilege granted an old friend I did not stop to knock when I reached Mrs. Spencer's door, but walked in unannounced, making my way to a certain little sunny sitting room where she always spent her mornings making up her household accounts, sewing, writing letters and engaged in similar little tasks which take up so much of a methodical woman's time, and which we men neither can comprehend nor appreciate.

She had been engaged in running a ribbon through some dainty lace-trimmed garment, but it had fallen unnoticed to the floor beside her, and with her hands lying idly on her lap she was gazing intently through the window.

I stepped behind her and looked over her head to see what so engrossed her. The window commanded a view of my back lawn and the picture at which she gazed was so pretty I did not wonder at her absorption. Richards had placed a little table on the lawn, and Manette was giving a dinner party, with Sarah Rae Hartman, four dolls, the brown-eyed pup and two kittens as her guests. The dolls were sitting bolt upright in their chairs with faces so lacking in expression that they looked like real society ladies; the two kittens on one side, not so well bred, were lapping cream from tiny saucers on the table, and the pup, on the opposite side, was barking so fiercely it became necessary for Manette to pause while feeding a doll on her lap to pacify him by sticking a cake in his mouth. His anger at the kittens, plainly because of their ill-breeding, could not be choked off by cake, and we looked and he gave one bound across the table, the kittens fled without asking to be excused, and sought shelter up the nearest tree with the pup at their heels.

I am proud of Manette for many things, and one is that she seldom cries. With her tea table upset and her tea party broken up, she did not give a howl like most babies, but dropped the doll baby and ran after the pup. Tompkins caught him before he had caught the kittens and restored him to Manette's arms, who punished him by putting him to bed in a doll buggy. There he lay, with his head on a pillow, his brown eyes making a plea for pardon and his pink tongue hanging out.

She Weeps.

"Does life offer any greater pleasure than that?" I said to Mrs. Spencer when she had turned around and found me there. Then I noticed that her eyes were filled with tears.

"Max," she said, drawing up a chair for me, "that," looking to where Manette was tying a doll bonnet on the pup's head, preparatory to taking him for a ride, "is all there is in life worth while. The love men and women have for each other is only a means to happiness, and that is never attained unless there is a child.

"Your home, though you are a bachelor, is happier than mine because of the presence of a child. I tell you, Max, you don't know how well off you are."

"But," I argued, feeling that in some indefinable way I was put on the defensive, "there are lonesome moments even when there is a child. I am a man grown with all a man's longing for the companionship of his peers, and baby talk does not satisfy me. I get down to Manette's size every hour in the day, and when evening comes and she has gone to bed I long for the companionship of one who talks my own language. And," growing more emphatic because of the look of disapproval in her eyes, "it is a longing that the society of men doesn't satisfy, and as good and patient as you and Jack are with me, letting me come over here every evening to forget my loneliness, it is a craving that even the companionship of two such good friends can't gratify. Oh, Sally, you are a woman, and a woman never understands!"

A Suggestion.

"No," she said sadly, "a woman never understands. And a man never understands either, and here we are, tied together for life, and neither understanding the other. It is a wonder we are as happy as we are. You have no wife to 'understand' you," a little sarcastically, "and I have a husband who doesn't 'understand' me, but you have a child, and are better off than I."

"If you feel that way about it, why don't you adopt one? There's Sarah Rae, for instance. I have an idea her parents would be glad to give her away."

She paid no heed to what I had said, but gazed out of the window with her mind so far away that her eyes took no note of the efforts Sarah Rae was making to hold the pup in the doll buggy while Manette dragged it back and forth on the garden path.

She turned toward me very suddenly. "What is Mrs. Brown's address?"

"But why—" I stammered.

"I intend to ask her here to spend a week," she replied.

"Sally," I said, "you are mad. If Jack is infatuated with the widow, why do you want to make his infatuation worse? She is gone. He will never see her again, and why, for the Lord's sake, give him a chance to play with fire by having her here?"

"You say a woman never understands. You are wrong; it is your sex that is stupid."

"But—" I began. Then I decided it was no use. There is never any use of arguing with a woman, so I pulled a notebook out of my pocket, copied Mrs. Brown's address on a card I found on the table, and handed it to her without a word.

"By the way," as if she had almost forgotten it; "Margaret Hill is coming also."

Margaret Hill! The girl I asked to be my wife, but who refused me when she learned there was a breach of promise suit pending against me. The good little Puritan, who was so good she was too good! I am sure my face showed my surprise.

A Bitter Cry.

"I tried to tell you at the station last night," she continued, "but you were so absorbed in the coming of the widow you refused to hear me."

"Max," abruptly changing the subject, "is a man's love ever won for all time? I won Jack Spencer's love when I was a girl twenty years ago, and I have been engaged in trying to keep it won ever since. I sometimes wonder"—a little bitterly—"if the love of a husband is worth the struggle a woman must make to hold it. It is fight, fight, fight, all the time; a fight to retain my personal charms, a fight to keep him interested, a fight to forget myself in satisfying every longing he may have, physical, mental or spiritual; a fight to give him just so much of myself that he will never know satiety and will always want more; a fight to keep him from the clutches of that Other Woman, always standing like a threatening phantom in the background; and then, when I have his love, what do I possess? Something about as lasting as a soap bubble, and never worth the price!"

"Look here, Sally Spencer," I said in real alarm, for this was so unlike her, "you are getting morbid, and I won't stand for it. Come with me," drawing her from her chair, and leading her to the door.

Five minutes later we were highly honored guests at the table of Sarah Rae, who was hostess this time, each holding a kitten and a doll as a special mark of honor.

But is that so, Diary, what she said about the love of man?

BEAUTY SECRETS OF BEAUTIFUL WOMEN

Effie Shannon Tells Why Twenty-five Years of Work Has Only Made Her Younger

By LILLIAN LAUFFERTY.

THE "Everybody's Doing It" of today is—trying to look young. Powder, pencil, patches, paint—art and artifice—these are the methods most of us accept; and these methods are all wrong; they "gild the surface" and scarcely deceive the most casual observer.

But there is a way to be so young and charming in spirit that the years creep on as friends, rather than enemies. There is a secret of eternal youth—and Effie Shannon knows it.

After a quarter of a century on the stage, Effie Shannon stands before us, slender, vibrant with life, magnetic and lovely, with the beauty of a clean-cut cameo. DELICATE, DAINTY EFFIE SHANNON HAS BEEN A WORKER FOR TWENTY-FIVE YEARS. Think of that, you little girls who fret lest your days of toil cheat you of youth and make you old before you have crossed life's threshold!

As the curtain falls on the evening-hushed rose garden in "Years of Discretion" at the Belasco Theater, Miss Shannon is happily echoing her lover-husband's, "It is wonderful to be old." IT IS WONDERFUL TO BE OLD, IF YOU HAVE THE INNER SPIRIT OF ETERNAL YOUTH—like Effie, of the play, and the charming woman who portrays her.

In the close intimacy of the dressing room, Miss Shannon is absolutely fresh and untouched by time, and yet she calmly said: "I am glad I am not young any more. Think of all the experience—the richness and fullness of life that I know. Think how high my spirit has fed. Do you think I'd give any of it—any line on my face—and retrace the years, and have a pretty mask with no background of life and feeling?

"Then to you true beauty is expression, is it not?" I asked.

Beauty Is Expression.

"Yes; true beauty IS expression—and to acquire beauty or to accent it, a woman must have imagination and sympathy.

"I never can sufficiently emphasize imagination and sympathy. Cultivate them—they are a woman's greatest friends. They give a deeper meaning to loveliness, and they veil plainness.

"Imagination means dreaming—seeing deep into life and interpreting it. Sympathy means being in tune with all of it.

"And as the years pass, a woman becomes more and more capable of them. So why should not a woman who cultivates these qualities become lovelier with the years?"

"We must cultivate our garden. Do you remember that quotation? You seem to live it," I said.

Her lovely illuminating smile lit Miss Shannon's face. "I do remember—'The Beloved Vagabond' said it—and women who value their great gift, beauty, must cultivate the flowers of imagination and sympathy in the garden of mind and soul. And live! Live life in fullness. Remember you are an individual—a separate soul and learn to be your true self. Don't you think that will insure a beautiful expression—deep, tender eyes, a sweet mouth and a happy soul to illuminate the face?" asked the charming star earnestly.

Beware of Fat.

"I do, indeed," I replied. "We all must cultivate our gardens. But how about uprooting the weeds—fat for instance?"

"Fat is a noxious weed," laughed Miss Shannon. "Girls must never get fat if they want to be beautiful. People do eat too much in New York—in all the big cities where dinners and teas at home or in the restaurants are occasions. Beware of too much or too rich food!

"I will tell you how simply I live. Breakfast: Tea, toast and a bit of fruit. Luncheon—nothing. Not a bite. Dinner I have at five every day—and it is a very simple meal. After the play I have a simple supper, too, if I am hungry. One needs to see people to keep in touch with life—to have moments of gayety and absolute self-forgetfulness—to be with friends. After the play happens to be my free time. So I go to simple little suppers and enjoy them.

"Food is not the only practical consideration in connection with keeping thin. A very important one is: DON'T TAKE NAPS. Those little afternoon sleepy times are dangerously fattening—and life is too short to sleep away. Keep busy—keep doing things, and you will grow in strength, but not in beauty-destroying pounds."

"Suppose all else failed to give you the modern 'straight silhouette,' would you wear painfully tight clothes and shoes as you do in the play in order to be young and alluring," I asked?

"NO!" said the graceful star emphatically. "Who could be charming with tight shoes on? TIGHT SHOES TORTURE YOUR MIND AS WELL AS YOUR FEET. And five pairs of garters' strapping you down firmly—you could not feel in tune with life—you would feel only pain—in this world full of beauty you would be conscious only of a body painfully striving for fashionable contours. Good corsets, shoes that fit, suitable clothes, they will, when properly adjusted and selected, help you give the impression of youth. But they are the lesser aids.

"Youth is a matter of spirit and feeling, you know. Feel young; think young eager thoughts; love life in its fullness of work and play and joy and sorrow.

"But to be beautiful, you must be young in spirit—not in years. TIME AND EXPERIENCE AND FEELING MUST CHISEL A FACE TO MAKE IT REALLY BEAUTIFUL; THE SPIRIT OF KNOWLEDGE MUST ILLUMINATE BEAUTY TO MAKE IT LOVELY AND PERMANENTLY ATTRACTIVE.

"Express your own true self always better and better—and then it is 'wonderful to be old'—for your spirit will be gloriously young, and your SPIRIT WILL MAKE YOU GLOW WITH THE FIRES OF ETERNAL YOUTH."

And as Miss Shannon's voice, vibrant with imagination and sympathy, alight with feeling, and truly expressive of her own rare self, brought me her message, I knew I had heard a vital truth. Youth is deeper than powder and paint and clothes—Youth is Soul.

"BE SURE TO BURN LOVE LETTERS"

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

DON'T keep love letters.

Unless you are receiving them from your own wife or husband or your fiance, you might better keep a box of dynamite in your kitchen or introduce an infernal machine into your household than to guard a package of love letters.

Let them perish in their own fires as soon as absorbed by the eye and heart.

If your engagement is broken, even though one or both swear never to marry, nevertheless it is worse than folly to keep the letters exchanged during the existence of tender relations.

Fate plays such strange pranks with us all. Your lover may some day be President of the United States, or your sweetheart the wife of a great celebrity, and unnecessary pain and annoyance ensue from the unearthing of those old letters by some accident.

Burn them, I say, burn them!

VERY FOOLISH.

IT is one thing to have your husband or wife tell you of an early rehearsal of Cupid's drama before you met. It is another to encounter the love letters written during that period—which seem to your exacting heart more realistic than the role you have been engaged to play for life.

Sometimes a sensible moral being is suddenly swept off his feet by a tidal wave of passion.

Sometimes he is safely landed on shore by a happy turn of the wind or by the life-saving crew of Providence.

He hides his bruises, and no one knows of his brief disaster—unless he carries about with him the incriminating letter.

Oh, the folly of it!

BURN THEM ALL.

IT is no easy task, however, to burn or destroy, a letter that is dear to you. A genuine love letter breathes the very fragrance of the writer's soul. Who capable of understanding the grand passion has not felt the keen sense of pleasure that was twin to pain at the sight of the beloved one's handwriting? Where is the man or woman so stolid or commonplace who has not at some time kissed the page whereon a dear hand has rested and then hidden it near the heart whose accelerated throbs welcomed its approach?

And who of deep feeling and wide experience has not at some time felt his own heart scorching with the parcel of letters he tossed upon the coals?

But human hearts have a Phoenix-like propensity for rising from their own ashes, strong with new life and capable of new emotions. Let there be no accusing records of the old.

Let the dead bury its dead.

However it hurts, whatever it costs, burn your love letters.

An Eye to Business

"Prisoner at the bar," declaimed the learned Judge, "your offense is of such a nature that, if you plead guilty, I will let you off with a fine."

"Pardon me," and the prisoner's counsel popped suddenly up from his seat. "Before we plead guilty, it will be necessary for us to know exactly how much the fine will be."

"But this is unprecedented, sir!" exclaimed the Judge warmly. "You can not bargain with the Court."

"Well, it may be a little unusual, Your Honor," replied the lawyer, "but I am sure, when you learn the full circumstances of the case, you will entirely agree to my proposition. You see, the prisoner is in the possession of $60; my fee is $50, and so we cannot afford to plead guilty if you insist on fining him more than $10."

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"I knew her the instant I entered the house; and, remembering the Chanticler dress with its fowl's-foot boots, I guessed at once what those marks would prove to be when I came to investigate them. She must have stamped on the ground with all her might, to sink the marks in so deeply—but she meant to make sure of the claws and the exaggerated scales on the toes leaving their imprint. I was certain we should find that dress and those boots among her effects; and—Mr. Narkom did. What I wrote on that pretended telegram was for him to slip away into the house proper and search every trunk and cupboard for them.

"What's that? No, I don't think they really had any idea of incriminating Sir Roger Droger. That thought came into the fellow's mind when you stepped out and caught him stealing away after the murder had been committed. No doubt he, like you, had seen Sir Ralph practicing for the sports, and he simply made capital of it.

"The main idea was to kill his father and to destroy the will; and, of course, when it became apparent that the old gentleman had died intestate, even a discarded son must inherit. Where he made his blunder, however, was in his haste to practice his ventriloquial accomplishment to prevent your going into the Round House and discovering that his father was already dead.

"He ought to have waited until you spoke, so that it would appear natural for the old men to know without turning who it was that had opened the door. That is what put me on the track of him. Until that moment I hadn't the slightest suspicion where he was nor under what guise he was hiding.

"Of course, I had a vague suspicion even before I came and saw her that 'the cook' was in it. Her readiness in inventing a fictitious gypsy with a bear's muzzle coupled with what Nippers had told me of the animal marks she had pointed out, looked a bit fishy; but, of course, until I actually met her nothing really tangible began to take shape in my thoughts.

"That's all, I think. And now good-night and good luck to you, Miss Renfrew. The riddle is solved; and Mr. Narkom and I must be getting back to the wilderness and to our ground floor beds in the hotel of the beautiful stars!"

THE END.

Their Married Life

Helen, from a Box, Looks Down Upon Warren at a Banquet at the Astor-Ritz.

By MABEL HERBERT URNER.

IT was just 9:30 when Helen, in an evening gown and long white wrap, hurried down to a taxicab.

"The Astor-Ritz," she called to the driver as she gathered her chiffon skirts about her white satin slippers and stepped in.

To be whirling through the streets alone at 9:30 was for Helen a new sensation, and always self-conscious, she dreaded arriving at the Astor-Ritz unescorted.

It was the night of the annual dinner of the International Fraternal Society. Mr. Jennings had invited Warren to the dinner and had given him a box ticket for Helen. She was supposed to arrive about 10, to sit in a box overlooking the banquet hall and listen to the speeches.

With a fluttering heart she left the cab and ran up the awning-covered steps of the Astor-Ritz. Keenly conscious that she was alone, she hurried through the lobby to the nearest elevator.

At the entrance to the balcony of the banquet hall the doorman took her ticket and escorted her to one of the boxes in which were already seated three beautifully gowned women.

Below was the banquet hall with a long speakers' table at the end, and countless smaller tables crowded so close that the waiters could hardly pass between. It was a brilliant scene—the lights, the flower-decked tables, the high, gilded ceiling and gleaming chandeliers.

Helen's first impulse as she leaned over the red plush railing of the box was to find Warren. But it was not easy to locate any one in that great crowded hall, with all the diners in evening dress, and each with a white carnation in his buttonhole.

Not Warren.

Was that Warren with his back towards her at that table by the pillar? She leaned forward eagerly, but as she caught a glimpse of the man's side face her searching glance swept on to other tables.

The waiters were just bringing on the dessert—a pinkish ice in tall slender glasses. There were many things in the table appointments that Helen was eager to notice, but she could not be content until she had located Warren.

Then suddenly she saw him at a table near the center. Why had she not seen him at once? Surely no one else looked so distinguished!

If he would only look up! But he was talking to the man at his right. He had promised to look for her around 10, and it was that now, but he kept on laughing and talking, not even glacing towards the boxes.

The waiter had just placed before him his frozen ice and refilled his wine glass. Then Helen saw that every one at Warren's table was drinking champagne. Some of the other tables had champagne, some had claret, and at a few there were no wine glasses at all.

Warren was looking up now! He was glancing toward the boxes! He saw Helen and waved his napkin.

Helen flushed with pride as the other women in the box turned to look at her. In spite of their expensive gowns and jewels Helen felt certain that their husbands were not at handsome and distinguished as Warren.

The waiters had now all lined up by the door, each carrying a tray piled nigh with small white boxes—the dinner souvenirs. At a sign from the head waiter, they filed in and out through the tables, leaving a white box beside each plate.

Had the diners been women, they would have instantly opened the boxes, but the men seemed hardly to notice them. So Helen's curiosity was not gratified.

The Dinner Over.

At length the dinner was over. The waiters began carrying out the dishes and the pink-shaded candles, most of which had burned out. The orchestra that had been playing in a balcony above the boxes now stopped.

The chairman at the speakers' table rose and rapped for order. Helen wondered why he was chairman. He was small and insignificant with a thin voice that did not carry. After some tedious remarks which no one could hear, he introduced the first speaker of the evening, Dr. Olony, an eminent sociologist.

Helen leaned forward with eager interest. The speakers were all prominent men, and she felt thir addrsses would be well worth hearing. But Dr. Olony began with the usual trite preliminary remarks about it being "an honor to address so distinguished a gathering." Then to Helen's dismay he produced a formidable manuscript and proceded to read it.

Everybody sat back resignedly. After the first few moments Helen did not pretend to listen. The women beside her kept up a running conversation. Several men had now come up to the various boxes to sit with their wives and friends. The eminent Dr. Olony was still reading in a monotonous voice.

Helen's glance never left Warren for long, and now she saw him push back his chair and leave the table. He looked up and nodded. He was coming up to her!

"Well, what do you think of it?" when he entered the box and took the chair beside her.

"Oh, dear, it's very interesting," happily excited now that she was with her. How wonderful he looked—how distinguished! Her eyes rested on him proudly.

"Rotten speaker," he grumbled. "A man ought to be mobbed for reading a speech at a dinner like this. What people want is short pointed addresses of say—five minutes. That boob's been spouting for fifteen."

"Oh, dear, you didn't bring me your souvenir. I wanted so much to see them."

"Forgot the blamed thing. Get it for you later. Wonde, who that stunning woman is in that box over there?"

Helen followed his glance to the dark-haired regal-looking woman. She was undeniably beautiful. Her gown of white lace was cut strikingly low, and there were strands of pearls about her throat and in her hair. Helen was not often jealous, but somehow she felt suddenly plain and poorly gowned beside the striking loveliness of that woman.

The speaker finished now and sat down amid much applause. He bowed repeatedly, not seeming to realize that the applause was only an expression of relief that he was through. Again the chairman rapped for order.

This time a United States Senator was introduced. To Helen's relief he had no notes, his voice was deep and booming, and he was plainly used to talking on his feet. But his ranting eloquence was just words—empty phrases. He had nothing particular to say and was merely "orating."

Warren, who loathed after-dinner speaking, and who rarely attended big dinners because he would not be bored, was becoming restive.

"How many more of these guys do we have to stand for?" drawing from his pocket the dinner menu, on the back of which were the names of the speakers. "Suffering cats! FOUR more? Well, I guess not! We'll cut it and make for home."

"Oh, dear, we'd better wait a little longer! It'll look rude to leave so early. Mr. Jennings will think we didn't enjoy it."

"Guess he's bored stiff, too. Why in blazes don't they have some live talkers instead of ringing in a lot of dead ones?"

If the speech of the eminent sociologist had been long, the Senator's seemed interminable. He boomed on with high-sounding phrases about "The Achievements of the Nineteenth Century.....The Splendid Strides of Civilization .....The Advancement of Society," and something about "Shining Orbits in the Sky of Future Progress.....Blazing in Front of the Jeweled Crown of an Unconquerable Race."

Every one was becoming impatient and restive, even the chairman had his mallet poised as though anxious to rap it, but still the Senator kept on shouting his oratorical phrases.

Missed the Souvenir.

"Gosh, that fellow loves to hear himself talk," growled Warren. "He's good for another hour yet. Come ON!"

"But dear, we must wait—we can't leave while he's speaking," whispered Helen.

"Like to know why we can't? Here's where I get out!"

"And I didn't get the souvenir—I didn't even see what they were!" bewailed Helen, as Warren hurried her out through the crowded corridors of the Astor-Ritz.

"Souvenirs!" with a contemptuous sniff. "Well I wouldn't have stood for any more of that duffer's speech for a dozen souvenirs. I'll wager he's spouting there yet."

"Yes, he WAS tiresome," Helen admitted, sinking back in the taxicab with a sigh of relief. Then laughingly, "Dear, if you ever make an after-dinner speech, don't begin by saying you 'feel honored to address so distinguished a gathering.' And don't—PLEASE don't use a lot of fine phrases that mean nothing."

"Huh," snorted Warren, "don't you worry! If ever I make a public speech I'll have something to say, and I'll say it blamed quick, and have gumption enough to sit down when I'm through."

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

MA & me had a lot of fun yesterday at the dinner tabel in the hotel ware we are staying wile Pa is here catching fish. Pa was out following a streem, & Ma & me was all alone at our tabel until a yung traveling man caim in & the waitress put him at our tabel. He was vary yung and vary fresh. The minnit he got sat down to the tabel he looked oaver at us & sed You peepul are having a luvly spring this yeer up in the woods.

The day is butiful, sed Ma. Ma was dressed in a plain dress for walking in & I had on overalls so I cud be like the other littel boys around here, & I was bare-footed. Ma & me knew that the yung traveling man thot we was country peepul & we didnt care, beekaus we have saw lots of peepul in the big cities that dident know half so much as country folks.

The scenery here is vary pritty, sed the yung man, but, of course, you peepul up here think moar of it than I do, beekaus I have traveled around a grate deel & saw scenery wich is sublimer than these little hills, small to a man like me, he asked Ma, a man wich has seen reel mountains?

But, of course, you peepul up here havent traveled & got broadened, sed the yung salesman. Jest think how majestik must be the site of a mountain peek like the kind you see not far from Chattanooga, Tenn.

I have never been in Chattanooga, sed Ma.

It Was a Pity.

That seems a pity, sed the yung man. One reely doesnt know what living is until one has been in Chattanooga. A littel place like this is all rite for peepul wich have nevver seen the glories of natur, but one who has traveled like I have it would soon beecum monotonous.

Yes, indeed, sed the yung man. We knights of the grip are never still in one place vary long. I travel all the way from Chattanooga to Nashville on the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis, he toald Ma. Chattanooga is sum city. There is none of this humdrum life you have here. Why, think of a city with several theaters all within the city limits, & with the hum of St. cars & the roar of the traffic & the butiful stores & residences. That is life, believe me, sed the yung man. I doant know what the other big cities is like, he sed, but you have got to show me whare any one of them has anything on Chattanooga.

I was jest going to tell the yung man that Pa & Ma & me had been in every big city in the U. S., from Frizco to Portland Maine & from New Orleans to the Canadian line, but Ma kicked me under the tabel & I knew then that she was kidding the yung man.

I have offen thot that wen my littel boy grows up I wud have him be a traveling man, sed Ma. My sister's husband used to sell enlarged picters. He used to travel from Chippewa Falls to Boyd on the Wisconsin Central. I guess he mite have been with his firm yet only he used to lose his expense money playing nickel slot machieens.

The Pity of It.

That is the pity of it with us knights of the grip, sed the yung man. We are thrown into constant temtashun, traveling the way we do from one town to another. Doant let yure yung son get into this gaim, he sed. It is a pity that you can not move to Chattanooga or eeven sum smaller city, so he cud get the bennefits of a education, like I dune.

Jest then Pa caim in & sed Wife, this is jest my luck. Jest as the fishing is good, here is a telegram that we must return to New York & leave the next day for Frisco.

Oh, good, sed Ma, we havent been in Frisco for nearly two years.

Then the yung man got kind of red in the face & dident say any moar about Chattanooga.

Just a Little Slip.

"Miss Sweet," the young man began, with a quaver in his voice, "may I presume so far upon our short acquaintance to ask you—"

"Please say no more, Mr. Matthews!" faltered the maiden. "I deeply regret to give you pain; and, if I have unconsciously encouraged you to entertain hopes that never can be recalled, I can not forgive myself. Believe me, I am—"

"Pardon me, Miss Sweet," interrupted the astonished youth, "but I was only going to ask you for the loan of fare home! I was stupid enough to come away without any money in my pocket this evening. Ah, thanks very much! I will return it without fail. Good night!"

Annoyed by a notice that the local sanitary committee were going to inspect his cow house, an English farmer spread linoleum over the floor of the building, displayed hearth rugs in convenient positions, hung the walls with pictures and a mirror, and installed a harmonium. The College of France, founded in Paris by Francis I, offers at the present day not only strictly academic instruction, but opportunities for the higher education in general. The following anecdote shows how far the college carries its scrupulousness. Every scientific subject, even the most abstruse, will continue to be taught there as long as one solitary individual in all Europe desires to pursue it.

Certain courses are followed by two or three persons only. They tell this story of a professor of mathematics: This professor, who was extremely absent-minded, had lectured for a whole year to only one pupil.

He was perfectly satisfied that it should be so, but it occurred to him one day that he ought to congratulate his rare disciple, and he accordingly did so.

"Monsieur does not recognize me," replied the pupil. "I am monsieur's coachman, and I always wait here until monsieur has finished his lecture."

CHAPTER 2.

JENNIE and THE MAN sat in the big, bright restaurant and listened to the music and watched the cabaret dancers, and Jennie's big brown eyes wondered at it all. At the beautiful dresses of the women diners, the bright lights, the thick, rich carpet on the floor and the noiseless waiters.

It was just like fairyland to Jennie, for she had never, never even imagined that things could be so lovely. The boys she knew could not afford such places, and the height of her social life had been walks in the park on Sundays and maybe the ice cream parlors for soda.

THE MAN did not urge her to drink much of the bubbly wine—for he knew she wasn't used to it and there might be explanations for her to make when she reached her boarding place, and that would NEVER do. For THE MAN was wise, and didn't want Jennie's good Southern friend, who kept the boarding place, to suspect anything—quite so soon.

Jennie realized at last that it was getting late and that she would have to get home, and besides it would take nearly an hour on the car to where she lived. When she mentioned the car, THE MAN wouldn't hear of such a thing. They must take a taxicab—and besides that would get them to Jennie's home much quicker than a car. A taxicab! —and poor little Jennie had never even ridden in one before—the cushions were so soft and warm and things zipped by so quick, 'til they just seemed to fly along. How different from the pokey old street cars, thought Jennie. THE MAN was polite as could be and talked of the delightful time they had that evening—and how lonesome he would be when she was gone, and they really MUST see one another quite soon again—but she mustn't tell any one where she had been that night—just that she had to work late and had hurried right home—and he would have the taxicab stop a block or so from her home, so no one would be the wiser.

Jennie was so proud of riding in a taxicab that she wanted to drive right up to her front door, but THE MAN explained that would NEVER do. So with a promise from her to "ring him up" the next day he had the taxicab stop a block down the street and very politely helped Jennie out with a promise to watch and see that she reached home safely. When she had gone he told the chauffeur the name of a prominent cafe, and with a chuckle got in and slammed the door.

Turning the Tables.

In some cases counsel receive answers to questions which they had no business to put, and these, if not quite to their liking, are what they justly deserve. The following story of Robert Harris, a celebrated negro minstrel, is a case in point:

"You are in the minstrel business, I believe?" inquired the lawyer.

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"Is that not rather a low calling?"

"I don't know but what it is, sir," replied the minstrel; "but it is so much better than my father's that I am proud of it."

The lawyer fell into the trap.

"What was your father's calling?" he inquired.

"He was a lawyer," replied Harris, in a tone that sent the whole court into a roar of laughter as the discomfited lawyer sat down.

Daysey Mayme And Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE.

WHEN a man says he has been discovered it is a confession that he has been found out. In other words, that his meanness has been exposed at last. But the women have a way of giving a higher, more soulful meaning to words, and when a woman says she has been discovered she means that her genius has found recognition.

Daysey Mayme Appleton had been discovered in this feminine interpretation of the word. Her genius had found recognition, and she had been given employment on a newspaper.

She had been sent to interview a famous authoress, and the famous authoress had told her she could give her just five minutes.

"What," she asked kindly, "do you wish me to talk about?"

The Interview.

Then she was ready for the interview.

"It doesn't make any difference what you talk about," she said. "I must remember I have my own personality. I am a graduate of Hardtack College; I was at the head of my class; I began writing poetry when I was seven, and prose when I was nine. I am going to become a great journalist. I feel that my genius is too great to be longer hidden. Robert W. Chambers and none of the other great ones had written poetry when they were seven. Every one says I have wonderful talent."

The five minutes were up, and Daysey Mayme, with a brain seething with thoughts, went home and wrote all day and all night, covering many, many pages.

There are those who use a special delivery stamp. Not so with Daysey Mayme. She writes "IN HASTE" across one corner of the envelope. "When the postman sees these words," she exclaimed to her father, "he just drops everything else and runs all the way to deliver the letter."

A Terrible Mistake.

The interview appeared next day, and Daysey Mayme read with pride. Suddenly her face paled, her eyes flashed and she dashed to the telephone, and called up the newspaper office.

"The managing editor," she said in tones that were imperious, and when she got him she cried in a voice of authority:

"Stop the press! You have put two t's in parting in the seventh line, third column, ninth page. This article is IMPORTANT, and must be right."

"It means so much to be correct," she said to her mother, "when one is engaged in moulding the opinions of the world."

Safe.

"Captain," said a wealthy passenger, who was about to take his first trip across the ocean, "I understand this ship has got several water-tight compartments."

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"Captain," the passenger went on, decidedly, "I want one o' those compartments—I don't care what it costs."

Falling Into Captivity

HENDERSON was wont to declare that the girl who wasn't popular was no girl for him.

"There's something wrong with a girl who can go to dances and not be asked to dance every time," he would say dogmatically. "Anyway, if she had any sense she wouldn't place herself in such a position."

Possibly it was his propensity for selecting the most sought after girl as the object of his devotion that caused him to remain a bachelor at the age of 38. He was, however, the slave of his niece, Margaret.

As a rule, he did without a word whatever Margaret asked him to do. However, when she came and sat upon the arm of his chair one evening, and it finally developed that she was planning to make him take her to the high school dance he almost rebelled. He assured her that his dancing days were things of the distant past and demanded to know where all the boys were. Margaret tilted her nose into the air as far as it would go and replied that she didn't know; and, anyway, she didn't care in the least; and, anyway, she wanted Henderson to take her.

"The girls will all be crazy about you," she assured him ingratiatingly.

"They'll be crazy at me," gloomed Henderson, "if they have to dance with me." But eventually he promised that he would go.

"You look perfectly sweet," Margaret cried ecstatically when he came down in all his glory ready to escort her. "I'm so proud of you that I don't know what to do about it."

"Just let me crawl off into a corner and smoke while you have a good time," begged Henderson. "And don't expect me to dance."

"All right," Margaret agreed.

Afterward Henderson remembered that Miss Patterson was the first person upon whom his eyes had fallen when he entered the hall, though he paid no attention to her at the time. Miss Patterson was the domestic science teacher and was present as a sort of chaperon. She was what is known in the vernacular as "chunky." However, with all her chunkiness, she was young and she had a passion for dancing. In her bosom there fluttered the faint hope that she would be asked to dance a few times, anyway.

Danced With His Niece.

This hope shown from her eyes when they met Henderson's as Margaret presented him. Henderson did not recognize it—in fact, he hardly realized that their eyes had met. She was merely a little, fat, uninteresting teacher, to whom he gave hardly a second thought.

He danced the first dance with his niece. "Am I off duty for the present, Peg?" he inquired when the dance was over. Margaret glanced at him appealingly.

"Oh, Sammy, dear," she said, "you know I'm on the committee, and I wish—" She paused and her eyes turned toward Miss Patterson. "But, never mind."

Henderson was not proof against Margaret's wistfulness.

"Well, Peg," he queried, "what is it?"

When told that she much desired that he dance one dance with Miss Patterson, who was perfectly sweet, even if she couldn't dance much, he looked aghast. "You certainly have picked out a fairy for me," he said, ruefully. "Still, for your sake, I'll do it."

Sat Where He Left Her.

Miss Patterson looked like a toy balloon and danced like a baby elephant. She hopped about and around and around, coming down for the most part on Henderson's toes. She did all the things that he hated most. When they had circled the hall a time or two the music mercifully stopped, Henderson being in a state of complete exhuastion and Miss Patterson beaming joyously.

He was too much overcome to know whether she could talk or what she really looked like, his one idea being to escape. As he sought refuge in the smoking room he was unaware that Miss Patterson's eyes were following him with a look of deep gratitude. When he emerged, however, their eyes met. Hers had a patient, wistful look.

Henderson turned away hastily. "Never again," he muttered to himself. But those eyes haunted him. He went back into the smoking room and tried to forget that look. When he had finished his cigar he skulked into the hall. Miss Patterson sat where he had left her, her round face beginning to look a little tired, but unfailingly cheerful, her brown eyes still wistfully hopeful.

Henderson dived back into the outer hall and there gloomily communed with himself. Presently he returned, walked bravely across the room and once more invited Miss Patterson to dance.

Strange are the ways of the little god Cupid! Twice again during the evening did Henderson immolate himself. Then at the close of the dance Margaret informed him that she'd be glad if he would take Miss Patterson home and that he needn't mind her, as she was going with Harold Bemis. So he went home with Miss Patterson without a murmur.

Some months later Miss Patterson asked Henderson shyly: "What made you begin to—to—care for me?"

Henderson at that moment was holding up her plump little hand for the purpose of getting an idea as to the size of the third finger on the left hand. At the question he gave the plump little hand—the comfortable little cushiony hand that yet was so capable and energetic—a contented squeeze.

"I think I began by being sorry for you," he said. "You did dance so abominably."

Saved the Situation

A steady queue had formed up at the money order counter of the local post-office, and it members were strongly agitated by different stages of acute irritation.

And all because a dear old lady had forgotten the address of her son, who lived in foreign parts.

"It's in China," she faltered.

The man behind the counter then scratched his head.

"China's a big vague," he said, and so audibly thought the queue.

"Well, sir," said the dear old soul, "I know it's a name something like the noise of a motor-car makes—"

"Hong—honk!" came in a quickly suppressed shrill from the sandy-haired telegraph boy who had been watching the proceedings with considerable enthusiasm.

"That's it—that's it, sir!" cried the delightful old lady. And the clerk filled in Hong Kong in the address.

CHAPTER IX.

A Legal Document.

Mary Turner spent less than an hour in that mysteriously important engagement with Dick Gilder, of which she had spoken to Aggie. After separating from the young man she went alone down Broadway, walking the few blocks of distance to Sigismund Harris' office. On a corner her attention was caught by the forlorn face of a girl crossing into the side street. A closer glance showed that the privation of the gaunt features was emphasized by the scant garments, almost in tatters. Instantly Mary's quick sympathies were aroused, the more particularly since the wretched child seemed of about the age she, herself had been when her great suffering had befallen. So, turning aside she soon caught up with the girl and spoke an inquiry.

It was the familiar story, a father out of work, a sick mother, a brood of hungry children. Some confused words of distress revealed the fact that the woebegone girl was even then fighting the final battle of purity against starvation. That she still fought on in such case proved enough as to her decency of nature, wholesome despite squalid surroundings. Mary's heart was deeply moved and her words of comfort came with a simple sincerity that was like new life to the sorely beset waif. She promised to interest her self in securing employment for the father, such care as the mother and children might need, along with a proper situation for the girl herself. In evidence of her purpose she took her engagement book from her bag and set down the street and number of the East Side tenement where the family possessed the one room that mocked the word home, and she gave a banknote to the girl to serve the immediate needs.

Had a Heart Yearning.

When she went back to resume her progress down Broadway, Mary felt herself vastly cheered by the warm glow within which is the reward of a kindly act, gratefully received. And, on this particular morning, she craved such assuagement of her spirit, for the conscience that, in spite of all her misdeeds, still lived was struggling within her. In her revolt against a world that had wantonly inflicted on her the worst torments, Mary Turner had thought that she might safely disregard those principles in which she had been so carefully reared. She had believed that by the deliberate adoption of a life of guile within limits allowed by the law she would find solace for her wants, while feeling that thus she avenged herself in some slight measure for the indignities she had undergone unjustly. Yet, as the days passed, days of success as far as her scheming was concerned, his brilliant woman, who had tried to deem herself unscrupulous, found that lawlessness within the law failed to satisfy something deep within her soul. The righteousness that was her instinct was offended by the triumphs achieved through so devious devices, though she resolutely set her will to suppress any spiritual rebellion.

There was, as well, another grievance of her nature, yet more subtle, infinitely more painful. This lay in her craving for tenderness. She was wholly woman, notwithstanding the virility of her intelligence, its audacity, its aggressiveness. She had a heart yearning for the multitudinous affections that are the prerogative of the feminine; she had a heart longing for love, to receive and to give in full measure. * * * And her life was barren. Since the death of her father, there had been none on whom she could lavish the great gifts of her tenderness. Through the days of her working in the store, circumstances had shut her out from all association with others congenial. No need to rehearse the impossibilities of companionship in the prison life. Since then, the situation had not vitally improved, in spite of her better worldly condition. For Garson, who had saved her from death, she felt a strong and lasting gratitude—nothing that relieved the longing for nobler affections. There was none other with whom she had any intimacy except that, of a sort, with Aggie Lynch, and by no possibility could the adventuress serve as an object of deep regard. The girl was amusing enough, and, indeed, a most likable person at her best. But she was, after all, a shallow-pated individual, without a shred of principle of any sort whatsoever, save the single merit of unswerving loyalty to her "pals." Mary cherished a certain warm kindliness for the first woman who had befriended her in any way, but beyond this there was no finer feeling.

This Was Dick Gilder.

Nevertheless, it is not quite accurate to say that Mary Turner had had no intimacy in which her heart might have been seriously engaged. In one instance, of recent happening, she had been much in association with a young man who was of excellent standing in the world, who was of good birth, good education, of delightful manners, and, too, wholesome and agreeable beyond the most of his class. This was Dick Gilder, and, since her companionship with him, Mary had undergone a revulsion greater than ever before against the fate thrust on her, which now at last she had chosen to welcome and nourish by acquiescence as best she might.

Of course, she could not waste tenderness on this man, for she had deliberately set out to make him the instrument of her vengeance against his father. For that very reason, she suffered much from a conscience newly clamorous. Never for an instant did she hesitate in her long-cherished plan of revenge against the one who had brought ruin on her life, yet, through all her satisfaction before the prospect of final victory after continued delay, there ran the secret, inescapable sorrow over the fact that she must employ this means to attain her end. She had no thought of weakening, but the better spirit within her warred against the lust to repay an eye for an eye. It was the new Gospel against the old Law, and the fierceness of the struggle rent her. Just now, the doing of the kindly act seemed somehow to gratify not only her maternal instinct toward service of love, but, too, to muffle for a little the rebuking voice of her inmost soul.

So she went her way more at ease, more nearly content again with herself and with her system of living. Indeed, as she was shown into the private office of the ingenious interpreter of the law, there was not a hint of any trouble beneath the bright mask of her beauty, radiantly smiling.

Suffered Injustice.

Harris regarded his client with an appreciative eye, as he bowed in greeting, and invited her to a seat. The lawyer was a man of fine physique, with a splendid face of the best Semitic type in which were large, dark, sparkling eyes—eyes a Lombroso perhaps might have judged rather too closely set. As a matter of fact, Harris had suffered a flagrant injustice in his own life from a suspicion of wrongdoing which he had not merited by any act. This had caused him a loss of prestige in his profession. He presently adopted the wily suggestion of the adage, that it is well to have the game if you have the name, and he resolutely set himself to the task of making as much money as possible by any means convenient. Mary Turner as a client delighted his heart, both because of the munificence of the fees which she ungrudgingly paid with never a protest. So, as he beamed on her now, and spoke a compliment, it was rather the lawyer than the man that was moved to admiration.

"Why, Miss Turner, how charming!" he declared, smiling. "Really, my dear young lady, you look positively bridal."

"Oh, do you think so?" Mary rejoined, with a whimsical pout, as she seated herself. For the moment her air became distrait, but she quickly regained her poise, as the lawyer, who had dropped back into his chair behind the desk, went on speaking. His tone now was crisply businesslike.

"I sent your cousin, Miss Agnes Lynch, the release which she is to sign," he explained; "when she gets that money from General Hastings. I wish you'd look it over, when you have time to spare. It's all right, I'm sure, but I confess that I appreciate your opinion of things, Miss Turner, even of legal documents—yes, indeed, I do!—perhaps particularly of legal documents."

"Thank you," Mary said, evidently a little gratified by the frank praise of the learned gentleman for her abilities. "And have you heard from them yet?" she inquired.

Praise for Mary.

"No," the lawyer replied. "I gave them until to-morrow. If I don't hear then, I shall start suit at once."

Then the lawyer's manner became unusually bland and self-satisfied as he opened a drawer of the desk and brought forth a rather formidable-appearing document, bearing a most impressive seal. "You will be glad to know," he went on unctuously, "that I was entirely successful in carrying out that idea of yours as to the injunction. My dear Miss Turner," he went on with florid compliment, "Portia was a squawking baby, compared with you."

"Thank you again," Mary answered, and she took the legal paper which he held outstretched toward her. Her scarlet lips were curved happily, but the clear oval of her cheeks blossomed to a deep rose. For a momept, her glance ran over the words of the page. Then she looked up at the lawyer, and there were new lusters in the violet eyes.

"It's splendid," she declared. "Did you have much trouble in getting it?"

Harris permitted himself the indulgence of an unprofessional chuckle of keenest amusement before he answered.

"Why, no," he declared, with reminiscent enjoyment in his manner. "That is, not really!" There was an enormous complacency in his air over the event. "But, at the outset, when I made the request, the judge just naturally nearly fell off the bench. Then I showed him that Detroit case, to which you had drawn my attention, and the upshot of it all was that he gave me what I wanted without a whimper. He couldn't help himself, you know. That's the long and the short of it."

That mysterious document with the imposing seal, the request for which had nearly caused a judge to fall off the bench, reposed safely in Mary's bag when she returned to the apartment after the visit to the lawyer's office.

CHAPTER X.

Marked Money.

MARY had scarcely received from Aggie an account of Cassidy's threatening invasion when the maid announced that Mr. Irwin had called.

"Show him in, in just two minutes," Mary directed.

"Who's the gink?" Aggie demanded, with that slangy diction which was her habit.

"You ought to know," Mary returned, smiling a little. "He's the lawyer retained by General Hastings in the matter of a certain breach of promise suit."

"Oh, you mean yours truly," Aggie exclaimed, not in the least abashed by her forgetfulness in an affair that concerned herself so closely. "Hope he's brought the money. What about it?"

"Leave the room now," Mary ordered crisply. "When I call to you, come in, but be sure and leave everything to me. Merely follow my lead. And, Agnes—be very ingenue."

"Oh, I'm wise—I'm wise," Aggie nodded, as she hurried out toward her bed room. "I'll be a squab—surest thing you know."

Next moment Mary gave a formal greeting to the lawyer who represented the man she planned to muict effectively, and invited him to a chair near her, while she herself retained her place at the desk, within a drawer of which she had just locked the formidable appearing document received from Harris.

Her Voice Was Cold.

Irwin lost no time in coming to the point.

"I called in reference to this suit which Miss Agnes Lynch threatens to bring against my client, General Hastings.

Mary regarded the attorney with a level glance, serenely expressionless as far as could be achieved by eyes so clear and shining, and her voice was cold as she replied with significant brusqueness:

"It's not a threat, Mr. Irwin. The suit will be brought."

The lawyer frowned and there was a strident note in his voice when he answered, meeting her glance with an uncompromising stare of hostility.

"You realize, of course," he said finally, "that this is merely plain blackmail."

Men Are So Queer

To-day's Complete Short Story.

"TOM was terribly annoyed," said the young woman with the fluffy hair. "It is perfectly funny the way a man acts just because he is your husband—did you ever notice it?"

"It is indeed," said the others in chorus.

"How was I to know that sensible business men would take me so seriously?" pursued the fluffy young woman. "I thought they were supposed to have discernment and sense. Tom is always preaching about their superiority in that respect. Tom explained to me very carefully before we went to the automobile show last month that we couldn't buy a car. He said he couldn't afford it, considering my hat bills and his cigars and the notes coming due on the house we bought last year. I am sure I had it all perfectly clear in my mind, so I am positive I was not to blame.

"But did you ever notice what perfectly fascinating young men they put in charge of the exhibition cars at an automobile show?"

"I should say I have noticed them," said the brunette girl.

A Very Nice Man.

"And, anyhow, Tom had no business to run across two college friends the minute we got inside the show and pay so much attention to them that he couldn't pay any attention to me! Those three would cluster together over a chassis with a lot of crazy machinery stuck on it and talk like mad. So I simply had to do something to kill time."

"Of course you did!" agreed the others.

"So when at the first booth a good looking man who saw me studying a touring car asked me if I was interested I said I was. Then he was just as nice as could be. He told me everything about the car and made me get in it and explained just how I could run it myself and wanted my address to send me a catalogue. He said he'd be pleased to come out some day with the car and show me how it ran and give me a lesson. He was so set on coming that I hated to hurt his feelings, so I did not refuse.

"It was just the same way at the next place and ever after. Tom and his friends were so busy over horrid old machinery that I was considerably left out. However, I made lots of friends among the agents.

"All of them wanted to bring out their cars to demonstrate to me how superior they were and, as I had told one man he could come, it didn't seem a bit fair to the others to refuse any of them, so I said I'd be delighted. It had occurred to me that I owed a terrible lot of calls, and that it would be such a nice way to get around and pay them.

"I didn't think it necessary to mention the matter to Tom. He did remark that a huge lot of catalogues was coming to our house and it was a wonder where those fellows got people's names and, anyhow, thank goodness, he didn't have a machine eating its head off and making him poor. Men are so selfish.

"The Zero automobile man came out the very day after the show closed and we had a beautiful ride. I made six calls. However, I quite changed my opinion of him, because when I came out of the last place he seemed actually cross and said things about waiting in cold weather. I don't see how he expects to sell cars without showing a little consideration for customers. I told him I didn't think I liked his car at all.

"Then there was the Largo car man and the Allegro man and the Fortissimo man and the Solendiferous man, and about six different electric companies, and a lot more whose names I forget. When they came one at a time it was lovely.

"I did two teas one afternoon in the Largo car, but the man lost his temper, and when I came from the second tea the wretched creature had driven off and I had to go home on the street car!

Very Queer.

"The queer thing was that every one seemed so indignant when I refused to give an order for a car and said things about my leading them on. The worst of it was that Tom came home ill with the grip one afternoon just as seven different cars arrived all at once to take me out! He said he thought I was giving a funeral or a tea.

"When he understood—my dears, have you ever seen a man suffering from bad temper and grip simultaneously?

"I explained to him most carefully that it wasn't my fault at all, but he roared that he was ashamed to look a man in the face from that time on for fear he was one of the automobile agents I had shamefully deceived—yes, that's what he called it—and that he'd like to know what women had in place of consciences, anyway. What do you think of that? Aren't men utterly queer?"

"They surely are!" the other young married woman agreed. "When you hadn't done one single thing, either!"

Where the Shoes Pinched.

"Boots and shoes repaired neatly while you wait." So said a notice in the window. A small boy entered the shop and dumped a pair of patent leathers on the counter.

"Please, fahver wants 'em repaired," he ventured timidly.

"What's he want done to them?" inquired the tradesman.

"Wants 'em soled and 'eeled,' pipes the youngster; 'also stretched.'

"Stretched as well—eh? And where do they pinch him?"

"They don't pinch him," replied the ingenuous son; "he pinched them!"

COTTON MARKETS EXTREMELY DULL

Strength Shown in July Was Principal Feature — Shorts Cover, Causing Sharp Gain.

NEW YORK, May 10.—With Liverpool closed, the local cotton market was more than usually dependent on the weather conditions for inspiration at the opening to-day. First prices ranged 1 to 4 points higher than last night's close. Trading was of a light character and fluctuations after the call were narrow, holding within a few points of the opening figures.

The Liverpool market was closed on account of Weitsuntide holidays.

The weather map was very discouraging to those who sold yesteday on promises of rains in the Eastern belt, and they seemed eager to replace liquidated lines over Sunday. The ring and Wall Street covered considerable short cotton, while the larger spot houses were noticeable buyers. Offerings, however, were light and scattered. The advancing tendency continued throughout the short session. July showed considerable strength and was the heaviest pressed option on the list and at times the trade interest was centered entirely upon it. Distant positions, especially October and December, were under active buying and the three options rallied 8 points over the opening level.

Indications point to fair weather over the larger part of the belt over Sunday, with somewhat lower temperatures. West Texas will have unsettled showers, as will the Panhandle, while the rest of the State will be fair.

At the close, the market was steady, with prices at a net gain of 4 to 8 points from the final quotations of Friday.

Spot cotton at Savannah, Ga., is about 38 points higher than the highest option on the New York future list and about the cheapest in the South. Spots are quoted at 11¾ cents there and the buyer would have to add about 75 points on the present prices should he buy it so as to cover brokerage fees, insurance, interest, freight cost and charge for certification. There is a very small chance for any profit in such a transaction.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S DAILY COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, May 10.—Several localities in the Eastern states had good showers overnight, but there has not yet been any general rain. The range of temperatures continues very favorable. The river situation is much improved. The fall at Vicksburg is beginning to be rapid and from the overflowed section in the upper delta is encouraging. There is some reports indicating planting one to two months earlier than last year.

The market advanced a few points on the strength of July in New York, the reason for which is covering by shorts and the diminishing stock in New York.

New crops sympathized to some extent.

WHEAT MARKET OVERSOLD.

CHICAGO, May 10.—The Inter-Ocean says: "Those who are bullish on wheat regarded the market as oversold and said it would take considerable pressure from shorts to keep prices down. They consider the market on a healthy basis. The trade in corn at the moment is divided, but they see nothing for sensational developments on either side unless there might be a little congestion in May. Local traders in oats are rather bearish, but some of the country houses are buying."

Tybee Opens May 24.

SAVANNAH.—The official season at Tybee Beach will open for the summer on May 24.

COTTON GOSSIP

The trade is still puzzled as to what side McFadden will ultimately decide to take. One day he is buying and the other selling.

Following are reports on the condition of the cotton crop of Georgia: Thomasville: "Crop 90 per cent planted; condition, complaint bad stands." Bostwick: "Crop 95 per cent planted; condition, 50 per cent up." Monticello: "Crop 80 per cent planted; condition, cotton not up and will not come up until we get rain." Mansfield: "Crop 95 per cent planted; condition, very dry; none up in middle Georgia." Quitman: "Need rain." Penfield: "Crop 70 per cent planted; condition, fair only." Colquitt: "Two-thirds to three-quarters planted with replanting necessary to the extent of fully per cent with seed scarce and not enough to replant. Crop prospects are gloomy, but money conditions extremely favorable."

NEW ORLEANS, May 10.—Hayward & Clark: The weather map shows cloudy over the Western states and North Carolina, generally fair elsewhere, with scattered showers in Mississippi, North Alabama, North Carolina and a good rain at Meridian, Miss. Indications are for increasing cloudiness generally, with probable prospect for showers in the Atlantics and cooler in the north portion of the belt.

Cordill wires from Augusta, Ga.: "Troy, Dothan, Thomasville to Macon, South Alabama and South Georgia conditions are irregular. Much cotton up to good stands and chopped out, but fully 35 per cent not yet up. Soil preparation near perfect. Light, widely scattered showers yesterday beneficial. General warm rain needed. Macon to Augusta, cotton is coming up more evenly but start late."

* * *

The New Orleans Times-Democrat says: "Cotton market equipoise has come to be a habit and profitless sessions have made the rings disconsolate. It is a queer paradox, this keen desire of the talent to discount the future, and when they have accomplished their purpose and the market stands still the inherent love of strife impels them to begin all over again. Yesterday a fair weather forecast for the Eastern belt worried shorts no little because the general rains over that section, upon which they have been depending, have not come.

"Now that the promise of general rain is gone, dry weather reports from Georgia and the Carolinas will seem more significant than ever. On the other hand, spinners' takings for the week were comparatively small, and the decrease in the world's visible supply contrasted unfavorably with the decrease in the corresponding week last year. Thus both factions had good talking points and the visible supply changes coming last gave the bear the closing advantage. Both factions appear ready to admit that the market as a whole is short. In the eyes of most professionals, the new crop positions have seemed attractive as a sale and the fact that many operators have sold them is responsible for much of the buying power that develops when reports of seed rotting in the ground and of the necessity for replanting come in."

OPINION ON GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 10.—Bartlett, Frazier & Co.:

Wheat—We look for a steady market to-day.

Corn—Cash position is strong; country offering slight.

Oats—We believe the long side on little depressions the safer one.

'Pure Clothing' Bill Offered in Congress

Michigan Representative Declares 75 Per Cent of All Wearing Apparel Is Adulterated.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Seventy-five per cent of the clothing sold in the United States is adulterated, according to an investigation made by Representative Lindquist, of Michigan, who to-day introduced a "pure fabric and leather" bill in the House.

The Lindquist bill would make illegal the sale of inferior clothing for the genuine and provides that all clothes must be labeled as to actual quality.

"This bill, if enacted," said Representative Lindquist, "will give the consuming public pure fabrics in the way pure food is guaranteed to us now. By such a law I do not propose to prohibit the manufacture of inferior merchandise, but to make it unlawful to sell inferior goods for the genuine."

STOCKS ARE VERY DULL ENTIRE DAY

By C. W. STORM.

NEW YORK, May 10.—Delaware and Hudson was one of the weakest issues on the list at the opening of the stock market to-day, being sympathetically depressed by weakness in New York Central. Delaware and Hudson was 1¼ lower at the opening and later declined still further. New York Central continued under par, selling at 99¾ for a loss of ¼.

Trading was quiet and nearly all stocks suffered declines. Among the losses were United States Steel common, ¼; Union Pacific, ⅝; Reading, ⅝; Erie, ¼; Amalgamated Copper, ⅛; Baltimore and Ohio, ⅜; St. Paul, ⅝, and Canadian Pacific ⅛. At the end of half an hour some of the issues rallied.

The curb was dull.

There was a bank holiday in London and there was no session of the stock exchange there.

HESTER'S WEEKLY COTTON STATEMENT

Secretary Hester's weekly New Orleans Cotton Exchange statement of the movement of cotton, issued before the close of business Friday, shows an increase in the movement into sight compared with the seven days ending this date last year in round numbers 3,000, an increase over the same days year before last of 30,000, and an increase over the same time in 1910 of 20,000.

For the nine days of May the totals show a decrease under last year of 9,000, an increase over the same period year before last of 40,000, and an increase over the same time in 1910 of 29,000.

For the 251 days of the season, the aggregate is behind the 251 days of last year 2,128,000, ahead of the same days year before last 1,727,000 and ahead of 1910 2,353,000.

The amount brought into sight during the past week has been 92,616 bales, against 90,579 for the seven days ending this date last year, 63,252 year before last and 73,803 same time in 1910; and for the nine days of May it has been 168,477, against 116,992 last year, 18,328 year before last and 79,420 same time in 1910.

The movement since September 1 shows receipts at all United States ports 5,842,967, against 11,616,302 last year, 8,284,645 year before last and 6,840,168 same time in 1910. Overland across the Mississippi, Ohio and Potomac Rivers to Northern mills and Canada 912,907, against 1,150,229 last year, 875,259 year before last and 721,795 same time in 1910; interior stocks in excess of those held at the close of the commercial year 267,148, against 189,732 last year, 188,800 year before last and 229,306 same time in 1910; Southern mills takings 2,464,999, against 2,204,714 last year, 1,953,484 year before last and 1,812,470 same time in 1910.

These make the total movement for the 251 days of the season from September 1 to date 13,027,023, against 15,155,077 last year, 11,300,198 year before last and 9,615,746 same time in 1910.

Foreign exports for the week have been 159,618, against 87,215 last year, making the total thus far for the season 7,787,733, against 9,842,513 last year, a decrease of 2,054,780.

Northern mills takings and Canada during the seven days show a decrease of 25,876, as compared with the corresponding period last year, and their total takings since September 1 have decreased 397,442. The total takings of American mills, North, South and Canada, thus far for the season have been 4,721,083, against 4,732,580 last year. These include 2,188,743 by Northern spinners, against 2,496,185.

Stocks at the seaboard and the twenty-nine leading Southern interior centers have decreased during the week 90,210 bales, against a decrease during the corresponding period last season of 87,917, and are now 15,360 larger than at this date in 1912.

Including stocks left over at ports and interior towns from the last crop and the number of bales brought into sight thus far from the new crop, the supply to date is 12,391,135, against 15,442,051 for the same period last year.

World's Visible Supply.

Secretary Hester's statement of the world's visible supply of cotton shows a decrease for the week just closed of 67,-000, against a decrease of 51,074 last year and a decrease of 149,480 year before last.

The total visible is 4,550,270, against 4,617,802 last week, 1,167,000 last year and 4,194,000 year before last. Of this, the total of American cotton is 3,967,370, against 3,164,802 last week, 3,500,775 last year and 2,178,244 year before last, and of all other kinds, including Egypt, Brazil, India, etc., 1,483,000, against 1,453,000 last week, 1,167,000 last year and 1,124,-000 year before last.

The total world's visible supply of cotton as above there is now afloat and held in Great Britain and Continental Europe 3,554,000, against 2,944,000 last year and 1,944,000 year before last; in Egypt 150,-000, against 171,000 last year and 155,000 year before last; in India 962,000, against 692,000 last year and 641,000 year before last; and in the United States 883,-000, against 861,000 last year and 632,-000 year before last.

Spinners' Takings.

Secretary Hester gives the takings of American cotton by spinners throughout the world as follows, in round numbers:

This week 191,000 this year, against 217,000 last year and 217,000 year before last.

Total since September 1, this year, 11,-312,000, against 12,447,000 last year and 9,897,000 the year before.

Of this Northern spinners and Canada took 2,189,000 bales this year, against 2,496,000 last year and 1,951,000 the year before; Southern spinners 2,532,000, against 2,227,000 last year, and 1,987,000 the year before, and foreign spinners 6,590,000 the year before.

Cattle receipts are heavier than usual. The market is 25 to 50 cents lower on the middle grades, with a heavy supply. Tops and choice in good demand and market steady.

One load of the E. T. Comer cattle were on the market this week and brought $7.37½ per cut, this being the top price for the week. These were mixed highbred Short Horn and Hereford young steers, fat and prime, bred and raised on the Comer farm at Millhaven, Ga., and would do credit to any beef producing section.

With the exception of this load and two loads of Short Horn steers from A. N. Brown at McDonough, all of which were sold to the Atlanta packer, the run was badly mixed, consisting principally of country pick up bunches of all sizes and kinds, which sold at prices fully as irregular as were the cattle.

Hogs continue to come freely. Market has ranged lower in sympathy with the Western markets.

Choice to good steers, 1,000 to 1,200, 5.75@6.50; good steers, 800 to 1,000, 5.50@6.00; medium to good steers, 700 to 850, 5.00@5.75; medium to good cows, 700 to 800, 4.50@5.00; good to choice beef cows, 800 to 900, 4.75@5.75; medium to good heifers, 650 to 750, 4.25@4.75; good to choice heifers, 750 to 850, 4.75@5.75.

Medium to common steers, if fat, 800 to 900, 4.50@5.50; medium to common cows, if fat, 700 to 800, 4.25@5.25; mixed common, 600 to 800, 3.25@4.00; good butcher bulls, 3.50@4.00.

Prime hogs, 160 to 200 average, 8.30@8.50; good butcher hogs, 140 to 160, 8.10@8.30; good butcher pigs, 100 to 140, 7.75@8.00; light pigs, 80 to 100, 7.00@7.50; heavy rough hogs, 200 to 250, 7.50@8.25.

Above quotations apply to corn-fed hogs, mash and peanut-fattened hogs, 1 to 1½c under.

Feeding Chickens For Egg Production

Should Begin When the Chick Is Hatched—Lay Foundation Early.

EDITED BY JUDGE F. J. MARSHALL

Feeding for egg production should be commenced when the chick is hatched, and there should not be a skip or a jump from start to finish. In other words, to lay the foundation for early and continuous layers the chicken must be well nourished from the time it is hatched until laying maturity.

One of the common complaints in the fall is that the pullets do not commence to lay as early as they should. The reason is they are not ready to lay; they are not fully developed. They have not had sufficient nourishment, and therefore run a month or two over the usual laying period.

A constant and varied supply of good, wholesome foods is the remedy that should be applied, and we know of no better way to accomplish the end sought than by the hopper feeding process. Where the pullet as a chick has been hopper fed with good mixed grains and beefscrap, where a large flock is maintained and the supply of insects is not sufficient to give the animal matter needed, the chances are that it will begin to lay early and keep it up through the winter.

When the feeding is done at intervals it is a difficult matter to feed all that is needed, and as a consequence the chick does not make the best possible growth.

To make good winter layers, do not yard or confine the pullets too early, but allow them to range as long as possible. They will then settle down to steady egg production when they are cooped and will continue through the winter. A convenient size for 50 growing chicks would be 12 by 20 inches at the top and 2 by 20 inches at the bottom and 20 inches deep, with a base extending 3 inches on each side, with 3-inch side to keep the grain from falling out; an inch slit at the bottom of the hopper to allow grain to come out into the tray part, where it is picked out by the chicks. The hopper should be kept under a shelter of some sort to keep the feed dry, which prevents it spoiling. A chicken may eat a little more the first day or two, but after that I do not believe it takes as much to feed them in that way as it does to allow them to become ravenously hungry and then gorge themselves; the repeating of which often causes indigestion and serious results.

Questions and Answers.

Judge Marshall: Can you tell me of some way to get soil stain from the shells of white eggs? I keep a fine lot of White Leghorns, laying pure white eggs, but the red soil here stains them so it can not be washed off so it will not show when sent to market. If you can be of any help to me, I shall certainly be thankful for the service. R. C. B.

Rome, Ga.

ANSWER—It would be a pretty hard matter to get anything that will readily take these mud stains off the shell without injuring the shell or its contents. We see no reason why any considerable number of your eggs should be stained. You should provide good nesting places for your hens, filling them with good litter of some kind that will keep them off the ground. You might try dipping them in alcohol and then rubbing them with a clean cloth. If nice, roomy nest boxes are provided and put in rather dark or secluded places, you should have but little trouble in getting all your hens to use them. Of course, you must have a sufficient number of them, so that hens will not get tired of waiting for room and be obliged to take to the ground.

The Railroads Can Rob the People IF---

Copyright, 1913.

In a cartoon printed several days ago our artist showed the Panama Canal with American ships held back by American locomotives.

All the solemn talk about "treaty obligations" about our duty to England, our national honor, is merely so much "railroad talk," a good deal of it well paid for by the railroads.

We are told that it is dishonorable, unfair, treacherous, etc., to permit American SHIPS to use an American CANAL, unless we also let English ships use the canal, without charge.

And the so-called friends of national honor—who are in reality gentlemen and newspapers subsidized or controlled by railroads—have actually managed to compel all but coastwise American ships to pay toll, like foreign vessels.

The railroads want no free use of the canal by American coastwise ships, and they fight such use through the politicians and newspapers that they own, for a simple reason.

The railroads make money carrying freight from the Atlantic to the Pacific. And the more they can CHARGE the more they can MAKE. Hitherto ships carrying freight from New York to San Francisco had to go all around South America. Therefore, the railroads could charge for freight carried 3,000 miles across the continent as much as it would cost to send a ship all around the continent. And, in addition, the railroad could add a charge for quick freight as against necessarily slow ocean freight.

Now ships will go from New York to the Pacific Coast through the canal, and the cost of water freight will be very small—UNLESS THE RAILROADS CAN MANAGE TO FASTEN A TOLL ON AMERICAN FREIGHT USING AN AMERICAN CANAL. This the railroads are trying to do, in the high-sounding name of national honor, treaty rights, etc.

For, don't you see, every dollar that railroad influence can lay as a tax on American shipping in the canal IS A DOLLAR THAT THE RAILROAD CAN ADD TO ITS FREIGHT CHARGES.

Let our Government charge American ships $2 a ton for using the canal, and the railroads can at once add $2 a ton to their freight rate.

Quite simple and clear, is it not?

Remember that when you hear the pitiful sobbing talk about protecting poor Great Britain against such an "outrage" as letting Americans, who built the canal and paid for it, give free use of it to American ships.

England, as a matter of fact, is very little interested in the matter, except that England's rich men own the Canadian Pacific Railroad, and they, like our railroad owners, are working to fasten a tax on American ships IN ORDER TO ADD THAT TAX TO AMERICAN FREIGHT SHIPPERS.

Fortunately the matter is pretty well understood.

This country will let all American ships use the canal without charge very soon. And our coastwise shipping will be free at once.

The Congress in this instance will not be used as a railroad freight collector. One Senator the other day introduced a resolution to set aside the existing treaty with England entirely—a thing we have a right to do at any time. There is no doubt that whatever may be necessary will be done to make and keep the American Canal FREE TO AMERICAN SHIPS.

Even the railroads, after they lose their foolish fight, will find it a good thing FOR THEM to help the general American prosperity.

Free use of the canal and low freight rates will bring lumber to the Atlantic Coast from the Far Northwest and bring fruit to the East from California and other Pacific States.

Eastern products will go at low freight rates through the canal to the Pacific. Business will grow, enterprise will find encouragement, labor, industry AND the railroads will share in the benefit of a canal UNITING THE COUNTRY MORE CLOSELY AND MORE CHEAPLY.

For every carload of cheap freight going through the canal and taken, apparently FROM the railroads, there will be two extra carloads of high priced freight FOR the roads. Profitable long hauls will increase and profitable short hauls as well.

And within ten years intelligent railroad men will thank the Panama Canal and free use of it by Americans for prosperity such as they have never seen.

MEANWHILE, IT IS IMPORTANT TO REALIZE THAT THE RAILROADS AND THEIR MANAGERS, NEAR-SIGHTED AS USUAL, ARE THE REAL POWER FIGHTING TO SHUT AMERICAN SHIPS OUT OF AN AMERICAN CANAL in the name of our holy duty to England.

How Your Mind Can Aid Health

By GARRETT P. SERVISS.

A GREAT DOCTOR once said: "Successful practice requires one-third science and two-thirds savoir faire" (knowing how to do it).

By that he meant impressing the imagination of the patient, and impressing it the right way. Any doctor can affect his patient's imagination, but many send its mercurial spirit dropping downward like a thermometer in a cold wave. If doctors ever really do kill their patients it is through what they administer to the mind.

We are only just beginning to learn something of the extent of the mind's control over health and disease. Many persons are willing to admit that the mind influences nervous affections, and that the imagination may either bring them on or drive them away; but they refuse to believe that mental influences which produce "lessons"—i. e., physical injuries to certain parts of the body.

Inspires With Confidence.

But they are wrong in their skepticism. The imagination can produce lessons as well as heal them. There never has been a great epidemic in which a large percentage of the mortality was not the result of mental upset. Mere fear kills like a lightning stroke by paralyzing the nervous system, whereupon the bodily machinery tears itself to pieces through loss of the central control.

I do not suppose that the imagination ever broke a bone or set one, but I am sure that it has either saved or lost the life of many a sick person, according to the way in which it happened to be directed, either by the will of the patient himself or by the guiding influence of a doctor or a nurse.

The successful doctor is the man who enters the sick room with his face full of cheer and of masterful confidence, and not with his pockets full of pills. The good nurse is worth her pay because she keeps her patient cheerful and confident. When you choose a doctor for your family, select one whose look makes you feel stronger. His presence will be like that of Napoleon on the battlefield.

It is not sympathy that heals; too much sympathy sometimes kills. It is confidence that does the good work. Away with your morose-looking doctor—unless it happens that behind the grave face there is an appearance of power, for that is worth more than all else in breeding confidence in the patient.

It has been suggested that "personal magnetism" is an actual, dynamic (moving) force proceeding from one person to another.

There is much to support that view. When Caesar in his scarlet cloak, with his bald head bared, rode through the lines of his soldiers at Alesia, something passed from him to them which enabled them to hurl back the assault of the three hundred thousand Gauls. It was the personal magnetism of Caesar that saved the day. It put courage into despairing hearts and energy into tired muscles.

But the best way to combat disease is to meet it with your own will. The patient who gives up can rarely be saved. Believe with all your might in your powers of resistance. Think of recovery, not of death.

Exerting Will Power.

A hot summer is before us, and it will bring its lassitude and its sicknesses, real or imaginary. Prepare yourself beforehand to meet these conditions by cultivating confidence, cheerfulness and will power. Joke about the thermometer when it goes up to ninety or a hundred in the shade, and don't draw a long face before it. If an epidemic breaks out, treat it as the Roman emperor treated the comet which terrified his friends. "Oh," he said, "that hairy star is after the king of the Persians, who has got whiskers. It won't trouble me."

And if you are doubtful about the power of the imagination to influence your body, read the stories of the "Stigmata" which appeared on some of the of old, when they concentrated their minds for days and nights together on the wounds of the Savior.

All Could See Them.

St. Francis, it is recorded, had all the marks of the Crucifixion upon him, though not produced by any hand or weapon.

Everybody could see them. St. Hieronyma Carvaglio had the spear mark in her side, which bled every Friday. St. Catharine, of Raconisco, had the marks of the Crown of Thorns on her head. All of these things, and many like them, are said to have been produced solely by pious meditations. You may smile at that, or you may not, according to your standards of belief, but you can hardly refuse to believe other things as wonderful that have been recorded on medical authority.

Whether you call it Christian Science, or mind healing, or blind faith, or anything else you may choose, there is no doubt that you have it in your power to influence by mental concentration the health and well-being of your body. Cultivate that power, and you will be the better for it. You will save, or shorten, many doctors' bills—but don't neglect the doctor, either; help him.

The Suffrage Parade---It Was a History Making Spectacle and Marks the Exit of the Doll Baby Woman From the Stage of Life.

By DOROTHY DIX.

WHAT did people see as they watched the Suffrage Parade in New York last Saturday?

They saw Judy O'Grady and the Colonel's Lady marching shoulder to shoulder. They saw the petted darling of the drawing room walking side by side with the girl of the sweat shop.

In that procession were millionairesses keeping step with scrubwomen; college professors with the pupils of night schools; Fifth Avenue hostesses with waitresses from cheap lunch rooms; old women with withered cheeks and gray hair with girls in the first flush and bloom of youth and beauty. All lines of wealth and class and social distinction were wiped out by the great cause that touches every woman high and low, and that has brought them together in one great sisterhood.

What did the people see when they watched the Suffrage Parade?

They saw one of the spectacles that make history. They saw the passing of the old order of things and the entrance of the new.

Exit of Doll Baby Woman.

They saw the exit from the stage of life of the doll baby woman of the past, of the woman who could find the whole of life in adorning herself, whose interests were no wider than her own home, and who saw no shame in getting what she wanted out of some man by cajolery, or flattery, or lying, or whatever other means was necessary.

Dull, indeed, were the eyes that did not see in those thousands and thousands of earnest-faced women the type of the new womanhood that is marching onward to a place beside man, no more to be his toy and plaything, but his equal and his partner in doing the work of the world and reaping its rewards.

What did the people see as they watched the Suffrage Parade?

They saw the spectre of injustice marching in every woman's shadow. The crowds through which those ten thousand white-clad women tramped were mostly silent, as well they might be with shame if they had eyes to see and a heart to comprehend the significance of the scene.

Own Millions; Can't Vote.

They saw women who owned millions of dollars' worth of property, but who were denied the right to say what taxes should be levied upon their property. They saw the representatives of six million working women, but who have no power in shaping the legislation that affected them.

They saw mothers whose little children's lives were crushed out of them in factories; housewives who must sweat every nickel to make it go a little farther when trusts put up prices; women who represented one half of the population, and who were affected by its every law, but who had no voice in making them. They saw highly educated women, brilliant professional women, noble women philanthropists, saintly church women, women who represented all that is finest and best in humanity, but who were denied the previleges that the most illiterate, the most debased, man enjoys.

What did the people see as they watched the Suffrage Parade?

They saw one of the most pathetic sights the world has ever witnessed. They saw womanhood humbling itself before man to ask as a boon the privilege that it should demand as a right.

They saw the wife who has grown gray and old in service to her husband, and who has given him the best years of her life, asking to be made his equal. They saw the mother who has borne his son in her arms going before him as a suppliant.

They saw the rich woman asking a dole of her butler and her footman.

They saw the woman college professor begging the ignorant and illiterate foreigner to share with her the right of government that he has and she has not. It was a silent, sad appeal to man to right the injustice he has done woman—to strike her political shackles from her.

Made Even the Doll Think.

No one except those who took part in it know what courage, what sacrifice of personal inclination, it took for quite, dignified, reserved women to tramp the streets, and make themselves a public spectacle for hundreds of thousands of curious eyes, and to be the butt of cheap wits and village cut-ups.

To most of the women every step of the way was the way of the cross, but they trod it unfalteringly, because there was no other means that could so effectually carry the message they had to give to the public. It was a spectacle that made even the dullest think.

What did they see as they watched the Suffrage Parade?

They saw victory marching on to its crowning. Every woman's face wore the uplifted look of a martyr, of one who would struggle on undismayed by defeat until she finally conquered. No one who witnessed that parade will ever jest and scoff again at woman's suffrage. He will know that it is a fact to be reckoned with, and that it is just as sure to come as is to-morrow.

THE LAST TOWN

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

Where is the Town at the end of the Line,
With its lure for the great and the small?
How shall we fare when we come to the sign
That was painted and hung for us all?
Long is the track and we can not go back
To wait for a faltering friend;
Through meadow and mart we are whirled from the start
To the wonderful Town at the end.

Some reach it in youth on a flying express
That passes the stations of strife,
And others grow gray while pursuing their way
On the laboring locals of life.
Some curse the Conductor and pray for the end,
And some think the pace is too fast;
Whatever the pace, we are nearing the place
Where we all leave the train at the last.

'Tis a mystical Town that no mortal has seen
Till the end of his long earthly ride;
But after the trip there is Knowledge to glean
About pomp and possessions and pride.
And perhaps we shall gain when we swing from the train
All the things we were forced to resign,
For the Agent is there, with each passenger's share,
In the Town at the end of the Line.

NEW PHAGAN EVIDENCE FOR GRAND JURY

SHRINERS AT JACKSON AND MERIDIAN GET BIG WELCOME

"We Are Going to Bring Home the Bacon," Official Announcement of Atlanta Convention at Former Mississippi City.

JACKSON, MISS., May 10.—(Special.)—Jackson men and women are going back to their Saturday afternoon duties with a smile that won't come off for days. They have just met the "Yaarab Special" from Atlanta that made its joyous way through the city, and they will not soon forget the meeting.

It is a wonderful party, this bunch that Atlanta has sent to the convention in Dallas to bring back assurance of the Shriners' convention in Atlanta for next year. At least, all Jackson feels that way about it.

And Jackson wishes them well. A fair bit of the city was at the station this afternoon to greet them and to tell them of their good wishes.

The crowd grew. A delegation was there at first to ask Forrest Adair and some of the others to speak, but everybody spoke. This was no day for formality. The more the talking, the more the singing, the closer became the ties between Atlanta and Jackson.

Then one of the Atlanta men, whose name could not be ascertained because of the general melee, leaped in full view of the populace. He was a stout blond.

Sure, Everybody Was Happy.

"Is everybody happy?" he shouted.

Jackson, Miss., assured him everybody was.

Enterprising newspaper men of the Mississippi capital sought to interview dignitaries among the party. They were met by an imposing delegation, who, after much deliberation, produced a signed statement.

It was as follows:

"We are going to brick back the bacon.

"J. LEE BARNES.
"FRED PATTERSON,
"GRAHAM PHELAN,
"JESSE COUCH,
"W. A. FOSTER."

Then, all too soon, the train pulled out, according to the unsympathetic railroad schedule, which was not alive to the fact that Jackson, Miss., was having the time of its life and that there was an intermingling of souls not often experienced.

Jackson came to this conclusion: The men whom Atlanta Shriners picked to represent Atlanta's cause are irresistible.

Still Anxious About "Joy."

The "Yaarab Special" made its way west. The stout blond gentleman was on the observation platform when the train passed into the distance, and he was still requesting information as to the happiness of Jacksonites.

Luncheon for the Yaarab nobles will be served at Vicksburg, where the train crosses the Father of Waters and invades the West. Great doings are promised at the Hill City, though only a short stop can be made.

At 9 o'clock this evening the train is due in Shreveport, the second city of Louisiana. Shreveport has a bunch of live Shriners, and is in thorough sympathy with Yaarab's aspirations to play host to the Shrine in 1914.

A combination baggage car and coach, a tourist kitchen car, two standard Pullmans for the patrol and two Pullmans for the officers, representatives of Atlanta commercial bodies and nobles make up a train which never was surpassed in comfort.

"They travel like they owned the railroad," observed a train caller at Jackson.

Ramona Borden Disappears Again

Whereabouts Mystery to Milkman

Runaway Believed in Connecticut

Miss Ramona Borden.

Two Girls, One Answering Description of Multi-Millionaire's Daughter, Reach New Haven.

NEW YORK, May 10.—Miss Ramona Borden, 17-year-old daughter of Gail Borden, multi-millionaire New York milk dealer, whose mysterious disappearance from a New Jersey sanitarium several weeks ago caused a big sensation, is to-day reported to be missing again.

Credence was given the report by announcement at the Vanderbilt Hotel, where Mrs. Borden and her daughter have been living, that both left the hotel and that their present whereabouts are unknown.

The first hint that Ramona had run away again came from New Haven, Conn., to which place she had gone with Mrs. Helen Seldon White, wife of a rich Cleveland, Ohio, chewing gum manufacturer, on her recent runaway escapade.

Reported in New Haven.

A dispatch from New Haven reported that a woman answering Mrs. White's description met two young girls at the railway station there, the party going to a hotel where they registered as "Mrs. W. J. White and daughters, Niagara Falls, N. Y."

One of the girls answered the description of Miss Borden; the other resembled one of Mrs. White's nieces who was a member of the previous runaway party. When Mrs. White was approached in New Haven by reporters she denied that she was the same woman who connived in the Borden girl's escape from the sanitarium.

At the offices of Mr. Borden it was said to-day by Mr. Borden's secretary that the girl's father had no knowledge of her being in New Haven.

Mr. and Mrs. Borden are separated, but not divorced. Mrs. Borden makes her home in Los Angeles, Cal., but came here when she received news of her daughter's mysterious disappearance several weeks ago.

Wife Watches Cell to Keep Man Awake

Keeps All-Night Vigil Under Doctor's Orders to Keep Husband From Sleeping.

PHILADELPHIA, May 10.—To keep her husband awake, as directed by physicians, Mrs. Elizabeth Conley of Gibbsboro, N. J., spent the night in front of a cell door at Camden when her spouse, John Conley, 40 years old, was locked up.

Mrs. Conley said her husband had made all sorts of threats against her and was mentally unbalanced. Conley and his wife entered police headquarters, the man pleaded to be kept in a cell and asked that his wife be permitted to remain outside and keep him awake.

The police were puzzled, but when it was explained that Conley had spells of nervousness and that his wife must keep him awake at the order of his physician, the request was granted.

Socialists May Fly Red Banner in Ohio

Attorney General Rules Those Who Interfere Are Liable to Arrest. Trouble Expected.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., May 10.—Attorney General Hogan to-day gave City Solicitor Bennett a written opinion to the effect that the Socialists here are entirely within their rights in displaying a red flag over their headquarters and that persons who interfere with it are liable to arrest.

Further trouble is expected here, and the city officials are preparing to make arrests if necessary to protect the lurid banner that floats over the highest building in town.

TIRES OF FREAK BILLS; QUITS LEGISLATURE SEAT

MADISON, WIS., May 10.—Declaring that he was tired of freak legislation being introduced in the Wisconsin Legislature, Assemblyman Carl Hanson walked out of the assembly to-day and left for home. He said he would not return.

DORSEY HAS VALUABLE EVIDENCE IN PHAGAN CASE

Fulton Solicitor General Declares Facts Unearthed by 'Best Detective in Country' More Direct Than Storer Girl's Testimony.

Former Factory Employee Asserts Frank's Office Was Empty at 12:05 Noon on Day of Tragedy, Contrary to Supt's. Story.

Evidence "exclusive and valuable" in the Mary Phagan case has been obtained, and is in the hands of Solicitor Dorsey. So much the Solicitor said to-day, and no more, declaring details of the evidence would be revealed at the proper time.

The evidence is the result of work by private detectives engaged by the Solicitor, among them one whom he termed "the best detective in America," when speaking of him Friday.

The Solicitor to-day declined to make public the slightest hint as to the nature of the evidence, or as to the identity of the person toward whom it points.

He mentioned the important evidence when he discussed the statement by Monteen Stover, the 14-year-old employee of the National Pencil Company, that it in direct contradiction to the testimony by Leo M. Frank, the suspected factory superintendent.

The Solicitor was interested in the girl's statement, but declared that the other evidence in his hands was far more important and tangible.

In opposition to the testimony of Leo M. Frank in the Mary Phagan inquest was the statement of the Stover girl. The evidence that she will bear is to the effect that she was in Frank's office at 12:05 o'clock and a little later on the Saturday afternoon preceding the discovery of the slain girl's body, and that she found it deserted.

According to Frank's testimony, he was in his office from 12 o'clock until 12:35, when Lemmie Quinn, his foreman, came in. During that time, he said, Mary Phagan came in, about 12:05 o'clock, to receive her pay.

Monteen Stover is certain that she reached Frank's office at exactly 12:05 o'clock. She has been retained as an important witness.

Remembers the Time.

"The minute I got to the office floor when I went up to get my pay," she said, "I looked at the clock. I wanted to know if it was time to draw my money. I would have looked at it, anyhow, I suppose, as it is always customary for me to punch it the first thing upon entering the place to go to work.

"It was five minutes after 12. I was sure Mr. Frank would be in his office, so I stepped in. He wasn't in the outer office, and I went into the inner office. He wasn't there, either. I thought he might have been somewhere around the building, so I waited.

"The whole place was awfully quiet. It was scary. When he didn't show up in a few minutes, I went to the door and looked around the machinery. He wasn't there. I stayed until the clock hand was pointing exactly to 12:10. Then I went downstairs. I could see nor hear no one."

The testimony of Monteen Stover was obtained by detectives when they quizzed her the Saturday following the killing of Mary Phagan. The girl and her mother, Mrs. Homer Edmondson, of 171 South Forsyth Street, came to the factory to get the pay which the girl did not get the week before.

Stopped by Detectives.

In the office were detectives, eager to seize every available bit of information. They stopped Mrs. Edmondson and the girl, and were rewarded by Monteen's statement that she had

Mrs. Ham's Nomination Is Fought

Gainesville Affair Stirs Anger

President Offers an Explanation

Mrs. H. W. J. Ham, of Gainesville.

Georgia Congressman Absent From White House Since Postoffice Appointment Was Made.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—A movement to have the name of Mrs. H. W. J. Ham withdrawn as postmaster at Gainesville is understood to be under way here, although Representative Thomas M. Bell, Congressman from the Ninth District, says he has no knowledge of it and is not a party to it.

It is well known that Congressman Bell feels keenly the turning down of his recommendation in the Gainesville matter, as he thinks, Gainesville being his home town, his wishes should have prevailed. Then, too, the Congressman had an engagement with the President the day after Mrs. Harris' name was sent to the Senate, to discuss the Gainesville postmastership.

President Wilson addressed a note to Mr. Bell, telling him the name was sent in through inadvertance, as he had not intended making the nomination that day. He, however, said nothing about changing the situation.

Since the appointment was sent in, Congressman Bell has not been to the White House. The movement to have Mrs. Ham's name withdrawn has been inaugurated by friends of all the parties concerned, in the hope of avoiding that which now seems likely to develop considerable feeling in Congressional circles.

Mrs. Longstreet talked with a number of friends in the capital and will go before the Senate nominating committee to protest against her removal. Her protest will be that her work has not been unsatisfactory to Gainesville people.

An announceemnt from Congressman Thomas M. Bell that he would issue a statement to the public regarding the Gainesville postoffice created quite a sensation among the Georgians here.

AUTO CRASH HURTS MOVIE SHOW GIRLS

Ethel Ray Severely Injured When Car Turns Turtle—Men in Party Escape With Bruises.

Miss Ethel Ray, actress in a moving picture theater in Whitehall Street, lies at the Grady Hospital suffering from injuries inflicted when an auto turned turtle at 1 o'clock Saturday morning.

Miss Adel Riley, another "movie" actress, was another victim, but her injuries were so slight that she was able to leave the hospital soon after her arrival. O. L. McNeil, 514 Empire Building, and B. S. Brooks, of the Peachtree Garage, escorts of the girls, escaped with slight bruises.

No one of the participants in the ride is able to tell how the accident occurred. The machine struck an embankment along the road about two miles beyond Buckhead.

McNeil was the first to extricate himself from the overturned car, and he ran all the way to Buckhead to sound the alarm.

SPEER TO OPPOSE DIVISION OF COURT

MACON, GA., May 10.—It became known to-day that Judge Emory Speer will issue pamphlets to offset the campaign for a division of his judicial district. They will contain editorial comment favorable to Judge Speer, various grand jury indorsements, testimonials from prominent men the country over and resolutions concerning the judge's services as passed by the Georgia Federation of Labor and other organizations. These will be mailed to every member of Congress and will also be given to the public. The copy is now in the hands of the printers.

Colonel W. A. Huff is in Atlanta consulting with his attorney, T. S. Felder, and also working on evidence which he intends to present to Congress next week as a basis for impeachment proceedings against Judge Speer. Colonel Huff's pamphlet will embody the letters he wrote Judge Speer last summer, for which he will be tried on May 19 for contempt of court, as well as a new letter to the public.

Benefit Concert to Help Unemployed

German-American Society Will Devote Proceeds of Benefit Monday to Needy Workers.

Atlanta Germans are awaiting with considerable interest the concert and ball that will be given by the German-American Association at the Freundschaftsbund Hall, 117 1-2 Whitehall Street, next Monday evening.

A chorus of 50 male voices will be heard, and there will be several solos by prominent members of local German singing societies. The proceeds will go into the treasury of the association, to be used in the work the organization is doing for unemployed Germans.

COTTON MILL MEN FIGHT TARIFF BILL

Georgia Manufacturers Predict Industrial Depression if Underwood Measure Is Adopted.

COLUMBUS, GA., May 10.—The business sessions of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of Georgia closed last night with the selection of Griffin as the next meeting place and the re-election of F. B. Gordon, of Columbus, as president, and Harry L. Williams, of Columbus, as secretary and treasurer. Five committees were also elected. Visitors to the convention are guests of the Columbus Power Company at Goat Rock to-day.

The association went on record as opposed to the Underwood tariff bill, when the convention unanimously adopted a resolution protesting against the measure, expressing the belief that it would paralyze the mill industry of the country.

President Gordon, in his annual report, stated that he did not want to be considered a "calamity howler," but that if he were called upon to make a prediction it would be that beginning this summer "the cotton mills of Georgia would face a long period of depression. Only those strongly entrenched financially, with strong trade connections and able to use foreign markets to some extent, will stay in the race. It's to be a survival of the fittest."

Many of those who discussed the resolution adopted by the association were of the same opinion.

FERTILIZER HIT BY NEW TARIFF, SAYS PROTEST

Business Men Receive Message From Washington, Following Passage of New Bill.

The following telegram, which explains itself, was received from Washington to-day by some of the leading business men of Atlanta:

"What do you think of the Democratic Congress, pledged to tariff reform, taking off of the free list an article and putting a duty of ten per cent on same? This I am advised was done yesterday when the House of Representatives at Washington passed the tariff bill putting a tax of ten per cent on sulphate of ammonia. My understanding that the ten per cent is an ad valorem tax which, at the present price of sulphate, would be over $6 a ton, and would be fully as much if not more than the old Republican tariff of 30 cents per hundred pounds, which was knocked out of the Payne-Aldrich bill and became a law in August, 1909, since which sulphate of ammonia has been on the free list.

"You must know about the increased production in this country and that this infant industry has greatly prospered in four years of free trade. The fertilizer manufacturers ought to protest to our Representatives, both in the House and in the Senate, against this tax which is directly against the farmer, and the Democratic party, having pledged itself to revise the tariff and bring about cheaper cost of living, is deliberately adding to the cost if they tax sulphate of ammonia.

"The price of sulphate of ammonia is higher to-day than it was in 1909 when the duty of $6 per ton was imposed. This material is a by-product, is healthy and needs no protection."

Navy Officer, Suicide, Fiancee Is Unmoved

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Without a sign of emotion, Miss Henrietta Erwin, 21 years old, to-day received the news that her fiance, Lieutenant Richard Hill, U. S. N., had committed suicide at Annapolis. She gave no explanation for such an act, but secluded herself to-day, refusing to see callers.

While undertakers were performing their offices upon the body, Miss Erwin was sleeping peacefully through the night.

The engagement of Lieutenant Hill and Miss Erwin was announced last Wednesday. It was the outcome of a long romance beginning in the Philippines while Lieutenant Hill was stationed there and Miss Erwin was living with her father, Lieutenant Colonel J. B. Erwin.

Miss Erwin returned to the United States only a short time ago to prepare for her marriage next November.

Major Walter Gordon, uncle of Miss Erwin, declared the engagement had not been broken off and that he can assign no reason for Lieutenant Hill's suicide.

DOCTORS SUE CONTRACTORS FOR $40,000 MEDICAL FEES

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., May 10. Dr. C. Hale, of Rising Fawn, Ga., and Dr. M. M. Wagner, of Chattanooga, have filed suit against Anthony Brady, of New York, and Jacobs & Davies, contractors for the Chattanooga and Tennessee River Power Company's lock and dam at Hales Bar, Tenn., for $40,000.

The plaintiffs allege that the defendants withheld that amount from salaries of employees as medical fees, but failed to turn it over to the doctors.

RADIUM SALTS FOUND IN NEW YORK STATE SPRINGS

SARATOGA, May 10.—Radium salts have been found in considerable quantity in the mineral springs of the New York State reservation in this village, according to the United States Bureau of Mines, which has submitted a report of an investigation in thirteen of the wells owned by the State.

These results were obtained from water taken in October, 1912. Since that time the progress of recovery from the springs has been continuous.

1,000 School Pupils Sing Choral Festival

Gay with their school colors, 1,000 pupils of the eighth grades of the public schools, assisted by picked representatives from the seventh grades, gave a choral festival at the Auditorium Friday night.

"Folk Songs of Many Countries" made up the program. Miss Kate Harralson, director of music in the schools, led the chorus, and Dr. Percy Starnes played organ accompaniments.

Thirty-five schools were represented. The seventh grade singers were from the Crew Street, Edgewood, Calhoun Street, Formwalt Street, Peeples Street, Lee Street, Pryor Street and Williams Street schools.

BAPTIST-METHODIST NEXT SUNDAY SCHOOL CONTEST

A meeting of Baptist ministers and Sunday school superintendents to consider the advisability of challenging the Methodists to a Sunday school contest will be held at the First Baptist Church Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

If a contest is decided on it will be conducted along the lines of the one between the Second Baptist Church and the First Christian Church.

PLUCK WINS FOR GIRL STRANDED IN PARIS

When Miss Las Casas found herself alone and penniless in Paris, she opened up a little shop where she sold popcorn, fudge, taffy and corn cakes to American girl students. Her venture has been a success and she is planning to return to her home.

600 Tech Students Parade in 'Nighties'

Celebrate Baseball Victory Over Georgia by Dervish March Through Downtown Streets.

Attired like howling Dervishes, and behaving much in the same fashion, 600 "Tech" students paraded the downtown streets Friday night celebrating "Tech's" baseball victory over Georgia.

The score was 4 to 2. If you doubted it, there it was, painted on the back of most of the night shirts. Night shirts were the costume de rigueur.

The college band, in jerseys, headed the dancing procession, but its music was drowned by the din of tin horns, dinner bells and rattles, not to mention some very creditable lungs.

CONFEDERATE VETERANS TO GIVE ROOF GARDEN PARTY

Confederate veterans of Atlanta will take a plunge into a bit of gayety when, May 14, the members of Joseph E. Brown Camp No. 1776 will give a dance and a roof garden party. The Order of Owls has offered its hall and roof garden.

Arrangements for the function include the appointment of Captain Stafford as floor manager, and the selection of Cook's Band for the musical features. Tickets will be 50 cents.

U. S. WON'T AID GUATEMALA TO DODGE BRITISH DEBTS

WASHINGTON, May 10.—The United States will not interfere in the diplomatic controversy between Great Britain and Gautemala over the payment of the claims of British bondholders.

Mr. Bryan, it is said, thinks the Monroe doctrine should not be used to permit a Central American republic to evade its recognized debts, although he is opposed to the use of armed force to collect debts.

PARIS, May 10.—American pluck has solved a difficult problem for Miss Lillian Las Casas.

Some time ago Miss Las Casas found herself in a strange city without money and without friends. She did not send despairing cables to her relatives on the other side of the ocean, but, having determined to succeed through her own efforts, opened up a modest little shop where she sold popcorn balls, taffy, fudge, corn cake and other delicacies which are about as necessary to the average American schoolgirl as are her books.

There are always a number of American students in Paris and they flocked to Miss Las Casas' shop. From the start her venture was a success. She has added to her stock and, in the language of the country from which she comes, is "making good."

Miss Las Casas is a remarkably attractive girl and, with the money which her shop earns at her disposal, she dresses in the height of fashion. The picture shows her in the simple dress she wears while waiting on her customers. She has on a plaited skirt and a fish wife's blouse. Her hair is done up in the most approved French style.

SOUTHERN SOCIETY IN ANNUAL RALLY

President Wilson, Secretary Bryan and Other Notables to Attend Fete at Capital

WASHINGTON, May 10.—With Democracy firmly ensconced in the White House and in Congress and with the Solid South high in favor with Democracy, the annual rally of the Southern Society of Washington, to be held here to-night, is expected to be an unusually brilliant affair.

President Wilson, Secretary of State Bryan, members of the cabinet, Senators and Representatives from Southern States will be in attendance at the rally.

The affair is to be held at the New National Theater and the speakers will talk exclusively of the Southland. Claude N. Bennett, of Washington, is to deliver a stereopticon lecture, showing pictures of the South's development since the days of the Reconstruction.

Thomas Nelson Page, of Virginia, the author, will address the society. Secretary Bryan, Senator Williams, of Mississippi, Senator Ransdell, of Louisiana, and Representative Richmond Pearson Hobson, of Alabama, also will speak. Secretary Bryan's address will be entitled "A Tribute From the West to the South."

DISCONTENT AND STRIFE SIGNS OF CHANGING ORDER

Everybody Is Dissatisfied Now, But Then, There's a Reason.

By B. C. FORBES.

Discontent, ferments, class clashes have invariably attended great forward movements. Reforms are born of complacency, of meek resignation, of sodden dourness. They are the fruit of well directed strife, struggle and achievement, of confidence in the justice of a cause, of irrepressible determination to assert manhood, of faith in that eternal justice which suffuses the scheme of things.

* * *

Only the dead are still, it has been remarked. The American people, on this reasoning, are very much alive, for stillness was never more conspicuous by its absence than it is to-day.

* * *

Let not employees imagine, however, that they alone are dissatisfied; that they alone are finding life not carpeted with roses, that they alone want changes.

* * *

Do you know any one class that is not crying out?

* * *

Let us glance around us.

* * *

Take politics first. The "Old Guard" have been routed and the younger race of politicians find the people clamoring for a greater share of power and insisting that intrenched "bosses" be shorn of their privileges. Moreover, the professional finds he no longer occupies a pedestal. He is no longer looked upon with reverence. A man's credit does not now rise one hundred per cent if he be seen walking down Fifth Avenue with Chauncey M. Depew or his Senatorial successors. The politicians have lost their halos and the veterans regard the times as out of joint. Upstart legislators, too, find they have a hard road to walk and are not exuberantly happy.

* * *

What of the wealthy? For years they were looked up to, honored and held in awe. The Government let them act as fancy suggested, the courts curbed not their business operations, the tax gatherer did not trouble them. All that has been changed. The Government has probed High Finance and Big Business, few multi-millionaires have escaped being dragged before legal or legislative tribunals, and now the Federal tax collector is to visit them clothed with power to filch a goodly percentage of their incomes. The cost of living, too, has fallen heavily upon those dependent upon income from permanent investments, for the returns on securities purchased years ago are not commensurate with current prices of commodities. And these are only a few of the troubles that have befallen the poor wealthy class in these days of applied democracy.

* * *

Railroads, the greatest employers of labor and the largest spenders in the country, are almost ready to throw up their hands in despair, so fast and furiously are their woes multiplying. More than one railroad manager is ready to hand over the job of running the railroads to the Government.

* * *

Our greatest manufacturing industry is steel. Here also lamentations are loud. Mr. Schwab now denies that he said he would quit if the tariff were cut, but that is exactly how steel men have been talking. They have had visions of a foreign invasion, of an armada laden with steel rails, beams, shapes and machinery. The world, they wail, is not going well with them, especially as the public are insisting upon the abolition of seven-day working weeks, long daily hours and liberal compensation in case of injury.

* * *

The woolen industry is in sackcloth and ashes.

* * *

Our farmers are up in arms.

* * *

* * *

Government employees are all at sea.

* * *

Real estate owners, at least in New York, are deeply dejected over falling values and rising taxes.

* * *

Employers everywhere are complaining of the arrogance of organized workers, of advancing wages and shorter hours.

COUNCILMEN FOR WHITEHALL WORK

Street Committee Joins in Fight for $30,000 Appropriation to Regrade Street.

Council's Streets Committee has joined in the fight for a $30,000 appropriation for the Whitehall Street regrading. The County Commissioners have agreed to do the work with convicts and the property owners have subscribed $17,000 toward it. If Council's Finance Committee can be persuaded to give $30,000 the improvement will be assured; and leaders in the movement declare there is no doubt the Finance Committee will respond.

The Streets Committee, Friday, by a vote of eight to one, approved the plan of regrading from a point between Mitchell Street and Trinity Avenue to Forsyth Street, presented by Chief of Construction Clayton. Several more conservative regrading plans were submitted but only Councilman Jesse M. Wood opposed the original program. Councilman Wood urged that final action be delayed until all the property owners agreed on the improvement to be made.

A number of enthusiastic boosters appeared before the committee, among them being Robert R. Otis, George H. Boynton, J. Carroll Payne, M. L. Thrower, R. A. Broyles, V. H. Kreigshaber, L. C. Green, Walker Dunson, C. E. Caverly, Charles H. Black, J. R. Smith and others. They declared that the work must be begun by October 1, as the convicts had been promised and a temporary delay might mean a postponement of many years.

The principal opposition to the improvement was expressed by Judge John T. Pendleton, owner of the Capital City Laundry building, and Attorneys E. C. Meyer and L. Z. Rosser. Judge Pendleton said the regrading would greatly damage his and adjoining property. Attorney Meyer pointed out that with the improvement all the intersecting streets must be regraded. Attorney Rosser said a number of persons would be damaged unnecessarily.

Answers to these arguments were that the increase in property values would far offset any damages.

Great Tuberculosis Institute Is Opened

Million Dollar Gift of Henry Phipps in Philadelphia to Eradicate in Disease Prevention.

PHILADELPHIA, May 10.—In the presence of many prominent medical men, scientists and philanthropists, the $1,000,000 Henry Phipps Tuberculosis Institute was opened here today. The institute is the gift of Henry Phipps, of New York, to the University of Pennsylvania. It is in the amount of money expended the largest gift yet made in the crusade against the white plague.

Henry Phipps, who was present, was presented with a degree of Doctor of Laws. Dr. Edward F. Smith, provost of the university, presided.

The Phipps Institute is not primarily a hospital, but an institute for the study, prevention of tuberculosis and education regarding the disease. Grosvenor Atterbury was architect. Dr. Charles J. Hatfield is executive director.

COW OUTRUNS HORSE ON HALF-MILE RACE TRACK

NEW RICHMOND, WIS., May 10.—To settle a controversy of long standing as to their racing ability, a contest between a cow and a pacing mare owned by rival hotelkeepers in this city drew a big crowd to the fair grounds.

The cow is the property of Anthony Meath, proprietor of the Commercial, and the horse is owned by George Cranston, of the National. The horse either was to trot or pace and the cow to go as she pleased. It was to be once around the half mile track, standing start.

The cow was a safe winner.

DORSEY VEILS NEW CLEWS IN PHAGAN AFFAIR

Monteen Stover said she did not know Mary Phagan, and probably had never seen her. She commended Frank as being popular with his employees, and kind.

Another development within the last 24 hours has been the elimination of another clew. The "woman in red," a mysterious figure reported to have been seen with Mary Phagan at the pencil factory, has been located. She is Mrs. Nancy Caldwell, of 10 Gray Street, an acquaintance of the dead girl. Examination revealed the fact, however, that she had not been with Mary Phagan in a year. The rumor of her association with the Phagan girl on the afternoon of the killing started in the mistaken statement of a girl at Mapleton.

Developed also evidence from a young woman whose name will not be revealed that the girl probably came to her death in the basement of the factory, and not in the upstairs lathe room. The following affidavit, subscribed to by a young woman who passed the factory about 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, April 26, is in the possession of Solicitor Dorsey, given him by Chief of Detectives Lanford.

Railroad Displaces Last Illinois Stage

Drivers Lay Down Whips and Attend Dedication of New Line That Ends Their Business.

CHICAGO, May 10.—Ten stage drivers, the last of their tribe in Illinois, put aside their long whips today and attended the dedication of the 15-mile stretch of railroad from Palatine and Wauconda, Ill., 35 miles northwest of Chicago, which put them out of business.

The stage drivers made their last trips yesterday, conveying passengers, freight and mail to the nearest railroad points. To-day the last spike was driven into the railroad track that connects Wauconda with the rest of the world.

The railroad was financed and built by farmers.

PLANS TO STOP MEN'S DODGING DUTY ON JURIES

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

Representative Minter Wimberly, of Bibb County, one of the few veterans to return to the Legislature, will introduce early in the forthcoming session a bill to abolish jury exemptions.

Primarily, this measure will be designed to stop the sale of jury exemptions to members of the military companies of the State, but it also will cover some other forms of exemptions now permitted by law.

The State now allows every military company regularly enlisted in the State's service a certain number of jury exemptions, and these may be used by members of the organizations, or sold to outsiders, as the company may elect. The practice has been to sell these exemptions for $25 per annum, the revenue resulting to the company to be applied to armory rent and other company expenses.

The result has been that the exemptions generally have operated to relieve well-to-do citizens in various cities, bankers, business men of large interests, and the like, from jury service, who otherwise would be required to do jury duty the same as the common or garden variety of folks.

Representative Wimberly thinks these citizens come from a class that should not be exempt from jury duty any more than others are exempt, and he particularly believes that there are many juries that need the services of bankers and business men of large interests, in order to insure fair and intelligent verdicts in matters involving the adjustment of financial affairs.

There has been a disposition in Georgia for a good many years to do away with these jury exemptions, and there is no doubt whatever that Mr. Wimberly's bill will receive hearty support in many quarters.

A great many people will sympathize with the Bibb County man's idea that all classes of citizens should perform their share of jury duty, unless prevented by illness, physical defect, extreme old age or positive disqualification for cause or interest in the persons or issues involved.

Believing that Georgia should have another United States District Court, and that Savannah should be the headquarters of the new district, a party of Savannah attorneys is now in Washington for a conference with the Department of Justice on the subject.

Those in the delegation are Judge Samuel B. Adams, W. W. Osborne, J. Ferris Cann, Anton P. Wright and T. Mayhew Cunningham. It is understood that General P. W. Meldrim will join the party in Washington Monday.

At various times in the last several years efforts have been made to have another District Court established in Southern Georgia, but nothing ever came of these efforts. At the time of the election of President Wilson, the old agitation was revived, and despite the fact that various grand juries in the United States Court have recently passed resolutions deploring such action as is now being taken by the Savannah lawyers, it was determined to make the effort to have the new court established there.

The presence of Joseph H. Davis, of Albany, in Washington just now has revived a lot of interesting talk as to the United States marshalship for South Georgia.

It is understood that Senator Bacon has considered Mr. Davis, but that Senator Smith has lodged an objection against him. Senator Bacon has not "indorsed" the Albany man, it is explained, but he has had him "favorably in mind." Whether the objection of Senator Smith will operate to eliminate Davis is the question.

Mr. Davis, it appears, is charged with not being "progressive enough" in his politics to suit the junior Senator—at least, that is the way The Savannah Press hands out the "dope," and, presumably, it speaks by the card.

And, anyway, Davis is in Washington looking into things for himself, and the outcome of his visit is being watched with genuine interest throughout the State.

Georgia politicians have been greatly interested in the development of the Gainesville and Rome postmastership situations, and now that both have been settled, further developments are being watched with even greater interest.

President Wilson in disregarding Congressman Bell's recommendation as to the Gainesville office—Mr. Bell's home office—has set aside a precedent very few expected to see broken. From time immemorial it has been customary for the President to name without question the man nominated by a Representative for his home office. Bell's recommendation of Mr. Hardy in Gainesville, however, was passed over, even before Bell got through talking to the President about Hardy.

Vital Questions Face Presbyterian Assemblies at Atlanta Meet

Proposed Union of United and Southern Churches Interests Dixie

Mark A. Matthews, D. D., Seattle, Wash., retiring Moderator.

Vital questions of worldwide interest, will come before the Presbyterian assemblies in Atlanta. Perhaps the most interesting of these to the layman is the effort to be made in the Southern Assembly to change the "elect infant clause" to remove all ground for the supposition that all infants are not saved.

This will come up in consideration of section 3, chapter 10 of the Confession of Faith and will not be new work for a General Assembly of this church. The proposed changes have been thoroughly discussed and recommended by a number of assemblies, but no change proposed as yet has met the approval of three-fourths of the Presbyteries.

The proposed change in this paragraph which was approved by the Bristol Assembly causes the paragraph to read thus: "Being elect, all infants dying in infancy are regenerated and saved by Christ through the Spirit, who worketh when, and where, and how he pleaseth. So also are all other elect persons, who are incapable of being outwardly called by the ministry of the word," this wording to be substituted that now appearing in the Confession of Faith and which reads: "Elect infants dying in infancy etc."

Presbyteries Have Voted.

The Presbyteries have taken vote on the proposed change during the spring meetings and the action of the General Assembly in ordering a change in the wording of this paragraph of the Confession of Faith will be determined by the vote of the Presbyteries. It is hardly to be expected that three-fourths of the Presbyteries will favor the proposed change and it is not unlikely this question will be discussed as thoroughly during the Atlanta Assembly as has been true during other Assemblies.

There is a growing desire upon the part of some prominent ministers of the church for this paragraph to be stricken from the Confession of Faith and thus obliterate all ground for the supposition that any infant or other irresponsible person who dies can fail to be saved, and it is probable that more than one overture to that effect will be presented to the Assembly at Atlanta.

Among the questions of particular interest to the South is the proposed union of the United Presbyterian Church with the Southern Presbyterian Church and this question will be presented in the report of the Committee on Conference, appointed by the Assembly of 1912, which committee in joint meeting with a similar committee appointed by the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church has prepared a basis of union for the two churches and this basis of union will be presented to the General Assemblies of both churches for action.

Terms Not Made Public.

Just what this basis of union is has not been made known to others than the members of the two committees. The basis of union was agreed upon several weeks ago, but the two Committees of Conference decided that as a matter of courtesy to the Assemblies of both churches it should not be given publicity until officially presented to these two bodies.

Rev. R. C. Reed, D. D., of Columbia, S. C., is chairman of the Committee of Conference for the Southern Presbyterian Church and the following named ministers and laymen constitute the other members of this important committee: Rev. S. L. Morris, D. D., of Atlanta; Rev. J. F. Cannon, D. D., of St. Louis; Allen G. Hall, of Nashville, Moderator of the Assembly of 1906; and W. F. Stevenson, of Cheraw, S. C. The General Assembly will await the presentation of no other report with a greater degree of interest than the report of the Committee on Conference, and there is no matter of greater importance to come before the body than the question of the union of these two churches.

The standards held by the United Presbyterian Church are the same as those held by the Southern Presbyterian Church and in the same sense each church accepts them. The two churches possess the same Scotch ancestry, adhere to the same policy, and administer the affairs of benevolences under the same departments. The distinct point of difference between the two churches is the exclusive use of the Psalms in the service of praise in the United Presbyterian Church and it is around this point, in all probability, that the greatest discussion will center in the consideration of the union of the two churches.

Two Other Big Features.

There are two other questions to come before the General Assembly that will constitute outstanding features: The Federal Council and the brief popular statement of Doctrine of the Church.

During the Assembly of 1912, held at Bristol delegates were appointed to represent the Southern Presbyterian Church in the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, which held its quadrennial meeting in December, at Chicago. The report of these delegates will be heard with interest. It is not improbable that overtures will be presented to the Assembly urging that it withdraw again from membership in the Council, but it is likely that a second withdrawal from membership in the Council will be opposed as ably as it will be recommended.

Two changes in the form of government of the church have been proposed and will be considered by the Atlanta Assembly. One is with reference to cases of trial in the church and the proposed change, which was approved by the Bristol Assembly, would give the Synod and the General Assembly the power, at their own discretion, to commit any case of trial coming before them on appeal to the judgment of a Commission, composed of others than members of the Court from which the case shall come, this power to apply in all cases except those affecting doctrine and those shall be tried by the Court itself.

The other proposed change is with reference to the basis of representation in the General Assembly. The basis of representation at present is one minister and one ruling elder from every Presbytery except in those Presbyteries where there are more than twenty-five ministers and in those the representation in the General Assembly shall be two ministers and two ruling elders, but no additional number of churches increases the representation.

Plan Graduated Scale.

The change proposed recommends that every Presbytery shall be represented in the General Assembly by one minister and one ruling elder and that if the communicants of the churches in the Presbytery and ministers on the roll number more than four thousand, the Presbytery shall be entitled to increase its representation to the Assembly with one minister and one ruling elder and that the representation continue to increase in like proportion with the addition of every four thousand communicants and ministers.

During the year since the Bristol Assembly the Presbyteries have taken action with regard to the proposed changes in the form of government; the answers of the eighty-nine Presbyteries will be tabulated during the Atlanta Assembly and if three-fourths of the answers favor the proposed changes, the changes will become law, by the enactment of the Assembly.

The ad interim committee appointed by the Bristol Assembly to prepare a brief popular statement of the doctrines taught by the Southern Presbyterian Church is composed of fifteen representative men from all sections of the church, with Rev. R. A. Webb, D. D., of the Kentucky Presbyterian Theological Seminary, at Louisville, as chairman. This committee may be able to submit its report to the Atlanta Assembly, but it will not be cause for surprise if longer time is requested to complete this important work.

The preparation of this brief popular statement has been requested for use especially as a tract in mission territory as well as in other sections of the church; this statement will in no way displace the standards of the church, but will express the same in a simplified form and one that will be easy to handle, especially in mission territory of the church.

DEMOCRATS PICK CAMPAIGN HEADS

WASHINGTON, May 10.—The compromise reached at the meeting of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee apparently is satisfactory to all members, both in the House and Senate, and President Wilson. The meeting was short and the results accomplished were obtained by unanimous consent.

Representative Lloyd, of Missouri, and Mr. Page, of North Carolina, were selected as the temporary chairman and secretary of the committee until a permanent organization may be perfected. The motion was made by Representative Ben Johnson, of Kentucky, who is said to be slated to succeed Mr. Lloyd.

Following is the new membership of the committee:

Senators—Missouri, Stone; Virginia, Martin; Texas, Culberson; Nevada, Newlands; Alabama, Bankhead; Oklahoma, Owens; Oregon, Chamberlain.

Predicts Trouble in Cuba at Inauguration

"Moral and Political Conditions Are Awful," Says Henry T. Woodruff.

NEW YORK, May 10.—"The moral and political conditions of Cuba are awful," declared Henry T. Woodruff, a veteran of the Civil War, who has arrived from Havana.

Mr. Woodruff has spent the winter in Cuba for the last fifteen years.

"I have been informed on reliable authority that the rebels have obtained 12,000 rifles which belonged to the Federal Government. The people of Havana are seeking bloodshed, and it would not surprise me if murder was committed when Menocal is inaugurated on May 20."

Turn Down Pinero and Lady Nicotine

London Theater Managers Reject His Plan and Will Bar Smokers.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 10.—Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's proposal to allow smoking in the London theaters, was emphatically rejected by the Society of West End Theater Managers, who voted against the proposal with only one dissenting voice.

Sir Arthur's purpose was to alienate the patronage of the music halls, he believing that many men went there to enjoy nicotine rather than vaudeville.

RESINOL QUICKLY CURED HER BABY'S SEVERE ECZEMA

Had Not Had a Good Night's Rest in Eight Months.

Chelsea, Mass., Jan. 19, 1913.—"My son had been troubled with eczema for about one year. It first appeared when three months old. I tried everything that was recommended and also different prescriptions, but of no avail. For eight months my child did not enjoy a good night's rest. I was finally told to try Resinol. This I did, and from the first application the child got relief and put in a good night's sleep. In three days there was no sign of eczema—to-day he has as fine a complexion as any healthy child and is entirely cured." (Signed) Mrs. T. S. Brown, 54 Crescent Ave.

Resinol positively stops itching instantly and speedily heals eczema and other skin humors, dandruff, sores, burns and piles. Prescribed by doctors for 18 years. Sold by every druggist. Resinol Ointment in opal jars, 50 cents and $1.00. Resinol Soap, 25 cents. For generous free trial, write Dept. 19-S, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

Slayer of Countess, Convict, Seeks Death

Guards Watch Lieutenant Paterno, Who Would Escape Imprisonment Through Suicide.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

ROME, May 10.—Lieutenant Paterno, serving a life sentence for the murder in 1912 of the queen's waiting maid, Countess Trigona, was secretly conveyed to the penitentiary in Porto Longone to-day. Owing to the prisoner's dread of solitary confinement and determination to end his life, four warders have been detailed to watch him day and night.

The doctors ascribe his suicidal mania to cowardice. They have given him morphine to cause artificial sleep and thus prolong his life. The authorities have tried to hide Paterno's resolve to kill himself lest his example be followed by others desiring to evade sentences of solitary confinement.

Other convicts who have ended their lives generally concealed their determination, but Paterno calmly announced his intention to the officials. The latter are anxious to preserve his life at all costs that he may expiate his crime according to law.

Opera Stars Deny Any Estrangement

LONDON, May 10.—Six days at sea evidently soothed the distraught nerves of the grand opera singers who have arrived from New York.

Denial was made of the report that there was any estrangement of the forces of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company which would prevent their assemblage again next season. Conductor Toscanini, about whom there have been numerous rumors, said: "My contract has two years to run and as usual I will fulfill my contract."

All the singers except Emmy Destinn, who has taken a house in London, have gone to Paris. Mme. Destinn, who is an art connoisseur, has secured a large Rivviera picture. It was so big she had to hire a truck to transport it to the railway station.

Street Car Fight Won.

COLUMBUS.—After the city had appealed to the State Railroad Commission, the Columbus Railroad Company has rebuilt its tracks and resumed operations in Sixth Street.

Wilson in Dilemma, Says London Paper

President Sympathizes With Japan, It Adds—Cannot Enforce His Views.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 10.—The London Morning Post, in an editorial, says:

"No doubt the action of the California Legislature in passing a bill depriving Japanese settlers of the right to own land, placed the President in a very difficult position.

"Japan resents this legislation as descriminating unfairly against her citizens, and claims it is a violation of the treaty between herself and the United States. So far as known President Wilson recognizes the justice of Japan's complaints, but he has no obvious means of compelling the people of California to accept his view of the case. * * * * It is certain Japan will protest and will insist on taking some action to vindicate her rights."

"CASCARETS" MAKE YOU FEEL GREAT

Gently Cleanse Your Liver and Sluggish Bowels While You Sleep.

Sick headache, biliousness, dizziness, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath—always trace them to torpid liver, delayed fermenting food in the bowels, or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is reabsorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Salts, cathartic pills, oil and purgative waters force a passageway for a day or two—yes—but they don't take the poisons out and have no effect upon the liver or stomach.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels clean and regular for months.

A Word of Appreciation

The Presbyterians of Atlanta desire in this way to express our deep sense of appreciation for the generous hospitality offered by the hundreds of our fellow citizens of all creeds and denominations.

The tender of these beautiful homes will enable us to give our distinguished visitors a rare vision of true Southern hospitality that we are sure they will long remember.

We can only hope that every home privileged to have one or more of these godly men may in turn receive a blessing and a benediction thru the years to come.

How Dancing Develops a Beautiful Figure

The SUNDAY AMERICAN Will Tell You All About It

The World of Society

MRS. JOHN S. CLARKE entertained very informally at tea at her home on Peachtree Saturday afternoon in honor of Miss Helen Rowland, of Savannah, who is the guest of Mrs. O. Clifton Drew, Jr. Fifteen young married women were guests of the occasion. Mrs. Clarke was assisted in entertaining by her daughter, Mrs. A. D. Adair, Jr.

Garden flowers decorated the house throughout. The tea table had as its centerpiece a tall silver vase of Paul Neyron roses. All the minor details were carried out in pink.

Mrs. Clarke wore a beautiful lingerie gown, elaborately trimmed in lace.

Registered Nurses' Meeting.

The Atlanta Registered Nurses' Club will hold a special meeting at Grady Hospital Tuesday afternoon, May 13, at 3:30 o'clock.

All the registered nurses are urged to be present to vote on an amendment to an article in the constitution and by-laws.

Parties for Miss Barnes.

Miss Gwendolyn Barnes, of Uniontown, Pa., arrived Saturday afternoon to visit Miss Alice Vandiver, and will be tendered a series of parties.

Saturday evening Miss Nina Gentry entertains for Miss Barnes at the dinner dance at the Piedmont Driving Club. Sunday evening Miss Vandiver gives an informal supper party, and next week she will give a large dinner party for Miss Barnes. The following week Miss Vandiver will give a large afternoon bridge for her. Mrs. John J. Woodside, Jr., will also entertain for her.

For Miss Fisher, of Charleston.

Mr. W. V. Zimmer entertained a large number of guests Saturday afternoon at an old-fashioned barbecue at his farm, Kimballville. The company was invited at 2 o'clock. The barbecue was arranged in honor of Miss Marie Fisher, of Charleston, S. C.

Dance at East Lake.

An informal subscription dance will be given at the East Lake club house Saturday evening. A number of young people will be present.

Report of Home for Incurables.

At the annual meeting of the ladies' board of the Home for Incurables, held May 5 at the Carnegie Library, a splendid report was made of the year's work. Seventy-one patients have been cared for during the past year, and 19 new members have joined, making a total membership of 139. Mrs. Floyd McRae, president, presided. Mrs. Frank Holland, treasurer, presented a report showing the receipts and expenditures for the year, with a balance on hand May 1 of $1,383.83. Mrs. Whiteford Russell, recording secretary, presented a report of the year's work, and gave a detailed account of the great amount of good being done by this institution.

Mrs. Newman Entertains Club.

Mrs. William T. Newman entertained the Every Saturday History Class Saturday morning, the meeting being followed by luncheon.

Secretary Daniels In Georgia Sunday

SAVANNAH, GA., May 10.—Gorgeous flags and pennants of all nations will float from the spars and halyards of every vessel in the Savannah harbor to-morrow afternoon, upon the occasion of the visit to Savannah of Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, of North Carolina, concluding his first official tour of the naval stations on the South Atlantic and Gulf coasts.

Secretary Daniels is expected to arrive between 6 and 7 o'clock. The torpedo boat destroyer on which he will make the trip from Port Royal, S. C., will dock at the foot of Bull Street. The trip from Port Royal will be made through Callaboga Sound. Owing to the uncertainty of a journey by water, it is not known precisely when the Secretary will arrive.

Farmer Dies in Fire He Sets; Women Saved

Scheme to Cremate Family Fails When Neighbors Extinguish Burning House.

PITTSBURG, May 10.—Jacob Dewalt, an aged and well-to-do farmer, of South Fayette township, it is believed, burned himself to death during the early morning hours, but a scheme to cremate alive his wife and 18-year-old daughter failed, when a fire in dry fence rails piled against the house was extinguished.

Dewalt evidently crawled into a hay mow beside his barn during the night and set it afire. The flames spread to the barn, causing the death of two horses and two cows. The charred body was found, the head, arms and legs burned off, lying against the side of the building.

According to Dewalt's daughter and neighbors, Dewalt had frequently threatened to kill the entire family.

'Declining Morals Due to Immodest Dress'

Clergyman Likens Women's Gowns to Trousers With Only One Leg.

ALTOONA, PA., May 10.—The immodest fashions were blamed for the declining moral standards in America by Rev. J. H. Keller, a Lutheran minister, of Phillipsburg, Pa., speaking before Northeast Synod of the Lutheran Church. He said:

"If women want to wear trousers, why do they not wear them with both legs, instead of trying to stick both feet into one leg.

"With the immodest dress of the average girl of to-day it requires a great deal of nerve for the minister to look the ladies unblushingly in the face and give them a warm handshake at the door of the church."

Bride He Purchased Rifles His Pockets

Father of Wife Leaves Vicinity Because of Feeling Aroused by Exposure in Pennsylvania City.

BUTLER, PA., May 10.—The charge of larceny presented by Joseph Elies, of the West End, against his wife, a bride of a few days, brought to light to-day the allegation that her father, Joseph Solomon, had sold her to Elies.

$300,000 GARAGE FIRES LAID TO AUTO-MANIAC

CHICAGO, May 10.—Forty automobiles were burned and the lives of scores imperiled when fire destroyed the American Motor Livery Company's garage early to-day.

Sixty electric automobiles were destroyed in a garage fire here yesterday. The police believe a maniac with a particular aversion to automobiles is responsible for the fires. The loss in both fires is $300,000.

WOMAN, 60, SEEKS DIVORCE WHEN HUBBY, 26, DESERTS

SOUTH BEND, IND., May 10.—Mrs. Anna Beezy, aged 60, to-day was seeking a divorce from Roy Beezy, aged 26. The divorce complaint was filed after Mrs. Beezy failed in an attempt to have her youthful husband brought back to South Bend on a charge of wife desertion.

The Breezys were married two years ago.

White City Park Now Open

THOUSANDS OF 'KIDDIES' ENTER BIG FIELD MEET

Thousands of Atlanta school children are at Ponce DeLeon to-day participating in the annual field day exercises of the Atlanta public schools. Long before 8 o'clock a great throng of the "kiddies" wended their way to the park, though the program did not begin until 9. Approximately 4,000 children from the grammar grades will take part in the various events.

Feature of the day will be the flag drill by 1,400 children dressed in the national colors and carrying American flags. Spread over the huge diamond of Ponce DeLeon Park this mass drill presents a wonderfully pretty sight. It will be followed by the Butterfly Roundel, an esthetic event by the pupils from the fourth grades. It is a figure drill executed with remarkable precision. The children have been training for six weeks on it.

A unique feature of the day will be the sponsors, a group of the prettiest girls from the high school with Confederate veterans of Camp Walker as escorts. Representatives of several moving picture concerns will take pictures of the various drills and contests.

The older athletes will open the program for their events. This will give them the opportunity of displaying their ability before becoming tired out with the other exercises. There will be a 100-yard dash, high jump, standing broad jump and bar chinning contest. The girls' athletic events will follow the boys'. There will be a 75-yard run, standing broad jump, high jump and throwing the basketball.

KEEP THE BALANCE UP.

It has been truthfully said that any disturbance of the even balance of health causes serious trouble. Nobody can be too careful to keep this balance up. When people begin to lose appetite, or to get tired easily, the least imprudence brings on sickness, weakness, or debility. The system needs a tonic, craves it, and should not be denied it; and the best tonic of which we have any knowledge is Hood's Sarsaparilla. What this medicine has done in keeping healthy people healthy, in keeping up the even balance of health, gives it the same distinction as a preventive that it enjoys as a cure. Its early use has illustrated the wisdom of the old saying that a stitch in time saves nine. Take Hood's for appetite, strength and endurance.

BOY FROM COLLEGE PARK LEADS IN PONY CONTEST

Has 18,535 Votes, but When Analyzed, There is Nothing in That to Frighten Other Contestants. Many Have "Something Up Their Sleeves."

Frank Ison, of College Park, has the best start in The Georgian and American's contest for the pony outfits. He had 18,535 votes yesterday. Probably he has many more to-day.

Fannie Cook, 488 Pulliam Street, has 6,600, and Florence Greenoe, 387 Pulliam Street, has 6,045—there's a close race in District No. 4.

Then there is a considerable number with 2,000 and 3,000 votes.

All this may seem discouraging to the boy or girl who has simply the original, which goes with the nomination. It should not be, however.

Look at Frank Ison's lead, for instance. He has 18,535 votes. Take off 1,000 for the nomination. That leaves 17,535. Five yearly subscriptions to The Georgian and American would yield 17,500. The 35 more which make up the total may represent the coupons clipped from the daily issues of the paper.

You can get five yearly subscriptions to The Georgian and American in no time at all, can't you? Then you will have done as well as Frank Ison. The only difference is that he, very wisely, has made a flying start.

We predicted yesterday that the votes polled by the contestants will leap up by thousands at a clip. Watch and see if they do not. The names of contestants and their standing will be published frequently that they may know how they and their rivals are getting along.

Daniels Fools Old Salts in Navy Office

Department Navigators Learn for First Time That Florida Has a Panama City.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—The wise old salts of the Navy Department thought they had caught Secretary Daniels in a land-lubber's blunder when they got a telegram from him ordering the gunboat Petrel to Panama City by May 10.

Even the youngest navigator at the department laughed over the message and called attention to the geographical fact that Panama City is on the Pacific side of the Isthmus, while the gunboat Petrel is now en route to Pensacola, Fla. It was suggested that the Secretary be so informed.

Then some one thought of looking up the maps. A search disclosed that there is a Panama City on the Florida coast.

Vincent Astor Host To Senatorial Party

NEW YORK, May 10.—Vice President Marshall and several United States Senators are guests for to-day and to-morrow of Vincent Astor.

The program is a trip up the Hudson on his yacht, Nona, as far as West Point for the annual inspection of the military post, a night at the Astor estate and a visit to Governor Sulzer.

In addition to the Vice President the party will include Senators Johnston, of Alabama; Fletcher, of Florida; Overman, of North Carolina; Vardeman, of Mississippi, and Chamberlin, of Oregon, as well as a number of New York business men.

ARKANSAS SAFE BLOWERS MAKE ESCAPE WITH $1,500

FORT SMITH, ARK., May 10.—A posse was searching the neighborhood of Bonanza, sixteen miles southeast of here to-day for three men who dynamited the safe in the First State Bank there at 1:30 o'clock this morning and escaped with between $1,500 and $2,000 in currency. The men left Bonanza on horseback, headed for Fort Smith.

SUFFRAGETTE BOMB IS FOUND IN POSTOFFICE

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 10.—A suffragette bomb, with an electrical appliance similar to that found in St. Paul's Cathedral, was discovered to-day in the package sorting department of the Reading postoffice. Finding of the infernal machine created a panic among the employees. The bomb was turned over to the police.

Another was found in the passenger waiting room at the busy Lime Street Railroad Station in Liverpool.

The fuse of the Liverpool bomb had been lighted, but had died out before it reached the gunpowder. The instrument of intended destruction consisted of a tin tobacco box filled with gunpowder and scrap iron.

The Reading machine was wrapped in a bulky parcel to which the attention of the postoffice employees was attracted by the sound of ticking. The police were called in and on examination found the parcel contained an electric battery connected to explosives and accompanied by quantities of suffragette literature.

The parcel was addressed to a municipal official of Reading, now on his vacation. The police believe it was timed to explode in his residence during his absence. The clockwork arrangement was in perfect working order.

CHATTANOOGA FURNITURE HOUSE HAS $10,000 BLAZE

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., May 10. The loss sustained by the Bowen-Jumper Furniture Company in a fire that threatened the West Side business district yesterday afternoon was reported to-day to have been $10,000.

BERRIEN CLERK RIDICULES GAME WARDEN CHARGE

Denies People of Milltownn Tried To Intimidate Boisclair, as He Complained.

Charles S. Parham, clerk of the Superior Court of Berrien County, in a letter to The Georgian to-day, ridicules the charges that lawless and disorderly tactics have been adopted by the people of Milltown to intimidate County Game Warden Boisclair.

The letter is an answer to the fear of State Game Warden Mercer that his deputy in Berrien County is being attacked. It is an answer, also, to the charges by Warden Boisclair that the town and surrounding section disregard the laws and authority of officers.

"If Game Warden Mercer will use different tactics from those of Mr. Boisclair," the writer concludes, "he will find any amount of co-operation in punishing those who knowingly violate the game laws, and will find no better people in Georgia."

His letter in part follows:

"Conditions Misrepresented."

To begin with, conditions at Milltown are not at all as represented by Mr. Boisclair. He intimates that the entire town and section is composed of people who disregard the laws of the country or the rights of man, when in reality there are no better class of citizens in Georgia than are found at Milltown.

Mr. Boisclair says that from 200 to 300 angry men gathered about him, threatening his life, etc. This statement is simply false. The writer was on the ground as a disinterested spectator at the time of the would-be trial, seeing and hearing a good portion of what was taking place, sizing up the crowd with fair accuracy, and feels sure that not more than 50 people were gathered there. Eighteen of this number were there from having been served with warrants to so be for trial; nearly all of the remainder had gathered there from idle curiosity and had no part in the proceeding at all.

No Demonstration.

No demonstration of any kind was evident, except that of mirth and fun which usually arises from such occasions. Those who had been arrested (or most of them, at least) took the matter as a huge joke, and had it not been that Mr. Boisclair went around there with a concealed weapon, everything would have passed off quietly and good-humoredly.

Mr. Boisclair says that Mayor Bill Pafford accosted him, leading, with vile epithets, an angry mob of 200 or 300 people, the crowd became menacing, etc., all of which the writer knows to be untrue. As before stated, there were not exceeding 50 persons on the ground and they were quiet and orderly, and had it not been for the fact that Mr. Boisclair was seen with a pistol on his person there would have been no words of any kind.

Bill Pafford is a high-toned, Christian gentleman, who is known all over this, as well as adjoining counties.

James Banks, the owner of the Banks Pond, says he has never objected to people fishing with hook and line in his waters, while R. T. Berryhill, a nephew of Mr. Banks, who has charge of the pond, has always been very liberal in his management of the fishing privilege, never refusing anyone that would ask him permission to catch as many fish as he wanted to.

THE PLAYS THIS WEEK

"THE GIRL" AT THE ATLANTA.

"The Girl From Out Yonder," the offering by the Miss Billy Long company at the Atlanta Theater this week, will be presented at a matinee this afternoon and again to-night. The play has proved immensely popular with patrons of the Atlanta, and Miss Long has won many new friends by her very capable acting. All the other members appear to advantage in parts which afford them abundant opportunity for the display of their special talent.

KEITH VAUDEVILLE AT FORSYTH.

Few acts presented at the Forsyth have attracted more attention than that of Gus Edwards' Kid Kabaret, which is the headliner this week. The number comprises fifteen girls and boys, who dance and sing and offer other pleasing specialties. Belle Story has proved a big hit. She sings delightfully. Williams, Thompson and Copeland have an unusually amusing sketch. The whole bill is one designed to please, and it succeeds admirably. Matinee this afternoon.

COLD WEATHER THREATENS MICHIGAN'S FRUIT CROP

BENTON HARBOR, MICH., May 10.—The fate of more than $1,000,000 worth of fruit in the great fruit region of Michigan to-day was hanging in the balance as the result of unusually cold weather. A further drop in temperature threatened a disastrous freeze.

Smudge pots were burning all of last night. A record crop is predicted if damage by cold is prevented.

ROUND-ABOUT-TOWN STORIES

Friedmann's Patients Bound by Common Tie.

"Six of Dr. Friedmann's tubercular patients are convalescing in Bellevue Hospital," said a physician just back from a visit to New York. "The fact that they have been treated with the serum has naturally caused a bond of sympathy among them, and they are generally to be seen together, strolling in their bathrobes along the sunny walks in the hospital quadrangle. Other inmates of the institution who lack the distinction of contact with the syringe of the Berlin physician are inclined to interpret their alliance as aloofness, and the sextet have come to be dubbed the 'guinea pigs.'"

Wanted to Know His Other Business.

A New Yorker who is stopping at one of the Atlanta hotels, tells this one:

A member of the Stock Exchange well known for his scorn of convention pulled the bellrope of a Long Island Railroad train the other evening because, as he said, he was "tired of being a perpendicular sardine" and he was determined either to have a seat or get out. He was arrested. When the case came up in court the railroad's lawyer said insinuatingly:

"Are you a drinking man, Mr. Blank?"

"That's my business," said the broker with dignity.

"Right," said the lawyer. "Now tell the court, Mr. Blank, if you have any other business."

Rear Seats Are In Demand.

"One thing I can't get used to," said the ticket seller at a downtown moving picture house, "is the demand for rear seats. All my life I have been under the impression that folks who went to the theater wanted to get as near the stage as possible, but in the moving picture business the reverse seems true. People want to get far back so they can get a better focus on the pictures. In this house the back seats fill up long before the front ones do. I got a jolt the other day, however. A fellow came to the window and said, "'Can you give me a seat in the first row? I'm hard of hearing.'

"I told him we didn't sell reserved seats—that he would have to take his chances with the rest. Anyhow, I assured him, the pictures were being run and it didn't really make any difference if he was hard of hearing."

CROWDS VISIT REVIVAL TO HEAR EVANGELIST HAWKINS

The revival which Evangelist Hawkins is conducting at the West End Christian Church continues to attract large crowds. Five converts were baptized Friday night before one of the largest gatherings of the week.

Following are sermon subjects for the coming week: Saturday night, "The Way of Faith;" Sunday morning, "The First Lord's Day;" Sunday evening, "Salvation;" Tuesday evening, "The Thief on the Cross;" Wednesday evening, "What Must I Do to Be Lost." There will be no services Monday.

SALOONS ASK COURT TO FORCE CITY TO TAKE TAX

HAMMOND, IND., May 10.—The first case on record in this State where taxpayers attempt to force a municipality to accept thousands of dollars was brought to-day in the Hammond Superior Court, where 80 Gary saloon men asked Judge Lawrence Becker to mandate the city of Gary to accept $200 apiece from them.

The Gary authorities hold saloon licenses to be $500 and refuse the $200 as provided by the City Council in an earlier ordinance.

NEGROES GIVE FUND FOR CONFEDERATE REUNION

GRAFT FOE PLANS REVENGE IF SLAIN

Directs $50,000 Insurance Be Used to Prosecute Assassins if He Is Killed.

NEW YORK, May 10.—George A. Sipp, former Raines law hotel keeper, who exposed the alliance of the police and underworld in Harlem's tenderloin, said today he had taken out $50,000 worth of life insurance and added a codicil to his will directing that the sum be spent in prosecuting his murderers should he be assassinated as the result of his exposures of the police graft syndicate.

Warden Hayes, of the Blackwells Island prison, is having a difficult time finding occupations for James F. Thompson, John J. Murtha, Dennis Sweeney and James E. Hussey, the four former police inspectors who were sentenced to a year for obstructing justice. None of the prisoners has received industrial training along any special line.

Sergeant Peter J. Duffy, charged with collecting graft for Sweeney, will be arraigned late this month or early in June. In connection with the search for more evidence, District Attorney Whitman has learned of a "clairvoyant trust" which has paid big sums for protection.

JOKERS GIVE BABY WINE; LITTLE GIRL NEARLY DIES

PERTH AMBOY, May 10.—Two men paid $45 in fines for giving a year-old girl a drink of port wine. The child went into convulsions, but was restored.

The child found her way into a barroom. Charles Webber picked her up and jokingly called for a drink. Benjamin Wonder, the proprietor, set a glass of port on the bar. Webber gave the child the wine.

Ricardi Sues Rigo For $100,000 'Loans'

NEW YORK, May 10.—That Mme. Ricardi, formerly the Princess DeChimay and originally Clara Ward, of Detroit, is suing Janezi Rigo, the gypsy violinist she eloped with seventeen years ago in Paris, for $100,000, became known to-day. Mme. Ricardi claims this was loaned Rigo in the three years they lived together.

In his apartments here, where he is living with his latest wife, who was Kitty Emerson, wife of Caspar Emerson, Jr., of Philadelphia, Rigo declared the Princess DeChimay is hounding him because he refuses to go back to her.

"My wife knows this," said Rigo, "but I will never do it. I love my wife madly. Nothing can separate us."

VOLS SCOURING UNIVERSE FOR GOOD HURLERS

NASHVILLE, TENN., May 10.—The incessant bombardment of the Vols flingers has almost driven Bill Schwartz insane and his frenzied shrieks for "Hellup" on the hurling hill has completely upset Mr. Hirsig, who was jogging along so serenely, dreaming dreams of bunting fluttering next year in his nice, new ball park.

On the next platform we have seen Mr. Hirsig wigwagging the distressing news to every big league mogul north of the Mason and Dixon's line for an able bodied slabman who can not only get "em over, but can ge. em past em."

The first aid to the injured comes once more from Redland, whence cameth Cy Dalgren, who had oodles of stuff on the pill but who refused to put the pellet where any opponent could get a crack at it. Cy has been returned to Tinkertown with much thanks and in his stead comes 'Chick' Smith, who is alleged to be some pitcher.

Smith is a portsider and although this is his first season in fast society, coming from the corner lots in Cincinnati, he has shown the making of a great pitcher.

Hendee Goes to Cairo.

Sam Hendee, the titanic coal miner, has been shunted along to Cairo, Ill., in the Kitty League since no team in the Southern League could find a uniform to encompass Samuel. Charles Alabi Caze, will in all probability be trade to some club in this circuit, the Turtles for instance, for Bill Bernhard, still remembers the high-grade stuff that the jinx flinger uncovered in 1908. Which was quite a few years back and old age doesn't seem to have the same effect on Case that it does on old wine.

Memphis has offered the Vols a pitcher for Case, but the deal is still hanging fire until waivers have been secured from all the other clubs.

Hirsig made a desperate attempt to land Rube Benton, the ex-Lookout from the Reds, but Reuben is one of the best ball players Cincinnati has had in some time, and although Mr. Hirsig gritted his teeth and offered a wheelbarrow full of regular money for Benton, the Reds refused to give him up.

Ebbets May Help Out.

Hirsig expects Charley Ebbets of the Dodgers to dig up a pitcher for the Vols, and Connie Mack of the Athletics has offered to help him out, too. Connie suggested that the Vols land Roger Salmon from Louisville, for Roger once wore an Athletic uniform, but if he isn't good enough for the Colonels, he surely won't be able to stop the big sticks in this league, which is just about as fast as the American Association, no matter if they do have A. A. tacked on to them.

After starting out like champions on the present road trip the Vols have suddenly developed into selling platers and poor work in the box is the cause of the whole trouble.

Beck is the only dependable slabman, and it takes more than one high-class flinger to hold any club in select company.

PELS SECURE WILSON.

CLEVELAND, OHIO, May 10.—Pitcher Finish E. Wilson, southpaw, who came to the Cleveland club from the Knoxville, Tenn., club last fall, yesterday was released to New Orleans Southern League team.

Banish All Skin Troubles

A Remarkable Remedy That Works Wonders Against Even Weeping Eczema.

If you have been fighting some blood trouble, some skin disease, call it eczema, lupus, psoriasis, malaria or what you will, there is but one sure, safe way to cure it. Ask at any drug store for a $1.00 bottle of S. S. S. and you are then on the road to health. The action of this remarkable remedy is just as direct, just as positive, just as certain in its influence as that the sun rises in the East. It is one of those rare medical forces which act in the blood with the same degree of certainty that is found in all natural tendencies. The manner in which it dominates and controls the mysterious transference of rich, red, pure arterial blood for the diseased venous blood is marvelous.

Out through every skin pore acids, germs and other blood impurities are forced in the form of invisible vapor. The lungs breathe it out, the liver is stimulated to consume a great proportion of impurities, the stomach and intestines cease to convey into the blood stream the catarrhal, malarial germs; the bowels, kidneys, bladder and all emunctories of the body are marshaled into a fighting force to expel every vestige of eruptive disease.

There is scarcely a community anywhere but what has its living example of the wonderful curative effects of S. S. S. Get a bottle of this famous remedy to-day, and if your case is stubborn or peculiar, write to The Swift Specific Company, 137 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Their medical laboratory is famous and is conducted by renowned experts in blood and skin diseases. Their advice is entirely free and always strictly personal.

Morris and Pitts to Hurl To-day

Tech Downs Georgia in Opener

By J. W. Heisman.

ATHENS, GA., May 10.—The game here Friday between Georgia and Tech bore out all previous history and traditions of these special contests. Dope went wrong once more and Tech won. This means that the crowd in attendance to-day will be gigantic, though it will have to be if it is to be any larger than Friday's. As for the game to-day, it is as hard to forecast a winner as it was in yesterday's contest. Both teams are in their very best shape of the season, and both will battle their heads off.

Morris will probably do the hurling for Georgia, and Pitts for Tech. Each team has now sized up the other's batting, fielding and base running, and they will therefore be in better position to watch and try to checkmate every strategic move of the opposition.

A special train will be run from Atlanta over the Seaboard for to-day's game, and that means that Tech at least will have many more friends and rooters on hand to cheer them on than they had yesterday, though the number of leather-lunged supporters of the Gold and White was surprisingly large.

Yesterday's game was Tech's right from the start. Wooten was the first man up for Tech in the first inning, and the first ball he swung at felt his deadly stinger for a slam into the distant branch and was a home run. Now, the very odd thing about this is that at a mass meeting Thursday in the Tech chapel Wooten, when called upon for a speech, said that he was going to do this very thing, smash the first ball he swung at into the ditch for a home run. Can you beat it?

Scores on Wild Heave.

Then after Moore and Pitts had grounded out Montague secured a life on Clements' error. On Harrison's error Pound also reached first alive and on a throw by the pitcher to second that went out into center field, Montague took third. Then Pound stole second. Next Corley again tried to catch the runner off second and again it went on through and Montague came home. Amason got a base on balls, but Donaldson fanned and Tech took the field with a big two to her credit on the scoreboard.

In Georgia's half of the first Ginn was first up for Georgia and he promptly walked. Then he stole second, went to third on an infield out, and scored on McWhorter's long sacrifice fly to center. That ended Georgia's scoring in this inning.

Tech got no more till the fourth, when Donaldson hit safely to right field. Attridge sacrificed and on Corley's error both men were safe. On Eubanks' sharp bunt Donaldson was thrown out at third, but Wooten got to first on the shortstop's error and the bases were full. Here Corley walked Moore, forcing Attridge in. Then Pitts filed out to left and Eubanks scored on the throw-in. This made four for Tech and ended its scoring.

This lead of 4 to 1 Tech held until the seventh. Then, with one on and one down, Attridge carelessly dropped an easy infield pop and both Clements and Ginn were safe. Tech got into trouble right here, for Harrison hit safely to left and scored Clements, Ginn taking third on the throw-in. McWhorter contributed his mite by placing a long one in center, which Wooten finally pulled down, but Ginn scored on the catch, bringing Georgia's total up to 3.

Well, well, both teams went out in one-two-three order in the eighth, and so did Tech in the ninth. Then, with one Georgia man out, Clements hit safely to left. Ginn grounded to Montague and Clements was forced at second. Then Harrison slammed a stem-winder to left that looked good for a homer and with it the game.

Everybody watched Pound in left and strained their eyes, heart and head tonsils off. Finally with a prodigious leap backward Pound connected with the thing and hung to it. It was a wonderful catch.

Both Pitched Good Ball.

Both pitchers hurled superbly. Corley gave up but four hits, while Eubanks yielded six. But the latter deserved the greater credit, because he kept these six so widely scattered and because he was hurling to much heavier hitters than was Corley. Besides, the latter forced in a run, which lost Georgia the game.

But for Attridge's muff Tech would have played an errorless game, thus living up to the best of Tech traditions in playing their best ball against Georgia in Athens.

The whole Tech team fielded superbly, but Wooten must be given special mention for his great work in center. Everybody admired it.

Ginn ran bases in great form for Georgia, and Hutchens, besides catching a fine game, slapped out three of Georgia's six hits. The Georgia team played a jam-up game in all respects save in the field, where their work was rather ragged.

Altogether, it was fine baseball. To-day is sure to produce a game equally as good.

LAGRANGE BALL CLUB WINS ATTENDANCE TROPHY

LAGRANGE, GA., May 10.—In addition to winning yesterday's game in a sensational manner, LaGrange has also won the atendance trophy of the Georgia-Alabama League. More than 1,900 people crowded the grounds on opening day, which is by several hundred more than any other opening game of the towns in the league. The LaGrange team is now in first-class condition. All those who have been out of the game are ready to play ball, and the outlook for the team to win from now on is splendid.

STAHL LEAVES HOSPITAL.

BOSTON, May 10.—Manager Stahl, of the champion Red Sox, whose foot was operated on Monday, left the hospital to-day and with the assistance of a cane was able to make his way about town. Although Stahl expects to join the Red Sox in the West early next week and resume the active management of the club, it will be some time before his name will appear in the line-up.

FATE OF GEORGE STOVALL TO BE SETTLED SUNDAY

ST. LOUIS, May 10.—At a meeting of the directors of the St. Louis American League club here to-morrow, which will be attended by President Ban Johnson, the fate of Manager Stovall will be decided. It is also likely that some action will be taken regarding the poor umpiring with which St. Louis has been afflicted this season.

The local club is going to have something to say about the penalty for Stovall. Colonel Hedges is the majority stockholder and the meeting of the directors seems superfluous, unless the Colonel believes there is safety in numbers.

ANDERSON AND MANDOT ARE WORKING FOR BOUT

LOS ANGELES, May 10.—With the arrival from Medford, Oregon, to-day of "Bud" Anderson, and Manager Dick Donald, both principals in the next lightweight battle here, are on the ground.

Anderson, who is matched to meet Joe Mandot in a scheduled 20-round bout before the Pacific Athletic Club at Vernon on the night of May 20, will reopen his old training camp at Doyle's Vernon camp.

Mandot has been in light training for the past week. Yesterday at the Venice camp he boxed four rounds, using "Dude" Clark and "Hobo" Dougherty as sparring partners.

FURCHNER WILL FACE BILLS IN THIRD BATTLE

By Joe Agler.

Crackers' First Baseman.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., May 10. The Crackers' new twirler, recently secured from Manager Finn, will make his debut against the Billikens in the third game this afternoon.

Manager Bill Smith is hard up for a pitcher and has decided to give his new hurler a chance. We have been getting some awful pitching while on this trip, all the boys being way off form.

Weaver was sent home, to Atlanta, after yesterday's game to rest his sore arm. Buck has not been right since way early in the season, and Smith has decided to give him a rest until the sore member is again ready for use.

The Crackers hope to cop the two remaining games, and with any kind of pitching should annex both battles on the right side of the ledger.

Whitey Alperman was the swatting king for Atlanta yesterday. Whitey pounded out three safe drives. Donahue secured two two-baggers for the Billikens. The final score was: Billikens, 10; Crackers, 2.

Bill Bailey's foot is getting along nicely, and he will be in the game against Memphis, if not sooner. Chappelle was in uniform yesterday, and says he will win many games for us. The boys are all pulling for Bailey to return, as we certainly are missing his trustworthy stick.

MOTORCYCLE STARS WILL RACE AT PRINCE'S TRACK

Jack Prince, owner of the new motordrome being built here, stated last night that twelve of the speediest riders on the coast are now on their way to Atlanta to compete in the first night's races here. Prince expects to hold the first series of races around the twentieth of this month.

Montey, Graves, Henry Lewis, S. A. Shields and Ed Hannon are among these who will appear here.

Inquiries have also come to Prince from Birmingham, Columbus, Ga., and other nearby cities from various riders, who are seeking information concerning the races.

TALBOTTON BEATS BUTLER.

TALBOTTON, GA., May 10.—The Talbotton boys defeated Butler here yesterday to the tune of 12 to 10. Ray Burt did the box work for Talbotton, while Chapman, for Butler, was knocked all over the field.

FOOD FOR SPORT FANS

By GEORGE E. PHAIR.

B. NELSON.

He fought and he fought and he fought,
That Dane with the yellowish hair.
He never knew how, with his yellow-haired brow,
But he fought all his fights on the square.
He fought like the fighter he was,
He took all the wallops that came;
But the son of a gun, when the fighting was done,
You will have to admit he was game.

Mr. F. Chance is beginning to realize that it is hard to be a Peerless Leader unless there is something to lead.

In other words, Mr. Chance threatens to burst into the archives of baseball as the teamless Leader.

One is glad to hear from Ban Johnson that the American League will not tolerate roughneck conduct. One is thereby led to expect that peanut peddlers will be expunged from the grand stand.

Scientists tell us that a hole driven straight through the earth will land in China. If Frank Chance does not have a care he may become a Chinaman.

Rube Waddell is said to be broke, which financial conditions is about two bits less than usual.

Nevertheless, there are kind words to be said about the Federal League. It never will be known as a gret-rich-quick scheme.

Possibly we are mistaken, but John McGraw once hired a youth known as Jim Thorpe.

From now on it will be hard to blame George Stovall if he develops a grouch against spitball pitchers.

Still, the penalty might not have been so strong if the Browns had not been playing too strong for the good of the league.

If Tyrus Cobb had been guilty of the same stunt he might have been given three slaps on the wrist and fined $50, which the club would have paid—again.

The difference between expectorating on an umpire and sliding an innocent bystander is merely the difference as a drawing card between the expectorator and the roughneck.

If Jimmy Clabby and Eddie McGoorty were to pull off one of their terrific battles before the Legislature, said Legislature would decide that pugilism is almost as dangerous as crokinole.

There seems to be a conspiracy among American League pitchers in restraint of the athletes alleged to be working for F. Chance.

Ed Konetchy's pitching stunt ought to put a lot of our athletes to shame. Some of said athletes can't play one position.

Looking at it from a fair and impartial standpoint, we are willing to lay one (1) dollar that Reuben Marquard will not win nineteen straight games this season. In fact, when Mr. Marquard wins a game it is a winning streak.

One is willing to admit for the sake of argument that Luther McCarty is the best of our white heavyweights. A milk man's horse looks speedy among a flock of hitching posts.

Jake Stahl is troubled with a bone in his foot. These tidings will cause Ping Bodie to wonder whether the world is turned upside down.

A WAIL.

There was a man in our town
And he was wondrous dense.
He bought a seat a mile away
And laid down fifty cents.

Frank Chance is on the sick list again, but watching those Yanks in the act of perpetrating baseball is enough to make any manager sick.

We presume that baseball writers in New York have other duties aside from their daily task of trading Hal Chase.

The terrific rate at which the Pirates have been dropping has created grave fear lest the bottom be knocked out of the league.

Bonehead plays are not confined entirely to the baseball yard. For instance, there is the severe reprimand handed to Ty Cobb by the national commission.

The only conclusion to be drawn is that national commission is totally devoid of a sense of humor. Otherwise it could not refrain from laughing itself.

ROUGH HOUSE MERCHANTS.

A sack of peanuts now and then
Is relished by the best of men,
But not when peddlers block the view
And plant their feet all over you.

Ten Point Picked to Win Kentucky Derby

LOUISVILLE, KY., May 10.—This city to-day is alive with race enthusiasts. Thousands are already in town and each incoming train adds more to the throng. This is Derby Day here, the thirty-ninth running of the Kentucky blue ribbon event. The field will bring together some of the best racers in the country. Though a round dozen have been named to go in the big race to-day, it is doubtful if more than five face the barrier. Possibly six may start, and if the track is fast it is freely predicted that the record of 2:05 by Meridian will fall.

J. W. Schorr, the Memphis turfman, is scanning the skies thoughtfully. If it rains his great gelding, Leochares, will go to the post, and Foundation and possibly Ten Point will be scratched, leaving the Tennessee gelding a splendid chance of winning. If the track remains fast, Leochares, Gowell, Floral Park, Flying Tom, Lord Marshall, Donerail and possibly Sam Hirsch will remain in their stalls.

Despite the fact that Hawthorne and Helios, the two winter favorites in the big race, will not go to the post, there is sure to be a great race among the three choices—Ten Point, Foundation and Yankee Notions.

Ten Point is quoted at 8 to 5; Foundation, 3 to 1; Prince Hermis, 5 to 1; Lord Marshall, 8 to 1, and Donerail, 10 to 1, in the early morning betting.

No-Rim-Cut Tires 10% Oversize

Oversize Means This

Ten per cent extra air capacity over hooked-base clincher tires.

It means the same as extra width, which costs you extra money. It means, on the average, 25 per cent more mileage.

No-Rim-Cut tires, with this 10 per cent oversize, cost no more than clinchers.

More Than 10%

The oversize of No-Rim-Cut tires is more than 10 per cent.

Actual comparison with six makes of clinchers shows the average oversize 16.7 per cent.

That means that you get in No-Rim-Cut tires about one-sixth more air capacity than you get in clinchers. And air is what carries the load.

You get this extra without extra cost. For No-Rim-Cut tires now cost the same as standard clincher tires.

Statistics show that 23 per cent of all clincher tires become rim-cut.

Those are the reasons why clincher tires must go. Men will not stand this rim-cut ruin when a new-type tire prevents it.

Men are bound to demand an oversize tire when they know what it adds to their tire mileage.

When you know these tires, as legions do, you will never buy any others. Come let us show them to you.

Then Add This

By Tick Tichenor.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., May 10.—The winner of the invitation tournament of the Country Club of Birmingham will be a member of the home club, as they have to-day successfully eliminated every visitor.

In the first flight there were thirteen Birmingham players and three from Atlanta. In the morning round J. H. Doughty disposed of Captain E. T. Winston, while W. P. Ward beat W. R. Tichenor, and Rollo Steinmehl beat Lowry Arnold.

Steinmehl is just 14 years of age, but he is even now a fine tournament player. In his match with W. P. Ward in the afternoon both were out in 36, and Ward had him two down and three to play, but he evened the match on the eighteenth green and finally won on the twenty-first hole. George Oliver had to go 20 holes in the morning to win from V. Q. Prowell. In the afternoon he was defeated by Herbert Tutwiler.

H. C. Wood and Rollo Steinmehl meet in the semi-final, as do J. H. Doughty and H. Tutwiler, of the first flight.

* * *

ON the second flight George Adair meets C. E. Foust and F. G. Byrd plays B. Throckmorton in the semi-final. In the third flight two Atlanta men met in the first round—C. J. Holditch and Dowdell Brown—Holditch winning 7 up and 6 to play. The semi-final matches of the fourth flight were between R. P. Jones and Sanborn Smith and A. M. Post and R. H. Baugh. In the fifth flight Dr. Frank Holland is one of the semi-finalists.

C. E. Corwin and W. R. Tichenor are in the semi-final in the junior division of the third and first flights.

* * *

THE result of the matches were:

First Flight—First Round: George C. Oiver beat V. Q. Prowell 1 up in 20 holes; Herbert Tutwiler beat E. L. Brown 1 up; J. H. Doughty beat E. T. Winston 3-2; S. J. Collum beat T. J. Watson 1 up, 1 9hiles; W. P. Ward beat W. R. Tichenor 5-4; Rollo Steinmehl beat L. Arnold 5-4; H. C. Wood beat Frank Hewitt 2 up; Arch Henderson won from F. C. Stahlman by default.

Second Round: H. Tutwiler beat G. C. Oliver 2-1; J. H. Doughty beat S. Cullum 5-4; Rollo Steinmehl beat W. P. Ward 1 up in 22 holes; H. C. Ward beat H. Henderson 2 up.

* * *

* * *

SECOND Flight.—B. Throckmorton won from R. H. Thach 4-3; E. D. Crawford beat E. E. Ellis 3-2; R. T. Brooke beat J. S. Turner 7-5; F. G. Byrd beat T. Seibles 3-1; Ted Coy beat John Kimball 3-1; G. W. Adair beat W. E. Collier 2 up; S. Probasco beat George Macon 5-4; C. E. Faust beat D. Roberts 3-1.

Second Round.—B. Throckmorton beat E. Crawford 3-2; F. G. Byrd beat R. T. Brooke 4-2; G. W. Adair beat Ted Coy up; C. E. Foust beat S. Probasco 1 up.

* * *

JUNIOR Division, Second Flight.—R. H. Thach beat F. Ellis 5-4; T. Seibles beat J. S. Tanner 2-1; John Kimball beat W. E. Collier 4-3; G. Macon beat D. Roberts 5-4.

* * *

THIRD FLIGHT.—Hampton Smith beat C. E. Corwin 4-3; Webb Offutt beat George C. Whatley 1 up; G. Martin beat L. C. Howard 4-3; Nash Read beat J. L. Bibb 2-1; E. M. Tutwiler beat J. B. Cobbs, 4-3; R. H. Gilbert beat George Watkins, 1 up; C. J. Holditch beat Dowdell Brown, 7-6; H. G. Seibles won from T. I. Webb, by default.

Second Round—Webb Offutt beat Hampton Smith, 1 up; W. Nash Read beat G. Martin, 6-4; R. H. Gilbert beat E. M. Tutwiler, 4-2; H. S. Seibles beat C. J. Holditch, 3-2.

Junior Division, Third Flight—C. E. Corwin beat G. C. Wheatley, 1 up, 19 holes; J. S. Bibb won from S. C. Howard, by default; D. Brown won by default.

* * *

FOURTH FLIGHT—R. P. Jones won from C. O. Locke, 7-6; Hampton Smith won from R. C. Munger, 5-3; W. A. Gunter beat P. Bowers, by default; H. Sanborn Smith beat W. M. Walker, 2-1; A. M. Post beat Hewett Smith, 3-1; J. C. Hardee beat C. Watkins, 4-2; T. B. Paine beat E. M. Kilby, 4-2; R. H. Baugh beat J. L. Kaul, 1 up, 19 holes.

Second Round—R. P. Jones beat H. S. Smith, 4-2; Sanborn Smith beat W. A. Gunter, 5-4; A. M. Post beat C. J. Hardee, 5-3; R. H. Baugh beat T. B. Paine, 5-4.

Nelson's Mgr. Praises McCarty Says Luther Is Best Heavyweight

By Ed W. Smith

CHICAGO, May 10.—Not being swayed by any prejudices of section, color or previous condition, we should figure John Robinson, Bat Nelson's hustling manager, in a fine position to judge of the merits of a fighter, big or little, and when John says that Luther McCarty is the real thing in the heavyweight division we are inclined to think that John's opinion is worth considerably more than mere passing mention. Robinson was in New York the other evening when Luther lambasted Frank Moran, the Pittsburg heavyweight, for ten sharp rounds, and he got an excellent line on Luther's ring work. John's opinion is all the more valuable since he isn't friendly with Billy McCarney, Luther's manager, and hasn't been for some time.

* * *

JOHN isn't exactly "all smoked up" over Luther, but he figures him to be easily the best of the white heavyweights of the day, says his record proves it and sincerely believes that the future of a year or so will demonstrate it beyond the shadow of a doubt. Listen to some of John's chatter about the big man from Nebraska: "We had been told for months that Frank Moran was one of the very best of the latest crop of big fellows, and the Eastern friends of Dan McKetrick, who manages him, believed it. Naturally after being matched with McCarty his work was watched with the closest attention.

* * *

"NOW comes one of the interesting parts of the whole tale. After McCarty had bested Moran, and had done the job up beautifully, as I thought, he didn't get a bit of credit. He was scolded and nagged for not actually disposing of Moran more decisively, and that, too, in the face of previous boosts to the effect that Moran was one of the very best of them all. Not a bit of consistency to that line of work. If Moran was one of the best, then McCarty, after beating him, must naturally be one of the very best. Catch the line of reasoning?

* * *

"TO my way of doping it out, McCarty is a man who needs a lot of actual fighting to keep him fit. He is a lazy big fellow and inclined to slow down if he isn't punched continually. He couldn't have been at his best with Moran for that reason, because he had been idle for some little time previous to that encounter. I watched the battle carefully and in common with many others at the ringside tried to pick the flaws in this big fellow's work. I couldn't find many. Of course he is still a bit unpolished, but take it from me, he is picking up the inside stuff rapidly and is getting better every time he works.

* * *

"DURING the tenth round I saw him pull a Kid McCoy trick that enlightened me more than anything about him. Joe Jeannette, who was handling Moran, seeing the hopelessness of the cause, sent Frank out to do and die. Frank sailed in and slammed away like a threshing machine with both arms going wildly. Luther would have been a cherry ripe sucker to have mixed with him right there. Instead, he stepped in close and let go with his right exactly onto Moran's waist line. The punch didn't travel a foot, but it sunk in and instantly Moran was slowed down to a walk. I doubt if a dozen people in the crowd saw the punch or realized its importance. But Moran did. It was exactly the right thing at the right time and convinced me fully himself, in any kind of company," that Luther will be able to care for

* * *

IT will not be long now before we find out what good Tom Jones has been able to accomplish with Jess Willard. Around here we figured that the chief fault with the tall man from Kansas was his disinclination to get out in the morning and do road work. Jones saw the point instantly and announced that if he got to handling Jess he would show him the error of his ways. He will get the test the middle of this month, when he slams into and is himself slammed into by Gunboat Smith, one of the toughest of the real tough trial horses of the day. It should be a grand old battle.

GIANTS-WHITE SOX WORLD TOUR IS NOW A CERTAINTY

CHICAGO, May 10.—John J. McGraw, of the New York Giants, clinched the round-the-world baseball tour which two big league teams, made up wholly or partly of Giants and White Sox, are to make next fall and winter by signing the contract in New York last night. It had previously been signed by President Comiskey, of the White Sox.

The trip will be on a bigger scale than the famous baseball tour of 1888, and may carry 75 or 100 persons. Tentative plans have it that the teams will leave Chicago about October 15 and play games in the South and West until they reach Vancouver.

They will sail from Vancouver on November 5. Japan will be reached on November 15, and a stay made in the Nippon Realm of six or eight days. Then Manila, Australia, Italy, Egypt and all European countries will be visited.

MURPHY AND HERRMANN ROW OVER RELEASED PLAYER

CHICAGO, May 10.—A little row between Prexies Murphy, of the Cubs, and Garry Herrmann, of the Reds, is enlivening the diamond atmosphere.

Manager John Evers is cutting his team down to the limit recently sent Knisley and McDonald to the Birmingham club in the Southern Association. When the Cubs traded Joe Tinker to Cincinnati, Knisley was included in the deal and Herrmann claims to have made a verbal agreement with Murphy, whereby Knisley was to be returned to the Reds if the Cubs could not use him.

CLEMSON WALLOPS AUBURN IN SECOND BATTLE, 18-4

AUBURN, ALA., May 10.—Clemson won the second game of the series from Auburn here yesterday, 18 to 4. The visitors got off with a good lead, due to Locke's wildness, and Driver, who relieved him, was hit hard during the balance of the game. The series is now even, and the deciding game will be played today, with Ezell on the mound for Clemson and Davis twirling for Auburn.

CALLAHAN REINSTATED.

NEW YORK, May 10.—The State Boxing Commission has reinstated Paddy Callahan, who was suspended March 19 for fouling Joe Caster.

BASEBALL
Diamond News and Gossip

The Reds got an even break in their series with the Giants, and if they continue to play the same kind of ball they did in Gotham town it'll be only a short time before they climb out of the National League cellar.

* * *

The suspension of Stovall has weakened the playing strength of the Browns fully 20 per cent, and the Naps and White Sox are moaning because the Eastern aggregations will have an easy time trouncing the St. Louis boys.

* * *

But even without Stovall the Browns can grab off an occasional victory. They fractured the winning streak of the Athletics yesterday, driving Pitcher Houck to the cooling shed in the first round.

* * *

Luderus, the Phillies' first sacker, after going hitless for nearly a week, cracked out a homer yesterday, which enabled his team to romp home a winner over the fast-traveling Cardinals.

* * *

The Dodgers walloped the Cubs again yesterday, sliding into second place, and are only a few points behind the leading Phillies.

* * *

Too bad the Yankees can't play against the Tigers all the season. They'd emerge near the top of the American League in October if they did.

* * *

The Red Sox may win the pennant again this year, but it will require some mighty humping. The Boston boys are over 400 points behind the flying Athletics and no club can spot the Quakertown athletes eight full games and expect to have an easy over-hauling job.

* * *

Only those who have been swatted with a crowbar can appreciate the feelings of the Pirate fans when they lamped the score boards yesterday and discovered that the lowly Boston Braves have trimmed the Pirates for the fourth successive time.

* * *

The White Sox bumped the Senators again yesterday, but Walter Johnson is due to do the flinging to-day for the Washington Athletes and perhaps there will be a different story to tell by nightfall.

* * *

Johnson, by the way, may establish a new pitching record if he goes into the box to-day. The record for consecutive scoreless innings is 45, established some years ago by "Doc" Crute, of the White Sox. Johnson already has pitched 42 2-3 scoreless innings.

* * *

Four decisions were rendered on one play by the umpires in the Brown-Athletics game yesterday. Ferguson called Oldring out at first and then declared him safe when Brief, the Browns' first sacker, fell. The Browns rushed up to Umpire O'Loughlin, who declared Oldring out, whereupon the Athletics ran over to Ferguson, made a roar and Ferguson again declared Oldring safe. Then play resumed.

* * *

The Red Sox polished up their batting orbs yesterday, pounded out 13 hits and beat the Naps 3 to 1, it being their first victory on the Western swing.

* * *

And now will C. Webb Murphy please issue forth and perform a little volplaning stunt from the most heavenward point of the Brooklyn grandstand? The Chicago gentleman said he'd make the 100-foot leap if the Dodgers took a series from the Cubs. The Dodgers have at it turned the trick, Mister Murphy, where art thou?

* * *

This is "Johny Evers Day" at the Polo grounds, and hundreds of rooters from Troy, N. Y., the home town of the Cubs' manager, went to New York on a special train to witness the first clash of the season between the ants and the scrappy Chicagoans.

MARIST FIRST IN TRACK MEET; TECH SECOND

MARIST College won the annual Atlanta prep track meet Friday at Marist field with a total of 52 1-3 points. Marist was especially strong in the distance runs and the dashes. Three teams were entered in the meet—Marist, Tech High and G. M. A. Tech High was second with a total of 25 1-3 points, while G. M. A. brought up the rear with 12 1-3.

Lewis, of Marist, was the highest individual point winner with 16 points to his credit. He won the last event of the day, the quarter mile dash, which put him 1 point ahead of Fowler.

John Roberts, of Marist, was the only winner to break a local prep record. Roberts in the pole vault cleared the bar at 9 feet 6 inches. Meyers, of Tech High, was second in this event and also beat the former record. Meyers made 9 feet 4 and just barely missed the next height. Smith, of G. M. A., and Bedell, of Tech High, were tied with 10 points apiece for third highest point winner. Smith had things his own way in the broad and high jumps.

Charlie Allen must have had a grudge against Fowler. In the quarter mile run Allen was easily leading, but held back toward the finish in order to let his teammate, Lewis, who was running second, pass him. This gave Lewis a total of 16 points, just one more than Fowler had.

EVERS PLANS TO CONVERT ARCHER INTO FIRST SACKER

NEW YORK, May 10.—Johnny Evers, manager of the Cubs, who are playing a series with Brooklyn, today was quoted as saying that he would try to convert Jimmy Archer, one of the best catchers in the game, into a first baseman. Saier has not been entirely satisfactory to Evers as a first baseman, while Archer has shone as a fielding star at that point.

BRANDT OUTPOINTS HUFNAGLE.

KEARNS STOPS DAVIS.

PREP LEAGUE NOTES

Saturday morning and afternoon a monster track meet will be held at Ponce DeLeon Park by the Public Grammar Schools of Atlanta.

* * *

Both boys and girls are entered in the meet and three prizes are offered in each event. The morning exercises will commence at 9 o'clock and end at noon. The afternoon events will be finished at 5 o'clock. Moving picture men will be on hand to get some views of the drills and races.

* * *

The cadets of G. M. A. are at present encamped at Lakewood and are having a very enjoyable time. Friday they had a dress parade, which was attended by Governor and Mrs. Brown.

* * *

Emory College will meet Mercer at Macon Saturday in a dual track and field meet. Wilbur Carlton, the man who made such a wonderful showing in the inter-class meet at Emory a short time ago, is expected to win the greatest number of points for Emory. He is entered in seven events.

* * *

This meet is the first inter-collegiate contest that Emory has participated in for a number of years and a great deal of interest is being shown by the students of the school. It is barely possible that Emory will have inter-collegiate athletics in the near future, as the students and alumni of the school are working hard for it.

* * *

Prof. Alexander, of Tech, is considering a plan to enter a team picked from Tech students attending the summer school in the local city league this summer. "Aleck" says that many of the best players in school attend the summer session and a good team could be organized.

* * *

A few short weeks and the Prep baseball season will be a thing of the past. Boys' High appears to have the honors cinched this year. If they win it will be the first time in three years. The last two seasons Boys' High has finished second in the race.

* * *

The 100-yard dash in the Prep. meet Friday was the closest race seen in a long time. Allen and Lewis, of Marist, were first and second, but Bedell, of Tech High, was right on their heels.

* * *

Fowler, of Marist, showed up mighty well in the meet Friday. He won three firsts—the hammer, mile and half-mile runs. A new Prep. record was made in the pole vault by John Roberts, of Marist. He cleared the bar at 9 feet 6 inches.

* * *

Jim Lowery, of Marist, has been shifted from first to catcher. He was a good first sacker, but had to be sacrificed on account of lack of a backstop. He will no doubt be placed at first base on the all-prep selection this year.

* * *

Sam Armistead, the Boys High catcher, got four hits in the game with Marist Wednesday. Sam is now leading the Prep League batters with an average of over .400. He is catching a good game at present and not a man stole a base on him Wednesday.

* * *

Riverside has first place tied up in a bag in the G. I. A. A. pennant race, but the real fight is for second place between Gordon, G. M. C. and Stone Mountain.

* * *

Gordon and G. M. C. met in a double-header last week which resulted in a game each. Both are anxious to win two straight this time. Gordon is playing on the home grounds and will not take another road trip this season.

* * *

Tech High and Boys High will play again next week. If the Culverites win they still have a slim chance to cop the pennant. The defeat by Peacock was a great blow to the Tech High bunch.

ATHLETES OFF FOR JAPAN.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 10.—Twelve members of the Stanford University baseball club sailed for Japan today on the liner Nippon Maru to compete against the team of Tokio University. The Stanford men, intercollegiate champions of the Pacific Coast, will be the guests of the Japanese institution on the tour.

GIBBONS SIGNS FOR BOUT.

NEW YORK, May 10.—Mike Gibbons, of St. Paul, has just signed a contract for a fight here on May 16 with Tommy Connors, of Scranton, Pa.

FAMOUS PENN DIRECTOR IN SERIOUS CONDITION

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—Mike Murphy, one of the world's most famous trainers of athletes, and now director of athletics at the University of Pennsylvania, is thought to be dying at his home here. To-day the attending physicians reported that Murphy was sinking fast and that he had lost control of his faculties.

For several years Murphy has been afflicted with tuberculosis, but has refused to remain in the West, returning each fall and spring to coach the college teams.

CHANCE SIGNS A CATCHER.

DEROIT, MICH., May 10.—Manager Chance, of the Yankees, has signed Catcher William Reynolds, of the Houston baseball club, champion team of the Texas League in 1912.

GOODMAN-SHERIDAN DRAW.

TERRE HAUTE, IND., May 10.—Danny Goodman and Mickey Sheridan, of Chicago, fought ten rounds to a draw here last night.

A Bachelor's Diary

By MAX.

MARCH 25.—I had thought constantly this morning of our evening with the widow at the station last night; of Jack Spencer's evident infatuation; of the way in which he monopolized her, and the possessive manner in which he took her to the train, though I had hoped to have that privilege; of Sally Spencer's only half-concealed distress, and of the widow's triumphant look when she left us.

She is an unscrupulous woman. So many women who are fascinating are, and she holds a grudge against Mrs. Spencer because of the efforts Sally made last winter to prevent me from marrying.

All this made me uneasy, and knowing Jack to be weak, just as I am weak and just as all men are weak, I felt an apprehension that was almost womanish. I was not surprised during the morning to get a telephone message from Mrs. Spencer to come over for a little "plain talk," she said, and it was with a decided feeling of relief that I assented.

He Walked In.

With the privilege granted an old friend I did not stop to knock when I reached Mrs. Spencer's door, but walked in unannounced, making my way to a certain little sunny sitting room where she always spent her mornings making up her household accounts, sewing, writing letters and engaged in similar little tasks which take up so much of a methodical woman's time, and which we men neither can comprehend nor appreciate.

She had been engaged in running a ribbon through some dainty lace-trimmed garment, but it had fallen unnoticed to the floor beside her, and with her hands lying idly on her lap she was gazing intently through the window.

I stepped behind her and looked over her head to see what so engrossed her. The window commanded a view of my back lawn and the picture at which she gazed was so pretty I did not wonder at her absorption. Richards had placed a little table on the lawn, and Manette was giving a dinner party, with Sarah Rae Hartman, four dolls, the brown-eyed pup and two kittens as her guests. The dolls were sitting bolt upright in their chairs with faces so lacking in expression that they looked like real society ladies; the two kittens on one side, not so well bred, were lapping cream from tiny saucers on the table, and the pup, on the opposite side, was barking so fiercely it became necessary for Manette to pause while feeding a doll on her lap to pacify him by sticking a cake in his mouth. His anger at the kittens, plainly because of their ill-breeding, could not be choked off by cake, and we looked and he gave one bound across the table, the kittens fled without asking to be excused, and sought shelter up the nearest tree with the pup at their heels.

I am proud of Manette for many things, and one is that she seldom cries. With her tea table upset and her tea party broken up, she did not give a howl like most babies, but dropped the doll baby and ran after the pup. Tompkins caught him before he had caught the kittens and restored him to Manette's arms, who punished him by putting him to bed in a doll buggy. There he lay, with his head on a pillow, his brown eyes making a plea for pardon and his pink tongue hanging out.

She Weeps.

"Does life offer any greater pleasure than that?" I said to Mrs. Spencer when she had turned around and found me there. Then I noticed that her eyes were filled with tears.

"Max," she said, drawing up a chair for me, "that," looking to where Manette was tying a doll bonnet on the pup's head, preparatory to taking him for a ride, "is all there is in life worth while. The love men and women have for each other is only a means to happiness, and that is never attained unless there is a child.

"Your home, though you are a bachelor, is happier than mine because of the presence of a child. I tell you, Max, you don't know how well off you are."

"But," I argued, feeling that in some indefinable way I was put on the defensive, "there are lonesome moments even when there is a child. I am a man grown with all a man's longing for the companionship of his peers, and baby talk does not satisfy me. I get down to Manette's size every hour in the day, and when evening comes and she has gone to bed I long for the companionship of one who talks my own language. And," growing more emphatic because of the look of disapproval in her eyes, "it is a longing that the society of men doesn't satisfy, and as good and patient as you and Jack are with me, letting me come over here every evening to forget my loneliness, it is a craving that even the companionship of two such good friends can't gratify. Oh, Sally, you are a woman, and a woman never understands!"

A Suggestion.

"No," she said sadly, "a woman never understands. And a man never understands either, and here we are, tied together for life, and neither understanding the other. It is a wonder we are as happy as we are. You have no wife to 'understand' you," a little sarcastically, "and I have a husband who doesn't 'understand' me, but you have a child, and are better off than I."

"If you feel that way about it, why don't you adopt one? There's Sarah Rae, for instance. I have an idea her parents would be glad to give her away."

She paid no heed to what I had said, but gazed out of the window with her mind so far away that her eyes took no note of the efforts Sarah Rae was making to hold the pup in the doll buggy while Manette dragged it back and forth on the garden path.

She turned toward me very suddenly. "What is Mrs. Brown's address?"

"But why—" I stammered.

"I intend to ask her here to spend a week," she replied.

"Sally," I said, "you are mad. If Jack is infatuated with the widow, why do you want to make his infatuation worse? She is gone. He will never see her again, and why, for the Lord's sake, give him a chance to play with fire by having her here?"

"You say a woman never understands. You are wrong; it is your sex that is stupid."

"But—" I began. Then I decided it was no use. There is never any use of arguing with a woman, so I pulled a notebook out of my pocket, copied Mrs. Brown's address on a card I found on the table, and handed it to her without a word.

"By the way," as if she had almost forgotten it; "Margaret Hill is coming also."

Margaret Hill! The girl I asked to be my wife, but who refused me when she learned there was a breach of promise suit pending against me. The good little Puritan, who was so good she was too good! I am sure my face showed my surprise.

A Bitter Cry.

"I tried to tell you at the station last night," she continued, "but you were so absorbed in the coming of the widow you refused to hear me."

"Max," abruptly changing the subject, "is a man's love ever won for all time? I won Jack Spencer's love when I was a girl twenty years ago, and I have been engaged in trying to keep it won ever since. I sometimes wonder"—a little bitterly—"if the love of a husband is worth the struggle a woman must make to hold it. It is fight, fight, fight, all the time; a fight to retain my personal charms, a fight to keep him interested, a fight to forget myself in satisfying every longing he may have, physical, mental or spiritual; a fight to give him just so much of myself that he will never know satiety and will always want more; a fight to keep him from the clutches of that Other Woman, always standing like a threatening phantom in the background; and then, when I have his love, what do I possess? Something about as lasting as a soap bubble, and never worth the price!"

"Look here, Sally Spencer," I said in real alarm, for this was so unlike her, "you are getting morbid, and I won't stand for it. Come with me," drawing her from her chair, and leading her to the door.

Five minutes later we were highly honored guests at the table of Sarah Rae, who was hostess this time, each holding a kitten and a doll as a special mark of honor.

But is that so, Diary, what she said about the love of man?

BEAUTY SECRETS OF BEAUTIFUL WOMEN

Effie Shannon Tells Why Twenty-five Years of Work Has Only Made Her Younger

By LILLIAN LAUFFERTY.

THE "Everybody's Doing It" of today is—trying to look young. Powder, pencil, patches, paint—art and artifice—these are the methods most of us accept; and these methods are all wrong; they "gild the surface" and scarcely deceive the most casual observer.

But there is a way to be so young and charming in spirit that the years creep on as friends, rather than enemies. There is a secret of eternal youth—and Effie Shannon knows it.

After a quarter of a century on the stage, Effie Shannon stands before us, slender, vibrant with life, magnetic and lovely, with the beauty of a clean-cut cameo. DELICATE, DAINTY EFFIE SHANNON HAS BEEN A WORKER FOR TWENTY-FIVE YEARS. Think of that, you little girls who fret lest your days of toil cheat you of youth and make you old before you have crossed life's threshold!

As the curtain falls on the evening-hushed rose garden in "Years of Discretion" at the Belasco Theater, Miss Shannon is happily echoing her lover-husband's, "It is wonderful to be old." IT IS WONDERFUL TO BE OLD, IF YOU HAVE THE INNER SPIRIT OF ETERNAL YOUTH—like Effie, of the play, and the charming woman who portrays her.

In the close intimacy of the dressing room, Miss Shannon is absolutely fresh and untouched by time, and yet she calmly said: "I am glad I am not young any more. Think of all the experience—the richness and fullness of life that I know. Think how high my spirit has fed. Do you think I'd give any of it—any line on my face—and retrace the years, and have a pretty mask with no background of life and feeling?

"Then to you true beauty is expression, is it not?" I asked.

Beauty Is Expression.

"Yes; true beauty IS expression—and to acquire beauty or to accent it, a woman must have imagination and sympathy.

"I never can sufficiently emphasize imagination and sympathy. Cultivate them—they are a woman's greatest friends. They give a deeper meaning to loveliness, and they veil plainness.

"Imagination means dreaming—seeing deep into life and interpreting it. Sympathy means being in tune with all of it.

"And as the years pass, a woman becomes more and more capable of them. So why should not a woman who cultivates these qualities become lovelier with the years?"

"'We must cultivate our garden. Do you remember that quotation? You seem to live it," I said.

Her lovely illuminating smile lit Miss Shannon's face. "I do remember—'The Beloved Vagabond' said it—and women who value their great gift, beauty, must cultivate the flowers of imagination and sympathy in the garden of mind and soul. And live! Live life in fullness. Remember you are an individual—a separate soul and learn to be your true self. Don't you think that will insure a beautiful expression—deep, tender eyes, a sweet mouth and a happy soul to illuminate the face?" asked the charming star earnestly.

Beware of Fat.

"I do, indeed," I replied. "We all must cultivate our gardens. But how about uprooting the weeds—fat for instance?"

"Fat is a noxious weed," laughed Miss Shannon. "Girls must never get fat if they want to be beautiful. People do eat too much in New York—in all the big cities where dinners and teas at home or in the restaurants are occasions. Beware of too much or too rich food!

"I will tell you how simply I live. Breakfast: Tea, toast and a bit of fruit. Luncheon—nothing. Not a bite. Dinner I have at five every day—and it is a very simple meal. After the play I have a simple supper, too, if I am hungry. One needs to see people to keep in touch with life—to have moments of gayety and absolute self-forgetfulness—to be with friends. After the play happens to be my free time. So I go to simple little suppers and enjoy them.

"Food is not the only practical consideration in connection with keeping thin. A very important one is: DON'T TAKE NAPS. Those little afternoon sleepy times are dangerously fattening—and life is too short to sleep away. Keep busy—keep doing things, and you will grow in strength, but not in beauty-destroying pounds."

"Suppose all else failed to give you the modern 'straight silhouette,' would you wear painfully tight clothes and shoes as you do in the play in order to be young and alluring," I asked?

"NO!" said the graceful star emphatically. "Who could be charming with tight shoes on? TIGHT SHOES TORTURE YOUR MIND AS WELL AS YOUR FEET. And five pairs of garters' strapping you down firmly—you could not feel in tune with life—you would feel only pain—in this world full of beauty you would be conscious only of a body painfully striving for fashionable contours. Good corsets, shoes that fit, suitable clothes, they will, when properly adjusted and selected, help you give the impression of youth. But they are the lesser aids.

"Youth is a matter of spirit and feeling, you know. Feel young; think young eager thoughts; love life in its fullness of work and play and joy and sorrow.

"But to be beautiful, you must be young in spirit—not in years. TIME AND EXPERIENCE AND FEELING MUST CHISEL A FACE TO MAKE IT REALLY BEAUTIFUL; THE SPIRIT OF KNOWLEDGE MUST ILLUMINATE BEAUTY TO MAKE IT LOVELY AND PERMANENTLY ATTRACTIVE.

"Express your own true self always better and better—and then it is 'wonderful to be old'—for your spirit will be gloriously young, and your SPIRIT WILL MAKE YOU GLOW WITH THE FIRES OF ETERNAL YOUTH."

And as Miss Shannon's voice, vibrant with imagination and sympathy, alight with feeling, and truly expressive of her own rare self, brought me her message, I knew I had heard a vital truth. Youth is deeper than powder and paint and clothes—Youth is Soul.

Miss Effie Shannon in Two Charming Poses.

"BE SURE TO BURN LOVE LETTERS"

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

DON'T keep love letters.

Unless you are receiving them from your own wife or husband or your fiance, you might better keep a box of dynamite in your kitchen or introduce an infernal machine into your household than to guard a package of love letters.

Let them perish in their own fires as soon as absorbed by the eye and heart.

If your engagement is broken, even though one or both swear never to marry, nevertheless it is worse than folly to keep the letters exchanged during the existence of tender relations.

Fate plays such strange pranks with us all. Your lover may some day be President of the United States, or your sweetheart the wife of a great celebrity, and unnecessary pain and annoyance ensue from the unearthing of those old letters by some accident.

Burn them, I say, burn them!

VERY FOOLISH.

IT is one thing to have your husband or wife tell you of an early rehearsal of Cupid's drama before you met. It is another to encounter the love letters written during that period—which seem to your exacting heart more realistic than the role you have been engaged to play for life.

Sometimes a sensible moral being is suddenly swept off his feet by a tidal wave of passion.

Sometimes he is safely landed on shore by a happy turn of the wind or by the life-saving crew of Providence.

He hides his bruises, and no one knows of his brief disaster—unless he carries about with him the incriminating letter.

Oh, the folly of it!

BURN THEM ALL.

IT is no easy task, however, to burn or destroy, a letter that is dear to you. A genuine love letter breathes the very fragrance of the writer's soul. Who capable of understanding the grand passion has not felt the keen sense of pleasure that was twin to pain at the sight of the beloved one's handwriting? Where is the man or woman so stolid or commonplace who has not at some time kissed the page whereon a dear hand has rested and then hidden it near the heart whose accelerated throbs welcomed its approach?

And who of deep feeling and wide experience has not at some time felt his own heart scorching with the parcel of letters he tossed upon the coals?

But human hearts have a Phoenix-like propensity for rising from their own ashes, strong with new life and capable of new emotions. Let there be no accusing records of the old.

Let the dead bury its dead.

However it hurts, whatever it costs, burn your love letters.

An Eye to Business

"Prisoner at the bar," declaimed the learned Judge, "your offense is of such a nature that, if you plead guilty, I will let you off with a fine."

"Pardon me," and the prisoner's counsel popped suddenly up from his seat. "Before we plead guilty, it will be necessary for us to know exactly how much the fine will be."

"But this is unprecedented, sir!" exclaimed the Judge warmly. "You can not bargain with the Court."

"Well, it may be a little unusual, Your Honor," replied the lawyer, "but I am sure, when you learn the full circumstances of the case, you will entirely agree to my proposition. You see, the prisoner is in the possession of $60; my fee is $50, and so we cannot afford to plead guilty if you insist on fining him more than $10."

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"I knew her the instant I entered the house; and, remembering the Chanticler dress with its fowl's-foot boots, I guessed at once what those marks would prove to be when I came to investigate them. She must have stamped on the ground with all her might, to sink the marks in so deeply—but she meant to make sure of the claws and the exaggerated scales on the toes leaving their imprint. I was certain we should find that dress and those boots among her effects; and—Mr. Narkom did. What I wrote on that pretended telegram was for him to slip away into the house proper and search every trunk and cupboard for them.

"What's that? No, I don't think they really had any idea of incriminating Sir Roger Droger. That thought came into the fellow's mind when you stepped out and caught him stealing away after the murder had been committed. No doubt he, like you, had seen Sir Ralph practicing for the sports, and he simply made capital of it.

"The main idea was to kill his father and to destroy the will; and, of course, when it became apparent that the old gentleman had died intestate, even a discarded son must inherit. Where he made his blunder, however, was in his haste to practice his ventriloquial accomplishment to prevent your going into the Round House and discovering that his father was already dead.

"He ought to have waited until you spoke, so that it would appear natural for the old men to know without turning who it was that had opened the door. That is what put me on the track of him. Until that moment I hadn't the slightest suspicion where he was nor under what guise he was hiding.

"Of course, I had a vague suspicion even before I came and saw her that 'the cook' was in it. Her readiness in inventing a fictitious gypsy with a bear's muzzle coupled with what Nippers had told me of the animal marks she had pointed out, looked a bit fishy; but, of course, until I actually met her nothing really tangible began to take shape in my thoughts.

"That's all, I think. And now good-night and good luck to you, Miss Renfrew. The riddle is solved; and Mr. Narkom and I must be getting back to the wilderness and to our ground floor beds in the hotel of the beautiful stars!"

THE END.

Their Married Life

Helen, from a Box, Looks Down Upon Warren at a Banquet at the Astor-Ritz.

By MABEL HERBERT URNER.

IT was just 9:30 when Helen, in an evening gown and long white wrap, hurried down to a taxicab.

"The Astor-Ritz," she called to the driver as she gathered her chiffon skirts about her white satin slippers and stepped in.

To be whirling through the streets alone at 9:30 was for Helen a new sensation, and always self-conscious, she dreaded arriving at the Astor-Ritz unescorted.

It was the night of the annual dinner of the International Fraternal Society. Mr. Jennings had invited Warren to the dinner and had given him a box ticket for Helen. She was supposed to arrive about 10, to sit in a box overlooking the banquet hall and listen to the speeches.

With a fluttering heart she left the cab and ran up the awning-covered steps of the Astor-Ritz. Keenly conscious that she was alone, she hurried through the lobby to the nearest elevator.

At the entrance to the balcony of the banquet hall the doorman took her ticket and escorted her to one of the boxes in which were already seated three beautifully gowned women.

Below was the banquet hall with a long speakers' table at the end, and countless smaller tables crowded so close that the waiters could hardly pass between. It was a brilliant scene—the lights, the flower-decked tables, the high, gilded ceiling and gleaming chandeliers.

Helen's first impulse as she leaned over the red plush railing of the box was to find Warren. But it was not easy to locate any one in that great crowded hall, with all the diners in evening dress, and each with a white carnation in his buttonhole.

Not Warren.

Was that Warren with his back towards her at that table by the pillar? She leaned forward eagerly, but as she caught a glimpse of the man's side face her searching glance swept on to other tables.

The waiters were just bringing on the dessert—a pinkish ice in tall slender glasses. There were many things in the table appointments that Helen was eager to notice, but she could not be content until she had located Warren.

Then suddenly she saw him at a table near the center. Why had she not seen him at once? Surely no one else looked so distinguished!

If he would only look up! But he was talking to the man at his right. He had promised to look for her around 10, and it was that now, but he kept on laughing and talking, not even glacing towards the boxes.

The waiter had just placed before him his frozen ice and refilled his wine glass. Then Helen saw that every one at Warren's table was drinking champagne. Some of the other tables had champagne, some had claret, and at a few there were no wine glasses at all.

Warren was looking up now! He was glancing toward the boxes! He saw Helen and waved his napkin.

Helen flushed with pride as the other women in the box turned to look at her. In spite of their expensive gowns and jewels Helen felt certain that their husbands were not at handsome and distinguished as Warren.

The waiters had now all lined up by the door, each carrying a tray piled nigh with small white boxes—the dinner souvenirs. At a sign from the head waiter, they filed in and out through the tables, leaving a white box beside each plate.

Had the diners been women, they would have instantly opened the boxes, but the men seemed hardly to notice them. So Helen's curiosity was not gratified.

The Dinner Over.

At length the dinner was over. The waiters began carrying out the dishes and the pink-shaded candles, most of which had burned out. The orchestra that had been playing in a balcony above the boxes now stopped.

The chairman at the speakers' table rose and rapped for order. Helen wondered why he was chairman. He was small and insignificant with a thin voice that did not carry. After some tedious remarks which no one could hear, he introduced the first speaker of the evening, Dr. Olony, an eminent sociologist.

Helen leaned forward with eager interest. The speakers were all prominent men, and she felt thir addrsses would be well worth hearing. But Dr. Olony began with the usual trite preliminary remarks about it being "an honor to address so distinguished a gathering." Then to Helen's dismay he produced a formidable manuscript and proceded to read it.

Everybody sat back resignedly. After the first few moments Helen did not pretend to listen. The women beside her kept up a running conversation. Several men had now come up to the various boxes to sit with their wives and friends. The eminent Dr. Olony was still reading in a monotonous voice.

Helen's glance never left Warren for long, and now she saw him push back his chair and leave the table. He looked up and nodded. He was coming up to her!

"Well, what do you think of it?" when he entered the box and took the chair beside her.

"Oh, dear, it's very interesting," happily excited now that she was with her. How wonderful he looked—how distinguished! Her eyes rested on him proudly.

"Rotten speaker," he grumbled. "A man ought to be mobbed for reading a speech at a dinner like this. What people want is short pointed addresses or say—five minutes. That boob's been spouting for fifteen."

"Oh, dear, you didn't bring me your souvenir. I wanted so much to see them."

"Forgot the blamed thing. Get it for you later. Wonde, who that stunning woman is in that box over there?"

Helen followed his glance to the dark-haired regal-looking woman. She was undeniably beautiful. Her gown of white lace was cut strikingly low, and there were strands of pearls about her throat and in her hair. Helen was not often jealous, but somehow she felt suddenly plain and poorly gowned beside the striking loveliness of that woman.

The speaker finished now and sat down amid much applause. He bowed repeatedly, not seeming to realize that the applause was only an expression of relief that he was through. Again the chairman rapped for order.

This time a United States Senator was introduced. To Helen's relief he had no notes, his voice was deep and booming, and he was plainly used to talking on his feet. But his ranting eloquence was just words—empty phrases. He had nothing particular to say and was merely "orating."

Warren, who loathed after-dinner speaking, and who rarely attended big dinners because he would not be bored, was becoming restive.

"How many more of these guys do we have to stand for?" drawing from his pocket the dinner menu, on the back of which were the names of the speakers. "Suffering cats! FOUR more? Well, I guess not! We'll cut it and make for home."

"Oh, dear, we'd better wait a little longer! It'll look rude to leave so early. Mr. Jennings will think we didn't enjoy it."

"Guess he's bored stiff, too. Why in blazes don't they have some live talkers instead of ringing in a lot of dead ones?"

If the speech of the eminent sociologist had been long, the Senator's seemed interminable. He boomed on with high-sounding phrases about "The Achievements of the Nineteenth Century..... The Splendid Strides of Civilization .....The Advancement of Society," and something about "Shining Orbits in the Sky of Future Progress.....Blazing in Front of the Jeweled Crown of an Unconquerable Race."

Every one was becoming impatient and restive, even the chairman had his mallet poised as though anxious to rap it, but still the Senator kept on shouting his oratorical phrases.

Missed the Souvenir.

"Gosh, that fellow loves to hear himself talk," growled Warren. "He's good for another hour yet. Come ON!"

"But dear, we must wait—we can't leave while he's speaking," whispered Helen.

"Like to know why we can't? Here's where I get out!"

"And I didn't get the souvenir—I didn't even see what they were!" bewailed Helen, as Warren hurried her out through the crowded corridors of the Astor-Ritz.

"Souvenirs!" with a contemptuous sniff. "Well I wouldn't have stood for any more of that duffer's speech for a dozen souvenirs. I'll wager he's spouting there yet."

"Yes, he WAS tiresome," Helen admitted, sinking back in the taxicab with a sigh of relief. Then laughingly, "Dear, if you ever make an after-dinner speech, don't begin by saying you 'feel honored to address so distinguished a gathering.' And don't—PLEASE don't use a lot of fine phrases that mean nothing."

"Huh," snorted Warren, "don't you worry! If ever I make a public speech I'll have something to say, and I'll say it blamed quick, and have gumption enough to sit down when I'm through."

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

MA & me had a lot of fun yesterday at the dinner tabel in the hotel ware we are staying wile Pa is here catching fish. Pa was out following a streem, & Ma & me was all alone at our tabel until a yung traveling man caim in & the waitress put him at our tabel. He was vary yung and vary fresh. The minnit he got sat down to the tabel he looked oaver at us & sed You peepul are having a luvly spring this yeer up in the woods.

The day is butiful, sed Ma. Ma was dressed in a plain dress for walking in & I had on overalls so I cud be like the other littel boys around here, & I was bare-footed. Ma & me knew that the yung traveling man thot we was country peepul & we dident care, beekaus we have saw lots of peepul in the big cities that dident know half so much as country folks.

The seenery here is vary pritty, sed the yung man, but, of course, you peepul up here think moar of it than I do, beekaus I have traveled around a grate deel & saw seenery wich is sublimer than these little hills, small to a man like me, he asked Ma, a man wich has seen reel mountains?

I think these hills are vary restful, sed Ma.

But, of course, you peepul up here havent traveled & got broadened, sed the yung salesman. Jest think how majestik must be the site of a mountain peek like the kind you see not far from Chattanooga, Tenn.

I have never been in Chattanooga, sed Ma.

It Was a Pity.

That seems a pity, sed the yung man. One reely doesnt know what living is until one has been in Chattanooga. A littel place like this is all rite for peepul wich have nevver seen the glories of natur, but one who has traveled like I have it would soon beecum monotonous.

& so you travel? sed Ma.

Yes, indeed, sed the yung man. We knights of the grip are never still in one place vary long. I travel all the way from Chattanooga to Nashville on the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis, he toald Ma. Chattanooga is sum city. Thare is none of this humdrum life you have here. Why, think of a city with several theaters all within the city limits, & with the hum of St. cars & the roar of the traffic & the butiful stores & residences. That is life, believe me, sed the yung man. I doant know what the other big cities is like, he sed, but you have got to show me whare any one of them has anything on Chattanooga.

I was jest going to tell the yung man that Pa & Ma & me had been in every big city in the U. S., from Frizco to Portland Maine & from New Orleans to the Canadian line, but Ma kicked me under the tabel & I knew then that she was kidding the yung man.

I have offen thot that wen my littel boy grows up I wud have him be a traveling man, sed Ma. My sister's husband used to sell enlarged picters. He used to travel from Chippewa Falls to Boyd on the Wisconsin Central. I guess he mite have been with his firm yet only he used to lose his expense money playing nickel slot macheens.

The Pity of It.

That is the pity of it with us knights of the grip, sed the yung man. We are thrown into constant temtashun, traveling the way we do from one town to another. Doant let yure yung son get into this gaim, he sed. It is a pity that you can not move to Chattanooga or eeven sum smaller city, so he cud get the benefits of a education, like I dune.

Jest then Pa caim in & sed Wife, this is jest my luck. Jest as the fishing is good, here is a telegram that we must return to New York & leave the next day for Frisco.

Oh, good, sed Ma, we havent been in Frisco for nearly two years.

Then the yung man got kind of red in the face & dident say any moar about Chattanooga.

Just a Little Slip.

"Miss Sweet," the young man began, with a quaver in his voice, "may I presume so far upon our short acquaintance to ask you—"

"Please say no more, Mr. Matthews!" faltered the maiden. "I deeply regret to give you pain; and, if I have unconsciously encouraged you to entertain hopes that never can be recalled, I can not forgive myself. Believe me, I am—"

"Pardon me, Miss Sweet," interrupted the astonished youth, "but I was only going to ask you for the loan of fare home! I was stupid enough to come away without any money in my pocket this evening. Ah, thanks very much! I will return it without fail. Good night!"

The College of France, founded in Paris by Francis I, offers at the present day not only strictly academic instruction, but opportunities for the higher education in general. The following anecdote shows how far the college carries its scrupulousness. Every scientific subject, even the most abstruse, will continue to be taught there as long as one solitary individual in all Europe desires to pursue it.

Certain courses are followed by two or three persons only. They tell this story of a professor of mathematics: This professor, who was extremely absent-minded, had lectured for a whole year to only one pupil.

He was perfectly satisfied that it should be so, but it occurred to him one day that he ought to congratulate his rare disciple, and he accordingly did so.

"Monsieur does not recognize me," replied the pupil. "I am monsieur's coachman, and I always wait here until monsieur has finished his lecture."

CHAPTER 2.

JENNIE and THE MAN sat in the big, bright restaurant and listened to the music and watched the cabaret dancers, and Jennie's big brown eyes wondered at it all. At the beautiful dresses of the women diners, the bright lights, the thick, rich carpet on the floor and the noiseless waiters.

It was just like fairyland to Jennie, for she had never, never even imagined that things could be so lovely. The boys she knew could not afford such places, and the height of her social life had been walks in the park on Sundays and maybe the ice cream parlors for soda.

THE MAN did not urge her to drink much of the bubbly wine—for he knew she wasn't used to it and there might be explanations for her to make when she reached her boarding place, and that would NEVER do. For THE MAN was wise, and didn't want Jennie's good Southern friend, who kept the boarding place, to suspect anything—quite so soon.

Jennie realized at last that it was getting late and that she would have to get home, and besides it would take nearly an hour on the car to where she lived. When she mentioned the car, THE MAN wouldn't hear of such a thing. They must take a taxicab—and besides that would get them to Jennie's home much quicker than a car. A taxicab! —and poor little Jennie had never even ridden in one before—the cushions were so soft and warm and things zipped by so quick, 'til they just seemed to fly along. How different from the pokey old street cars, thought Jennie. THE MAN was polite as could be and talked of the delightful time they had that evening—and how lonesome he would be when she was gone, and they really MUST see one another quite soon again—but she mustn't tell any one where she had been that night—just that she had to work late and had hurried right home—and he would have the taxicab stop a block or so from her home, so no one would be the wiser.

Jennie was so proud of riding in a taxicab that she wanted to drive right up to her front door, but THE MAN explained that would NEVER do. So with a promise from her to "ring him up" the next day he had the taxicab stop a block down the street and very politely helped Jennie out with a promise to watch and see that she reached home safely. When she had gone he told the chauffeur the name of a prominent cafe, and with a chuckle got in and slammed the door.

Turning the Tables.

In some cases counsel receive answers to questions which they had no business to put, and these, if not quite to their liking, are what they justly deserve. The following story of Robert Harris, a celebrated negro minstrel, is a case in point:

"You are in the minstrel business, I believe?" inquired the lawyer.

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"Is that not rather a low calling?"

"I don't know but what it is, sir," replied the minstrel; "but it is so much better than my father's that I am proud of it."

The lawyer fell into the trap.

"What was your father's calling?" he inquired.

"He was a lawyer," replied Harris, in a tone that sent the whole court into a roar of laughter as the discomfited lawyer sat down.

Daysey Mayme And Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE.

WHEN a man says he has been discovered it is a confession that he has been found out. In other words, that his meanness has been exposed at last. But the women have a way of giving a higher, more soulful meaning to words, and when a woman says she has been discovered she means that her genius has found recognition.

Daysey Mayme Appleton had been discovered in this feminine interpretation of the word. Her genius had found recognition, and she had been given employment on a newspaper.

She had been sent to interview a famous authoress, and the famous authoress had told her she could give her just five minutes.

"What," she asked kindly, "do you wish me to talk about?"

The Interview.

Then she was ready for the interview.

"It doesn't make any difference what you talk about," she said. "I must remember I have my own personality. I am a graduate of Hardtack College; I was at the head of my class; I began writing poetry when I was seven, and prose when I was nine. I am going to become a great journalist. I feel that my genius is too great to be longer hidden. Robert W. Chambers and none of the other great ones had written poetry when they were seven. Every one says I have wonderful talent."

The five minutes were up, and Daysey Mayme, with a brain seething with thoughts, went home and wrote all day and all night, covering many, many pages.

There are those who use a special delivery stamp. Not so with Daysey Mayme. She writes "IN HASTE" across one corner of the envelope. "When the postman sees these words," she exclaimed to her father, "he just drops everything else and runs all the way to deliver the letter."

A Terrible Mistake.

The interview appeared next day, and Daysey Mayme read with pride. Suddenly her face paled, her eyes flashed and she dashed to the telephone, and called up the newspaper office.

"The managing editor," she said in tones that were imperious, and when she got him she cried in a voice of authority:

"Stop the press! You have put two t's in parting in the seventh line, third column, ninth page. This article is IMPORTANT, and must be right."

"It means so much to be correct," she said to her mother, "when one is engaged in moulding the opinions of the world."

Safe.

"Captain," said a wealthy passenger, who was about to take his first trip across the ocean, "I understand this ship has got several water-tight compartments."

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"Captain," the passenger went on, decidedly, "I want one o' those compartments—I don't care what it costs."

Falling Into Captivity

HENDERSON was wont to declare that the girl who wasn't popular was no girl for him.

"There's something wrong with a girl who can go to dances and not be asked to dance every time," he would say dogmatically. "Anyway, if she had any sense she wouldn't place herself in such a position."

Possibly it was his propensity for selecting the most sought after girl as the object of his devotion that caused him to remain a bachelor at the age of 38. He was, however, the slave of his niece, Margaret.

As a rule, he did without a word whatever Margaret asked him to do. However, when she came and sat upon the arm of his chair one evening, and it finally developed that she was planning to make him take her to the high school dance he almost rebelled. He assured her that his dancing days were things of the distant past and demanded to know where all the boys were. Margaret tilted her nose into the air as far as it would go and replied that she didn't know; and, anyway, she didn't care in the least; and, anyway, she wanted Henderson to take her.

"The girls will all be crazy about you," she assured him ingratiatingly.

"They'll be crazy at me," gloomed Henderson, "if they have to dance with me." But eventually he promised that he would go.

"You look perfectly sweet," Margaret cried ecstatically when he came down in all his glory ready to escort her. "I'm so proud of you that I don't know what to do about it."

"Just let me crawl off into a corner and smoke while you have a good time," begged Henderson. "And don't expect me to dance."

"All right," Margaret agreed.

Afterward Henderson remembered that Miss Patterson was the first person upon whom his eyes had fallen when he entered the hall, though he paid no attention to her at the time. Miss Patterson was the domestic science teacher and was present as a sort of chaperon. She was what is known in the vernacular as "chunky." However, with all her chunkiness, she was young and she had a passion for dancing. In her bosom there fluttered the faint hope that she would be asked to dance a few times, anyway.

Danced With His Niece.

This hope shown from her eyes when they met Henderson's as Margaret presented him. Henderson did not recognize it—in fact, he hardly realized that their eyes had met. She was merely a little, fat, uninteresting teacher, to whom he gave hardly a second thought.

He danced the first dance with his niece. "Am I off duty for the present, Peg?" he inquired when the dance was over. Margaret glanced at him appealingly.

"Oh, Sammy, dear," she said, "you know I'm on the committee, and I wish—" She paused and her eyes turned toward Miss Patterson. "But, never mind."

Henderson was not proof against Margaret's wistfulness.

"Well, Peg," he queried, "what is it?"

When told that she much desired that he dance one dance with Miss Patterson, who was perfectly sweet, even if she couldn't dance much, he looked aghast. "You certainly have picked out a fairy for me," he said, ruefully. "Still, for your sake, I'll do it."

Sat Where He Left Her.

Miss Patterson looked like a toy balloon and danced like a baby elephant. She hopped about and around and around, coming down for the most part on Henderson's toes. She did all the things that he hated most. When they had circled the hall a time or two the music mercifully stopped, Henderson being in a state of complete exhaustion and Miss Patterson beaming joyously.

He was too much overcome to know whether she could talk or what she really looked like, his one idea being to escape. As he sought refuge in the smoking room he was unaware that Miss Patterson's eyes were following him with a look of deep gratitude. When he emerged, however, their eyes met. Hers had a patient, wistful look.

Henderson turned away hastily. "Never again," he muttered to himself. But those eyes haunted him. He went back into the smoking room and tried to forget that look. When he had finished his cigar he skulked into the hall. Miss Patterson sat where he had left her, her round face beginning to look a little tired, but unfailingly cheerful, her brown eyes still wistfully hopeful.

Henderson dived back into the outer hall and there gloomily communed with himself. Presently he returned, walked bravely across the room and once more invited Miss Patterson to dance.

Strange are the ways of the little god Cupid! Twice again during the evening did Henderson immolate himself. Then at the close of the dance Margaret informed him that she'd be glad if he would take Miss Patterson home and that he needn't mind her, as she was going with Harold Bemis. So he went home with Miss Patterson without a murmur.

Some months later Miss Patterson asked Henderson shyly: "What made you begin to—to—care for me?"

Henderson at that moment was holding up her plump little hand for the purpose of getting an idea as to the size of the third finger on the left hand. At the question he gave the plump little hand—the comfortable little cushiony hand that yet was so capable and energetic—a contented squeeze.

"I think I began by being sorry for you," he said. "You did dance so abominably."

Saved the Situation

A steady queue had formed up at the money order counter of the local post-office, and it members were strongly agitated by different stages of acute irritation.

And all because a dear old lady had forgotten the address of her son, who lived in foreign parts.

"It's in China," she faltered.

The man behind the counter then scratched his head.

"China's a big vague," he said, and so audibly thought the queue.

"Well, sir," said the dear old soul, "I know it's a name something like the noise of a motor-car makes—"

"Hong—honk!" came in a quickly suppressed shrill from the sandy-haired telegraph boy who had been watching the proceedings with considerable enthusiasm.

"That's it—that's it, sir!" cried the delightful old lady. And the clerk filled in Hong Kong in the address.

CHAPTER IX.

A Legal Document.

Mary Turner spent less than an hour in that mysteriously important engagement with Dick Gilder, of which she had spoken to Aggie. After separating from the young man she went alone down Broadway, walking the few blocks of distance to Sigismund Harris' office. On a corner her attention was caught by the forlorn face of a girl crossing into the side street. A closer glance showed that the privation of the gaunt features was emphasized by the scant garments, almost in tatters. Instantly Mary's quick sympathies were aroused, the more particularly since the wretched child seemed of about the age she, herself had been when her great suffering had befallen. So, turning aside she soon caught up with the girl and spoke an inquiry.

It was the familiar story, a father out of work, a sick mother, a brood of hungry children. Some confused words of distress revealed the fact that the woebegone girl was even then fighting the final battle of purity against starvation. That she still fought on in such case proved enough as to her decency of nature, wholesome despite squalid surroundings. Mary's heart was deeply moved and her words of comfort came with a simple sincerity that was like new life to the sorely beset waif. She promised to interest her self in securing employment for the father, such care as the mother and children might need, along with a proper situation for the girl herself. In evidence of her purpose she took her engagement book from her bag and set down the street and number of the East Side tenement where the family possessed the one room that mocked the word home, and she gave a banknote to the girl to serve the immediate needs.

Had a Heart Yearning.

When she went back to resume her progress down Broadway, Mary felt herself vastly cheered by the warm glow within which is the reward of a kindly act, gratefully received. And, on this particular morning, she craved such assuagement of her spirit, for the conscience that, in spite of all her misdeeds, still lived was struggling within her. In her revolt against a world that had wantonly inflicted on her the worst torments, Mary Turner had thought that she might safely disregard those principles in which she had been so carefully reared. She had believed that by the deliberate adoption of a life of guile within limits allowed by the law she would find solace for her wants, while feeling that thus she avenged herself in some slight measure for the indignities she had undergone unjustly. Yet, as the days passed, days of success as far as her scheming was concerned, his brilliant woman, who had tried to deem herself unscrupulous, found that lawlessness within the law failed to satisfy something deep within her soul. The righteousness that was her instinct was offended by the triumphs achieved through so devious devices, though she resolutely set her will to suppress any spiritual rebellion.

There was, as well, another grievance of her nature, yet more subtle, infinitely more painful. This lay in her craving for tenderness. She was wholly woman, notwithstanding the virility of her intelligence, its audacity, its aggressiveness. She had a heart yearning for the multitudinous affections that are the prerogative of the feminine; she had a heart longing for love, to receive and to give in full measure. * * * And her life was barren. Since the death of her father, there had been none on whom she could lavish the great gifts of her tenderness. Through the days of her working in the store, circumstances had shut her out from all association with others congenial. No need to rehearse the impossibilities of companionship in the prison life. Since then, the situation had not vitally improved, in spite of her better worldly condition. For Garson, who had saved her from death, she felt a strong and lasting gratitude—nothing that relieved the longing for nobler affections. There was none other with whom she had any intimacy except that, of a sort, with Aggie Lynch, and by no possibility could the adventuress serve as an object of deep regard. The girl was amusing enough, and, indeed, a most likable person at her best. But she was, after all, a shallow-pated individual, without a shred of principle of any sort whatsoever, save the single merit of unswerving loyalty to her "pals." Mary cherished a certain warm kindliness for the first woman who had befriended her in any way, but beyond this there was no finer feeling.

This Was Dick Gilder.

Nevertheless, it is not quite accurate to say that Mary Turner had had no intimacy in which her heart might have been seriously engaged. In one instance, of recent happening, she had been much in association with a young man who was of excellent standing in the world, who was of good birth, good education, of delightful manners, and, too, wholesome and agreeable beyond the most of his class. This was Dick Gilder, and, since her companionship with him, Mary had undergone a revulsion greater than ever before against the fate thrust on her, which now at last she had chosen to welcome and nourish by acquiescence as best she might.

Of course, she could not waste tenderness on this man, for she had deliberately set out to make him the instrument of her vengeance against his father. For that very reason, she suffered much from a conscience newly clamorous. Never for an instant did she hesitate in her long-cherished plan of revenge against the one who had brought ruin on her life, yet, through all her satisfaction before the prospect of final victory after continued delay, there ran the secret, inescapable sorrow over the fact that she must employ this means to attain her end. She had no thought of weakening, but the better spirit within her warred against the lust to repay an eye for an eye. It was the new Gospel against the old Law, and the fierceness of the struggle rent her. Just now, the doing of the kindly act seemed somehow to gratify not only her maternal instinct toward service of love, but, too, to muffle for a little the rebuking voice of her inmost soul.

So she went her way more at ease, more nearly content again with herself and with her system of living. Indeed, as she was shown into the private office of the ingenious interpreter of the law, there was not a hint of any trouble beneath the bright mask of her beauty, radiantly smiling.

Suffered Injustice.

Harris regarded the client with an appreciative eye, as he bowed in greeting, and invited her to a seat. The lawyer was a man of fine physique, with a splendid face of the best Semitic type, in which were large, dark, sparkling eyes—eyes a Lombroso perhaps might have judged rather too closely set. As a matter of fact, Harris had suffered a flagrant injustice in his own life from a suspicion of wrongdoing which he had not merited by any act. This had caused him a loss of prestige in his profession. He presently adopted the wily suggestion of the adage, that it is well to have the game if you have the name, and he resolutely set himself to the task of making as much money as possible by any means convenient. Mary Turner as a client delighted his heart, both because of the novelty of her ideas and for the munificence of the fees which she ungrudgingly paid with never a protest. So, as he beamed on her now, and spoke a compliment, it was rather the lawyer than the man that was moved to admiration.

"Why, Miss Turner, how charming!" he declared, smiling. "Really, my dear young lady, you look positively bridal."

"Oh, do you think so?" Mary rejoined, with a whimsical pout, as she seated herself. For the moment her air became distrait, but she quickly regained her poise, as the lawyer, who had dropped back into his chair behind the desk, went on speaking. His tone now was crisply businesslike.

"I sent your cousin, Miss Agnes Lynch, the release which she is to sign," he explained, "when she gets that money from General Hastings. I wish you'd look it over, when you have time to spare. It's all right, I'm sure, but I confess that I appreciate your opinion of things, Miss Turner, even of legal documents—yes, indeed, I do!—perhaps particularly of legal documents."

"Thank you," Mary said, evidently a little gratified by the frank praise of the learned gentleman for her abilities. "And have you heard from them yet?" she inquired.

Praise for Mary.

"No," the lawyer replied. "I gave them until to-morrow. If I don't hear then, I shall start suit at once." Then the lawyer's manner became unusually bland and self-satisfied as he opened a drawer of the desk and brought forth a rather formidable-appearing document, bearing a most impressive seal. "You will be glad to know," he went on unctuously, "that I was entirely successful in carrying out that idea of yours as to the injunction. My dear Miss Turner," he went on with florid compliment, "Portia was a squawking baby, compared with you."

"Thank you again," Mary answered, and she took the legal paper which he held outstretched toward her. Her scarlet lips were curved happily, but the clear oval of her cheeks blossomed to a deep rose. For a moment, her glance ran over the words of the page. Then she looked up at the lawyer, and there were new lusters in the violet eyes.

"It's splendid," she declared. "Did you have much trouble in getting it?"

Harris permitted himself the indulgence of an unprofessional chuckle of keenest amusement before he answered.

"Why, no," he declared, with reminiscent enjoyment in his manner. "That is, not really!" There was an enormous complacency in his air over the event. "But, at the outset, when I made the request, the judge just naturally nearly fell off the bench. Then I showed him that Detroit case, to which you had drawn my attention, and the upshot of it all was that he gave me what I wanted without a whimper. He couldn't help himself, you know. That's the long and the short of it."

That mysterious document with the imposing seal, the request for which had nearly caused a judge to fall off the bench, reposed safely in Mary's bag when she returned to the apartment after the visit to the lawyer's office.

CHAPTER X.

Marked Money.

MARY had scarcely received from Aggie an account of Cassidy's threatening invasion when the maid announced that Mr. Irwin had called.

"Show him in, in just two minutes," Mary directed.

"Who's the gink?" Aggie demanded, with that slangy diction which was her habit.

"You ought to know," Mary returned, smiling a little. "He's the lawyer retained by General Hastings in the matter of a certain breach of promise suit."

"Oh, you mean yours truly," Aggie exclaimed, not in the least abashed by her forgetfulness in an affair that concerned herself so closely. "Hope he's brought the money. What about it?"

"Leave the room now," Mary ordered crisply. "When I call to you, come in, but be sure and leave everything to me. Merely follow my lead. And, Agnes—be very ingenue."

"Oh, I'm wise—I'm wise," Aggie nodded, as she hurried out toward her bed room. "I'll be a squab—surest thing you know."

Next moment Mary gave a formal greeting to the lawyer who represented the man she planned to mulct effectively, and invited him to a chair near her, while she herself retained her place at the desk, within a drawer of which she had just locked the formidable appearing document received from Harris.

Her Voice Was Cold.

Irwin lost no time in coming to the point.

"I called in reference to this suit which Miss Agnes Lynch threatens to bring against my client, General Hastings.

Mary regarded the attorney with a level glance, serenely expressionless as far as could be achieved by eyes so clear and shining, and her voice was cold as she replied with significant brusqueness:

"It's not a threat, Mr. Irwin. The suit will be brought."

The lawyer frowned and there was a strident note in his voice when he answered, meeting her glance with an uncompromising stare of hostility.

"You realize, of course," he said finally, "that this is merely plain blackmail."

To Be Continued Monday.

SYNOPSIS.

Mary Turner, becoming an orphan, is thrown on her own resources. She finds work at the Emporium, a department store owned by Edward Gilder; is accused of the theft of silks, and sent to prison, though innocent. She tells George Demarest, Gilder's head lawyer, that the way to stop thievery is to pay a living wage. In prison she learned from fellow convicts why girls go wrong. She understands their point of view and sympathizes with them. Aggie Lynch, a convict friend of Mary's at Burnsing, sees good "possibilities" for her in the world of crime. Upon Mary's release the slogan "once a criminal always one," prevents her from securing work. She is continually hounded and in desperation throws herself into the North River. Joe Garson, a forger, rescues her and keeps her and Aggie in luxury, though living chaste lives. Mary reads that a famous financier escapes prison through keeping within the letter of the law. She follows his example and becomes the leader of a band of swindlers, robbing only the unscrupulous. Gilder's son Dick meets and loves Mary, who seeks to wreak vengeance on the father through the son. Aggie poses as her cousin, and they pretend to be respectable. They are visited by Detective Cassidy, who tries to scare Mary into leaving town through threats. He is laughed at for his pains, because she was "within the law." The detective, before leaving again, tells Aggie and Joe Garson that "there'll be trouble" for them unless they get out of town.

Men Are So Queer

To-day's Complete Short Story.

"TOM was terribly annoyed," said the young woman with the fluffy hair. "It is perfectly funny the way a man acts just because he is your husband—did you ever notice it?"

"It is indeed," said the others in chorus.

"How was I to know that sensible business men would take me so seriously?" pursued the fluffy young woman. "I thought they were supposed to have discernment and sense. Tom is always preaching about their superiority in that respect. Tom explained to me very carefully before we went to the automobile show last month that we couldn't buy a car. He said he couldn't afford it, considering my hat bills and his cigars and the notes coming due on the house we bought last year. I am sure I had it all perfectly clear in my mind, so I am positive I was not to blame.

"But did you ever notice what perfectly fascinating young men they put in charge of the exhibition cars at an automobile show?"

"I should say I have noticed them," said the brunette girl.

A Very Nice Man.

"And, anyhow, Tom had no business to run across two college friends the minute we got inside the show and pay so much attention to them that he couldn't pay any attention to me! Those three would cluster together over a chassis with a lot of crazy machinery stuck on it and talk like mad. So I simply had to do something to kill time."

"Of course you did!" agreed the others.

"So when at the first booth a good looking man who saw me studying a touring car asked me if I was interested I said I was. Then he was just as nice as could be. He told me everything about the car and made me get in it and explained just how I could run it myself and wanted my address to send me a catalogue. He said he'd be pleased to come out some day with the car and show me how it ran and give me a lesson. He was so set on coming that I hated to hurt his feelings, so I did not refuse.

"It was just the same way at the next place and ever after. Tom and his friends were so busy over horrid old machinery that I was considerably left out. However, I made lots of friends among the agents.

"All of them wanted to bring out their cars to demonstrate to me how superior they were and, as I had told one man he could come, it didn't seem a bit fair to the others to refuse any of them, so I said I'd be delighted. It had occurred to me that I owed a terrible lot of calls, and that it would be such a nice way to get around and pay them.

"I didn't think it necessary to mention the matter to Tom. He did remark that a huge lot of catalogues was coming to our house and it was a wonder where those fellows got people's names and, anyhow, thank goodness, he didn't have a machine eating its head off and making him poor. Men are so selfish.

"The Zero automobile man came out the very day after the show closed and we had a beautiful ride. I made six calls. However, I quite changed my opinion of him, because when I came out of the last place he seemed actually cross and said things about waiting in cold weather. I don't see how he expects to sell cars without showing a little consideration for customers. I told him I didn't think I liked his car at all.

"Then there was the Largo car man and the Allegro man and the Fortissimo man and the Solendiferous man, and about six different electric companies, and a lot more whose names I forget. When they came one at a time it was lovely.

"I did two teas one afternoon in the Largo car, but the man lost his temper, and when I came from the second tea the wretched creature had driven off and I had to go home on the street car!

Very Queer.

"The queer thing was that every one seemed so indignant when I refused to give an order for a car and said things about my leading them on. The worst of it was that Tom came home ill with the grip one afternoon just as seven different cars arrived all at once to take me out! He said he thought I was giving a funeral or a tea.

"When he understood—my dears, have you ever seen a man suffering from bad temper and grip simultaneously?

"I explained to him most carefully that it wasn't my fault at all, but he roared that he was ashamed to look a man in the face from that time on for fear he was one of the automobile agents I had shamefully deceived—yes, that's what he called it—and that he'd like to know what women had in place of consciences, anyway. What do you think of that? Aren't men utterly queer?"

"They surely are!" the other young married woman agreed. "When you hadn't done one single thing, either!"

Where the Shoes Pinched.

"Boots and shoes repaired neatly while you wait." So said a notice in the window. A small boy entered the shop and dumped a pair of patent leathers on the counter.

"Please, fahver wants 'em repaired," he ventured timidly.

"What's he want done to them?" inquired the tradesman.

"Wants 'em soled and "eeled," piped the youngster; "also stretched."

"Stretched as well—eh? And where do they pinch him?"

"They don't pinch him," replied the ingenuous son; "he pinched them!"

$4,000 NEEDED TO RUN AVERAGE FAMILY A YEAR

Palmer Sticks to His Assertion That Father of Five Must Get $80 a Week.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Representative A. Mitchell Palmer, of Pennsylvania, a member of the majority of the Committee on Ways and Means is standing firmly by the statement made by him in the House that $4,000 is the minimum annual income at which, under modern conditions of living, the American head of a family can properly rear, support, and educate the average American family. Mr. Palmer made this statement in defense of the $4,000 exemption fixed by the framers of the income tax bill.

Mr. Palmer amplifies his statement as follows:

"There were three points which, in analyzing my statement, must be taken together. In the first place I said 'the average American family.' This must be accepted as meaning the average American family of five children.

"The legislation must presuppose that the American family is not a childless family, and the general average of rich and poor, high and low, must be taken regardless of the general presumption that the families of the rich are smaller than those of the moderately well to do and the poor. We are legislating for the average.

"In the second place I said a gross income of $4,000. I did not say a net income, and therefore, taking the gross income as the basis as the law takes it, there are numerous corollaries to the problem as to just what naturally unavoidable expenses of the individual are taken from his income and enter into his cost of living, so that the net income of $4,000 might represent the net on a gross of twenty times the amount mentioned.

"Third, I said: 'Support the family according to the proper American standard and send his children through the high schools and colleges of the land.' I do not believe it will be possible to find any one who will attempt to deny that no modern American can live under modern American standards, feed, clothe and educate a family of five with due provision for their education and the maintenance of their health, send all of his children through college or give them technical or business training of equivalent value to a university course and keep much inside the expenditure of his income of $4,000 a year. I do not think that readers of the newspapers who analyze my statement will take very clearly defined issue with the contention as I there express it."

COTTON GOSSIP

NEW YORK, May 10.—With Liverpool closed, the local cotton market was more than usually dependent on the weather conditions for inspiration at the opening to-day. First prices ranged 1 to 4 points higher than last night's close. Trading was of a light character and fluctuations after the call were narrow, holding within a few points of the opening figures.

The Liverpool market was closed on account of Whitsuntide holidays.

The weather map was very discouraging to those who sold yesterday on promises of rains in the Eastern belt, and they seemed eager to replace liquidated lines over Sunday. The ring and Wall Street covered considerable short cotton, while the larger spot houses were noticeable buyers. Offerings, however, were light and scattered. The advancing tendency continued throughout the short session. July showed considerable strength and was the heaviest pressed option on the list and at times the trade interest was centered entirely upon it. Distant positions, especially October and December, were under active buying and the three options rallied 5 points over the opening level.

Indications point to fair weather over the larger part of the belt over Sunday, with somewhat lower temperatures. West Texas will have unsettled showers, as will the Panhandle, while the rest of the State will be fair.

At the close, the market was steady, with prices at a net gain of 4 to 8 points from the final quotations of Friday.

Spot cotton at Savannah, Ga., is about 23 points higher than the highest option on the New York future list and about the cheapest in the South. Spots are quoted at 11¾ cents there and the buyer would have to add about 75 points on the present prices should he buy it so as to cover brokerage fees, insurance, interest, freight cost and charge for certification. There is a very small chance for any profit in such a transaction.

* * *

The trade is still puzzled as to what side McFadden will ultimately decide to take. One day he is buying and the other selling.

* * *

Memphis wires that the cotton lands are in splendid shape and most of the cotton is up. The weather is said to be good.

* * *

Following are reports on the condition of the cotton crop of Georgia: Thomasville: "Crop 90 per cent planted; condition, complaint bad stands." Bostwick: "Crop 95 per cent planted; condition, 50 per cent up." Monticello: "Crop 80 per cent planted; condition, cotton not up and will not come up until we get rain." Mansfield: "Crop 95 per cent planted; condition, very dry; none up in middle Georgia." Quitman: "Need rain." Penfield: "Crop 70 per cent planted; condition, fair only." Colquitt: "Two-thirds to three-quarters planted with replanting necessary to the extent of fully 40 per cent with seed scarce and not enough to replant. Crop prospects are gloomy, but money conditions extremely favorable."

* * *

Dallas wires: "Texas—Panhandle partly cloudy; rest clear and warm. Oklahoma—Clear and pleasant."

NEW ORLEANS, May 10.—Hayward & Clark: The weather map shows cloudy over the Western States and North Carolina, generally fair elsewhere, with scattered showers in Mississippi, North Alabama, North Carolina and a good rain at Meridian, Miss. Indications are for increasing cloudiness generally, with increased prospects for showers in the Atlantics and cooler in the north portion of the belt.

Cordill wires from Augusta, Ga.: "Troy, Dothan, Thomasville to Macon, South Alabama and South Georgia conditions are irregular. Much cotton up to good stands and chopped out, but fully 25 per cent not yet up. Soil preparation near perfect. Light, widely scattered showers yesterday beneficial. General warm rain needed. Macon to Augusta, cotton is coming up more evenly but start late."

* * *

The New Orleans Times-Democrat says: "Cotton market equipoise has come to be a habit and profitless sessions have made the rings disconsolate. It is a queer paradox, this keen desire of the talent to discount the future, and when they have accomplished their purpose and the market stands still the inherent love of strife impels them to begin all over again. Yesterday's fair weather forecast for the Eastern belt worried shorts no little because the general rains over that section, upon which they have been depending, have not come.

"Now that the promise of general rain is gone, dry weather reports from Georgia and the Carolinas will seem more significant than ever. On the other hand, 'spinners' takings for the week were comparatively small, and the decrease in the world's visible supply contrasted favorably with the decrease in the corresponding week last year. Thus both factions had good talking points and the visible supply changes coming last gave the bear the closing advantage. Both factions appear ready to admit that the market as a whole is short. In the eyes of most professionals, the new crop positions have seemed attractive as a sale and the fact that many operators have sold them is responsible for much of the buying power that develops when reports of seed rotting in the ground and of the necessity for replanting come in."

By C. W. STORM.

NEW YORK, May 10.—Delaware and Hudson was one of the weakest issues on the list at the opening of the stock market to-day, being sympathetically depressed by weakness in New York Central. Delaware and Hudson was 1¼ lower at the opening and later declined still further. New York Central continued under par, selling at 99¼ for a loss of ¼.

Trading was quiet and nearly all stocks suffered declines. Among the losses were United States Steel common, ¼; Union Pacific, ⅝; Reading, ⅜; Erie, ¼; Amalgamated Copper, ⅛; Baltimore and Ohio, ⅝; St. Paul, ⅝, and Canadian Pacific ⅛. At the end of half an hour some of the issues rallied.

The curb was dull.

There was a bank holiday in London and there was no session of the stock exchange there.

HESTER'S WEEKLY COTTON STATEMENT

Secretary Hester's weekly New Orleans Cotton Exchange statement of the movement of cotton, issued before the close of business Friday, shows an increase in the movement into sight compared with the seven days ending this date last year in round numbers 3,000, an increase over the same days year before last of 30,000, and an increase over the same time in 1910 of 20,000.

For the nine days of May the totals show a decrease under last year of 9,000, an increase over the same period year before last of 40,000, and an increase over the same time in 1910 of 29,000.

For the 251 days of the season, the aggregate is behind the 251 days of last year 3,128,000, ahead of the same days year before last 1,727,000 and ahead of 1910 3,353,000.

The amount brought into sight during the past week has been 93,616 bales, against 90,579 for the seven days ending this date last year, 62,352 year before last and 73,803 same time in 1910; and for the nine days of May it has been 108,477, against 116,992 last year, 18,338 year before last and 79,420 same time in 1910.

The movement since September 1 shows receipts at all United States ports 9,342,967, against 11,610,302 last year, 8,284,645 year before last and 6,840,168 same time in 1910. Overland across the Mississippi, Ohio and Potomac Rivers to Northern mills and Canada 912,907, against 1,150,329 last year, 873,269 year before last and 731,799 same time in 1910; interior stocks in excess of those held at the close of the commercial year 307,148, against 189,732 last year, 188,800 year before last and 229,306 same time in 1910; Southern mills takings 2,464,999, against 2,204,714 last year, 1,953,484 year before last and 1,812,470 same time in 1910.

These make the total movement for the 251 days of the season from September 1 to date 13,027,022, against 15,155,077 last year, 11,306,198 year before last and 9,613,743 same time in 1910.

Foreign exports for the week have been 130,918, against 87,215 last year, making the total thus far for the season 7,787,733, against 9,842,513 last year, a decrease of 2,054,780.

Northern mills takings and Canada during the past seven days show a decrease of 25,876, as compared with the corresponding period last year, and their total takings since September 1 have decreased 207,442. The total takings of American mills, North, South and Canada, thus far for the season have been 4,721,083, against 4,733,350 last year. These include 2,188,743 by Northern spinners, against 2,496,185.

Stocks at the seaboard and the twenty-nine leading Southern interior centers have decreased during the week 90,210 bales, against a decrease during the corresponding period last season of 82,017, and are now 15,360 larger than at this date in 1912.

Including stocks left over at ports and interior towns from the last crop and the number of bales brought into sight thus far from the new crop, the supply to date is 13,391,135, against 15,442,051 for the same period last year.

World's Visible Supply.

Secretary Hester's statement of the world's visible supply of cotton shows a decrease for the week just closed of 67,432, against a decrease of 261,274 last year and a decrease of 149,480 year before last.

The total visible is 4,550,370, against 4,617,802 last week, 1,167,000 last year and 1,154,000 year before last. Of this, the total of American cotton is 3,067,370, against 3,164,802 last week, 3,500,723 last year and 2,178,244 year before last, and of all other kinds, including Egypt, Brazil, India, etc., 1,483,000, against 1,452,000 last week, 1,167,000 last year and 1,194,000 year before last.

The total world's visible supply of cotton as above there is now afloat and held in Great Britain and Continental Europe 2,554,000, against 2,944,000 last year and 1,944,000 year before last; in Egypt 180,000, against 171,000 last year and 155,000 year before last; in India 923,000, against 692,000 last year and 641,000 year before last; and in the United States 883,000, against 861,000 last year and 632,000 year before last.

Spinners' Takings.

Secretary Hester gives the takings of American cotton by spinners throughout the world as follows, in round numbers:

This week 191,000 this year, against 317,000 last year and 217,000 year before last.

Total since September 1, this year, 11,212,000, against 12,447,000 last year and 9,897,000 the year before.

Of this Northern spinners and Canada took 2,189,000 bales this year, against 2,496,000 last year and 1,951,000 the year before; Southern spinners 2,522,000, against 2,237,000 last year, and 1,987,000 the year before, and foreign spinners 5,515,000 the year before.

(By W. H. White, Jr., of the White Provision Company.)

Cattle receipts are heavier than usual. The market is 25 to 50 cents lower on the middle grades, with a heavy supply. Tops and choice in good demand and market steady.

One load of the E. T. Comer cattle were on the market this week and brought $7.37½ per cut, this being the top price for the week. These were mixed highbred Short Horn and Hereford young steers, fat and prime, bred and raised on the Comer farm at Millhaven, Ga., and would do credit to any beef producing section.

With the exception of this load and two loads of Short Horn steers from A. N. Brown at McDonough, all of which were sold to the Atlanta packer, the run was badly mixed, consisting principally of country pick up bunches of all sizes and kinds, which sold at prices fully as irregular as were the cattle.

Hogs continue to come freely. Market has ranged lower in sympthy with the Western markets.

Choice to good steers, 1,000 to 1,200, 5.75@6.50; good steers, 800 to 1,000, 5.50@6.00; medium to good steers, 700 to 850, 5.00@5.75; medium to good cows, 700 to 800, 4.50@5.00; good to choice beef cows, 800 to 900, 4.75@5.75; medium to good heifers, 650 to 750, 4.25@4.75; good to choice heifers, 750 to 850, 4.75@5.75.

Medium to common steers, if fat, 800 to 900, 4.50@5.50; medium to common cows, if fat, 700 to 800, 4.25@5.25; mixed common, 600 to 800, 3.25@4.00; good butcher bulls, 3.50@4.00.

Prime hogs, 160 to 200 average, 8.30@8.50; good butcher hogs, 140 to 160, 8.10@8.30; good butcher pigs, 100 to 140, 7.75@8.00; light pigs, 80 to 100, 7.00@7.50; heavy rough hogs, 200 to 250, 7.50@8.25.

Above quotations apply to corn-fed hogs, mash and peanut-fattened hogs, 1 to 1½c under.

Corn—No. 2 58
Oats—No. 2 ..... 35½@35⅝

CHICAGO, May 10.—From the manner in which the wheat market opened to-day, the day's session will be one in which the smaller traders will even up their position over Sunday. The May was under pressure and sold ⅝c below the closing of yesterday.

Corn was ⅛@⅜c better and firm.

Oats were stronger and ⅛@¼c higher in sympathy with corn.

Provisions were firm. Trade small.

CONDITION OF OATS IS POOR.

CHICAGO, May 10.—B. W. Snow wires from Danville, Ill.: "Drove through Macon, Platte, Champaign and Vermillion Counties. All big oats territory. Everywhere crop is small in growth, late and starting poorly. Surface of ground dry and plant has not yet developed sufficient root to reach down to the subsurface moisture, of which there is plenty. Rains are badly needed. Making rapid progress in corn planting."

WHEAT MARKET OVERSOLD.

CHICAGO, May 10.—The Inter-Ocean says: "Those who are bullish on wheat regarded the market as oversold and said it would take considerable pressure from shorts to keep prices down. They consider the market on a healthy basis. The trade in corn at the moment is divided, but they see nothing for sensational developments on either side unless there might be a little congestion in May. Local traders in oats are rather bearish, but some of the country houses are buying."

OPINION ON GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 10.—Bartlett, Frazier & Co.:

Wheat—We look for a steady market to-day.

Corn—Cash position is strong; country offering slight.

Oats—We believe the long side on little depressions the safer one.

POULTRY, PET and LIVE STOCK

Defects in Combs Of Chickens Often Mar Beauty of Fowls

Should Exercise Great Care in Breeding—Value by Judges.

EDITED BY JUDGE F. J. MARSHALL

The pea comb is a triple comb, or a series of three straight combs paralleling each other, and joined to each other at the base, each having small but distinct serrations throughout their length. The two outer rows being lower and thinner than the center one, the points formed in this way being so low and broad that they resemble rows of peas, hence the name given them. This comb should fit close and solid upon the head, rather than to stand up from the head and incline to turn from side to side.

The breeds having this comb are the Brahmas, Buckeyes, all the Cornish and Sumatra. The most common defect in these combs is the twisting from side to side near the middle. In other words, it is a kink in all three of the rows of points and makes the comb decidedly out of line when viewed from in front.

Another kind of comb that is often seen in one where the middle part of the combs show all right and is good shape in itself, but the sides are very faintly outlined and would almost be taken for a single comb at first sight. In mating up such stock for breeding purposes one is very likely to get some single combs and then the trouble has commenced.

The V comb is a very peculiar one and looks much like a pair of horns standing up from the center of the head. They show but very slightly upon the heads of the hens. On the well matured males it shows up all right. The comb in these breeds is, however, not considered a valuable asset, so that the smaller it is the better it is liked.

Value by Judges.

The comb is only valued at 4 points out of the 100. The breeds having this form of comb are as follows: All the Polish (which are eight varieties), the Houdans, Crevecoeurs, and LaFleche, French varieties.

Then we have the Malay and the Silkie, with the strawberry comb, which is not very much of a definite comb and is found only upon these two breeds of relatively small importance. The comb is really of more importance than is generally considered as a distinguishing feature of the breed or variety it represents. Take, for example, the Light Brahma, the variety which stands at the head of our list of thoroughbred fowls for recognized type in breeding and put a sort of mongrel type of comb upon it and what would it be worth? Or the Plymouth Rock and put a wrinkled turn-over sort of a comb upon it and a Rock man would simply laugh at you and want to know what it was mixed with.

It frequently occurs, however, that some of the larger combed hens of a variety are the heaviest layers. That is, they may have a comb almost too heavy for the breed, although of the right type, and be greatest layers of the flock.

Questions and Answers.

Judge Marshall:—Is it a good plan to breed pullets back to their sire? Some tell me it is just the thing to do, while others say it is detrimental to health. I would be very glad to have your opinion of it.

Monroe, Ga. S. J. R.

ANSWER:—While expert breeders of long experience take the chances of weakened vitality in the offspring for the sake of gaining some valuable points they have been striving hard for, yet, as a rule, it is not good policy to make a business of it. Unless you are sure you are going to be able to intensify a number of good qualities in the next generation, you had better not take the risk of multiplying a lot of serious defects.

You see, it is close inbreeding and is not a good policy for those who are not working for the very highest in type to undertake or run the risk of for health's sake. Of course, it is better to breed that way than to breed brother and sister together.

LEGAL NOTICES.

GUARDIAN SALE.
GEORGIA—Fulton County.
By virtue of an order of the court of ordinary of said county, granted at the May term, 1913, will be sold before the court house door of said county, on the first Tuesday in May next, within the legal hours of sale, the following property of the estate of Marguerite Smith, to-wit: A one-twentieth undivided interest in all that tract or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the city of Macon and County of Bibb, in said State, and distinguished in the plan of said city as parts of lots Nos. one and two (1 and 2) in block No. sixty-one (61), in the southwest common of the city of Macon, and fronting on Tattnall Street sixty (60) feet, and running back the same width one hundred and fifty (150) feet, and containing one-quarter of an acre, more or less, said lot adjoining on the three remaining sides the lands belonging to the estate of B. F. Ross, with an alley on the north, between said lands and the lot herein described, and being the residence of E. P. Smith, late of said County of Bibb, deceased, and being the same property contained and described in deed from Susan M. Persons and Clara F. Florence to Mrs. E. E. Smith and Mary E. Smith, recorded in Deed Book "DD" in the clerk's office of Bibb Superior Court, folio 541, on February 23, 1882, which one-twentieth undivided interest is probably worth one hundred and fifty dollars.
Terms cash.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

W. G. Raoul Property To Be Put on Market

Ten Lots Facing Piedmont Park. Druid Hills Sale—Improvements on Peachtree Road.

Ten lots in the estate of the late William G. Raoul, facing Piedmont Park, will be sold at private sale by the Forrest & George Adair real estate agency, according to announcement made to-day. The property was carefully assembled by Captain Raoul through a long period of years and this is the first time it has been offered for sale. The lots are on the west side of Piedmont Avenue, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth Streets. Several of them taken together were offered two years ago as a site for the State's executive mansion. The frontages are from 60 to 70 feet and the depths 150 to 200 feet.

Greenwood Avenue Sale.

Eugene S. Kelly has bought through his concern, the Charles P. Glover Realty Company, a residence lot on Greenwood Avenue, between Highland Avenue and Briarcliff Road, just west of Druid Hills, for $11,500. This lot is 305 by 169 feet. It was bought for investment from a client of the Glover agency.

Meetings at City Hall.

People who are working for a regrade of Whitehall and West Peachtree Streets are meeting this afternoon with the streets committee of Council at the City Hall, to urge improvements on their thoroughfares. The Whitehall Street matter is expected to be settled at this conference, and the West Peachtree question will be taken up later.

Foundry Street Purchase.

Mrs. Bertha Kline has bought through J. H. Ewing, of the Smith & Ewing real estate agency, a 40 by 100 foot lot on Foundry Street, between Elliott and Mangum Streets, for $2,250. A small house is on this property. The seller was L. M. Anderson.

Sale on Piedmont Road.

Deeds have gone to record in the sale March 6 of a large building lot at the northwest corner of Piedmont and Ivy Roads, from Claude E. Buchanan to Wesley Hirshburg, for $6,875. This lot is west of the William J. Stoddard place and in the neighborhood of other fine residences.

A bond for title has also gone to record in the sale March 31 of a 20 by 60 foot lot on Whitehall, near West Fair Street, to Nathan Wolfe by A. D. Greenfield, for $6,500.

Real Estate Activity.

An increase in different realty transfers as set forth in The Fulton County Daily Report shows the tendency of real estate to assume its normal aspect in the market. Today's issue of this publication contained seventeen bond for title items and 32 warranty deed items, and led several real estate men to remark that the number was the best and most complete that The Report has ever issued.

Big Deals Coming.

Several important real estate deals are in the contract stage and should be announced early next week. One of these involves approximately $100,000 and there are a number of smaller figures.

Road Work at Buckhead.

County convicts are working fast to complete improvements on Peachtree Road, anticipating increased traffic which will come about June 1, when the Capital City Club takes charge of its country club at Brookhaven. The right-hand side of Peachtree Road, starting at Buckhead, has been macadamized nearly as far north as W. S. Witham's estate, and only awaits the steam roller to be put in good shape. Space between the car tracks has been taken on this northward trudge of the convicts. The work will proceed to the DeKalb County line and then the gang will turn back toward Buckhead.

County Commissioners are well satisfied with the work and predict that Peachtree Road will be in very good shape when Capital City golfers take their sticks to Brookhaven.

To Widen Roswell Road.

The proposition of widening the Roswell Road from Buckhead to Piedmont Road (formerly Plaster Bridge Road) has been revived. A year or two ago this matter was agitated. All property owners except one agreed to give 10 to 20 feet, and the opposition of the single owner blocked the project. Now E. T. Luckie, of the Holmes & Luckie Realty Company, has taken up the matter again, and he expresses confidence in the outcome. Mr. Luckie's idea is to lay out the Roswell Road so that whenever the demand is great enough on the part of the people along the route, a car line can be built to Roswell. Either this or the street car company can leave the wide thoroughfare to vehicular traffic and establish a private right-of-way close by.

The Railroads Can Rob the People IF---

Copyright, 1913.

In a cartoon printed several days ago our artist showed the Panama Canal with American ships held back by American locomotives.

All the solemn talk about "treaty obligations" about our duty to England, our national honor, is merely so much "railroad talk," a good deal of it well paid for by the railroads.

We are told that it is dishonorable, unfair, treacherous, etc., to permit American SHIPS to use an American CANAL, unless we also let English ships use the canal, without charge.

And the so-called friends of national honor—who are in reality gentlemen and newspapers subsidized or controlled by railroads—have actually managed to compel all but coastwise American ships to pay toll, like foreign vessels.

The railroads want no free use of the canal by American coastwise ships, and they fight such use through the politicians and newspapers that they own, for a simple reason.

The railroads make money carrying freight from the Atlantic to the Pacific. And the more they can CHARGE the more they can MAKE. Hitherto ships carrying freight from New York to San Francisco had to go all around South America. Therefore, the railroads could charge for freight carried 3,000 miles across the continent as much as it would cost to send a ship all around the continent. And, in addition, the railroad could add a charge for quick freight as against necessarily slow ocean freight.

Now ships will go from New York to the Pacific Coast through the canal, and the cost of water freight will be very small—UNLESS THE RAILROADS CAN MANAGE TO FASTEN A TOLL ON AMERICAN FREIGHT USING AN AMERICAN CANAL. This the railroads are trying to do, in the high-sounding name of national honor, treaty rights, etc.

For, don't you see, every dollar that railroad influence can lay as a tax on American shipping in the canal IS A DOLLAR THAT THE RAILROAD CAN ADD TO ITS FREIGHT CHARGES.

Let our Government charge American ships $2 a ton for using the canal, and the railroads can at once add $2 a ton to their freight rate.

Quite simple and clear, is it not?

Remember that when you hear the pitiful sobbing talk about protecting poor Great Britain against such an "outrage" as letting Americans, who built the canal and paid for it, give free use of it to American ships.

England, as a matter of fact, is very little interested in the matter, except that England's rich men own the Canadian Pacific Railroad, and they, like our railroad owners, are working to fasten a tax on American ships IN ORDER TO ADD THAT TAX TO AMERICAN FREIGHT SHIPPERS.

Fortunately the matter is pretty well understood.

This country will let all American ships use the canal without charge very soon. And our coastwise shipping will be free at once.

The Congress in this instance will not be used as a railroad freight collector. One Senator the other day introduced a resolution to set aside the existing treaty with England entirely—a thing we have a right to do at any time. There is no doubt that whatever may be necessary will be done to make and keep the American Canal FREE TO AMERICAN SHIPS.

Even the railroads, after they lose their foolish fight, will find it a good thing FOR THEM to help the general American prosperity.

Free use of the canal and low freight rates will bring lumber to the Atlantic Coast from the Far Northwest and bring fruit to the East from California and other Pacific States.

Eastern products will go at low freight rates through the canal to the Pacific. Business will grow, enterprise will find encouragement, labor, industry AND the railroads will share in the benefit of a canal UNITING THE COUNTRY MORE CLOSELY AND MORE CHEAPLY.

For every carload of cheap freight going through the canal and taken, apparently FROM the railroads, there will be two extra carloads of high priced freight FOR the roads. Profitable long hauls will increase and profitable short hauls as well.

And within ten years intelligent railroad men will thank the Panama Canal and free use of it by Americans for prosperity such as they have never seen.

MEANWHILE, IT IS IMPORTANT TO REALIZE THAT THE RAILROADS AND THEIR MANAGERS, NEAR-SIGHTED AS USUAL, ARE THE REAL POWER FIGHTING TO SHUT AMERICAN SHIPS OUT OF AN AMERICAN CANAL in the name of our holy duty to England.

How Your Mind Can Aid Health

By GARRETT P. SERVISS.

A GREAT DOCTOR once said: "Successful practice requires one-third science and two-thirds savoir faire" (knowing how to do it).

By that he meant impressing the imagination of the patient, and impressing it the right way. Any doctor can affect his patient's imagination, but many send its mercurial spirit dropping downward like a thermometer in a cold wave. If doctors ever really do kill their patients it is through what they administer to the mind.

We are only just beginning to learn something of the extent of the mind's control over health and disease. Many persons are willing to admit that the mind influences nervous affections, and that the imagination may either bring them on or drive them away; but they refuse to believe that mental influences which produce "lessons"—i. e., physical injuries to certain parts of the body.

Inspires With Confidence.

But they are wrong in their skepticism. The imagination can produce lessons as well as heal them. There never has been a great epidemic in which a large percentage of the mortality was not the result of mental upset. Mere fear kills like a lightning stroke by paralyzing the nervous system, whereupon the bodily machinery tears itself to pieces through loss of the central control.

I do not suppose that the imagination ever broke a bone or set one, but I am sure that it has either saved or lost the life of many a sick person, according to the way in which it happened to be directed, either by the will of the patient himself or by the guiding influence of a doctor or a nurse.

The successful doctor is the man who enters the sick room with his face full of cheer and of masterful confidence, and not with his pockets full of pills. The good nurse is worth her pay because she keeps her patient cheerful and confident. When you choose a doctor for your family, select one whose look makes you feel stronger. His presence will be like that of Napoleon on the battlefield.

It is not sympathy that heals; too much sympathy sometimes kills. It is confidence that does the good work. Away with your morose-looking doctor—unless it happens that behind the grave face there is an appearance of power, for that is worth more than all else in breeding confidence in the patient.

It has been suggested that "personal magnetism" is an actual, dynamic (moving) force proceeding from one person to another.

There is much to support that view. When Caesar in his scarlet cloak, with his bald head bared, rode through the lines of his soldiers at Alesia, something passed from him to them which enabled them to hurl back the assault of the three hundred thousand Gauls. It was the personal magnetism of Caesar that saved the day. It put courage into despairing hearts and energy into tired muscles.

But the best way to combat disease is to meet it with your own will. The patient who gives up can rarely be saved. Believe with all your might in your powers of resistance. Think of recovery, not of death.

Exerting Will Power.

A hot summer is before us, and it will bring its lassitude and its sicknesses, real or imaginary. Prepare yourself beforehand to meet these conditions by cultivating confidence, cheerfulness and will power. Joke about the thermometer when it goes up to ninety or a hundred in the shade, and don't draw a long face before it. If an epidemic breaks out, treat it as the Roman emperor treated the comet which terrified his friends. "Oh," he said, "that hairy star is after the king of the Persians, who has got whiskers. It won't trouble me."

And if you are doubtful about the power of the imagination to influence your body, read the stories of the "Stigmata" which appeared on some of the of old, when they concentrated their minds for days and nights together on the wounds of the Savior.

All Could See Them.

St. Francis, it is recorded, had all the marks of the Crucifixion upon him, though not produced by any hand or weapon.

Everybody could see them. St. Hieronyma Carvaglio had the spear mark in her side, which bled every Friday. St. Catharine, of Raconisco, had the marks of the Crown of Thorns on her head. All of these things, and many like them, are said to have been produced solely by pious meditations. You may smile at that, or you may not, according to your standards of belief, but you can hardly refuse to believe other things as wonderful that have been recorded on medical authority.

Whether you call it Christian Science, or mind healing, or blind faith, or anything else you may choose, there is no doubt that you have it in your power to influence by mental concentration the health and well-being of your body. Cultivate that power, and you will be the better for it. You will save, or shorten, many doctors' bills—but don't neglect the doctor, either; help him.

DOROTHY DIX

Writes on

The Suffrage Parade---It Was a History Making Spectacle and Marks the Exit of the Doll Baby Woman From the Stage of Life.

By DOROTHY DIX.

WHAT did people see as they watched the Suffrage Parade in New York last Saturday?

They saw the first real democracy of woman.

They saw Judy O'Grady and the Colonel's Lady marching shoulder to shoulder. They saw the petted darling of the drawing room walking side by side with the girl of the sweat shop.

In that procession were millionairesses keeping step with scrubwomen; college professors with the pupils of night schools; Fifth Avenue hostesses with waitresses from cheap lunch rooms; old women with withered cheeks and gray hair with girls in the first flush and bloom of youth and beauty. All lines of wealth and class and social distinction were wiped out by the great cause that touches every woman high and low, and that has brought them together in one great sisterhood.

What did the people see when they watched the Suffrage Parade?

They saw one of the spectacles that make history. They saw the passing of the old order of things and the entrance of the new.

Exit of Doll Baby Woman.

They saw the exit from the stage of life of the doll baby woman of the past, of the woman who could find the whole of life in adorning herself, whose interests were no wider than her own home, and who saw no shame in getting what she wanted out of some man by cajolery, or flattery, or lying, or whatever other means was necessary.

Dull, indeed, were the eyes that did not see in those thousands and thousands of earnest-faced women the type of the new womanhood that is marching onward to a place beside man, no more to be his toy and plaything, but his equal and his partner in doing the work of the world and reaping its rewards.

What did the people see as they watched the Suffrage Parade?

They saw the spectre of injustice marching in every woman's shadow. The crowds through which those ten thousand white-clad women tramped were mostly silent, as well they might be with shame if they had eyes to see and a heart to comprehend the significance of the scene.

Own Millions; Can't Vote.

They saw women who owned millions of dollars' worth of property, but who were denied the right to say what taxes should be levied upon their property. They saw the representatives of six million working women, but who have no power in shaping the legislation that affected them.

They saw mothers whose little children's lives were crushed out of them in factories; housewives who must sweat every nickel to make it go a little farther when trusts put up prices; women who represented one half of the population, and who were affacted by its every law, but who had no voice in making them. They saw highly educated women, brilliant professional women, noble women philanthropists, saintly church women, women who represented all that is finest and best in humanity, but who were denied the previleges that the most illiterate, the most debased, man enjoys.

What did the people see as they watched the Suffrage Parade?

They saw one of the most pathetic sights the world has ever witnessed. They saw womanhood humbling itself before man to ask as a boon the privilege that it should demand as a right.

They saw the wife who has grown gray and old in service to her husband, and who has given him the best years of her life, asking to be made his equal. They saw the mother who has borne his son in her arms going before him as a suppliant.

They saw the rich woman asking a dole of her butler and her footman.

They saw the woman college professor begging the ignorant and illiterate foreigner to share with her the right of government that he has and she has not. It was a silent, sad appeal to man to right the injustice he has done woman—to strike her political shackles from her.

Made Even the Doll Think.

No one except those who took part in it know what courage, what sacrifice of personal inclination, it took for quite, dignified, reserved women to tramp the streets, and make themselves a public spectacle for hundreds of thousands of curious eyes, and to be the butt of cheap wits and village cut-ups.

To most of the women every step of the way was the way of the cross, but they trod it unfalteringly, because there was no other means that could so effectually carry the message they had to give to the public. It was a spectacle that made even the dullest think.

What did they see as they watched the Suffrage Parade?

They saw victory marching on to its crowning. Every woman's face wore the uplifted look of a martyr, of one who would struggle on undismayed by defeat until she finally conquered. No one who witnessed that parade will ever jest and scoff again at woman's suffrage. He will know that it is a fact to be reckoned with, and that it is just as sure to come as is to-morrow.

THE LAST TOWN

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

Where is the Town at the end of the Line,
With its lure for the great and the small?
How shall we fare when we come to the sign
That was painted and hung for us all?
Long is the track and we can not go back
To wait for a faltering friend;
Through meadow and mart we are whirled from the start
To the wonderful Town at the end.

Some reach it in youth on a flying express
That passes the stations of strife,
And others grow gray while pursuing their way
On the laboring locals of life.
Some curse the Conductor and pray for the end,
And some think the pace is too fast;
Whatever the pace, we are nearing the place
Where we all leave the train at the last.

'Tis a mystical Town that no mortal has seen
Till the end of his long earthly ride;
But after the trip there is Knowledge to glean
About pomp and possessions and pride.
And perhaps we shall gain when we swing from the train
All the things we were forced to resign,
For the Agent is there, with each passenger's share,
In the Town at the end of the Line.

FORMER JUDGE CANDLER ON LACK OF RESPECT FOR THE LAW

John S. Candler, now Alderman, and former Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, and previous to this Judge in the Superior Court, made an address to the graduating class of the Atlanta Law School in which he said:

"The idea of taking an ignorant man, working on him until 4 o'clock in the morning, then flarin a flashlight in his face and saying, 'We know you killed somebody,' is worse than the Spanish inquisition. Such a practice has no place in the law, and that's why the public are losing confidence in and respect for the officers of the court.

"A detective who would voluntarily go on the stand ought not to be believed. The purpose of a detective is to find evidence, and not to swear that the evidence he has is true. The detective is interested to convict the man whom his evidence involves, and, therefore, he is not a competent witness."

SHRINERS GET BIG WELCOME AT MERIDIAN AND JACKSON

"We Are Going to Bring Home the Bacon," Official Announcement of Atlanta Convention at Former Mississippi City.

"Circus Day" in Shade When Yaarab Special Comes to Town. Hosts Vote Queen City's Representatives Irresistible.

JACKSON, MISS., May 10.—(Special.)—Jackson men and women are going back to their Saturday afternoon duties with a smile that won't come off for days. They have just met the "Yaarab Special" from Atlanta that made its joyous way through the city, and they will not soon forget the meeting.

It is a wonderful party, this bunch that Atlanta has sent to the convention in Dallas to bring back assurance of the Shriners' convention in Atlanta for next year. At least, all Jackson feels that way about it.

And Jackson wishes them well. A fair bit of the city was at the station this afternoon to greet them and to tell them of their good wishes.

The crowd grew. A delegation was there at first to ask Forrest Adair and some of the others to speak, but everybody spoke. This was no day for formality. The more the talking, the more the singing, the closer became the ties between Atlanta and Jackson.

Then one of the Atlanta men, whose name could not be ascertained because of the general melee, leaped in full view of the populace. He was a stout blonde.

Sure, Everybody Was Happy.

"Is everybody happy?" he shouted.

Jackson, Miss., assured him everybody was.

Enterprising newspaper men of the Mississippi capital sought to interview dignitaries among the party. They were met by an imposing delegation, who, after much deliberation, produced a signed statement.

It was as follows:

"We are going to bring back the bacon.

"J. LEE BARNES,
"FRED PATTERSON,
"GRAHAM PHELAN,
"JESSE COUCH,
"W. A. FOSTER."

Then, all too soon, the train pulled out, according to the unsympathetic railroad schedule, which was not alive to the fact that Jackson, Miss., was having the time of its life and that there was an intermingling of souls not often experienced.

Jackson came to this conclusion: The men whom Atlanta Shriners picked to represent Atlanta's cause are irresistible.

Still Anxious About "Joy."

The "Yaarab Special" made its way west. The stout blonde gentleman was on the observation platform when the train passed into the distance, and he was still requesting information as to the happiness of Jacksonites.

Luncheon for the Yaarab nobles will be served at Vicksburg, where the train crosses the Father of Waters and invades the West. Great doings are promised at the Hill City, though only a short stop can be made.

At 9 o'clock this evening the train is due in Shreveport, the second city of Louisiana. Shreveport has a bunch of live Shriners, and is in thorough

Accuser of O'Hara Now Denies Charge

Maud Robinson Admits Signing Affidavit, but Says It Contained No Allegation of Immorality.

CHICAGO, May 10.—Maud Robinson, who signed an affidavit charging improper conduct against Barratt O'Hara, Lieutenant Governor of Illinois and chairman of the Senate White Slave Committee, was the first witness to-day before a sub-committee appointed to investigate the affair. She denied absolutely that there had been anything improper in her relations with the Lieutenant Governor.

She admitted signing an affidavit, but said it contained no charge of immorality.

The woman testified that she had never had improper relations with O'Hara. When she was questioned as to her making the affidavit about a trip to Chicago from Springfield, she said the affidavit was made at the instance of Samuel Davis, of a liquor firm in Springfield.

"He said the affidavit was only to make a bluff with and that it would not be made public under any circumstances," she explained.

Beavers' Manager Is Fined $500 or Prison

Broyles Binds H. R. Pitts Over, Also, to State Courts for Violating Liquor Laws.

H. R. Pitts, manager of the Beavers' Club, Saturday was fined $500 or 30 days by Recorder Broyles and also was bound over to the State courts in bond of $1,000 accused of violating the liquor laws.

The case was based on testimony given by W. T. Brownlee, of Lawrenceville, who said he had purchased liquor in the club, paying for it in cash and without having to exhibit a membership card. He said he had an old visitor's card, now out of date, but did not even show this. Pitts and other attaches of the club denied Brownlee's story, declaring they had never seen him before.

DARDEN SUES TO TAKE CHILDREN FROM HIS WIFE

COURT SETS HEARING MAY 17

Injunction Served as Woman Is About to Leave Atlanta for Vermont.

Elmer T. Darden, convicted slayer, swore out a writ of habeas corpus Saturday to take from his wife, Naomi Carter Darden, the custody of their four children, on the grounds that she is not a fit person to have the care of them.

Darden is under bond pending a hearing of an appeal of his case. He was sentenced to three years on the chaingang for killing C. M. Goddard, despite his plea of the "unwritten law."

A temporary injunction, granted by Judge J. T. Pendleton, was served on Mrs. Darden Saturday at her home on Crew Street, just as she was preparing to leave for the station to take a train for Vermont. Judge Pendleton named May 17, as the date for the trial, and in the meantime Mrs. Darden was commanded not to leave the county.

The children are Naomi, age twelve; Elmer T., Jr., age ten; Rodney, age six, and Emma, age three.

Darden alleged that his wife, from whom he is separated, intended to take the children to a permanent home outside the State of Georgia. He said the responsibility for their education and care rested mainly on him and he wanted them taken from her.

Darden is represented by Attorneys John S. McClelland and W. M. Smith.

Vegetable Wagon Merely Liquor Van

Negro Seen Taking Sack From Vehicle, and, Pursued, Cornered With Contraband Goods.

When a countryman early Saturday drove through Haynes Street crying out fresh country vegetables for sale, James Crawford, a negro, was seen to step into the street and lift from the bottom of the wagon a half filled tow sack.

Other negroes thought him a thief and gave chase. Crawford ran into a building at Haynes and Dover Streets, where he was cornered and held until Police Call Officers Cochran and Long arrived. The sack was found to contain a wholesale supply of liquor.

The negro admitted to the police that he had bought the liquor from the "vegetable man," declaring the farmer was selling liquor from the wagon and was merely using the vegetables as a blind. A search was made for the farmer, but he could not be found.

Recorder Broyles fined the negro $50.75.

Sell Tags to Help Seek Missing Girl

NEWCASTLE, IND., May 10.—A tag day in every city in Indiana was planned to-day by friends of Dr. W. C. Winters, father of Katherine Winters, the missing Newcastle girl who has not been heard from since March 21.

Thousands of tags were being sold on the streets of Newcastle to-day in an effort to raise a large fund to be used in prosecuting the search for the little girl.

Bride-to-Be Was Bride-in-Fact

Wedding Date Fixed for June 1

But Miss Slater Chose April 27

MRS. HOWELL B. SCHUMPERT.

Becomes Mrs. Harrell B. Schumpert on Day She Announced Engagement.

Not content to wait until the first Sunday in June to be married, once their engagement had been announced, pretty Miss Lillian Dua Juan Slater, of 136 Rawson Street, and Howell B. Schumpert, 185 Washington Street, went to the parsonage of the Rev. W. C. Schaeffer on April 27—the day their friends were given notice of the impending marriage—and were wed. Their friends—even the bride's parents—will be surprised when they read the news to-day.

From parents, friends and acquaintances the marriage has been kept secret, Miss Slater, or Mrs. Schumpert, going to her home and Schumpert to his boarding house. Since the marriage the newspapers have published the picture of the young woman as a pretty bride-to-be of June, and both have smiled, content to wait until a little rose-bower of a cottage in Stokes Avenue was finished for their occupancy.

Confesses When Shown Proofs.

Smiling gaily, Mrs. Schumpert admitted all the interesting details today when the records in the Ordinary's office were placed before her as conclusive proof that she had married ahead of time.

"Yes," she said, "Howell and I went to church on April 27, the day our engagement was made public. After the service he said he wanted to show me something, and he pulled out a marriage license he had bought. He wanted to get married right away, and I didn't see the use of waiting way till June.

"So, with two friends, Miss Inez Roart and Marvin Beddingfield, whom we knew we could trust, we went around to Rev. Mr. Schaeffer's house and ere married.

Even Father Doesn't Know.

"No, even my father doesn't know about it, but I don't think he will object, because he likes Howell, but I am sorry it came out to-day, as we wanted to wait until our house is finished before we told everybody.

"It was so funny to see my picture in the paper, saying that I was engaged, when I was really married, but we had decided not to tell, so we kept mum."

Bankers Look Upon Atlanta With Favor

Joseph A. McCord and J. K. Ottley Confident Convention Will Come Here After Invitation.

Atlanta has an excellent chance to be convention city for the American Bankers' Association in 1914.

Joseph A. McCord, vice president of the Third National Bank, returned Saturday from a meeting of the Executive Council of the association at Briarcliff, N. Y., expressing confidence that the annual gathering will be held here next year. Mr. McCord and J. K. Ottley, vice president of the Fourth National, carried the Atlanta Clearing House invitation. Mr. McCord said they met with a hearty reception.

"I think we shall have the honor of playing host," said Mr. McCord. "Up to the present time, no other city has extended an invitation. Competition, though, usually is keen when the general convention meets.

Bulgaria and Servia Agree to Peace Pact

Rumor of Threatened Hostilities Started for Political Purposes, Believed in Austria.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

VIENNA, May 10.—Threatened hostilities between Bulgaria and Servia have been avoided, according to dispatches published to-day in the official press. These said the two Balkan countries had reached an agreement respecting the redivision of the territory conquered from Turkey.

As a mark of pacific intention, each country has agreed to demobilize as soon as peace is declared.

Many persons in official dom believe recent reports of dissension in the Balkan League were encouraged by the members of the confederation for political purposes.

Three Men Held for Mysterious Stabbing

Painter Slashed at Vaduct, Unable to Tell Who Cut Him, Is Also Arrested by Police.

Three men were held in the police station Saturday as the result of the mysterious stabbing of W. C. Joiner, a painter living at 455 Whitehall Street.

Joiner, who was badly slashed across the face, said he was cut by a man he did not know, who ran past him on Vladuct Way, near Peachtree Street. L. Edge, a salesman, of 731 Woodward Avenue, and T. C. Lampkin and W. F. Lampkin, father and son, of 33 Simpson Street, on the viaduct at the time, were arrested.

Edge admitted he ran through Viaduct Way to board a car, but denied doing the cutting.

Joiner is also held in the police station.

GUARD OF SECRECY IS THROWN ABOUT PHAGAN SEARCH BY SOLICITOR

Names of Witnesses Withheld by Dorsey to Prevent "Manufacturers of Public Opinion" Getting in Touch with Them---Satisfied with Progress.

Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey declared Saturday afternoon that he was very well satisfied with the progress made in the investigation of the Phagan murder mystery and made the significant remark that he would not reveal the names of new witnesses so that manufacturers of public opinion could not get to them.

The Solicitor held a conference with Dr. H. F. Harris, of the State Board of Health, who examined the girl's body. Dr. Harris said he would rush his report in time for presentation to the Grand Jury when that body takes up the mystery next week. The Solicitor would not reveal just what the physician has learned so far.

The examination of the blood-stained shirt in the back yard of Newt Lee's home was also continued, and the Solicitor was far from convinced that its significance had been rightly determined.

Mr. Dorsey worked all day Saturday on the case and announced that he would continue all of Sunday so that he could present his evidence to the Grand Jury as early as possible next week.

Confers With City Sleuths.

A conference was held with the city detectives, who are working in co-operation with the State, but none of the details could be learned. Strict secrecy is being maintained regarding new developments.

Evidence "exclusive and valuable" in the Mary Phagan case has been obtained. So much the Solicitor said to-day, and no more, declaring details of the evidence would be revealed at the proper time.

The evidence is the result of work by private detectives engaged by the Solicitor, among them one whom he termed "the best detective in America," when speaking of him Friday.

He mentioned the important evidence when he discussed the statement by Monteen Stover, the 14-year-old employee of the National Pencil Company, that is in direct contradiction to the testimony by Leo M. Frank, the suspected factory superintendent.

Other Evidence More Important.

The Solicitor was interested in the girl's statement, but declared that the other evidence in his hands was far more important and tangible.

In opposition to the testimony of Leo M. Frank in the Mary Phagan inquest was the statement of the Stover girl. The evidence that she will bear is to the effect that she was in Frank's office at 12:05 o'clock and a little later on the Saturday afternoon preceding the discovery of the slain girl's body, and that she found it deserted.

According to Frank's testimony, he was in his office from 12 o'clock until 12:25, when Lemmie Quinn, his foreman, came in. During that time, he said, Mary Phagan came in, about 12:05 o'clock, to receive her pay.

Monteen Stover is certain that she reached Frank's office at exactly 12:05 o'clock. She has been retained as an important witness.

Remembers the Time.

"The minute I got to the office floor when I went up to get my pay," she said, "I looked at the clock. I wanted to know if it was time to draw my money. I would have looked at it, anyhow, I suppose, as it is always customary for me to punch it the first thing upon entering the place to go to work.

"It was five minutes after 12. I

Dental Inspection In Schools Urged

Chamber of Commerce to Ask Council for Appointment of Examiners for Pupils.

Proper dental inspection of the school children of Atlanta will be urged upon the City Council by the Chamber of Commerce. The appointment of dentists to make regular inspections and to see that children having teeth complaint receive proper treatment, will be recommended.

The city already has a method of medical inspection which has given material results. It is proposed to have dentists work in connection with the physicians, many of the children's ills being laid to the fact that their teeth are being neglected.

Dr. F. M. Barnwell, chairman of the dentistry committee of the Chamber of Commerce, has called a meeting of the committee for 5:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Attorney Attacks Savannah Charity

Gazan Says Organization Does Nothing but 'Investigate' While Unfortunates Starve.

SAVANNAH, GA., May 10.—Simon Gazan, an attorney, scathingly denounced the Savannah Associated Charities in police court to-day during the hearing of Annie May Bacon, a 16-year-old girl, charged with the theft of a bicycle. Miss Helen Pendleton, general secretary of the Associated Charities, was prevented from replying by a ruling of the Recorder. The girl was finally turned over to the attorney, who promised to look after her.

"All the Associated Charities does is to investigate and investigate," he said, "and while they investigate the unfortunates starve."

Miss Pendleton was visibly excited when she left the court room.

The action of Attorney Gazan was voluntary. He had not been retained to defend the girl.

was sure Mr. Frank would be in his office, so I stepped in. He wasn't in the outer office, and I went into the inner office. He wasn't there, either. I thought he might have been somewhere around the building, so I waited.

"The whole place was awfully quiet. It was scary. When he didn't show up in a few minutes, I went to the door and looked around the machinery. He wasn't there. I stayed until the clock hand was pointing exactly to 12:10. Then I went downstairs. I could see nor hear no one."

The testimony of Monteen Stover was obtained by detectives when they quizzed her the Saturday following the killing of Mary Phagan. The girl and her mother, Mrs. Homer Edmondson, of 171 South Forsyth Street, came to the factory to get the pay which the girl did not get the week before.

Stopped by Detectives.

In the office were detectives, eager to seize every available bit of information. They stopped Mrs. Edmondson and the girl, and were rewarded by Monteen's statement that she had been in Frank's office on the afternoon of the fatal day.

Monteen Stover said she did not know Mary Phagan, and probably had never seen her. She commended Frank as being popular with his employees, and kind.

Another development within the last 24 hours has been the elimination of another clew. The "woman in red," a mysterious figure reported to have been seen with Mary Phagan at the pencil factory, has been located. She is Mrs. Nancy Caldwell, of 10 Gray Street, an acquaintance of the dead girl. Examination revealed the fact, however, that she had not been with Mary Phagan in a year. The rumor of her association with the Phagan girl on the afternoon of the killing started in the mistaken statement of a girl at Mapleton.

Developed also evidence from a young woman whose name will not be revealed that the girl probably came to her death in the basement of the factory, and not in the upstairs lathe room. The following affidavit, subscribed to by a young woman who passed the factory about 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, April 26, is in the possession of Solicitor Dorsey, given him by Chief of Detectives Lanford.

The testimony is that as she passed the Forsyth Street entrance to the factory she was attracted by the shrill screams of a girl, coming, apparently, from the basement of the building. The cries were loud and piercing, and she stopped, hearing three sharp screams in rapid succession. Then the factory became quiet again.

Neither Chief Lanford nor Solicitor Dorsey would reveal the name of the young woman informant nor anything regarding her identity, except that she lives on Haynes Street.

600 Tech Students Parade in 'Nighties'

Celebrate Baseball Victory Over Georgia by Dervish March Through Downtown Streets.

Attired like howling Dervishes, and behaving much in the same fashion, 600 "Tech" students paraded the downtown streets Friday night celebrating "Tech's" baseball victory over Georgia.

The score was 4 to 2. If you doubted it, there it was, painted on the back of most of the night shirts. Night shirts were the costume de rigueur.

The college band, in jerseys, headed the dancing procession, but its music was drowned by the din of tin horns, dinner bells and rattles, not to mention some very creditable lungs.

MOVE TO STOP CONFIRMATION OF MRS. HAM

Congressman Bell Not Party to Fight on Gainesville Woman. President Explains.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—A movement to have the name of Mrs. H. W. J. Ham withdrawn as postmaster at Gainesville is understood to be under way here, although Representative Thomas M. Bell, Congressman from the Ninth District, says he is not a party to it.

It is well known that Congressman Bell feels keenly the turning down of his recommendation in the Gainesville matter, as he thinks, Gainesville, being his home town, his wishes should have prevailed. Then, too, the Congressman had an engagement with the President the day after Mrs. Ham's name was sent to the Senate, to discuss the Gainesville postmastership.

Name Sent Accidentally.

President Wilson addressed a note to Mr. Bell, telling him the name was ent in through inadvertance, as he had not intended making the nomination that day. He, however, said nothing about changing the situation.

Since the appointment was sent in, Congressman Bell has not been to the White House. The movement to have Mrs. Ham's name withdrawn has been inaugurated by friends of all the parties concerned, in the hope of avoiding that which now seems likely to develop considerable feeling in Congressional circles.

Bell Not to Ask Recall.

Congressman Bell said to-day: "I understand there is talk of a movement to ask the President to withdraw Mrs. Ham's name, one reason being that on the President's own admission the name was sent to the Senate inadvertently. I shall make no such request. However, I would do so if I had information that my candidate, Mr. A. S. Hardy, would be appointed. I have nothing directly against the appointment of Mrs. Ham, but I earnestly and sincerely desired the appointment of the man I had indorsed."

Mr. Bell said he knew nothing of any plan to make a fight on Mrs. Ham's name when it comes up for confirmation by the Senate, and the possibility of such a fight was denied at the offices of both Senator Bacon and Senator Smith.

It is the disposition of the Georgia delegation to leave the matter in the hands of the President. If he indicates that he would appoint Mr. Hardy, then Mr. Bell will ask him to withdraw the name of Mrs. Ham, but unless such information is forthcoming, Mrs. Ham's name will probably be confirmed.

The President was not at the White House to-day and no information could be obtained there.

Mrs. Longstreet talked with a number of friends in the capital and will go before the Senate nominating committee to protest against her removal. Her protest will be that her work has not been unsatisfactory to Gainesville people.

An announceemnt from Congressman Thomas M. Bell that he would issue a statement to the public regarding the Gainesville postoffice created quite a sensation among the Georgians here.

Navy Officer, Suicide, Fiancee Is Unmoved

Betrothal of Lieutenant Hill and Miss Henrietta Erwin Had Just Been Announced.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Without a sign of emotion, Miss Henrietta Erwin, 21 years old, to-day received the news that her fiance, Lieutenant Richard Hill, U. S. N., had committed suicide at Annapolis. She gave no explanation for such an act, but secluded herself to-day, refusing to see callers.

While undertakers were performing their offices upon the body, Miss Erwin was sleeping peacefully through the night.

The engagement of Lieutenant Hill and Miss Erwin was announced last Wednesday. It was the outcome of a long romance beginning in the Philippines while Lieutenant Hill was stationed there and Miss Erwin was living with her father, Lieutenant Colonel J. B. Erwin.

Miss Erwin returned to the United States only a short time ago to prepare for her marriage next November.

Major Walter Gordon, uncle of Miss Erwin, declared the engagement had not been broken off and that he can assign no reason for Lieutenant Hill's suicide.

sympathy with Yaarab's aspirations to play host to the Shrine in 1914.

A combination baggage car and coach, a tourist kitchen car, two standard Pullmans for the patrol and two Pullmans for the officers, representatives of Atlanta commercial bodies and nobles make up a train which never was surpassed in comfort.

"They travel like they owned the railroad," observed a train caller at Jackson.

Reach Dallas Sunday Morning.

John L. Meek, assistenat general passenger agent of the Southern, is in charge of the train. A. P. Matthews, division passenger agent of the Frisco lines, and N. C. Woodridge, southeastern passenger agent of the Texas and Pacific, assume charge when their lines are reached.

The special is to reach the Texas city at 5 o'clock Sunday morning. On arrival, Yaarab Temple drum corps will parade the streets. Returning, the special will come through Texarkana, Memphis and Birmingham. The return trip, it is confidently expected, will be a triumphal progress.

Visit to Meridian as Lively as Circus Day.

MERIDIAN, MISS., May 10.—Circus day has nothing on to-day. All Meridian was astir early this morning to greet the Atlanta Shriners who passed through at 8 o'clock on their way to Dallas, where they will land the 1914 Council.

Meridian's patrol met the train in full uniform, and the Yaarab nobles, no longer sleepy, responded heartily to the welcome given them.

All the Atlantans were routed out and taken in autos to the best restaurant in town, where an old-fashioned Mississippi breakfast was served. Then began a trip around the city in automobiles. Thoughtful Meridian Shriners saw to it that a lady was put in charge of each car. Mrs. D. F. White and Miss Bessie Kempton, of Atlanta, who are traveling with the Shriners, were the guests of honor, and were shown every courtesy the fertile genius of Mississippians could invent.

So enthusiastic were the Meridian hosts that the stopover had to be extended from an hour to an hour and a half.

Five Busy Days for Shriners at Dallas.

Monday: Registration; reception and luncheon to officers of patrols and bands at Scottish Rite Cathedral; entertainment for patrols and bands at Lake Cliff Casino; informal receptions at hotels and clubs for all visitors.

Tuesday: Escort of imperial divan from headquarters to cathedral by all patrols and bands; official opening of imperial council; entertainment for visiting ladies by the Federated Women's Clubs; Imperial Council dinner; automobile drives for wives of visiting nobles; band concert and races; grand parade and review.

Wednesday: Regular sessions of council; regimental review, massed band concert and exhibition drills; luncheon for Imperial Council; barbecue; ball.

Thursday: Delegates start on grand circuit tour of Texas; grand concert by all bands; polo games and athletic events.

JUDGE CANDLER SCORES POLICE 'THIRD DEGREE'

Judge John S. Candler rapped Georgia's criminal code and practices current among lawyers and the police in an address to students of the Atlanta Law School and members of the Atlanta Bar Friday night. Another interesting feature of his address was his denunciation of third degree methods of securing evidence and the testimony of detectives.

"So long as lawyers have success for themselves in view, verdicts of juries will be looked on as results of trickery and adroit juggling."

Other striking statements in his speech were:

"Taking an ignorant man, work on him until 4 o'clock in the morning, then flare a flashlight in his face and say, 'We know you have killed someone,' is worse than the practices of the Spanish Inquisition.

"A detective who would voluntarily go on the stand ought not to be believed. The purpose of a detective is to find evidence and not to swear that it is true.

"An odd commentary on conditions in Georgia is our penal code. The Lord thought He could run the world with Ten Commandments, but the Georgia Legislature takes 10,000.

"Strict law enforcement would repeal 75 per cent of Georgia's penal laws in 24 hours.

"I have sentenced more men to be hanged than all the judges in Great Britain combined since 1860. There's a reason. It's the law and the methods of some lawyers. People have no respect for the law when there is too much of it, when the law is used for the purpose of oppression."

"We are making too many misdemeanors; we are making too many felonies. The average man seldom knows if he is a criminal or not, and many are constantly violating the statutes from spitting on the sidewalks on down a long list of small and forgotten misdemeanors.

"As long as the lawmakers continue to turn out a new book full of laws every summer, so long will we continue to have law violations. I believe with General Grant that if a law is a bad one, enforce it."

2,000 Masons Wished Shriner Band Luck.

Fully 2,000 Masons bade Yaarab Temple "good-bye" and wished it luck Friday night at the Terminal Station when the Dallas special departed. The train pulled out at 10 o'clock for its long trip.

The drum corps led the march to the station, and roused reverberations which filled the ear drums of everyone who happened to be anywhere near the center of town last night.

Behind the drum corps marched the nobles, waving banners and shouting "Atlanta, 1914," which is the watchword.

Among those on the special train are: Forrest Adair, John Hynds, W. A. Foster, Claude Hutcheson, Fred Houser, J. C. Greenfield, S. L. Dickey, W. R. Joyner, H. G. Martin, J. B. Jacoway, Fred Patterson, Graham Phelan, J. Lee Barnes, Ben Coley, J. F. Carson, Fred Van der Pool, J. F. Waltt, George Beck, Jesse E. Couch, James Kempton, Captain J. O. Seamons, First Lieut. H. C. 3,000 in Annual School Field Day

Pupils Contest at Ponce De Leon

Dances and Flag Drills Features

One of the little girls in the dances at the annual public school field day exercises at Ponce DeLeon park.

Youngsters Make Fine Spectacle Going Through Exercises to Music of Band.

Spectacular drills and dances formed the feature of Saturday afternoon's program. Ranged in long, even rows on the baseball diamond, the white dresses of the little girls and blue trousers and white waists of the little boys waved in unison with the music of the band and the baton of the director. The children went through the intricate figures of the flag drill and the dances with a precision and beauty that gained for them generous applause from the crowded grandstand and bleachers.

At 5 o'clock the children who won medals in the athletic games Saturday morning will be given their prizes, and the point trophies will be awarded to the schools.

Eighty children competed in the games, about 50 being boys. The contests were conducted on the point basis, and up to 4 o'clock the judges had not yet completed their work of determining the winning schools and individuals.

Two Classes for Each Sex.

The boys and girls were divided into two classes each. Class A comprised boys over 13 years old; Class B boys under 13; Class A, girls over 13 years, and Class B, girls under 13 years of age. The events were the same for all classes, except the distance of the running races. Class A boys ran a hundred yards, Class B boys 60 yards, Class A girls 75 yards, and Class B girls 50 yards. Other events were the standing broad jump and the running high jump and chinning the bar. Instead of the latter event the girls hurled the basketball for distance. One entry was allowed in each class from each school.

In the feature event of the day, the running high jump for Class A boys, Mitchell Benton, 15 years old, of the Peeples Street School, tied with Russell Anstett, 15 years old, of the Edgewood School, for first place. Each jumped 56 inches.

Great Tuberculosis Institute Is Opened

Million Dollar Gift of Henry Phipps in Philadelphia to Eradicate in Disease Prevention.

PHILADELPHIA, May 10.—In the presence of many prominent medical men, scientists and philanthropists, the $1,000,000 Henry Phipps Tuberculosis Institute was opened here today. The institute is the gift of Henry Phipps, of New York, to the University of Pennsylvania. It is in the amount of money expended the largest gift yet made in the crusade against the white plague.

Henry Phipps, who was present, was presented with a degree of Doctor of Laws. Dr. Edward F. Smith, provost of the university, presided.

The Phipps Institute is not primarily a hospital, but an institute for the study, prevention of tuberculosis and education regarding the disease. Grosvenor Atterbury was architect. Dr. Charles J. Hattfield is executive director.

RAMONA BORDEN REPORTED AGAIN TO BE MISSING

Multi-Millionaire Milk Dealer's Daughter and Her Mother Leave New York Hotel.

NEW YORK, May 10.—Miss Ramona Borden, 17-year-old daughter of Gail Borden, multi-millionaire New York milk dealer, whose mysterious disappearance from a New Jersey sanitarium several weeks ago caused a big sensation, is to-day reported to be missing again.

Credence was given the report by announcement at the Vanderbilt Hotel, where Mrs. Borden and her daughter have been living, that both left the hotel and that their present whereabouts are unknown.

The first hint that Ramona had run away again came from New Haven, Conn., to which place she had gone with Mrs. Helen Seldon White, wife of a rich Cleveland, Ohio, chewing gum manufacturer, on her recent runaway escapade.

Reported in New Haven.

A dispatch from New Haven reported that a woman answering Mrs. White's description met two young girls at the railway station there, the party going to a hotel where they registered as "Mrs. W. J. White and daughters, Niagara Falls, N. Y."

One of the girls answered the description of Miss Borden; the other resembled one of Mrs. Whtie's nieces who was a member of the previous runaway party. When Mrs. White was approached in New Haven by reporters she denied that she was the same woman who connived in the Borden girl's escape from the sanitarium.

At the offices of Mr. Borden it was said to-day by Mr. Borden's secretary that the girl's father had no knowledge of her being in New Haven.

Mr. and Mrs. Borden are separated, but not divorced. Mrs. Borden makes her home in Los Angeles, Cal., but came here when she received news of her daughter's mysterious disappearance several weeks ago.

JERSEY STRIKE LEADER'S CASE ENDS IN MISTRIAL

PATERSON, N. J., May 10.—After deliberating 22 hours the jury in the case of Patrick Quinlan, one of the five Industrial Workers of the World strike leaders, indicted on charges of inciting textile strikers to riot, announced they could not agree to-day, and were discharged by Judge Kleinert.

FERTILIZER HIT BY NEW TARIFF, SAYS PROTEST

Business Men Receive Message From Washington, Following Passage of New Bill.

The following telegram, which explains itself, was received from Washington to-day by some of the leading business men of Atlanta:

"What do you think of the Democratic Congress, pledged to tariff reform, taking off of the free list an article and putting a duty of ten per cent on same? This I am advised was done yesterday when the House of Representatives at Washington passed the tariff bill putting a tax of ten per cent on sulphate of ammonia. My understanding that the ten per cent is an ad valorem tax which, at the present price of sulphate, would be over $6 a ton, and would be fully as much if not more than the old Republican tariff of .30 cents per hundred pounds, which was knocked out of the Payne-Aldrich bill and became a law in August, 1909, since which sulphate of ammonia has been on the free list.

"You must know about the increased production in this country and that this infant industry has greatly prospered in four years of free trade. The fertilizer manufacturers ought to protest to our Representatives, both in the House and in the Senate, against this tax which is directly against the farmer, and the Democratic party, having pledged itself to revise the tariff and bring about cheaper cost of living, is deliberately adding to the cost if they tax sulphate of ammonia.

"The price of sulphate of ammonia is higher to-day than it was in 1909 when the duty of $6 per ton was imposed. This material is a by-product, is healthy and needs no protection."

JUSTICE LAMAR TO SPEAK AT GEORGIA BAR MEETING

MACON, May 10.—Justice Joseph R. Lamar, of the United States Supreme Court, will be the principal speaker at the annual convention of the Georgia Bar Association at Warm Springs on May 29, 30 and 31. The other principal address will be made by Judge Andrew J. Cobb, of Athens, president of the association.

PLANS TO STOP MEN'S DODGING DUTY ON JURIES

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

Representative Minter Wimberly, of Bibb County, one of the few veterans to return to the Legislature, will introduce early in the forthcoming session a bill to abolish jury exemptions.

Primarily, this measure will be designed to stop the sale of jury exemptions to members of the military companies of the State, but it also will cover some other forms of exemptions now permitted by law.

The State now allows every military company regularly enlisted in the State's service a certain number of jury exemptions, and these may be used by members of the organizations, or sold to outsiders, as the company may elect. The practice has been to sell these exemptions for $25 per annum, the revenue resulting to the company to be applied to armory rent and other company expenses.

The result has been that the exemptions generally have operated to relieve well-to-do citizens in various cities, bankers, business men of large interests, and the like, from jury service, who otherwise would be required to do jury duty the same as the common or garden variety of folks.

Representative Wimberly thinks these citizens come from a class that should not be exempt from jury duty any more than others are exempt, and he particularly believes that there are many juries that need the services of bankers and business men of large interests, in order to insure fair and intelligent verdicts in matters involving the adjustment of financial affairs.

There has been a disposition in Georgia for a good many years to do away with these jury exemptions, and there is no doubt whatever that Mr. Wimberly's bill will receive hearty support in many quarters.

A great many people will sympathize with the Bibb County man's idea that all classes of citizens should perform their share of jury duty, unless prevented by illness, physical defect, extreme old age or positive disqualification for cause or interest in the persons or issues involved.

Believing that Georgia should have another United States District Court, and that Savannah should be the headquarters of the new district, a party of Savannah attorneys is now in Washington for a conference with the Department of Justice on the subject.

Those in the delegation are Judge Samuel B. Adams, W. W. Osborne, J. Ferris Cann, Anton P. Wright and T. Mayhew Cunningham. It is understood that General P. W. Meldrim will join the party in Washington Monday.

At various times in the last several years efforts have been made to have another District Court established in Southern Georgia, but nothing ever came of these efforts. At the time of the election of President Wilson, the old agitation was revived, and despite the fact that various grand juries in the United States Court have recently passed resolutions deploring such action as is now being taken by the Savannah lawyers, it was determined to make the effort to have the new court established there.

The presence of Joseph H. Davis, of Albany, in Washington just now has revived a lot of interesting talk as to the United States marshalship for South Georgia.

It is understood that Senator Bacon has considered Mr. Davis, but that Senator Smith has lodged an objection against him. Senator Bacon has not "indorsed" the Albany man, it is explained, but he has had him "favorably in mind." Whether the objection of Senator Smith will operate to eliminate Davis is the question.

Mr. Davis, it appears, is charged with not being "progressive enough" in his politics to suit the junior Senator—at least, that is the way The Savannah Press hands out the "dope," and, presumably, it speaks by the card.

And, anyway, Davis is in Washington looking into things for himself, and the outcome of his visit is being watched with genuine interest throughout the State.

Georgia politicians have been greatly interested in the development of the Gainesville and Rome postmastership situations, and now that both have been settled, further developments are being watched with even greater interest.

President Wilson in disregarding Congressman Bell's recommendation as to the Gainesville office—Mr. Bell's home office—has set aside a precedent very few expected to see broken. From time immemorial it has been customary for the President to name without question the man nominated by a Representative for his home office. Bell's recommendation of Mr. Hardy in Gainesville, however, was passed over, even before Bell got through talking to the President about Hardy.

Vital Questions Face Presbyterian Assemblies at Atlanta Meet

Proposed Union of United and Southern Churches Interests Dixie

Mark A. Matthews, D. D., Seattle, Wash., retiring Moderator. General J. W. Foster, Washington, D. C., on Judicial Commission.

Rev. Wallace Radcliffe, D. D., Washington, D. C., pastor of President Wilson's church.

J. W. Patterson, of Atlanta, chairman of the Finance Committee of the Assemblies.

William S. Bennet, New York City, former Congressman, a Presbytery Commissioner.

Vital questions of worldwide interest, will come before the Presbyterian assemblies in Atlanta. Perhaps the most interesting of these to the layman is the effort to be made in the Southern Assembly to change the "elect infant clause" to remove all ground for the supposition that all infants are not saved.

This will come up in consideration of section 3, chapter 10 of the Confession of Faith and will not be new work for a General Assembly of this church. The proposed changes have been thoroughly discussed and recommended by a number of assemblies, but no change proposed as yet has met the approval of three-fourths of the Presbyteries.

The proposed change in this paragraph which was approved by the Bristol Assembly causes the paragraph to read thus: "Being elect, all infants dying in infancy are regenerated and saved by Christ through the Spirit, who worketh when, and where, and how he pleaseth. So also are all other elect persons, who are incapable of being outwardly called by the ministry of the word," this wording to be substituted that now appearing in the Confession of Faith and which reads: "Elect infants dying in infancy etc."

Presbyteries Have Voted.

The Presbyteries have taken vote on the proposed change during the spring meetings and the action of the General Assembly in ordering a change in the wording of this paragraph of the Confession of Faith will be determined by the vote of the Presbyteries. It is hardly to be expected that three-fourths of the Presbyteries will favor the proposed change and it is not unlikely this question will be discussed as thoroughly during the Atlanta Assembly as has been true during other Assemblies.

There is a growing desire upon the part of some prominent ministers of the church for this paragraph to be stricken from the Confession of Faith and thus obliterate all ground for the supposition that any infant or other irresponsible person who dies can fail to be saved, and it is probable that more than one overture to that effect will be presented to the Assembly at Atlanta.

Among the questions of particular interest to the South is the proposed union of the United Presbyterian Church with the Southern Presbyterian Church and this question will be presented in the report of the Committee on Conference, appointed by the Assembly of 1912, which committee in joint meeting with a similar committee appointed by the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church has prepared a basis of union for the two churches and this basis of union will be presented to the General Assemblies of both churches for action.

Terms Not Made Public.

Just what this basis of union is has not been made known to others than the members of the two committees. The basis of union was agreed upon several weeks ago, but the two Committees of Conference decided that as a matter of courtesy to the Assemblies of both churches it should not be given publicity until officially presented to these two bodies.

Rev. R. C. Reed, D. D., of Columbia, S. C., is chairman of the Committee of Conference for the Southern Presbyterian Church and the following named ministers and laymen constitute the other members of this important committee: Rev. S. L. Morris, D. D., of Atlanta; Rev. J. F. Cannon, D. D., of St. Louis; Allen G. Hall, of Nashville, Moderator of the Assembly of 1906; and W. F. Stevenson, of Cheraw, S. C. The General Assembly will await the presentation of no other report with a greater degree of interest than the report of the Committee on Conference, and there is no matter of greater importance to come before the body than the question of the union of these two churches.

The standards held by the United Presbyterian Church are the same as those held by the Southern Presbyterian Church and in the same sense each church accepts them. The two churches possess the same Scotch ancestry, adhere to the same policy, and administer the affairs of benevolences under the same departments. The distinct point of difference between the two churches is the exclusive use of the Psalms in the service of praise in the United Presbyterian Church and it is around this point, in all probability, that the greatest discussion will center in the consideration of the union of the two churches.

Two Other Big Features.

There are two other questions to come before the General Assembly that will constitute outstanding features: The Federal Council and the brief popular statement of Doctrine of the Church.

During the Assembly of 1912, held at Bristol delegates were appointed to represent the Southern Presbyterian Church in the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, which held its quadrennial meeting in December, at Chicago. The report of these delegates will be heard with interest. It is not improbable that overtures will be presented to the Assembly urging that it withdraw again from membership in the Council, but it is likely that a second withdrawal from membership in the Council will be opposed as ably as it will be recommended.

Two changes in the form of government of the church have been proposed and will be considered by the Atlanta Assembly. One is with reference to cases of trial in the church and the proposed change, which was approved by the Bristol Assembly, would give the Synod and the General Assembly the power, at their own discretion, to commit any case of trial coming before them on appeal to the judgment of a Commission, composed of others than members of the Court from which the case shall come, this power to apply in all cases except those affecting doctrine and those shall be tried by the Court itself.

The other proposed change is with reference to the basis of representation in the General Assembly. The basis of representation at present is one minister and one ruling elder from every Presbytery except in those Presbyteries where there are more than twenty-five ministers and in those the representation in the General Assembly shall be two ministers and two ruling elders, but no additional number of churches increases the representation.

Plan Graduated Scale.

The change proposed recommends that every Presbytery shall be represented in the General Assembly by one minister and one ruling elder and that if the communicants of the churches in the Presbytery and ministers on the roll number more than four thousand, the Presbytery shall be entitled to increase its representation to the Assembly with one minister and one ruling elder and that the representation continue to increase in like proportion with the addition of every four thousand communicants and ministers.

During the year since the Bristol Assembly the Presbyteries have taken action with regard to the proposed changes in the form of government; the answers of the eighty-nine Presbyteries will be tabulated during the Atlanta Assembly and if three-fourths of the answers favor the proposed changes, the changes will become law, by the enactment of the Assembly.

The ad interim committee appointed by the Bristol Assembly to prepare a brief popular statement of the doctrines taught by the Southern Presbyterian Church is composed of fifteen representative men from all sections of the church, with Rev. R. A. Webb, D. D., of the Kentucky Presbyterian Theological Seminary, at Louisville, as chairman. This committee may be able to submit its report to the Atlanta Assembly, but it will not be cause for surprise if longer time is requested to complete this important work.

The preparation of this brief popular statement has been requested for use especially as a tract in mission territory as well as in other sections of the church; this statement will in no way displace the standards of the church, but will express the same in a simplified form and one that will be easy to handle, especially in mission territory of the church.

DEMOCRATS PICK CAMPAIGN HEADS

Johnson of Kentucky Slated for Permanent Chairman of Congressional Committee.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—The compromise reached at the meeting of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee apparently is satisfactory to all members, both in the House and Senate, and President Wilson. The meeting was short and the results accomplished were obtained by unanimous consent.

Representative Lloyd, of Missouri, and Mr. Page, of North Carolina, were selected as the temporary chairman and secretary of the committee until a permanent organization may be perfected. The motion was made by Representative Ben Johnson, of Kentucky, who is said to be slated to succeed Mr. Lloyd.

Following is the new membership of the committee:

Senators—Missouri, Stone; Virginia, Martin; Texas, Culberson; Nevada, Newlands; Alabama, Bankhead; Oklahoma, Owens; Oregon, Chamberlain.

Representatives—Alabama, Richardson; Arizona, Hayden; Arkansas, Floyd; California, Baker; Colorado, Taylor; Connecticut, Reilly; Delaware, Brockton; Florida, Clark; Georgia, Lee; Illinois, Sabath; Indiana, Cline; Iowa, Pepper; Kansas, Taggart; Kentucky, Johnson; Louisiana, Watkins; Maine, McGillicuddy; Maryland, Covington; Massachusetts, Murray; Michigan, Doremus; Minnesota, Hammond; Mississippi, Candler; Missouri, Russell; Montana, Evans; Nebraska, Lobeck; New Hampshire, Reed; New Mexico, Ferguson; New Jersey, Scully; New York, Goldfogle; North Dakota, Webb; Ohio, Sharp; Oklahoma, Weaver; Pennsylvania, Diefenderfer; Rhode Island, O'Shaughnessy; South Carolina, Finley; Tennessee, Houston; Virginia, Flood; Wisconsin, Burke; West Virginia, no selection.

Predicts Trouble in Cuba at Inauguration

"Moral and Political Conditions Are Awful," Says Henry T. Woodruff.

NEW YORK, May 10.—"The moral and political conditions of Cuba are awful," declared Henry T. Woodruff, a veteran of the Civil War, who has arrived from Havana.

Mr. Woodruff has spent the winter in Cuba for the last fifteen years.

"I have been informed on reliable authority that the rebels have obtained 12,000 rifles which belonged to the Federal Government. The people of Havana are seeking bloodshed, and it would not surprise me if murder was committed when Menocal is inaugurated on May 20."

Turn Down Pinero and Lady Nicotine

London Theater Managers Reject His Plan and Will Bar Smokers.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 10.—Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's proposal to allow smoking in the London theaters, was emphatically rejected by the Society of West End Theater Managers, who voted against the proposal with only one dissenting voice.

Sir Arthur's purpose was to alleviate the patronage of the music halls, he believing that many men went there to enjoy nicotine rather than vaudeville.

RESINOL QUICKLY CURED HER BABY'S SEVERE ECZEMA

Had Not Had a Good Night's Rest in Eight Months.

Chelsea, Mass., Jan. 19, 1912.—"My son had been troubled with eczema for about one year. It first appeared when three months old. I tried everything that was recommended and also different prescriptions, but of no avail. For eight months my child did not enjoy a good night's rest. I was finally told to try Resinol. This I did, and from the first application the child got relief and put in a good night's sleep. In three days there was no sign of eczema—to-day he has as fine a complexion as any healthy child and is entirely cured." (Signed) Mrs. T. S. Brown, 54 Crescent Ave.

Resinol positively stops itching instantly and speedily heals eczema and other skin humors, dandruff, sores, burns and piles. Prescribed by doctors for 18 years. Sold by every druggist. Resinol Ointment in opal jars, 50 cents and $1.00. Resinol Soap, 25 cents. For generous free trial, write Dept. 19-S, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

Slayer of Countess, Convict, Seeks Death

Guards Watch Lieutenant Paterno, Who Would Escape Imprisonment Through Suicide.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

ROME, May 10.—Lieutenant Paterno, serving a life sentence for the murder in 1912 of the queen's waiting maid, Countess Trigona, was secretly conveyed to the penitentiary in Porto Longone to-day. Owing to the prisoner's dread of solitary confinement and determination to end his life, four warders have been detailed to watch him day and night.

The doctors ascribe his suicidal mania to cowardice. They have given him morphine to cause artificial sleep and thus prolong his life. The authorities have tried to hide Paterno's resolve to kill himself lest his example be followed by others desiring to evade sentences of solitary confinement.

Other convicts who have ended their lives generally concealed their determination, but Paterno calmly announced his intention to the officials. The latter are anxious to preserve his life at all costs that he may expiate his crime according to law.

Opera Stars Deny Any Estrangement

LONDON, May 10.—Six days at sea evidently soothed the distraught nerves of the grand opera singers who have arrived from New York.

Denial was made of the report that there was any estrangement of the forces of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company which would prevent their assemblage again next season. Conductor Toscanini, about whom there have been numerous rumors, said: "My contract has two years to run and as usual I will fulfill my contract."

All the singers except Emmy Destinn, who has taken a house in London, have gone to Paris. Mme. Destinn, who is an art connoisseur, has secured a large Rivviera picture. It was so big she had to hire a truck to transport it to the railway station.

Street Car Fight Won.

COLUMBUS.—After the city had appealed to the State Railroad Commission, the Columbus Railroad Company has rebuilt its tracks and resumed operations in Sixth Street.

Wilson in Dilemma, Says London Paper

President Sympathizes With Japan, It Adds—Cannot Enforce His Views.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 10.—The London Morning Post, in an editorial, says:

"No doubt the action of the California Legislature in passing a bill depriving Japanese settlers of the right to own land, placed the President in a very difficult position.

"Japan resents this legislation as descriminating unfairly against her citizens, and claims it is a violation of the treaty between herself and the United States. So far as known President Wilson recognizes the justice of Japan's complaints, but he has no obvious means of compelling the people of California to accept his view of the case. * * * It is certain Japan will protest and will insist on [illegible] some action to vindicate her rights."

"CASCARETS" MAKE YOU FEEL GREAT

Gently Cleanse Your Liver and Sluggish Bowels While You Sleep.

Sick headache, biliousness, dizziness, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath—always trace them to torpid liver, delayed fermenting food in the bowels, or sour, grassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is reabsorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Salts, cathartic pills, oil and purgative waters force a passageway for a day or two—yes—but they don't take the poisons out and have no effect upon the liver or stomach.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels clean and regular for months.

Secretary Daniels In Georgia Sunday

Savannah to Honor Head of Navy Department Upon Arrival From Port Royal.

SAVANNAH, GA., May 10.—Gorgeous flags and pennants of all nations will float from the spars and halyards of every vessel in the Savannah harbor to-morrow afternoon, upon the occasion of the visit to Savannah of Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, of North Carolina, concluding his first official tour of the naval stations on the South Atlantic and Gulf coasts.

Secretary Daniels is expected to arrive between 6 and 7 o'clock. The torpedo boat destroyer on which he will make the trip from Port Royal, S. C., will dock at the foot of Bull Street. The trip from Port Royal will be made through Callaboga Sound. Owing to the uncertainty of a journey by water, it is not known precisely when the Secretary will arrive.

Farmer Dies in Fire He Sets; Women Saved

Scheme to Cremate Family Fails When Neighbors Extinguish Burning House.

PITTSBURG, May 10.—Jacob Dewalt, an aged and well-to-do farmer, of South Fayette township, it is believed, burned himself to death during the early morning hours, but a scheme to cremate alive his wife and 18-year-old daughter failed, when a fire in dry fence rails piled against the house was extinguished.

Dewalt evidently crawled into a hay mow beside his barn during the night and set it afire. The flames spread to the barn, causing the death of two horses and two cows. The charred body was found, the head, arms and legs burned off, lying against the side of the building.

According to Dewalt's daughter and neighbors, Dewalt had frequently threatened to kill the entire family.

'Declining Morals Due to Immodest Dress'

Clergyman Likens Women's Gowns to Trousers With Only One Leg.

ALTOONA, PA., May 10.—The immodest fashions were blamed for the declining moral standards in America by Rev. J. H. Keller, a Lutheran minister, of Phillipsburg, Pa., speaking before Northeast Synod of the Lutheran Church. He said:

"If women want to wear trousers, why do they not wear them with both legs, instead of trying to stick both feet into one leg.

"With the immodest dress of the average girl of to-day it requires a great deal of nerve for the minister to look the ladies unblushingly in the face and give them a warm handshake at the door of the church."

Bride He Purchased Rifles His Pockets

Father of Wife Leaves Vicinity Because of Feeling Aroused by Exposure in Pennsylvania City.

BUTLER, PA., May 10.—The charge of larceny presented by Joseph Elies, of the West End, against his wife, a bride of a few days, brought to light to-day the allegation that her father, Joseph Solomon, had sold her to Elies.

Solomon has left the community because of the intense feeling aroused. Elies alleges his bride went through his pockets the other night and purloined $243.

$300,000 GARAGE FIRES LAID TO AUTO-MANIAC

CHICAGO, May 10.—Forty automobiles were burned and the lives of scores imperiled when fire destroyed the American Motor Livery Company's garage early to-day.

Sixty electric automobiles were destroyed in a garage fire here yesterday. The police believe a maniac with a particular aversion to automobiles is responsible for the fires. The loss in both fires is $300,000.

WOMAN, 60, SEEKS DIVORCE WHEN HUBBY, 26, DESERTS

SOUTH BEND, IND., May 10.—Mrs. Anna Beezy, aged 60, to-day was seeking a divorce from Roy Beezy, aged 26. The divorce complaint was filed after Mrs. Beezy failed in an attempt to have her youthful husband brought back to South Bend on a charge of wife desertion.

The Breezys were married two years ago.

Chuck Connor, King Of Chinatown, Dies

Picturesque Bowery Figure Famous as Tourist Guide Through New York's East Side.

NEW YORK, May 10.—"Chuck" Connor, known from coast to coast as King of Chinatown, died to-day in the Hudson Street Hospital.

Connor's real name was George Washington Connor and he was one of the most picturesque characters the Bowery ever produced. For several years Connor made a living by acting as guide for parties of tourists and his route lay through carefully staged "opium dens" and saloons frequented by "bad men."

Connor's name frequently appeared in the newspapers, and his interviews given in the lingo of the East Side, featured many a Sunday supplement. His age was uncertain. Some said he was 50, while others said he was 60. He died of heart disease.

Burglar Gets Money And Trousers, Too

Piedmont Avenue Resident, With Pistol, Vainly Chases Intruder in Early Morning Hours.

M. F. Sullivan, of 422 Piedmont Avenue, has a justifiable grouch against the burglar fraternity to-day. One played him the trick of not only taking his money, but fleeing with his trousers as well.

It was 4 o'clock this morning when Mrs. Sullivan, awakened by a noise, arose and discoveerd a negro calmly rifling her husband's trousers. The burglar had taken them from the bed room into the hall. Mrs. Sullivan screamed and Mr. Sullivan jumped out of bed and pursued the negro with a pistol.

The burglar jumped through an open window in the front of the house. He was in such a hurry that he failed to drop the trousers, which contained $15.

KEEP THE BALANCE UP.

It has been truthfully said that any disturbance of the even balance of health causes serious trouble. Nobody can be too careful to keep this balance up. When people begin to lose appetite, or to get tired easily, the least imprudence brings on sickness, weakness, or debility. The system needs a tonic, craves it, and should not be denied it; and the best tonic of which we have any knowledge is Hood's Sarsaparilla. What this medicine has done in keeping healthy people healthy, in keeping up the even balance of health, gives it the same distinction as a preventive that it enjoys as a cure. Its early use has illustrated the wisdom of the old saying that a stitch in time saves nine. Take Hood's for appetite, strength and endurance.

NO WASTE If your coal burns to a fine ash, with no clinkers or rocks left in the grate, you are burning good coal. Use our standard coal and you will be pleased at results. It's use saves money, time and worry—2 and 2 make 4. We have a yard near you and guarantee prompt delivery.

BOY FROM COLLEGE PARK LEADS IN PONY CONTEST

Has 18,535 Votes, but When Analyzed, There is Nothing in That to Frighten Other Contestants. Many Have "Something Up Their Sleeves."

Frank Ison, of College Park, has the best start in The Georgian and American's contest for the pony outfits. He had 18,535 votes yesterday. Probably he has many more to-day.

Fannie Cook, 488 Pulliam Street, has 6,600, and Florence Greenoe, 387 Pulliam Street, has 6,045—there's a close race in District No. 4.

In District No. 1 are George Rosser, 21 East Sixteenth Street, with 5,245 votes, and Miss Margaret Lewis, 25 Baltimore Block, with 4,500 votes—another close race.

Then there is a considerable number with 2,000 and 3,000 votes.

All this may seem discouraging to the boy or girl who has simply the original, which goes with the nomination. It should not be, however.

Look at Frank Ison's lead, for instance. He has 18,535 votes. Take off 1,000 for the nomination. That leaves 17,535. Five yearly subscriptions to The Georgian and American would yield 17,500. The 35 more which make up the total may represent the coupons clipped from the daily issues of the paper.

You can get five yearly subscriptions to The Georgian and American in no time at all, can't you? Then you will have done as well as Frank Ison. The only difference is that he, very wisely, has made a flying start.

We predicted yesterday that the votes polled by the contestants will leap up by thousands at a clip. Watch and see if they do not. The names of contestants and their standing will be published frequently that they may know how they and their rivals are getting along.

Daniels Fools Old Salts in Navy Office

Department Navigators Learn for First Time That Florida Has a Panama City.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—The wise old salts of the Navy Department thought they had caught Secretary Daniels in a land-lubber's blunder when they got a telegram from him ordering the gunboat Petrel to Panama City by May 10.

Even the youngest navigator at the department laughed over the message and called attention to the geographical fact that Panama City is on the Pacific side of the isthmus, while the gunboat Petrel is now en route to Pensacola, Fla. It was suggested that the Secretary be so informed.

Then some one thought of looking up the maps. A search disclosed that there is a Panama City on the Florida coast.

Vincent Astor Host To Senatorial Party

Young Millionaire Entertains Vice President and Statesmen on Yacht and at Estate.

NEW YORK, May 10.—Vice President Marshall and several United States Senators are guests for today and to-morrow of Vincent Astor.

The program is a trip up the Hudson on his yacht, Nona, as far as West Point for the annual inspection of the military post, a night at the Astor estate and a visit to Governor Sulzer.

In addition to the Vice President the party will include Senators Johnston, of Alabama; Fletcher, of Florida; Overman, of North Carolina; Vardeman, of Mississippi, and Chamberlin, of Oregon, as well as a number of New York business men.

ARKANSAS SAFE BLOWERS MAKE ESCAPE WITH $1,500

FORT SMITH, ARK., May 10.—A posse was searching the neighborhood of Bonanza, sixteen miles southeast of here to-day for three men who dynamited the safe in the First State Bank there at 1:30 o'clock this morning and escaped with between $1,500 and $2,000 in currency. The men left Bonanza on horseback, headed for Fort Smith.

SUFFRAGETTE BOMB IS FOUND IN POSTOFFICE

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 10.—A suffragette bomb, with an electrical appliance similar to that found in St. Paul's Cathedral, was discovered to-day in the package sorting department of the Reading postoffice. Finding of the infernal machine created a panic among the employees. The bomb was turned over to the police.

Another was found in the passenger waiting room at the busy Lime Street Railroad Station in Liverpool.

The fuse of the Liverpool bomb had been lighted, but had died out before it reached the gunpowder. The instrument of intended destruction consisted of a tin tobacco box filled with gunpowder and scrap iron.

The Reading machine was wrapped in a bulky parcel to which the attention of the postoffice employees was attracted by the sound of ticking. The police were called in and on examination found the parcel contained an electric battery connected to explosives and accompanied by quantities of suffragette literature.

The parcel was addressed to a municipal official of Reading, now on his vacation. The police believe it was timed to explode in his residence during his absence. The clockwork arrangement was in perfect working order.

CHATTANOOGA FURNITURE HOUSE HAS $10,000 BLAZE

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., May 10. The loss sustained by the Bowen-Jumper Furniture Company in a fire that threatened the West Side business district yesterday afternoon was reported to-day to have been $10,000.

BERRIEN CLERK RIDICULES GAME WARDEN CHARGE

Denies People of Milltownn Tried To Intimidate Boisclair, as He Complained.

Charles S. Parham, clerk of the Superior Court of Berrien County, in a letter to The Georgian to-day, ridicules the charges that lawless and disorderly tactics have been adopted by the people of Milltown to intimidate County Game Warden Boisclair.

The letter is an answer to the fear of State Game Warden Mercer that his deputy in Berrien County is being attacked. It is an answer, also, to the charges by Warden Boisclair that the town and surrounding section disregard the laws and authority of officers.

"If Game Warden Mercer will use different tactics from those of Mr. Boisclair," the writer concludes, "he will find any amount of co-operation in punishing those who knowingly violate the game laws, and will find no better people in Georgia."

His letter in part follows:

"Conditions Misrepresented."

To begin with, conditions at Milltown are not at all as represented by Mr. Boisclair. He intimates that the entire town and section is composed of people who disregard the laws of the country or the rights of man, when in reality there are no better class of citizens in Georgia than are found at Milltown.

Mr. Boisclair says that from 200 to 300 angry men gathered about him, threatening his life, etc. This statement is simply false. The writer was on the ground as a disinterested spectator at the time of the would-be trial, seeing and hearing a good portion of what was taking place, sizing up the crowd with fair accuracy, and feels sure that not more than 50 people were gathered there. Eighteen of this number were there from having been served with warrants to so be for trial; nearly all of the remainder had gathered there from idle curiosity and had no part in the proceeding at all.

No Demonstration.

No demonstration of any kind was evident, except that of mirth and fun which usually arises from such occasions. Those who had been arrested (or most of them, at least) took the matter as a huge joke, and had it not been that Mr. Boisclair went around there with a concealed weapon, everything would have passed off quietly and good-humoredly.

Mr. Boisclair says that Mayor Bill Pafford accosted him, leading with vile epithets, an angry mob of 200 or 300 people, the crowd became menacing, etc., all of which the writer knows to be untrue. As before stated, there were not exceeding 50 persons on the ground and they were quiet and orderly, and had it not been for the fact that Mr. Boisclair was seen with a pistol on his person there would have been no words of any kind.

Bill Pafford is a high-toned, Christian gentleman, who is known all over this, as well as adjoining counties.

James Banks, the owner of the Banks Pond, says he has never objected to people fishing with hook and line in his waters, while R. T. Berryhill, a nephew of Mr. Banks, who has charge of the pond, has always been very liberal in his management of the fishing privilege, never refusing anyone that would ask him permission to catch as many fish as he wanted to.

THE PLAYS THIS WEEK

"THE GIRL" AT THE ATLANTA.

"The Girl From Out Yonder," the offering by the Miss Billy Long company at the Atlanta Theater this week, will be presented at a matinee this afternoon and again to-night. The play has proved immensely popular with patrons of the Atlanta, and Miss Long has won many new friends by her very capable acting. All the other members appear to advantage in parts which afford them abundant opportunity for the display of their special talent.

KEITH VAUDEVILLE AT FORSYTH.

Few acts presented at the Forsyth have attracted more attention than that of Gus Edwards' Kid Kabaret, which is the headliner this week. The number comprises fifteen girls and boys, who dance and sing and offer other pleasing specialties. Belle Story has proved a big hit. She sings delightfully. Williams, Thompson and Copeland have an unusually amusing sketch. The whole bill is one designed to please, and it succeeds admirably. Matinee this afternoon.

COLD WEATHER THREATENS MICHIGAN'S FRUIT CROP

BENTON HARBOR, MICH., May 10.—The fate of more than $1,000,000 worth of fruit in the great fruit region of Michigan to-day was hanging in the balance as the result of unusually cold weather. A further drop in temperature threatened a disastrous freeze.

Smudge pots were burning all of last night. A record crop is predicted if damage by cold is prevented.

ROUND-ABOUT-TOWN STORIES

Friedmann's Patients Bound by Common Tie.

"Six of Dr. Friedmann's tubercular patients are convalescing in Bellevue Hospital," said a physician just back from a visit to New York. "The fact that they have been treated with the serum has naturally caused a bond of sympathy among them, and they are generally to be seen together, strolling in their bathrobes along the sunny walks in the hospital quadrangle. Other inmates of the institution who lack the distinction of contact with the syringe of the Berlin physician are inclined to interpret their alliance as aloofness, and the sextet have come to be dubbed the 'guinea pigs.'"

Wanted to Know His Other Business.

A New Yorker who is stopping at one of the Atlanta hotels, tells this one:

A member of the Stock Exchange well known for his scorn of convention pulled the bellrope of a Long Island Railroad train the other evening because, as he said, he was "tired of being a perpendicular sardine" and he was determined either to have a seat or get out. He was arrested. When the case came up in court the railroad's lawyer said insinuatingly:

"Are you a drinking man, Mr. Blank?"

"That's my business," said the broker with dignity.

"Right," said the lawyer. "Now tell the court, Mr. Blank, if you have any other business."

Rear Seats Are In Demand.

"One thing I can't get used to," said the ticket seller at a downtown moving picture house, "is the demand for rear seats. All my life I have been under the impression that folks who went to the theater wanted to get as near the stage as possible, but in the moving picture business the reverse seems true. People want to get far back so they can get a better focus on the pictures. In this house the back seats fill up long before the front ones do. I got a jolt the other day, however. A fellow came to the window and said, "'Can you give me a seat in the first row? I'm hard of hearing.'

"I told him we didn't sell reserved seats—that he would have to take his chances with the rest. Anyhow, I assured him, the pictures were being run and it didn't really make any difference if he was hard of hearing."

CROWDS VISIT REVIVAL TO HEAR EVANGELIST HAWKINS

The revival which Evangelist Hawkins is conducting at the West End Christian Church continues to attract large crowds. Five converts were baptized Friday night before one of the largest gatherings of the week.

Following are sermon subjects for the coming week: Saturday night, "The Way of Faith;" Sunday morning, "The First Lord's Day;" Sunday evening, "Salvation;" Tuesday evening, "The Thief on the Cross;" Wednesday evening, "What Must I Do to Be Lost?" There will be no services Monday.

SALOONS ASK COURT TO FORCE CITY TO TAKE TAX

HAMMOND, IND., May 10.—The first case on record in this State where taxpayers attempt to force a municipality to accept thousands of dollars was brought to-day in the Hammond Superior Court, where 80 Gary saloon men asked Judge Lawrence Becker to mandate the city of Gary to accept $200 apiece from them. The Gary authorities hold saloon licenses to be $500 and refuse the $200 as provided by the City Council in an earlier ordinance.

NEGROES GIVE FUND FOR CONFEDERATE REUNION

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., May 10. A delegation of negroes called on Mayor T. C. Thompson to-day and, after donating $40 for the expenses of the Confederate reunion, assured him that they would do all in their power to aid in the entertainment of the gray veterans.

GRAFT FOE PLANS REVENGE IF SLAIN

Directs $50,000 Insurance Be Used to Prosecute Assassins if He Is Killed.

NEW YORK, May 10.—George A. Sipp, former Raines law hotel keeper, who exposed the alliance of the police and underworld in Harlem's tenderloin, said today he had taken out $50,000 worth of life insurance and added a codicil to his will directing that the sum be spent in prosecuting his murderers should he be assassinated as the result of his exposures of the police graft syndicate.

Warden Hayes, of the Blackwells Island prison, is having a difficult time finding occupations for James F. Thompson, John J. Murtha, Dennis Sweeney and James E. Hussey, the four former police inspectors who were sentenced to a year for obstructing justice. None of the prisoners has received industrial training along any special line.

Sergeant Peter J. Duffy, charged with collecting graft for Sweeney, will be arraigned late this month or early in June. In connection with the search for more evidence, District Attorney Whitman has learned of a "clairvoyant trust" which has paid big sums for protection.

JOKERS GIVE BABY WINE; LITTLE GIRL NEARLY DIES

PERTH AMBOY, May 10.—Two men paid $45 in fines for giving a year-old girl a drink of port wine. The child went into convulsions, but was restored.

The child found her way into a barroom. Charles Webber picked her up and jokingly called for a drink. Benjamin Wonder, the proprietor, set a glass of port on the bar. Webber gave the child the wine.

Ricardi Sues Rigo For $100,000 'Loans'

NEW YORK, May 10.—That Mme. Ricardi, formerly the Princess DeChimay and originally Clara Ward, of Detroit, is suing Janezi Rigo, the gypsy violinist she eloped with seventeen years ago in Paris, for $100,000, became known to-day. Mme. Ricardi claims this was loaned Rigo in the three years they lived together.

In his apartments here, where he is living with his latest wife, who was Kitty Emerson, wife of Caspar Emerson, Jr., of Philadelphia, Rigo declared the Princess DeChimay is hounding him because he refuses to go back to her.

"My wife knows this," said Rigo, "but I will never do it. I love my wife madly. Nothing can separate us."

VOLS SCOURING UNIVERSE FOR GOOD HURLERS

NASHVILLE, TENN., May 10.—The incessant bombardment of the Vols flingers has almost driven Bill Schwartz insane and his frenzied shrieks for "Hellup" on the hurling hill has completely upset Mr. Hirsig, who was jogging along so serenely, dreaming dreams of bunting fluttering next year in his nice, new ball park.

On the next platform we have seen Mr. Hirsig wigwagging the distressing news to every big league mogul north of the Mason and Dixon's line for an able bodied alabman who can not only get 'em over, but can get 'em past 'em."

The first aid to the injured comes once more from Redland, whence cameth Cy Dalgren, who had oodles of stuff on the pill but who refused to put the pellet where any opponent could get a crack at it. Cy has been returned to Tinkertown with much thanks and in his stead comes 'Chick' Smith, who is alleged to be some pitcher.

Smith is a portsider and although this is his first season in fast society, coming from the corner lots in Cincinnati, he has shown the making of a great pitcher.

Hendee Goes to Cairo.

Sam Hendee, the titanic coal miner, has been shunted along to Cairo, Ill., in the Kitty League since no team in the Southern League could find a uniform to encompass Samuel. Charles Alabi Case, will in all probability be trade to some club in this circuit, the Turtles for instance, for Bill Bernhard, still remembers the high-grade stuff that the jinx flinger uncovered in 1908. Which was quite a few years back and old age doesn't seem to have the same effect on Case that it does on old wine.

Memphis has offered the Vols a pitcher for Case, but the deal is still hanging fire until waivers have been secured from all the other clubs.

Hirsig made a desperate attempt to land Rube Benton, the ex-Lookout from the Reds, but Reuben is one of the best ball players Cincinnati has had in some time, and although Mr. Hirsig gritted his teeth and offered a wheelbarrow full of regular money for Benton, the Reds refused to give him up.

Ebbets May Help Out.

Hirsig expects Charley Ebbets of the Dodgers to dig up a pitcher for the Vols, and Connie Mack of the Athletics has offered to help him out, too. Connie suggested that the Vols land Roger Salmon from Louisville, for Roger once wore an Athletic uniform, but if he isn't good enough for the Colonels, he surely won't be able to stop the big sticks in this league, which is just about as fast as the American Association, no matter if they do have A. A. tacked on to them.

After starting out like champions on the present road trip the Vols have suddenly developed into selling platers and poor work in the box is the cause of the whole trouble.

Beck is the only dependable slabman, and it takes more than one high-class flinger to hold any club in select company.

PELS SECURE WILSON.

CLEVELAND, OHIO, May 10.—Pitcher Finish E. Wilson, southpaw, who came to the Cleveland club from the Knoxville, Tenn., club last fall, yesterday was released to New Orleans Southern League team.

Banish All Skin Troubles

A Remarkable Remedy That Works Wonders Against Even Weeping Eczema.

Get a Bottle of S. S. S. To-day. It Is Certainly a Wonder.

If you have been fighting some blood trouble, some skin disease, call it eczema, lupus, psoriasis, malaria or what you will, there is but one sure, safe way to cure it. Ask at any drug store for a $1.00 bottle of S. S. S. and you are then on the road to health. The action of this remarkable remedy is just as direct, just as positive, just as certain in its influence as that the sun rises in the East. It is one of those rare medical forces which act in the blood with the same degree of certainty that is found in all natural tendencies. The manner in which it dominates and controls the mysterious transference of rich, red, pure arterial blood for the diseased venous blood is marvelous.

Out through every skin pore acids, germs and other blood impurities are forced in the form of invisible vapor. The lungs breathe it out, the liver is stimulated to consume a great proportion of impurities, the stomach and intestines cease to convey into the blood stream the catarrhal, malarial germs; the bowels, kidneys, bladder and all emunctories of the body are marshaled into a fighting force to expel every vestige of eruptive disease.

There is scarcely a community anywhere but what has its living example of the wonderful curative effects of S. S. S. Get a bottle of this famous remedy to-day, and if your case is stubborn or peculiar, write to The Swift Specific Company, 137 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Their medical laboratory is famous and is conducted by renowned experts in blood and skin diseases. Their advice is entirely free and always strictly personal.

Morris and Pitts to Hurl To-day

Tech Downs Georgia in Opener

By J. W. Heisman.

ATHENS, GA., May 10.—The game here Friday between Georgia and Tech bore out all previous history and traditions of these special contests. Dope went wrong once more and Tech won. This means that the crowd in attendance to-day will be gigantic, though it will have to be if it is to be any larger than Friday's. As for the game to-day, it is as hard to forecast a winner as it was in yesterday's contest. Both teams are in their very best shape of the season, and both will battle their heads off.

Morris will probably do the hurling for Georgia, and Pitts for Tech. Each team has now sized up the other's batting, fielding and base running, and they will therefore be in better position to watch and try to checkmate every strategic move of the opposition.

A special train will be run from Atlanta over the Seaboard for to-day's game, and that means that Tech at least will have many more friends and rooters on hand to cheer them on than they had yesterday, though the number of leather-lunged supporters of the Gold and White was surprisingly large.

Yesterday's game was Tech's right from the start. Wooten was the first man up for Tech in the first inning, and the first ball he swung at felt his deadly stinger for a slam into the distant branch and was a home run. Now, the very odd thing about this is that at a mass meeting Thursday in the Tech chapel Wooten, when called upon for a speech, said that he was going to do this very thing, smash the first ball he swung at into the ditch for a home run. Can you beat it?

Scores on Wild Heave.

Then after Moore and Pitts had grounded out Montague secured a life on Clements' error. On Harrison's error Pound also reached first alive and on a throw by the pitcher to second that went out into center field, Montague took third. Then Pound stole second. Next Corley again tried to catch the runner off second and again it went on through and Montague came home. Amason got a base on balls, but Donaldson fanned and Tech took the field with a big two to her credit on the scoreboard.

In Georgia's half of the first Ginn was first up for Georgia and he promptly walked. Then he stole second, went to third on an infield out, and scored on McWhorter's long sacrifice fly to center. That ended Georgia's scoring in this inning.

Tech got no more till the fourth, when Donaldson hit safely to right field. Attridge sacrificed and on Corley's error both men were safe. On Eubanks' sharp bunt Donaldson was thrown out at third, but Wooten got to first on the shortstop's error and the bases were full. Here Corley walked Moore, forcing Attridge in. Then Pitts flied out to left and Eubanks scored on the throw-in. This made four for Tech and ended its scoring.

This lead of 4 to 1 Tech held until the seventh. Then, with one on and one down, Attridge carelessly dropped an easy infield pop and both Clements and Ginn were safe. Tech got into trouble right here, for Harrison hit safely to left and scored Clements, Ginn taking third on the throw-in. McWhorter contributed his mite by placing a long one in center, which Wooten finally pulled down, but Ginn scored on the catch, bringing Georgia's total up to 3.

Well, well, both teams went out in one-two-three order in the eighth, and so did Tech in the ninth. Then, with one Georgia man out, Clements hit safely to left. Ginn grounded to Montague and Clements was forced at second. Then Harrison slammed a stem-winder to left that looked good for a homer and with it the game.

Everybody watched Pound in left and strained their eyes, heart and head almost off. Finally with a prodigious leap backward Pound connected with the thing and hung to it. It was a wonderful catch.

Both Pitched Good Ball.

Both pitchers hurled superbly. Corley gave up but four hits, while Eubanks yielded six. But the latter deserved the greater credit, because he kept these six so widely scattered and because he was hurling to much heavier hitters than was Corley. Besides, the latter forced in a run, which lost Georgia the game.

But for Attridge's muff Tech would have played an errorless game, thus living up to the best of Tech traditions in playing their best ball against Georgia in Athens.

The whole Tech team fielded superbly, but Wooten must be given special mention for his great work in center. Everybody admired it.

Ginn ran bases in great form for Georgia, and Hutchens, besides catching a fine game, slapped out three of Georgia's six hits. The Georgia team played a jam-up game in all respects save in the field, where their work was rather ragged.

Altogether, it was fine baseball. To-day is sure to produce a game equally as good.

LAGRANGE BALL CLUB WINS ATTENDANCE TROPHY

LA GRANGE, GA., May 10.—In addition to winning yesterday's game in a sensational manner, LaGrange has also won the atendance trophy of the Georgia-Alabama League. More than 1,900 people crowded the grounds on opening day, which is by several hundred more than any other opening game of the towns in the league. The LaGrange team is now in first-class condition. All those who have been out of the game are ready to play ball, and the outlook for the team to win from now on is splendid.

STAHL LEAVES HOSPITAL.

BOSTON, May 10.—Manager Stahl, of the champion Red Sox, whose foot was operated on Monday, left the hospital to-day and with the assistance of a cane was able to make his way about town. Although Stahl expects to join the Red Sox in the West early next week and resume the active management of the club, it will be some time before his name will appear in the line-up.

FATE OF GEORGE STOVALL TO BE SETTLED SUNDAY

ST. LOUIS, May 10.—At a meeting of the directors of the St. Louis American League club here to-morrow, which will be attended by President Ban Johnson, the fate of Manager Stovall will be decided. It is also likely that some action will be taken regarding the poor umpiring with which St. Louis has been afflicted this season.

The local club is going to have something to say about the penalty for Stovall. Colonel Hedges is the majority stockholder and the meeting of the directors seems superfluous, unless the Colonel believes there is safety in numbers.

ANDERSON AND MANDOT ARE WORKING FOR BOUT

LOS ANGELES, May 10.—With the arrival from Medford, Oregon, to-day of "Bud" Anderson, and Manager Dick Donald, both principals in the next lightweight battle here, are on the ground.

Anderson, who is matched to meet Joe Mandot in a scheduled 20-round bout before the Pacific Athletic Club at Vernon on the night of May 20, will reopen his old training camp at Doyle's Vernon camp.

Mandot has been in light training for the past week. Yesterday at the Venice camp he boxed four rounds, using "Dude" Clark and "Hobo" Dougherty as sparring partners.

FURCHNER WILL FACE BILLS IN THIRD BATTLE

By Joe Agler.

Crackers' First Baseman.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., May 10. The Crackers' new twirler, recently secured from Manager Finn, will make his debut against the Billikens in the third game this afternoon.

Manager Bill Smith is hard up for a pitcher and has decided to give his new hurler a chance. We have been getting some awful pitching while on this trip, all the boys being way off form.

Weaver was sent home, to Atlanta, after yesterday's game to rest his sore arm. Buck has not been right since way early in the season, and Smith has decided to give him a rest until the sore member is again ready for use.

The Crackers hope to cop the two remaining games, and with any kind of pitching should annex both battles on the right side of the ledger.

Whitey Alperman was the swatting king for Atlanta yesterday. Whitey pounded out three safe drives. Donahue secured two two-baggers for the Billikens. The final score was: Billikens, 10; Crackers, 2.

Bill Bailey's foot is getting along nicely, and he will be in the game against Memphis, if not sooner. Chappelle was in uniform yesterday, and says he will win many games for us. The boys are all pulling for Bailey to return, as we certainly are missing his trustworthy stick.

MOTORCYCLE STARS WILL RACE AT PRINCE'S TRACK

Jack Prince, owner of the new motordrome being built here, stated last night that twelve of the speediest riders on the coast are now on their way to Atlanta to compete in the first night's races here. Prince expects to hold the first series of races around the twentieth of this month.

Montey, Graves, Henry Lewis, S. A. Shields and Ed Hannon are among these who will appear here.

Inquiries have also come to Prince from Birmingham, Columbus, Ga., and other nearby cities from various riders, who are seeking information concerning the races.

TALBOTTON BEATS BUTLER.

TALBOTTON, GA., May 10.—The Talbotton boys defeated Butler here yesterday to the tune of 12 to 10. Ray Burt did the box work for Talbotton, while Chapman, for Butler, was knocked all over the field.

FOOD FOR SPORT FANS

By GEORGE E. PHAIR.

B. NELSON.

He fought and he fought and he fought,
That Dane with the yellowish hair.
He never knew how, with his yellow-haired brow,
But he fought all his fights on the square.
He fought like the fighter he was,
He took all the wallops that came;
But the son of a gun, when the fighting was done,
You will have to admit he was game.

Mr. F. Chance is beginning to realize that it is hard to be a Peerless Leader unless there is something to lead.

In other words, Mr. Chance threatens to burst into the archives of baseball as the teamless Leader.

One is glad to hear from Ban Johnson that the American League will not tolerate roughneck conduct. One is thereby led to expect that peanut peddlers will be expunged from the grand stand.

Scientists tell us that a hole driven straight through the earth will land in China. If Frank Chance does not have a care he may become a Chinaman.

Rube Waddell is said to be broke, which financial conditions is about two bits less than usual.

Nevertheless, there are kind words to be said about the Federal League. It never will be known as a gret-rich-quick scheme.

Possibly we are mistaken, but John McGraw once hired a youth known as Jim Thorpe.

From now on it will be hard to blame George Stovall if he develops a grouch against spitball pitchers.

Still, the penalty might not have been so strong if the Browns had not been playing too strong for the good of the league.

If Tyrus Cobb had been guilty of the same stunt he might have been given three slaps on the wrist and fined $50, which the club would have paid—again.

The difference between expectorating on an umpire and spiking an innocent bystander is merely the difference as a drawing card between the expectorator and the roughneck.

If Jimmy Clabby and Eddie McGoorty were to pull off one of their terrific battles before the Legislature, said Legislature would decide that pugilism is almost as dangerous as crokinole.

There seems to be a conspiracy among American League pitchers. In restraint of the athletes alleged to be working for F. Chance.

Ed Konetchy's pitching stunt ought to put a lot of our athletes to shame. Some of said athletes can't play one position.

Looking at it from a fair and impartial standpoint, we are willing to lay one (1) dollar that Reuben Marquard will not win nineteen straight games this season. In fact, when Mr. Marquard wins a game it is a winning streak.

One is willing to admit for the sake of argument that Luther McCarty is the best of our white heavyweights. A milk man's horse looks speedy among a flock of hitching posts.

Jake Stahl is troubled with a bone in his foot. These tidings will cause Ping Bodie to wonder whether the world is turned upside down.

A WAIL.

There was a man in our town
And he was wondrous dense.
He bought a seat a mile away
And laid down fifty cents.

Frank Chance is on the sick list again, but watching those Yanks in the act of perpetrating baseball is enough to make any manager sick.

We presume that baseball writers in New York have other duties aside from their daily task of trading Hal Chase.

The terrific rate at which the Pirates have been dropping has created grave fear lest the bottom be knocked out of the league.

Bonehead plays are not confined entirely to the baseball yard. For instance, there is the severe reprimand handed to Ty Cobb by the national commission.

The only conclusion to be drawn is that national commission is totally devoid of a sense of humor. Otherwise it could not refrain from laughing itself.

Ten Point Picked to Win Kentucky Derby

LOUISVILLE, KY., May 10.—This city to-day is alive with race enthusiasts. Thousands are already in town and each incoming train adds more to the throng. This is Derby Day here, the thirty-ninth running of the Kentucky blue ribbon event. The field will bring together some of the best racers in the country. Though a round dozen have been named to go in the big race to-day, it is doubtful if more than five face the barrier. Possibly six may start, and if the track is fast it is freely predicted that the record of 2:05 by Meridian will fall.

J. W. Schorr, the Memphis turfman, is scanning the skies thoughtfully. If it rains his great gelding, Leochares, will go to the post, and Foundation and possibly Ten Point will be scratched, leaving the Tennessee gelding a splendid chance of winning. If the track remains fast, Leochares, Gowell, Floral Park, Flying Tom, Lord Marshall, Donerail and possibly Sam Hirsch will remain in their stalls.

Despite the fact that Hawthorne and Helios, the two winter favorites in the big race, will not go to the post, there is sure to be a great race among the three choices—Ten Point, Foundation and Yankee Notions.

Ten Point is quoted at 8 to 5; Foundation, 3 to 1; Prince Hermis, 5 to 1; Lord Marshall, 8 to 1, and Donerail, 10 to 1, in the early morning betting.

No-Rim-Cut Tires 10% Oversize

Oversize Means This

Ten per cent extra air capacity over hooked-base clincher tires.

It means the same as extra width, which costs you extra money. It means, on the average, 25 per cent more mileage.

No-Rim-Cut tires, with this 10 per cent oversize, cost no more than clinchers.

More Than 10%

The oversize of No-Rim-Cut tires is more than 10 per cent.

Actual comparison with six makes of clinchers shows the average oversize 16.7 per cent.

That means that you get in No-Rim-Cut tires about one-sixth more air capacity than you get in clinchers. And air is what carries the load.

You get this extra without extra cost. For No-Rim-Cut tires now cost the same as standard clincher tires.

Statistics show that 23 per cent of all clincher tires become rim-cut.

Those are the reasons why clincher tires must go. Men will not stand this rim-cut ruin when a new-type tire prevents it.

Men are bound to demand an oversize tire when they know what it adds to their tire mileage.

No-Rim-Cut tires now outsell all others. Their sales are doubling over and over.

When you know these tires, as legions do, you will never buy any others. Come let us show them to you.

Then Add This

You also get in this new type a tire that can't rim-cut. A clincher tire can and does.

BIRMINGHAM GOLFERS LEFT IN TOURNAMENT

By Tick Tichenor.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., May 10.—The winner of the invitation tournament of the Country Club of Birmingham will be a member of the home club, as they eliminated every visitor yesterday.

In the first flight there were thirteen Birmingham players and three from Atlanta. In the morning round J. H. Doughty disposed of Captain E. T. Winston, while W. P. Ward beat W. R. Tichenor, and Rollo Steinmehl beat Lowry Arnold.

Steinmehl is just 14 years of age, but he is even now a fine tournament player. In his match with W. P. Ward in the afternoon both were out in 36, and Ward had him two down and three to play, but he evened the match on the eighteenth green and finally won on the twenty-first hole. George Oliver had to go 20 holes in the morning to win from V. Q. Prowell. In the afternoon he was defeated by Herbert Tutwiler.

H. C. Wood and Rollo Steinmehl meet in the semi-final, as do J. H. Doughty and H. Tutwiler, of the first flight.

* * *

ON the second flight George Adair meets C. E. Foust and F. G. Byrd plays B. Throckmorton in the semi-final. In the third flight two Atlanta men met in the first round—C. J. Holditch and Dowdell Brown—Holditch winning 7 up and 6 to play. The semi-final matches of the fourth flight were between R. P. Jones and Sanborn Smith, and A. M. Post and R. H. Baugh. In the fifth flight Dr. Frank Holland is one of the semi-finalists.

C. E. Corwin and W. R. Tichenor are in the semi-final in the junior division of the third and first flights.

* * *

THE results of the matches were:

First Flight—First Round: George. C. Oliver beat V. Q. Prowell 1 up in 20 holes; Herbert Tutwiler beat E. L. Brown 1 up; J. H. Doughty beat E. T. Winston 3-2; S. J. Cullum beat T. J. Watson 1 up 19 holes; W. P. Ward beat W. R. Tichenor 5-4; Rollo Steinmehl beat L. Arnold 5-4; H. C. Wood beat Frank Hewitt 2 up; Arch Henderson won from F. C. Stahlman by default.

Second Round: H. Tutwiler beat G. C. Oliver 2-1; J. H. Doughty beat S. Cullum 5-4; Rollo Steinmehl beat W. P. Ward 1 up in 22 holes; H. C. Wood beat H. Henderson 2 up.

* * *

JUNIOR Division, First Flight.—E. T. Brown beat V. O. Prowell 5-4; T. J. Watson won from E. T. Winston by default; W. R. Tichenor beat I. Arnold 1 up; Frank Hewitt won from F. C. Stahlman by default.

* * *

SECOND FLIGHT—B. Throckmorton won from R. H. Thach 4-3; E. D. Crawford beat E. E. Ellis 3-2; R. T. Brooke beat J. S. Turner 7-5; F. G. Byrd beat T. Seibles 3-1; Ted Coy beat John Kimball 3-1; G. W. Adair beat W. E. Collier 2 up; S. Probasco beat George Macon 5-4; C. E. Faust beat D. Roberts 3-1.

Second Round.—B. Throckmorton beat E. Crawford 3-2; F. G. Byrd beat R. T. Brooke 4-2; G. W. Adair beat Ted Coy 1 up; C. E. Foust beat S. Probasco 1 up.

* * *

JUNIOR Division, Second Flight.—R. H. Thach beat E. Ellis 5-4; T. Seibles beat J. S. Tanner 2-1; John Kimball beat W. E. Collier 4-3; G. Macon beat D. Roberts 5-4.

* * *

THIRD FLIGHT.—Hampton Smith beat C. E. Corwin 4-3; Webb Offutt beat George C. Whatley 1 up; G. Martin beat L. C. Howard 4-3; Nash Read beat J. L. Bibb 2-1; E. M. Tutwiler beat J. B. Cobbs, 4-3; R. H. Gilbert beat George Watkins, 1 up; C. J. Holditch beat Dowdell Brown, 7-6; H. G. Seibles won from T. I. Webb, by default.

Second Round—Webb Offutt beat Hampton Smith, 1 up; W. Nash Read beat G. Martin, 6-4; R. H. Gilbert beat E. M. Tutwiler, 4-3; H. S. Seibles beat C. J. Holditch, 3-2.

Junior Division, Third Flight—C. E. Corwin beat G. C. Wheatley, 1 up, 19 holes; J. S. Bibb won from S. C. Howard, by default; D. Brown won by default.

* * *

FOURTH FLIGHT—R. P. Jones won from C. O. Locke, 7-6; Hampton Smith won from R. C. Munger, 5-3; W. A. Gunter beat P. Bowers, by default; H. Sanborn Smith beat W. M. Walker, 2-1; A. M. Post beat Hewett Smith, 3-1; J. C. Hardee beat C. Watkins, 4-2; T. B. Paine beat E. M. Kilby, 4-2; R. H. Baugh beat J. L. Kaul, 1 up, 19 holes.

Second Round—R. P. Jones beat H. S. Smith, 4-2; Sanborn Smith beat W. A. Gunter, 5-4; A. M. Post beat C. J. Hardee, 5-3; R. H. Baugh beat T. B. Paine, 5-4.

Nelson's Mgr. Praises McCarty

Says Luther Is Best Heavyweight

By Ed W. Smith

CHICAGO, May 10.—Not being swayed by any prejudices of section, color or previous condition, we should figure John Robinson, Bat Nelson's hustling manager, in a fine position to judge of the merits of a fighter, big or little, and when John says that Luther McCarty is the real thing in the heavyweight division we are inclined to think that John's opinion is worth considerably more than mere passing mention. Robinson was in New York the other evening when Luther lambasted Frank Moran, the Pittsburg heavyweight, for ten sharp rounds, and he got an excellent line on Luther's ring work. John's opinion is all the more valuable since he isn't friendly with Billy McCarney, Luther's manager, and hasn't been for some time.

* * *

JOHN isn't exactly "all smoked up" over Luther, but he figures him to be easily the best of the white heavyweights of the day, says his record proves it and sincerely believes that the future of a year or so will demonstrate it beyond the shadow of a doubt. Listen to some of John's chatter about the big man from Nebraska: "We had been told for months that Frank Moran was one of the very best of the latest crop of big fellows and the Eastern friends of Dan McKetrick, who manages him, believed it. Naturally after being matched with McCarty his work was watched with the closest attention.

* * *

"NOW comes one of the interesting parts of the whole tale. After McCarty had bested Moran, and had done the job up beautifully, as I thought, he didn't get a bit of credit. He was scolded and nagged for not actually disposing of Moran more decisively, and that, too, in the face of previous boosts to the effect that Moran was one of the very best of them all. Not a bit of consistency to that line of work. If Moran was one of the best, then McCarty, after beating him, must naturally be one of the very best. Catch the line of reasoning?

* * *

"TO my way of doping it out, McCarty is a man who needs a lot of actual fighting to keep him fit. He is a lazy big fellow and inclined to slow down if he isn't punched continually. He couldn't have been at his best with Moran for that reason, because he had been idle for some little time previous to that encounter. I watched the battle carefully and in common with many others at the ringside tried to pick the flaws in this big fellow's work. I couldn't find many. Of course he is still a bit unpolished, but take it from me, he is picking up the inside stuff rapidly and is getting better every time he works.

* * *

"DURING the tenth round I saw him pull a Kid McCoy trick that enlightened me more than anything about him. Joe Jeannette, who was handling Moran, seeing the hopelessness of the cause, sent Frank out to do and die. Frank sailed in and slammed away like a threshing machine with both arms going wildly. Luther would have been a cherry ripe sucker to have mixed with him right there. Instead, he stepped in close and let go with his right exactly onto Moran's wallet line. The punch didn't travel a foot, but it sunk in and instantly Moran was slowed down to a walk. I doubt if a dozen people in the crowd saw the punch or realized its importance. But Moran did. It was exactly the right thing at the right time and convinced me fully himself in any kind of company." that Luther will be able to care for

* * *

IT will not be long now before we find out what good Tom Jones has been able to accomplish with Jess Willard. Around here we figured that the chief fault with the tall man from Kansas was his disinclination to get out in the morning and do road work. Jones saw the point instantly and announced that if he got to handling Jess he would show him the error of his ways. He will get the test the middle of this month, when he slams into and is himself slammed into by Gunboat Smith, one of the toughest of the real tough trial horses of the day. It should be a grand old battle.

GIANTS-WHITE SOX WORLD TOUR IS NOW A CERTAINTY

CHICAGO, May 10.—John J. McGraw, of the New York Giants, clinched the round-the-world baseball tour which two big league teams, made up wholly or partly of Giants and White Sox, are to make next fall and winter by signing the contract in New York last night. It had previously been signed by President Comiskey, of the White Sox.

The trip will be on a bigger scale than the famous baseball tour of 1888, and may carry 75 or 100 persons. Tentative plans have it that the teams will leave Chicago about October 15 and play games in the South and West until they reach Vancouver.

They will sail from Vancouver on November 5. Japan will be reached on November 15, and a stay made in the Nippon Realm of six or eight days. Then Manila, Australia, Italy, Egypt and all European countries will be visited.

MURPHY AND HERRMANN ROW OVER RELEASED PLAYER

CHICAGO, May 10.—A little row between Prexies Murphy, of the Cubs, and Garry Herrmann, of the Reds, is enlivening the diamond atmosphere.

Manager John Evers is cutting his team down to the limit recently sent Knisley and McDonald to the Birmingham club in the Southern Association. When the Cubs traded Joe Tinker to Cincinnati, Knisley was included in the deal and Herrmann claims to have made a verbal agreement with Murphy, whereby Knisley was to be returned to the Reds if the Cubs could not use him.

CLEMSON WALLOPS AUBURN IN SECOND BATTLE, 18-4

AUBURN, ALA., May 10.—Clemson won the second game of the series from Auburn here yesterday, 18 to 4. The visitors got off with a good lead, due to Locke's wildness, and Driver, who relieved him, was hit hard during the balance of the game. The series is now even, and the deciding game will be played today, with Ezell on the mound for Clemson and Davis twirling for Auburn.

CALLAHAN REINSTATED.

NEW YORK, May 10.—The State Boxing Commission has reinstated Paddy Callahan, who was suspended March 19 for fouling Joe Coster.

BASEBALL

Diamond News and Gossip

The Reds got an even break in their series with the Giants, and if they continue to play the same kind of ball they did in Gotham town it'll be only a short time before they climb out of the National League cellar.

* * *

The suspension of Stovall has weakened the playing strength of the Browns fully 20 per cent, and the Naps and White Sox are moaning because the Eastern aggregations will have an easy time trouncing the St. Louis boys.

* * *

But even without Stovall the Browns can grab off an occasional victory. They fractured the winning streak of the Athletics yesterday, driving Pitcher Houck to the cooling shed in the first round.

* * *

Luderus, the Phillies' first sacker, after going hitless for nearly a week, cracked out a homer yesterday, which enabled his team to romp home a winner over the fast-traveling Cardinals.

* * *

The Dodgers walloped the Cubs again yesterday, sliding into second place, and are only a few points behind the leading Phillies.

* * *

Too bad the Yankees can't play against the Tigers all the season. They'd emerge near the top of the American League in October if they did.

* * *

The Red Sox may win the pennant again this year, but it will require some mighty humping. The Boston boys are over 400 points behind the flying Athletics and no club can spoil the Quakertown athletes eight full games and expect to have an easy over-hauling job.

* * *

Only those who have been swatted with a crowbar can appreciate the feelings of the Pirate fans when they lamped the score boards yesterday and discovered that the lowly Boston Braves have trimmed the Pirates for the fourth successive time.

* * *

The White Sox bumped the Senators again yesterday, but Walter Johnson is due to do the flinging to-day for the Washington Athletes and perhaps there will be a different story to tell by nightfall.

* * *

Johnson, by the way, may establish a new pitching record if he goes into the box to-day. The record for consecutive scoreless innings is 45, established some years ago by "Doc" White, of the White Sox. Johnson already has pitched 42 2-3 scoreless innings.

* * *

Four decisions were rendered on one play by the umpires in the Brown-Athletics game yesterday. Ferguson called Oldring out at first and then declared him safe when Brief, the Browns' first sacker, fell. The Browns rushed up to Umpire O'Loughlin, who declared Oldring out, whereupon the Athletics ran over to Ferguson, made a roar and Ferguson again declared Oldring safe. Then play resumed.

* * *

The Red Sox polished up their batting orbs yesterday, pounded out 13 hits and beat the Naps 3 to 1, it being their first victory on the Western swing.

* * *

And now will C. Webb Murphy please issue forth and perform a little volplaning stunt from the most heavenward point of the Brooklyn grandstand? The Chicago gentleman said he'd make the 100-foot leap if the Dodgers took a series from the Cubs. The Dodgers have turned the trick.

Mister Murphy, where art thou?

* * *

This is "Johny Evers Day" at the Polo grounds, and hundreds of rooters from Troy, N. Y., the home town of the Cubs' manager, went to New York on a special train to witness the first clash of the season between the Giants and the scrappy Chicagoans.

MARIST FIRST IN TRACK MEET; TECH SECOND

MARIST College won the annual Atlanta prep track meet Friday at Marist field with a total of 52 1-3 points. Marist was especially strong in the distance runs and the dashes. Three teams were entered in the meet—Marist, Tech High and G. M. A. Tech High was second with a total of 25 1-3 points, while G. M. A. brought up the rear with 12 1-3.

Lewis, of Marist, was the highest individual point-winner with 16 points to his credit. He won the last event of the day, the quarter mile dash, which put him 1 point ahead of Fowler.

John Roberts, of Marist, was the only winner to break a local prep record. Roberts in the pole vault cleared the bar at 9 feet 6 inches. Meyers, of Tech High, was second in this event and also beat the former record. Meyers made 9 feet 4 and just barely missed the next height. Smith, of G. M. A., and Bedell, of Tech High, were tied with 10 points apiece for third highest point winner. Smith had things his own way in the broad and high jumps.

Charlie Allen must have had a grudge against Fowler. In the quarter mile run Allen was easily leading, but held back toward the finish in order to let his teammate, Lewis, who was running second, pass him. This gave Lewis a total of 16 points, just one more than Fowler had.

EVERS PLANS TO CONVERT ARCHER INTO FIRST SACKER

NEW YORK, May 10.—Johnny Evers, manager of the Cubs, who are playing a series with Brooklyn, today was quoted as saying that he would try to convert Jimmy Archer, one of the best catchers in the game, into a first baseman. Saier has not been entirely satisfactory to Evers as a first baseman, while Archer has shone as a fielding star at that point.

BRANDT OUTPOINTS HUFNAGLE.

NEW YORK, May 10.—"Dutch" Brandt, the Brooklyn bantamweight, outpointed Frankie Hufnagle, former amateur champion, in their ten-round bout last night.

KEARNS STOPS DAVIS.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 10.—Soldier Kearns, the Brooklyn heavyweight, knocked out George ("One-Round") Davis, of Buffalo, in the fifth round of the scheduled ten-round bout here last night.

PREP LEAGUE NOTES

Saturday morning and afternoon a monster track meet will be held at Ponce DeLeon Park by the Public Grammar Schools of Atlanta.

* * *

Both boys and girls are entered in the meet and three prizes are offered in each event. The morning exercises will commence at 9 o'clock and end at noon. The afternoon events will be finished at 5 o'clock. Moving picture men will be on hand to get some views of the drills and races.

* * *

The cadets of G. M. A. are at present encamped at Lakewood and are having a very enjoyable time. Friday they had a dress parade, which was attended by Governor and Mrs. Brown.

* * *

Emory College will meet Mercer at Macon Saturday in a dual track and field meet. Wilbur Carlton, the man who made such a wonderful showing in the inter-class meet at Emory a short time ago, is expected to win the greatest number of points for Emory. He is entered in seven events.

* * *

This meet is the first inter-collegiate contest that Emory has participated in for a number of years and a great deal of interest is being shown by the students of the school. It is barely possible that Emory will have inter-collegiate athletics in the near future, as the students and alumni of the school are working hard for it.

* * *

Prof. Alexander, of Tech, is considering a plan to enter a team picked from Tech students attending the summer school in the local city league this summer. "Aleck" says that many of the best players in school attend the summer session and a good team could be organized.

* * *

A few short weeks and the Prep baseball season will be a thing of the past. Boys' High appears to have the honors cinched this year. If they win it will be the first time in three years. The last two seasons Boys' High has finished second in the race.

* * *

The 100-yard dash in the Prep. meet Friday was the closest race seen in a long time. Allen and Lewis, of Marist, were first and second, but Bedell, of Tech High, was right on their heels.

* * *

Fowler, of Marist, showed up mighty well in the meet Friday. He won three firsts—the hammer, mile and half-mile runs. A new Prep. record was made in the pole vault by John Roberts, of Marist. He cleared the bar at 9 feet 6 inches.

* * *

Jim Lowery, of Marist, has been shifted from first to catcher. He was a good first sacker, but had to be sacrificed on account of lack of a backstop. He will no doubt be placed at first base on the all-prep selection this year.

* * *

Sam Armistead, the Boys High catcher, got four hits in the game with Marist Wednesday. Sam is now leading the Prep League batters with an average of over .400. He is catching a good game at present and not a man stole a base on him Wednesday.

* * *

Riverside has first place tied up in a bag in the G. I. A. A. pennant race, but the real fight is for second place between Gordon, G. M. C. and Stone Mountain.

* * *

Gordon and G. M. C. met in a double-header last week which resulted in a game each. Both are anxious to win two straight this time. Gordon is playing on the home grounds and will not take another road trip this season.

* * *

Tech High and Boys High will play again next week. If the Culverites win they still have a slim chance to cop the pennant. The defeat by Peacock was a great blow to the Tech High bunch.

Jack Spencer's Infatuation for the Widow Becomes Serius and His Wife Notices It.

By MAX.

MARCH 25.—I had thought constantly this morning of our evening with the widow at the station last night; of Jack Spencer's evident infatuation; of the way in which he monopolized her, and the possessive manner in which he took her to the train, though I had hoped to have that privilege; of Sally Spencer's only half-concealed distress, and of the widow's triumphant look when she left us.

She is an unscrupulous woman. So many women who are fascinating are, and she holds a grudge against Mrs. Spencer because of the efforts Sally made last winter to prevent me from marrying.

All this made me uneasy, and knowing Jack to be weak, just as I am weak and just as all men are weak, I felt an apprehension that was almost womanish. I was not surprised during the morning to get a telephone message from Mrs. Spencer to come over for a little "plain talk," she said, and it was with a decided feeling of relief that I assented.

He Walked In.

With the privilege granted an old friend I did not stop to knock when I reached Mrs. Spencer's door, but walked in unannounced, making my way to a certain little sunny sitting room where she always spent her mornings making up her household accounts, sewing, writing letters and engaged in similar little tasks which take up so much of a methodical woman's time, and which we men neither can comprehend nor appreciate.

She had been engaged in running a ribbon through some dainty lace-trimmed garment, but it had fallen unnoticed to the floor beside her, and with her hands lying idly on her lap she was gazing intently through the window.

I stepped behind her and looked over her head to see what so engrossed her. The window commanded a view of my back lawn and the picture at which she gazed was so pretty I did not wonder at her absorption. Richards had placed a little table on the lawn, and Manette was giving a dinner party, with Sarah Rae Hartman, four dolls, the brown-eyed pup and two kittens as her guests. The dolls were sitting bolt upright in their chairs with faces so lacking in expression that they looked like real society ladies; the two kittens on one side, not so well bred, were lapping cream from tiny saucers on the table, and the pup, on the opposite side, was barking so fiercely it became necessary for Manette to pause while feeding a doll on her lap to pacify him by sticking a cake in his mouth. His anger at the kittens, plainly because of their ill-breeding, could not be choked off by cake, and we looked and he gave one bound across the table, the kittens fled without asking to be excused, and sought shelter up the nearest tree with the pup at their heels.

I am proud of Manette for many things, and one is that she seldom cries. With her tea table upset and her tea party broken up, she did not give a howl like most babies, but dropped the doll baby and ran after the pup. Tompkins caught him before he had caught the kittens and restored him to Manette's arms, who punished him by putting him to bed in a doll buggy. There he lay, with his head on a pillow, his brown eyes making a plea for pardon and his pink tongue hanging out.

She Weeps.

"Does life offer any greater pleasure than that?" I said to Mrs. Spencer when she had turned around and found me there. Then I noticed that her eyes were filled with tears.

"Max," she said, drawing up a chair for me, "that," looking to where Manette was tying a doll bonnet on the pup's head, preparatory to taking him for a ride, "is all there is in life worth while. The love men and women have for each other is only a means to happiness, and that is never attained unless there is a child.

"Your home, though you are a bachelor, is happier than mine because of the presence of a child. I tell you, Max, you don't know how well off you are."

"But," I argued, feeling that in some indefinable way I was put on the defensive, "there are lonesome moments even when there is a child. I am a man grown with all a man's longing for the companionship of his peers, and baby talk does not satisfy me. I get down to Manette's size every hour in the day, and when evening comes and she has gone to bed I long for the companionship of one who talks my own language. And," growing more emphatic because of the look of disapproval in her eyes, "it is a longing that the society of men doesn't satisfy, and as good and patient as you and Jack are with me, letting me come over here every evening to forget my loneliness, it is a craving that even the companionship of two such good friends can't gratify. Oh, Sally, you are a woman, and a woman never understands!"

A Suggestion.

"No," she said sadly, "a woman never understands. And a man never understands either, and here we are, tied together for life, and neither understanding the other. It is a wonder we are as happy as we are. You have no wife to 'understand' you," a little sarcastically, "and I have a husband who doesn't 'understand' me, but you have a child, and are better off than I."

"If you feel that way about it, why don't you adopt one? There's Sarah Rae, for instance. I have an idea her parents would be glad to give her away."

She paid no heed to what I had said, but gazed out of the window with her mind so far away that her eyes took no note of the efforts Sarah Rae was making to hold the pup in the doll buggy while Manette dragged it back and forth on the garden path.

She turned toward me very suddenly.

"What is Mrs. Brown's address?"

"But why—" I stammered.

"I intend to ask her here to spend a week," she replied.

"Sally," I said, "you are mad. If Jack is infatuated with the widow, why do you want to make his infatuation worse? She is gone. He will never see her again, and why, for the Lord's sake, give him a chance to play with fire by having her here?"

"You say a woman never understands. You are wrong; it is your sex that is stupid."

"But—" I began. Then I decided it was no use. There is never any use of arguing with a woman, so I pulled a notebook out of my pocket, copied Mrs. Brown's address on a card I found on the table, and handed it to her without a word.

"By the way," as if she had almost forgotten it, "Margaret Hill is coming also."

Margaret Hill! The girl I asked to be my wife, but who refused me when she learned there was a breach of promise suit pending against me. The good little Puritan, who was so good she was too good! I am sure my face showed my surprise.

A Bitter Cry.

"I tried to tell you at the station last night," she continued, "but you were so absorbed in the coming of the widow you refused to hear me."

"Max," abruptly changing the subject, "is a man's love ever won for all time? I won Jack Spencer's love when I was a girl twenty years ago, and I have been engaged in trying to keep it won ever since. I sometimes wonder"—a little bitterly—"if the love of a husband is worth the struggle a woman must make to hold it. It is fight, fight, fight, all the time; a fight to retain my personal charms, a fight to keep him interested, a fight to forget myself in satisfying every longing he may have, physical, mental or spiritual; a fight to give him just so much of myself that he will never know satiety and will always want more; a fight to keep him from the clutches of that Other Woman, always standing like a threatening phantom in the background; and then, when I have his love, what do I possess? Something about as lasting as a soap bubble, and never worth the price!"

"Look here, Sally Spencer," I said in real alarm, for this was so unlike her, "you are getting morbid, and I won't stand for it. Come with me," drawing her from her chair, and leading her to the door.

Five minutes later we were highly honored guests at the table of Sarah Rae, who was hostess this time, each holding a kitten and a doll as a special mark of honor.

But is that so, Diary, what she said about the love of man?

BEAUTY SECRETS OF BEAUTIFUL WOMEN

Effie Shannon Tells Why Twenty-five Years of Work Has Only Made Her Younger

By LILLIAN LAUFFERTY.

THE "Everybody's Doing It" of today is—trying to look young. Powder, pencil, patches, paint—art and artifice—these are the methods most of us accept; and these methods are all wrong; they "gild the surface" and scarcely deceive the most casual observer.

But there is a way to be so young and charming in spirit that the years creep on as friends, rather than enemies. There is a secret of eternal youth—and Effie Shannon knows it.

After a quarter of a century on the stage, Effie Shannon stands before us, slender, vibrant with life, magnetic and lovely, with the beauty of a clean-cut cameo. DELICATE, DAINTY EFFIE SHANNON HAS BEEN A WORKER FOR TWENTY-FIVE YEARS. Think of that, you little girls who fret lest your days of toil cheat you of youth and make you 'old before you have crossed life's threshold!

As the curtain falls on the evening-hushed rose garden in "Years of Discretion" at the Belasco Theater, Miss Shannon is happily echoing her lover-husband's, "It is wonderful to be old." IT IS WONDERFUL TO BE OLD, IF YOU HAVE THE INNER SPIRIT OF ETERNAL YOUTH—like Effie, of the play, and the charming woman who portrays her.

In the close intimacy of the dressing room, Miss Shannon is absolutely fresh and untouched by time, and yet she calmly said: "I am glad I am not young any more. Think of all the experience—the richness and fullness of life that I know. Think how high my spirit has fed. Do you think I'd give any of it—any line on my face—and retrace the years, and have a pretty mask with no background of life and feeling?

"Then to you true, beauty is expression, is it not?" I asked.

Beauty Is Expression.

"Yes; true beauty IS expression—and to acquire beauty or to accent it, a woman must have imagination and sympathy.

"I never can sufficiently emphasize imagination and sympathy. Cultivate them—they are a woman's greatest friends. They give a deeper meaning to loveliness, and they veil plainness.

"Imagination means dreaming—seeing deep into life and interpreting it. Sympathy means being in tune with all of it.

"And as the years pass, a woman becomes more and more capable of them. So why should not a woman who cultivates these qualities become lovelier with the years?"

"'We must cultivate our garden. Do you remember that quotation? You seem to live it." I said.

Her lovely illuminating smile lit Miss Shannon's face. "I do remember—'The Beloved Vagabond' said it—and women who value their great gift, beauty, must cultivate the flowers of imagination and sympathy in the garden of mind and soul. And live! Live life in fullness. Remember you are an individual—a separate soul and learn to be your true self. Don't you think that will insure a beautiful expression—deep, tender eyes, a sweet mouth and a happy soul to illuminate the face?" asked the charming star earnestly.

Beware of Fat.

"I do, indeed," I replied. "We all must cultivate our gardens. But how about uprooting the weeds—fat for instance?"

"Fat is a noxious weed," laughed Miss Shannon. "Girls must never get fat if they want to be beautiful. People do eat too much in New York—in all the big cities where dinners and teas at home or in the restaurants are occasions. Beware of too much or too rich food!

"I will tell you how simply I live. Breakfast: Tea, toast and a bit of fruit. Luncheon—nothing. Not a bite. Dinner I have at five every day—and it is a very simple meal. After the play I have a simple supper, too, if I am hungry. One needs to see people to keep in touch with life—to have moments of gayety and absolute self-forgetfulness—to be with friends. After the play happens to be my free time. So I go to simple little suppers and enjoy them.

"Food is not the only practical consideration in connection with keeping thin. A very important one is: DON'T TAKE NAPS. Those little afternoon sleepy times are dangerously fattening—and life is too short to sleep away. Keep busy—keep doing things, and you will grow in strength, but not in beauty-destroying pounds."

"Suppose all else failed to give you the modern 'straight silhouette,' would you wear painfully tight clothes and shoes as you do in the play in order to be young and alluring," I asked?

"NO!" said the graceful star emphatically. "Who could be charming with tight shoes on?. TIGHT SHOES TORTURE YOUR MIND AS WELL AS YOUR FEET. And 'five pairs of garters' strapping you down firmly—you could not feel in tune with life—you would feel only pain—in this world full of beauty you would be conscious only of a body painfully striving for fashionable contours. Good corsets, shoes that fit, suitable clothes, they will, when properly adjusted and selected, help you give the impression of youth. But they are the lesser aids.

"Youth is a matter of spirit and feeling, you know. Feel young; think young eager thoughts; love life in its fullness of work and play and joy and sorrow.

"But to be beautiful, you must be young in spirit—not in years. TIME AND EXPERIENCE AND FEELING MUST CHISEL A FACE TO MAKE IT REALLY BEAUTIFUL; THE SPIRIT OF KNOWLEDGE MUST ILLUMINATE BEAUTY TO MAKE IT LOVELY AND PERMANENTLY ATTRACTIVE.

"Express your own true self always better and better—and then it is 'wonderful to be old'—for your spirit will be gloriously young, and your SPIRIT WILL MAKE YOU GLOW WITH THE FIRES OF ETERNAL YOUTH."

And as Miss Shannon's voice, vibrant with imagination and sympathy, alight with feeling, and truly expressive of her own rare self, brought me her message, I knew I had heard a vital truth. Youth is deeper than powder and paint and clothes—Youth is Soul.

"BE SURE TO BURN LOVE LETTERS"

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

DON'T keep love letters.

Unless you are receiving them from your own wife or husband or your fiance, you might better keep a box of dynamite in your kitchen or introduce an infernal machine into your household than to guard a package of love letters.

Let them perish in their own fires as soon as absorbed by the eye and heart.

If your engagement is broken, even though one or both swear never to marry, nevertheless it is worse than folly to keep the letters exchanged during the existence of tender relations.

Fate plays such strange pranks with us all. Your lover may some day be President of the United States, or your sweetheart the wife of a great celebrity, and unnecessary pain and annoyance ensue from the unearthing of those old letters by some accident.

Burn them, I say, burn them!

VERY FOOLISH.

IT is one thing to have your husband or wife tell you of an early rehearsal of Cupid's drama before you met. It is another to encounter the love letters written during that period—which seem to your exacting heart more realistic than the role you have been engaged to play for life.

Sometimes a sensible moral being is suddenly swept off his feet by a tidal wave of passion.

Sometimes he is safely landed on shore by a happy turn of the wind or by the life-saving crew of Providence.

He hides his bruises, and no one knows of his brief disaster—unless he carries about with him the incriminating letter.

Oh, the folly of it!

BURN THEM ALL.

IT is no easy task, however, to burn or destroy, a letter that is dear to you. A genuine love letter breathes the very fragrance of the writer's soul. Who capable of understanding the grand passion has not felt the keen sense of pleasure that was twin to pain at the sight of the beloved one's handwriting? Where is the man or woman so stolid or commonplace who has not at some time kissed the page whereon a dear hand has rested and then hidden it near the heart whose accelerated throbs welcomed its approach?

And who of deep feeling and wide experience has not at some time felt his own heart scorching with the parcel of letters he tossed upon the coals?

But human hearts have a Phoenix-like propensity for rising from their own ashes, strong with new life and capable of new emotions. Let there be no accusing records of the old.

Let the dead bury its dead.

However it hurts, whatever it costs, burn your love letters.

An Eye to Business

"Prisoner at the bar," declaimed the learned Judge, "your offense is of such a nature that, if you plead guilty, I will let you off with a fine."

"Pardon me," and the prisoner's counsel popped suddenly up from his seat. "Before we plead guilty, it will be necessary for us to know exactly how much the fine will be."

"But this is unprecedented, sir!" exclaimed the Judge warmly. "You can not bargain with the Court."

"Well, it may be a little unusual, Your Honor," replied the lawyer, "but I am sure, when you learn the full circumstances of the case, you will entirely agree to my proposition. You see, the prisoner is in the possession of $60; my fee is $50, and so we cannot afford to plead guilty if you insist on fining him more than $10."

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"I knew her the instant I entered the house; and, remembering the Chanticler dress with its fowl's-foot boots, I guessed at once what those marks would prove to be when I came to investigate them. She must have stamped on the ground with all her might, to sink the marks in so deeply—but she meant to make sure of the claws and the exaggerated scales on the toes leaving their imprint. I was certain we should find that dress and those boots among her effects; and—Mr. Narkom did. What I wrote on that pretended telegram was for him to slip away into the house proper and search every trunk and cupboard for them.

"What's that? No, I don't think they really had any idea of incriminating Sir Roger Droger. That thought came into the fellow's mind when you stepped out and caught him stealing away after the murder had been committed. No doubt he, like you, had seen Sir Ralph practicing for the sports, and he simply made capital of it.

"The main idea was to kill his father and to destroy the will; and, of course, when it became apparent that the old gentleman had died intestate, even a discarded son must inherit. Where he made his blunder, however, was in his haste to practice his ventriloquial accomplishment to prevent your going into the Round House and discovering that his father was already dead.

"He ought to have waited until you spoke, so that it would appear natural for the old men to know without turning who it was that had opened the door. That is what put me on the track of him. Until that moment I hadn't the slightest suspicion where he was nor under what guise he was hiding.

"Of course, I had a vague suspicion even before I came and saw her that 'the cook' was in it. Her readiness in inventing a fictitious gypsy with a bear's muzzle coupled with what Nippers had told me of the animal marks she had pointed out, looked a bit fishy; but, of course, until I actually met her nothing really tangible began to take shape in my thoughts.

"That's all, I think. And now good-night and good luck to you, Miss Renfrew. The riddle is solved; and Mr. Narkom and I must be getting back to the wilderness and to our ground floor beds in the hotel of the beautiful stars!"

THE END.

Their Married Life

Helen, from a Box, Looks Down Upon Warren at a Banquet at the Astor-Ritz.

By MABEL HERBERT URNER.

IT was just 9:30 when Helen, in an evening gown and long white wrap, hurried down to a taxicab.

"The Astor-Ritz," she called to the driver as she gathered her chiffon skirts about her white satin slippers and stepped in.

To be whirling through the streets alone at 9:30 was for Helen a new sensation, and always self-conscious, she dreaded arriving at the Astor-Ritz unescorted.

It was the night of the annual dinner of the International Fraternal Society. Mr. Jennings had invited Warren to the dinner and had given him a box ticket for Helen. She was supposed to arrive about 10, to sit in a box overlooking the banquet hall and listen to the speeches.

With a fluttering heart she left the cab and ran up the awning-covered steps of the Astor-Ritz. Keenly conscious that she was alone, she hurried through the lobby to the nearest elevator.

At the entrance to the balcony of the banquet hall the doorman took her ticket and escorted her to one of the boxes in which were already seated three beautifully gowned women.

Below was the banquet hall with a long speakers' table at the end, and countless smaller tables crowded so close that the waiters could hardly pass between. It was a brilliant scene—the lights, the flower-decked tables, the high, gilded ceiling and gleaming chandeliers.

Helen's first impulse as she leaned over the red plush railing of the box was to find Warren. But it was not easy to locate any one in that great crowded hall, with all the diners in evening dress, and each with a white carnation in his buttonhole.

Not Warren.

Was that Warren with his back towards her at that table by the pillar? She leaned forward eagerly, but as she caught a glimpse of the man's side face her searching glance swept on to other tables.

The waiters were just bringing on the dessert—a pinkish ice in tall slender glasses. There were many things in the table appointments that Helen was eager to notice, but she could not be content until she had located Warren.

Then suddenly she saw him at a table near the center. Why had she not seen him at once? Surely no one else looked so distinguished!

If he would only look up! But he was talking to the man at his right. He had promised to look for her around 10, and it was that now, but he kept on laughing and talking, not even glacing towards the boxes.

The waiter had just placed before him his frozen ice and refilled his wine glass. Then Helen saw that every one at Warren's table was drinking champagne. Some of the other tables had champagne, some had claret, and at a few there were no wine glasses at all.

Warren was looking up now! He was glancing toward the boxes! He saw Helen and waved his napkin.

Helen flushed with pride as the other women in the box turned to look at her. In spite of their expensive gowns and jewels Helen felt certain that their husbands were not at handsome and distinguished as Warren.

The waiters had now all lined up by the door, each carrying a tray piled nigh with small white boxes—the dinner souvenirs. At a sign from the head waiter, they filed in and out through the tables, leaving a white box beside each plate.

Had the diners been women, they would have instantly opened the boxes, but the men seemed hardly to notice them. So Helen's curiosity was not gratified.

The Dinner Over.

At length the dinner was over. The waiters began carrying out the dishes and the pink-shaded candles, most of which had burned out. The orchestra that had been playing in a balcony above the boxes now stopped.

The chairman at the speakers' table rose and rapped for order. Helen wondered why he was chairman. He was small and insignificant with a thin voice that did not carry. After some tedious remarks which no one could hear, he introduced the first speaker of the evening, Dr. Olony, an eminent sociologist.

Helen leaned forward with eager interest. The speakers were all prominent men, and she felt thir addrsses would be well worth hearing. But Dr. Olony began with the usual trite preliminary remarks about it being "an honor to address so distinguished a gathering." Then to Helen's dismay he produced a formidable manuscript and proceded to read it.

Everybody sat back resignedly. After the first few moments Helen did not pretend to listen. The women beside her kept up a running conversation. Several men had now come up to the various boxes to sit with their wives and friends. The eminent Dr. Olony was still reading in a monotonous voice.

Helen's glance never left Warren for long, and now she saw him push back his chair and leave the table. He looked up and nodded. He was coming up to her!

"Well, what do you think of it?" when he entered the box and took the chair beside her.

"Oh, dear, it's very interesting," happily excited now that she was with her. How wonderful he looked—how distinguished! Her eyes rested on him proudly.

"Rotten speaker," he grumbled. "A man ought to be mobbed for reading a speech at a dinner like this. What people want is short pointed addresses of say—five minutes. That boob's been spouting for fifteen."

"Oh, dear, you didn't bring me your souvenir. I wanted so much to see them."

"Forgot the blamed thing. Get it for you later. Wonde, who that stunning woman is in that box over there?"

Helen followed his glance to the dark-haired regal-looking woman. She was undeniably beautiful. Her gown of white lace was cut strikingly low, and there were strands of pearls about her throat and in her hair. Helen was not often jealous, but somehow she felt suddenly plain and poorly gowned beside the striking loveliness of that woman.

The speaker finished now and sat down amid much applause. He bowed repeatedly, not seeming to realize that the applause was only an expression of relief that he was through. Again the chairman rapped for order.

This time a United States Senator was introduced. To Helen's relief he had no notes, his voice was deep and booming, and he was plainly used to talking on his feet. But his ranting eloquence was just words—empty phrases. He had nothing particular to say and was merely "orating."

Warren, who loathed after-dinner speaking, and who rarely attended big dinners because he would not be bored, was becoming restive.

"How many more of these guys do we have to stand for?" drawing from his pocket the dinner menu, on the back of which were the names of the speakers. "Suffering cats! FOUR more? Well, I guess not! We'll cut it and make for home."

"Oh, dear, we'd better wait a little longer! It'll look rude to leave so early, Mr. Jennings will think we didn't enjoy it."

"Guess he's bored stiff, too. Why in blazes don't they have some live talkers instead of ringing in a lot of dead ones?"

If the speech of the eminent sociologist had been long, the Senator's seemed interminable. He boomed on with high-sounding phrases about "The Achievements of the Nineteenth Century..... The Splendid Strides of Civilization .....The Advancement of Society," and something about "Shining Orbits in the Sky of Future Progress.....Blazing in Front of the Jeweled Crown of an Unconquerable Race."

Every one was becoming impatient and restive, even the chairman had his mallet poised as though anxious to rap it, but still the Senator kept on shouting his oratorical phrases.

Missed the Souvenir.

"Gosh, that fellow loves to hear himself talk," growled Warren. "He's good for another hour yet. Come ON!"

"But dear, we must wait—we can't leave while he's speaking," whispered Helen.

"Like to know why we can't? Here's where I get out!"

"And I didn't get the souvenir—I didn't even see what they were!" bewailed Helen, as Warren hurried her out through the crowded corridors of the Astor-Ritz.

"Souvenirs!" with a contemptuous sniff. "Well I wouldn't have stood for any more of that duffer's speech for a dozen souvenirs. I'll wager he's spouting there yet."

"Yes, he WAS tiresome," Helen admitted, sinking back in the taxicab with a sigh of relief. Then laughingly, "Dear, if you ever make an after-dinner speech, don't begin by saying you 'feel honored to address so distinguished a gathering.' And don't—PLEASE don't use a lot of fine phrases that mean nothing."

"Huh," snorted Warren, "don't you worry! If ever I make a public speech I'll have something to say, and I'll say it blamed quick, and have gumption enough to sit down when I'm through."

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

MA & me had a lot of fun yesterday at the dinner tabel in the hotel ware we are staying wile Pa is here catching fish. Pa was out following a streem, & Ma & me was all alone at our tabel until a yung traveling man caim in & the waitress put him at our tabel. He was vary yung and vary fresh. The minnit he got sat down to the tabel he looked oaver at us & sed You peepul are having a luvly spring this yeer up in the woods.

The day is butiful, sed Ma. Ma was dressed in a plain dress for walking in & I had on overalls so I cud be like the other littel boys around here, & I was bare-footed. Ma & me knew that the yung traveling man thot we was country peepul & we dident care, beekaus we have saw lots of peepul in the big cities that dident know half so much as country folks.

The seenery here is vary pritty, sed the yung man, but, of course, you peepul up here havent traveled & got broadened, sed the yung salesman. Jest think how majestik must be the site of a mountain peek like the kind you see not far from Chattanooga, Tenn.

I have never been in Chattanooga, sed Ma.

It Was a Pity.

That seems a pity, sed the yung man. One reely doesnt know what living is until one has been in Chattanooga. A littel place like this is all rite for peepul wich have nevver seen the glories of natur, but one who has traveled like I have it would soon beecum monotonous.

& so you travel? sed Ma.

Yes, indeed, sed the yung man. We knights of the grip are never still in one place vary long. I travel all the way from Chattanooga to Nashville on the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis, he toald Ma. Chattanooga is sum city. Thare is none of this humdrum life you have here. Why, think of a city with several theaters all within the city limits, & with the hum of St. cars & the roar of the traffic & the butiful stores & residences. That is life, believe me, sed the yung man. I doant know what the other big cities is like, he sed, but you have got to show me whare any one of them has anything on Chattanooga.

I was jest going to tell the yung man that Pa & Ma & me had been in every big city in the U. S., from Frizco to Portland Maine & from New Orleans to the Canadian line, but Ma kicked me under the tabel & I knew then that she was kidding the yung man.

I have offen thot that wen my littel boy grows up I wud have him be a traveling man, sed Ma. My sister's husband used to sell enlarged picters. He used to travel from Chippewa Falls to Boyd on the Wisconsin Central. I guess he mite have been with his firm yet only he used to lose his expense money playing nickel slot macheens.

The Pity of It.

That is the pity of it with us knights of the grip, sed the yung man. We are thrown into constant temtashun, traveling the way we do from one town to another. Doant let yure yung son get into this gaim, he sed. It is a pity that you can not move to Chattanooga or eeven sum smaller city, so he cud get the benefits of a education, like I dune.

Jest then Pa caim in & sed Wife, this is jest my luck. Jest as the fishing is good, here is a telegram that we must return to New York & leave the next day for Frisco.

Oh, good, sed Ma, we havent been in Frisco for nearly two years.

Then the yung man got kind of red in the face & dident say any moar about Chattanooga.

Just a Little Slip.

"Miss Sweet," the young man began, with a quaver in his voice, "may I presume so far upon our short acquaintance to ask you—"

"Please say no more, Mr. Matthews!" faltered the maiden. "I deeply regret to give you pain; and, if I have unconsciously encouraged you to entertain hopes that never can be recalled, I can not forgive myself. Believe me, I am—"

"Pardon me, Miss Sweet," interrupted the astonished youth, "but I was only going to ask you for the loan of fare home! I was stupid enough to come away without any money in my pocket this evening. Ah, thanks very much! I will return it without fail. Good night!"

The Mistakes of Jennie .:. By HAL COFFMAN

Being a Series of Chapters in the Life of a Southern Girl in the Big City

"Little Jennie had never ridden in a taxicab before."

CHAPTER 2.

JENNIE and THE MAN sat in the big, bright restaurant and listened to the music and watched the cabaret dancers, and Jennie's big brown eyes wondered at it all. At the beautiful dresses of the women diners, the bright lights, the thick, rich carpet on the floor and the noiseless waiters.

It was just like fairyland to Jennie, for she had never, never even imagined that things could be so lovely. The boys she knew could not afford such places, and the height of her social life had been walks in the park on Sundays and maybe the ice cream parlors for soda.

THE MAN did not urge her to drink much of the bubbly wine—for he knew she wasn't used to it and there might be explanations for her to make when she reached her boarding place, and that would NEVER do. For THE MAN was wise, and didn't want Jennie's good Southern friend, who kept the boarding place, to suspect anything—quite so soon.

Jennie realized at last that it was getting late and that she would have to get home, and besides it would take nearly an hour on the car to where she lived. When she mentioned the car, THE MAN wouldn't hear of such a thing. They must take a taxicab—and besides that would get them to Jennie's home much quicker than a car. A taxicab!—and poor little Jennie had never even ridden in one before—the cushions were so soft and warm and things zipped by so quick, 'til they just seemed to fly along. How different from the pokey old street cars, thought Jennie. THE MAN was polite as could be and talked of the delightful time they had that evening—and how lonesome he would be when she was gone, and they really MUST see one another quite soon again—but she mustn't tell any one where she had been that night—just that she had to work late and had hurried right home—and he would have the taxicab stop a block or so from her home, so no one would be the wiser.

Jennie was so proud of riding in a taxicab that she wanted to drive right up to her front door, but THE MAN explained that would NEVER do. So with a promise from her to "ring him up" the next day he had the taxicab stop a block down the street and very politely helped Jennie out with a promise to watch and see that she reached home safely. When she had gone he told the chauffeur the name of a prominent cafe, and with a chuckle got in and slammed the door.

Do You Know That—

Annoyed by a notice that the local sanitary committee were going to inspect his cow house, an English farmer spread linoleum over the floor of the building, displayed hearth rugs in convenient positions, hung the walls with pictures and a mirror, and installed a harmonium. When the committee arrived he gravely invited them to wipe their feet on the doormat before entering.

The French military authorities make use of an ingenious invention to protect their carrier pigeons against hawks. The apparatus consists of a very tiny whistle and a screw attached to the pigeon, whose flight causes the screw to revolve and thus blow the whistle. The noise effectually scares away the enemy.

Perhaps the highest price paid for a sermon goes every year to a German preacher, who discourses on the good deeds of a French baron named Favart, who died in Elberfeld in 1690. Favart left money for this purpose, and the interest now amounts to $4,500 per annum, which goes to the preacher as his reward.

A casino proprietor of Ostend has made arrangements to have a luxurious gambling room fitted up in a large steam yacht, which is to ply between Ostend and other watering places. Gambling will only take place when the yacht is outside the three-mile limit.

An orchestra of twenty-five blind musicians, led by a one-armed lady conductor, recently played the whole of the music of "Rigoletto" at a performance of that opera in the theater at Oviedo, Spain.

Audience of One

The College of France, founded in Paris by Francis I, offers at the present day not only strictly academic instruction, but opportunities for the higher education in general. The following anecdote shows how far the college carries its scrupulousness. Every scientific subject, even the most abstruse, will continue to be taught there as long as one solitary individual in all Europe desires to pursue it.

Certain courses are followed by two or three persons only. They tell this story of a professor of mathematics: This professor, who was extremely absent-minded, had lectured for a whole year to only one pupil.

He was perfectly satisfied that it should be so, but it occurred to him one day that he ought to congratulate his rare disciple, and he accordingly did so.

"Monsieur does not recognize me," replied the pupil. "I am monsieur's coachman, and I always wait here until monsieur has finished his lecture."

Daysey Mayme And Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE.

WHEN a man says he has been discovered it is a confession that he has been found out. In other words, that his meanness has been exposed at last. But the women have a way of giving a higher, more soulful meaning to words, and when a woman says she has been discovered she means that her genius has found recognition.

Daysey Mayme Appleton had been discovered in this feminine interpretation of the word. Her genius had found recognition, and she had been given employment on a newspaper.

She had been sent to interview a famous authoress, and the famous authoress had told her she could give her just five minutes.

"What," she asked kindly, "do you wish me to talk about?"

The Interview.

Daysey Mayme pushed her back hair up, her front hair back, felt for her necklace, straightened her hat, lifted herself out of her corset and powdered her nose.

Then she was ready for the interview.

"It doesn't make any difference what you talk about," she said. "I must remember I have my own personality. I am a graduate of Hardtack College; I was at the head of my class; I began writing poetry when I was seven, and prose when I was nine. I am going to become a great journalist. I feel that my genius is too great to be longer hidden. Robert W. Chambers and none of the other great ones had written poetry when they were seven. Every one says I have wonderful talent."

The five minutes were up, and Daysey Mayme, with a brain seething with thoughts, went home and wrote all day and all night, covering many, many pages.

There are those who use a special delivery stamp. Not so with Daysey Mayme. She writes "IN HASTE" across one corner of the envelope. "When the postman sees these words," she exclaimed to her father, "he just drops everything else and runs all the way to deliver the letter."

A Terrible Mistake.

The interview appeared next day, and Daysey Mayme read with pride. Suddenly her face paled, her eyes flashed and she dashed to the telephone, and called up the newspaper office.

"The managing editor," she said in tones that were imperious, and when she got him she cried in a voice of authority:

"Stop the press! You have put two t's in parting in the seventh line, third column, ninth page. This article is IMPORTANT, and must be right."

"It means so much to be correct," she said to her mother, "when one is engaged in moulding the opinions of the world."

Turning the Tables.

In some cases counsel receive answers to questions which they had no business to put, and these, if not quite to their liking, are what they justly deserve. The following story of Robert Harris, a celebrated negro minstrel, is a case in point:

"You are in the minstrel business, I believe?" inquired the lawyer.

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"Is that not rather a low calling?"

"I don't know but what it is, sir," replied the minstrel; "but it is so much better than my father's that I am proud of it."

The lawyer fell into the trap.

"What was your father's calling?" he inquired.

"He was a lawyer," replied Harris, in a tone that sent the whole court into a roar of laughter as the discomfitted lawyer sat down.

Safe.

"Captain," said a wealthy passenger, who was about to take his first trip across the ocean, "I understand this ship has got several water-tight compartments."

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"Captain," the passenger went on, decidedly, "I want one o' those compartments—I don't care what it costs."

Falling Into Captivity

HENDERSON was wont to declare that the girl who wasn't popular was no girl for him.

"There's something wrong with a girl who can go to dances and not be asked to dance every time," he would say dogmatically. "Anyway, if she had any sense she wouldn't place herself in such a position."

Possibly it was his propensity for selecting the most sought after girl as the object of his devotion that caused him to remain a bachelor at the age of 38. He was, however, the slave of his niece, Margaret.

As a rule, he did without a word whatever Margaret asked him to do. However, when she came and sat upon the arm of his chair one evening, and it finally developed that she was planning to make him take her to the high school dance he almost rebelled. He assured her that his dancing days were things of the distant past and demanded to know where all the boys were. Margaret tilted her nose into the air as far as it would go and replied that she didn't know; and, anyway, she didn't care in the least; and, anyway, she wanted Henderson to take her.

"The girls will all be crazy about you," she assured him ingratiatingly.

"They'll be crazy at me," gloomed Henderson, "if they have to dance with me." But eventually he promised that he would go.

"You look perfectly sweet," Margaret cried ecstatically when he came down in all his glory ready to escort her. "I'm so proud of you that I don't know what to do about it."

"Just let me crawl off into a corner and smoke while you have a good time," begged Henderson. "And don't expect me to dance."

"All right," Margaret agreed.

Afterward Henderson remembered that Miss Patterson was the first person upon whom his eyes had fallen when he entered the hall, though he paid no attention to her at the time. Miss Patterson was the domestic science teacher and was present as a sort of chaperon. She was what is known in the vernacular as "chunky." However, with all her chunkiness, she was young and she had a passion for dancing. In her bosom there fluttered the faint hope that she would be asked to dance a few times, anyway.

Danced With His Niece.

This hope shown from her eyes when they met Henderson's as Margaret presented him. Henderson did not recognize it—in fact, he hardly realized that their eyes had met. She was merely a little, fat, uninteresting teacher, to whom he gave hardly a second thought.

He danced the first dance with his niece. "Am I off duty for the present, Peg?" he inquired when the dance was over. Margaret glanced at him appealingly.

"Oh, Sammy, dear," she said, "you know I'm on the committee, and I wish—" She paused and her eyes turned toward Miss Patterson. "But, never mind."

Henderson was not proof against Margaret's wistfulness.

"Well, Peg," he queried, "what is it?"

When told that she much desired that he dance one dance with Miss Patterson, who was perfectly sweet, even if she couldn't dance much, he looked aghast. "You certainly have picked out a fairy for me," he said, ruefully. "Still, for your sake, I'll do it."

Sat Where He Left Her.

Miss Patterson looked like a toy balloon and danced like a baby elephant. She hopped about and around and around, coming down for the most part on Henderson's toes. She did all the things that he hated most. When they had circled the hall a time or two the music mercifully stopped, Henderson being in a state of complete exhuastion and Miss Patterson beaming joyously.

He was too much overcome to know whether she could talk or what she really looked like, his one idea being to escape. As he sought refuge in the smoking room he was unaware that Miss Patterson's eyes were following him with a look of deep gratitude. When he emerged, however, their eyes met. Hers had a patient, wistful look.

Henderson turned away hastily. "Never again," he muttered to himself. But those eyes haunted him. He went back into the smoking room and tried to forget that look. When he had finished his cigar he skulked into the hall. Miss Patterson sat where he had left her, her round face beginning to look a little tired, but unfailingly cheerful, her brown eyes still wistfully hopeful.

Henderson dived back into the outer hall and there gloomily communed with himself. Presently he returned, walked bravely across the room and once more invited Miss Patterson to dance.

Strange are the ways of the little god Cupid! Twice again during the evening did Henderson immolate himself. Then at the close of the dance Margaret informed him that she'd be glad if he would take Miss Patterson home and that he needn't mind her, as she was going with Harold Bemis. So he went home with Miss Patterson without a murmur.

Some months later Miss Patterson asked Henderson shyly: "What made you begin to—to—care for me?"

Henderson at that moment was holding up her plump little hand for the purpose of getting an idea as to the size of the third finger on the left hand. At the question he gave the plump little hand—the comfortable little cushiony hand that yet was so capable and energetic—a contented squeeze.

"I think I began by being sorry for you," he said. "You did dance so abominably."

Saved the Situation

A steady queue had formed up at the money order counter of the local post-office, and it members were strongly agitated by different stages of acute irritation.

And all because a dear old lady had forgotten the address of her son, who lived in foreign parts.

"It's in China," she faltered.

The man behind the counter then scratched his head.

"China's a big vague," he said, and so audibly thought the queue.

"Well, sir," said the dear old soul, "I know it's a name something like the noise of a motor-car makes—"

"Hong—honk!" came in a quickly suppressed shrill from the sandy-haired telegraph boy who had been watching the proceedings with considerable enthusiasm.

"That's it—that's it, sir!" cried the delightful old lady. And the clerk filed in Hong Kong in the address.

CHAPTER IX.

A Legal Document.

Mary Turner spent less than an hour in that mysteriously important engagement with Dick Gilder, of which she had spoken to Aggie. After separating from the young man she went alone down Broadway, walking the few blocks of distance to Sigismund Harris' office. On a corner her attention was caught by the forlorn face of a girl crossing into the side street. A closer glance showed that the privation of the gaunt features was emphasized by the scant garments, almost in tatters. Instantly Mary's quick sympathies were aroused, the more particularly since the wretched child seemed of about the age she, herself had been when her great suffering had befallen. So, turning aside she soon caught up with the girl and spoke an inquiry.

It was the familiar story, a father out of work, a sick mother, a brood of hungry children. Some confused words of distress revealed the fact that the woebegone girl was even then fighting the final battle of purity against starvation. That she still fought on in such case proved enough as to her decency of nature, wholesome despite squalid surroundings. Mary's heart was deeply moved and her words of comfort came with a simple sincerity that was like new life to the sorely beset waif. She promised to interest herself in securing employment for the father, such care as the mother and children might need, along with a proper situation for the girl herself. In evidence of her purpose she took her engagement book from her bag and set down the street and number of the East Side tenement where the family possessed the one room that mocked the word home, and she gave a banknote to the girl to serve the immediate needs.

Had a Heart Yearning.

When she went back to resume her progress down Broadway, Mary felt herself vastly cheered by the warm glow within which is the reward of a kindly act, gratefully received. And, on this particular morning, she craved such assuagement of her spirit, for the conscience that, in spite of all her misdeeds, still lived was struggling within her. In her revolt against a world that had wantonly inflicted on her the worst torments, Mary Turner had thought that she might safely disregard those principles in which she had been so carefully reared. She had believed that by the deliberate adoption of a life of guile within limits allowed by the law she would find solace for her wants, while feeling that thus she avenged herself in some slight measure for the indignities she had undergone unjustly. Yet, as the days passed, days of success as far as her scheming was concerned, his brilliant woman, who had tried to deem herself unscrupulous, found that lawlessness within the law failed to satisfy something deep within her soul. The righteousness that was her instinct was offended by the triumphs achieved through so devious devices, though she resolutely set her will to suppress any spiritual rebellion.

There was, as well, another grievance of her nature, yet more subtle, infinitely more painful. This lay in her craving for tenderness. She was wholly woman, notwithstanding the virility of her intelligence, its audacity, its aggressiveness. She had a heart yearning for the multitudinous affections that are the prerogative of the feminine; she had a heart longing for love, to receive and to give in full measure. * * * And her life was barren. Since the death of her father, there had been none on whom she could lavish the great gifts of her tenderness. Through the days of her working in the store, circumstances had shut her out from all association with others congenial. No need to rehearse the impossibilities of companionship in the prison life. Since then, the situation had not vitally improved, in spite of her better worldly condition. For Garson, who had saved her from death, she felt a strong and lasting gratitude—nothing that relieved the longing for nobler affections. There was none other with whom she had any intimacy except that, of a sort, with Aggie Lynch, and by no possibility could the adventuress serve as an object of deep regard. The girl was amusing enough, and, indeed, a most likable person at her best. But she was, after all, a shallow-pated individual, without a shred of principle of any sort whatsoever, save the single merit of unswerving loyalty to her "pals." Mary cherished a certain warm kindliness for the first woman who had befriended her in any way, but beyond this there was no finer feeling.

This Was Dick Gilder.

Nevertheless, it is not quite accurate to say that Mary Turner had had no intimacy in which her heart might have been seriously engaged. In one instance, of recent happening, she had been much in association with a young man who was of excellent standing in the world, who was of good birth, good education, of delightful manners, and, too, wholesome and agreeable beyond the most of his class. This was Dick Gilder, and, since her companionship with him, Mary had undergone a revulsion greater than ever before against the fate thrust on her, which now at last she had chosen to welcome and nourish by acquiescence as best she might.

Of course, she could not waste tenderness on this man, for she had deliberately set out to make him the instrument of her vengeance against his father. For that very reason, she suffered much from a conscience newly clamorous. Never for an instant did she hesitate in her long-cherished plan of revenge against the one who had brought ruin on her life, yet, through all her satisfaction before the prospect of final victory after continued delay, there ran the secret, inescapable sorrow over the fact that she must employ this means to attain her end. She had no thought of weakening, but the better spirit within her warred against the lust to repay an eye for an eye. It was the new Gospel against the old Law, and the fierceness of the struggle rent her. Just now, the doing of the kindly act seemed somehow to gratify not only her maternal instinct toward service of love, but, too, to muffle for a little the rebuking voice of her inmost soul.

So she went her way more at ease, more nearly content again with herself and with her system of living. Indeed, as she was shown into the private office of the ingenious interpreter of the law, there was not a hint of any trouble beneath the bright mask of her beauty, radiantly smiling.

Suffered Injustice.

Harris regarded the client with an appreciative eye, as he bowed in greeting, and invited her to a seat. The lawyer was a man of fine physique, with a splendid face of the best Semitic type, in which were large, dark, sparkling eyes—eyes a Lombroso perhaps might have judged rather too closely set. As a matter of fact, Harris had suffered a flagrant injustice in his own life from a suspicion of wrongdoing which he had not merited by any act. This had caused him a loss of prestige in his profession. He presently adopted the wily suggestion of the adage, that it is well to have the game if you have the name, and he resolutely set himself to the task of making as much money as possible by any means convenient. Mary Turner as a client delighted his heart, both because of the novelty of her ideas and the munificence of the fees which she ungrudgingly paid with never a protest. So, as he beamed on her now, and spoke a compliment, it was rather the lawyer than the man that was moved to admiration.

"Why, Miss Turner, how charming!" he declared, smiling. "Really, my dear young lady, you look positively bridal."

"Oh, do you think so?" Mary rejoined, with a whimsical pout, as she seated herself. For the moment her air became distrait, but she quickly regained her poise, as the lawyer, who had dropped back into his chair behind the desk, went on speaking. His tone now was crisply businesslike.

"I sent your cousin, Miss Agnes Lynch, the release which she is to sign," he explained, "when she gets that money from General Hastings. I wish you'd look it over, when you have time to spare. It's all right, I'm sure, but I confess that I appreciate your opinion of things, Miss Turner, even of legal documents—yes, indeed, I do!—perhaps particularly of legal documents."

"Thank you," Mary said, evidently a little gratified by the frank praise of the learned gentleman for her abilities. "And have you heard from them yet?" she inquired.

Praise for Mary.

"No," the lawyer replied. "I gave them until to-morrow. If I don't hear then, I shall start suit at once."

Then the lawyer's manner became unusually bland and self-satisfied as he opened a drawer of the desk and brought forth a rather formidable-appearing document, bearing a most impressive seal. "You will be glad to know," he went on unctuously, "that I was entirely successful in carrying out that idea of yours as to the injunction. My dear Miss Turner," he went on with florid compliment, "Portia was a squawking baby, compared with you."

"Thank you again," Mary answered, and she took the legal paper which he held outstretched toward her. Her scarlet lips were curved happily, but the clear oval of her cheeks blossomed to a deep rose. For a moment, her glance ran over the words of the page. Then she looked up at the lawyer, and there were new lusters in the violet eyes.

"It's splendid," she declared. "Did you have much trouble in getting it?"

Harris permitted himself the indulgence of an unprofessional chuckle of keenest amusement before he answered.

"Why, no," he declared, with reminiscent enjoyment in his manner. "That is, not really!" There was an enormous complacency in his air over the event. "But, at the outset, when I made the request, the judge just naturally nearly fell off the bench. Then I showed him that Detroit case, to which you had drawn my attention, and the upshot of it all was that he gave me what I wanted without a whimper. He couldn't help himself, you know. That's the long and the short of it."

That mysterious document with the imposing seal, the request for which had nearly caused a judge to fall off the bench, reposed safely in Mary's bag when she returned to the apartment after the visit to the lawyer's office.

CHAPTER X.

Marked Money.

MARY had scarcely received from Aggie an account of Cassidy's threatening invasion when the maid announced that Mr. Irwin had called.

"Show him in, in just two minutes," Mary directed.

"Who's the gink?" Aggie demanded, with that slangy diction which was her habit.

"You ought to know," Mary returned, smiling a little. "He's the lawyer retained by General Hastings in the matter of a certain breach of promise suit."

"Oh, you mean yours truly," Aggie exclaimed, not in the least abashed by her forgetfulness in an affair that concerned herself so closely. "Hope he's brought the money. What about it?"

"Leave the room now," Mary ordered crisply. "When I call to you, come in, but be sure and leave everything to me. Merely follow my lead. And, Agnes—be very ingenue."

"Oh, I'm wise—I'm wise," Aggie nodded, as she hurried out toward her bed room. "I'll be a squab—surest thing you know."

Next moment Mary gave a formal greeting to the lawyer who represented the man she planned to mulct effectively, and invited him to a chair near her, while she herself retained her place at the desk, within a drawer of which she had just locked the formidable appearing document received from Harris.

Her Voice Was Cold.

Irwin lost no time in coming to the point.

"I called in reference to this suit which Miss Agnes Lynch threatens to bring against my client, General Hastings.

Mary regarded the attorney with a level glance, serenely expressionless as far as could be achieved by eyes so clear and shining, and her voice was cold as she replied with significant brusqueness:

"It's not a threat, Mr. Irwin. The suit will be brought."

The lawyer frowned and there was a strident note in his voice when he answered, meeting her glance with an uncompromising stare of hostility.

"You realize, of course," he said finally, "that this is merely plain blackmail."

Men Are So Queer

To-day's Complete Short Story.

"TOM was terribly annoyed," said the young woman with the fluffy hair. "It is perfectly funny the way a man acts just because he is your husband—did you ever notice it?"

"It is indeed," said the others in chorus.

"How was I to know that sensible business men would take me so seriously?" pursued the fluffy young woman. "I thought they were supposed to have discernment and sense. Tom is always preaching about their superiority in that respect. Tom explained to me very carefully before we went to the automobile show last month that we couldn't buy a car. He said he couldn't afford it, considering my hat bills and his cigars and the notes coming due on the house we bought last year. I am sure I had it all perfectly clear in my mind, so I am positive I was not to blame.

"But did you ever notice what perfectly fascinating young men they put in charge of the exhibition cars at an automobile show?"

"I should say I have noticed them," said the brunette girl.

A Very Nice Man.

"And, anyhow, Tom had no business to run across two college friends the minute we got inside the show and pay so much attention to them that he couldn't pay any attention to me! Those three would cluster together over a chassis with a lot of crazy machinery stuck on it and talk like mad. So I simply had to do something to kill time."

"Of course you did!" agreed the others.

"So when at the first booth a good looking man who saw me studying a touring car asked me if I was interested I said I was. Then he was just as nice as could be. He told me everything about the car and made me get in it and explained just how I could run it myself and wanted my address to send me a catalogue. He said he'd be pleased to come out some day with the car and show me how it ran and give me a lesson. He was so set on coming that I hated to hurt his feelings, so I did not refuse.

"It was just the same way at the next place and ever after. Tom and his friends were so busy over horrid old machinery that I was considerably left out. However, I made lots of friends among the agents.

"All of them wanted to bring out their cars to demonstrate to me how superior they were and, as I had told one man he could come, it didn't seem a bit fair to the others to refuse any of them, so I said I'd be delighted. It had occurred to me that I owed a terrible lot of calls, and that it would be such a nice way to get around and pay them.

"I didn't think it necessary to mention the matter to Tom. He did remark that a huge lot of catalogues was coming to our house and it was a wonder where those fellows got people's names and, anyhow, thank goodness, he didn't have a machine eating its head off and making him poor. Men are so selfish.

"The Zero automobile man came out the very day after the show closed and we had a beautiful ride. I made six calls. However, I quite changed my opinion of him, because when I came out of the last place he seemed actually cross and said things about waiting in cold weather. I don't see how he expects to sell cars without showing a little consideration for customers. I told him I didn't think I liked his car at all.

"Then there was the Largo car man and the Allegro man and the Fortissimo man and the Solendiferous man, and about six different electric companies, and a lot more whose names I forget. When they came one at a time it was lovely.

"I did two teas one afternoon in the Largo car, but the man lost his temper, and when I came from the second tea the wretched creature had driven off and I had to go home on the street car!

Very Queer.

"The queer thing was that every one seemed so indignant when I refused to give an order for a car and said things about my leading them on. The worst of it was that Tom came home ill with the grip one afternoon just as seven different cars arrived all at once to take me out! He said he thought I was giving a funeral or a tea.

"When he understood—my dears, have you ever seen a man suffering from bad temper and grip simultaneously?

"I explained to him most carefully that it wasn't my fault at all, but he roared that he was ashamed to look a man in the face from that time on for fear he was one of the automobile agents I had shamefully deceived—yes, that's what he called it—and that he'd like to know what women had in place of consciences, anyway. What do you think of that? Aren't men utterly queer?"

"They surely are!" the other young married woman agreed. "When you hadn't done one single thing, either!"

Where the Shoes Pinched.

"Boots and shoes repaired neatly while you wait." So said a notice in the window. A small boy entered the shop and dumped a pair of patent leathers on the counter.

"Please, fahver wants 'em repaired," he ventured timidly.

"What's he want done to them?" inquired the tradesman.

"Wants 'em soled and 'eeled," piped the youngster; "also stretched."

"Stretched as well—eh? And where do they pinch him?"

"They don't pinch him," replied the ingenuous son; "he pinched them."

COTTON MARKETS EXTREMELY DULL

Strength Shown in July Was Principal Feature — Shorts Cover, Causing Sharp Gain.

NEW YORK, May 10.—With Liverpool closed, the local cotton market was more than usually dependent on the weather conditions for inspiration at the opening to-day. First prices ranged 1 to 4 points higher than last night's close. Trading was of a light character and fluctuations after the call were narrow, holding within a few points of the opening figures.

The Liverpool market was closed on account of Whitsuntide holidays.

The weather map was very discouraging to those who sold yesterday on promises of rains in the Eastern belt, and they seemed eager to replace liquidated lines over Sunday. The ring and Wall Street covered considerable short cotton, while the larger spot houses were noticeable buyers. Offerings, however, were light and scattered. The advancing tendency continued throughout the short session. July showed considerable strength and was the heaviest pressed option on the list and at times the trade interest was centered entirely upon it. Distant positions, especially October and December, were under active buying and the three options rallied 5 points over the opening level.

Indications point to fair weather over the larger part of the belt over Sunday, with somewhat lower temperatures. West Texas will have unsettled showers, as will the Panhandle, while the rest of the State will be fair.

At the close, the market was steady, with prices at a net gain of 4 to 8 points from the final quotations of Friday.

Spot cotton at Savannah, Ga., is about 33 points higher than the highest option on the New York future list and about the cheapest in the South. Spots are quoted at 11¼ cents there and the buyer would have to add about 75 points on the present prices should he buy it so as to cover brokerage fees, insurance, interest, freight cost and charge for certification. There is a very small chance for any profit in such a transaction.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S DAILY COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, May 10.—Several localities in the Eastern states had good showers overnight, but there has not yet been any general rain. The range of temperatures continues very favorable. The river situation is much improved. The fall at Vicksburg is beginning to be rapid and from the overflowed section in the upper delta is encouraging. There is some reports indicating planting one to two months earlier than last year.

The market advanced a few points on the strength of July in New York, the reason for which is covering by shorts and the diminishing stock in New York.

New crops sympathized to some extent.

WHEAT MARKET OVERSOLD.

CHICAGO, May 10.—The Inter-Ocean says: "Those who are bullish on wheat regarded the market as oversold and said it would take considerable pressure from shorts to keep prices down. They consider the market on a healthy basis. The trade in corn at the moment is divided, but they see nothing for sensational developments on either side unless there might be a little congestion in May. Local traders in oats are rather bearish, but some of the country houses are buying."

Following are reports on the condition of the cotton crop of Georgia: Thomasville: "Crop 90 per cent planted; condition, complaint bad stands." Bostwick: "Crop 95 per cent planted; condition, 50 per cent up." Monticello: "Crop 80 per cent planted; condition, cotton not up and will not come up until we get rain." Mansfield: "Crop 95 per cent planted; condition, very dry; none up in middle Georgia." Quitman: "Need rain." Pennfield: "Crop 70 per cent planted; condition, fair only." Colquitt: "Two-thirds to three-quarters planted with replanting necessary to the extent of fully 25 per cent with seed scarce and not enough to replant. Crop prospects are gloomy, but money conditions extremely favorable."

NEW ORLEANS, May 10.—Hayward & Clark: The weather map shows cloudy over the Western States and North Carolina, generally fair elsewhere, with scattered showers in Mississippi, North Alabama, North Carolina and a good rain at Meridian, Miss. Indications are for increasing cloudiness generally, with increased prospects for showers in the Atlantics and cooler in the north portion of the belt.

Cordill wires from Augusta, Ga.: "Troy, Dothan, Thomasville to Macon, South Alabama and South Georgia conditions are irregular. Much cotton up to good stands and chopped out, but fully 35 per cent not yet up. Soil preparation near perfect. Light, widely scattered showers yesterday beneficial. General warm rain needed. Macon to Augusta, cotton is coming up more evenly but start late."

* * *

The New Orleans Times-Democrat says: "Cotton market equipoise has come to be a habit and profitless sessions have made the rings disconsolate. It is a queer paradox, this keen desire of the talent to discount the future, and when they have accomplished their purpose and the market stands still, inherent love of strife impels them to begin all over again. Yesterday a fair weather forecast for the Eastern belt worried shorts no little because the general rains over that section, upon which they have been depending, have not come.

"Now that the promise of general rain is gone, dry weather reports from Georgia and the Carolinas will seem more significant than ever. On the other hand, spinners' takings for the week were comparatively small, and the decrease in the world's visible supply contrasted unfavorably with the decrease in the corresponding week last year. Thus both factions had good talking points and the visible supply changes coming will give the bear the closing of shortages. Both factions appear ready to admit that the market as a whole is short. In the eyes of most professionals, the new crop positions have seemed attractive as a sale and the fact that many operators have sold them is responsible for much of the buying power that develops when reports of seed rotting in the ground and of the necessity for replanting come in."

OPINION ON GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 10.—Bartlett, Frazier & Co.:

Wheat—We look for a steady market to-day.

Corn—Cash position is strong; country offering slight.

Oats—We believe the long side on little depressions the safer one.

Provisions—Cash trade is light, although shipments of lard and meats are larger than last year.

'Pure Clothing' Bill Offered in Congress

Michigan Representative Declares 75 Per Cent of All Wearing Apparel Is Aduiterated.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Seventy-five per cent of the clothing sold in the United States is adulterated, according to an investigation made by Representative Lindquist, of Michigan, who to-day introduced a "pure fabric and leather" bill in the House.

The Lindquist bill would make illegal the sale of inferior clothing for the genuine and provides that all clothes must be labeled as to actual quality.

"This bill, if enacted," said Representative Lindquist, "will give the consuming public pure fabrics in the way pure food is guaranteed to us now. By such a law I do not propose to prohibit the manufacture of inferior merchandise, but to make it unlawful to sell inferior goods for the genuine."

STOCKS ARE VERY DULL ENTIRE DAY

By C. W. STORM.

NEW YORK, May 10.—Delaware and Hudson was one of the weakest issues on the list at the opening of the stock market to-day, being sympathetically depressed by weakness in New York Central. Delaware and Hudson was 1¼ lower at the opening and later declined still further. New York Central continued under par, selling at 99¼ for a loss of ¼.

Trading was quiet and nearly all stocks suffered declines. Among the losses were United States Steel common, ¼; Union Pacific, ⅝; Reading, ⅜; Erie, ¼; Amalgamated Copper, ⅛; Baltimore and Ohio, ⅜; St. Paul, ⅝, and Canadian Pacific ⅛. At the end of half an hour some of the issues rallied.

The curb was dull.

HESTER'S WEEKLY COTTON STATEMENT

Secretary Hester's weekly New Orleans Cotton Exchange statement of the movement of cotton, issued before the close of business Friday, shows an increase in the movement into sight compared with the seven days ending this date last year in round numbers 3,000, an increase over the same days year before last of 30,000, and an increase over the same time in 1910 of 20,000.

For the nine days of May the totals show a decrease under last year of 9,000, an increase over the same period year before last of 40,000, and an increase over the same time in 1910 of 29,000.

For the 251 days of the season, the aggregate is behind the 251 days of last year 2,128,000, ahead of the same days year before last 1,727,000 and ahead of 1910 3,353,000.

The amount brought into sight during the past week has been 93,616 bales, against 96,579 for the seven days ending this date last year, 68,352 year before last and 73,803 same time in 1910; and for the nine days of May it has been 108,477, against 116,992 last year, 18,328 year before last and 79,430 same time in 1910.

The movement since September 1 shows receipts at all United States ports 9,342,967, against 11,619,302 last year, 8,284,645 year before last and 6,840,168 same time in 1910. Overland across the Mississippi, Ohio and Potomac Rivers to Northern mills and Canada 912,507, against 1,156,529 last year, 873,239 year before last and 771,079 same time in 1910; interior stocks in excess of those held at the close of the commercial year 207,148, against 189,732 last year, 288,800 year before last and 229,306 same time in 1910; Southern mills takings 2,464,999, against 2,404,714 last year, 1,953,484 year before last and 1,812,400 same time in 1910.

These make the total movement for the 251 days of the season from September 1 to date 13,027,623, against 15,165,077 last year, 11,300,198 year before last and 9,812,743 same time in 1910.

Foreign exports for the week have been 130,918, against 87,215 last year, making the total thus far for the season 7,787,733, against 9,842,513 last year, a decrease of 2,054,780.

Northern mills takings and Canada during the past seven days show a decrease of 25,876, as compared with the corresponding period last year, and their total takings since September 1 have decreased 207,442. The total takings of American mills, North, South and Canada, thus far for the season have been 4,721,083, against 4,733,350 last year. These include 2,188,742 by Northern spinners, against 2,496,185.

Stocks at the seaboard and the twenty-nine leading Southern interior centers have decreased during week 90,210 bales, against a decrease during the corresponding period last season of 82,017, and are now 15,360 larger than at this date in 1912.

Including stocks left over at ports and interior towns from the last crop and the number of bales brought into sight thus far from the new crop, the supply to date is 13,291,135, against 15,442,051 for the same period last year.

World's Visible Supply.

Secretary Hester's statement of the world's visible supply of cotton shows a decrease for the week just closed of 67,422, against a decrease of 261,274 last year and a decrease of 149,480 year before last.

The total visible is 4,550,270, against 4,617,892 last week, 4,167,000 last year and 4,194,000 year before last. Of this, the total of American cotton is 3,067,270, against 3,164,802 last week, 3,500,723 last year and 2,178,244 year before last, and of all other kinds, including Egypt, Brazil, India, etc., 1,483,000, against 1,453,090 last week, 1,167,000 last year and 1,194,000 year before last.

The total world's visible supply of cotton as above there is now afloat and held in Great Britain and Continental Europe 2,854,000, against 2,940,000 last year and 1,944,000 year before last; in Egypt 180,000, against 171,000 last year and 155,000 year before last; in India 923,000, against 892,000 last year and 641,000 year before last; and in the United States 883,000, against 881,000 last year and 632,000 year before last.

Spinners' Takings.

Secretary Hester gives the takings of American cotton by spinners throughout the world as follows, in round numbers:

This week 121,000 this year, against 317,000 last year and 217,000 year before last.

Total since September 1, this year, 11,212,000, against 12,447,000 last year and 9,897,000 the year before.

Of this Northern spinners and Canada took 2,189,000 bales this year, against 2,596,000 last year and 1,951,000 the year before; Southern spinners 2,632,000, against 2,237,000 last year, and 1,987,000 the year before, and foreign spinners 6,391,000 the year before.

ATLANTA LIVE STOCK MARKET.

(By W. H. White, Jr., of the White Provision Company.)

Cattle receipts are heavier than usual. The market is 25 to 50 cents lower on the middle grades, with a heavy supply. Tops and choice in good demand and market steady.

One load of the E. T. Comer cattle were on the market this week and brought $7.37½ per cut, this being the top price for the week. These were mixed highbred Short Horn and Hereford young steers, fat and prime, bred and raised on the Comer farm at Millhaven, Ga., and would do credit to any beef producing section.

With the exception of this load and two loads of Short Horn steers from A. N. Brown at McDonough, all of which were sold to the Atlanta packer, the run was badly mixed, consisting principally of country pick up bunches of all sizes and kinds, which sold at prices fully as irregular as were the cattle.

Hogs continue to come freely. Market has ranged lower in sympthy with the Western markets.

Quotations based on actual purchases during the current week:

Choice to good steers, 1,000 to 1,200, 5.75@6.50; good steers, 800 to 1,000, 5.50@6.00; medium to good steers, 700 to 850, 5.00@5.75; medium to good cows, 700 to 800, 4.50@5.00; good to choice beef cows, 800 to 900, 4.75@5.75; medium to good heifers, 650 to 750, 4.25@4.75; good to choice heifers, 750 to 850, 4.75@5.75.

Medium to common steers, if fat, 800 to 900, 4.50@5.50; medium to common cows, if fat, 700 to 800, 4.25@5.25; mixed common, 600 to 800, 3.50@4.00; good butcher bulls, 2.50@4.00.

Prime hogs, 160 to 200 average, 8.30@8.50; good butcher hogs, 140 to 160, 8.10@8.30; good butcher pigs, 100 to 140, 7.75@8.00; light pigs, 80 to 100, 7.00@7.50; heavy rough hogs, 200 to 250, 7.50@8.25.

Above quotations apply to corn-fed hogs, mash and peanut-fattened hogs, 1 to 1½c under

Feeding Chickens For Egg Production

Should Begin When the Chick Is Hatched—Lay Foundation Early.

EDITED BY JUDGE F. J. MARSHALL

Feeding for egg production should be commenced when the chick is hatched, and there should not be a skip or a jump from start to finish. In other words, to lay the foundation for early and continuous layers the chicken must be well nourished from the time it is hatched until laying maturity.

One of the common complaints in the fall is that the pullets do not commence to lay as early as they should. The reason is they are not ready to lay; they are not fully developed. They have not had sufficient nourishment, and therefore run a month or two over the usual laying period.

A constant and varied supply of good, wholesome foods is the remedy that should be applied, and we know of no better way to accomplish the end sought than by the hopper feeding process. Where the pullet as a chick has been hopper fed with good mixed grains and beefscrap, where a large flock is maintained and the supply of insects is not sufficient to give the animal matter needed, the chances are that it will begin to lay early and keep it up through the winter.

When the feeding is done at intervals it is a difficult matter to feed all that is needed, and as a consequence the chick does not make the best possible growth.

To make good winter layers, do not yard or confine the pullets too early, but allow them to range as long as possible. They will then settle down to steady egg production when they are cooped and will continue through the winter. A convenient size for 50 growing chicks would be 12 by 20 inches at the top and 2 by 20 inches at the bottom and 20 inches deep, with a base extending 3 inches on each side, with 3-inch side to keep the grain from falling out; an inch slit at the bottom of the hopper to allow grain to come out into the tray part, where it is picked out by the chicks. The hopper should be kept under a shelter of some sort to keep the feed dry, which prevents it spoiling. A chicken may eat a little more the first day or two, but after that I do not believe it takes as much to feed them in that way as it does to allow them to become ravenously hungry and then gorge themselves; the repeating of which often causes indigestion and serious results.

Questions and Answers.

Judge Marshall: Can you tell me of some way to get soil stain from the shells of white eggs? I keep a fine lot of White Leghorns, laying pure white eggs, but the red soil here stains them so it can not be washed off so it will not show when sent to market. If you can be of any help to me, I shall certainly be thankful for the service. R. C. B.

Rome, Ga.

ANSWER—It would be a pretty hard matter to get anything that will readily take these mud stains off the shell without injuring the shell or its contents. We see no reason why any considerable number of your eggs should be stained. You should provide good nesting places for your hens, filling them with good litter of some kind that will keep them off the ground. You might try dipping them in alcohol and then rubbing them with a clean cloth. If nice, roomy nest boxes are provided and put in rather dark or secluded places, you should have but little trouble in getting all your hens to use them. Of course, you must have a sufficient number of them, so that hens will not get tired of waiting for room and be obliged to take to the ground.

The Railroads Can Rob the People IF---

They Can Arrange to Keep American Ships from Free Use of the Panama Canal.

Copyright, 1913.

In a cartoon printed several days ago our artist showed the Panama Canal with American ships held back by American locomotives.

That was a picture of fact, although many citizens do not know it.

All the solemn talk about "treaty obligations" about our duty to England, our national honor, is merely so much "railroad talk," a good deal of it well paid for by the railroads.

We are told that it is dishonorable, unfair, treacherous, etc., to permit American SHIPS to use an American CANAL, unless we also let English ships use the canal, without charge.

And the so-called friends of national honor—who are in reality gentlemen and newspapers subsidized or controlled by railroads—have actually managed to compel all but coastwise American ships to pay toll, like foreign vessels.

The railroads want no free use of the canal by American coastwise ships, and they fight such use through the politicians and newspapers that they own, for a simple reason.

The railroads make money carrying freight from the Atlantic to the Pacific. And the more they can CHARGE the more they can MAKE. Hitherto ships carrying freight from New York to San Francisco had to go all around South America. Therefore, the railroads could charge for freight carried 3,000 miles across the continent as much as it would cost to send a ship all around the continent. And, in addition, the railroad could add a charge for quick freight as against necessarily slow ocean freight.

Now ships will go from New York to the Pacific Coast through the canal, and the cost of water freight will be very small—UNLESS THE RAILROADS CAN MANAGE TO FASTEN A TOLL ON AMERICAN FREIGHT USING AN AMERICAN CANAL. This the railroads are trying to do, in the high-sounding name of national honor, treaty rights, etc.

For, don't you see, every dollar that railroad influence can lay as a tax on American shipping in the canal IS A DOLLAR THAT THE RAILROAD CAN ADD TO ITS FREIGHT CHARGES.

Let our Government charge American ships $2 a ton for using the canal, and the railroads can at once add $2 a ton to their freight rate.

Quite simple and clear, is it not?

Remember that when you hear the pitiful sobbing talk about protecting poor Great Britain against such an "outrage" as letting Americans, who built the canal and paid for it, give free use of it to American ships.

England, as a matter of fact, is very little interested in the matter, except that England's rich men own the Canadian Pacific Railroad, and they, like our railroad owners, are working to fasten a tax on American ships IN ORDER TO ADD THAT TAX TO AMERICAN FREIGHT SHIPPERS.

Fortunately the matter is pretty well understood.

This country will let all American ships use the canal without charge very soon. And our coastwise shipping will be free at once.

The Congress in this instance will not be used as a railroad freight collector. One Senator the other day introduced a resolution to set aside the existing treaty with England entirely—a thing we have a right to do at any time. There is no doubt that whatever may be necessary will be done to make and keep the American Canal FREE TO AMERICAN SHIPS.

Even the railroads, after they lose their foolish fight, will find it a good thing FOR THEM to help the general American prosperity.

Free use of the canal and low freight rates will bring lumber to the Atlantic Coast from the Far Northwest and bring fruit to the East from California and other Pacific States.

Eastern products will go at low freight rates through the canal to the Pacific. Business will grow, enterprise will find encouragement, labor, industry AND the railroads will share in the benefit of a canal UNITING THE COUNTRY MORE CLOSELY AND MORE CHEAPLY.

For every carload of cheap freight going through the canal and taken, apparently FROM the railroads, there will be two extra carloads of high priced freight FOR the roads. Profitable long hauls will increase and profitable short hauls as well.

And within ten years intelligent railroad men will thank the Panama Canal and free use of it by Americans for prosperity such as they have never seen.

MEANWHILE, IT IS IMPORTANT TO REALIZE THAT THE RAILROADS AND THEIR MANAGERS, NEAR-SIGHTED AS USUAL, ARE THE REAL POWER FIGHTING TO SHUT AMERICAN SHIPS OUT OF AN AMERICAN CANAL in the name of our holy duty to England.

How Your Mind Can Aid Health

By GARRETT P. SERVISS.

A GREAT DOCTOR once said: "Successful practice requires one-third science and two-thirds savoir faire" (knowing how to do it).

By that he meant impressing the imagination of the patient, and impressing it the right way. Any doctor can affect his patient's imagination, but many send its mercurial spirit dropping downward like a thermometer in a cold wave. If doctors ever really do kill their patients it is through what they administer to the mind.

We are only just beginning to learn something of the extent of the mind's control over health and disease. Many persons are willing to admit that the mind influences nervous affections, and that the imagination may either bring them on or drive them away; but they refuse to believe that mental influences which produce "lessons"—i. e., physical injuries to certain parts of the body.

Inspires With Confidence.

But they are wrong in their skepticism. The imagination can produce lessons as well as heal them. There never has been a great epidemic in which a large percentage of the mortality was not the result of mental upset. Mere fear kills like a lightning stroke by paralyzing the nervous system, whereupon the bodily machinery tears itself to pieces through loss of the central control.

I do not suppose that the imagination ever broke a bone or set one, but I am sure that it has either saved or lost the life of many a sick person, according to the way in which it happened to be directed, either by the will of the patient himself or by the guiding influence of a doctor or a nurse.

The successful doctor is the man who enters the sick room with his face full of cheer and of masterful confidence, and not with his pockets full of pills. The good nurse is worth her pay because she keeps her patient cheerful and confident. When you choose a doctor for your family, select one whose look makes you feel stronger. His presence will be like that of Napoleon on the battlefield.

It is not sympathy that heals; too much sympathy sometimes kills. It is confidence that does the good work. Away with your morose-looking doctor—unless it happens that behind the grave face there is an appearance of power, for that is worth more than all else in breeding confidence in the patient.

It has been suggested that "personal magnetism" is an actual, dynamic (moving) force proceeding from one person to another.

There is much to support that view. When Caesar in his scarlet cloak, with his bald head bared, rode through the lines of his soldiers at Alesia, something passed from him to them which enabled them to hurl back the assault of the three hundred thousand Gauls. It was the personal magnetism of Caesar that saved the day. It put courage into despairing hearts and energy into tired muscles.

But the best way to combat disease is to meet it with your own will. The patient who gives up can rarely be saved. Believe with all your might in your powers of resistance. Think of recovery, not of death.

Exerting Will Power.

A hot summer is before us, and it will bring its lassitude and its sicknesses, real or imaginary. Prepare yourself beforehand to meet these conditions by cultivating confidence, cheerfulness and will power. Joke about the thermometer when it goes up to ninety or a hundred in the shade, and don't draw a long face before it. If an epidemic breaks out, treat it as the Roman emperor treated the comet which terrified his friends. "Oh," he said, "that hairy star is after the king of the Persians, who has got whiskers. It won't trouble me."

And if you are doubtful about the power of the imagination to influence your body, read the stories of the "Stigmata" which appeared on some of the of old, when they concentrated their minds for days and nights together on the wounds of the Savior.

All Could See Them.

St. Francis, it is recorded, had all the marks of the Crucifixion upon him, though not produced by any hand or weapon.

Everybody could see them. St. Hieronyma Carvaglio had the spear mark in her side, which bled every Friday. St. Catharine, of Raconisco, had the marks of the Crown of Thorns on her head. All of these things, and many like them, are said to have been produced solely by pious meditations. You may smile at that, or you may not, according to your standards of belief, but you can hardly refuse to believe other things as wonderful that have been recorded on medical authority.

Whether you call it Christian Science, or mind healing, or blind faith, or anything else you may choose, there is no doubt that you have it in your power to influence by mental concentration the health and well-being of your body. Cultivate that power, and you will be the better for it. You will save, or shorten, many doctors' bills—but don't neglect the doctor, either; help him.

DOROTHY DIX

Writes on

The Suffrage Parade---It Was a History Making Spectacle and Marks the Exit of the Doll Baby Woman From the Stage of Life.

By DOROTHY DIX.

WHAT did people see as they watched the Suffrage Parade in New York last Saturday?

They saw the first real democracy of woman.

They saw Judy O'Grady and the Colonel's Lady marching shoulder to shoulder. They saw the petted darling of the drawing room walking side by side with the girl of the sweat shop.

In that procession were millionairesses keeping step with scrubwomen; college professors with the pupils of night schools; Fifth Avenue hostesses with waitresses from cheap lunch rooms; old women with withered cheeks and gray hair with girls in the first flush and bloom of youth and beauty. All lines of wealth and class and social distinction were wiped out by the great cause that touches every woman high and low, and that has brought them together in one great sisterhood.

What did the people see when they watched the Suffrage Parade?

They saw one of the spectacles that make history. They saw the passing of the old order of things and the entrance of the new.

Exit of Doll Baby Woman.

They saw the exit from the stage of life of the doll baby woman of the past, of the woman who could find the whole of life in adorning herself, whose interests were no wider than her own home, and who saw no shame in getting what she wanted out of some man by cajolery, or flattery, or lying, or whatever other means was necessary.

Dull, indeed, were the eyes that did not see in those thousands and thousands of earnest-faced women the type of the new womanhood that is marching onward to a place beside man, no more to be his toy and plaything, but his equal and his partner in doing the work of the world and reaping its rewards.

What did the people see as they watched the Suffrage Parade?

They saw the spectre of injustice marching in every woman's shadow. The crowds through which those ten thousand white-clad women tramped were mostly silent, as well they might be with shame if they had eyes to see and a heart to comprehend the significance of the scene.

Own Millions; Can't Vote.

They saw women who owned millions of dollars' worth of property, but who were denied the right to say what taxes should be levied upon their property. They saw the representatives of six million working women, but who have no power in shaping the legislation that affected them.

They saw mothers whose little children's lives were crushed out of them in factories; housewives who must sweat every nickel to make it go a little farther when trusts put up prices; women who represented one half of the population, and who were affected by its every law, but who had no voice in making them. They saw highly educated women, brilliant professional women, noble women philanthropists, saintly church women, women who represented all that is finest and best in humanity, but who were denied the previleges that the most illiterate, the most debased, man enjoys.

What did the people see as they watched the Suffrage Parade?

They saw one of the most pathetic sights the world has ever witnessed. They saw womanhood humbling itself before man to ask as a boon the privilege that it should demand as a right.

They saw the wife who has grown gray and old in service to her husband, and who has given him the best years of her life, asking to be made his equal. They saw the mother who has borne his son in her arms going before him as a suppliant.

They saw the rich woman asking a dole of her butler and her footman.

They saw the woman college professor begging the ignorant and illiterate foreigner to share with her the right of government that he has and she has not. It was a silent, sad appeal to man to right the injustice he has done woman—to strike her political shackles from her.

Made Even the Doll Think.

No one except those who took part in it know what courage, what sacrifice of personal inclination, it took for quite, dignified, reserved women to tramp the streets, and make themselves a public spectacle for hundreds of thousands of curious eyes, and to be the butt of cheap wits and village cut-ups.

To most of the women every step of the way was the way of the cross, but they trod it unfalteringly, because there was no other means that could so effectually carry the message they had to give to the public. It was a spectacle that made even the dullest think.

What did they see as they watched the Suffrage Parade?

They saw victory marching on to its crowning. Every woman's face wore the uplifted look of a martyr, of one who would struggle on undismayed by defeat until she finally conquered. No one who witnessed that parade will ever jest and scoff again at woman's suffrage. He will know that it is a fact to be reckoned with, and that it is just as sure to come as is to-morrow.

THE LAST TOWN

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

Where is the Town at the end of the Line,
With its lure for the great and the small?
How shall we fare when we come to the sign
That was painted and hung for us all?
Long is the track and we can not go back
To wait for a faltering friend;
Through meadow and mart we are whirled from the start
To the wonderful Town at the end.

Some reach it in youth on a flying express
That passes the stations of strife,
And others grow gray while pursuing their way
On the laboring locals of life.
Some curse the Conductor and pray for the end,
And some think the pace is too fast;
Whatever the pace, we are nearing the place
Where we all leave the train at the last.

'Tis a mystical Town that no mortal has seen
Till the end of his long earthly ride;
But after the trip there is Knowledge to glean
About pomp and possessions and pride.
And perhaps we shall gain when we swing from the train
All the things we were forced to resign,
For the Agent is there, with each passenger's share,
In the Town at the end of the Line.

ELECT INFANT CLAUSE FACES PRESBYTERIANS

Proposed Change in Confession of Faith Likely Not To Be Made by Assemblies.

UNION OF CHURCH PROPOSED

Popular Statement of Doctrine One of the Big Questions To Be Wrestled With.

Vital questions of worldwide interest, will come before the Presbyterian assemblies in Atlanta. Perhaps the most interesting of these to the layman is the effort to be made in the Southern Assembly to change the "elect infant clause" to remove all ground for the supposition that all infants are not saved.

This will come up in consideration of section 3, chapter 10 of the Confession of Faith and will not be new work for a General Assembly of this church. The proposed changes have been thoroughly discussed and recommended by a number of assemblies, but no change proposed as yet has met the approval of three-fourths of the Presbyteries.

The proposed change in this paragraph which was approved by the Bristol Assembly causes the paragraph to read thus: "Being elect, all infants dying in infancy are regenerated and saved by Christ through the Spirit, who worketh when, and where, and how he pleaseth. So also are all other elect persons, who are incapable of being outwardly called by the ministry of the word," this wording to be substituted that now appearing in the Confession of Faith and which reads: "Elect infants dying in infancy etc."

Presbyteries Have Voted.

The Presbyteries have taken vote on the proposed change during the spring meetings and the action of the General Assembly in ordering a change in the wording of this paragraph of the Confession of Faith will be determined by the vote of the Presbyteries. It is hardly to be expected that three-fourths of the Presbyteries will favor the proposed change and it is not unlikely this question will be discussed as thoroughly during the Atlanta Assembly as has been true during other Assemblies.

There is a growing desire upon the part of some prominent ministers of the church for this paragraph to be stricken from the Confession of Faith and thus obliterate all ground for the supposition that any infant or other irresponsible person who dies can fail to be saved, and it is probable that more than one overture to that effect will be presented to the Assembly at Atlanta.

Among the questions of particular interest to the South is the proposed union of the United Presbyterian Church with the Southern Presbyterian Church and this question will be presented in the report of the Committee on Conference, appointed by the Assembly of 1912, which committee in joint meeting with a similar committee appointed by the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church has prepared a basis of union for the two churches and this basis of union will be presented to the General Assemblies of both churches for action.

Terms Not Made Public.

Just what this basis of union is has not been made known to others than the members of the two committees. The basis of union was agreed upon several weeks ago, but the two Committees of Conference decided that as a matter of courtesy to the Assemblies of both churches it should not be given publicity until

Slayer of Countess, Convict, Seeks Death

Guards Watch Lieutenant Paterno, Who Would Escape Imprisonment Through Suicide.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

ROME, May 10.—Lieutenant Paterno, serving a life sentence for the murder in 1912 of the queen's waiting maid, Countess Trigona, was secretly conveyed to the penitentiary in Porto Longone to-day. Owing to the prisoner's dread of solitary confinement and determination to end his life, four warders have been detailed to watch him day and night.

The doctors ascribe his suicidal mania to cowardice. They have given him morphine to cause artificial sleep and thus prolong his life. The authorities have tried to hide Paterno's resolve to kill himself lest his example be followed by others desiring to evade sentences of solitary confinement.

Other convicts who have ended their lives generally concealed their determination, but Paterno calmly announced his intention to the officials. The latter are anxious to preserve his life at all costs that he may expiate his crime according to law.

Wilson in Dilemma, Says London Paper

President Sympathizes With Japan, It Adds—Cannot Enforce His Views.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 10.—The London Morning Post, in an editorial, says:

"No doubt the action of the California Legislature in passing a bill depriving Japanese settlers of the right to own land, placed the President in a very difficult position.

"Japan resents this legislation as descriminating unfairly against her citizens, and claims it is a violation of the treaty between herself and the United States. So far as known President Wilson recognizes the justice of Japan's complaints, but he has no obvious means of compelling the people of California to accept his view of the case. * * * * It is certain Japan will protest and will insist on taking some action to vindicate her rights."

Opera Stars Deny Any Estrangement

Emmy Destinn Buys a Picture So Big That She Has to Hire a Truck.

LONDON, May 10.—Six days at sea evidently soothed the distraught nerves of the grand opera singers who have arrived from New York.

Denial was made of the report that there was any estrangement of the forces of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company which would prevent their assemblage again next season. Conductor Toscanini, about whom there have been numerous rumors, said: "My contract has two years to run and as usual I will fulfill my contract."

All the singers except Emmy Destinn, who has taken a house in London, have gone to Paris. Mme. Destinn, who is an art connoisseur, has secured a large Riviera picture.

Predicts Trouble in Cuba at Inauguration

"Moral and Political Conditions Are Awful," Says Henry T. Woodruff.

NEW YORK, May 10.—"The moral and political conditions of Cuba are awful," declared Henry T. Woodruff, a veteran of the Civil War, who has arrived from Havana.

Mr. Woodruff has spent the winter in Cuba for the last fifteen years.

"I have been informed on reliable authority that the rebels have obtained 12,000 rifles which belonged to the Federal Government. The people of Havana are seeking bloodshed, and it would not surprise me if murder was committed when Menocal is inaugurated on May 20."

RAMONA BORDEN REPORTED AGAIN TO BE MISSING

Multi-Millionaire Milk Dealer's Daughter and Her Mother Leave New York Hotel.

WHEREABOUTS NOT KNOWN

Two Girls, One Answering Description of Runaway, Join Woman in New Haven.

NEW YORK, May 10.—Miss Ramona Borden, 17-year-old daughter of Gail Borden, multi-millionaire New York milk dealer, whose mysterious disappearance from a New Jersey sanitarium several weeks ago caused a big sensation, is to-day reported to be missing again.

Credence was given the report by announcement at the Vanderbilt Hotel, where Mrs. Borden and her daughter have been living, that both left the hotel and that their present whereabouts are unknown.

The first hint that Ramona had run away again came from New Haven, Conn., to which place she had gone with Mrs. Helen Seldon White, wife of a rich Cleveland, Ohio, chewing gum manufacturer, on her recent runaway escapade.

Reported in New Haven.

A dispatch from New Haven reported that a woman answering Mrs. White's description met two young girls at the railway station there, the party going to a hotel where they registered as "Mrs. W. J. White and daughters, Niagara Falls, N. Y."

One of the girls answered the description of Miss Borden; the other resembled one of Mrs. Whtie's nieces who was a member of the previous runaway party. When Mrs. White was approached in New Haven by reporters she denied that she was the same woman who connived in the Borden girl's escape from the sanitarium.

Surprise to Father.

At the offices of Mr. Borden it was said to-day by Mr. Borden's secretary that the girl's father had no knowledge of her being in New Haven.

Mr. and Mrs. Borden are separated, but not divorced. Mrs. Borden makes her home in Los Angeles, Cal., but came here when she received news of her daughter's mysterious disappearance several weeks ago.

Wife Watches Cell to Keep Man Awake

Keeps All-Night Vigil Under Doctor's Orders to Keep Husband From Sleeping.

PHILADELPHIA, May 10.—To keep her husband awake, as directed by physicians, Mrs. Elizabeth Conley of Gibbsboro, N. J., spent the night in front of a cell door at Camden when her spouse, John Conley, 40 years old, was locked up.

Mrs. Conley said her husband had made all sorts of threats against her and was mentally unbalanced. Conley and his wife entered police headquarters, the man pleaded to be kept in a cell and asked that his wife be permitted to remain outside and keep him awake.

The police were puzzled, but when it was explained that Conley had spells of nervousness and that his wife must keep him awake at the order of his physician, the request was granted.

TIRES OF FREAK BILLS; QUITS LEGISLATURE SEAT

MADISON, WIS., May 10.—Declaring that he was tired of freak legislation being introduced in the Wisconsin Legislature, Assemblyman Carl Hanson walked out of the assembly to-day and left for home. He said he would not return.

Mrs. Ham's Nomination Is Fought

Gainesville Affair Stirs Anger

President Offers an Explanation

Mrs. H. W. J. Ham, of Gainesville.

Georgia Congressman Absent From White House Since Postoffice Appointment Was Made.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—A movement to have the name of Mrs. H. W. J. Ham withdrawn as postmaster at Gainesville is understood to be under way here, although Representative Thomas M. Bell, Congressman from the Ninth District, says he has no knowledge of it and is not a party to it.

It is well known that Congressman Bell feels keenly the turning down of his recommendation in the Gainesville matter, as he thinks, Gainesville being his home town, his wishes should have prevailed. Then, too, the Congressman had an engagement with the President the day after Mrs. Harris' name was sent to the Senate, to discuss the Gainesville postmastership.

President Wilson addressed a note to Mr. Bell, telling him the name was sent in through inadvertance, as he had not intended making the nomination that day. He, however, said nothing about changing the situation.

Since the appointment was sent in, Congressman Bell has not been to the White House. The movement to have Mrs. Ham's name withdrawn has been inaugurated by friends of all the parties concerned, in the hope of avoiding that which now seems likely to develop considerable feeling in congressional circles.

FORMER HARVESTER CHIEF HEADS RUMELEY COMPANY

CHICAGO, May 10.—Clarence S. Funk, former general manager of the International Harvester Company, has been elected president of the Rumeley Company, of Laporte, Ind. A loan of $2,000,000 for additional working capital has been arranged.

Mrs. Longstreet, in Capital, Plans Fight

Will Protest Her Removal as Gainesville Postmaster Before Senate Nomination Committee.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Mrs. Helen D. Longstreet arrived in Washington Friday to wage a fight against the appointment of Mrs. H. W. J. Ham as postmaster at Gainesville, Ga., and it is possible that confirmation of it may be held up.

Mrs. Longstreet talked with a number of friends in the capital and will go before the Senate nominating committee to protest against her removal. Her protest will be that her work has not been unsatisfactory to Gainesville people.

An announceemnt from Congressman Thomas M. Bell that he would issue a statement to the public regarding the Gainesville postoffice created quite a sensation among the Georgians here.

Socialists May Fly Red Banner in Ohio

Attorney General Rules Those Who Interfere Are Liable to Arrest. Trouble Expected.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., May 10.—Attorney General Hogan to-day gave City Solicitor Bennett a written opinion to the effect that the Socialists here are entirely within their rights in displaying a red flag over their headquarters and that persons who interfere with it are liable to arrest.

Further trouble is expected here, and the city officials are preparing to make arrests if necessary to protect the lurid banner that floats over the highest building in town.

STATE VEILS IMPORTANT NEW CLEWS IN MYSTERY

Solicitor General Dorsey Declares Facts Unearthed by 'Best Detective in Country' More Direct Than Storer Girl's Testimony.

Former Factory Employe Asserts Frank's Office Was Empty at 12:05 Noon on Day of Tragedy, Contrary to Supt's. Story.

Prosecution Also Maintains Secresy Regarding Name of Woman Who Said She Heard Screams in Factory in Afternoon.

"The best detective in America," employed by Solicitor Dorsey to ferret evidence in the Mary Phagan murder mystery, has obtained results. The Solicitor said Saturday morning that he has in hand several bits of exclusive and important evidence, the results of this detective's work, that will not be revealed until the time for trial of persons to whom the evidence points.

The Solicitor declined to make public the slightest hint as to the nature of the evidence, or as to the identity of the person toward whom it points.

"It will come out at the proper time," he said.

The Solicitor told of this exclusive evidence when he discussed the statement by Monteen Stover, the 14-year-old employee of the National Pencil Company, that is in direct contradiction to testimony by Leo M. Frank, the suspected factory superintendent.

Calls Evidence More Direct.

"The girl's statement is interesting," he said, "but it is not the most important evidence in the world. Better evidence, now exclusive with the prosecuting officers of the State, has been obtained by the excellent detective who was employed by that office. The evidence is more tangible and direct than any that has yet come out," he said.

In opposition to the testimony of Leo M. Frank in the Mary Phagan inquest was the statement of the Stover girl. The evidence that she will bear is to the effect that she was in Frank's office at 12:05 o'clock and a little later on the Saturday afternoon preceding the discovery of the slain girl's body, and that she found it deserted.

According to Frank's testimony, he was in his office from 12 o'clock until 12:25, when Lemmie Quinn, his foreman, came in. During that time, he said, Mary Phagan came in, about 12:05 o'clock, to receive her pay.

Monteen Stover is certain that she reached Frank's office at exactly 12:05 o'clock. She has been retained as an important witness.

Remembers the Time.

"The minute I got to the office floor when I went up to get my pay," she said, "I looked at the clock. I wanted to know if it was time to draw my money. I would have looked at it, anyhow, I suppose, as it is always customary for me to punch it the first thing upon entering the place to go to work.

"It was five minutes after 12. I was sure Mr. Frank would be in his office, so I stepped in. He wasn't in

SPEER TO ANSWER HUFF'S PAMPHLET

Federal Judge to Publish Testimonials and Indorsements of His Career on Bench.

MACON, GA., May 10.—It became known to-day that Judge Emory Speer will issue pamphlets in reply to the one that will be distributed next week by Colonel W. A. Huff. Judge Speer's pamphlets will not discuss the Huff case, but will contain editorial comment favorable to Judge Speer, various grand jury indorsements, testimonials from prominent men the country over and resolutions concerning the judge's services as passed by the Georgia Federation of Labor and other organizations. These will be mailed to every member of Congress and will also be given to the public. The copy is now in the hands of the printers.

Colonel Huff is in Atlanta to-day consulting with his attorney, T. S. Felder, and also working on evidence which he intends to present to Congress next week as a basis for impeachment proceedings against Judge Speer. Colonel Huff's pamphlet will embody the letters he wrote Judge Speer last summer, for which he will be tried on May 19 for contempt of court, as well as a new letter to the public.

Daniels Fools Old Salts in Navy Office

Department Navigators Learn for First Time That Florida Has a Panama City.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—The wise old salts of the Navy Department thought they had caught Secretary Daniels in a land-lubber's blunder when they got a telegram from him ordering the gunboat Petrel to Panama City by May 10.

Even the youngest navigator at the department laughed over the message and called attention to the geographical fact that Panama City is on the Pacific side of the Isthmus, while the gunboat Petrel is now en route to Pensacola, Fla. It was suggested that the Secretary be so informed.

Then some one thought of looking up the maps. A search disclosed that there is a Panama City on the Florida coast.

COTTON MILL MEN FIGHT TARIFF BILL

Georgia Manufacturers Predict Industrial Depression if Underwood Measure Is Adopted.

COLUMBUS, GA., May 10.—The business sessions of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of Georgia closed last night with the selection of Griffin as the next meeting place and the re-election of F. B. Gordon, of Columbus, as president, and Harry L. Williams, of Columbus, as secretary and treasurer. Five committees were also elected. Visitors to the convention are guests of the Columbus Power Company at Goat Rock to-day.

The association went on record as opposed to the Underwood tariff bill, when the convention unanimously adopted a resolution protesting against the measure, expressing the belief that it would paralyze the mill industry of the country.

President Gordon, in his annual report, stated that he did not want to be considered a "calamity howler," but that if he were called upon to make a prediction it would be that beginning this summer "the cotton mills of Georgia would face a long period of depression. Only those strongly entrenched financially, with strong trade connections and able to use foreign markets to some extent, will stay in the race. It's to be a survival of the fittest."

Many of those who discussed the resolution adopted by the association were of the same opinion.

London Theater Managers Reject His Plan and Will Bar Smokers.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 10.—Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's proposal to allow smoking in the London theaters, was emphatically rejected by the Society of West End Theater Managers, who voted against the proposal with only one dissenting voice.

Sir Arthur's purpose was to alleviate the patronage of the music halls, he believing that many men went there to enjoy nicotine rather than vaudeville.

VITAL QUESTIONS OF WORLD INTEREST TO FACE ATLANTA PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLIES

Proposed Change in "Elect Infant Clause" of Confession of Faith and the Union of United and Southern Churches Attracts Much Attention.

officially presented to these two bodies.

Rev. R. C. Reed, D. D., of Columbia, S. C., is chairman of the Committee of Conference for the Southern Presbyterian Church and the following named ministers and laymen constitute the other members of this important committee: Rev. S. L. Morris, D. D., of Atlanta; Rev. J. F. Cannon, D. D., of St. Louis; Allen G. Hall, of Nashville, Moderator of the Assembly of 1906; and W. F. Stevenson, of Cheraw, S. C. The General Assembly will await the presentation of no other report with a greater degree of interest than the report of the Committee on Conference, and there is no matter of greater importance to come before the body than the question of the union of these two churches.

The standards held by the United Presbyterian Church are the same as those held by the Southern Presbyterian Church and in the same sense each church accepts them. The two churches possess the same Scotch ancestry, adhere to the same policy, and administer the affairs of benevolences under the same departments. The distinct point of difference between the two churches is the exclusive use of the Psalms in the service of praise in the United Presbyterian Church and it is around this point, in all probability, that the greatest discussion will center in the consideration of the union of the two churches.

Two Other Big Features.

There are two other questions to come before the General Assembly that will constitute outstanding features: The Federal Council and the brief popular statement of Doctrine of the Church.

During the Assembly of 1912, held at Bristol delegates were appointed to represent the Southern Presbyterian Church in the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, which held its quadrennial meeting in December, at Chicago. The report of these delegates will be heard with interest. It is not improbable that overtures will be presented to the Assembly urging that it withdraw again from membership in the Council, but it is likely that a second withdrawal from membership in the Council will be opposed as ably as it will be recommended.

Two changes in the form of government of the church have been proposed and will be considered by the Atlanta Assembly. One is with reference to cases of trial in the church and the proposed change, which was approved by the Bristol Assembly, would give the Synod and the General Assembly the power, at their own discretion, to commit any case of trial coming before them on appeal to the judgment of a Commission, composed of others than members of the Court from which the case shall come, this power to apply in all cases except those affecting doctrine and those shall be tried by the Court itself.

The other proposed change is with reference to the basis of representation in the General Assembly. The basis of representation at present is one minister and one ruling elder from every Presbytery except in those Presbyteries where there are more than twenty-five ministers and in those the representation in the General Assembly shall be two ministers and two ruling elders, but no additional number of churches increases the representation.

Plan Graduated Scale.

The change proposed recommends that every Presbytery shall be represented in the General Assembly by one minister and one ruling elder and that if the communicants of the churches in the Presbytery and ministers on the roll number more than four thousand, the Presbytery shall be entitled to increase its representation to the Assembly with one minister and one ruling elder and that the representation continue to increase in like proportion with the addition of every four thousand communicants and ministers.

During the year since the Bristol Assembly the Presbyteries have taken action with regard to the proposed changes in the form of government; the answers of the eighty-nine Presbyteries will be tabulated during the Atlanta Assembly and if three-fourths of the answers favor the proposed changes, the changes will become law, by the enactment of the Assembly.

The ad interim committee appointed by the Bristol Assembly to prepare a brief popular statement of the doctrines taught by the Southern Presbyterian Church is composed of fifteen representative men from all sections of the church, with Rev. R A. Webb, D. D., of the Kentucky Presbyterian Theological Seminary, at Louisville, as chairman. This committee may be able to submit its report to the Atlanta Assembly, but it will not be cause for surprise if longer time is requested to complete this important work.

The preparation of this brief popular statement has been requested for use especially as a tract in mission territory as well as in other sections of the church; this statement will in no way displace the standards of the church, but will express the same in a simplified form and one that will be easy to handle, especially in mission territory of the church.

Plan Lay Training School.

A committee appointed by the Bristol Assembly to prepare a general plan and the curriculum in outline for a training school for lay workers will report. This committee consists of two members of each of the four Executive Committees of the church. The propositions as to the location of this training school have been presented to this committee and this fact adds to the interest of the report and Richmond is among the cities from which propositions for the school have been received.

No popular meeting to be held during the General Assembly will be characterized with more rejoicing and thanksgiving than those in the interest of Foreign Missions and Home Missions. Aside from the fact that the Southern Presbyterian Church has paid this year the "missionary debt" of more than one hundred thousand dollars and has in the foreign mission treasury $4,200 with which to begin the work of the new fiscal year, facts will be presented to the General Assembly showing that the contributions to Home Missions also have made the largest increase ever made in one year in the history of the church.

It will be shown that the church has given to Home Missions this year $154,210.77, which is an increase of $28,423.60 over the receipts of last year. The facts regarding the increase in interest and contributions for Foreign Missions and Home Missions will cause the Atlanta Assembly to be characterized with the missionary note to a greater degree than has been true as yet of any Assembly in the history of the church.

COUNCILMEN FOR WHITEHALL WORK

Street Committee Joins in Fight for $30,000 Appropriation to Regrade Street.

Council's Streets Committee has joined in the fight for a $30,000 appropriation for the Whitehall Street regrading. The County Commissioners have agreed to do the work with convicts and the property owners have subscribed $17,000 toward it. If Council's Finance Committee can be persuaded to give $30,000 the improvement will be assured; and leaders in the movement declare there is no doubt the Finance Committee will respond.

The Streets Committee, Friday, by a vote of eight to one, approved the plan of regrading from a point between Mitchell Street and Trinity Avenue to Forsyth Street, presented by Chief of Construction Clayton. Several more conservative regrading plans were submitted but only Councilman Jesse M. Wood opposed the original program. Councilman Wood urged that final action be delayed until all the property owners agreed on the improvement to be made.

A number of enthusiastic boosters appeared before the committee, among them being Robert R. Otis, George H. Boynton, J. Carroll Payne, M. L. Thrower, R. A. Broyles, V. H. Kreigshaber, L. C. Green, Walker Dunson, C. E. Caverly, Charles H. Black, J. R. Smith and others. They declared that the work must be begun by October 1, as the convicts had been promised and a temporary delay might mean a postponement of many years.

The principal opposition to the improvement was expressed by Judge John T. Pendleton, owner of the Capital City Laundry building, and Attorneys E. C. Meyer and L. Z. Rosser. Judge Pendleton said the regrading would greatly damage his and adjoining property. Attorney Meyer pointed out that with the improvement all the intersecting streets must be regraded. Attorney Rosser said a number of persons would be damaged unnecessarily.

Answers to these arguments were that the increase in property values would far offset any damages.

Great Tuberculosis Institute Is Opened

Million Dollar Gift of Henry Phipps in Philadelphia to Eradicate in Disease Prevention.

PHILADELPHIA, May 10.—In the presence of many prominent medical men, scientists and philanthropists, the $1,000,000 Henry Phipps Tuberculosis Institute was opened here today. The institute is the gift of Henry Phipps, of New York, to the University of Pennsylvania. It is in the amount of money expended the largest gift yet made in the crusade against the white plague.

Henry Phipps, who was present, was presented with a degree of Doctor of Laws. Dr. Edward F. Smith, provost of the university, presided.

The Phipps Institute is not primarily a hospital, but an institute for the study, prevention of tuberculosis and education regarding the disease. Grosvenor Atterbury was architect. Dr. Charles J. Hattfield is executive director.

GOV. M'GOVERN DENIES HE HAS QUIT REPUBLICANS

MADISON, WIS., May 10.—Governor McGovern in a bitter statement to-day denied he had left the Republican party when he announced he would not attend the forthcoming Republican dinner. He says the dinner is being given in the interests of factionalism, hinting that it is furthered by LaFollette people.

GIRL, 16, TELLS POLICE SHE WAS HELD A PRISONER

INDIANAPOLIS, May 10.—Lured from the home of her mother in Hoppeston, Ill., on a pretense of going to a show in Danville, brought to Indianapolis under threats of death if she did not obey orders, and kept practically a prisoner in a house on North Capitol Avenue for almost a week, is the story of pretty Miss Maude Carpenter, aged 16. August Bessler, of Brooklyn, N. Y., is in jail.

COL. J. HAM LEWIS SETS WHITE HOUSE PRECEDENT

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, set a precedent to-day for all visitors to President Wilson at the White House.

He waited patiently long after the hour which Secretary Tumulty had fixed for him to see the President. When informed that his time had come he arose and apologized to the waiting company in the secretary's office for preceding them into the Executive's presence.

COW OUTRUNS HORSE ON HALF-MILE RACE TRACK

NEW RICHMOND, WIS., May 10.—To settle a controversy of long standing as to their racing ability, a contest between a cow and a pacing mare owned by rival hotelkeepers in this city drew a big crowd to the fair grounds.

The cow is the property of Anthony Meath, proprietor of the Commercial, and the horse is owned by George Cranston, of the National. The horse either was to trot or pace and the cow to go as she pleased. It was to be once around the half mile track, standing start.

The cow was a safe winner.

MOSLEMS IN BATAVIA HAIL CHILD AS MODERN MESSIAH

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

THE HAGUE, HOLLAND, May 10. From Batavia comes the startling report that "a little child has come down from heaven to deliver the Mohammedans from alien rule."

The child is said to be the son of the great Prophet Mohammed. Much agitation prevails among the natives.

VIRGINIA MAN GROWS WONDERFUL CANTALOUPE

RICHMOND, VA., May 10.—Charles A. Gitchell, of Louisa, Va., has perfected a wonderful cantaloupe after years of patient effort and experiment in crossing the imported French seeds with the Rocky Ford and native varieties. He has produced a cantaloupe which will keep for months after it is cut from the vine and which is superior in flavor and quality to the melon which made Colorado famous.

AN EXCELLENT NIGHTCAP

Horsford's Acid Phosphate

Half a teaspoonful of Horsford's Acid Phosphate in half a glass of water on retiring insures a restful sleep.—(adv.)

"CASCARETS" MAKE YOU FEEL GREAT

Gently Cleanse Your Liver and Sluggish Bowels While You Sleep.

Sick headache, biliousness, dizziness, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath—always trace them to torpid liver, delayed fermenting food in the bowels, or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is reabsorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Salts, cathartic pills, oil and purgative waters force a passageway for a day or two—yes—but they don't take the poisons out and have no effect upon the liver or stomach.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels clean and regular for months.

DORSEY VEILS NEW CLEWS IN PHAGAN AFFAIR

the outer office, and I went into the inner office. He wasn't there, either. I thought he might have been somewhere around the building, so I waited.

"The whole place was awfully quiet. It was scary. When he didn't show up in a few minutes, I went to the door and looked around the machinery. He wasn't there. I stayed until the clock hand was pointing exactly to 12:10. Then I went downstairs. I could see nor hear no one."

The testimony of Monteen Stover was obtained by detectives when they quizzed her the Saturday following the killing of Mary Phagan. The girl and her mother, Mrs. Homer Edmondson, of 171 South Forsyth Street, came to the factory to get the pay which the girl did not get the week before.

Stopped by Detectives.

In the office were detectives, eager to seize every available bit of information. They stopped Mrs. Edmondson and the girl, and were rewarded by Monteen's statement that she had been in Frank's office on the afternoon of the fatal day.

Monteen Stover said she did not know Mary Phagan, and probably had never seen her. She commended Frank as being popular with his employees and kind.

Another development within the last 24 hours has been the elimination of another clew. The "woman in red," a mysterious figure reported to have been seen with Mary Phagan at the pencil factory, has been located. She is Mrs. Nancy Caldwell, of 10 Gray Street, an acquaintance of the dead girl. Examination revealed the fact, however, that she had not been with Mary Phagan in a year. The rumor of her association with the Phagan girl on the afternoon of the killing started in the mistaken statement of a girl at Mapleton.

Developed also evidence from a young woman whose name will not be revealed that the girl probably came to her death in the basement of the factory, and not in the upstairs lathe room. The following affidavit, subscribed to by a young woman who passed the factory about 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, April 26, is in the possession of Solicitor Dorsey, given him by Chief of Detectives Lanford.

RESINOL QUICKLY CURED HER BABY'S SEVERE ECZEMA

Had Not Had a Good Night's Rest in Eight Months.

Chelsea, Mass., Jan. 19, 1913.—"My son had been troubled with eczema for about one year. It first appeared when three months old. I tried everything that was recommended and also different prescriptions, but of no avail. For eight months my child did not enjoy a good night's rest. I was finally told to try Resinol. This I did, and from the first application the child got relief and put in a good night's sleep. In three days there was no sign of eczema—to-day he has as fine a complexion as any healthy child and is entirely cured." (Signed) Mrs. T. S. Brown, 54 Crescent Ave.

Resinol positively stops itching instantly and speedily heals eczema and other skin humors, dandruff, sores, burns and piles. Prescribed by doctors for 18 years. Sold by every druggist. Resinol Ointment in opal jars, 50 cents and $1.00. Resinol Soap, 25 cents. For generous free trial, write Dept. 19-S, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

KEEP THE BALANCE UP.

It has been truthfully said that any disturbance of the even balance of health causes serious trouble. Nobody can be too careful to keep this balance up. When people begin to lose appetite, or to get tired easily, the least imprudence brings on sickness, weakness, or debility. The system needs a tonic, craves it, and should not be denied it; and the best tonic of which we have any knowledge is Hood's Sarsaparilla. What this medicine has done in keeping healthy people healthy, in keeping up the even balance of health, gives it the same distinction as a preventive that it enjoys as a cure. Its early use has illustrated the wisdom of the old saying that a stitch in time saves nine. Take Hood's for appetite, strength and endurance.

SHRINERS NEAR TEXAS IN QUEST OF 1914 COUNCIL

150 Leave Atlanta for Dallas Confident of Bringing Next Annual Meeting Here.

Backed by the united support of citizens of Atlanta, and with $76,000 pledged to entertain the 1914 Council, nearly 150 members of the Yaarab Temple, A. A. N. M. S., are Saturday traversing the burning sands of the Southern desert, en route to the oasis of Dallas, Texas, where the Imperial Council of the Shriners will hold its annual conclave.

Not a man of the 150 will admit there is the slightest chance of Atlanta failing to get the big gathering of Shriners in 1914. They formed the most optimistic party of men that ever left eGorgia on a quest for favors at the hands of any organization. Every man has his head full of the good things to be found in Atlanta, and he is prepared to back up his memory with charts, booklets and practical proof of the greatness of his city.

The Atlanta Shriners plan to take Dallas by storm, and if they do not fall down on any of their arrangements, they will have no difficulty in doing it. Potentate Forrest Adair, one of the most enthusaistic boosters for the city, says the ovacl organs of his followers are in first class shape and the stunts pulled by the Atlantans, merely to show the other Shriners that they are a live bunch from a live city, will rival the Mexican revolution in novelty and noise. The battle croy of "Atlanta in 1914," will ring through Dallas from the time the Atlantans arrive until they leave with the promise of the Shriners to come here for the 1914 conclave.

"Good as Here Now."

"There is nothing to it," declared Mr. Adair, just before the special train drew out of the Terminal Station Friday night. "The 1914 council is as good as here now. We have arguments that can not be met by Memphis or any other city in the country. We will show a list of the best hotels in the United States; we will show railroad service second to none; we will show invitations from everything in Atlanta that is capable of issuing an invitation; we have official requests from the State of Georgia, from the City of Atlanta and from every commercial organization in the city. In short, we 'have the goods.' And when we get through with these arguments we will fire our biggest gun. We'll tell the Shriners how we raised $76,000 in one day."

An elaborate campaign to capture the hearts of the Shriners has been mapped out by the Atlanta nobles. This campaign started Friday night when the 135 Shriners, headed by their crack Arab patrol and drum corps, paraded through the streets of the city from the Masonic Temple to the Terminal Station. Large crowds cheered the Shriners as they passed, and at the station nearly 2,000 people waited for a glimpse of the men who are going to sound the praises of Atlanta into the ears of men from all parts of the country.

Go on Special Train.

At 10 o'clock the special train pulled out of the station, with the drum corps playing like mad and the crowd cheering. The train made up for the special accommodation of the Atlanta nobles consists of six sleepers, a buffet car and a dining and observation car. It will stop at Birmingham, Shreveport, Montgomery and other cities along the route to Dallas, picking up Shriners and impressing them into the service of Atlanta. At each stopping place the Shriners will disembark and parade through the streets of the city.

The train is due to arrive in Dallas Sunday morning, and Sunday afternoon the people of Dallas and the visiting Shriners will be treated to the first exhibition of the Atlanta spirit. The local men, headed by the drum corps and patrol, will parade the streets of the Texas city, and at night will serenade the headquarters of every visiting delegation. When the Atlantans are not occupied with serenades they will be buttonholing Shriners and giving receptions to influential members of the order aboard their train. A number of the Atlanta men will remain on board the train instead of living at the Dallas hotels. A chef was taken along to care for the inner man, and the Shriners of other parts of the country will be given a taste of genuine Georgia cooking.

THERE HE IS NOW!

SOUTHERN SOCIETY IN ANNUAL RALLY

President Wilson, Secretary Bryan and Other Notables to Attend Fete at Capital

WASHINGTON, May 10. — With Democracy firmly ensconced in the White House and in Congress and with the Solid South high in favor with Democracy, the annual rally of the Southern Society of Washington, to be held here to-night, is expected to be an unusally brilliant affair.

President Wilson, Secretary of State Bryan, members of the cabinet, Senators and Representatives from Southern States will be in attendance at the rally.

The affair is to be held at the New National Theater and the speakers will talk exclusively of the Southland. Claude N. Bennett, of Washington, is to deliver a stereopticon lecture, showing pictures of the South's development since the days of the Reconstruction.

Thomas Nelson Page, of Virginia, the author, will address the society. Secretary Bryan, Senator Williams, of Mississippi, Senator Ransdell, of Louisiana, and Representative Richmond Pearson Hobson, of Alabama, also will speak. Secretary Bryan's address will be entitled "A Tribute From the West to the South."

'Declining Morals Due to Immodest Dress'

Clergyman Likens Women's Gowns to Trousers With Only One Leg.

ALTOONA, PA., May 10.—The immodest fashions were blamed for the declining moral standards in America by Rev. J. H. Keller, a Lutheran minister, of Phillipsburg, Pa., speaking before Northeast Synod of the Lutheran Church. He said:

"If women want to wear trousers, why do they not wear them with both legs, instead of trying to stick both feet into one leg.

"With the immodest dress of the average girl of to-day it requires a great deal of nerve for the minister to look the ladies unblushingly in the face and give them a warm handshake at the door of the church."

THE PLAYS THIS WEEK

"THE GIRL" AT THE ATLANTA.

"The Girl From Out Yonder," the offering by the Miss Billy Long company at the Atlanta Theater this week, will be presented at a matinee this afternoon and again to-night. The play has proved immensely popular with patrons of the Atlanta, and Miss Long has won many new friends by her very capable acting. All the other members appear to advantage in parts which afford them abundant opportunity for the display of their special talent.

KEITH VAUDEVILLE AT FORSYTH.

Few acts presented at the Forsyth have attracted more attention than that of Gus Edwards' Kid Kabaret, which is the headliner this week. The number comprises fifteen girls and boys, who dance and sing and offer other pleasing specialties. Belle Story has proved a big hit. She sings delightfully. Williams, Thompson and Copeland have an unusually amusing sketch. The whole bill is one designed to please, and it succeeds admirably. Matinee this afternoon.

PLANS TO STOP MEN'S DODGING DUTY ON JURIES

Bibb County Representative Designs Bill to Do Away With Present Exemption Allowed.

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

Representative Minter Wimberly, of Bibb County, one of the few veterans to return to the Legislature, will introduce early in the forthcoming session a bill to abolish jury exemptions.

Primarily, this measure will be designed to stop the sale of jury exemptions to members of the military companies of the State, but it also will cover some other forms of exemptions now permitted by law.

The State now allows every military company regularly enlisted in the State's service a certain number of jury exemptions, and these may be used by members of the organizations, or sold to outsiders, as the company may elect. The practice has been to sell these exemptions for $25 per annum, the revenue resulting to the company to be applied to armory rent and other company expenses.

The result has been that the exemptions generally have operated to relieve well-to-do citizens in various cities, bankers, business men of large interests, and the like, from jury service, who otherwise would be required to do jury duty the same as the common or garden variety of folks.

Representative Wimberly thinks these citizens come from a class that should not be exempt from jury duty any more than others are exempt, and he particularly believes that there are many juries that need the services of bankers and business men of large interests, in order to insure fair and intelligent verdicts in matters involving the adjustment of financial affairs.

There has been a disposition in Georgia for a good many years to do away with these jury exemptions, and there is no doubt whatever that Mr. Wimberly's bill will receive hearty support in many quarters.

A great many people will sympathize with the Bibb County man's idea that all classes of citizens should perform their share of jury duty, unless prevented by illness, physical defect, extreme old age or positive disqualification for cause or interest in the persons or issues involved.

Believing that Georgia should have another United States District Court, and that Savannah should be the headquarters of the new district, a party of Savannah attorneys is now in Washington for a conference with the Department of Justice on the subject.

Those in the delegation are Judge Samuel B. Adams, W. W. Osborne, J. Ferris Cann, Anton P. Wright and T. Mayhew Cunningham. It is understood that General P. W. Meldrim will join the party in Washington Monday.

At various times in the last several years efforts have been made to have another District Court established in Southern Georgia, but nothing ever came of these efforts. At the time of the election of President Wilson, the old agitation was revived, and despite the fact that various grand juries in the United States Court have recently passed resolutions deploring such action as is now being taken by the Savannah lawyers, it was determined to make the effort to have the new court established there.

The presence of Joseph H. Davis, of Albany, in Washington just now has revived a lot of interesting talk as to the United States marshalship for South Georgia.

It is understood that Senator Bacon has considered Mr. Davis, but that Senator Smith has lodged an objection against him. Senator Bacon has not "indorsed" the Albany man, it is explained, but he has had him "favorably in mind." Whether the objection of Senator Smith will operate to eliminate Davis is the question.

Mr. Davis, it appears, is charged with not being "progressive enough" in his politics to suit the junior Senator—at least, that is the way The Savannah Press hands out the "dope," and, presumably, it speaks by the card.

And, anyway, Davis is in Washington looking into things for himself, and the outcome of his visit is being watched with genuine interest throughout the State.

Georgia politicians have been greatly interested in the development of the Gainesville and Rome postmastership situations, and now that both have been settled, further developments are being watched with even greater interest.

President Wilson in disregarding Congressman Bell's recommendation as to the Gainesville office—Mr. Bell's home office—has set aside a precedent very few expected to see broken. From time immemorial it has been customary for the President to name without question the man nominated by a Representative for his home office. Bell's recommendation of Mr. Hardy in Gainesville, however, was passed over, even before Bell got through talking to the President about Hardy.

In Rome the matter was different, for Rome is not Congressman Lee's home town; but Mrs. Wilson, and not Congressman Lee, named the Rome postmaster.

It is very well known that Mr. Lee had former Postmaster John M. Vandiver in mind for the Rome postmastership. However, he deferred, without question, to Mrs. Wilson's wishes in the matter, and upon Mr. Vandiver's personal request that his name be withdrawn in the circumstances.

Both the Rome appointment, Mr. Park Bowie, and the Gainesville appointment, Mrs. H. W. J. Ham, are most satisfactory to the respective towns, of course. The interesting point is the Presidential disregard of Congressional recommendations in the cases involved.

$4,000 NEEDED TO RUN AVERAGE FAMILY A YEAR

Palmer Sticks to His Assertion That Father of Five Must Get $80 a Week.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Representative A. Mitchell Palmer, of Pennsylvania, a member of the majority of the Committee on Ways and Means is standing firmly by the statement made by him in the House that $4,000 is the minimum annual income at which, under modern conditions of living, the American head of a family can properly rear, support, and educate the average American family. Mr. Palmer made this statement in defense of the $4,000 exemption fixed by the framers of the income tax bill.

Mr. Palmer amplifies his statement as follows:

"There were three points which, in analyzing my statement, must be taken together. In the first place I said 'the average American family.' This must be accepted as meaning the average American family of five children.

"The legislation must presuppose that the American family is not a childless family, and the general average of rich and poor, high and lowly, must be taken regardless of the general presumption that the families of the rich are smaller than those of the moderately well to do and the poor. We are legislating for the average.

"In the second place I said a gross income of $4,000. I did not say a net income, and therefore, taking the gross income as the basis as the law takes it, there are numerous corollaries to the problem as to just what naturally unavoidable expenses of the individual are taken from his income and enter into his cost of living, so that the net income of $4,000 might represent the net on a gross of twenty times the amount mentioned.

"Third, I said: 'Support the family according to the proper American standard and send his children through the high schools and colleges of the land.' I do not believe it will be possible to find any one who will attempt to deny that no modern American can live under modern American standards, feed, clothe and educate a family of five with due provision for their education and the maintenance of their health, send all of his children through college or give them technical or business training of equivalent value to a university course and keep much inside the expenditure of his income of $4,000 a year. I do not think that readers of the newspapers who analyze my statement will take very clearly defined issue with the contention as I there express it."

PLUCK WINS FOR GIRL STRANDED IN PARIS

When Miss Las Casas found herself alone and penniless in Paris, she opened up a little shop where she sold popcorn, fudge, taffy and corn cakes to American girl students. Her venture has been a success and she is planning to return to her home.

PARIS, May 10.—American pluck has solved a difficult problem for Miss Lillian Las Casas.

Some time ago Miss Las Casas found herself in a strange city without money and without friends. She did not send despairing cables to her relatives on the other side of the ocean, but, having determined to succeed through her own efforts, opened up a modest little shop where she sold popcorn balls, taffy, fudge, corn cake and other delicacies which are about as necessary to the average American schoolgirl as are her books.

There are always a number of American students in Paris and they flocked to Miss Las Casas' shop. From the start her venture was a success. She has added to her stock and, in the language of the country from which she comes, is "making good."

Miss Las Casas is a remarkably attractive girl and, with the money which her shop earns at her disposal, she dresses in the height of fashion. The picture shows her in the simple dress she wears while waiting on her customers. She has on a plaited skirt and a fish wife's blouse. Her hair is done up in the most approved French style.

Men Are So Queer

To-day's Complete Short Story.

"TOM was terribly annoyed," said the young woman with the fluffy hair. "It is perfectly funny the way a man acts just because he is your husband—did you ever notice it?"

"It is indeed," said the others in chorus.

"How was I to know that sensible business men would take me so seriously?" pursued the fluffy young woman. "I thought they were supposed to have discernment and sense. Tom is always preaching about their superiority in that respect. Tom explained to me very carefully before we went to the automobile show last month that we couldn't buy a car. He said he couldn't afford it, considering my hat bills and his cigars and the notes coming due on the house we bought last year. I am sure I had it all perfectly clear in my mind, so I am positive I was not to blame.

"But did you ever notice what perfectly fascinating young men they put in charge of the exhibition cars at an automobile show?"

"I should say I have noticed them," said the brunette girl.

A Very Nice Man.

"And, anyhow, Tom had no business to run across two college friends the minute we got inside the show and pay so much attention to them that he couldn't pay any attention to me! Those three would cluster together over a chassis with a lot of crazy machinery stuck on it and talk like mad. So I simply had to do something to kill time."

"Of course you did!" agreed the others.

"So when at the first booth a good looking man who saw me studying a touring car asked me if I was interested I said I was. Then he was just as nice as could be. He told me everything about the car and made me get in it and explained just how I could run it myself and wanted my address to send me a catalogue. He said he'd be pleased to come out some day with the car and show me how it ran and give me a lesson. He was so set on coming that I hated to hurt his feelings, so I did not refuse.

"It was just the same way at the next place and ever after. Tom and his friends were so busy over horrid old machinery that I was considerably left out. However, I made lots of friends among the agents.

"All of them wanted to bring out their cars to demonstrate to me how superior they were and, as I had told one man he could come, it didn't seem a bit fair to the others to refuse any of them, so I said I'd be delighted. It had occurred to me that I owed a terrible lot of calls, and that it would be such a nice way to get around and pay them.

"I didn't think it necessary to mention the matter to Tom. He did remark that a huge lot of catalogues was coming to our house and it was a wonder where those fellows got people's names and, anyhow, thank goodness, he didn't have a machine eating its head off and making him poor. Men are so selfish.

"The Zero automobile man came out the very day after the show closed and we had a beautiful ride. I made six calls. However, I quite changed my opinion of him, because when I came out of the last place he seemed actually cross and said things about waiting in cold weather. I don't see how he expects to sell cars without showing a little consideration for customers. I told him I didn't think I liked his car at all.

"Then there was the Largo car man and the Allegro man and the Fortissimo man and the Solendiferous man, and about six different electric companies, and a lot more whose names I forget. When they came one at a time it was lovely.

"I did two teas one afternoon in the Largo car, but the man lost his temper, and when I came from the second tea the wretched creature had driven off and I had to go home on the street car!

Very Queer.

"The queer thing was that every one seemed so indignant when I refused to give an order for a car and said things about my leading them on. The worst of it was that Tom came home ill with the grip one afternoon just as seven different cars arrived all at once to take me out! He said he thought I was giving a funeral or a tea.

"When he understood—my dears, have you ever seen a man suffering from bad temper and grip simultaneously?

"I explained to him most carefully that it wasn't my fault at all, but he roared that he was ashamed to look a man in the face from that time on for fear he was one of the automobile agents I had shamefully deceived—yes, that's what he called it—and that he'd like to know what women had in place of consciences, anyway. What do you think of that? Aren't men utterly queer?"

"They surely are!" the other young married woman agreed. "When you hadn't done one single thing, either!"

Where the Shoes Pinched.

"Boots and shoes repaired neatly while you wait." So said a notice in the window. A small boy entered the shop and dumped a pair of patent leathers on the counter.

"Please, fahver wants 'em repaired," he ventured timidly.

"What's he want done to them?" inquired the tradesman.

"Wants 'em soled and 'eeled," piped the youngster; "also stretched."

"Stretched as well—eh? And where do they pinch him?"

"They don't pinch him," replied the ingenuous son; "he pinched them!"

DISCONTENT AND STRIFE SIGNS OF CHANGING ORDER

Everybody Is Dissatisfied Now, But Then, There's a Reason.

By B. C. FORBES.

Discontent, ferments, class clashes have invariably attended great forward movements. Reforms are not born of complacency, of meek resignation, of sodden dourness. They are the fruit of well directed strife, struggle and achievement, of confidence in the justice of a cause, of irrepressible determination to assert manhood, of faith in that eternal justice which suffuses the scheme of things.

* * *

Only the dead are still, it has been remarked. The American people, on this reasoning, are very much alive, for stillness was never more consoicuous by its absence than it is to-day.

* * *

Let not employees imagine, however, that they alone are dissatisfied; that they alone are finding life not carpeted with roses, that they alone want changes.

* * *

Do you know any one class that is not crying out?

* * *

Let us glance around us.

* * *

Take politics first. The "Old Guard" have been routed and the younger race of politicians find the people clamoring for a greater share of power and insisting that intrenched "bosses" be shorn of their privileges. Moreover, the professional finds he no longer occupies a pedestal. He is no longer looked upon with reverence. A man's credit does not now rise one hundred per cent if he be seen walking down Fifth Avenue with Chauncey M. Depew or his Senatorial successors. The politicians have lost their halos and the veterans regard the times as out of joint. Upstart legislators, too, find they have a hard road to walk and are not exuberantly happy.

* * *

What of the wealthy? For years they were looked up to, honored and held in awe. The Government let them act as fancy suggested, the courts curbed not their business operations, the tax gatherer did not trouble them. All that has been changed. The Government has probed High Finance and Big Business, few multi-millionaires have escaped being dragged before legal or legislative tribunals, and now the Federal tax collector is to visit them clothed with power to filch a goodly percentage of their incomes. The cost of living, too, has fallen heavily upon those dependent upon income from permanent investments, for the returns on securities purchased years ago are not commensurate with current prices of commodities. And these are only a few of the troubles that have befallen the poor wealthy class in these days of applied democracy.

* * *

Railroads, the greatest employers of labor and the largest spenders in the country, are almost ready to throw up their hands in despair, so fast and furiously are their woes multiplying. More than one railroad manager is ready to hand over the job of running the railroads to the Government.

* * *

Our greatest manufacturing industry is steel. Here also lamentations are loud. Mr. Schwab now denies that he said he would quit if the tariff were cut, but that is exactly how steel men have been talking. They have had visions of a foreign invasion, of an armada laden with steel rails, beams, shapes and machinery. The world, they wail, is not going well with them, especially as the public are insisting upon the abolition of seven-day working weeks, long daily hours and liberal compensation in case of injury.

* * *

The woolen industry is in sackcloth and ashes.

* * *

Our farmers are up in arms.

* * *

Importers are in a panic over the administrative features of the Underwood tariff bill.

* * *

Government employees are all at sea.

* * *

Real estate owners, at least in New York, are deeply dejected over falling values and rising taxes.

* * *

Employers everywhere are complaining of the arrogance of organized workers, of advancing wages and shorter hours.

* * *

In short, every class is kicking vigorously, each, as it thinks, with very special reason. Nowhere is life flowing along like a song.

* * *

Employees, it will be seen, have not a monopoly of affliction. Trouble apparently is widely distributed.

* * *

Out of it all, unless reason be thrown to the winds, good will come. There is need for patience and forbearance, for moderation and toleration, for commonsense and not anger, for statesmanship and not demagoguery, for faith in the supremacy of law rather than in the efficacy of disorder.

* * *

Don't forget that if you consider yourself badly off, there are others.

COLLEGE PARK BOY LEADING PONY CONTEST

His 18,535 Votes Easily Polled by Any Determined Boy or Girl in Race.

Frank Ison, of College Park, has the best start in The Georgian and American's contest for the pony outfits. He had 18,535 votes yesterday. Probably he has many more to-day.

Fannie Cook, 488 Pulliam Street, has 6,600, and Florence Greenoe, 387 Pulliam Street, has 6,045—there's a close race in District No. 4.

In District No. 1 are George Rosser, 21 East Sixteenth Street, with 5,245 votes, and Miss Margaret Lewis, 25 Baltimore Block, with 4,500 votes—another close race.

Then there is a considerable number with 2,000 and 3,000 votes.

All this may seem discouraging to the boy or girl who has simply the original, which goes with the nomination. It should not be, however.

Look at Frank Ison's lead, for instance. He had 18,535 votes. Take off 1,000 for the nomination. That leaves 17,535. Five yearly subscriptions to The Georgian and American would yield 17,500. The 35 more which make up the total may represent the coupons clipped from the daily issues of the paper.

You can get five yearly subscriptions to The Georgian and American in no time at all, can't you? Then you will have done as well as Frank Ison. The only difference is that he, very wisely, has made a flying start.

We predicted yesterday that the votes polled by the contestants will leap up by thousands at a clip. Watch and see if they do not. The names of contestants, and their standing, will be published frequently that they may know how they and their rivals are getting along.

Meanwhile, the ponies are awaiting their new little masters and mistresses.

They are exercising and frisking about at the stock yards. Most of them have been out in pastures all winter and still have their winter coats. The shaggy hair will disappear these warm spring days and soon they will be sleek and shiny.

Everything points to an interesting and closely-contested race for the pony outfits.

Here's hoping you win!

ROUND-ABOUT-TOWN STORIES

Friedmann's Patients Bound by Common Tie.

"Six of Dr. Friedmann's tubercular patients are convalescing in Bellevue Hospital," said a physician just back from a visit to New York. "The fact that they have been treated with the serum has naturally caused a bond of sympathy among them, and they are generally to be seen together, strolling in their bathrobes along the sunny walks in the hospital quadrangle. Other inmates of the institution who lack the distinction of contact with the syringe of the Berlin physician are inclined to interpret their alliance as aloofness, and the sextet have come to be dubbed the 'guinea pigs.'"

Wanted to Know His Other Business.

A New Yorker who is stopping at one of the Atlanta hotels, tells this one:

A member of the Stock Exchange well known for his scorn of convention pulled the bellrope of a Long Island Railroad train the other evening because, as he said, he was "tired of being a perpendicular sardine" and he was determined either to have a seat or get out. He was arrested. When the case came up in court the railroad's lawyer said insinuatingly:

"Are you a drinking man, Mr. Blank?"

"That's my business," said the broker with dignity.

"Right," said the lawyer. "Now tell the court, Mr. Blank, if you have any other business."

Rear Seats Are In Demand.

"One thing I can't get used to," said the ticket seller at a downtown moving picture house, "is the demand for rear seats. All my life I have been under the impression that folks who went to the theater wanted to get as near the stage as possible, but in the moving picture business the reverse seems true. People want to get far back so they can get a better focus on the pictures. In this house the back seats fill up long before the front ones do. I got a jolt the other day, however. A fellow came to the window and said, "'Can you give me a seat in the first row? I'm hard of hearing.'

"I told him we didn't sell reserved seats—that he would have to take his chances with the rest. Anyhow, I assured him, the pictures were being run and it didn't really make any difference if he was hard of hearing."

JOKERS GIVE BABY WINE; LITTLE GIRL NEARLY DIES

PERTH AMBOY, May 10.—Two men paid $45 in fines for giving a year-old girl a drink of port wine. The child went into convulsions, but was restored.

The child found her way into a barroom. Charles Webber picked her up and jokingly called for a drink. Benjamin Wonder, the proprietor, set a glass of port on the bar. Webber gave the child the wine.

THE PONY CONTEST IS JUST STARTING

VOLS SCOURING UNIVERSE FOR GOOD HURLERS

NASHVILLE, TENN., May 10.—The incessant bombardment of the Vols flingers has almost driven Bill Schwartz insane and his frenzied shrieks for "Hellup" on the hurling hill has completely upset Mr. Hirsig, who was jogging along so serenely, dreaming dreams of bunting fluttering next year in his nice, new ball park.

On the next platform we have seen Mr. Hirsig wigwagging the distressing news to every big league mogul north of the Mason and Dixon's line for an able bodied slabman who can not only get 'em over, but can get 'em past 'em."

The first aid to the injured comes once more from Redland, whence cameth Cy Dalgren, who had oodles of stuff on the pill but who refused to put the pellet where any opponent could get a crack at it. Cy has been returned to Tinkertown with much thanks and in his stead comes 'Chick' Smith, who is alleged to be some pitcher.

Smith is a portsider and although this is his first season in fast society, coming from the corner lots in Cincinnati, he has shown the making of a great pitcher.

Hendee Goes to Cairo.

Sam Hendee, the titanic coal miner, has been shunted along to Cairo, Ill., in the Kitty League since no team in the Southern League could find a uniform to encompass Samuel. Charles Alabi Case, will in all probability be trade to some club in this circuit, the Turtles for instance, for Bill Bernhard, still remembers the high-grade stuff that the jinx flinger uncovered in 1908. Which was quite a few years back and old age doesn't seem to have the same effect on Case that it does on old wine.

Memphis has offered the Vols a pitcher for Case, but the deal is still hanging fire until waivers have been secured from all the other clubs.

Hirsig made a desperate attempt to land Rube Benton, the ex-Lookout from the Reds, but Reuben is one of the best ball players Cincinnati has had in some time, and although Mr. Hirsig gritted his teeth and offered a wheelbarrow full of regular money for Benton, the Reds refused to give him up.

Ebbets May Help Out.

Hirsig expects Charley Ebbets of the Dodgers to dig up a pitcher for the Vols, and Connie Mack of the Athletics has offered to help him out, too. Connie suggested that the Vols land Roger Salmon from Louisville, for Roger once wore an Athletic uniform, but if he isn't good enough for the Colonels, he surely won't be able to stop the big sticks in this league, which is just about as fast as the American Association, no matter if they do have A. A. tacked on to them.

After starting out like champions on the present road trip the Vols have suddenly developed into selling platers and poor work in the box is the cause of the whole trouble.

Beck is the only dependable slabman, and it takes more than one high-class flinger to hold any club in select company.

PELS SECURE WILSON.

CLEVELAND, OHIO, May 10.—Pitcher Finish E. Wilson, southpaw, who came to the Cleveland club from the Knoxville, Tenn., club last fall, yesterday was released to New Orleans Southern League team.

Banish All Skin Troubles

A Remarkable Remedy That Works Wonders Against Even Weeping Eczema.

Get a Bottle of S. S. S. To-day. It Is Certainly a Wonder.

If you have been fighting some blood trouble, some skin disease, call it eczema, lupus, psoriasis, malaria or what you will, there is but one sure, safe way to cure it. Ask at any drug store for a $1.00 bottle of S. S. S. and you are then on the road to health. The action of this remarkable remedy is just as direct, just as positive, just as certain in its influence as that the sun rises in the East. It is one of those rare medical forces which act in the blood with the same degree of certainty that is found in all natural tendencies. The manner in which it dominates and controls the mysterious transference of rich, red, pure arterial blood for the diseased venous blood is marvelous.

Out through every skin pore acids, germs and other blood impurities are forced in the form of invisible vapor. The lungs breathe it out, the liver is stimulated to consume a great proportion of impurities, the stomach and intestines cease to convey into the blood stream the catarrhal, malarial germs; the bowels, kidneys, bladder and all emunctories of the body are marshaled into a fighting force to expel every vestige of eruptive disease.

There is scarcely a community anywhere but what has its living example of the wonderful curative effects of S. S. S. Get a bottle of this famous remedy to-day, and if your case is stubborn or peculiar, write to The Swift Specific Company, 137 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Their medical laboratory is famous and is conducted by renowned experts in blood and skin diseases. Their advice is entirely free and always strictly personal.

Morris and Pitts to Hurl To-day

Tech Downs Georgia in Opener

By J. W. Heisman.

ATHENS, GA., May 10.—The game here Friday between Georgia and Tech bore out all previous history and traditions of these special contests. Dope went wrong once more and Tech won. This means that the crowd in attendance to-day will be gigantic, though it will have to be if it is to be any larger than Friday's. As for the game to-day, it is as hard to forecast a winner as it was in yesterday's contest. Both teams are in their very best shape of the season, and both will battle their heads off.

Morris will probably do the hurling for Georgia, and Pitts for Tech. Each team has now sized up the other's batting, fielding and base running, and they will therefore be in better position to watch and try to checkmate every strategic move of the opposition.

A special train will be run from Atlanta over the Seaboard for to-day's game, and that means that Tech at least will have many more friends and rooters on hand to cheer them on than they had yesterday, though the number of leather-lunged supporters of the Gold and White was surprisingly large.

Yesterday's game was Tech's right from the start. Wooten was the first man up for Tech in the first inning, and the first ball he swung at felt his deadly stinger for a slam into the distant branch and was a home run. Now, the very odd thing about this is that at a mass meeting Thursday in the Tech chapel Wooten, when called upon for a speech, said that he was going to do this very thing, smash the first ball he swung at into the ditch for a home run. Can you beat it?

Scores on Wild Heave.

Then after Moore and Pitts had grounded out Montague secured a life on Clements' error. On Harrison's error Pound also reached first alive and on a throw by the pitcher to second that went out into center field, Montague took third. Then Pound stole second. Next Corley again tried to catch the runner off second and again it went on through and Montague came home. Amason got a base on balls, but Donaldson fanned and Tech took the field with a big two to her credit on the scoreboard.

In Georgia's half of the first Ginn was first up for Georgia and he promptly walked. Then he stole second, went to third on an infield out, and scored on McWhorter's long sacrifice fly to center. That ended Georgia's scoring in this inning.

Tech got no more till the fourth, when Donaldson hit safely to right field. Attridge sacrificed and on Corley's error both men were safe. On Eubanks' sharp bunt Donaldson was thrown out at third, but Wooten got to first on the shortstop's error and the bases were full. Here Corley walked Moore, forcing Attridge in. Then Pitts flied out to left and Eubanks scored on the throw-in. This made four for Tech and ended its scoring.

This lead of 4 to 1 Tech held until the seventh. Then, with one on and one down, Attridge carelessly dropped an easy infield pop and both Clements and Ginn were safe. Tech got into trouble right here, for Harrison hit safely to left and scored Clements, Ginn taking third on the throwin. McWhorter contributed his mite by placing a long one in center, which Wooten finally pulled down, but Ginn scored on the catch, bringing Georgia's total up to 3.

Well, well, both teams went out in one-two-three order in the eighth, and so did Tech in the ninth. Then, with one Georgia man out, Clements hit safely to left. Ginn grounded to Montague and Clements was forced at second. Then Harrison slammed a stem-winder to left that looked good for a homer and with it the game.

Everybody watched Pound in left and strained their eyes, heart and head almost off. Finally with a prodigious leap backward Pound connected with the thing and hung to it. It was a wonderful catch.

Both Pitched Good Ball.

Both pitchers hurled superbly. Corley gave up but four hits, while Eubanks yielded six. But the latter deserved the greater credit, because he kept these six so widely scattered and because he was hurling to much heavier hitters than was Corley. Besides, the latter forced in a run, which lost Georgia the game.

But for Attridge's muff Tech would have played an errorless game, thus living up to the best of Tech traditions in playing their best ball against Georgia in Athens.

The whole Tech team fielded superbly, but Wooten must be given special mention for his great work in center. Everybody admired it.

Ginn ran bases in great form for Georgia, and Hutchens, besides catching a fine game, slapped out three of Georgia's six hits. The Georgia team played a jam-up game in all respects save in the field, where their work was rather ragged.

Altogether, it was fine baseball. Today is sure to produce a game equally as good.

LAGRANGE BALL CLUB WINS ATTENDANCE TROPHY

LAGRANGE, GA., May 10.—In addition to winning yesterday's game in a sensational manner, LaGrange has also won the atendance trophy of the Georgia-Alabama League. More than 1,900 people crowded the grounds on opening day, which is by several hundred more than any other opening game of the towns in the league. The LaGrange team is now in first-class condition. All those who have been out of the game are ready to play ball, and the outlook for the team to win from now on is splendid.

STAHL LEAVES HOSPITAL.

BOSTON, May 10.—Manager Stahl, of the champion Red Sox, whose foot was operated on Monday, left the hospital to-day and with the assistance of a cane was able to make his way about town. Although Stahl expects to join the Red Sox in the West early next week and resume the active management of the club, it will be some time before his name will appear in the line-up.

FATE OF GEORGE STOVALL TO BE SETTLED SUNDAY

ST. LOUIS, May 10.—At a meeting of the directors of the St. Louis American League club here to-morrow, which will be attended by President Ban Johnson, the fate of Manager Stovall will be decided. It is also likely that some action will be taken regarding the pobr umpiring with which St. Louis has been afflicted this season.

The local club is going to have something to say about the penalty for Stovall. Colonel Hedges is the majority stockholder and the meeting of the directors seems superfluous, unless the Colonel believes there is safety in numbers.

ANDERSON AND MANDOT ARE WORKING FOR BOUT

LOS ANGELES, May 10.—With the arrival from Medford, Oregon, to-day of "Bud" Anderson, and Manager Dick Donald, both principals in the next lightweight battle here, are on the ground.

Anderson, who is matched to meet Joe Mandot in a scheduled 20-round bout before the Pacific Athletic Club at Vernon on the night of May 20, will reopen his old training camp at Doyle's Vernon camp.

Mandot has been in light training for the past week. Yesterday at the Venice camp he boxed four rounds, using "Dude" Clark and "Hobo" Dougherty as sparring partners.

FURCHNER WILL FACE BILLS IN THIRD BATTLE

By Joe Agler.

Crackers' First Baseman.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., May 10. The Crackers' new twirler, recently secured from Manager Finn, will make his debut against the Billikens in the third game this afternoon.

Manager Bill Smith is hard up for a pitcher and has decided to give his new hurler a chance. We have been getting some awful pitching while on this trip, all the boys being way off form.

Weaver was sent home, to Atlanta, after yesterday's game to rest his sore arm. Buck has not been right since way early in the season, and Smith has decided to give him a rest until the sore member is again ready for use.

The Crackers hope to cop the two remaining games, and with any kind of pitching should annex both battles on the right side of the ledger.

Whitey Alperman was the swatting king for Atlanta yesterday. Whitey pounded out three safe drives. Donahue secured two two-baggers for the Billikens. The final score was: Billikens, 10; Crackers, 2.

Bill Bailey's foot is getting along nicely, and he will be in the game against Memphis, if not sooner. Chappelle was in uniform yesterday, and says he will win many games for us. The boys are all pulling for Bailey to return, as we certainly are missing his trustworthy stick.

MOTORCYCLE STARS WILL RACE AT PRINCE'S TRACK

Jack Prince, owner of the new motordrome being built here, stated last night that twelve of the speediest riders on the coast are now on their way to Atlanta to compete in the first night's races here. Prince expects to hold the first series of races around the twentieth of this month.

Montey, Graves, Henry Lewis, S. A. Shields and Ed Hannon are among these who will appear here.

Inquiries have also come to Prince from Birmingham, Columbus, Ga., and other nearby cities from various riders, who are seeking information concerning the races.

TALBOTTON BEATS BUTLER.

TALBOTTON, GA., May 10.—The Talbotton boys defeated Butler here yesterday to the tune of 12 to 10. Ray Burt did the box work for Talbotton, while Chapman, for Butler, was knocked all over the field.

FOOD FOR SPORT FANS

By GEORGE E. PHAIR.

B. NELSON.

He fought and he fought and he fought,
That Dane with the yellowish hair.
He never knew how, with his yellow-haired brow,
But he fought all his fights on the square.
He fought like the fighter he was,
He took all the wallops that came;
But the son of a gun, when the fighting was done,
You will have to admit he was game.

Mr. F. Chance is beginning to realize that it is hard to be a Peerless Leader unless there is something to lead.

In other words, Mr. Chance threatens to burst into the archives of baseball as the teamless Leader.

One is glad to hear from Ban Johnson that the American League will not tolerate roughneck conduct. One is thereby led to expect that peanut peddlers will be expunged from the grand stand.

Scientists tell us that a hole driven straight through the earth will land in China. If Frank Chance does not have a care he may become a Chinaman.

Rube Waddell is said to be broke, which financial conditions is about two bits less than usual.

Nevertheless, there are kind words to be said about the Federal League. It never will be known as a gret-rich-quick scheme.

Possibly we are mistaken, but John McGraw once hired a youth known as Jim Thorpe.

From now on it will be hard to blame George Stovall if he develops a grouch against spitball pitchers.

Still, the penalty might not have been so strong if the Browns had not been playing too strong for the good of the league.

If Tyrus Cobb had been guilty of the same stunt he might have been given three slaps on the wrist and fined $50, which the club would have paid—again.

The difference between expectorating on an umpire and spiking an innocent bystander is merely the difference as a drawing card between the expectorator and the roughneck.

If Jimmy Clabby and Eddie McGoorty were to pull off one of their terrific battles before the Legislature, said Legislature would decide that pugilism is almost as dangerous as crokinole.

There seems to be a conspiracy among American League pitchers, in restraint of the athletes alleged to be working for F. Chance.

Ed Konetchy's pitching stunt ought to put a lot of our athletes to shame. Some of said athletes can't play one position.

Looking at it from a fair and impartial standpoint, we are willing to lay one (1) dollar that Reuben Marquard will not win nineteen straight games this season. In fact, when Mr. Marquard wins a game it is a winning streak.

One is willing to admit for the sake of argument that Luther McCarty is the best of our white heavyweights. A milk man's horse looks speedy among a flock of hitching posts.

Jake Stahl is troubled with a bone in his foot. These tidings will cause Ping Bodie to wonder whether the world is turned upside down.

A WAIL.

There was a man in our town
And he was wondrous dense.
He bought a seat a mile away
And laid down fifty cents.

Frank Chance is on the sick list again, but watching those Yanks in the act of perpetrating baseball is enough to make any manager sick.

We presume that baseball writers in New York have other duties aside from their daily task of trading Hal Chase.

The terrific rate at which the Pirates have been dropping has created grave fear lest the bottom be knocked out of the league.

Bonehead plays are not confined entirely to the baseball yard. For instance, there is the severe reprimand handed to Ty Cobb by the national commission.

The only conclusion to be drawn is that national commission is totally devoid of a sense of humor. Otherwise it could not refrain from laughing itself.

ROUGH HOUSE MERCHANTS.

A sack of peanuts now and then
Is relished by the best of men,
But not when peddlers block the view
And plant their feet all over you.

Ten Point Picked to Win Kentucky Derby

LOUISVILLE, KY., May 10.—This city to-day is alive with race enthusiasts. Thousands are already in town and each incoming train adds more to the throng. This is Derby Day here, the thirty-ninth running of the Kentucky blue ribbon event. The field will bring togthar some of the best racers in the country. Though a round dozen have been named to go in the big race to-day, it is doubtful if more than five face the barrier. Possibly six may start, and if the track is fast it is freely predicted that the record of 2:05 by Meridian will fall.

J. W. Schorr, the Memphis turfman, is scanning the skies thoughtfully. If it rains his great gelding, Leochares, will go to the post, and Foundation and possibly Ten Point will be scratched, leaving the Tennessee gelding a splendid chance of winning, if the track remains fast. Leochares, Gowell, Floral Park, Flying Tom, Lord Marshall, Donerall and possibly Sam Hirsch will remain in their stalls.

Despite the fact that Hawthorne and Helios, the two winter favorites in the big race, will not go to the post, there is sure to be a great race among the three choices—Ten Point, Foundation and Yankee Notions.

Ten Point is quoted at 8 to 5; Foundation, 3 to 1; Prince Hermis, 5 to 1; Lord Marshall, 8 to 1, and Donerall, 10 to 1, in the early morning betting.

No-Rim-Cut Tires 10% Oversize

Oversize Means This

Ten per cent extra air capacity over hooked-base clincher tires.

It means the same as extra width, which costs you extra money. It means, on the average, 25 per cent more mileage.

No-Rim-Cut tires, with this 10 per cent oversize, cost no more than clinchers.

More Than 10%

The oversize of No-Rim-Cut tires is more than 10 per cent.

Actual comparison with six makes of clinchers shows the average oversize 16.7 per cent.

That means that you get in No-Rim-Cut tires about one-sixth more air capacity than you get in clinchers. And air is what carries the load.

You get this extra without extra cost. For No-Rim-Cut tires now cost the same as standard clincher tires.

Then Add This

You also get in this new type a tire that can't rim-cut. A clincher tire can and does.

Statistics show that 23 per cent of all clincher tires become rim-cut.

Those are the reasons why clincher tires must go. Men will not stand this rim-cut ruin when a new-type tire prevents it.

Men are bound to demand an oversize tire when they know what it adds to their tire mileage.

No-Rim-Cut tires now outsell all others. Their sales are doubling over and over.

When you know these tires, as legions do, you will never buy any others. Come let us show them to you.

BIRMINGHAM GOLFERS LEFT IN TOURNAMENT

By Tick Tichenor.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., May 10.—The winner of the invitation tournament of the Country Club of Birmingham will be a member of the home club, as they have to-day successfully eliminated every visitor.

In the first flight there were thirteen Birmingham players and three from Atlanta. In the morning round J. H. Doughty disposed of Captain E. T. Winston, while W. P. Ward beat W. R. Tichenor, and Rollo Steinmehl beat Lowry Arnold.

Steinmehl is just 14 years of age, but he is even now a fine tournament player. In his match with W. P. Ward in the afternoon both were out in 36, and Ward had him two down and three to play, but he evened the match on the eighteenth green and finally won on the twenty-first hole. George Oliver had to go 20 holes in the morning to win from V. Q. Prowell. In the afternoon he was defeated by Herbert Tutwiler.

H. C. Wood and Rollo Steinmehl meet in the semi-final, as do J. H. Doughty and H. Tutwiler, of the first flight.

* * *

ON the second flight George Adair meets C. E. Foust and F. G. Byrd plays B. Throckmorton in the semi-final. In the third flight two Atlanta men met in the first round—C. J. Holditch and Dowdell Brown—Holditch winning 7 up and 6 to play. The semi-final matches of the fourth flight were between R. P. Jones and Sanborn Smith and A. M. Post and R. H. Baugh. In the fifth flight Dr. Frank Holland is one of the semi-finalists.

C. E. Corwin and W. R. Tichenor are in the semi-final in the junior division of the third and first flights.

Nelson's Mgr. Praises McCarty Says Luther Is Best Heavyweight

By Ed W. Smith

CHICAGO, May 10.—Not being swayed by any prejudices of section, color or previous condition, we should figure John Robinson, Bat Nelson's hustling manager, in a fine position to judge of the merits of a fighter, big or little, and when John says that Luther McCarty is the real thing in the heavyweight division we are inclined to think that John's opinion is worth considerably more than mere passing mention. Robinson was in New York the other evening when Luther lambasted Frank Moran, the Pittsburg heavyweight, for ten sharp rounds, and he got an excellent line on Luther's ring work. John's opinion is all the more valuable since he isn't friendly with Billy McCarney, Luther's manager, and hasn't been for some time.

* * *

JOHN isn't exactly "all smoked up" over Luther, but he figures him to be easily the best of the white heavyweights of the day, says his record proves it and sincerely believes that the future of a year or so will demonstrate it beyond the shadow of a doubt. Listen to some of John's chatter about the big man from Nebraska: "We had been told for months that Frank Moran was one of the very best of the latest crop of big fellows, and the Eastern friends of Dan McKetrick, who manages him, believed it. Naturally after being matched with McCarty his work was watched with the closest attention.

* * *

"NOW comes one of the interesting parts of the whole tale. After McCarty had bested Moran, and had done the job up beautifully, as I thought, he didn't get a bit of credit. He was scolded and nagged for not actually disposing of Moran more decisively, and that, too, in the face of previous boosts to the effect that Moran was one of the very best of them all. Not a bit of consistency to that line of work. If Moran was one of the best, then McCarty, after beating him, must naturally be one of the very best. Catch the line of reasoning?

* * *

"TO my way of doping it out, McCarty is a man who needs a lot of actual fighting to keep him fit. He is a lazy big fellow and inclined to slow down if he isn't punched continually. He couldn't have been at his best with Moran for that reason, because he had been idle for some little time previous to that encounter. I watched the battle carefully and in common with many others at the ringside tried to pick the flaws in this big fellow's work. I couldn't find many. Of course he is still a bit unpolished, but take it from me, he is picking up the inside stuff rapidly and is getting better every time he works.

* * *

"DURING the tenth round I saw him pull a Kid McCoy trick that enlightened me more than anything about him. Joe Jeannette, who was handling Moran, seeing the hopelessness of the cause, sent Frank out to do and die. Frank sailed in and slammed away like a threshing machine with both arms going wildly. Luther would have been a cherry ripe sucker to have mixed with him right there. Instead, he stepped in close and let go with his right exactly onto Moran's waist line. The punch didn't travel a foot, but it sunk in and instantly Moran was slowed down to a walk. I doubt if a dozen people in the crowd saw the punch or realized its importance. But Moran did. It was exactly the right thing at the right time and convinced me fully himself in any kind of company," that Luther will be able to care for

* * *

IT will not be long now before we find out what good Tom Jones has been able to accomplish with Jess Willard. Around here we figured that the chief fault with the tall man from Kansas was his disinclination to get out in the morning and do road work. Jones saw the point instantly and announced that if he got to handling Jess he would show him the error of his ways. He will get the test the middle of this month, when he slams into and is himself slammed into by Gunboat Smith, one of the toughest of the real tough trial horses of the day. It should be a grand old battle.

GIANTS-WHITE SOX WORLD TOUR IS NOW A CERTAINTY

CHICAGO, May 10.—John J. McGraw, of the New York Giants, clinched the round-the-world baseball tour which two big league teams, made up wholly or partly of Giants and White Sox, are to make next fall and winter by signing the contract in New York last night. It had previously been signed by President Comiskey, of the White Sox.

The trip will be on a bigger scale than the famous baseball tour of 1888, and may carry 75 or 100 persons. Tentative plans have it that the teams will leave Chicago about October 15 and play games in the South and West until they reach Vancouver.

They will sail from Vancouver on November 5. Japan will be reached on November 15, and a stay made in the Nippon Realm of six or eight days. Then Manila, Australia, Italy, Egypt and all European countries will be visited.

MURPHY AND HERRMANN ROW OVER RELEASED PLAYER

CHICAGO, May 10.—A little row between Prexies Murphy, of the Cubs, and Garry Herrmann, of the Reds, is enlivening the diamond atmosphere.

Manager John Evers is cutting his team down to the limit recently sent Knisley and McDonald to the Birmingham club in the Southern Association. When the Cubs traded Joe Tinker to Cincinnati, Knisley was included in the deal and Herrmann claims to have made a verbal agreement with Murphy, whereby Knisley was to be returned to the Reds if the Cubs could not use him.

CLEMSON WALLOPS AUBURN IN SECOND BATTLE, 18-4

AUBURN, ALA., May 10.—Clemson won the second game of the series from Auburn here yesterday, 18 to 4. The visitors got off with a good lead, due to Locke's wildness, and Driver, who relieved him, was hit hard during the balance of the game. The series is now even, and the deciding game will be played today, with Ezell on the mound for Clemson and Davis twirling for Auburn.

CALLAHAN REINSTATED.

NEW YORK, May 10.—The State Boxing Commission has reinstated Paddy Callahan, who was suspended March 19 for fouling Joe Caster.

BASEBALL
Diamond News and Gossip

The Reds got an even break in their series with the Giants, and if they continue to play the same kind of ball they did in Gotham town it'll be only a short time before they climb out of the National League cellar.

* * *

The suspension of Stovall has weakened the playing strength of the Browns fully 20 per cent, and the Naps and White Sox are moaning because the Eastern aggregations will have an easy time trouncing the St. Louis boys.

* * *

But even without Stovall the Browns can grab off an occasional victory. They fractured the winning streak of the Athletics yesterday, driving Pitcher Houck to the cooling shed in the first round.

* * *

Luderus, the Phillies' first sacker, after going hitless for nearly a week, cracked out a homer yesterday, which enabled his team to jump home a winner over the fast-traveling Cardinals.

* * *

The Dodgers walloped the Cubs again yesterday, sliding into second place, and are only a few points behind the leading Phillies.

* * *

Too bad the Yankees can't play against the Tigers all the season. They'd emerge near the top of the American League in October if they did.

* * *

The Red Sox may win the pennant again this year, but it will require some mighty humping. The Boston boys are over 400 points behind the flying Athletics and no club can spot the Quakertown athletes eight full games and expect to have an easy over-hauling job.

* * *

Only those who have been swatted with a crowbar can appreciate the feelings of the Pirate fans when they lamped the score boards yesterday and discovered that the lowly Boston Braves have trimmed the Pirates for the fourth successive time.

* * *

The White Sox bumped the Senators again yesterday, but Walter Johnson is due to do the flinging to-day for the Washington Athletes and perhaps there will be a different story to tell by nightfall.

* * *

Johnson, by the way, may establish a new pitching record if he goes into the box to-day. The record for consecutive scoreless innings is 45, established some years ago by "Doc" Crute, of the White Sox. Johnson already has pitched 42 2-3 scoreless innings.

* * *

Four decisions were rendered on one play by the umpires in the Brown-Athletics game yesterday. Ferguson called Oldring out at first and then declared him safe when Brief, the Browns' first sacker, fell. The Browns rushed up to Umpire O'Loughlin, who declared Oldring out, whereupon the Athletics ran over to Ferguson, made a roar and Ferguson again declared Oldring safe. Then play resumed.

* * *

The Red Sox polished up their batting orbs yesterday, pounded out 13 hits and beat the Naps 3 to 1, it being their first victory on the Western swing.

* * *

And now will C. Webb Murphy please issue forth and perform a little volplaning stunt from the most heavenward point of the Brooklyn grandstand? The Chicago gentleman said he'd make the 160-foot leap if the Dodgers took a series from the Cubs. The Dodgers have at turned the trick.

Mister Murphy, where art thou?

* * *

This is "Johny Evers Day" at the Polo grounds, and hundreds of rooters from Troy, N. Y., the home town of the Cubs' manager, went to New York on a special train to witness the first clash of the season between the Giants and the scrappy Chicagoans.

MARIST FIRST IN TRACK MEET; TECH SECOND

MARIST College won the annual Atlanta prep track meet Friday at Marist field with a total of 52 1-3 points. Marist was especially strong in the distance runs and the dashes. Three teams were entered in the meet—Marist, Tech High and G. M. A. Tech High was second with a total of 25 1-3 points, while G. M. A. brought up the rear with 12 1-3.

Lewis, of Marist, was the highest individual point winner with 16 points to his credit. He won the last event of the day, the quarter mile dash, which put him 1 point ahead of Fowler.

John Roberts, of Marist, was the only winner to break a local prep record. Roberts in the pole vault cleared the bar at 9 feet 6 inches. Meyers, of Tech High, was second in this event and also beat the former record. Meyers made 9 feet 4 and just barely missed the next height. Smith, of G. M. A., and Bedell, of Tech High, were tied with 10 points apiece for third highest point winner. Smith had things his own way in the broad and high jumps.

Charlie Allen must have had a grudge against Fowler. In the quarter mile run Allen was easily leading, but held back toward the finish in order to let his teammate, Lewis, who was running second, pass him. This gave Lewis a total of 16 points, just one more than Fowler had.

EVERS PLANS TO CONVERT ARCHER INTO FIRST SACKER

NEW YORK, May 10.—Johnny Evers, manager of the Cubs, who are playing a series with Brooklyn, today was quoted as saying that he would try to convert Jimmy Archer, one of the best catchers in the game, into a first baseman. Saier has not been entirely satisfactory to Evers as a first baseman, while Archer has shone as a fielding star at that point.

BRANDT OUTPOINTS HUFNAGLE.

NEW YORK, May 10.—"Dutch" Brandt, the Brooklyn bantamweight, outpointed Frankie Hufnagle, former amateur champion, in their ten-round bout last night.

KEARNS STOPS DAVIS.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 10.—Soldier Kearns, the Brooklyn heavyweight, knocked out George ("One-Round") Davis, of Buffalo, in the fifth round of the scheduled ten-round bout here last night.

PREP LEAGUE NOTES

Saturday morning and afternoon a monster track meet will be held at Ponce DeLeon Park by the Public Grammar Schools of Atlanta.

* * *

Both boys and girls are entered in the meet and three prizes are offered in each event. The morning exercises will commence at 9 o'clock and end at noon. The afternoon events will be finished at 5 o'clock. Moving picture men will be on hand to get some views of the drills and races.

* * *

The cadets of G. M. A. are at present encamped at Lakewood and are having a very enjoyable time. Friday they had a dress parade, which was attended by Governor and Mrs. Brown.

* * *

Emory College will meet Mercer at Macon Saturday in a dual track and field meet. Wilbur Carlton, the man who made such a wonderful showing in the inter-class meet at Emory a short time ago, is expected to win the greatest number of points for Emory. He is entered in seven events.

* * *

This meet is the first inter-collegiate contest that Emory has participated in for a number of years and a great deal of interest is being shown by the students of the school. It is barely possible that Emory will have inter-collegiate athletics in the near future, as the students and alumni of the school are working hard for it.

* * *

Prof. Alexander, of Tech, is considering a plan to enter a team picked from Tech students attending the summer school in the local city league this summer. "Aleck" says that many of the best players in school attend the summer session and a good team could be organized.

* * *

A few short weeks and the Prep baseball season will be a thing of the past. Boys' High appears to have the honors cinched this year. If they win it will be the first time in three years. The last two seasons Boys' High has finished second in the race.

* * *

The 100-yard dash in the Prep. meet Friday was the closest race seen in a long time. Allen and Lewis, of Marist, were first and second, but Bedell, of Tech High, was right on their heels.

* * *

Fowler, of Marist, showed up mighty well in the meet Friday. He won three firsts—the hammer, mile and half-mile runs. A new Prep. record was made in the pole vault by John Roberts, of Marist. He cleared the bar at 9 feet 6 inches.

* * *

Jim Lowery, of Marist, has been shifted from first to catcher. He was a good first sacker, but had to be sacrificed on account of lack of a backstop. He will no doubt be placed at first base on the all-prep selection this year.

* * *

Sam Armistead, the Boys High catcher, got four hits in the game with Marist Wednesday. Sam is now leading the Prep League batters with an average of over .400. He is catching a good game at present and not a man stole a base on him Wednesday.

* * *

Riverside has first place tied up in a bag in the G. I. A. A. pennant race, but the real fight is for second place between Gordon, G. M. C. and Stone Mountain.

* * *

Gordon and G. M. C. met in a doubleheader last week which resulted in a game each. Both are anxious to win two straight this time. Gordon is playing on the home grounds and will not take another road trip this season.

* * *

Tech High and Boys High will play again next week. If the Culverites win they still have a slim chance to cop the pennant. The defeat by Peacock was a great blow to the Tech High bunch.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

MA & me had a lot of fun yesterday at the dinner tabel in the hotel ware we are staying wile Pa is here catching fish. Pa was out following a stream, & Ma & me was all alone at our tabel until a yung traveling man calm in & the waitress put him at our tabel. He was vary yung and vary fresh. The minnit he got sat down to the tabel he looked over at us & sed You peepul are having a luvly spring this yeer up in the woods.

The day is butiful, sed Ma. Ma was dressed in a plain dress for walking in & I had on overalls so I cud be like the other littel boys around here, & I was bare-footed. Ma & me knew that the yung traveling man thot we was country peepul & we dident care, beekaus we have saw lots of peepul in the big cities that dident know half so much as country folks.

The scenery here is vary pritty, sed the yung man, but, of course, you peepul up here think moar of it than I do, beekaus I have traveled around a grate deel & saw scenery wich is sublimer than these little hills, small to a man like me, he asked Ma, a man wich has seen reel mountains?

I think these hills are vary restful, sed Ma.

But, of course, you peepul up here havent traveled & got broadened, sed the yung salesman. Jest think how majestik must be the site of a mountain peek like the kind you see not far from Chattanooga, Tenn.

I have never been in Chattanooga, sed Ma.

It Was a Pity.

That seems a pity, sed the yung man. One reely doesnt know what living is until one has been in Chattanooga. A littel place like this is all rite for peepul wich have nevver seen the glories of natur, but one who has traveled like I have it would soon becum monotonous.

& so you travel? sed Ma.

Yes, indeed, sed the yung man. We knights of the grip are never still in one place vary long. I travel all the way from Chattanooga to Nashville on the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis, he tokid Ma. Chattanooga a sum city. Thare is none of this humdrum life you have here. Why, think of a city with several theaters all within the city limits, & with the hum of St. cars & the roar of the traffik & the butiful storek & residences. That is life, believe me, sed the yung man. I doant know what the other big cities is like, he sed, but you have got to show me whare any one of them has anything on Chattanooga.

I was jest going to tell the yung man that Pa & Ma & me had been in every big city in the U. S., from Frisco to Portland Maine & from New Orleans to the Canadian line, but Ma kicked me under the tabel & I knew then that she was kidding the yung man.

I have offen thot that wen my littel boy grows up I wud have him be a traveling man, sed Ma. My sister's husband used to sell enlarged piktures. He used to travel from Chippewa Falls to Boyd on the Wisconsin Central. I guess he mite have been with his firm yet only he used to lose his expense money playing nickel slot machines.

The Pity of It.

That is the pity of it with us knights of the grip, sed the yung man. We are thrown into constant temptashun, traveling the way we do from one town to another. Doant let yure yung son get into this game, he sed. It is a pity that you can not move to Chattanooga or eeven sum smaller city, so he cud get the benefits of a education, like I dune.

Jest then Pa calm in & sed Wife, this is jest my luck. Jest as the fishing is good, here is a telegram that we must return to New York & leave the next day for Frisco.

Oh, good, sed Ma, we havent been in Frisco for nearly two years.

Then the yung man got kind of red in the face & dident say any moar about Chattanooga.

Just a Little Slip.

"Miss Sweet," the young man began, with a quaver in his voice, "may I presume so far upon our short acquaintance to ask you—"

"Please say no more, Mr. Matthews!" faltered the maiden. "I deeply regret to give you pain; and if I have unconsciously encouraged you to entertain hopes that never can be recalled, I can not forgive myself. Believe me, I am—"

"Pardon me, Miss Sweet," interrupted the astonished youth, "but I was only going to ask you for the loan of fare home. I was stupid enough to come away without any money in my pocket this evening. Ah, thanks very much! I will return it without fail. Good night!"

Annoyed by a notice that the local sanitary committee were going to inspect his cow house, an English farmer spread linoleum over the floor of the building, displayed hearth rugs in convenient positions, hung the walls with pictures and a mirror, and installed a harmonium. When the committee arrived he gravely invited them to wipe their feet on the doormat before entering.

The French military authorities make use of an ingenious invention to protect their carrier pigeons against hawks. The apparatus consists of a very tiny whistle and a screw attached to the pigeon, whose flight causes the screw to revolve and thus blow the whistle. The noise effectually scares away the enemy.

Perhaps the highest price paid for a sermon goes every year to a German preacher, who discourses on the good deeds of a French baron named Favart, who died in Elberfeld in 1690. Favart left money for this purpose, and the interest now amounts to $4,500 per annum, which goes to the preacher as his reward.

The College of France, founded in Paris by Francis I, offers at the present day not only strictly academic instruction, but opportunities for the higher education in general. The following anecdote shows how far the college carries its scrupulousness. Every scientific subject, even the most abstruse, will continue to be taught there as long as one solitary individual in all Europe desires to pursue it.

Certain courses are followed by two or three persons only. They tell this story of a professor of mathematics: This professor, who was extremely absent-minded, had lectured for a whole year to only one pupil.

He was perfectly satisfied that it should be so, but it occurred to him one day that he ought to congratulate his rare disciple, and he accordingly did so.

"Monsieur does not recognize me," replied the pupil. "I am monsieur's coachman, and I always wait here until monsieur has finished his lecture."

CHAPTER 2.

JENNIE and THE MAN sat in the big, bright restaurant and listened to the music and watched the cabaret dancers, and Jennie's big brown eyes wondered at it all. At the beautiful dresses of the women diners, the bright lights, the thick, rich carpet on the floor and the noiseless waiters.

It was just like fairyland to Jennie, for she had never, never even imagined that things could be so lovely. The boys she knew could not afford such places, and the height of her social life had been walks in the park on Sundays and maybe the ice cream parlors for soda.

THE MAN did not urge her to drink much of the bubbly wine—for he knew she wasn't used to it and there might be explanations for her to make when she reached her boarding place, and that would NEVER do. For THE MAN was wise, and didn't want Jennie's good Southern friend, who kept the boarding place, to suspect anything—quite so soon.

Jennie realized at last that it was getting late and that she would have to get home, and besides it would take nearly an hour on the car to where she lived. When she mentioned the car, THE MAN wouldn't hear of such a thing. They must take a taxicab—and besides that would get them to Jennie's home much quicker than a car. A taxicab! —and poor little Jennie had never even ridden in one before—the cushions were so soft and warm and things zipped by so quick, 'til they just seemed to fly along. How different from the pokey old street cars, thought Jennie. THE MAN was polite as could be and talked of the delightful time they had that evening—and how lonesome he would be when she was gone, and they really MUST see one another quite soon again—but she mustn't tell any one where she had been that night—just that she had to work late and had hurried right home—and he would have the taxicab stop a block or so from her home, so no one would be the wiser.

Jennie was so proud of riding in a taxicab that she wanted to drive right up to her front door, but THE MAN explained that would NEVER do. So with a promise from her to "ring him up" the next day he had the taxicab stop a block down the street and very politely helped Jennie out with a promise to watch and see that she reached home safely. When she had gone he told the chauffeur the name of a prominent cafe, and with a chuckle got in and slammed the door.

Turning the Tables.

In some cases counsel receive answers to questions which they had no business to put, and these, if not quite to their liking, are what they justly deserve. The following story of Robert Harris, a celebrated negro minstrel, is a case in point:

"You are in the minstrel business, I believe?" inquired the lawyer.

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"Is that not rather a low calling?"

"I don't know but what it is, sir," replied the minstrel, "but it is so much better than my father's that I am proud of it."

The lawyer fell into the trap.

"What was your father's calling?" he inquired.

"He was a lawyer," replied Harris, to a tune that sent the whole court into a roar of laughter as the discomfited lawyer sat down.

Daysey Mayme And Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE.

WHEN a man says he has been discovered it is a confession that he has been found out. In other words, that his meanness has been exposed at last. But the women have a way of giving a higher, more soulful meaning to words, and when a woman says she has been discovered she means that her genius has found recognition.

Daysey Mayme Appleton had been discovered in this feminine interpretation of the word. Her genius had found recognition, and she had been given employment on a newspaper.

She had been sent to interview a famous authoress, and the famous authoress had told her she could give her just five minutes.

"What," she asked kindly, "do you wish me to talk about?"

The Interview.

Daysey Mayme pushed her back hair up, her front hair back, felt for her necklace, straightened her hat, lifted herself out of her corset and powdered her nose.

Then she was ready for the interview.

"It doesn't make any difference what you talk about," she said. "I must remember I have my own personality. I am a graduate of Hardtack College; I was at the head of my class; I began writing poetry when I was seven, and prose when I was nine. I am going to become a great journalist. I feel that my genius is too great to be longer hidden. Robert W. Chambers and none of the other great ones had written poetry when they were seven. Every one says I have wonderful talent."

The five minutes were up, and Daysey Mayme, with a brain seething with thoughts, went home and wrote all day and all night, covering many, many pages.

There are those who use a special delivery stamp. Not so with Daysey Mayme. She writes "IN HASTE" across one corner of the envelope. "When the postman sees these words," she exclaimed to her father, "he just drops everything else and runs all the way to deliver the letter."

A Terrible Mistake.

The interview appeared next day, and Daysey Mayme read with pride. Suddenly her face paled, her eyes flashed and she dashed to the telephone, and called up the newspaper office.

"The managing editor," she said in tones that were imperious, and when she got him she cried in a voice of authority:

"Stop the press! You have put two t's in parting in the seventh line, third column, ninth page. This article is IMPORTANT, and must be right."

"It means so much to be correct," she said to her mother, "when one is engaged in moulding the opinions of the world."

Safe.

"Captain," said a wealthy passenger, who was about to take his first trip across the ocean, "I understand this ship has got several water-tight compartments."

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"Captain," the passenger went on, decidedly, "I want one in those compartments—I don't care what it costs."

Falling Into Captivity

HENDERSON was wont to declare that the girl who wasn't popular was no girl for him.

"There's something wrong with a girl who can go to dances and not be asked to dance every time," he would say dogmatically. "Anyway, if she had any sense she wouldn't place herself in such a position."

Possibly it was his propensity for selecting the most sought after girl as the object of his devotion that caused him to remain a bachelor at the age of 38. He was, however, the slave of his niece, Margaret.

As a rule, he did without a word whatever Margaret asked him to do. However, when she came and sat upon the arm of his chair one evening, and it finally developed that she was planning to make him take her to the high school dance he almost rebelled. He assured her that his dancing days were things of the distant past and demanded to know where all the boys were. Margaret tilted her nose into the air as far as it would go and replied that she didn't know; and, anyway, she didn't care in the least; and, anyway, she wanted Henderson to take her.

"The girls will all be crazy about you," she assured him ingratiatingly.

"They'll be crazy at me," gloomed Henderson, "if they have to dance with me." But eventually he promised that he would go.

"You look perfectly sweet," Margaret cried ecstatically when he came down in all his glory ready to escort her. "I'm so proud of you that I don't know what to do about it."

"Just let me crawl off into a corner and smoke while you have a good time," begged Henderson. "And don't expect me to dance."

"All right," Margaret agreed.

Afterward Henderson remembered that Miss Patterson was the first person upon whom his eyes had fallen when he entered the hall, though he paid no attention to her at the time. Miss Patterson was the domestic science teacher and was present as a sort of chaperon. She was what is known in the vernacular as "chunky." However, with all her chunkiness, she was young and she had a passion for dancing. In her bosom there fluttered the faint hope that she would be asked to dance a few times, anyway.

Danced With His Niece.

This hope shown from her eyes when they met Henderson's as Margaret presented him. Henderson did not recognize it—in fact, he hardly realized that their eyes had met. She was merely a little, fat, uninteresting teacher, to whom he gave hardly a second thought.

He danced the first dance with his niece. "Am I off duty for the present, Peg?" he inquired when the dance was over. Margaret glanced at him appealingly.

"Oh, Sammy, dear," she said, "you know I'm on the committee, and I wish—" She paused and her eyes turned toward Miss Patterson. "But, never mind."

Henderson was not proof against Margaret's wistfulness.

"Well, Peg," he queried, "what is it?"

When told that she much desired that he dance one dance with Miss Patterson, who was perfectly sweet, even if she couldn't dance much, he looked aghast. "You certainly have picked out a fairy for me," he said, ruefully. "Still, for your sake, I'll do it."

Sat Where He Left Her.

Miss Patterson looked like a toy balloon and danced like a baby elephant. She hopped about and around and around, coming down for the most part on Henderson's toes. She did all the things that he hated most. When they had circled the hall a time or two the music mercifully stopped, Henderson being in a state of complete exhaustion and Miss Patterson beaming joyously.

He was too much overcome to know whether she could talk or what she really looked like, his one idea being to escape. As he sought refuge in the smoking room he was unaware that Miss Patterson's eyes were following him with a look of deep gratitude. When he emerged, however, their eyes met. Hers had a patient, wistful look.

Henderson turned away hastily. "Never again," he muttered to himself. But those eyes haunted him. He went back into the smoking room and tried to forget that look. When he had finished his cigar he skulked into the hall. Miss Patterson sat where he had left her, her round face beginning to look a little tired, but unfailingly cheerful, her brown eyes still wistfully hopeful.

Henderson dived back into the outer hall and there gloomily communed with himself. Presently he returned, walked bravely across the room and once more invited Miss Patterson to dance.

Strange are the ways of the little god Cupid! Twice again during the evening did Henderson immolate himself. Then at the close of the dance Margaret informed him that she'd be glad if he would take Miss Patterson home and that he needn't mind her, as she was going with Harold Bemis. So he went home with Miss Patterson without a murmur.

Some months later Miss Patterson asked Henderson shyly: "What made you begin to—to—care for me?"

Henderson at that moment was holding up her plump little hand for the purpose of getting an idea as to the size of the third finger on the left hand. At the question he gave the plump little hand—the comfortable little cushiony hand that yet was so capable and energetic—a contented squeeze.

"I think I began by being sorry for you," he said. "You did dance so abominably."

Saved the Situation

A steady queue had formed up at the money order counter of the local post-office, and it members were strongly agitated by different stages of acute irritation.

And all because a dear old lady had forgotten the address of her son, who lived in foreign parts.

"It's in China," she faltered.

The man behind the counter then scratched his head.

"China's a big vague," he said, and so audibly thought the queue.

"Well, sir," said the dear old soul, "I know it's a name something like the noise of a motor-car makes—"

"Hong—honk!" came in a quickly suppressed shrill from the sandy-haired telegraph boy who had been watching the proceedings with considerable enthusiasm.

"That's it—that's it, sir!" cried the delightful old lady. And the clerk filed it in Hong Kong in the address.

CHAPTER IX.

A Legal Document.

Mary Turner spent less than an hour in that mysteriously important engagement with Dick Glider, of which she had spoken to Aggie. After separating from the young man she went alone down Broadway, walking the few blocks of distance to Sigismund Harris' office. On a corner her attention was caught by the forlorn face of a girl crossing into the side street. A closer glance showed that the privation of the gaunt features was emphasized by the scant garments, almost in tatters. Instantly Mary's quick sympathies were aroused, the more particularly since the wretched child seemed of about the age she, herself had been when her great suffering had befallen. So, turning aside she soon caught up with the girl and spoke an inquiry.

It was the familiar story, a father out of work, a sick mother, a brood of hungry children. Some confused words of distress revealed the fact that the woebegone girl was even then fighting the final battle of purity against starvation. That she still fought on in such case proved enough as to her decency of nature, wholesome despite squalid surroundings. Mary's heart was deeply moved and her words of comfort came with a simple sincerity that was like new life to the sorely beset waif. She promised to interest herself in securing employment for the father, such care as the mother and children might need, along with a proper situation for the girl herself. In evidence of her purpose she took her engagement book from her bag and set down the street and number of the East Side tenement where the family possessed the one room that mocked the word home, and she gave a banknote to the girl to serve the immediate needs.

Had a Heart Yearning.

When she went back to resume her progress down Broadway, Mary felt herself vastly cheered by the warm glow within which is the reward of a kindly act, gratefully received. And, on this particular morning, she craved such assuagement of her spirit, for the conscience that, in spite of all her misdeeds, still lived was struggling within her. In her revolt against a world that had wantonly inflicted on her the worst torments, Mary Turner had thought that she might safely disregard those principles in which she had been so carefully reared. She had believed that by the deliberate adoption of a life of guile within limits allowed by the law she would find solace for her wants, while feeling that thus she avenged herself in some slight measure for the indignities she had undergone unjustly. Yet, as the days passed, days of success as far as her scheming was concerned, his brilliant woman, who had tried to deem herself unscrupulous, found that lawlessness within the law failed to satisfy something deep within her soul. The righteousness that was her instinct was offended by the triumphs achieved through so devious devices, though she resolutely set her will to suppress any spiritual rebellion.

There was, as well, another grievance of her nature, yet more subtle, infinitely more painful. This lay in her craving for tenderness. She was wholly woman, notwithstanding the virility of her intelligence, its audacity, its aggressiveness. She had a heart yearning for the multitudinous affections that are the prerogative of the feminine; she had a heart longing for love, to receive and to give in full measure. * * * And her life was barren. Since the death of her father, there had been none on whom she could lavish the great gifts of her tenderness. Through the days of her working in the store, circumstances had shut her out from all association with others congenial. No need to rehearse the impossibilities of companionship in the prison life. Since then, the situation had not vitally improved, in spite of her better worldly condition. For Garson, who had saved her from death, she felt a strong and lasting gratitude—nothing that relieved the longing for nobler affections. There was none other with whom she had any intimacy except that, of a sort, with Aggie Lynch, and by no possibility could the adventuress serve as an object of deep regard. The girl was amusing enough, and, indeed, a most likable person at her best. But she was, after all, a shallow-pated individual, without a shred of principle of any sort whatsoever, save the single merit of unswerving loyalty to her "pals." Mary cherished a certain warm kindliness for the first woman who had befriended her in any way, but beyond this there was no finer feeling.

This Was Dick Gilder.

Nevertheless, it is not quite accurate to say that Mary Turner had had no intimacy in which her heart might have been seriously engaged. In one instance, of recent happening, she had been much in association with a young man who was of excellent standing in the world, who was of good birth, good education, of delightful manners, and, too, wholesome and agreeable beyond the most of his class. This was Dick Gilder, and, since her companionship with him, Mary had undergone a revulsion greater than ever before against the fate thrust on her, which now at last she had chosen to welcome and nourish by acquiescence as best she might.

Of course, she could not waste tenderness on this man, for she had deliberately set out to make him the instrument of her vengeance against his father. For that very reason, she suffered much from a conscience newly clamorous. Never for an instant did she hesitate in her long-cherished plan of revenge against the one who had brought ruin on her life, yet, through all her satisfaction before the prospect of final victory after continued delay, there ran the secret, inescapable sorrow over the fact that she must employ this means to attain her end. She had no thought of weakening, but the better spirit within her warred against the lust to repay an eye for an eye. It was the new Gospel against the old Law, and the fierceness of the struggle rent her. Just now, the doing of the kindly act seemed somehow to gratify not only her maternal instinct toward service of love, but, too, to muffle for a little the rebuking voice of her inmost soul.

So she went her way more at ease, more nearly content again with herself and with her system of living. Indeed, as she was shown into the private office of the ingenious interpreter of the law, there was not a hint of any trouble beneath the bright mask of her beauty, radiantly smiling.

Suffered Injustice.

Harris regarded his client with an appreciative eye, as he bowed in greeting, and invited her to a seat. The lawyer was a man of fine physique, with a splendid face of the best Semitic type, in which were large, dark, sparkling eyes—eyes a Lombroso perhaps might have judged rather too closely set. As a matter of fact, Harris had suffered a flagrant injustice in his own life from a suspicion of wrongdoing which he had not merited by any act. This had caused him a loss of prestige in his profession. He presently adopted the wily suggestion of the adage, that it is well to have the game if you have the name, and he resolutely set himself to the task of making as much money as possible by any means convenient. Mary Turner as a client delighted his heart, both because of the novelty of her ideas and for the munificence of the fees which she ungrudgingly paid with never a protest. So, as he beamed on her now, and spoke a compliment, it was rather the lawyer than the man that was moved to admiration.

"Why, Miss Turner, how charming!" he declared, smiling. "Really, my dear young lady, you look positively bridal."

"Oh, do you think so?" Mary rejoined, with a whimsical pout, as she seated herself. For the moment her air became distrait, but she quickly regained her poise, as the lawyer, who had dropped back into his chair behind the desk, went on speaking. His tone now was crisply businesslike.

"I sent your cousin, Miss Agnes Lynch, the release which she is to sign," he explained, "when she gets that money from General Hastings. I wish you'd look it over, when you have time to spare. It's all right, I'm sure, but I confess that I appreciate your opinion of things, Miss Turner, even of legal documents—yes, indeed, I do!—perhaps particularly of legal documents."

"Thank you," Mary said, evidently a little gratified by the frank praise of the learned gentleman for her abilities. "And have you heard from them yet?" she inquired.

Praise for Mary.

"No," the lawyer replied. "I gave them until to-morrow. If I don't hear then, I shall start suit at once."

Then the lawyer's manner became unusually bland and self-satisfied as he opened a drawer of the desk and brought forth a rather formidable-appearing document, bearing a most impressive seal. "You will be glad to know," he went on unctuously, "that I was entirely successful in carrying out that idea of yours as to the injunction. My dear Miss Turner," he went on with florid compliment, "Portia was a squawking baby, compared with you."

"Thank you again," Mary answered, and she took the legal paper which he held outstretched toward her. Her scarlet lips were curved happily, but the clear oval of her cheeks blossomed to a deep rose. For a moment, her glance ran over the words of the page. Then she looked up at the lawyer, and there were new lusters in the violet eyes.

"It's splendid," she declared. "Did you have much trouble in getting it?"

Harris permitted himself the indulgence of an unprofessional chuckle of keenest amusement before he answered.

"Why, no," he declared, with reminiscent enjoyment in his manner. "That is, not really!" There was an enormous complacency in his air over the event. "But, at the outset, when I made the request, the judge just naturally nearly fell off the bench. Then I showed him that Detroit case, to which you had drawn my attention, and the upshot of it all was that he gave me what I wanted without a whimper. He couldn't help himself, you know. That's the long and the short of it."

That mysterious document with the imposing seal, the request for which had nearly caused a judge to fall off the bench, reposed safely in Mary's bag when she returned to the apartment after the visit to the lawyer's office.

CHAPTER X.

Marked Money.

MARY had scarcely received from Aggie an account of Cassidy's threatening invasion when the maid announced that Mr. Irwin had called.

"Show him in, in just two minutes," Mary directed.

"Who's the gink?" Aggie demanded, with that slangy diction which was her habit.

"You ought to know," Mary returned, smiling a little. "He's the lawyer retained by General Hastings in the matter of a certain breach of promise suit."

"Oh, you mean yours truly," Aggie exclaimed, not in the least abashed by her forgetfulness in an affair that concerned herself so closely. "Hope he's brought the money. What about it?"

"Leave the room now," Mary ordered crisply. "When I call to you, come in, but be sure and leave everything to me. Merely follow my lead. And, Agnes—be very ingenue."

"Oh, I'm wise—I'm wise," Aggie nodded, as she hurried out toward her bed room. "I'll be a squab—sures thing you know."

Next moment Mary gave a formal greeting to the lawyer who represented the man she planned to mulct effectively, and invited him to a chair near her, while she herself retained her place at the desk, within a drawer of which she had just locked the formidable appearing document received from Harris.

Her Voice Was Cold.

Irwin lost no time in coming to the point.

"I called in reference to this suit which Miss Agnes Lynch threatens to bring against my client, General Hastings.

Mary regarded the attorney with a level glance, serenely expressionless as far as could be achieved by eyes so clear and shining, and her voice was cold as she replied with significant brusqueness:

"It's not a threat, Mr. Irwin. The suit will be brought."

The lawyer frowned and there was a strident note in his voice when he answered, meeting her glance with an uncompromising stare of hostility.

"You realize, of course," he said finally, "that this is merely plain blackmail."

To Be Continued Monday.

SYNOPSIS.

Mary Turner, becoming an orphan, is thrown on her own resources. She finds work at the Emporium, a department store owned by Edward Glider; is accused of the theft of silks, and sent to prison, though innocent. She tells George Demarest, Glider's head lawyer, that the way to stop thievery is to pay a living wage. In prison she learned from fellow convicts why girls go wrong. She understands their point of view and sympathizes with them. Aggie Lynch, a convict friend of Mary's at Burnsing, sees good "possibilities" for her in the world of crime. Upon Mary's release the slogan "once a criminal always one," prevents her from securing work. She is continually hounded and in desperation throws herself into the North River. Joe Garson, a forger, rescues her and keeps her and Aggie in luxury, though living chaste lives. Mary reads that a famous financier escapes prison through keeping within the letter of the law. She follows his example and becomes the leader of a band of swindlers, robbing only the unscrupulous. Glider's son Dick meets and loves Mary, who seeks to wreak vengeance on the father through the son. Aggie poses as her cousin, and they pretend to be respectable. They are visited by Detective Cassidy, who tries to scare Mary into leaving town through threats. He is laughed at for his pains, because she was "within the law." The detective, before leaving again, tells Aggie and Joe Garson that "there'll be trouble" for them unless they get out of town.

A Bachelor's Diary

Jack Spencer's Infatuation for the Widow Becomes Serius and His Wife Notices It.

By MAX.

MARCH 25.—I had thought constantly this morning of our evening with the widow at the station last night; of Jack Spencer's evident infatuation of the way in which he monopolized her, and the possessive manner in which he took her to the train, though I had hoped to have that privilege; of Sally Spencer's only half-concealed distress, and of the widow's triumphant look when she left us. She is an unscrupulous woman. So many women who are fascinating are, and she holds a grudge against Mrs. Spencer because of the efforts Sally made last winter to prevent me from marrying.

All this made me uneasy, and knowing Jack to be weak, just as I am weak and just as all men are weak, I felt an apprehension that was almost womanish. I was not surprised during the morning to get a telephone message from Mrs. Spencer to come over for a little "plain talk," she said, and it was with a decided feeling of relief that I assented.

He Walked In.

With the privilege granted an old friend I did not stop to knock when I reached Mrs. Spencer's door, but walked in unannounced, making my way to a certain little sunny sitting room where she always spent her mornings making up her household accounts, sewing, writing letters and engaged in similar little tasks which take up so much of a methodical woman's time, and which we men neither can comprehend nor appreciate.

She had been engaged in running a ribbon through some dainty lace-trimmed garment, but it had fallen unnoticed to the floor beside her, and with her hands lying idly on her lap she was gazing intently through the window.

I stepped behind her and looked over her head to see what so engrossed her. The window commanded a view of my back lawn and the picture at which she gazed was so pretty I did not wonder at her absorption. Richards had placed a little table on the lawn, and Manette was giving a dinner party, with Sarah Rae Hartman, four dolls, the brown-eyed pup and two kittens as her guests. The dolls were sitting bolt upright in their chairs with faces so lacking in expression that they looked like real society ladies; the two kittens on one side, not so well bred, were lapping cream from tiny saucers on the table, and the pup, on the opposite side, was barking so fiercely it became necessary for Manette to pause while feeding a doll on her lap to pacify him by sticking a cake in his mouth. His anger at the kittens, plainly because of their ill-breeding, could not be choked off by cake, and we looked and he gave one bound across the table, the kittens fled without asking to be excused, and sought shelter up the nearest tree with the pup at their heels.

I am proud of Manette for many things, and one is that she seldom cries. With her tea table upset and her tea party broken up, she did not give a howl like most babies, but dropped the doll baby and ran after the pup. Tompkins caught him before he had caught the kittens and restored him to Manette's arms, who punished him by putting him to bed in a doll buggy. There he lay, with his head on a pillow, his brown eyes making a plea for pardon and his pink tongue hanging out.

She Weeps.

"Does life offer any greater pleasure than that?" I said to Mrs. Spencer when she had turned around and found me there. Then I noticed that her eyes were filled with tears.

"Max," she said, drawing up a chair for me, "that," looking to where Manette was tying a doll bonnet on the pup's head, preparatory to taking him for a ride, "is all there is in life worth while. The love men and women have for each other is only a means to happiness, and that is never attained unless there is a child.

"Your home, though you are a bachelor, is happier than mine because of the presence of a child. I tell you, Max, you don't know how well off you are."

"But," I argued, feeling that in some indefinable way I was put on the defensive, "there are lonesome moments even when there is a child. I am a man grown with all a man's longing for the companionship of his peers, and baby talk does not satisfy me. I get down to Manette's size every hour in the day, and when evening comes and she has gone to bed I long for the companionship of one who talks my own language. And," growing more emphatic because of the look of disapproval in her eyes, "it is a longing that the society of men doesn't satisfy, and as good and patient as you and Jack are with me, letting me come over here every evening to forget my loneliness, it is a craving that even the companionship of two such good friends can't gratify. Oh, Sally, you are a woman, and a woman never understands!"

A Suggestion.

"No," she said sadly, "a woman never understands. And a man never understands either, and here we are, tied together for life, and neither understanding the other. It is a wonder we are as happy as we are. You have no wife to 'understand' you," a little sarcastically, "and I have a husband who doesn't 'understand' me, but you have a child, and are better off than I."

"If you feel that way about it, why don't you adopt one? There's Sarah Rae, for instance. I have an idea her parents would be glad to give her away."

She paid no heed to what I had said, but gazed out of the window with her mind so far away that her eyes took no note of the efforts Sarah Rae was making to hold the pup in the doll buggy while Manette dragged it back and forth on the garden path.

She turned toward me very suddenly.

"What is Mrs. Brown's address?"

"But why—" I stammered.

"I intend to ask her here to spend a week," she replied.

"Sally," I said, "you are mad. If Jack is infatuated with the widow, why do you want to make his infatuation worse? She is gone. He will never see her again, and why, for the Lord's sake, give him a chance to play with fire by having her here?"

"You say a woman never understands. You are wrong; it is your sex that is stupid."

"But—" I began. Then I decided it was no use. There is never any use of arguing with a woman, so I pulled a notebook out of my pocket, copied Mrs. Brown's address on a card I found on the table, and handed it to her without a word.

"By the way," as if she had almost forgotten it; "Margaret Hill is coming also."

Margaret Hill! The girl I asked to be my wife, but who refused me when she learned there was a breach of promise suit pending against me. The good little Puritan, who was so good she was too good! I am sure my face showed my surprise.

A Bitter Cry.

"I tried to tell you at the station last night," she continued, "but you were so absorbed in the coming of the widow you refused to hear me."

"Max," abruptly changing the subject, "is a man's love ever won for all time? I won Jack Spencer's love when I was a girl twenty years ago, and I have been engaged in trying to keep it won ever since. I sometimes wonder"—a little bitterly—"if the love of a husband is worth the struggle a woman must make to hold it. It is fight, fight, fight, all the time; a fight to retain my personal charms, a fight to keep him interested, a fight to forget myself in satisfying every longing he may have, physical, mental or spiritual; a fight to give him just so much of myself that he will never know satiety and will always want more; a fight to keep him from the clutches of that Other Woman, always standing like a threatening phantom in the background; and then, when I have his love, what do I possess? Something about as lasting as a soap bubble, and never worth the price!"

"Look here, Sally Spencer," I said in real alarm, for this was so unlike her, "you are getting morbid, and I won't stand for it. Come with me," drawing her from her chair, and leading her to the door.

Five minutes later we were highly honored guests at the table of Sarah Rae, who was hostess this time, each holding a kitten and a doll as a special mark of honor.

But is that so, Diary, what she said about the love of man?

DON'T doubt its possibility. Idle doubt never yet accomplished anything. Put it to an actual test. If you have a very dark and coarse, swarthy looking complexion, and you want to improve it, do something. There is nothing that can't be improved.

We Will Give You Free a Trial Box of Palmer's Skin Whitener. Use it and see with your own eyes what it does. There is absolutely no doubt about its marvelous whitening effect upon a dark complexion. You can watch the skin turning fairer after each application. And it clears the complexion of all blotches and makes the skin soft and smooth.

You Can Believe Your Own Eyes and that is why we will give you a free sample box. We could show you hundreds of testimonials from enthusiastic users of Palmer's Skin Whitener, but prefer to let you use it and watch the actual improvement in your own complexion.

Palmer's Skin Whitener Is Made in our own laboratory, and we guarantee it to be pure and harmless. Beware of worthless and dangerous imitations with which the market is flooded. Regular price, 25c, postpaid.

We will give you a free trial box if you will present this advertisement at any of our stores. If sample is to be mailed, send 4c for postage.

BEAUTY SECRETS OF BEAUTIFUL WOMEN

Effie Shannon Tells Why Twenty-five Years of Work Has Only Made Her Younger

By LILLIAN LAUFFERTY.

THE "Everybody's Doing It" of today is—trying to look young. Powder, pencil, patches, paint—art and artifice—these are the methods most of us accept; and these methods are all wrong; they "gild the surface" and scarcely deceive the most casual observer.

But there is a way to be so young and charming in spirit that the years creep on as friends, rather than enemies. There is a secret of eternal youth—and Effie Shannon knows it.

After a quarter of a century on the stage, Effie Shannon stands before us, slender, vibrant with life, magnetic and lovely, with the beauty of a clean-cut cameo. DELICATE, DAINTY EFFIE SHANNON HAS BEEN A WORKER FOR TWENTY-FIVE YEARS. Think of that, you little girls who fret lest your days of toil cheat you of youth and make you old before you have crossed life's threshold!

As the curtain falls on the evening-hushed rose garden in "Years of Discretion" at the Belasco Theater, Miss Shannon is happily echoing her lover-husband's, "It is wonderful to be old." IT IS WONDERFUL TO BE OLD, IF YOU HAVE THE INNER SPIRIT OF ETERNAL YOUTH—like Effie, of the play, and the charming woman who portrays her.

In the close intimacy of the dressing room, Miss Shannon is absolutely fresh and untouched by time, and yet she calmly said: "I am glad I am not young any more. Think of all the experience—the richness and fullness of life that I know. Think how high my spirit has fed. Do you think I'd give any of it—any line on my face—and retrace the years, and have a pretty mask with no background of life and feeling?

"Then to you true beauty is expression, is it not?" I asked.

Beauty Is Expression.

"Yes; true beauty IS expression—and to acquire beauty or to accent it, a woman must have imagination and sympathy.

"I never can sufficiently emphasize imagination and sympathy. Cultivate them—they are a woman's greatest friends. They give a deeper meaning to loveliness, and they veil plainness.

"Imagination means dreaming—seeing deep into life and interpreting it. Sympathy means being in tune with all of it.

"And as the years pass, a woman becomes more and more capable of them. So why should not a woman who cultivates these qualities become lovelier with the years?"

"We must cultivate our garden. Do you remember that quotation? You seem to live it." I said.

Her lovely illuminating smile lit Miss Shannon's face. "I do remember—'The Beloved Vagabond' said it—and women who value their great gift, beauty, must cultivate the flowers of imagination and sympathy in the garden of mind and soul. And live! Live life in fullness. Remember you are an individual—a separate soul and learn to be your true self. Don't you think that will insure a beautiful expression—deep, tender eyes, a sweet mouth and a happy soul to illuminate the face?" asked the charming star earnestly.

Beware of Fat.

"I do, indeed," I replied. "We all must cultivate our gardens. But how about uprooting the weeds—fat for instance?"

"Fat is a noxious weed," laughed Miss Shannon. "Girls must never get fat if they want to be beautiful. People do eat too much in New York—in all the big cities where dinners and teas at home or in the restaurants are occasions. Beware of too much or too rich food!

"I will tell you how simply I live. Breakfast: Tea, toast and a bit of fruit. Luncheon—nothing. Not a bite. Dinner I have at five every day—and it is a very simple meal. After the play I have a simple supper, too, if I am hungry. One needs to see people to keep in touch with life—to have moments of gayety and absolute self-forgetfulness—to be with friends. After the play happens to be my free time. So I go to simple little suppers and enjoy them.

"Food is not the only practical consideration in connection with keeping thin. A very important one is: DON'T TAKE NAPS. Those little afternoon sleepy times are dangerously fattening—and life is too short to sleep away. Keep busy—keep doing things, and you will grow in strength, but not in beauty-destroying pounds."

"Suppose all else failed to give you the modern 'straight silhouette,' would you wear painfully tight clothes and shoes as you do in the play in order to be young and alluring," I asked?

"NO!" said the graceful star emphatically. "Who could be charming with tight shoes on? TIGHT SHOES TORTURE YOUR MIND AS WELL AS YOUR FEET. And five pairs of garters' strapping you down firmly—you could not feel in tune with life—you would feel only pain—in this world full of beauty you would be conscious only of a body painfully striving for fashionable contours. Good corsets, shoes that fit, suitable clothes, they will, when properly adjusted and selected, help you give the impression of youth. But they are the lesser aids.

"Youth is a matter of spirit and feeling, you know. Feel young; think young eager thoughts; love life in its fullness of work and play and joy and sorrow.

"But to be beautiful, you must be young in spirit—not in years. TIME AND EXPERIENCE AND FEELING MUST CHISEL A FACE TO MAKE IT REALLY BEAUTIFUL; THE SPIRIT OF KNOWLEDGE MUST ILLUMINATE BEAUTY TO MAKE IT LOVELY AND PERMANENTLY ATTRACTIVE.

"Express your own true self always better and better—and then it is 'wonderful to be old'—for your spirit will be gloriously young, and your SPIRIT WILL MAKE YOU GLOW WITH THE FIRES OF ETERNAL YOUTH."

And as Miss Shannon's voice, vibrant with imagination and sympathy, alight with feeling, and truly expressive of her own rare self, brought me her message, I knew I had heard a vital truth. Youth is deeper than powder and paint and clothes—Youth is Soul.

Miss Effie Shannon in Two Charming Poses.

"BE SURE TO BURN LOVE LETTERS"

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

DON'T keep love letters.

Unless you are receiving them from your own wife or husband or your fiance, you might better keep a box of dynamite in your kitchen or introduce an infernal machine into your household than to guard a package of love letters.

Let them perish in their own fires as soon as absorbed by the eye and heart.

If your engagement is broken, even though one or both swear never to marry, nevertheless it is worse than folly to keep the letters exchanged during the existence of tender relations.

Fate plays such strange pranks with us all. Your lover may some day be President of the United States, or your sweetheart the wife of a great celebrity, and unnecessary pain and annoyance ensue from the unearthing of those old letters by some accident.

Burn them, I say, burn them!

VERY FOOLISH.

IT is one thing to have your husband or wife tell you of an early rehearsal of Cupid's drama before you met. It is another to encounter the love letters written during that period—which seem to your exacting heart more realistic than the role you have been engaged to play for life.

Sometimes a sensible moral being is suddenly swept off his feet by a tidal wave of passion.

Sometimes he is safely landed on shore by a happy turn of the wind or by the life-saving crew of Providence.

He hides his bruises, and no one knows of his brief disaster—unless he carries about with him the incriminating letter.

Oh, the folly of it!

BURN THEM ALL.

IT is no easy task, however, to burn or destroy, a letter that is dear to you. A genuine love letter breathes the very fragrance of the writer's soul. Who capable of understanding the grand passion has not felt the keen sense of pleasure that was twin to pain at the sight of the beloved one's handwriting? Where is the man or woman so stolid or commonplace who has not at some time kissed the page whereon a dear hand has rested and then hidden it near the heart whose accelerated throbs welcomed its approach?

And who of deep feeling and wide experience has not at some time felt his own heart scorching with the parcel of letters he tossed upon the coals?

But human hearts have a Phoenix-like propensity for rising from their own ashes, strong with new life and capable of new emotions. Let there be no accusing records of the old.

Let the dead bury its dead.

However it hurts, whatever it costs, burn your love letters.

An Eye to Business

"Prisoner at the bar," declaimed the learned Judge, "your offense is of such a nature that, if you plead guilty, I will let you off with a fine."

"Pardon me," and the prisoner's counsel popped suddenly up from his seat. "Before we plead guilty, it will be necessary for us to know exactly how much the fine will be."

"But this is unprecedented, sir!" exclaimed the Judge warmly. "You can not bargain with the Court."

"Well, it may be a little unusual, Your Honor," replied the lawyer, "but I am sure, when you learn the full circumstances of the case, you will entirely agree to my proposition. You see, the prisoner is in the possession of $60; my fee is $50, and so we cannot afford to plead guilty if you insist on fining him more than $10."

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"I knew her the instant I entered the house; and, remembering the Chanticler dress with its fowl's-foot boots, I guessed at once what those marks would prove to be when I came to investigate them. She must have stamped on the ground with all her might, to sink the marks in so deeply—but she meant to make sure of the claws and the exaggerated scales on the toes leaving their imprint. I was certain we should find that dress and those boots among her effects; and—Mr. Narkom did. What I wrote on that pretended telegram was for him to slip away into the house proper and search every trunk and cupboard for them.

"What's that? No, I don't think they really had any idea of incriminating Sir Roger Droger. That thought came into the fellow's mind when you stepped out and caught him stealing away after the murder had been committed. No doubt he, like you, had seen Sir Ralph practicing for the sports, and he simply made capital of it.

"The main idea was to kill his father and to destroy the will; and, of course, when it became apparent that the old gentleman had died intestate, even a discarded son must inherit. Where he made his blunder, however, was in his haste to practice his ventriloquial accomplishment to prevent your going into the Round House and discovering that his father was already dead.

"He ought to have waited until you spoke, so that it would appear natural for the old men to know without turning who it was that had opened the door. That is what put me on the track of him. Until that moment I hadn't the slightest suspicion where he was nor under what guise he was hiding.

"Of course, I had a vague suspicion even before I came and saw her that 'the cook' was in it. Her readiness in inventing a fictitious gypsy with a bear's muzzle coupled with what Nippers had told me of the animal marks she had pointed out, looked a bit fishy; but, of course, until I actually met her nothing really tangible began to take shape in my thoughts.

"That's all, I think. And now good-night and good luck to you, Miss Renfrew. The riddle is solved; and Mr. Narkom and I must be getting back to the wilderness and to our ground floor beds in the hotel of the beautiful stars!"

THE END.

Their Married Life

Helen, from a Box, Looks Down Upon Warren at a Banquet at the Astor-Ritz.

By MABEL HERBERT URNER.

IT was just 9:30 when Helen, in an evening gown and long white wrap, hurried down to a taxicab.

"The Astor-Ritz," she called to the driver as she gathered her chiffon skirts about her white satin slippers and stepped in.

To be whirling through the streets alone at 9:30 was for Helen a new sensation, and always self-conscious, she dreaded arriving at the Astor-Ritz unescorted.

It was the night of the annual dinner of the International Fraternal Society. Mr. Jennings had invited Warren to the dinner and had given him a box ticket for Helen. She was supposed to arrive about 10, to sit in a box overlooking the banquet hall and listen to the speeches.

With a fluttering heart she left the cab and ran up the awning-covered steps of the Astor-Ritz. Keenly conscious that she was alone, she hurried through the lobby to the nearest elevator.

At the entrance to the balcony of the banquet hall the doorman took her ticket and escorted her to one of the boxes in which were already seated three beautifully gowned women.

Below was the banquet hall with a long speakers' table at the end, and countless smaller tables crowded so close that the waiters could hardly pass between. It was a brilliant scene—the lights, the flower-decked tables, the high, gilded ceiling and gleaming chandeliers.

Helen's first impulse as she leaned over the red plush railing of the box was to find Warren. But it was not easy to locate any one in that great crowded hall, with all the diners in evening dress, and each with a white carnation in his buttonhole.

Not Warren.

Was that Warren with his back towards her at that table by the pillar? She leaned forward eagerly, but as she caught a glimpse of the man's side face her searching glance swept on to other tables.

The waiters were just bringing on the dessert—a pinkish ice in tall slender glasses. There were many things in the table appointments that Helen was eager to notice, but she could not be content until she had located Warren.

Then suddenly she saw him at a table near the center. Why had she not seen him at once? Surely no one else looked so distinguished!

If he would only look up! But he was talking to the man at his right. He had promised to look for her around 10, and it was that now, but he kept on laughing and talking, not even glacing towards the boxes.

The waiter had just placed before him his frozen ice and refilled his wine glass. Then Helen saw that every one at Warren's table was drinking champagne. Some of the other tables had champagne, some had claret, and at a few there were no wine glasses at all.

Warren was looking up now! He was glancing toward the boxes! He saw Helen and waved his napkin.

Helen flushed with pride as the other women in the box turned to look at her. In spite of their expensive gowns and jewels Helen felt certain that their husbands were not at handsome and distinguished as Warren.

The waiters had now all lined up by the door, each carrying a tray piled high with small white boxes—the dinner souvenirs. At a sign from the head waiter, they filed in and out through the tables, leaving a white box beside each plate.

Had the diners been women, they would have instantly opened the boxes, but the men seemed hardly to notice them. So Helen's curiosity was not gratified.

The Dinner Over.

At length the dinner was over. The waiters began carrying out the dishes and the pink-shaded candles, most of which had burned out. The orchestra that had been playing in a balcony above the boxes now stopped.

The chairman at the speakers' table rose and rapped for order. Helen wondered why he was chairman. He was small and insignificant with a thin voice that did not carry. After some tedious remarks which no one could hear, he introduced the first speaker of the evening, Dr. Olony, an eminent sociologist.

Helen leaned forward with eager interest. The speakers were all prominent men, and she felt thir addrsses would be well worth hearing. But Dr. Olony began with the usual trite preliminary remarks about it being "an honor to address so distinguished a gathering." Then to Helen's dismay he produced a formidable manuscript and preceded to read it.

Everybody sat back resignedly. After the first few moments Helen did not pretend to listen. The women beside her kept up a running conversation. Several men had now come up to the various boxes to sit with their wives and friends. The eminent Dr. Olony was still reading in a monotonous voice.

Helen's glance never left Warren for long, and now she saw him push back his chair and leave the table. He looked up and nodded. He was coming up to her!

"Well, what do you think of it?" when he entered the box and took the chair beside her.

"Oh, dear, it's very interesting," happily excited now that she was with her. How wonderful he looked—how distinguished! Her eyes rested on him proudly.

"Rotten speaker," he grumbled. "A man ought to be mobbed for reading a speech at a dinner like this. What people want is short pointed addresses of say—five minutes. That boob's been spouting for fifteen."

"Oh, dear, you didn't bring me your souvenir. I wanted so much to see them."

"Forgot the blamed thing. Get it for you later. Wonder who that stunning woman is in that box over there?"

Helen followed his glance to the dark-haired regal-looking woman. She was undeniably beautiful. Her gown of white lace was cut strikingly low, and there were strands of pearls about her throat and in her hair. Helen was not often jealous, but somehow she felt suddenly plain and poorly gowned beside the striking loveliness of that woman.

The speaker finished now and sat down amid much applause. He bowed repeatedly, not seeming to realize that the applause was only an expression of relief that he was through. Again the chairman rapped for order.

This time a United States Senator was introduced. To Helen's relief he had no notes, his voice was deep and booming, and he was plainly used to talking on his feet. But his ranting eloquence was just words—empty phrases. He had nothing particular to say and was merely "orating."

Warren, who loathed after-dinner speaking, and who rarely attended big dinners because he would not be bored, was becoming restive.

"How many more of these guys do we have to stand for?" drawing from his pocket the dinner menu, on the back of which were the names of the speakers. "Suffering cats! FOUR more? Well, I guess not! We'll cut it and make for home."

"Oh, dear, we'd better wait a little longer! It'll look rude to leave so early, Mr. Jennings will think we didn't enjoy it."

"Guess he's bored stiff, too. Why in blazes don't they have some live talkers instead of ringing in a lot of dead ones?"

If the speech of the eminent sociologist had been long, the Senator's seemed interminable. He boomed on with high-sounding phrases about "The Achievements of the Nineteenth Century..... The Splendid Strides of Civilization .....The Advancement of Society," and something about "Shining Orbits in the Sky of Future Progress.....Blazing in Front of the Jeweled Crown of an Unconquerable Race."

Every one was becoming impatient and restive, even the chairman had his mallet poised as though anxious to rap it, but still the Senator kept on shouting his oratorical phrases.

Missed the Souvenir.

"Gosh, that fellow loves to hear himself talk," growled Warren. "He's good for another hour yet. Come ON!"

"But dear, we must wait—we can't leave while he's speaking," whispered Helen.

"Like to know why we can't? Here's where I get out!"

"And I didn't get the souvenir—I didn't even see what they were!" bewailed Helen, as Warren hurried her out through the crowded corridors of the Astor-Ritz.

"Souvenirs!" with a contemptuous sniff. "Well I wouldn't have stood for any more of that duffer's speech for a dozen souvenirs. I'll wager he's spouting there yet."

"Yes, he WAS tiresome," Helen admitted, sinking back in the taxicab with a sigh of relief. Then laughingly, "Dear, if you ever make an after-dinner speech, don't begin by saying you 'feel honored to address so distinguished a gathering.' And don't—PLEASE don't use a lot of fine phrases that mean nothing."

"Huh," snorted Warren, "don't you worry! If ever I make a public speech I'll have something to say, and I'll say it blamed quick, and have gumption enough to sit down when I'm through."

KANSAS WOMAN WHO SUFFERED

From Headache, Backache, Dizziness and Nervousness, Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lawrence, Kans.—"A year ago I was suffering from a number of ailments. I always had pain and was irregular. During the delay I suffered a great deal with headache, backache, dizziness, feverish spells, nervousness and bloating. I had been married nearly three years. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I feel better than I have for years. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all who suffer as I did."—Mrs. M. ZEUNER, 1045 New Jersey Street, Lawrence, Kansas.

Montana Woman's Case.

Burns, Mont.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me of awful backache which I had suffered with for months. I was so weak I could hardly do my work and my head and eyes ached all the time. Your Compound helped me in many ways and is a great strengthener. I always recommend it to my friends and tell them what a grand medicine it is for women. You may use my name for the good of others."—Mrs. JOHN FRANCIS, Burns, Montana.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as those above—they tell the truth, else they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no stranger—it has stood the test for years.

POULTRY, PET and LIVE STOCK

Defects in Combs Of Chickens Often Mar Beauty of Fowls

Should Exercise Great Care In Breeding—Value by Judges.

EDITED BY JUDGE F. J. MARSHALL

The pea comb is a triple comb, or a series of three straight combs paralleling each other, and joined to each other at the base, each having small but distinct serrations throughout their length. The two outer rows being lower and thinner than the center one, the points formed in this way being so low and broad that they resemble rows of peas, hence the name given them. This comb should fit close and solid upon the head, rather than to stand up from the head and incline to turn from side to side.

The breeds having this comb are the Brahmas, Buckeyes, all the Cornish and Sumatra. The most common defect in these combs is the twisting from side to side near the middle. In other words, it is a kink in all three of the rows of points and makes the comb decidedly out of line when viewed from in front.

Another kind of comb that is often seen in one where the middle part of the combs show all right and is good shape in itself, but the sides are very faintly outlined and would almost be taken for a single comb at first sight. In mating up such stock for breeding purposes one is very likely to get some single combs and then the trouble has commenced.

The V comb is a very peculiar one and looks much like a pair of horns standing up from the center of the head. They show but very slightly upon the heads of the hens. On the well matured males it shows up all right. The comb in these breeds is, however, not considered a valuable asset, so that the smaller it is the better it is liked.

Value by Judges.

The comb is only valued at 4 points out of the 100. The breeds having this form of comb are as follows: All the Polish (which are eight varieties), the Houdans, Crevecoeurs, and LaFleche, French varieties.

Then we have the Malay and the Silkie, with the strawberry comb, which is not very much of a definite comb and is found only upon these two breeds of relatively small importance. The comb is really of more importance than is generally considered as a distinguishing feature of the breed or variety it represents. Take, for example, the Light Brahma, the variety which stands at the head of our list of thoroughbred fowls for recognized type in breeding and put a sort of mongrel type of comb upon it and what would it be worth? Or the Plymouth Rock and put a wrinkled turn-over sort of a comb upon it and a Rock man would simply laugh at you and want to know what it was mixed with.

It frequently occurs, however, that some of the larger combed hens of a variety are the heaviest layers. That is, they may have a comb almost too heavy for the breed, although of the right type, and be greatest layers of the flock.

Questions and Answers.

Judge Marshall:—Is it a good plan to breed pullets back to their sire? Some tell me it is just the thing to do, while others say it is detrimental to health. I would be very glad to have your opinion of it.

Monroe, Ga. S. J. R.

ANSWER:—While expert breeders of long experience take the chances of weakened vitality in the offspring for the sake of gaining some valuable points they have been striving hard for, yet, as a rule, it is not good policy to make a business of it. Unless you are sure you are going to be able to intensify a number of good qualities in the next generation, you had better not take the risk of multiplying a lot of serious defects.

You see, it is close inbreeding and is not a good policy for those who are not working for the very highest in type to undertake or run the risk of for health's sake. Of course, it is better to breed that way than to breed brother and sister together.

LEGAL NOTICES.

GUARDIAN SALE.
GEORGIA—Fulton County.

By virtue of an order of the court of ordinary of said county, granted at the May term, 1913, will be sold before the court house door of said county, on the first Tuesday in May next, within the legal hours of sale, the following property of the estate of Marguerite Smith, to-wit: A one-twentieth undivided interest in all that tract or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the city of Macon and County of Bibb, in said State, and distinguished in the plan of said city as parts of lots Nos. one and two (1 and 2) in block No. sixty-one (61), in the southwest common of the city of Macon, and fronting on Tattnall Street sixty (60) feet, and running back the same width one hundred and fifty (150) feet, and containing one-quarter of an acre, more or less, said lot adjoining on the three remaining sides the lands belonging to the estate of B. F. Ross, with an alley on the north, between said lands and the lot herein described, and being the residence of E. F. Smith, late of said County of Bibb, deceased, and being the same property contained and described in deed from Susan M. Persons and Clara F. Florence to Mrs. E. E. Smith and Mary E. Smith, recorded in Deed Book "DD" in the clerk's office of Bibb Superior Court folio 541, on February 23, 1882, which one-twentieth undivided interest is probably worth one hundred and fifty dollars.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

W. G. Raoul Property To Be Put on Market

Ten Lots Facing Piedmont Park. Druid Hills Sale—Improvements on Peachtree Road.

Ten lots in the estate of the late William G. Raoul, facing Piedmont Park, will be sold at private sale by the Forrest & George Adair real estate agency, according to announcement made to-day. The property was carefully assembled by Captain Raoul through a long period of years and this is the first time it has been offered for sale. The lots are on the west side of Piedmont Avenue, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth Streets. Several of them taken together were offered two years ago as a site for the State's executive mansion. The frontages are from 60 to 70 feet and the depths 150 to 200 feet.

Greenwood Avenue Sale.

Eugene S. Kelly has bought through his concern, the Charles P. Glover Realty Company, a residence lot on Greenwood Avenue, between Highland Avenue and Briarcliff Road, just west of Druid Hills, for $11,500. This lot is 305 by 169 feet. It was bought for investment from a client of the Glover agency.

Meetings at City Hall.

People who are working for a regrade of Whitehall and West Peachtree Streets are meeting this afternoon with the streets committee of Council at the City Hall, to urge improvements on their thoroughfares. The Whitehall Street matter is expected to be settled at this conference, and the West Peachtree question will be taken up later.

Foundry Street Purchase.

Mrs. Bertha Kline has bought through J. H. Ewing, of the Smith & Ewing real estate agency, a 40 by 100 foot lot on Foundry Street, between Elliott and Mangum Streets, for $2,250. A small house is on this property. The seller was L. M. Anderson.

Sale on Piedmont Road.

Deeds have gone to record in the sale March 6 of a large building lot at the northwest corner of Piedmont and Ivy Roads, from Claude E. Buchanan to Wesley Hirshburg, for $6,875. This lot is west of the William J. Stoddard place and in the neighborhood of other fine residences.

A bond for title has also gone to record in the sale March 31 of a 20 by 60 foot lot on Whitehall, near West Fair Street, to Nathan Wolfe by A. D. Greenfield, for $6,500.

Real Estate Activity.

An increase in different realty transfers as set forth in The Fulton County Daily Report shows the tendency of real estate to assume its normal aspect in the market. To-day's issue of this publication contained seventeen bond for title items and 32 warranty deed items, and led several real estate men to remark that the number was the best and most complete that The Report has ever issued.

Big Deals Coming.

Several important real estate deals are in the contract stage and should be announced early next week. One of these involves approximately $100,000 and there are a number of smaller figures.

Road Work at Buckhead.

County convicts are working fast to complete improvements on Peachtree Road, anticipating increased traffic which will come about June 1, when the Capital City Club takes charge of its country club at Brookhaven. The right-hand side of Peachtree Road, starting at Buckhead, has been macadamized nearly as far north as W. S. Witham's estate, and only awaits the steam roller to be put in good shape. Space between the car tracks has been taken on this northward trudge of the convicts. The work will proceed to the DeKalb County line and then the gang will turn back toward Buckhead.

County Commissioners are well satisfied with the work and predict that Peachtree Road will be in very good shape when Capital City golfers take their sticks to Brookhaven.

To Widen Roswell Road.

The proposition of widening the Roswell Road from Buckhead to Piedmont Road (formerly Plaster Bridge Road) has been revived. A year or two ago this matter was agitated. All property owners except one agreed to give 10 to 20 feet, and the opposition of the single owner blocked the project. Now E. T. Luckie, of the Holmes & Luckie Realty Company, has taken up the matter again, and he expresses confidence in the outcome. Mr. Luckie's idea is to lay out the Roswell Road so that whenever the demand is great enough on the part of the people along the route, a car line can be built to Roswell. Either this or the street car company can leave the wide thoroughfare to vehicular traffic and establish a private right-of-way close by.

The Railroads Can Rob the People IF---

They Can Arrange to Keep American Ships from Free Use of the Panama Canal.

Copyright, 1913.

In a cartoon printed several days ago our artist showed the Panama Canal with American ships held back by American locomotives.

That was a picture of fact, although many citizens do not know it.

All the solemn talk about "treaty obligations" about our duty to England, our national honor, is merely so much "railroad talk," a good deal of it well paid for by the railroads.

We are told that it is dishonorable, unfair, treacherous, etc., to permit American SHIPS to use an American CANAL, unless we also let English ships use the canal, without charge.

And the so-called friends of national honor—who are in reality gentlemen and newspapers subsidized or controlled by railroads—have actually managed to compel all but coastwise American ships to pay toll, like foreign vessels.

The railroads want no free use of the canal by American coastwise ships, and they fight such use through the politicians and newspapers that they own, for a simple reason.

The railroads make money carrying freight from the Atlantic to the Pacific. And the more they can CHARGE the more they can MAKE. Hitherto ships carrying freight from New York to San Francisco had to go all around South America. Therefore, the railroads could charge for freight carried 3,000 miles across the continent as much as it would cost to send a ship all around the continent. And, in addition, the railroad could add a charge for quick freight as against necessarily slow ocean freight.

Now ships will go from New York to the Pacific Coast through the canal, and the cost of water freight will be very small—UNLESS THE RAILROADS CAN MANAGE TO FASTEN A TOLL ON AMERICAN FREIGHT USING AN AMERICAN CANAL. This the railroads are trying to do, in the high-sounding name of national honor, treaty rights, etc.

For, don't you see, every dollar that railroad influence can lay as a tax on American shipping in the canal IS A DOLLAR THAT THE RAILROAD CAN ADD TO ITS FREIGHT CHARGES.

Let our Government charge American ships $2 a ton for using the canal, and the railroads can at once add $2 a ton to their freight rate.

Quite simple and clear, is it not?

Remember that when you hear the pitiful sobbing talk about protecting poor Great Britain against such an "outrage" as letting Americans, who built the canal and paid for it, give free use of it to American ships.

England, as a matter of fact, is very little interested in the matter, except that England's rich men own the Canadian Pacific Railroad, and they, like our railroad owners, are working to fasten a tax on American ships IN ORDER TO ADD THAT TAX TO AMERICAN FREIGHT SHIPPERS.

Fortunately the matter is pretty well understood.

This country will let all American ships use the canal without charge very soon. And our coastwise shipping will be free at once.

The Congress in this instance will not be used as a railroad freight collector. One Senator the other day introduced a resolution to set aside the existing treaty with England entirely—a thing we have a right to do at any time. There is no doubt that whatever may be necessary will be done to make and keep the American Canal FREE TO AMERICAN SHIPS.

Even the railroads, after they lose their foolish fight, will find it a good thing FOR THEM to help the general American prosperity.

Free use of the canal and low freight rates will bring lumber to the Atlantic Coast from the Far Northwest and bring fruit to the East from California and other Pacific States.

Eastern products will go at low freight rates through the canal to the Pacific. Business will grow, enterprise will find encouragement, labor, industry AND the railroads will share in the benefit of a canal UNITING THE COUNTRY MORE CLOSELY AND MORE CHEAPLY.

For every carload of cheap freight going through the canal and taken, apparently FROM the railroads, there will be two extra carloads of high priced freight FOR the roads. Profitable long hauls will increase and profitable short hauls as well.

And within ten years intelligent railroad men will thank the Panama Canal and free use of it by Americans for prosperity such as they have never seen.

MEANWHILE, IT IS IMPORTANT TO REALIZE THAT THE RAILROADS AND THEIR MANAGERS, NEAR-SIGHTED AS USUAL, ARE THE REAL POWER FIGHTING TO SHUT AMERICAN SHIPS OUT OF AN AMERICAN CANAL in the name of our holy duty to England.

How Your Mind Can Aid Health

By GARRETT P. SERVISS.

A GREAT DOCTOR once said: "Successful practice requires one-third science and two-thirds savoir faire" (knowing how to do it).

By that he meant impressing the imagination of the patient, and impressing it the right way. Any doctor can affect his patient's imagination, but many send its mercurial spirit dropping downward like a thermometer in a cold wave. If doctors ever really do kill their patients it is through what they administer to the mind.

We are only just beginning to learn something of the extent of the mind's control over health and disease. Many persons are willing to admit that the mind influences nervous affections, and that the imagination may either bring them on or drive them away; but they refuse to believe that mental influences which produce "lessons"—i. e., physical injuries to certain parts of the body.

Inspires With Confidence.

But they are wrong in their skepticism. The imagination can produce lesions as well as heal them. There never has been a great epidemic in which a large percentage of the mortality was not the result of mental upset. Mere fear kills like a lightning stroke by paralyzing the nervous system, whereupon the bodily machinery tears itself to pieces through loss of the central control.

I do not suppose that the imagination ever broke a bone or set one, but I am sure that it has either saved or lost the life of many a sick person, according to the way in which it happened to be directed, either by the will of the patient himself or by the guiding influence of a doctor or a nurse.

The successful doctor is the man who enters the sick room with his face full of cheer and of masterful confidence, and not with his pockets full of pills. The good nurse is worth her pay because she keeps her patient cheerful and confident. When you choose a doctor for your family, select one whose look makes you feel stronger. His presence will be like that of Napoleon on the battlefield.

It is not sympathy that heals; too much sympathy sometimes kills. It is confidence that does the good work. Away with your morose-looking doctor—unless it happens that behind the grave face there is an appearance of power, for that is worth more than all else in breeding confidence in the patient.

It has been suggested that "personal magnetism" is an actual, dynamic (moving) force proceeding from one person to another.

There is much to support that view. When Caesar in his scarlet cloak, with his bald head bared, rode through the lines of his soldiers at Alesia, something passed from him to them which enabled them to hurl back the assault of the three hundred thousand Gauls. It was the personal magnetism of Caesar that saved the day. It put courage into despairing hearts and energy into tired muscles.

But the best way to combat disease is to meet it with your own will. The patient who gives up can rarely be saved. Believe with all your might in your powers of resistance. Think of recovery, not of death.

Exerting Will Power.

A hot summer is before us, and it will bring its lassitude and its sicknesses, real or imaginary. Prepare yourself beforehand to meet these conditions by cultivating confidence, cheerfulness and will power. Joke about the thermometer when it goes up to ninety or a hundred in the shade, and don't draw a long face before it. If an epidemic breaks out, treat it as the Roman emperor treated the comet which terrified his friends. "Oh," he said, "that hairy star is after the king of the Persians, who has got whiskers. It won't trouble me."

And if you are doubtful about the power of the imagination to influence your body, read the stories of the "Stigmata" which appeared on some of the of old, when they concentrated their minds for days and nights together on the wounds of the Savior.

All Could See Them.

St. Francis, it is recorded, had all the marks of the Crucifixion upon him, though not produced by any hand or weapon.

Everybody could see them. St. Hieronyma Carvaglio had the spear mark in her side, which bled every Friday. St. Catharine, of Raconisco, had the marks of the Crown of Thorns on her head. All of these things, and many like them, are said to have been produced solely by pious meditations. You may smile at that, or you may not, according to your standards of belief, but you can hardly refuse to believe other things as wonderful that have been recorded on medical authority.

Whether you call it Christian Science, or mind healing, or blind faith, or anything else you may choose, there is no doubt that you have it in your power to influence by mental concentration the health and well-being of your body. Cultivate that power, and you will be the better for it. You will save, or shorten, many doctors' bills—but don't neglect the doctor, either; help him.

Writes on

The Suffrage Parade---It Was a History Making Spectacle and Marks the Exit of the Doll Baby Woman From the Stage of Life.

By DOROTHY DIX.

WHAT did people see as they watched the Suffrage Parade in New York last Saturday?

They saw the first real democracy of woman.

They saw Judy O'Grady and the Colonel's Lady marching shoulder to shoulder. They saw the petted darling of the drawing room walking side by side with the girl of the sweat shop.

In that procession were millionairesses keeping step with scrubwomen; college professors with the pupils of night schools; Fifth Avenue hostesses with waitresses from cheap lunch rooms; old women with withered cheeks and gray hair with girls in the first flush and bloom of youth and beauty. All lines of wealth and class and social distinction were wiped out by the great cause that touches every woman high and low, and that has brought them together in one great sisterhood.

What did the people see when they watched the Suffrage Parade?

They saw one of the spectacles that make history. They saw the passing of the old order of things and the entrance of the new.

Exit of Doll Baby Woman.

They saw the exit from the stage of life of the doll baby woman of the past, of the woman who could find the whole of life in adorning herself, whose interests were no wider than her own home, and who saw no shame in getting what she wanted out of some man by cajolery, or flattery, or lying, or whatever other means was necessary.

Dull, indeed, were the eyes that did not see in those thousands and thousands of earnest-faced women the type of the new womanhood that is marching onward to a place beside man, no more to be his toy and plaything, but his equal and his partner in doing the work of the world and reaping its rewards.

What did the people see as they watched the Cuffrage Parade?

They saw the spectre of injustice marching in every woman's shadow. The crowds through which those ten thousand white-clad women tramped were mostly silent, as well they might be with shame if they had eyes to see and a heart to comprehend the significance of the scene.

Own Millions; Can't Vote.

They saw women who owned millions of dollars' worth of property, but who were denied the right to say what taxes should be levied upon their property. They saw the representatives of six million working women, but who have no power in shaping the legislation that affected them.

They saw mothers whose little children's lives were crushed out of them in factories; housewives who must sweat every nickel to make it go a little farther when trusts put up prices; women who represented one half of the population, and who were affected by its every law, but who had no voice in making them. They saw highly educated women, brilliant professional women, noble women philanthropists, saintly church women, women who represented all that is finest and best in humanity, but who were denied the previleges that the most illiterate, the most debased, man enjoys.

What did the people see as they watched the Suffrage Parade?

They saw one of the most pathetic sights the world has ever witnessed. They saw womanhood humbling itself before man to ask as a boon the privilege that it should demand as a right.

They saw the wife who has grown gray and old in service to her husband, and who has given him the best years of her life, asking to be made his equal. They saw the mother who has borne his son in her arms going before him as a suppliant.

They saw the rich woman asking a dole of her butler and her footman.

They saw the woman college professor begging the ignorant and illiterate foreigner to share with her the right of government that he has and she has not. It was a silent, sad appeal to man to right the injustice he has done woman—to strike her political shackles from her.

Made Even the Doll Think.

No one except those who took part in it know what courage, what sacrifice of personal inclination, it took for quite, dignified, reserved women to tramp the streets, and make themselves a public spectacle for hundreds of thousands of curious eyes, and to be the butt of cheap wits and village cut-ups.

To most of the women every step of the way was the way of the cross, but they trod it unfalteringly, because there was no other means that could so effectually carry the message they had to give to the public. It was a spectacle that made even the dullest think.

What did they see as they watched the Suffrage Parade?

They saw victory marching on to its crowning. Every woman's face wore the uplifted look of a martyr, of one who would struggle on undismayed by defeat until she finally conquered. No one who witnessed that parade will ever jest and scoff again at woman's suffrage. He will know that it is a fact to be reckoned with, and that it is just as sure to come as is to-morrow.

THE LAST TOWN

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

Where is the Town at the end of the Line,
With its lure for the great and the small?
How shall we fare when we come to the sign
That was painted and hung for us all?
Long is the track and we can not go back
To wait for a faltering friend;
Through meadow and mart we are whirled from the start
To the wonderful Town at the end.

Some reach it in youth on a flying express
That passes the stations of strife,
And others grow gray while pursuing their way
On the laboring locals of life.
Some curse the Conductor and pray for the end,
And some think the pace is too fast;
Whatever the pace, we are nearing the place
Where we all leave the train at the last.

'Tis a mystical Town that no mortal has seen
Till the end of his long earthly ride;
But after the trip there is Knowledge to glean
About pomp and possessions and pride.
And perhaps we shall gain when we swing from the train
All the things we were forced to resign,
For the Agent is there, with each passenger's share,
In the Town at the end of the Line.

STATE URGED TO STERILIZE INSANE AND AID YOUNG

Board Reports Conditions at the Asylum at Milledgeville Call for Many Reforms — Governor Is Asked to Move for Changes.

Provision for Care of Children of Feeble Mind Badly Needed, Say Directors—Protest Against the Housing of "Lunatic-Convicts."

Striking new methods of handling patients in the Georgia State Sanitarium at Milledgeville are urged in the annual report of the board of directors, submitted to Governor Brown Friday. The most important recommendations are:

The enactment of a sterilization law, applying to certain classes of criminals and defectives, modeled after recently enacted laws of New Jersey and Indiana.

A ban on the commitment of epileptics (not insane), feeble-minded children, harmless seniles and paralytics and persons escaping trial by pleas of lunacy. This is a hospital and not a prison.

The report declares that poor results have been obtained at the institution in the cure of insanity on account of the crowded conditions and the lack of facilities for segregating and treating the curable cases apart from the criminal and hopelessly insane. A psycophathic hospital is urged.

No Provision for Children.

"No provision is made in our State educational system for the care and treatment of feeble-minded children," states the report. "Most of them are capable of training that will aid in their happiness and fit them for some usefulness. Only the grosser types are committed to the State Sanitarium, while the great majority are allowed to grow up without care.

"Further commitment with the insane should be stopped and some adequate provision made by the State for these children."

The report criticises the present system of confining epileptics not insane in the sanitarium, pointing out that association with crazy persons tends to hopelessly depress them and also has a bad effect on the insane persons. A hospital for epileptics is recommended; and it is suggested that it should be named for T. O. Powell because of the great service he has rendered the State along such lines.

Negro Quarters Insanitary.

Alarming insanitary and overcrowded conditions in the negro building are reported and the need of $100,000 for an annex to this building is said to be imperative. To separate the acute insane from the hopelessly insane an appropriation of $135,000 is urged. For a nurses' home $40,000 is asked.

There are 3,429 patients in the institution, 1,108 having been admitted this year. The daily average during 1912 was 3,424, an increase of 41 over 1911. The annual average increase during the last five years has been 89. Of eleven criminals committed, three were found to be sane.

The average cost per patient last year was $153.06. The total income of the sanitarium was $530,000.

There is an exceedingly high death rate among the negro patients. Most of the deaths in the institution are from tuberculosis and pellagra, recent increases in pellagra deaths being reported as startling.

The report was submitted by John F. Brantly, president of the board.

Other recommendations for changes in the laws governing the institution are:

That the three nearest adult relatives can, with the consent of the Ordinary, waive the ten days' notice of trial for lunacy. This is to prevent victims being held in jail during the ten days.

$35,000,000 For U. S. Railroads in Alaska

Congress Committee to Recommend Government Line—Private Roads Charged With Extortion.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—A bill providing for the construction of Government railroads in Alaska to cost $35,000,000 or more, will be reported by the Committee on Territories as soon as official reports from the several departments can be collected to be included in the evidence with which the committee will defend its bill.

O. L. Dickinson, of the White Pass and Yukon Railroad, testified that private transportation companies have exacted prohibitive rates on tonnage and delayed the development of the country.

Jeffries Offered Job As Sparring Partner

Gunboat Smith Wants Immediate Answer—Ex-Heavyweight Champion Recovers From Shock.

LOS ANGELES, May 9.—Jim Jeffries, former heavyweight champion of the world, is said to be slightly improved to-day following a fainting spell in which he succumbed yesterday after he got the following telegram from Gunboat Smith, who is to box Jess Willard in San Francisco May 20:

"Do you want to come North and act as my sparring partner? Answer immediately."

It is said that even Jack Johnson's knockout punch did not pain Jeff as much as Smith's offer of a sparring partner's job.

New York Gasps at Garb of C. Murphy

Chicago Baseball Magnate Dazzles Broadway With Green Hat, Striped Suit and Spotted Vest.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Gotham is gasping to-day over the raiment that decorated the form of C. Webb Murphy, owner of the Cubs, when he appeared on the streets to-day.

Murphy wore a green velvet hat with a fancy bow, a tan overcoat with a velvet collar, a sassy looking black nd white striped suit, green vest with cream colored spots, a green tie with black stripes, white silk stockings, very light colored tan shoes and chamois gloves.

Pope Again Giving Official Audiences

Aged Pontiff Still Very Thin and Colorless, but Shows Unexpected Strength.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

ROME, May 9.—Pope Pius X today gave his first official audience since his recent illness, receiving the apostolic mission which attended the Eucharistic Congress at Malta.

The members of the mission congratulated the Pontiff upon his recovery and in turn received the Papal blessing.

The Pontiff still is very thin and his usually ruddy face is colorless, but he shows unexpected strength.

Hobble Blamed for Arson Trust's Origin

Merchants, Unable to Sell Old Styles, Called on Firebugs to Destroy Worthless Stocks.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Changes in styles which rendered worthless thousands of dollars' worth of stock in women's clothes was one of the factors that fostered the arson trust, according to Assistant State's Attorney Frank Johnson.

Dealers, finding themselves stocked with clothing that could not be sold when women decided to wear tight skirts, called the torch men into help, Johnson asserted.

CHILD BURNS TO DEATH PLAYING WITH MATCHES

MACON, GA., May 9.—Emmett Ellis, ten-year-old son of A. J. Ellis, a Macon contractor, was burned to death in a fire which destroyed the home of D. B. Ellis, at Roberta, Crawford County, late yesterday afternoon.

The boy had been playing with matches in the garret of the house and it is supposed that the fire started that way.

SENATE BEGINS CONSIDERATION OF TARIFF BILL

Received From House and Referred—Hearings Are Secret. Expect Vote in Nine Weeks.

ANTICIPATE MANY CHANGES

Democrats Rejoice as Representatives Pass Underwood Measure by Vote of 281 to 139.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Shortly after the Senate convened to-day the Underwood tariff bill was brought over from the House, read and referred to the Finance Committee.

In the Finance Committee the schedule was assigned to sub-committee No. 1, composed of Senators Stone, Thomas, James and Simmons, and the wool schedule to No. 2—Senators Williams, Shively, Gore and Simmons. The remaining schedules were divided equally between subcommittees 1, 2 and 3.

Hearings on the bill will be behind closed doors, the Democrats having decided that public hearings would consume too much time. It is expected that three weeks will be used by the committee in considering the measures, and six weeks more in debate on the floor.

It also is considered certain that a number of changes will be made in the measure, necessitating its reference to the conference of the House and Senate members.

On the final test in the House last night the vote was 281 to 139, five Democrats voting against the bill and two Republicans voting for it. Four Progressives supported the bill and fourteen opposed it, while one Independent Progressive joined with the majority.

When Speaker Clark announced the vote in loud tones that revealed his satisfaction exhuberant Democrats hoisted a stuffed Democratic donkey over the heads of their colleagues in the rear of the chamber, a ripple of applause followed and the gavel fell on the first chapter in the history of President Wilson's extra session of Congress.

With the bill on its way to the Senate, there was a rush of Representatives for their homes. In the House adjournment will be taken three days at a time beginning next week until June 1.

Wiley, 'Cow Center,' Loses Depot Fight

Mathis Is Given Station by State Railroad Commission—Victor Cited Its Beauty.

Wiley, the "natural center of the cow movement," and the most populous town of the vicinity, with twenty-three persons, loses its fight for an agency station on the Tallulah Falls Railroad.

By order of the Georgia Railroad Commission, Mathis is the victor. The Tallulah Falls Railroad has been instructed to build a station there and put an agent in charge.

Both towns are in Rabun County. They engaged in excited strife over the location of the station. Mathis built its plea on its natural beauty.

'Children Sold Like Animals in Illinois'

Conditions at 'Baby Farms' Scored by Head of Legislative Investigating Committee.

PEORIA, ILL., May 9.—Acting Chairman S. E. Lloyd of the Illinois House committee investigating "baby farms" to-day bitterly denounced conditions which the committee has found.

"They think more of hay and horses in Illinois than they do of children," he said. "We found that babies have been bartered and sold like animals; that they have been sent out of the State without any chance that their parents, if they are known, ever will find them again."

Winkles, Arrested, Pleads Self-Defense

Contractor Who Stabbed Architect Hal Hentz Under $300 Bond. Victim in Hospital.

J. A. Winkles, the East Point contractor who stabbed Hal Hentz, well-known architect, Wednesday afternoon in Ponce deLeon Avenue, has been arrested and his bond fixed at $300. The case has not been set for trial, as the wounded man still is in the hospital.

Winkles asserted that he acted in self-defense, Hentz having attacked him. The trouble grew out of a dispute over work on a new home for Solicitor Hugh Dorsey in Ponce de-Leon Avenue.

Bryan Sets Record For Low Expenses

Trip of Cabinet Member and His Secretary to California Cost U. S. Only $187.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—An economy record in official Cabinet expense accounts has been made by Secretary of State Bryan.

He turned in an account of but $187 for Pullman fares, hotel accommodations and incidental expenses incurred upon his recent trip to California by himself and his private secretary, Robert Rose.

Railroad mileage was not included.

BEST DETECTIVE IN AMERICA NOW ON PHAGAN CASE, SAYS DORSEY

Miss Nellie Pettis, at top, who testified against Frank at the inquest. At the bottom, Mrs. Lillie Pettis, her sister-in-law, former employee at the pencil factory.

Solicitor Dorsey Says He Has Secured Powerful Aid in Search for Slayer of Girl---Woman Says She Heard Screams in Pencil Factory.

Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey said Friday afternoon that he had the best detective in America working on the mystery of the Mary Phagan strangling.

Important developments had ensued already, he declared, and he was confident that an early solution of the case would be reached by the new expert of national reputation who had been placed at work on the clews.

The solicitor is understood to have the affidavit of a woman who swears that she heard a girl's screams as she was passing the factory at 4:30 o'clock the afternoon of the tragedy. The cries were shrill and piercing, she says, and died away as she stopped an instant to listen.

The woman was sure they came from inside the factory, but she gave little attention to her startling experience until she read of the strangling of Mary Phagan. Then it occurred to her that she very likely had heard the dying cries of the little girl and she reported the matter to the authorities.

Solicitor Dorsey, as his first action after the holding of Leo M. Frank and Newt Lee to the Grand Jury for the murder of Mary Phagan, put out the dragnet for witnesses.

A batch of subpenas were issued for the witnesses to appear in his office to give testimony in the case of "The State vs. John Doe."

After a long conference with Detectives Starnes and Campbell, Solicitor Dorsey asserted that action on the part of the Grand Jury might be expected any time after Friday. He plainly intimated that a special session of the jury might be convened Saturday to consider the Phagan murder.

The Solicitor declared as he left the court house with a private detective whose name he refused to divulge that he anticipated the development of startling evidence before night, which, he said, would clear matters materially.

Dorsey Questions Newt Lee.

With the private detective the Solicitor went to the Tower and was closeted with Newt Lee, the night watchman, for more than an hour.

The form of the subpena is taken to mean that many of the witnesses will submit their sworn testimony before the Solicitor General, who will thus have it in documentary form, instead of going before the Grand Jury to give oral testimony. However, it will be necessary for the material or indicting witnesses to go before the Grand Jurors in person.

"The investigation has just begun," said Chief of Detectives Lanford Friday, in discussing the action of the Coroner's jury. "We were confident we had presented sufficient evidence to warrant the holding of the two suspects in the case, but we will have much more when the case gets into the courts.

Have Strong Theory Already.

"We are going to continue right on with the investigation and try to dig down to the full truth of the mystery. We have a strongly supported theory as to who committed the crime, but we are ready at any time to change our opinions as soon as the evidence points in another direction.

"It will be possible, with the rush and hurry of the Coroner's jury passed, for my men to work with more deliberation and care and to sift with a greater thoroughness every bit of evidence that comes into their possession. Even if nothing new should develop, we have enough leads to keep half a dozen detectives busy for a week."

Detectives Rosser, Campbell, Black, Starnes and Bullard are still working with the chief on the case and probably will continue until the mystery is cleared.

'And I'm Going to See Our Baby Is Treated Justly by Harry's Relatives,' She Adds.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

PLYMOUTH, ENGLAND, May 9.—Upon her arrival here to-day on board the liner Olympic from New York, Mrs. Evelyn Thaw, wife of Harry Thaw, declared emphatically and positively that her husband is the father of her baby, a fact which he denies.

"One has only to look at the little darling to know who its father is," she said, as she cuddled the infant. "Harry is my husband and the father of my child. I love my baby and am going to see that it is justly treated by relatives of my husband."

Mrs. Thaw said she was going to return to the stage at once. She has signed contracts, she said, to appear in music halls in London at $5,000 a week, and later will be seen in vaudeville in the United States.

"I must live, and I think that I will be able to make a success," she explained.

She's Also Anxious to Plow, She Declares, in Application for Farm Job.

MINNEAPOLIS, May 9.—"I want to plough, clean house, make hay and drive binders in the field," says Grace Simpson in her application to the Devils Lake Commercial Club for a chance to do the same work on a farm as a man would.

"The day is past when it is out of the ordinary for a girl to labor at men's work," Miss Simpson asserted. "I love horses and I am sure that I can take just as good care of them as any man. The city work would kill me in the summer time. I can beat some men at their own jobs at that. If I can get as good wages in the country as I can get here I shall leave immediately."

'Send Man of 40 to College and He'll Go to Dogs,' Declares Lowell.

CHICAGO, May 9.—President A. Lawrence Lowell, of Harvard University, to-day advised the bachelors of the Harvard Club of Chicago to marry early.

"It is neither well for a man nor his community that he wait until he is 28 before he thinks of marriage," said President Lowell. "It is better that he launch his efforts into the world while young. Send a man to college at 40 and he will go to the dogs."

Bryan, After a Conference With Ambassador Chinda, Presents Views at Cabinet Meeting.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Viscount Chinda, Japanese Ambassador, had a conference with Secretary of State Bryan to-day, which lasted 27 minutes, and at which the Japanese diplomat presented Japan's views on the California anti-alien land law.

At the close of the conference Ambassador Chinda said: "I can say nothing about the results of the conference."

Secretary Bryan declared he could give no intimation of the result of the conference, and left immediately for the White House to attend the Cabinet meeting, where the Japanese situation was discussed at length.

'CURE' DOUBTED BY U. S. EXPERTS

Results of Friedmann Treatment Do Not Justify Confidence, Health Board Reports.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—"Effects of the Friedmann cure thus far observed do not justify the confidence in the remedy which has been inspired by well-meant publicity."

This is the crux of an official statement from the board of examiners of the public health service, delivered by Dr. John F. Anderson before the American Congress of Physicians and Surgeons in Washington to-day.

Dr. Anderson said harm may have been done by undue publicity in lessening the confidence of tuberculosis victims in well-recognized methods of treatment.

With respect to the patients under examination in New York, he said many have developed no considerable infiltrate at all and have not suffered from abscess formations. This would indicate that they must be under treatment a long time to effect a cure, as Dr. Friedmann stated that infiltrate and abscess formations indicated more or less rapid progress toward cure.

PHAGAN CASE TO BE RUSHED TO GRAND JURY BY DORSEY

ping department at the National Pencil factory, was the first of the witnesses to be examined by the Solicitor. He was in Mr. Dorsey's office a considerable part of the forenoon and underwent a rigorous examination.

New Witnesses Sought.

Detectives Starnes and Campbell also were with the Solicitor, and two of the Solicitor's assistants, Newton Garner and Dan Goodlin, were dispatched the first thing in the morning to hunt up new witnesses of whom Mr. Dorsey had information.

Foreman Quinn was called, it is understood, to clear up the discrepancies in his testimony and the statement he is said to have made to the detectives and to several of his acquaintances. In his testimony before the Coroner's jury he declared that he visited the factory between 12:10 and 12:30 o'clock, the afternoon of the killing of Mary Phagan. He said he talked with Frank for two minutes in the superintendent's office.

Detectives declared that Quinn had told them and other persons that he did not visit the factory at all Saturday and that he was not there from the time he left Friday until the following Monday.

Frank Expected To Be Held.

"That's about what I expected at this time," was the comment with which Leo M. Frank, with little trace of emotion, received the news of the action of the Coroner's jury Thursday night.

Deputy Sheriff Plennie Minor was the officer who informed both Frank and Newt Lee that the jury had recommended that they be held under charges of murder for further investigation by the Fulton County Grand Jury.

The night watchman received the news indifferently and had nothing to say.

Atlanta, Ga., May 8, 1913.

We, the Coroner's jury, impaneled and sworn by Paul Donehoo, Coroner of Fulton County, to inquire into the cause of the death of Mary Phagan, whose dead body now lies before us, after having heard the evidence of sworn witnesses, and the statement of Dr. J. W. Hurt, County Physician, find that the deceased came to her death from strangulation. We recommend that Leo M. Frank and Newt Lee be held under charges of murder for further investigation by the Fulton County Grand Jury.

(Signed)
HOMER C. ASHFORD, Foreman.
DR. J. W. HURT, County Physician.

Solicitor Dorsey said Friday he would give the Phagan case all of his attention and present his evidence to the Grand Jury as quickly as possible.

The solicitor has shown an anxiety to avoid delays of any nature in hunting down the slayer of the Phagan girl, and now that the Coroner's jury has turned the case over to the Solicitor and the Grand Jury it may be taken for granted that the investigation will be hurried along with all possible speed.

Case in State's Hands.

"The case now is fully in the hands of the State," said the Solicitor Friday morning. "It will not be presented to the Grand Jury Friday, but I shall endeavor to present it at the earliest possible moment. The instant that I have a complete case I shall bring it to the attention of the Grand Jury. It is my desire to bring the slayer of Mary Phagan to justice with the greatest dispatch. A great crime has been done and I am no less eager to see the guilt determined than the general public."

It required the Coroner's jury about twenty minutes to frame its formal verdict Thursday night. The jurors received a brief charge from Coroner Donehoo and filed from the Commissioners' room in the police station at 6:08 o'clock. At 6:28 they were back with their verdict.

Coroner Donehoo admonished the jurors to be as ready to hold a person who they thought might be withholding information of the crime as to hold a person they regarded as the possible culprit. A person possessing knowledge of the crime and withholding it, he said, was an accessory after the fact.

An immediate hush fell on the packed room when the jurors returned. There was a dead silence except for the voice of Homer C. Ashford, foreman of the jury, when the verdict was read.

Girls Testify Against Frank.

The most damaging testimony against Frank in regard to his treatment of employees at his factory was saved until the last hours of the hearing. Girls and women were called to the stand to testify that they had been employed at the factory or had had occasion to go there, and that Frank had attempted familiarities with them.

Nellie Pettis, of 9 Oliver Street, declared that Frank had made improper advances to her. She was asked if she ever had been employed at the pencil factory.

"No," she answered.

Q. Do you know Leo Frank?—A. I have seen him once or twice."

Q. When and where did you see him?—A. In his office at the factory whenever I went to draw my sister-in-law's pay.

Q. What did he say to you that might have been improper on any of these visits?—A. He didn't exactly say—he made gestures. I went to get sister's pay about four weeks ago and when I went into the office of Mr. Frank I asked for her. He told me I couldn't see her unless "I saw him first."

Says He Winked at Her.

"I told him I didn't want to 'see him.' He pulled a box from his desk. It had a lot of money in it. He looked at it significantly and then looked at me. When he looked at me, he winked. As he winked he said: 'How about it?'

"I instantly told him I was a nice girl."

Here the witness stopped her statement. Coroner Donehoo asked her sharply:

"Didn't you say anything else?"

"Yes, I did! I told him to go to h—l and walked out of his office."

Thomas Blackstock, who said that he was employed at the factory about a year ago testified as follows:

Tells of Frank's Conduct.

Q. Do you know Leo M. Frank?—A. Yes.

Q. How long have you known him?—A. About six weeks.

Q. Did you ever observe his conduct toward female employees of the pencil factory?—A. Yes. I've often seen him picking on different girls.

Q. Name some.—A. I can't exactly recollect names.

Q. What was the conduct you noticed particularly?

The witness answered to the effect that he had seen him place his hands with undue familiarity upon the person of girls.

Q. See it often?—A. A half dozen times, maybe. He generally was seen to become that familiar while he was touring the building.

Q. Can't you name just one girl?—A. Yes. Magnolia Kennedy.

Q. Did you see him act with undue familiarity toward her?—A. No. I heard talk about it.

Q. Before or after the murder?—A. Afterward.

"Girls Tried to Avoid Him."

Q. When did you observe this misconduct of which you have told?—A. A year ago.

Q. Did you hear complaints around the plant?—A. No. The girls tried to avoid him.

Mrs. C. D. Donegan said she was connected with the pencil plant for three weeks. Her capacity was that of forelady. She resides at 165 West Fourteenth Street with her husband.

Her testimony follows:

"State your observations of Frank's conduct toward the girls and women of the plant."

"I have noticed him smile and wink at the girls in the place. That was two years ago."

"Did you make a statement to the detectives of undue familiarity you had witnessed?"

"I told them that I had seen Frank flirt with the girls and women—that was all I said."

Charges Familiarities.

The testimony of Nellie Wood, a young girl of 8 Corput Street, came next.

In brief it was this:

Q. Do you know Leo Frank?—A. I worked for him two days.

Q. Did you observe any misconduct on his part?—A. Well, his actions didn't suit me. He'd come around and put his hands on me, when such conduct was entirely uncalled for.

Q. Is that all he did?—A. No. He asked me one day to come into his office, saying that he wanted to talk to me. He tried to close the door, but I wouldn't let him. He got too familiar by getting so close to me. He also put his hands on me.

Q. Where did he put his hands?—A. He barely touched my breast. He was subtle with his approaches, and tried to pretend that he was joking, but I was too wary for such as that.

Quit His Employ.

Q. Did he try further familiarities?—A. Yes.

Q. When did this happen?—A. Two years ago.

Q. What did you tell him when you left his employ?—A. I just quit, telling him that it didn't suit me.

Frank's testimony was looked forward to with keen interest, but when he was called to the stand in the afternoon, he merely answered additional questions as to his movements on the day of the crime and failed to add materially to the evidence in hand.

He appeared pale and haggard from his imprisonment, but he replied to all of the questions clearly and showed no hesitation or apparent fear. He was asked:

Testimony of Frank.

Q. What kind of elevator door is there to the shaft in the pencil factory?—A. Sliding doors.

Q. How many?—A. One on each floor.

Q. Are they latticed or solid?—A. Solid.

Q. Where was the elevator at 12 o'clock Saturday?—A. I did not notice.

Q. Were the doors open or closed? A. I don't remember.

Q. What protection would a person have from falling down the shaft if the doors were left open?—A. A bar which projects across the opening.

Q. After the crime was committed, where did the elevator stand?—A. I only know where it stood Sunday morning. It then was on the second floor.

Didn't File Time Tape.

Q. When you last removed the tape from the time clock, what did you do with it?—A. Handed it to an officer in the building.

Q. Did you put it on file?—A. No.

Q. Are you sure?—A. Yes, positive.

Q. Do you remember a party at your house on the night of April 26?—A. Yes.

Q. Can you name the guests?—A. I don't remember them all.

Q. When the police came to bring you down to the factory that Sunday morning, what was said about whisky?—A. I said I wanted something warm to drink. One of the detectives suggested whisky.

Q. What time was it?—A. Between 7:30 and 8 o'clock.

Says He Viewed Body.

Q. What did you say about dreaming?—A. I said to someone that I thought I had dreamed of hearing the telephone ring in the dead of night.

Q. When you went to the undertakers', did you go in the water closet instead of the room in which the body lay?—A. No.

Q. Did you view the body?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you recognize the girl—A. Yes.

Q. When did you first hear her name?—A. I don't remember.

Q. What time did you return home that Sunday afternoon?—A. I don't recollect.

Q. Did you telephone your wife before your return?—A. Yes.

Q. Was the murder discussed at home that afternoon?—A. Not much.

Q. What topic was discussed.—A. I don't remember.

Often Does Not Remember.

Q. When did Quinn first mention to you his visit to the factory on the 26th?—A. I don't remember.

Q. What did he say?—A. He said, "Don't you recollect that I was at the factory Saturday about noon?"

Q. What did you tell him about withholding that information until your attorney had been consulted?—A. I don't remember. I had so many visitors that I couldn't recollect the exact words.

Q. Who suggested the conference with your attorney relative to Quinn's visit?—A. I don't remember.

Q. How long have you known you had counsel?—A. Since Monday.

Q. Why was it mentioned that Quinn's visit be kept quiet until consultation with your lawyer?—A. I don't remember.

Explains Locks and Doors.

Q. How can you lock the door between your office and the dressing room where the blood spots were found?—A. I have never seen it locked.

Q. Is it usually open or locked?—A. Closed.

Q. Is there any way of closing the doors on the back stairway?—A. Yes They are locked.

sation with Detective Starnes at the time you were informed of the tragedy?—A. He asked me if I was superintendent of the National Pencil Factory. "I'd like to have you come down here at once," he said when I informed him that I was Leo Frank. He said he wanted me to identify a girl, and asked me if I knew Mary Phagan.

Q. Didn't you say that the first time you had heard her name was while you were traveling in the auto on the way to the factory Sunday morning?—A. I don't recollect that I did.

Q. Did you have any trouble with a girl in your office Saturday morning?—A. No. There was one incident where a mistake had been made in the pay envelope of Mattie Smith, but it was corrected without any trouble.

Tells of Callers at Office.

Q. What time was Mattie Smith in your office?—A. Between 9 and 10 a. m.

Q. Did any one enter while she was there?—A. I don't remember.

Q. Give the name of every one in the office throughout the day Saturday?—A. Mr. Darley, Mr. Holloway, the office boy, Miss Hall, the stenographer; Mr. Campbell, Mr. Fullerton, Mrs. White, Lemmie Quinn, Mr. Gantt, Emma Clark, another girl employee, Arthur White, Harry Denham, Newt Lee and Mary Phagan.

Q. Did you see May Barrett?—A. I don't know her.

Q. What did you say to Emma Clark?—A. I don't remember saying anything to her.

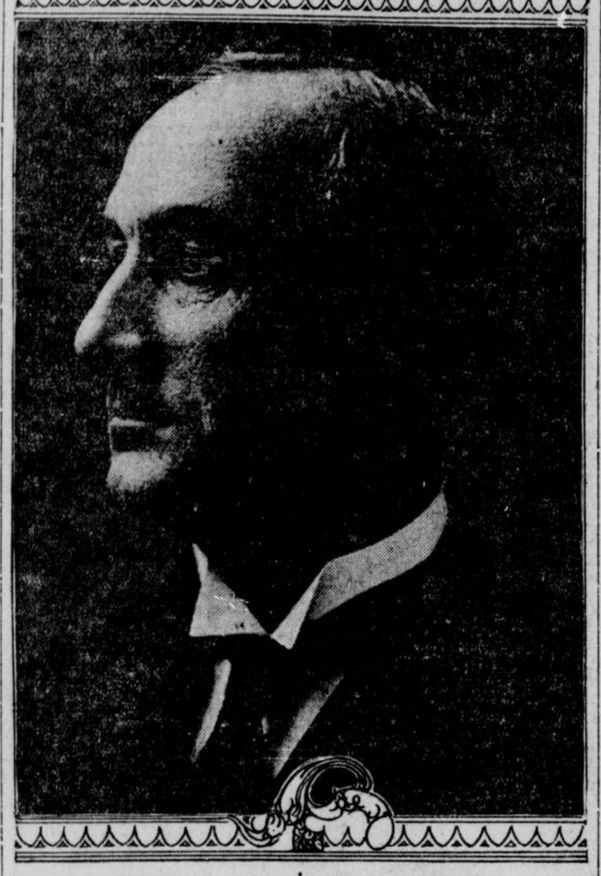
Atlanta Ready for Presbyterians

5,000 Visitors for Assemblies

Noted Speakers on the Programs

REV. THOMAS STONE CLYCE, moderator of the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church, 1912, who will be one of the prominent visitors in Atlanta next week. Dr. Clyce is president of Austin College at Sherman, Texas.



Consolidation of Four Branches To Be Considered in Gathering Here Next Week.

Preparations are virtually completed to-day for the great Presbyterian convention to be held in Atlanta beginning May 15. For the first time in the history of Presbyterianism in America representatives from its four branches will gather in joint assembly.

From May 15 to May 22 more than 5,000 visiting Presbyterians will be the city's guests. Of this number 1,500 will be regularly appointed commissioners, constituting the largest religious assemblage ever held in the South. More than 700 representatives of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., or Northern Division, 500 from the Presbyterian Church, U. S., or Southern Division; 300 from the United Presbyterian and 25 special representatives from the Associate Reformed Churches will comprise the assemblies.

Atlanta has thrown open her homes to the visitors, all denominations uniting in entertaining the church representatives who come from every State in the Union, Porto Rico, Hawaii and Panama. A number of prominent churchmen from Canada also are expected. The commissioners are chosen, one-half from the clergy and the other half from the laity.

They constitute the governing body of the church and are selected largely because of their prominence and their activity in church work.

Church Union Considered.

Southern Presbyterians will be especially interested in the discussions looking to a union between the United and the Southern divisions. Two committees were appointed last year, one from each of the branches, to confer on a possible basis of union. Their reports will be submitted. It is said the committees have reached an agreement and it is generally believed that the assemblies will act favorably on their reports. Details of the agreement have not been published, but it is believed that they will prove acceptable to both bodies.

While the Associate Reformed branch of the church will not hold a regular conference here, prominent representatives will be in attendance as special commissioners. Their synod met in December, but it is probable that an adjourned session will be held.

A feature of the meeting here, carrying with it perhaps the most widespread interest, will be a possible effort to unite the Northern and Southern branches of the church. Unorganized endeavor has been made during several years past to bring about the union, but with no further results than that churchmen have been aroused on the subject. The joint meeting here is regarded by representative Presbyterians as a most auspicious occasion for the matter to be thrashed out and a union effected. No such opportunity has ever offered itself, as the assemblies have always met in widely separated cities, at separate times.

Union Seminary Fight.

Of considerable interest, particularly to the Northern branch of the church, will be the effort to bring Union Theological Seminary back into the fold. The sixteen delegates from New York, however, were elected on the pledge that they would fight to maintain the present status of the seminary. Charges of extravagance and usurpation of authority against the Board of Home Missions of the Northern Church will be investigated. Rev. Joseph L. Weaver, D.D., of Rocky Ford, Colo., it is understood, has preferred the charges. Dr. William Fulton, of Philadelphia, is chairman of the investigating committee.

An interesting fight for the place of moderator of the Northern Assembly has developed. The leading candidates are Rev. Dr. Maint-Alexander, of Pittsburg; Rev. Dr. Samuel S. Palmer, of Columbus, Ohio; Rev. Dr. William McKibbin, president of Lane Theological Seminary of Cincinnati, anad Rev. Dr. Frederick W. Hinitt, of Danville, Ky.

Bryan to Speak.

The meeting of the assemblies in Atlanta will bring to the city some of the notable men of the country, prominent not only in church affairs, but national figures also.

United States Senator Hoke Smith will be present Tuesday, May 20, to preside over a meeting for home missions. Some of the most prominent leaders of the Associate Reformed branch of the church will be in attendance upon the assemblies, one of them being Dr. J. H. Pressley, of Statesville, N. C., moderator of the A. R. P. division.

Among the definite arrangements already made are a number of conferences at the various churches of the city. The main sessions will be held at the Baptist Tabernacle and the Auditorium.

A joint fellowship gathering will be held at the Auditorium Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, Rev. R. O. Flinn, of the North Avenue Church of Atlanta, will preside. A welcome address will be delivered by J. K. Orr, an elder of the North Avenue Church, after which fraternal greetings will be extended from the moderators of the four assemblies, Rev. T. S. Clyce, of Texas, for the Southern division; Rev. J. H. Pressley, of North Carolina, for the Associate Reformed Assembly; Rev. Hugh H. Bell, of California, for the United Assembly; Rev. Mark A. Mathews, of Washington State, for the Northern division.

Canadian on Program.

The principal address of the evening will be made by Mr. James McDonald, Ph. D., of The Toronto Globe, Toronto, Canada, on "The Church's Responsibility for International Peace."

Under the direction of Rev. Dunbar Ogden, of Central Presbyterian Church, Atlanta, a union communion service will be held at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Baptist Tabernacle. The moderators of the four assemblies will conduct the service.

Rev. Charles R. Stelzle, of New York, and Marion Jackson, of Atlanta, will be principal speakers at a Christian social service meeting Saturday night at the Auditorium. "Christian Citizenship and the Social Evil" is the subject of Mr. Jackson's address.

GOES TO PREACH REFORM IN JAIL; HELD AS GUN TOTER

COLUMBUS, GA., May 9.—When Jailer Layfield of Muscogee County searched an Atlanta negro minister, who came to the jail to make a reform talk to the prisoners, he found a big loaded pistol in his pocket. The negro was locked up. He will face Judge Gilbert of the Superior Court next week.

'KID KABARET' AT FEDERAL PRISON

Gus Edwards' Youngsters Exhaust Their Repertoire in Answer to Convicts' Encores.

No one would have suspected the 800 laughing, uproarious men before whom Gus Edwards' "Kabaret Kids" played Friday morning of being sorrowed and embittered by long years within prison walls.

It was one of the most ususual audiences the "kabaret kids" had ever had—800 convicts serving terms of various lengths at the Atlanta Federal Prison.

The talented youngsters succeeded in making the prisoners forget for a few minutes their isolation from the world. The galling confinement and discipline that droop the shoulders and break the spirit of the transgressor were forgotten and the men became merely boisterously happy human beings.

They cheered and clapped and stamped on the floor until Gus Edwards' young stars had exhausted their repertoire and all that was left for them to do was to make motions. The convicts have so little opportunity of seeing young people that they wanted to get a good look while the "kids" were there.

Miss Belle Storey sang just as she sings at the Forsyth every day—gowns and all.

A ball game preceded the entertainment.

GIRL PRISONER IN TAXICAB BREAKS WINDOWS; RESCUED

CHICAGO, May 9.—Smashing the windows in a taxicab, Viola Schifance, aged 20, screamed for help today. Policemen rescued her. The girl said she was seized by three Italians, hustled into the cab and driven away.

Two of the men in the taxi escaped. A third, Antonio Moola, was captured. The girl's hands were lacerated on the broken glass.

NAGEL TO PENSION HORSES HE DROVE AS SECRETARY

WASHINGTON, May 9.—When Charles Nagel, of St. Louis, was Secretary of Commerce and Labor in President Taft's Cabinet, a pair of coal-black horses was provided for his use by the Government. These horses, now old, are to be auctioned. "I have a small farm," he said, "and I hope to be able to bid high enough to secure this pair and pension them for life."

Militia Chiefs Call G. M. A. Camp Model

Regimental Staff Inspects Cadet Corps at Lakewood and Remains to Dance.

Students of the Georgia Military Academy are to-day jubilant over high praise bestowed on their camp at Lakewood by officers of the Fifth Regiment of the Georgia National Guard, who were guests of the cadets Thursday afternoon. The entire regimental staff took part in the inspection. It pronounced the camp a model.

A dance was held Thursday night in honor of the Fifth Regiment. The day was officially known as "ex-cadet day," and many former students of the school were present.

THOUGHTLESSNESS CAUSES LOSS OF MAIL PACKAGES

Postmaster Hugh McKee asserted Friday that thoughtlessness on the part of people and not carelessness on the part of postal authorities had been responsible for the loss of many mail packages.

"It appears that people, rather than bring a package here to the office to be mailed, will just place it on top of the mail boxes on the streets, if it is too large to go inside," he said.

SHRINERS OFF TO DALLAS TO CAPTURE MEET FOR ATLANTA

Yaarab Temple Boosters, 200 Strong, Leave Friday Night for Convention---Confident of Success.

I want to again express my appreciation for the assistance of Mr. Hearst and his newspapers throughout the country. If Atlanta gets the 1914 meeting Mr. Hearst and his papers will be largely responsible.—POTENTATE FORREST ADAIR.

"The Imperial Council will meet in Atlanta in 1914. Personally I have no doubt of it. We have hotel accommodations; Memphis has not and we have made a remarkable record in raising a fund of $76,000 in one day that every Shriner in America knows about.

"And we leave to-night for Dallas better equipped to extend an invitation of this kind than any city or Temple that has extended a like invitation in a great number of years."

With this statement Forrest Adair, potentate of Yaarab Temple, announced Friday morning that every detail of the pilgrimage to the convention of the Imperial Council of Shriners at Dallas, Tex., was complete and Atlanta's delegation, nearly 200 strong, would leave in a special train over the Southern Railway at 10 o'clock Friday night.

Reach Dallas Sunday.

Early Sunday morning the Atlanta pilgrims will have crossed the hot sands and entered the Oasis of Dallas. They will go into the city with their coats on their arms, prepared to drown out any discordant note, from Memphis, or anywhere for that matter, with the now familiar slogan:

"Atlanta, 1914."

At Birmingham, Meridian, Shreveport and a score of points along the line, Atlanta boosters will board the train, and go with the delegation to Dallas to swell the total and bring the convention to the Southeast next year.

Mr. Adair and his official delegation, W. A. Foster, John A. Hynds and Claude H. Hutcheson, of Jonesboro, will extend the invitation.

They will be fortified with official invitations from the Mayor and City Council and every trades organization in the city, as well as open contracts from every hotel in Atlanta, assuring accommodations for as many as 4,000 Shriners, the number expected here next year.

No "Holdup" in Rates.

The beauty of the hotel contracts, as explained by Mr. Adair, is that "inauguration rates" will not be charged.

"Only the regular rates," said Mr. Adair, "will be in force, and I have with the contracts a diagram of the floor space indicating the room and the regular rate. They won't be able to go above the rate, even if the hotel men felt inclined to.

"Memphis will not get the convention, because it hasn't got the hotels and the Shriners know it," said Mr. Adair. "They're building one now, but it won't compare with any of the nicer hotels already completed in Atlanta, and as for the best hotels there—Atlanta's got better on the side streets. This alone makes it doubly sure we'll get the convention, but if there's any doubt the size of our delegation removes it."

The Arab Patrol of Yaarab Temple, the crack drum corps, 40 strong, will be a valuable asset of the Atlanta delegation. It is an independent organization formed by the temple for convention work and occasions that demand public appearance. It has attracted much attention at conventions throughout the country.

Members of the Patrol.

The patrol is as follows:

Captain J. O. Seamons, First Lieutenant H. C. Ashford, Second Lieutenant F. E. Van der Veer, First Sergeant C. W. Ferguson, Quartermaster H. H. Milner and Patrolmen Albert Akers, C. E. Barber, J. J. Barnes, Jr., W. D. Benson, F. M. Brotherton, George E. Argard, R. A. Burnett, G. I. Butler, A. B. Chapman, R. E. Church, Frank Cundell, E. E. Cunningham, J. C. Deavours, George Freeman, L. H. Geiger, H. H. Green, J. L. Grice, J. C. Jones, M. E. McGee, M. N. Mixon, T. A. Mixon and R. S. Osborn.

Some unofficial delegates who will go are Fred Houser, J. C. Greenfield, S. L. Dickey, W. R. Joyner, H. G. Martin, J. B. Jacoway, Fred Patterson, Graham Phelan, J. Lee Barnes, Ben Corey, J. F. Carson, Fred Van der Pool, J. F. Waitt, George Beck, Jesse E. Couch and James Kempton.

The delegation will leave Dallas, returning, the evening of May 15 at 8 o'clock and arrive in Atlanta the evening of May 17.

The Atlanta Lodge of Elks has pledged the Shriners its enthusiastic support in the effort to bring the Shrine here next year. Exalted Ruler Dunne has written the Shriners that the Elks' home will be wide open to all visitors if the great meeting comes here.

DRUGGIST FLED IN FEAR OF BROYLES

Thought Recorder Would Send Him to Stockade for Breaking Garbage Ordinance.

A. S. Knight, manager of a Peters Street drug store, was convinced Friday that Recorder Nash Broyles is not such a terror as he had pictured in his mind.

Knight had never seen Judge Broyles, but had heard and read so much of him that when Sanitary Inspector Simpson cited him to appear in police court on a charge of violating the garbage ordinance he was attacked with a severe case of fright. Although an offense against the garbage laws draws only a small fine, Knight was tortured with the belief that the Recorder would put him in the stockade for about 30 days.

Therefore, instead of appearing in court Tuesday, Knight fled the city with his two children. Dr. A. L. Curtis, proprietor of the drug store, finally located the missing manager in Macon and persuaded him to return and surrender.

Knight told Judge Broyles Thursday afternoon he fled because he was "afraid." He was fined $5.75 in the original garbage case and $10.75 for dodging the court.

Look Out For the Big Market Basket

The good housewives of Atlanta find this feature of Friday's Georgian a great time-saver—a great money-saver. Those who advertise find it a great business getter. All are happy.

TROOPS IN TURK CAPITAL MUTINY

Commander General of Ottoman Army Uses Personal Guard to Quell Uprising.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 9.—Mutiny has developed in the Turkish army stationed along the Chatalja defenses, and it is feared a revolutionary uprising will follow.

Seditious placards were posted in the night throughout the Peroa and Stamboul quarters of the city.

Enver Bey, chief of staff of the Turkish army, is using his personal bodyguard to patrol the city. The guard consists of 700 picked and tried troops.

Sultan Mohammed V did not attend worship in the Yildiz mosque to-day.

Nicholas' Surrender Explanation Cheered.

CETTINJE, MONTENEGRO, May 9.—King Nicholas personally went before the National Parliament to-day and defended his action in giving way to the powers on the question of the evacuation of Scutari. He declared that annihilation inevitably would have followed resistance.

The statement was well taken and Nicholas was cheered.

Nearly all the Montenegrin troops have now left Scutari. King Nicholas feels keenly the humiliation of losing Scutari, and it again is reported he will abdicate in favor of the Crown Prince Danilo.

Scutari Saved From Destruction by Fire.

VIENNA, May 9.—Scutari, the Albanian city whose ownership nearly brought Europe to war, was threatened with destruction by fire to-day. A telegram from Cettinje said flames broke out in the main bazaar and owing to the absence of water and fire fighting appliances, spread rapidly.

500 STRIKERS IN BATTLE.

WINNIPEG, MAN., May 9.—Five hundred strikers at the Canada Car Company's plant to-day fought a battle with 180 strikebreakers. Several of the strikebreakers were injured.

TO LIVE 100 YEARS READ NEWSPAPERS, SAYS CENTENARIAN

BOSTON, May 9.—Ralph Butler, of Dorchester, is 100 years old, and to-day drew up a list of rules for living a century, as follows:

Walk and take plenty of other exercise.

Read the newspapers to keep your mind young.

Eat anything you want, but eat to live, not live to eat, and eat regularly.

Don't take your office cares home with you.

Get to bed early and regularly, and 5 o'clock is not too early to rise.

Two months ago Butler walked to city hall and surprised the Collector of Taxes by paying the amount due on the real estate he holds.

"I'm just as well able to walk to-day as I was twenty years ago," he said. "I feel as active as when 40."

WORLD'S CREDIT BEGINS TO SHOW A GREAT STRAIN

Loans Heavy—New Securities a Drain—Gold Shipments From New York to Paris Deplored.

BY W. R. LAWSON.

Special Cable to The American.

LONDON, May 9.—Serious bankers do not look with favor upon the renewal of gold shipments from New York to Paris.

All of the big international banks appear to be loaned up to the danger level, while the big new security issues that are coming along are bound to strain banking credit and resources. This week four new issues came out, and several more are in preparation.

Brazil's $55,000,000.

Brazil wants $55,000,000—$15,000,000 to be used for the repayment of treasury bills. Lever Brothers are putting out $5,000,000 new preference shares, and Baltimore Gas $3,500,000. United Fruit's $12,000,000 four-year coupon notes have been successfully placed.

Between now and the end of the month special settlements are due which are likely to increase the demand for money.

Situation in London.

Lombard Street is enjoying temporary ease owing to end-of-the-month borrowing from the Bank of England, but large repayments will have to be made within the next few days.

Further reduction in the English bank rate is not expected immediately. The Berlin rate is hardening, and if Boerse speculation breaks loose again, easy money may be a remote possibility.

Hitherto, while the war was in progress, European stocks have been upheld by finance houses for the purpose of facilitating big loan issues which they were preparing to make later.

American Stocks Firmer.

Between September, 1912, and the end of April, 1913, declines in European stocks have generally been very trifling, while American stocks suffered heavy declines.

From this it is reasoned that American securities offer a better field for a bull campaign.

$25,000,000 INSURANCE ON MORGAN ART WORKS

NEW YORK, May 9.—A situation almost without precedent in the insurance market is reported as a result of J. P. Morgan's plan to insure the $50,000,000 worth of art objects left by his father. The $25,000,000 that is being taken by 250 American and foreign insurance companies is the largest amount sought in many years upon a single risk.

It has been necessary to divide the collection into two risks, one in the old building of the Metropolitan museum and the other in the new building, effecting an average rate of 14½ cents.

CAN'T HELP BUT ADMIRE BABIES

Every Woman Casts Loving Glance at The Nestling Cuddled in Its Bonnet.

A woman's heart naturally responds to the charm and sweetness of a pretty child, and more to-day than ever before since the advent of Mother's Friend.

This is a most wonderful external help to the muscles and tendons. It penetrates the tissues, makes them pliant to readily yield to nature's demand for expansion, so there is no longer a period of pain, discomfort, straining, nausea or other symptoms so often distressing during the anxious weeks of expectancy.

Mother's Friend prepares the system for the coming event, and its use brings comfort, rest and repose during the term. This has a most marked influence upon the baby, since it thus inherits a splendid growing system of nerves and digestive function.

And particularly to young mothers is this famous remedy of inestimable value. It enables her to preserve her health and strength, and she remains a pretty mother by having avoided all the suffering and danger that would otherwise accompany such an occasion. Mother's Friend thoroughly lubricates every nerve, tendon and muscle involved and is a sure preventive for caking of the breasts.

You will find this splendid remedy on sale at all drug stores at $1.00 a bottle, and is highly recommended for the purpose.

Write Bradfield Regulator Co., 134 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., and they will mail you, sealed, a very instructive book for expectant mothers.

Mrs. Wilson Picks Rome Postmaster

Congressman Lee Agrees to Choice of President's Wife—Bowie to Get Office.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Probably the only bit of political patronage that Mrs. Woodrow Wilson is to dictate during her husband's administration was given her yesterday, when the President sent for Representative Gordon Lee, of Georgia, and told him that Mrs. Wilson would like to name the postmaster at Rome, her birthplace. The office is the most important in the Seventh District and pays a salary of $3,500 a year.

Mr. Lee told the President he would be glad to yield to Mrs. Wilson. The President said Mrs. Wilson would probably name J. P. Bowie, an elderly man who was very fond of Mrs. Wilson when she was a little girl. Mr. Lee said he would be glad to join in indorsing him.

WRITERS DROP 'BAD' SONGS; ALL WRITING BALLADS NOW

CHICAGO, May 9.—Doom sounded to-day for the smut song. It struck in "Tin Pan Alley," where the dens of the popular song writers are located. The song writers hurriedly are throwing together "clean stuff" in an agony of decent competition. Every writer in the block is pounding out ballad stuff.

Bride Revolts When Treated Like Child

Mrs. Ada Garrett Quits Place in Husband's Family Circle to Demand Divorce.

Mrs. Ada Davies Garrett, married to Thomas Hoyt Garrett March 1, 1913, and separated the last day of the month, filed a suit for divorce with the Superior Court Friday, because she said her husband wanted her to live in his father's home "just like one of the children," and took no other interest in her or her welfare.

The petitioner said that after the first few days of their married life, her husband, a young engineer for the Southern Railway, informed her that she was to take her place in his family circle just like his brothers and sisters.

NEGRO PUGILIST, TRIED AS SLAVER, WINS FIRST RULING

CHICAGO, May 9.—Jack Johnson, negro pugilist, won the first important point in his case to-day when Judge Carpenter, hearing the negro's trial for violation of the white slave act, ruled that Belle Schreiber could not tell of alleged cruelties on the part of the black.

FEUD IN STATE DEPARTMENT GROWING HOT

Connor-Brown Fight for Place in Next Administration Sets Politicians Gossiping.

Well defined and authoritative rumors of a first-class row inside the Georgia Agricultural Department, involving the present and the next administration, is the piquant morsel of gossip political observers are chewing upon.

The present Commissioner of Agriculture, J. J. Connor, and the present Assistant Commissioner, J. J. Brown, both, it is said, aspire to be Assistant Commissioner under Commissioner James D. Price, who goes into office in June.

Some time ago Commissioner Connor and Assistant Commissioner Brown are said to have had an understanding, the alleged setting aside of which is now the cause of the disturbance within the department.

Brown is understood to have promised Connor his assistance in the matter of the recent election of a manager at the Agricultural Experiment Station in Griffin, in return for Connor's assistance in landing the Assistant Commissionership under Price for Brown.

When the election of a manager took place at Griffin recently, however, Connor was not elected, the plum going to Professor DeLoach, of Athens.

Since that election, Brown's friends claim that Connor has entered the race for the Assistant Commissionership under Price, and Assistant Commissioner Brown has been outspoken in his indignation and surprise.

The Assistant Commissioner will be appointed by Commissioner Price after he is sworn in, and in the meantime the disagreement between Connor and Brown as to which, if either, shall have the assistant's place is extremely interesting to political observers throughout the State.

New Gowns Shock 'Bath House' John

'And It Takes Some Shock to Get Me,' Admits Famous Chicago Alderman.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Alderman "Bathhouse" John Coughlin is so shocked at the gowns he sees on the streets that he has drafted an ordinance to regulate women's dress, solely, he says, on moral grounds.

"We must pass an ordinance prohibiting women from wearing vulgar and suggestive dresses," he told the Judiciary Committee. "Some of the dresses I see on the street shock my moral senses, and it takes some shock to get me. The gowns are awful. No wonder there is business for a vice commission."

Granite State Honors Pierce After 40 Years

New Hampshire Democratic Legislature Favors Statue of One-Time President.

CONCORD, May 9.—Franklin Pierce, the only President from New Hampshire, seems assured, at last, of a statute by his native State. The Senate has passed a House bill providing for a $15,000 appropriation. Governor Felker is expected to sign the measure.

The fact that Pierce was a Democrat and pro-slavery man has hitherto aroused strong opposition to a statue. The Legislature is Democratic for the first time in forty years.

Miss C. H. Jones Dies; Set Church Record

Member of Second Baptist Congregation Never Missed Sunday School in 60 Years.

Never having missed a Sunday school service for more than 60 years is the record of Miss Carrie H. Jones, aged 81, who died early Friday morning at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Dawson, 120 Park Street. The deceased was a member of the Second Baptist Church and resided in Atlanta 35 years. She came to Atlanta from Abbeville, S. C.

The funeral will be held from the Dawson residence at 3:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, Rev. Dr. John E. White and Rev. Dr. John F. Purser officiating. Deacons of the Second Baptist Church will act as pallbearers. Interment will be in Oakland Cemetery.

The deceased is survived by two nieces, Mrs. Homer Dawson, of Atlanta, and Mrs. C. T. Henderson, of Port Tampa, Fla.; a nephew, Bruce Jones, and a brother, Captain J. Hill Jones, both of Port Tampa.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

Walter S. Wimbish, former Atlanta insurance man, died Friday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Frank Archer, in Rome, Ga. The funeral services will be held in Rome Saturday morning, and the body taken to Cedartown, Ga., for interment. Mr. Wimbish, who was sixty-five years old, is survived by one son, Carter Wimbish, of Birmingham, and two daughters.

Mrs. Catherine Kendrick, 71 Capitol Avenue, died Thursday night at a private sanitarium. Mrs. Kendrick is survived by her husband, E. L. Kendrick; a daughter, Miss Mary Kendrick; four sisters, Mrs. Mary L. Darden and Mrs. F. J. Sweency, of Atlanta; Mrs. Mollie Ward, of Paducah, Ky., and Mrs. T. J. Burke, of Birmingham, Ala. Funeral services will be conducted Saturday morning at 6:15 o'clock in the Immaculate Conception Church. Burial will be at Sharon, Ga.

PRETTY VASSAR GIRL AFTER 'BIG PAT'S' SHOT-PUT RECORD

MISS ELIZABETH A. HARDEN. PATRICK M'DONALD SETTING A NEW MARK.

Wealthy Not Safe by 1915, Lecturer Says

J. F. Emerson, Minneapolis Man, Predicts Great Revolution of the Unemployed.

Unless conditions materially change it will not be safe for a millionaire to step outside of his home in 1915. This is the prediction made by J. F. Emerson, of Minneapolis, who will lecture at Cable Hall Sunday afternoon.

"If a change does not take place to stop the rapid increase of the number of the unemployed, I predict that by 1915 there will be such a revolution as will make the millionaire afraid to step outside his home for fear of having his brains blown out by the starving man who awaits him," is the comment made by Emerson.

Emerson's lecture will be free to the public. The subject will be "Was Man Created for Heaven?"

SEVEN MEN GIVE PATCHES OF SKIN TO SAVE BOY

NEW YORK, May 9.—If 10-year-old William Caldwell, of Nutley, N. J., survives the burns which he received when he fell into a bonfire several weeks ago, it will be through the aid of patches of skin from no less than seven men, who have volunteered for the sacrifice. The surgeons figure that he needs 180 square inches of skin grafted upon his body to save his life.

NEW YORK, May 9.—"Well, I swan—"

Just at this point the automobiles around Forty-second Street became congested, and genial "Pat" McDonald, pride of the traffic cops and champion shot-putter of the world, broke off his exclamation. Maybe it was best so, for Patrick had just been told that a Vassar College girl was after his shot-putting laurels and he seemed a bit "miffed."

He did not seem at all pleased to think that his athletic prowess should be overshadowed—not by a young college girl, at any rate.

But Miss Elizabeth Abigail Harden, of Newark, N. J., and a freshman at Vassar, is just as proud of her record as McDonald is of his, and she said to-day that she will shortly do even better than 33 feet and 3-4 inches.

In the shot-put McDonald's mark for the 24-pound shot is 39 feet and 3 3-4 inches.

No Vassar girl will ever reach Pat's record, however, for they throw a seven-pound shot at the girl's college.

Miss Harden's triumph came in the annual field meet at Vassar last week, and she was easily the star of the day. Besides the shot-put even, Miss Harden won the basket ball throwing contest with a mark of 80 feet 13 1-8 inches and the baseball throwing with 205 feet 7 inches. In both the latter events she broke records held by Miss Inez Milholland, who heretofore had been held the champion all-around woman athlete.

Like Miss Milholland, the Newark girl is an ardent worker for votes for women, and the only blight to her triumphs of Saturday was the fact that the meet kept her from marching with the other 10,000 women who are fighting for the ballot.

GERMAN ARMY DIRIGIBLE LOST TWO DAYS IN STORM

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

KOENIGSBERG, GERMANY, May 9.—The Cassiopela, a spherical German military balloon, which ascended from this city Wednesday with Captain Von Wobeser and two passengers on board, has been missing 48 hours in a storm, and fears are felt for the safety of the aeronauts.

MOST SICKNESS COMES FROM WEAK, INACTIVE KIDNEYS

Recent Reports Show Hundreds Suffer With Kidney Troubles and Don't Know It.

There are scores of nervous, tired, run-down people throughout the city suffering with pains in the back and sides, dizzy spells, weakenesses of the bladder (frequently causing annoyance at night), who fail to realize the seriousness of their troubles until such conditions as chronic rheumatism, bladder troubles, dropsy, diabetes or even Bright's disease result.

All this is due to weak, inactive kidneys. The kidneys are the filterers of the blood, and no one can be well and healthy unless the kidneys work properly. It is even more important than that the bowels move regularly.

If you suffer with such symptoms don't neglect yourself another day and run the risk of serious complications. Secure an original package of the new discovery, Croxone, which costs but a trifle, and commence its use at once. When you have taken a few doses, you will be surprised how differently you will feel.

Croxone cures the worst cases of kidney, bladder trouble, and rheumatism, because it removes the cause. It cleans out the kidneys, and makes them filter out all the poisonous waste matter and uric acid that lodge in the joints and muscles, causing rheumatism; soothes and heals the bladder, and quickly relieves you of all your misery.

You will find Croxone different from all other remedies. It matters not how old you are or how long you have suffered, it is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results.

An original package of Croxone costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if it fails to give the desired results the very first time you use it.

ALASKA ROW IS LAID TO FISHER FEARING BATH

Railroader Tells How Secretary of Interior Got Unfavorable Impression of Controller Bay.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Richard S. Ryan, president of the Controller Bay Railroad and Navigation Company and one of the principals in the Dick-to-Dick letters, opposed Government ownership and operation of railroads in Alaska and attacked the accuracy of the Railway Commission's report on proposed routes, before the Senate Committee on Territories to-day.

Ryan asserted the conclusions of the commission are at variance with facts, and if the commission had used scientific facts in possession of the Government its report would have been entirely different.

Ryan referred sarcastically to the "wonderful visit" of Former Secretary of the Interior to Alaska and asserted that his unfavorable opinion of the Controller Bay country was due to the fact that he became "scared."

Ryan said that when Fisher started up the Bering River he lost heart at the sight of breakers, demanded to be let out of the boat and walked through marsh lands back to Katalla.

Matron at Soldiers' Home Dies Suddenly

Miss Aba T. Clayton Drops Dead After Five Years' Service to Confederate Veterans.

Miss Aba T. Clayton, matron at the Confederate Soldiers' Home, dropped dead Friday morning in her room after superintending the preparation of breakfast for the 106 inmates of the home. She had been afflicted with heart trouble.

Miss Clayton had been matron at the home five years and had won the hearts of the old veterans after whose comfort she looked with painstaking care. Her death was a distinct shock to them.

A sister, Miss Kate Clayton, of Atlanta, was notified and the body was brought to the undertaking establishment of Barclay and Brandon, from where it will be sent to Greensboro, Ga., the family home, for interment.

Lad, 13, Says He Shot Suitor of Mother

Declares He Ordered Man From Home, Then Fired in Self-Defense.

CLEVELAND, OHIO, May 9.—Duson Kostit, 32, is in a critical condition to-day from a wound inflicted last night by George Lukin, 13, son of Mrs. Amelia Lukin. The boy surrendered.

"Kostit had been calling on my mother for seven months," the boy told the police. "I ordered him to leave last night. He pulled a revolver and fired twice. Then I took aim with my rifle and he dropped, crying he had been shot."

"The Way, The Truth and The Life"

Mansions in Heaven, Factories on Earth, And Certain Houses

The night of His betrayal, Jesus said:

"Let not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me.

"In my Father's house are many mansions; if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you."

You believe, and yet are troubled.

His cross and love have made you dissatisfied with self and with what you see and hear.

Visions of a heavenly home for you can not soothe you, so long as yonder hovels pour streams of children into Mammon's maw.

"They should be at play," you say.

Instead, factories and mills are marring their hearts and lives to make dividends for men.

Not this did Jesus mean, when He said:

"Suffer the little children to come unto Me."

And you would not—could not still the pity born of His spirit surging in your heart.

Rightly, you deny that woman's virtue depends on money.

But many families receiving less than a living wage must live within cheerless walls.

And this, you know—

When their girl is lost, fathers and mothers are not consoled by the thought that, had their wage been greater they could have saved her from the colorless, gloomy home which made her the more easily believe the luring lies of an easier way to live.

"Better had she died," you cry.

True! But you will not defend the hovel and the wage.

You recall:

"The day-spring from on high hath visited us,

"To give light to them that sit in darkness and in the shadow of death, to guide our feet in the way of peace."

And so, when some misguided man says:

"Segregate a few women for the common good."

You answer:

"Who shall choose the victims?

"Since when did God give man the right to assign some to mansions in the skies and send others to lodgings in hell?"

You justly say:

"Have done with the lie that men being lower than beasts makes necessary the ruin of some women!"

Even should a creature, like the fabled Minotaur of Crete, more monster than man, appear, you will not talk of sacrificing girls for him.

Instead, you will lock up the brute.

Segregate him in a cell; that would be well.

The day has past for the making and selling of white slaves in our city.

God's pity for His children is opening your eyes and ears.

You will help your sister. Never again will you consent by silence to her destruction.

Heaven help the man who thinks you will.

You are awake.

"You believe in God."

THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF THE MEN AND RELIGION FORWARD MOVEMENT.

SUFFRAGETTES ASSAIL ASQUITH AND CHURCHILL

Guards Save English Premier From Injury by "Young Hot Blood" Militants.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 9.—Fresh suffragette outrages stirred England today. Members of the "Young Hot Blood" service of the Women's Social and Political Union burned Oaklea mansion, at Barrow, causing a $50,000 loss.

Other members of the union attempted to attack Premier and Mrs. Asquith and First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill and Mrs. Churchill as they were on their way to the Victoria Railway station today.

Mr. and Mrs. Asquith and Mr. and Mrs. Churchill were leaving on a journey to Venice, where they will embark upon the Admiralty yacht Enchantress for a cruise through the Mediterranean for inspection of British fortresses and navy depots.

Saved by Their Guards.

Only the fact that they had a heavy bodyguard of policemen, soldiers and private detectives saved them from injury at the hands of militant suffragettes.

Mrs. Flora Drummond, or "General" Drummond, as she is known because of her Amazonian qualities, who collapsed in Bow Street Court yesterday during the trial of the women arrested in the raid on headquarters of the Women's Social and Political Union, was in a serious condition to-day. She had refused to eat for a week to spite the government and her health has become so badly deranged as a result that an operation may be necessary. She was removed to a nursing home this morning.

Love Wins New Ally.

Interesting sidelights on the organization of militants are being brought out at the trial of the militant leaders. Letters seized by the police include a number of passionate, burning love letters from a former Socialist member of Parliament. The letters show that he is infatuated with one of the leaders of the "wild women" and that he allied himself with the "cause" at her command.

Other documents show that the most dangerous branch of the union is called the "Service of Young Hot Bloods." No one but young unmarried women of high courage are admitted. These are some of the questions put to them before they are admitted into this branch of the union:

Are you willing to die a violent death to-day?

Are you afraid of dynamite or any other high explosive?

Will you swear to hunger strike if sent to jail?

Will you renounce the softer characteristics of womankind in favor of a great principle?

Are you healthy and strong and able to hold your own against a single policeman?

The arsonettes and the members of the dynamite squad are recruited from the "Y. H. B." service.

King Edward Speed 'Fiend,' Says Autoist

Late Monarch's Chauffeur Tells in a Book of His Ruler's Traits.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 9.—Interesting trials in King Edward's character are revealed in the book, "What I Know," by C. W. Stamper, private automobile expert to the late monarch. It says: "The King liked speedy traveling, but insisted on careful driving through towns and villages. His walk was never leisurely. He was in and out of a motor car or a train in a moment.

"He spoke rapidly, ate very fast and smoked hard. Speed was the essence of his nature."

The King's chauffeur always was instructed by the equerry to observe the legal speed limit, but if the King complained, he was to increase the speed temporarily and gradually to slacken it again.

SEABOARD MAY OBTAIN LINE TO CHATTANOOGA

GADSDEN, ALA., May 9.—The election of J. W. Middendorf, a director of the Seaboard Air Line, as president of the Alabama Company strengthens the rumors circulated some time ago to the effect that the Seaboard Air Line will enter the Gadsden district and will probably get into Chattanooga over the Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia Railroad.

ROME-GADSDEN RAILROAD PROMOTERS MEET AGAIN

GADSDEN, ALA., May 9.—J. W. Wadsworth, president of the Rome and Gadsden Railroad, and other officials elected at a meeting of those interested in the company here last week, went to Rome, Ga., to-day to attend a meeting of the officers and directors. The company will be incorporated immediately and steps will be taken looking to financing the project.

CINCINNATI, May 9.—Nothing will stop a strike of the employees of the Cincinnati Traction Company, according to views expressed by leaders of the men to-day. The street car officials have decided to ignore the men, claiming the union is not strong enough to cripple service.

Better Than Medicine

Breathe Hyomei and Be Rid of Catarrh—Clears Stopped-Up Head.

Nature has a remedy for catarrh and troubles of the breathing organs, a treatment that is far better than dosing the stomach with medicine.

It is the healing oils and balsams of Hyomei which medicate the air you breathe, reaching the most remote air cells in the nose, throat and lungs, killing the catarrhal germs, and restoring health to the musous membrane.

In using Hyomei you are treating your catarrhal troubles with the natural remedy, for it gives a curative bath to the air passages. It has a powerful healing and antiseptic effect similar to the air in the mountains where the forests give off the fragrant and healing balsams.

Hyomei has benefited so many sufferers of the worst cases of catarrh, with offensive breath, raising of mucous, frequent sneezing, droppings in the throat and spasmodic coughing that it is sold under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it does not do all that is claimed for it. If the treatment does not help you, there will not be a penny's expense, while if it cures the cost is nominal. A complete Hyomei Outfit sells for only $1.00. Extra bottles of liquid if later needed 50 cents.

Druggists everywhere.

SCHOOL PUPILS TO SING IN CONCERT

Eighth Grade Will Render Folk-Song Program in Auditorium Friday Evening.

The eighth grades of the city schools, assisted by a selected number from the seventh grades, will sing in concert at the Auditorium Friday evening at 8 o'clock. The program will be folk songs of many countries.

William M. Slaton, Superintendent of Schools, will be in charge of the evening's program. Dr. Percy J. Starnes, the organist, will be accompanist. Miss Kate Harralson, director of music of the schools, will conduct the chorus.

Thirty-five of the city schools will be represented.

Some of the boys from the first grade of the Boys' High School have been invited to have charge of distributing the programs and seating the audience. The concert is open to the public.

The program reads:

Songs of England—"The Fox Hunt;" "Weel May the Keel Row."

Songs of Scotland—"Flow, Gently, Sweet Afton;" "Auld Lang Syne."

Songs of Scotland and France (by Seventh grades)—"Blue Bells of Scotland;" "My Normandy."

Church Learns Its Pastor Was Convict

Minister Who Disappeared From New Jersey Town Is Sought by the Police.

NEW YORK, May 9.—The disappearance of the Rev. John Solomon, after he had conducted Sunday evening services in the United Christian Church at Arlington, N. J., was explained yesterday when it became known that the police of Newark and Kearney were looking for him on behalf of the authorities of Elmira Reformatory. Solomon, it was said, had broken parole from that institution.

Since February Solomon has been acting as assistant pastor of the little Arlington church, and also as treasurer of the Jersey Home for Destitute Children and Homeless Women.

House Tries Glover For Attack on Sims

Washington Millionaire Charged With Contempt for Striking Tennessee Congressman.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The House met an hour earlier than usual to-day to take up and act upon the case of Charles C. Glover, the millionaire bank president, whom a special House committee found guilty of contempt for assault upon Representative Sims, of Tennessee, in Farragut Square on April 18. The incident was the sequel of criticism made by Mr. Sims upon Mr. Glover in connection with real estate transactions in Washington.

A special committee of the House recommended that the Speaker issue a warrant for Mr. Glover's arrest to answer the contempt charge.

NEWS JOTTINGS ABOUT TOWN

John F. Cone, president of the Travelers' Bank and Trust Company, is making a trip to Eastern cities.

The hearing of the parallel cases of E. E. Skipper et al. and Matthew Delaney et al. against the Guarantee Trust and Banking Company, probably will not be completed before the middle of next week. The case occupied the entire time of the Superior Court on Thursday.

U. S. CHECKS TOLL OF TUBERCULOSIS

Death Rate Decreased From 174.5 to 139.7 Per 100,000 Population in Last Decade.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—That the death rate in the United States from tuberculosis during the decade ending in 1910 has diminished from 174.5 per 100,000 of population to 139.7 was the statement made here by Dr. Frederick L. Hoffman of Newark, in an address before the sociological section of the National association for the study and prevention of tuberculosis.

"In other words," said Dr. Hoffman, "nearly 200,000 lives were saved from 1909 to 1910, in the campaign against this disease."

Dr. Hoffman stated that the death rate in New York City, 289.1 in 1881, had declined to 180.1 in 1912. He made no mention of any so-called "cures."

Surgeon B. S. Warren, of the U. S. Public Health Service, affirmed that deaths of government employees from tuberculosis were much lower than that of other laborers in similar occupations, because of the superior sanitary conditions.

"About 50,000 new cases of tuberculosis are constantly drifting about the country for long periods without even consulting physicians," was the statement by Dr. Harry Lee Barnes, superintendent of the Rhode Island State Sanitarium.

Loses Pants Seat, But Wins Election

Determined Candidate Does Not Let Accident Cost Him Vote He Goes After.

WINSTED, CONN., May 9.—Robert E. Maher, an officer of the Winsted Edge Tool Works and Republican candidate for Burgess in the town election, lost the seat of his trousers in getting a delinquent voter to the polls, but came out a victor.

A few minutes before the closing of the polls Maher was apprised that a certain elector had not exercised his rights. Jumping into an automobile he started in quest of the voter, whom he found at work atop of an ice house. Maher in coming down the ice run came in contact with nails which caught in his trousers seat, completely removing it.

He got to the polls on time with the voter, however.

PENSACOLA TO BE SITE OF BIG WOOD PULP MILL

PENSACOLA, FLA., May 9.—The biggest paper mill in the South will be located in Pensacola and in operation in the near future, according to Frederick Kauffman, president of the Georgia Wood Pulp Company, with headquarters in New York. He has been here several days investigating and is said to have secured options on 250,000 acres of gumwood timber in West Florida.

Why is the soda cracker today such a universal food?

People ate soda crackers in the old days, it is true—but they bought them from a barrel or box and took them home in a paper bag, their crispness and flavor all gone.

Uneeda Biscuit—soda crackers better than any ever made before—made in the greatest bakeries in the world—baked to perfection—packed to perfection—kept to perfection until you take them, oven-fresh and crisp, from their protecting package. Five cents.

SUNDAY AMERICAN

FRANCE GASPS WHEN ALFONSO VAULTS FENCE

Democratic Behavior of Spanish King Startles Dignified Ministry in Dress Suits.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

PARIS, May 9.—King Alfonso's state visit to France came to a close to-day with a remarkable aerial exhibition at the St. Cyr Aerodome. As the Spanish King and his official hosts looked on one aeroplane after another ascended until the sky seemed filled with them. Alfonso said it was one of the most inspiring sights he had ever seen.

One of the most interesting features of the Spanish monarch's visit has been his extreme democratic behavior. At Fontainebleau a gorgeous stand decorated with the royal colors of Spain had been erected in which Alfonso was to have sat while the troops were reviewed. The chair in which the King was to have sat was of bronze.

An Astonished Ministry.

President Poincare and the French Ministers, all solemn, obsequious and in dress suits, drew to one side to allow Alfonso to enter the pavilion. Instead of doing so, the King ran down to the railing, placed his hands upon it and vaulted over the rail like an athlete. Then he sat down on the grass and glued a pair of field glasses to his eyes while the Cabinet Ministers looked on in astonishment.

They never had seen a King act that way before.

Shakes Hands With Aviators.

After the aviation meet Alfonso insisted on shaking hands with several aviators and mechanicians. His white gloves were black with oil and grease when he got through.

The French press believes that the visit has ben of great benefit to both France and Spain.

Before his departure for St. Cyr, Alfonso held a conference with Foreign Minister Pichon, at which the question of Spain entering the triple entente with France, Russia and England was discussed. It would then become the quadruple entente.

WHICH?

NEWS ITEM—The Democratic majority of the Senate, in causes, has made a determined attack on the seductive influence of golf and baseball. A promise was exacted from members that hereafter enough members will be present in the Senate to maintain a quorum.

More than an hour was spent one day in a futile effort to get enough Senators to transact business at an executive session.

HARVEY'S CHARGE STIRS MARSHALL

Vice President, Piqued, "Wishes to Hear Nothing More on Misrepresented Utterances."

WASHINGTON, May 9.—In answer to Colonel George Harvey's charge, made at a dinner in New York of representatives from the trust companies of America, to the effect that Vice President Marshall's criticism of the wealthy acted as an "incitement to the predatory poor," the Vice President said to-day:

"If anybody will produce a public utterance of mine for the curtailment of accumulation or distribution of honest wealth, except by a fair inheritance tax, I will go to Wall Street and personally apologize.

"In the course of a long professional career, however, I have asserted that the witness who had knowledge of fraud invariably got mad when he was interrogated as to the fraud."

The Vice President at first was inclined to take the matter as a joke. He said, however, that he wished to have the affair closed and to hear nothing more on the score of his misrepresented public utterances.

LEOPOLD'S WIDOW, DIVORCED, TO WED

Morganatic Wife of Belgian King, Freed From M. Durrieux, Accepts German Army Officer.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

PARIS, May 9.—Within less than 24 hours after she had obtained a divorce from her second husband, M. Durrieux, it was reported to-day that Baroness Vaughan would soon marry again.

Baroness Vaughan was the morganatic wife of King Leopold of Belgium, and bore him two sons. After Leopold's death she married M. Durrieux, but entered suit for divorce, alleging infidelity. A decree was granted in her favor yesterday.

Baroness Vaughan began life as a washerwoman, but her beauty attracted the eye of the aged Belgian King, who took her under his protection and showered wealth upon her.

Her next husband, it is said, will be a German army officer.

Crosses the Atlantic To See a Ball Game

Relative of Pierpont Morgan Says He Is Going Right Back to Paris.

NEW YORK, May 9.—A passenger came over on the Kronprinzessin Cecilie to see one good American ball game. He is G. D. Morgan, an American who lives in Paris, and says he is a relative of J. Pierpont Morgan.

"I want to see just one good old baseball game and then I am going right back," said Mr. Morgan.

What Ails You?

An invitation is extended by Doctor Pierce to every sick and ailing man or woman to consult the Faculty of the Invalids' Hotel at Buffalo, N. Y., by letter. MILLTOWN WILL FISH, REGARDLESS

Mayor Pafford Declares Georgia Laws Give Residents Right to Angle in Banks Pond.

Citizens of Milltown, Ga., deny that the town is in a state of excitement and that it will be necessary to call out troops to preserve order. Mayor William F. Pafford has issued a statement declaring Game Warden Boisclair became unduly alarmed.

Governor Brown has not considered sending troops to Berrien County. It is hardly likely he will.

Until the Legislature changes the law, Milltown sportsmen will continue to angle for the elusive trout in Banks' fishpond so long as they have permission from owners of the land on which the body of water is located, according to Mayor Pafford.

"Section 7 of the game law privileges a person to fish with permission from the owner of the land, which the 20 persons arrested had," he declared.

"The statement of State Game and Fish Commissioner Mercer that his wardens have been intimidated and that the local authorities are too much in sympathy with the lawless element to give any assistance is untrue," said Pafford.

Boisclair made 20 arrests of persons. He charges he was prevented from prosecuting the cases because the justices of the peace declared he would not convict any of the parties.

The whole matter hinges on a land dispute. The Banks estate claims to own all of the property on which the pond is located. Other property owners say a title to all of the property has never been vested with Banks.

COTTON MANUFACTURERS CONVENE IN COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, GA., May 9.—The annual convention of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of Georgia convened in Columbus to-day, with President F. B. Gordon, of this city, presiding. Among the speakers for the day were Stuart W. Cramer, president of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association, and D. W. Peabody, of Atlanta. Fuller Callaway, of LaGrange, banker and manufacturer, also was on the program.

New Georgia Road to Start Trains in June

Elberton and Eastman Will Open Rich Country to Connection With Seaboard Air Line.

Another railroad will be added to Georgia's imposing list in June, when the Elberton and Eastern Railway Company begins operation from Elberton through Cauthen, Fortsonia, Bell, Norman and Mallorysville to Tignall, a distance of 21.8 miles. It connects with the Seaboard at Elberton. Eventually, it may push on to Washington to connect with the Georgia Railroad.

The new line taps an agricultural district of some importance, which now has no railroad facilities. It has standard roadbed and equipment. It is capitalized at $300,000 in bonds and $200,000 in stock. W. O. Jones is president.

AIRSHIPS PREDICTED AS DEFENDERS OF THE CANAL

NEW ORLEANS, May 9.—That aeroplanes are to be used extensively for defenses of the Panama Canal was the statement of Aviator Robert G. Fowler, who returned here to-day from Panama. He asserted that Colonel Goethals would ask Congress for an appropriation for aeroplanes and hydro-aeroplanes to be used in connection with the proposed fortifications.

ARREST CASHIER AS AN EMBEZZLER

Crossland Bank Official Accused of Misappropriating More Than $7,000.

MOULTRIE, GA., May 8.—J. H. Cason, charged with the embezzlement of more than $7,000 from the Bank of Crossland, was arrested today at Crossland and brought to Moultrie, where his bond was assessed at $2,000.

The bank has not resumed business and will likely liquidate.

It is alleged that Cason not only embezzled the bank's funds, but under various pretexts had stockholders of the institution indorse his notes at other banks for large sums. Cason was prominent in church circles and had the confidence of the people of Crossland.

SENATE FAVORS COLCOCK.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The Senate Finance Committee reported favorably to-day on the nomination of S. P. Colcock to succeed Richard Small, the negro Collector of the Port at Beaufort, S. C.

Oglethorpe to Spend Million Rebuilding

Charter Is Granted for Rehabilitation of Georgia's Oldest Educational Institution.

Following the granting of a charter by Judge J. T. Pendleton Thursday afternoon, it is expected plans for the rebuilding of Oglethorpe University, Georgia's oldest educational institution, will be announced within a short time. It is generally understood that expenditures will total nearly $1,000,000.

The charter is for twenty years and stipulates that only members of the Presbyterian Church shall be members of the board of directors, and that each director shall make a donation of $1,000 to the college.

The incorporators are James W. English, Sr., Frank M. Inman, John K. Ottley, Thornwell Jacobs, Edgar Watkins, Hoke Smith, W. L. Moore, Hugh K. Watkins, E. G. Jones, James R. Gray and Hugh Richardson, Fulton County; George W. Watts, Durham, N. C.; J. T. Anderson, Cobb County, and J. W. Hammond, Spalding County.

Effective Home Remedy For Lung Trouble

It is a serious matter when the lungs are affected. A trip away or to a sanatorium is not only expensive, but it involves separation from home and friends. Some are benefited, but few can safely return. Eckman's Alterative is effective for home treatment. For example:

231 S. Atlantic Ave., Haddonfield, N. J.

"Gentlemen: In the fall of 1905 I contracted a very severe cold, which settled on my lungs. At last I began to raise sputum, and my physician then told me I must go to California immediately. At this time I was advised to take Eckman's Alterative. I stayed at home and commenced taking it the last week in October. I began to improve, and the first week in January, 1906, I resumed my regular occupation, having gained 25 pounds, fully restored to health. It is now seven years since my recovery has been effected, and I can not praise Eckman's Alterative too highly. I have recommended it with excellent results."

(Signed) W. M. TATEM.

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious in cases of severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. For sale by all Jacobs' drug stores and other leading druggists. Write the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.

Danish Minister Is Courting Again

Washington Society Hears Engagement to Mrs. Townsend Is Renewed.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The engagement which friends insist existed between Mrs. Richard Townsend and M. Constantin Brun, the Danish Minister, last year, according to rumor current this week, has been renewed.

Several times while stationed in other countries M. Brun paid visits to Washington, many say to see the rich widow. When he was sent to Washington a year ago every one expected that Mrs. Townsend would soon take her place as chatelaine of the Legation.

CHATTANOOGA MAY NOT SEEK G. A. R. CONVENTION

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., May 9.—Although the time limit expires tomorrow, it is not known whether or not Chattanooga will invite the Grand Army of the Republic to meet here next fall. The railroads, it is understood, have failed to co-operate. A formal invitation, it is believed, can win the gathering.

THE PLAY THIS WEEK

FEATURE BILL AT FORSYTH.

There will be just four more performances of the Keith vaudeville acts that are at the Forsyth this week. One of the four will be to-day's matinee which is already heavily sold, another will be the Saturday matinee for which there is a large sale and the remaining performances are Friday and Saturday nights.

The headliner this week is Gus Edwards' Kid Kabaret, one of the most original ideas in modern vaudeville. The act is crowded with all of the Edwards new song hits. Another feature is pretty Belle Story, the entertaining vocalist. Miss Story possesses a remarkable voice. The comedy act of Williams, Thompson and Copeland is a scream. The whole bill pleases.

For next week the headline act will be Paul Dickey, the star football player of the University of Michigan, who will appear with a company of five people who will offer "The Come Back," a story founded on college life. Another star act will be the Apollo Trio, native Italians, who will pose as living bronze statues.

SOCIETY NIGHT AT THE ATLANTA.

Miss Billy Long and the members of her company have made a big hit this week in "The Girl From Out Yonder," which is at the Atlanta. To-night will be special Society Night in honor of Miss Agnes Tinsley Harrison and a packed house is expected to greet the company. A 25 cent matinee will be played to-morrow and the present bill offered for the last time to-morrow night.

Next week the company will present, "Are You a Mason?" which is a roaring farce comedy. Owing to the demand for matinee seats an extra matinee has been added for Monday afternoon and in the future three matinees will be given each week. "Are You a Mason?" has a thousand laughs and its presentation will serve to introduce two new members of the company to the public—both highly experienced. Miss Harrison has an important role also.

SAGE TEA BEAUTIFULLY DARKENS THE HAIR WHEN FADED AND GRAY

Mixed With Sulphur Makes Hair Soft, Lustrous and Cures Dandruff.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays skilled chemists do this better than ourselves. By asking at any drug store for the ready-to-use product—called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy"—you will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Some druggists make their own, which is usually too sticky, so insist upon getting "Wyeth's," which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair, and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says his customers insist on Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur because, they say, it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. Do this at night and by morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant. Elkin Drug Co., special agents.

BOYS AND GIRLS IN PONY CONTEST HAVE MANY VOTES

Names and Standing of Entrants Are Announced---No One Will Have a 'Walkaway' in Race for Beautiful Prizes---Totals Will Leap Upward.

Here are the boys and girls who have entered in The Georgian and Sunday American's contest for the twelve pony outfits.

There is a goodly number of them. Evidently no one is to have a "walkaway." Good, hustling, bright boys and girls they are, with plenty of friends to help them, and all filled with a determination to win.

Of course the figures presented now mean very little. Many of the contestants simply have been nominated. Some others have piled up a good start.

But watch the votes grow!

The totals will leap up by thousands as the days go by.

It's not too late to get your name in the list, but it would be well not to delay. Some of these contestants may have something "up their sleeves." You can't tell. It's time to get busy.

SHERIFF OF DOOLY DIES FROM BLOW'S BULLETS

VIENNA, GA., May 9.—Sheriff C. I. Bennett, of Dooly County, died early to-day from pistol wounds received Wednesday when he attempted to arrest Oscar Blow for killing P. P. Sangster, a prominent farmer.

Bennett's body was buried here to-day.

Judge W. F. George, of the Superior Court of Dooly County, has adjourned the session until August because of the Sheriff's death.

EPISCOPAL CLERGY FOR BAN ON 'UNFIT' WEDDING

NEW YORK, May 9.—A rule requiring health certificates for marriage is under consideration by the Episcopal clergy of New York, according to a statement issued to-day by the social service commission of the diocese of New York. The commission, the report states, had already made a preliminary investigation and found six out of every seven clergymen in favor of the plan.

Wool Trade Waits On Tariff Action

Sales Larger Than Last Week, but Heavy Lots Are Moved Only by Cutting Prices.

BOSTON, May 9.—While rather more wool has changed hands the past week, manufacturers have bought only for piecing out purposes. Both dealers and manufacturers continue waiting for a settlement of the tariff uncertainty. The aggregate of sales is swelled by an occasional sizable transfer at a sacrifice. In this way, some very low prices have recently been made, there being apparently no bottom to the market.

Probably the worst feature at present is the uncertainty. If the traders were assured that the Underwood bill would surely be passed by both Houses substantially in its present form, they could buy the new clip wools with reasonable safety.

Receipts in pounds for the week-end and including Wednesday were as follows:

ALABAMA U. S. ATTORNEY TO PROSECUTE COL. HUFF

MACON, GA., May 9.—Oliver Street, United States District Attorney for the Northern District of Alabama, has been assigned by Attorney General McReynolds to conduct the prosecution of Colonel W. A. Huff, charged with contempt of court, District Attorney Alex Akerman being relieved at his own request. The case will be heard on May 19, with Judge W. I. Grubb, of Birmingham, presiding in place of Judge Emory Speer, before and against whom the contempt is alleged to have been committed.

PANIC IN DINER AS WAITER SHOOTS COOK

PHILADELPHIA, PA., May 9.—As a Pennsylvania Railroad train bound for St. Louis pulled out of the North Philadelphia station last night, passengers in the dining car were thrown into a panic when Vaudergrift Thomas, a waiter, shot John E. Dyer, the cook attached to the car.

Two shots were fired, and one took effect in Dyer's leg.

Minister Goes From Pulpit to Theater

Philadelphia Playwright Will Direct Production of His Work in New York.

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—The Rev. Henry W. Lambert, of the Thirty-fourth Street Baptist Church in this city, has resigned his pulpit in order that he may direct the production of his first play in New York next fall. Dr. Lambert has written "For Love of Her," a moral play, which has been accepted.

Dr. Lambert says that he was spurred on in his playwriting by the Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, the Presbyterian evangelist. In one of his sermons on the stage Dr. Chapman said if any playwright could write a play that had not one improper thought, word or action, then he would be conferring a favor on the human race.

TWO CAROLINA BANKERS SENT TO ATLANTA PRISON

ASHEVILLE, N. C., May 9.—Judge J. E. Boyd, sitting in United States District Court, has given notice that on Tuesday he will order Major W. E. Breese and J. E. Dickerson into custody of the United States Marshal to serve sentences of two years in the Atlanta Penitentiary for complicity in the failure of the First National Bank fifteen years ago.

District Attorney Holton asked that the men be ordered in custody at once, but attorneys for the defendants got an extension on account of the illness of Major Breese.

'SONNY' COLLINS' SLAYER GETS 18 MONTHS IN PRISON

AUGUSTA, GA., May 9.—Marshall Shedd this afternoon was found guilty of involuntary manslaughter by a jury in Richmond Superior Court. He was sentenced to serve six months in jail and one year on the chaingang. Shedd, a Georgia Railroad engineer, shot and killed Edward ("Sonny") Collins, a former Augusta politician.

Declares Women on Cars Are Brainless

Longfellow's Grandson Much Exercised by What He Terms Their Stupidity.

BOSTON, May 9.—That woman are "brainless" as far as riding on the street car goes, was the declaration of Edmund Trowbridge Dana, grandson of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, social economic investigator, Harvard student and retired street car conductor, in an address before the Boston School of Social Science. He said:

"When it comes to riding on street cars women are the stupidest things imaginable. When you are trying to make up time they are always in the majority and always blundering. Why, they don't seem to have any brains at all."

ITALIANS AID IN STAMPING OUT CRIMINAL ELEMENT

NEW YORK, May 9.—Prominent Italians of this city are banding together to aid the police in stamping out the criminal element among their countrymen. They are already at work searching for Oresto Shillitoni, an Italian suspected of the murder of two policemen last Saturday night.

At their own expense, it is said, they have employed a former member of the police department who has the reputation of knowing more about criminal Italians than any detective in this city.

HEROINE FAINTS, VILLAIN SHOOTS SELF, SHOW ENDS

SHARON, PA., May 9.—During the presentation by amateurs of a drama here last night the heroine, Miss Nina Shaffer, while heaping invectives on the head of the villain, suddenly fainted and Frederick McIntyre, the villain, accidentally shot himself in the left hand with a revolver. The show ended abruptly.

Straw Hats Due at Harvard Saturday

Student Council Opens the Season Two Weeks Earlier This Year.

BOSTON, May 9.—The closed season on straw hats at Harvard will expire Saturday.

This was the official pronouncement to-day of the student council which, taking upon itself the function of arbiter of fashion, declared proper the wearing of the straw two weeks earlier than custom has before decreed.

The terraces of the stadium are expected to bloom with Panamas and common straws to-morrow when the athletic meet between Cornell and Harvard will be held.

POSSE, EXHAUSTED, QUITS SEARCH FOR DESPERADO

SAVANNAH, GA., May 9.—Men and dogs completely exhausted, the chase for Richard Henry Austin, the South Carolina desperado, was abandoned in Screven County last night. Austin crippled one of the dogs and took refuge in the swamps near Newington, where it was impossible for the searchers to reach him.

STATE BOARD IS PROPOSED FOR TAX EQUALIZING

Clarke County Representative to Push Bill in Legislature. Wide Demand for It.

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

Representative Frank A. Lipscomb of Clarke County will introduce early in the forthcoming session of the Legislature a bill providing for the creation of a State Board of Tax Equalizers.

The necessity for such a board has been discussed favorably by the press of the State time and again, but so far no serious effort has been made to frame the suggestion into a workable law.

Mr. Lipscomb has made a study of tax conditions in Georgia, however, and has reached the conclusion that the only practical and equitable method of increasing the revenue of the State, without elevating the tax rate, dwells within the creation of a tax equalizing board.

The bill, it is understood, already has been prepared by Mr. Lipscomb, but before it is offered it will be passed upon by one of the most eminent authorities on statutory and constitutional law within the State, and such changes, if any, as he may suggest likely will be made in the measure before it is presented.

Mr. Lipscomb is a new member of the Legislature. He is a young man, around 35, and has had some experience in legislative and administrative work on the City Council of Athens, of which he was three times elected a member, but his forthcoming term in the House of Representatives will be his first service in the broader field of State politics.

He is one of Athens' leading business men, a scion of an old and distinguished Georgia family, an extremely likeable sort of person, and is sure to take a high stand in the Legislature from the day he is given the oath of a Representative.

Mr. Lipscomb has other important legislative proposals to submit to the General Assembly in due course of time, but his bill to create a Board of Tax Equalizers will be his pet project, and the one he is most deeply interested in.

There is no doubt whatever that the bill will receive hearty and strong support from many members of influence, and the prospect of the bill becoming a law generally is looked upon as exceedingly bright.

Former Sheriff of McDuffie County, the Honorable "Shade" Hawes, one of the leading citizens of Thomas E. Watson's well-known town of Thomson, is, and for several days has been, a visitor in Atlanta's delighted midst.

Mr. Hawes is credited with being one of the very shrewdest political observers in the State, and moves hither and yon in most mysterious way his wonders to perform. He has an idea, however—really, it is an obsession—that his home town of Thomson is possessed of more automobiles than any other town of its size in the world. He claims that there are 56 machines in Thomson, notwithstanding the fact that it has been disputed there is room enough in Thomson for even one-half so many.

One irreverent person asked the Sheriff if it was true that they had to run the sewerage system in Thomson straight up in the air to keep it inside the corporate limits—but the Sheriff disdained pointedly to comment upon that.

In charging a Floyd County Grand Jury, Judge Moses Wright recently expressed an opinion that should prove of widespread interest in Georgia.

In giving his interpretation of the present prohibition law, the jurist declared that it "is illegal for one person to order liquor for another."

The Rome Judge bases his opinion upon that section of the Code which says that it shall be illegal to "contract to sell, take orders for or solicit personally or by agent."

As a result of his charge, a rigid investigation of Rome's two locker clubs is under way.

All the Georgia newspapers and all the Georgia politicians are congratulating Editor Dick Grubb and renewing their good wishes to him that The Darien Gazette has achieved its fortieth birthday, and is as bright and snappy to-day as when it was a mere journalistic kiddo.

"Old Dick" Grubb has been a laborer in the newspaper vineyard many moons, and is generally beloved throughout the State. For years his weekly column of paragraphic comment upon men and things in Georgia—rarely other than kindly and sunny tempered—has been looked forward to by many.

Everybody will wish The Darien Gazette many happy returns of the day, and its editor many years of usefulness yet to come.

Representative-elect W. H. Connor, of Spalding County, will introduce two interesting local bills in the General Assembly soon after it convenes.

The first is one to provide for the election of the Griffin City Education Board by the people, rather than by the Council, as has been the custom in the past, and the other is to amend the charter of Griffin so that ward primaries will be abolished and the old plan of general elections be returned.

Four years ago the Legislature changed the charter, at the request of Council, providing for ward primaries; but the system has not proved satisfactory to a great portion of the voters. It is desired by citizens that a voter be allowed to cast his ballot for Aldermen, regardless of which ward he may reside in.

This local legislation in Griffin will be interesting to many cities in Georgia that have operated for a good many years under the very same disadvantages that Griffin is undertaking to get away from, and it may be that Representative Connor's bill will suggest many another of a similar sort from other cities in the State.

Representative William H. Burwell, of Hancock County, is spending a few days in Atlanta. While here he conferred with several of his friends about his speakership race. He feels assured of election on the first ballot.

White City Park Now Open

Attention! Now It's Sandals for Girls Of That Gay Paree!

The old Greek fashion of dressing, including draped skirts and waists, long ago was taken up by the women of Paris and from there carried around the globe, has now reached the feet.

For to-day the elite of the French women, who set the fashion for that city of pretty and vivacious women are wearing sandals!

The high heel shoe and the oft painful by bent arch, has now been "given the hook." In their place has been selected the old-fashioned sandal, and it looks as if it had come to stay.

In fact, so complete has been the change of fashion in this respect that several of the famous Parisian stores, which cater particularly to the fashionable class, have put in a great stock of sandals.

Along the boulevards, women are seen parading at all hours, wearing sandals fastened to their feet by prettily colored ribbon in a band around their ankles.

Adherents of the new style declare it of great benefit to the health of the person wearing them.

Suppleness and flexibility, modistes argue, are the feature of women's dress of the present day.

Nature's Banner of 'Votes for Women'

Mrs. Torbet Will Raise Nothing but Flowers of Yellow Hue in Her Garden.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Nature is the latest ally to be lined up under the banner of "Votes for Women" and the suffragist garden is the means by which it has been secured for the cause. Mrs. Lewis K. Torbet announced her plans for the brand new publicity method.

"I intend to have my entire garden at my summer home remodeled and install nothing but flowers of a yellow hue, the color of the American suffragists," she said.

"I will have marigolds, daisies, roses, sunflowers, Japanese gold lilies, chrysanthemums, buttercups and every yellow flower that will grow and wave for the cause of women's suffrage.

"But I won't have anything with the English militant suffragist colors—violet and green."

ANY FRIEND CAN NOMINATE YOU IN BIG CONTEST

Strong Lead Will be Gained Over Your Rivals by Entering Competition Early.

Anyone can nominate a contestant for the pony outfits which the Georgian and American will give away as prizes.

This has been explained before, but many people still ask, so it may be well to state it again.

All that is necessary is to send in a nomination blank. Parents, uncles, aunts, friends, or even the contestant may make the nomination, and the result is the same—the name is listed, and 1,000 votes are credited to the name.

The call for books, used to make a record of subscriptions and votes and to furnish a receipt to the subscribers, shows that all are making an early start. One employee of the Georgian and American finds the distribution of these books to callers takes a good deal of his time.

So the contest is well under way.

The ponies, too, are here. The best ponies in the Tennessee bluegrass section—twelve of them—have been purchased by an expert delegated to the task by the Georgian and American.

Early Start Counts.

Remember that an early start counts for much. A big lead over your friends and acquaintances before they are approached by the other boys and girls.

Wouldn't you be disappointed to have your best friend say:

"Why, I've subscribed to the Georgian and American for a year and have given the subscription to George. I would have been glad to help you, but I didn't know you were in the race, and George asked me first."

Think what a disappointment that would be.

The only way to avoid such disconcerting replies is to be the early bird yourself.

An early start, too, gives you experience of a useful sort ahead of the other contestants, and the result will be that when you have become an adept at securing subscriptions, your rivals will be floundering around for a start.

So, by all means, if you have not entered the race for one of the twelve pony outfits by now, send in your nomination blank right away. If you have entered, be sure to get the necessary book at once, and get busy.

Some, you will find, already have piled up an excellent total for a beginning.

And are you clipping the daily coupons in the Georgian and the Sunday American? And are your friends saving theirs for you? They count up rapidly if you can get several friends to help.

G.O.P. RESENTS BULL MOOSER'S REUNION MOVE

Members of Old Guard Say Cummins Is Hasty and Is Likely to Hurt Party.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Old line Republicans to-day expressed in strong terms their antagonism to the independent action of Senator Cummins of Iowa and other members of the progressive wing of that party in calling a conference in Chicago to-morrow. They declined to approve the plan and declared that the Cummins contingent was laying the party open to another split.

Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire, minority leader of the Senate, said:

"I think the Cummins conference is premature, and when the time comes to recognize the Republican party I shall certainly follow the men who made the party rather than those who helped to wreck it."

Senator Smoot of Utah declared "that neither Senator Cummins nor any other Progressive can reorganize the Republican party."

Senator Stephenson of Wisconsin was of the opinion that the Cummins conference presaged another party split. "They wrecked the party," he said bitterly, "and now they are trying to damn it."

Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania said that it would be better to postpone the Cummins conference now and to hold it later under the regular Republican banner.

In the House the old line Republicans, from Minority Leader Mann to the latest incumbent of office, viewed the conference with disapproval.

Buyer of Eggs Must Declare Intentions

That Is, If He Wants to Complain at the Failure of Table Variety to Hatch.

CEDAR GROVE, N. J., May 9.—The Cedar Grove Board of Poultry Trade has handed down a decision of interest to poultrymen all over America.

Squire Hoke Baldwin has been selling White Orpington eggs at 25 cents a dozen for table use and at $2 for thirteen for setting purposes. Archibald Griswold bought some eggs from ing to New York. Instead he set the eggs. They did not hatch and he brought the matter to the attention of the Board of Poultry Trade.

The board found that Baldwin had dipped the eggs in hot water before delivering them, rendering them infertile. The board decided that between January 7 and July 1 the purchaser must declare truthfully for what purpose he wants eggs when buying them.

GIRLS TO TELL IN PULPITS OF WORKING CONDITIONS

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 9.—Horrified by the stories told them by some of the girl department store clerks who are on strike, many ministers to-day invited the girls to occupy their pulpits Sunday and repeat there the true conditions under which they work.

TOMBOY GAMES BEST FOR GIRLS, EXPERT CLAIMS

Recreation Congress Speaker Declares Vigorous Games Are Character Developers.

RICHMOND, VA., May 9.—Too much distinction is made between boys and girls, in their play, their work and their educational training. This was the text of an address by Mrs. Charles T. Weller, of Lawrence, Kansas, at the morning session of the Recreation Congress.

"Many people begin, in his babyhood, to train the boy away from the gentler side of life by taking away his doll. Later they teach him that certain home duties belong to the girl; and since the boy's work—such as cutting wood and drawing water—no longer has a place in the city household, he grows up without sense of responsibility and devotion toward his own home when he has one.

"The girl, on the other hand, is constantly repressed and, because her faults are not dramatic like those of her brother, her elders fail to realize that she needs broad training to free her from the narrowness and pettiness of women, which has been the jest of the ages.

"Vigorous sports, especially games, are found to develop just those characteristics in which women are lacking.

"Let the girls play hard sometimes and forget themselves. Quieter sport—music, literature, art—have their very important place for the girl; and quite as much for the boy. For with this all-round training each may be gentle and each may be strong when occasion demands it; and together they may round out a fuller, more wholesome life for the race.

ROUND-ABOUT-TOWN STORIES

Repairing of Dolls Quite a Business.

"Dolls Repaired Quickly and Cheaply."

That sign prominently displayed at a point on Peachtree Street, by which thousands of people pass daily, is one likely to attract the attention of little folks—girls, of course—whose dollies are in need of such necessaries as eyes, hair, hands and feet.

"You'd be surprised," said the old gentleman who answers when anyone makes inquiry concerning the sign, "the number of dolls that we repair every day. My whole family is engaged in the business. It is a queer thing about child nature, but girls—the little ones, you know—become so attached to their dolls that when they wear out the children are almost inconsolable. They like a new doll, of course, but nothing can take the place of the old one in their childish affections. That's where our business comes in. We take the old doll, put new feet and hands on it, insert an eye if one is needed and, in fact, fix Miss Dollie up so that she looks like a new one. But to its little 'mother' it is still the same old Polly Hopkins, or Susan or Mary, as the case may be. It really does my heart good to see the little folks when their mothers bring them to my place to get the rejuvenated dollie. They go into raptures over the made-over toy, and their outbursts are evidences of genuine affection. 'Mother-love,' I suppose you newspaper fellows call it."

How Window Dressers Keep Track of Pins.

"I'll bet," said one of two men who had paused before the display window of a Whitehall Street department store while the window dresser was at work "that it was a woman who invented the thing that chap has fastened to his left arm."

His attention having been called to it, the other man took a squint at the object. It was a pincushion about three inches square fastened to a wide elastic band—like a garter—which was passed around the arm just above the elbow. The cushion was filled with all sorts of pins—small ones and large ones; some plain and some black.

As he worked, arranging pieces of cloth here and there to give the desired fold effect, the dresser had occasion to use countless pins. They were always right at his hand.

"When I was a young man," remarked one of the onlookers, "I used to dress windows and I carried a mouthful of pins all the time. The danger of swallowing them, however, was great, and I never cared much for the job. This fellow has the problem solved, but if he's married, I'll bet his wife invented it. No mere man would ever think of that pincushion affair."

The Story of Two Boys And What They Have Done.

"I was reading in The Georgian the other day," said the doctor, "when my attention was attracted by an article concerning some bequests made to education by Mrs. G. P. Dodd. Instantly I remembered two young fellows who used to live in Atlanta and with whom I attended the Boys' High School. They were Phil and Earl Ackerman, sons of Mrs. Fannie Ackerman, who was a sister of Mrs. Dodd, and to whom Mrs. Dodd left a bequest. The Ackerman boys lived with their uncle on Whitehall Street between Cooper and Windsor. Both were real geniuses, and both were enamored of the stage—not as actors, mind you, but as managers and producers. In the basement of the Dodd home they had fitted up a scenic studio and there in 1891 they built the scenery for 'Xonia, or the Fairy Queen,' a spectacular play which they presented at Concordia Hall, then on Marietta Street.

"The cast was made up of local young folks and the play was put on in admirable style. There was no end of trick scenery, all designed, built and painted by the Ackerman boys. Phil played the part of an Irishman, Earl was a 'demon' and the part of a clown was played by Cliff Saul, brother of Milt Saul, who is publicity manager for the Georgia Railway and Power Company. Another member of the company was Henry Franklin, now a staid Atlanta business man, an officer of a big hardware concern. Artistically, 'Xonia' was a success. I am not certain about its financial success.

"Soon after this Mrs. Ackerman and her sons removed to New York, and the boys evidently kept in touch with things theatrical, because 'Bob' Goodman, another Atlanta boy who has risen to heights in stage affairs, told me not long ago that Phil and Earl Ackerman are the owners of one of the largest secnic studios in Brooklyn."

Court Halts Work on Concrete Structure

Debtors File Petition Against Owners of Building at Linden Avenue and Peachtree.

Work on the concrete building at Linden and Peachtree Streets was halted to-day, as a result of a petition filed Thursday afternoon by the Mackie-Crawford Company.

The petition asked that the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company and Mrs. Mary Potts be enjoined from doing further construction work on the building, pending payment of $4,483 which the Mackie-Crawford Company claims is due it for concrete framework of the building.

The petition maintained that further work on the building would conceal the work done by the company and render proof difficult.

POLICEMAN DENIES WOMEN'S CHARGES

Kirk Declares Statement That He Made Raided House His Headquarters Is False.

Policeman James Kirk, a member of Chief Beavers' "vice squad," Friday morning emphatically denied the charges of improper conduct made against him by Mrs. N. F. Powell, Mrs. Lena Bernard and Mrs. John Bryant, whom Kirk, with a squad of police, arrested last week on a charge of running a disorderly house at 95 Spring Street.

"The charges have no foundation," he said. "I went to Mrs. Powell and her husband, and told them if they didn't get rid of the women they had staying there and shut up their place, we would arrest them. Both the woman and Powell told me they would make the women leave and quit running the kind of a house that Chief Beavers has ordered out of the city. We watched the place for several nights, and saw from five to fifteen men going in and out of the place every night.

"When we saw that they continued to run the house we raided them. There were four men there at the time, but they escaped by jumping out of the windows. The women have been held to the Grand Jury.

"The statement that I made the place my headquarters is a falsehood, pure and simple. Mrs. Powell, Mrs. Bernard and Mrs. Bryant are known to the police. They have been arrested numerous times."

The hearing of the injunction which Mrs. Powell, through her attorneys, Gober & Jackson, got from Judge Bell to restrain the police from evicting her, will be held Saturday morning.

Are You Subject To Constipation

Here is a Simple Way of Correcting It Instantly Before It Becomes Chronic

Very few people go through life without some time or other being troubled with constipation. Thousands injure themselves by the use of strong cathartics, salt mineral waters, pills and similar things. They have temporary value in some cases, it is true, but the good effect is soon lost, and the more one takes of them the less effective they become.

A physic or purgative is seldom necessary, and much better and more permanent results can be obtained by using a scientific remedy like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It does not hide behind a high sounding name, but is what it is represented to be, a mild laxative medicine. It is so mild that thousands of mothers give it to tiny infants, and yet it is so compounded, and contains such definite ingredients that it will have equally good effect when used by a person suffering from the worst chronic constipation. In fact, among the greatest indorsers of Syrup Pepsin are elderly people who have suffered for years and found nothing to benefit them until they took Syrup Pepsin.

It is a fact that millions of families have Syrup Pepsin constantly in the house, homes like those of Mrs. G. B. Pruitt, Berea, Ky., who used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin as a laxative tonic. Mrs. Pruitt writes that it so strengthened and cleansed her system that she was quickly relieved of a severe cough which had troubled her for months. The special value of this grand laxative tonic is that it is suited to the needs of every member of the family. It is pleasant tasting, mild and non-griping. Unlike harsh physics, it works gradually and in a very brief time the stomach and bowel muscles are trained to do their work naturally again, when all medicines can be dispensed with.

You can obtain a bottle at any drug store for fifty cents or one dollar. The latter size is usually bought by families who already know its value. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.

If no member of your family has ever used Syrup Pepsin and you would like to make a personal trial of it before buying it in the regular way of a druggist, send your address—a postal will do—to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 417 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., and a free sample bottle will be mailed you.

Men Are So Queer

To-day's Complete Short Story.

"TOM was terribly annoyed," said the young woman with the fluffy hair. "It is perfectly funny the way a man acts just because he is your husband—did you ever notice it?"

"It is indeed," said the others in chorus.

"How was I to know that sensible business men would take me so seriously?" pursued the fluffy young woman. "I thought they were supposed to have discernment and sense. Tom is always preaching about their superiority in that respect. Tom explained to me very carefully before we went to the automobile show last month that we couldn't buy a car. He said he couldn't afford it, considering my hat bills and his cigars and the notes coming due on the house we bought last year. I am sure I had it all perfectly clear in my mind, so I am positive I was not to blame.

"But did you ever notice what perfectly fascinating young men they put in charge of the exhibition cars at an automobile show?"

"I should say I have noticed them," said the brunette girl.

A Very Nice Man.

"And, anyhow, Tom had no business to run across two college friends the minute we got inside the show and pay so much attention to them that he couldn't pay any attention to me! Those three would cluster together over a chassis with a lot of crazy machinery stuck on it and talk like mad. So I simply had to do something to kill time."

"Of course you did!" agreed the others.

"So when at the first booth a good looking man who saw me studying a touring car asked me if I was interested I said I was. Then he was just as nice as could be. He told me everything about the car and made me get in it and explained just how I could run it myself and wanted my address to send me a catalogue. He said he'd be pleased to come out some day with the car and show me how it ran and give me a lesson. He was so set on coming that I hated to hurt his feelings, so I did not refuse.

"It was just the same way at the next place and ever after. Tom and his friends were so busy over horrid old machinery that I was considerably left out. However, I made lots of friends among the agents.

"All of them wanted to bring out their cars to demonstrate to me how superior they were and, as I had told one man he could come, it didn't seem a bit fair to the others to refuse any of them, so I said I'd be delighted. It had occurred to me that I owed a terrible lot of calls, and that it would be such a nice way to get around and pay them.

"I didn't think it necessary to mention the matter to Tom. He did remark that a huge lot of catalogues was coming to our house and it was a wonder where those fellows got people's names and, anyhow, thank goodness, he didn't have a machine eating its head off and making him poor. Men are so selfish.

"The Zero automobile man came out the very day after the show closed and we had a beautiful ride. I made six calls. However, I quite changed my opinion of him, because when I came out of the last place he seemed actually cross and said things about waiting in cold weather. I don't see how he expects to sell cars without showing a little consideration for customers. I told him I didn't think I liked his car at all.

"Then there was the Largo car man and the Allegro man and the Fortissimo man and the Solendiferous man, and about six different electric companies, and a lot more whose names I forget. When they came one at a time it was lovely.

"I did two teas one afternoon in the Largo car, but the man lost his temper, and when I came from the second tea the wretched creature had driven off and I had to go home on the street car!

Very Queer.

"The queer thing was that every one seemed so indignant when I refused to give an order for a car and said things about my leading them on. The worst of it was that Tom came home ill with the grip one afternoon just as seven different cars arrived all at once to take me out! He said he thought I was giving a funeral or a tea.

"When he understood—my dears, have you ever seen a man suffering from bad temper and grip simultaneously?

"I explained to him most carefully that it wasn't my fault at all, but he roared that he was ashamed to look a man in the face from that time on for fear he was one of the automobile agents I had shamefully deceived—yes, that's what he called it—and that he'd like to know what women had in place of consciences, anyway. What do you think of that? Aren't men utterly queer?"

"They surely are!" the other young married woman agreed. "When you hadn't done one single thing, either!"

Where the Shoes Pinched.

"Boots and shoes repaired neatly while you wait." So said a notice in the window. A small boy entered the shop and dumped a pair of patent leathers on the counter.

"Please, fahver wants 'em repaired," he ventured timidly.

"What's he want done to them?" inquired the tradesman.

"Wants 'em soled and 'eeled," piped the youngster; "also stretched."

"Stretched as well—eh? And where do they pinch him?"

"They don't pinch him," replied the ingenuous son; "he pinched them."

THE SOCIAL WORLD

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Conklin, who leave Atlanta next week to spend the summer at their camp in the Adirondacks, were tendered a dinner party Thursday evening by Colonel and Mrs. Robert J. Lowry, at the Piedmont Driving Club.

The table, with covers laid for 12, was placed in the rose room, where handsome palms were grouped in the corners of the room, and the table was elaborately decorated in pink and silver.

A large plateau of pink roses formed the centerpiece, and tall silver vases at either end of the table held the same flowers. Silver dishes of pink and white bonbons were tied with butterfly bows of pink tulle, and festoons of smilax adorned the table. Silver candlesticks were shaded in pink, under silver filigree, and the ices were in the form of pink loving cups with strawberries. The cakes were embossed with pink roses and the place cards were handpainted in French figures.

Miss Nutting Hostess.

Miss Margaret Nutting entertained the members of her bridge club and a few other friends Friday afternoon at her home on Merritts Avenue.

Mrs. Cobbs' Luncheon.

Mrs. Hardin L. Cobbs was hostess at an elaborate luncheon at the Piedmont Driving Club Friday. Her guests included about 50 of the young married set, who were seated at small tables in the main dining room, surrounding an oblong table decorated in pink peonies and snap dragons, with the minor details in pink.

Mrs. Cobbs wore a morning gown of blue charmeuse draped in black chiffon and relieved with a touch of rose on the corsage. Her hat was black.

Request to Chairmen.

Mrs. Frank Logan requests that all chairmen of Tag Day call at the headquarters of the Southern Railway Saturday afternoon between 4 and 6 o'clock to get their supplies for Tag Day.

Mrs. Westmoreland Entertains.

Mrs. George Westmoreland entertained 30 women friends at an informal tea given Thursday afternoon for her guest, Mrs. A. M. Gwathney, of Richmond, Va.

Pink sweetpeas, arranged in a mound, formed the centerpiece for the tea table. Receiving with the hostess were her daughters, Mrs. Charles Dowman, of Birmingham, and Mrs. Julian Prade.

Informal Tea for Visitors.

Mrs. Junius G. Oglesby, Jr., entertained a few friends informally at tea at the Piedmont Driving Club Friday afternoon for Mrs. Bates Block's guests, Misses Lorna Carr, of St. Louis, and Caroline Scott, of Arkansas.

Juniors Entertain Seniors.

The junior class of Washington Seminary entertained the seniors at a tea Friday afternoon at the home of Miss Willis Smith. The class colors of white and green were observed in the decorations.

AMERICANS ROUT MEXICAN RAIDERS

Tired of Being Harassed, Colony at San Dieguito Takes to Warpath Against Rebels.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Tired of being raided and despoiled by every passing band of brigands, the little American colony at San Dieguito, Mexico, recently took to the warpath.

When a band of fourteen outlaws swooped down upon the colony, ten colonists, reinforced by five Mexican Federal soldiers, pursued and defeated the looters and recovered a number of stolen horses.

Huerta Explains His Attitude Toward U. S.

MEXICO CITY, May 9.—President Victriano Huerta, during the conference yesterday with Henry Lane Wilson, the American Ambassador, stated very clearly the position of Mexico in relation to the United States.

He said in part:

"Mexico is disposed to arrange without friction the affairs pending between it and the Government of the United States.

"However, for the time being the American Ambassador should understand the necessity which the Government of Mexico has for abstaining transmitting any official matter, with the exception of urgent affairs or ordinary procedure, for the simple reason that while the Government of the United States did not recognize the Government of Mexico all arrangements would be ineffective in view of the fact that the Government of Mexico has no personality before the Government of the United States.

"The Government of Mexico, whether recognized or not by the United States, has adopted and will always adopt measures for the security of all the inhabitants of the country, whether native or foreigners, and this has been demonstrated by the attention given to the just petitions of those who have been in any manner injured by past revolutions.

"The United States and all the people of Europe have irrefutable proofs that the Government of Mexico is especially pledged to give guarantees to everybody without distinction of nationality."

IMPROVED DISTRIBUTION IN POSTOFFICE PLANNED

An overhead carriage system, a labor saving device for distributing mail packages to various departments, probably will be installed in the postoffice here.

Postmaster McKee hopes that at the beginning of the new fiscal year, July 1, funds will be available for the improvement.

FAVOR EIGHT-HOUR DAY FOR GIRL WORKERS IN CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The Senate District Committee to-day ordered a favorable report of the La-Follette bill fixing eight hours a day as the maximum labor limit for women and girls in the District of Columbia. The measure failed of passage last Congress.

Employs Poetry to Define Tariff Stand

Ohio Statesman Mounts Pegasus to Declare Lower Cost of Living Promises Are Vain.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The muse struck her lyre in the House again to-day, when Representative Simeon D. Fess of Yellow Springs, O., closed a sarcastic speech on the tariff bill with some verses on "The Things We Buy and Tnose We Sell." Here they are:

I ain't no statesman who can talk of protection or free trade;
My han's too stiff to hol' a pen—that was made to hol' a spade;
Them ten-foot, eddicated words my tongue can't wallop roun',
But I'll make things you sell go up,
an' things you buy come down.

I can't talk on the currency, nor on the revenue,
An' on the laws an' statoots I'm as ignorant as you;
An' I jest simply promise you, sure's
I am Silas Brown,
I'll make things you sell go up, an'
things you buy come down.

The fair ground echoed wide with cheers and loud huzzas thereat,
For who can make a better scheme of statesmanship than that?
An' next week at the polls he beat his rival high and dry—
But things we sell continue low, and things we buy are high.

Buy Diamonds Before the New Tariff Advances Prices

Under the old tariff no duty was levied on uncut or "rough" diamonds. Only 10 per cent duty was paid on cut or polished diamonds.

The Democratic caucus has but just recently recommended a 20 per cent duty on polished diamonds and 10 per cent on the rough. This new rate will no doubt become effective within the next two or three months.

In addition to this, the big diamond syndicate has raised prices to the cutters since January $15 to $30 per carat.

This means an advance in the retail market within the next four to six months ranging from $15 to $60 a carat—according to grades and sizes.

Buy a diamond now on attractive monthly payments and save the advance. Our booklet, "Facts About Diamonds," quotes lowest net prices and gives full particulars regarding our liberal plans.

REVIVAL SMOOTHS TABERNACLE ROW

Members Who Resigned, Back in Fold, Will Help Call Pastor Wednesday.

The dove of peace has found lodging in the Baptist Tabernacle; all differences have been settled and members who withdrew several weeks ago are back in the fold. The church is ready to call another pastor. The call will be extended at a meeting Wednesday night.

The weeks of spiritual meetings have proven the cure for differences. Dr. Joseph Broughton, brother of the noted founder of the Tabernacle, the Rev. Len G. Broughton, and one of the most prominent members to withdraw, is back. He has been elected associate superintendent of the Sunday school. The other two men who created a sensation by their withdrawal are Clayton Callaway and Harry A. Etheridge. Both have returned and are on the committee to nominate a pastor.

Other members of the committee are A. C. Boatman, chairman; Dr. William T. Jones and J. W. Awtry. C. W. Hatcher, chairman of the board of deacons, is an ex-officio member.

"We are really just getting into shape to call a pastor," said C. W. Hatcher to a Georgian reporter Friday. "We have disposed of the infirmary and our finances are in good shape."

Year in Prison for Four Ex-Inspectors

New York Policemen, Caught in Graft Campaign, Also Fined $500—Will Not Appeal.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Dennis Sweeney, John J. Murtha, James F. Thompson and James E. Hussey, the four former police inspectors found guilty of obstructing justice in keeping George A. Sipp, a Commonwealth's witness in the police graft cases, out of this State, were sentenced to-day to one year each and fined $500. This was the maximum punishment under the law.

It was understood that they agreed to take the punishment without appealing, in consideration of which the district attorney agreed to drop extortion and bribery indictments.

GEORGIA PREACHER JAILED.

Ohio Judge Assails Home Rule Decision

Justice Wanamaker Asserts Cities Have Right to Ignore State and Establish Movie Shows.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, May 9.—Judge R. M. Wanamaker to-day delivered an opinion in which he strongly dissented from the majority opinion by the Ohio Supreme Court early this week in the Toledo case, when it held that the home rule provision of the new constitution is not self-executing and that municipalities must either adopt charters or secure legislation from the General Assembly before they may exercise the increased powers the constitutional amendment gives them.

The court held that municipalities may not maintain motion picture shows, because "they are not a proper function of government," while Judge Wanamaker declares the people have this right.

City Sells Its Bonds Over the Counter

Philadelphia's Experiment Proves Greater Success Than Mayor Expected.

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—The city has withdrawn from public sale the issue of municipal bonds that have been offered over the counter. The total amount taken by individuals was $4,002,000, or $500,000 more than Mayor Blankenburg wanted offered for sale at 4 per cent.

The last day's sales amounted to $209,000; and it was one of the most motley gatherings ever attending the office of the City Treasurer.

One old man brought his savings that he had hoarded in an old stocking, fearing to trust the banks. An elderly woman brougnt $1,000 in ten and twenty dollar gold pieces of the early '80 coinage that had never been in a bank.

A Happy Child In a Few Hours

When Cross, Sick, Feverish, Tongue Coated or Bilious Give Delicious "Syrup of Figs."

Mother! look at the tongue! see if it is coated. If your child is listless, drooping, isn't sleeping well, is restless, doesn't eat heartily or is cross, irritable, out of sorts with everybody, stomach sour, feverish, breath bad; has stomach ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, or is full of cold, it means the little one's stomach, liver and 30 feet of bowels are filled with poisons and clogged up waste and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

Give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours the foul, decaying constipated matter, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you will surely have a well and smiling child shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children. Being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it can not be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator needed—a little given to-day will save a sick child to-morrow.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting, genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

PREP LEAGUERS WILL CLASH AT MARIST TO-DAY

THE annual Atlanta Prep Athletic meet will be held Friday afternoon at Marist field. Only three schools are entered in this event, but the athletics that are entered are all well trained and some lively events will be seen. Everything about the field is in readiness. An eight-lap track has been laid off and a hundred yard straight-away. The lanes are all laid for the dashes and hurdles have been procured also.

The hundred-yard dash promises to be the real thriller of the meet as never before in a local contest have there been so many evenly matched men entered in this event. There are Allen, and Lewis, of Marist; Sifford of G. M. A.; Bedell and Parks, of Tech High. Every one of these lads have made the century in less than 11 seconds and Allen has a record of 10:3-5 seconds. Owing to this mark the odds are slightly in favor of Allen, but if he does win it will be by a scant few inches.

There will be plenty of competition in every event with the possible exception of the hammer throw. Fowler, of Marist, seems to be in a class by himself in this event. He has thrown the iron ball over 100 feet in practice, which is better than any other man in the league can do.

The entries are all in and Joe Bean, who is staging the meet, has announced that nearly fifty athletes will compete. Many of them will start in two, three, and even four events. Bill Bedell, of Tech High looks good for the highest individual point winner. He has all kinds of grit and endurance, and in the meet between Tech High and Boys High he won three firsts and a second place which made his total 17 points.

Charlie Allen, of Marist, is the boy that will no doubt give Bedell the most trouble.

The meet will start at 2:30 p. m.

Prep League
News and Notes.

The decision of the Boys High athletes not to enter the Prep meet Friday throws them out of high school circles for the rest of the season. Since they have taken the matter into their own hands and decided not to represent their school they will be regarded as an independent team and will have to appear as such in the rest of their meets this season.

* * *

A new Prep record for the hammer throw will very likely be hung up in the meet Friday by Fowler, of Marist. Fowler has had little trouble hurling the 12-pound hammer 100 feet in practice.

* * *

A tennis tournament is being arranged between the winners of the Boys High contests and the winners of the tournament now being held at East Lake by the students of Peacock.

* * *

The tournament will be held on the courts at East Lake some time the latter part of this month and should prove an interesting match as both schools are well represented in this line of sport.

* * *

The officials have announced that the track meet at Marist Friday will start at 2 p. m. This seems pretty late to start such an affair as the meet will probably run about four hours. The meet between Tech and Boys High schools started at 1:30 and was not over until 6 o'clock.

* * *

Charlie Allen, of Marist, is leading the Prep League batters with .467. Armistead and Spurlock, of Boys High, are close on his heels. Parks, of Tech High, is fourth, and Bedell, of Tech High, is fifth.

* * *

Sifford and Babb will probably be G. M. A.'s two biggest point-winners in the meet Friday. Sifford made a lot of points in the field day exercises at G. M. A. March 31. Brown and Solano are two other pretty good athletes, especially in the sprints.

* * *

Callahan, of Marist, threw just ten balls in the first innings of the game with Boys High Wednesday and fanned the first three men to face him. He struck out two more in the second.

* * *

If the following quartet can keep up the good work shown in the Boys High-Marist game Wednesday they may be assured of a place on the all-prep team this year. They are Allen, of Marist, third base; Spurlock, of Boys High, short; Armistead, of Boys High, catcher, and Fox, of Boys High, pitcher.

* * *

Following is the standing of the local Prep League teams:

Teams	Won.	Lost	P.C.
Boys High	5	0	1.000
Tech High	4	2	.667
Marist	3	2	.600
Peacock	1	4	.200
G. M. A.	1	5	.167

GUNBOAT SMITH AND WILLARD IN NEXT COAST GO

By W. W. Naughton

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8.—Gunboat Smith once again is with us, and interest in the next heat of the great white hope free-for-all will increase by leaps and bounds.

Smith is to meet Elongated Jess Willard of Kansas at Coffroth's Eighth Street Arena on Saturday afternoon, May 17, and when these two have settled their differences the search for the best pugilistic pale face on earth will be almost over.

It will only be necessary for the winner to hook up with Luther McCarty and we will have a champion whose right there will be none to dispute—at least for a while.

Bluejacket vs. Cowboy.

The semi-final in the race—for that's what the coming bout may be called—will be between an ex-bluejacket and a cowboy. The fact that a man from off the bounding blue and a man from the cattle plains have battled their way to the front rank of the world's fighters shows conclusively that champions are not always the products of congested cities. The old argument used to be that the best men were to be found where there were the most men to pick from, but it certainly does not hold in pugilism.

A glance at the array of white hopes who have tried and failed during the past year shows that championship candidates are drawn from widely separated lands and from all walks of life. So far as the prize ring is concerned, we have had George Rodel, the South African Boer, and Bombardier Wells, the British artilleryman, who was seized with the ambition to shine as a ringman while on service in far India.

Then there was Fred McKay, the Winnipeg policeman, who was attacked with the Queensberry bug while patrolling his beat in his home town in Canada. Al Palzer, another blasted hope, came from the farm lands back in Iowa. It was not different in the old years, however. The lure of the game drew Joe Choynski from the candy kitchen and Jim Corbett from the bank. Fitzsimmons rolled up his apron and dropped his sledge when he heard the call of the padded mitt, and Jeffries deserted the boiler foundry.

Nor must we forget Tom Sharkey, "the pride of the navy," who used to say in the matter of punishment or suffering, fighting was child's play compared to walking the deck barefooted on a hot day in the Red Sea.

Paul Dickey, Famous End, Here Next Week

Former Michigan Football Hero in Vaudeville Sketch at Forsyth Theater.

Paul Dickey, who played star end on the University of Michigan eleven in '07 and '08, and who led in all track events and field exercises while at college, is now in vaudeville and will appear at the Forsyth as the star feature, with his own company the week of May 12.

Paul Dickey was a wonder in his time. He was selected by every expert who picked an All Western or All American eleven. He led the ends, and even at that had some of the greatest stars of the other teams to contend with. His work on the track was wonderful and some of his records still stand.

His sketch in vaudeville is called "The Come Back." It deals with college life, and football figures most prominently. It is a sketch that the sport-loving theatergoers will doubly appreciate.

During his visit in Atlanta, Dickey will be entertained by the Michigan alumni who live here, and his "Frat" mates are also preparing to see that he does not forget his week in Atlanta.

BOXING
News of the Ring Game

Abe Attell has released John Reisfer as his manager and has placed himself under the management of Danny Morgan. Abe and Morgan agreed on terms terday, according to a report from New York.

* * *

* * *

Billy Gibson wanted Joe Rivers and Jack Britton for the star bout at the reopening of the Madison Square Garden, but Joe Levy, Rivers' manager, could not see it. Danny Morgan agreed to let Britton step on the scales at 133 ringside, too.

* * *

Had the match been made Rivers would have received 27 1-2 per cent and Britton 22 1-2 per cent of the gate. Rivers is one of the many stars who are steering clear of Britton these days.

* * *

Frank Moran, who fought Luther McCarty recently with a broken hand, will not be able to don the gloves for at least three weeks, on account of the injury. His manager was offered a bout with Jim Flynn at the Atlas A. A. of Boston, on May 20, but was compelled to pass it up.

* * *

Having lost close to $2,000 on the Luther McCarty-Moran battle because they guaranteed McCarty $5,000, Jess and Eddie McMahon, managers of the St. Nicholas A. C., yesterday made the announcement that under no circumstances will they give another fighter a guarantee in the future, even if he is a champion.

Johnny Griffith, of Akron, and Pal Moore, of Philadelphia, will meet for 12 rounds at Akron, May 12. Bernie Strapp is staging the show.

CHRISTY MATHEWSON'S BIG LEAGUE GOSSIP

NEW YORK, May 9.—Things have not changed greatly in the American League this week, except that the Washington club is holding up with a persistence that makes it look like a strong contender for the flag. Johnson is pitching wonderful ball, the best of his career. The Athletics and Red Sox are alarmed.

"I thought he was good last year," an American League player told me the other day in discussing Johnson, "but I never saw anything like the way he is traveling this season. He has gone forty-two innings without being scored on, and the chances are he will go forty-two more. He has everything in the world, and his fast ball has the speed of a bullet and the worst jump or the best I ever looked at. It depends upon the point of view whether it is the best or worst. It looked like the worst to me, because I was batting against him. He has been calling what he intends to throw against opposing batters. He did this repeatedly in the series with the Yankees.

"Then he would shoot up the ball with the old jump on it. And the batter missed it just as widely as if he had no notion of the prescription. That is going some when the pitcher can tip the batter off to his stuff and get away with it.

* * *

"THE Washington team is full of dash and ginger, and is playing fast ball. They will give the Athletics a great fight, but I do not expect to see the Senators hold the pace they are setting now."

That is the opinion of a veteran American Leaguer, who did not want his name mentioned.

After pitching in Philadelphia on Saturday and losing because Cravath, who is hitting very hard this season, pumped a home run into the bleachers, I returned to New York on Sunday and met "Eddie" Collins, the second baseman of the Athletics, with whom I have been acquainted for some time.

"How does the race look in the American League?" I asked him, "talking shop" as usual.

"The Washington club is the one we've got to beat, and I think we can do it," he said. "They are carrying lots of 'pep' now, but the supply won't last through the season. The boys are bound to slow down. If anything should happen to Johnson, they are gone, because he is carrying the club. Besides Johnson, Hughes is the only other pitcher we have had a look at so far. Groom seems to be traveling along pretty well, judging from the scores against other clubs. Cashion is too wild right now to be of much value. The rest of the team looks good, with every man playing at his best at present. Let them hit a little slump, however, and it is going to take a lot of the pepper out of them."

* * *

"HOW about the Athletics?"

"We're in pretty fair shape. Our pitching department caused the most ante-season fretting. Plank is going fine, and Bender seems to be rounding into form now. Coombs is the member of the veteran trio who is to the bad. He is laid up in bed in Philadelphia with a high fever, and I don't know what is the matter with him. He has some kind of fever, and his temperature has been up around 104 for several days. John has never been right since that time he hurt himself in the world's series with the Giants. His health has been bad, and during that rainy spell when we were in Washington he was taken ill and had to be sent home. It is problematical whether he will be in any kind of shape before the middle of the summer. 'Connie' is worried about him.

"ALL the young pitchers look pretty good, and we are bound to get at least one man from the flock to help out Bender and Plank. Houck has been twirling good ball so far, and the other squabs have the ability, but get nervous when the game becomes tight. They will outgrow this. The club is hitting the ball hard, and playing together well. So far we have not had any injured players outside of Coombs' illness; but let me touch wood, quick."

A good line on the strength of the teams in each league can be drawn when the present intersectional series is completed. That is what always tells on the clubs—the long trips away from home.

FODDER FOR FANS

Johnson, the Indian pitching recruit of the Reds, looks like one of the best pitching finds in recent years. He's won all of the Reds' five victories.

* * *

Everybody laughed at Charley Ebbets last winter when he built a baseball plant with a capacity of 35,000. And now Ebbets is laughing at the erstwhile laughers. If the Dodgers keep up their winning streak, Ebbets will have to enlarge his park.

* * *

The Dodgers, by beating the Cubs yesterday, are now within 9 points of second place and 25 points of first place.

* * *

The White Sox jumped all over the Senators' pitchers yesterday and romped home easy winners.

* * *

The lowly Braves bumped the Pirates again yesterday and the Pittsburg fans are wondering just when their pets are going to stop skidding.

* * *

The Athletics' victory over the Browns yesterday made the sixth straight win for the Quakertown athletes.

Johnnie Evers, the "Keystone King," put up a weird fielding exhibition yesterday, making three errors, two of which resulted in runs for the Dodgers, enough to give them a victory.

* * *

A great batting rally in the ninth enabled the Cardinals to snatch a 5 to 4 victory from the Phillies.

* * *

The major league baseball season to date has furnished some big surprises. In the National League the Giants and Pirates were doped to fight it out for first place all the way. Instead, they are wallowing around in the second division, and the Cardinals and Dodgers, who were accorded cellar places, are within a few points of first place.

* * *

In the American, the Boston Red Sox were expected to repeat. All the dopesters treated them to a flying start. However, the Boston boys are far down in the second division and the Naps and White Sox, who weren't figured to have a look in, are snugly ensconced in first division places, within hailing distance of the leading Athletics.

* * *

But the season is still young.

NO CAUSE FOR PROTEST.

NEW YORK, May 9.—The New York Nationals had no undue advantage over the Philadelphia club in the games played at the Polo grounds late in April by reason of the fact that there was a hole scooped out of the diamond back of the pitchers' box. This is the finding of President Thomas J. Lynch of the National league, on the protest of the Philadelphia club. He orders that the result of the games shall stand as played.

INDIANS PURCHASE WORKS.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., May 9.—Pitcher Ralph Works, of the Cincinnati club, of the National League, was purchased to-day by the Indianapolis club, of the American Association. The price was not announced.

KING RECEIVES PLAYERS.

LONDON, May 9.—Following the precedent established when he received the English polo team before its departure to America in 1911, King George received this year's team at Buckingham Palace.

OLLIE KIRK vs. EDDIE MOY.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Eddie Moy, the Allentown, Pa. featherweight, who gained a good reputation in Pennsylvania will meet Ollie Kirk, of St Louis, here to-morrow in a ten-round bout.

BETTS GOES TO REDS.

CINCINNATI, May 9.—Fred Betts, a Cincinnati ball player, who pitched for the Cardinals several years ago, to-day signed a contract to play with the Reds and left to join the team. Betts quit professional ball of his own accord to become a typewriter slaesman.

Jones and Barrett Are Stars in Shoot

Former Captures High Average Prize in Georgia State Championship. Barrett Wins State Title.

AMERICUS, GA., May 9.—Henry Jones, of Macon, Ga., won the high average championship in the two-days' contest of the Georgia State Gun Club shoot here this afternoon. Jones secured 365 targets out of a possible 400. He was awarded the silver trophy for highest average.

Jones also tied with James Barrett, of Augusta, for the Georgia State championship, each breaking 98 targets out of a possible 100.

In the shoot-off Barrett won on 20 straights. Jones also won the long-run medal of the tournament by scoring 145 straights.

Homer Clark, of Allendale, Ill., won the silver trophy in the professional class, scoring 389 birds out of a possible 400. He also won the double professional championship in scoring 48 out of 50 targets.

J. K. Warren, of Birmingham, won the double target amateur championship of the South after tying with Eubanks, of Atlanta, on 44 out of 50 doubles.

All of the 45 gunners in yesterday's tourney are pleased with the great success of this the third annual State shoot in Americus of the Georgia Gun Club.

TO HOLD 200-MILE RACE.

GALVESTON, TEXAS, May 9.—A 200-mile automobile race on Galveston beach, for which a prize of $5,000 will be hung up, is to be the feature event of the 1913 Cotton Carnival meet, according to plans laid to-day. The meet will cover three days in all, the dates being set on July 28, 29 and 30. It is planned to offer prizes aggregating $14,000 for the meet.

WEIKINGER BEATS WIRTH.

DEFIANCE, OHIO, May 9.—Henry Wirth, the clever Chicago light weight wrestler, lost to Edward Weikinger, the local champion, last night in two straight falls.

RUSSELL GOES TO ALLENTOWN.

ALLENTOWN, PA., May 9.—Lefty Russell, the famous southpaw for whom Connie Mack paid $12,000, has been turned over to the Allentown Tristate Club by Manager Jack Dunn, of the Baltimore Club. Russell will cover the initial sack for the Allentown team.

2 GOOD BOUTS FOR LOCAL FANS HERE IN JUNE

ATLANTA boxing fans will be furnished the opportunity of witnessing two corking bouts next month at the Auditorium-Armory. The first wil be held on June 9 and will bring together Jim Flynn and Jim Savage. The next show will follow on June 17 and will be between Leach Cross, or Freddie Welsh, and Matty Baldwin.

The Flynn-Savage match has already been closed and it is likely that the other will be all O K'd within the next few days. Baldwin has already accepted, while both Cross and Welsh are anxious to exhibit their wares here.

Flynn should be a tremendous card in Atlanta. He was beating Jack Johnson to a frazzle until he was disqualified on a technicality. And Savage is a good attraction here as he decisively defeated Al Kubiak a couple of weeks after the latter had whipped Carl Morris in a local ring.

TECH TRIUMPHS OVER GEORGIA IN HOT BATTLE

SCORE BY INNINGS:		R.	H.	E.
Tech	2 0 0 2 0 0 0 0 0 —	4	5	1
Georgia	1 0 0 0 0 2 0 0 0 —	3	7	9

ATHENS, GA., May 9.—Heisman's Yellow Jackets triumphed over Georgia here this afternoon by a score of 4 to 3.

The result was a complete surprise, as the fans here expected the Red and Black to roll up a big score against Tech. The visitors played a dashing game, fielding and batting like champions. The infield and outfield work of the visitors was the best seen here in years.

"Speedy" Eubanks was the star of the game. Heisman's twirler pitched great ball and held the home boys helpless in the majority of innings. His speed and control was remarkable.

On the other hand, Corley was hit timely by Tech. They bunched hits off him in the first and fourth innings, which gave them an early lead to work on.

The Yellow Jockets took the lead in the first inning by pounding out two runs. The Red and Black squad managed to push one run over the plate in their half.

Eubanks and Corley tightened up in the second and third inning and neither team scored. The fielding on both sides was sharp and snappy.

Tech came strong in the fourth, pushing two runs over the plate.

Corley held Heisman's men in the fifth and the Tech batters failed to score. Eubanks continued to prove a puzzle to the Red and Black batters and they went out without registering a run. Eubanks showed great speed in this inning.

Neither team tallied in the sixth, due to some fast fielding by both nines. Both pitchers showed signs of weakening, but fast fielding kept the score down.

Georgia fell on Eubanks strong in the seventh pushing two runs over the plate. Tech failed to score in its half and the score stood 4 to 3, favor of the Yellow Eubanks twirled great ball in the eighth and ninth innings, blanking the Red and Black players in both sessions. Jackets.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

MA & me had a lot of fun yesterday at the dinner tabel in the hotel ware we are staying wile Pa is here catching fish. Pa was out following a streem, & Ma & me was all alone at our tabel until a yung traveling man calm in & the waitress put him at our tabel. He was vary yung and vary fresh. The minnit he got sat down to the tabel he looked over at us & sed You peepul are having a luvly spring this yeer up in the woods.

The day is butiful, sed Ma. Ma was dressed in a plain dress for walking in & I had on overalls so I cud be like the other littel boys around here, & I was bare-footed. Ma & me knew that the yung traveling man thot we was country peepul & we dident care, beekaus we have saw lots of peepul in the big cities that dident know half so much as country folks.

The scenery here is vary pritty, sed the yung man, but, of course, you peepul up here think moar of it than I do, beekaus I have traveled around a grate deel & saw scenery wich is sublimer than these little hills, small to a man like me, he asked Ma, a man wich has seen reel mountains?

I think these hills are vary restful, sed Ma.

But, of course, you peepul up here havent traveled & got broadened, sed the yung salesman. Jest think how majestik must be the site of a mountain peek like the kind you see not far from Chattanooga, Tenn.

I have never been in Chattanooga, sed Ma.

It Was a Pity.

That seems a pity, sed the yung man. One reely doesnt know what living is until one has been in Chattanooga. A littel place like this is all rite for peepul wich have nevver seen the glories of natur, but one who has traveled like I have it would soon beecum monotonous.

& so you travel? sed Ma.

Yes, indeed, sed the yung man. We knights of the grip are never still in one place vary long. I travel all the way from Chattanooga to Nashville on the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis, he toald Ma. Chattanooga is sum city. There is none of this humdrum life you have here. Why, think of a city with several theaters all within the city limits, & with the hum of St. cars & the roar of the traffic & the butiful stores & residences. That is life, believe me, sed the yung man. I doant know what the other big cities is like, he sed, but you have got to show me where any one of them has anything on Chattanooga.

I was jest going to tell the yung man that Pa & Ma & me had been in every big city in the U. S., from Frisco to Portland Maine & from New Orleans to the Canadian line, but Ma kicked me under the tabel & I knew then that she was kidding the yung man.

I have offen thot that wen my littel boy grows up I wud have him be a traveling man, sed Ma. My sister's husband used to sell enlarged pictiers. He used to travel from Chippewa Falls to Boyd on the Wisconsin Central. I guess he mite have been with his firm yet only he used to lose his expense money playing nickel slot macheens.

The Pity of It.

That is the pity of it with us knights of the grip, sed the yung man. We are thrown into constant temtashun, traveling the way we do from one town to another. Doant let yure yung son get into this gaim, he sed. It is a pity that you can not move to Chattanooga or eeven sum smaller city, so he cud get the benefits of a education, like I dune.

Jest then Pa caim in & sed Wife, this is jest my luck. Jest as the fishing is good, here is a telegram that we must return to New York & leave the next day for Frisco.

Oh, good, sed Ma, we havent been in Frisco for nearly two years.

Then the yung man got kind of red in the face & dident say any moar about Chattanooga.

Just a Little Slip.

"Miss Sweet," the young man began, with a quaver in his voice, "may I presume so far upon our short acquaintance to ask you—"

"Please say no more, Mr. Matthews!" faltered the maiden. "I deeply regret to give you pain; and, if I have unconsciously encouraged you to entertain hopes that never can be recalled, I can not forgive myself. Believe me, I am—"

"Pardon me, Miss Sweet," interrupted the astonished youth, "but I was only going to ask you for the loan of fare home! I was stupid enough to come away without any money in my pocket this evening. Ah, thanks very much! I will return it without fail. Good night!"

The Mistakes of Jennie

By HAL COFFMAN

Being a Series of Chapters in the Life of a Southern Girl in the Big City

"Little Jennie had never ridden in a taxicab before."

Do You Know That—

Annoyed by a notice that the local sanitary committee were going to inspect his cow house, an English farmer spread linoleum over the floor of the building, displayed hearth rugs in convenient positions, hung the walls with pictures and a mirror, and installed a harmonium. When the committee arrived he gravely invited them to wipe their feet on the doormat before entering.

The French military authorities make use of an ingenious invention to protect their carrier pigeons against hawks. The apparatus consists of a very tiny whistle and a screw attached to the pigeon, whose flight causes the screw to revolve and thus blow the whistle. The noise effectually scares away the enemy.

Perhaps the highest price paid for a sermon goes every year to a German preacher, who discourses on the good deeds of a French baron named Favart, who died in Elberfeld in 1690. Favart left money for this purpose, and the interest now amounts to $4,500 per annum, which goes to the preacher as his reward.

A casino proprietor of Ostend has made arrangements to have a luxurious gambling room fitted up in a large steam yacht, which is to ply between Ostend and other watering places. Gambling will only take place when the yacht is outside the three-mile limit.

An orchestra of twenty-five blind musicians, led by a one-armed lady conductor, recently played the whole of the music of "Rigoletto" at a performance of that opera in the theater at Oviedo, Spain.

The College of France, founded in Paris by Francis I, offers at the present day not only strictly academic instruction, but opportunities for the higher education in general. The following anecdote shows how far the college carries its scrupulousness. Every scientific subject, even the most abstruse, will continue to be taught there as long as one solitary individual in all Europe desires to pursue it.

Certain courses are followed by two or three persons only. They tell this story of a professor of mathematics: This professor, who was extremely absent-minded, had lectured for a whole year to only one pupil.

He was perfectly satisfied that it should be so, but it occurred to him one day that he ought to congratulate his rare disciple, and he accordingly did so.

"Monsieur does not recognize me," replied the pupil. "I am monsieur's coachman, and I always wait here until monsieur has finished his lecture."

CHAPTER 2.

JENNIE and THE MAN sat in the big, bright restaurant and listened to the music and watched the cabaret dancers, and Jennie's big brown eyes wondered at it all. At the beautiful dresses of the women diners, the bright lights, the thick, rich carpet on the floor and the noiseless waiters.

It was just like fairyland to Jennie, for she had never, never even imagined that things could be so lovely. The boys she knew could not afford such places, and the height of her social life had been walks in the park on Sundays and maybe the ice cream parlors for soda.

THE MAN did not urge her to drink much of the bubbly wine—for he knew she wasn't used to it and there might be explanations for her to make when she reached her boarding place, and that would NEVER do. For THE MAN was wise, and didn't want Jennie's good Southern friend, who kept the boarding place, to suspect anything—quite so soon.

Jennie realized at last that it was getting late and that she would have to get home, and besides it would take nearly an hour on the car to where she lived. When she mentioned the car, THE MAN wouldn't hear of such a thing. They must take a taxicab—and besides that would get them to Jennie's home much quicker than a car. A taxicab! —and poor little Jennie had never even ridden in one before—the cushions were so soft and warm and things zipped by so quick, 'til they just seemed to fly along. How different from the pokey old street cars, thought Jennie. THE MAN was polite as could be and talked of the delightful time they had that evening—and how lonesome he would be when she was gone, and they really MUST see one another quite soon again—but she mustn't tell any one where she had been that night—just that she had to work late and had hurried right home—and he would have the taxicab stop a block or so from her home, so no one would be the wiser.

Jennie was so proud of riding in a taxicab that she wanted to drive right up to her front door, but THE MAN explained that would NEVER do. So with a promise from her to "ring him up" the next day he had the taxicab stop a block down the street and very politely helped Jennie out with a promise to watch and see that she reached home safely. When she had gone he told the chauffeur the name of a prominent cafe, and with a chuckle got in and slammed the door.

(To be continued.)

Turning the Tables.

In some cases counsel receive answers to questions which they had no business to put, and these, if not quite to their liking, are what they justly deserve. The following story of Robert Harris, a celebrated negro minstrel, is a case in point:

"You are in the minstrel business, I believe?" inquired the lawyer.

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"Is that not rather a low calling?"

"I don't know but what it is, sir," replied the minstrel; "but it is so much better than my father's that I am proud of it."

The lawyer fell into the trap.

"What was your father's calling?" he inquired.

"He was a lawyer," replied Harris, in a tone that sent the whole court into a roar of laughter as the discomfited lawyer sat down.

Daysey Mayme And Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE.

WHEN a man says he has been discovered it is a confession that he has been found out. In other words, that his meanness has been exposed at last. But the women have a way of giving a higher, more soulful meaning to words, and when a woman says she has been discovered she means that her genius has found recognition.

Daysey Mayme Appleton had been discovered in this feminine interpretation of the word. Her genius had found recognition, and she had been given employment on a newspaper.

She had been sent to interview a famous authoress, and the famous authoress had told her she could give her just five minutes.

"What," she asked kindly, "do you wish me to talk about?"

The Interview.

Then she was ready for the interview.

"It doesn't make any difference what you talk about," she said. "I must remember I have my own personality. I am a graduate of Hardtack College; I was at the head of my class; I began writing poetry when I was seven, and prose when I was nine. I am going to become a great journalist. I feel that my genius is too great to be longer hidden. Robert W. Chambers and none of the other great ones had written poetry when they were seven. Every one says I have wonderful talent."

The five minutes were up, and Daysey Mayme, with a brain seething with thoughts, went home and wrote all day and all night, covering many, many pages.

There are those who use a special delivery stamp. Not so with Daysey Mayme. She writes "IN HASTE" across one corner of the envelope. "When the postman sees these words," she exclaimed to her father, "he just drops everything else and runs all the way to deliver the letter."

A Terrible Mistake.

The interview appeared next day, and Daysey Mayme read with pride. Suddenly her face paled, her eyes flashed and she dashed to the telephone, and called up the newspaper office.

"The managing editor," she said in tones that were imperious, and when she got him she cried in a voice of authority:

"Stop the press! You have put two t's in parting in the seventh line, third column, ninth page. This article is IMPORTANT, and must be right."

"It means so much to be correct," she said to her mother, "when one is engaged in moulding the opinions of the world."

Safe.

"Captain," said a wealthy passenger, who was about to take his first trip across the ocean, "I understand this ship has got several water-tight compartments."

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"Captain, the passenger went on, decidedly, "I want one o' those compartments—I don't care what it costs."

Falling Into Captivity

HENDERSON was wont to declare that the girl who wasn't popular was no girl for him.

"There's something wrong with a girl who can go to dances and not be asked to dance every time," he would say dogmatically. "Anyway, if she had any sense she wouldn't place herself in such a position."

Possibly it was his propensity for selecting the most sought after girl as the object of his devotion that caused him to remain a bachelor at the age of 38. He was, however, the slave of his niece, Margaret.

As a rule, he did without a word whatever Margaret asked him to do. However, when she came and sat upon the arm of his chair one evening, and it finally developed that she was planning to make him take her to the high school dance he almost rebelled. He assured her that his dancing days were things of the distant past and demanded to know where all the boys were. Margaret tilted her nose into the air as far as it would go and replied that she didn't know; and, anyway, she didn't care in the least; and, anyway, she wanted Henderson to take her.

"The girls will all be crazy about you," she assured him ingratiatingly.

"They'll be crazy at me," gloomed Henderson, "if they have to dance with me." But eventually he promised that he would go.

"You look perfectly sweet," Margaret cried ecstatically when he came down in all his glory ready to escort her. "I'm so proud of you that I don't know what to do about it."

"Just let me crawl off into a corner and smoke while you have a good time," begged Henderson. "And don't expect me to dance."

"All right," Margaret agreed.

Afterward Henderson remembered that Miss Patterson was the first person upon whom his eyes had fallen when he entered the hall, though he paid no attention to her at the time. Miss Patterson was the domestic science teacher and was present as a sort of chaperon. She was what is known in the vernacular as "chunky." However, with all her chunkiness, she was young and she had a passion for dancing. In her bosom there fluttered the faint hope that she would be asked to dance a few times, anyway.

Danced With His Niece.

This hope shown from her eyes when they met Henderson's as Margaret presented him. Henderson did not recognize it—in fact, he hardly realized that their eyes had met. She was merely a little, fat, uninteresting teacher, to whom he gave hardly a second thought.

He danced the first dance with his niece. "Am I off duty for the present, Peg?" he inquired when the dance was over. Margaret glanced at him appealingly.

"Oh, Sammy, dear," she said, "you know I'm on the committee, and I wish—" She paused and her eyes turned toward Miss Patterson. "But, never mind."

Henderson was not proof against Margaret's wistfulness.

"Well, Peg," he queried, "what is it?"

When told that she much desired that he dance one dance with Miss Patterson, who was perfectly sweet, even if she couldn't dance much, he looked aghast. "You certainly have picked out a fairy for me," he said, ruefully. "Still, for your sake, I'll do it."

Sat Where He Left Her.

Miss Patterson looked like a toy balloon and danced like a baby elephant. She hopped about and around and around, coming down for the most part on Henderson's toes. She did all the things that he hated most. When they had circled the hall a time or two the music mercifully stopped, Henderson being in a state of complete exhaustion and Miss Patterson beaming joyously.

He was too much overcome to know whether she could talk or what she really looked like, his one idea being to escape. As he sought refuge in the smoking room he was unaware that Miss Patterson's eyes were following him with a look of deep gratitude. When he emerged, however, their eyes met. Hers had a patient, wistful look.

Henderson turned away hastily. "Never again," he muttered to himself. But those eyes haunted him. He went back into the smoking room and tried to forget that look. When he had finished his cigar he skulked into the hall. Miss Patterson sat where he had left her, her round face beginning to look a little tired, but unfailingly cheerful, her brown eyes still wistfully hopeful.

Henderson dived back into the outer hall and there gloomily communed with himself. Presently he returned, walked bravely across the room and once more invited Miss Patterson to dance.

Strange are the ways of the little god Cupid! Twice again during the evening did Henderson immolate himself. Then at the close of the dance Margaret informed him that she'd be glad if he would take Miss Patterson home and that he needn't mind her, as she was going with Harold Bemis. So he went home with Miss Patterson without a murmur.

Some months later Miss Patterson asked Henderson shyly: "What made you begin to—to—care for me?"

Henderson at that moment was holding up her plump little hand for the purpose of getting an idea as to the size of the third finger on the left hand. At the question he gave the plump little hand—the comfortable little cushiony hand that yet was so capable and energetic—a contented squeeze.

"I think I began by being sorry for you," he said. "You did dance so abominably."

Saved the Situation

A steady queue had formed up at the money order counter of the local post-office, and it members were strongly agitated by different stages of acute irritation.

And all because a dear old lady had forgotten the address of her son, who lived in foreign parts.

"It's in China," she faltered.

The man behind the counter then scratched his head.

"China's a big vague," he said, and so audibly thought the queue.

"Well, sir," said the dear old soul, "I know it's a name something like the noise of a motor-car makes—"

"Hong—honk!" came in a quickly suppressed shrill from the sandy-haired telegraph boy who had been watching the proceedings with considerable enthusiasm.

"That's it—that's it, sir!" cried the delightful old lady. And the clerk filled in Hong Kong in the address.

CHAPTER IX.

A Legal Document.

Mary Turner spent less than an hour in that mysteriously important engagement with Dick Gilder, of which she had spoken to Aggie. After separating from the young man she went alone down Broadway, walking the few blocks of distance to Sigismund Harris' office. On a corner her attention was caught by the forlorn face of a girl crossing into the side street. A closer glance showed that the privation of the gaunt features was emphasized by the scant garments, almost in tatters. Instantly Mary's quick sympathies were aroused, the more particularly since the wretched child seemed of about the age she, herself had been when her great suffering had befallen. So, turning aside she soon caught up with the girl and spoke an inquiry.

It was the familiar story, a father out of work, a sick mother, a brood of hungry children. Some confused words of distress revealed the fact that the woebegone girl was even then fighting the final battle of purity against starvation. That she still fought on in such case proved enough as to her decency of nature, wholesome despite squalid surroundings. Mary's heart was deeply moved and her words of comfort came with a simple sincerity that was like new life to the sorely beset waif. She promised to interest herself in securing employment for the father, such care as the mother and children might need, along with a proper situation for the girl herself. In evidence of her purpose she took her engagement book from her bag and set down the street and number of the East Side tenement where the family possessed the one room that mocked the word home, and she gave a banknote to the girl to serve the immediate needs.

Had a Heart Yearning.

When she went back to resume her progress down Broadway, Mary felt herself vastly cheered by the warm glow within which is the reward of a kindly act, gratefully received. And, on this particular morning, she craved such assuagement of her spirit, for the conscience that, in spite of all her misdeeds, still lived was struggling within her. In her revolt against a world that had wantonly inflicted on her the worst torments, Mary Turner had thought that she might safely disregard those principles in which she had been so carefully reared. She had believed that by the deliberate adoption of a life of guile within limits allowed by the law she would find solace for her wants, while feeling that thus she avenged herself in some slight measure for the indignities she had undergone unjustly. Yet, as the days passed, days of success as far as her scheming was concerned, his brilliant woman, who had tried to deem herself unscrupulous, found that lawlessness within the law failed to satisfy something deep within her soul. The righteousness that was her instinct was offended by the triumphs achieved through so devious devices, though she resolutely set her will to suppress any spiritual rebellion.

There was, as well, another grievance of her nature, yet more subtle, infinitely more painful. This lay in her craving for tenderness. She was wholly woman, notwithstanding the virility of her intelligence, its audacity, its aggressiveness. She had a heart yearning for the multitudinous affections that are the prerogative of the feminine; she had a heart longing for love, to receive and to give in full measure. * * * And her life was barren. Since the death of her father, there had been none on whom she could lavish the great gifts of her tenderness. Through the days of her working in the store, circumstances had shut her out from all association with others congenial. No need to rehearse the impossibilities of companionship in the prison life. Since then, the situation had not vitally improved, in spite of her better worldly condition. For Garson, who had saved her from death, she felt a strong and lasting gratitude—nothing that relieved the longing for nobler affections. There was none other with whom she had any intimacy except that, of a sort, with Aggie Lynch, and by no possibility could the adventuress serve as an object of deep regard. The girl was amusing enough, and, indeed, a most likable person at her best. But she was, after all, a shallow-pated individual, without a shred of principle of any sort whatsoever, save the single merit of unswerving loyalty to her "pals." Mary cherished a certain warm kindliness for the first woman who had befriended her in any way, but beyond this there was no finer feeling.

This Was Dick Gilder.

Nevertheless, it is not quite accurate to say that Mary Turner had had no intimacy in which her heart might have been seriously engaged. In one instance, of recent happening, she had been much in association with a young man who was of excellent standing in the world, who was of good birth, good education, of delightful manners, and, too, wholesome and agreeable beyond the most of his class. This was Dick Gilder, and, since her companionship with him, Mary had undergone a revulsion greater than ever before against the fate thrust on her, which now at last she had chosen to welcome and nourish by acquiescence as best she might.

Of course, she could not waste tenderness on this man, for she had deliberately set out to make him the instrument of her vengeance against his father. For that very reason, she suffered much from a conscience newly clamorous. Never for an instant did she hesitate in her long-cherished plan of revenge against the one who had brought ruin on her life, yet, through all her satisfaction before the prospect of final victory after continued delay, there ran the secret, inescapable sorrow over the fact that she must employ this means to attain her end. She had no thought of weakening, but the better spirit within her warred against the lust to repay an eye for an eye. It was the new Gospel against the old Law, and the fierceness of the struggle rent her. Just now, the doing of the kindly act seemed somehow to gratify not only her maternal instinct toward service of love, but, too, to muffle for a little the rebuking voice of her inmost soul.

So she went her way more at ease, more nearly content again with herself and with her system of living. Indeed, as she was shown into the private office of the ingenious interpreter of the law, there was not a hint of any trouble beneath the bright mask of her beauty, radiantly smiling.

Suffered Injustice.

Harris regarded his client with an appreciative eye, as he bowed in greeting, and invited her to a seat. The lawyer was a man of fine physique, with a splendid face of the best Semitic type, in which were large, dark, sparkling eyes—eyes a Lombroso perhaps might have judged rather too closely set. As a matter of fact, Harris had suffered a flagrant injustice in his own life from a suspicion of wrongdoing which he had not merited by any act. This had caused him a loss of prestige in his profession. He presently adopted the wily suggestion of the adage, that it is well to have the game if you have the name, and he resolutely set himself to the task of making as much money as possible by any means convenient. Mary Turner as a client delighted his heart, both because of the novelty of her ideas and for the munificence of the fees which she ungrudgingly paid with never a protest. So, as he beamed on her now, and spoke a compliment, it was rather the lawyer than the man that was moved to admiration.

"Why, Miss Turner, how charming!" he declared, smiling. "Really, my dear young lady, you look positively bridal."

"Oh, do you think so?" Mary rejoined, with a whimsical pout, as she seated herself. For the moment her air became distrait, but she quickly regained her poise, as the lawyer, who had dropped back into his chair behind the desk, went on speaking. His tone now was crisply businesslike.

"I sent your cousin, Miss Agnes Lynch, the release which she is to sign," he explained, "when she gets that money from General Hastings. I wish you'd look it over, when you have time to spare. It's all right, I'm sure, but I confess that I appreciate your opinion of things, Miss Turner, even of legal documents—yes, indeed, I do!—perhaps particularly of legal documents."

"Thank you," Mary said, evidently a little gratified by the frank praise of the learned gentleman for her abilities. "And have you heard from them yet?" she inquired.

Praise for Mary.

"No," the lawyer replied. "I gave them until to-morrow. If I don't hear then, I shall start suit at once."

Then the lawyer's manner became unusually bland and self-satisfied as he opened a drawer of the desk and brought forth a rather formidable-appearing document, bearing a most impressive seal. "You will be glad to know," he went on unctuously, "that I was entirely successful in carrying out that idea of yours as to the injunction. My dear Miss Turner," he went on with florid compliment, "Portia was a squawking baby, compared with you."

"Thank you again," Mary answered, and she took the legal paper which he held outstretched toward her. Her scarlet lips were curved happily, but the clear oval of her cheeks blossomed to a deep rose. For a moment, her glance ran over the words of the page. Then she looked up at the lawyer, and there were new lusters in the violet eyes.

"It's splendid," she declared. "Did you have much trouble in getting it?"

Harris permitted himself the indulgence of an unprofessional chuckle of keenest amusement before he answered.

"Why, no," he declared, with reminiscent enjoyment in his manner. "That is, not really!" There was an enormous complacency in his air over the event. "But, at the outset, when I made the request, the judge just naturally nearly fell off the bench. Then I showed him that Detroit case, to which you had drawn my attention, and the upshot of it all was that he gave me what I wanted without a whimper. He couldn't help himself, you know. That's the long and the short of it."

That mysterious document with the imposing seal, the request for which had nearly caused a judge to fall off the bench, reposed safely in Mary's bag when she returned to the apartment after the visit to the lawyer's office.

CHAPTER X.

Marked Money.

MARY had scarcely received from Aggie an account of Cassidy's threatening invasion when the maid announced that Mr. Irwin had called.

"Show him in, in just two minutes," Mary directed.

"Who's the gink?" Aggie demanded, with that slangy diction which was her habit.

"You ought to know," Mary returned, smiling a little. "He's the lawyer retained by General Hastings in the matter of a certain breach of promise suit."

"Oh, you mean yours truly," Aggie exclaimed, not in the least abashed by her forgetfulness in an affair that concerned herself so closely. "Hope he's brought the money. What about it?"

"Leave the room now," Mary ordered crisply. "When I call to you, come in, but be sure and leave everything to me. Merely follow my lead. And, Agnes—be very ingenue."

"Oh, I'm wise—I'm wise," Aggie nodded, as she hurried out toward her bed room. "I'll be a squab—surest thing you know."

Next moment Mary gave a formal greeting to the lawyer who represented the man she planned to mulct effectively, and invited him to a chair near her, while she herself retained her place at the desk, within a drawer of which she had just locked the formidable appearing document received from Harris.

Her Voice Was Cold.

Irwin lost no time in coming to the point.

"I called in reference to this suit which Miss Agnes Lynch threatens to bring against my client, General Hastings.

Mary regarded the attorney with a level glance, serenely expressionless as far as could be achieved by eyes so clear and shining, and her voice was cold as she replied with significant brusqueness:

"It's not a threat, Mr. Irwin. The suit will be brought."

The lawyer frowned and there was a strident note in his voice when he answered, meeting her glance with an uncompromising stare of hostility.

"You realize, of course," he said finally, "that this is merely plain blackmail."

To Be Continued Monday.

The clerk looked up.

"No, sir, Mr. Biggs' office is on the other side of the passage."

"Thank you," said the other, and stepped outside, leaving the door wide open.

"Dear, me, so I have. You see, all the doors at my home are fitted with Blodger's patent springs. Allow me to show you a specimen. Never wears out, never cracks or jams, or needs oiling, and—"

A Bachelor's Diary

By MAX.

MARCH 25.—I had thought constantly this morning of our evening with the widow at the station last night; of Jack Spencer's evident infatuation; of the way in which he monopolized her, and the possessive manner in which he took her to the train, though I had hoped to have that privilege; of Sally Spencer's only half-concealed distress, and of the widow's triumphant look when she left us.

She is an unscrupulous woman. So many women who are fascinating are, and she holds a grudge against Mrs. Spencer because of the efforts Sally made last winter to prevent me from marrying.

All this made me uneasy, and knowing Jack to be weak, just as I am weak and just as all men are weak, I felt an uprehension that was almost womanish. I was not surprised during the morning to get a telephone message from Mrs. Spencer to come over for a little "plain talk," she said, and it was with a decided feeling of relief that I assented.

He Walked In.

With the privilege granted an old friend I did not stop to knock when I reached Mrs. Spencer's door, but walked in unannounced, making my way to a certain little sunny sitting room where she always spent her mornings making up her household accounts, sewing, writing letters and engaged in similar little tasks which take up so much of a methodical woman's time, and which we men neither can comprehend nor appreciate.

She had been engaged in running a ribbon through some dainty lace-trimmed garment, but it had fallen unnoticed to the floor beside her, and with her hands lying idly on her lap she was gazing intently through the window.

I stepped behind her and looked over her head to see what so engrossed her. The window commanded a view of my back lawn and the picture at which she gazed was so pretty I did not wonder at her absorption. Richards had placed a little table on the lawn, and Manette was giving a dinner party, with Sarah Rae Hartman, four dolls, the brown-eyed pup and two kittens as her guests. The dolls were sitting bolt upright in their chairs with faces so lacking in expression that they looked like real society ladies; the two kittens on one side, not so well bred, were lapping cream from tiny saucers on the table, and the pup, on the opposite side, was barking so fiercely it became necessary for Manette to pause while feeding a doll on her lap to pacify him by sticking a cake in his mouth. His anger at the kittens, plainly because of their ill-breeding, could not be choked off by cake, and we looked and he gave one bound across the table, the kittens fled without asking to be excused, and sought shelter up the nearest tree with the pup at their heels.

I am proud of Manette for many things, and one is that she seldom cries. With her tea table upset and her tea party broken up, she did not give a howl like most babies, but dropped the doll baby and ran after the pup. Tompkins caught him before he had caught the kittens and restored him to Manette's arms, who punished him by putting him to bed in a doll buggy. There he lay, with his head on a pillow, his brown eyes making a plea for pardon and his pink tongue hanging out.

She Weeps.

"Does life offer any greater pleasure than that?" I said to Mrs. Spencer when she had turned around and found me there. Then I noticed that her eyes were filled with tears.

"Max," she said, drawing up a chair for me, "that," looking to where Manette was tying a doll bonnet on the pup's head, preparatory to taking him for a ride, "is all there is in life worth while. The love men and women have for each other is only a means to happiness, and that is never attained unless there is a child.

"Your home, though you are a bachelor, is happier than mine because of the presence of a child. I tell you, Max, you don't know how well off you are."

"But," I argued, feeling that in some indefinable way I was put on the defensive, "there are lonesome moments even when there is a child. I am a man grown with all a man's longing for the companionship of his peers, and baby talk does not satisfy me. I get down to Manette's size every hour in the day, and when evening comes and she has gone to bed I long for the companionship of one who talks my own language. And," growing more emphatic because of the look of disapproval in her eyes, "it is a longing that the society of men doesn't satisfy, and as good and patient as you and Jack are with me, letting me come over here every evening to forget my loneliness, it is a craving that even the companionship of two such good friends can't gratify. Oh, Sally, you are a woman, and a woman never understands!"

A Suggestion.

"No," she said sadly, "a woman never understands. And a man never understands either, and here we are, tied together for life, and neither understanding the other. It is a wonder we are as happy as we are. You have no wife to 'understand' you," a little sarcastically, "and I have a husband who doesn't 'understand' me, but you have a child, and are better off than I."

"If you feel that way about it, why don't you adopt one? There's Sarah Rae, for instance. I have an idea her parents would be glad to give her away."

She paid no heed to what I had said, but gazed out of the window with her mind so far away that her eyes took no note of the efforts Sarah Rae was making to hold the pup in the doll buggy while Manette dragged it back and forth on the garden path.

She turned toward me very suddenly. "What is Mrs. Brown's address?"

"But why—" I stammered.

"I intend to ask her here to spend a week," she replied.

"Sally," I said, "you are mad. If Jack is infatuated with the widow, why do you want to make his infatuation worse? She is gone. He will never see her again, and why, for the Lord's sake, give him a chance to play with fire by having her here?"

"You say a woman never understands. You are wrong; it is your sex that is stupid."

"But—" I began. Then I decided it was no use. There is never any use of arguing with a woman, so I pulled a notebook out of my pocket, copied Hrs. Brown's address on a card I found on the table, and handed it to her without a word.

"By the way," as if she had almost forgotten it; "Margaret Hill is coming also."

Margaret Hill! The girl I asked to be my wife, but who refused me when she learned there was a breach of promise suit pending against me. The good little Puritan, who was so good she was too good! I am sure my face showed my surprise.

A Bitter Cry.

"I tried to tell you at the station last night," she continued, "but you were so absorbed in the coming of the widow you refused to hear me."

"Max," abruptly changing the subject, "is a man's love ever won for all time? I won Jack Spencer's love when I was a girl twenty years ago, and I have been engaged in trying to keep it won ever since. I sometimes wonder"—a little bitterly—"if the love of a husband is worth the struggle a woman must make to hold it. It is fight, fight, fight, all the time; a fight to retain my personal charms, a fight to keep him interested, a fight to forget myself in satisfying every longing he may have, physical, mental or spiritual; a fight to give him just so much of myself that he will never know satiety and will always want more; a fight to keep him from the clutches of that Other Woman, always standing like a threatening phantom in the background; and then, when I have his love, what do I possess? Something about as lasting as a soap bubble, and never worth the price!"

"Look here, Sally Spencer," I said in real alarm, for this was so unlike her, "you are getting morbid, and I won't stand for it. Come with me," drawing her from her chair, and leading her to the door.

Five minutes later we were highly honored guests at the table of Sarah Rae, who was hostess this time, each holding a kitten and a doll as a special mark of honor.

But is that so, Diary, what she said about the love of man?

BEAUTY SECRETS OF BEAUTIFUL WOMEN

Effie Shannon Tells Why Twenty-five Years of Work Has Only Made Her Younger

By LILLIAN LAUFFERTY.

THE "Everybody's Doing It" of today is—trying to look young. Powder, pencil, patches, paint—art and artifice—these are the methods most of us accept; and these methods are all wrong; they "glid the surface" and scarcely deceive the most casual observer.

But there is a way to be so young and charming in spirit that the years creep on as friends, rather than enemies. There is a secret of eternal youth—and Effie Shannon knows it.

After a quarter of a century on the stage, Effie Shannon stands before us, slender, vibrant with life, magnetic and lovely, with the beauty of a clean-cut cameo. DELICATE, DAINTY EFFIE SHANNON HAS BEEN A WORKER FOR TWENTY-FIVE YEARS. Think of that, you little girls who fret lest your days of toil cheat you of youth and make you old before you have crossed life's threshold!

As the curtain falls on the evening-hushed rose garden in "Years of Discretion" at the Belasco Theater, Miss Shannon is happily echoing her lover-husband's, "It is wonderful to be old." IT IS WONDERFUL TO BE OLD, IF YOU HAVE THE INNER SPIRIT OF ETERNAL YOUTH—like Effie, of the play, and the charming woman who portrays her.

In the close intimacy of the dressing room, Miss Shannon is absolutely fresh and untouched by time, and yet she calmly said: "I am glad I am not young any more. Think of all the experience—the richness and fullness of life that I know. Think how high my spirit has fed. Do you think I'd give any of it—any line on my face—and retrace the years, and have a pretty mask with no background of life and feeling?

"Then to you true beauty is expression, is it not?" I asked.

Beauty Is Expression.

"Yes; true beauty IS expression—and to acquire beauty or to accent it, a woman must have imagination and sympathy.

"I never can sufficiently emphasize imagination and sympathy. Cultivate them—they are a woman's greatest friends. They give a deeper meaning to loveliness, and they veil plainness.

"Imagination means dreaming—seeing deep into life and interpreting it. Sympathy means being in tune with all of it.

"And as the years pass, a woman becomes more and more capable of them. So why should not a woman who cultivates these qualities become lovelier with the years?"

"'We must cultivate our garden. Do you remember that quotation? You seem to live it." I said.

Her lovely illuminating smile lit Miss Shannon's face. "I do remember—'The Beloved Vagabond' said it—and women who value their great gift, beauty, must cultivate the flowers of imagination and sympathy in the garden of mind and soul. And live! Live life in fullness. Remember you are an individual—a separate soul and learn to be your true self. Don't you think that will insure a beautiful expression—deep, tender eyes, a sweet mouth and a happy soul to illuminate the face?" asked the charming star earnestly.

Beware of Fat.

"I do, indeed," I replied. "We all must cultivate our gardens. But how about uprooting the weeds—fat for instance?"

"Fat is a noxious weed," laughed Miss Shannon. "Girls must never get fat if they want to be beautiful. People do eat too much in New York—in all the big cities where dinners and teas at home or in the restaurants are occasions. Beware of too much or too rich food!

"I will tell you how simply I live. Breakfast: Tea, toast and a bit of fruit. Luncheon—nothing. Not a bite. Dinner I have at five every day—and it is a very simple meal. After the play I have a simple supper, too, if I am hungry. One needs to see people to keep in touch with life—to have moments of gayety and absolute self-forgetfulness—to be with friends. After the play happens to be my free time. So I go to simple little suppers and enjoy them.

"Food is not the only practical consideration in connection with keeping thin. A very important one is: DON'T TAKE NAPS. Those little afternoon sleepy times are dangerously fattening—and life is too short to sleep away. Keep busy—keep doing things, and you will grow in strength, but not in beauty-destroying pounds."

"Suppose all else failed to give you the modern 'straight silhouette,' would you wear painfully tight clothes and shoes as you do in the play in order to be young and alluring," I asked?

"NO!" said the graceful star emphatically. "Who could be charming with tight shoes on? TIGHT SHOES TORTURE YOUR MIND AS WELL AS YOUR FEET. And five pairs of garters' strapping you down firmly—you could not feel in tune with life—you would feel only pain—in this world full of beauty you would be conscious only of a body painfully striving for fashionable contours. Good corsets, shoes that fit, suitable clothes, they will, when properly adjusted and selected, help you give the impression of youth. But they are the lesser aids.

"Youth is a matter of spirit and feeling, you know. Feel young; think young eager thoughts; love life in its fullness of work and play and joy and sorrow.

"But to be beautiful, you must be young in spirit—not in years. TIME AND EXPERIENCE AND FEELING MUST CHISEL A FACE TO MAKE IT REALLY BEAUTIFUL; THE SPIRIT OF KNOWLEDGE MUST ILLUMINATE BEAUTY TO MAKE IT LOVELY AND PERMANENTLY ATTRACTIVE.

"Express your own true self always better and better—and then it is 'wonderful to be old'—for your spirit will be gloriously young, and your SPIRIT WILL MAKE YOU GLOW WITH THE FIRES OF ETERNAL YOUTH."

And as Miss Shannon's voice, vibrant with imagination and sympathy, alight with feeling, and truly expressive of her own rare self, brought me her message, I knew I had heard a vital truth. Youth is deeper than powder and paint and clothes—Youth is Soul.

"BE SURE TO BURN LOVE LETTERS"

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

DON'T keep love letters.

Unless you are receiving them from your own wife or husband or your fiance, you might better keep a box of dynamite in your kitchen or introduce an infernal machine into your household than to guard a package of love letters.

Let them perish in their own fires as soon as absorbed by the eye and heart.

If your engagement is broken, even though one or both swear never to marry, nevertheless it is worse than folly to keep the letters exchanged during the existence of tender relations.

Fate plays such strange pranks with us all. Your lover may some day be President of the United States, or your sweetheart the wife of a great celebrity, and unnecessary pain and annoyance ensue from the unearthing of those old letters by some accident.

Burn them, I say, burn them!

VERY FOOLISH.

IT is one thing to have your husband or wife tell you of an early rehearsal of Cupid's drama before you met. It is another to encounter the love letters written during that period—which seem to your exacting heart more realistic than the role you have been engaged to play for life.

Sometimes a sensible moral being is suddenly swept off his feet by a tidal wave of passion.

Sometimes he is safely landed on shore by a happy turn of the wind or by the life-saving crew of Providence.

He hides his bruises, and no one knows of his brief disaster—unless he carries about with him the incriminating letter.

Oh, the folly of it!

BURN THEM ALL.

IT is no easy task, however, to burn or destroy, a letter that is dear to you. A genuine love letter breathes the very fragrance of the writer's soul. Who capable of understanding the grand passion has not felt the keen sense of pleasure that was twin to pain at the sight of the beloved one's handwriting? Where is the man or woman so stolid or commonplace who has not at some time kissed the page whereon a dear hand has rested and then hidden it near the heart whose accelerated throbs welcomed its approach?

And who of deep feeling and wide experience has not at some time felt his own heart scorching with the parcel of letters he tossed upon the coals?

But human hearts have a Phoenix-like propensity for rising from their own ashes, strong with new life and capable of new emotions. Let there be no accusing records of the old.

Let the dead bury its dead.

However it hurts, whatever it costs, burn your love letters.

An Eye to Business

"Prisoner at the bar," declaimed the learned Judge, "your offense is of such a nature that, if you plead guilty, I will let you off with a fine."

"Pardon me," and the prisoner's counsel popped suddenly up from his seat. "Before we plead guilty, it will be necessary for us to know exactly how much the fine will be."

"But this is unprecedented, sir!" exclaimed the Judge warmly. "You can not bargain with the Court."

"Well, it may be a little unusual, Your Honor," replied the lawyer, "but I am sure, when you learn the full circumstances of the case, you will entirely agree to my proposition. You see, the prisoner is in the possession of $60; my fee is $50, and so we cannot afford to plead guilty if you insist on fining him more than $10."

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"I knew her the instant I entered the house; and, remembering the Chanticler dress with its fowl's-foot boots, I guessed at once what those marks would prove to be when I came to investigate them. She must have stamped on the ground with all her might, to sink the marks in so deeply—but she meant to make sure of the claws and the exaggerated scales on the toes leaving their imprint. I was certain we should find that dress and those boots among her effects; and—Mr. Narkom did. What I wrote on that pretended telegram was for him to slip away into the house proper and search every trunk and cupboard for them.

"What's that? No, I don't think they really had any idea of incriminating Sir Roger Droger. That thought came into the fellow's mind when you stepped out and caught him stealing away after the murder had been committed. No doubt he, like you, had seen Sir Ralph practicing for the sports, and he simply made capital of it.

"The main idea was to kill his father and to destroy the will; and, of course, when it became apparent that the old gentleman had died intestate, even a discarded son must inherit. Where he made his blunder, however, was in his haste to practice his ventriloquial accomplishment to prevent your going into the Round House and discovering that his father was already dead.

"He ought to have waited until you spoke, so that it would appear natural for the old men to know without turning who it was that had opened the door. That is what put me on the track of him. Until that moment I hadn't the slightest suspicion where he was nor under what guise he was hiding.

"Of course, I had a vague suspicion even before I came and saw her that 'the cook' was in it. Her readiness in inventing a fictitious gypsy with a bear's muzzle coupled with what Nippers had told me of the animal marks she had pointed out, looked a bit fishy; but, of course, until I actually met her nothing really tangible began to take shape in my thoughts.

"That's all, I think. And now good-night and good luck to you, Miss Renfrew. The riddle is solved; and Mr. Narkom and I must be getting back to the wilderness and to our ground floor beds in the hotel of the beautiful stars!"

THE END.

Their Married Life

Helen, from a Box, Looks Down Upon Warren at a Banquet at the Astor-Ritz.

By MABEL HERBERT URNER.

IT was just 5:30 when Helen, in an evening gown and long white wrap, hurried down to a taxicab.

"The Astor-Ritz," she called to the driver as she gathered her chiffon skirts about her white satin slippers and stepped in.

To be whirling through the streets alone at 9:30 was for Helen a new sensation, and always self-conscious, she dreaded arriving at the Astor-Ritz unescorted.

It was the night of the annual dinner of the International Fraternal Society. Mr. Jennings had invited Warren to the dinner and had given him a box ticket for Helen. She was supposed to arrive about 10, to sit in a box overlooking the banquet hall and listen to the speeches.

With a fluttering heart she left the cab and ran up the awning-covered steps of the Astor-Ritz. Keenly conscious that she was alone, she hurried through the lobby to the nearest elevator.

At the entrance to the balcony of the banquet hall the doorman took her ticket and escorted her to one of the boxes in which were already seated three beautifully gowned women.

Below was the banquet hall with a long speakers' table at the end, and countless smaller tables crowded so close that the waiters could hardly pass between. It was a brilliant scene—the lights, the flower-decked tables, the high, gilded ceiling and gleaming chandeliers.

Helen's first impulse as she leaned over the red plush railing of the box was to find Warren. But it was not easy to locate any one in that great crowded hall, with all the diners in evening dress, and each with a white carnation in his buttonhole.

Not Warren.

Was that Warren with his back towards her at that table by the pillar? She leaned forward eagerly, but as she caught a glimpse of the man's side face her searching glance swept on to other tables.

The waiters were just bringing on the dessert—a pinkish ice in tall slender glasses. There were many things in the table appointments that Helen was eager to notice, but she could not be content until she had located Warren.

Then suddenly she saw him at a table near the center. Why had she not seen him at once? Surely no one else looked so distinguished!

If he would only look up! But he was talking to the man at his right. He had promised to look for her around 10, and it was that now, but he kept on laughing and talking, not even glacing towards the boxes.

The waiter had just placed before him his frozen ice and refilled his wine glass. Then Helen saw that every one at Warren's table was drinking champagne. Some of the other tables had champagne, some had claret, and at a few there were no wine glasses at all.

Warren was looking up now! He was glancing toward the boxes! He saw Helen and waved his napkin.

Helen flushed with pride as the other women in the box turned to look at her. In spite of their expensive gowns and jewels Helen felt certain that their husbands were not at handsome and distinguished as Warren.

The waiters had now all lined up by the door, each carrying a tray piled high with small white boxes—the dinner souvenirs. At a sign from the head waiter, they filed in and out through the tables, leaving a white box beside each plate.

Had the diners been women, they would have instantly opened the boxes, but the men seemed hardly to notice them. So Helen's curiosity was not gratified.

The Dinner Over.

At length the dinner was over. The waiters began carrying out the dishes and the pink-shaded candles, most of which had burned out. The orchestra that had been playing in a balcony above the boxes now stopped.

The chairman at the speakers' table rose and rapped for order. Helen wondered why he was chairman. He was small and insignificant with a thin voice that did not carry. After some tedious remarks which no one could hear, he introduced the first speaker of the evening, Dr. Olony, an eminent sociologist.

Helen leaned forward with eager interest. The speakers were all prominent men, and she felt thir addrsses would be well worth hearing. But Dr. Olony began with the usual trite preliminary remarks about it being "an honor to address so distinguished a gathering." Then to Helen's dismay he produced a formidable manuscript and preceded to read it.

Everybody sat back resignedly. After the first few moments Helen did not pretend to listen. The women beside her kept up a running conversation. Several men had now come up to the various boxes to sit with their wives and friends. The eminent Dr. Olony was still reading in a monotonous voice.

Helen's glance never left Warren for long, and now she saw him push back his chair and leave the table. He looked up and nodded. He was coming up to her!

"Well, what do you think of it?" when he entered the box and took the chair beside her.

"Oh, dear, it's very interesting," happily excited now that she was with her. How wonderful he looked—how distinguished! Her eyes rested on him proudly.

"Rotten speaker," he grumbled. "A man ought to be mobbed for reading a speech at a dinner like this. What people want is short pointed addresses of say—five minutes. That boob's been spouting for fifteen."

"Oh, dear, you didn't bring me your souvenir. I wanted so much to see them."

"Forgot the blamed thing. Get it for you later. Wonde. who that stunning woman is in that box over there?"

Helen followed his glance to the dark-haired regal-looking woman. She was undeniably beautiful. Her gown of white lace was cut strikingly low, and there were strands of pearls about her throat and in her hair. Helen was not often jealous, but somehow she felt suddenly plain and poorly gowned beside the striking loveliness of that woman.

The speaker finished now and sat down amid much applause. He bowed repeatedly, not seeming to realize that the applause was only an expression of relief that he was through. Again the chairman rapped for order.

This time a United States Senator was introduced. To Helen's relief he had no notes, his voice was deep and booming, and he was plainly used to talking on his feet. But his ranting eloquence was just words—empty phrases. He had nothing particular to say and was merely "orating."

Warren, who loathed after-dinner speaking, and who rarely attended big dinners because he would not be bored, was becoming restive.

"How many more of these guys do we have to stand for?" drawing from his pocket the dinner menu, on the back of which were the names of the speakers. "Suffering cats! FOUR more? Well, I guess not! We'll cut it and make for home."

"Oh, dear, we'd better wait a little longer! It'll look rude to leave so early. Mr. Jennings will think we didn't enjoy it."

"Guess he's bored stiff, too. Why in blazes don't they have some live talkers instead of ringing in a lot of dead ones?"

If the speech of the eminent sociologist had been long, the Senator's seemed interminable. He boomed on with high-sounding phrases about "The Achievements of the Nineteenth Century..... The Splendid Strides of Civilization .....The Advancement of Society," and something about "Shining Orbits in the Sky of Future Progress.....Blazing in Front of the Jeweled Crown of an Unconquerable Race."

Every one was becoming impatient and restive, even the chairman had his mallet poised as though anxious to rap it, but still the Senator kept on shouting his oratorical phrases.

Missed the Souvenir.

"Gosh, that fellow loves to hear himself talk," growled Warren. "He's good for another hour yet. Come ON!"

"But dear, we must wait—we can't leave while he's speaking," whispered Helen.

"Like to know why we can't? Here's where I get out!"

"And I didn't get the souvenir—I didn't even see what they were!" bewailed Helen, as Warren hurried her out through the crowded corridors of the Astor-Ritz.

"Souvenirs!" with a contemptuous sniff. "Well I wouldn't have stood for any more of that duffer's speech for a dozen souvenirs. I'll wager he's spouting there yet."

"Yes, he WAS tiresome," Helen admitted, sinking back in the taxicab with a sigh of relief. Then laughingly, "Dear, if you ever make an after-dinner speech, don't begin by saying you 'feel honored to address so distinguished a gathering.' And don't—PLEASE don't use a lot of fine phrases that mean nothing."

"Huh," snorted Warren, "don't you worry! If ever I make a public speech I'll have something to say, and I'll say it blamed quick, and have gumption enough to sit down when I'm through."

KANSAS WOMAN WHO SUFFERED

Lawrence, Kans.—"A year ago I was suffering from a number of ailments. I always had pain and was irregular. During the delay I suffered a great deal with headache, backache, dizziness, feverish spells, nervousness and bloating. I had been married nearly three years. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now

I feel better than I have for years. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all who suffer as I did."—Mrs. M. ZEUNER, 1045 New Jersey Street, Lawrence, Kansas.

Montana Woman's Case.

Burns, Mont.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me of awful backache which I had suffered with for months. I was so weak I could hardly do my work and my head and eyes ached all the time. Your Compound helped me in many ways and is a great strengthener. I always recommend it to my friends and tell them what a grand medicine it is for women. You may use my name for the good of others."—Mrs. JOHN FRANCIS, Burns, Montana.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as those above—they tell the truth, else they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no stranger—it has stood the test for years.

COTTON GOES UP AND THEN DROPS

Reports of Rain in Georgia and Oklahoma Cause Rapid Decline From Early Level.

NEW YORK, May 9.—In the absence of rains, especially in the eastern belt, the cotton market opened steady, with prices at a net gain of 2 to 6 points from Thursday's final. Spot people were good buyers. There was also a short covering movement by the local crowd and there was some outside buying. The selling was attributed mostly to brokers with Southern connection. The market quickly developed additional strength, and prices advanced 2 to 8 points from the opening level. July displayed considerable strength. This option was under heavy buying by shorts and held steady at 10 points advance over the previous close throughout the morning session.

Should there be no rains in the eastern belt, much higher prices are anticipated.

Weather indications overnight are predicted fair in the eastern belt, but other leading cotton States are predicted to have unsettled showers, except Louisiana and East Texas, where the weather will be fair.

The course the market took this morning made it more and more obvious that this is entirely a weather market. Unfavorable advices were received from Manchester, saying that buyers have very bad reports from the other side. It seems like conditions there are becoming bad again. The trade is much quieter. It is said that it is impossible to induce mills to buy cotton.

During the late forenoon the market was quiet but steady, with prices a shade lower than the early high point.

Reports of rains in Oklahoma and Georgia caused a general selling movement during the afternoon session, which was said to be profit-taking. Offerings from Wall Street became freer and the indications that the crop is in danger were ignored.

Experts in New Orleans stated that we might expect good rains the first of the week. This brought selling from the locals who were early buyers, resulting in prices making a rapid decline and dropping 2 to 8 points from the opening figures.

At the close the market was steady with prices at a net decline of 1 to 4 points from the final quotations of Thursday.

Following are 11 a. m. bids in New York: May 11.48, July 11.58, August 11.36, October 11.02, January 11.01.

Following are 10 a. m. bids in New Orleans: May 12.18, July 12.01, August 11.88, October 11.18, January 11.18.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S DAILY COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, May 9.—Liverpool came in rather poor, but rallied in the last hour. Liverpool will be closed to-morrow and Monday. Spots 2 points higher; sales, 6,000 bales. The feature on our side was the strength of July in New York, causing a corresponding advance in that position here and giving strength to the whole list. Absence of further rains in the Eastern States brought some covering demand from shorts. New York gossip says that about 50,000 bales will be shipped out and the loss in stock is causing short covering of July.

Manchester reports to agents here show a radical change and now are distinctly bad. They say it is impossible to interest mills in any offers of cotton, trade declining and strike danger imminent.

London reports that the first peace meeting dissolved without accomplishing definite results, that the next meeting will not take place until May 20, after the holidays, that the powers may occupy Scutari with a joint force as a precautionary measure.

The market eased after the close of Liverpool and trading was of no pronounced character. The talk of dry weather in the East is looked upon as a means to promote a short scare, on which idea there has been professional buying lately than as a real danger to production.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The weather will be warm, with showers to-night or Saturday in the Ohio Valley, the lower Lake region and the Middle Atlantic States. Elsewhere east of the Mississippi River the weather will be generally fair. It will continue cool in the Lake region and will be cooler from the Ohio Valley eastward and northeastward.

General forecast until 7 p. m. Saturday:

Georgia—Fair to-night and Saturday.

COTTON GOSSIP

NEW YORK, May 9.—Joe Gatins is credited with covering a large line of July shorts, but he put them out again in new crop positions above 11 cents.

* * *

A wire from Savannah, Ga., yesterday said that unless it rains in a few days the crop will be damaged considerably.

* * *

Troy, Ala., wired that the crop conditions were going backward, owing to the absence of rains, and that very little cotton is up. In that section of the state cotton chopping is generally finished about May 15.

* * *

Niel estimated the consumption of cotton for the current year at 14,750,000 bales. He said a crop under 15,000,000 bales would warrant higher prices.

* * *

Conditions of the crop in Georgia must be pretty bad if the replies received by a New York firm from correspondents in the State are true. Following is the condition of the crop in some of the large producing counties:

Richland—Crop 90 per cent planted; condition poor, no stand. Zebulon—Crop 86 per cent planted; condition bad, too dry. Chiple—Crop 75 per cent planted; condition, very little up. Madison—Crop 90 per cent planted; condition good; dry. Covington—Crop 60 per cent planted; condition fair. Lawrenceville—Crop 80 per cent planted; condition 75 per cent. Jackson—Crop 75 per cent planted; condition fair. Danville—Crop 100 per cent planted; condition, dry weather has prevented its coming up; considerable complaint of the plant already from cool weather. Madison—Crop 75 per cent planted; condition one week backward. Winder—Crop 90 per cent planted; condition 80 per cent; ground very dry and cloudy and look for very poor stand. Bartow—Crop 80 per cent planted; condition very little up; very dry. Chauncey—Crop 75 per cent planted; condition scarcely any cotton up in Georgia at this date. Grantville—Crop 95 per cent planted; condition, none up and will not come until it rains. McRae—Crop 50 per cent planted; condition, very poor stand; much to be planted; seed scarce. Lyons—Crop 60 per cent planted; condition very bad; awfully dry; 50 per cent of seed planted is lost; getting seed to replant all is impossible here. Rochelle—Crop 98 per cent planted; condition good.

* * *

Absence of rains gave rise to good buying on the opening, spot houses being among the best buyers; also shorts, who apparently centered their attention on July option.

Mitchell and McGhee were heavy bidders for July.

* * *

Dallas wires: "Some rains in the Panhandle; clear and pleasant elsewhere. Oklahoma clear and cool."

NEW ORLEANS, May 9.—Hayward & Clark: The weather map is favorable. It shows partly cloudy in the northern half of the belt and in the Atlantic generally fair elsewhere. There was no rain except at Amarillo, in Northwest Texas. Temperatures are above normal. Indications are for increasing cloudiness generally, probably unsettled weather, with scattered showers in the northern half of the belt and cooler.

MILL TAKINGS 120,000 BALES LESS THAN PREVIOUS YEAR

The visible supply of American cotton during the past week shows a decrease of 97,432 bales, as compared with a decrease of 233,274 bales for the corresponding week last year and a decrease of 158,480 bales for the same week the year before. Other kinds show an increase of 30,000 bales, against a decrease of 28,000 bales for the same week last year, compared with an increase of 9,000 bales for the same week in 1911.

STOCKS INACTIVE ENTIRE SESSION

Market Is Waiting for Announcement Regarding U. P. and S. P. Dissolution Plan.

By CHARLES W. STORM.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Selling pressure was exerted upon the list at the opening of the stock market to-day and most of the issues sustained declines. Some of the stocks which opened higher either lost all their advance or part of it. Canadian Pacific, which opened ⅝ lower, had increased its decline to 1⅛ within a half hour.

Traders held that the passage of the Underwood tariff bill by the House last night was a depressing factor.

Among the other declines were Amalgamated Copper ⅝, United States Steel common ⅝, Lehigh Valley ⅝, Atchison ⅛, Pennsylvania ⅛, Chesapeake and Ohio ⅝, Erie ⅛, California Petroleum ⅛.

The specialties were the only group showing strength. American Beet Sugar advanced ⅝. Chino Copper was up ⅛, while Consolidated Gas rose ⅛.

Union Pacific opened ¼ higher, but soon lost its gain and declined ¼. Southern Pacific was ⅜ higher at first, but sold off. Reading began ⅜ higher, but lost its gain and declined.

The curb market was dull.

Americans in London were barely steady.

The market during the forenoon was generally higher. Amalgamated Copper at 85½ was up ⅜. Southern Pacific gained ⅝ at 96. Lehigh Valley, United Copper and Steel were up ¼. Canadian Pacific and Gas were up. The tone in the late forenoon was firm.

Call money loaned at 2½.

The market closed steady. Governments unchanged; other bonds firm.

Price of Cotton Now Is 11.6 Cents

WASHINGTON, May 9.—A slight increase over a year ago, but a considerable decrease when compared with 1910 and 1911, is reported in the price of cotton, according to figures given out to-day by the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Agriculture.

The prices received by the producers as reported by the Department's agents were as follows: May 1, 1912, 11.6c; April 1, 1913, 11.8c; May 1, 1912, 10.9c; May 1, 1911, 14.2c; May 1, 1910, 14c.

The general average of prices received for staple crops increased 2.3 per cent from April 1 to May 1. The increase in the same period of last year was 8.4 per cent. On May 1 the prices of staple crops averaged about 30.1 per cent lower than on like date of 1912.

ST. LOUIS CASH QUOTATIONS.

Wheat—No. 2 red	100 @107
Corn—No. 2	57¼ @ 57½
Oats—No. 2	35¼

CHICAGO, May 9.—Wheat was stronger this morning on small offerings in the pit, coupled with some fair buying by the larger commission concerns.

Cables were lower on the construction placed upon the Government May report, which was made public in the Old World late yesterday. Northwestern receipts were larger than a year ago, while the Argentine shipments were smaller, as was also the Argentine visible.

Liverpool was lower on corn, but prices at Chicago were ⅛c to ¼c better.

Oats acted in sympathy with the other grains and ruled strong.

There was a better feeling in hog products, with prices fractionally higher.

ARE YOU A FLY?

Read The Georgian's great editorial to-day, then study Winsor McCay's cartoon: The Fly-paper of Debt. To-morrow morning or on the next payday start a Savings Account with this strong bank.

A SAVINGS ACCOUNT will keep you out of debt, for it will inculcate habits of thrift and economy. Human progress has been based on that far-sightedness that contemplates future needs and prepares for them, and a savings account is the most secure kind of insurance on the future.

Georgian "Want Ad" Tablets Touch the Spot. Try Them if Business Is Run Down

GREAT PUBLIC NOT BITTER TO CORPORATIONS

Dissatisfaction With Business Conditions Exists, but There Is Little Revolutionary Spirit.

By B. C. FORBES.

"If I thought the great body of the American people were as bitter, as hostile to business as many of our legislators I would give up and retire," said one of the country's foremost men of affairs, a man who has built up an important industry, a director in corporations of the first magnitude and the possessor of a large fortune.

* * *

"Do you think the people are as discontented and antagonistic to capital as is often represented—as ugly as Vice President Marshall says they are?" I was asked.

* * *

What do YOU think? Are they? Is it a case of empty vessels making most noise? Or are the majority of American citizens deeply disgusted with the present order of things? Are they on the verge of revolt, as the Vice President alleges? Is widespread revolutionary sentiment cooped up in the average citizen's breast? Is unrest in the United States worse than in other lands? Or is all our fretting and fidgeting, our mania for reform and regulation, our striving after innovations merely part of a world-wide movement toward a fuller measure of democracy?

* * *

These are questions not easy of dogmatic answer. The Hearst publications reach a greater number of Americans than the publications of any other concern in the country, and experience has taught me that they somehow come nearer the heart-beats of the people than any other publications of which I have any knowledge. The readers have a flattering habit of speaking their minds, of voicing approval or disapproval of articles, of taking the writers into their confidence, so to speak. In this way one is able to feel the pulse of the people.

* * *

Hundreds—thousands—of letters come to the business news department—not only from the East, but from the Middle West, the Far West and the South, as what is here written is printed in Hearst newspapers covering virtually the whole Union. Judging by this mass of correspondence from men and women in all ranks of life, there IS a good deal of discontent, of dissatisfaction with existing conditions, of bitterness against corporations, of determination to compel reforms in many directions.

* * *

But of revolutionary, anarchistic sentiment there is extremely little trace.

* * *

Speaking broadly, a great section of the population have the conviction that most ultra-rich capitalists have done things they ought not to have done, and by the doing of which they have taken unfair advantage of the people at large.

* * *

Let me give extracts from some letters received within the last week or two.

* * *

C. H. Burnham, 131 State Street, Boston, writes:

On the strength of the interview given out by Jacob H. Schiff just before Mr. Harriman died—declaring Mr. Harriman was practically a well man—I bought Union Pacific, as at that time I believed Mr. Schiff, and it cost me a good many hundred dollars.

What do you think when Major Higginson comes out in an interview and says there is nothing the matter with the New Haven Railroad?

What is the answer, after reading what is going on before Commissioner Prouty?

* * *

From Cornino, N. Y., "A Railroader on the Erie," criticising my articles on railroad subjects, writes:

Railroad managers and owners are nothing more or less than straight up and down thieves, robbing the public. They never tell how much they make. But anybody who becomes a railroad manager becomes a millionaire in a few years. They find fault about giving a few cents extra in wages to their men. But such as President Baer, the head of the coal trust, pays $100,000 for a private car. When such things as this are done it only makes you appear ridiculous in the articles you publish in favor of railroad robbers.

* * *

It is not my intention to-day to discuss the reasonableness or unreasonableness of hostility to corporations and capitalists, but only to indicate what the temper of a large section of the public really is. The subject will be worth considering again.

GREEK STARTS TO 'WAR;' THINKS SHRINERS TURKS

PENSACOLA, FLA., May 9.—Mistaking a body of Shriners, in their Oriental garb, for a company of Turkish soldiers, a Pensacola Greek went to a hardware store and purchased two automatic revolvers, saying he intended to "kill the Turks." The police explained to him that they were Shriners, not Turks. The company stopped here en route from Indianapolis to the Dallas conclave.

PRAY FOR MORE CHILDREN; STORK BRINGS TRIPLETS

NEW YORK, May 9.—The prayers of Lewis and Rebecca Isler were granted to-day when the stork brought them triplets. Since last January when their four children were burned to death in a fire which destroyed their home the Islers had offered up daily prayers for more children.

BEARISH BUREAU REPORT HAS LITTLE OR NO EFFECT

CHICAGO, May 9.—The Inter-Ocean says:

"Wheat traders while putting a bearish construction on the government report did not take it seriously. Some traders regarded the report as having been discounted by the recent decline of 5c. Bulls said they expect to see a continued good export business on every decline, and believe the market heavily oversold and in a position to be easily rallied.

"Those who were bullish on corn believe that there will be no great pressure of receipts for a week or ten days, or until after corn planting is finished. It was intimated that some of the heaviest sellers of late winter were on the buying side for the past few days.

"Oats specialists are inclined to go slow on the selling side until there are more satisfactory reports in regard to the crop from Central Illinois."

POULTRY, PET and LIVE STOCK

Defects in Combs Of Chickens Often Mar Beauty of Fowls

Should Exercise Great Care in Breeding—Value by Judges.

EDITED BY JUDGE F. J. MARSHALL

The pea comb is a triple comb, or a series of three straight combs paralleling each other, and joined to each other at the base, each having small but distinct serreations throughout their length. The two outer rows being lower and thinner than the center one, the points formed in this way being so low and broad that they resemble rows of peas, hence the name given them. This comb should fit close and solid upon the head, rather than to stand up from the head and incline to turn from side to side.

The breeds having this comb are the Brahmas, Buckeyes, all the Cornish and Sumatra. The most common defect in these combs is the twisting from side to side near the middle. In other words, it is a kink in all three of the rows of points and makes the comb decidedly out of line when viewed from in front.

Another kind of comb that is often seen in one where the middle part of the combs show all right and is good shape in itself, but the sides are very faintly outlined and would almost be taken for a single comb at first sight. In mating up such stock for breeding purposes one is very likely to get some single combs and then the trouble has commenced.

The V comb is a very peculiar one and looks much like a pair of horns standing up from the center of the head. They show but very slightly upon the heads of the hens. On the well matured males it shows up all right. The comb in these breeds is, however, not considered a valuable asset, so that the smaller it is the better it is liked.

Value by Judges.

The comb is only valued at 4 points out of the 100. The breeds having this form of comb are as follows: All the Polish (which are eight varieties), the Houdans, Crevecoeurs, and LaFleche, French varieties.

Then we have the Malay and the Silkie, with the strawberry comb, which is not very much of a definite comb and is found only upon these two breeds of relatively small importance. The comb is really of more importance than is generally considered as a distinguishing feature of the breed or variety it represents. Take, for example, the Light Brahma, the variety which stands at the head of our list of thoroughbred fowls for recognized type in breeding and put a sort of mongrel type of comb upon it and what would it be worth? Or the Plymouth Rock and put a wrinkled turn-over sort of a comb upon it and a Rock man would simply laugh at you and want to know what it was mixed with.

It frequently occurs, however, that some of the larger combed hens of a variety are the heaviest layers. That is, they may have a comb almost too heavy for the breed, although of the right type, and be greatest layers of the flock.

Questions and Answers.

Judge Marshall:—Is it a good plan to breed pullets back to their sire? Some tell me it is just the thing to do, while others say it is detrimental to health. I would be very glad to have your opinion of it.

Monroe, Ga. S. J. R.

ANSWER:—While expert breeders of long experience take the chances of weakened vitality in the offspring for the sake of gaining some valuable points they have been striving hard for, yet, as a rule, it is not good policy to make a business of it. Unless you are sure you are going to be able to intensify a number of good qualities in the next generation, you had better not take the risk of multiplying a lot of serious defects.

You see, it is close inbreeding and is not a good policy for those who are not working for the very highest in type to undertake or run the risk of for health's sake. Of course, it is better to breed that way than to breed brother and sister together.

LEGAL NOTICES.

GUARDIAN SALE.
GEORGIA—Fulton County.

By virtue of an order of the court of ordinary of said county, granted at the May term, 1913, will be sold before the court house door of said couny, on the first Tuesday in May next, within the legal hours of sale, the following property of the estate of Marguerite Smith, to-wit: A one-twentieth undivided interest in all that tract or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the city of Macon and County of Bibb, in said State, and distinguished in the plan of said city as parts of lots Nos. one and two (1 and 2) in block No. sixty-one (61), in the southwest common of the city of Macon, and fronting on Tattnall Street sixty (60) feet, and running back the same width one hundred and fifty (150) feet, and containing one-quarter of an acre, more or less, said lot adjoining on the three remaining sides the lands belonging to the estate of B. F. Ross, with an alley on the north, between said lands and the lot herein described, and being the residence of E. P. Smith, late of said County of Bibb, deceased, and being the same property contained and described in deed from Susan M. Parsons and Clara F. Florence to M. E. P. Smith and Mary E. Smith, recorded in Deed Book "DD" in the clerk's office of Bibb Superior Court, folio 541, on February 23, 1882, which one-twentieth undivided interest is probably worth one hundred and fifty dollars.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

W. G. Raoul Property To Be Put on Market

Ten Lots Facing Piedmont Park. Druid Hills Sale—Improvements on Peachtree Road.

Ten lots in the estate of the late William G. Raoul, facing Piedmont Park, will be sold at private sale by the Forrest & George Adair real estate agency, according to announcement made to-day. The property was carefully assembled by Captain Raoul through a long period of years and this is the first time it has been offered for sale. The lots are on the west side of Piedmont Avenue, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth Streets. Several of them taken together were offered two years ago as a site for the State's executive mansion. The frontages are from 60 to 70 feet and the depths 150 to 200 feet.

Greenwood Avenue Sale.

Eugene S. Kelly has bought through his concern, the Charles P. Glover Realty Company, a residence lot on Greenwood Avenue, between Highland Avenue and Briarcliff Road, just west of Druid Hills, for $11,500. This lot is 305 by 169 feet. It was bought for investment from a client of the Glover agency.

Meetings at City Hall.

People who are working for a regrade of Whitehall and West Peachtree Streets are meeting this afternoon with the streets committee of Council at the City Hall, to urge improvements on their thoroughfares. The Whitehall Street matter is expected to be settled at this conference, and the West Peachtree question will be taken up later.

Foundry Street Purchase.

Mrs. Bertha Kline has bought through J. H. Ewing, of the Smith & Ewing real estate agency, a 40 by 100 foot lot on Foundry Street, between Elliott and Mangum Streets, for $2,250. A small house is on this property. The seller was L. M. Anderson.

Sale on Piedmont Road.

Deeds have gone to record in the sale March 6 of a large building lot at the northwest corner of Piedmont and Ivy Roads, from Claude E. Buchanan to Wesley Hirshburg, for $6,875. This lot is west of the William J. Stoddard place and in the neighborhood of other fine residences.

A bond for title has also gone to record in the sale March 31 of a 20 by 60 foot lot on Whitehall, near West Fair Street, to Nathan Wolfe by A. D. Greenfield, for $5,500.

Real Estate Activity.

An increase in different realty transfers as set forth in The Fulton County Daily Report shows the tendency of real estate to assume its normal aspect in the market. To-day's issue of this publication contained seventeen bond for title items and 32 warranty deed items, and led several real estate men to remark that the number was the best and most complete that The Report has ever issued.

Big Deals Coming.

Several important real estate deals are in the contract stage and should be announced early next week. One of these involves approximately $100,000 and there are a number of smaller figures.

Road Work at Buckhead.

County convicts are working fast to complete improvements on Peachtree Road, anticipating increased traffic which will come about June 1, when the Capital City Club takes charge of its country club at Brookhaven. The right-hand side of Peachtree Road, starting at Buckhead, has been macadamized nearly as far north as W. S. Witham's estate, and only awaits the steam roller to be put in good shape. Space between the car tracks has been taken on this northward trudge of the convicts. The work will proceed to the DeKalb County line and then the gang will turn back toward Buckhead.

County Commissioners are well satisfied with the work and predict that Peachtree Road will be in very good shape when Capital City golfers take their sticks to Brookhaven.

To Widen Roswell Road.

The proposition of widening the Roswell Road from Buckhead to Piedmont Road (formerly Plaster Bridge Road) has been revived. A year or two ago this matter was agitated. All property owners except one agreed to give 10 to 20 feet, and the opposition of the single owner blocked the project. Now E. T. Luckie, of the Holmes & Luckie Realty Company, has taken up the matter again, and he expresses confidence in the outcome. Mr. Luckie's idea is to lay out the Roswell Road so that whenever the demand is great enough on the part of the people along the route, a car line can be built to Roswell. Either this or the street car company can leave the wide thoroughfare to vehicular traffic and establish a private right-of-way close by.

The Railroads Can Rob the People IF---

They Can Arrange to Keep American Ships from Free Use of the Panama Canal.

Copyright, 1913.

In a cartoon printed several days ago our artist showed the Panama Canal with American ships held back by American locomotives.

All the solemn talk about "treaty obligations" about our duty to England, our national honor, is merely so much "railroad talk," a good deal of it well paid for by the railroads.

We are told that it is dishonorable, unfair, treacherous, etc., to permit American SHIPS to use an American CANAL, unless we also let English ships use the canal, without charge.

And the so-called friends of national honor—who are in reality gentlemen and newspapers subsidized or controlled by railroads—have actually managed to compel all but coastwise American ships to pay toll, like foreign vessels.

The railroads want no free use of the canal by American coastwise ships, and they fight such use through the politicians and newspapers that they own, for a simple reason.

The railroads make money carrying freight from the Atlantic to the Pacific. And the more they can CHARGE the more they can MAKE. Hitherto ships carrying freight from New York to San Francisco had to go all around South America. Therefore, the railroads could charge for freight carried 3,000 miles across the continent as much as it would cost to send a ship all around the continent. And, in addition, the railroad could add a charge for quick freight as against necessarily slow ocean freight.

Now ships will go from New York to the Pacific Coast through the canal, and the cost of water freight will be very small—UNLESS THE RAILROADS CAN MANAGE TO FASTEN A TOLL ON AMERICAN FREIGHT USING AN AMERICAN CANAL. This the railroads are trying to do, in the high-sounding name of national honor, treaty rights, etc.

For, don't you see, every dollar that railroad influence can lay as a tax on American shipping in the canal IS A DOLLAR THAT THE RAILROAD CAN ADD TO ITS FREIGHT CHARGES.

Let our Government charge American ships $2 a ton for using the canal, and the railroads can at once add $2 a ton to their freight rate.

Quite simple and clear, is it not?

Remember that when you hear the pitiful sobbing talk about protecting poor Great Britain against such an "outrage" as letting Americans, who built the canal and paid for it, give free use of it to American ships.

England, as a matter of fact, is very little interested in the matter, except that England's rich men own the Canadian Pacific Railroad, and they, like our railroad owners, are working to fasten a tax on American ships IN ORDER TO ADD THAT TAX TO AMERICAN FREIGHT SHIPPERS.

Fortunately the matter is pretty well understood.

This country will let all American ships use the canal without charge very soon. And our coastwise shipping will be free at once.

The Congress in this instance will not be used as a railroad freight collector. One Senator the other day introduced a resolution to set aside the existing treaty with England entirely—a thing we have a right to do at any time. There is no doubt that whatever may be necessary will be done to make and keep the American Canal FREE TO AMERICAN SHIPS.

Even the railroads, after they lose their foolish fight, will find it a good thing FOR THEM to help the general American prosperity.

Free use of the canal and low freight rates will bring lumber to the Atlantic Coast from the Far Northwest and bring fruit to the East from California and other Pacific States.

Eastern products will go at low freight rates through the canal to the Pacific. Business will grow, enterprise will find encouragement, labor, industry AND the railroads will share in the benefit of a canal UNITING THE COUNTRY MORE CLOSELY AND MORE CHEAPLY.

For every carload of cheap freight going through the canal and taken, apparently FROM the railroads, there will be two extra carloads of high priced freight FOR the roads. Profitable long hauls will increase and profitable short hauls as well.

And within ten years intelligent railroad men will thank the Panama Canal and free use of it by Americans for prosperity such as they have never seen.

MEANWHILE, IT IS IMPORTANT TO REALIZE THAT THE RAILROADS AND THEIR MANAGERS, NEAR-SIGHTED AS USUAL, ARE THE REAL POWER FIGHTING TO SHUT AMERICAN SHIPS OUT OF AN AMERICAN CANAL in the name of our holy duty to England.

How Your Mind Can Aid Health

By GARRETT P. SERVISS.

A GREAT DOCTOR once said: "Successful practice requires one-third science and two-thirds savoir faire" (knowing how to do it).

By that he meant impressing the imagination of the patient, and impressing it the right way. Any doctor can affect his patient's imagination, but many send its mercurial spirit dropping downward like a thermometer in a cold wave. If doctors ever really do kill their patients it is through what they administer to the mind.

We are only just beginning to learn something of the extent of the mind's control over health and disease. Many persons are willing to admit that the mind influences nervous affections, and that the imagination may either bring them on or drive them away; but they refuse to believe that mental influences which produce "lessons"—i. e., physical injuries to certain parts of the body.

Inspires With Confidence.

But they are wrong in their skepticism. The imagination can produce lessons as well as heal them. There never has been a great epidemic in which a large percentage of the mortality was not the result of mental upset. Mere fear kills like a lightning stroke by paralyzing the nervous system, whereupon the bodily machinery tears itself to pieces through loss of the central control.

I do not suppose that the imagination ever broke a bone or set one, but I am sure that it has either saved or lost the life of many a sick person, according to the way in which it happened to be directed, either by the will of the patient himself or by the guiding influence of a doctor or a nurse.

The successful doctor is the man who enters the sick room with his face full of cheer and of masterful confidence, and not with his pockets full of pills. The good nurse is worth her pay because she keeps her patient cheerful and confident. When you choose a doctor for your family, select one whose look makes you feel stronger. His presence will be like that of Napoleon on the battlefield.

It is not sympathy that heals; too much sympathy sometimes kills. It is confidence that does the good work. Away with your morose-looking doctor—unless it happens that behind the grave face there is an appearance of power, for that is worth more than all else in breeding confidence in the patient.

It has been suggested that "personal magnetism" is an actual, dynamic (moving) force proceeding from one person to another.

There is much to support that view. When Caesar in his scarlet cloak, with his bald head bared, rode through the lines of his soldiers at Alesia, something passed from him to them which enabled them to hurl back the assault of the three hundred thousand Gauls. It was the personal magnetism of Caesar that saved the day. It put courage into despairing hearts and energy into tired muscles.

But the best way to combat disease is to meet it with your own will. The patient who gives up can rarely be saved. Believe with all your might in your powers of resistance. Think of recovery, not of death.

Exerting Will Power.

A hot summer is before us, and it will bring its lassitude and its sicknesses, real or imaginary. Prepare yourself beforehand to meet these conditions by cultivating confidence, cheerfulness and will power. Joke about the thermometer when it goes up to ninety or a hundred in the shade, and don't draw a long face before it. If an epidemic breaks out, treat it as the Roman emperor treated the comet which terrified his friends. "Oh," he said, "that hairy star is after the king of the Persians, who has got whiskers. It won't trouble me."

And if you are doubtful about the power of the imagination to influence your body, read the stories of the "Stigmata" which appeared on some of the saints of old, when they concentrated their minds for days and nights together on the wounds of the Savior.

All Could See Them.

St. Francis, it is recorded, had all the marks of the Crucifixion upon him, though not produced by any hand or weapon.

Everybody could see them. St. Hieronyma Carvaglio had the spear mark in her side, which bled every Friday. St. Catharine, of Raconisco, had the marks of the Crown of Thorns on her head. All of these things, and many like them, are said to have been produced solely by pious meditations. You may smile at that, or you may not, according to your standards of belief, but you can hardly refuse to believe other things as wonderful that have been recorded on medical authority.

Whether you call it Christian Science, or mind healing, or blind faith, or anything else you may choose, there is no doubt that you have it in your power to influence by mental concentration the health and well-being of your body. Cultivate that power, and you will be the better for it. You will save, or shorten, many doctors' bills—but don't neglect the doctor, either; help him.

The Suffrage Parade---It Was a History Making Spectacle and Marks the Exit of the Doll Baby Woman From the Stage of Life.

By DOROTHY DIX.

WHAT did people see as they watched the Suffrage Parade in New York last Saturday?

They saw the first real democracy of woman.

They saw Judy O'Grady and the Colonel's Lady marching shoulder to shoulder. They saw the petted darling of the drawing room walking side by side with the girl of the sweat shop.

In that procession were millionairesses keeping step with scrubwomen; college professors with the pupils of night schools; Fifth Avenue hostesses with waitresses from cheap lunch rooms; old women with withered cheeks and gray hair with girls in the first flush and bloom of youth and beauty. All lines of wealth and class and social distinction were wiped out by the great cause that touches every woman high and low, and that has brought them together in one great sisterhood.

What did the people see when they watched the Suffrage Parade?

They saw one of the spectacles that make history. They saw the passing of the old order of things and the entrance of the new.

Exit of Doll Baby Woman.

They saw the exit from the stage of life of the doll baby woman of the past, of the woman who could find the whole of life in adorning herself, whose interests were no wider than her own home, and who saw no shame in getting what she wanted out of some man by cajolery, or flattery, or lying, or whatever other means was necessary.

Dull, indeed, were the eyes that did not see in those thousands and thousands of earnest-faced women the type of the new womanhood that is marching onward to a place beside man, no more to be his toy and plaything, but his equal and his partner in doing the work of the world and reaping its rewards.

What did the people see as they watched the Cuffrage Parade?

They saw the spectre of injustice marching in every woman's shadow. The crowds through which those ten thousand white-clad women tramped were mostly silent, as well they might be with shame if they had eyes to see and a heart to comprehend the significance of the scene.

Own Millions; Can't Vote.

They saw women who owned millions of dollars' worth of property, but who were denied the right to say what taxes should be levied upon their property. They saw the representatives of six million working women, but who have no power in shaping the legislation that affected them.

They saw mothers whose little children's lives were crushed out of them in factories; housewives who must sweat every nickel to make it go a little farther when trusts put up prices; women who represented one half of the population, and who were affected by its every law, but who had no voice in making them. They saw highly educated women, brilliant professional women, noble women philanthropists, saintly church women, women who represented all that is finest and best in humanity, but who were denied the previleges that the most illiterate, the most debased, man enjoys.

What did the people see as they watched the Suffrage Parade?

They saw one of the most pathetic sights the world has ever witnessed. They saw womanhood humbling itself before man to ask as a boon the privilege that it should demand as a right.

They saw the wife who has grown gray and old in service to her husband, and who has given him the best years of her life, asking to be made his equal. They saw the mother who has borne his son in her arms going before him as a suppliant.

They saw the rich woman asking a dole of her butler and her footman.

They saw the woman college professor begging the ignorant and illiterate foreigner to share with her the right of government that he has and she has not. It was a silent, sad appeal to man to right the injustice he has done woman—to strike her political shackles from her.

Made Even the Doll Think.

No one except those who took part in it know what courage, what sacrifice of personal inclination, it took for quite, dignified, reserved women to tramp the streets, and make themselves a public spectacle for hundreds of thousands of curious eyes, and to be the butt of cheap wits and village cut-ups.

To most of the women every step of the way was the way of the cross, but they trod it unfalteringly, because there was no other means that could so effectually carry the message they had to give to the public. It was a spectacle that made even the dullest think.

What did they see as they watched the Suffrage Parade?

They saw victory marching on to its crowning. Every woman's face wore the uplifted look of a martyr, of one who would struggle on undismayed by defeat until she finally conquered. No one who witnessed that parade will ever jest and scoff again at woman's suffrage. He will know that it is a fact to be reckoned with, and that it is just as sure to come as is to-morrow.

THE LAST TOWN

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

Where is the Town at the end of the Line,
With its lure for the great and the small?
How shall we fare when we come to the sign
That was painted and hung for us all?
Long is the track and we can not go back
To wait for a faltering friend;
Through meadow and mart we are whirled from the start
To the wonderful Town at the end.

Some reach it in youth on a flying express
That passes the stations of strife,
And others grow gray while pursuing their way
On the laboring locals of life.
Some curse the Conductor and pray for the end,
And some think the pace is too fast;
Whatever the pace, we are nearing the place
Where we all leave the train at the last.

'Tis a mystical Town that no mortal has seen
Till the end of his long earthly ride;
But after the trip there is Knowledge to glean
About pomp and possessions and pride.
And perhaps we shall gain when we swing from the train
All the things we were forced to resign,
For the Agent is there, with each passenger's share,
In the Town at the end of the Line.
