NEW PHAGAN WITNESSES HAVE BEEN FOUND

WELCOMES AID OF BURNS IN CLEARING UP MYSTERY

Solicitor Hugh M. Dorsey said Saturday that his "greatest detective in America" would not figure again in the Phagan investigation, and that it was extremely doubtful whether he would be recalled to testify at the trial.

"He has finished his investigation," said the Solicitor, "and we have no further need for him. A detective is one thing and a witness is another. His investigation led us to witnesses. It is not necessary for him, or any detective, to tell the jury what a disinterested witness will tell."

He would not say, however, whether his decision not to put the "greatest in America" on the witness stand would apply to the city, Pinkerton and Burns detectives.

Grand Jury Meets Wednesday.

The Solicitor announced that the Grand Jury would meet next Wednesday for an extra session, but said it was hardly probable the Phagan case would be considered then. He said there were a number of cases that demanded attention and the extra session would more than likely be called to dispose of everything on the calendar to prepare for the session Friday, when the Phagan case would more than likely be presented.

Mr. Dorsey said that his interview of Friday, in which he said the Burns men would work under the same conditions as the Pinkertons, had been misconstrued by some to mean that the services of the great detective were not needed.

Welcomes Burns' Aid.

He said that he did not intend to create that impression, when as a matter of fact he would welcome Mr. Burns in the case and give him every co-operation, except giving out information or evidence that had already been secured. He will continue to examine witnesses up to the day the case goes to the Grand Jury, he said.

Bernard L. Chappell, attorney for the negro, Newt Lee, said Saturday morning that unless the Grand Jury acted on the Phagan case next week he would bring habeas corpus proceedings in an effort to secure his release.

Pursue Writing Clews.

With powerful microscopes, magnifying glasses and a series of reflecting mirrors Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey and the city detectives, assisted by a handwriting expert, who is said to be one of the best in the country, are minutely examining the "handwriting clews" in the Phagan mystery. They confidently expect important developments.

Solicitor Dorsey would not disclose the identity of the expert on penmanship because, he said, the man's services were voluntary and given with the understanding that he was not to be known unless it became absolutely necessary to place him on the witness stand. The Solicitor said, however, that he was one of the best in the country, and the great detective agencies considered his tests infallible.

The two notes found in the basement of the pencil factory, specimen of the handwriting of the two men held in the Tower in connection with the murder, letters and notes written by the slain girl and the handwriting on the books of the pencil factory are being subjected to rigid tests. Accurate measurements of each letter and

FORREST ADAIR THANKS HEARST PAPERS FOR WORK IN THE SHRINER VICTORY

By FORREST ADAIR.

I HARDLY can find words in which to express my high appreciation of the good work done for Atlanta by Mr. Hearst and the Hearst newspapers in the matter of bringing next year's meeting of the Imperial Council of the Mystic Shrine to Atlanta.

Not only did Mr. Hearst give us the free and unlimited support of The Atlanta Georgian and The Sunday American, but every newspaper he owns in the United States was working for the Gate City.

I REGARD IT AS SIGNIFICANT THAT IN EVERY CITY, WITHOUT EXCEPTION, IN WHICH MR. HEARST HAS A NEWSPAPER, THE DELEGATIONS ATTENDING THE SHRINE MEETING IN DALLAS WERE FOR ATLANTA FIRST, LAST, AND ALL THE TIME.

I saw the effects of Mr. Hearst's work, time and again, as the fight progressed, and always it was hearty and effective in Atlanta's behalf.

The fine special Shriner edition of The Atlanta Sunday American which Mr. Hearst sent to Dallas was read widely and went far toward convincing the delegates that Atlanta is the place to hold next year's meeting.

And last of all, I thank The Georgian and Sunday American for having a personal representative on the ground in Dallas to keep the home folks informed promptly and fully of the proceedings as they developed.

Atlanta won a magnificent victory, through the assembling of numerous influences, and no one deserves more praise to-day than does Mr. Hearst and his newspapers.

He and they have proven themselves to be Atlanta's loyal and enthusiastic friends.

In this statement I am joined cordially by Mr. Hinds, Mr. Foster and Mr. Hutcheson, the other members of the committee from Yaarab Temple having in charge Atlanta's interests in Dallas.

GREAT WELCOME HOME TO SHRINERS WHO WON VICTORY FOR ATLANTA

Caesar in all his glory was never accorded a greater acclamation upon his triumphal entry into Rome than that with which Illustrious Potentate Forrest Adair was received upon his return from Dallas Saturday afternoon.

Atlanta outdid herself in her reception of this victor. Noted as she is for her patriotic spirit, no demonstration that this city has ever given of appreciation of her sons was ever seen to equal this one. And every cheer which arose from the thousands of those who attended the arrival and participated in the following parade rose up from the heart.

Pandemonium reigned when the illustrious Yaara stepped from the train and pandemonium continued until he disappeared into the Temple at the end of the gorgeous pageant.

Knoxville Shriners in Parade.

Enthusiastic witnesses and participants in this demonstration of Atlanta spirit were the members of the Alhambra Temple of Shriners from Knoxville. They attended the Dallas Conclave and are en route home.

At the Terminal Station, however, they were induced to join in the parade, and lent their efforts also to the tremendous welcoming which was being accorded the Yaaraa. When they return to Knoxville they will carry with them the enthusiasm and impetus of the Georgia city to transplant into their own.

The procession which formed at the station was an impressive pageant. It consisted of two lines standing shoulder to shoulder and emitting volume after volume of cheers as the illustrious potentate, his coterie of fighters and the reception party passed.

Upon the repeated shouts for "speech, speech," to the home-comers Mr. Adair said:

"I promised to bring home the bacon and I did. We owe our thanks to the generous hearted Atlanta citizens, who through their donations enabled us to put up the fight we did. I am sure that they will make next year's convention of the Shriners the greatest and most memorable ever held by that body."

When the Yaarabs stepped off their train they were accorded a demonstration such as has not been sent ringing down the streets and avenues of this city in many years.

March to Terminal Station.

All local Shriners, of whom there are about 700, were summoned to be at the Masonic Temple at 12:15 o'clock sharp with fezes on and all the other trappings of their order. At this meeting place also came the brass bands, the elephant and the camels, as well as thousands of other persons. The entire body formed in procession and march to the Terminal Station.

Apprehension as to the actions of the animals in the great excitement which will attend this procession was expressed by park animal keepers; however, on this occasion their excuses would not be accepted by C. H. Essig, of the Reception Committee.

Mr. Essig, in outlining the great demonstration, declaring that it would be the most overwhelming ever accorded to a returning Atlanta citizen, said:

"In the first place, every loyal Shriner will be in the howling mob," he said. "Summonses have been issued to them numbering nearly 700 in all. They have been asked to attend in their fezes and other regalia.

"Then there will be thousands of other citizens who will join in the reception simply through their patriotic spirit and their desire in showing their appreciation of the good work done by Potentate Adair and his band of Yaarabs.

"We have a band of 20 pieces to

SEEK NEW CLEWS IN PHAGAN NOTES

each word the angle of the slant in forming the letters and the formation of certain letters that experts claim no two men write alike, are some of the tests applied.

Burns Man Works Quietly.

The Burns investigator who took up the case Friday morning has not yet reported to the office of the Solicitor. He is quietly and systematically working out his own idea of the case after a comprehensive outline given him by Colonel Thomas H. Felder. He has succeeded so far in keeping his identity secret.

Colonel Felder was confident the Burns agency would satisfactorily conduct and conclude the Phagan case.

"We will have the slayer in less than a month," said Colonel Felder. "I am confident the Burns men will meet with every success. With Mr. Burns in Europe, the man he has sent to Atlanta is certainly the best detective in America. He has charge of the Burns work in this country and is his chief's right-hand man. Mr. Burns himself will be on the scene shortly after June 1, and then I am confident the case will be cleared up beyond any shadow of a doubt."

Believe Newt Lee Innocent.

Officers working to solve the Phagan strangling mystery Saturday declared they were more firmly convinced that Newt Lee, the negro night watchman, had no hand in the tragedy and that he has told all he knows, as the result of a conversation between the night watchman and two other negro prisoners in the Tower which was overheard by Deputy Sheriff Drew Liddell.

The deputy "shadowed" Lee's cell for 35 minutes, while the night watchman, unconscious of the fact that an officer was secreted but a few steps away, casually discussed the great pencil factory crime with Oscar Dewberry, a negro under sentence of death, and Jerk Wright, a negro murder suspect brought here from Gwinnett County for safe keeping.

To these fellow prisoners Lee time and again protested his innocence, and insisted that he knew nothing more of the tragedy than what he had told the officers, that he absolutely had no part in it beyond the finding of the slain girl's body in the basement.

Whether this incident will figure in any way in the investigation before the Grand Jury has not been announced by Solicitor Dorsey.

Deputies Try Strategy.

Deputy Liddell first visited the Tower with Deputy Len Burdett and talked with the negro. Lee related the same story told to detectives and to the Coroner's jury. The detective then determined on a ruse. He told the negro he would be back and talk to him again, and the second time returned with Deputy John Owens and J. L. Coogler, a court officer.

When Lee had again reiterated his same story the trio of officers left the cell. As Owens and Coogler walked away, Liddell, however, noiselessly stepped behind two big steam pipes just on the outside of the negro's cell. The other two officers walked heavily enough to leave the impression that all three had gone.

As the footsteps died away in the distance on the metallic floor Jack Wright asked Lee:

"Say, why don't you tell them white folks what you know about that killing? If you know who done it, tell 'em, that's the best way."

Lee replied without hesitation:

"I ain't going to tell no lie about it. I can't help what they do with me; I ain't going to lie.

"I've done told them all I know.

None Secured Information.

The Gwinnett negro then asked Lee if he knew the girl's body was in the basement before the time he discovered it at 3:20 o'clock in the morning.

"Good gracious, nigger, I'd tore that building down getting out of there if I'd known that body was in the basement," exclaimed the night watchman.

Proposed Church Amalgamation of National Bodies Applauded Wildly in Convention

United Presbyterian Churches of North America To Be New Name of Combination

Completion of Union Goes Over for a Year for Final Perfection of Details.

Plans for the union of the Southern and United Presbyterian Assemblies which, if effected, will precipitate one of most momentous changes in the history of religious work in the United States, were submitted to those bodies at their morning sessions Saturday.

The new body will be known as the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Churches of North America.

Committees were appointed by both bodies with instructions to hold a joint conference with a view to bringing about the amalgamation. Dr. J. K. McClurkin was made chairman of the United Assembly committee. Articles were drawn up showing the present differences in religious worship between the two bodies, and a discussion as to the remedy of the conditions was had.

Proposal Greatly Applauded.

Before the Southern Assembly Rev. R. C. Reed read a report on the proposed union.

At both meetings the proposed combination met with unanimous approval. Tremendous applause followed its proposal.

While the amalgamation will not be attempted in the present Assemblies, the committees appointed by each have been instructed to draw up articles and in conferences to be held in the year to come to eliminate these differences and pave the way for the great union.

Dr. Reed was authorized to convey to the Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church the action of this Assembly regarding the conference.

Basis of Proposed Union.

The text of the report of the conference on the Union of the Southern Presbyterian Church and the United Presbyterian Church is as follows:

"To the Venerable, the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States.

"Your committee, appointed by the last Assembly, to confer with a similar committee of the United Presbyterian Church in reference to the organic union of the two bodies, would respectfully report as follows, viz.:

"Your committee held a meeting in the city of Nashville, Tenn., in the month of September, 1912, for the purpose of coming to an understanding as to the propositions which it would be proper for us to make in a joint meeting of the two committees. After a day of earnest conference, a paper was adopted covering all the points which, in the judgment of four committee, should be considered in the joint sessions of the committees.

Committees Meet Again.

"On the 6th day of December, 1912, in the parlor of the Ebbitt House, Washington City, the committees met and entered into conference at 10 a. m. The paper adopted by your committee of the United Presbyterian Church, was also presented. These papers furnished the materials of a conference lasting through the whole day.

"The object of each committee was to present not individual views and preferences, but what it believed to be the views and preferences of the church represented. A beautiful spirit of fraternal love and confidence marked the discussions, and the utmost frankness Shamefurized the interchange of ideas. It is to be regretted that not all the members of either committee were present. There were, however, a majority of each committee present, and they agreed without a dissenting vote, to recommend to the two Assemblies a basis of union.

No Difference on Principles.

"As to the principles involved in this basis, there was no difference of opinion, but there was not perfect agreement touching the ording of one of the articles. In the hope of reaching a perfect agreement on this point, a joint meeting of the two committees was held in the city of Atlanta, Ga., on the evening of May 13, 1913. This conference was also characterized by perfect candor. While on one or two points the committees could not see eye to eye, they unanimously agreed to lay before each Assembly the fruits of their labors as a basis of union between the two bodies.

"In accordance with this agreement, your committee respectfully presents to your Venerable body the following as the basis agreed upon, viz.:

"Believing in the essential oneness of the church of Christ; remembering the historic lines that bind us to revered ancestors, who witnessed valiantly for the truth as it is in Jesus and through whom has come to us a common heritage of Christian faith and doctrine; desiring to prove faithful in the custodianship of this inheritance and aiming only for the glory of God in the higher advancement and wider extension of His kingdom upon earth, we, the members of the Presbyterian Church in the United States and the members of the Presbyterian Church of North America, do find a common standing ground in the following statements, and upon the basis of these fundamental truths we covenant to unite our ecclesiastical bodies in organic unity:

The Articles.

"1. The doctrinal standards now held by common by these two churches, viz: the Westminster Confession of Faith, the Larger and Shorter Catechisms shall be the doctrinal standards of the United Church.

"2. The standards are to be interpreted in their natural and obvious meaning, and no one shall be authorized to teach or preach in the United Church who can not give an unqualified assent to the doctrinal system contained in these standards.

The united church would bear emphatic testimony to the following matters as essential parts of the aforesaid system:

(a) The integrity of the Holy Scriptures. The Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments are to be received as the very word of God, and their authority in to be recognized as the only infallible rule of faith and life.

"Faith" and Son One.

(b) "Our Lord Jesus Christ is not only the Son of God in respect to His natural, necessary and eternal relation to the Father, but also the true and supreme God, being one in essence with the Father and the Holy Spirit."

(c) "Our Lord Jesus Christ, besides the dominion which belongs to Him as God, has, as our God-man Mediator, a twofold dominion with which He has been invested by the Father as the reward of His sufferings. These are: A dominion over the church, of which He is the living head and lawgiver and source of all that divine influence and authority by which she is sustained and governed; and also a dominion over all created persons and things, which is exercised by Him in subserviency to the manifestation of God's glory in the system of redemption and the interests of His church."

Atonement for Sin.

(d) As to the constitution of the person of our Redeemer, the Scriptures plainly teach that He was conceived by the Holy Ghost in the womb of the Virgin Mary and was born without a human father. He lived a life of perfect obedience, and by the shedding of His blood made full atonement for sin and purchased redemption for his people.

(e) "The Holy Spirit, the third person of the Trinity, eternally proceeding from the Father and the Son, does, by a direct operation accompanying the word, so act on the soul as an influence, regenerate and sanctify it; it is His to take of the things of Christ and show them unto men; and without His direct operation the soul would persist in rejecting the truths of God's word and would refuse to yield to the motives which it presents." In His gracious work the Holy Spirit is the revealer of Christ, the interpreter of His word and the comforter of the believer.

In addition to these essential doctrines, the United Church would fit into prominence:

The Church's Mission.

The mission of the church: We believe that the Gospel of the Son of God is the only hope of a sinful, dying world. We recognize in the commission of Christ the urgent call to the evangelization of the world and we bow before the imperative duty of sending the message of the Word for a witness among all nations.

The exclusively spiritual character of the church's mission. This union is based on the statement of our common Confession of Faith, viz: "Synods and Councils are to handle or conclude nothing but that which is ecclesiastical; and are not to intermeddle with civil affairs which concern the commonwealth, unless by way of humble petition in cases extraordinary; or by way of advice for satisfaction of conscience, if they be thereunto required by the civil magistrate."

Everyday Christianity.

The exclusively spiritual character of the mission of the church does not imply that its church does not imply that its church owes no duty to civil society. On the contrary it is the imperative duty of the church, through its members as citizens of the civil commonwealth to apply the principles of Christianity to all the political, social and industrial conditions of society.

4. The supreme judicatory of the United Church shall be a General Assembly, the official title of which shall be "The General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church of North America," it being understood and agreed that the shall not affect the historic names of churches, Presbyteries and Synods.

Form of Church Order.

5. As to the basis of representation and in the conduct and the proceedings of the First General Assembly, the Book of Church Order of the Presbyterian Church in the United States shall be authoritative.

6. The subordinate courts of the church shall continue to use provisionally the book of rules under which they have hitherto been governed.

7. The Synods and Presbyteries shall remain as at present constituted until such time as it shall manifestly appear that some change is needed for the best interest of the cause and Kingdom of Christ.

Executive Agencies to Continue.

8. All executive agencies shall continue as at present, and congregations shall continue to send their contributions through the customary channels. But these executive agencies shall co-operate with each other as far as practicable in the circumstances, and shall seek to devise some method by which, with the authoritative action of the General Assembly, and the approbation of the whole church, they can become completely identified. Before, however, such complete consolidation takes place, careful steps shall be taken after consultation with competent attorneys to safeguard and preserve all property rights affected by the union of churches.

On Singing Psalms.

9. There is a difference in the historic faith and practice of the two churches touching the matter of praise in the worship of God. The one church holds the belief that the Book of Psalms is the perfect and divinely accredited manual of praise, and as such is to be used in worship to the exclusion of all devotional compositions of uninspired persons.

The other, while believing that the Psalms of Scripture were designed for permanent use in the church, and should have a large place in Christian worship, yet hold that other compositions that are in harmony with the teaching of Scripture may, with propriety and profit, be used in congregational singing.

This difference is frankly recognized, but holding our respective views in the forbearance of love, we suggest the following as a practicable basis:

Believe Psalter Inspired.

We believe that the Psalter of the Bible, the Psalms of David, is an inspired manual of praise and that the Spirit of God indicted these songs to be used in the worship of the people of God to the end of time. The United Church will, therefore, take immediate steps to introduce to all its congregations, by indorsing and recommending the Psalms of the Bible in the best metrical version as a divinely credited book of praise. But while strongly commending the use of the Psalms, it is agreed that each church in our respective synods shall be allowed in the matter of congregational singing the same liberty which it now enjoys.

"Sole View to Honor Christ."

Finally, recognizing that it is impossible to make specific provision for all points of difference that may arise, it is understood that the churches enter the union in the spirit of mutual confidence and Christian love, and with a sole view to the honor of Christ and the extension of His Kingdom.

"It follows from this that the law of Christian charity as expounded by the Apostle Paul must be our guides: 'Let us not therefore judge one another any more; but judge ye this rather that no man put a stumbling block in his brother's way.' 'Let each of us please his neighbor for that which is good unto edifying.' 'Doing nothing through faction or through vainglory, but in lowliness of mind, each counting other better than himself; not looking each of you to his own things, but each of you also to the things of others.'"

Delay Recommended.

"Your committee recommends that this report be not considered at this Assembly, but that it be placed on the docket for the consideration of the next Assembly. Your committee would mention two reasons for this course. First, this is the disposition which the committee of the United Presbyterian Church is going to ask their Assembly to make of their report, and it is desirable that the two bodies act in concert. Second, as this basis is new to our church, and as the two churches, occupying different territories, widely separated are not well acquainted, a year should be allowed for both churches to acquaint themselves with the gravity of the step proposed.

Elect Infant Clause Stands.

Report No. 1 of the standing committee on bills and overtures was submitted by Rev. T. S. Clyce, D.D., chairman.

This report had reference solely to the overtures relative to the "elect infant clause." It recommended in view of the fact that the question of amending this section referring to Section 3, Chapter X of the Confession of Faith, has been before the church for conference and discussion, and has not agreed on the form of change to be made, and in view of the further fact that the Assembly of 1902 (Alexander's Digest, Revised, page 8) declared that the Holy Scriptures amply warrant us in believing that all infants who die in infancy are included in the election of grace, and are regenerated and saved by Christ through the Spirit, which declaration we would here reaffirm, we recommend that no amendment for the present be sent down to the presbyteries.

This report was not adopted, however, but consideration was deferred until a later session of the Assembly, the moderator saying that in view of the facts that all of the overtures on this subject had not been handled, action at this time would not be advisable.

Atlanta Overture.

The overture by the Conference on Springs Miss.; D. M. Douglas, Clinton, S. C.; L. R. Walker, DeFuniak Education in Atlanta to the General Assembly, with names attached of representatives present, follows:

"That the Conference on Education in the Presbyterian Church of the United States, in meeting in Atlanta, Ga., April 9 and 14, 1913, overtures the General Assembly convening in Atlanta May 15, 1913, to appoint an ad interim committee, composed of the executive secretary of Christian Education and Ministerial Relief as chairman and one member from each synod, to consider all matters relating to the recovery, definition, coordination and allied questions of the schools and colleges connected with our church; that this committee call the Christian educators of these schools and colleges into conference with themselves at Montreat, N. C., during July or August of this year to discuss matters coming under the purview of this committee, and that this committee report its findings with or without recommendation, to the General Assembly of 1914."

Arriving here there will be speeches of welcome, and Mr. Adair and his companions will be prevailed upon to answer.

"It was first planned to have the parade when the drum corps and the main body of Shriners who went to Dallas returned," continued Mr. Essig, "but they will not arrive until Sunday morning. Of course, we could not have the parade on Sunday.

NEW PHAGAN WITNESSES HAVE BEEN FOUND

WELCOMES AID OF BURNS IN CLEARING UP MYSTERY

Handwriting Expert at Work on Clews Furnished by Notes Found in Pencil Factory.

Solicitor Hugh M. Dorsey said Saturday that his "greatest detective in America" would not figure again in the Phagan investigation, and that it was extremely doubtful whether he would be recalled to testify at the trial.

"He has finished his investigation," said the Solicitor, "and we have no further need for him. A detective is one thing and a witness is another. His investigation led us to witnesses. It is not necessary for him, or any detective, to tell the jury what a disinterested witness will tell."

He would not say, however, whether his decision not to put the "greatest in America" on the witness stand would apply to the city, Pinkerton and Burns detectives.

Grand Jury Meets Wednesday.

The Solicitor announced that the Grand Jury would meet next Wednesday for an extra session, but said it was hardly probable the Phagan case would be considered then. He said there were a number of cases that demanded attention and the extra session would more than likely be called to dispose of everything on the calendar to prepare for the session Friday, when the Phagan case would more than likely be presented.

Mr. Dorsey said that his interview of Friday, in which he said the Burns men would work under the same conditions as the Pinkertons, had been misconstrued by some to mean that the services of the great detective were not needed.

Welcomes Burns' Aid.

He said that he did not intend to create that impression, when as a matter of fact he would welcome Mr. Burns in the case and give him every co-operation, except giving out information or evidence that had already been secured. He will continue to examine witnesses up to the day the case goes to the Grand Jury, he said.

Bernard L. Chappell, attorney for the negro, Newt Lee, said Saturday morning that unless the Grand Jury acted on the Phagan case next week he would bring habeas corpus proceedings in an effort to secure his release.

Pursue Writing Clews.

With powerful microscopes, magnifying glasses and a series of reflecting mirrors Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey and the city detectives, assisted by a handwriting expert, who is said to be one of the best in the country, are minutely examining the "handwriting clews" in the Phagan mystery. They confidently expect important developments.

Solicitor Dorsey would not disclose the identity of the expert on penmanship because, he said, the man's services were voluntary and given with the understanding that he was not to be known unless it became absolutely necessary to place him on the witness stand. The Solicitor said, however, that he was one of the best in the country, and the great detective agencies considered his tests infallible.

The two notes found in the basement of the pencil factory, specimen of the handwriting of the two men held in the Tower in connection with the murder, letters and notes written by the slain girl and the handwriting on the books of the pencil factory are being subjected to rigid tests. ## FORREST ADAIR THANKS HEARST PAPERS FOR WORK IN THE SHRINER VICTORY

By FORREST ADAIR.

I HARDLY can find words in which to express my high appreciation of the good work done for Atlanta by Mr. Hearst and the Hearst newspapers in the matter of bringing next year's meeting of the Imperial Council of the Mystic Shrine to Atlanta.

Not only did Mr. Hearst give us the free and unlimited support of The Atlanta Georgian and The Sunday American, but every newspaper he owns in the United States was working for the Gate City.

I REGARD IT AS SIGNIFICANT THAT IN EVERY CITY, WITHOUT EXCEPTION, IN WHICH MR. HEARST HAS A NEWSPAPER, THE DELEGATIONS ATTENDING THE SHRINE MEETING IN DALLAS WERE FOR ATLANTA FIRST, LAST, AND ALL THE TIME.

I saw the effects of Mr. Hearst's work, time and again, as the fight progressed, and always it was hearty and effective in Atlanta's behalf.

The fine special Shriner edition of The Atlanta Sunday American which Mr. Hearst sent to Dallas was read widely and went far toward convincing the delegates that Atlanta is the place to hold next year's meeting.

And last of all, I thank The Georgian and Sunday American for having a personal representative on the ground in Dallas to keep the home folks informed promptly and fully of the proceedings as they developed.

Atlanta won a magnificent victory, through the assembling of numerous influences, and no one deserves more praise to-day than does Mr. Hearst and his newspapers.

His and they have proven themselves to be Atlanta's loyal and enthusiastic friends.

In this statement I am joined cordially by Mr. Hinds, Mr. Foster and Mr. Hutcheson, the other members of the committee from Yaarab Temple having in charge Atlanta's interests in Dallas.

GREAT WELCOME HOME TO SHRINERS WHO WON VICTORY FOR ATLANTA

Caesar in all his glory was never accorded a greater acclamation upon his triumphal entry into Rome than that with which Illustrious Potentate Forrest Adair was received upon his return from Dallas Saturday afternoon.

Atlanta outdid herself in her reception of this victor. Noted as she is for her patriotic spirit, no demonstration that this city has ever given of appreciation of her sons was ever seen to equal this one. And every cheer which arose from the thousands of those who attended the arrival and participated in the following parade rose lip from the heart.

Pandemonium reigned when the Illustrious Yaarab stepped from the train and pandemonium continued until he disappeared into the Temple at the end of the gorgeous pageant.

Knoxville Shriners in Parade.

Enthusiastic witnesses and participants in this demonstration of Atlanta spirit were the members of the Alhambra Temple of Shriners from Knoxville. They attended the Dallas Conclave and are en route home.

At the Terminal Station, however, they were induced to join in the parade, and lent their efforts also to the tremendous welcoming which was being accorded the Yaarabs. When they return to Knoxville they will carry with them the enthusiasm and impetus of the Georgia city to transplant into their own.

The procession which formed at the station was an impressive pageant. It consisted of two lines standing shoulder to shoulder and emitting volume after volume of cheers as the illustrious potentate, his coterie of fighters and the reception party passed.

Upon the repeated shouts for "speech, speech," to the home-comers Mr. Adair said:

"I promised to bring home the bacon, and I did. We owe all thanks to the generous hearted Atlanta citizens, who through their donations enabled us to put up the fight we did. I am sure that they will make next year's convention of the Shriners the greatest and most memorable ever held by that body."

When the Yaarabs stepped off tehir train they were accorded a demonstration such as has not been sent rigging down the streets and avenues of this city in many years.

March to Terminal Station.

All local Shriners, of whom there are about 700, were summoned to be at the Masonic Temple at 12:15 o'clock sharp with fezes on and all the other trappings of their order. At this meeting place also came the brass bands, the elephant and the camels, as well as thousands of other persons. The entire body formed in procession and march to the Terminal Station.

Apprehension as to the actions of the animals in the great excitement which will attend this procession was expressed by park animal keepers; however, on this occasion their ex cuses would not be accepted by C. H. Essig, of the Reception Committee.

Mr. Essig, in outlining the great demonstration, declaring that it would be the most overwhelming ever accorded to a returning Atlanta citizen.

"In the first place, every loyal Shriner will be in the howling mob," he said. "Summonses have been issued to them numbering nearly 700 in all. They have been asked to attend in their fezes and other regalia.

"Then there will be thousands of other citizens who will join in the reception simply through their patriotic spirit, and their desire in showing their appreciation of the good work done by Potentate Adair and his band of Yaarabs.

FLIES ACROSS GULF FROM KEY WEST TO CUBA

Rosillo, Obscure Airman, Accomplishes Feat First Time in Teeth of Gale.

RIVAL IN RACE, DELAYED, TRIES TO KILL HIMSELF

Great Throng Greets Daring Birdman on Early Morning Arrival in Havana.

KEY WEST, May 17.—In a flight which compares in daring with any other ever made on the North American continent, Domingo Rosillo, an obscure young Cuban aviator, flew over the Gulf of Mexico from here to Havana, Cuba, 90 miles away, in a Moissant aeroplane, winning the $10,000 prize offered by the Havana Municipal Council for the first flight between the cities. Rosillo left Key West at 5:35 a. m. and landed in Havana at 9:15 a. m.

Leaving the terminal of the East Coast Railroad in a gale of wind at 5:35 o'clock Rosillo skimmed across the intervening stretch of turbulent water without any mishap.

A sensational, dramatic incident, which almost cost a human life, attended the start of the flight.

Rival Threatens Suicide.

Augustine Parla, another aviator who was to race across the gulf with Rosillo, attempted to have the daring little Cuban abandon the flight for to-day because of the high wind and roughness of the water. When Parla saw that Rosillo was determined to start he began to overhaul his Curtiss biplane. Friends intervened, saying:

"It would be sure death to start in this gale, and if you should fall into the water the waves are so high you would be drowned."

Parla hesitated and finally his friends had to restrain him forcibly.

Parla, in desperation, pulled a pistol from his pocket and, placing the weapon against his forehead, threatened to kill himself unless he was allowed to start. Friends took the weapon from him.

Wind Held Plane Down.

The aviator then entered his machine, which had been equipped with pontoons and which rested on the surface of the water. The wind was so high, however, that the aeroplane would not rise, and the wires holding the pontoons snapped. Waves then began splashing over the machine and all hope of starting the flight was lost.

Meanwhile Rosillo, who had got a flying start, had disappeared in a southwesterly direction, bucking a stiff wind that threatened to send his aeroplane crashing into the waves.

A great crowd gathered to see the aviators start, but on account of the wind and the choppy sea it was believed that neither would attempt a flight. At 5 o'clock Rosillo sent a radio telegram to Morro Castle asking after the condition of the weather off the Cuban Coast. The reply came back that flying conditions there were ideal.

"That settles it," exclaimed Rosillo. "I'll start, for I promised to make the flight before Sunday, and I am going to do it or die trying."

For a while the Cuban tinkered with his machine, testing stays and seeing that all was durable for the wind test it was soon to go through. When he clambered into the machine and gave word to his mechanician that he was ready to start a great cheer went up.

The machine arose through the air at the height of about 100 feet, and then, with the grace of a swallow, darted southward. Rosillo waved his hand and then gave his full attention to the aeroplane. Above him the sky was grey with storm clouds; below him the sea was tossed and tumbled by the wind.

Poor Old Dad Given Recognition at Last

CHICAGO, May 17.—Dr. James Russell Price of Chicago, told the Illinois Electric Medical Society Convention that the father is just as important in the evolution of the welfare of the race as the mother.

"I am not saying anything here regarding the mother's influence," said Dr. Price. "Mother's office has been magnified out of all proportion. I will bestow my admiration on the madonnas at all times and in all places.

"But many years of experience as a public school teacher and physician have convinced me beyond the shadow of a doubt of the truth of the old saying: 'As the father, so the child.'"

GEORGIA AND JACKETS IN FINAL GAME

Each Team Pushes Two Runs Over the Plate in the First Inning.

TECH FIELD, May 17.—Tech and Georgia hooked up in the final game of their series here this afternoon. Both teams scored twice in the opening inning.

The Game.

FIRST INNING.

Glen was hit by a pitched ball and took first. Henderson hit to short, who fumbled but recovered in time to throw him out at first. Glen went to second on the play. McWhorter singled to left and Glen scored. McWhorter took second on the throw-in. Hutchens flied out to T. Montague and McWhorter took third. Henderson singled to right and McWhorter scored. Covington out. Moore to Amason. TWO HITS, TWO RUNS.

Wooten slammed a three-bagger to right. Moore hit a single to center and Wooten scored. Moore stole second. Moore for Georgia. Donaldson out, Corley to Henderson. T. Montague hit to Corley, who threw to third to catch Moore, but the throw was late. F. Montague singled, caught, at first, but succeeded in stealing second on the play, but was out, Hutchens to Harrison. NO RUNS.

FOURTH INNING.

Henderson grounded to Donaldson and was out to Amason. Covington popped to Amason. Harrison singled past Donaldson. Harrison was caught at first, Corley to Hutchens. NO RUNS.

Foudal hit to McWhorter, who made a great catch. Amason grounded to Clements and was out to Henderson. T. Montague struck out. Clements hit to Amason. NO RUNS.

FIFTH INNING.

Corley struck out. Clements flied to Wooten. ONE RUN. Pitts to Amason. NO RUNS.

Aldridge went out, Covington to Henderson. Pitts batted down the first base line and took second when Hutchens threw wild to Henderson. Reed, Wooten went out, Corley to Henderson, and Amason took third. Amason was running for Pitts. Moore poled a hot single to right and Amason scored. Moore stole second. Donaldson out, Clements to Henderson. ONE RUN.

SEEK NEW CLEWS IN PHAGAN NOTES

each word, the angle of the slant in forming the letters and the formation of certain letters that experts claim no two men write alike, are some of the tests applied.

Burns Man Works Quietly.

The Burns investigator who took up the case Friday morning has not yet reported to the office of the Solicitor. He is quietly and systematically working out his own idea of the case after a comprehensive outline given him by Colonel Thomas R. Felder. He has succeeded so far in keeping his identity secret.

Colonel Felder was confident the Burns agency would satisfactorily conduct and conclude the Phagan case.

"We will have the slayer in less than a month," said Colonel Felder. "I am confident the Burns men will meet with every success. With Mr. Burns in Europe, the man he has sent to Atlanta is certainly the best detective in America. He has charge of the Burns work in this country and is his chief's right-hand man. Mr. Burns himself will be on the scene shortly after June 1, and then I am confident the case will be cleared up beyond any shadow of a doubt."

Believe Newt Lee Innocent.

Officers working to solve the Phagan strangling mystery Saturday declared they were more firmly convinced that Newt Lee, the negro night watchman, had no hand in the tragedy and that he has told all he knows, as the result of a conversation between the night watchman and two other negro prisoners in the Tower, which was overheard by Deputy Sheriff Drew Liddell.

The deputy "shadowed" Lee's cell for 35 minutes, while the night watchman, unconscious of the fact that an officer was secreted but a few steps away, casually discussed the great pencil factory crime with Oscar Dewberry, a negro under sentence of death, and Jack Wright, a negro murder suspect brought here from Gwinnett County for safe keeping.

To these fellow prisoners Lee time and again protested his innocence, and insisted that he knew nothing more of the tragedy than what he had told the officers, that he absolutely had no part in it beyond the finding of the slain girl's body in the basement.

Whether this incident will figure in any way in the investigation before the Grand Jury has not been announced by Solicitor Dorsey.

Deputies Try Strategy.

Deputy Liddell first visited the Tower with Deputy Lon Burdett and talked with the negro. Lee related the same story told to detectives and to the Coroner's jury. The detectives then determined on a ruse. He told the negro he would be back and talk to him again, and the second time returned with Deputy John Owens and J. L. Coogler, a court officer.

When Lee had again reiterated his same story the trio of officers left the cell. As Owens and Coogler walked away, Liddell, however, noiselessly stepped behind two big steam pipes just on the outside of the negro's cell. The other two officers walked heavily enough to leave the impression that all three had gone.

As the footsteps died away in the distance on the metallic floor Jack Wright asked Lee:

"Say, why don't you tell them white folks what you know about that killing? If you know who done it, tell 'em, that's the best way."

Lee replied without hesitation:

"I ain't going to tell no lie about it. I can't help what they do with me; I ain't going to lie.

"I've done told them all I know.

None Secured Information.

The Gwinnett negro then asked Lee if he knew the girl's body was in the basement before the time he discovered it at 2:30 o'clock in the morning.

"Good gracious, nigger, I'd tore that building down getting out of there if I'd known that body was in the basement," exclaimed the night watchman.

Proposed Church Amalgamation of National Bodies Applauded Wildly in Convention

United Presbyterian Churches of North America To Be New Name of Combination

Completion of Union Goes Over for a Year for Final Perfection of Details.

Plans for the union of the Southern and United Presbyterian Assemblies, which, if effected, will precipitate one of most momentous changes in the history of religious work in the United States, were submitted to those bodies at their morning sessions Saturday.

The new body will be known as the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Churches of North America.

Committees were appointed by both bodies with instructions to hold a joint conference with a view to bringing about the amalgamation. Dr. J. K. McClurkin was made chairman of the United Assembly committee. Articles were drawn up showing the present differences in religious worship between the two bodies, and a discussion as to the remedy of the conditions was had.

Proposal Gratify Applauded.

Before the Southern Assembly Rev. R. C. Reed read a report on the proposed union.

At both meetings the proposed combination met with unanimous approval. Tremendous applause followed its proposal.

While the amalgamation will not be attempted in the present Assemblies, the committees appointed by each have been instructed to draw up articles and in conferences to be held in the year to come to eliminate these differences and pave the way for the great union.

Dr. Reed was authorized to convey to the Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church the action of this assembly regarding the conference.

Basis of Proposed Union.

The text of the report of the conference on the Union of the Southern Presbyterian Church and the United Presbyterian Church is as follows:

"To the Venerable, the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States.

"Your committee, appointed by the last Assembly, to confer with a similar committee of the United Presbyterian Church in reference to the organic union of the two bodies, would respectfully report as follows, viz.:

"Your committee held a meeting in the city of Nashville, Tenn., in the month of September, 1912, for the purpose of coming to an understanding as to the propositions which it would be proper for us to make in a joint meeting of the two committees. After a day of earnest conference, a paper was adopted covering the points which, in the judgment of your committee, should be considered in the joint sessions of the committees.

Committees Meet Again.

"On the 4th day of December, 1912, in the parlor of the Ebbitt House, Washington City, the committees met and entered into conference at 10 a. m. The paper adopted by your committee of the United Presbyterian Church, was also presented. These papers furnished the materials of a conference lasting through the whole day.

"The object of each committee was to present not individual views and preferences, but what was believed to be the views and preferences of the church represented. A beautiful spirit of fraternal love and confidence marked the discussions, and the utmost frankness characterized the interchange of ideas. It is to be regretted that not all the members of either committee were present. There were, however, a majority of each committee present, and they agreed, without a dissenting vote, to recommend to the two Assemblies a basis of union.

No Difference on Principles.

"As to the principles involved in this basis, there was no difference of opinion, but there was not perfect agreement touching the ording of one of the articles. In the hope of reaching a perfect agreement on this point, a joint meeting of the two committees was held in the city of Atlanta, Ga., on the evening of May 12, 1913. This conference was also characterized by perfect candor. While on one or two points the committees could not agree to a eye, they unanimously agreed to lay before each Assembly the fruits of their labors as a basis of union between the two bodies.

No Difference on Principles.

"In accordance with this agreement, your committee respectfully presents to your venerable body the following as the basis agreed upon, viz:

Common Standing Ground.

"Believing in the essential oneness of the church of Christ; remembering the historic lines that bind us to revered ancestors, who witnessed valiantly for the truth as it is in Jesus and through whom has come to us a common heritage of Christian faith and doctrine; desiring to prove faithful to the constitution of the Alliance and aiming only for the glory of God in the higher attainment and wider extension of His kingdom upon earth, we, the members of the Presbyterian Church in the United States and the members of the Presbyterian Church of North America, do find a common standing ground in the following statements; and agree that these essential fundamental truths we covenant to join our ecclesiastic bodies in organic unity:

The Articles.

"1. The doctrinal standards now held in common by these two churches, viz., the Westminster Confession of Faith, the Larger and Shorter Catechisms, shall be the doctrinal standards of the United Church.

"2. The standards are to be interpreted in their natural and obvious meaning, and no one shall be authorized to teach or preach in the United Church who can not give an unqualified assent to the doctrinal system contained in these standards.

The united church would bear emphatic testimony to the following doctrines as essential parts of the creedal system:

(a) The Integrity of the Holy Scriptures. The Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments are to be received as the very word of God, and their authority is to be recognized as the only infallible rule of faith and life.

"Father and Son One.

(b) "Our Lord Jesus Christ is not only the Son of God in respect to His natural, necessary and eternal relation to the Father, but also the true and supreme God, being one in essence with the Father and the Holy Spirit."

(c) "Our Lord Jesus Christ, besides the dominion which belongs to Him as God, has, as our God-man Mediator, a twofold dominion with which He has been invested by the Father as the reward of His sufferings. These are: (1) dominion over the church, of which He is the living head and lawgiver and source of all that divine influence and authority by which she is sustained and governed; and also a dominion over all created persons and things, which is exercised by Him in subserviency to the manifestation of God's glory in the system of redemption and the interests of His church.

Atonement for Sin.

(d) As to the constitution of the person of our Redeemer, the Scriptures plainly teach that He was conceived by the Holy Ghost in the womb of the Virgin Mary, and was born without a human father. He lived a life of perfect obedience, and by the shedding of His blood made full atonement for sin and purchased redemption for his people.

(e) "The Holy Spirit, the third person of the Trinity, eternally proceeding from the Father and the Son, does, by a direct operation accompanying the word, so act on the minds of men to quicken, regenerate and sanctify it; it is His office to take of the things of Christ and show them unto men; and without His efficient operation the sinner would persist in rejecting the truths of God's word and would refuse to yield to the motives which it presents. In His gracious work, the Holy Spirit is the revealer of Christ, the interpreter of His word and the preacher of the believer.

In addition to these essential doctrines, the united church would lift into prominence:

"The Church's Mission.

"The mission of the church: We believe that the Gospel of the Son of God is the only hope of a sinful, dying world. We recognize in the commands of Christ the urgent call to the evangelization of the world and we bow before the imperative duty of sending the message of the Word for a witness among all nations.

The exclusively spiritual character of the church's mission.

This union is based on the statement of our common Confession of Faith, viz.: "Synods and Councils are to handle or conclude nothing but that which is ecclesiastical; and are not to intermeddle with civil affairs which concern the commonwealth, unless by way of humble petition in cases extraordinary, or by way of advice for satisfaction of conscience, if they be thereunto required by the civil magistrate."

Everyday Christianity.

The exclusively spiritual character of the mission of the church does not imply that the church owes no duty to civil society. On the contrary it is the imperative duty of the church, through its members as citizens of the civil commonwealth to apply the principles of Christianity to all the political, social and industrial conditions of society.

1. The supreme judicatory of the United Church shall be a General Assembly, the official title of which shall be "The General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church of North America."

It being understood and agreed that this shall not affect local and historic names of churches, Presbyteries and Synods.

Form of Church Order.

5. As to the basis of representation and in the conduct and the proceedings of the First General Assembly, the Book of Church Order of the Presbyterian Church in the United States shall be authoritative.

6. The subordinate courts of the church shall continue to use provisionally the book of rules under which they have hitherto been governed.

7. The Synods and Presbyteries shall remain as at present constituted until such time as it shall manifestly appear that some change is needed for the best interest of the cause and Kingdom of Christ.

Executive Agencies to Continue.

8. All executive agencies shall continue as at present, and congregations shall continue to send their contributions through the customary channels. But these executive agencies shall co-operate with each other as far as practicable in the circumstances, and shall seek to devise some method by which, with the authoritative action of the General Assembly, and the approbation of the whole church, they can become completely identified. Before, however, such complete consolidation takes place, careful steps shall be taken after consultation with competent attorneys to safeguard and preserve all property rights affected by the union of churches.

On Singing Psalms.

9. There is a difference in the historic faith and practice of the two churches touching the matter of praise in the worship of God. The one church holds the belief that the Book of Psalms is the perfect and divinely accredited manual of praise, and as such is to be used in worship to the exclusion of all devotional compositions of uninspired persons.

The other, while believing that the Psalms of Scripture were designed for permanent use in the church, and should have a large place in Christian worship, yet hold that other compositions that are in harmony with the teaching of Scripture may, with propriety and profit, be used in congregational singing.

This difference is frankly recognized, but holding our respective views, in the forbearance of love, we suggest the following as a practicable basis:

Believe Psalter Inspired.

We believe that the Psalter of the Bible, the Psalms of David, is an inspired manual of praise and that the Spirit of God indicted these songs to be used in the worship of the people of God to the end of time. That United Church will, therefore, take immediate steps to introduce to all its congregations, by indorsing and recommending the Psalms of the Bible in the best metrical version as a divinely accredited book of praise. But while strongly commending the use of the Psalms, it is agreed that each church in the respective synods shall be allowed in the matter of congregational singing the same liberty which it now enjoys.

"Sole View to Honor Christ."

Finally, recognizing that it is impossible to make specific provision for all points of difference that may arise, it is understood that these churches enter the union in the spirit of mutual confidence and Christian love, and with a sole view to the honor of Christ and the extension of His kingdom.

"It follows from this that the law of Christian charity as expounded by the Apostle Paul must be our guide; 'Let us not therefore judge one another any more; but judge ye this rather that no man put a stumbling block in his brother's way.' Let each of us please his neighbor for that which is good unto edifying. Doing nothing through faction or through vainglory, but in lowliness of mind, each counting other better than himself, not looking each of you to his own things, but each of you also to the things of others."

Delay Recommended.

"Your committee recommends that this report be not considered at this Assembly, but that it be placed on the docket for the consideration of the next Assembly. Your committee would mention two reasons for this course. First, this is the disposition which the committee of the United Presbyterian Church is going to make of said report, and it is desirable that the two bodies act in concert. Second, as this basis is new to our church, and as the two churches, occupying different territories, widely separated, are not well acquainted, a year should be allowed for both churches to acquaint themselves with the gravity of the step proposed.

Elect Infant Class Stands.

Report No. 1 of the standing committee on bills and overtures was submitted by Rev. T. S. Clyce, D.D., chairman.

This report had reference solely to the overtures relative to the elect infant clause. It recommended: "In view of the fact that the question of amending this section (overture to Section 3, Chapter X of the Confession of Faith) before the church for thirteen years and the church has not agreed on the form of the change to be made, and in view of the further fact that the Assembly of 1902 (Moore's Digest, Revised, page 8) declared that the Holy Scriptures amply warrant us in believing that all infants who die in infancy are included in the election of grace and are regenerated and saved by Christ through the Spirit, which declaration we would here reaffirm, we recommend that the overtures on this subject had not been tabulated, action at this time would not be advisable.

Atlanta Overture.

The overture by the Conference on Sperings, Miss.; D. M. Douglas, Clinton, S. C.; J. R. Walker, DeFuniak Education in Atlanta in the General Assembly, with names attached of all representatives present, follows:

"That the Conference on Education of the Presbyterian Church of the United States, in session in Atlanta, Ga., May 13 and 14, 1913, overture the General Assembly convening in Atlanta, May 15, 1913, to appoint an ad interim committee, composed of the executive secretary of each of the educational and Ministerial Relief as chairman and one member from each synod, to consider all matters of relating to the discovery, definition, coordination and allied questions of the schools and colleges connected with our church; that this committee call the secretaries or directors of these schools and colleges into conference with themselves at Montreat, N. C., during July or August of this year to discuss matters coming under the purview of the committee, and that this committee report its findings with or without recommendation, to the General Assembly of 1914."

make as much noise as possible, and believe me, a 20-piece band can make some noise.

"There also will be the camels to lead the parade and the elephant as well, to add a unique coloring to it.

"The reception committee is composed of Dr. M. E. Turner, Oscar Weinmeister, T. H. Pitt and myself. We have secured several cases of Japanese umbrellas and every local Shriner will carry one in the parade.

"The procession will start from the Temple at 12:15 o'clock. It will proceed down Peachtree and Whitehall Streets to Mitchell Street and thence to the Terminal Station, arriving there just when the train is due.

"There will be a concert in the plaza before the station until the train arrives and the crowd will join in singing patriotic songs. When the outposts announce the approach of the home-comers, a grand cheer will ring out and the entire body will advance down to meet them.

Crown Them With Wreaths.

"Wives will crown their heads with wreaths and carry them on our shoulders to the waiting automobiles.

"With these machines in the lead, closely followed by the band, the elephant and the camels, then the corps of Shriners in their full regalia and after them the thousands of citizens, the procession will move down Mitchell to Whitehall Street and, proceed down Whitehall and Peachtree Streets to the temple. Arriving here there will be speeches of welcome, and Mr. Adair and his companions will be prevailed upon to answer.

"It was first planned to have the parade when the drum corps and the main body of Shriners who went to Dallas returned, continued Mr. Easley, "but they will not arrive until Sunday morning. Of course, we could not have the parade on Sunday.

The Folly of My Sex

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

NINETY women gathered in the garden of the old Schwab estate adjoining the Hall of Fame the other afternoon to receive the first instruction of the spring garden course by Henry Griscom Parsons, director of Department School Gardens, New York University.

Of the ninety women only two were prepared to do practical gardening, as there were only two women who had brought their aprons. The women wore tight skirts, high-heeled shoes and white kid gloves, and when given seeds found they could not kneel down or bend low to plant them, as their skirts were too narrow. When they tried to bend as low as their skirts and corsets permitted they could not obtain sound footing with their high-heeled shoes.

They took off their kid gloves, disclosing hands that were burdened with rings, and were as helpless before the simple little task before them as if they had been so many babies.

They had not dressed suitably for the occasion. Do any of my sex these mad days make any pretense of dressing to suit the occasion?

To Regulate Dresses.

A Chicago alderman has introduced an ordinance to regulate the dresses worn by women on the streets, solely on moral grounds. The costliness of the attire, its unfitness so far as service and endurance are concerned, he waives. He considers only the moral aspect of the dresses, garments so vulgar in conception and suggestion as to cause some explanation for the calling of a vice commission.

The girl on her way to her work behind a counter, or bending over a typewriter, wears a garment as near a duplicate as her purse will permit of the garment worn by some woman of wealth and fashion who rides in her automobile to a pink tea. The business woman's dress is as low in the neck, her heels are as high, her pumps as low, her stockings as thin. There is no element of vulgarity which the woman of wealth introduces in her attire that is not copied by her sister with the flatter purse.

The blame lies not with the girl on her way to work, but with the woman of wealth and leisure.

The eighty-eight women who gathered to learn gardening in mutinee clothes were women of wealth and high social standing, women who are supposedly intelligent, yet they were as silly, and with less excuse, as the working girl who wears a dress on the street that should not be worn outside one's home, and then when women only are present.

Not So Divine.

The "female form divine" is not so divine as the silly women think. Fine arms are just plump and shapely enough to look well bared from the hand to the elbow. Not one neck in five hundred would cause an artist in search of a model to take a second look. Feet and ankles and the display many women make adapt them as suggestive more often of vulgarity than of beauty.

The woman who dresses modestly is credited with charms she may or may not possess, but the woman who dresses immodestly proves by the exhibits made that she does not possess them.

"That is immodest" restrains no one in these days of fashionable indecency. "Your neck is scrawny." "You have an ugly arm." "You are flat-footed and your ankles are thick" may serve as more effective weapons in the war that must be waged against the foolish of my sex.

An appeal to decency and modesty having failed, the desired results may be obtained by appealing to vanity.

Household Suggestions

UGLY cracks in furniture may be easily filled in with beeswax, so that the marks will hardly show. Slightly soften the beeswax until it becomes pliable; then press it firmly into the cracks and smooth the surface over with a thin knife. Sandpaper the surrounding wood, and work some dust into the beeswax. This gives a stain to the wood, and when it is varnished the cracks will have disappeared.

If your skirt has got splashed with mud hang it before a fire—but not too close—so that the mud may dry quickly. When dry the mud spots should be loosened by rubbing with the edge of a penny, and the dust should be gently brushed off with a brush of moderate firmness. If after this brushing the mud marks are still visible sponge the spots with alcohol or methylated spirit.

To remove smoke marks from ceilings mix a thick paste of starch and water, and with a clean flannel spread it over the mark. Allow it to get thoroughly dry, then brush off with a soft brush and the marks will have disappeared.

Before sweeping the carpets take an old sheet, pierce holes in the bottom and fill with common salt. Sprinkle this over the carpet. It prevents the dust from rising, brightens the colors and prevents moths.

To prevent an oven from smelling when cooking a joint, clean it out thoroughly soon after with soda and water. It will take all smell away and it will not be enamelled over.

: Beauty Secrets of Beautiful Women :

Chrystal Herne's Idea of True Loveliness and How to Attain It.

By LILLIAN LAUFERTY.

"ONCE upon a time," began Chrystal Herne, in the most high-brow and fashionable of our beloved fairy tales. "I saw real beauty —so I know what it is. It is a spirit, the spirit that flares up within and lights the face. Spirit makes a plain face lovely, and without it, perfect features are not beautiful."

It was between the acts of the star revival of our good old friend, "Arizona," the Lyric Theater, in New York, and I had been admitted to that fascinating realm behind "the old stage door."

"Won't you tell me about that 'once upon a time' when you saw real beauty?" I asked.

Miss Herne has wonderful gray eyes—deep, tender, and set in the wide oval of a face so delicately lovely that not half its beauty can be guessed across the barrier of the footlights. A brooding utter came over those eyes and into her soft voice.

"It was my father's face," she said gently. "I was a very young girl, and we were cruising about Peconic Bay in our little yawl, when a storm organized us. I thought that our gray water was going to hold me forever—but suddenly my father's face came between me and horror. He had righted the boat somehow, and he got me into it. And the wonderful light shining in his face as he saved me was beauty. Yet, except for his rarely fine expression, my father was not a handsome man.

"That was absolute beauty. It gave me an ideal: Live on a high, fine plane; be so splendid that spirit will illuminate your face."

The spirit of her own fineness—her high ambitions—always shines back of Chrystal Herne's flower-like loveliness. But as she spoke, her love and veneration made her beauty one of the most exquisite things I have ever seen.

Wants To Be Fat!

"Now, you want the work-a-day, practical ideals of beauty, don't you?" she asked.

"My first one is fat! I can't see any beauty in bones and angles. I have struggled and struggled to get fat!"

"Think of that, you who bent and swallow unpleasant doses, and immerse yourselves in baths of salts, so that the curves and grace may disappear and the cubist angles and squares betray your bony structure.

"Well, I can't get fat. I have found out the hopelessness of that ambition," went on Miss Herne in a practical tone, "so I do the next best thing—I make the best of what I am, find the styles I can wear; find a dressmaker who understands me and will help me develop my own type, instead of a few pet theories of her own.

"I arrange my hair to frame my face, instead of cramping it into the latest cry in unbecomingness.

"Of course, you learn by acting how to accent beauty—to bring out points," I remarked.

"Yes, indeed, you learn to emphasize natural beauty to bring out hidden loveliness, and, best of all, not to overemphasize, not to be conspicuous —just to be 'part of the picture.

"Now, I truly admire the chic type —the girl who is trim and smart, whose clothes fit smoothly and whose hats are set at the sharp, fashionable angle. But I can not be that type at all; I can not put myself to that vantage, so I am not silly enough to try. If drapery and drooping line suit you, wear them. I may only adapt them to the styles of the times, so you won't be different enough to be noticeable."

True Beauty.

"You disapprove of conspicuous clothes?" I asked.

"Of conspicuous clothes—and faces," replied Miss Herne. "The girl who manages more poetic effects—most pretty arrangements and blendings of paint and powder—not girls who are naturally sweet and pretty. To challenge attention in face or clothes is not my ideal of attractiveness, but to be so fine and dainty that you hold attention; to have such a spirit illuminating the text of your face that the eye returns lovingly to your restful charm—that is to be beautiful. 'And I do love beauty. I can sympathize with the women who long for it, because to be absolutely beautiful is a supreme gift.—There is only one thing I long for more, and that is to be a great actress—to express beauty by the art of the drama."

And beauty as Chrystal Herne visions it will illuminate the "text of a face," and the text of life as well.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

CO. BY ALL MEANS.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I expect to go to a dance accompanied by a young man with whom I have quite an understanding. The young man does not dance. Will it be proper for me to dance with other young men, or would you deem it advisable for me not to go to this dance at all?

R. E.

The young man is taking you for your pleasure, and knows that means you will want to dance.

If his experience as a wallflower proves distasteful to him he will not repeat it. Could you not persuade him to learn to dance? I can afford the difference in your choice of entertainment may otherwise make trouble.

LET IT DROP.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I met gentlemen and have been keeping company with a man for years on sedate. Last week I was out of town for a few days and the evening I returned a girl friend asked me to go to a dance. My friend was there and escorted another girl home, but did not take her to this dance. Should I ask for an explanation, or should I let the matter drop unnoticed?

R. R.

You were out of town and he did not know you would be at the dance, this is sufficient excuse for him if he needs one, but I don't think he does. You are too engaged and he is not bound to you by any promise.

TELL HIM YOU HAVE NONE.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a rich young girl eighteen years old and am deeply in love with a young man one year my senior. I am alone in the world and my mother to guide me. He has asked me to marry him, but I do not know if he wants me for love of me alone or for money, how can I find out?

MARGARET.

"All's fair in love and war," and you might try the plan worn threadbare in fiction by telling him you have lost your money.

But a better plan would be to refuse him. He is only nineteen, and a boy of that age is too young to love seriously.

LOSE NO TIME MAKING UP.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been keeping company with a girl for one year. We had a quarrel over some simple thing and she got angry. I love her. Tell me what to do.

A. W. S.

Go to her and tell her you are sorry you may not feel that you are in the wrong, but that makes no difference. Unless you are willing to humiliate yourself, you care more for self than for her.

CERTAINLY.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Is it proper for a young lady to ask a gentleman to call when he has invited us to a dance and only verbally asks to call?

MADELON.

She has the privilege of asking a man to call on her, and a hint between friends should be unnecessary.

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

Garson, with the keen perspicacity that had made him a successful criminal without a single conviction to mar his record, had seized the implication in her statement, and now put it in words.

"Then, you won't leave us? We're going on as we were before?" The hint of dejection in his manner had vanished. "And you won't live with him?"

"Live with him?" Mary exclaimed emphatically. "Certainly not!"

Aggie's neatly rounded jaw dropped in a gape of surprise that was most unladylike.

"You are going to live on in this joint with us?" she questioned, aghast.

"Of course." The reply was given with the utmost of certainty.

But the confident tone brought no response of agreement from Mary. On the contrary, her voice was, if anything, even colder as she replied to his suggestion. She spoke with an emphasis that brooked no evasion.

"What was your promise? I told you that I wouldn't go with you until you had brought your father to me, and he had studied us happiness." Dick placed his hands gently on his wife's shoulders and regarded her with a touch of indignation in his eyes.

"Mary," he said reproachfully, "you are not going to hold me to that promise?"

The answer was given with a decisiveness that admitted of no question, and there was a hardness on her face that emphasized the words.

"I am going to hold you to that promise, Dick."

For a few seconds the young man stared at her with troubled eyes. Then he moved impatiently and dropped his hands from her shoulders. But his usual cheery smile came again, and he shrugged resignedly.

"All right, Mrs. Gilder," he said gayly. The sound of the name provoked him to new pleasure. "Sounds fine, doesn't it?" he demanded with an uproarious air.

"Yes," Mary said, but there was no enthusiasm in her tone.

The husband went on speaking with no apparent heed of his wife's indifference.

Mary Answered Quickly.

"You pack up what things you need girlie," he directed. "Just a few—because they sell clothes in Paris. And they are some class, believe me. And meantime, I'll run down to Cad's office and have him back here in half an hour. You will be all ready, won't you?"

Mary answered quickly, with a little catching of the breath, but still calmly.

"Yes, yes, I'll be ready. Go and bring your father."

"You bet I will!" Dick cried heartily. He would have taken her in his arms again, but she evaded the caress.

"What's the matter?" he demanded, plainly at a loss to understand this repulse.

"Nothing" was the ambiguous answer.

"Just one!" Dick pleaded.

"No," the bride replied, and there was determination in the monosyllable.

It was evident that Dick perceived the futility of argument.

"For a married woman you certainly are shy," he replied, with a sly glance toward Aggie, who beamed back sympathy. "You'll excuse me, won't you, Miss Lynch?" * * * Good-bye, Mrs. Gilder." He made a formal bow to his wife. As he hurried to the door he expressed to him his admiration for the name. "Mrs. Gilder! Doesn't that sound immense?" And with that he was gone.

The tense silence in the dressing room until the two women heard the closing of the outer door of the apartment. Then at last Aggie relieved her pentup emotions in a huge sigh that was near a groan.

"Oh, Gawd!" she gasped. "The poor simp!"

CHAPTER XIII.

The Advent of Griggs.

Later on Garson, learning from the maid that Dick Gilder had left, rejoined just as Mary was dancing over the release with which General Hastings was to be interested done. With the return of his letters for his payment of $10,000 to Miss Agnes Lynch.

"Hello, Joe," Mary said graciously as the forger entered. Then she spoke crisply to Agnes. "And now you must get ready. You are to be at Harris' office with the document at 10 o'clock —and remember that you are to let the lawyer manage everything.

Aggie exhibited her doll-like face into a grimace.

"It gets my angora that I'll have to miss Mr. Gilder's being the first one to the slaughter house." And that was the nearest the little adventuress ever came to mentioning a Biblical name.

"Anyhow," she protested, "I don't see the use of all this monkey business, here. All I want is the jack. But she hurried obediently, nevertheless, to get ready for the start.

Garson regarded Mary quizzically.

"It's lucky for her that she met you," he said. "She's got no more brains than a clam."

"And brains are mighty useful things, even in our business," Mary replied seriously; "particularly in our business."

He should say they were," Garson agreed. "You have proved that."

Aggie came back, putting on her gloves and cocking her small head very prinkly under the enormous hat that was garnished with coutliest plumes. It was thus that she consoled herself for a measure for the business of the occasion —in lieu of cracked ice from Tiffany's at one hundred and fifty a carat. Mary gave over the release, and Aggie, still grumbling, deposited it in her handbag

The Mistakes of Jennie ... By HAL COFFMAN

Being a Series of Chapters in the Life of a Southern Girl in the Big City

"It never occurred to Jennie how they got the good clothes."

CHAPTER IV.

WHEN Jennie's friend, the motherly boarding house keeper, came in to call her the next morning she sat down on the edge of Jennie's little white bed and took hold of the girl's hand—for she knew that something was on Jennie's mind, and all was not quite right.

Jennie, however, assured her that everything was fine and dandy and that she was only tired the night before. But they have a way of knowing when all is not quite right with children, and it hurt her the way Jennie acted—for never before had she failed to confide all her little troubles and secrets to her.

Jennie ate a hurried breakfast and felt all through it as if she were choking and was impatient to be out of the house. On the way to work in the stupid old street car she couldn't help but think how dull and sordid it seemed after the "taxi" the night before.

Another thing bothered her also, that she had forgotten in the excitement of the night before—what about Tom? Tom, whom it seemed she had ALWAYS known. Tom, whom the other girls always referred to as Jennie's "steady." What would they say when he saw her with THE MAN.

Huh! She should worry about Tom—guess she could put him in his place, and besides, what business was it of his? Tom never took her to a swell restaurant like she was in last night or took her home in a "taxi." Poor Tom didn't make much money even if he did work hard.

THE MAN had asked her to ring him up, and she decided she would do so that very day at lunch time. That morning at the office she heard two of the other girls talking—girls that always seemed to have good clothes and were always talking about the good times they had.

It never occurred to Jennie before when she met them they GOT the good clothes or the good times they had. She knew they were each making $7 a week, while Jennie, who was a faster stenographer than they, received more attention to her work, got $8 a week.

Indeed she would have offered to dress the way they did, and they didn't live at home either. The latter she wondered about all that morning till lunch time when she hurried out to a public booth and rang up THE MAN. That being Saturday—and would he not like to take Jennie with him for the next day. They would start early Sunday morning and get "way, way out in the country and stop at some little inn for a dandy chicken dinner. She was to make some excuse at home and not tell her friends she was dancing in some keeper where she was going, but to meet him several blocks from her home and they would have LOTS of fun.

Indeed she WOULD meet him and she could say she was going out to spend the day with Tom. Jennie was so excited she could hardly wait for the next morning, and, just think! an AUTO ride in the country.

Ah, wasn't it a dandy old world after all, and lots more fun than going down to the beach or walking in the old pokey park with Tom.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

WEN we came to this little town was Pa is fixing he told Ma that it was different from other small towns. The people here are as broad as the people that live in a city, sed Pa, and you will find none of the petty gossip & scandal that is so common in other small places.

I dont know, sed Ma, you will have to show me. There is gossip & scandal even in Atlanta, but in a small place at least in any of the small places I have ever been in, there is sure to be a good deal of talk.

But this is a different kind of town, sed Pa. You wait & see. So we waited & saw.

The first thing after dinner last nite two married ladies calm to call on Ma. Pa & me was there, too. We dident want to stay, but we had to be polite.

You have a nice little village here, sed Ma to the two ladies. One of them was Missus Jenkins & the other was named Missus Jones.

Oh, we do get so tired of it, sed Missus Jenkins. There are so few of our kind of people here that we always like to meet people of refinement. Most of the people here are so common, ain't they, Missus Jones?

He Drank.

Heyings, yes, sed Missus Jones. The only other people here besides Missus Jenkins and myself is the Browns, & Mister Brown drinks awpetuck.

I can't say that I blame him much, sed Missus Jenkins, because his wife powders her face & is all the time carrying at him. She goes to New York pritty often, too. I wouldent think so much of it if her husband went with her, but she goes alone.

That isent very reemarkable, is it? sed Ma. I dare say she goes there to shop.

That's what she says sed Missus Jenkins, but to think what we please on her. Besides, every time she goes on an awful lot of airs going to the city to shop. If her husband paid his bills here it would look a whole lot better, wouldent it, Missus Jones?

Yes, indeed, sed Missus Jones. Don't you think so yourself? she asked Ma.

I am sure I am not interested, sed Ma. She was beginning to act kind of cool, the way she acts sumtimes at breakfast the morning after Pa has went to the Elks. Pa looked kind of cheep, too, after the way he had talked about the people in this little town being so broad.

Dosent you think this lady's son looks like Harry Baker? Missus Jenkins asked Missus Jones.

More Scandal.

He is better looking than Missus Baker's boy, sed Missus Jones & I can see he has been fetched up different. Harry Baker never had no fetching up to speak of. As you all my boy's mare, like playing that awful game of "keeps" last week, but I can't blame him for wanting to gamble. Mister Baker, his father, plays poker and they say he cheats.

Then Ma got busy. She waited till Pa had left the room & she sed Ladies, pity me. The reason my husband left the room is beekaus he doesn't pay his bills and he drinks three quarts of whisky a day & he plays poker so much that he is beeginning to git a curled mustache like the King of Clubs. Pity me, too, said Ma.

He does? exclaimed the two ladies. He certainly does, dessent he, Bobbie?

Almost every nite wen he cums hoam, I sed, & he brats me, too.

The village ladies dident stay long after that.

Not Talkative

Lady Dorothy Nevill in her "reminiscences" has told a story of the third Duke of Devonshire and his brother, Lord Cavendish.

Both were very silent men. Stopping once at an inn in Germany they were told that they could be accommodated only with a chamber containing three beds, one of which was occupied. They made no reply, but quietly retired to the apartment. Feeling some little curiosity about the third bed, however, each took a momentary peep through the curtains. They then immediately got into their own beds and slept soundly.

Next morning, after they had breakfasted and paid their bill, the duke said to his brother:

George, did you see the dead body?

"Yes," was the reply; and they both got into their chaise and proceeded on their journey without another word.

FLIES ACROSS GULF FROM KEY WEST TO CUBA

Rosillo, Obscure Airman, Accomplishes Feat First Time in Teeth of Gale.

Great Throng Greets Daring Birdman on Early Morning Arrival in Havana.

KEY WEST, May 17.—In a flight which compares in daring with any other ever made on the North American continent, Domingo Rosillo, an obscure young Cuban aviator, flew over the Gulf of Mexico from here to Havana, Cuba, 80 miles away, in a Moisant aeroplane, winning the $10,000 prize offered by the Havana Municipal Council for the first flight between the cities. Rosillo left Key West at 5:35 a. m. and landed in Havana at 8:15 a. m.

Leaving the terminal of the East Coast Railroad in a gale of wind at 5:35 o'clock Rosillo skimmed across the intervening stretch of turbulent water without any mishap.

A sensational and dramatic incident, which almost cost a human life, attended the start of the flight.

Rival Threatens Suicide.

Augustino Parla, another aviator who was to race across the gulf with Rosillo, attempted to have the daring little Cuban abandon the flight for to-day because of the high wind and roughness of the water. When Parla saw that Rosillo was determined to start he began to overhaul his Curtiss biplane. Friends intervened, saying:

"It would be sure death to start in this gale, and if you should fall into the water the waves are so high you would be drowned."

Parla persisted and finally his friends had to restrain him forcibly.

Parla, in desperation, pulled a pistol from his pocket and, placing the weapon against his forehead, threatened to kill himself unless he was allowed to start. Friends took the weapon from him.

Wind Held Plane Down.

The aviator then entered his machine, which had been equipped with pontoons and which rested on the surface of the water. The wind was so high, however, that the aeroplane would not rise, and the wires holding the pontoons snapped. Waves then began splashing over the machine and all hope of starting the flight was lost.

Meanwhile Rosillo, who had got a flying start, had disappeared in a southwesterly direction, bucking a stiff wind that threatened to send his heroplane crashing upon the water.

A great crowd gathered to see the aviators start, but on account of the wind and the choppy sea it was believed that neither man would attempt a flight. At 5 o'clock Rosillo sent a radio telegram to Morro Castle asking after the condition of the weather off the Cuban Coast. The reply came back that flying conditions there were ideal.

"That settles it," exclaimed Rosillo. "I'll start, for I promised to make the flight before Sunday, and I am going to do it or die trying."

For a while the Cuban tinkered with his machine, testing stays and seeing that all was durable for the wind test it was soon to go through. When he clambered into the machine and gave word to his mechanician to let him the ropes was loosed and tumbled by the wind.

FORREST ADAIR THANKS HEARST PAPERS FOR WORK IN THE SHRINER VICTORY

By FORREST ADAIR.

I HARDLY can find words in which to express my high appreciation of the good work done for Atlanta by Mr. Hearst and the Hearst newspapers in the matter of bringing next year's meeting of the Imperial Council of the Mystic Shrine to Atlanta.

Not only did Mr. Hearst give us the free and unlimited support of The Atlanta Georgian and The Sunday American, but every newspaper he owns in the United States was working for the Gate City.

I REGARD IT AS SIGNIFICANT THAT IN EVERY CITY, WITHOUT EXCEPTION, IN WHICH MR. HEARST HAS A NEWSPAPER, THE DELEGATIONS ATTENDING THE SHRINE MEETING IN DALLAS WERE FOR ATLANTA FIRST, LAST, AND ALL THE TIME.

I saw the effects of Mr. Hearst's work, time and again, as the fight progressed, and always it was hearty and effective in Atlanta's behalf.

The fine special Shriner edition of The Atlanta Sunday American which Mr. Hearst sent to Dallas was read widely and went far toward convincing the delegates that Atlanta is the place to hold next year's meeting.

And last of all, I thank The Georgian and Sunday American for having a personal representative on the ground in Dallas to keep the home folks informed promptly and fully of the proceedings as they developed.

Atlanta won a magnificent victory, through the assembling of numerous influences, and no one deserves more praise to-day than does Mr. Hearst and his newspapers.

He and they have proven themselves to be Atlanta's loyal and enthusiastic friends.

In this statement I am joined cordially by Mr. Hinds, Mr. Foster and Mr. Hutcheson, the other members of the committee from Yaarab Temple having in charge Atlanta's interests in Dallas.

GREAT WELCOME HOME TO SHRINERS WHO WON VICTORY FOR ATLANTA

Caesar in all his glory was never accorded a greater acclamation upon his triumphal entry into Rome than that with which Illustrious Potentate Forrest Adair was received upon his return from Dallas Saturday afternoon.

Atlanta outdid herself in her reception of this victor. Noted as she is for her patriotic spirit, no demonstration that this city has ever given of appreciation of her sons was ever seen to equal this one. And every cheer which arose from the thousands of those who attended the arrival and participated in the following parade rose up from the heart.

Pandemonium reigned when the Illustrious Yaarab stepped from the train and pandemonium continued until he disappeared into the Temple at the end of the gorgeous pageant.

Knoxville Shriners in Parade.

Enthusiastic witnesses and participants in this demonstration of Atlanta spirit were the members of the Alhambra Temple of Shriners from Knoxville. They attended the Dallas Conclave and are en route home.

At the Terminal Station, however, they were induced to join in the parade, and lent their efforts also to the tremendous welcoming which was being accorded the Yaarabs. When they return to Knoxville they will carry with them the enthusiasm and impetus of the Georgia city to transplant into their own.

The procession which formed at the station was an impressive pageant. It consisted of two lines standing shoulder to shoulder and emitting volume after volume of cheers as the illustrious potentate, his coterie of fighters and the reception party passed.

Upon the repeated shouts for "speech, speech," to the home-comers Mr. Adair said:

"I promised to bring home the bacon and I did. We owe all thanks to the generous hearted Atlanta citizens, who through their donations enabled us to put up the fight we did. I am sure that they will make next year's convention of the Shriners the greatest and most memorable ever held by that body."

When the Yaarabs stepped off their train they were accorded a demonstration such as has not been sent ringing down the streets and avenues of this city in many years.

March to Terminal Station.

All local Shriners, of whom there are about 700, were summoned to be at the Masonic Temple at 12:15 o'clock sharp with fezes on and all the other trappings of their order. At this meeting place also came the brass bands, the elephant and the camels, as well as thousands of other persons. The entire body formed in procession and marched to the Terminal Station.

Apprehension as to the actions of the animals in the great excitement which will attend this procession was expressed by park animal-keepers; however, on this occasion their excuses would not be accepted by C. H. Essig, of the Reception Committee.

Mr. Essig, in outlining the great demonstration, declaring that it would be the most overwhelming ever accorded to a returning Atlanta citizen, said:

"In the first place, every loyal Shriner will be in the howling mob," he said. "Summonses have been issued to them numbering nearly 700 in all. They have been asked to attend in their fezes and other regalia.

"Then there will be thousands of other citizens who will join in the reception simply through their patriotic spirit, and their desire in showing their appreciation of the good work done by Potentate Adair and his band of Yaarabs.

"We have a band of 10 pieces to

Thousands of Fans Turn Out to Witness Saturday's Battle

Great Crowd on Hand to Cheer Rival Baseball Teams to Victory.

Brimming over with enthusiasm, the loyal sons and fair adherents of Tech and Georgia will again assemble at Grant Field to cheer their little armies to victory when the two teams meet Saturday afternoon.

With the critical situation involving the championship of Tech or the redemption of her lost prestige by Georgia, the thousands of fans who attended Friday's game will go again Saturday and take their friends to add to the bedlam of voices, stamping of feet and other madnesses which go to make up a real college game.

Not one among the witnesses from the grandstand and surrounding embankment—nor from the tree-tops in the distance, even—will be able to control their actions in the enthusiasm which Saturday's game will precipitate.

When Tech and Georgia clash even the urchin of the street will risk his life to witness the fray and add his small voice to the uproar for his favorite team.

And a hub about the uproarious rooting of each side's constituents will appear the beautiful sponsors who, as on Friday, will occupy the flower benches on the diamond near the players' headquarters.

Upholding with their beauty and vivaciousness the standard of the University team will be Miss Marjorie Brown and Miss Minnie Ansley, while directly across the diamond's homeplate point will be Miss Kate Cooper and Miss Bertha Moore for Tech. To these two central points are directed the eyes of the mob of rooters, and from the sponsors will they receive their inspiration for what really may be expected to be the most enthusiastic and electrifying display of lung-power and eccentric gymnastics which has ever been witnessed at a college baseball game.

Mr. and Mrs. Hearst Guests of Gov.-Elect Slaton at Dinner

Governor-elect Slaton and Mrs. Slaton will entertain sixteen guests at dinner to-night at their country home on Peachtree Road in honor of Mr. and Mrs. William Randolph Hearst.

The party will include Governor and Mrs. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Howell, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Maddox, Mr. and Mrs. John Grant, Mrs. W. D. Grant, Miss Dooly, Mr. Guy Barham, of Los Angeles, Cal., and Mr. John S. Cohen.

Senate Postoffice Probe Would Hear Mrs. Longstreet

WASHINGTON, May 17.—The Senate Committee on Audit and Contingent Expenses to-day voted to report out a resolution providing for a general investigation of the Indian service, carrying an appropriation of $150,000 and a resolution for a postoffice investigation in which Mrs. Helen Longstreet, from Gainesville, Ga., will be permitted to present her case.

Mrs. Longstreet recently was replaced as postmaster by the appointment of Mrs. Ham.

MOTHERS FOR $4 GRADUATION GOWN

National Congress Also Urges School Matrons to Look After Welfare of Girls.

BOSTON, May 17.—Simpler graduation gowns for high school girls, not to cost more than $4 each at the most, were advocated by the women speakers at the National Mothers' Congress. Mrs. Fred. Dick, of Colorado, said the graduation dresses should not cost more than $4.

Mrs. D. F. Eldridge, of Rochester, N. Y., urged a motion in every high school to look after the welfare of the girls. She said this would correct some of the evils in high schools.

Mrs. E. R. Weeks, of Kansas City, Mo., declared that mothers can work better for their own children if they show interest in the children outside their own homes.

Mrs. Charles Trenton, of Iowa, said that the rural schools should be more up to date and should have a fireless cooker to be used by the girl pupils in preparing their own lunches.

Mrs. Eugene Crutcher, of Tennessee, advocated a widow's pension law for every State in the Union and urged mothers to become interested in such legislation.

NEW PHAGAN WITNESSES HAVE BEEN FOUND

WELCOMES AID OF BURNS IN CLEARING UP MYSTERY

Handwriting Expert at Work on Clews Furnished by Notes Found in Pencil Factory.

Solicitor Hugh M. Dorsey said Saturday that his "greatest detective in America" would not figure again in the Phagan investigation, and that it was extremely doubtful whether he would be recalled to testify at the trial.

"He has finished his investigation," said the Solicitor, "and we have no further need for him. A detective is one thing and a witness is another. His investigation led us to witnesses. It is not necessary for him, or any detective, to tell the jury what a disinterested witness will tell."

He would not say, however, whether his decision not to put the "greatest in America" on the witness stand would apply to his city, Pinkerton and Burns detectives.

Grand Jury Meets Wednesday.

The Solicitor announced that the Grand Jury would meet next Wednesday for an extra session, but said it was hardly probable the Phagan case would be considered then. He said there were a number of cases that demanded attention and the extra session would more than likely be called to dispose of everything on the calendar to prepare for the session Friday, when the Phagan case would more than likely be considered.

Mr. Dorsey said that his interview of Friday, in which he said the Burns men would work under the same conditions as the Pinkertons had been misconstrued by some to mean that the services of the great detective were not needed.

Welcomes Burns' Aid.

He said that he did not intend to create that impression, when as a matter of fact he would welcome Mr. Burns in the case and give him every co-operation, except giving out information or evidence that had already been secured. He will continue to examine witnesses up to the day the case goes to the Grand Jury, he said.

Bernard L. Chappell, attorney for the negro, Newt Lee, said Saturday morning that unless the Grand Jury acted on the Phagan case next week he would bring habeas corpus proceedings in an effort to secure his release.

Pursue Writing Clews.

With powerful microscopes, magnifying glasses and a series of reflecting mirrors Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey and the city detectives, assisted by a handwriting expert, who is said to be one of the best in the country, are minutely examining the "handwriting clews" in the Phagan mystery. They confidently expect important developments.

Solicitor Dorsey would not disclose the identity of the expert on penmanship because, he said, the man's services were voluntary and given with the understanding that he was not to be known unless it became absolutely necessary to place him on the witness stand. The Solicitor said, however, that he was one of the best in the country, and the great detective agencies considered his tests infallible.

The two notes found in the basement of the pencil factory, specimen of the handwriting of the two men held in the Tower in connection with the murder, letters and notes written by the slain girl and the handwriting on the books of the pencil factory are being subjected to rigid tests. Accurate measurements of each letter and

JAP REPLY READY WITHIN 24 HOURS

Expected Government Will Deny California Has Contravened Treaty in Alien Law.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—That the reply of the United States to the Japanese protest in regard to the anti-alien land legislation will be made within the next 24 hours was indicated at the State Department to-day. It is believed the President now is going over all the points of the draft which John Bassett Moore, Counselor of the State Department, has made, and he will give his approval to the document to-day.

It is understood that the reply of the American Government takes the broad ground that California has not contravened the treaty of 1911 in her land law legislation, and that the claim of discrimination is not well founded.

Secretary of State Bryan probably will hold a conference with Viscount Chinda, the Japanese Ambassador, to-morrow, and go over the points contained in the American note in detail.

each word, the angle of the slant in forming the letters and the formation of certain letters that experts claim no two men write alike, are some of the tests applied.

Burns Man Works Quietly.

The Burns investigator who took up the case Friday morning has not yet reported to the office of the Solicitor. He is quietly and systematically working out his own idea of the case after a comprehensive outline given him by Colonel Thomas B. Felder. He has succeeded so far in keeping his identity secret.

Colonel Felder was confident the Burns agency would satisfactorily conduct and conclude the Phagan case.

"We will have the slayer in less than a month," said Colonel Felder. "I am confident the Burns men will meet with every success. With Mr. Burns in Europe, the man he has sent to Atlanta is certainly the best detective in America. He has charge of the Burns work in this country and is his chief's right-hand man. Mr. Burns himself will be on the scene shortly after June 1, and then I am confident this case will be cleared up beyond any shadow of a doubt."

Believe Newt Lee Innocent.

Officers working to solve the Phagan strangling mystery Saturday declared they were more firmly convinced that Newt Lee, the negro night watchman, had no hand in the tragedy and that he has told all he knows, as the result of a conversation between the night watchman and two other negro prisoners in the Tower which was overheard by Deputy Sheriff Drew Liddell.

The deputy "shadowed" Lee's cell for 35 minutes while the night watchman, unconscious of the fact that an officer was secreted but a few steps away, casually discussed the great pencil factory crime with Oscar Dewberry, a negro under sentence of death, and Jack Wright, a negro murder suspect brought here from Gwinnett County for safe keeping.

To these fellow prisoners Lee time and again protested his innocence, and insisted that he knew nothing more of the tragedy than what he had told the officers that he absolutely had no part in it beyond the finding of the slain girl's body in the basement.

Whether this incident will figure in any way in the investigation before the Grand Jury has not been announced by Solicitor Dorsey.

Deputies Try Strategy.

Deputy Liddell first visited the Tower with Deputy Lon Burdett and talked with the negro. Lee related the same story told to detectives and to the Coroner's Jury. The detective then determined on a ruse. He told the negro he would be back and talk to him again, and the second time returned with Deputy John Owens and J. L. Cooper, a court officer.

When Lee had again reiterated his same story the trio of officers left the cell. As Owens and Cooper walked away, Liddell, however, noiselessly stepped behind the big steam pipes just on the outside of the negro's cell. The other two officers walked heavily enough to leave the impression that all three had gone.

As the footsteps died away in the distance on the metallic floor Jack Wright asked Lee:

"Say, don't you tell them white folks what you know about that killing? If you know who done it, tell 'em, that's the best way."

Lee replied without hesitation:

"I ain't going to tell no Bo about it. I can't help what they do with me. I ain't going to lie.

"I've done told them all I know."

Nons Secured Information.

The Gwinnett negro then asked Lee if he knew the girl's body was in the basement before the time he discovered it at 3:30 o'clock in the morning.

"Good gracious, nigger, I'd tore that building down getting out of there if I'd known that body was in the basement," exclaimed the night watchman.

Proposed Church Amalgamation of National Bodies Applauded Wildly in Convention

United Presbyterian Churches of North America To Be New Name of Combination

Completion of Union Goes Over for a Year for Final Perfection of Details.

Plans for the union of the Southern and United Presbyterian Assemblies, which, if effected, will precipitate one of most momentous changes in the history of religious work in the United States, were submitted to those bodies at their morning sessions Saturday.

The new body will be known as the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Churches of North America.

Committees were appointed by both bodies with instructions to hold a joint conference with a view to bringing about the amalgamation. Dr. J. K. McClurkin was made chairman of the United Assembly committee. Articles were drawn up showing the present differences in religious worship between the two bodies, and a discussion as to the remedy of the conditions was had.

Proposal Greatly Applauded.

Before the Southern Assembly Rev. R. C. Reed read a report on the proposed union.

At both meetings the proposed combination met with unanimous approval. Tremendous applause followed its proposal.

While the amalgamation will not be attempted in the present Assemblies, the committees appointed by each have been instructed to draw up articles and in conferences to be held in the year to come to eliminate these differences and pave the way for the great union.

Dr. Reed was authorized to convey to the Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church the action of this Assembly regarding the conference.

Basis of Proposed Union.

The text of the report of the conference on the Union of the Southern Presbyterian Church and the United Presbyterian Church is as follows:

"To the Venerable, the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States.

"Your committee, appointed by the last Assembly to confer with a similar committee of the United Presbyterian Church in reference to the organic union of the two bodies, would respectfully report as follows, viz.:

"Your committee held a meeting in the city of Nashville, Tenn., in the month of September, 1912, for the purpose of coming to an understanding as to the propositions which it would be proper for us to make in a joint meeting of the two committees. After a day of earnest conference, a prayer was adopted covering all the points which, in the judgment of our committee, should be considered in the joint sessions of the committees.

Committees Meet Again.

"On the 6th day of December, 1912, in the parlor of the Ebbitt House, Washington City, the committees met and entered into conference at 10 a. m. The paper adopted by your committee of the United Presbyterian Church, was also presented. These papers furnished the materials of a conference lasting through the whole day.

"The object of each committee was to present not individual views and preferences, but what was believed to be the views and preferences of the church represented. A beautiful spirit of fraternal love and confidence marked the discussions, and the utmost frankness characterized the intercourse of brethren. It is to be regretted that not all the members of either committee were present. There were, however, a majority of each committee present, and they agreed, without a dissenting vote, to recommend to the two Assemblies a basis of union.

No Difference on Principles.

"As to the principles involved in this basis, there was no difference of opinion, but there was not perfect agreement touching the ordering of one of the articles. In the hope of reaching a perfect agreement on this point, a joint meeting of the two committees was held in the city of Atlanta, Ga., on the evening of May 13, 1913. This conference was also characterized by perfect candor. While on one or two points the committees could not see eye to eye, they unanimously agreed to lay before each Assembly the fruits of their labors as a basis of union between the two bodies.

"In accordance with this agreement, your committee respectfully presents to the Assembly and the following as the basis agreed upon, viz.:

Common Standing Ground.

"Believing in the essential oneness of the church of Christ; remembering the historic ties that bind us to revered ancestors, who witnessed valiantly for the truth as it is in Jesus and through whom we come to us as common heritage of Christian faith and doctrine; desiring to prove faithful in the custodianship of this inheritance, and aiming only for the glory of God in the shaping advancement and wider extension of His kingdom upon earth, we, as members of the Presbyterian Church in the United States and the members of the Presbyterian Church of North America, do find a common standing in the adoption of the following statements and upon the basis of these fundamental truths we covenant to join our ecclesiastical bodies in organic unity.

The Articles.

"1. The doctrinal standards now held in common by these churches, viz., the Westminster Confession of Faith, the Larger and Shorter Catechisms shall be the doctrinal standards of the United Church.

"2. The standards are to be interpreted in their natural and obvious meaning, and no one shall be authorized to teach or preach in the United Church who can not give an unqualified assent to the doctrinal system contained in these standards.

The united church would bear emphatic testimony to the following doctrines as essential parts of the aforesaid system:

(a) The Integrity of the Holy Scriptures. The Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments are to be received as the very word of God, and their authority is to be recognized as the only infallible rule of faith and life.

"Faith" and Son One.

(b) "Our Lord Jesus Christ is not only the Son of God in respect to His natural, necessary and eternal relation to the Father, but also the true and supreme God, being one in essence with the Father and the Holy Spirit."

(c) "Our Lord Jesus Christ, besides the dominion which belongs to Him as God, has, as our God-man Mediator, a twofold dominion with which He has been invested by the Father as the reward of His sufferings, Those are: A dominion over the church, of which He is the living head and lawgiver and source of all that divine influence and authority by which she is sustained and governed; and also a dominion over all created enemies and things, which is exercised by Him in subservience to the manifestation of God's glory in the system of redemption and the interests of His church."

Atonement for Sin.

(d) As to the constitution of the person of our Redeemer, the Scriptures plainly teach that He was conceived by the Holy Ghost in the womb of the Virgin Mary, and was born without a human father. He lived a life of perfect obedience, and by the shedding of His blood made full atonement for sin and purchased redemption for the people.

(e) "The Holy Spirit, the third person of the Trinity, eternally proceeding from the Father and the Son, does, by a direct operation accompanying the word, so act on the soul as to quicken, regenerate and sanctify it; it is His to take of the things of Christ and show them unto men; it is His to work in direct operation the soul would perish in leaving the truth of God's word and would refuse to yield to the motives which it presents. In His gracious work the Holy Spirit is the revealer of Christ, the interpreter of His word and the comforter of the believer; in addition to these essential doctrines, the united church would lift into prominence:

The Church's Mission.

The mission of the church: We believe that the Gospel of the Son of God is the only hope of a sinful, dying world. We recognize in the commands of Christ the urgent call for the evangelization of the world and we view before the imperative duty of sending the message of the Word for a witness among all nations.

The exclusively spiritual character of the church's mission. This union is based on the statement of our common Confession of Faith, viz., "Synods and Councils are to handle or conclude nothing but that which is ecclesiastical, and are not to intermeddle with civil affairs which concern the commonwealth, unless by way of humble petition in cases extraordinary or by way of advice for satisfaction of conscience, if they be thereunto required by the civil magistrate."

Everyday Christianity.

The exclusively spiritual character of the mission of the church does not imply that the church owes no duty to civil society. On the contrary it is the imperative duty of the church, through its members as citizens of the civil commonwealth to apply the principles of Christianity to all the political, social and industrial conditions of society.

4. The supreme judicatory of the United Church shall be a General Assembly, the official title of which shall be "The General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church of North America," it being understood and agreed that this shall not affect local and historic names of churches, Presbyteries and Synods.

Form of Church Order.

5. As to the basis of representation and in the conduct and the procedure of the First General Assembly, the Book of Church Order of the Presbyterian Church in the United States shall be authoritative.

6. The subordinate courts of the church shall continue to use provisionally the book of rules under which they have hitherto been governed.

7. The Synods and Presbyteries shall remain as at present constituted until such time as it shall manifestly appear that some change is needed for the best interest of the cause and Kingdom of Christ.

Executive Agencies to Continue.

8. All executive agencies shall continue as at present, and congregations shall continue to send their contributions through the customary channels. But these executive agencies shall co-operate with each other as far as practicable in the circumstances, and shall seek to devise some method by which, with the authoritative action of the General Assembly, and the approbation of the whole church, they can become completely identified. Before, however, such complete consolidation takes place, careful steps shall be taken after consultation with competent attorneys to safeguard the following as all property rights affected by the union of churches.

On Singing Psalms.

9. There is a difference in the historic faith and practice of the two churches touching the matter of praise in the worship of God. The one church holds the belief that the Book of Psalms is the perfect and divinely accredited manual of praise, and as such is to be used in worship to the exclusion of all devotional compositions of uninspired persons.

The other, while believing that the Psalms of Scripture were designed for permanent use in the church, and should have a large place in Christian worship, yet hold that other compositions that are in harmony with the teaching of Scripture may, with propriety and profit, be used in congregational singing.

This difference is frankly recognized, but holding our respective views, in the forbearance of love, we safeguard the following as a practicable basis:

Believe Psalter Inspired.

We believe that the Psalter of the Bible, the Psalms of David, as an inspired manual of praise and that the Spirit of God indicted these songs for use in the worship of the people of God to the end of time. The United Church will, therefore, take immediate steps to introduce to all its congregations, by indorsing and recommending the Psalms of the Bible in the best metrical version as a divinely accredited book of praise. But while strongly commending the use of the Psalms, it is agreed that each church in our respective synods shall be allowed in the matter of congregational singing the same liberty which it now enjoys.

"Sole View to Honor Christ."

Finally, recognizing that it is impossible to make specific provision for all points of difference that may arise, it is understood that these churches enter the union in the spirit of mutual confidence and Christian love, and with a sole view to the honor of Christ and the extension of His Kingdom.

"It follows from this that the law of Christian charity as expounded by the Apostle Paul must be our guide: 'Let us not therefore judge one another any more; but judge ye this rather that no man put a stumbling block in his brother's way.' 'Let each of us please his neighbor for that which is good unto edifying.' 'Do nothing through faction or through vainglory, but in lowliness of mind each counting other better than himself; not looking each of you to his own things, but each of you also to the things of others.'

Delay Recommended.

Your committee recommends that this report be not considered at this Assembly, but that it be placed on the docket for the consideration of the next Assembly. Your committee would mention two reasons for this course. First, this is the disposition which the committee of the United Presbyterian Church is going to ask their Assembly to make of their report; and it is desirable that the two bodies act in concert. Second, as this basis is new to our church, and as the two churches occupying different territories, widely separated, are not well acquainted, a year should be allowed for both churches to acquaint themselves with the gravity of the step proposed.

Elect Infant Clause Stands.

Report No. 1 of the standing committee on bills and overtures was submitted by Rev. T. S. Clyce, D.D., chairman.

This report had reference solely to the overtures relative to the "elect infant clause." It recommended, in view of the fact that the question of amending this section (referring to Section 3, Chapter X of the Confession of Faith) has been before the church for thirteen years, and the church has not agreed on the form of change to be made, and in view of the further fact that the Assembly of 1902 (Alexander's Digest, Revised, page 8) declared that the Holy Scriptures amply warrant us in believing that all infants who die in infancy are included in the election of grace and are regenerated and saved by Christ through the Spirit, which declaration we would here reaffirm, we recommend that no amendment for the present be sent down to the presbyteries."

This report was not adopted, however, but consideration was deferred until a later session of the Assembly, the matter to stand over in view of the fact that all of the overtures on this subject had not been tabulated, action at this time would not be advisable.

Atlanta Overture.

The overture by the Conference on Springs, Miss.; D. M. Douglas, Clinton, S. C., the Union Theological Seminary in Education in Atlanta to the General Assembly, with names attached of all representatives present, follows:

"That the Committee on Education in the Presbyterian Church of the United States, in meeting in Atlanta, Ga., May 13 and 14, 1913, overture the General Assembly convening in Atlanta May 15, 1913, to appoint in the interim committee, composed of the executive secretary of Christian Education and Ministerial Relief as chairman and one member from each synod, to consider all matters relating to the ministry, definition, ordination and allied questions of the schools and colleges connected with our church; also the committee on the Christian educators of these schools and colleges into conference with themselves at Montreat, N. C., during July or August of this year to discuss matters coming under the purview of this committee, and that this committee report its findings with or without recommendation, to the General Assembly of 1914."

"There also will be the camels to lead the parade and the elephant as well, to add a unique coloring to it.

"The reception committee is composed of Dr. M. E. Turner, Oscar Weinmeister, T. H. Pitt and myself. We have secured several cases of Japanese umbrellas and every local Shriner will carry one in the parade.

"The procession will start from the Temple at 12:15 o'clock. It will proceed down Peachtree and Whitehall Streets to Mitchell Street and thence to the Terminal Station, arriving there just when the train is due.

"There will be a concert in the plaza before the station until the train arrives and the crowd will join in singing patriotic songs. When the outposts announce the approach of the home-comers, a yell and cheer will ring out and the entire body will advance down to meet them.

Crown Them With Wreaths.

"We will crown their heads with wreaths and carry them on our shoulders in the waiting automobiles.

"With these machines in the lead, closely followed by the band, the elephant and the camels, then the corps of Shriners in their full regalia and after them the thousands of citizens, the procession will move down Mitchell to Whitehall Street and proceed down Whitehall and Peachtree Streets to the temple. Arriving here there will be speeches of welcome, and Mr. Adair and his companions will be prevailed upon to answer.

"It was first planned to have the parade when the drum corps and the main body of Shriners who went to Dallas returned," continued Mr. Essig, "but they will not arrive until Sunday morning. Of course, we could not have the parade on Sunday.

KEY WEST, FLA., MAY 17.—THE FIRST SUCCESSFUL AEROPLANE FLIGHT OVER THE GULF OF MEXICO FROM THE UNITED STATES TO CUBA WAS MADE TO-DAY BY DOMINGO ROSILLO, A YOUNG CUBAN AVIATOR, WHO WON A PRIZE OF $10,000, OFFERED BY THE MUNICIPAL COUNCIL OF HAVANA FOR ACCOMPLISHING FEAT.

FUND TO EMPLOY CHIEF W. J. BURNS NOW UP TO $1,500 AND MORE COMING

UP TO SATURDAY MORNING $1,500 HAD BEEN SUBSCRIBED TO PAY DETECTIVE BURNS FOR HIS INVESTIGATION INTO THE PHAGAN MURDER MYSTERY. CONTRIBUTIONS ARE COMING IN RAPIDLY AND A VERY CONSIDERABLE SUM WILL UNDOUBTEDLY BE SUBSCRIBED. MR. BURNS, IT IS REPORTED, WILL TAKE PERSONAL CHARGE OF THE INVESTIGATION ABOUT JUNE 1.

WHOLE CITY TO JOIN IN GREETING YAARABS

Thousands of Citizens, 700 Shriners and Brass Bands to Greet Convention Winners.

ELEPHANT AND CAMELS TO BE FEATURES OF PARADE

Welcoming Hosts Will March From Temple to Terminal Station at 12:40 o'Clock.

"To the victor belongs the spoils." To the Yaarabs belong Atlanta.

The heavens will rend Saturday with the plaudits of thousands when, at 12:40 o'clock, Potentate Forrest Adair and delegates will arrive at the Terminal Station on their triumphant return from Dallas.

Bands will play "Lo, the Conquering Heroes Come;" spasmodic expressions of gratitude from the hundreds of persons banked about the train sheds will attend the reception; the park elephant will be there, trumpeting his excitement; the camels from Grant Park will take part in the pageant.

When the Yaarabs step off their train it is safe to say they will be accorded a demonstration such as has not been sent ringing down the streets and avenues of this city in many years.

March to Terminal Station.

All local Shriners, of whom there are about 700, have been summoned to be at the Masonic Temple at 12:15 o'clock sharp with fezes on and all the other trimmings of their order. At this meeting place will also come the brass bands, the elephant and the camels, as well as thousands of other persons. The entire body will form in procession and march to the Terminal Station.

Apprehension as to the actions of the animals in the great excitement which will attend this procession was expressed by park animal keepers; however, on this occasion their excuses would not be accepted by C. H. Essig, of the Reception Committee.

Mr. Essig, in outlining the great demonstration, declaring that it would be the most overwhelming ever accorded to a returning Atlanta citizen, said:

"In the first place, every loyal Shriner will be in the bowling mob," he said. "Summonses have been issued to them numbering nearly 700 in all. They have been asked to attend in their fezes and other regalia.

Thousands of Others Coming.

"Then there will be thousands of other citizens who will join in the reception simply through their patriotic spirit, and their desire in showing their appreciation of the good work done by Potentate Adair and his band of Yaarabs.

"We have a band of 20 pieces to make as much noise as possible, and believe me, a 20-piece band can make some noise.

"There also will be the camels to lead the parade and the elephant as well, to add a unique coloring to it.

"The reception committee is composed of Dr. M. E. Turner, Oscar Weinmeister, T. H. Pitt and myself. We have secured several cases of Japanese umbrellas and every local Shriner will carry one in the parade.

"The procession will start from the Temple at 12:15 o'clock. It will proceed down Peachtree and Whitehall Streets to Mitchell Street and thence to the Terminal Station, arriving there just when the train is due.

"There will be a concert in the plaza before the station until the train arrives and the crowd will join in singing patriotic songs. When the purpose announce the approach of the home-comers, a grand cheer will ring out and the entire body will advance down to meet them."

FORREST ADAIR THANKS HEARST PAPERS FOR WORK IN THE SHRINER VICTORY

I HARDLY can find words in which to express my high appreciation of the good work done for Atlanta by Mr. Hearst and the Hearst newspapers in the matter of bringing next year's meeting of the Imperial Council of the Mystic Shrine to Atlanta.

Not only did Mr. Hearst give us the free and unlimited support of The Atlanta Georgian and The Sunday American, but every newspaper he owns in the United States was working for the Gate City.

I REGARD IT AS SIGNIFICANT THAT IN EVERY CITY, WITHOUT EXCEPTION, IN WHICH MR. HEARST HAS A NEWSPAPER, THE DELEGATIONS ATTENDING THE SHRINE MEETING IN DALLAS WERE FOR ATLANTA FIRST, LAST, AND ALL THE TIME.

I saw the effects of Mr. Hearst's work, time and again, as the fight progressed, and always it was hearty and effective in Atlanta's behalf.

The fine special Shriner edition of The Atlanta Sunday American which Mr. Hearst sent to Dallas was read widely and went far toward convincing the delegates that Atlanta is the place to hold next year's meeting.

And last of all, I thank The Georgian and Sunday American for having a personal representative on the ground in Dallas to keep the home folks informed promptly and fully of the proceedings as they developed.

Atlanta won a magnificent victory, through the assembling of numerous influences, and no one deserves more praise to-day than does Mr. Hearst and his newspapers.

He and they have proven themselves to be Atlanta's loyal and enthusiastic friends.

In this statement I am joined cordially by Mr. Hinds, Mr. Foster and Mr. Hutcheson, the other members of the committee from Yaarab Temple having in charge Atlanta's interests in Dallas.

BISHOP DOANE DIES OF HEART DISEASE

High Episcopal Prelate, Age 81, Succumbs to Brief Illness in New York.

NEW YORK, May 17.—Following an attack of illness of little more than 24 hours duration, Bishop William Croswell Doane, of the Episcopal Diocese, of Albany, N. Y., and one of the great leaders of the high Episcopal Church in this country, died early today in his apartments at the Hotel Manhattan of heart disease. He was 81 years of age. Members of the family who had been summoned to the bedside last night said the body would be taken to Albany this afternoon for burial.

Bishop Doane came here yesterday to attend a meeting of the Board of Missions of the Episcopal Church. On the following day he was taken ill and rapidly grew worse.

Bishop Doane died at 12:30 o'clock. At the bedside were his four grown daughters, Misses Margaret and Elizabeth Gardiner, Mrs. Mary Frazier and Mrs. Roy Pier.

Bishop Doane was born in Boston and was consecrated Bishop of Albany in 1869.

THE LIFT SKIRT IS THE VERY LATEST

Moreover, Chicago Dressmakers Vote the Slash Skirt a Fraud and Atrocity.

CHICAGO, May 17.—Mme. Anna Ripley described the newest fashion to the Chicago Dressmakers' club in these words:

"The skirt is lifted in front, above the ankles, so that the hem, if tight against the lower limbs, would touch the ankle just above the ankle-bone. In the back the skirt will drop so it will just skim the ground. The skirt will be from one and a half to two yards wide at the bottom.

"The Dressmakers' club abolished the slash skirt at just the right time," Mme. Ripley continued. "The slash has been worn in Paris for six months. Their denunciation of it as 'a fraud, cheat and atrocity' is not very fitting, after they have used it all season.

"Some people demand the split skirt. Most of them wear it concealed under the folds of the dress, so it is practically invisible and does no moral harm. Demand for free movement in the tight skirts brought the slash into favor."

The Dressmakers' club has passed the following resolutions:

"Whereas, The slash skirt is a fraud, cheat and atrocity, perpetrated on an intelligent nation by foreigners, who look upon the skirt as a joke, and

"Whereas, The Chicago Dressmakers' club is unalterably opposed to any form of fashion which is immodest or suggestive; and

"Whereas, Woman stands for the highest ideals of the human race; therefore be it

"Resolved, That the Chicago Dressmakers' club places itself on record as condemning the slash skirt and all similar designs which appeal to or suggest immodesty."

Marriage Gaynor's Cure for Militants

NEW YORK, May 17.—Espousing husbands as a cure for militant suffrage, Mayor Gaynor to-day emerged as a champion of equal rights.

"I am sure that but few women want to vote," said Mayor Gaynor, "but if it must be so, I am entirely content to have both men and women exercising the franchise.

"I don't think that women in this country ever will resort to violence to gain the ballot. Over in England there are 1,000,000 women who have no husbands, and they are rather desperate.

"But is there any suffragette in the world who would not give up her principles for a nice man?"

$12,000,000 Left by Pirie; $1,000 for Son

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y., May 17.—By the terms of the will of John F. Pirie, one of the pioneer merchants of Chicago, who has resided on Long Island since his retirement from business, an estate valued at $12,000,000 is dispersed of to his wife, Sarah, and his sons and daughters.

All receive handsome sums with the exception of Allen H. Pirie, the well-known cross country rider and polo player. He receives but $1,000 of his father's estate.

What caused the breach in the family which resulted in the disinheritance of Allen Pirie, the family refused to state.

HUNT PHAGAN SLAYER BY WRITING CLEWS

Famous Expert Employed by Solicitor Dorsey Examines Notes Found in Pencil Factory.

BURNS OPERATIVE WORKS IN SECRET ON MYSTERY

State Declares Guilty Man Will Be Captured Within Month. Lee Thought Innocent.

With powerful microscopes, magnifying glasses and a series of reflecting mirrors Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey and the city detectives, assisted by a handwriting expert, who is said to be one of the best in the country, are minutely examining the "handwriting clews" in the Phagan mystery. They confidently expect important developments.

Solicitor Dorsey would not disclose the identity of the expert on penmanship because, he said, the man's services were voluntary and given with the understanding that he was not to be known unless it became absolutely necessary to place him on the witness stand. The Solicitor said, however, that he was one of the best in the country, and the great detective agencies considered his tests infallible.

The two notes found in the basement of the pencil factory, specimen of the handwriting of the two men held in the Tower in connection with the murder, letters and notes written by the slain girl and the handwriting on the books of the pencil factory are being subjected to rigid tests. Accurate measurements of each letter and each word, the angle of the slant in forming the letters and the formation of certain letter that experts claim no two men write alike, are some of the tests applied.

Burns Man Works Quietly.

The Burns investigator who took up the case Friday morning has not yet reported to the office of the Solicitor. He is quietly and systematically working out his own idea of the case after a comprehensive outline given him by Colonel Thomas B. Felder. He has succeeded so far in keeping his identity secret.

Colonel Felder was confident the Burns agency would satisfactorily conduct and conclude the Phagan case.

"We will have the slayer in less than a month," said Colonel Felder. "I am confident the Burns men will meet with every success. With Mr. Burns in Europe, the man he has sent to Atlanta is certainly the best detective in America. He has charge of the Burns work in this country and is his chief's right-hand man. Mr. Burns himself will be on the scene shortly after June 1, and then I am confident the case will be cleared beyond any shadow of a doubt."

Believe Newt Lee Innocent.

Officers working to solve the Phagan strangling mystery Saturday declared they were more firmly convinced that Newt Lee, the negro night watchman, had no hand in the tragedy and that he has told all he knows, as the result of a conversation between the night watchman and two other negro prisoners in the Tower which was overheard by Deputy Sheriff Drew Liddell.

Thedeputy shadowed Lee's cell for 35 minutes, while the night watchman, unconscious of the fact that an officer was secreted but a few steps away, casually discussed the great pencil factory crime with Oscar Dewberry, a negro under sentence of death, and Jack Wright, a negro murder suspect brought here from Gwinnett County for safe keeping.

FIRST AIR TRIP, KEY WEST TO HAVANA, WINS $10,000

Rosillo Flies in Gale Over Rough Sea---Rival for Honor Delayed, Tries to Commit Suicide.

KEY WEST, FLA., May 17.—The first successful aeroplane flight over the Gulf of Mexico from the United States to Cuba was made to-day by Domingo Rosillo, a young Cuban aviator, who won a prize of $10,000 offered by the Municipal Council of Havana for accomplishing the feat.

Leaving the terminal of the East Coast railroad in a gale of wind at 5:35 o'clock in a Moisant machine, Rosillo skimmed across the intervening stretch of turbulent water without any mishap. A wireless telegram from Havana stated that Rosillo was flying over Havana at 7:11 o'clock. He landed at 8:15 o'clock.

A sensational and dramatic incident, which almost cost a human life, attended the start of the flight.

Rival Threatens Suicide.

Augustine Paria, another aviator who was to race across the gulf with Rosillo, attempted to have the daring little Cuban abandon the flight for to-day because of the high wind and roughness of the water. When Paria saw that Rosillo was determined to start he began to overhaul his Curtiss biplane. Friends intervened, saying: "It would be sure death to start in this gale and if you should fall into the water the waves are so high you would be drowned."

Paria persisted and finally his friends had to restrain his forcibly.

Paria, in desperation, pulled a pistol from his pocket and, placing the weapon against his forehead, threatened to kill himself unless he was allowed to start. Friends took the weapon from him.

Wind Held Plane Down.

The aviator then entered his machine, which had been equipped with pontoons and which rested on the surface of the water. The wind was so high, however, that the aeroplane would not rise, and the wires holding the pontoons snapped. Waves then began splashing over the machine and all hope of starting the flight was lost.

Meanwhile Rosillo, who had got a flying start, had disappeared in a southwesterly direction, bucking a stiff wind that threatened to send his aeroplane crashing upon the water.

A great crowd gathered to see the aviator's start, but on account of the wind and the choppy sea it was believed that neither man would attempt a flight. At 8 o'clock Rosillo sent a radio telegram to Morro Castle asking after the condition of the weather off the Cuban Coast. The reply came back that flying conditions there were ideal.

"That settles it," exclaimed Rosillo. "I start, for I promised to make the flight before Sunday, and I am going to do it or die trying."

For a while the Cuban tinkered with his machine, testing stays and seeing that all was durable for the wind test it was soon to go through. When he clambered into the machine and gave word to his mechanician that he was ready to start a great cheer went up.

Storm Clouds Hover.

The machine arose through the air at the height of about 100 feet, and then, with the grace of a swallow, darted southward. Rosillo waved his hand and then gave his full attention to the aeroplane. Above him the sky was gray with storm clouds below him the sea was tossed and tumbled by the wind.

At 8:55 the wireless flashed the word that Rosillo was 25 miles off Havana, and that he was dashing through the air at high speed while the Cuban gunboat Patria, with its smoke pouring from her funnels, was steering in his wake vainly trying to overtake him.

He had risen to a height of nearly 1,000 feet, evidently to avoid the low wind currents.

At 7 o'clock another wireless from Morro Castle said that the Havana quay and house tops of the Cuban capital were black with people waiting for the first glimpse of the daring aviator. He landed at 8:15 o'clock and was mobbed by the populace.

In addition to the $10,000 prize offered by the Havana Council, Rosillo will receive a personal trophy from President Gomez, of Cuba.

Protest to Alien Bill Merely Preliminary to Formal Demand for Complete Privileges.

FEELING IS GROWING U. S. MUST TAKE REAL STAND

Move for New Treaty Bridging California Issue May Solve Problem Temporarily.

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—When a nation grounds its protest upon a non-debatable point there is not much warrant for the presumption that it is looking for peace.

Japan's protest, as interpreted by the message of President Wilson to Governor Johnson on April 22, and in the stenographic report of his conversation later with the newspaper reporters, makes plain that "national honor" was the basis of Japanese feeling in this matter, and that is now the accepted idea in Washington.

Whether Governor Johnson signs the Webb bill to-morrow or next day, the issue is drawn sharply between the United States and Japan upon a point that can not be arbitrated and yet must be decided.

The United States can not apologize to a foreign nation for the act of one of its several States.

A State law that does not violate the terms of an international treaty or the Constitution can not be abrogated by the courts of the United States.

New Treaty Possible.

In case of Governor Johnson's signature, then, the only policy that seems in sight for the President and Secretary of State is to form in conference with Baron Chinda, the Japanese Ambassador, a new treaty covering the point of issue between the two nations. This treaty can not become vital and superior to State laws until it is fully ratified by the United States Senate.

To satisfy Japan this new treaty must cover the point at issue in the present controversy.

The most serious and entangling possibility rests in the idea now generally entertained that Japan has from the beginning used this protest as a mere preliminary to a formal demand that its people should be eligible to citizenship in the United States.

Claiming that the Japanese are a white people, that they are not Asiatics, but Aryans, it is believed that Japan will demand for them this right in the United States, and upon this demand that people may stand for peace or war.

Japanese negotiations have so far utterly ignored the action of Arizona, whose land law is much more drastic than the original draft of the California measure. This is regarded as significant. This, in brief, is the situation as it stands to-day.

Practically an Ultimatum.

The Japanese Ambassador is impassive and absolutely silent. Upon the statement that Governor Johnson will sign the Webb bill his protest and the way in which it has been filed amounts practically to an ultimatum to our Government.

It is now the general feeling among officials of the State, War and Navy Departments that the time is drawing near when our State Department will have to give a direct, positive and conclusive answer to Japan.

The newspaper men, almost as a unit, have propounded the question. When? to the Secretary of State. Mr. Bryan is impassive. He admitted that so long as the bill was not signed the present situation could for some time be practically maintained.

The State Department indicates that there has been no change in the attitude of Japan since Mr. Bryan returned from Sacramento and Baron Chinda filed his earnest protest. It is feared that Japan will now reject any compromise that does not carry with it the recognition of equality of citizenship between Japanese and Americans.

Mr. and Mrs. Hearst Arrive in Atlanta Friday Afternoon

Mr. and Mrs. William Randolph Hearst will arrive in Atlanta Friday afternoon to remain for a few days. Mr. Guy Barham, of Los Angeles, accompanies them.

The party have rooms at the Georgian Terrace Hotel.

Baptists Shout When New York Man Lauds Dixie

ST. LOUIS, May 16.—The Southern Baptist Convention here to-day broke its established rule against applause when Rev. Charles H. Rust, of Rochester, N. Y., declared, "Dixie is the grandest place of all." Hundreds rose to their feet and shouted. President E. C. Dargan, of Macon, handed the gavel to the secretary, saying it was a demonstration, in which he would have to join.

The convention indorsed a recommendation of the finance committee that Baptists tithe and that a minimum of $1 a year should be expected from each member. Rev. E. L. Wesson, of Mississippi, declared many of the delegates did not believe in tithing and it would be a lie to indorse it. Dr. Dargan reprimanded him for the use of the word "lie."

The committee on the next convention city agreed to recommend Nashville.

Car Plunges Forty Feet, Pinning Man

C. S. Walraven was seriously crushed in the spectacular leap of a heavy motor truck down a 40-foot embankment in front of a Tech dormitory on West North Avenue Friday afternoon.

Walraven was riding on the seat with the driver. Just as they started down the incline in front of the school, the driver lost all control of the machine. Both men tugged at the steering wheel, but without avail.

It was too late to jump when the truck hit the embankment and made its 40-foot plunge. Walraven was rescued from underneath the machine and was hurried to Grady Hospital.

His limbs and body were badly crushed.

Walraven was partially paralyzed by the shock. The physicians were unable to say whether he would recover the use of his limbs.

The driver was practically unhurt.

A score of persons looked on, horror-stricken, as the big machine hurtled down the embankment, thinking that Walraven would be dead when picked up.

Has Bill for a Hat; Asks President's Aid

WASHINGTON, May 16. Wilbur Carr, director of the United States Consular Service, owes Herman R. Dietrich, former Consul General at Guayaquil, Ecuador, the price of one Panama hat. Director Carr admits it, but explains that he has been trying for the past month or two to get a bill from Dietrich, but without success. "I shall be glad to settle with Mr. Dietrich if he will only tell me how much the hat cost," he said.

Dietrich rote Senator Stone, April 23, saying in part:

"I respectfully file charges against Mr. Carr for abuse of power and authority. I hope that you will take this matter up at once with the President and Secretary of State with a view to punish Mr. Carr."

The hat, he says, cost $16. He wants interest and expenses, making a total of $20.50.

ASSEMBLIES HEAR PLEA FOR BIG REFORMS

Need of Hihger Salaries for Pastors Urged Upon Delegates to United Church Conference.

NEW MODERATORS ARE INDUCTED INTO OFFICE

Great Evangelistic Advances Are Described at the Northern Conference.

Recommendations involving hundreds of thousands of dollars; reports of committees and proposals which, if acceded out, will mean vast and international changes marked the second day's program at the three great assemblies of Presbyterians Friday.

Dissection of the past year's work was started and the great advances shown, while steps for further accomplishment were inaugurated.

Conspicuous among the throngs at the three meetings were the newly elected moderators, who took official possession of their gavels at the opening of the sessions.

Dr. Stone Is Inducted.

At the assemblage of the Northern section in the Baptist Tabernacle, Dr. John Timothy Stone, of Chicago, the "dark horse" whose spectacular rise to the head of the great body caused a sensation Thursday, was formally inducted as moderator. Dr. Stone wielded a gavel presented to him by the Rev. R. H. Evans, of the West African Church, and constructed by a native boy in the church's industrial school on the West African coast.

The chief work at the Northern Assembly formed the reading of a report of the past year's evangelistic work by Charles L. Houston, of Contesville, Pa. This report showed wonderful advances along that line, which surpassed that of any previous year. Dr. S. S. Palmer was delegated to carry greetings to the Southern Assembly. Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman was recommended for reappointment to the post of representative-at-large of evangelism.

Big Appropriations Asked.

At the meeting of the Southern Assembly the report of the systematic beneficence committee was read. Three recommendations for appropriations were made, the first for $574,560 to prosecute the work of the present year; $287,280 for the Home Missions executive committee, and $164,250 for ministerial relief. The Rev. J. S. Lyons, of Louisville, Ky., presided.

Higher salaries for ministers was the chief recommendation made at the assembly of the United Presbyterians. This motion was presented by Walter D. Hawk, of Chicago, who declared that the present low salaries keep many good men out of the ministry. A plea to eliminate the idea of charity from funds supplied preachers was also placed before the meeting. Dr. Robert M. Russell, the new moderator, in opening the session, brought up for scathing arraignment the apathy exhibited by church members toward their duties.

Georgia Lauded as Best Pecan State

Carl G. Allen, of Williamsport, Pa., and Dr. J. P. Stewart, of the Pennsylvania State College, who have embarked with Northern capitalists in pecan raising in Georgia, conferred with State Entomologist E. L. Worsham Friday in reference to extending their holdings of 5,000 acres in the Albany district.

Dr. Stewart, in charge of the tree fruit work at the Pennsylvania State College, declared Georgia was the best pecan State in the Union.

MIDVILLE ASKS STATE FOR RAIL IMPROVEMENTS

The residents of Midville have a grievance against the two railroads in their town aired in a formal complaint to the State Railroad Board Friday.

The petition asks the commission to compel the Central of Georgia and the Georgia and Florida Railway Companies to erect a union station there. The residents declare that the present depot accommodations are far from sufficient.

Rev. Dr. Stelzle on Presbyterian Moderator Stone

'Prince of the Great Assembly,' He Declares

'He Is as Gentle as John and Fervid as Timothy'

Dr. John T. Stone, of Chicago, New Moderator of Presbyterian Church, U. S. A.

Chicago Man Is Chosen Despite His Earnest Protest in Hot Assembly Battle.

In his spectacular election to the moderatorship of the Northern Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, Dr. John Timothy Stone, of Chicago, went from the comparative obscurity of the pastorship of a great church to a world leadership in the religious sphere. Dr. Stone, while a power in his community, was unknown to hundreds of those present at the election. No suggestion of his name for the moderatorship had ever been made. When the stampede of approval with which his nomination was accepted, when placed unexpectedly before the meeting, and swept to victory in the wildfire of excitement which followed, no one was more surprised than Dr. Stone.

Upon him centers the limelight of the great convention to-day, and Dr. Stelzle, a lifelong friend, contributes below a strikingly interesting light on his personality.

By REV. CHARLES STELZLE.

John Timothy Stone—prince of the Presbyterian General Assembly!

Oh, yes, he's moderator, too, but he's moderator largely because he was the prince. And he's moderator in spite of his very earnest protest against being elected.

It was the most dramatic thing that has happened in a General Assembly in a good many years—this election of Stone. It also was a terrific rebuke of political dealing. It doesn't really matter whether the friends of the other candidates were guilty of playing politics or not—the candidates themselves surely had nothing to do with the business.

The commissioners had evidently become impressed with the feeling that there had been a deliberate frame-up on somebody's part to elect a moderator through machine methods.

When Dr. Stone's name was suggested, in the most unusual manner in which it was, the settled [illegible]

FIVE EXPLORERS PERISH IN ARCTICS

Relief Expedition Reports Death of Lieut. Schroder-Stranz and Party in Spitzbergen.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian

CHRISTIANIA, May 16.—Death has overtaken Lieutenant Schroder-Stranz and four members of his scientific exploration party which became ice-bound in Spitsbergen while pursuing scientific researches, according to a cablegram received here to-day from Captain Strusrud, leader of a Norwegian relief expedition.

Two members of the party, Demmers and Mooser, drowned; Eberhard was frozen to death and Stave succumbed to illness brought on by exposure. Lieutenant Schroder-Stranz was reported missing and given up as lost.

The German expedition, under Lieutenant Schroder-Stranz, was organized last year to circumnavigate Northern Europe and Asia. It was expected to be away from three to four years making scientific explorations.

After a time the party planned to get word of its whereabouts to civilization. One relief party set out, but was forced to turn back.

SAVANNAH, GA., May 16.—Returning from the May ball at the Guards' Hall shortly before midnight last night, Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Stults found their eldest son, Augustus Stultz, dead in the bath room. He was lying on the floor, partially dressed, with the gas turned on.

Stults had been despondent for some time. He had threatened to take his own life on previous occasions.

Grand Jury Starts Vice War in Macon

MACON, GA., May 16.—Eradication of Macon's restricted district by the enforcement of the State law is the plan of action decided upon by the fifth County Grand Jury, which impanels to indict every woman who conducts a disorderly house. An indictment has already been returned against Corinne Morris, and it is announced that all of the other women will be similarly treated. It is also stated that the Grand Jury proposes to indict those who lease their property for immoral purposes.

This Grand Jury is the most militant in the history of the city, having already indicted all but ten of the saloons and all of the clubs for violating the prohibition law.

Granddaughter of Gen. Grant Weds

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16.—Miss Nellie Grant, granddaughter of General U. S. Grant and Lieutenant Commander William P. Cronan, U. S. N., were married here to-day. The wedding was a brilliant one and attended by society folk of San Francisco, San Diego and New York.

Miss Grant is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse R. Grant of San Diego and is a niece of the late Major General Frederick Dent Grant, U. S. A. Miss Grant also is a cousin of Princess Michael Cantacuzene Speransky, of St. Petersburg.

DORSEY SAYS BURNS' HELP IS WELCOMED; SECRET PROBE BEGINS

Investigator for Great Detective Believed To Be in City Hunting Phagan Slayer---Will Be on Same Plane as Pinkertons---State Won't Aid.

Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey said Friday that William J. Burns and his assistants would work on the Phagan case under the same conditions as the Pinkertons, namely, that while he would welcome any information from them, they would receive none from his office.

Mr. Dorsey issued the following statement:

"Mr. Burns is welcome. We are delighted to have aid in arriving at the truth no matter from what source it comes. However, Mr. Burns would have to get his information first hand so far as this office is concerned. We accept the statement without question that Mr. Burns' employment is in entire good faith, but our attitude toward him is the same as our attitude toward the Pinkertons, namely, that he will be expected to give and not to receive. The work being done by the city detectives is entirely satisfactory."

Mr. Dorsey added that there was absolutely no development of any kind in the case to-day except that considerable progress was being made in preparing the evidence.

It was reported the case would go to the Grand Jury to-day. Witnesses in the case were summoned on the form of subpoena used by the Grand Jury. They appeared before Mr. Dorsey, however, and he stated positively the case would not be presented until next week.

The Burns investigation into the Phagan murder mystery began Friday.

William J. Burns, who personally will conduct the case some time shortly after his arrival from Europe on June 1, cabled his orders to the New York office and one of his best men was dispatched to Atlanta to get as much evidence as possible before the arrival of the great detective chief. He left New York shortly after midnight Wednesday and should have been in Atlanta Thursday night or Friday morning.

He will make every effort to keep his identity and the result of his findings secret until the time for him to report to his chief or to Colonel Thomas B. Felder.

The fund to secure the services of the great detective and his assistants from New York, being raised by public subscription, was considerably swelled following the announcement in The Georgian Thursday that an appeal had been made to the public for contributions.

Colonel Felder's announcement that Burns had signified definitely his willingness to come to Atlanta to undertake a solution of the mystery has revived public interest in the somewhat flagging hunt for Mary Phagan's slayer.

Felder Offers Fee.

Persons who have stood willing to contribute a fund Friday expressed a desire to swell the Burns total. Colonel Felder has asserted that he will give his fee, as attorney for the prosecution, toward bringing Burns here, and will assist personally in the campaign for money sufficient to assure the great detective's presence in Atlanta.

While Mr. Felder will not make public the names of persons who have sent him money for the Burns fund, he said that the first contribution had come from several prominent Atlanta women, who agreed to subscribe more if need be.

$1,000 OFFERED BURNS TO TAKE PHAGAN CASE

Subscriptions From Persons Who Withheld Names Increases the Fund—Other Rewards.

The fund inaugurated to bring W. J. Burns, the renowned detective, to Atlanta to clear the Phagan mystery was augmented Friday by contributions which bring the total close to the $1,000 mark. More than six substantial subscriptions from persons who asked that their names be withheld have been received.

The fund thus far made public is:
The Georgian, $100.
The Constitution, $100.
Homer George, $10.

The Georgian will be glad to receive contributions to the Burns fund, and repeats its offer of $500 reward, in addition to the $100 subscribed above for exclusive information leading to conviction of the slayer.

In addition to the straight fund designed to bring Burns to Atlanta, the reward of $1,000 offered by the city and the $200 reward offered by the State still holds. Other rewards also have been offered.

Colonel Felder's announcement that Burns had signified definitely his willingness to come to Atlanta to undertake a solution of the mystery has revived public interest in the somewhat flagging hunt for Mary Phagan's slayer.

Car Strikers Riot in Heart of Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, May 16.—Fierce rioting broke out to-day in Fountain Square, in the heart of the city, when an attempt was made to run street cars with strikebreakers.

Strikers attacked the cars, smashing the windows. A heavy detail of police attacked the strikers, firing their revolvers over the heads of the rioters to scare them.

The rioters at last give way before the police, but further outbreaks were threatened.

MINE STRIKERS IN RIOT.

NORRISTOWN, N. J., May 16.—Five deputies were shot and eight strikers were badly beaten during a battle between deputy sheriffs and striking miners from the Mount Hope mine near Wharton, N. J.

PUPILS DENIED DIPLOMAS START A NEAR-REBELLION

DALTON, GA., May 16.—A near-rebellion among the pupils of the tenth grade of the public high school has been quelled since the pupils have had time to think it over.

The announcement that the city would add an eleventh grade to the school next year and would not give the tenth grade pupils diplomas this year brought about the severest disappointments for the pupils who had made preparations for the graduating exercises.
