I'm Not Convinced Frank Is Guilty or Innocent, Says Judge

"Gentlemen, I have thought about this case more than any other I have ever tried. I am not certain of this man's guilt. With all the thought I have put on this case, I am not thoroughly convinced that Frank is guilty or innocent. But I do not have to be convinced. The jury was convinced. There is no room to doubt that. I feel it is my duty to order that the motion for a new trial be overruled," said Judge Roan in announcing his decision on the Frank motion.

Japan Makes Secret Offer to Mexico

ORIENTALS IN MEXICAN PUZZLE

President Considers Recognition of Carranza Forces—Huerta Defies Removal as Planned.

SITUATION IN BRIEF.

President Wilson Friday took up the question of recognizing the Mexican Constitutionalists, and it was indicated that he was planning forceful action against Huerta.

From Mexico City came the word that Huerta will defy President Wilson in the expected demand for his resignation.

The Frankfort Arsenal at Philadelphia is working night and day, and there is great activity at the League Island navy yard. This is regarded as most significant.

General Felix Diaz will take refuge in the United States. He will not go to Cuba, fearing he would be assassinated there, but instead will be put on the steamer Alabama and brought to Galveston.

Italy has dispatched a warship to Mexican waters to join the international fleet now forming there.

An attache of the Japanese embassy at Washington, it is discovered, has been in Mexico City several weeks on a mission to Huerta.

Chihuahua City is reported to have been captured by a rebel army led by General Villa. The Federals are said to have retired without firing a shot.

Constitutionalists attacking Monterey are reported to be steadily driving the Federal defenders into the city's center. Bloody fighting has been raging for five days.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

VERA CRUZ, Oct. 31.—Reports that Japanese officials have been conducting secret negotiations with General Huerta at Mexico City are being circulated here to-day. This phase of the situation which is puzzling diplomats of the world came to light when it was learned that a man representing himself to be the military attache of the Japanese legation at Washington sailed from here on the Ward liner Esperanza. It is said that he has been in Mexico City for several weeks.

Great interest attaches to a conference which is to be held to-morrow by Special Envoy John Lind and the German Minister to Mexico. It is understood that Rear Admiral Fletcher, commander of the United States squadron, and the commanders of the German warships Bremen and Hertha will participate together with Captain W. A. Burnside, the American military attache at Mexico City.

Herman Arostigui, a follower of Felix Diaz, was arrested during the night and taken to the federal prison under heavy guard. Senor Arostigui, who is a native of Guatemala, has long been a follower of the fortunes of Diaz, and at the time of the Diaz uprising here a year ago Arostigui was made censor of cables.

Wilson Considers Recognizing Rebels.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Strong evidence that President Wilson is planning immediate and forceful action against General Huerta, the Mexican dictator, was given to-day when he took up the question of re-

Seats for Women On Cars? Yes, if They Carry 'Em

Here's a new fad for Atlanta women! Who'll be the first to borrow the scheme?

An attractive young woman boarded an express train in New York in the rush hour and calmly and quietly took a little folding camp stool from under her arm, spread its legs on the floor and sat herself in comfort on her portable seat.

"I do not expect the men to give me their seats," she said to one who questioned her. "I work as they do, and am entitled to no more. When a woman enters into competition with men, she should give and take with men and not look for special favors. But I have to go to work and come from work in the rush hours. So I carry my own seat—that's all."

Engineer and Fireman Lose Lives in Wreck

GRIFFIN, Oct. 31.—Engineer Thomas Gay and his white fireman were killed this afternoon when Southern Railway passenger train No. 29, Columbus to Atlanta, was wrecked two and one-half miles above Experiment, near here. The engine jumped the track and overturned.

None of the passengers were reported seriously hurt, although they received a bad shaking up. A defective rail is supposed to have caused the wreck.

Citizens Want Back Street Fund Surplus

When the Streets Committee meets Friday afternoon, Ivy street property owners will present a petition to have returned to them several thousand dollars left over from the $30,000 subscribed by citizens for regrading.

The property owners expect to get back the whole $30,000, and will ask the Streets Committee to recommend to next year's Council that that course be pursued.

Family Destitute, He Steals Coal; Is Freed

In a two-roomed shack out on lower Marietta street his wife and two children were shivering from the cold. There was no fuel nor food in the house.

A block away, a mountain of coal towered above the fence of a coalyard at No. 222 West North avenue. He entered this yard Thursday night to steal some fuel that his family might be warmed. He was arrested.

I. L. Lanier when arraigned before Judge Broyles Friday morning told this story. He was put on probation.

Otis or McCord To Succeed Lynch

It was learned to-day that when Councilman Thomas I. Lynch, of the Second Ward, resigns his seat, either R. R. Otis or J. L. McCord will be elected to succeed him.

Council itself fills vacancies caused by resignations. It is an odd fact that both Mr. Otis and Mr. McCord are acceptable to both the Woodward and anti-Woodward factions in Council.

'Spook' Night To Be Ideal—Fair, Frosty

Ah! 'twill be a fine night for spooks.

Forecaster Vonfitermann, of the Weather Bureau, issued the following prediction for Friday:

"Fair to-night and Saturday; frost to-night."

Clear skies prevailed Friday morning with a rapid rise in temperature. At 8 o'clock the mercury stood at 32, but before noon had risen to 45 degrees and showed a desire to stop there.

INCOME TAX JARS LOCAL BANKERS

Face Problem in Teaching Patrons New System, Which Levies on Interest Due Saturday.

The first effect of the income tax, touching the coupons and registered interest due November 1, was noted in Atlanta Friday in the number and gravity of the conferences in various banks, and particularly in the mesing of a Special Clearing House Committee, headed by Robert F. Maddox, of the American National Bank.

The bankers were in a flurry—at least, as nearly in a flurry as bankers ever get. The confusion spread also to other investment firms and centers, but most of the interest centered in the meeting of the Clearing House Committee, which would settle a uniform plan by which the Atlanta banks would cope with the situation.

"It means a huge muddle of accounting and bookkeeping," Mr. Maddox said. "There will be a great burden of extra work in the banks, and a lot of bookkeeping among the investors—a new kind of bookkeeping, too."

All Kinds of Incomes Included.

The income tax of itself is not hard to understand, and to a certain class of citizens does not sound unpleasantly. It is a tax of 1 per cent on the income of any person who enjoys a yearly revenue of $3,000 (or more) if single, and of $4,000 (or more) if married.

If the person, single or married, enjoys less than the prescribed limits, he (or she) does not figure in the desires of the government.

"And it means any and all income, from whatever source," Mr. Maddox said. "Salary, bonds, rentals—why, if a real estate dealer whose usual income is only a couple of thousand a year, happens to turn up a trade by which he makes, say, $5,000, he's liable in that fiscal year to the income tax, though he never made that much before and may never make it again."

Informing Customers.

But the situation that confronts the clearing house is largely one of acquainting the customers of its members with the new legislation, which goes into effect on all the coupons clipped November 1.

Mr. Maddox's committee met at noon Friday, and devoted the better part of an hour to methods of conveying to a host of banking connections and customers the exactions of the tax.

It was decided to mail out circular-letters and samples of the certificate that hereafter must be attached to every single coupon presented to a bank for payment.

"The idea," Mr. Maddox said, "is that the Government will tax the income at its source. Thus the corporation issuing bonds, for instance, must show on every coupon from those bonds a certificate of ownership, duly made out by the owner, stating if he is exempt of liable to the tax.

"If liable, the bank handling the coupon deducts the 1 per cent for the Government.

Called Burden to Banks.

"If exempt by reason of not having an income large enough to be taxable the 1 per cent is paid by the corporation, and the certificate admits the payment of face value by the bank to the coupon holder."

The whole business, Mr. Maddox said, would impose a great burden on the banks, which may have to open special departments to handle the rush of coupons about January 1 of each year, when the bulk of coupons are payable.

July 1 also will be a busy date, also March 1, and, in fact, the first of every month will take its toll of floor and 1 per cent revenue from the hitherto delightful and luxurious pastime of coupon clipping.

Warren for Closing Some Locker Clubs; To Make Inspection

Consideration of the suggestion of Mayor Woodward that the locker clubs of the city should be investigated before the licenses were renewed resulted in a declaration by Mayor Pro Tem James E. Warren that there were half a dozen clubs in the city that should be closed.

Alderman Warren, A. R. Colcord, chairman of the Council Police Committee, and Chief Beavers discussed plans for inspecting the clubs at the regular meeting of the Police Committee Thursday afternoon. Alderman Warren said the best people of the city demanded that a number of the so-called clubs should have their licenses revoked. Chairman Colcord said a thorough inspection of the clubs would be made.

Mother to Fight Suit, Once Mistried

It was believed Friday morning that the suit by Ralph Henderson, through his mother, against A. C. Polk, a West End merchant, declared a mistrial Thursday, will be pressed further by the plaintiffs, who ask punitive damages to the extent of $5,000.

The suit grows out of what Mrs. Henderson declares a false charge and imprisonment about three months ago, when the boy, 15 years old, was accused by Polk of a theft of $5 on information received from a negro boy.

Burning Ship's Crew, 22, Rescued at Sea

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

HAMBURG, Oct. 31.—Another story of rescue from a burning ship at sea was received here to-day by wireless from the Hamburg-American liner Kronprinzessin Cecilie, bound from Mexico.

The French bark Patrie was being destroyed by the fire when the Kronprinzessin Cecilie sighted the doomed craft and took off 22 men of her crew, the remaining three having been killed while fighting flames.

Factory Tour Plan Must Be Revised

Because of the large amount of territory to be covered and the fact that trains must travel slowly through the yards, the arrangements for the tour of "Industrial Atlanta," which the Chamber of Commerce is promoting, has struck a snag.

A committee of railroad men has arranged a schedule that calls for eight hours of continuous riding, with no time provided for the inspection of factories. It was the intention to devote at least half of the time to seeing the larger manufacturing plants. Efforts will be made to rearrange the schedule.

JUDGE L. S. ROAN, WHO RENDERED DECISION DENYING A NEW TRIAL

"The jury was convinced; it is my duty to deny a new trial," said Judge Roan.

Invitations to White House Wedding Due; Washington Excited

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Washington society got on its tiptoes with excitement when it was learned that the invitations to the White House wedding will be in the mails in a day or two.

It is said that further details of the wedding plans will be given out soon now that Miss Jessie Wilson, the bride-elect, has returned from New York. Rumors fill the air about the trousseau, the guest list and the honeymoon journey.

As a guess, Bermuda, where her father has spent many of his vacation hours, is the leading candidate as the honeymoon spot. Still another guess has it that the bridal couple will go almost immediately to Williamstown, Mass., where [illegible]

DEFENSE GETS READY FOR FINAL STAND IN FIGHT TO SAVE FRANK

Close upon the defeat of their motion for a new trial, the attorneys for Leo M. Frank, convicted of the murder of Mary Phagan, began Friday the draft of the bill of exceptions which will take the case to the Supreme Court of the State.

The new trial was denied by Judge Roan with the remarkable statement that he himself was not certain of Frank's innocence or guilt.

Attorney Reuben R. Arnold had part of the draft prepared by noon. Leonard Haas, another of the lawyers for Frank, was busy making copies of the affidavits which figured prominently in the hearing for a new trial.

Indications Friday were that the arguments before the Supreme Court in behalf of a new trial would begin the last week in January or the first in February.

The clerk of the Superior Court has ten days in which to make a copy of the record to file with the Supreme Court. Because of its volume in the Frank trial, he will require all of the time given him by law.

To Reach Climax on Appeal

The Supreme Court, when the appeal is brought to its cognizance, will place it on its docket to be heard in January or February, it is believed. The decision of the Supreme Court will be handed down in from one to six months after the conclusion of the arguments.

The arguments, which have grown in intensity as the great murder trial has progressed through its various stages, will reach their climax before the Supreme Court, as this is regarded as practically the last stand of the lawyers who are fighting for the life of Frank.

Luther Z. Rosser, chief of counsel for the man convicted of the murder of Mary Phagan, made a request immediately upon the announcement of the decision that Judge Roan should not resign his seat on hte bench of the Criminal Court until a bill of exceptions had been filed, taking the case to the Supreme Court.

Rosser also insisted that Judge Roan's remarks with which he prefaced his decision and in which he expressed his uncertainty as to Frank's innocence or guilt should be incorporated as part of the bill of exceptions.

'Let Us Have Truth for Once'

This was strenuously resisted by Solicitor Dorsey, who maintained that the procedure was irregular and unusual, and that he was not aware that it ever had been done before.

"Let's not quarrel over whether it ever has been done before," shouted Attorney Rosser. "Let's have the truth for once."

In giving his decision Judge Roan had said: "Gentlemen, I have given this question long consideration. It has given me more concern than any other case I ever was in. And I want to say here that, although I heard the evidence and the arguments during those thirty days, I do not know this morning whether Leo Frank is innocent or guilty."

"But I was not the one to be convinced. The jury was convinced and I must [illegible] the motion."

SPEER PROBE COMMITTEE MEETS

Congressional Investigators to Determine if Judge's Condition Will Warrant Hearing Now.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—The members of the judiciary subcommittee, appointed to investigate the charges against Federal Judge Emory Speer, of Georgia, met this morning at 11 o'clock to decide whether the inquiry will be begun at once, or postponed until Judge Speer's health is improved.

Representative Webb of North Carolina, chairman of the subcommittee, called the meeting by telegraph from his home in North Carolina. He arrived in Washington in time to preside. The other members of the subcommittee are Representatives Floyd, of Arkansas, and Volstead, of Minnesota.

Unless information is received today that Judge Sper is much improved, the investigation will probably be postponed.

Huff to Have Many Witnesses.

MACON, Nov. 1.—When the special subcommittee of the House Judiciary committee comes to Macon to pursue its probe of the official record of Judge Emory Speer, there will be a horde of witnesses in waiting, as the result largely of the personal efforts of Colonel W. A. Huff. The subcommittee is due to come here Monday, November 10.

During the last month Colonel Huff, who made the first charges against Judge Speer, has been to all parts of Georgia, and has arranged for more than a score of men and women to appear before the committee. In addition to these witnesses, there will be those regularly summoned by the Government, and who were interviewed during the summer by Special Examiner R. C. Lewis, of the Department of Justice.

In a letter to Congressmen Bartlett and Hughes, Colonel Huff stated:

"When I testify before the committee I want Judge Speer to be where he can see and hear me, and when he testifies I want to be present, so that I can look in his eyes as I hear what he has to say for himself."

Although the investigation is undertaken by the Government, without anyone appearing as prosecutor, there is no doubt that Colonel Huff's original accusations laid the foundation for the probe. These accusations were embodied in the two letters which Colonel Huff sent to Judge Speer on July 29, 1913, and which are now a part of the court record. As the result of sending these letters, Colonel Huff has been found guilty of contempt of court, and is now awaiting the passing of sentence.

Judge Speer has expressed to close friends and relatives his determination to appear for himself at the hearings of the committee, cross-examining the witnesses. Two weeks ago he told his son-in-law, A. H. Heyward, that he would adopt this policy, even if he had to come to Macon on a cot. However, it is probable that on the investigation he will receive the assistance of Judge A. J. Cobb, of Athens; Judge Enoch Calloway, of Augusta, and Orville A. Park, of Macon, all of whom are his close personal friends.

There is a growing impression in Macon that Judge Speer will never be able to preside over his court again, or to appear before the investigating committee. It is believed here that his health has been wrecked and that he is doomed to be an invalid. The fact that the judge has gallstones and must, sooner or later, if he hopes to recover, have an operation is taken as substantial foundation for this widespread belief. However, his relatives are encouraged by the daily improvement, and express the utmost confidence in his ultimate recovery.

Howard Says New Money Law Would Forestall Panics

Congressman William Schley Howard, explaining in Atlanta the principle of the currency bill now under consideration by Congress, declared that with the bill a law a panic would be impossible.

"As every business man knows," he said, "95 per cent of the country's daily commerce is done without the exchange of a dollar in money. The trouble with the present law is that it is not elastic. Say a man has a business with a capital of $50,000 and his credit is $50,000. When his credit and his capital have been converted into time paper, the man is absolutely in the hands of his banker as regards a further expansion of his business.

"Now, under the new currency bill this time paper, if declared good collateral could demand a loan. It is in this way business men could force credit to expend in tight times. It is simple, secure and flexible, and with it in operation no panic could come."

Lew Shank's Job No Picnic, Believe Him!

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 1.—Mayor Lew Shank, in a political speech took occasion to recount some of the perplexities of his office. He said:

"Between telling saloon keepers not to get nervous and telling preachers that the lid was on tighter than beeswax, I've had one helluva time the last four years. If I hadn't gone to Louisville once or twice and played the ponies I would have gone crazy."

Begs Jail Term to Escape Nagging Wife

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The original henpecked husband, as Louis Krauss, of Brooklyn, styled himself, appeared before a magistrate to-day and asked to be sent to jail for six months to escape the constant nagging of his wife and daughters.

When the magistrate put the case over until Monday, Krauss begged with tears in his eyes that he be sent to jail for at least two months as he "wanted to have a Happy Christmas."

Little Astor Heir Aspires to Play Ball

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—William Waldorf Astor 3d, born in England of American parents, and six years old gazed for the first time on the skyline of New York Friday as he stood on the deck of the Lusitania with his mother.

"Ain't it great?" he exclaimed.

"And what are you going to do in America, my little man?" asked a reporter.

"Aw, I'm going to play baseball," was the reply.

DIPLOMATS OF WORLD CONFER

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

VERA CRUZ, MEXICO, Nov. 1.—With 2,500 troops massed in the government barracks to prevent any outbreaks, diplomatic conferences are now going on that are to have a marked effect on the future of Mexico. John Lind, special United States envoy, is the chief figure in the poor parlers. The conferences are surrounded with the utmost secrecy.

The German and Russian Ministers arrived here late yesterday. That important plans are under way was indicated by the fact that they consulted with General Maas, the military commander, before they notified Mr. Lind of their arrival.

The French envoy is expected here to-night, and it is probable that the Norwegian Minister also will come. Thus far there has been no intimation that Sir Lionel Carden, the British Minister, will come.

The massing of troops in the barracks shows that the situation caused by the editorial attacks on the United States Counsul Canada is growing tense. Huerta's followers are bitter, and are influenced by The La Union, the chief government organ here.

Porforio Diaz Joins Foes of Huerta.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

PARIS, Nov. 1.—General Porfiro Diaz, ex-President and dictator of Mexico and former friend of General Huerta, who arrived here last night from Biarritz, held several conferences to-day at his hotel on Mexican affairs.

General Diaz did not reveal his future plans, but he is reported to have said that he would not under any circumstances support the Huerta regime in Mexico City.

Senor De La Barra, Mexican Minister to France, who was sent out of Mexico to prevent his being a candidate for President, was in communication with General Diaz. A cable message was received from Vera Cruz which was believed to have been sent by the wife of Felix Diaz, who is now a fugitive upon the United States battleship Michigan, imploring the aid of the ex-dictator.

PATTEN AND LOEB INTO GAME

By Innis Brown.
(Famous Football Official.)

Regular football is the order of the day throughout Dixie to-day. Every team with a look-in for the championship of Dixie stands a chance of having its hopes blasted before the sun sets to-day with the exception of Vanderbilt, which happens to be engaged with Virginia which is not, properly speaking, included in the ranks of Southern elevens, and Georgia, which tackles North Carolina, to which the same applies.

The local scrap between Tech and Sewanee is practically certain to eliminate one of these two, since a drawn battle is hardly to be expected. From advance dope it is hard to figure where either team has any decided advantage, and it is not unlikely that one touchdown will decide the issue, while the margin of difference may be represented by a field goal, since both teams have men who can be called on in a pinch.

Sewanee to date has tackled at least two teams which might be figured to cause any team in this section trouble. Reference is made to Tennessee and Texas. The Tigers trimmed the Volunteers by a margin of 20 points, but lost to the Long Horns by a single touchdown. However, any team that can pick up a trip of 1,000 miles and hold the rough-and-ready Texans to so close a score must have considerable strength. For this reason alone Sewanee may be counted worthy of consideration in making gridiron awards.

Loeb and Patten in Game.

On the other hand, Tech has tackled only one foe to date, who has caused the Jackets any worry. This opponent turned up in the Florida Alligators. Reports from this battle indicate that Heisman's brigade found it necessary to hustle quite a bit to get the edge. However, the Jackets will enter this fray with strength which has not been muttered heretofore, in Loeb and Patten. Either has participated in one game, but "Harder-and-Harder" Loeb has yet to show for the present season. These two should add materially to the Jackets' strength both offensively and defensively.

Auburn will try conclusions with Louisiana State at Mobile. Admittedly the Plainsmen are one of the most formidable aggregations in this section this season, and they may be figured favorites in this battle. However, supporters of the Louisiana substitution are already laying claim to strong chances for first honors, owing to the splendid showing made against Baylor of Texas. Then, too, it must be remembered that Auburn won their game with the Louisianans last year by a margin of one touchdown, which was scored on a long run which resulted from a fumble. Donohue's team may strike rough going.

Georgia Likely to Win.

Georgia will no doubt get a verdict over the Tar Heels. Little, however, is known locally of the North State men, and it is entirely possible that they may spring a surprise. Of recent years Virginia has managed to trim their more southerly brethren rather consistently. In view of the fact that the Athenians made Vir-

Living Cost Report For Atlanta Attacked

Declaring the statistics recently issued by the United States Government, which showed that Atlanta ranks second in America in the high cost of living, are inaccurate and do the city an injustice, the Chamber of Commerce has begun the compilation of statistics by which it is hoped to refute the Government figures.

These figures will be sent to the Government bureau that made the previous report, with a request that the mistake be rectified.

Soldier of Boer War Kills Self in Macon

MACON, Nov. 1.—The man who killed himself in the railroad yards here Thursday has been identified as William Cumming, of Durham, South Africa. In a dairy in a secret pocket of his clothing full information about him was obtained. He was a member of the Light Horse Cavalry of the Prince of Wales in the Boer war, and has a brother and sister living in South Africa.

The man came to Macon from Knoxville, Tenn., where he had been employed as a skilled mechanic.

THE WEATHER.

Forecast for Atlanta and Georgia—Fair Saturday and Sunday.

TRIAL JUDGE'S DOUBT TO BE MAIN WEAPON IN DEFENSE'S APPEAL

Planning to make trial Judge L. S. Roan's own words expressing doubt of the innocence or guilt of Leo M. Frank, their principal weapon, counsel for the man man convicted of Mary Phagan's death Saturday put the finishing touches to the bill of exceptions which will be put before the Supreme Court of Georgia.

Work on the bill was rushed by the lawyers so as not to hold up the resignition of Judge Roan from the Superior Court, which he quits to go on the Court of Appeals bench Monday. Judge, Roan was expected to attach his signature to all the papers Saturday.

Frank's lawyers were busy seeking precedents by which it was said the Supreme Court can order a new trial on the mere expression by a trial judge of his doubt of the guilt of the defendant.

Reluctant as he is to speak of any phase of the case except in a courtroom it became known that Luther Rosser, chief of counsel for the prisoner, considered Judge Roan's remarks the most important victory the defense has achieved and would make them the center of the Supreme Court fight.

BOTH TAMMANY AND ANTIS SEE BIG VICTORY

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—With New York's most acrimonious campaign rapidly nearing its climax and the election but two days away, managers of the rival political factions to-day put out claims that were distinctly contradictory.

Conservative estimates of fusion leaders place the plurality of John Purroy Mitchel, fusion nominee for Mayor, at approximately 50,000. Tammany leaders claimed at least as great a plurality for their Mayoralty nominee, Judge Edward E. McCall.

The followin gtabloid predictions were uttered by the leaders:

"Mitchel will be elected by probably 75,000, but some of my more conservative co-workers place their estimates at 50,000. The radicals predict as high as 100,000 for Mr. Mitchel, but for myself I struck a medium."

Joseph Johnson, formerly of Atlanta, campaign manager for McCall:

"McCall ought to beat the 40,000 plurality by which McClellan won in 1903. I would not be surprised to see his plurality reach 75,000."

Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall:

"I see no reason to change my estimate of 150,000 for McCall."

"Mitchel's plurality may reach 100,000."

In the bitter verbal warfare which has marked the campaign the fight which has been conducted by Charles Edward Russell, Socialist nominee for Mayor, has been completely overshadowed. Mr. Russell, who was formerly the Socialist candidate for Governor, said he did not expect to be elected, but predicted that the biggest Socialist vote in the history of the city would be cast.

Octave Thanet Flays Pankhurst Policies

BOSTON, Nov. 1. — "The suffragettes as a body lack stability and direct purpose," said Octave Thanet, the writer, known in real life as Miss Alice French, before the Massachusetts Anti-Suffrage Association.

"Mrs. Pankhurst," she continued, "has put the suffrage cause back five or ten years. Their battle was practically won in England, when it was lost through militancy."

Prepare for Bitter Fight.

The prisoner's lawyers prepared to make one of the bitterest fights ever witnessed in the State's highest courts, but they will be met at every point by Solicitor Dorsey and his assistants. The Solicitor, congratulated by many of hi ssecond victory, had little to say. He remarked that the time to talk was when you were losing.

Frank A. Hooper, who has been working with Mr. Dorsey, in an unexpected statement, denied once more that racial prejudice had ever figured in the activity of the Solicitor's office or that of the police.

There was a general inclination on all sides to ignore the apparent efforts to lay down a course of action for the Supreme Court in published statements giving rulings of the appeals court supposed to bear on the Frank case.

Ruling of Little Significance.

The Supreme Court, of course, is not guided in any way by the Appeals Court rulings, so that there is little, if any, significance in a decision handed down Friday making the trial Judge the tryor as to the bias of jurors.

The Appeals Court held in the case of Taylor vs. the State that the reviewing court could not go behind the decsuib of the judge as to whether the jury was biased or not.

Frank himself, who has closely followed every move in the fight for his life and has more than once advised his lawyers, was reported happy over the judge's remarks. Friends said he considered it a vinication, arguing that if Judge Roan had been on the jury he must necessarily have voted to acquit him.

FRANK BEGINS LAST FIGHT FOR NEW TRIAL

Massed Troops Protect Diplomats

LIND HEADS PARLEY OF POWERS

German, Russian and French Ambassadors Meet U. S. Envoy. Anti-American Feeling Grows.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

VERA CRUZ, MEXICO, Nov. 1.—With 5,000 troops massed in the government barracks to prevent any outbreaks, diplomatic conferences are now going on that are to have a marked effect on the future of Mexico. John Lind, special United States envoy, is the chief figure in the pour parlers. The conferences are surrounded with the utmost secrecy.

The German and Russian Ministers arrived here late yesterday. That important plans are under way was indicated by the fact that they consulted with General Maas, the military commander, before they notified Mr. Lind of their arrival.

The French envoy is expected here to-night, and it is probable that the Norwegian Minister also will come. Thus far there has been no intimation that Sir Lionel Carden, the British Minister, will come.

The massing of troops in the barracks shows that the situation caused by the editorial attacks on United States Consul Canada is growing tense. Huerta's followers are bitter, and are influenced by La Union, the chief government organ here.

Porfirio Diaz Joins Foes of Huerta.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

PARIS, Nov. 1.—General Porfirio Diaz, ex-President and dictator of Mexico and former friend of General Huerta, who arrived here last night from Biarritz, held several conferences to-day at his hotel on Mexican affairs.

General Diaz did not reveal his future plans, but he is reported to have said that he would not under any circumstances support the Huerta regime in Mexico City.

Senor De La Barra, Mexican Minister to France, who was sent out of Mexico to prevent his being a candidate for President, was in communication with General Diaz. A cable message was received from Vera Cruz which was believed to have been sent by the wife of Felix Diaz, who is now a fugitive upon the United States battleship Michigan, imploring the aid of the ex-dictator.

Huerta Manages to Stave Off Bankruptcy.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 1.—General Huerta has temporarily averted financial chaos by forcing the Catholic party to advance him $1,000,000 by borrowing $500,000 from the Banco Nacional, but this will last only a very short time, in view of the republic's war expenses.

As soon as this money is exhausted Huerta is expected to draw on the various State treasuries. This probably will result in more revolts. From all indications the administration is proceeding rapidly toward bankruptcy.

Howard Says New Money Law Would Forestall Panics

Congressman William Schley Howard, explaining in Atlanta the principle of the currency bill now under consideration by Congress, declared that with the bill a law a panic would be impossible.

"As every business man knows," he said, "95 per cent of the country's daily commerce is done without the exchange of a dollar in money. The trouble with the present law is that it is not elastic. Say a man has a business with a capital of $50,000 and his credit is $40,000. When his credit and his capital have been converted into time paper, the man is absolutely in the hands of his banker as regards a further expansion of his business.

"Now, under the new currency bill this time paper, if declared good collateral could demand a loan. In this way business men could force credit to expend in tight times. It is simple, secure and flexible, and with it in operation no panic could come."

Little Astor Heir Aspires to Play Ball

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—William Waldorf Astor 3d, born in England of American parents, and six years old gazed for the first time on the skyline of New York Friday as he stood on the deck of the Lusitania with his mother.

"Ain't it great?" he exclaimed.

"And what are you going to do in America, my little man?" asked a reporter.

"Aw, I'm going to play baseball," was the reply.

Mrs. Pankhurst To Be Invited to Asheville

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Nov. 1.—Local suffragists will invite Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the English militant suffragette, who is now in the South, to come to Asheville and deliver an address.

It is believed that she will accept. If she does, a big reception and parade will be features of the program.

ALL SET FOR CLASH WITH SEWANEE

Addition of Strong Players Likely to Give Locals Advantage. Georgia Likely to Win.

By Innis Brown.
(Famous Football Official.)

Regular football is the order of the day throughout Dixie to-day. Every team with a look-in for the championship of Dixie stands a chance of having its hopes blasted before the sun sets to-day with the exception of Vanderbilt, which happens to be engaged with Virginia, which is not, properly speaking, included in the ranking of Southern elevens, and Georgia, which tackles North Carolina, to which the same applies.

The local scrap between Tech and Sewanee is practically certain to eliminate one of these two, since a drawn battle is hardly to be expected. From advance dope it is hard to figure where either team has any decided advantage, and it is not unlikely that one touchdown will decide the issue, while the margin of difference may be represented by a field goal, since both teams have men who can be called on in a pinch.

Sewanee to date has tackled at least two teams which might be figured to cause any team in this section trouble. Reference is made to Tennessee and Texas. The Tigers trimmed the Volunteers by a margin of 20 points, but lost to the Long Horns by a single touchdown. However, any team that can pick up a trip of 1,000 miles and hold the rough-and-ready Texans to so close a score must have considerable strength. For this reason alone Sewanee may be counted worthy of consideration in making gridiron awards.

Loeb and Patten in Game.

On the other hand, Tech has tackled only one foe to date who has caused the Jackets any worry. This opponent turned up in the Florida Alligators. Reports from this battle indicate that Heisman's brigade found it necessary to hustle quite a bit to get the edge. However, the Jackets will enter this fray with strength which has not been mustered heretofore, in Loeb and Patten. Patten has participated in one game, but "Harder-and-Harder" Loeb has yet to show for the present season. These two should add materially to the Jackets' strength both offensively and defensively.

Congressional Investigators to Determine if Judge's Condition Will Warrant Hearing Now.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—The members of the judiciary subcommittee, appointed to investigate the charges against Federal Judge Emory Speer, of Georgia, met this morning at 11 o'clock to decide whether the inquiry will be begun at once, or postponed until Judge Speer's health is improved.

Representative Webb, of North Carolina, chairman of the subcommittee, called the meeting by telegraph from his home in North Carolina. He arrived in Washington in time to preside. The other members of the subcommittee are Representatives Floyd, of Arkansas, and Volstead, of Minnesota.

Unless information is received to-day that Judge Speer is sufficiently improved, the investigation will probably be postponed.

Huff to Have Many Witnesses.

MACON, Nov. 1.—When the special subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee comes to Macon to pursue its probe of the official record of Judge Emory Speer, there will be a horde of witnesses in waiting as the result largely of the personal efforts of Colonel W. A. Huff. The subcommittee is due to come here Monday, November 10.

During the last month Colonel Huff, who made the first charges against Judge Speer, has been to all parts of Georgia, and has arranged for more than a score of men and women to appear before the committee. In addition to these witnesses, there will be those regularly summoned by the Government, and who were interviewed during the summer by Special Examiner R. C. Lewis, of the Department of Justice.

In a letter to Congressmen Bartlett and Hughes, Colonel Huff stated:

"When I testify before the committee I want Judge Speer to be there in person and look me, and when he testifies I want to be present, so that I can look in his eyes as I hear what he has to say for himself."

Although the investigation is undertaken by the Government, without anyone appearing as prosecutor, there is no doubt that Colonel Huff's original accusations laid the foundation for the probe. These accusations were embodied in the two letters which Colonel Huff sent to Judge Speer on July 29, 1912, and which are now a part of the court record. As the result of sending these letters, Colonel Huff has been found guilty of contempt of court, and is now awaiting the passing of sentence.

Judge Speer has expressed to close friends and relatives his determination to appear for himself at the hearings of the committee, cross-examining the witnesses. Two weeks ago he told his son-in-law, A. H. Heyward, that he would adopt this policy, even if he had to come to Macon on a cot. However, it is probable that in the investigation he will receive the assistance of Judge A. J. Cobb, of Athens; Judge Enoch Calloway, of Augusta, and Orville A. Park, of Macon, all of whom are his close personal friends.

There is a growing impression in Macon that Judge Speer will never be able to preside over the court again, or to appear before the investigating committee. It is believed here that his health has been wrecked and that he is doomed to be an invalid. The fact that the judge has gallstones and must, sooner or later, if he hopes to recover, have an operation, is taken as substantial foundation for this widespread belief. However, his relatives are encouraged by his daily improvement, and express the utmost confidence in his ultimate recovery.

Lew Shank's Job No Picnic, Believe Him!

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 1.—Mayor Lew Shank, in a political speech, took occasion to recount some of the perplexities of his office. He said:

The Mayor expresses his sympathy for whoever succeeds him.

BOSTON, Nov. 1. — "The suffragettes as a body lack stability and direct purpose," said Octave Thanet, the writer, known in real life as Miss Alice French, before the Massachusetts Anti-Suffrage Association.

Track Apparently in Good Condition at Point of Derailment. Passengers in Panic.

Southern Railway officials Saturday expressed themselves at a loss to account for the wreck near Griffin Friday, in which two men, the engineer and the fireman, were killed and many others injured.

They declared that the track was apparently in good condition, and could not explain the derailment of the train on a curve over a steep embankment near Griffin.

The two victims, Engineer Thomas H. Gay and Fireman E. C. Pearson, were both Atlanta men.

In trying to crawl through a broken window Conductor D. Williams was badly cut about the face. Fireman J. F. Flynn had his leg broken.

Others who sustained injuries were R. L. Wallace, of Kirkwood, R. 17; Richardson, of No. 11 West Baker street; Miss Ellen Mooney, of Griffin; Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Young, of Columbus, Ga.; O. V. Bronson, of the Atlanta General Fire Extinguisher Company, and C. A. Trussell, of No. 123 Park avenue, this city.

According to passengers, the train tumbled over without the slightest warning, and scores of persons were thrown in heaps upon each other. Panic followed, but cool-headed employes soon got most of the passengers out of their perilous positions. Eight coaches left the track. A special train took the passengers back to Griffin.

Engineer Gay was one of the oldest men in point of service on the Southern Railway. He lived at No. 683 Washington street. E. C. Pearson, the dead fireman, was also an old and trusted employee. He lived at No. 111 South Pryor street.

The Pullmans, which were of steel, were not damaged, according to Southern road officials, and the injuries received by the passengers were due to the jar of the derailment.

Begs Jail Term to Escape Nagging Wife

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The original henpecked husband, as Louis Krause, of Brooklyn, styled himself, appeared before a magistrate to-day and asked to be sent to jail for six months to escape the constant nagging of his wife and daughters.

When the magistrate put the case over until Monday, Krause begged with tears in his eyes that he be sent to jail for at least two months as he "wanted to have a Happy Christmas."

19-Year-Old Arkansas Boy To Be Executed

LITTLE ROCK, Nov. 1.—A 19-year-old boy will be electrocuted in Arkansas thirteen days hence unless something happens in his favor. He is Arthur Hodges, of Arkadelphia.

When a deputy constable tried to arrest him last July for a trivial offense, the boy suddenly whipped out a pistol that had escaped the deputy's search and shot the man through the heart.

The Arkansas Humane Society is trying to obtain a hearing for the youth, and has employed attorneys to save his life, if possible.

PLEA CITES DOUBTS HELD BY JUDGE

Bill of Exceptions Is Filed, and Bitter Fight in Supreme Court Is Promised.

With the filing of the bill of exceptions Saturday morning the final fight to save the life of Leo M. Frank, convicted of the murder of Mary Phagan, was under way and one of the most notable Supreme Court battles in the history of Georgia promised.

Lawyers for Frank rushed the work on the bill to allow Judge Roan to leave the Superior Court bench to-day so that he could assume his new duties as a member of the Court of Appeals as scheduled.

Judge Roan and Judge Ben Hill, appointed to the new Atlanta Circuit bench, qualified at the Capitol Saturday at noon, and will take on their new duties Monday. Judge Hill faces a badly crowded docket. Judge Roan assumed his seat with the Appeals Court slate clean for the first time on record.

The feature of the bill of exceptions, in the eyes of Frank and his lawyers, is unquestionably Judge Roan's own remarks expressing doubt as to Frank's innocence or guilt.

Precedents To Be Cited.

Frank's lawyers were busy seeking precedents by which it was said the Supreme Court can order a new trial on the mere expression by a trial judge of his doubt of the guilt of the defendant.

Reluctant as he is to speak of any phase of the case except in a courtroom, it became known that Luther Rosser, chief of counsel for the prisoner, considered Judge Roan's remarks the most important victory the defense has achieved, and would make them the center of the Supreme Court fight.

Frank himself, who has closely followed every move in the fight for his life and has more than once advised his lawyers, was reported happy over the judge's remarks. Friends said he considered it a vindication, arguing that if Judge Roan had been on the jury he must necessarily have voted to acquit him.

Prepare for Bitter Fight.

The prisoner's lawyers prepared to make one of the bitterest fights ever witnessed in the State's highest courts, but they will be met at every point by Solicitor Dorsey and his assistants. The Solicitor, congratulated by many on his second victory, had little to say. He remarked that the time to talk was when you were losing.

Frank A. Hooper, who has been working with Mr. Dorsey, in an unexpected statement, denied once more that racial prejudice had ever figured in the activity of the Solicitor's office or that of the police.

There was a general inclination on all sides to ignore the apparent efforts to lay down a course of action for the Supreme Court in published statements giving rulings on the appeals court supposed to bear on the Frank case.

Ruling of Little Significance.

The Supreme Court, of course, is not guided in any way by the Appeals Court rulings, so that there is little, if any, significance in a decision handed down Friday making the trial judge the trier as to the bias of jurors.

The Appeals Court held in the case of Taylor vs. the State that the reviewing court could not go behind the decision of the judge as to whether the jury was biased or not.

GEORGIAN'S REPORT OF JUDGE'S COMMENT MADE THE RECORD

The Georgian's report of Judge L. S. Roan's remarkable expression of doubt in refusing to grant Leo M. Frank a new trial was Saturday incorporated into the official bill of exceptions by common consent of Solicitor Hugh M. Dorsey, Luther Rosser and the Court itself.

Mr. Dorsey objected to the report of the Judge's words as first given in the bill by Frank's lawyers and the difficulty was solved by accepting The Georgian's version. It is probably the first time in court history that a newspaper report of a legal proceeding has been used as a court record. It will be noticed by those who read the original report that a phrase has been eliminated. Here is The Georgian's report, clipped from yesterday's Georgian by the lawyer and made a court record:

"Gentlemen, I have thought about this case more than any other I have ever tried. I am not certain of this man's guilt. With all the thought I have put on this case, I am not thoroughly convinced that Frank is guilty or innocent. The jury was convinced. There is no room to doubt that. I feel it is my duty to order that the motion for a new trial be overruled."

Burns' Dictaphone Exposes Great Tammany Graft

'BLACK BOOK' PUBLISHED BY SLEUTH

Stenographer's Record of Conversation of Convicted Murphy Man Accuses 'Gang.'

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Detective William J. Burns to-day made public the contents, or part of them, of the "black book" containing the dictaphone record of the interview at Sing Sing in which former State Senator Stephen Stilwell, serving time for bribery, told John A. Hennessy and a lawyer representing William Sulzer that he would swing six votes in the high court of impeachment before which Sulzer was tried in favor of the defendant in exchange for a pardon.

Stilwell further offered to produce evidence which he charged would send Senator James J. Frawley, chairman of the committee which investigated Sulzer, and Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, to jail.

Stilwell in his conversation, not knowing that a stenographer was copying it at the other end of a dictaphone charged:

That he saw a man hand Frawley money.

That certain Senators took $5,000 annually from the brewery interests.

That Frawley asked $10,000 to kill a certain bill.

That Thomas O'Neil, a Tammany man, paid $12,000 for the nomination for Registrar, turning the money over to James E. Gaffney, friend of Murphy.

That a person called "F" padded pay rolls.

Both Sides See Great Victory.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—With New York's most acrimonious campaign rapidly nearing its climax and the election but two days away, managers of the rival political factions to-day put out claims that were distinctly contradictory.

Conservative estimates of fusion leaders place the plurality of John Purroy Mitchel, fusion nominee for Mayor, at approximately 50,000. Tammany leaders claimed at least as great a plurality for their Mayoralty nominee, Judge Edward E. McCall.

Speer Probers Meet Nov. 10 for Report On Judge's Condition

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—The subcommittee of the House Committee on Judiciary, appointed to investigate charges against Federal Judge Emory Speer, of Georgia, to-day decided to meet November 10, as planned, and receive a report on the condition of Judge Speer, who is seriously ill, according to his counsel, E. JUDGE TO SIGN BILL OF EXCEPTIONS WITH CHANGE IN REMARKS

With the bill of exceptions to be signed by Judge L. S. Roan Saturday afternoon, the last fight for a new trial for Leo M. Frank has begun in earnest.

Judge Roan will sign the bill of exceptions at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, Attorneys Rosser and Arnold for the defense requesting a few hours' additional time to correct stenographic mistakes in the copy.

Solicitor Dorsey was furnished with a copy of the exceptions in the rough form that he might peruse it while the stenographers are rewriting certain pages.

A change in Judge Roan's astonishing statement that he is not convinced as to Frank's guilt or innocence as reported by the defense was made on Solicitor Dorsey's objections that the words accredited to Judge Roan in the bill were not exactly the words he had spoken. Judge Roan's expression of doubt will undoubtedly be the defense's main reliance in the fight for a new trial.

Georgian Report Correct.

"The Georgian had your words exact, your honor," said Solicitor Dorsey to the court.

A copy of The Georgian of Friday was called for by Judge Roan, and the statement therein was declared by him to be correct.

This read:

"Gentlemen, I have thought about this case more than any other I have ever tried. I am not certain of this man's guilt. With all the thought I have put on this case I am not thoroughly convinced that Frank is guilty or innocent. But I do not have to be convinced. The jury was convinced. There is no room to doubt that. I feel that it is my duty to order that the motion for a new trial be overruled."

Attorney Herbert Haas insisted that Judge Roan had not made the remark: "But I do not have to be convinced," and the judge agreed with him.

Agreed to Change.

"I will ask you gentlemen to change the wording of the bill of exceptions to this, leaving out the words: 'But I do not have to be convinced,'" said Judge Roan.

All the attorneys agreed, and The Georgian's report was made the official record.

Those in the judge's chambers at the time were Solicitor Dorsey and Attorneys Luther Rosser, Reuben Arnold, Herbert Haas and Leonard Haas. The bill of exceptions is unusually long, containing all of the charges included in the amended motion for a new trial, besides the remarks made by Judge Roan.

Frank's attorneys labored on the bill until late Friday night. Judge Roan was advised by them that it would be ready by 9:30 o'clock, and was in his chambers awaiting them. They later advised that it would be 10:30 before they would finish. It was 20 minutes before 12 o'clock when they arrived.

Bill Read in Part.

Colonel Rosser at once stated to Judge Roan that they desired to rewrite some of the pages. Solicitor Dorsey had previously said he would not require a reading of all the ex-

Georgian's Report Made the Record

The Georgian's report of Judge L. S. Roan's remarkable expression of doubt in refusing to grant Leo M. Frank a new trial was Saturday incorporated into the official bill of exceptions by common consent of Solicitor Hugh M. Dorsey, Luther Rosser and the court itself.

Mr. Dorsey objected to the report of the Judge's words as first given in the bill by Frank's lawyers and the difficulty was solved by accepting The Georgian's version. It is probably the first time in court history that a newspaper report of a legal proceeding has been used as a court record. It will be noticed by those who read the original report that a phrase has been eliminated. Here is The Georgian's report, clipped from yesterday's georgian by the lawyer and made a court record:

"Gentlemen, I have thought about this case more than any other I have ever tried. I am not certain of this man's guilt. With all the thought I have put on this case, I am not thoroughly convinced that Frank is guilty or innocent. The jury was convinced. There is no room to doubt that. I feel it is my duty to order that the motion for a new trial be overruled."

By W. S. Farnsworth.

GRANT FIELD, Nov. 1.—Five thousand fans turned out this afternoon to witness the annual struggle between Heisman's Yellow Jackets and Sewanee Tigers.

The visitors appeared confident of victory as they romped around the field during practice. They went through a sharp signal drill and practiced handling the oval. Harris Cope, coach of Sewanee, stated before the battle that his boys were ready to put up a hard fight for the game.

The Jackets were given a great ovation as they trotted on the campus. Patten and Loeb lined up with the regulars following any signs of his recent injuries.

Cook, McDonald and Thomason composed the Tech backfield when the whistle blew starting the game. Brown was referee, while Blake umpired. Both are former Vanderbilt players.

FIRST QUARTER.

Tech won the toss at 2:32 and elected to defend the south goal, giving Sewanee the kick-off.

Fielder circled right end for 12 yards. Carl Montague found the other end good for 2 yards. Cook made 2 more yards around the Tigers' left end, bringing the ball to five yards of Sewanee's goal. On the fourth down, Cook failed to gain the necessary distance and the ball went over to Sewanee. Hamilton, Sewanee's left tackle, was hurt in the scrimmage, but after a 3-minute rest, returned to the game. Tolley punted to Preas, who returned the oval 10 yards to the Tigers' 35-yard line.

Tech's Ball.—Preas hit the line, but failed to gain. Thomason made 1 yard through the line. Tech tried a forward pass. Cook to Montague, but the throw was a little wide, the ball lifting the grasp of the field. Preas tried a kick from placement from his 40-yard line, but the ball went wide.

(For remainder of game see Red Type.)

'LET US HAVE THE TRUTH FOR ONCE,' SAYS ROSSER, APPEALING

JUDGE NOT CONVINCED OF GUILT OR INNOCENCE AS HE DENIES FRANK RETRIAL

and amended motion, and the affidavits submitted by the State, the motion for a new trial is overruled and denied this October 31, 1913.

"L. S. ROAN, Presiding Judge."

The decision fell like a blow on the attorneys and friends of the convicted factory superintendent. They had hoped against hope for a new trial on at least one of the many grounds that had been advanced.

It was apparent, however, that Rosser and Arnold were not without a premonition of the failure of their second hard fight for the life of their client. They came into Judge Roan's office with sober faces, and displayed little of the geniality that ordinarily marks their conduct.

Solicitor Dorsey wore his usual complacent air and awaited the decision without any show of apprehension. The suspense in the hour and a half while the formalities of closing the hearing and approving the records were being completed was even greater than the time last August when the crowd was awaiting the verdict against Frank.

Even More Is at Stake.

Even more was at stake this time than before. If the motion for a new trial failed, it meant that another recourse in the battle for Frank's life and freedom had been exhausted. No one was in the office of Judge Roan save the judge, the lawyers for the defense, Solicitor Dorsey, several court attaches, one or two friends of Frank and the newspaper men.

Impressed by the portentousness of the occasion, the few people in the room looked on in absolute silence and a certain dread expectancy. There was only the conversation of the lawyers necessary to the arrival at an agreement over the records and the grounds of the amended motion.

Solicitor Dorsey brought in a list of added objections to the grounds for a new trial, some of which insisted that the wording of several of the grounds should be recrafted or omitted altogether. Judge Roan said that he already had passed on these, but that the objections would be retained to be used later, if need be.

After Judge Roan had approved the amended motion and the records of the case, there was a clearing away of papers in anticipation of decision. Judge Roan had the air of one on whom a great responsibility rested. There was a shade of a tremor in his voice when he began to speak. He hardly begun before one could guess that he had it in his mind to rule against the defendant. The lawyers for Frank sensed it and their countenances showed that they were bitterly disappointed.

Attorney Rosser recovered himself and with scarcely a show of feeling made his announcement that the case would be appealed to the Supreme Court.

He would not make a statement to the newspapers.

"I don't try my cases in the papers," he said. "If I had anything to say just at present, I'm afraid it might be indecent."

Solicitor Dorsey would have little to say, explaining that the time to talk was "when the court was against you, not when it was with you."

"That's the decision I expected; it certainly was," he said. "I wouldn't have believed that Judge Roan could rule against the State in the case until I actually had heard his words. It appeared to me that the law was on our side in every contended point."

Attorney Arnold said: "We will take the case at once to the Supreme Court. Never a doubt has existed in our minds that we were entitled to a new trial.

Convinced of Victory.

"The verdict was not justified by the evidence. Judge Roan himself, a good lawyer who can weigh evidence much better than any juryman, admitted that he did not know whether Frank was innocent or guilty. But aside from this we are even more firmly convinced that we are entitled to a new trial since we have investigated the record question by question than we were when the trial ended.

"We are satisfied to go to the Supreme Court. We are willing that the matter be decided simply on the legal points involved."

Deathlike Calm in Court As Decision Is Rendered

It was passing 10 o'clock in the chamber of Judge Roan, and the arguments were done.

The lawyers for Leo Frank and the lawyers for the State of Georgia waited for the ruling.

The last word had been said in the motion for a new trial. The final objection by the Solicitor had been listed.

Judge Roan sat through the last moments before his ruling with no betrayal of emotion, save that now and again he tapped with his shell-rimmed eyeglasses against the back of his thumb, or took a breath longer than usual.

It was four minutes past the hour when the clerk stepped back among the little group of newspaper men.

The judge spoke in the sway of a heavy, dead silence. His voice was low and a trifle husky.

The judge's voice ceased. In the quiet there fell the quick beat of steps to the door, and then the sound of sharp voices at the telephones outside.

For a moment the lawyers on either side of the table did not move. Mr. Arnold was standing. He turned away with a barely perceptible shrug of the shoulders. Mr. Rosser sat stolidly at the table. Mr. Dorsey's expression did not change a line.

To an unknown onlooker, it would have been impossible to choose the winner and the loser of the second battle for the life and honor of Leo Frank.

Wilson Will Fight For Money Ideas

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Drastic changes in the Glass-Owen measure will not be acceptable to President Wilson, it became known to-day, although no fight will be made by the White House on the elimination of the Comptroller of the Currency and the Secretary of Agriculture from the reserve control committee.

While President Wilson believes that changes can be made in the number of regional reserve banks without affecting the integrity of the measure, he thinks that four, as proposed by the Senate committee, are too few.

Debate over the relative merits of central bank and regional bank plans was prolonged in the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency today. Senator Reed's proposal for a single bank with 47 branches was reviled as a possible compromise.

Frank Still Stoic; Wife Breaks Down.

Surrounded by his wife and friends, Frank received the news of his second defeat with the same remarkable coolness with which he heard his sentence to be hanged after his conviction on the charge of having murdered Mary Phagan.

A friend who was with him said he made this characteristic statement:

"My belief remains unshaken that justice will ultimately be done and the truth be known—the truth that will prove my entire innocence."

Young Mrs. Frank was not so stoical. She wept softly on her husband's shoulder, while he sought to comfort her.

About a dozen friends in all called to offer encouragement and express once more their confidence. Most of them were relatives, among them the parents of the prisoner's wife. They all, except the wife, left about 11 o'clock. There was a look of utter misery and despair in Mrs. Frank's eyes as she sat, stunned and hopeless, at her husband's side in the dreary Tower cell. Few words passed between them.

Frank, as usual, refused to see newspaper men.

Marines Landed to Check Strike Riot

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

WELLINGTON, NEW ZEALAND, Oct. 31.—British marines were landed here and in Auckland to-day to check the fierce rioting which has been started by the starving thousands of workmen who are jobless and penniless because of the conflict here between the Federation of Labor and the different employees.

The employers have refused the demands of the union men that they recognize the union and grant better working conditions.

$10,000 Damages For False Arrest

HUNTSVILLE, ALA., Oct. 31.—A judgment for $10,000 was awarded William Nabers against the Louisville and Nashville Railroad by a jury in the United States District Court to-day.

Nabers sued for $50,000 for false arrest, claiming that railroad detectives made him the scapegoat in two wrecks and on false evidence caused his arrest and imprisonment. Later he was acquitted in the State courts.

Making Interoceanic Voyage in Light Boat

CHARLESTON, S. C., Oct. 31.—Captain Mathias Johnson, of Eastport, Maine, making a hazardous voyage in a whaleboat from his home to San Francisco by way of the Panama Canal, has left Charleston to proceed south in his tiny craft. He left Eastport in August. He ties up next at Jacksonville.

WOMAN'S CASE WITH JURY.

ANNISTON, ALA., Oct. 31.—The case of Ada Kennedy, the last of the Pearce Kennedy feudists to be tried for the death of Shelt and Sarge Kennedy, went to the jury this afternoon. The woman apears confident of her acquittal.

STABBED AND ROBBED.

GADSDEN, ALA., Oct. 31.—Bert Cox, a young white man, was stabbed and probably fatally wounded at Canterberry station to-day. He was also robbed of $40. No arrests have been made.

SKULL FRACTURED IN GIN.

CLEVELAND, GA., Oct. 31.—In starting the gin of Jarrard & Walker Albert Dorsey got caught in the gasoline engine, receiving a fractured skull, a broken arm, and a number of cuts and bruises.

McAdoo a Grandpa On 50th Birthday

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo to-day celebrated his fiftieth birthday anniversary and received congratulations on becoming a grandfather.

TRAIN HITS STREET CAR.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—More than a dozen persons were hurt, one probably fatally, when a Wabash passenger train crashed into a street car at Halsted and West Seventy-fifth streets to-day.

INCENDIARY FIRE.

WRIGHTSVILLE, Oct. 31.—The large barn of Dr. P. B. Beddingfield, a prominent physician, about 6 miles north of Wrightsville, was destroyed by fire, supposed to have been of incendiary origin.

Janitors to Strike For Feather Dusters

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Oct. 31.—Because the Board of Education will not give them feather dusters in lieu of cheesecloth now in use for dusting furniture in public schools here, the janitors threaten to strike.

For hygienic reasons the board decided upon the cheesecloth method of dusting.

Assassinated as He Leaves Dying Friend

WILLIAMSTOWN, KY., Oct. 31.—Jos Kells, Republican nominee for Assessor in Grant County, was assassinated here last night.

W. J. BURNS AND HIS DICTAPHONE HIT TAMMANY

Stenographer's Record of Conversation of Convicted Murphy Man Is Made Public.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Detective William J. Burns to-day made public the contents, or part of them, of the "black book" containing the dictaphone record of the interview at Sing Sing in which former State Senator Stephen Stilwell, serving time for bribery, told John A. Hennessy and a lawyer representing William Sulzer that he would swing six votes in the high court of impeachment before which Sulzer was tried in favor of the defendant in exchange for a pardon.

Stilwell further offered to produce evidence which he charged would send Senator James J. Frawley, chairman of the committee which investigated Sulzer, and Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, to jail.

Stilwell in his conversation, not knowing that a stenographer was copying it at the other end of a dictaphone charged:

That he saw a man hand Frawley money.

That certain Senators took $5,000 annually from the brewery interests.

That Frawley asked $10,000 to kill a certain bill.

That Thomas O'Neil, a Tammany man, paid $12,000 for the nomination for Registrar, turning the money over to James E. Gaffney, friend of Murphy.

That a person called "F" padded pay rolls.

Both Sides See Great Victory.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—With New York's most acrimonious campaign rapidly nearing its climax and the election but two days away, managers of the rival political factions to-day put out claims that were distinctly contradictory.

Conservative estimates of fusion leaders place the plurality of Joan Purroy Mitchel, fusion nominee for Mayor, at approximately 50,000. Tammany leaders claimed at least as great a plurality for their Mayoralty nominee, Judge Edward E. McCall.

The following tabloid predictions were uttered by the leaders:

"Mitchel will be elected by probably 75,000, but some of my more conservative co-workers place their estimates at 50,000. The radicals predict as high as 100,000 for Mr. Mitchel, but for myself I struck a medium."

Joseph Johnson, formerly of Atlanta, campaign manager for McCall:

"McCall ought to beat the entire plurality by which McClellan won in 1903. I would not be surprised to see his plurality reach 75,000."

Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall:

"I see no reason to change my estimate of 150,000 for McCall."

"Mitchel's plurality may reach 100,000."

Grapefruit Rates Held Unreasonable

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today held that rates on grapefruit and oranges from Bayview, Fla., to points in Georgia over the Seaboard Air Line Railroad are unreasonable, and reparation was awarded to the Florida Citrus Exchange, of Tampa, Fla., complainant.

Two Jailed for Death Of Halloween Joker

KNOXVILLE, Nov. 1.—Motorman W. R. Devault and Conductor R. H. Cline are in the Knox County jail charged with murder, their arrest following the death of Walter Late, a 7-year-old boy who was shot through the head as he, with other boys, was trying to place a wagon across a track of the Knoxville Railway and Light Company as a Hallowe'en prank.

The shooting took place within four blocks of the palatial district in one of the best residential sections of the city.

Aged Man's Children Oppose His Marriage

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Nov. 1.—The police and the Board of Health have been called upon by the children of John Hansen, 75, to stop the marriage of their father and his housekeeper, Mrs. Annie C. Sherman, 77.

Chief of Police Bamford said as long as Hansen was of sound mind the marriage could not be stopped.

Suit Seeks to Stop Savannah Bond Issue

SAVANNAH, Nov. 1.—An injunction suit charging that the bond issue by which it was hoped to build a $200,000 auditorium is illegal, has been filed with the Superior Court. Judge Charlton has promised to hand down a decision within the next few days.

Society women, who worked so successfully in the election to pass the bonds, are up in arms. They have the backing of the city administration in their fight.

TECH READY FOR CLASH WITH SEWANEE

Loeb and Patten in Game for First Time of Season, and Likely to Give Locals Advantage.

ly the Plainsmen are one of the most formidable aggregations in this section this season, and they may be figured favorites to battle Howe-ever, supporters of the Louisiana institution are already laying claim to strong chances for first honors, owing to the splendid showing made against Baylor of Texas. Then, too, it must be remembered that Auburn won their game with the Louisianans last year by a margin of one touchdown, which was scored on a long run which resulted from a fumble. Donoho's team may strike rough going.

Georgia Likely to Win.

Georgia will no doubt get a verdict over the Tar Heels. Little however, is known locally of the North State men, and it is entirely possible that they may spring a surprise. Of recent years Virginia has managed to trim itself more southerly brethren rather consistently. In view of the fact that the Athenians made Virginia go the limit to win Saturday it may be figured that they have the edge over Carolina, unless the latter shows considerable improvement this season.

Owing to the injury which put Tom Brown out of the game, Virginia should have better than an even chance to even up last year's score with Vanderbilt. With Brown out of the line, the Commodores must tackle the Virginians on their own field, with a line composed of first year men with the single exception of Morgan at center.

Brown's absence will have another important bearing, since he was regarded as the most valuable man on the team in defensive play. He was played both on the line and defense, and was credited with making fully 40 per cent of the tackles for his team. The especial importance of his work in this respect is emphasized by the fact that Virginia has a powerful attack just outside of tackle. With the veterans Carter and Mateer pitted against Vanderbilt's two inexperienced men, this driving attack across the flanks is likely to prove disastrous to Vanderbilt's chances in the absence of a reliable man to plug up the secondary defense. If the Commodores can check these onslaughts successfully, they should have a good chance of coming out victors.

Pass Virginia's Strength.

It will be recalled that the danger in Virginia's attack in their game with Georgia lay in their manipulation of the forward pass, together with their long punting game. Dugin has seen the Virginia team in action and will, no doubt, have his team coached to watch closely for passes. It is hardly likely, therefore, that they will again be able to attempt the degree of success, since forward passing can generally be checked when the play is properly diagnosed, owing to the rules governing it.

Summing up the above, it looks like about an even proposition with Tech and Sewanee, with Tech carrying monthly the deciding punch in having Loeb and Patten both ready for service for the first time this season. Georgia should carry a slight advantage over Carolina, Auburn figures favorite over Louisiana State, Virginia has a margin over Vanderbilt. However, no long odds could be asked on a reversal on either of these.

SAVANNAH, Nov. 1.—Mark C. Bragg, a lumberman, was killed at a planing mill when a piece of flying timber struck him over the heart.

SURGEONS STUDY TUBERCULOSIS VACCINE

Government Experts Investigate Von Ruck "Cure" at Asheville. Official Report Soon.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Nov. 1.—Within the next few days the United States Department of Health will announce officially whether or not a cure for tuberculosis, in the form of vaccine, has been discovered in Asheville.

Dr. Crowe and Dr. Stimson, of the Department of Public Health, were sent to Asheville some time ago on Surgeon General Rupert Blue to make a thorough investigation of the so-called Von Ruck cure for tuberculosis of the lungs. They remained for several days in the laboratory, the open-air camps and the sanitarium observing the patients under treatment. The Government physicians are under orders to maintain a strict secrecy as to the findings.

The investigations were made as a result of resolutions introduced in the Senate by Senator Luke Lea, of Tennessee, and Senator Overman, of North Carolina.

Whether or not the Government will accept the tuberculosis vaccine in the army and navy depends upon the report of the investigating surgeons.

W. C. T. U. Starts War On White Slave Evil

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Nov. 1.—Plans were laid to-day at the fortieth national convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union for the greatest battle women of this country have ever waged against the social evil.

The report of Mrs. L. B. Smith, superintendent of the department of rescue work, fired the delegates to launch the movement. Mrs. Smith said her department had reclaimed 10,000 girls in the past year.

Confesses Slaying Rival Over Girl

MILLFORD, MASS., Nov. 1.—As the result of information given to the police by Mrs. Walter Balcom, Daniel J. Cooper broke down and confessed that he murdered Alfred G. Bradish on October 4.

He then led the officers to the lonely spot where he committed the crime, after he and Bradish, both married, quarreled over a girl.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Leah Morgan, 55 years old, died at the home of her mother, Mrs. 137 Kirkwood ave., Saturday morning at 5 o'clock. Besides her mother she is survived by two sisters and three brothers. The funeral will take place Monday morning, and interment will be in the Midway Church.

Charles Miller, 19 years old, a son of Chief of Police J. W. Miller, of East Point, died at the home of his parents Friday morning at 5:30 o'clock. He is survived by his parents, five sisters and one brother. The funeral will be held at the Shadnor Baptist Church, at Union City, Ga.

COTTON MARKET OPINIONS.

Norden & Co.: "The market has developed a reactionary tendency. After all the situation may not be so bullish as to warrant the present price level."

Logan & Bryan: "We believe the buying side during the weak periods will offer the greatest attractions."

Bailey & Montgomery: "Purchases should be made on weak spots and reasonable profits should be taken on the bulges."

Morris H. Rothschild & Co.: "We expect spinners to become good buyers on recessions, and we favor the constructive side."

LIVERPOOL COTTON MARKET.

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 1.—Dec. 4 to 5½ points higher, the market opened quiet, at a net advance of 4½ to 5 points. At the close the market was quiet at a net decline of 3 to 4 points from the final quotations of Friday.

Spot cotton 2 points higher; middling 7.66; sales, 10,000 bales, including 7,000 American bales.

GRAIN NOTES.

The Chicago Inter Ocean says: "Wheat bulls had it last night that the market is taking care of itself as well as they expected, and there is little pressure of actual wheat. The Argentine crop scare season is on and until there is a certainty as to the outcome there is disposition to go slow on the selling side.

"Sentiment among the corn trade is more bullish than bearish, but those who watched the trade for the last few days saw that most of the business is professional."

The Wall Street Journal: "In banking quarters it is contended that the chief cause of the market's reactionary tendency is the reactionary policy of President Wilson in regard to the currency bill."

* * *

The New York Sun: "The financial districts manifest a disposition to place an unfavorable interpretation upon Mr. Vanderlip's warnings, against the possibility of fiat money in the currency bill and for that matter James H. Hill's references of the alleged 'waterlogged' condition of the bond market."

* * *

The New York Financial Bureau: "A dragging stock market is likely. The waiting attitude is spreading. On weakness after reactions purchases made in standard rails should show profit next week after the holiday."

MOTHER, LOOK AT CHILD'S TONGUE

If Cross, Feverish, Constipated, Give "California Syrup of Figs."

A laxative to-day saves a sick child to-morrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Don't be fooled!—(Advt.)

FRANK LOOKS TO ROAN'S SPEECH TO AID HIM

Bill of Exceptions Filed After Dorsey Gets Correction—Judge Signs It To-day.

davits listed, as the total reading of the bill probably would require three hours' time.

He asked that the part relative to Judge Roan's remarks might be read, so that it could be agreed upon without further delay.

Judge Roan was anxious to sign the bill of exceptions during the morning as arrangements had been made with Governor Slaton to qualify him for the Court of Appeals, Solicitor General Reid, of the Stone Mountain Circuit for judge of that circuit to succeed Judge Roan, and Judge Ben Hill as judge of the new division of the Fulton County Superior Court, at 12 o'clock.

Colonel Rosser telephoned Governor Slaton and requested that this time be delayed until 4:30 o'clock.

Precedents To Be Cited.

Frank's lawyers were busy seeking precedents by which it was said the Supreme Court can order a new trial on the mere expression by a trial judge of his doubt of the guilt of the defendant.

Reluctant as he is to speak of any phase of the case except in a courtroom, it became known that Luther Rosser, chief of counsel for the prisoner, considered Judge Roan's remarks the most important victory the defense has achieved, and would make them the center of the Supreme Court fight.

Frank himself, who has closely followed every move in the fight for his life and has more than once advised his lawyers, was reported happy over the judge's remarks. Friends said he considered it a vindication, arguing that if Judge Roan had been on the jury he must necessarily have voted to acquit him.

Prepare for Bitter Fight.

The prisoner's lawyers prepared to make one of the bitterest fights ever witnessed in the States' highest courts, but they will be met at every point by Solicitor Dorsey and his assistants. The Solicitor, congratulated by many on his second victory, had little to say. He remarked that the time to talk was when you were losing.

Frank A. Hooper, who has been working with Mr. Dorsey, in an unexpected statement, denied once more that racial prejudice had ever figured in the activity of the Solicitor's office or that of the police.

There was a general inclination on all sides to ignore the apparent efforts to lay down a rouge of action for the Supreme Court in published statements giving rulings of the appeals court supposed to bear on the Frank case.

Ruling of Little Significance.

The Supreme Court, of course, is not guided in any way by the Appeals Court rulings, so that there is little, if any, significance in a decision handed down Friday making the trial judge the trior as to the bias of jurors.

The Appeals Court held in the case of Taylor vs. the State that the reviewing court could not go behind the decision of the judge as to whether the jury was biased or not.

The matter of refunding to property holders on Ivy street the surplus of $10,600 of the recruiting fund was unsettled Saturday morning. Joel Hurt, acting for the property owners, presented the claim at a meeting of the Street Committee Friday afternoon.

The committee holds the refund should be made until damage claims have been adjusted. City Attorney Masson and Mayor Woodward share that opinion.

Slaton Proclaims Georgia Products Day November 18

Governor Slaton issued a proclamation Saturday morning setting aside November 18 as "Georgia Products Day," and suggested that it be generally observed. The proclamation was issued at the request of the Georgia Chamber of Commerce, and is in effect an indorsement of the work of that organization.

The Governor named November 18 because the State chamber has set aside that date for meetings in all towns where chambers of commerce and boards of trade have affiliated with the State organization. The meetings will convene at the same hour, and ways for the upbuilding of the State, especially for developing its tourist trade and encouraging the reliance of the people on Georgia products, will be formulated.

TECH READY FOR CLASH WITH SEWANEE

likely that one touchdown will decide the issue, while the margin of difference may be represented by a field goal, since both teams have men who can be called on in a pinch.

Sewanee to date has tackled at least two teams which might be figured to cause any team in this section trouble. Reference is made to Tennessee and Texas. The Tigers trimmed the Volunteers by a margin of 20 points, but lost to the Long Horns by a single touchdown. However, any team that can pick up a trip of 1,000 miles and hold the rough-and-ready Texans to so close a score must have considerable strength. For this reason alone Sewanee may be counted worthy of consideration in making gridiron awards.

Loeb and Patten in Game.

On the other hand, Tech has tackled only one foe to date which has caused the Jackets any worry. This opponent turned up in the Florida Alligators. Reports from this battle indicate that Heisman's brigade found it necessary to hustle quite a bit to get the edge. However, the Jackets will enter this fray with strength which has not been mustered heretofore, in Loeb and Patten. Patten has participated in one game but "Harder-and-Harder" Loeb has yet to show for the present season. These two should add materially to the Jackets' strength both offensively and defensively.

Auburn will try conclusions with Louisiana State at Mobile. Admittedly the Plainsmen are one of the most formidable aggregations in this section this season, and they may be figured favorites in this battle. However, supporters of the Louisiana institution are already laying claim to strong chances for first honors, owing to the splendid showing made against Baylor of Texas. Then, too, it must be remembered that Auburn won their game with the Louisianans last year by a margin of one touchdown, which was scored on a long run when resulted from a fumble. Donohue's team may strike rough going.

Georgia Likely to Win.

Georgia will no doubt get a verdict over the Tar Heels. Little, however, is known locally of the North State men, and it is entirely possible that they may spring a surprise. Of recent years Virginia has managed to trim their more southerly brethren rather consistently. In view of the fact that the Athenians made Virginia go to the limit to win Saturday it may be figured that they have the edge over Carolina, unless the latter shows considerable improvement this season.

Owing to the injury which put Tom Brown out of the game, Virginia should have better than an even chance to even up last year's score with Vanderbilt. With Brown out of the line, the Commodores must tackle the Virginians on their own field, with a time composed of first year men with the single exception of Morgan at center.

Brown's absence will have another important bearing, since he was regarded as the most valuable man on the team in defensive play. He was played back on the line on defense, and was credited with making fully 50 per cent of the tackles for his team. The especial importance of his work in this respect is emphasized by the fact that Virginia has a powerful attack just outside of tackle. With the veterans Carter and Madden pitted against Vanderbilt's two inexperienced men, this driving attack across the flanks is likely to prove disastrous to Vanderbilt's chances in the absence of a reliable man to plug up the secondary defense. If the Commodores can check these onslaughts successfully, they should have a good chance of coming out victors.

Pass Virginia's Strength.

It will be recalled that the center in Virginia's attack in their game with Georgia has in their manipulation of the forward pass, together with their playing off tackle. Murtaugh has seen that Virginia's team is acting and will, no doubt, have its team coached to watch closely for passes. It is hardly likely, therefore, that they will work these to any marked degree of success, since forward passing can generally be stocked when the play is properly ex-ngnosed, owing to the rules governing it.

Summing up the above, it looks like about an even proposition with Tech and Sewanee, with Tech carrying possibly the deciding punch in having Loeb and Patten both ready for service for the first time in a season. Georgia should carry a slight advantage over Carolina. Auburn figures favorite over Louisiana State. Virginia has a margin over Vanderbilt. However, no long odds could be asked on a reversal on either of these.

Find Mutilated Body In 'Black Hand Zone'

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—With the throat cut from ear to ear and the tongue missing, the body of an Italian was found to-day in a stretch of marshland near Twelfth avenue, Brooklyn, a district known as the "black hand murder zone" because of the frequency of such crimes there.

The only clew to the identity of the victim was the monogram "R. R." upon the shirt. The police attribute the murder to the Mafia.

Search Is Made for Purse Negro Admits Stealing and Hiding

Every nook and corner of the Empire Life Building is being searched Saturday for a missing purse containing $74.50, belonging to Mrs. L. S. Howard, connected with the Burns Detective Agency, with offices in this building.

Durell Toney, a laundry wagon driver, was bound over to the State courts in bond of $1,200 Saturday morning by Recorder Broyles when he admitted having stolen the purse Friday afternoon.

Although he was caught a few moments after he left the office, the missing money was not found at him. He said he threw it into a ventilator pipe, opening into the basement, but so far it has not been found.

Negro Is Jailed for Stoning White Tots

Rock battles between white and negro school children that have disturbed the neighborhood in the vicinity of the Ashby street public school received attention from Recorder Broyles Saturday morning when he sentenced John T. Clark, a middle-aged negro, to serve 20 days in the stockade without a fine.

Clark is said to have taken the part of some negro children and to have stoned small white boys and girls. Several white school children testified against the negro.

NO PLAN TO BUY A., B. & A., SAYS ATKINSON

Hastens to New York on Quitting Receivership, but Says Trip Is Not in Road's Interest.

On the eve of his departure for New York to attend a meeting of the finance committee of the Georgia Railway and Power Company, H. M. Atkinson, whose resignation as joint receiver with E. T. Lamb for the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic Railroad took place Friday at midnight, vigorously denied Saturday morning that his trip has any connection with the future policy of the A., B. & A.

He denied also the rumor current in Atlanta and Birmingham that he, with the Woodward interests of Birmingham, controlling the Woodward Iron Company, contemplates taking over the railroad property.

Rumor had it that Mr. Atkinson, on behalf of himself and the Woodward interests, would bid in the A., B. & A. property when it is offered for sale, which has been ordered by the United States courts. His departure for the East, coming immediately after his resignation, appeared to give color to the rumor.

The rumor occasioned considerable gossip in railroad circles, and there were speculations as to its connection with the recent inspection of the road by President Miller, of the New Orleans and Great Northern, one of the best known railroad men of the country, which it was said was undertaken at the behest of the Old Colony Trust Company and other Eastern financial coterns which hold A., B. & A. bonds.

Mr. Atkinson, however, said positively there is no truth in either the rumor that he is to take over the road or that his New York trip has any connection with the A., B. & A.

"If I contemplate taking over the road, with the Woodward interests," he said, "it is news to me. I do not know how the rumor started, though I suppose gossip in Birmingham connected the Woodward interests with the road, and then connected me with it because I am a director of the Woodward Iron Company. I am going to New York to-day to attend a meeting of the finance committee of the Georgia Railway and Power Company, and not for any matter connected with the A., B. & A."

With the severance of Mr. Atkinson's connection with the road, E. T. Lamb will continue as receiver. It is thought, in view of the fact that the sale of the property has been ordered, that Judge Don Pardee, of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, will not appoint another receiver to aid Mr. Lamb, but will permit the latter to have charge until the road is sold.

The resignation of Mr. Atkinson, who financed and built the road and was a controlling voice in its operation, was one of the surprises of the decade in railroad circles.

Confesses Slaying Rival Over Girl

MILLFORD, MASS., Nov. 1.—As the result of information given to the police by Mrs. Walter Robson, Daniel J. Cooper broke down and confessed that he murdered Alfred G. Bradish on October 4.

He then led the officers to the lonely spot where he committed the crime after he and Bradish, both married, quarreled over a girl.

BANKERS STILL GRAPPLE WITH INCOME TAX

Atlanta Clearing House Committee Does Its Best to Explain New Law.

Saturday found the Atlanta banks still wrestling with the problems of the income tax, and sending out information to their correspondent banks in Georgia, Florida, Alabama and other States.

The Clearing House committee, which met Friday, had produced, with considerable legal aid, circular letters of information, and this time, with samples of the five forms of certificate required by the Government, constituted a large portion of the outgoing Saturday mail of the Atlanta banks and bankers.

The letter stressed the order of the Government that the certificates, which are to be attached to all coupons forwarded for collection, must be of a certain size—eight inches by three and a fraction—and on a certain grade, weight and texture of paper. Thus it runs, the Government does not joke about such matters.

What the Five Forms Are.

The five certificates include a form for the use of a "first collecting agency," an "individual certificate," a "member of partnership" certificate, a certificate for corporations, and a "temporary certificate."

"The last is for use only until November 16, and in default of a regular certificate attached to coupons forwarded for collection before the provisions of the new law were in effect or generally understood."

"And as to being generally understood," Robert F. Maddox, chairman of the clearing House committee, said Saturday morning, "I fear that time is fairly distant. Honestly, when it comes to wading through solid paragraphs, pages long, with every new and then a 'provided' you reach the end of the sermon and find you have forgotten the text.

Hard to Understand.

"I don't believe I ever encountered a bit of legislation equal to this in its capabilities for being misunderstood. The government officials themselves are in a loss how to handle some phases of the thing. It will just have to be worked out by degrees, I suppose."

In the meantime, it developed Saturday that one of the primary provisions of the tax act was the exemption of all United States bonds, and all those issued by States, counties, municipalities, or taxing districts.

This was a crumb of comfort, but it was buttered with a measure of distrust, for none of the bankers seemed at all certain that their income from United States bonds, which in many cases formed a large part of the bank's total revenue, would be declared taxable. Income on which the new tax was applied.

So far as the business of the day was concerned, the first of the month passed without any mix-ups over coupons, as many of the bondholders were waiting to see what was expected of them before presenting the coupons for payment or collection.

Bank Clearings in Atlanta Continue Steady Increase

Atlanta bank clearings for the week just ended did not break the record of the "big week" a fortnight ago, but compared to advantage with the last week in October of 1912. The ratio of increase was kept up, and it is a fair surmise that only the absence of a "first" or a "fifteenth" of the month in the last week kept the figures from further record-breaking.

The clearings for the week were $17,316,440.22. For the same week last year the total was $15,330,283.67. The increase is $2,486,156.55.

The clearings for October showed more plainly the advance. For the month the clearings amounted to $81,348,241.61. For October, 1912, the total was $73,064,827.14. The increase is $18,192,714.47.

Famous Feud Town Destroyed by Fire

LEXINGTON, KY., Nov. 1.—Practically the whole business section of Jackson, Breathitt County, was destroyed by fire to-day. The loss is estimated at $100,000. A telegram has been sent to Governor McCreary asking him to call out the Jackson company of militia to protect property, as local authorities, it is feared, are unable to properly guard what remains of the town. Telephone wires are down and only meager news has been received. The postoffice and several business buildings were burned.

Jackson is famous as the seat of the Harris-Cockrell and other noted feuds. Jackson has 2,000 population and is 90 miles from Lexington.

Dublin Elks' Club Manager Indicted

DUBLIN, Nov. 1.—The Grand Jury of Laurens County has found three indictments against W. F. Schaefer, manager of the Elks' locker club in this city, charging him with selling whisky, keeping whisky in the club and violating the Sabbath.

The Elks voted to abolish their locker club Thursday night, after the Grand Jury had begun investigating its operation. The members stated that they wished to prevent the indictment of the manager, if possible.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Nov. 1.—Plans were laid to-day at the fortieth national convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union for the greatest battle women of this country have ever waged against the social evil.

The report of Mrs. L. B. Smith, superintendent of the department of rescue work, lired the delegates to launch the movement. Mrs. Smith said her department had reclaimed 20,000 girls in the past year.

3 CAUGHT IN HOTEL TO FACE RECORDER

Judge Broyles was scheduled for a chance to consider the accusation of three alleged pickpockets Saturday afternoon, the men having been held and persistently grilled by the police since their arrest at the Hotel Winecoff opening Thursday night. The men, in spite of an application of the "third degree" Friday night, deny any connection with a suspected woman accomplice, and insist that they are guiltless of operating in this or any other city.

The names, ages and addresses given by the men are W. M. Rayner, 48, of Birmingham; G. L. Peterson, 56, Knoxville, and H. B. Darnard, 24, Louisville. In the course of the "third degree," the men were confronted with George H. Seal, who identified a diamond stud found in the pocket of one of the men as his property. D. B. Gilbert, a fire insurance man registered at the Aragon Hotel, furnished the charge on which the men were arrested. He said they were the same trio who had robbed him of $100 in Macon last week.

Albert Stanley, a youth arrested in the Southern Railway yards on suspicion of being a member of the "mob" who escaped when the others were arrested, denied all connection with or knowledge of the men. His case will come before the Recorder at the same hearing.

MOTHER, LOOK at CHILD'S TONGUE

A laxative to-day saves a sick child to-morrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailments, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Don't be fooled!—(Advt.)

PLANS FINE ROAD FROM STONE MT. TO ATLANTA

Convention Bureau Starts Movement to Assure Easy Access to Noted Spot for Visitors.

A movement to construct a fine pike from Atlanta to Stone Mountain, and exploit the famous pile of rock as the "Niagara of Atlanta," has been inaugurated by the Atlanta Convention Bureau.

Ivan E. Allen, chairman of the bureau, and Secretary Fred Houser, declared that it is their intention to make Stone Mountain the gathering place of convention delegates when it is desired to show the visitors an unusually good time. A trip to Stone Mountain hereafter will be one of the attractive features of every convention of importance held in Atlanta.

The bureau hopes to have the new road constructed before the next meeting of the American Good Roads Congress, which it is almost assured, will be held in Atlanta.

Secretary Houser plans to locate every property owner along the line of the proposed road, and ask his aid and co-operation, and he will also ask the aid of the Chambers of Commerce of Decatur, Clarkston, Scottdale and other towns between Atlanta and Stone Mountain. Meetings will be held in each town, to be followed by a big rally in Atlanta.

Mr. Allen said the bureau is in touch with capitalists who have promised to erect a roadhouse and barbecue pavilion at the Mountain on condition that a road be constructed that can be used by automobiles. Work on the roadhouse will begin as soon as the road is assured.

"Stone Mountain is one of the most remarkable things in the United States," Mr. Allen declared, "and heretofore has been totally neglected by Atlanta. We propose to make it one of the features in our future plans for conventions, and will include a trip to Stone Mountain and an old-fashioned Southern barbecue in the program of every important convention that meets here.

"When the new road is constructed we will enable automobile parties to make the trip, and 2,000 people can go from the road, the railroad and the street car line.

Mail Wagon Driver Is Given Two Years

Two years in the Atlanta Federal penitentiary was the sentence given Hewlett Wortham, one of the oldest mail wagon drivers in the employ of the Atlanta postoffice, who confessed to robbing mail pouches intrusted to his care.

Wortham was arraigned before Judge Newman Friday and entered a plea of guilty. He was sentenced immediately and last night was transferred to the penitentiary of begin serving his sentence.

PARENT CULTURE SCHEME TO END FLOGGING

Mrs. Chas. J. Haden Thinks Those in Authority and Children Should Both Be Taught Duties.

Mrs. Charles J. Haden, No. 1219 Peachtree road, president of the City Federation of Women's Clubs, on Saturday injected a new idea into the discussion precipitated by an interview given out recently by Recorder Noah E. Broyles, in which he characterized corporal punishment as inhuman and a relic of barbarism, and urged that the practice of flogging children, born in the home and in the school, be abolished.

She advocated a course of training for parents and children, beginning in the infancy of the latter, by which there should be instilled into the mind of the child a knowledge of authority, of the meaning of discipline, and a natural inclination to obey, that should solve the problem by the simple process of eliminating it. It would follow, she declared, that the child that entered school with such training received in the home would never need an application of the rod as a corrective measure for its misdeeds.

Mrs. Haden, while she laughingly declared that whatever opinion she might entertain is more or less theoretical, being based on observation rather than on experience, admitted this she agreed with Judge Broyles that corporal punishment is never justified, except perhaps as punishment for the most flagrant violations of discipline.

Parents to Blame.

This statement she modified, however, by declaring that children who have attained such heights of juvenile mischief as to be unruly or disobedient through malice, therefore making the rod the only remedy, are not so much to blame as their parents, or whoever has their training in charge.

The time undoubtedly will come, Mrs. Haden declared, when corporal punishment will be abhorrent, and when the flogging of children will be the exception rather than the rule, but it will hardly be for some time. A course of training that probably must extend through several generations perhaps may be necessary before the precepts of discipline, the beauties of obedience and a thorough knowledge of authority is so ingrafted in the mind of childhood that it will be unnecessary to resort to violent means to enforce discipline or compel obedience.

"I do not believe," Mrs. Haden declared, "that the practice of whipping children is a thing that can be cast aside lightly, because it appears to be human nature, or at least natural for a great many people, to resort to the rod as punishment for even the most trifling violations of discipline. I do not think any child does wrong willfully or maliciously, and surely there are other means of controlling them than by whipping them. However, I have heard children, and parents, too, say that they have known children who have been utterly unresponsive to kindness and love, and yet have instantly become obedient and tractible after being whipped, so there must be times when corporal punishment appears to be justified. Corporal punishment carried to excess, however, could never, under any circumstances, be right or just.

Training Only Solution.

"Corporal punishment, I think, is a problem, and nothing seems to offer a solution but training, both for the parents and the children. If the right kind of training is given, the problem will solve itself by gradually eliminating whatever necessity there might be for corporal punishment. This training has a broad origin, but it is, in fact, a part of the feminist movement that is sweeping the world. The kindergarten and all the modern scientific methods of rearing a child appear to me to be things that will be factors in the solution of the corporal punishment problem. At the kindergarten the child is trained in the right direction, the principles of discipline, a knowledge of authority and a natural inclination to obedience are instilled into it at a time when its mind is receptive. If this training is continued through the years without a break, boys will never need the rod, and when they, too, become parents they will be equipped to train their own children. Of course, mothers who are equipped and able and have the time should train their children in their own home, but for those who have not the time, for those mothers who are forced by circumstances to relinquish to a certain extent the care of their children, the kindergarten training is the best substitute for a mother's training.

SMOKE KILLS BABY LYING IN CRADLE

With the mother almost prostrated by grief, the funeral service of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. John Shoumanas, who died from suffocation when their home burned Friday afternoon, was set for 11 o'clock Saturday morning at Harry G. Poole's chapel, with the burial at Westview.

The mother had left the baby in the cradle at home at No. 104 Mills street to go to her husband's grocery, two doors away. A few minutes after the mother had left, neighbors saw smoke coming from the building.

The mother was among the first to hear the alarm. She rushed to the door and opened it, to be met by a wall of smoke and flame. Firemen reaching the house at the same time, kept the frantic woman from entering. It was nearly ten minutes before the fire was subdued enough to permit an entrance. Then Chief Cummings made the ventire. He returned with the body of the infant.

The house was destroyed. It was owned by Poolas & Sullonas and was valued at $500.

Too Lazy to Breathe, Puzzling Man Dies

JERSEYVILLE, ILL., Nov. 1.—James J. Munerny, the laziest man in Illinois, is dead. His death ended fifteen years of complete rest. During that length of time he had refused to leave his bed even for his meals or to be shaved. Doctors, some of them eminent specialists from various parts of the country, could find no trace of a physical or a mental disability or illness. No reason could be found for his death.

His family physician said that apparently he decided not to exert himself to breathe.

New Hotel To Be Maintained Lavishly for Entertainment of Atlantans and Their Guests.

Following its brilliant opening, the Winecoff Hotel management spoke Saturday morning of plans to pay "preferred attention" to such dinners, dances and other entertainments as would attract the society of Atlanta and of the South.

"Every big progressive city requires at least one hotel of this class," was the verdict. "The Winecoff will go in for the entertainment of Atlantans and their guests, and no pains will be spared to fit and maintain the hotel in the most lavish style for that purpose."

The ballroom, a very handsome and spacious apartment, offers exceptional facilities for the accommodation of dinner-dances of practically any size, the dinner end of it being served formally or in the ratheretair, as the host may desire.

The amenities of the management will require especial attention to the cuisine and service in all the branches, but the mission of the hotel is expected amply to repay the additional outlay.

Carnegie Medals for Brave Deeds Given Two Georgia Heroes

PITTSBURG, PA., Nov. 1.—The largest list of awards ever made by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission is in number, are two Georgians, Walter Hazel, 21, of Dawson, and Arthur Lockett, 35, a negro, of Gainesville.

Hazel saved Adolphus Bowles, 23, from suffocation in a well at Dunlap Creek, Ga., on August 8, 1912.

Lockett, who is a railroad fireman, risked his life to save that of Claude H. Potter, aged 3, in Jefferson, Ga., on May 9, 1912. The train on which Lockett was working was running 25 miles an hour when the engineer screamed. Lockett looked out and saw the child on the track. Lockett ran along the running board, jumped to the ground, then slid down the side to the pilot. The engine was less than ten feet from the child when Lockett jumped to the track in front of the locomotive.

Lockett fell forward as he struck the ground and he grabbed the child as he fell. By quick jerks, Lockett threw himself and the child off the track and they both escaped without serious injury. Lockett was awarded a silver medal and $1,000, as needed.

Uncle Remus Society Celebration Pleases; Managers Praised

Members of the Uncle Remus Memorial Association are receiving congratulations this morning on the success of the Halloween entertainment at the Hotel Ansley Friday night. The ballroom of the hotel was crowded with jovial "Hallowe'eners," and the entertainment brought in a satisfactory sum of money to the treasury of the association.

The program was under the direction of Miss Louise Williams, of Georgia, who is billed as the Southland's best delineator of the old black mammy type. She gave a number of songs and "Uncle Remus" stories in negro dialect, which won her much applause.

SIDELIGHTS on GEORGIA POLITICS

By JAMES B. NEVIN

General Joseph VanHalt Nash, Georgia's "Secretary of War," returned from Savannah to-day, where he wound up an official tour of inspection of State troops that included Brunswick, Augusta and the first-named city.

General Nash expressed himself as highly pleased with the status of Georgia's military, and gave it as his opinion that the same is now in shape to respond readily and efficiently to any call that might be made upon it.

"If this nation should be called upon to make war on Mexico, which is not impossible by any manner of means, perhaps, I know that Georgia would be ready to respond," said General Nash.

"In the event of a declaration of war, the National Government would have the right to call upon the various States organized under the Dick bill for their respective quota of troops, and that undoubtedly is the first thing the National War Department would do.

"Those who are interested in the military and take any degree of pride in the same, which includes very many Georgians, I am happy to say, regard of one thing—if upon, her officers cross, provided the faithful can find a sure way to unseat the present Republican holder of the job.

There is no question whatever that the selection of Mr. Williams for this position would be pleasing to a large number of Democrats throughout Georgia, as well as to those near to him in his home vicinity.

Volney Williams possesses every attribute of courtesy, consideration, efficiency and business sense necessary to such position, and the wish will be widespread that he may be given the assignment.

Speaker Clark for Disarmament in U.S.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Speaker Champ Clark to-day in the House declared in favor of a policy of disarmament for the United States and indicated his opposition to large expenditures by the Government for the construction of costly battleships.

"The United States ought to lead in this movement," said the Speaker. "When the full membership of the House is here, I want to see this resolution passed."

Bandits Frightened From $50,000 Haul

SHELBY, MISS., Oct. 31.—Two bandits blew off the door of the vault in the Bank of Shelby early to-day, but were frightened away by a negro boy returning home from a dance. The men fled, leaving $50,000 in the vault.

The negro boy ran so fast to give the alarm that he lost both his shoes.

WINECOFF HOTEL OPENING IS GAY SOCIAL EVENT

Throngs Inspect Beautiful New Hostelry, Test Cooking and "Break In" Ballroom.

From the most prominent society folk of Atlanta and right down the list to the gentlemen and their friends who wouldn't know whether "filet mignon" was a new fruit or a hair tonic, the crowds swarmed into the new Winecoff Hotel at the big opening celebration Thursday night. Automobiles were parked for more than a block in front of the new hostelry.

The society folks, garbed in the very latest of new fangled ideas in clothing, tangoed, turkey trotted and fox-trotted in the new ballroom on the mezzanine floor, and then did it all over again.

The ambitious climbers, who have not yet attained the heights on which their goal is fixed, mingled with the real set and danced with them and went away satisfied.

The lobby in all its splendor of Italian marble, Oriental rugs and palm trees, was packed from 6 o'clock until after midnight. Until far in the morning the mezzanine floor, with its dainty furniture and costly decorations, was crowded. The Rathskeller, laid out in old Dutch style, was crowded as long as the law allowed the hops to flow.

Without a doubt the bridal suite on the third floor was the most popular spot in the whole fifteen stories. In and out of the spacious little rooms the crowd swarmed.

The dining room, where a costly and delicious opening supper was served, did a rushing business, and service was exceptionally good. The food, prepared by the best of New Orleans cooks, could not have been better.

The dance lasted until early this morning. Among the popular dancers were Miss Lucy Hoke Smith, Miss Jane Cooper, Miss Mert Hancock, Miss Mary King, Miss Mary Butler, Misses Dotty and Jane Cowles, Miss Lucy Roberts, Miss Fay Dobbs, Miss Helen Brown, Miss Helen Hawkins, Mr. and Mrs. William Jenkins, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Winecoff, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Ware Holliday, E. Y. Haynes, Edward Affleld, Boise Worthy, Ben Gantt, Chauncey Butler, Harold Brady, Gerald O'Keefe, John Duncan, Locke Crumley, Charles Williams, Pete Williams, Henry Wagstaff, John Armistead and Ernest Armistead.

Wealthiest Man in Clinch County Dead

HOMERVILLE, Oct. 31.—H. J. Peagler, one of the most prominent men in this section, died here this afternoon of acute indigestion. He was reputed to be the wealthiest man in Clinch County, being president of the Bank of Homerville and a large turpentine operator. He has a large family connection. He was twice Mayor of Homerville and for several years on the school board.

The funeral will be held Sunday.

STATE'S BANKERS TO CONVENE HERE

Fred Houser, secretary of the Atlanta Convention Bureau, received notice Friday from Colonel Robert J. Lowry, president of the Lowry National Bank, that the executive committee of the Georgia Bankers' Association has decided to hold its 1914 convention in Atlanta. The dates for the gathering have not been selected, but probably will be in May.

Atlanta landed the meeting through the joint efforts of the Convention Bureau and the Clearing House Association. Secretary Houser, of the bureau, asked the clearing house and leading Atlanta bankers to aid him, and the invitation was extended by Colonel Lowry.

The convention will bring between 500 and 700 of Georgia's most prominent citizens to Atlanta for three days. Haynes McFadden, of Atlanta, is secretary of the association, and L. P. Hillyer, of Macon, is president.

Mr. Houser announced also Friday morning that a meeting of Georgia commercial secretaries will be held in Atlanta November 7-8, in the new offices of the Georgia Chamber of Commerce, in the Hurt Building. About 60 are expected. The meeting will be preparatory to the mass meetings that are to be held throughout the State on the evening of November 18.

I heard a young mother talking to her little son about his teeth—telling him how important it is that the teeth be kept clean.

"If you want to be a big, strong boy," she said, "and then a big, strong man, you must have good teeth. And to keep your teeth sound you must remember now, while you are a little boy, to brush them twice every day."

The young mother told me that the youngster liked the taste of Ribbon Dental Cream and that this had helped her in inducing him to form the important daily habit. Of course, she talked with him about it now and then to impress on him the great advantage to his health and comfort that comes with this daily care. "Then twice a year," she added, "I have the dentist look him over."

A THRILLING STORY OF A MODERN CRISTO

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"The women dear one. They will know."

"Oh, you deceiver! You said my toilet was perfect, and I am quite sure yours is."

This logic was incontrovertible. Mrs. Atherley sighed and asked what took place the previous night.

Philip imagined that the girl hung back, so he boldly undertook an explanation. By describing the cabman as apparently intoxicated, and certainly imprudent, he covered a good deal of ground, and the rest was easy.

When they reached the Savoy the anxious mother had relegated the incident to the limbo of unimportant things. Only one other matter troubled her—the somewhat unconventional method of her daughter's acquaintance with this pleasant-mannered young gentleman.

She was far too tactful to hint at such a point just then. It should be reserved for home discussion.

Meanwhile, they were early arrivals. The head waiter marshaled them to a window table. Mrs. Atherley smiled; she knew her London.

"You were sure we would accompany you?" she cried

"Not at all sure; only hopeful," said Philip.

"Ah, well. It is good occasionally to revisit the old scenes. No, Eff, I will sit here. I will not be en face to the row of tables. A half dozen people would certainly recognize me, and I do not wish it."

Eff! The name drove Philip's thoughts backward with a bound—back to a torrential night in a London square and the tearing open of a carriage door in time to save a sweet little girl all robed in white, who, but for him, would have fallen with an overturned vehicle.

Eff! It was an unusual pet name. The child of ten years ago would be about the age of the lively and spirituelle girl by his side. The child had faced her enraged uncle on that memorable night; the woman had refused to leave him when she thought danger threatened in the park.

Could it be possible! He was startled, bewildered, utterly dumfounded by even the remote possibility that another figure from the past should come before him in such wise.

"Mr. Anson! What have you found in the menu to perplex you so terribly? Does danger lurk in the agneau du printemps? Is there a secret horror in the salad?"

Evelyn's raillery restored his scattered wits.

"May I say something personal?" he inquired.

"About the lamb?"

"About you? Mrs. Atherley called you 'Eff' just now."

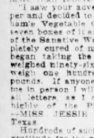
"Yes. I regret that I carried the title in ages past. The habits have ceased, but the name remains."

"I ONCE met a little girl named Eff. It was ten years ago, on a March evening, in a West End square. There had been a carriage accident. A pair of horses were frightened by a terrific thunderstorm. The girl was accompanied by a somewhat selfish gentleman. He bundled out and left her to her own devices; indeed, slammed the door in her face. A ragged boy——"

"A boy with newspapers—a boy who spoke quite nicely—saved her by running into the road. The carriage overturned in front of Lord Vanstone's house. I was the girl."

GIRL SUFFERED TERRIBLY

At Regular Intervals—Says Ly. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Complete- ly Cured Her .



Adrian, Texas—"I take pleasure in adding my testimonial to the great list of others who have been benefited by your wonderful medicine. For four years I suffered untold agonies at regular intervals. Sometimes I would faint and cramps, severe chills and sickness at stomach would set in. I had hemorrhages and flooding, and thought I would go blind. I had five doctors, but only relieved me of them could do me any good. I had given up hope of ever being cured, when I wrote you, asking for advice. You answered me for a time. I sent your letters to a friend in a place, and decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I purchased seven bottles of it and used two bottles of the Sanative Wash, and I am completely cured of my trouble. When I began taking the Compound I only weighed ninety-six pounds and now weigh one hundred and twenty-six pounds. If anyone wishes to address me in person I will cheerfully answer all letters as I am not speaking for profit—for the benefit of others."—MISS JESSIE MARSH, Adrian, Texas.

Both ladies were amazed at the expression on Philip's face. He betrayed such eagerness, such intense longing, such keen anxiety to establish her identity with the child who figured in an incident of no very high dramatic nature that they could not help being vastly surprised.

Their astonishment was not lessened when Philip exclaimed:

"And I was the boy."

"But I said a 'boy with newspapers.'"

"Yes, a very urchin, a waif of the streets."

"My uncle struck you."

"Oh, this is too marvelous, Mother, you must remember——"

"Mr. dear one, I remember the event as if it had taken place yesterday. Your uncle would not have cared were you killed that night. All he wanted was your money. Now he has that, and mine. He was indeed a wicked man."

"Mother, dear, he is unhappy. Are we, Eff, Mr. Anson, what wonderful change in your fortunes has taken place since our first meeting? Is the newspaper trade so flourishing that a carriage and pair, a supper at the Savoy, stalls at the Regent's Hall and a hospital fund from Boadicea are mere trimmings, so to speak, to a busy day?"

"Evelyn," protested Mrs. Atherley.

But the girl was too buoyant, too utterly oblivious of all that this meeting meant to Philip, to cease from chaffing him.

"Then, Mr. Anson, do tell us the secret. I will sell any paper you name. I get five guineas for singing two songs, I should think, but I may only sing them once a month. I have loads of time to run about crying, 'Extrey speshul!' 'Orrible murder!' Or close the magic spring from writing those thrilling stories one sees plastered on the hoardings? I believe I could do it. I once won a prize in a lady's magazine for a set of verses, the genuine and unaided production of a girl aged under fourteen."

Philip compelled himself to respond to her mood. He promised to reveal his specific for money-making at some future period, when Mrs. Atherley prudently dazzled to accept his words as those of a prophet.

With a fact of a woman of the world, Mrs. Atherley led the conversation back to less personal channels. The great restaurant was rapidly filling now. The occupants of neighboring tables cast occasional glances at the merry party which disregarded the foibles of the musical world, the ways of agents, the ills of managers and petty spites of the greatest artists, and, incidentally, did ample justice to an excellent meal.

Philip thought he had never before met so delightful a girl as Evelyn was quite certain that some unknown good fairy had given her this pleasant acquaintance, and Mrs. Atherley, after a silent spasm of regret that her daughter should be denied the position in the greater world for which she was admirably fitted, abandoned herself to the infectious gayety of the younger people.

She and Evelyn confessed to a feeling of renewed surprise when Philip happened to mention his London address.

"Whatever faults the denizens of Park Lane may possess, that of being unknown cannot be reckoned among them, and Mr. Anson, in a period not very remote, knew the occupants of every house in that remarkable thoroughfare. He could not, however, recall the name of Anson.

At last a most enjoyable meal came to an end. Philip, surrounded more ably by a skilled head waiter, spun it out to the utmost possible limit, but the inevitable check would not be denied.

He thought the two ladies might prefer to drive home alone, so he sent them away in his carriage, and made an excuse that he had an appointment at his club. In truth, he wished to be free to walk far and fast, while his excited brain founded a semblance of the strange categories of events which had so crowded into his life during 48 hours. And then the time that Philip's cabman safely deposited Evelyn and her mother at their residence, Victor Grenier, again attired in evening dress and accompanied by Jocky Mason, whose huge frame was incased in a suit of gray tweed, drove in fashionable West End bar, and found an elegant young person leaning against the marble-topped counter, engaged in a war of wits with a barmaid.

The arrival of the two men, however, put a sudden stop to the badinage. The youth quitted the counter with a few less obscurities that annoyed the girl to a positive loathing.

"Well?" he demanded from Grenier, "did anything happen?"

"Jimmie," was the cool reply, "I told you that your stupid row the last night was result in failure. Far worse, it has supplied you with a rival against whom you may as well give up the game at once."

"Hell!" cried the other fiercely, with an oath that made the girl shudder. "Not really, Victor? Not seriously? I would be blind. I had five thousand pounds' worth of them could do with. You deserve me for a time."

"I say, your paper arrived in a paper and decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. A "Bull Moose" Tree

A CURIOUS FREAK LOCATED IN THE LARGEST APPLE ORCHARD IN THE WORLD.

The "Bull Moose" Tree.

THE picture shows one of the most curious tree formations in the country. The growth on the side of the tree trunk exactly resembles the head of the famous Roosevelt emblem, the Bull Moose, and has for years been a sight of the Green Ridge Valley, Maryland.

The tree is an oak, and is located at the side of a road that runs through the apple orchard of F. Merten's Sons, the largest in the world. Visitors to the orchard, which is within a few miles from Cumberland, are always eager to get a sight of the tree, the fame of which has spread considerably.

An imaginative Cumberland reporter once tried to circulate a report to the effect that the great Teddy himself once leaned against the tree, whereupon, a few days afterward, the growth sprang forth. It might be well to mention that the tree is known as a "Progressive Oak."

Luck That Turned

A Complete Short Story

FRANK RIDGWAY left the newspaper office with bent head and drooping shoulders. He had been refused a hearing. Directly he asked for work the door was opened for his departure. They had no places vacant.

Since the failure and stoppage of The Argus he had sought employment everywhere, but found only rebuffs.

Wearily he walked on. This meant that his water must be pledged. Maisie must be provided for, and she needed extra delicacies while she was ill. He wondered whether she ever regretted being a newspaper man's wife. It was maddening to remember that they had been married less than a year, and already a series of misfortunes had overtaken them.

He drew near the hawkbroker's at last, and as he crossed the street, from the main entrance a flashily dressed woman came out leisurely. He gave her a momentary glance, noting her big hat with its plume of feathers, then he passed on toward the smaller door in the side front.

The assistant who advanced to the counter recognized him with a sympathetic nod. Ridgway had appeared frequently of late.

"So you've had to call on us again? Hard lines!"

Ridgway forced a smile as he pushed his watch across.

"Well I'm not your only regular customer. That lady outside with the pearls—she was here when I came in—has less discomfiture that annoyed the girl to a positive loathing.

"Well," he demanded from Grenier, "did anything happen?"

"Jimmie," was the cool reply, "I told you that your stupid row the last night would result in failure. Far worse, it has supplied you with a rival against whom you may as well give up the game at once."

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

MY cuzzin Alice is at our house to stay a week & she is one of the prettiest gurls that I ever saw. She has got a beau, too, & he calm to see her last nite. I dont dast see how a gurl so pritty cud have such a bonehead for a beau, but I dont think Alice knows very much eether, that is the way with lots of gurls, wen they are very pritty they dont have much, & wen they know how much they have faces like penny masks.

The naim of Alices beau is Abner. I doant know why any father and mother ever naimss thare boy Abner. He had on nice clothes wen he called last nite, but he had vaseline-in his hair to maik it stay combed so it curled on his forehead, & he wore a button in his coat & it said on the button Drink What Adam Drank. I think anybody that wares a button that says sumthing on it like that is stupid, that they cant say anything themself.

Do you not comprehend, sed Abner. Adam drank water, pure, sparkling water. I, too, drink pure sparkling water, sed Abner. Will you join our little band & drink pure, sparkling water, he sed to Pa.

I will not drink it exclusive, sed Pa, because I like pure, sparkling burgundy too & burbon, etc. I do not drink anything like that to excess, sed Pa, but I like a snifter now & then, so I can not promise to drink what Adam drank, altho I wud like to be one of your jolly crowd. What if pure water was all Adam drank? sed Pa. Didnt he get the gate just the same?

Oh, but that was not his fault, sed Abner. Just then mush Alice caim in & Abner went & sat neer her. Ma & Pa only stayed in the parlor a little while & then they went out to a card party but I stayed rite thare on the sofy. I wanted to maik Abner nervus. I was setting out in the other room & I pretended I was reading Barefooted Bess, the Fair That Will a R. E. but all the time I was gitting a ear full of Abner's talk.

I lux poetry, he sed to Alice. Do you luv poetry?

Yes, sed Alice, I luv poetry. Will you reesite sum poetry to me, she sed to Abner. Then Abner reanted but he didnt know enuff to reesite sumthing about luv, he reestted.

You may talk of pie and beer.
When you're safely quartered here.
Or off for penny fites to Aldershot it.

But wen it turns to slaughter
You will do your work on water

And you'll lick the blooming boots of him that's got the wind.

Oh, sed Alice, I doant like to hear about slaughter. Please reesite sumthing romantic, sumthing tender.

Would you like to hear sumthing that I rote myself? sed Abner.

Oh, yes, sed Alice, please reesite sumthing of yure own. So Abner reesited

My naim is Abner & I luv a maid
Naim Alice, sweet & wonderfully clever:

To love a thin maid & go I am afraid
& fain wud I be by her side forever.

If any other fellow should be grabbin for
I sware that that wud be the end of me.

I am afraide I cud never marry you, sed Alice. That isent nice poetry at all. It sounds like a school boy's lines. Then they scrapped & Abner went home. Wen Pa caim hoam I told him that Alice had sent Abner hoam & Pa sed Well, any man that gets drunk on Adam drank is likly to get what Adam got.

Up-to-Date Jokes

Little Johnny, who is of an inquiring turn, was having a quiet little talk with his mother. Johnny wanted to know why Mr. Jugging married Mrs. Jugging. His mother wasn't able to tell very clearly. Johnny thought a while, and then asked:

"Mother, why did you marry my dad?"

"Johnny, I married your father because he saved me from drowning," replied his mother.

"Well, that's why dada always tellin' me not to go in for swimmin'," said Johnny.

Mrs. Shortley was discussing the latest fashions with a young lady caller.

"Did you say your husband was fond of those clinging gowns, May?" she asked. "I was so willing to me for about three years"

"Eddie, my dear, what are you cry- ing for?" asked Eddie's mother, who had just returned from church.

"Because the clergyman says that we must all be born again, and I am afraid I shall be born a girl next time."

The little, mild, bald man had settled down and was reading and feeling drowsy after a tiring day at the office. Suddenly the big, hairy man across from him began to chuckle in a hoarse, and, reaching the edge of the rack, fell, lighting on the little man's stomach, and grabbed his ear to steady himself.

All the passengers waited expectantly for developments, but all they heard was:

A Letter to Mary

Mary Replies to Her Father in a Pathetic Appeal for Fair Play.

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE.

MY DEAR FATHER:

When I came down to breakfast this morning and read a letter from you which I found under my plate, I was both distressed and amused.

Distressed, because you so plainly disapprove of my choice, and amused because you still think I am a child. Children, I know, are never grown in the eyes of their parents, but won't you try to realize that I am twenty-one, a woman grown, while reading this?

You base your objections chiefly on the ground that I know so little of this man. How do you know, blinded as fathers, that I know so little? When a man has been a girl's devoted shadow for six months, isn't she pretty apt to know him better than her elders suspect?

Jack was introduced to me by your old friend, Mrs. Hart. I did not ask to see his credentials, or bill of health, or references, or whatever it is that says a man is decent; I just looked into his big serious blue eyes and knew that he was. I asked him to call. It was a courtesy due a guest of your old friend, which is one reason, and there are others.

You met him the first time he came, and so did mother. Neither you nor she asked for his credentials, passports or whatever it is that seems to be now lacking. On the contrary, you welcomed him, and said to Mother after he had gone, "That seems a likely young fellow."

You don't remember it? I do! I remember every glorious incident of the past six months. They are pictures on my memory with a splash of gold. Somehow I knew that first night, and never doubted my first intuition, that I had met the man of all mankind for me.

GIVEN PERMISSION.

He came again the next evening. Neither you nor Mother objected, and the first evening he took me to a theatre I went with mother's permission, and I had her sanction for every attention I ever received from him.

I know, Dear Father, that children are not always thoughtful of their parents, but I wonder if I can tell you, without hurting you, or being misunderstood, just where parents fail in their obligations.

Jack showed from the very first that he was attracted by me. Do you remember that first evening that he never took his eyes off me, and that once when Mother addressed him he didn't hear, for all his attention was following me? Did you notice that he held my hand when he left? Didn't you hear him ask if he might call again the next evening? Couldn't you see, couldn't you SEE, that he was beginning to love me?

When he came, evening after evening, and contrived to pass the house a dozen times a day; when the telephone rang early and late with his messages; when the florist's boy began to call regularly; when books began to arrive in the mail; when special delivery boys appeared with notes and boxes of candy; when his stay in town was prolonged one week, two, three, beyond the appointed time. Did you think, you dear, blind bat of a parent, that all this was done with no motive?

When he went to his home out West, did you think the big, bulky letters that began to arrive were congressional messages? Did you believe, when I flew with every letter to my room and locked the door, that it was to read debates on the tariff?

You made no objections then. On the contrary, you seemed slyly amused, but now, when he has won my love, you ask me to stop and consider! Should not you and mother have done that before this miracle happened?

AN APPEAL.

He wrote that he loved me and asked me to be his wife. I accepted. Then we decided to tell you.

You object because he has not devoted as many months to wooing me as you spent years in winning mother. Do you forget that this is a more rapid age, and that if Cupid were as slow now as he was in your day marrying would go out of fashion? It took you three days to travel sixty miles to see mother. Still, you would not ask that it take him a month to travel the three thousand miles that separate us.

Look down into the bottom of your heart. Don't you find there that the basis of your opposition is loving selfishness? You don't object to him as a son-in-law. Your objection is that you will lose your daughter.

You remember your own wooing only as a means of rebuke. Be unselfish, father, and let it be an argument in our favor.

MARY.

Jilted by a Married Man

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Here is my letter of woe:

I am a young girl. I met a man several years older than myself last summer in the country, with whom I fell in love. I loved him and still love him so that the whole world to me narrows down to just him. I have never loved before and don't think I can ever again.

He was exceptionally fond of me, although he considered me somewhat of a child—last summer. He was suddenly called away last summer and we lost track of each other, but as he goes to the same place every year I confidently expected to see him again this summer. I have thought of him continuously all winter, and my love never cooled a bit. The winter was a torture to me. I really existed longing for the summer, when I might see him again.

Well, I have seen him, and I have learned that he married! He married a girl he used to tell me about. She was exceedingly in love with him also, and at one time, when he was deathly sick, she nursed him continuously for a number of months—and so he married her, although I knew that he wasn't in love with her. Well, now I feel as if something within me has snapped, died—the capacity to feel happy. I don't know what to do with myself. I simply can't bring myself to feel happy or joyful again. Can you please tell me what to do to take the thought of him out of my mind and life. I feel that something must be done, or I'll surely become melancholy. And I'm only 18.

Thanking you in advance for some advice, I am,

DOING GIRL.

WHY, you poor, dear little girl—I wish I could take you right in my arms and tell you so much about it—and try to comfort you.

I'm afraid my trying wouldn't do much good.

The sorrow that has come to you is sure—and nobody can help you bear it—but yourself.

Real—of course it's real—just as real as anything ever is in life.

Will it last?

Yes, it will not—you think now that it will—but you are WRONG.

No sorrow of that sort ever lasted in all the world, and, after all, you are just like all the rest of the world

POLICE HORRID, IS VERDICT OF MRS. ALSOP

But Judge Who Released Her After Arrest a "Dear," Says Former Georgia Girl.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—A full, complete and decidedly exclamatory explanation was made this morning by Mrs. Effie Pope Hill Alsop, formerly Miss Effie Pope Hill, a Georgia girl, concerning her police court experience and the causes thereof.

"The judge was a perfect dear," Mrs. Alsop began. "But the chauffeur was horrid. So was the policeman. So was the police wagon. So was the station house, or hoos-gow, as I heard a funny-looking young man prisoner call it. What is a hoosgow? It sounds like Chinese."

Aged Husband Thinks So, Too.

Then Mrs. Alsop, flanked and defended by Mr. Alsop, the elderly Pittsburg millionaire, explained how she came to be out of money when the chauffeur demanded his fare, which circumstance had caused the arrest and all the trouble.

"It was all very horrid," the young woman said. "I had been shopping with some friends and we dropped into Bustanoby's and at Maxim's to hear the music and watch the dancing. I remembered an appointment to call on a girl friend at the Ansonia. I thought I had a $10 bill left in my purse. I didn't. The chauffeur was horrid. Then came a policeman, and he was horrid. They wouldn't even take me back to my hotel, the Waldorf, though I promised the horrid chauffeur double fare as soon as we got there.

"And even when my husband came to me at the—er—hoos-gow, they wouldn't let me to go court in a taxi. Made me ride in that horrid police wagon. Wasn't that horrid?"

Judge Says Policeman.

Magistrate Murphy appears to have agreed in substance with Mrs. Alsop's comments. He ordered her immediate discharge, with a dissertation on the rapacity of chauffeurs and the ivory-headedness of policemen.

And as to the accusation of intoxication—which also was "horrid"—Mrs. Alsop said it was all nonsense. She added that she hadn't been drinking a think—hardly. Mr. Alsop contributed the comment that his wife drank "next to nothing."

So Mrs. Alsop's verdict was that everything and everybody connected with the incident was horrid except the judge. He was a perfect dear.

Darien Negro Held As Slaying Suspect

JOHNSON CITY, TENN., Oct. 31.—When Joe Lewis, a Darien (Ga.) negro arrested in Bristol, was brought here and identified to-day as having been with Herman Connelly, a Douglasville (Ga.) white man, the night before he was found murdered and robbed, six suspects were released and Lewis was held for the crime.

It is believed the other negro implicated went to Knoxville and shot E. Liebman in an attempted robbery last night.

Fake Faint Failure; Bertha Had to Talk

OMAHA, NEBR., Oct. 31.—"Fainting Bertha" Liebbe, the best known woman crook in the United States, is in again. She broke her resolution formed upon leaving the Nebraska Insane Hospital last week to reform and get married. She was held at the city jail to-day, charged with drunkenness.

When detectives accosted her on the street last night, Bertha attempted to faint. She was unable to keep from talking, and the attempt failed.

LATEST NEWS

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Charged with arson on the high seas and liable to life imprisonment, Captain John A. Fish, or Fayh, as he sometimes spells it, formerly of the British light horse troop, was arrested here to-day. It is charged that Fish burned his private yacht in Egerton Harbor, near Boston, three years ago, to secure 15,000 insurance. Fish denied the charge.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Bartholdt Hussen, a window cleaner, was arrested this afternoon charged with stealing $10,000 worth of jewelry from the home of G. Trowbridge Hollister, on Park avenue, last Tuesday. According to the police, Hussen confessed, implicating another window cleaner, who is being hunted. Part of the loot, a necklace, and a pendant valued at $5,000 were recovered in a pawn shop.

PATERSON, N. J., Oct. 31.—One workman was killed and another mortally hurt when a Dupont powder factory, at Haskell, 7 miles away, blew up.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—James R. Gerard, the United States Ambassador, was received in audience to-day by the German Empress.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Before the National Association of Railway Commissioners to-day, William Kilpatrick, of Illinois, urged the general adoption of the block system of signals by railroads of the country and rigid discipline for disregard of signal indications.

BRISTOL, TENN., Oct. 31.—In connection with the purchase by Samuel Insull, of Chicago, of all the stock of the Electric Transmission Company, which is to operate a great electric plant at St. Charles, Lee County, Va., the United Collieries Company, with $5,000,000 capital, was organized here to-day for the purpose of more extensive developments in the Black Mountain coal district. Charles W. Bondurant is president and manager of the new company.

PORTSMOUTH, OHIO, Oct. 31.—Tide Davenport, well known as a motorcycle racer throughout southern Ohio, died in a local hospital to-day from injuries received when he was thrown from his machine yesterday while traveling at a 60-mile speed on a local turnpike.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Vice President Marshall and Mrs. Marshall arrived in Chicago this afternoon on their way to California. They expect to rest here until to-night, when they will resume their journey.

CLEVELAND, OHIO, Oct. 31.—The headless body of a boy about 10 years old was pulled from a gravel pit here late this afternoon. Police are searching their records of missing boys and calling upon parents in an effort to identify the body through shreds of clothing that still cling to it. A steam shovel at work in a gravel pit today unearthed the boy's body. Police declared the head had been severed before the body was hidden.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Representative Mann introduced a resolution in the House to-day calling on the Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo for information regarding the enforcement of the 5 per cent clause in the tariff law.

DANVILLE, ILL., Oct. 31.—J. S. Freeman, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. here, who came from Moline in May and raised $127,000 for the new association building here, died this afternoon of heart trouble after a day's illness.

SELMA, ALA., Oct. 31.—Judge J. W. Mabry, of the Selma City Court, this afternoon issued attachments for A. B. Kendrick, Sr., and A. B. Kendrick, Jr., ordering that the child, three years old, be produced in court instanter to answer a habeas corpus writ sued out by Kendrick's wife, who is trying to gain possession of the little boy. The case was set for to-day, but neither the child nor the father was present. Kendrick is supposed to be in Atlanta.

CHATTANOOGA, Oct. 31.—Mrs. Harriet Tatum, widow of Dr. R. H. Tatum, committed suicide this afternoon in Elizabeth Apartments by shooting herself through the head. She was a member of the well known Whiteaides family and prominent socially. Despondency due to ill health was the cause.

NEW HAVEN, CONN., Oct. 31.—Mrs. Bessie J. Wakefield, charged with the murder of her husband, William Wakefield, of Bristol, Tenn., was found guilty of first degree murder this afternoon. Prior to her arrest Mrs. Wakefield confessed to having conspired with James Plew, a farm hand, to bring about the death of her husband in order that she might marry Plew. Plew pleaded guilty, and a hearing now being held to determine the degree of his crime.

CORDELE, Oct. 31.—While attempting to remove a belt from the flywheel of an engine pulling a ginnery at McKenzie's siding, seven miles southeast of this city, to-day, T. S. Whitaker, a well-to-do young planter, was instantly killed. His left arm was torn from his body, and every limb was broken.

Freer Press Sought By Russian Duma

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

ST. PETERSBURG, RUSSIA, Oct. 31.—The Duma has reassembled and the constitutional Democratic party has introduced an urgent interpellation protesting against the persecution of the press, especially with regard to the Bellis case.

Professor Paul Milukoff begged the Duma to take a stand against the secret powers whose operation was covering Russia with shame. The resolution carried, 149 to 106.

Middies Cautioned to Be on Their Mettle

ANNAPOLIS, MD., Oct. 31.—The Naval Academy coaches have warned the players that they must expect stiff opposition from Lehigh, Bucknell and Pennsylvania State. The Navy plays Lehigh to-morrow.

Both Lehigh and Bucknell won from the midshipmen last year, which makes the locks all the more anxious to win from these rivals this season. Penn State did not play here last year.

BARONS GET LEARY.

BIRMINGHAM, Oct. 31.—Jack Leary, of Waltham, Mass., first baseman of the Utica team last season, who was drafted by Cincinnati, has been turned over to the Birmingham team of the Southern League.

AUTO BANDIT MAY BE WANTED THIEF

Jacksonville Police Believe Stone Robbed Taliaferro and Hubbard Homes of Jewels.

JACKSONVILLE, Oct. 31.—In the arrest of Chauncey Stone, who was captured while in the act of taking $1,600 in diamonds from Luln Gaffney, whom he had conducted to the outskirts of the city in an automobile, the police believe they have the man who robbed the homes of former United States Senator James P. Taliaferro, and his son-in-law, Archie S. Hubbard, in the spring of 1912. Jewelry to the value of about $1,000 was taken from the two homes.

A short time after the Hubbard robbery a man giving the name of Solomon and answering in a general way to Stone's description, was arrested in Ozark, Ala., for vagrancy. In his possession was a quantity of clothing and in his grip was between $3,000 and $4,000 in jewelry, which was identified by Detective James Crawford, of this city, as part of the Hubbard loot.

The suspected man was released two days before the arrival of Crawford and immediately left town. He was preparing to express a box of goods to Flatbush, a suburb of Brooklyn, N. Y., when arrested. All the goods and jewelry in his possession were seized by the Ozark police chief. Both Stone and Joe Lewis, his alleged accomplice in the attempted automobile robbery here, are said to be wanted for robberies in New York. Stone admits he has been in jail before, but never for such a serious offense as at present.

Peter Rosenbloom, who was also held as an accomplice of Stone here, has been released, as the police are convinced he knew nothing of the character of the men with whom he was associating.

Ben Groover has been arrested in connection with the hold-up and is held as an accomplice of Stone.

Sulzer Aide Main Witness in Probe

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Interest in the mayoralty campaign centered today upon the investigation ordered by District Attorney Whitman into charges made by John A. Hennessy, the Sulzer investigator, during his speeches here.

Hennessy will be the star witness when the hearing is opened before Chief Magistrate McAdoo late this afternoon.

The odds on the election to-day were 2-1-2 to 1, with John Purroy Mitchel, the fusion candidate, favorite. Supporters of Judge Edward E. McCall were demanding 2 to 1.

Officials Seize More Prohibited Aigrettes

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Customs officers made another raid on aigrettes worn by society women when the Luselania docked to-day. Among those who were forced to give up the millinery decoration was Mrs. Percival Hill, wife of the president of the American Tobacco Company.

Lady Cheylesmore, sister of Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt, was given the benefit of the doubt, when she insisted that the pheasant might be a wild bird in America, but was a domestic fowl in England and that she had a right to wear its feathers.

Federal Plums in N. Carolina Picked

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Oct. 31.—United States Senator Simmons recommended to the Attorney General the appointment of Ernest M. Green as District Attorney in the Eastern District of North Carolina. Other important appointments will be made shortly, as follows:

District Attorney in the West—William C. Hammer.

SAFE BLOWERS GET $5,000.

FALMOUTH, MICH., Oct. 31.—The Bank of Falmouth was raided by safeblowers early to-day and $5,000 was taken from the safe. All telephone and telegraph wires leading out of town were cut before the safe was blown.

INDOOR WORK REDUCES STRENGTH

because confining duties, lack of fresh air and sunshine gradually weaken even a strong constitution, and the enfeebled system readily accepts sickness and disease.

Scott's Emulsion checks such decline. Its pure cod liver oil is nature's grandest medicinal food while its hypophosphites act as a building tonic. It refreshes the body, puts vigor in the blood, strengthens the lungs, upbuilds the nerves and invigorates the whole system.

Seven Mistakes of Matrimony

BY DOROTHY DIX.

THE first deadly mistake of matrimony is:

TO MARRY ON AN INSUFFICIENT INCOME.

Matrimony has its commercial as well as its sentimental side, and while mere money alone will not make a happy marriage, neither will love alone. It takes food to supply the heart throbs, and at the bottom of every successful marriage there must be a strong financial plank capable of supporting a comfortable home.

Of course, the lover's view of life is all circling wings and golden glory, and poetry and romance. He feels, while he is still courting a girl, that nothing else matters but the bliss of calling her his own. He believes that he can disdain such material things as food, and clothes, and houses, and it is no trick at all to persuade a girl who has no worldly experience, into accepting this point of view.

So in a trance of joy, literally doped with sentiment, they marry, with a sort of sublime faith that those who put their trust in Cupid will be miraculously fed, as the prophet was by the ravens.

But Cupid isn't that sort of a bird. He is no miracle worker. He supplies no loaves, nor lobster Newburgh, nor even plain beefsteak and onions. Nor does he prevent clothes from wearing out, nor soften the rent collector's heart so that he furnishes an apartment with modern conveniences free to the enamored pair.

On the contrary, life goes on for people who are in love just as it does for those who are out of love. Nothing stops the processes of nature. We get hungry, we get cold, we crave the same amusements, we have the same tastes after marriage as we did before, and the plain, hideous fact stares us in the face that when we have not the money to supply these necessities we are not happy, no matter how much affection we have for some other individual.

NOT ROMANTIC.

It isn't romantic—it even fills you with a deep disgust for the weakness of human nature, but the truth remains that we have to be physically comfortable, and have a mind at peace, before we can even love. No man who is hungry cares two pence about the looks of the prettiest woman on earth. No woman who is shivering with cold and is ragged and shabby cares a clipped Canadian dime whether a man loves her or not. No married couple who are harassed night and day by bill collectors, and who tremble every time there is a sound at the door for fear the landlord is coming to throw them out into the street, are filled with any high and lovely thoughts about each other. In such an hour the animal triumphs in us. Our only concern is to be fed and housed and warmed. And under such circumstances it is practically inevitable that husband and wife should turn upon each other with bitter accusations and reproaches.

This is not to say that wealth and luxury are necessary to make marriage a success. Far from it. Without doubt the happiest and most united couples in the world are the poor young man and woman who marry and work up side by side in the world. But there is a wide difference between something and nothing, between marrying on a settled income, however small, and marrying without any way to make a living at all.

THE FIRST RULE.

The very first principle, the very bed rock of domestic happiness is that a couple shall have enough money between them to support them in decent comfort. One might almost go further and say that it is necessary for them to have enough money to approximately live in the way in which they have been accustomed to live. Here and there are notable exceptions to this rule, and we find men and women who have the strength of character and greatness of heart to be willing to give up the luxuries they have been used to for the sake of a beloved one, but these cases are rare.

It takes more grace than the most of us possess to be able to make a daily sacrifice of our tastes and habits without becoming churlish and regarding ourselves as martyrs.

Certainly, the man who has been accustomed to dressing well and having plenty of money to spend on trifles; who has lived in a well-appointed bachelor apartment, and indulged himself in theatres, and cabs, and good cigars, and who finds after his marriage that his salary will only permit of a cheap two by four flat; who has to wear shabby clothes, after the babies begin coming, who can only know of the theatres by hearsay, and smoke cheap tobacco, is seldom a shining illustration of the happiness of the married state.

Nor does the woman who has lived in a luxurious home, and had beautiful clothes, and traveled, and reigned in society find matrimony a glad, sweet song when she gets to be an overworked household drudge, faded and worn with the nursing of babies and the cooking of dinners and the dreary round of petty household economies.

These are the people who swell the records of the divorce courts and whose homes, together, are a bloody battle ground in which family scraps are fought to a finish. Love and peace have gone, driven out by overwork, by over anxiety, by the fear of the future that keeps people's nerves taut and their tempers with a razor edge.

NOT SAFE.

It's no use in saying that it's safe now for a young couple to marry on nothing a year because their parents or grandparents did. The whole conditions of life have changed since then, and we can no more go back and begin life as they did than we can go back to using stage coaches and tallow candles.

The first requisite, then, of domestic happiness is having the price, for love is like an automobile. It's a luxury that it is a crime to indulge in unless you can afford it. To marry on an insufficient income is every whit as disastrous as it would be to buy a touring car without money to run it, and the result in the same, you would land in bankruptcy, and the sheriff would close you out.

First and foremost—fur is very becoming! There is nothing that will so surely bring out beautiful coloring and disguise poor coloring. There is nothing that forms a lovelier background for dainty, clear-cut features and softens harsh, angular ones.

Because of this universal beautifying art, and because of the growing popularity of outdoor life and exercise—in which fur is almost a necessity—seal and marten and sable, and even the humble squirrel and rabbit and raccoon have come into the proud position they occupy to-day in Dame Fashion's catalog of beautifiers.

TWO CONSIDERATIONS.

In buying fur, there are two things to consider—getting what is becoming to you—a question I will carefully analyze for you later in our little chat—and getting what you pay for. Sadly enough, there is no "pure fur law." So, if you pay for marten and get skunk, blame your own ignorance of fur value and the tradesman who sold you a masquerading animal all you like, but you will get no redress. Therefore, if you want to be safe, if you want to make your fur purchase not an extravagance but a way of putting yourself in possession of a lasting property, be sure you deal with one of the many honest, reliable, truth-telling houses in your city, and supplement all this with a little careful study of your subject.

I saw recently a simple black evening gown that became at once distinguished and stunning by the addition of a band of soft brown skunk at $3 a yard around the bottom of the skirt. Total cost $6—total effect incalculable!

Acknowledging the smartness of the fur touch, and guarding against the stupidity of "a fur touch" that will give us an inferior substitute that is not "something just as good" as what we have paid for, let us delve into the mysteries—the sacred mysteries!—of beauty and becomingness in fashion's new dictate.

I am illustrating my own theories with two pictures I have had taken for you. In the one on the right, I am showing you the touch of fur on the evening gown—and the effect of a fur stole against a white throat.

For three dollars a yard you can buy a very good quality of inch-wide brown skunk—honest brown dyed skunk that does not masquerade as something it is not. This dark fur is particularly pleasing on light colored gowns as it gives them a touch of contrast and so of richness. Arranged around the bottom of my silk skirt and used to edge the loose upper sleeve of my lace kimono blouse, this fur adds tremendously to the effectiveness of the gown I am wearing.

At my throat I have a double animal scarf of sable, and I am carrying a muff to match. Such a set is very expensive—and for the woman of limited means, who wants a long haired soft colored dark fur, I recommend mink, fisher, fox or raccoon in a descending scale of prices. Further economy may be practised by adding a mere finish of fur to plush, velvet or heavy fur cloth muff and stole.

These long haired brown furs add a richness of coloring to the brunette type and are charming on the woman who is not very stout.

For the pink and white blonde there are silver fox, white fox, black lynx and the black and white civet cat.

FOR THE STOUT.

For the woman of embonpoint there are the short-haired furs of subdued coloring — mole, seal, broadtail and Persian.

The most beautiful light fur of the Winter is the creamy fitch with its dark brown markings—this is particularly stunning on the olive-complexioned brunette to whose cheek it imparts a bit of color.

But I know of no more durable, universally becoming and fair-priced fur than skunk or marten—which I have used on the evening coat I slipped on over my frock to show you in the picture on the left.

The coat is a simple kimono-shape of plush, duvetyn or velvet. Blue is particularly good with the skunk bands, but you may use hunter's green, rose or old gold with good results in color contrasts.

Frogs of self color fasten the coat, and three-inch bands of the fur finish the coat at the bottom and form the cuffs and the standing collar. Search well the treasure troves of attic and old trunks, for even a tiny bit of once discarded and seemingly shabby old fur offers you a chance to add richness and charm to dress or coat or hat.

In addition to this, Miss Ward gives valuable advice on the art of keeping a stylish look to everything you wear.

Miss Fannie Ward.

as simple a you like—you will be stunned when you have added the correct touch of polly—Milady plans her wardrobe for the coming months.

If you can afford a touch of fur here, a bit of fur there, the success of your gown from the point of view of becomingness and smartness seems assured. To-day I am going to try to explain the reason for the popularity of "the fur touch" and the advisability of using it in your gowns.

Their Married Life

Helen Meets a Steamer Acquaintance Who Is in a Most Unfortunate Position.

By MABEL HERBERT URNER.

"WHERE stopping at the Asdorf. It's only a couple of blocks from here—can't you come in and have some tea?"

Helen hesitated, then yielded to Mrs. Merwin's urgent invitation.

She had met the Merwins or the steamer. They had sat at the same table as she, on return voyage and seen a great deal of each other during the trip. And now Mrs. Merwin's greeting, as they met unexpectedly on Fifth avenue, was most cordial.

"Don't you want to come up to the rooms? It's much quieter, and I'll order tea up there," she suggested, as they pushed through the heavy revolving door of the Hotel Asdorf.

The atmosphere and appointments of a big, luxurious hotel had always a certain charm for Helen, a charm that would probably be dispelled should she live at one for any length of time.

She telephoned down for the tea, ordering with it two cocktails.

"Oh, yes, we must have something to drink," as she hung up the receiver. "I've been quite all right. Oh, I think New York is the most lonely place I'll be so glad when we get away."

"But you're so pleasantly situated here," protested Helen, glancing around the attractive room. "And don't you find this hotel very good? I've always heard that the service here was excellent."

"Oh, I—I almost hate it! I've been so unhappy ever since we came!"

Helen looked up, surprised at the tremor in her voice.

"You know we'd planned to go on to Denver, but—but Mr. Merwin's business has kept us here. Now I—I don't know when we'll get away."

She had laid aside her hat, and as she leaned back in a chair by the window Helen saw how tired and worn she looked. On the steamer she had been most attractive, and the center of much attention. But now she was pale and listless, with haggard lines around her eyes and mouth.

What could have happened to have changed her in so short a time?

In a few moments the waiter came with the tea. On the tray were two slender glasses into which he poured the cocktail from a silver shaker. Mrs. Merwin sipped hers eagerly, and a faint color relieved her pallor.

Momentarily it seemed to cheer her, and they talked of the people they had met on the steamer, several of whom Mrs. Merwin had seen since.

Then the phone rang, and she started so violently that the tea splashed from the cup she was holding. The phone was on the wall by the door, and Helen could not help but notice how her hand trembled as she took down the receiver.

SHE BREAKS DOWN.

"No, Mr. Merwin is not here. I'm sorry, but I don't know anything about that. I'm sure Mr. Merwin will make it all right. . . . Yes, as soon as he comes in."

"Mr. Merwin is not in. No, he hasn't an office in New York. At his club? He may be here then, but I'm not sure."

To Helen's dismay as Mrs. Merwin turned from the phone she suddenly leaned against the wall and burst into tears.

"Oh, I can't stand it any longer—I can't!" she sobbed. "They're always calling him up—the people he owes! And he's drinking and gambling away all his money!"

For a moment Helen hardly knew what to say, then she made a strained and awkward attempt to comfort her. But the emotions which had evidently been pent up for days were finding expression, and she sobbed out to Helen the whole wretched story.

The minding scheme that Mr. Merwin had been promoting in London had fallen through when they reached New York. He had borrowed money from every one he knew, trying to promote some other stock. That, too, had been a failure, and now they had not even money enough to pay their hotel bill—and they owed for three weeks.

"But why do you keep these expensive rooms?" ventured Helen. "Couldn't you stay at some cheaper hotel, or even at a boarding house?"

"Yes, but we can't leave until we pay the bill. We can't even take cheaper rooms here, for that would make them suspicious. They think Mr. Merwin has money, he always spent it so freely. If they didn't think that, they wouldn't keep giving us credit in the restaurant—and we've got to eat somewhere."

"But if you go on running up this bill"——

ALWAYS PROMOTING.

"Oh, Frank keeps thinking he'll get money somewhere—he's always full of schemes," bitterly. "It's always promoting—promoting — promoting. I hate the very word! If he'd only sit down for some real work. Anything that would give him a regular salary—instead of trying to live extravagantly on a lot of promotion schemes.

"Oh, I know I'm disloyal to tell you like this, for when he has money he's the most generous man in the world, and lavishes everything he has upon me—and here drinking! Oh, I can tell you—he hasn't been himself for days. And last night—again she gave way to sobs.

A knock at the door, and she stood up with a haunted look.

"Do you want me to answer it?" asked Helen.

She sobbed, pushing back her hair and brushing away the tears. But she only a bell boy with a large package.

"Oh, it's that evening gown from Ardsman's," she explained, hastily.

Then seeing Helen's look of surprise, she added, hastily.

"I shouldn't have ordered it, but it was week before last, when Frank felt sure he was putting through a big deal. We saw it in the window and I liked it. You see," plaintively, "he wants me to have everything. We've an account at Ardman's, and he told me to have it charged. Of course I didn't know things were going to be so bad."

"Would you return it?" suggested Helen, gently. "If you'd explain—wouldn't they take it back?"

"No—no, they've altered it now. That's why they've kept it so long. But I suppose it won't matter," recklessly, "when the crash comes a hundred dollars or more won't make any difference."

With a sudden impulse she took a handful from the tea tray and cut the string of the box.

HER SAD STORY.

"Do you want to see the dress?" with a harsh little laugh. "I'll wear it down to dinner to-night, and we'll look so prosperous that the hotel won't send in a bill for another week. Oh, I've learned to pretend, to act, to share with it two cocktails. "Not part of Frank's business assets to have me expensive. It gives people confidence in his success. Oh, yes, I'm an ideal promoter's wife!"

"There, we she shook out the fragile evening gown, gleaming with pearl trimmings. "Does that look like we couldn't pay our hotel bill?"

Then she turned to Helen almost fiercely.

"But you mustn't misunderstand me. You mustn't think Frank isn't honest in his schemes. He is! Somehow he always believes in them. He's always sure he's going to make a fortune for himself and for everybody else. But when I think of all the people that have invested in his promotions and have lost, it almost drives me mad. And yet," defiantly, "it's their fault, too! They shouldn't be so anxious to make something for nothing. I've grown to hate them, too! Oh, I hate it all—this feverish, uncertain, scheming life is killing me!"

There was so little that Helen could say to comfort her. This was a life of which she knew nothing, this living on a volcano, as it were, and never knowing when the upheaval would come.

It was almost six before she had the heart to rise.

"I'm afraid I can't stay any longer. I hate to leave you alone, but Mr. Curtis always gets home at half-past, and I must be there then."

"Oh, you—I don't want to keep you," helplessly. "I suppose Frank will be here some time this evening. If he doesn't come—I'll just go down to dinner alone. I feel that everybody knows we owe more than we own. Oh, the humiliation of it—you don't know—you don't know!"

It was with relief when Helen reached the street. She hurried home filled with bewildering, anxious thoughts of the woman she had just left.

Above everything else, Helen had an innate horror of debt. To owe a hotel bill, and to be compelled to live on it that hotel seemed to her an intolerable situation.

A BLANK FUTURE.

And what would be the outcome? Would Mr. Merwin be able to get the money? Or would they simply walk out when they were asked to leave?

"Some promoters are used to being on their uppers. And they've all got some get-rich-quick scheme that's more or less shady."

"But, dear, I really believe he means to be honest. She says"——

"Oh, he may honestly her, but what a man he is a promoter of trying to put over these without schemes that don't deserve—and that's comic to him."

But Helen was unconvinced. Her sympathy and anxiety for Mrs. Merwin were not lessened by Warren's cynicism. And even though he warned her against getting "mixed up" with such people she was still determined to call up Mrs. Merwin in the morning and to do what she could to help or comfort her.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DON'T YOU ALSO LOVE YOUR PARENTS?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am seventeen and deeply in love with a young man of twenty-two. He has asked me to elope with him. My parents object to him. They have no use for him. I love him dearly and I know my love is returned. ANXIOUS.

YOUR letter indicates no considera tion for your mother and father if you loved them as you should, you would realize that a girl of seventeen is too young to set up her opinions against those of her parents.

YOU OVER-ESTIMATE HIM.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am seventeen and deeply in love with a young man of twenty. We are employed in the same place of business, but he does not seem to return my affection. He says he only likes pretty girls, and I do not consider myself pretty. GRACE.

A MAN who cares for pretty girls only is not worth a second thought. He is shallow, silly, vain, and never will be a man so long as he feels that way. Just make up your mind you don't care to know a man of that sort.

An Anniversary.

A man may be rough looking and yet have a touch of sentiment about him.

A rugged, ill-kept-looking man appeared at the door of a woman's home and in a pleading tone asked:

"Have you a piece of cake, lady, to give a poor man who hasn't had a bite for two days?"

"Come," ordered the woman in surprise. "Isn't bread good enough for you?"

"Ordinarily, yes, mum. But this is my birthday," explained the tramp.

Promise to Reveal Conditions Is Seen.

A veiled promise to give to the public an intimate glimpse of conditions in the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary—a promise which he has kept to the letter since his release—is contained in the farewell of Julian Hawthorne, Register No. 4435, published in the November issue of Good Words, the ... paper.

The editorial by Register No. 4282, editor of the paper, in which Julian Hawthorne and Dr. W. J. Morton are officially hidden good-bye by their colleagues of the editorial staff of Good Words, appears also to bear out the assertion that Hawthorne's expose of the conditions at the prison was the result of a pact between himself and the other prisoners.

Voicing his belief that benefit to the man imprisoned under the present system of handling crime is rare, Register No. 4283 declares that the imprisonment of Hawthorne and Dr. Morton will prove an exception to the general rule.

"Personally it may not have been ... evil to them," he writes, "but it ... contribute to a great end by ... ling humanity and improving ... conditions. Frank Rehearing Again Halts Dodd Will Litigation

The arduous attention which Luther Rosser has accorded the Frank appeal is responsible for the further postponement of the sensational Dodd will case, which was set for a hearing before Judge Ellis the first thing Thursday morning. It was decided Friday to put the hearing over until next Monday, when it is believed Mr. Rosser will be able to take up the case.

The will case is expected to be warmly contested. Mr. Rosser represents the defense, and the main testimony of the contending heirs, cut off by the will, is to be that Mrs. Philip Dodd so ordered her will in regard to her kinspeople because they had refused to kill her first husband. The estate is estimated at $100,000.

The case was appealed from the ordinary's court, and will be defended by the executor, who has retained Mr. Rosser.

LYNCH CERTAIN OF RE-ELECTION; NOW DICTATOR

National League President Intends to Demand Three-Year Term When Magnates Meet.

By Damon Runyon.

AFTER having been slated for retirement by the early fall dope, only to see sentiment veer around until it is practically certain that he will be re-elected president of the dear old National League, it is now said that Mr. Thomas J. Lynch, Esq., is going to take quite a hand in said election. His friends declare that he is going to make a few suggestions to the magnates that they will have to adopt if they want to retain his service.

In other words, Thomas J. Lynch is going to do a little dictating.

His friends say that he is going to demand at least a three-year term, with a possibility that he may ask for five years.

Baseball people generally will support the president of the National League in this demand. He has been in office long enough for the magnates to determine whether he is worthy of the office, and if he is good enough to be re-elected he is certainly good enough to be given a term of sufficient length to make the job worth while.

A Long Step Forward.

A three or five-year term for the president would be the longest step forward that the old league has made in many a day. It would put the office above the petty squabbling that marks every meeting, and give the president some dignity. Moreover, it would give him a chance to do some real work. As conditions are now, he is the central figure of a lot of petty politics once a year.

Lynch is now in a position to make certainly, and to make them stick. Regardless of the merits of the question as to whether he is the right man for the job, the fact remains that he is the man the National League magnates want on the job and therefore he can make them come to his terms if he desires.

Want Herrmann Removed.

There is strong agitation in many quarters for the removal of Garry Herrmann as a member of the National Commission, and if he is good a man in his job who is not connected with either league.

Garry may be everything his friends say for him, but a lot of baseball people believe that it would not hurt baseball to have a comparative outsider on the supreme bench of the game. Not long ago a case arose where the Cincinnati club made a deal with the Kansas City American Association team for Cy Morgan, the veteran pitcher. The Red management agreed to pay $10,000 for Cy and did pay half the purchase price, but later on it developed that the pitcher had a sore arm, and Cincinnati repudiated the deal.

The by charged there had been collusion between George Tebeau, owner of the Kansas City club, and the pitcher, to conceal the fact that Morgan was unfit for service, although Joe Tinker himself saw Morgan in action before he was purchased. Anyway, the National Commission annulled the deal, and Cincinnati got its money back from Tebeau.

Both Judge And Jury.

In this case Herrmann was at least theoretically, judge and jury in determining the merits of his own complaint, and the decision made no hit with the minor leaguers, who are at the mercy of the court all the time although there was nothing in the case reflecting in any way on Garry's integrity or his fairness.

If he did not figure personally in the decision the association on the commission did, and cases of this nature are bound to give rise to criticism that could be avoided by having a third disinterested party on the ruling body.

BOXING

News of the Ring Game

In the last six weeks Frankie Russell, the New Orleans lightweight, has cleared nearly $2,500. According to his manager, Henry Dorr, Frankie has had three fights for which he has netted that amount. In the Pal Moore scrap Russell received $500 for his end, in the K. O. Brown battle he pulled down $600 and with Rivers he pocketed $1,500.

Eddie Hanlon, the local ringman, has finally found a boy game enough to step into the same ring with him. Eddie fights Jack Carron next Tuesday night at Jacksonville, Fla., in a scheduled fifteen round set-to. Billy Lutz, Hanlon's manager, is putting his protege through a stiff training grind.

Spider Britt is anxious to get on at Athens, Ga. The little bantamweight is simply wild to get into action again and says he will issue a challenge to the Lee-Young winner Wednesday night.

Frank Baker, Jack Payne, Kid Young and Charlie Lee, boxers who fight at Athens, Ga., Wednesday night, are down to hard training at local gymnasiums. Baker is working out with Young and Eddie Hanlon and is showing fine class. His opponent will be Jack Payne, who defeated Terry Nelson here a few months ago.

* * *

Meyer Price, who is now fighting under the name of Jack Price, is making a big hit in Jacksonville, Fla. Promoters there are putting Meyer against the best boys they can dig up for him, but the little Hebrew always manages to cop the big end of the purse.

* * *

Young Abearn, the Brooklyn welterweight who arrived in Paris with Jeannette Moran and other American fighters under the management of Dan McGrath, has been signed to fight Abdon, a good French fighter, for twenty rounds in Paris on Wednesday night. Jeannette and Moran will act as Abearn's seconds in the fight.

* * *

Jimmy Duffy, the lightweight of Lockport, N. Y., will meet Charlie White, the Chicago whirlwind, in a ten-round bout at Milwaukee, Wis., on November 10. Nate Lewis, manager of White, is hoping that Duffy don't follow the footsteps of Wolgast, Murphy and Cross, all of whom have dodged out of matches with the clever Chicagoan.

* * *

Freddie Hicks, the Detroit middleweight, has clinched a match with George Chip before a Pittsburg club on November 8. They are scheduled to go six rounds.

The newest Dane to enter the boxing game is one Kid Williams, also known as Jake Nelson. Williams, whose real name is John Guttelo, was born in Denmark. The "dope" shows he is only 20 years old, and from the way he already has shown, it would appear that his march to the championship is more than promising.

* * *

Jack Dillon and Sailor Petrosky have been matched for a twelve-round go at Indianapolis the latter part of this month. The bout may be staged on Turkey Day.

Joe Manlot has dropped Tommy Gary, his former manager, and Eagle, Jake Abel's former manager, will look after Manlot's business from now on.

* * *

Tommy Dougherty, who has fought such boys as Tommy White, Jeffie Belanger, Willie Lewis and Jack Blackburn, wants to come to Atlanta for some fights. He says he would like nothing better than to get on with Whitney.

Geo. Stovall Agent Says Branch Rickey

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 1.—In a statement given out here today, Branch Rickey, manager of the Browns, denies George Stovall of having been a secret agent of the Federal League while acting as manager of the St. Louis team, of the baseball league.

Discovery of the fact that he was soliciting players for the league, it is said, brought about Stovall's dismissal.

HUFF ISSUES WARNING.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 1.—Unless some of the colleges and universities coaches cease to encourage rough tactics, football is doomed, George Huff, director of athletics at the University of Illinois, declared to-day. Huff said that in several Western games thus far this season he has seen "hockey-ing" and slugging.

FEDS FOR BALTIMORE.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 1.—A company was incorporated here to-day to organize a baseball club to represent this city in the Federal League. A franchise has been acquired and an option secured on grounds near those of the International League club.

AMERICAN LEAGUE CLUBS "SWAP" THURSDAY

By O. B. Keeler.

BY a process which we decline to explain to our readers we have come into possession of the very latest dope concerning the Open Season for Baseball Trades, which opens at the big American League meeting in Chicago next Thursday.

You will kindly note the margin by which we are beating the barrier. The meeting begins next Thursday, in Chicago, which is to say it is five days and 842 miles distant from the time and place at which these few lines are being extracted from a rebellious typewriter with two keys missing fire.

Following is the dope:

THERE will be no such big transaction as the Chance-Tinker-Corriden deal of last year, which resulted in new bosses for two clubs. Every club in both big leagues, however, is likely to be mixed up in the trading, either receiving new men, or delivering same, or both.

Only one club is standing reasonably pat. You have one guess at it Correct. The manager's name is Connie Mack.

And even the Athletics are in on one deal—mark this hunch. Jimmy Walsh, sulphus outfielder of the Mackmen, is going to the New York Highlanders, just as surely as Prexies Shibe and Farrell get their respective noodles in apposition.

BUT while that trade likely will end the activities of Connie Mack in the open marts, it will be merely a starter for the other end of the bargain.

For Chance has his trading clothes on. He has been wearing them all year, for that matter, having disposed of not fewer than sixteen alleged ball players to date.

The big meeting will see some more trading, and here are the men Chance has to offer—this is authentic, mind you:

Quite a lay-out—what? Well, the ex-P. L. may not swap them all, but they're ready for swapping, if anybody has anything good to swap for them, with a certificate that no bunions are included in the deal.

ANOTHER club also is going the limit in trading—the St. Louis Browns.

Our information is that Branch Rickey is going to try the infield with which he finished the present season, viz., Pratt, Wares, Risland and Austin. He also has Bert Shotten in centerfield, Agnew and Alexander may remain as catchers, but Wellman Leverenz, Baumgardner and Hamilton, all fine pitchers, will go on the block at auction, seeking new outfielders and at least two stalwart infielders, in case the youngsters fall down. Derrill Pratt is regarded as the only fixture of the infield, as Risland and Wares still are experiments though good-looking ones.

THE Detroit Tigers seek new infielders.

The White Sox are looking for a new third baseman and a couple of outfielders to supplant P. Bodie.

The Red Sox want two infielders and are ready to swap Catcher Cady. Second Baseman Yerkes and Third Baseman Gardner, the willingness being said to arise from the McAleer-Stahl imbroglio.

The Naps want something else than Olson at third, and also another outfielder, although Jackson, Liebold Ryan and Graney are sticking around. The pitching staff is good enough.

The Senators want a couple of reliable pitchers to replace Hughes and Groom and back up Johnson and Hoebling. Griffith also wants somebody to play second instead of Morgan or Laporte, who alternated last season.

WE were going on to tell what the National League wanted, and had to offer, and was likely to get for it.

But space is limited. Besides, the National League, instead of stiffening up to meet the march of its younger and now lustier rival, is framing up a grand Political Show for the winter months.

We don't care so much about politics especially in baseball.

Sidelights on Sports

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

THE job of manager of a ball club looks to be the easiest thing in the world—from the grandstand. Players also think the job is a cinch. So far as is known, only one man ever refused an offer to manage a ball club. That man was Uncle Cy Young. At one time they wanted him to manage the Red Sox.

"Not on your life," declared the old man.

But younger players have no hesitancy in rushing into a managerial berth whenever it is offered. Nay, more, they seek the job. When they finally land—if they do—less than a month of a championship season is needed to convince them that managing a ball club is about the toughest proposition that was ever invented.

"CHARLES WEBB MURPHY," says The New York Sun, "has opened the winter campaign with the announcement that Al Bridwell must be supplanted as the Cubs' shortstop for the reason that he is too slow. Last spring Murphy predicted that Bridwell would make Chicago fans forget all about Tinker."

Boston fans discovered four or five years ago that Bridwell was too slow. They discovered it when the Red Sox played the Giants a post-season series. Bridwell was then the regular shortstop for McGraw. He was unable to get balls hit within a few feet of him. He never improved over the post-season showing, yet many baseball managers scrambled for his services for several years after that.

Which leads one to believe that some baseball managers are not very observing after all.

ACCORDING to President Steib, of the Buffalo club, Owner Gaffney, of the Boston Pilgrims, during the 1912 playing season offered $7,500 and another player for Catcher Wally Schang, who performed so brilliantly for the Athletics in the world's series.

Schang was drafted from the Buffalo baseball club by the Athletics," said Mr. Steib, "for $5,500. Just ten days before the time for the draft, to begin James Gaffney, owner of the Boston National League team, came to Buffalo and begged me to sell him Schang.

"He offered me $7,500 in cash and another player, but I would not accept the offer. I knew that if I sold him I would also lose Jamieson, if not another man, for as only one player is drawn in a draft, as soon as one is sold outright the big league club can draw another man.

"I thought maybe I could save Schang. But to my astonishment there were just thirteen drafts for him, and Connie Mack, who, by the way, was the very last man to put in an offer for him, and then only because Johnny Dunn, of Baltimore, Kept after him, turned out to be the lucky man."

HITHERTO the clubs of "organized baseball" have allowed the Federal League to establish clubs wherever they have seemed fit. No objection has been made in any of the cities where they have located. The league has picked up its own players from the back lots and from semi-pro teams, but now it is said they contemplate a raid on the clubs of the two big leagues. If this is done there will be a war to the knife, and the Federal League will find it a costly experiment.

Pools rush in where angels fear to tread.

Organized baseball has a big war fund with which to fight anyone who attempts to tamper with its ball players. There isn't a chance in ten thousand of the Federal League succeeding if it makes a raid on National League or American League or American Association or International League players.

A BIG handicap under which the Federal League labors is in the person of Horace Fogel, who was chased out of the National League for charges of crookedness against baseball which he could not substantiate. Horace talked too much, and as a result lost control of the Philadelphia National League Club. Recently he has allied himself with the Federal League. This organization objects to being called "outlaws."

Fogel has been piloting Lloyd Rickert, secretary of the league, around Philadelphia. The league, it is said, contemplates an expansion movement which will include three new cities in the Eastern end of the circuit. These are Philadelphia, Baltimore and New York. Pittsburg, which city the league already occupies, will be the fourth "Eastern" city.

'Commy' Would Have Players Return to Wearing High Shoes

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—High shoes will take the place of low shoes which are now worn by major league baseball players if President Comiskey, of the White Sox, has his way. Many sprained ankles and foot injuries could be prevented by a return to the old-fashioned footgear, he believes.

Returning yesterday from Kansas City, where he made an inspection of the Giants and White Sox world tourists, President Comiskey declared that First Baseman Hal Chase's injury, a sprained ankle, which will prevent him from completing the tour with his team, would not have been suffered had the player been wearing other than the regulation low shoes.

Federalists Plan Eight-Club League

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Much interest is being attached by baseball followers to the meeting in Indianapolis to-day of magnates of the Federal Baseball League, who expect to increase their circuit to eight clubs and to make financial preparations for the 1914 season.

Baltimore and Buffalo are the cities which probably will be added. It is said that Pittsburg, Cleveland, Indianapolis, Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City will retain their league franchises. To insure the paying of salaries and other obligations during the coming season club owners are expected to be prepared to make a deposit of at least $25,000, the money to be placed with the league officials or deposited in local banks of cities comprising the circuit.

The Chicago, Indianapolis, St. Louis and Kansas City clubs are expected to announce plans for the building of new parks to be ready for the season's opening.

TELLER TO LIVE HERE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Louis Teller, one of the best professional golfers in France, who made a good showing in the recent international championship in the United States, will become a resident of this country next spring. He has accepted a position as a salaried golfer at the Canoe Brook Country Club.

Braves, Not Naps, to Train at Macon Park

MACON, GA., Nov. 1.—Manager George Stallings, of the Boston Nationals, has contracted with the city council for the use of the baseball park for his training period next spring. His team will arrive about February 26, staying at his plantation at Hadocks until the first of March. He will bring about 40 men.

The report sent out that Cleveland had arranged to train here was premature. Some of the Cleveland adherents here, however, are trying to get council to reconsider the Boston deal and invite the Nats here, but it is hardly likely that this will be done.

FOOTBALL STAR DIES.

ST. JAMES, MINN., Nov. 1.—Lyle Johnson, the former Minnesota University football captain and a gridiron star at the Gopher school for several years, died of typhoid fever at a local hospital yesterday. Johnson was taken to the hospital several days ago and for a time it seemed he would recover. His condition took a turn for the worse on Thursday, however, and the doctors held out little hope for his recovery.

BIG SOCCER GAME TO-DAY.

The soccer football season will be opened Saturday afternoon when the Atlanta Football Club meets the strong Richland eleam in a match at Piedmont Park. This game will precede the regular soccer league games, which commence November 22. The Lithonia team is reported as very strong this season, and a hard game is expected.

Tommy Leach May Join Feds; Schulte And 'Zim' to Follow

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 1.—Tommy Leach, the ancient but active outfielder of the Chicago Cubs, will be the next manager of the St. Louis Federal League team, according to a tip handed out by a man who is closely connected with the local backers of the Federal League team.

Through Leach the St. Louis Federalites are counting on getting the services of two other Cubs, Zimmerman and Schulte. This would make a foundation of three stars on which to build a team and show that the local magnates are confident of putting a team into St. Louis that will make things interesting for the major leaguers.

The backers of the local team have plenty of money to spend, and declare that it is not a question of money with them, but of building up a team that will play major league ball and give St. Louis a better team than it has had.

NEW BOWLING RECORD.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—A world's record for the four branch backs of the ruling "ledm was established at the Metropolitan alleys here yesterday afternoon when L. S. Horne, Jr., hung the remarkable score of 82. Horne marked in every frame but two and his score contained a double strike, upon which he pinned 3.

Tech High School Beats G. M. A. 6 to 0

In one of the most bitterly fought games of the local prep league, and before the largest crowd that has turned out to witness a prep battle, Tech High School triumphed over G. M. A. 6 to 0.

For three quarters and half of the fourth, both teams tried hard to penetrate the opposing team's line without success, and neither side was able to register a score.

In the last five minutes of play, with the ball on their 30-yard line, Moore got away for a 40-yard end run, which would have resulted in a touchdown had he not slipped, and before he could regain his feet, Smith was upon him. G. M. A.'s line then held Tech High for three downs, and it looked as if they would hold them for downs, but Weston who, up to this time, was rather off from his usual game, got away for a ten-yard run for the only touchdown that was scored. Weston then missed goal.

AFTER GRIDIRON GAME.

COLUMBUS, GA., Nov. 1.—The Columbus Industrial High School is endeavoring to secure a football game with Riverside to be played in this city during the week of the fair beginning November 17. As yet the arrangements have not been completed.

GRIFFITHS AND BALDWIN SIGN.

AKRON, OHIO, Nov. 1.—Johnny Griffith, local lightweight, has signed articles for a go with Matty Baldwin, of Boston, in the Summit A. C. here November 11. The winner of this bout will meet Charlie White, the Chicago sensation.

Buy No Winter Tire

Until You See This Goodyear Innovation
This Anti-Skid with Plain-Tread Smoothness
This Thick, Tough, Sharp, Enduring

All-Weather Tread

Here is a tire which you can see excels all other anti-skids.

It gives you on dry roads all the advantage—all the smoothness, all the economy—of the plain-tread tire.

On wet roads—soft or solid—it gives an almost resistless grip.

The tread is double-thick. It is made of extra-tough rubber, toughened by a secret process.

The grips are deep and enduring. They last for thousands of miles, and never all wear off.

The edges are sharp, and they stay sharp. And these edges, set at 45 degrees, face the skidding direction.

The surfaces are broad and flat, giving plain-tread smoothness. The blocks are in alignment, following the tire's direction. So there is no vibration as with scattered projections.

Then the blocks widen out so they meet at the base. Thus every strain is spread over the fabric the same as with smooth-tread tires.

That's immensely important. Separate projections center the strains at little points in the fabric, causing a short-lived tire.

Make a moment's comparison, and for all wheels at all seasons you are bound to adopt these treads. There are eight vital advantages which you will find in no other anti-skid.

Even last summer, All-Weather treads outsold our plain treads with users.

In winter these treads are essential. They should go on every wheel. Nothing of the kind has been made to compare with them. You can see that at a glance.

Eight Others Cost More

There are eight anti-skids which cost more than All-Weathers, despite all our advantages. The reason is, each comes on a tire which has a much smaller output. Then mark the fact that All-Weather treads come on No-Rim-Cut tires, the most popular tires in the world.

These are the tires that can't rim-cut. These are the tires which are final cured on air, at an extra cost of $1,500 daily. This is done to save countless blow-outs.

You get all these exclusive features when you get No-Rim-Cut tires. They combat the three greatest tire troubles.

They save so much that these tires for years have held the topmost place in Tiredom. And no man who knows them can fail to adopt them. Come let us prove this to you.

SAM LANGFORD APPEARS TO BE LOSING SKILL

Showing Against Jack Lester Proves That Colored Boxer Is Slipping, Thinks Expert.

By W. W. Naughton.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1.—The Sam Langford who defeated Jack Lester at 'Frisco other day bore small resemblance to the compact, active Langford of a couple of years ago. When he stepped into the oil fields arena Sam was as fat as a Christmas shoat and sported a John L. Sullivan wrinkle on the back of his head.

Sam's work was also unlike the work he used to do. Remembering the way Langford settled Jim Flynn and others with that right uppercut, it was to wonder how Lester put up with so many punches of that particular brand.

There were two ways of explaining it. Either Sam was inclined to be lenient with the Cle-Elum hope or Sam has lost some of his driving power.

Looking at the chunky negro in the broad glare of the afternoon sun, there was a fair opportunity for gauging his purposes from his actions. The writer concluded that Sam was trying all right, and that he was simply unable to deliver the goods in the old, accustomed style.

Conscious of Fault.

Sam knew that his failure to put away easy-to-land-on Lester decisively called for an explanation, and so he passed out of the ring he told the members of the small group of field correspondents that he was bothered with adipose tissue and found it hard to remove. Sam attributed his rotundity to the long season of inactivity he experienced in Australia, but said that he hoped to have down his proportions by rigorous training in the very near future.

It may be that Sam will be able to reduce to his former weight, but at best the chances are he will never be as good as he was before he went to Australia. This thing of putting on weight, in the case of an athlete of any kind, is a bad sign. It indicates that a man is going to seed.

The history of pugilism teems with stories of crack fighters who failed to make good once they began to pro-scout. When Charles Mitchell trained for Jim Corbett at Antasia Island, down Florida way, he bubbled with delight every day as his weight grew less.

Mitchell finally reduced himself until he looked like Mitchell of old, but that was about all he accomplished. While lessening his poundage he lessened his vitality, and he was defeated in what was undoubtedly the poorest fight of his career.

Sullivan, Too, Failed.

John L. Sullivan was a fat man when he began training for Jim Corbett. By dint of hard work he contrived to make himself look comparatively slim, but he had the same experience as Mitchell. Removing flesh meant reducing vitality, and Sullivan lost to a man who did not have to take off fat.

The chances are Jim Jeffries suffered in the same way when he sweated off 30 or 40 pounds of excess fat and came to look as much a fighter as possible when he faced Johnson.

These are but a few instances, and I simply quote them because the men mentioned are so well known. When a ringman begins to get stout and admits that the surplus does not respond to hard work as readily as in former years, he is getting to the end of his tether.

Auburn and L. S. U. In Hard Struggle

MOBILE, ALA., Nov. 1.—When Auburn and the Louisiana State University football teams line up on the gridiron here to-day, local football fans are preparing to enjoy what promises to be the football treat of the season.

According to all the dope, the game ought to be a standoff, the strength of the rival elevens. If anything, there are some here who are inclined to favor the L. S. U. team for the honors.

Auburn only defeated L. S. U. by a 7 to 6 count last season, and the latter has returned the same team, while the Auburnites have lost several of their stars.

Probable Line-up.

On the opponents' line-up will be: Ends, Homewood, Jolner; tackles, Abernathy, Ramsey; guards, Foust, Cowell; center, Dandy; quarterback, Allen; halfbacks, Taylor, Fuller; full, Erwin.

Wanko will referee the game, and Coach Dunn, of South Carolina, will umpire. The head lineman will be Henderson, of G. M. A. The game will be called at 3:15.

Tech Scrubs Make Great Finish; Win

Played off their feet at the start of the game and throughout the first half by the Seventeenth Infantry team, the Tech scrubs showed a come-back spirit in the second half that was wonderful, resulting victory from defeat by the score of 16 to 9.

The soldier eleven took the scrubs by surprise, scoring a touchdown before the game had progressed very far, and adding a field goal to this in the second quarter, the last ending the first half with the soldiers leading 9 to 0. But the scrubs, by steady rushing tactics, worked their ball over the soldiers' goal for two touchdowns in the latter part of the game.

TARHEELS READY FOR GAME WITH GEORGIA TO-DAY

Big Bob McWhorter Plays Last Battle of His Career Before Home Fans.

ATHENS, Nov. 1.—The North Carolina football team arrived in Athens this morning and worked out on the local field.

Both teams have announced they are "ready" for to-day's game, and all Athens and the country for many miles around will journey to Sanford Field this afternoon to see Georgia's big game of the season at home and to see Bob McWhorter play his last game of his career before his home fans. To-day's battle will end the Georgia captain's gridiron feats on the home field, and he will be accorded a loud greeting as he appears for the battle.

Henderson Back Home.

Tiny Henderson has returned from Atlanta, where he has been confined in a hospital, but it will be several days before he gets in a uniform again. Crump is out for practice, Curry shows no signs of breaking into the game at an early date. In the game to-day Broyles will open at left half and Malone will go back to guard, and Thrash will be shifted to tackle. Smith and Logan will open at ends. The rest of the line-up remains intact.

Probable Line-up.

On the opponents' line-up will be: Ends, Homewood, Jolner; tackles, Abernathy, Ramsey; guards, Foust, Cowell; center, Dandy; quarterback, Allen; halfbacks, Taylor, Fuller; full, Erwin.

MANY RED SOX HOLDING OUT FOR MORE PAY

McAleer May be Forced to Quit World Trip to Sign His Players.

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—Unless some of the Boston Red Sox can be induced to hurry along their signatures to contracts for the season of 1914 it is more than possible that President McAleer, of the Boston club, may be deprived of the long awaited pleasure of a trip around the world with an all-star baseball cast. Up to a week ago President McAleer was blandly making preparations for his getaway, but now it looks as though the unsettled state of affairs in his baseball family may keep him right at home, much to his disappointment.

WHILE many magnates have already signed up a majority of their men for another season, there is a noticeable dearth of signatures in the Boston club strong box. At this time last season, Speaker, Carrigan, Collins, Wagner, Lewis and a few others were the only real hold-outs in the Boston camp, but it is a lot different just now, and Foster, Wood, Carrigan and Wagner are practically all the members of the family who have agreed to get in line. The reason for this attitude is not very hard to figure out. It is the indirect result of the liberality that President McAleer showed last fall when he issued the contracts for the season just closed. Then, flushed with victory and the achievement of a world's championship, players went the limit in their demands for an increase.

* * *

NATURALLY, President McAleer does not feel like going the limit again with men whose work this last summer was hardly in keeping with the big compensation they drew. One or two players had the forethought to obtain a long-term contract at fat figures last fall, but the majority were not quite so fortunate and they find the atmosphere a trifle different in the office when they come to talk salary. It is this task of signing up men that threatens to keep McAleer in town for some time to come, and unless several of the players change their attitude a settlement of the difficulty may not be arrived at for several weeks. The failure of several men to keep pace with the clip they established in 1912 has convinced President McAleer that he can still claim to hail from Missouri. He, like a lot of the fans, will in future decide that they must be shown.

VIRGINIA MAY PROVE SURPRISE AGAINST VANDY

Every Player on Edge to Put Up Tough Fight for To-day's Struggle.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, VA., Nov. 1.—The Virgina regulars only went out for a light signal practice yesterday afternoon and were hurried out into the country by the coaches immediately after their work for a quiet night.

The entire student body held a gigantic mass meeting last night, where many speeches by the faculty and students were made to augment the enthusiastic interest already felt over the great game. Vanderbilt is spending the night in Lynchburg and will arrive in Charlottesville early this morning.

Head Coach Warren, of Virginia, when interviewed, said that he was well satisfied with the physical condition of his men and stated that every man was in trim for the fight of his life. The team is in the best of spirits and the men are ready for the toughest kind of a battle. They are out to spring a big surprise on the Vandy squad.

Walsh to Begin Training Early

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Big Ed Walsh, star hurler of the White Sox team, is going to prepare himself for the 1914 season much before the rest of his teammates. At the suggestion of Jim Scott, fellow hurler, Walsh is going to pull his freight for Paso Robles camp early in February and put his arm to the test. Scott followed that plan a year ago and it worked well, and the big spitball heaver believes he, too, can regain his old form. Walsh plans a hunting and motoring trip from Connecticut and generally leading the simple life, between now and February, all of which is great dope for his ailing salary wing.

DANIELS BEATS COODMAN

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Nov. 1.—Danny Goodman, the Chicago lightweight, got the decision, but nearly split, to go with Freddie Daniels, of St. Joseph. Goodman was outfought at every stage of the mill.

Sox Take Another Game From 'Big Six'

BEAUMONT, TEXAS, Nov. 1.—The White Sox and Giants clashed here this afternoon in the fifteenth game of their world's baseball tour. The score in games was even when the teams left Dallas for Beaumont. For the second time during the season Christy Mathewson was defeated by the Sox yesterday. Leverenz did the twirling for the Sox and allowed the Giants five hits.

Carpentier Knocks Out Jim Lancaster

GENEVA, Nov. 1.—The aspiration of Jim Lancaster, of England, to get the title of middleweight champion of Europe, has received a severe check. Lancaster was knocked out in the third round by Georges Carpentier, middleweight champion of France, in the third round, last night.

Waddell Sick; Must Battle for His Life

MEMPHIS, TENN., Nov. 1.—Word reached here to-day that Rube Waddell would not spend this winter on the Tennessee lakes, hunting and fishing as has been his wont for many years.

Instead Waddell will go to the Pacific slope, where he will institute a battle for his life, for the once great left hander is now a victim of the White Plague.

A neglected cold, contracted while keeping all all-night vigil on a wavering levee at Hickman, Ky., last winter, which developed into pneumonia, is said to have been the cause of the illness.

PHILLIES LAND JACOBS.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 1.—Pitcher Elmer Jacobs, of the Burlington, Iowa, Central League club, has been purchased by Manager Dooin for the Phillies. The purchase price was not given out.

Evelyn Thaw Bares Another Chapter of Her Life

District Attorney Jerome Sketched at the Trial by Evelyn Thaw.

In a double page installment of candid revelations in next Sunday's American. She tells with amazing interest how District Attorney Jerome tried to humiliate her and discredit her testimony at her husband's trial for the slaying of Stanford White.

You cannot dodge the thrilling human interest of this outpouring of a woman's soul. It's more gripping than fiction and has a moral for everyday life.

COURT CLEAR AS JUDGES TRADE OFFICES

Appeals Docket Empty for First Time—Roan and Hill to Succeed Each Other.

For the first time in the history of any court of review in Georgia, and so far as the records show, of any court of like character in the entire United States, the docket of the appeals to-day stands with an absolutely clear docket, with no business whatever before it for consideration.

Every case heretofore argued has been decided, and all decisions written and placed in the hands of the clerical force for publication.

As a matter of fact, with a few relatively unimportant exceptions, every decision rendered already has been published, and those remaining will be handed to the press within the next day or two.

The new court, with Judge Roan on the bench, will begin business to all intents and purposes just as if it were newly organized.

Chief Judge Benjamin Harvey Hill retires from the Appeals Court bench to-day to be succeeded to-morrow by Judge L. S. Roan, who, in his turn, is to be succeeded on the Atlanta Superior Court by Judge Hill.

Judges Labor Hard.

The Appeals Court has worked overtime, each judge laboring far into the night, for more than two months, getting ready for Judge Hill's retirement. Judge Hill himself has strained every point to get an absolutely clean record behind him before stepping down from his high position.

In this work he has been aided cordially and in every way he can by colleagues, Judges Russell and Pottle.

Since Judge Hill agreed to accept the Atlanta Superior Court appointment, the Appeals Court has handed down more than 60 decisions, and no one of them has been hastily prepared or in the slightest degree immaturely considered.

With the retirement of Judge Hill Judge Richard B. Russell becomes Chief Judge of the court, by right of seniority, as that is the rule in that body. Judge Russell is, moreover, the only judge now serving on the Appeals Bench who was elected originally to sit upon the same.

Judge Pottle, who ranks second to Judge Russell on the Appeals Bench, stands in line next for the Chief Judgeship should Judge Russell not be a candidate for re-election next year. There have been rumors that Judge Pottle intended resigning soon, but the judge has denied them rather emphatically.

New Record Set.

The Appeals Court is one of the hardest worked courts in Georgia, and its record in cleaning up its docket absolutely before sitting down for the forthcoming new order is unparalleled in the judicial history of the State.

Lawyers generally express themselves as greatly pleased with the work of the court, and the fact that it starts anew with an open docket means that decisions will come with a greater degree of promptness in the future than is expected of courts of review generally.

As a matter of fact, however, the present Appeals Bench has established a definite reputation for promptness in the past, and but for that, to-day's remarkable showing hardly would have been possible.

Tax Books Close With $300,000 Still Unpaid

The closing of the city tax books has placed in the hands of City Marshal Fuller the collection of $300,000 in overdue taxes.

"I hate to advertise anybody's property for sale," said Mr. Fuller Thursday, "but if these taxes are not paid by December 1 am forced by law to auction off the property for the taxes, and those who want to redeem it will have to pay the fi. fa. cost."

Inherits $38,991 In 3 Hours of Life

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—An infant who lived only three hours inherited $38,991. The infant was George H. DeBrackeleer, son of Mrs. Jeannette M. DeBrackeleer, who died at the birth of the child.

The mother left her property to her husband, a local lawyer, and to any child that might be born. The infant's share went to his father.

Percy Lambert, Auto Speed Title Holder, Is Killed During Race

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Percy Lambert, holder of the world's automobile speed record, was killed in an automobile accident to-day at the Brooklands Aerodrome.

Last year on the same track Lambert drove 102 miles and 1,740 yards in an hour in a Clement-Talbot car. This was the greatest distance ever traveled by man in an hour outside of an aeroplane.

The Brooklands track is laid out in a circle, two miles to the lap. Lambert was spinning around the circle in his torpedo-shaped car to-day when it turned over. The driver was crushed to death.

Auto Turns Turtle; Woman Badly Hurt

FITZGERALD, Oct. 31.—While returning from the Macon fair the automobile of W. Rodgers, Commissioner of Roads and Bridges of Ben Hill County, turned turtle about five miles from Fitzgerald.

Mrs. Rodgers was seriously injured, Mr. Rodgers received a few bruises and scratches. Their two children escaped injury. The car was completely wrecked.

Adamsville Convict Camp Given Piano

The evenings of the convicts of the Adamsville camp have been turned from dreary lonesomeness to the merry fellowship of music by the Phillips & Crew Company, who have given the camp a good piano.

The men in the camp are white men who range in age from 18 years to hardened old men of 60 years, and a committee representing them has written the piano firm a letter of thanks.

First Skyscraper Soon To Be Razed

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The first building ever erected around a skeleton of steel, the "father" of the skyscrapers, is to be torn down. The structure is known as the Tower Building.

RACE FOR PRIZES IN AD CONTEST NEARS END

Keen Rivalry Makes It Necessary for Contestants to Work Hard Next Two Weeks.

Do you know that November 15 will soon be here? That is the day on which The Georgian's Big Ad Contest will close. Will you be one of the prize winners, or will you not? If not, you have no one to blame but yourself. These prizes can not be won without an effort on your part. They will not be won by a small one. Such magnificent prizes as these are eagerly sought after. There are just enough people who realize this fact that it is going to take a heavy vote to land the best prizes.

There is still time to work, and if you take advantage of the remaining two weeks there is no reason why you should lose. Secure the advertising before it is too late. Your friends will be just as proud as you when they see your name at the top of the list on the closing date.

The prize you win will depend solely on your own efforts. If you set your aim for the automobile or the $1,400 in gold, you will no doubt be a grand prize winner, if you work accordingly. If you are satisfied with only the last prize on the list you may not win any at all.

In this great contest you have a chance to match your capacity against that of others—measure your popularity with that of others, test the real depth of friendship of your friends and compare it with the friends and friendship of others. In this effort many are finding what they can do under pressure and are learning their capacity as they could not get it in any other field of endeavor.

All Around The Town

Little Facts and Fancies About Well-Known Atlantans.

Fred Linnell, the hotel man, has always prided himself on being a real woman hater. His constant vow was, "I have lived in Atlanta seventeen years and I have never met a half dozen women here."

A few weeks ago Will Zimmer gave a barbecue to the Atlanta Hotel Men's Association and Linnell, of course, was there. So was that able jester, Fred Houser. Just as the barbecue became active, some six automobiles came up filled with friends of Zimmer and their wives. Houser carefully led each lady to the blushing Linnell and introduced him, asking her to be sure to speak to him whenever she saw him on the street. Since then Linnell has spent so much time bowing that he has about decided to raise a beard to disguise himself.

Dr. "Billie" Elkin gets many invitations to dinner, and not infrequently he is called upon to respond to some toast or other.

"I'm a way," said Dr. Elkin to-day, "I probably am the best after-dinner speaker in Atlanta, particularly if it is long enough after dinner. True, I never have made any after-dinner speeches that set the worlds on fire exactly, but I know I can do it. At last, I invariably can think of the finest after-dinner speeches ever, on my way home after dinner good and proper. I love to make after-dinner speeches to myself as I journey home. They are great, as anybody would agree, if only I could sometimes get one out of my system at the psychological moment."

"It surprised me not a little," said D. F. McClatchey to-day, "to learn that somebody is kicking on a rumpus in Savannah about the operation of divers and sundry floodating emporiums, the kind wherein they sell joy water, of course, until recently I noted that it is not so much the quantity of the portions sold as it is the quality.

"There is too much mean liquor sold in this town," said a judge down there recently. And there he stopped. It is all right, more or less, I suppose, to sell it in that burg, but to sell it 'mean!' That's taking a sure-enough 'mean' advantage of those unsuspecting and overcredulous Savannah people, sure!"

Citizen "Jack" Slaton lunches practically every noon, now. One day it is in the Kimball House cafe, another in the Ansley Hatrobeler, another day at the University Club, another in some relative's choice Greek restaurant—anywhere, so the service is good and the food is to his liking. Now and then people wishing to talk Capitol business lay for Citizen "Jack" at these points. But Citizen "Jack" uniformly declines to "talk shop" at lunch hour.

Judge "Bob" Pottle, of the Court of Appeals, came mighty near being run down by a gaily-mounted bicyclist to-day. It happened at the corner of South Pryor and Hunter streets, and the ebony rider missed the judge not more than half an inch, and on it then became his honor jumped vigorously to one side, much after the fashion of ordinary folks.

"Hey, you, cadburnitall!" began the judge, turning wrathfully upon the youthful offender.

And then a friend, mindful of the judicial dignity and so forth and so on, expostulated with the judge. "It's all over," said he, "and you are not hurt—why squabble?"

"That's right," said the judge, smiling. "No use raising a rough house now, is there? Guess I ought to thank my stars I am not on the way to the hospital!"

And then that Ethiopian offender rode away down South Pryor, while the judge outdoes, his black prince albert tightly across his chest and proceeded on toward the State Capitol.

W. W. Kirkpatrick, secretary to W. H. Leahy, of the Industrial and Statistical Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, saw nothing but Glooms when he opened the door of his bureau at No. 122 Holderness street this morning and started down to work. It was bitter cold and he figured that maybe he had better buy an overcoat.

He had a new overcoat last June, when someone entered his house and stole it. So Glooms strutted beside him and mooned him until he got to Peters street and started to pass a pawnshop. Then a Joy came along and took possession of his soul.

His stolen overcoat hung in front of the pawnshop, marked with a big "for sale." But Kirkpatrick identified the coat, but the pawnbroker wouldn't let him have it, so he got the detectives and took it anyway. He waited home to lunch, without seeing a single Gloom.

H. N. Dutton, manager of the Piedmont Hotel, is talking all the time down in the basement of his establishment these days and something with price to what he calls "the biggest apples in captivity." They are Georgia red beauties, and were grown in Nordi, Georgia, when Comrade Mr. Dutton had them shipped direct to the Piedmont, and says he intends to serve Georgia apples exclusively hereafter, or at least as many Georgia apples as he can get hold of. Those he has now are the first native grown apples that ever invaded the Piedmont cellars.

Thin Folks Who Would Be Fat

Increase in Weight Ten Pounds or More.

A Physician's Advice.

"I'd certainly give almost anything to be able to fat up a few pounds and stay that way," declares every excessively thin man or woman. Such result is not impossible, despite past failures. Thin people are victims of malnutrition, a condition which prevents the fatty elements of food from being taken up by the blood as they are when the powers of nutrition are normal. Instead of getting into the blood, all the fat and flesh producing elements stay in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste.

To correct this condition and to produce a healthy, normal amount of fat the nutritive processes must be artificially supplied with the power which nature has denied them. This can best be accomplished by eating a Sargol Tablet with every meal. Sargol is a scientific combination of six of the best strength-giving, fat-producing elements known to the medical profession. Taken with meals, it takes with the food and turns the sugars and starches into rich, ripe nourishment for the tissues and blood and its rapid effect is remarkable. Reported gains of from 10 to 25 pounds in a single month are by no means infrequent. Yet its action is perfectly natural and absolutely harmless. Sargol is sold by Jacobs' Pharmacy and other good druggists everywhere and every package contains a guarantee of weight increase or money back.

Caution:—While Sargol has produced remarkable results in the treatment of nervous indigestion and general weakness, it should not, owing to its remarkable fleshproducing effect, be used by those who are not willing to increase their weight ten pounds or more.

SMOKE KILLS BABY LYING IN CRADLE

With the mother almost prostrated by grief, the funeral service of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. John Sheemnas, who died from suffocation when their home burned Friday afternoon, was set for 11 o'clock Saturday morning at Harry G. Poole's chapel, with the burial at Westview.

The mother had left the baby in its cradle at home at No. 104 Mills street to go to her husband's grocery, two doors away. A few minutes after the mother had left, neighbors saw smoke coming from the building.

The mother was among the first to hear the alarm. She rushed to the door and opened it, to be met by a wall of smoke and flame. Firemen reaching the house at the same time, kept the frantic woman from entering. It was nearly ten minutes before the fire was subdued enough to permit an entrance. Then Chief Cummings made the venture. He returned with the body of the infant.

The house was destroyed. It was owned by Poolas & Sullonas, and was valued at $500.

THE SOCIAL WORLD

While many elaborate affairs have been given at the Piedmont Club, the Halloween ball and harvest festival Friday evening was unsurpassed. In addition to the magnificent decorations, the charm of quaint and original costumes worn by some of the guests was a feature.

While the majority of the guests wore conventional evening clothes, many entered into the spirit of the affair and appeared in typical harvest costumes. Mr. and Mrs. William Lawson Peel appeared as harvest workers, and their dance together was one of the hits of the evening. Mrs. Peel wore a red wig, topped by a large green bonnet, laden with red roses, with a gay costume of blue, flowered in immense pink roses. A little white shawl completed the costume. Mr. Peel appeared in a typical workers' costume. Their daughters, Mrs. Phinizy Calhoun and Mrs. William A. Tilt, were dressed as twins, both wearing short pink dresses, with their fair hair braided in tight little braids.

Marsh Adair was a typical farmer, and carried over one shoulder a live possum.

The debutantes were charming in their quaint and original costumes. Miss Callie Hoke Smith wore a short frock, little white apron and white sunbonnet. Miss Margaret Grant was charming as a milkmaid, wearing a short pink frock, white apron, with her love hair in long braids.

As Queen Cotton Miss Adgate Ellis wore a charming costume formed entirely of cotton, and carried a large sheaf of cotton stalks tied with green ribbons. Miss Ellis not only drew for the prize offered for the most appropriate costume worn by a debutante, for which Misses Jessie McKee and Margaret Grant were also contestants, but she also won the prize for the best lady dancer. Miss Katherine White wore a very striking witch's costume. Charming costumes also were worn by Misses Adeline Davis, of Virginia; Mary Helen Moody, Jennie D. Harris, Laura Lee Cooney, Dorothy Herman and Helen McCullough. Miss McKee's costume of yellow voile had a string of tiny yellow pumpkins caught to her waist with an appropriate headdress. Miss Mary Hines and her guest, Miss Hallie Morton, were charming milkmaids.

Mrs. Peel won the prize for the best harvest costume, other prizes being won by Frank Inman and Marsh Adair, Governor Slaton, Colonel Robert J. Lowry, Mrs. Clark Howell, Mrs. Frank Ellis and Mrs. John W. Grant were judges.

The decorations included great sheaves of corn stalks and wheat, pumpkin lanterns, black cats, witches, owls, while a realistic witch stood over her caldron at one end of the ballroom. The entire affair was marked by cleverness and originality, and was one of the most brilliant events enjoyed by Atlanta society.

Mrs. McRae Entertains.

Mrs. Floyd McRae gave a tea Saturday afternoon for Miss Sarah Rawson and Miss Sula Jackson, brides-elect. The McRae residence was elaborately decorated, pink chrysanthemums adorning the drawing room, where the guests were received. Punch was served in the sun parlor, where the walls were covered with autumn leaves and starred with pink shaded lights. From the center there fell a shower of lights. The punch bowl was imbedded in fruits.

The table was adorned with a silver basket of white chrysanthemums tied with pink ribbons, while smaller cutglass baskets held pink and white bonbons.

Mrs. McRae wore white brocade satin with crystal and rhinestone trimmings. Miss Jackson wore pistache green crepe de chine, with tulle of shadow lace bordered in fur, the draperies caught with one large pink rose. Miss Rawson was gowned in rose-colored crepe meteor combined with gold lace and brown fur.

A group of girls who will be brides-maids at the two weddings assisted. Guests included the unmarried set with only a few matrons.

Donation Day.

Donation day at the Home for Old Women will be observed on Tuesday, November 4, from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. Mrs. Leslie D. Solair and Miss Arlin Purtell will be chairmen and will be at the home.

Donation day, which is the first Tuesday of each month, has become an established custom of the home, and the donations received on these occasions have been helpful to the home and pleasant to the visitors. The entire house is open for inspection, and the work is explained to those unfamiliar with it.

Donations of any kind will be gladly accepted and appreciated by the board of managers.

Mrs. Clayton Hostess.

Mrs. George R. Clayton entertained her dancing club and a few other friends on Thursday afternoon at a Halloween party. The house was elaborately decorated with black cats, witches and pumpkins.

Mrs. Clayton was assisted by her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Clayton, and Miss Julia House. Those present were Mrs. R. H. McDougall, Mrs. Arthur Craige, Mrs. Maurice Fox, Mrs. P. C. Norris, Mrs. William Oldknow, Mrs. A. Fleischakenl, Mrs. T. M. Moyers, Mrs. Joe Towler, Mrs. Thewes Yardaman, Mrs. R. C. Blair, Mrs. D. H. Floyd, Mrs. Rudolph Goble, Mrs. J. W. Hardwick, Mrs. Sid Harling, Mrs. P. C. Davies, Mrs. G. M. Holland, Mrs. J. W. Holmes, Mrs. J. E. Ricketts, Mrs. F. H. Richenwalter, Mrs. F. H. McCulloch, Mrs. C. L. Palmer, Mrs. C. A. Werber, Mrs. A. Wilson, Mrs. T. M. Word and Miss Carrie Dukes.

For Miss Rawson.

Miss Passie May Ottley entertained luncheon Saturday at her home Joyease, in compliment to Miss Sarah Rawson, whose wedding to Mr. Marion Smith will take place November 12.

The luncheon table has as its centerpiece an empire basket of pink and white chrysanthemums. The place cards were orange blossoms. Miss Ottley wore white silk adorned with the empire wreaths of roses, and Miss Rawson wore an elegant tailored gown of blue serge, trimmed in black satin; her blouse was of blue chiffon and her hat was black velvet.

Twelve guests were present.

Bridge Club.

Mrs. Henry Baker was hostess to her bridge club Thursday afternoon at her home in North Boulevard. After the game the guests were served at the Ivy in the dining room, where the table was decorated in the Hallowe'en pumpkins and lanterns with a large basket of autumn leaves as a centerpiece.

The prizes were won by Mrs. Lepsy Webb and Mrs. John C. Reese.

Needlework Exhibit.

Needlecraft Circle No. 1 of Ridgewood will be at home Wednesday, November 5, at the residence of Mrs. M. Y. Hartwell, No. 76 North Maysen avenue, from 3 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon and from 8 to 10 o'clock in the evening.

All interested friends are invited to call and inspect the handiwork of the members during these hours.

Two prizes and a trophy will be awarded in each class, in addition to which the president will present a medium trophy to the contestant who carries off most honors.

College Park Woman's Club.

The College Park Woman's Club will meet on Wednesday, November 5, at 3:30 p. m., in the clubrooms at Oak College.

A musical program, with Mrs. Kurt Moeller in charge, a reading by Miss Emma Goode, and the report of the Cuthbert convention by the club's delegate, Mrs. H. D. Gray, will be the features of the afternoon. An executive board meeting has been called for 3 p. m.

For Miss Ashford.

Mrs. Victor Smith entertained at a bridge luncheon Saturday for Miss Margaret Ashford, a bride-elect.

The guests included Misses Fannie Neal Anderson, of Athens; Clifford West, Mary Morris, Helen Morris, Louise Jarrannore, Annie Carleton, Genevieve Morris, Mrs. H. B. Chapman, Mrs. Lucius McConnell, Mrs. John Morris, Jr., Mrs. J. T. Durgan, Mrs. Clarence Angier, Mrs. Harry Cottar, Mrs. Robert Hughes, Mrs. Edward Malone, Mrs. Howard Parker and Mrs. J. F. B. Allan.

Miss Clayton's Halloween Party.

Miss Elizabeth Clayton entertained at a Halloween party on Thursday evening. The house was decorated with symbols of Halloween time.

All Around The Town

Little Facts and Fancies About Well-Known Atlantans.

Albert L. Dann, Exalted Ruler of the local Elks Lodge, already is feeling the Christmas spirit in his bones. He believes that once each year, if no oftener, the sweet spirit of charity, unostentatious, but generous, should be permitted to soak into a man's being entirely.

"There should not be one empty stocking in this town—nor in any other town, for that matter—on Christmas day," said Dann, speculating upon the outlook to-day. "If ever there comes a time when men should open wide their hearts, it is at Christmas time. Already the Elks about the clubhouse in Ellis street are beginning to talk Christmas and its relations to poor folks—and I know that means the lodge is preparing to make the coming Christmas a little brighter and better for a lot of humble folks in this world, anyway."

An Atlanan, whose name is not to mentioned here for obvious reasons, was congratulating himself to-day upon getting rid of an expensive nuisance at relatively little cost.

"This fellow," said he, "makes a practice of borrowing $5 from me every couple of months, but he never pays me back until I get after him three or four times. For certain reasons, however, I have failed to turn him down flat, so I generally let him have the five spot, despite the annoyance. To-day, however, he borrowed just $1 from me, and I never shall ask him to return that. He never will unless I do, but in the meantime he will not ask to borrow any more. Therefore, I am rid of him, for good, at the cheap price of $1. Guess I'll stand pat on that as good business!"

Hamilton Douglas, Jr., who has been made assistant secretary to Attorney General Felder, is a prime favorite with the Boy Scouts of Atlanta. Douglas goes "hiking" with them, camping with them, meets regularly with them, knows them all by their first names, and is a good fellow among them. They all love him accordingly, of course.

Young Mr. Douglas knows how to handle boys—and many folks think that a rare and valuable art.

Louis Gholstin the other night entertained a guest who came to his house without an overcoat. As everyone knows, Mr. Gholstin is short and stately in stature. The guest, who recently moved to Atlanta, is very tall and thin. "Where's your overcoat?" asked the host.

"It's coming here by freight with my furniture," said the guest. "I suppose I will have to buy a new one to-morrow."

"You will do no such thing," said Mr. Gholstin. "I have a new one I don't like, and you will wear it until yours comes."

He insisted, despite protests, and any day you can see the stranger thoroughly happy in Mr. Gholstin's 250 coat.

It is a foot or so too short and a couple of feet too wide, but it is very comfortable and it pleases him as well as his wearing it pleases the generous Mr. Gholstin.

W. H. Leahy, secretary of the Industrial Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, has what he claims is the largest, sweet potato in captivity. It weighs exactly 7 pounds, is 4 feet long, 4½ inches in diameter and 16 inches in circumference.

The big potato was grown on the farm of P. J. Voss, of near Smyrna, Ga., and was presented to Mr. Leahy by Mr. Voss. The secretary says he is going to have it made up into sweet potato pie, then decare a holiday and see how much of it he can eat.

Solicitor Hugh Dorsey and Reuben Arnold seemed about to come to blows or to a passage at arms during one of their superheated arguments in the Frank trial hearing. Few adjectives had been left unused in the attacks and counter-attacks. Five minutes later they were laughing and talking together as amicably as any two cronies.

"Hugh and I are like the two lawyers the timorous old woman saw," explained Arnold. "They were arguing an important case and she thought they were about to tear each other limb from limb. When one of them followed the other from the courtroom, she was sure murder was about to be done. She called frantically for a policeman. What the bluecoat saw when he arrived was the two lawyers in the nearest barroom having the friendliest sort of a drink together. The only place where the analogy falls down is in the fact that I don't drink."

MERCER RETIRES AS STATE GAME GUARDIAN

Commissioner Presented With Fine Token by Wardens—C. L. Davis Takes Office Saturday.

State Game Commissioner Jesse Mercer, of Fitzgerald, to-day closes his term of service, and to-morrow will turn over his high office to his successor, Charles L. Davis, of Warm Springs.

About noon to-day Commissioner Mercer was presented with a handsome silver loving cup, a gift from the various county wardens, all appointees of Mr. Mercer, as an evidence of their high esteem and affection personally and officially.

Mr. Mercer was overcome with emotion when the loving cup was presented, and responded feelingly to the words of the donors, delivered through a committee especially selected.

Mr. Mercer leaves his office after a little more than two years of service, with a record of which his friends are immensely proud.

He was the first Game Warden the State ever had, having been appointed by Governor Hoke Smith, after the enactment of the law setting up the department.

Mercer started with nothing to work upon, but to-morrow he will turn over to his successor $15,078 in cash, and he has paid all the expenses of his department during the two years. Besides this, he has paid into the common school fund $5,043.73.

Served Without Salary.

In addition he leaves more than $2,500 worth of property in the hands of his successor.

Altogether, Mr. Mercer says the State is more than $26,000 ahead because of the creation of his department, and every county is thoroughly and compactly organized for the enforcement of the law and the protection of game.

For more than a year Mr. Mercer served without salary in the department, as the Legislature in creating the department neglected originally to provide a salary or an expense account. Mercer managed somehow, and eventually the Legislature reimbursed him for his personal expenditures.

In retiring Mr. Mercer talked enthusiastically of the help accorded to him by his official force, and especially in regard to the work of his treasurer, Delemar Turner.

"He has been my friend and associate for years," said Mr. Mercer. "He is reliable to the last degree, faithful and loyal. His salary never has been what it should have been, but he has not grumbled. I feel under everlasting obligations to him."

Will Take Vacation.

Mr. Mercer declined to discuss his plans for the future. He says he has several proposals under consideration, but will make up his mind definitely concerning none of them until later. For the present his purpose is to take a short vacation.

Mr. Mercer's term of office really expired September 1, but he was permitted by Governor Slaton to serve longer, as there were some few things he wished to carry out before retiring, and of these plans the executive approved.

Charles L. Davis, who succeeds Mr. Mercer to-morrow, is one the best known men in Georgia. He is recognized generally as the "father of the State game laws," having been in a large measure responsible for the present law, under which Mr. Mercer served.

Tennessean Gets 20 Years for Killing Wife

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., Oct. 31. Charles W. Goodlake has been sentenced to twenty years for the murder of his wife at their summer home at Cottonport, Tenn., last spring. The jury returned a verdict of murder in the second degree.

Goodlake, who is prominently connected in this section, attempted to kill his son at the same time. He was captured after a battle with officers while barricaded in his home.

Spencer Raves When Assigned a Lawyer

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Henry Spencer, slayer of 29 persons, became raving in the Dupage County courtroom to-day when the judge showed him an order naming a Chicago lawyer to defend him. He uttered shrill screams and threw the paper to the floor and stamped on it. Four bailiffs dragged him to his cell.

"I'll kill them all," he shouted, "if they let me go they'll be sorry for it!"

Lung Trouble Yielded to This Medicine

If you are suffering with Lung Trouble, or if you know of some unfortunate person so afflicted, would you take the trouble of fully investigating a medicine which has brought complete recovery in a number of very serious cases? If so, Eckman's Alterative, a remedy for Whitlow and Lung Troubles, has been given the fullest credit of restoring health in a large number of cases. Read this:

3232 Girard Ave., Phila., Pa.

"Gentlemen: In the winter of 1905 I had an attack of Grippe, followed by Pneumonia, and later by Lung Trouble. In the winter of 1906 I had cough, night sweats, fever and raised quantities of awful-looking stuff and later I had heavy hemorrhages; at one time three in three successive days. Milk and eggs became so distasteful I could keep nothing down. Three physicians treated me. I was ordered to the mountains, but did not go. Eckman's Alterative was recommended by a friend. After taking a small quantity I had a decided relief and started lung for first. I gained strength and weight, and the cough gradually lessened until suffering gone. (Affidavit sent.)" ANNIE F. LOUGHRAN.

Speaker's Daughter To Pick House's Gift ToWhiteHouseBride

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Miss Genevieve Clark, daughter of the Speaker of the House, has been chosen by members of the House to select the wedding present for Miss Jessie Wilson, daughter of the President, for which the lawmakers have contributed $2,000.

The choice of the members is divided between a silver service and a pearl necklace, with the odds in favor of the former, and it is expected silver will be selected in accordance with precedent.

Col. Jeffries Fails As Chicken Doctor

Colonel Thomas Jeffries, Clerk of the Superior Court, admitted Friday that as a chicken doctor he is an utter failure. One of his prize Black Orpingtons was languishing the other day. When Colonel Jeffries returned from a brief visit out of town the fowl appeared even in worse condition. An examination revealed that the prize bird had swallowed a string which had pulled its tongue down into its throat.

"Very simple," very simple," muttered Colonel Jeffries, as he pulled the string out with a hairpin and snipped it off with a pair of scissors. Five minutes later, the pullet gave him a farewell glance and lay down and passed away from all earthly troubles.

Negro society of the Ansley was out in force, as the cakewalk was given by the Ansley Hotel Waiters' Association.

MONEY CENTERS CONFUSED OVER INCOME TAX

Rule for Collection at "Source" May Halt Disbursement of Millions Saturday.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Extraordinary confusion prevailed here and in other investment centers as the result of the Government ruling that collections under the income tax clause of the tariff law shall "be at the source."

Disbursements of $1,700,000,000 on stocks and bonds, due November 1, were less than 24 hours away, and capitalists and lawyers figuratively ran around in circles trying to get a solution of the troublesome question. What is the source?

As for the investors, their quest after information heightened the perturbation of the bankers and legal advisers. On account of the confusion thousands of bond coupons which will be presented Saturday will not be paid.

United States Commissioner of Internal Revenue W. H. Osborn explained that the Government tax on stocks, bonds, mortgages and deeds of trust shall be deducted by the corporation paying the interest, or agents of the corporation, and named six exceptions, but this did not clarify the situation, as many industrial enterprises are represented by fiscal agents which pay interest.

The lawyers are not sure whether it would be legal for these fiscal agents to deduct the Government tax, because they are not rightfully the "source."

One of the largest trust companies in New York, through which about $5,000,000 of corporation funds are to be paid Saturday, is in doubt how to proceed, and has asked for a ruling from Washington.

Most of the banks are opening new departments to handle this branch of business exclusively.

Douglas Named as Felder's Secretary

Hamilton, Douglas, Jr., has been appointed secretary to Attorney General Thomas Felder, to take effect Saturday. Douglas, for the past three years, has been secretary to Chief Justice Fish, of the Supreme Court.

Douglas succeeds J. G. Roberts, who will take up the practice of law. Erwin Sibley, secretary for some time to Judge Pottle, of the Court of Appeals, will take up the duties of Douglas.

RULE PUPILS BY LOVE, NOT ROD, LOGAN SAYS

Associated Charities Head Declares He Has Tried Whipping Children and It Doesn't Work.

Joseph C. Logan, secretary of the Associated Charities, is another who believes that the whipping of children in schools and homes soon will be a thing of the past. Mr. Logan says he has tried whipping and knows whereof he speaks when he condemns it.

"In my opinion," he said, "within the next 25 years the whipping of children in schools or in homes will be regarded with the same aversion as we now view the whipping post. The deepest meaning of the process of the ages is the development of persons freely related to each other through knowledge, discriminating affection and originative will.

"I don't see how whipping children can have anything to do with developing knowledge, affection or right willing.

"Punishment is necessary, but it must be freed from the taint of revenge or vindictiveness. Whipping rarely is accompanied by self-control on the part of the 'bully,' as the child is most likely to regard his corrector, and it can not be freed in the child's mind of revenge or vindictiveness.

"Punishment easily can be found in requiring tasks of children, or depriving them of something which they otherwise might have enjoyed. The best punishment is that which can naturally be related in the mind of the child to the offense which has been committed.

"I have five children and I have tried whipping; but it doesn't work.

"Let's substitute love and firmness and patience."

Dice Shooters in Road Blocked Churchgoers

SAVANNAH, Oct. 31.—Because of a complaint filed with the police that people who live on the Louisville road were unable to attend church services Sunday on account of crap shooters blocking traffic in the open road, the county police to-day rounded up the negroes, and claim they have broken up the gang.

SAVE YOUR HAIR! IF FALLING OUT OR DANDRUFF—25-CENT DANDERINE

Ladies! Men! Here's the Quickest, Surest Dandruff Cure Known.

This, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its luster, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine to-night—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, luster and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance; an incomparable gloss and softness, but what will please you most will be just after a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.—Advt.

"CASCARETS" FOR LIVER—HEADACHE

You're Bilious and Constipated, Clean Up Inside and Feel Bully.

Get a 10-cent box now.

You're bilious! You have a throbbing sensation in your head, a bad taste in your mouth, your eyes burn, your skin is yellow, with dark rings under your eyes; your lips are parched. No wonder you feel ugly, mean and ill-tempered. Your system is full of bile not properly passed off, and what you need is a clearing up inside. Don't continue being a bilious nuisance to yourself and those who love you, and don't resort to harsh physics that irritate and injure. Remember that most disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels are cured by morning with gentle, thorough Cascarets—they work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your liver and bowels clean, stomach sweet and your head clear for months. Children love to take Cascarets, because they taste good and never gripe or sicken.—Advt.

COTTON MARKET IS EXTREMELY DULL

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The cotton market opened steady to-day, with first prices not unchanged to 5 points lower than the closing quotations on Friday. The buying was rather general and the opening was much better than expected, considering the poor Liverpool cables. The buying was attributed to the same sources that were noticeable on the buying side yesterday and also scalped a points on near positions from the initial range.

The principal feature of the opening was the selling of December and buying of January and March by brokers closely identified with spot interests. The ring was inclined to sell on the near months in the English market, due to free offerings of actual cotton and the belief that Liverpool is overbought, and at the end of the first half hour the list widened its decline to 2 to 12 points. The increase in the market was attributed more to the holiday in New Orleans than anything else. On and after the call the market was so small and limited it could hardly be called a market.

The weather news was bad, and more freezing weather is expected over Sunday. The map indicates another cold spell, with heavy rains in North Texas and frost to-night in North Carolina, probably light in South Carolina, and light local frost in North and Central Georgia, where there is still some unmatured bolls. In addition to this, it was rumored that the National Ginners' report will be out soon with a very bullish report. Despite all of this, the market failed to respond in any following power worth mentioning.

On the close, traders evidently went short on the theory that Liverpool would not respond to-day strongly. Liverpool is due 5 to 6 points higher Monday.

At the close the market was steady, with prices 2 to 6 points lower than the final quotations of Friday.

COTTON GOSSIP

It is rumored from the South that banks are calling loans on cotton.

A big Texas spot man, who is probably the largest buyer of cotton that was during September, has written a friend in Hanover Square that the quality of the cotton now coming in is so bad that he has decided not to handle it at all. He has closed his house for the season and withdrawn from the market, preferring to let others operate while he considers the large risk of buying such cotton in expectation of reselling it.

Dallas wired: "Think Texas is good for 4,000,000 bales, but lots of low grades. Looks like 800,000 for Oklahoma."

"Reports from Manchester are anything but cheerful," according to one of the largest Liverpool firms. "Sellers of American yarns find it difficult to trade either with home users or exporters. A few mills using American cotton have commenced to work short time. It would not be surprising to see organized short time next January, but the fine spinning trade is good."

* * *

Journal of Commerce says: "The market for cotton goods is firmer. The reports of cotton condition do not give promise of any abundance of cotton and merchants are becoming reconciled to the probability of a hard year of trading, due to the high price of raw material. The trend of buying has become conservative. More goods are wanted by jobbers and converters."

* * *

Replies to Weil & Co. indicate a gaining up to October 31 of 8,787,186 bales.

Dallas wires: "Texas generally cloudy and warmer; rain at Abilene, Oklahoma, Shreveport; average temperature 49 degrees."

Following is the statistical position of the cotton crop for October 31 as made up by The New York Financial Chronicle:

N. L. Carpenter & Co. says: "As is shown by Secretary Hester's estimate the into-sight movement for the past week, which he places at 742,000 to 752,000 bales, compared with 748,000 last year and 641,000 in 1911, we must realize that the period of full movement of cotton crop can has been reached within the first 25 days of the present month, and now is the time when the buyer will be forced to secure at least a part of his requirement for the year is hoping for such circumstances that prices will be depressed, giving the manufacturer a better chance to secure cheap cotton; therefore, it is natural, and one of the laws of self-preservation that the buyers of the great staple should combine in their efforts to use every argument to depress values so that they can get what they call a little cheap cotton.

"For the next three or four weeks the cotton market promises to be rather a waiting affair until the bulk of movement is disposed of, but on any good decline we think the long side will prove the most profitable. As to the decline there is a large, unwieldy, scattered crop, and the weather is not calculated from buying on forecast of freezing weather, which has occurred in this week, but the market is so narrow that the shorts does not seem to be covering, leaving power left to lift it until the selling pressure is first exhausted. The cotton goods trade is very quiet, and while there is a decided upgrade movement, the buying

Every American Can Write About This National Flypaper.

Some of the flies miss the flypaper—the b g, sticky money sheet—and think themselves miserable because they miss its sweetness.

Some settle down, stick, and are heard of no more.

A few wise ones are able to get from that "national flypaper" just what they want, then escape without injury and go away to do someth ng useful.

They are all flies drawn by the sticky paper. You can write your editor'al about that.

HERE IS THE BIG DRIVER.

This is the gentleman on horseback—you all know him—and you could write many a column about h m.

When he comes along w th h.s black horse and his long whip and we feel the lash of necessity and the thunder ng hoofs behind us, we forget ornaments, prettiness and other foolishness, and begin to run.

"Necessity" is the modern "gadfly" praised by Socrates for keeping men busy.

Don't be sorry that you have this white spectre on the black horse behind you. If you do anything worth wh le, the chances are at least a thousand to one that you w.ll do it because necessity drives you.

Of course, occasionally necess'ty frightens a man, and the man lies down and says: "Run over me, I don't care." But such a one is not really a man, but a mouse.

Letters From the Readers of The Georgian

TREATY OF GHENT.

Editor The Georgian:

I suggest the celebration in New Orleans, December 24, 1914, of the one hundredth anniversary of the Treaty of Ghent, signed by representatives of Great Britain and the United States, declaring peace between the two great nations, the celebration to end January 8, 1915, the one hundredth anniversary of the Battle of New Orleans, the end of hostilities between the two nations. In view of the factors to secure the Panama opening celebration, these two great events would enthuse New Orleans.

HOW BISHOPS ARE CHOSEN.

Editor The Georgian:

In the October 15 issue of your paper, which came to hand this morning, I find a most interesting church news item under the caption, "Bishop Candidate for Bishop," and its contents state alleged facts in keeping with the headline. Dr. Ainsworth is a friend of mine, and I took the liberty of calling his attention to the item, which bore the date line of a dispatch from Macon. He writes me as follows: "My Dear Doctor—Yours to hand. I do not take any Atlanta paper, and have not seen the dispatch referred to by you. I know nothing whatever about it. Yours sincerely, W. S. Ainsworth."

The item seems to misunderstand Methodist policies in regard to the creation of bishops. Bishops are elected by the General Conference of the Church, which meets once every four years. The next meeting will be in Oklahoma City in May, 1914. This conference will decide whether any bishops will be created. In no case does a man become a candidate for the high office.

The "Non-Refillable" Bottle

This is the GENUINE "non-refillable."

Once you pour it out, you can NEVER fill it again.

Through this bottle the miserable drunkard pours out all that makes life worth while—hope, ambition, friends, family, self-respect.

One after another they are poured out by the hand that trembles more and more. And each is gone and lost forever.

The "non-refillable" bottle. Thousands of men are pouring out their hopes and chances at this moment in each great city.

When will men learn that whisky is poison, and that drunkenness is death?

Missionary Work That Is Left Undone

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1913, by Star Company.

MUCH home missionary work is done by churches all over our land; yet that much is left undone which could be done and that time and money spent in a large part of the foreign mission work could be better employed at home is painfully true.

The world is God's House, and in housecleaning good workers know they must distribute their labors over the whole mansion and not leave any part of it untidy.

So in missionary work, it is wise and well to send toilers and money to teach the people in distant lands a religion which includes hygiene and which helps women and children to be freed from the bondage of unwholesome superstitions and traditions. Only in this way can the world be swept and garnished, and the race made safe from pestilence.

At the same time, vast sums of money are used in foreign mission work which might be put to the most important ends here at home. There is a youth condemned to life imprisonment who was brought up in an American town boasting with church spires, and who lived in sound of church bells, yet the man or woman made the slightest effort to send this unfortunate to his right ways; no one exerted any influence to better his wretched home conditions; no one gave him a thought save to speak of him as an ignorant and wayward and wild youth.

His stepfather and mother were known to be drinking, immoral people, and when the boy became involved in a family fight, which ended in his killing his stepfather, a highly moral jury quickly condemned him to life imprisonment.

At the same time, members of churches and in good standing, they had helped pay the expenses of foreign missionaries who were trying to bring light and knowledge into heathen lands and minds.

The town where dwelt the jurymen prided itself upon sending the largest fund to the missionaries of any town in the State.

When asked why no missionary effort had been made in behalf of the wretched American boy, who lived within a stone's throw of her church, a Christian woman replied, "Why, we never thought about doing anything for him or his family."

But she and her fellow church members had thought about doing a great deal for the Hottentot and the Chinaman.

In China it has for centuries been the habit of many poor people to destroy or give away their girl babies. Christian missions have rescued many thousands of these babies and cared for and educated them.

The letter which is appended makes one ponder on the whys and wherefores of our American methods of charity and benevolence. The letter came as a response to an article in this column, which spoke of the rampant sin everywhere prevalent in civilized lands—of willful "race suicide" in the destruction of unborn children.

The Chinese mother waits until her unwelcome child is born before she destroys it; the Christian American mother in Christian lands is quite as much in need of missionary work as the Chinese woman; and her helpless offspring are even more in need of a crusade for their salvation.

Margaret Murray Dow, of New York, who wrote the following letter, was asked if she would consent to its publication before it was herein presented. Therefore, its rather severe accusations of sins of omission on the part of American Christian clergymen and church members must be regarded as authentic.

"For fourteen long years I have been voluntary missionary to the men of the U. S. M. C. in every way I have tried, as a Christian woman, to guide them aright. Left alone as they are, neglected and without the influence of Christian women and men, save for my gospel meetings and my home, it is no wonder they go away from 'Mothers' prayers.'

"Every temptation that can be presented is before them.

"Not a church goes out of its way to save them. Not a minister but the Rev. T. B. Griswold ever comes to help the meetings.

"About 25 ministers of this great city (New York) have been written of the work, with the one response: 'The big salaried ministers have no time for such small (?) unknown work.'

"In this service it has been my aim to help the lads as a mother would—to warn them against the surroundings at the garrison, to get them to churches and to be a friend to them.

"Women need not down men for a dual life. They have only to regard their attitude to the marriage law in the light of the Almighty's keen eye to know they are worse than the men when they sin against His law.

"A nation is judged by the standard of its women. Let American take care how she lowers the standard at the awful pleasure of women.

"The Downtrodden English Woman"

In Great Britain, He Says, Women Possess Political Power Far Greater Than That Possessed in Any Part of America, Other Than the Nine Woman Suffrage States and Illinois.

By REV. CHARLES F. AKED, D. D.

Written for The Atlanta Georgian.

"WE do not need militant methods in America.

It is different in England." The formula has been repeated from coast to coast in the course of discussions aroused by Mrs. Pankhurst's visit. What is the "it" which is different in England? Somebody ought to be able to answer.

There are variants upon the formula. Sometimes it runs, "Things are different in England," and then one wants to know what things. But when certain influential women in this country escape from indefiniteness and explain their sympathy with Mrs. Pankhurst and the militants in a phrase which is now becoming common, "The laws are different in England," a man like myself, reasonably familiar with British law, begs for enlightenment.

Is what respect to British laws press more hardly upon British women than American laws upon American women in the States where women are still unenfranchised?

An Important Matter.

This matter is important. Here is Mrs. Pankhurst pledging herself not to advocate militant methods in this country, and American women pouring money into her hands for the purpose of financing militant methods in England, alleging as the reason why they themselves will not become "militant" in America while they want women in England to burn houses, wreck trains, throw hatchets and explode dynamite bombs—alleging as the reason why they should keep themselves safe while other women endure imprisonment and torture—that "the laws are different in England." It is a fair question: What laws?

With one reply the distinguished ladies referred to will be ready: The divorce laws are unequal and bad. They are. About this there is no dispute. An Englishman can divorce his wife for an offense for which she can not divorce him. And in my view this admits of no defense.

Yet the explanation is easy. The Englishman is consistent and he has the courage—it may be, the brutal courage—of his convictions. The law to which the American man submits is better than the man's own convictions. It is the secret belief of nine out of ten men in America that there is one law of morality for men and another for women. He condones in himself and in his own son that which he would neither condone nor tolerate in his wife or his daughter. He has to submit to equal divorce laws; but the average man is easily confident that what is for his wife a crime is for himself a trivial affair.

The Englishman expresses in his law his deep convictions of the generations. He holds that an offense is a worse offense when committed by a wife than when committed by a husband. And so he makes his divorce law unequal.

No Second Instance.

Yet the sense of humor is not extinct in America. And it will not be seriously held that this inequality in the laws of divorce constitutes that "difference" which justifies incendiarism and outrage and a recourse to dynamite bombs!

What other laws can be quoted? Up to the present moment, in all the utterances of all the American sympathizers with English militants which have come under my notice, not a second instance has been named. Is there another?

The simple fact is that in Great Britain the woman possesses political power far greater than that possessed in any part of America other than the nine woman suffrage States and Illinois. This is not generally known, but it is a fact. And the women who profess that they sympathize with Mrs. Pankhurst and the militants because "the laws are so different" do not know what they are talking about.

Franchise laws are not the same in different parts of Great Britain, any more than they are uniform in all parts of this country. So a little care must be exercised in stating them. But broadly they come to this:

In Great Britain women vote in the election of District Councils, both rural and urban; Parish Councils, County Councils, Boards of Guardians, Town and City Councils. Unmarried women may be elected to these bodies: they may sit as City Councilors or County Councilors; they may be Aldermen; they may be Mayors of cities.

In London marriage does not disqualify. How is this, as compared with the 35 States of the American Union which have not enfranchised their women?

One of the most efficient members of the City Council of Manchester is Miss Margaret Ashton. Where is the woman member of the Atlanta Board of Aldermen?

Women vote if they possess the qualification which entitles men to vote. There is no such thing as manhood suffrage in England. There are some millions of British men who have no vote. There are innumerable "qualifications," but—again broadly—what qualifies a man to vote is the fact that he is a householder—not the fact that he is a male person of adult age. And British law does not allow two votes for one "qualification," that is to say, the same tenancy can not entitle two persons to vote. So, if the house is in the name of the husband, he has the vote. If it is in the name of the wife, she has it.

In Scotland ownership, as well as occupation, qualifies. So that a woman who owns a house bringing in an annual rental of £4 ($20) in counties and £10 ($50) in cities is enfranchised for all the purposes I have named. Just as a man is. Where in the State in the Union, not having yet enfranchised its women, which concedes so much?

Who Will Say "Yes?"

Women can not vote for the election of members of Parliament. It is for this, the Parliamentary franchise, that they are fighting. They might have been voting to-day but for Mrs. Pankhurst and the militants. Dr. Anna Shaw regrets Mrs. Pankhurst's visit to this country, because she believes that harm has already been done by the violence of British militants to the cause of woman suffrage here. She believes that more and greater harm may be done.

The militants began their work more than seven years ago. What have they gained? And what are they likely to gain? Mr. E. V. Lucas, in his "Mr. Ingleside," represents a member of Parliament as suggesting mildly that women who "persecute and vilify and assault statesmen are not providing the best credentials as responsible electors." Dr. Anna Shaw is afraid that women here who applaud them and find money for them may impress American men in the same way. And this M. P., or Mr. Lucas for him, puts the objection clearly:

"In my opinion—and you can disregard it, for it is only the opinion of a man—they had been waiting splendidly, and were just beginning to reap the harvest of their quiet efficiency and good sense when the fruit was dashed from their hands by the impatient high spirits of the younger faction—the Maenad Malcontents, shall I call them? I know of mothers who, for years, have steadily been proving their right to vote, whose own daughters, fresh from school, have ruined their chances for years to come."

And he wonders whether men, after viewing the political aspirations of women with suspicion for all the centuries, will suddenly say:

"Well, they use dog-whips across the faces of our rulers very handily; let us worry and annoy our Prime Minister with extraordinary persistence and skill, and do their best to ruin his health and nerves; they throw stones with unexpected accuracy. We are now satisfied. They shall have the vote to-morrow; these are exactly the kind of people to elect representatives wisely."

Do the American women who are finding money for British militants honestly believe this is what American men will say in the non-suffrage States when they are asked to vote "Yes" on a constitutional amendment?

Seven Mistakes of Matrimony

BY DOROTHY DIX.

THE first deadly mistake of matrimony is:

TO MARRY ON AN INSUFFICIENT INCOME.

Matrimony has its commercial as well as its sentimental side, and while men money alone will not make a happy marriage, neither will love alone. It takes food to supply the heart throbs, and at the bottom of every successful marriage there must be a strong financial plank capable of supporting a comfortable home.

Of course, the lover's view of life is all circling wings and golden glory, and poetry, and romance. He feels, while he is still courting a girl, that nothing else matters but the bliss of smiling her his own. He believes that he can disdain such material things as food, and clothes, and houses, and it is no trick at all to persuade a girl, who has no worldly experience, into accepting this point of view.

So in a trance of joy, literally doped with sentiment, they marry, with a sort of sublime faith that those who put their trust in Cupid will be miraculously fed, as the prophet was by the ravens.

But Cupid isn't that sort of a bird. He is no miracle worker. He supplies no loaves, nor lobster Newburgh, nor even plain beefsteak and onions. Nor does he prevent clothes from wearing out, nor soften the rent collector's heart so that he furnishes an apartment with modern conveniences free to the enamored pair.

On the contrary, life goes on for people who are in love just as it does for those who are out of love. Nothing stops the processes of nature. We get hungry, we get cold, we crave the same amusements, we have the same tastes after marriage as we did before, and the plain, hideous fact stares us in the face that when we have not the money to supply these necessities we are not happy, no matter how much affection we have for some other individual.

NOT ROMANTIC.

It isn't romantic—it even fills you with a deep disgust for the weakness of human nature, but the truth remains that we have to be physically comfortable, and have a mind at peace, before we can even love. No man who is hungry cares two pence about the looks of the prettiest woman on earth. No woman who is shivering with cold and is ragged and shabby cares a clipped Canadian dime whether a man loves her or not. No married couple who are harassed night and day by bill collectors, and who tremble every time there is a sound at the door for fear the landlord is coming to throw them out into the street, are filled with any high and lovely thoughts about each other.

In such an hour the animal triumphs in us. Our only concern is to be fed and housed and warmed. And under such circumstances it is practically inevitable that husband and wife should turn upon each other with bitter accusations and reproaches.

This is not to say that wealth and luxury are necessary to make marriage a success. Far from it. Without doubt the happiest and most united couples in the world are the poor young man and woman who marry and work up side by side in the world. But there is a wide difference between something and nothing, between marrying on a settled income, however small, and marrying without any way to make a living at all.

THE FIRST RULE.

The very first principle, the very bed rock of domestic happiness is that a couple shall have enough money between them to support them in decent comfort. One might almost go further and say that it is necessary for them to have enough money to approximately live in the way in which they have been accustomed to live. Here and there are notable exceptions to this rule, and we find men and women who have the strength of character and greatness of heart to be willing to give up the luxuries they have been used to for the sake of a beloved one, but these cases are rare.

It takes more grace than the most of us possess to be able to make a daily sacrifice of our tastes and habits without becoming churlish and regarding ourselves as martyrs.

Certainly, the man who has been accustomed to dressing well and having plenty of money to spend on trifles, who has lived in a well-appointed bachelor apartment, and indulged himself in theatres, and cabs, and good cigars, and who finds after his marriage that his salary will only permit of a cheap two by four flat, who has to wear shabby clothes, after the babies begin coming, who can only know of the theatres by hearsay, and smoke cheap tobacco, is seldom a shining illustration of the happiness of the married state.

Nor does the woman who has lived in a luxurious home, and had beautiful clothes, and traveled, and reigned in society find matrimony a glad, sweet song when she gets to be an overworked household drudge, faded and worn with the nursing of babies and the cooking of dinners and the dreary round of petty household economies.

These are the people who swell the records of the divorce courts and whose homes, even when they keep together, are a bloody battle ground in which family scraps are fought to a finish. Love and peace have gone, driven out by overwork, by over anxiety, by the fear of the future that keeps people's nerves taut and their tempers with a razor edge.

NOT SAFE.

It's no use in saying that it's safe now for a young couple to marry on nothing a year because their parents or grandparents did. The whole conditions of life have changed since then, and we can no more go back and begin life as they did than we can go back to using stage coaches and tallow candles.

The first roulette, then, of domestic happiness is having the price. Love is like an automobile. It's a luxury that it is a crime to indulge in unless you can afford it. To marry on an insufficient income is every whit as disastrous as it would be to buy a touring car without money to run it, and the result is the same. you would land in bankruptcy, and the sheriff would close you out.

It's no use in saying that it's the sleeper, etc., etc., and so forth.

A Sleeper.

Try this on some of your friends: "A sleeper is one who sleeps. A sleeper is that in which a sleeper sleeps. A sleeper is that on which the sleeper runs while the sleeper sleeps. Therefore, while the sleeper sleeps in the sleeper the sleeper car-

The Well Dressed Girl

The Value and Attractiveness of Fur

By FANNIE WARD

By Fannie Ward

FUR, fur everywhere—and never a scrap to waste!

That is the slogan of the Winter fashions. On a basis of be as simple a. you like—you will be stunning when you have added the correct touch of pelty—Milady plans her wardrobe for the coming months.

On the left is a magnificent evening cloak trimmed with fur.

If you can afford a touch of fur here, a bit of fur there, the success of your gown from the point of view of becomingness and smartness seems assured. To-day I am going to try to explain the reason for the popularity of "the fur touch" and the advisability of using it in your gowns.

First and foremost—fur is very becoming! There is nothing that will so surely bring out beautiful coloring and disguise poor coloring. There is nothing that forms a lovelier background for dainty, clear-cut features and softens harsh, angular ones.

Because of this universal beautifying art, and because of the growing popularity of outdoor life and exercise—in which fur is almost a necessity—seal and marten and sable, and even the humble squirrel and rabbit and raccoon have come into the proud position they occupy to-day in Dame Fashion's catalog of beautifiers.

TWO CONSIDERATIONS.

In buying fur, there are two things to consider—getting what is becoming to you—a question I will carefully analyse for you later in our little chat—and getting what you pay for. Sadly enough, there is no "pure fur law." So, if you pay for marten and get skunk, blame your own ignorance of fur value and the tradesman who sold you a masquerading animal all you like, but you will get no redress. Therefore, if you want to be safe, if you want to make your fur purchase not an extravagance but a way of putting yourself in possession of a lasting property, be sure you deal with one of the many honest, reliable, truth-telling houses in your city, and supplement all this with a little careful study of your subject.

I saw recently a simple black evening gown that became at once distinguished and stunning by the addition of a band of soft brown skunk at $5 a yard around the bottom of the skirt. Total cost $6—total effect incalculable!

Acknowledging the smartness of the fur touch, and guarding against the stupidity of "a fur touch" that will give us an inferior substitute that is not "something just as good" as what we have paid for, let us delve into the mysteries—the sacred mysteries!—of beauty and becomingness in fashion's new dictate.

I am illustrating my own theories with two pictures I have had taken for you. In the one on the right, I am showing you the touch of fur on the evening gown—and the effect of a fur stole against a white throat.

For three dollars a yard you can buy a very good quality of inch-wide brown skunk—honest brown dyed skunk that does not masquerade as something it is not. This dark fur is particularly pleasing on light colored gowns as it gives them a touch of contrast and so of richness. Arranged around the bottom of my silk skirt and used to edge the loose upper sleeve of my lace kimono blouse, this fur adds tremendously to the effectiveness of the gown I am wearing.

At my throat I have a double animal scarf of sable, and I am carrying a muff to match. Such a set is very expensive—and for the woman of limited means, who wants a long haired soft colored dark fur, I recommend mink, fisher, fox or raccoon in a descending scale of prices. Further economy may be practised by adding a mere finish of fur to plush, velvet or heavy fur cloth muff and stole.

These long haired brown furs add a richness of coloring to the brunette type and are charming on the woman who is not very stout.

For the pink and white blonde there are silver fox, white fox, black lynx and the black and white civet cat.

FOR THE STOUT.

For the woman of embonpoint there are the short-haired furs of subdued coloring — mole, seal, broadtail and Persian.

The most beautiful light fur of the Winter is the creamy fitch with its dark brown markings—this is particularly stunning on the olive-complexioned brunette to whose cheek it imparts a bit of color.

But I know of no more durable, universally becoming and fair-priced fur than skunk or marten—which I have used on the evening coat I slipped on over my frock to show you in the picture on the left.

The coat is a simple kimono shape of plush, duvetyn or velvet. Blue is particularly good with the skunk bands, but you may use hunter's green, rose or old gold with good results in color contrasts.

Frogs of self color fasten the coat, and three-inch bands of the fur finish the coat at the bottom and form the cuffs and the standing collar. Search well the treasure troves of attic and old trunks, for even a tiny bit of once discarded and seemingly shabby old fur offers you a chance to add richness and charm to dress or coat or hat.

Miss Fannie Ward.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DON'T YOU ALSO LOVE YOUR PARENTS?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am seventeen and deeply in love with a young man of twenty-two. He has asked me to elope with him. My parents object to him. They have no use for him. I love him dearly and I know my love is returned. ANXIOUS.

YOUR letter indicates no considera. tion for your mother and father if you loved them as you should, you would realize that a girl of seventeen is too young to set up her opinions against those of her parents.

YOU OVER-ESTIMATE HIM.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am seventeen and deeply in love with a young man of twenty. We are employed in the same place of business, but he does not seem to return my affections. He says he only likes pretty girls, and I do not consider myself pretty. GRACE.

A MAN who cares for pretty girls only is not worth a second thought. He is shallow, silly, vain, and never will be a man so long as he feels that way. Just make up your mind you don't care to know a man of that sort.

An Anniversary.

A man may be rough look ig and yet have a touch of sentiment about him.

A ragged, ill-kept-looking man appeared at the door of a woman's home and in a pleading tone asked:

"Have you a piece of cake lady, to give a poor man who hasn't had a bite for two days?"

"Cake?" echoed the woman in surprise. "Isn't bread good enough for you?"

"Ordinarily, yes, ma'am. But this is my birthday," explained the tramp.

Their Married Life

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

"WERE stopping at the Asdorf. It's only a couple of blocks from here—can't you come in and have some tea?"

Helen hesitated, then yielded to Mrs. Merwin's urgent invitation.

She had met the Merwins on the steamer. They had sat at the same table on the return voyage and seen a great deal of each other during the trip. And now Mrs. Merwin's greeting, as they met unexpectedly on Fifth avenue, was most cordial.

"Don't you want to come up to the rooms? It's much quieter, and I'll order tea up there," she suggested, as they pushed through the heavy revolving door of the Hotel Asdorf.

The atmosphere and appointments of a big, luxurious hotel had always a certain charm for Helen, a charm that would probably never be dispelled should she live at one for any length of time.

She telephoned down for the tea, ordering with it two cocktails.

"Oh, yes, we must have something to drink," as she hung up the receiver. "I've been blue all day! Oh, I think New York is the most lonely place. I'll be so glad when we get away."

"Then you're so pleasantly situated here," protested Helen, glancing around the attractive rooms. "And don't you find this hotel very good? I've always heard that the service here was excellent."

"Oh, I—I almost hate it! I've been so unhappy ever since we came."

Helen looked up, surprised at the tremor in her voice.

"You know we'd planned to go on to Denver, but—but Mr. Merwin's business has kept us here. Now I—I don't know when we'll get away."

She had laid aside her hat, and as she leaned back in a chair by the window, Helen saw how tired and worn she looked. On the steamer she had been most attractive, and the center of much attention. But now she was pale and listless, with haggard lines around her eyes and mouth.

What could have happened to have changed her in so short a time?

In a few moments the waiter came with the tea. On the tray were two slender glasses into which he poured the cocktail from a silver shaker. Mrs. Merwin sipped hers eagerly, and a faint color relieved her pallor.

Momentarily it seemed to cheer her, and they talked of the people they had met on the steamer, several of whom Mrs. Merwin had seen since.

Then the phone rang, and she started so violently that the tea splashed from the cup she was holding. The phone was on the wall by the door, and Helen could not help but notice how her hand trembled when she took down the receiver.

SHE BREAKS DOWN.

"No, Mr. Merwin is not here. . . . I'm sorry, but I don't know anything about that. I'm sure Mr. Merwin will make it all right. . . . Yes, as soon as he comes in."

"Mr. Merwin is not in. No, he hasn't an office in New York. At six? He may be here then, but I'm not sure."

Helen's drama as Mrs. Merwin turned from the phone she suddenly leaned against the wall and burst into tears.

"Oh, I can't stand it any longer—I can't!" she sobbed. "They're always calling him up—the people he owes! And he's drinking and gambling away all his money!"

For a moment Helen hardly knew what to say, then she made a strained and awkward attempt to comfort her. But the emotions which had evidently been pent up for days were finding expression, and she sobbed out to Helen the whole wretched story.

The mining scheme that Mr. Merwin had been promoting in London had fallen through when they reached New York. He had borrowed money from every one he knew, trying to promote some other stock, that too, had been a failure, and now they had not even money enough to pay their hotel bill—and they owed for three weeks.

"But why do you keep these expensive rooms?" ventured Helen. "Couldn't you stay at some cheaper hotel, or even at a boarding house?"

"Yes, but we can't leave until we pay the bill. We can't even take cheaper rooms here, for that would make them suspicious. They think Mr. Merwin has money, he always spent it so freely. If they didn't think that, they wouldn't keep giving us credit in the restaurant—and we've got to eat somewhere."

"But if you go on running up this bill"—

ALWAYS PROMOTING.

"Oh, Frank keeps thinking he'll get money somewhere—he's always full of schemes," bitterly. "It's always promoting—promoting — promoting. I hate the very word. If he'd only get down to some real work. Anything that would give him a regular salary—instead of trying to live extravagantly on a lot of promoting schemes.

"Oh, I know I'm disloyal to talk like this, for when he has money he's the most generous man in the world, but lately everything has gone against him—and he's drinking! Oh, I can tell you—he hasn't been himself for days. And last night"—again she gave way to sobs.

A knock at the door, and she started up with a haunted look.

"Do you want me to answer it?" asked Helen.

She sobbed, pushing back her hair and brushing away the tears. But it was only a bell boy with a large package.

"Oh, it's that evening gown from Ardman's!" carelessly.

Then seeing Helen's look of surprise, she added, hastily:

"I shouldn't have ordered it, but it was week before last, when Frank felt sure he was putting through a big deal. We saw it in the window and I liked it. You see," plaintively, "he wants me to have everything. We've an account at Ardman's, and he told me to have it charged. Of course I didn't know things were going to be so bad."

"Can't you return it?" suggested Helen, gently. "If you'd explain—you wouldn't they take it back?"

"No—no, they've altered it now. That's why they've kept it so long. Oh, I suppose it won't matter," recklessly, "when the crash comes a hundred dollars or more won't make any difference."

With a sudden impulse she took a knife from the tea tray and cut the string of the box.

HER SAD STORY.

"Do you want to see the dress?" with a harsh little laugh. "I'll wear it down to dinner to-night, and we'll look so prosperous that the hotel won't send us a bill for another week. Oh, I've learned to pretend, to act, to sham!" bitterly. "It's part of Frank's business assets to have free expensive dinners. It gives people confidence in his schemes. Oh, yes I'm an ideal promoter's wife!"

"There," as she shook out the fragile evening gown, gleaming with pearl trimmings. "Does that look like we couldn't pay our hotel bill?"

Then she turned to Helen almost fiercely.

"But you mustn't misunderstand me! You mustn't think Frank isn't honest in his schemes. He is! Somehow he always believes in them. He's always sure he's going to make a fortune for himself and for everybody else. But when I think of all the people that have invested in his promotions and have lost, it almost drives me mad! And yet," defiantly, "it's their fault, too! They shouldn't be so anxious to make something for nothing. I've grown to hate them, too! Oh, I hate it all—this feverish, uncertain, scheming life is killing me!"

There was so little that Helen could say to comfort her. This was a life of which she knew nothing, this living on a volcano, as it were, and never knowing when the upheaval would come.

It was almost six before she had the heart to leave.

"I'm afraid I can't stay any longer. I hate to leave you alone, but Mr. Curtis always gets home at half-past, and I must be there then."

"Oh, yes—I don't want to keep you," helplessly. "I suppose Frank will be here some time this evening. If he doesn't come—I'll not go down to dinner alone. I feel that everybody knows we owe that bill. Oh, the humiliation of it—you don't know —you don't know!"

It was quite dark when Helen reached the street. She hurried home filled with brooding, anxious thoughts of the woman she had just left.

Above everything else, Helen had an intuitive horror of Frank's ever being driven to a hotel, and to be compelled to live at that hotel, seemed to her an intolerable situation.

A BLANK FUTURE.

And what would be the outcome? Would Mr. Merwin be able to get the money? Or would they stay on until they were asked to leave?

"Bah, you're wasting a lot of sympathy," was Warren's comment when she told him about it at dinner. "Those promoters are used to being on their uppers, and they've all got some get-rich-quick scheme that's more or less shady."

"But, dear, I really believe he means to be honest. She says"—

"Oh, he may hoodwink her, but when a man makes a business of trying to put over these wildcat schemes —well, he deserves all that's coming to him."

But Helen was unconvinced. Her sympathy and anxiety for Mrs. Merwin were not lessened by Warren's cynicism. And even though he warned her against getting "mixed up" with such people, she was still determined to call up Mrs. Merwin in the morning and to do what she could to help or comfort her.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

Improvements Due Along Peachtree St.

Baker, W. Peachtree and Spring St. Sections To Be Active—Big North Fulton Subdivision.

A great deal of development is expected in the next year around the intersection of the Peachtree, West Peachtree and Baker streets. Property owners such as Colonel Willis E. Ragan, the Adairs, Frank C. Owens, the Inman Park investment Company, Lowry Porter, J. Fred Lewis and E. W. Alfriend have been paying interest on parcels, and they are expected to start improvements. Colonel Ragan has some plans to build stores at the point between the Peachtrees and to remodel the old Plaza Hotel, and others are figuring on establishments conducted to make their property income-bearing.

This immediate section has about passed the trading stage and is ready for more business establishments.

The widening and regrading of West Peachtree and the widening and lighting of semi-central Peachtree with a white way are expected to stimulate real estate values greatly. Already signs are pointing to this neighborhood as a good prospect for the developers of next year.

Spring street activities will also mull a good deal of money West of Peachtree. Old prices no longer obtain on Spring street. The future is being discounted in the belief that a viaduct is sure to be built across to the Terminal Station. When the proposed extension of the thoroughfare to Brookwood has excited property owners. Real estate men say that eminent engineers plan to Spring as a good street to work out for the relief of congestion on Peachtree.

Other sections are being groomed for winter and spring trading, but none has given promise yet like the trend from Peachtree west to Spring street.

Another Big Subdivision.

North Fulton County is soon to have another big subdivision for residences. The Union Trust Company will cut up 123 acres on the Peachtree road, which it bought from Thomas B. Felder for $90,000. There are two routes, 30 acres fronting both sides of Peachtree, Battle avenue, northwest of Brookwood, and a more tract fronting on Howell Mill road.

This price of $750 an acre is regarded by real estate men as very extremely low, compared with acreage in the Brookwood section, Northwest of Buckhead, at $1,000 an acre.

Boehling Is Best of Youngsters

Great Future for Griff's 'Find'

By J. W. M'Conaughy.

A TRAVELING salesman, somewhat of a kidder in a quiet way, had business in Richmond this past summer. Leaving the station, he asked several persons where the Confederate Capitol was located, and where was the home in which Joe Boehling lived. Nine of the ten persons questioned knew all about the home of Boehling, and but one knew where the site of the one-time Capitol was—and to make things even explained that he did not know Boehling, that the town was getting too full of strangers.

The Boehling asked about was the young man who made baseball history with the Washington American League team the past season. He is a pitcher, a very sensational one for a veritable kid, and his fame has spread all over the country in one year. Of course, at his home town, Richmond, he had gained a little fame before he got out of the semi-pro ranks, but it was with the Senators in 1913 that he really achieved fame.

Came Close to Record.

In the last season Boehling won seventeen and lost seven games and at one time just missed making a record for the year, when he fell down after capturing eleven straight games. Husky Gus Williams, of the St. Louis Browns, put the kibosh on the record when he lifted one of Boehling's fast straight ones into deep right in the first inning of the St. Louis-Washington game, July 28, for a home run, which chased Shotten and Pratt in ahead. This killed all chance of getting a mark for the season, for the Senators were never able to overcome the lead that homer gave the lowly St. Louis team.

Boehling is but 21 years of age. He weighs 180 pounds and tosses 'em from the port side.

He began playing ball on the lots in Richmond and was "discovered" by Bill Peet, a Washington scribe, when he pitched for a Richmond team called the Battle Axes against a Washington nine.

Peet told Clark Griffith of his find and the manager of the Senators looked him over. This was two years ago.

Was Sent to Lookouts.

The following spring Griffith signed the youngster, but he didn't show very much at the start and was sent to Chattanooga for seasoning. With Chattanooga he won two games and lost four, and was then chased back to Washington. Then Griffith loaned him to Jesse Burkett's Worcester team, and he won fourteen and lost but eight games before being called in by Griffith. This was in September, 1912, and he showed very little from then to the season's end.

This year, though, it was different. The youngster had got over his wildness entirely, had fine control and a wonderful assortment of curves. Best of all he was willing to learn, and he did learn a lot.

Famous Tech Coach Says Donahue Has Smooth-Working Machine

AUBURN BEST TEAM IN THE SOUTH---HEISMAN

By J. W. Heisman.

CLASS is beginning to tell in the games between the Southern college teams, and it is becoming more and more clear as the days go by that the supremacy which most of the best teams have enjoyed for the past three or four years is to be maintained in 1913.

While Mississippi A. & M. is hardly as strong this year as it has been for the preceding four or five seasons, yet I venture to say not even Auburn itself was prepared for the splendid victory of 34 to 0 that its team rolled up against A. & M. The Auburnites seemed to strike their stride from the very beginning of the season, and have thus far gone along without a hitch of a skip. Right now I venture to suggest that the Orange and Blue squad is the smoothest working machine in Dixie, and, if it keeps on at its present gait it is going to be, as I thought from the first, the team to haul down the hunting.

VERY early in the season I hinted that Auburn might prove an even more formidable contender for championship honors than the Commodores, which statement was considered quite extravagant at the time; but recent events begin to bear me out. To be sure, we all expected Michigan would defeat Vanderbilt, but we were hardly prepared for the score that came over the wires.

McDugin has a wonderful quartet of players in the two Browns, Morgan and Sikes, but that lets the Vanderbilt team out for this year, and no eleven can raise so very much of a fuss with only four good men out of eleven on the team.

Tech has already found out the same thing—that one or even a couple of swallows don't make a summer, and to me it is, and has been, no secret that the new material at Vanderbilt this year has not been on a par with what they have secured in the past. Had Cody been eligible, it would have made considerable difference.

However, I still believe that Vanderbilt is going to show a world of fight and take a lot of pummelling before any team in the South will make it knuckle under. I do not believe that the score of 33 to 2 against it adequately represents the day-in-and-day-out strength of the Commodores. Michigan was smarting under the sting of that defeat one week before at the hands of the Michigan Aggies, while that same game gave Vanderbilt a little too much hope. These things cut a wide swath.

EVERYBODY tells how very simple it was the style of play exhibited by Virginia against Georgia last Saturday. Had they no other system of play than the one they here showed?

It's hard to say, but it does look as though they would have sprung it if they had, for it appears that the Red and Black crowded them to the uttermost, not only in the first quarter or half, but almost throughout the entire contest. It's all well enough to save up for another and later foe, but when you're about to be licked right now you generally attend to the thing at hand and let the later affair take care of itself.

Any way you look at it, though, Georgia did exceptionally well, and it looks now as though it were going to give Auburn about as stiff a fight as will Vanderbilt. It is a pity Georgia plays neither Sewanee nor Vanderbilt this year, and a pity that Auburn does not meet Sewanee. Those would all make jim-dandy games.

That McWhorter's long runs in the past have not been mere accidents—as some would have us believe—that young man amply demonstrated against the Virginians. When he a feeling right and his team is playing ball, he can and does get away from the very best of them. In the past we may have thought there must have been something decidedly off color in the tackling of the Southern teams of this section that they have been quite unable to put Roo down for keeps, but when as big and fine and experienced a team as that of Virginia also comes down here and fails to flop this remarkable young man we are forced to the belief that the fault is not in ourselves, dear Brutus, but in the stocky Athenian.

LAST year Tech went down to Jacksonville the last Saturday in October, and had a hard game with Florida. This year they went down again on the same relative Saturday, and they had another hard fight, and won again by some too safe a margin. Some seventeen players were carried on the trip, and of these an even twelve did not make the trip one year ago. What does that show? It merely shows how many of the men are new to the Tech varsity. In fact, it is a new team.

* * *

I WANT to say here for Florida that they played about as fast, fierce and real football as a team of its weight can play. They will weigh a shade over 160, they are fast on their feet, they have real good interference, their backs plunge and run ends with equal confidence and power, and they bore in on their tackling in a way that is not easily to be surpassed. Of course, the Tech game was their big game of the season, and they made the most of it. But if anybody thinks the Floridians are hopelessly outclassed in football they had best go down and take a side glance at that bunch of wildcats.

YET for all these explanations Tech played disappointingly. Their work was not up to standard. True, the men regarded the trip more or less in the light of a holiday excursion, but they came to their senses quickly enough before the first quarter was over; and yet they had about as much difficulty putting the Florida boys away in the last quarter as they had in the first.

It all goes to show once more what has so often been said before—that no matter how PROMISING material may be, it takes a year or two for football promise to develop into something like a performance. The Florida game was a good thing for Tech, as it was stiff enough to teach it a lot of football, yet resulted in no bad injuries. Referee Fenton and Umpire Woodruff, both of whom had seen the Florida team in their game against Auburn, declared that never had they seen a team improve so much in three weeks as had the lads from Gainesville.

Better Arrangement For Seats Hereafter At Jacket Battles

The Tech authorities have arranged a reserved seat proposition for the Tech-Sewanee game at Grant Field Saturday afternoon, and will follow it up for the other games this season as they are confident that the football fans will find the arrangement satisfactory.

One dollar general admission will entitle the purchaser to a seat in the wooden stands on the east side of the field or standing room along any of the outside side lines.

The reserved seats will be 25 cents and 50 cents extra, the first few rows in the concrete stands being 50 cents and those back 25 cents. Each seat will have a coupon and there will be ushers to seat the people.

Every person buying a reserved seat at the Tech game for the remainder this season will be assured of his seat. He can purchase his reserved seat and show up at the game at any time that he is a mind to, just as he would at a theater, and he will be certain of getting the seat that he purchased.

The grandstand has been rearranged and blocked off and all the seats numbered. The general admission and reserved seat tickets can be purchased at Tumlin Bros.

Joe Tinker Signs To Lead Reds in 1914

CINCINNATI, Oct. 31.—Joe Tinker will continue as manager of the Reds. After a four-hour conference with Garry Herrmann he signed a 1914 contract. All the points at debate between them were gone over and smoothed down and th policy of the next campaign was made clear to both owner and manager.

FOOD FOR SPORT FANS

By GEORGE E. PHAIR.

SOUTHERN FOOTBALL.

It was an Autumn evening,
The player's work was done.
He stood upon the bloody field
Beneath the setting sun,
And chortled in his ghoulish glee:
"It was a famous victory!"

"It happened just like this," he said;
"We took 'em by surprise,
And landed on a nose or two
And blacked a dozen eyes.
In fact, we put 'em on the blink
Before they had a chance to think."

"How many touchdowns did you make?"
I asked the happy soul.
"How often did you plunge across
The fallen foeman's goal?"
"We made no touchdowns," answered he,
"But 'twas a famous victory."

George Huff's assertion that unnecessary roughness is ruining football does not meet with the hearty approval of our physicians and surgeons.

Branch Rickey says he does not believe in fining his players. He considers it punishment enough to be a member of the Browns.

If Charlie White were to fight all those fights framed up for him in Kenosha and Racine he would be busy approximately 28 hours per diem.

Those Wisconsin promoters who complain that they are losing money overlook the fact that they have an inalienable right to quit.

The report that Miller Huggins wants Merkle and Snodgrass leads one to suspect that he is trying to corner the ivory market.

Jerome Lino, the gent who whipped a baboon in a box car, is now qualified to fight Sam Langford.

LOST IS RIGHT.

"I am lost," said Willie Ritchie
As a tear rolled down his chin.
"I am whipped before I've started—
James J. Corbett says I'll win."

It is estimated that if a man had bet against Jim Corbett's predictions for the last ten years he would have accumulated a fortune of $1,000,000,000,000,000,000.75.

John McGraw says the Giants must be on their good behavior while touring the universe. If they cut up he will fine them part of the salaries they are not getting.

A farmer in Michigan stung Ad Wolgast in a sale involving a bull. And after being managed all these years by the world's most famous bull expert!

Charlie Herzog says he will quit baseball rather than play with the Cardinals. And even if he does join the Cardinals he will quit baseball.

Colonel Hedges arises to remark that he has a real manager at last. All he needs now is a real baseball team.

JUDGE ROAN'S AMAZING DECISION in the Frank Case---Not Certain of the Man's Guilt but Refuses Him a New Trial.

Judge Roan's decision in the Frank case upon the motion for a new trial is the most amazing announcement ever made from the bench. Read it carefully and study it closely. Here it is:

"I have given this question long consideration. It has given me more concern than any other case I ever was in. And I want to say here that, ALTHOUGH I HEARD THE EVIDENCE AND THE ARGUMENTS DURING THOSE THIRTY DAYS, I DO NOT KNOW THIS MORNING WHETHER LEO FRANK IS INNOCENT OR GUILTY. But I was not the one to be convinced. THE JURY WAS CONVINCED, and I must approve their verdict and overrule the motion."

The words capitalized are ours. They are plain words. They mean just what they say—that Judge Roan, skilled in the law, skilled in the handling of criminal trials, with a long and honorable service for the people, does NOT KNOW EVEN NOW, after hearing every word of the evidence, after hearing both Frank and Conley, after hearing every legal point raised, after deciding all questions—JUDGE ROAN DOES NOT KNOW EVEN NOW if the accused is guilty.

Could anything be more astounding than this?

If Judge Roan DOES NOT KNOW and the jury only APPEARS to know, what shall be said of the confusion in the minds of the great public who read only fragments of the evidence? How could the people form a just opinion, if Judge Roan could not do so?

This newspaper has always been and always will be firm in upholding the law, and standing out against all unfair opposition to our judges. We believe in our courts and in our judges. We believe our jury system should be so safeguarded in the future that it will be impossible for men to qualify as jurors who have, previous to their selection, uttered opinions either FOR OR AGAINST the individual on trial.

It would seem that Judge Roan has written into the case an objection so large and overshadowing that the other 115 sink into insignificance and that the Supreme Court will order a new trial on Judge Roan's decision, if for no other reason.

Judge Roan, because of his ability and learning, because of his honesty and sincerity, seems to have made a new trial certain, and even those persons who believed in Frank's guilt up to the moment that Judge Roan said that HE IS STILL IN DOUBT will agree that the famous case has been reopened, and that it never will be closed until Frank's innocence or guilt is CLEARLY AND POSITIVELY ESTABLISHED.

Judge Roan has put himself at the head of that group of men and women who are STILL IN DOUBT, who ask only for fair play, and who will be only satisfied when EVERY DOUBT IS REMOVED.

To the lay reader it would seem that if Judge Roan had sat in the jury box HE WOULD NOT have found a verdict of guilty. He could not honestly have done so.

Every accused person, under our law, must be given the benefit of the doubt. That is fair. That is JUSTICE, as the American people understand it.

Bear in mind that this issue is larger than Frank personally.

This newspaper has no special interest in Frank, the individual. If he is proven guilty, BEYOND DOUBT, let the law take its course promptly. The humblest person in our State will always receive fair treatment from us. We heartily favor the hanging of Frank—IF HE IS GUILTY—IF ALL DOUBT IS REMOVED.

But when Judge Roan, the trial judge, is IN DOUBT, and boldly says so, is it not time to pause, before legal murder is added to the long list of other crimes in our State?

Letters From the Readers of The Georgian

TREATY OF GHENT.

Editor The Georgian:

I suggest the celebration in New Orleans December 24, 1914, of the one hundredth anniversary of the Treaty of Ghent, signed by representatives of Great Britain and the United States, declaring peace between the two great nations, the celebration to end January 8, 1915, the one hundredth anniversary of the Battle of New Orleans, the end of hostilities between the two nations. In view of the failure to secure the Panama opening celebrations these two great events would attribute New Orleans.

HOW BISHOPS ARE CHOSEN.

Editor The Georgian:

In the October 18 issue of your paper, whose enterprise in giving church news is commendable and appreciated, there is an item that does an unintentional injustice to a worthy minister of the M. E. Church South. Its headline is "Dr. Ainsworth to be a candidate for Bishop," and its contents state alleged facts in keeping with the headline. Dr. Ainsworth is a friend of mine, and I took the liberty of calling his attention to the item, which bore the date line of a dispatch from Macon. He writes me as follows: "My Dear Doctor: Yours to hand. I do not take any Atlanta paper, and have not seen the dispatch referred to by you. I know nothing whatever about it. Yours sincerely, W. N. Ainsworth."

The item seems to misunderstand Methodist policies in regard to the creation of bishops. Bishops are elected by the General Conference of the Church, which meets once every four years. The next meeting will be in Oklahoma City in May, 1914. This conference will decide whether any bishops will be elected. In no case does a man become a candidate for the high office.

The "Non-Refillable" Bottle

This is the GENUINE "non-refillable."

Once you pour it out, you can NEVER fill it again.

Through this bottle the miserable drunkard pours out all that makes life worth while—hope, ambition, friends, family, self-respect.

One after another they are poured out by the hand that trembles more and more. And each is gone and lost forever.

When will men learn that whisky is poison, and that drunkenness is death?

Missionary Work That Is Left Undone

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1913, by Star Company.

MUCH home missionary work is done by churches all over our land; yet that much is left undone which could be done and that time and money spent in a large part of the foreign mission work could be better employed at home is painfully true.

The world is God's House, and in housecleaning good workers know they must distribute their labors over the whole mansion and not leave any part of it untidy.

So in missionary work; it is wise and well to send tollers and money to teach the people in distant lands a religion which includes hygiene and which helps women and children to be freed from the bondage of unwholesome superstitions and traditions. Only in this way can the world be swept and garnished, and the race made safe from pestilence.

At the same time, vast sums of money are used in foreign mission work which might be put to the most important ends here at home. There is a work condemned to life imprisonment who was brought up in an American town lavishing with church spires, and who lived in sound of church bells, yet no man or woman made the slightest effort to lead this lad into right ways; no one exerted any influence to better his wretched home conditions; no one gave him a thought save to speak of him as an ignorant and wayward and wild youth.

His stepfather and mother were known to be drinking, immoral people, and when the boy became involved in a family fight, which ended in his killing his stepfather, a highly moral jury quickly condemned him to life imprisonment.

At the same time, members of churches and in good standing, they had helped pay the expenses of foreign missionaries who were trying to bring light and knowledge into heathen lands and minds.

The town where dwelt the jurymen prided itself upon sending the largest fund to the missionaries of any town in the State.

When asked why no missionary effort had been made in behalf of the wretched American boy, who lived within a stone's throw of her church, a Christian woman replied, "Why, we never thought about doing anything for him or his family."

But she and her fellow church members had thought about doing a great deal for the Hottentot and the Chinaman.

In China it has for centuries been the habit of many people to destroy or give away their girl babies. Christian missions have rescued many thousands of these babies and cared for and educated them.

The letter which is appended makes one ponder on the whys and wherefores of our American methods of charity and benevolence. The letter came as a response to an article in this column, which spoke of the rampant sin everywhere prevalent in civilized lands—of willful "race suicide" in the destruction of unborn children.

The Chinese mother waits until her unwelcome child is born before she destroys it; the Christian American mother in Christian lands is quite as much in need of missionary work as the Chinese woman; and her helpless offspring are even more in need of a crusade for their salvation.

Margaret Murray Dow, of New York, who wrote the following letter, was asked if she would consent to its publication before it was herein presented. Therefore, its rather severe accusations of sins of omission on the part of American Christian clergymen and church members must be regarded as authentic.

"For fourteen long years I have been voluntary missionary to the men of the U. S. M. C. In every way I have tried, as a Christian woman, to guide them aright. Left alone as they are, neglected and without the influence of Christian women and men, save for my gospel meetings and my home, it is no wonder they go away from 'Mothers' prayers.'

"Every temptation that can be presented is before them.

"Not a church goes out of its way to save them. Not a minister but the Rev. T. E. Grizwold ever comes to help the meetings.

"About 25 ministers of this great city (New York) have been written of the work, with the one response. The big salaried ministers have no time for such small (?) unknown work.'

"In this service it has been my aim to help the lads as a mother would—to warn them against the surroundings at the garrison, to get them to churches and to be a friend to them.

"Women need not down men for a dual life. They have only to regard their attitude to the marriage law in the light of the Almighty's keen eye to know they are worse than the men when they sin against His law.

"A nation is judged by the standard of its women. Let America take care how she lowers the standard at the awful pleasure of women.

"The Downtrodden English Woman"

In Great Britain, He Says, Women Possess Political Power Far Greater Than That Possessed in Any Part of America, Other Than the Nine Woman Suffrage States and Illinois.

By REV. CHARLES F. AKED, D. D.

Written for The Atlanta Georgian.

"We do not need militant methods in America. It is different in England." The formula has been repeated from coast to coast in the course of discussions aroused by Mrs. Pankhurst's visit. What is the "it" which is different in England? Somebody ought to be able to answer.

There are variants upon the formula. Sometimes it runs "Things are different in England," and then one wants to know what things. But when certain influential women in this country escape from indefiniteness and explain their sympathy with Mrs. Pankhurst and the militants in a phrase which is now becoming common, "The laws are different in England," a man like myself, reasonably familiar with British law, begs for enlightenment.

In what respect to British laws press more hardly upon British women than American laws upon American women in the States where women are still unenfranchised?

An Important Matter.

This matter is important. Here is Mrs. Pankhurst pledging herself not to advocate militant methods in this country, and American women pouring money into her hands for the purpose of financing militant methods in England, alleging as the reason why they themselves will not become "militant" in America while they want women in England to burn houses, wreck trains, throw hatchets and explode dynamite bombs—alleging as the reason why they should keep themselves safe while other women endure imprisonment and torture—that "the laws are different in England." It is a fair question: What laws?

With one reply the distinguished ladies referred to will be ready: The divorce laws are unequal and bad. They are. About this there is no dispute. An Englishman can divorce his wife for an offense for which she can not divorce him. And in my view this admits of no defense.

Yet the explanation is easy. The Englishman is consistent and he has the courage—it may be, the brutal courage—of his convictions. The law to which the American man submits is better than the man's own convictions. It is the secret belief of nine out of ten men in America that there is one law of morality for men and another for women. He condones in himself and in his own son that which he would neither condone nor tolerate in his wife or his daughter. He has to submit to equal divorce laws; but the average man is easily confident that what is for his wife a crime is for himself a trivial affair.

The Englishman expresses in his law his deep convictions of the generations. He holds that an offense is a worse offense when committed by a wife than when committed by a husband. And so he makes his divorce law unequal.

No Second Instance.

Yet the sense of humor is not extinct in America. And it will not be seriously held that this inequality in the laws of divorce constitutes that "difference" which justifies incendiarism and outrage and a recourse to dynamite bombs!

What other laws can be quoted? Up to the present moment, in all the utterances of all the American sympathizers with English militants which have come under my notice, not a second instance has been named. Is there another?

The simple fact is that in Great Britain the woman possesses political power far greater than that possessed in any part of America other than the nine woman suffrage States and Illinois. This is not generally known, but it is a fact. And the women who profess that they sympathize with Mrs. Pankhurst and the militants because "the laws are so different" do not know what they are talking about.

Franchise laws are not the same in different parts of Great Britain, any more than they are uniform in all parts of this country. So a little care must be exercised in stating them. But broadly they come to this:

In Great Britain women vote in the election of District Councils, both rural and urban; Parish Councils, County Councils, Boards of Guardians, Town and City Councils. Unmarried women may be elected to these bodies; they may sit as City Councilors or County Councilors; they may be Aldermen; they may be Mayors of cities.

In London marriage does not disqualify. How is this, as compared with the 39 States of the American Union which have not enfranchised their women?

One of the most efficient members of the City Council of Manchester is Miss Margaret Ashton. Where is the woman member of the Atlanta Board of Aldermen?

Women vote if they possess the qualification which entitles men to vote. There is no such thing as manhood suffrage in England. There are some millions of British men who have no vote. There are innumerable "qualifications," but—again broadly—what qualifies a man to vote is the fact that he is a householder—not the fact that he is a male person of adult age. And British law does not allow two votes for one "qualification;" that is to say, the same tenancy can not entitle two persons to vote. So if the house is in the name of the husband, he has the vote. If it is in the name of the wife, she has it.

In Scotland ownership, as well as occupation, qualifies. So that a woman who owns a house bringing in an annual rental of £4 ($20) in counties and £10 ($50) in cities is enfranchised for all the purposes I have named, just as a man is. Where is the State in the Union, not having yet enfranchised its women, which concedes so much?

Who Will Say "Yes?"

Women can not vote for the election of members of Parliament. It is for this, the Parliamentary franchise, that they are fighting. They might have been voting to-day but for Mrs. Pankhurst and the militants. Dr. Anna Shaw regrets Mrs. Pankhurst's visit to this country, because she believes that harm has already been done by the violence of British militants to the cause of woman suffrage here. She believes that more and greater harm may be done.

The militants began their work more than seven years ago. What have they gained? And what are they likely to gain? Mr. E. V. Lucas, in his "Mr. Ingleside," represents a member of Parliament as suggesting mildly that women who "persecute and vilify and assault statesmen are not providing the best credentials as responsible electors." Dr. Anna Shaw is afraid that women here who applaud them and find money for them may impress American men in the same way. And this M. P., or Mr. Lucas for him, puts the objection clearly:

"In my opinion—and you can disregard it, for it is only the opinion of a man—they had been waiting splendidly, and were just beginning to reap the harvest of their quiet efficiency and good sense when the fruit was dashed from their hands by the impatient high spirits of the younger faction—the Maenad Malcontents. And I call them? I know of mothers who for years have steadily been proving their right to vote, whose own daughters, fresh from school, have ruined their chances for years to come."

And he wonders whether men, after viewing the political aspirations of women with suspicion for all these centuries, will suddenly say:

"Well, they use dog-whips across the faces of our rulers very handily; they worry and annoy our Prime Minister with extraordinary persistence and skill, and do their best to ruin his health and nerves; they throw stones with unexpected accuracy. We are now satisfied. They shall have the vote to-morrow; these are exactly the kind of people to elect representatives wisely."

Do the American women who are finding money for British militants honestly believe this is what American men will say in the non-suffrage States when they are asked to vote "Yes" on a constitutional amendment?

DIXIE LEAGUE DEMISE QUIET AND PEACEFUL

Inability to Gain Recognition and Get Star Players Figured in Reported Cessation.

By O. B. Keeler.

UNLESS our New Orleans war correspondent has been slipped a bum steer, the nice new Dixie League has blown up.

Well, if it really is time for the obsequies, we must say that we didn't wrap chilly wet blankets around the patient. Neither did we sit up o' nights with hot water bags and such.

The new league in its formative stage appeared worthy of a decent amount of publicity, if not of active boosting. We gave it that sort of deal, and there is no remorse mixed with the twinges of regret at the early demise.

It was a pretty good little league—on paper.

THE bulk of opinion seems to be that only Atlanta and Birmingham, of the six Southern League cities designed for double-team tactics, could have supported two clubs. Naturally, the older and stronger league would have survived. The experience of the Federal Leaguers in the American Association towns proved that last season—although the Feds are reported to be sticking with fine spirit, if not paying any fancy salaries to the help.

The point is, the Feds failed in their first year to cut into the association, and, even on the friendly basis of non-conflicting schedules, did not do enough business to warrant a long life without lavish and generous backing.

The Feds seem to be getting some of that.

IF Harry N. Parr, secretary of the league that "died a-borning," is quoted correctly, he believes it impossible to gain recognition from organized baseball and the Southern League. He also concludes that the fight without that recognition would be hopeless.

Mr. Parr is just about right there.

THE original plan of the league, as set forth in this column, was to work in harmony with the Southern by means of a non-conflicting schedule, and eventually to play the same class of ball, with a post-season series at the end of the regular season for the Southern championship.

That sounded interesting. But it turns out to be impracticable, judging from Mr. Parr's conclusion.

PROBABLY the main obstacle was getting players.

Plenty of players could be had, and pretty good ones, too, at less than the $200 a month that probably would have represented the utmost limit of the league's payroll ability.

But they would be semi-pro players, players of the rarest bush league type. They would not be "known," in the sense that ex-major leaguers and star minor leaguers are known.

When all's said, the baseball public patronizes baseball very largely to see players it knows, and has heard about, and is curious to see. Cobb is perhaps the best example of that idea. And it is just as pertinent to recall the turning out of Atlanta fans to see Bisland perform, and the sensational Joe Agler, and the slugging Welchonce—all men who were "known." It is the star idea of the theaters over again.

SO the new league had to fall through, it seems, though the official obsequies still are pending.

It may not be out of place to say that the infant circuit was proposed decently and in order; that there was no unseemly flurry of trumpets or threats of warfare, and that, if the project has been abandoned, no unhappy fragrance hovers around its memory.

Maybe it will "come back." Who knows?

Kilbane Puts K. O. On Knockout Mars

CINCINNATI, Oct. 31.—Johnny Kilbane, featherweight champion of the world, stopped Knockout Mars, of this city, in the seventh round of what was to have been a ten-round bout. Until that round the fight had been very fast, with honors even. In the second round Mars scored a clean knockdown on Kilbane.

Mike Gibbons Beats Wagner in 9 Rounds

WILKESBARRE, PA., Oct. 31.—Mike Gibbons, of St. Paul, last night gave Kid Wagner, of Scranton, a terrific beating in nine rounds that Referee Buck Kelly stopped the bout. Gibbons weighed 161 and Wagner 158.

CHANGE FOOTBALL DATE.

CONWAY, ARK, Oct. 31.—In deference to a request from officers of the University of Mississippi, the date of the Hendrix-Mississippi game has been changed from November 8 to November 7. The date is more satisfactory to local followers of the game, as many would have been unable to attend on account of November 8 being Saturday.

RED AND BLACK END TRAINING GRIND TO-DAY

ATHENS, GA., Oct. 31.—This afternoon will close a week of hard work on the part of the University of Georgia football team in preparation for the battle against the University of North Carolina on the local field to-morrow. This is the last game of the year in Athens and really the only big noise of the season locally.

What kind of a team the Tarheels have and what will be their system of attack is unknown to the Georgia coaches. They have neglected to send a scout into the enemy's territory for any of the games this season and about all the information at hand is the announcement which comes generally from the Old North State that the Eastern style of play will be put into use. Whether "Doggie" Trenchard and Tolbert Pendleton can prove themselves better teachers of football than the Southern coaches, Cunningham and Ketron, remains to be seen.

North Carolina is coming with no boastful stars of the McWhorter type, but in Tayloe they have an end runner and a returner of punts that ranks with any in the South. His work in the game against V. P. I. was the sensation of the afternoon and Georgia's ends have been coached to "lay" for him. However, it's a well rounded team that the Red and Black has to face and a slump from last week's hard battle is liable to put a crimp in the chances of the Athenians.

Light Workout for Virginia Eleven

CHARLOTTESVILLE, VA., Oct. 31.—In light signal practice yesterday, accompanied by a 20-minute scrimmage, in which the Virginia varsity remained on the defensive, the scrubs failed to make their gains on any down. Further than this, the coaches refused to disclose the practice, it being secret. Mayer is back in the line-up, though he is still suffering from a severe charley horse. The rest of the team are in the best of condition and will give an account of themselves on Saturday. Bergen, of Princeton, will referee the game, and King Cole, of Michigan, a former roommate of Coach McGugin, will umpire. The third official has not been decided.

Goulait, Norcott and Shanley Secured by Mike Finn for 1914

MEMPHIS, TENN., Oct. 31.—Mike Finn, manager of the Turtles, announced to-day the signing of a semi-pro player, Norcott, who finished the 1912 season in the Little Rock League, leading it in hitting and fielding. It was also announced that Theodore Goulait, for whom the New York Giants paid $7,000 two seasons ago in the hopes of landing a pitcher, will be used in the Turtles outfield next year. Infielder Harry Shanley, drafted by the New York Americans from Memphis, has been returned. Finn will use him either at third base or shortstop.

OCTOBER SHORTS BADLY SQUEEZED

Spot Firms and Shorts Big Buyers—Fresh Selling Appears on Bulge Over 13.40 for Jan.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The break of 50 points for October Thursday was too much on the nerves of local cotton bears and the cotton market opened steady to-day with a much better undertone and first prices were 1 up to 4 points lower than last night's close.

Liverpool came in about as due. This coupled with a bearish report from Oklahoma and Arkansas caused rather free offerings, attributed chiefly to ring speculators and commission houses. However, the trade received a small grist of bullish news from the belt and the buying was of a better character than for some time. The larger spot houses and the old Wall street aggressive bidders, as well as absorbed offerings as quoted by the floor market. The trade as a whole did not take Leslie's report seriously. Preliminary sentiment was general and during the forenoon prices moved up 14 points above last night's closing figures.

Certain shorts were badly squeezed during the late forenoon. Those who held the outgoing options were stubborn, refusing to part with it around 13.70, causing a sensational advance which carried the option to 14 cents in a jiffy, but it reacted 10 points later and went unsold at that price.

The appearance of Commission house selling after the bulge, however, spurred a short demoralization of 5 points in the condition of the crop for the month to offset the bearish effect of Leslie's circular, causing active buying by Liverpool and covering by operating shorts. On the bulge December sold at 13.76 and January 13.47.

However, there was a freer supply of contracts coming from Wall street and further liquidation by longs. Bears say the bulls must dig up fresh ammunition to hold any advance, and, that with the close of weather, the market will feel the weight of an increased movement. Bulls, on the other hand, say that the market is well liquidated on the break of about 70 points since Monday and higher prices later on in the season are assured.

At the close the market was firm with prices at a net advance of 16 to 18 points from the final quotations of Thursday.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S DAILY COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 31.—Against Mr. Cordill's report this morning, there was a most bullish report from the Journal of Commerce, saying that crop conditions had declined 5 points during the month, against a decline of only 1½ points in the past two years, 2½ points under the 5 year, 62.1, against 65.8 last year, 66.7 in 1911 and 65.7 in 1910.

Replies from correspondents as to the size of the crop average 13,747,000 bales.

The reports of injury to weevil was the largest spot sales, supplemented by cable relaying increased confidence in the business in Manchester and spinners confident of lower prices and largely uncovered.

First traders here were at an advance of 2 to 4 points, with a stubborn tone in the market in response to reports.

Technical conditions here are not important, as longs have realized right along on the last advance and the recent break has caused traders to liquidate.

The crop here is bullish, but the situation is fully realized and supplemented daily by unfavorable crop reports each morning, and we think that holders are resisting the decline. Fear of public further liquidation in New York checked support at the start, but the market advanced 10 points as soon as New York showed no pressure. The essence of spot news is that prices will not meet the decline. There is a steady call for good cotton and for low grades.

Increased Activity Is Noted in Wool Trade

BOSTON, Oct. 31.—Increased interest is noted in wool, some of the largest buyers in the country operating in the past few days. Total transactions have not been exceeded 2,000,000 pounds. Some dealers estimate the amount as 2,000,000 to 4,000,000 pounds.

A feature of the week has been the activity in small lots of territories and fleeces to go to Europe, current quotations here having been paid. Transfer of fleeces have exceeded a half million pounds, but territories still predominate in the business. Dealers appear to be cheerful with values well sustained on all the better lots.

Receipts in Boston and Philadelphia the week ended and including Wednesday are as follows:

Foreign	1,044,000	338,331

COTTON GOSSIP

The market ruled very steady during the forenoon on buying coming from such men as Rich, Farnum, Goodbody, Craig brokers and Hentz. However, the ring was amazing the bulls and there was no special reason for the selling.

The selling has been constant during the past week, but was met by a good deal by a great many conservative operators that an upturn is in order.

One of the explanations offered yesterday for the bearish tendency of the market in the face of the most bullish crop news that ever came to the old of longs was that there is an unpublished report that Liverpool and spot houses and several large brokers that the market would be put down if possible in order to let in some big spinning interests, who think that the time is not far off before the frosts and are alarmed over the outlook for low grade cotton generate yield. It is also said that the report has not yet run its course, and some of those who claim to be on the inside are predicting a further setback of possibly a dollar a bale, which would evidently have something to the effect in view of the fact that the crop is a small one and a large portion of the staple is unspinnable.

A representative of a New York cotton house, who has just returned from a trip in the Eastern region, says that owing to the heavy rains, and more than 400,000 bales of possible top crop cotton on the ground, he says that undoubtedly the frost declared in all zones of a top crop, as all blooms and bolls were killed. Only in the case of bolls which had almost matured before the frosts, was that ground. He says that cotton will be mixed. He predicts, nevertheless, a crop of more than a normal one in the eastern States of Georgia, Alabama, and the Carolinas and of the that despite the frost, Georgia will produce 2,500,000 bales. The source from which he this estimation, should make up the undoubted shortage in the Western States and bring the total commercial crop up to 14,000,000 bales, or possibly more.

Dallas, Texas, wires: "Texas cotton acreage will campaign 42 percent, Oklahoma, clear; heavy frost; 38 degrees."

ST. LOUIS CASH QUOTATIONS.

Wheat—No. 2 red ..... 96 @97⅞
Corn—No. 2 ..... 71¼
Oats—No. 2 ..... 40 @40⅞

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—There was a stronger undercurrent to wheat after the opening, the 2 to 3c advance being posted, which makes the world's shipments for the week only 8,906,000 bushels. Another bull help was the continued falling off in the receipts of wheat at primary markets.

Corn closed ⅛ to ⅜c lower with July the only option that did this.

Oats were ¼c to ⅜ off. Provisions were mainly higher.

COTTON SEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The cotton seed oil market was high to-day on firmness in the west and light old crop offerings. Trading, however, was small in volume and local in character.

Europe reported to be showing more interest in the near-by months. The better grades, and the consuming trade showed signs of improvement.
