JOHN M. GANT ACCUSED OF THE CRIME; FORMER BOOKKEEPER TAKEN BY POLICE

J. M. GANT, arrested in Marietta for the murder of Mary Phagan, gave to a reporter for The Georgian his story of his actions that led to his arrest. He protested his innocence, and declared he was home in bed at the time the crime is supposed to have been committed.

In striking contradiction to this statement of Mrs. F. C. Terrell, of 284 East Linden Street, where Gant said he slept Saturday night, that she had not seen Gant in three weeks.

"I watched the Memorial Day parade in Atlanta," said Gant, as he sat in the Marietta police station, "and after the parade was mostly over I went out to the ball game. After the game I remembered that I had left some old shoes at the pencil factory, and decided to go over and get them. I went over there at 6 o'clock and Superintendent Frank let me in.

"He told the negro watchman to help me find my shoes, and both of them saw me get them; and also saw me leave the building.

"Then I went back to town and met Arthur White, who is employed in the pencil factory, O. G. Bagley, an employee of the Atlanta Milling Company, and Bagley's brother. With them I played pool in the Globe pool parlor on Broad Street until 10:30 o'clock, and then I caught a cab and went home.

"Yes, I knew the girl. I knew Mary Phagan quite well, but I went to work I had not seen her since I left the plant as an employee three weeks ago. I am innocent and developments will prove it."

Gant answers the description of the man Edgar L. Sentell says he saw with the Phagan girl shortly after midnight to a remarkable degree. He is about six feet tall, of slender build and dark complexion. His hair is dark and inclined to curl, and he wore a blue suit and a straw hat. He said that he is twenty-two years old and that his name was James, and not John, as Superintendent Frank had stated.

Gant was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Hicks on the 1 o'clock car. He did not appear particularly nervous and was confident that he would be able to demonstrate his innocence, but the detectives with him were equally certain that the slayer had been captured.

- Here is told in chronological order the story of the mystery:
- 1—Mary Phagan, 14 years old, was strangled to death in the National Pencil Co.'s factory, 37 South Forsyth Street.
 - 2—Newt Lee, negro night watchman, found her body in the basement a little after 8 o'clock Sunday morning and notified the police. He was arrested.
 - 3—Arthur Mullaux, identified by E. B. Sentell, 83 Davis Street, as the man who was with Mary Phagan at 12:30 o'clock Sunday morning, was arrested Sunday afternoon and is held in solitary confinement at police headquarters.
 - 4—Joe M. Frank, superintendent of the National Pencil Co.'s factory, was summoned to police headquarters this morning and detained there to tell what he knows of the girl and of the terrible fate.
 - 5—Hair, tangled and matted, but identified positively as that of a girl, was found clinging to a lathe on the third floor of the factory, which leads the police to believe that someone who had access to the factory is responsible for the crime.
 - 6—Geron Bailey, the negro elevator boy employed in the factory, was also arrested.
 - 7—E. B. Skipper, 224 1/2 Peters Street, says he saw a girl answering the description of Mary Phagan being escorted to the company three freshly dressed women, who took her to Whitehall near Mitchell Street, at about 10 o'clock Saturday night. The girl was weeping and seemed weak and dazed.
 - 8—When the girls employed at the National Pencil Co.'s factory assembled for work this morning they were so upset they excused from reading of the murder of Mary Phagan that the factory had to be closed.
 - 9—J. M. Gant, former bookkeeper in the pencil factory, arrested in Marietta and accused of the murder.
 - 10—Gant tells The Georgian he was home and in bed at East Linden Avenue when the crime occurred. His last lady says he has not been there in three weeks.

Gant Was Infatuated With Girl; at Factory Saturday

Gant was arrested on a warrant issued for some time with the same name out in Judge Powell court, possibly, but last three weeks charging him with murder.

Saturday, May 25, 1913, the girl was last seen before her arrest at 1:30 this morning by Inspector M. H. M. Hill, assistant superintendent of the factory. A few minutes later he was on a car bound for Marietta.

The officers in Marietta were notified by telephone and were on the watch for a man answering Gant's description.

The detective here is agreed that Gant was not in the factory on Saturday morning from half a dozen o'clock to 10 o'clock.

All were in the street that Gant was seen by the police at 10:30 o'clock in the city street and that he was arrested at a point of law.

The girl was seen on the street with a man who was seen by the police at 10:30 o'clock.

Slain Girl Modest And Quiet, He Says

Timeskeeper at Pencil Factory Describes Mary Phagan Attended Strictly to Her Work.

"She was a quiet and modest little girl" was the tribute paid Mary Phagan today by M. F. Hilloway, a timeskeeper at the National Pencil Company's plant.

"I never noticed her talking with any of the employees, she was invariably polite, as though she had been carefully reared in her home. She paid attention strictly to her own work and never was seen conversing with any of the men so far as I know. In fact, I don't know that she ever had any acquaintance with any of the men except in so far as she was necessary as a part of her work. She was a very good girl and she was a very good worker."

"I COULD TRUST MARY ANYWHERE,"

ARTHUR MULLINAX

This youth, formerly a street car conductor, held in connection with the investigation of the slaying of Mary Phagan in the basement of the National Pencil Factory in South Forsyth Street. He stoutly denies any connection with the crime, and declares his arrest in a "horrible mistake." He has accounted for himself, and likely will be released.

MRS. COLEMAN PROSTRATED BY CHILD'S DEATH

"No Working Girl is Safe," She Sobs, Overcome by Her Sudden Sorrow.

Lying on the bed in her little home on Lindsay Street, prostrated with sorrow over the murder of her 14-year-old daughter, Mary Phagan, Mrs. W. Z. Coleman sobbed out the pitiful story of how sweet and fresh her child had left "this Monday morning" and issued a warning to all Atlanta mothers to guard the welfare of their own daughters forced to work for a living.

"There are so many unscrupulous men in the world," she cried. "It's so dangerous for young girls working out. Their every step should be watched. Mothers should question them and ask them about their work and associates and surroundings. They should continually tell them what they ought to do, and how they ought to act under certain circumstances."

Girl Liked Work.

She declared that she never would have permitted Mary to go out to work at the age she did—14 years—if it had not been that there were five children in the family and it was absolutely necessary for all of them to earn something toward their support. That was before she married her present husband, Mr. Coleman. That was a year ago," said Mrs. Coleman, "and then it wouldn't have been necessary for Mary to work. But she had got into the habit of it and liked it, and I thought she could take care of herself as she always had."

"Oh, the poor baby," she sobbed. "I did talk to her. I did tell her what to do. I was always telling her. And she took my advice, I know, because she was always so sensible about everything. Besides, she never was a child to flirt or act silly. That's my baby. She had some boys who went away with the man who killed her, she was either overpowered or he threatened her."

Mrs. Coleman said that girls ought to look out for themselves, too, and never permit any familiarity from men.

"When a girl is pretty," she declared, "naturally she attracts to her. Mary was pretty, too; and, besides that, she was always happy and in a good humor. She had some boys who were in and had gone home who was in and had no way to let me know."

Too Young to Know.

She covered her face with her hands when she spoke of her daughter.

"And to think that at the time I was thinking that she was in the hands of a murderer's hand! Oh, if only Mr. Coleman had happened along the street and found her! They told me she was crying on a corner at 12 o'clock and this man who was with her was cursing her when a policeman came up and asked her what was the matter. She just told him she had got into her eye. I guess the reason she didn't say anything was because she was afraid the man would hit her and, in fact, just didn't know what to do. She was too young."

But with everything, Mrs. Coleman said she was sure she would be a mother to her with a child all her own life. She had only one child, and she had already said that she had only intended to have one child.

GIRL SLAIN IN STRANGLING MYSTERY

daughter of Mrs. J. W. Coleman, 146 Lindsay Street, whose slain body was found in the basement of the National Pencil Factory in South Forsyth Street. The girl left her home Saturday morning to go to the factory, where she had been employed for some time. She was not seen alive thereafter.

GIRL AND HIS LANDLADY DEFEND MULLINAX

Declaring her belief in the absolute innocence of her neighbor, Arthur Mullinax, the murderer of Mary Phagan, the 14-year-old girl who was slain in the basement of the National Pencil Factory, Mrs. J. W. Coleman said today that she had seen Mullinax in the morning and afternoon of the day the girl was killed.

Mrs. Coleman said that she had seen Mullinax in the morning and afternoon of the day the girl was killed. She said that she had seen Mullinax in the morning and afternoon of the day the girl was killed.

Another important discovery was made this morning by detectives when they searched the basement of the National Pencil Factory building on Forsyth Street. A small compartment in which was found a number of old boards and shavings. The footprints of a man, found near the old boards, were identified as those of Arthur Mullinax. The coroner's jury was shown the room where it made an investigation of the plant this morning.

HORRIBLE MISTAKE, PLEADS MULLINAX, DENYING CRIME

Arthur Mullinax, identified as the man who was with Mary Phagan at midnight Saturday, a few short hours before her dead body was found, and now a prisoner in military confinement at police headquarters, declared to a Georgian reporter that his arrest was a terrible mistake.

He declared that he had never seen the girl except at "the slanging league" in a church entertainment in which both took part last Christmas. Here is his complete story:

"I talked with her there about fifteen minutes," he should judge, and, hiding her agonized, returned to my boarding house at 48 Poplar Street, in Bellwood. On arrival there, I gave Mrs. Emma Rutherford, my landlady, a dollar, for some work done on my clothes.

"Mrs. Rutherford slipped on the girl under her pillow, and I went on to my room and went to bed. And I slept soundly until this Sunday morning."

GIRL'S GRANDFATHER VOWS VENGEANCE

"I had seen her one time. That was last Christmas at an entertainment given in the Wesleyan Heights Baptist church. We both took part in that entertainment. She played the part of the sleeping beauty, and I did a black face act and also sang in a quartet.

"But I was not even introduced to the girl. During the entertainment the girl remained in the theatre in a good black face act, but this was all that passed between us. I have never been with her at any time since then, much less at midnight."

Standing with bare head in the doorway of his sister's home, he looked at the girl who had been brought to justice. He would not rest until the murderer had been brought to justice. In a speech unbroken save by the cough of his own nose and the noise of the gavel falling on the old man lifted his quivering voice in a passionate plea for the life of the youth who had been found guilty of the slaying of his granddaughter. He said that he had seen the girl in the basement of the pencil factory and that he had seen her with the man who had been arrested.

Where and With Whom Was Mary Phagan Before End?

Detectives to-day are using all their resources to learn where Mary Phagan was every minute of Saturday and Saturday night, whom she saw, with whom she talked, and what she said.

There are wide blanks in the story of her movements. These must be filled. 12:10 p. m.—Mary Phagan appeared at the National Pencil Factory at ten or fifteen minutes after 12 o'clock noon, Saturday, and drew the pay due her, $1.60.

She talked a few minutes with friends; The manager is sure she then left the building. She told her mother she was going to see the Memorial Day parade.

Did she go straight from the factory to see the procession? Who joined her? Where did she stand? When the procession had passed, where did she go? Did someone, that early in the day, start weaving around her the net which later caused her death?

10 p. m.—E. S. Skipper, 224 1-2 Peters Street, saw a girl answering the description of Mary Phagan at about 10 o'clock Saturday night. She was walking up Pryor Street near Trinity with three youths. She was crying, and seemed to be trying to get away from her companions.

Was this, in truth, Mary Phagan? If so, who were the youths? Where had they been, and where did they go? 12:30 a. m.—E. L. Sentell, who had known Mary Phagan nearly all her life, saw her with a man he identifies as Arthur Mullinax, walking north on Forsyth Street near Hunter at about 12:30 o'clock Sunday morning.

When the police and detectives have filled in these blanks, the murderer of Mary Phagan will be known.

Lifelong Friend Saw Girl and Man After Midnight

Kidger L. Sentell, twenty-one years old, a clerk employed in C. J. Kaufman's store, and whose home is at 23 Davis Street, was one of the first to give the detectives a hopeful clue to the solution of the hideous mystery.

Sentell, a well-known young man, had known Mary Phagan almost all her life. When she was first beginning to think of dolls with never thought of fancy factories and the ragdolls of the world.

When he later years—practically blind and changed hair. He thought blue eyes laughing at the world, and that he saw a girl walking up Hunter Street near Forsyth at about 12:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Another Best Companion. It was reported to the detectives that a young girl, Kennedy of the English Avenue line had admitted having brought a young girl, answering the description of the little victim, into the city of her care about 12 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Mary Phagan, at that hour of the night, was a conspicuous figure. Power-dressed girls on the streets of Atlanta at midnight are not so common, but they are not so noticeable.

On the curb side of the pavement parallel with her, keeping step with her and carrying his words, walked a small slender man.

Exchanged "Hello's." Sentell looked into the eyes of the man and saw that he was not a stranger, but a man he had seen in the streets of Atlanta at midnight.

He was a blue suit and tan shoes and was of slender build and appeared to be about twenty-five years old.

At 5 o'clock Tuesday morning Sentell was on a street car when he heard that a girl named Mary Phagan had been found murdered. He hurried to his home and found the facts verified.

When he later years—practically blind and changed hair. He thought blue eyes laughing at the world, and that he saw a girl walking up Hunter Street near Forsyth at about 12:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

ATLANTA GETS ASSURANCE OF OPERA IN 1914

Telegram From Kahn Intimates That Backers of Metropolitan Company May Attend.

Otto H. Kahn, chairman of the board of directors of the Metropolitan Opera Company, has assured Colonel W. M. Peet, president of the Atlanta Music Festival Association, in a letter made public to-day, that the great musical organization will only too glad to attend again in Atlanta next year.

The telegram indicates that Mr. Kahn and other New York directors, leaders in the financial world and foremost backers of grand opera, intend to be present.

Lane Too Busy to Accept High Honor

Secretary of the Interior Cannot Go to California to Receive Degree of LL. D.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane has been forced by pressure of public business to decline an invitation from Dr. Benjamin Ide Wheeler, president of the University of California, to receive the highest honor within the gift of the university, the degree of LL. D.

It is that time it is the intention of the University of California to confer the degree upon Colonel George W. Desha, chairman of the International Canal Commission, and the directing general of construction work upon the Panama Canal.

Mr. Lane, chairman of the board of directors of the Metropolitan Opera Company, has assured Colonel W. M. Peet, president of the Atlanta Music Festival Association, in a letter made public to-day, that the great musical organization will only too glad to attend again in Atlanta next year.

The telegram indicates that Mr. Kahn and other New York directors, leaders in the financial world and foremost backers of grand opera, intend to be present.

Mr. Kahn's reply to Colonel Peet is his complete reply to the Atlanta Music Festival Association, Atlanta, Ga.

Augustan Held as Thief Blames Races

Aged Man Charged With Misappropriating $14,000 Belonging to Ward, Arrested at Trask.

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 28.—A Devoted Sheriff left to-day for Baltimore to bring back to Augusta A. J. Gouley, the aged Augustan man who is charged with misappropriating funds of an estate of which he was trustee, and also as guardian for a minor child, Miss Agnes Bernasch.

The amount involved is $14,000. The company who was on Gouley's bond made the shortage good. Gouley had been missing since May 1, 1912, and had been traced to Frederick, Md., and to many places throughout the United States.

The principal speakers will be Dr. John M. White, pastor of the Second Baptist Church, and John R. Spalding, superintendent of the Sunday School of the First Christian Church, and C. V. Lacey, superintendent of the Sunday school.

Attendance at the Baptist school was 1,410 and at the Christian 1,314. Since the contest was started the Baptist school has gained 683 and the Christian school 426.

10,000 THROUGH MORGUE TO SEE BODY OF VICTIM

Coroner's Jury Inspects Remains and Scene of Tragedy, Then Waits Until Wednesday.

Coming on a slab in the chapel of the Bloomfield undertaking establishment, with the white trough bearing the red marks of the rope that strangled her, the body of Mary Phagan was viewed by thousands this morning.

No such gathering of the morbidly curious has ever before been seen in Atlanta. More people were attracted to the scene of the tragedy than were viewed by thousands this morning.

Chief and Sleuths Trace Steps in Slaying of Girl

In the room where Mary Phagan was attacked and held out her young life to the brutality of her assailant, across the floor where her limp form was dragged, down the stairs and through the scenes strewn over into the dirty basement where her body was found, Chief of Police Devereaux and two detectives trailed, step by step, every move of the girl's murderer to-day.

Determined that out a clew should be overlooked in the efforts to fix guilt upon the man or men that took the young girl's life, the Chief and his aides began at the very spot in the tip plant in the rear of the second floor where the bloodstains and the strands of matted hair indicated that the girl had put up such a desperate fight for her life and honor.

Curious Crowd Outside Factory. Meanwhile the curious crowd of curiosity seekers on the outside of the building would not be restrained, and that with the excitement of the complete details necessary to close down the factory for the day.

Excited men in the throng, morbidly curious or filled with wrath at the human deed, forced their way back into the building and refused to turn back. A detective who would not leave the instant man who would not leave the building.

Inside the building the nervous tension of the employees was apparent in every department. With the ghost of the terrible crime stalking about, they could not work. After several hours of ineffectual work, the foremen saw that the girls and other employees were so wrought up over the tragedy that it was useless to keep them in

Story of the Killing as Meager Facts Reveal It

A new turn was given to the mystery to-day when strands of blood-matted hair were found in a latrine machine on the second floor of the factory. The discovery made it certain that the crime was committed in the factory by some one who had access to the building, a theory which had been without conclusive support previously.

Blood stains leading from the latrine to the door showed the manner in which the head had dragged the body of the victim and had laid her to the basement.

Appearance indicated that the murderer had sought to cover up the trail of his crime by endeavoring to efface the bloody stains. The alternative theory is that she fell back against it in her struggles.

The matted body of Mary Phagan was found in a dark, dismal corner of the pencil factory basement shortly after 8 o'clock yesterday morning to dash-brown hair were discovered this morning when T. A. Quinn, foreman in the tip plant on the second floor, sent R. W. Barrett, a workman, over to the latrine.

Barrett gave a cry of alarm when he saw the evidence of the shocking crime and of the struggle the little girl apparently had made against the superior strength of her assailant.

The hair was twisted about the turn-up screw on the latrine, a crank-like device which is used to move the penicils forward and backward on the machine.

Evidence of Terrible Struggle. Blood was on the side and end of the crank, leading to the belief that it had been used as a weapon and was responsible for the gash in the back of the Phagan girl's head. The alternative theory is that she fell back against it in her struggles.

City Chemist Tests Stains For Blood

Pieces of wood, the stains on which are believed to be those of the blood of murdered Mary Phagan, the city chemist's examination this afternoon by the city chemist.

The discovery of white powder on the factory floor, immediately after the murder, has been a puzzle to the police. The powder resembled very much cleaning preparations that are used.

MEM WELCOME MOTHER'S FRIEND A Duty That Every Man Owe to Those Who Perpetuate the Race.

At a point about 75 feet from an elevator shaft, midway between the body and the start, on a pile of trash, was found one of the girl's shoes—the one from her left foot—near her hat. The slayer had left the shoe and hat from the little form as the girl struggled vainly to save herself from his blows.

About the girl's neck was tightly drawn a strong piece of twine. A strip of cloth, torn from her underclothing, was also fastened about her neck. Not settled with the blows he had dealt on the head—one blow on the back of the head being so terrible as to dislocate one of the girl's eyes—the slayer had resorted to strangulation to be sure that the last spark of life had been extinguished. A big knife had been drawn so tightly that it was imbedded in the tender flesh, leaving the throat and neck discolored and lacerated.

MAKES YOUR BACKACHE VANISH, DRIVES RHEUMATIC PAINS AWAY

Eases Stiff, Sore, Swollen Joints and Muscles Relieving Backache and Bladder Disorders After Few Doses Are Taken.

This is what Crozon, the new scientific discovery, does for sufferers of such troubles. It promptly reaches the cause, it soaks right into the joints, it cleans out the kidneys and cleans out the stopped-up urinary organs like a new broom. It is a sponge-neutralizer, and dissolves away particles of matter that are the cause of the trouble. It cleans the kidneys out from the blood all the waste matter and poisons that lodge in the joints and muscles to stretch and irritate and cause rheumatism. It soothes and heals the delicate linings of the bladder and leaves the kidneys in a clean, strong, healthy condition.

They're not bitter! The blood and keep you well. If you suffer with backache—have pains in the neck or sides—sore joints or drags aches—a few doses of Crozon will relieve the complaint and you will be surprised how quickly all kinds of bladder and rheumatic troubles will disappear. Crozon is different from all other remedies. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. An original package of Crozon costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price of Crozon should fall in a single case.

PEACHTREE HEIGHTS

AUCTION

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 30 3 O'CLOCK P. M.

Let's get down to bedrock from the start: When you buy a piece of residence property, you always look for something somebody else wants or is going to want.

The more others want it, the more it is going to enhance in value; and speed of enhancement is proportionate to the eagerness of their desire for it.

Simple reasoning? Yes, just the same old story of supply and demand.

The SUPPLY of PEACHTREE property is limited; there is just so much of it; there can never be any more.

The DEMAND for PEACHTREE has no limit but Atlanta's growth.

In ten more years Atlanta's population increased 75 per cent.

In the same ten years Atlanta home-seekers bought and built on nearly three more miles of PEACHTREE.

Some twenty of these the last two years built their homes in PEACHTREE HEIGHTS.

At the same rate of growth in population and demand for PEACHTREE homes, do you realize where the next ten years will take them?

It will find Atlanta built up in homes more than two miles beyond Buckhead, with Buckhead taken into the city limits.

You can buy PEACHTREE HEIGHTS lots Wednesday at AUCTION PRICES.

Look a little into the future and figure, also, what this means.

You can never again buy them at these prices. They will not again be offered at Auction. If you are an opportunity chaser, get on the job. Call for plats at the office of ATLANTA MAN SENTENCED FOR SHOOTING A WOMAN. De. J. W. Hight performed an autopsy on the body late this afternoon, but refused to make public the result of the examination until the coroner's jury meets Wednesday morning.

DENIES GUILT BUT IS IDENTIFIED AS MAN SEEN LEADING GIRL

The Georgian will pay $500 reward for EXCLUSIVE information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Mary Phagan.

J. M. Gant, accused of the strangling of Mary Phagan, was brought to Atlanta this afternoon at 4 o'clock from Marietta, where he had been under arrest in the Sheriff's office since noon.

Fearing a demonstration from the crowd that had been waiting at the Walton Street station for several hours, Detective Hallett transferred his prisoner to a Marietta car to a Deatur car and had him locked up in the police station before many were aware that he had been taken.

Gant, trembling and nervous, refused to talk at first. "I have nothing to say, nothing to say," he repeated to the interrogations of the reporters.

As Hallett led him to the police station, Gant glanced apprehensively around as though he were in fear of being taken away from the office.

When a demonstration occurred, Gant, recovering his poise in a measure, turned to the reporters and declared his absolute innocence of any connection with the gruesome affair.

Makes Complete Denial. "I know nothing about it," he declared.

"Before God, I am innocent of the whole affair. I have not seen Mary Phagan for three weeks. I haven't seen her since I left the factory three weeks ago. I had known her about ten months.

"I was at the factory for about ten minutes Saturday afternoon, but that was all. I got a pair of shoes there that belonged to me and left them in the near-bear saloon across the street. Then I knocked about town during the evening and went to my home at 284 East Linden Street, about midnight.

"I was at home again Sunday night and did not leave Atlanta until this morning.

Asked to explain his suspicious departure from town, Gant answered that it was really by way of saying that it was due to a previous arrangement with his mother, Mrs. Mary Louise Gant, to visit her to-day at her home near Marietta.

He went there frequently, he said, and his visit there this time was to see her in regard to making his home there permanent.

Threats of habeas corpus proceedings to obtain the freedom of Gant were made tonight by Judge George F. Goyer, who is representing the accused man, and who is a relative. The threats were made on the refusal of Chief of Detectives Hallett to give Gant an immediate preliminary hearing on the demand of Goyer.

Identified by Police Informer. "That's the man, I'm quite sure, that I saw holding the arm of a little girl on the street last Saturday night and apparently leading her toward the pencil factory," was the statement of J. M. Skippy, when he was brought face to face with J. M. Gant.

Skippy, when he was brought face to face with J. M. Gant, after a few minutes in the police station.

It was Skippy's testimony before the police and detectives that made the evidence against Mullaux appear strong against the day.

Where and With Whom Was Mary Phagan Before End?

Detectives to-day are using all their resources to learn where Mary Phagan was every minute of Saturday and Saturday night, whom she saw, with whom she talked, and what she said.

There are wide blanks in the story of her movements. These must be filled. 12:10 p. m.—Mary Phagan appeared at the National Pencil Factory at ten or fifteen minutes after 12 o'clock noon, Saturday, and drew the pay due her, $1.60. She chatted a few minutes with friends. The manager is sure she then left the building.

She told her mother she was going to see the Memorial Day parade. Did she go straight from the factory to see the procession? Who joined her? Where did she stand? When the procession had passed, where did she go? Did someone, that early in the day, start weaving around her the net which later caused her death?

10 p. m.—E. S. Skipper, 224 1/2 Peters Street, saw a girl answering the description of Mary Phagan at about 10 o'clock Saturday night. She was walking up Pryor Street near Trinity with three youths. She was crying, and seemed to be trying to get away from her companions. She seemed to be under the influence of an opiate, not of drink.

Was this, in truth, Mary Phagan? If so, who were the youths? Where had they been, and where did they go? 12:30 a. m.—E. L. Sontell, who had known Mary Phagan nearly all her life, saw her with a man he identifies as Arthur Mullinar, walking north on Forsyth Street near Hunter at about 12:30 o'clock Sunday morning. The girl was tired and angry. She spoke to him.

Did she and her companion go at once to the pencil factory? If not, where did they go? 3 a. m.—The mutilated body of Mary Phagan was found in a dark corner of the National Pencil Factory basement, 37-39 South Forsyth Street, by the night watchman.

Here are the gaps—from 12:15 Saturday afternoon to 10 o'clock Saturday night. From 10 o'clock Saturday night to 12:30 o'clock Sunday morning. From 12:30 o'clock Sunday morning until 3 o'clock Sunday morning.

When the police and detectives have filled in those blanks, the murderer of Mary Phagan will be known.

10,000 THROUGH MORGUE TO SEE BODY OF VICTIM

Coroner's Jury Inspects Remains and Scene of Tragedy, Then Waits Until Wednesday.

Leaving on a slab in the chapel of the Bloomfield undertaking establishment, with the white sheet bearing the red marks of the rope that strangled her, the body of Mary Phagan was viewed by thousands this morning.

Each gathering of the morbidly curious has ever before been seen in Atlanta.) More people were attracted than by any crime in the history of the city. The crowds came in droves, and a steady procession passed before the slab on which lay the little body. Old men and young men, women with babies in their arms and women who talked with aze, little friends of the dead child and little children who had to be raised in the arms of their mothers before they could see the white face of their dead playmate—crowded into the little chapel.

Crowd Before Break
Long before daylight the crowd began to form in front of the undertaking establishment. By 6 o'clock a great hundred had come, and were awaiting with tense eagerness for the arrival of the door. Factory girls and laboring men, passing on their way to work, were caught by the love of the tragedy and crowded into the line. A number of fashionably dressed women alighted from their automobiles and with wide drawn over their faces peered against the plate glass windows of the chapel.

At 9 o'clock there were about 1,000 persons gathered around the morgue. The jam at the doorway was so great that extra policemen were called. When the doors were opened the crowd was permitted to pass in one by one and view the form.

An old man, who had known the Phagan family for years and had reared the dead child on his knees, was the first to view the remains. For more than thirty minutes he stood with hand held beside the body.

It is estimated that 10,000 people have viewed the body of this child since it was found in the basement of the building on Forsyth Street. All yesterday thousands of people crowded into the little mortuary. J. B. McMillin declared that no less than 1,000 persons entered his place during the day.

In the morning the crowd was even greater, and since 9 o'clock it is estimated that between 6,000 and 7,000 have passed in slight review before the dead child.

Inspector in Charge
At 10 o'clock when Coroner Donohoe began his report, the chapel was cleared of the spectators and the body of the child removed to a private room. The men inspected to inquire into the death of the child.

Homer C. Ashford, foreman; John Miller, J. C. Hood, C. Y. Sheets, Glenn Bessy and Charles W. Langford.

No witnesses were examined this morning by the coroner's jury. The six men viewed the remains and were observed by physicians the manner in which the child met her death, after which they visited the plant of the National Patent Company, where the murder occurred. There they made a thorough examination of the basement where the child's body was found. Inspected the tile plant on the second floor, where the bloody strands of hair were found, and followed the trail of blood through the building to the scene of the crime.

At noon Coroner Donohoe dismissed the jury until Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock, when the examination of witnesses will take place. The coroner refused to give out a list of the persons he had summoned before the jury.

Chief and Sleuths Trace Steps in Slaying of Girl

In the room where Mary Phagan was attacked and paid out her young life to the brutality of her assassin; across the floor where her limp form was dragged; down the stairs and down through the square trap-door into the dirty basement where her body was found, Chief of Police Harvey and two detectives walked, step by step, every move of the girl's murderer to-day.

Stedaine on Floor
They demonstrated that the stains on the floor were not of red paint, but were of blood. Red the stains bear paint, they would have been soiled in alcohol. But when the alcohol was applied the full-late spots—only grew brighter.

Added to this convincing evidence, the chief had the testimony of employees in the building that these stains were not there Saturday when the building was cleaned up for the week. They must have come some time between Saturday and the time that they were discovered this morning. For the purpose of conclusive analysis, the chief had pieces of the floor chipped up and taken to headquarters.

The detectives believe they have solved the manner in which the assailant made his escape from the building. A step in the rear-door of the basement could not be resisted. A detective had an encounter with one instant man who would not leave the building.

Inside the building the nervous tension of the employees was apparent in every department. With the ghost of the terrible crime stalking about, they could not work. After several hours of ineffectual work, the foremen said that the girls and other employees were so wrought up over the tragedy that it was useless to keep them in the factory for the day.

Existing men in the morning, urinous or filled with wrath at the managers' deed, forced their way into the building and refused to turn back. A detective had an encounter with one instant man who would not leave the building.

Story of the Killing as Meager Facts Reveal It

A new turn was given the mystery today when strands of blood-stained hair were found in a latrine machine on the second floor of the factory.

The discovery made it certain that the crime was committed in the factory by some one who had access to the building, a theory which has been without conclusive support previously.

Blood stains leading from the latrine door showed the manner in which the man had dragged the body of his victim and had taken her to the basement.

Apprehensions
Indicated that the murderer had sought to cover up the trail of his crime by endeavoring to smother the bloody strands. The hair was found in a latrine machine on the second floor of the factory.

Another man was brought into the case to-day by the testimony of penitentiary employees. The strands were hurled to the building and an arrest is expected momentarily. The new suspect is said to be a former employee who was seen about the building Friday and Saturday.

The blood-stained strands of red-dish-brown hair were discovered this morning when L. A. Quinn, foreman in the tile plant on the second floor, sent R. P. Barrett, a workman, over to the latrine.

Barrett gave a cry of alarm when he saw the evidence of the shocking crime and of the struggle the little girl apparently had made against the superior strength of her assailant.

The hair was found about the turn-up screw on the latrine, a crank-like device which is used to move the penile forward and backward on the machine.

Evidence of Terrible Struggle
Blood was on the strap and end of the crank, leading to the belief that it had been used as a weapon and was responsible for the gash in the back of the Phagan girl's head.

The alternative theory is that she fell back against it in her struggle.

The mutilated body of Mary Phagan was found in a dark, dismal corner of the pencil factory basement shortly after 6 o'clock yesterday morning by

New Lee, the negro night watchman. The negro held the almost unrecognizable body before he saw it in the dim, flickering light of the watchman's lantern. The tragedy was revealed in all its ghastliness.

The girl's form lay amid the trash and sweepings of the basement with bruised and bloody face upturned. In a heap of blood and with the freshly laundered dress of but a few hours before lay the victim.

All about was the evidence of a terrible struggle. The dilapidated clothing and the signs of contusion on the dirty basement floor told the tragic story of the girl's battle for life.

Fought Till She Succumbed
She had fought her brutal murderer until the last—until her strength had given out and she had swooned into death.

The body lay at a point about 75 feet from an elevator shaft, midway between the body and the stairs, on top of trash, was found one of the girl's shoes—the one from her left foot—and her hat. The shaver had torn the shoe and hat from the little form on the girl struggled, vainly to save herself from his blows.

About the girl's neck was tightly drawn a strong piece of twine. A big vein had been drawn so tightly that it was imbedded in the tender flesh, leaving the throat and neck discolored and lacerated.

PEACHTREE HEIGHTS

AUCTION

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 30 3 O'CLOCK P. M.

Let's get down to bedrock from the start:

When you buy a piece of residence property, you always look for something somebody else wants or is going to want.

The more others want it, the more it is going to enhance in value; and speed of enhancement is proportionate to the eagerness of their desire for it.

Simple reasoning? Yes, just the same old story of supply and demand.

The SUPPLY of PEACHTREE property is limited; there is just so much of it; there can never be any more.

The DEMAND for PEACHTREE has no limit but Atlanta's growth.

In ten more years Atlanta's population increased 75 per cent.

In the same ten years Atlanta home-seekers bought and built on nearly three more miles of PEACHTREE.

Some twenty of these the last two years, built their homes in PEACHTREE HEIGHTS.

At the same rate of growth in population and demand for PEACHTREE homes, do you realize where the next ten years will take them?

It will find Atlanta built up in homes more than two miles beyond Buckhead, with Buckhead taken into the city limits.

You can buy PEACHTREE HEIGHTS lots Wednesday at AUCTION PRICES.

Look a little into the future and figure, also, what this means.

You can never again buy them at these prices. They will not again be offered at Auction.

ARRESTED AS SLAYER, RECENT EMPLOYEE AND SUTOR DENIES GUILT

The Georgian will pay $500 reward for EXCLUSIVE information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Mary Phagan.

J. M. Gant, accused of the strangling of Mary Phagan, was brought to Atlanta this afternoon at 4 o'clock from Marietta, where he had been under arrest in the Sheriff's office since forenoon.

When his demonstration of the crowd that had been waiting at the Walton Street station for several hours, Detective Hazlett transferred his prisoner from a Marietta car to a Detour car and had him locked up in the police station before many were aware that he was in town.

Gant, trembling and nervous, refused to talk at first. "I have nothing to say, nothing to say," he repeated to the interrogations of the reporters.

When his demonstration occurred, Gant, recovering his poise to a measure, turned to the reporters and declared his absolute innocence of any connection with the gruesome affair.

Asked to explain his suspicious departure from town, Gant accounted for it very readily by saying that it was due to a previous arrangement with his mother, Mrs. Mary Louisa Gant, to visit her to-day at her home near Marietta.

"I was at the factory for about ten minutes Saturday afternoon, but that was all. I got a pair of shoes there that belonged to me and left them in the near-by saloon across the street. Then I knocked about town during the evening and went to my home at 284 East Linden Street, about midnight."

"I was at home again Sunday night and did not leave Atlanta until this morning."

"I was at home again Sunday night and did not leave Atlanta until this morning."

"I COULD TRUST ANYWHERE," HER MOTHER SAID.

ARTHUR MULLINAX This youth, formerly a street car conductor, is held in connection with the investigation of the slaying of Mary Phagan in the basement of the National Pencil Factory in South Forsyth Street. He stoutly denies any connection with the crime, and declares his arrest is a "horrible mistake." He has accounted for himself, and likely will be released.

MRS. COLEMAN PROSTRATED BY CHILD'S DEATH

"No Working Girl is Safe," She Sobs, Overcome by Her Sudden Sorrow.

Lying on the bed in her little home on Lindsay Street, prostrated with sorrow over the murder of her 14-year-old daughter, Mary Phagan, Mrs. W. J. Coleman sobbed out the painful story of how sweet and fresh her child had left home Saturday, and issued a warning to all Atlanta mothers to guard the welfare of their own daughters forced to work for a living.

"There are so many unscrupulous men in the world," she cried, "it's no danger for young girls working out. Their every step should be watched. Mothers should question them and ask them about their work and associates and surroundings. They should continually tell them what they ought to do, and how they ought to act under certain circumstances."

She declared that she never would have permitted Mary to go out to work at the age she was—11 years— if, had not been that there were five children in the family and it was absolutely necessary for all of them to earn something toward their support. "That was before she married her present husband, Mr. Coleman."

"That was a year ago," said Mrs. Coleman, "and then it wouldn't have been necessary for Mary to work, but she had got into the habit of it, and I liked it, and I thought she could take care of herself as she always had."

The girl left her home Saturday morning to go to the factory, where she had been employed, to iron wages due her. She was seen on the streets at midnight Saturday with a strange man. She was not seen alive thereafter.

GIRL AND HIS LANDLADY DEFEND MULLINAX

Declaring the belief in the absolute innocence of her sweetest, Arthur Mullinax, in the murder of Mary Phagan, the girl's landlady, Mrs. Phagan, tonight (Monday) defended the boy, who had been taken into custody by police officers before Chief of Detectives Landrum this afternoon and returned to the warehouse of Mullinax Saturday night until about 10:30 o'clock.

With Miss Robinson, the landlady of Mullinax, and her own son, Thomas and James, who took up the wires, of Mullinax from the time he left Mrs. Robinson until the next morning, establishing what appears to be a complete alibi. In order to establish the alibi Mrs. Robinson had to complete night in police in which she had said that she never noticed where Mullinax was from noon Saturday until Sunday morning.

Call Mullinax "Good Boy" "How do you do, good boy?" said his loyal little sweetheart.

"I know he would do nothing bad. He was too good and true. He was with me Saturday night from 6 o'clock until nearly 11 o'clock. We went to the Bijou theater together and left before it was over. We got home about 10:30 o'clock."

"I stayed on the porch a few minutes after he had gone and watching as he went down the street and into the car," she said.

"I have known Arthur for about five years, places with him. He always has been a very good boy."

HORRIBLE MISTAKE, PLEADS MULLINAX, DENYING CRIME

Arthur Mullinax, identified as the man who was with Mary Phagan at midnight Saturday, a few short hours before her dead body was found, and now a prisoner in solitary confinement at police headquarters, declared to a Georgia reporter that his arrest was a terrible mistake.

"I talked with her there about fifteen minutes. I should judge, and bidding her goodnight, returned to my boarding house at 40 Poplar street, in Bellwood. On arrival there, I gave Mrs. Emma Ruberford, my landlady, a dollar, for some work done on my clothes."

"I did not see her again until she was brought to the police station at 11 o'clock last night. I recognized her and I was told to communicate with anyone who could help me find her."

Where and With Whom Was Mary Phagan Before End?

Detectors to-day are using all their resources to learn where Mary Phagan was every minute of Saturday and Saturday night, whom she saw, with whom she talked, and what she said.

There are wide blanks in the story of her movements. These must be filled. 12:10 p. m.—Mary Phagan appeared at the National Pencil Factory at ten or fifteen minutes after 12 o'clock noon, Saturday, and drew the pay due her, $1.60.

She told her mother she was going to see the Memorial Day parade. Did she go straight from the factory to see the procession? Who joined her? Where did she stand? When the procession had passed, where did she go? Did someone, that early in the day, start weaving around her the net which later caused her death?

10 p. m.—E. S. Skipper, 224-1-2 Peters Street, saw a girl answering the description of Mary Phagan at about 10 o'clock Saturday night. She was walking up Pryor Street near Trinity with three youths. She was crying, and seemed to be trying to get away from her companions. She seemed to be under the influence of an opiate, not of drink.

Was this, in truth, Mary Phagan? If so, who were the youths? Where had they been, and where did they go?

12:30 a. m.—E. L. Sentell, who had known Mary Phagan nearly all his life, saw her with a man he identifies as Arthur Mullinax, walking north on Forsyth Street near Hunter at about 12:30 o'clock Sunday morning. The girl was tired and angry. She spoke to him.

Did she and her companion go at once to the pencil factory? If not, where did they go?

3 a. m.—The mutilated body of Mary Phagan was found in a dark corner of the National Pencil Factory basement, 37-39 South Forsyth Street, by the night watchman.

Here are the gaps—from 12:15 Saturday afternoon to 10 o'clock Saturday night. From 10 o'clock Saturday night to 12:30 o'clock Sunday morning. From 12:30 o'clock Sunday morning until 3 o'clock Sunday morning.

When the police and detectives have filled in these blanks, the murderer of Mary Phagan will be known.

Lifelong Friend Saw Girl and Man After Midnight

Edgar L. Sentell, twenty-one years old, a clerk employed at C. S. Kamm's store, on whose home is at 22 Davis Street, was one of the first to see the detective a hopeful clue to the solution of the hideous mystery.

Bertie, a well-known young man, had known Mary Phagan almost all his life. When she was just beginning to think of dolls with never-ending dresses and factories and the tragedy of life, he used to see her playing in the streets of South Point when her folks lived there. She was a pleasant, cheerful little girl then and her later years—tragically brief—had not changed her. Her little blue eyes laughed at the world in the same old way.

Outside of the stragglers about the cheap hotels in the district, there were few on the streets at that time. Sentell, a white-haired man, was walking alone, and he was walking alone, and he was walking alone, and he was walking alone...

Sentell looked at him more or less casually but sharply enough to detect the queer, more city fellow, that was all. Sentell kept on his way, but he was not alone. He was not alone. He was not alone. He was not alone...

10,000 THROUG MORGUE TO SEE BODY OF VICTIM

Coroner's Jury Inspects Remains and Scene of Tragedy, Then Waits Until Wednesday.

Living on a slab in the chapel of the Bloomfield undertaking establishment, with the white throat bearing the red marks of the rope that strangled her, the body of Mary Phagan was viewed by thousands this morning.

No such gathering of the mortuary curious has ever before been seen in Atlanta. Here people were attracted than by any crime in the history of the city. The crowds came in droves and a steady procession passed before the slab on which lay the little body of the young woman, who was only 17 years of age. Little friends of the dead child and little children who had to be raised in the arms of their mothers before they could see the white face of their dead playmate—crowded into the little chapel.

Crowd Before Daybreak. Long before daylight the crowds began to form in front of the undertaking establishment. By 6 o'clock several hundred had come, and were awaiting with tense eagerness for the opening of the door. Factory girls and laboring men, pushing on their heads the hats of their mothers, were crowded into the line. A number of fashionable dressed women alighted from their automobiles, and with veils drawn over their faces pressed against the plate glass windows of the chapel.

By 8 o'clock there were more than 1,000 persons gathered around the mortuary. The jam at the doorway was so great that extra policemen were called. When the crowd was opened the crowd was permitted to pass in by one and view the form.

An old man, who had known the Phagan family for years and had looked the dead child on his knees, was the first to view the remains that stood with bare head beside the body.

It is estimated that 10,000 people have viewed the body of the child since it was found in the basement of the building on Fourth Street. All day yesterday thousands of people crowded into the little chapel, and F. J. Bloomfield declared that, no fear that the mortuary would be closed during the day.

This morning the crowd was even greater, and about 6 o'clock it is estimated that between 6,000 and 7,000 have passed in silent reverie before the dead child.

Inquest Is Begun. At 10 o'clock, when Coroner Donoho began his inquest, the chapel was cleared of the spectators and the body of the child removed to a private room. The man immediately followed into the death of the child were:

Homer C. Ashford, foreman; John Miller, J. C. Hood, C. Y. Sheets, Glenn Dawberry and Clarence Langford.

No witnesses were examined this morning by the coroner's jury. The six men viewed the remains and were shown by physicians the manner in which the child met her death, after which they visited the plant of the National Pencil Company, where the murder occurred. There they made a thorough examination of the basement where the child's body was found, inspected the tin pans on the second floor, where the bloody strands of hair were found, and followed the trail of blood through the building to the scene of the crime.

At noon Coroner Donoho dismissed the jury until Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock, when the examination of the body will take place. The coroner refused to give out a list of the persons to stand witnesses before the jury.

Chief and Sleuths Trace Steps in Slaying of Girl

In the room where Mary Phagan was attacked and killed our young sleuths to the brutality of her assailant, across the floor where her limp form was dragged, down the stairs and down through the square trap-door into the dirty basement where her body was found, Chief of Police Beavers and two detectives trailed, step by step, every move of the girl's murderer.

Determined that not a clue should be overlooked in the effort to fix guilt upon the man or men that took the young girl's life, the Chief and his aides began at the very spot in the tip plant in the rear of the second floor where the bloodstains and the strands of matted hair indicated that the girl had put up such a desperate fight for her life and honor.

Excited men in the throng, morbidly curious seekers on the outside of the building would not be restrained, and that with the excitement of the employees made it necessary to close down the factory for the day.

Story of the Killing as Meager Facts Reveal It

A new turn was given the mystery to-day when strands of blood-matted hair were found in a lashing machine on the second floor of the factory.

The discovery made it certain that the crime was committed in the factory by some one who had access to the building, a theory which had been without conclusive support previously.

Another man was brought into the case to-day by the testimony of pencil company employees. Detectives were hurried to the building and an arrest is expected momentarily.

The mutilated body of Mary Phagan was found in a dark, dismal corner of the pencil factory basement shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday morning by

New Lee, the negro night watchman. The negro said he almost stumbled against the body before he saw it. In the dim, flickering light of the watchman's lantern, the tragedy was revealed in its ghastliness.

The girl lay on the floor with her hands and feet bound, and a pool of blood, and with the freshly laundered dress of but a few hours before dried crimson.

All about was the evidence of a terrific struggle. The disheveled condition of the dead girl's clothing and the signs of confusion on the dirty basement floor told the tragic story of the girl's battle for life.

Who had fought her brutal murderer until the last—until her strength had given out and she had swooned into death.

The body lay at a point about 11 feet from an elevator shaft. Midway between the body and the shaft, on a pile of iron, was found one of the girl's shoes—the one from her left foot—and her hat. The slayer had torn the shoe and hat from the little form of the girl struggling vainly to save herself from his blow.

About the girl's neck was tightly drawn a strong piece of twine. A strip of cloth, torn from her underclothing, was fastened about her neck. Not a single hair from the blow had been on the head—two blows on the back of the head being so terrific as to disorder one of the girl's eyes.

The slayer had resorted to strangulation to be sure that the last spark of life had been extinguished. The girl's hands had been drawn so tightly that it was imbedded in the tender flesh, leaving the throat and neck discolored and lacerated.

STORY OF PRISONER WHO DENIES CRIME; 'HORRIBLE MISTAKE'

Arthur Mullinax, White Youth Held By the Police, Declares the Only Time He Ever Met Mary Phagan Was in a Church Play.

Arthur Mullinax, confined as the man who was with Mary Phagan at midnight Saturday a few short hours before her dead body was found and now a prisoner in solitary confinement at police headquarters, declared to a Georgian reporter that his arrest was a terrible mistake.

He declared that he had never seen the girl except at the "singing society" in a church entertainment in which both took part last Christmas. Here is his complete story:

"I feel absolutely innocent in this affair and have been wrongfully accused. Some of the most horrible mistakes which have ever been made in my life were made when I was in company with Mary Phagan shortly after midnight Sunday morning in Forsyth street. I did not even know her until that she never had been introduced to her and I have never been associated with her in my life."

STRAND OF HAIR CLEW IN KILLING OF PHAGAN GIRL

Body of Mary Phagan Is Found in Basement of Old Granite Hotel in Forsyth Street—Mute Evidence of Terrible Battle Victim Made for Life

WHITE YOUTH AND NEGRO ARE HELD BY THE POLICE

After Being Beaten Into Insensibility Child Was Strangled and Dragged With Cord Back and Forth Across Floor—Incoherent Notes a Clew.

Leo M. Frank, superintendent of the National Pencil Company plant, in which Mary Phagan was employed, was taken to police court this morning by Detective Back to tell what he knows in connection with the girl's death. The police say he is not under arrest.

At the same time Geron Bailey, the negro elevator boy employed in the factory, was arrested. One theory names Bailey as the man to whom the incoherent letters apply that were found by the side of the dead girl, and that evidently were written in an effort to describe her assailant.

Policemen Mack, Phillips and Starnes went to the factory this morning upon the statement that blood and matted hair, evidence of a terrible struggle had been found on the third floor of the factory. It was on this visit that they summoned Frank and arrested Bailey.

They conducted a minute investigation of the signs of the struggle of the third floor, going so far as to tear up several sections of the plank flooring in their inspection.

A new and terrifying turn was given the gruesome Mary Phagan strangling mystery to-day when strands of blood-matted hair were found in a lathing machine on the third floor of the National Pencil Company's factory, 37.38 South Forsyth street.

The discovery made it certain that the dreadful crime was committed in the factory by some one who had access to the building, a theory which had been without conclusive support previously.

Blood stains leading from the lathe to the door showed the manner in which the fiend had dragged the body of his victim and had taken her to the basement.

Appearance indicated that the murderer had sought to cover up the trail of his crime by endeavoring to efface the bloody stains.

Another name was brought into the case to-day by the testimony of pencil company employes. Detectives were hurried to the building and an arrest is expected momentarily. The new suspect is said to be a former employee who was seen about the building Friday and Saturday.

The blood-matted strands of reddish-brown hair were discovered this forenoon when L. A. Quinn, foreman in the log plant on the third floor, sent R. F. Barrett, a workman, over to the lathe.

Barrett gave a cry of alarm when he saw the evidences of the shocking crime and of the struggle the little girl apparently had made against the superior strength of her assailant.

The hair was twisted about the turn-up screw on the lathe, a crank-like device which is used to move the pencils forward and backward on the machine.

Blood was on the sharp end of the crank, leading to the belief that it had been used as a weapon and was responsible for the bloody gash in the back of the Phagan girl's head. The alternative theory is that she fell back against it in her struggle.

Evidence of Terrible Struggle

The matted body of Mary Phagan was found in a dark, small corner of the pencil factory basement shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday morning by New Leo, the negro night watchman. The negro said he almost stumbled against the body before he saw it.

MOTHER SOBS OVER FATE OF MARY PHAGAN

"I Could Trust Her Anywhere," She Cries, and Adds, "No Working Girl Is Safe."

Lying on the bed in her little home on Embassy Street, prostrated with sorrow over the murder of her 14-year-old daughter, Mary Phagan...

There are so many unscrupulous men in the world, she cries, "it is no dangerous for young girls working out."

She declared that she never would have permitted Mary to go out to work at the age she did—12 years old—it hadn't been that there were five children in the family and it was absolutely necessary for all of them to earn something toward their support.

"Oh, the poor baby!" she sobbed, "I can't talk to her! I did tell her what to do! I was always telling her! And she took my advice! Oh, yes, because she was always so sensible about everything, besides she never was a child to flirt or act silly. That's why I know all of her ways."

When a girl is pretty, she declared, "naturally she is attracted to men. Mary was pretty, too, and besides that, she was always happy and full of good humor. She had never stayed out any night before in the two years she had been at work."

"And to think that at the time I was thinking that she was always a band of a meretricious girl! Oh, it was Mrs. Coleman who was always along the street and found her! They told me she was at the house at 11 o'clock and this man who was with her was coming back with a man name up and asked her what was the matter. She just told him she had got out in the street."

"Even with the greatest care, it looks like things will never get any way—no doubt how or why," she declared, weeping. "Oh, I'm terrible to think of a young girl coming to her death like that! And she had already started home when this man met her and made her come back to town with him!"

"Often I watched Mary on the car when she would look at her," Mrs. Coleman said. "But she never held any attention to me. I think she must have had the man who was with her and that's why she did it."

Capt. Isaao Emerson Loses Alimony Suit

Court Decides He Must Pay Mrs. Beahler $50,000 a Year for Life. BALTIMORE, Md., April 28.—The Court of Appeals has ruled that Capt. Isaao Emerson, father of Mrs. Alford G. Vanderbilt, must continue to pay his ex-wife, Mrs. Beahler, $50,000 a year for life.

ARTHUR MULLINAX This youth, formerly a street car conductor, is held in connection with the investigation of the slaying of Mary Phagan in the basement of the National Panel Factory in South Forsyth Street. He stoutly denies any connection with the crime, and declares his arrest is a "horrible mistake."

GIRL'S GRANDFATHER VOWS VENGEANCE ON THE SLAYER

Standing with bare head in the doorway of his daughter's home, with tears falling unchecked down his furrowed cheeks, W. J. Phagan cried his heaven for vengeance for the murder of his granddaughter, fourteen-year-old Mary Phagan, and vowed that he would not rest until the murderer had been brought to justice.

NEGROIS NOT GUILTY SAYS FACTORY HEAD

Superintendent Leo M. Frank Is Convicted Newt Morris Was Not Implicated.

Owing to a delay in receipt of metal shipment part of the plant of the National Panel Factory had been shut down for most of the week and the manager had been away from the time. A few minutes after 11 o'clock Saturday she went to the office and drew her pay, which amounted to $15.

A holiday had been given the employees on Memorial Day and there was very few about the place. The day watchman left shortly before 11 o'clock while Clara in the office left at noon. Two women were working on an upper floor until a few minutes after 1 o'clock, while the day watchman, Mr. Frank, was the only one connected with the firm, who was about the place during the afternoon.

Frank's Story. "It was about 10 or 15 minutes after 11 o'clock that Mary Phagan came to my office and drew her pay," said Mr. Frank. "The regular payday is Friday and there are always a few of the 170 employees who do not call until Saturday afternoon. I was an inner office on the second floor and handed the girl her envelope. She went out through the outer office and I heard her talking to another girl. While I could not hear what they went out of the building I am quite sure they did for I would have noticed any one coming about the building."

Check On Watchman. "I have been in the habit of calling up the night watchman to see if he had been in, and at 1 o'clock called on the watchman, Mr. Brown, to see if he had. I asked him if he had seen anything suspicious and he replied that he had, and had left immediately afterwards. I have never heard my telephone ring any more."

THE SUNDAY AMERICAN'S GREAT BASEBALL TEAM

All the important leagues of baseball are now in action. He are tens of thousands of fans. So are also the men who write of the doings of the diamond stars for those same fans to read.

Here Is The Hearst Sunday American Team for 1913

CHRISTY MATHEWSON—For years the famous pitcher for the New York Giants. Known everywhere as one of the brainiest players in the business and one of the squares in whatever he writes about the game of which he is master.

JOE AGLER—The Crackers' sensational first-sacker. He is giving local fans all the "inside" news of Billy Smith's aggregation. His comments on plays are immense.

W. S. FARNSWORTH—His stories of the big league teams are right up to the minute. Having traveled with the New York Yankees, New York Giants and Boston Red Sox during the past seven years, he is able to tell of the "workings" of the major league clubs.

PERCY H. WHITING—For over seven years he has been writing Southern League baseball. He is the dean of Southern diamond experts and has the largest following this side of the Mason and Dixon line. He is fearless in his writings and always tells the truth.

SAM CRANE—A big league ball player for years and past seasons, socially acquainted with all the major leaguers. For the past twenty years he has been writing baseball and is considered the greatest student of the game in the world. He travels with the National League Champion Giants.

DAMON RUNYON—The wittiest baseball writer in the East. He tells of the big league games in a manner that has a laugh in every line. But he never gets away from baseball like most of the humorous followers of the diamond warriors.

W. J. McBETH—His "inside" stories of big league games cannot be beaten. He sticks to facts and figures and his predictions are followed by thousands of fans. He has traveled as "war correspondent" with nearly every big league team during the past ten years.

CHARLEY DRYDEN—The Mark Twain of baseball. For years he has traveled with New York, Philadelphia and Chicago teams and his writings are baseball classics. He is personally acquainted with every big league player and probably has the largest following of any baseball expert in the country.

A. H. C. MITCHELL—Considered the greatest sport story of last fall's world's series were marvels. He roams the stories is coming and praises when praise is due. He has been writing baseball for twenty years.

ALLEN SANGREE—He is well known in the South, having been here with big league teams on training trips for the past fifteen years. He will travel with the New York Yankees this season, and his stories of Russell Ford and Ed Sweeney, former Crackers, will be of special interest to local fans.

J. W. McCONAUGHY—Popular with Eastern baseball fans because of his fast and readable stories. He never gets away from the truth, but tells a striking story for twelve years.

J. W. HEISMAN—Considered the greatest college coach in the South. His college stories are copied by every paper in this part of the United States. His predictions are seldom wrong, and his weekly review of Southern college teams cannot be beaten.

JOE BEAN—As coach of Marist he has led all the other prep school coaches a merry chase. A few years ago he was the star shortstop of the New York Giants. His stories are bright and interesting.

INNIS BROWN—For four years he was considered the greatest athlete that ever stepped on a diamond. His baseball stories of college teams are read by every undergraduate and graduate in the South.

In the General Sporting Field

As well as in baseball, The Sunday American scores an exceptionally large number of base hits in all other branches of sport. Ben Adams, hero of the Olympic games, writes interesting stories about track and field athletics. The boxing world is well covered by Ed W. Smith, W. W. Naughton, H. M. Walker, Ed Oursley and "Left Hook." Tish Tishmore takes care of the golf. He knows every golfer in the South and his stories are real live "beacons." Tennis and automobiles are two other branches of sport that are covered thoroughly in The Sunday American.

Recalling a Judge-- And Women Led the Crusade in This First Example

Judge Weller, of San Francisco, has been recalled by a vote of the good people of that progressive city, and conservative citizens throughout the nation will be duly shocked at a radical performance which these conservative citizens have believed, or professed to believe, would shatter the foundations of order and of established government...

But when conservative, or even reactionary, citizens are familiar with the situation which resulted in the recall of Judge Weller they will be more disposed to realize that in this first instance at least of the recall of a judge their fearful forebodings are not wholly justified... Judge Weller's action was typical of a condition which the good people of San Francisco had determined to destroy...

TRAGIC FACE OF STRANGLED MARY PHAGAN--NEW PICTURE STUDIES

CHARGE IS BASEST OF LIES, DECLARES GANTT, ACCUSED

John Milton Gantt, the accusation of a terrible crime hanging over him from his cell of police headquarters, has made to day a complete denial of any connection with the Mary Phagan murder in the first formal statement to the public since the arrest of Margaret L. Gantt.

Another picture of the Phagan girl in a studios pose. The child was strikingly pretty and the pictures here shown are from photographs printed by grief-stricken relatives in Marietta.

SEEK CLEWIN QUEER WORDS IN ODD NOTES

Who Would Be the Most Interested in Saying That the Night Watchman Did Not Do It?

While the tendency of the police straight through has seemed to be to scold the Mary Phagan, the murdered girl, really wrote the usual notes found beside her body purporting to be a confession to her murder, she wrote the words "It is possible that she may have had help from one of the negroes." One of the notes written on the little yellow factory slip—no factory slip is almost impossible to read. It is the one that says:

"I mean that negro hired down here did not want to get water and he pushed me down this hole a long tall negro black that has it when he was tall negro I write while play with me."

"Nonsense, it looks like her handwriting to me," said Mr. Coleman, the chief detective, W. J. Coleman, says it is possible that she may have had help from one of the negroes. "That, of course, I am not sure, now, about the other note I am doubtful, it seems to be written by well for the child to have done it is the almost impossible condition she must have been in at the time. Whether she wrote either of the notes of her own accord, though, or whether she was forced to do it by her murderer to turn suspicion from herself, of course is mere speculation. Only time can tell, if anything."

Doubtful Other Note's Authorship.

The other note whose authorship Mr. Coleman doubts is the one scrawled on a notepad. It reads as it was at first translated:

"The man who would have me laid down like the night watch did it but that loger tall black negro did it by his self."

This note, however, brings up an argument advanced by several people who have studied it carefully. They have found that in some way one word, "play," was omitted in the first translation, and they think that in some way "night watch" the words were meant to mean "night watch," which is relative to the subject. With these changes the note would read:

"He and he would have me laid down like the night watch did it by his self."

They ask: If the murderer told Phillips he was going to "play the night watch did it," and then the child goes on to explain that it wasn't the night watchman at all that did it, but another negro, wouldn't that appear that the child was endeavoring to save the night watchman?

Argument Against Watchman.

They also ask: Would a child in the excitement Mary Phagan was in, be in a position to write the notes of "night watch" and then the night watchman at all that did it, but another negro, wouldn't that appear that the child was endeavoring to save the night watchman?

They also ask: Would a child in the excitement Mary Phagan was in, be in a position to write the notes of "night watch" and then the night watchman at all that did it, but another negro, wouldn't that appear that the child was endeavoring to save the night watchman?

He will be required to report to the Secretary whether he is responsible for such requests.

Make Your Letters Help Bring Shrine

Everybody Urged to Use Reminder of Atlanta's Centenary for Conventions on Every Mailbox.

Everyone who writes a letter can help Atlanta, to win the honor of entertaining the next Imperial Council of the Mystic Shrine.

Fred Hunter, secretary of the convention bureau, tells how.

Across the bottom of the hat sheet Atlanta, 1918, Imperial Council Shrine.

Business firms are requested to have this placed on the stationery they will use for the next month, or else have it printed on the back of every letter. The man who really wants to help can have the same inscription on the envelope.

In this way thousands upon thousands of reminders will be sent to influential quarters which could be reached in no other way.

Fifteen thousand cards, reading simply Atlanta, 1918, will be distributed at Dulles next month when the shrine meets here.

Frank to a Georgian reporter, just before his arrest, said: "No one is more anxious to learn of the whereabouts of Mary Phagan Saturday afternoon and night than I am. The company is exerting every effort to get information and has employed a Pinkerton detective to work on the case."

Saw Gantt in Pool Room

"Denham and I stayed together most of the afternoon, and last evening we went to the Globe pool rooms on Broad Street, near Marietta. We had been in there a little while when I saw John Gantt come in. He did not play, but sat down and watched the game."

Wife of Phagan in Building

"I do not want to go into any of the details of the crime," said Mrs. Frank. "My husband is at the office and is perfectly competent to give out all information. Any knowledge I have of the affair I got from him."

Frank's Rise in Company Rapid

Frank's rise in the company has been rapid. He has been in the office of Superintendent Frank for only a few days, but has already become a prominent figure. He is a native of Georgia and has been in the factory for some time.

YOUTH HELD IN PHAGAN CASE

John M. Gantt, held in connection with the investigation of the strangling of little Mary Phagan in the National Pencil Factory. Here Gantt is shown reading the warrant for his arrest, at a charge of murder. He stoutly denies any connection with the crime.

PASTOR PRAYS FOR JUSTICE AT GIRL'S FUNERAL

Mother and Aunt of Mary Phagan Swoon at Burial in Marietta This Morning.

A thousand persons saw a minister of God raise his hands to heaven to pray for the souls of the murderer and his accomplices. Before his closed eyes was a little casket, its pure whiteness hid by the banks and banks of beautiful flowers.

Within the casket lay the bruised and mutilated body of Mary Phagan, the innocent young victim of one of Atlanta's blackest and most brutal crimes.

The spirit of the terrible tragedy filled the air. An aunt of the strangled girl suddenly screamed, fell over in dead agony and was carried from the church in a swoon from which she did not fully recover for hours.

The mother, mother collapsed and it was feared that her condition might become critical. The scene was in the Second Baptist Church at Marietta, where Mary Phagan had lived when she was a child of only three or four years.

STEPFATHER OF DEAD GIRL OUTSPOKEN AGAINST LEE

The Mary Phagan never left the factory after she entered it at 12:15 o'clock Saturday, the day of her murder, and that she was killed and her body dragged into the basement by the negro night watchman, Newt Lee, now in jail, is the firm belief of the child's stepfather, W. J. Coleman, and other members of her family.

Another bit of evidence, it was said, that went to show suspicion on the part of the child's stepfather and a handkerchief found down near the boiler, where he constantly stayed. "The negro evidently kept the child in the factory all day," Mr. Coleman said, "and was afraid to attack her until midnight for fear she would scream or somebody would come. He may or may not have knocked her senseless from the first, or he may have tied her. I do not know, but when Gant entered the shop it was as near likely that he knew nothing of the girl's presence there and simply went up and got his abuse, as he said, and went out again."

"All this about Mary having been in the street at midnight or any other time after 11 o'clock in the day I do not think can be true. I believe she remained in the building after the negro did the work, he was afraid to leave or not to call the police, which would make appearances worse for him. Therefore he called the officers."

Then, it broken tones, he had just returned from making all arrangements for taking the girl's body to Marietta, Ga., to be buried, he outlined his idea of how she was murdered.

When Mary turned from the window after receiving her money, he said, "I think that, instead of going directly out, she went to the dressing room, perhaps for a drink of water, as one of the notes found said. By the time she returned to the window he came out and apposing she had left the building, locked her door, the negro watchman must have seen her go into the dressing room, and a little later she heard gaged and strangled."

MOTHER SOBS OVER FATE OF MARY PHAGAN

"I Could Trust Her Anywhere," She Cries, and Adds, "No Working Girl is Safe."

Lying on the bed in her little home on Lindsay street, prostrate with grief over the murder of her 11-year-old daughter, Mary Phagan, Mrs. W. J. Coleman sobbed out the pitiful story of how sweet and fresh her child had left home Saturday, and named a warning to all Atlanta mothers to guard the welfare of their own daughters far from work for a living.

"There are no more unscrupulous men in the world," she cried. "It's no dangerous for young girls working out. Their every step should be watched. Mothers should question them and ask them about their wages and associates and surroundings. They should continually tell them what they ought to do, and how they ought to act under certain circumstances."

Girl Lined Work. She declared that the new word would have permitted Mary to go out to work at the age of 12—if it had been known that there were any children in the family and it was absolutely necessary for all of them to earn something toward their support. That was before she married her present husband, Mr. Coleman.

"When a girl is pretty," she declared, "naturally she is attractive to men. Mary was very, very beautiful, besides that, she was always happy and in a good humor. She had never stayed out any night before in the two years she had been at work. I could trust her anywhere I knew because she was always so straightforward, and what I thought when she didn't come home was that she had had an accident with her aunt from Marietta, who was in town, and had been home with her and had no way to let me know."

Too Young to Know. She covered her face with her hands. "And to think that at the time I was thinking that she was in the hands of malicious men! If only Mr. Coleman had happened along in the street when she was on the corner at 11 o'clock and seen her with a policeman and a girl, I could have told her the matter. She just told me she was going to work for the reason she didn't say anything to me about it, and she said she would kill her and in just didn't know how to do it. She was too young to know how to do it."

"But with everything, Mrs. Coleman said, wasn't possible for her to come to me with a child all the time and I would have taken care of her. She looks like things will happen any way she don't know how to do it. She declared, weeping, "Oh, it's terrible to think of a young girl coming to her death like that! And she had attended school here when this man met her and made her come back to town with him!"

ARTHUR MULLINAX This youth, formerly a street car conductor in this city, is held in connection with the investigation of the slaying of Mary Phagan in the basement of the National Pencil Factory in South Forsyth Street. He stoutly denies any connection with the crime, and declares his arrest is a "horrible mistake."

Standing with bowed head in the doorway of his Marietta home, where tears fell unheeded down his furrowed cheeks, W. J. Phagan cried to heaven for vengeance for the murder of his granddaughter, fourteen-year-old Mary Phagan, and vowed that he would not rest until the murderer had been brought to justice. In a silence broken save by the sound of his own sobs and the noise of the gently falling rain, the old man lifted his quavering voice in a passionate plea for the life of the wretch who had lured the little girl into the darkness of a deserted building and strangled her to death. It was an infinite grief—the grief of an old and broken man—that Mr. Phagan expressed when, with hands outstretched imploringly, he invoked divine aid in bringing the murderer of his child to justice.

NEGROES NOT GUILTY SAYS FACTORY HEAD

Superintendent Leo M. Frank is Convicted Next Morris Was Not Implicated.

Owing to a delay in receipt of statements from the men of the National Pencil Company had been shut down for most of the week, Mr. Frank's wife, who had not seen the time. A few minutes after 11 o'clock Saturday she went to the office and saw her son, which amounted to 11.30.

A body had been given the impression that they had seen there was but very far about the place. The day watchman left shortly before 11 o'clock, while others in the office left at noon. Two young men worked on an upper floor until a few minutes after 1 o'clock.

"It was about 11 o'clock on the night of the murder," said Mr. Frank. "The regular day shift was in the office at that time. A few of the 110 employees who do not call until Saturday afternoon." "It was in the basement of the factory and I handed the girl her envelope. She went out through the outer door and I returned to my office. I saw her go out and I saw her go out."

Check On Watchman. "It has been in the habit of calling the night watchman to keep check on him, and at 1 o'clock called Leo M. Frank." "I saw her go out and I saw her go out."

THE SUNDAY AMERICAN'S GREAT BASEBALL TEAM

All the important leagues of baseball are now in action. So are tens of thousands of fans. So are also the men who write of the doings of the diamond stars for the same fans to read. It is the newspaper with the STAR TEAM of writers that makes the strongest appeal to baseball enthusiasts.

Here Is The Hearst Sunday American Team for 1913

CHRISTY MATHEWSON—For years the famous pitcher for the New York Giants. Known everywhere as one of the brainiest players in the business and one of the squarers in whatever he writes about the game of which he is master.

PERCY H. WHITING—For over seven years he has been writing Southern League baseball. He is the dean of Southern diamond experts and has the largest following this side of the Mason and Dixon line. He is fearless in his writings and always tells the truth.

W. J. MCBETH—His "inside" stories of big league games cannot be beaten. He sticks to facts and figures and his predictions are followed by thousands of fans. He has traveled as "war correspondent" with nearly every big league team during the past ten years.

ALLEN SANGREE—He is well known in the South, having been here with big league teams on training trips for the past fifteen years. He will travel with the New York Yankees this season, and his stories of Russell Ford and Ed Sweeney, former Crackers, will be of special interest to local fans.

J. W. HEISMAN—Considered the greatest college coach by every paper in this part of the United States. His predictions are seldom wrong, and his weekly review of Southern college teams cannot be beaten.

JOE BEAN—As coach of Marietta he has led all the other prep school coaches a merry dance. A few years ago he was the star shortstop of the New York Giants. His stories are bright and interesting.

INNIS BROWN - For four years he was considered one of the greatest athletes that ever graced Vanderbilt. His baseball stories of college teams are read by every dekadrate and graduate in the South.

In the General Sporting Field

As well as in baseball, The Sunday American scores an exceptionally large number of base hits in all other branches of sports. Ben Adams, hero of the Olympic games, writes interesting stories about track and field athletics. The boxing world is well covered by Ed W. Smith, W. W. Naughton, H. M. Walker, Ed Curley and "Loot Hook" Mike Flanagan takes care of the golf. He knows every golfer in the South and his stories are real live "barometer." Tennis and automobiles are two other branches of sport that are covered thoroughly in The Sunday American.

NEGRO CHIMNIES ROUSED BY SLAIN GIRL'S STEPFATHER

FACTORY EMPLOYE MAY BE TAKEN ANY MOMENT

That Mary Phagan never left the factory after she entered it at 11:15 o'clock Saturday, the day of her murder, and that she was killed and her body dropped into the basement by the negro eight watchman, Newt Lee, now in jail, in the rear end of the chimney structure, W. J. Coleman, and other members of her family.

As for Arthur Mulligan, former street car conductor, held on suspicion, Mr. Coleman told a Georgian reporter he thought him innocent of the crime. He was also very doubtful if J. M. Gantt, ex-bookkeeper for the pencil factory, who the stepfather had anything to do with Newt Lee or knew anything about it.

The negro watchman who shot the child, Lee, would it have been impossible for him to have been seen by the child, Lee would it have been impossible for him to have been seen by the child, Lee would it have been impossible for him to have been seen by the child...

When Mary turned from the window after receiving her money, she said, "I think that, instead of going directly out, she went to the dressing room, perhaps for a drink of water, as one of the notes found said."

Later developments in the story go to show that the spot where the child was found was on a street which was not the scene of her struggle with her assailant. In the dressing room, it was said by a member of her family, there were plain evidences that the attack was made, she was also engaged in the room, for a strip of her new lavender dress was cut off from the front and bound around her mouth to hush her from screaming.

Ribben Found Near Killer. Another bit of evidence, it was said, that went to throw added weight on the black was a bow of the child's blue ribbon and a handkerchief found down near the boiler, where he constantly stayed.

The negro evidently kept the child in the factory all day. Mr. Coleman said, "He was afraid to attack her until midnight for fear she would call the police."

Mr. Coleman said he had at first given credence to a report that Mary had come home at 6 o'clock Saturday afternoon, and that Mulligan, meeting her as she came to the car, had taken her back to town with him.

This report, Mr. Coleman said, turned out to be untrue. The conductor had made a mistake, and the girl Mulligan was with Miss Fern Patterson, his wife, at her home in the city.

It was corroborated by the supervisor of J. H. Brown, 11 Cedar Street, as when the reporter spoke to the Columbus hotel on Lombard Street. The conductor said that Mulligan and Miss Robinson had taken his car out on Sunday morning, and he had talked with her and the girl, who at that time he thought was Mary Phagan. When Mulligan and Miss Robinson returned their car, Mulligan remarked that it was a hot day and he was going home to wash his face. It was later that he returned to the office, but the conductor said he had not seen him since.

Seek Cew in Queer Words in Odd Notes. While the mystery of the girl's disappearance has seemed to be solved, the fact that Mary Phagan, the murdered girl, never made the usual return home, has been a puzzle to her mother. Her father, Mr. Phagan, has been a puzzle to her mother.

FORMER PLAYMATES MEET GIRL'S BODY AT MARIETTA

The little tips of Marietta, Ga., where her baby eyes first opened upon the light of day, were seen by the former playmates of Mary Phagan, who met her body at Marietta, Ga., on Saturday night.

A sensational arrest will be made in the Mary Phagan murder mystery within a few hours. It will be based on the firm theory of the police and detectives that the strange girl was never outside the factory of the National Pencil Company from the time that she went in there for her pay Saturday noon until her dead and mutilated body was taken to the morgue early Sunday morning.

The detectives do not believe that Arthur Mulligan is guilty of the murder. They do not believe that J. M. Gantt is guilty of the murder. They do not place any dependence on the identifications of Gantt and Mulligan made by various persons before Chief of Detectives Lanford.

They are confident that the author of the terrible deed was a person who is not under arrest at the present time. They know his name. They have talked with him. They have his story of what he did on the night of the tragedy at an early hour.

But they are not satisfied with his tale. It is known that they will have him behind the bars within a few hours. It is known that the signs of weakening on the part of Newt Lee, the negro night watchman, have led to a great deal to do with the pending sensational arrest.

One moment he has almost admitted that he is presenting a man who has befriended him and helped him, and an instant later he has suddenly gone back into silence with the mystery troubling on his very lips.

In the still hours of this morning, unknown to anyone else, the authorities, Newt Lee was put through a searching, "third degree" that left him weeping and nervous.

Before the hangings had congregated about the police station and the horde of reporters, witnesses and curious on-lookers had swept down upon the detective force, Detective John Smith quietly made his way to the police station and into the cell of the bowed and almost broken negro.

SLAYER'S HAND PRINT LEFT ON ARM OF GIRL

Hope for apprehension of the slayer of Mary Phagan has come to the police with the discovery of distinct finger prints, stamped in blood on the sleeve of the dead girl's jacket.

The discovery was made by a Georgian reporter in the course of a minute inspection of the girl's clothes yesterday evening. The finger prints are on the right arm of the light silk dress. The imprints of two fingers are just below the shoulder, staining purple the lavender of the child's dress and penetrating to the arm, as if they were established at the pressure of powerful fingers grasping her arm.

SISTER'S NEW STORY MAY CLEAR GANTT

F. C. Terrell, 31 East Linden Avenue, told a Georgia reporter today that his wife had declared to him that she did not tell the truth to the detective and Georgia reporters to whom she had said that she did not know where J. M. Gantt, accused of the murder of Mary Phagan, was on Saturday night.

When seen upon the discovery of the deed, Mrs. Terrell stated that Gantt, who is her half brother, had left her home where he had been for the past seven years, about a week ago, presumably to go to California and that she had not seen him since.

"Most certainly he was in his room here Saturday night," declared Mrs. Terrell to a Georgia reporter today.

"Yes, I am sure my wife got up and let him in. I was awake at the time. And I saw him Sunday morning too."

"Mr. Terrell declared that he had just left the police station where he had been called with Gantt."

"He is just as cool as a cucumber," said Mrs. Terrell, "and he laughs at the idea of his being accused of the murder of Mary Phagan."

AUSTRIA WILL MOVE ALONE ON MONTENEGRO

Official Announcement of Decision to Force Evacuation of Sertari is Made.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian. VIENNA, April 29.—(Associated Press.)—An announcement was made at the Foreign Office today that Austria had decided finally to act independently in the expulsion of the Montenegrins from Sertari. The statement said: Austria feeling that the Ambassador's conference in London has produced no results, this Government has decided to take necessary steps to remove and carry out the powers' duties regarding the evacuation of Sertari. Italy is protesting against Austria's action.

Peace Ambassadors Start.

LONDON, April 29.—After having departed until May 1, the Ambassadors' conference has unexpectedly resumed its sessions in the Foreign Office this afternoon.

This procedure was brought about by Austria's unexpected determination to act independently in driving the Montenegrins out of Sertari.

Montenegro Starts To Fortify Sertari.

PARIS, April 29.—Montenegro is determined to hold Sertari against any action that Europe may take with a view to fortifying the city. It is reported that the city has been fortified with machine guns and that the Montenegrin army has been withdrawn from Sertari. King Nicholas' military operations are being reviewed in Sertari.

The diplomatic representative here of Montenegro declares that, if the powers from Montenegro to give up Sertari, King Nicholas will indicate that the navy desires Nicholas' resignation with regard to the surrender of Sertari.

A cable telegram said that it was reported there that a hostile demonstration had been made in Cetina against the Austrian Minister to Montenegro.

Porte Lends Support to Albanian Independence.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 29.—The Porte to-day sent instructions to all the Turkish Ambassadors and ministers abroad to support Kemal Pasha's proclamation of the independence of Albania with himself as King.

According to the latter here, Kemal Pasha hoped he might be able to retain the suzerainty of Turkey over Albania by setting himself up as monarch. Turkey also is taking hope from rumors of dissension among the allies.

Bulgarian troops are said to have been repulsed in several sanguinary engagements with Serbians. Bulgaria is at present in contact with Greece near Salonica. Turkey has protested to the powers against the action of the Balkan States by Russia.

Montenegro to Abandon Sertari, Says Diplomat.

VIENNA, April 29.—According to secret information to Austria, it was learned from a diplomatic source today that Montenegro will eventually evacuate Sertari, after having made a further show of defiance to Europe.

A Catholic League spokesman in Vienna today presented the news of Sertari to King Nicholas today and a renewed demonstration.

Martin in England, His Family's Theory

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, April 29.—Fresh developments are expected in the mystery surrounding the disappearance of Joseph W. Martin, of Memphis, Tenn., as the result of an advertisement in The London Times to-day. This ad, which appeared in the "personal column," said that it is of the utmost importance that Mr. Martin's insertion of the ad in a London newspaper would indicate that Mr. Martin's family believes Mr. Martin is still in England and that he is voluntarily hiding.

FACTORY HEAD FRANK AND WATCHMAN NEW LEE ARE "SWEATED" BY POLICE

Mysterious Action of Officials Gives New and Startling Turn to Hunt for Guilty Man—Attorney Roser, Barred, Later Admitted to Client.

Has the Phagan murder mystery been solved? The police say they know the guilty man. Chief Detective Lanford at 2 o'clock this afternoon told The Georgian: "We have evidence in hand which will clear the mystery in the next few hours and satisfy the public." All the afternoon the police have been "sweating" Lee M. Frank, superintendent of the factory where the girl worked, and pushing through the "third degree" Lee, the negro watchman of the factory. A blood-stained shirt, which the detectives say they found in the home of Lee, was shown to the negro this afternoon in order that he might identify it. The negro admitted the shirt was his, but declared that he had not seen it before for two years. Lee was under a grinding fire of questions all day. Hearty before Superintendent Frank was brought to the station. Frank came from the home of Lee. He made a passionate denial. He would not divulge his contents, but very soon after it was obtained Frank was under arrest and Lee was confined in the jail.

statement this afternoon as to his plans for obtaining the freedom of his client. He said that he would institute proceedings if considered Frank was being held an unnecessarily long time.

At the same time that the Frank proceedings were under way Robert Jackson, attorneys for J. M. Gantt, also in custody in connection with the crime, made formal application for a writ of habeas corpus before Judge Bell and a hearing was set for 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Frank previously had been questioned by the police. He was brought to the station Monday morning in company with his attorneys and there made a lengthy and detailed statement to the authorities.

The authorities had announced they believed Frank had no knowledge of the crime. Their sudden action today appears to be fraught with great significance in view of the fact that they have already quizzed him as to all he knew in connection with the affair.

At the factory of the pencil company reporters were suddenly excluded.

"We've been harassed enough by the reporters of the newspapers," was the explanation volunteered by Ed Mastig, in charge. "This plant has had all the notoriety it wants."

In the working ranks of the National Pencil Company is believed to be the last hope of solving the great strangling mystery. These workers are barred to the press and to the public and admission is denied to the factory, those in authority have effectively closed one of the most important avenues for the solution of the crime.

Frank Last in Building

Frank is a Georgian reporter, just before his arrest, said: "No one is more anxious to learn of the whereabouts of Mary Phagan Saturday afternoon and night than I am. The company is exerting every effort to get information and has employed a Pinkerton detective to work on the case. Officials of the company also thought it best to retain counsel to assist in the investigation, while every one of the (foremen) and head men about the factory is endeavoring to find out if any of the employees know anything.

"I deeply regret the carelessness shown by the police department in not making a complete investigation as to finger prints and other evidence before a great throng of people were allowed to enter the place.

"The affair is exceedingly embarrassing, I say. To have the authorities even felt that they should detain me for a while and question me leaves a bad taste, and I am doing everything possible to locate the guilty man."

Arthur White and Harry Denham, the last two workmen in the factory plant the day of the tragedy, declared to The Georgian that when they left the building shortly after 3 o'clock in the afternoon Superintendent Frank was the only man remaining.

White's statement follows: "Denham and I went to the factory to work on Saturday, although it was a holiday. We left shortly after 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

"We punched our time at exactly 3:10 o'clock.

"On our way out I stopped in Mr. Frank's office and borrowed two dollars of him. Denham went in with me. Neither of us saw anyone else in the building. When we left Frank was the only person remaining.

Saw Gantt in Pool Room

"Denham and I stayed together most of the afternoon, and this evening we went to the Globe pool rooms on Broad Street, near Marietta. We had been in there a little while when I saw Gantt come in. He did not play, but sat down and watched the game.

"In a little while we went out, but returned in a few minutes and stayed until after 10 o'clock. Finally he said that he would go home, and that was the last I saw of him."

Denham's statement is substantially the same. He said that he saw no one else in the factory aside from his fellow workmen, White, and Superintendent Frank.

Mrs. Leo Frank, wife of the superintendent of the pencil factory, declared today before the arrest that her husband was likely to do everything in his power to clear up the Mary Phagan case and regarded the feeling against him as totally unwarranted.

"I do not care to go into any of the details of the crime," said Mrs. Frank. "My husband is at the office and is perfectly willing to give out all information. Any knowledge I have of the affair I got from him.

"All that I know is that he is doing everything to solve the mystery. He has engaged detectives and is personally investigating many of the elements."

An investigation was conducted at the plant of the pencil factory this afternoon in an effort to find some employee who possibly had seen the Phagan girl after she drew her pay Saturday afternoon at the office of Superintendent Frank. The canvass of employees was made under the direction of Frank himself.

Mrs. Leo M. Frank, wife of the factory superintendent; his father and brother called at the police station this afternoon to aid the closely guarded Frank.

They were not given admittance at once, as Frank was undergoing an examination in the office of the detectives. They were taken to the office of Probation Officer Coogler, where they were being detained. Mrs. Frank declared her belief in the entire innocence of her husband. She preferred not to talk at length of the case and said that it had not been discussed in the home.

She broke through several times while talking and burst into tears. She covered her face and sobbed the conversation. Her husband is absolutely innocent and able to take care of himself in the matter," she said. "I would rather that any statements about me come from him. We discussed the matter hardly at all in our home."

Mrs. Frank is a striking appearing woman of about 30 years. With her were her father, E. Selig, 65 East Georgia avenue, of the West Disinfestant Company, and a brother-in-law, A. E. Marens, of the Marens Clothing Company.

Frank's Rise in Company Rapid

Frank is 27 years old and has been married three years. His wife was Miss Lucile Selig. Frank and his wife live with her father at 68 East Georgia avenue.

Frank was induced to come to Atlanta about five years ago by his uncle, E. M. Frank, of this city. He formerly lived in New York, and was in the employ of the Sturdevant Van Company. He is an expert mechanic and his rise has been rapid with the National Pencil Company. Coming here in a minor capacity, he went long in being promoted to a position of authority. A short time later he was made superintendent.

Militants' Violence Arouses Bitter Feeling—Mrs. Pankhurst Still Outside Bars.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian. LONDON, April 19.—England is becoming thoroughly aroused against the violence of the militant suffragettes, and the very prospect of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst that there would be a war of the sexes seems nearer of fulfillment than ever before.

STEPFATHER OF DEAD GIRL OUTSPOKEN AGAINST NEGRO WATCHMAN, NEWT LEE

"That Mary Phagan never left the factory after she entered it at 12:15 o'clock Saturday, the day of her murder, and that she was killed and her body dragged into the basement by the negro night watchman, Newt Lee, may in fact, be the first belief of the child's stepfather, J. J. Coleman, and other members of her family.

As for Arthur Selig, former street car conductor, told a reporter, Mr. Coleman told a Georgian reporter he thought Newt Lee was the man who committed the crime. He was also very confident of J. M. Gantt, ex-bookkeeper for the pencil factory, where the girl was killed, had anything to do with the murder of Mary, anything about it.

"The negro watchman did not see the girl, Newt Lee, but he was in the factory at the time of the killing," Mr. Coleman said. "I would have been much more sure for the watchman if he had not seen the girl. I don't know how many times I have seen something about it, but I don't know who was with her."

CHARGE IS BASED OF LIES, DECLARES GANTT, ACCUSED

John Milton Gantt, the accusation of a "horrible crime hanging over him," from the cell at police headquarters, has made to-day a complete denial of any connection with the Mary Phagan murder in the first formal statement to the public since his arrest in Marietta yesterday afternoon.

The statement, which was given to Chief Deavers to be substantially the same as that taken by the police department stenographer last night by the use of city detectives.

"I did not try to escape when I went to Marietta Monday morning. I had bought a copy near Marietta and was going up there to see the factory. He did not know me. I had made arrangements some time ago with my mother to see her Monday and my trip there was simply to fill that engagement."

Another picture of the Phagan girl in a studio pose. The child was strikingly pretty and the picture here shown are from photographs printed by grief-stricken relatives in Marietta.

IS THE GUILTY MAN AMONG THOSE HELD?

If the murderer of Mary Phagan among the four men who are being held at police headquarters, or is he still at large, either among those still unsuspected or among those who have been severely quizzed by the officers?

- 1—New Lee, negro night watchman, who is thought to know much more about the crime than he has told, but who has not been regarded as the perpetrator;
- 2—Arthur Mullinax, former street car conductor, for whom a strong alibi has been established, and from whom suspicion is shifting;
- 3—Geron Bailey, negro elevator boy, who has been held as a material witness, but against whom no evidence has been obtained;
- 4—J. M. Gantt, former employee of the National Pencil Company, located at the plant on Saturday, and identified as the "man with a little girl on Saturday night." In neither Mullinax's nor Gantt's case do the police place much dependence on the so-called identifications.

SLAYER'S HAND PRINT LEFT ON ARM OF GIRL

Hope for apprehension of the slayer of Mary Phagan has come to the police with the discovery of distinct finger prints, stamped in blood on the sleeve of the dead girl's jacket.

The discovery was made by a Georgian reporter in the course of a minute inspection of the girl's clothes yesterday evening. The finger prints are on the right arm of the light silk dress. The imprints of two fingers are just below the shoulder, staining purple the lavender of the child's dress and penetrating to the arm, as if they were established at the pressure of powerful fingers grasping her arm.

The search for other finger prints will be made zealously. Detectives of the Pinkerton agency, several of whom are on the case, are known to affect largely this mode of detection, on the theory that every man has his distinctive finger prints, and that the impressions of the fingers of no two individuals are identical. The evidence borne in finger prints is regarded as conclusive in modern courts. On this fact the police of Atlanta to-day are hoping more firmly than ever that they will be successful in their trail of the man who killed little Mary Phagan.

SISTER'S NEW STORY LIKELY TO CLEAR GANTT AS SUSPECT

F. C. Terrell, 211 East Linden Avenue, told a Georgian reporter to-day that the wife had declared to him that she did not feel the truth in the confession and Georgian reporter to whom she had said that she did not know where J. M. Gantt, accused of the murder of pretty Mary Phagan, was on Saturday night.

"I saw Gantt with Mr. Gantt Sunday morning," said a young woman, an intimate of the Terrell household. "Mr. Gantt went with my Saturday night, and I had to wake up at 11 o'clock to get my little brother up to carry my papers and Mr. Gantt was still in bed."

A Georgian reporter called at the Terrell residence to find that Mrs. Terrell was in a state approaching a nervous collapse and much excited in her description of what was in bed at 11 o'clock Saturday night. "I heard my wife get up and let him go," she declared. "I saw the young woman who is in company with a young man applied to Mrs. J. N. Phillips, keeper of a rooming house at Forsyth and Hunter streets at about 11 o'clock Saturday night for a room. Mary Phagan, the little girl who was found murdered the following morning, had been there with her mother."

Phillips was not positive to-day, but she said that she had been informed at Bloomfield's undertaking establishment and it is understood she looked very much like the young woman, she said, but she would not make the positive statement to a reporter to-day.

Bartender Confirms Gantt's Statement

Days Phagan Suspect Left Home to Visit Parents Saturday Evening.

PEEK GLEW IN QUEER WORDS IN ODD NOTES

Who Would Be the Most Interested in Saying That the Night Watchman Did Not Do It?

While the tendency of the police straight-through has seemed to be to doubt that Mary Phagan, the murdered girl, really wrote the notes found beside her body purporting to give a clue to her murderer, the girl's brother, W. J. Coleman, thinks it possible that she may have written one of the scraps.

CHARGE IS BASEST OF LIES, DECLARES GANTT ACCUSED

John Milton Gantt, the accusation of a terrible crime hanging over him, from his cell at police headquarters, has made to-day a complete denial of any connection with the Mary Phagan murder in the first formal statement to the public since his arrest in Marietta yesterday afternoon.

"The statement, which was given to a Georgian reporter, was said by Chief Beavers to be substantially the same as that taken by the police department at 10 o'clock last night for the use of the city detectives.

"This remarkable denial, if it is to be given credence, sweeps away a whole train of circumstantial evidence that appeared most strongly to connect him with the brutal tragedy."

He is contradicted.

W. F. Hollaway, investigator for the National Pencil Company, told a Georgian reporter that he had seen Gantt on the street with the Phagan girl.

He never even walked home with the girl, he insists.

Mary Phagan, one of the girls employed by Mary Phagan, told the authorities that she had heard the girl at the factory say that Gantt was in love with Mary and wanted to walk home with her frequently.

Gantt declares in his statement that he was at the home of his half-sister, Mrs. P. C. Terrell, 254 East Linden Street, the night that the murder was committed, going there directly from a coal room.

A woman describing herself as Gantt's half-sister, it is said by the police to have told two plain clothes men that Gantt was not there when they went to look for him Sunday night, that he had not been there for some time and was on his way to California.

Beavers' Statements.

To-day Mrs. Terrell reversed the statement that she had been made to the plain clothes men and declared that Gantt not only was there, but also with her son, Will.

Gantt's statement, in full follows:

"I do not deny going to the pencil factory Saturday afternoon. My purpose in going there was to get a pair of shoes I had left there when I quit work there about three weeks ago."

"After getting my shoes from the factory, I walked around town for some time and at about 11:30 in the evening met Arthur White, who works for the pencil company. With him I went to the Globe Pool Room, 32 Broad Street, near Marietta.

"I didn't play, but sat down and watched them for several hours, leaving there probably at 10:30."

"I went to the home of my half-sister, Mrs. P. C. Terrell, 254 East Linden Street, where I have been staying and who let me in to the house. Mrs. Terrell's husband is superintendent of the Forsyth Building."

Start All Night.

"I awoke at 12:00 in the morning at 10 o'clock and I went directly to bed. I slept all night until 9:30 a. m. Monday morning.

"I didn't hear of the murder until Sunday night when I went to call on a young woman with whom I have been corresponding since the Chamber of 18 Warren Place. I went there about 8 o'clock Sunday evening."

"My brother Phil—who works at the National Pencil Company's plant, rushed into the room and said that a girl had been murdered in the basement of the factory. He did not know who it was. That was the very first I heard of the crime.

"I did not learn the horrible details of the murder until I read them in the papers Monday morning.

"I was not trying to escape when I next to Marietta Monday morning. I had bought a crop near Marietta and was going up, there to farm. I had made arrangements some time ago with my brother to see her Monday and my trip there was simply to fill that arrangement."

Basest Sort of a Lie.

"I would not harm any girl, least of all the daughter of Mrs. Colman. Ten years ago I knew Mrs. Colman when she was Mrs. Phagan and lived near Marietta in Cobb County. Mary was just a little girl then about four years old. From the time I knew her, then as a little more than a toddling child (until I saw her in the pencil factory last June I never saw her).

"I never went out with Mary after she became Mrs. Colman. I never saw her and she never saw me. I never saw any more of her than I was to the 150 other girls at the factory, she spoke to her as I might to any of the others, but that was all.

"The charge that I had any part in her destruction is the basest sort of a lie and an injustice."

Talk of Mahan's Case.

"The determined effort instituted to gain the immediate freedom of Gantt was another of the schemes of the most sensational tragedy Atlanta has had in years. Backed by relative publicity and a family of good repute, Gantt was no more in his cell at police headquarters than an inmate of the penitentiary.

"Either give him an immediate preliminary hearing or I will institute a writ to obtain his liberty was stated in the most emphatic manner by a representative delivered to Chief of Detectives Lanford by Judge George F. Heintz, member of the law firm of Holzer & Jackson, and a relative of the accused man.

"I have a human face. It is as a guttural as the babe in arms. He is entitled to an immediate hearing on this terrible accusation that has been made against him. Either this must be granted or I will take a course to obtain his liberty."

IS THE GUILTY MAN AMONG THOSE HELD?

The murderer of Mary Phagan among the four men who are being held at police headquarters, or is he still at large, either among those still unsuspected or among those who have been severely quizzed by the officers?

The men still in custody are:

1—Newt Lee, negro night watchman, who is thought to know much more about the crime than he has told, but who has not been regarded as the perpetrator;

2—Arthur Mullinax, former street car conductor, for whom a strong alibi has been established, and from whom suspicion is shifting;

3—Geron Bailey, negro elevator boy, who has been held as a material witness, but against whom no evidence has been obtained;

4—J. M. Gantt, former employee of the National Pencil Company, located at the plant on Saturday, and identified as the "man with a little girl on Saturday night." In neither Mullinax's nor Gantt's case do the police place much dependence on the so-called identifications.

SLAYER'S HAND PRINT LEFT ON ARM OF GIRL

Hope for apprehension of the slayer of Mary Phagan has come to the police with the discovery of distinct finger prints, stamped in blood on the sleeve of the dead girl's jacket.

The discovery was made by a Georgian reporter in the course of a minute inspection of the girl's clothes yesterday evening.

The finger prints are on the right arm of the light silk dress. The imprints of two fingers are just below the shoulder, staining purple the lavender of the child's dress and penetrating to the arm, as if they were established at the pressure of powerful fingers grasping her arm.

A third print is that of a thumb, blurred somewhat as with a great pressure, but offering possibilities of analysis.

The search for other finger prints will be made. Conclusive Detective of the Pinkerton agency, several of whom are on the case, are known to affect largely this mode of detection, on the theory that every man has his distinctive finger prints, and that the impressions of the fingers of no two individuals are identical.

The evidence borne in finger prints is regarded as conclusive in modern courts. On this fact the police of Atlanta to-day are hoping more firmly than ever that they will be successful in their trail of the man who killed Little Mary Phagan.

SISTER'S NEW STORY LIKELY TO CLEAR GANTT AS SUSPECT

F. C. Terrell, 254 East Linden Avenue, told a Georgian reporter to-day that his wife had declared to him that she did not tell the truth to the detectives and Georgian reporters to whom she had said that she did not know where J. M. Gantt, accused of the murder of pretty Mary Phagan, was on Saturday night.

When seen soon after the discovery of the dead, Mrs. Terrell stated that Gantt, who is her half brother, had left her home where he had been for the past seven years, three weeks ago, presumably to go to California and that she had not seen him since. "Most certainly he was in his room here Saturday night," declared Mrs. Terrell to a Georgian reporter. "He came in at 11 o'clock."

"I ate breakfast with Mr. Gantt Sunday morning," said a young woman, an inmate of the Terrell home. "I saw little Willie Terrell, Mr. Gantt's son, with me Saturday night, and I had to wake up at 4 o'clock to get my little brother up to carry my papers and Mr. Gantt was still in bed when I got up."

"I had not seen Gantt for three weeks," declared F. C. Terrell, 350 North Lake street, the man's lawyer. "I was in bed at 11 o'clock and I saw him Sunday morning."

Mrs. Terrell's statement that he had just left the police station where he had been seen and talked with Gantt. "It's just as good as a circumlocution," said Mr. Terrell, "and he laughs at the idea of his being accused of the murder. He is just as confident of being cleared as if it was already decided."

John W. Phillips, keeper of a rooming house at Forsyth and Hunter streets at about 11 o'clock Saturday night for a room, Mary Phagan, the little girl who was found murdered the following morning? And was Gantt the man with her?

Phillips was not positive to-day. He saw the young woman in the morgue at Bloomsburg's undertaking establishment and a undertaker he positively identified her to city detectives and the County Recorder. She looked very much like the young woman he had seen, but he would not make the positive statement to a reporter to-day.

He went to police station the next day to see the dead girl and the prisoner looked much like the man he applied to him for a room."

Dr. J. W. Hunt, County Physician, conducted last night a close examination of Mary Phagan's body, in the effort to determine the nature of the injuries inflicted by her brutal slayer. He entered alone the chamber in which the dead girl lay, and at the conclusion of his inspection refused to make a report of what he had found out.

Bartender Confirms Gantt's Statement

Chas. W. Moore, 24 East Linden Avenue, a bartender in the office of J. P. Hunter at 39 North Forsyth Street, almost directly across from the National Pencil Company, corroborated to-day the statement of J. M. Gantt about having seen the girl at the factory last night until Monday morning.

"The man I judge to be the murderer, the description came and I was in the office. I noticed nothing about Gantt or the man who was with him."

MURDER WILL BE FIXED BY NIGHT, OFFICIALS SAY

Commit Chain of Evidence is Still Tangled, but Assert Solution is Near.

Was the murderer of pretty little Mary Phagan offered the net that the police most carefully spread for him?

Is the author of the crime that shocked the city and State with its terrible brutality still at large?

Is the mystery, as baffling in its myriad conflicting elements as it is plain relative as it is when the State and brutal little body of Mary Phagan was found flung in a Porch Street basement?

When the city detectives and Pinkertons picked up the untold chains of evidence this morning they admitted that they were at last tangled as when they laid them down after working incessantly upon them until long after midnight.

The great motive, however, that the girl will be almost certainly need be "to what person will the damning thread lead?" is the question that is being asked by the police and State. No other tragedy in years has so gripped the people as this one of the highest, innocent girl lured to her death.

When the final trial is known will the finger-point of guilt be leveled at—

Nawi Lee, the negro night watchman, accused who was arrested and strongly directed to-day, although he admitted he held only an important witness?

Or the girl's father, Arthur Mullinax, of 40 Poplar Street, formerly a street car conductor, who was the first man arrested and seriously regarded as the possible murderer? The evidence against him is slight.

Or M. Gant, an employe of the National Pencil Company, arrested last night ago, arrested as he has got off a car in Marietta yesterday. The evidence against him is far from convincing.

Or Deacon Butler, negro elevator man in the pencil factory, who was arrested about the same time as Mullinax and had a masterful will.

Or the man whose name has not been given previously mentioned in connection with the case.

The police are confident that they will know in a few hours the identity of the man who will be charged with the murder.

Chief Blevins, Chief of Detectives Lanford, Detectives Black, Glavin, Knight, Roser and Edmond Pinkertons were busy on the case again early this morning. Out of the many clues obtained yesterday they expected to get a definite lead and set on foot the plan to catch the man whose name has not been given previously mentioned in connection with the case.

They have accordingly caused Miss Phagan to be examined and she is expected to give some information as to what she saw on the night of the murder.

NOE DANCERS' PICTURES UPON FACTORY WALLS

Suggestive Illustrations Clipped From Magazines Pasted Up About Scene of Tragedy.

Picture of Noe dancers in various attitudes, and of eboron girls in different postures adorned the walls of the National Pencil Company plant. They had been clipped from "Theatrical and price-cutting" magazine.

A more melodramatic scene setting for a rendezvous or for the commission of a murder could hardly have been obtained. The building is cut up with partitions, which allow of the green jacking about from one part to another without attracting the attention of others. While the main entrance is used in gaining access to the building, the first floor is vacant, this space having formerly been used for the storage of boxes and other articles. A person could enter the building, descend the ladder to the lower floor and not attract the attention of those above. One could likewise move from one floor to the other without being noticed by those who enter the cellar. Two gas jets afford a flickering "noe light" which seem only to add to the pitchy darkness.

That Mullinax probably were laid across the path of the girls who worked in the plant was not denied by Superintendent Len P. Frank. Instead he admitted that it was likely probable.

In a plant of this size, where 170 people are employed, and among them a large number of girls it is quite probable that some of them were acquainted with Mullinax. He had worked in the shop," said Mr. Frank. "The force of this kind is continually shifting and undoubtedly many low characters have worked there. It has been effort to eliminate them as much as possible in the factory."

Under the present conditions of morals in Atlanta, with the segregated district abolished, these low characters undoubtedly have grown weaker and doubtfully many low characters in the building, while a surprise in the shop," said Mr. Frank. "The force of this kind is continually shifting and undoubtedly many low characters have worked there. It has been effort to eliminate them as much as possible in the factory."

'Feel as Though I Could Die,' Sobs Mary Phagan's Sister

Among all the hearts that are bowed down in sorrow over the death of the slaying of the 11-year-old factory child found dead in the National Pencil factory Saturday, there is none who feels the suffering and the anguish of the separation so keenly as her sister, Olive, 18 years old, her companion since childhood.

For with her it is the suffering of youth, when the rose-veil of life has been torn aside by the same and terrible side in all its fullness for the first time. And it is all the more painful for her because it is the kind of suffering that brings to one that sense of despair and a later anguish that makes the whole world seem never quite the same again, no matter what happens. Something of its sweetness and joy has gone out to stay.

"I am so lonely without her," the young girl told a Georgian reporter as she laid down her face upon the floor. She was at her little home on Lindsay Street. "Mary and I were so close. She was always so kind to me. She would tell me about the things that were going on in the world. She would tell me about the things that were going on in the world. She would tell me about the things that were going on in the world."

When Helen Phagan's footsteps touched her sister's grave, she was overcome with grief and she sobbed. "What do you mean? I don't understand you. Tell me how, please. You're making me feel like I'm going to die."

She said she was positive that Miss Phagan was positive in her identification.

And then Mr. Coleman came out and brought her message in his hands, she was crying so, and then as quickly as he could be dressed and went downstairs to look at the body. There was no mistake. It was Mary.

Her voice was pitifully like a child's when she had finished, as she said the Georgian reporter if he thought the man would be captured.

"If they get him they ought to treat him as they would a criminal," she said. "He's a good boy, but he's a criminal. He's a good boy, but he's a criminal. He's a good boy, but he's a criminal."

She will attend the funeral of her sister in Marietta, going up with the family to-day.

She was formerly employed at a downtown department store, but recently gave up her position. She is very pretty and attractive. She is very pretty and attractive. She is very pretty and attractive.

Capt. Peter Hayes, 85, Survivor of Hall Expedition, 1868-69, May Find Franklin Victims.

SEATTLE, April 25.—Capt. Peter Hayes, 85, probably the last survivor of Dr. Charles Hall's expedition that sought for three years, beginning in 1841, for traces of the missing Sir John Franklin's expedition has undertaken to complete the work begun as a young man.

Hayes, an old Arctic explorer and explorer of the Imperial Valley of Germany, was the first to see the remains of the expedition in the vaults of the bank.

LOYALTY SENDS GIRL TO DEFEND MULLINAX

Bring little Pearl Robinson! Her loyalty and devotion to Arthur Mullinax, one of the four men held in connection with the brutal slaying of Mary Phagan, form the only bright feature in a world and revolting crime.

What did she care for the stars of the groups of people that hung about the detective headquarters when the life of her lover appeared to be in danger?

What did she care for the remark that were directed to her when she pushed and shoved her way through the morbid crowd awaiting for a new sensation?

What difference did it make to her that her name instantly would be on the lips of everyone as the defendant or a man pointed out by one witness as the mysterious person who slayed the young girl?

Love gave her courage.

It was the aged story of a woman's heart refusing to believe any ill of the man to whom it is pledged and devoted.

In the foggy heart of pretty girl Robinson was implanted that eternally feminine and eternally womanly attribute as deeply as that which was twice her 16 years.

She knew Arthur Mullinax, liked him, probably loved him with the implicit trust of a woman. He had been good to her, kind to her, and always gentle and courteous. This was enough. He could not have any other faults. He could not have any other faults. He could not have any other faults.

The girl's mother, Mrs. Mullinax, who was shocked by the death of her daughter, was not shocked before in years.

One other detective was pushing the prisoners through a grilling examination of their whereabouts at any minute of Saturday night.

Third Degree for Lee.

Nawi Lee, the negro night watchman, was given the "third degree" in the hall; that he knew much more about the case than he pretended. He showed signs of weakening several times, but each time recovered before he had made any confession. He was the most sterling development of this morning, although what basis he has in actual fact is not to be determined. It is known that the Coleman family are inclined to believe that he knows a great deal more about the crime than he has been pleased to tell. Screech in the building was heard by one of the men who were able, according to the police, to hear him every half hour and not have heard that, members of the Coleman family, knew.

The girl's mother, Mrs. Mullinax, who was shocked by the death of her daughter, was not shocked before in years.

Bally Customs Men Hold Wedding Gifts

Sir Wilfred Pack Declines to Pay Duties on $10,000 Worth of Presents for His Bride.

NEW YORK, April 25.—This is Sir Wilfred Pack's opinion of the United States customs officials, as expressed to-day.

"I say, my word, what a hally blasted, mercenary set you customs men are!"

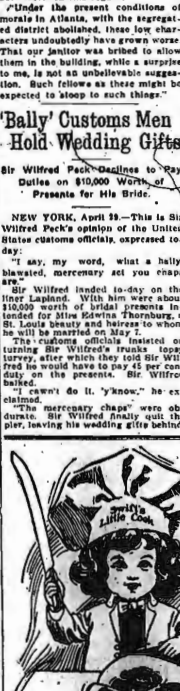

Sir Wilfred landed to-day on the pier. With him were about 10,000 worth of bridal presents. Sir Wilfred and his wife were to be married on May 1.

The customs officials insisted on turning Sir Wilfred's trunk to the pier. They insisted on turning Sir Wilfred's trunk to the pier. They insisted on turning Sir Wilfred's trunk to the pier.

"He said he did not want to pay duties on his presents," he said. "He said he did not want to pay duties on his presents. He said he did not want to pay duties on his presents."

That settled it. She had said the first word. Of course she went on and said that she was the bride. It was that that was the incident in his mind. All that matters was that consequence was what he heard told her—"Arthur did not do it."

WE HAVE STRANGLER OF MARY PHAGAN, IS CHIEF LANFORD'S ASSERTION

"Dead Lies Between the Negro Night Watchman of Factory and Manager," Says Head of Detectives. Frank Placed in Cell at Station.

Late this afternoon Chief of Detectives Lanford made this important statement to a Georgian reporter: "We have the strangler. In my opinion the crime lies between two men, the negro watchman, Newt Lee, and Frank. We have eliminated John Gantt and Arthur Mullinax."

It was said that Frank was being put through the "third degree" this afternoon. The negro also was severely "sweated."

Chief of Detectives Lanford told The Georgian to-night the evidence points to one of two men as the strangler who garroted and killed Mary Phagan.

Leo M. Frank, the young superintendent, and Newt Lee, the negro night watchman at the National Penit Company factory, are the men he named.

"On one of these men is guilty," declared Lanford. "Which one it is we will know within a few hours. The position of the great strangling mystery is very clear."

Lanford's heavy elimination, Mullinax, Gantt and Mullinax from suspicion.

TRAGIC FACE OF STRANGLED MARY PHAGAN—NEW PICTURE STUDIES

A photographic study of the victim in the strangling mystery showing the sad expression in her eyes.

CHARGE IS BASEST OF LIES, DECLARES GANTT, ACCUSED

John Milton Gantt, the accusation of a terrible crime hanging over him, from his cell at police headquarters, has made to-day a complete denial of any connection with the Mary Phagan murder in the first formal statement to the public since his arrest in Marietta yesterday afternoon.

His Contradicted. E. F. Hollaway, timekeeper for the National Penitentiary Company, told a Georgian reporter that he had it from Gantt's own lips that he had been with the Phagan girl.

Mary Phagan, one of the girls employed with Phagan, told the authorities that she had heard the girls at the factory say that Gantt was in love with Mary and wanted to walk home with her frequently.

Gantt declares in his statement that he was at the home of his half-sister, Mrs. F. C. Terrell, 184 East Linden Street, the night that the murder was committed, going there directly from a pool room.

A woman describing herself as Gantt's half-sister, is said by the police to have told two plain clothes men that Gantt was not there when they went to look for him Sunday night; that he had not been there for some time and was on his way to California.

Reverses Statements. "To-day Mrs. Terrell reversed the statement that she said to have been made to the plain clothes men and declared that Gantt not only was there, but slept with her. Her statement in full follows: "I do not deny going to the penitentiary Saturday afternoon. My purpose in going there was to get a pair of shoes I had left there when I quit work there about three weeks ago. "After getting my shoes from the factory, I walked around town for a time and about 11:10 in the evening met Arthur White, who works for the penitentiary company. With him I went to the Globe Pool Rooms on Broad Street, near Marietta. "I didn't play, but sat down and watched them for several hours, leaving there probably at 10:20 o'clock. I went to the home of my half-sister, Mrs. F. C. Terrell, 184 East Linden Street, where I have been staying and she let me in the house. Mrs. Terrell's husband is superintendent of the Porvuth District.

Next All Night. "Supposes she let me in about 11 o'clock and I went directly to bed. I slept all night until Sunday morning. "I didn't hear of the murder until Sunday and when I went to call on a young woman with whom I have been going, 255 1/2 Miss Annie Chambers, of 18 Warren Place, I went there about 8 o'clock Sunday evening.

"Her brother Phil—who works at the National Penitentiary Company's plant, rushed into the room and said that he had been to the factory the night of the murder. He did not know who it was. That was the very first I heard of the crime.

"I was not trying to escape when I went to Marietta Monday morning. I had bought a crop near Marietta and was going to take it to the farm. I had made arrangements some time ago with my mother to see her Monday and my trip there was simply to fill that engagement.

Basest Sort of a Lie. "I would not harm any girl, least of all the daughter of Mrs. Coleman. Ten years ago I knew Mrs. Coleman when she was Mrs. Phagan and lived near Marietta in Cobb County. Mary was just a little girl then about four years old. From the time I knew her, she was as little more than a toddling child until she went to work in the pencil factory last June. I never saw her.

"I never went out with Mary after she started work in the factory. I never walked home with her. I never saw any more to her than I saw in the 175 other girls at the factory. "I spoke to her as I might to any of the others, but that was all.

"The charge that I had any part in her destruction is the basest sort of a lie and an injustice.

Fall of Habes Corpus. "The determined jail instituted to deny the immediate freedom of Gantt on the ground of proceedings was the most sensational tragedy Atlanta has had in years. Decried by relatives and influence and a family of good repute, Gantt was no more in a jail at police headquarters than an inmate of the penitentiary.

"Either give him an immediate preliminary hearing of I will institute habeas corpus proceedings," was the ultimatum delivered to Chief of Police Lanford by Judge George F. Goober, member of the law firm of Goober & Jackson, and a relative of the accused man.

He is a prominent man. He is as skillful as the babe in arms. He is entitled to an immediate hearing on the terrible accusations that have been made against him. Either this must be granted or I will take a course to obtain his liberty.

Another picture of the Phagan girl in a studios pose. The child was strikingly pretty and the pictures here shown are from photographs prized by grief-stricken relatives in Marietta.

IS THE GUILTY MAN AMONG THOSE HELD?

Is the murderer of Mary Phagan among the four men who are being held at police headquarters, or is he still at large, either among those still unsuspected or among those who have been severely quizzed by the officers?

- 1—Newt Lee, negro night watchman, who is thought to know much more about the crime than he has told, but who has not been regarded as the perpetrator;
- 2—Arthur Mullinax, former street car conductor, for whom a strong alibi has been established, and from whom suspicion is shifting;
- 3—Geron Bailey, negro elevator boy, who has been held as a material witness, but against whom no evidence has been obtained;
- 4—J. M. Gantt, former employee of the National Penitentiary Company, located at the plant on Saturday, and identified as the "man with a little girl on Saturday night." In neither Mullinax's nor Gantt's case do the police place much dependence on the so-called identifications.

SLAYER'S HAND PRINT LEFT ON ARM OF GIRL

Hope for identification of the slayer of Mary Phagan has come to the police with the discovery of distinct finger prints, stamped in blood on the sleeve of the dead girl's jacket.

The discovery was made by a Georgian reporter in the course of a minute inspection of the girl's clothes yesterday evening. The finger prints are on the right arm of the light silk dress. The imprints of two fingers are just below the shoulder, staining purple the lavender of the child's dress and penetrating to the arm, as if they were established at the pressure of powerful fingers grasping her arm.

A third print is that of a thumb, blurred somewhat as with a great pressure, but offering possibilities of analysis. With the discovery of the finger prints, detectives employed in the case believe they have a tangible clue. The Bertillon system of detection will be brought into play, and suspects will be placed through its unflinching calicheim.

The search for other finger prints will be made zealously. Detectives of the Pinkerton agency, several of whom are on the case, are known to affect largely this mode of detection, on the theory that every man has his distinctive finger prints, and that the impressions of the fingers of no two individuals are identical.

The evidence borne in finger prints is regarded as conclusive in modern courts. On this fact the police of Atlanta to-day are hoping more firmly than ever that they will be successful in their trail of the man who killed little Mary Phagan.

Dr. J. W. Hurt, County Physician, conducted last night a close examination of Mary Phagan's body, in the effort to determine the nature of the injuries inflicted by her brutal slayer. He entered alone the chamber in which the dead girl lay, and at the conclusion of his inspection refused to make a report of what he had found out.

SISTER'S NEW STORY LIKELY TO CLEAR GANTT AS SUSPECT

F. C. Terrell, 184 East Linden Avenue, told a Georgian reporter to-day that his wife had declared to him that she also did not tell the truth to the detectives and Georgian reporters to whom she had said that she did not know where J. M. Gantt, accused of the murder of pretty Mary Phagan, was on Saturday night.

When soon after the discovery of the dead, Mrs. Terrell stated that she had Saturday night, declared Mrs. Terrell was in a state approaching to delirium, and that she had not seen him since.

"I ate breakfast with Mr. Gantt Sunday morning," said a young woman, an inmate of the Terrell home. "Mrs. Gantt slept with me Saturday night. And I had to wake up at 1 o'clock to get my little brother up to carry my papers and Mr. Gantt was still in bed at 11 o'clock."

"No, I had not seen Gantt for three weeks," declared F. C. Terrell, both re-in-law of the accused. A moment later Mr. Terrell said that Gantt had been back in town for four or five days and that he was certainly in his home Saturday night.

A Georgian reporter called at the residence to find that Mrs. Terrell was in a state of nervous collapse and much excited in her manner. She declared that Gantt was in bed at 11 o'clock Saturday night.

In a few moments her husband came in, and before seeing him was interviewed by a reporter. "I don't know," he said, "but I have seen Gantt for some time and I don't see anything of him. He was a quiet fellow in his habits, always came home early at night and was a well-to-do man. I don't see anything of him."

"I heard of it was Monday morning when my brother-in-law, J. M. Gantt, called on me and told me he had arrested Gantt. "That's not just what I said that the detectives were here all your hour Sunday afternoon and questioned your wife as to Gantt's whereabouts," stated the reporter. "Yes," was the reply, "but my wife

Bartender Confirms Gantt's Statement

Says Phagan Suspect Left Pair of Shoes in His Place Saturday Evening.

Charles W. McOwen, of Coleman Hill, a bartender in the saloon of J. P. Hunter at 18 South Forsyth Street, almost directly across from the National Penitentiary Company plant, corroborated to-day the story told by J. M. Gantt about leaving a pair of shoes in the saloon room. Sunday night with Monday morning. "The man I refer to is Gantt from the description came into the saloon but stayed only a short time," Mr. McOwen said. "I noticed nothing suspicious about Gantt or the man who was with him."

Keoper of Rooming House Enters Case

J. W. Phillips Thinks Couple Who Asked for Room May Have Been Gantt and Girl.

Was the young woman who, in company with a young man, applied to John W. Phillips, keeper of a rooming house at Forsyth and Hunter streets at about 11 o'clock Saturday night for a room, Mary Phagan, the little girl who was found murdered the following morning? And was Gantt the man with her?

Phillips was not positive to-day. He saw the young woman in the morgue at Bloomfield's undertaking establishment and it is understood he positively identified her to city detectives and the Central Detective. She looked very much like the young woman he said, but he would not make the positive statement to a reporter to-day. He went to police station this morning to see Gantt and declined to give any information about the man who applied to him for a room.

NEW ARRESTS LIKELY; LEO FRANK STILL HELD; CASE AGAINST NEGRO

Inquest Into Slaying of Factory Girl Begins, and Flood of New Light Is Expected To Be Thrown on the Tragedy--Lee Maintains His Story.

The Phagan inquest began to-day at police headquarters. It seemed likely when this edition The Georgian went to press that a flood of light would be thrown on the murder mystery before the day was over.

Notwithstanding what the police said yesterday—that the mystery had been solved—It does not appear at this time as though it had been solved at all.

Chief of Detectives Lanford seems to think that there is more evidence against the night watchman, Lee, than any other person, although new mystery is added to this phase of the case with the announcement that other arrests would be made to-day.

Frank is still held by the police. Every effort to break Lee down and make him confess has failed so far.

Handwriting experts declare that Lee is the author of the mysterious letters that were found.

The bloody stained shirt that belonged to Lee is one of the most important pieces of evidence yet discovered. There has been some doubt expressed as to whether this garment really belonged to Lee.

The inquest at 9 o'clock at the police station. The witnesses and jurors were summoned to meet there instead of at Bloomfield's underlying establishment at the request of Chief of Detectives Lanford.

Many persons, thinking that the original plan would be carried out, congregated in excited and curious groups outside the Bloomfield building. When the news was spread that a change had been made there was a rush for the police station.

Coroner Donohoe had on hand practically every witness who is known to have any knowledge of Mary Phagan, of the persons on whom suspicion has been cast or of the circumstances which might have been connected with her presence in the National Pencil Factory and her foul murder.

L. J. Dewberry, of 302 Cooper Street, came to the inquest with the marks of an exciting experience in a fire early this morning upon him.

Dewberry was at the home of his brother-in-law, F. J. Goll, last night. Early this morning the building took fire and Dewberry escaped by the narrowest of margins. He was able to save his clothes and watch, but left his wallet in the flames. The remainder of the occupants did not save their clothes.

Excitement was high when the taking of testimony, but there were no signs of disorder nor of a demonstration against any of the prisoners.

Light will be thrown on the reason for the detention of Leo Frank in the police station all of yesterday afternoon and last night by the detectives insisting that he was not under actual arrest.

The detectives have been reluctant to say anything of the results of the severe grillings they have given both Lee and Frank. They will tell of those to-day when the Coroner's jury sits and decides who shall be held for an investigation by the Grand Jury.

Net Closing About Lee, Says Lanford

Chief of Detectives Lanford was confident this morning that he and his department had completed a strong case to present to the Grand Jury for indictment. He said that the evidence against the negro night watchman at the National Penitentiary had grown stronger since yesterday.

He declared, however, that there still appeared the strongest indications that another person, in all probability a white man, was involved in some manner in the crime.

Many puzzling questions have arisen since the closing of the net around Lee began.

The detective have been utterly unable to trace the girl from the factory after she arrived there Saturday noon to obtain her pay from Lee Frank, the superintendent. They have interviewed every friend and every acquaintance of the girl. None of them saw her at any time Saturday afternoon.

If she was kept in the factory from Saturday noon, it was not Lee who kept her in the building or induced her to stay, for he was not in the building at noon.

Superintendent Frank made this statement to the police himself. He said that the negro came to the factory Saturday afternoon between 3 and 4 o'clock. Frank said that he told the watchman that he needn't stay about the building during the afternoon, but that he should return about 6 o'clock.

Lee went and returned at the time set by his employer. This appears to be unquibbled.

With this much granted, those questions are being asked: "Who was the person, if any, who kept Mary Phagan in the factory, if she was kept there, from the time that she arrived to get her money at noon until the negro watchman arrived at 6 o'clock in the evening?"

Startling and Vital Questions
"If Mary was not kept in the building by some one during these hours, by whom was she induced to enter the building later in the day or at night—directly, by any stretch of the imagination, by the negro?"

"Is it reasonable to believe that the negro could have lured her into the building after darkness had fallen, or, in fact, that she would have been about the building alone at that time? What could have brought her here?"

"If the negro is guilty of the crime, is it not almost certain that some other person, probably a white man, was responsible for her presence in the building after a man who kept her there when she came for her pay or one who lured her there after Frank had gone to his home?"

"If there was Mary Phagan between 12 o'clock and 6 o'clock if the crime was committed after all the white men had left the building?"

where it was found as soon as they made a trip out there. In spite of the declaration that there is evidence enough on hand to convict and hang the negro, the feeling persists that there are many things to clear up, if they have not already been cleared, by the detectives.

If the crime was committed between noon and shortly after 3 o'clock in the afternoon, the only persons in the building were Arthur White, Harry Dentham and Lee Frank, according to the evidence.

Hours Still Unaccounted For
If the crime was committed shortly after 3 o'clock and 6 o'clock at night, Frank was the only man in the building, known to the public, says the evidence so far produced. Is there another man to be found?

If the crime was committed at some time after 6 o'clock, where was Mary Phagan all this time between noon and 6 o'clock in the evening? That question must be answered if the mystery is to be cleared up.

The public says the case is not random. They have not been given enough evidence of such a convincing nature as to bring them to the belief that the negro is solely responsible for the brutal strangling of the Phagan girl.

It is admitted that some of the circumstances are damning. The old shirt found in a barrel in the negro's home makes the case look very black for him. The notes seem to absolutely prove that he had a part in the tragedy—but convicting Lee is far from clearing up the mystery, as the evidence stands to-day.

SPECTACULAR RAID ON SUFFRAGETTES CITY DEATH RATE SHOWS DECREASE

CLACK 'MISSES' ADD MYSTERY TO PHAGAN CASE

Records Purport to Show Watchman Failed to Register Three Times Saturday Night.

Was Does the National Record of the Factory Tell a Story? It was the duty of Lee Frank, the watchman, to punch the clock regularly and to register the time he spent in the building. Records brought to the police station purport to show that Lee three times failed to punch the clock.

But Lee J. Frank, superintendent of the factory, told a Georgian reporter Sunday afternoon that Lee had punched the clock regularly and that the clock record was all right.

Accepting the evidence of the records at the police station, the case is more perplexed by their introduction than it was before. Although they appear to show that Lee failed three times to punch the clock, these intervals were not consecutive and the intervals between punches were never more than one hour.

The records show that the first at least was not until after 9:30 Saturday night. When, then, was Mary Phagan from the time she drew her pay at noon—when Lee was not in the factory—until 9:30 Saturday night?

Makes Mystery Still Deeper. And if Frank's first statement was not a mistake and Lee did not miss three punches, how would Lee have had time to go to his home at 11:30 Saturday night, and return to the factory within a half-hour?

The introduction of the time clock records has served only to wrap the crime in deeper mystery and to add to the labyrinthine conflicting pieces of evidence.

Describes Finding of Body of Slain Girl and Events at Penell Factory Before and at Time of Discovery of Crime.

Newt Lee, watchman at the National Penell company's factory, who notified the police of the discovery of Mary Phagan's body, told his complete story on the stand at the coroner's inquest today.

Lee was on the stand for more than an hour and was filled with questions intended to throw light on the tragedy. He replied to questions in a straightforward way, and in detail his story is substantially the same as he has made to the reporters ever since his arrest.

His most significant answers concerned his employer, Leo M. Frank, superintendent of the factory. Lee said that when he reported at 4 o'clock for work, Frank told him to go home until 8. He declared that Frank seemed excited, but added that he attributed that excitement to the fact that Frank had just discharged John Grant, and might have been in trouble. He said he reported back for work at 8 o'clock and that a few hours later Frank called him up by phone from his home to ask him if things were all right. Lee was notified that his employer had never done this before.

One of the important pieces of testimony given in the Atlanta case was by M. Berry, assistant assessor of the Fourth National Bank, who testified that the last note written by Leo Phagan was found by the body of Mary Phagan. Berry said this note was found by the body of Mary Phagan. Berry said this note was found by the body of Mary Phagan.

Newt Lee's Testimony as He Gave It at the Inquest

Newt Lee, the negro night watchman, was questioned as follows:

Q. What time did you go to work?

A. At what time? A. Six o'clock. If it is not quite 6 o'clock I go around and see if the windows are closed. If it is at 1 I punch the clock and then go around.

Q. How many have you in the building? A. I had but one key which unlocks the building.

Q. What time did you get to the building Saturday? A. Four o'clock.

Q. Why did you get there at that time? A. Because on my day and on my way again. When I went in I saw one of the girls, rubbing my eye. I asked her if she had any paper and she said she had none. I asked her if she had any paper and she said she had none. I asked her if she had any paper and she said she had none.

CLOCK 'MISSES' ADD MYSTERY TO PHAGAN CASE

Records Purport to Show Watchman Failed to Register Three Times Saturday Night.

What does the National Pen Company time clock show? It was the duty of New Lee, the negro night watchman, to punch it every half-hour. Records brought to the police station purport to show that Lee three times failed to punch the clock.

But Lee M. Frank, superintendent of the factory, told a Georgian reporter Sunday afternoon that Lee had punched the clock regularly and that the clock record was all correct.

Misless Were Not Convicted. Following the evidence at the records at the police station, the case is now being followed by its introduction

LEO M. FRANK, Superintendent of the National Pen Company's factory, still held by the police. Frank's lawyer says he has given to the police every detail of his whereabouts to account for his time on Saturday and Sunday.

LEO FRANK'S FRIENDS DENOUNCE DETENTION

Leo M. Frank, superintendent of the National Pen Company and one of the central figures in the sensational murder mystery surrounding the death of little Mary Phagan, is well regarded by a host of friends in Atlanta, who see in the case that he has been in any way implicated in the homicide tragedy.

His friends are all bent in their denunciation of the efforts that have apparently been made to drag his name into the affair as a participant. Mr. Frank, 47 years of age, is a native of Washington, N. C., came to Atlanta about five years ago to take charge of the plant of the National Pen Company. Three years later he married Miss Lucile Bell, daughter of Mrs. K. S. Bell, of East Georgia Avenue, and has since made his home with Mrs. Bell.

MOTHER PRAYS THAT SON MAY BE FOUND RELEASED

Gantt's Mother, for Whom Mary Phagan Was Named, Weeps for Son.

In an easy chair in front of an open fireplace in a little Cubby County room, sat an aged mother with lines of suffering marking her face and her white head bowed in sorrow, praying that her son may be found innocent of the terrible crime for which he is held by the Atlanta police.

For two days she sat in the same chair, staring constantly with dry eyes into the embers of the dying fire, visions in the clouds of smoke as the twilight deepened into the night, seeing in her son's eyes a fellow's cold-blooded mind filled with terrible pictures of her boy struggling with the horrors of the "third degree."

The mother is Mrs. Mary Lou Gantt. Her son is James Allison Gantt, the young bookkeeper who is held in prison as the suspected perpetrator of the terrible murder of little Mary Phagan. Mrs. Gantt was prostrated when the news of her son's arrest was brought to her Monday morning. Her boy had been away from home for three long weeks, and during that time had narrowly escaped death in an accident at Copper Hill, Tenn., where he had been working.

Later Saturday evening she received a letter from her son, saying that he was coming home Monday. The letter was filled with messages of love that only a mother can appreciate, and the heart of Mrs. Gantt was filled with an unquenchable joy. Eagerly she awaited the dawn of Monday morning, counting the hours with a feverish impatience as she waited for her boy to come home.

At the sound of every footstep, and every time the wheels of a wagon rattled upon the hard ground, the mother hastened to the door. But the hours passed and he failed to come. The warm food she had prepared went cold, and the cake, made as only a mother can make them, stood uncut upon the table. At length, as the hour of noon approached, a buggy came down the road. A man alighted and entered the house, where he told the mother that her son was under arrest, charged with the terrible crime of the murder of little Mary Phagan.

The mother, stabbed to the heart by the news, sat in a room in the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Hinkle, and wept into the house. For hours she sat on her bed, mourning and sobbing with the pain that clutched her heart and seared her brain.

Mrs. Gantt was charged with such a terrible crime as to make it impossible for her to be released. She has been in prison since her arrest, and her friends are doing all they can to secure her release. Mrs. Gantt is a woman of high character and is well respected in her community. She has been married for many years and has several children. Her son, James Allison Gantt, was a young man of high character and was well liked by all who knew him.

CONCILIATION GRANTED NEARLY EFFECTED

Aldermen Accused by McClelland Tell Own Stories—None Acts as Prosecutor.

Council's probe of the McClelland graft charges probably will be concluded this afternoon. Alderman John E. McClelland has completed his case, but declines to act as prosecutor.

McClelland's attorney, Charles T. Hopkins, representing Alderman McClelland, made it clear that the committee and the power to obtain all the books and records bearing on the alleged transactions.

Wrote on the stand yesterday afternoon Alderman John E. McClelland gave a new twist to his somewhat meagre testimony.

M. RICH & BROS. C. Annual May Silk Clearance

Wherein We Distribute New and Fashionable Silks at Saving of an Average Half

Rich's Annual May Silk Clearance starts to-morrow at 8:30 sharp. This is not a sale of half-year tag ends, "buyer's mistakes," tender silks nor off shades.

Planned originally to profit by trade conditions—to help manufacturers and jobbers dispose of their surplus stocks, this May Sale has grown to be the largest trade movement of its kind in the South.

Manufacturers and jobbers recognize it—they know that no lot of silks is too large for us to handle if style, quality and prices are right.

Fully three-fourths of the silks in this sale are such surplus stocks—secured by our buyer on his special New York trip—and offered to-morrow for the very first time.

The other silks come from our own select stock—silks which have been selling freely at their full price of a third to a half more than to-morrow's figure.

$3.50 Chiffon Cloths $1.39 $3.50 French Silk Voile $1.29

$1 & 1.25 Fancy Taffetas 66c $5c Silk Foulards at 60 pieces from the most famous manufacturer to lower 59c

New $1 Messalines at 59c The over-favored of all silk messalines in a wonderfully soft, smooth finish and perfect color.

$2.50 and $3.00 Bordered Chiffon 98c Solid color chiffon with single or double thin stripe borders, gray, brown, Copenhagen, light blue, navy, tan, violet, wistaria, peach, sage, navy, black and white.

$1.50 Imp. Black Foulard 98c A beautiful quality of imported French foulard, wavy crepe and smooth crepe will drap delightfully. 27 inches wide. 12c to $1.50 Chiffons, Etc. One big lot of chiffon, chiffon ribbons and lace, light and dark colors, all styles, light and dark, ready to wear, ready to make, ready to order.

$1.50 Silk Suiting at 89c A feature of the sale. These silks come from the most prominent silk specialist in America—a man who brings out more than half of the season's best silks here are fine silk serges, wide diagonals, beautiful broche, very fine needle-twills—all the silks that are in high favor for fine suitings and street dresses.

$1 and $1.25 Fancy Messalines 69c Soft free flowing messalines in wavy prints, neat floral patterns, Jacquard designs, hair line and P. K. stripes, changeable effects, etc. Wide color range. 24 and 27 inches.

$1 Kimono Silks at 69c Fine quality kimono silks in floral, leafy, various and characteristic Japanese patterns. Have a rich satin finish, fine crepe and tan and black grounds with contrasting colors.

Good-bye to Dress Patterns With a very few exceptions every silk dress pattern in stock has had its price lowered a half or more.

$1 Colored Messalines at 59c 24 and 27-inch colored and changeable messalines in floral and leafy patterns, soft, free flowing quality.

$5 Colored Messalines at 39c About 10 pieces of 19-inch messalines, chiefly in the light color.

SUSPICION LIFTS FROM FRANK; MAY BE FREED; GANTT GRANTED WRIT

"We Have Sufficient Evidence Now to Convict Negro Nightwatchman of Killing Mary Phagan," Asserts Pinkerton Detective on Case.

"We now have enough evidence to convict Newt Lee," was the statement to-night of detectives working on the Mary Phagan strangling mystery.

The statement came at the end of a second long conference between John Black, city detective; Harry Scott, Pinkerton detective, and Leo Frank, superintendent of the National Pencil Company factory.

Additional clues furnished by the head of the pencil factory were responsible for the closing net around the negro watchman.

With the solution of the mystery at hand came the further information that what suspicion had rested on Frank was being rapidly swept away by the damning evidence against the black man.

"It looks a great deal better for Frank, who has been detained only for his own protection and to furnish further information to the department," said the detective.

Two more arrests are likely in connection with the case. The detectives say that they have clues which make them certain that these two persons were conspired in some manner in the crime or have knowledge of the details.

Gantt Gets Habeas Corpus Writ

J. M. Gantt, one of the five men held in connection with the strangling, was turned over to the Sheriff's office this afternoon by the City authorities on a writ of habeas corpus granted in the court of Judges Bell.

The warrant charging murder still holds, but the effect of the habeas corpus will be to enable Gantt to make bond.

Chief of Detectives Lanford in replying to the action for a writ declared that it had not been his intention to hold Gantt an unnecessarily long time.

Judge George F. Gobler, a relative of Gantt, applied for the writ, and E. A. Stephens, assistant Solicitor-General, defended the course of the Chief of Detectives.

"We have eliminated Mullinax, Gantt and Bailey from suspicion," said a detective.

The detectives are practically certain that Mary Phagan never left the pencil factory after she got her pay envelope from Frank Saturday noon.

With hours of ceaseless investigation and inquiry they have been utterly unable to trace her away from the factory after she entered there Saturday noon.

Every known acquaintance that she had has been interviewed. None of them saw her on the street Saturday night, although she said she was going to see the Memorial Day parade.

Bloody Shirt in Negro's Home

A blood-stained shirt, which the detectives say they found at the home of Lee, was shown to the negro this afternoon in an effort to break him down.

TRAGIC FACE OF STRANGLED MARY PHAGAN--NEW PICTURE STUDIES

A photograph study of the victim in the strangling mystery showing the sad expression in her eyes.

CHARGE IS BASEST OF LIES, DECLARES GANTT, ACCUSED

John Milton Gantt, the convicted murderer in a crime hanging over him from his cell at police headquarters, has made today a complete denial of any connection with the Mary Phagan murder in the first formal statement to the public since his arrest in Marietta yesterday afternoon.

The statement, which was given to a Georgian reporter, was said by Chief Beavers to be substantially the same as that taken by the police at the Georgia penitentiary last night for the use of the city detectives.

"This remarkable denial, if it is to be given credence, sweeps away a whole train of circumstantial evidence that appeared most strongly to connect him with the brutal tragedy."

"He is contradicted," K. P. Holloway, hinnerkeeper for the National Pencil Company, told a Georgian reporter that he had it from Gantt's own lips that he had been with the Phagan girl.

He never even walked home with the girl, he insists. Mary Phee, one of the girls employed with Mary Phagan, told the authorities that she had heard the girls at the factory say that Gantt was in love with Mary and wanted to walk home with her frequently.

Gantt declares in his statement that he was at the home of the husband, Mrs. P. G. Terrell, 251 East Linden Street, the night that the murder was committed, going there directly from a pool room.

A woman describing herself as Gantt's half-sister, said by the police to have told two plainclothesmen that Gantt was not there when they went to look for him Sunday night, that he had not been there for some time and was on his way to California.

"I didn't hear of the murder until Sunday night when I went to work on the young women with whom I have been going. She is Miss Annie Chambers, of 18 Warren Street. She went there about 8 o'clock Sunday evening."

"Her brother Phil, who works at the National Pencil Company's plant, rushed into the room and said that a girl had been murdered in the basement of the factory. He did not know who it was. That was the very first I heard of the crime."

"I did not learn the horrible details of the murder until I read them in the journal Monday morning. When I was first arrested Monday morning, I had bought a crew near Marietta and was going on there to farm. I had made arrangements some time ago with my mother to see her Monday and my trip there was simply a fill that engagement."

"I would not harm any girl, least of all the daughter of Mrs. Coleman. Two years ago I knew Mrs. Coleman when she was Mrs. Pinson and lived near Marietta in Cobb County. She was just a little girl then about four years old. From the time I knew her as little more than a toddling child until I went to work in the pencil factory last June I never saw her."

"I never went out with Mary after I started work in the factory. I never walked home with her. I never saw any more of her than I was of the 15 other girls at the factory. I spoke to her as I might to any of the others, but that was all."

"The charge that I had any part in her destruction is the basest sort of a lie and an injury to me."

"Talk of Hester Coates. The determination instituted to gain the immediate freedom of Gantt was another of the new features of the most sensational tragedy. Gantt had been in a state of freedom of influence upon a family of good means. Gantt has no more in this country as a public head-stater than on a street to obtain his liberty."

Another of Gantt's latest statements is that he was arrested in the immediate vicinity of the factory. "I was in the immediate vicinity of the factory when I was arrested. I was in the immediate vicinity of the factory when I was arrested. I was in the immediate vicinity of the factory when I was arrested."

Another picture of the Phagan girl in a studios pose. The child was strikingly pretty and the pictures here shown are from photographs prized by grief-stricken relatives in Marietta.

IS THE GUILTY MAN AMONG THOSE HELD?

Is the murderer of Mary Phagan among the four men who are being held at police headquarters, or is he still at large, either among those still unsuspected or among those who have been severely quizzed by the officers?

- 1—Newt Lee, negro night watchman, who is thought to know much more about the crime than he has told, but who has not been regarded as the perpetrator;
- 2—Arthur Mullinax, former street car conductor, for whom a strong alibi has been established, and from whom suspicion is shifting;
- 3—Geron Bailey, negro elevator boy, who has been held as a material witness, but against whom no evidence has been obtained;
- 4—J. M. Gant, former employee of the National Pencil Company, located at the plant on Saturday, and identified as the "man with a little girl on Saturday night." In neither Mullinax's nor Gantt's case do the police place much dependence on the so-called identifications.

SISTER'S NEW STORY LIKELY TO CLEAR GANTT AS SUSPECT

P. J. Terrell, 244 West Linden Avenue, told a Georgian reporter today that his wife had declared to him that she did not tell the truth to the detectives and Georgian reporters to whom she had said that she did not know where J. M. Gant, accused of the murder of little Mary Phagan, was on Saturday night.

"When I saw Gant soon after the discovery of the dead girl, Mrs. Terrell stated that Gant, who is her half brother, had left her home when she had been in the plant seven years, drove work, was presently to go to California, and that she had not seen him since."

"I am sure my wife got up at 11 o'clock and left some 10 or 15, and she told me it was true." "I thought you said that Gant had left. How then would you and Gant stay in the house and be at the scene of the murder?"

"I am sure my wife got up at 11 o'clock and left some 10 or 15, and she told me it was true." "I thought you said that Gant had left. How then would you and Gant stay in the house and be at the scene of the murder?"

Bartender Confirms Gantt's Statement

Charles W. McGee, of Columbia Hill, a bartender at the saloon of J. P. Hunter at 41 South Forsyth Street, almost directly across from the National Pencil Company plant, corroborated today the story told by J. M. Gant about leaving a pair of shoes in the back of the saloon night after Monday morning.

"The man's badge to be taken from the desk came into the saloon, but stayed only a short time," McGee said. "I noticed nothing suspicious about Gant or the man who was with him."

SLAIN AS HE FORCES ATTENTION ON GIRL

CHICAGO, April 25.—While attempting to force his attention on a girl, Antonio Maspero today was killed with an axe. Maspero, a score of persons witnessed the killing. Maspero, who was 25 years old, is being held in jail.

SLAYER'S HAND PRINT LEFT ON ARM OF GIRL

Hope for apprehension of the slayer of Mary Phagan has come to the police with the discovery of distinct finger prints stamped in blood on the sleeve of the dead girl's jacket.

The discovery was made by a Georgian reporter in the course of a minute inspection of the girl's clothes yesterday evening. The finger prints are on the right arm of the light silk dress.

The prints of two fingers are just below the shoulder, staining purple the lavender of the child's dress and penetrating to the arm, as if they were established at the pressure of powerful fingers grasping her arm.

A third print is that of a thumb, blurred somewhat as with a great pressure, but offering possibilities of analysis. With the discovery of the finger prints, detectives employed in the case have a tangible clue. The Bertillon system of detection will be brought into play, and suspects will be placed through its unflinching criticism.

The search for other finger prints will be made zealously. Detectives of the Pinkerton agency, several of whom are on the case, are known to affect largely this mode of detection, on the theory that every man has his distinctive finger prints, and that the impressions of the fingers of no two individuals are identical.

The evidence borne in finger prints is regarded as conclusive in modern courts. On this fact the police of Atlanta to-day are hoping more firmly than ever that they will be successful in their trail of the man who killed little Mary Phagan.

WILSON DROPS ALIEN BILL AS CLOSED ISSUE

President Not to Bother Further With Question Unless Japan Objects Stronously.

MEASURE WILL BE PASSED

California's Governor, in Statement, Says Bryan's Protest Will Go Unheeded.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—So far as the White House is concerned the Japan Alien question is closed and Mr. Bryan will be recalled in a few days.

President Wilson to-day said he will take no further action with regard to the alien law in California unless a legislative crisis should pressure to bear on Washington.

"Inasmuch as the bill which will pass the California Legislature tomorrow is reported by Secretary Bryan to be in accord with all existing treaties with Japan it is not seen how the Government of the United States could object constantly to the enactment of this measure.

"Should there be any such protest, however, the Government will refer it to the regular channels of the State Department, and if Secretary Bryan in the course of claims will pay them as it did in the case of the Italian murders in New Orleans in the early sixties.

Bill to Pass Despite President's Protest.

SACRAMENTO, April 28.—So far as the results of last night's conference between William J. Bryan and the California legislators are concerned, they have not advanced the cause of the President and his Secretary of State as far as this.

When the conference was over there was a general knowledge that the anti-alien bill prepared by Attorney General Webb, under the eye of the President, and with the advice of that Government's confidential friends, will pass by the Legislature, and promptly signed by Governor Johnson.

The Governor to-day dictated a statement to the effect that conference with Secretary Bryan are over and that the time is passing the law home.

He said: "The conference between the Secretary of State and Legislature was held last night. We were delighted with Mr. Bryan and that he had been given the most attentive and respectful consideration. Every opportunity was accorded him, and the conference closed with a cordial parting on the part of the President."

"No desire to embarrass J. S. Morgan or the administration of California with uncertainty expressed themselves as desiring to aid in the national Government in the endeavor to suppress it. The spirit pervading the meetings was one of friendly co-operation and full of patriotic fervor."

"I think the majority of the legislators here, and I certainly do myself, had no sufficient reason here thus far been presented to cause California to go back in any contingent legislation."

He asserted that obligations will be accepted and met.

"The Japanese will not be alienated by the classification made by the naturalization laws of the nation, established by the Constitution, and penalties are provided by the laws of other States, which will be followed."

"It is our legal and moral duty to do, and such enactment California can not justly and logically be either offensive or discriminatory."

"Bianchi was seen to-day in the office of the State Department in a bill prepared by Attorney General Webb, which he had signed."

It was reported that the bill was not signed by President Wilson.

California Senator Says State Insulted Wilson.

SACRAMENTO, April 28.—I do not see how much courtesy to give a quarrel when one also will have the burden of maintaining the controversy.

This statement was made to-day by Senator W. G. "Big Boy" Griffith, a Republican, and a member of the administration of the Legislature. Senator Griffith said he had received a letter from the State Department and had told him that the bill was not signed by President Wilson.

WE INTEND TO WIN, SAY POPE CONTESTANTS

Contenders in Georgian-Sunday American Race for Twelve Shetlands Determined.

CHILDREN ARE ALL AGOG

Opportunity to See "Butterfly on the Wheel" Free Also, Serves to Arouse Interest.

"We intend to win!" Every contestant who has entered the Georgian and Sunday American race for the twelve beautiful Shetland ponies announces his or her determination to win.

That is the right spirit, of course. No one entering unless you intend to win.

But don't let the ambitions of others deter you from trying your skill. Your determination may be just as strong—as the race.

Promoters of The Georgian and American's pony contest are announced again to-day.

And have you seen the picture of one of the ponies? Did you ever see a sturdier, more intelligent, more serviceable little animal portrayed? Well, the other ponies are just as attractive, and the cars are just the sort such fine animals are good to pull.

Notably the children of Atlanta are all agog.

Children Win Pony Over.

"My children have been leading me for a pony ever since they've been old enough to think of such things," said a prominent business man yesterday. "Since The Georgian and Sunday American have been announcing free pony and cart races, my children won't let me rest. I guess I'll have to let them try."

There will be keen contestants—children who have wanted a pony ever since they were old enough to think of such things. There are hundreds of children in Atlanta who have just that way. Scores of them will enter the contest.

To aid in the nomination blank, which is good for 1,000 votes at the start, begin saving the little coupons from The Georgian and American on Thursday on, and start at once getting your friends to subscribe for the contest.

On another page you will find the limits of the city districts, and the names of the contest judges, together with the scale of voting strength the subscriptions for various periods of time give you credit for in the contest.

It is worth the while, worth while to make a pony out of a contest.

"The Butterly on the Wheel" is continuing to draw crowds to the Atlanta Theater.

No little bit of type has not strayed by accident out of the theatrical column. It belongs here.

The point is, the crowds going to the Atlanta Theater this week to see "The Butterly on the Wheel," played by Miss Billy Jones' stock company, are paying for their seats, and they are not coming to see the money spent for clean and clever amusement.

Then, as a reader of The Georgian and Sunday American, may recall the Sherry, Thursday, Friday and Saturday next, and on Sunday, May, will appear in The Georgian and Sunday American consecutive columns, numbered 1, 2, and 3. Clip these out, save them and mail them in our office with a stamped and self-addressed envelope. In return, you will get a reserve seat for a performance at the Atlanta Theater.

The Miss Billy Lang stock company is a well-balanced, experienced organization, giving some of the best plays produced on Broadway in recent seasons. A chance to see them in person never before present in Atlanta is not to be overlooked.

Please enclose a good post, with our compliments.

$100 for Pupils for Swat the Fly Essay

Chamber of Commerce's Prize Contest Open All Atlanta School Children.

The Chamber of Commerce to-day offered a prize of $100 for the best composition written by an Atlanta school child on the "Prevention of the Breeding of Flies." All school children are eligible and the essay may be as long or as short as desired.

The prize was offered at the request of President Wilmer Moore of the Chamber of Commerce and Dr. Claude A. Smith, city bacteriologist.

Dr. Smith, who has made an extensive study of the fly, has prepared an instructive exhibit, depicting the fly from the time the egg is laid until full grown. These exhibits are put up in glass tubes and will be shown in every school building in the city.

Block New Head of Street Car Board

Georgia Railway and Electric Director Elected Well-Known Atlanta Business Man.

The directors of the Georgia Railway and Electric Company to-day elected Frank E. Block, president of the Board to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Joseph T. Urne. Frank Hawkins, of the Third National Bank, has been elected a director.

Mr. Block is one of the best known business men in the South, having established the Frank E. Block Company and other enterprises in Atlanta. He has been a director of the Georgia Railway and Electric Company for years.

WILSON COMPLETES PLAN FOR CURRENCY REFORM

WASHINGTON, April 28.—President Wilson's currency reform bill will make its appearance in concrete form in the near future. It will represent the views of the President on what is needed to place the monetary system of the United States on a permanent basis.

"It is confidently predicted that the bill will carry any provision regarding the limited issue to a plurality of bank deposits.

Decatur Girls and Boys 'Clean Up' City

4,000 Cans and Bottles Acre Gathered in Effort to Make Spotless Town.

The school boys, Albert Hengg, George Hollingsworth, Nathaniel Pratt, McKinney Gosh and Clarence Hinton, working like beavers, removed about 4,000 discarded tin cans and old bottles from the landscape of the municipality of Decatur in the "Clean-up Day" campaign conducted by the City Board of Trade.

"I do not believe by the boys, Dre Gies, Dixie Jayme Cole, Adelaide McLellan, Mildred Garwood, Frances Hagan and Annie May McIlwain, that an important part of the program was completed last night with satisfactory results."

LOUISIANA, April 28.—A telegram from Ochsler states that the report that Baron Giesel, Vostschingen, Austrian Minister to Montenegro, had been recalled, is premature.

It was learned here from a semi-official source that Count von Bernstorff, Austrian Foreign Minister, has informed the press that Austria will make no overture toward Montenegro until after the meeting of the ambassadors here in tomorrow.

A dispatch to The New York Press announced that Italy had agreed to support Austria in any action the latter might take against Montenegro. The possibility that Austria may precipitate an extensive campaign, embracing all of Western Albania, is growing.

City Offers $1,000 as Phagan Case Reward

A Special Council Meeting Called by Mayor Only One Man Offers Action.

At a special session of City Council today, called by Mayor Woodruff, to give the City financial aid in the prosecution of the guilty person in the Mary Phagan strangling case, $1,000 was appropriated as a reward to the person furnishing information leading to the arrest of the man or men who committed the deed.

The appropriation fund was approved by Councilman Thoman, who said the offer of a high award would be likely to result in the arrest and hanging of an important person who might be working to free the man or men who committed the deed.

The Councilman said he was in favor of giving the money in exchange for additional force of special detectives.

GIRL'S DEATH LAID TO FACTORY EVILS

Working Conditions Here Wrong, Proved by Phagan Crime, Says McKeown.

Dr. A. J. McKeown, president of the Southern Biological Congress, declared to-day that if factory conditions in Atlanta were what they should be 11-year-old Mary Phagan never would have been slain.

"If social conditions, if factory conditions in Atlanta were what they should be, if children of tender years were not forced to work in shops that frightful tragedy could not have been enacted," he asserted.

Dr. McKeown's remarks came in the course of a conversation which he discussed at length the evils of child labor in industrial plants and the absolute necessity of rigid child labor legislation.

Witness Events of Day at Pencil Plant

New Lee, watchman at the National Pencil Company's factory, who outlined the police of the discovery of Mary Phagan's body, told his complete story on the stand at the coroner's inquest to-day.

Lee was on the stand for more than an hour and was pined with questions intended to throw light on the tragedy. He replied to questions in a straightforward way, and in detail his story is substantially the same as he has made to the reporters ever since his arrest.

His most significant answers concerned his employer, Leo M. Frank, superintendent of the factory. Lee said that when he reported at 6 o'clock for work, Frank told him to go home until he declared that Frank seemed excited, but added that he attributed that excitement to the fact that Frank had just discharged John Gantt, and might have feared trouble. He said he reported back for work at 6 o'clock and that a few hours later Frank called him up from his home to ask him if things were all right. The witness testified that his employer had never done this before.

Chief of Police Heavens said that Leo M. Frank, superintendent of the National Pencil Company, would go on the stand before the coroner's jury probably late this afternoon.

The chief said he could not force him to testify as he was in the nature of a defendant, but Attorney Rowser said there would be no objection.

Q. How did you get down into the basement? A. I went down the ladder and went back to the toilet. I let the ladder on the floor against the side of the toilet. I came out of the toilet and stepped up a few feet. I don't know just how far. I looked to see if there was any fire in the basement. Then I saw the body.

Q. At this juncture Lee's testimony begins to differ materially with that of the officers, who said that the body was lying face downward.

Thought It Was Trick.

Lee continues: "I thought it was something of a devilish boy had got there to scare me. I went over and saw it was a body and I went away. Then I called the police."

Q. Whom did you call first? A. Mr. Grant.

Q. What did you say? A. I was scared and I don't know what I said. I tried to tell them that I had found a dead body.

Q. How did you know the number of the police station? A. Mr. Frank gave it to me and told me to call it if anything ever happened around the plant.

Q. How was the girl lying when you found her? A. On her back (officers had testified that they found her on her face).

Q. How did you happen to see her? A. I saw her when I walked out in look for a fire.

GIRL ART MODEL DROGGED, STOLEN

Brother Says Rich Italian's Daughter Was Kidnaped by Their Father's Secretary.

PHILADELPHIA, April 29.—Lorenzo, the 16-year-old daughter of the wealthy Italian importer, who has been kidnapped in an elegant model, and who disappeared from her home a week ago, has been traced to this city by her brother and detectives, who say she is held by black-hand subjects.

The girl's father, who is known as Mayor of Boston's Italian quarter, received many threatening letters which set forth that his daughter would be kidnaped.

Frank Bussey, who is directing the search for his sister, says the kidnaping was carefully planned under the leadership of his father's private secretary, for whom the police are searching. The secretary, who is believed to be the same as the man who is believed to have kidnapped the girl, is believed to have a home in Philadelphia.

It is believed that the girl was taken to a room in the city of Philadelphia, where she is held in a room which has been equipped with a telephone. The girl is believed to be in good health.

Went Down Scuttle Hole On Ladder to Reach Body

Previous to Watchman New Lee's testimony, three police officers, who were called to the pencil factory when Mary Phagan's body was found, testified. Their testimony, with the exception of one part, was in agreement with the testimony of Lee.

W. T. Anderson, patrol officer on duty Sunday morning, was first witness.

"We went over in an automobile to the pencil factory and the negro took us into the cellar where the body was found," he said.

Anderson told of the location of the scuttle hole, from which a ladder was lowered to the basement.

"At the foot of the ladder I did not find anything," he went on. "On the left of the basement is a partition wall of the way, forming a room. The body was at the lower end of the partition, 4 feet from the wall. The partition and about six feet from the wall was toward the front of the building, which was very dark."

"I did not see the body until it reached it. There is a rug on the opposite side of the basement, on the right side next to the ladder. There was a rubber mat on the floor. I did not see any white cloth on the floor."

Anderson picked up one

WITNESS STAND THIS AFTERNOON--DOSEY, DISSATISFIED, MAY CALL SPECIAL SESSION OF GRAND JURY TOMORROW

Coroner Donohoe late to-day issued a commitment against Leo M. Frank, superintendent at the National Penell Company...

Arthur Mulvaney, held since Sunday, was released. Frank's commitment read as follows:

To You: You are hereby required to take into custody the person of Leo M. Frank, suspected of the crime of murdering Mary Phagan, and to retain the said Leo M. Frank in your custody pending the further investigation of the death of the said Mary Phagan, to be held by the Coroner of said county.

The delay is believed to be the result of a request from the police department and is interpreted to mean that the detectives are on the trail of new and important evidence not previously brought to light.

A new arrest was made in the Phagan case this afternoon. Detectives arrested James Connolly, a negro employed at the National Penell Company factory.

Chief Deaver, Chief Lanford, Hervey Root of the Inspectors and Detective John Black questioned him for an hour, with the result that it was agreed to again put him on the witness stand.

Leo M. Frank, superintendent of the factory, will again go on the witness stand to supplement his testimony. Leo is said to have given important information to the detective after a two-hour cross-examination this morning.

WHITE WASHING WAS INEVITABLE, MAJOR CHARGES

*Committee Is Forced to Clear Men Accused of Graft to Protect Council."

Chairman of Probers Says He Intends to Reconsider Thoroughly All Evidence.

Commenting on the announced intention of the Councilmanic graft probe committee to vindicate the three named Aldermen, Mayor Woodward today declared:

"Nothing but exoneration by the Councilmanic committee could be expected when members of Council have of these conditions for months and never took any official notice of them. The committee is forced to clear the accused to protect Council."

Chairman John S. Canfield, alone of the members of the probe committee was understood to represent the charges of corruption of Alderman John K. McLaughlin at the conclusion of the investigation last night. He said he intended to consider thoroughly all the evidence again. The committee will meet Saturday to lay the final report to Council.

What Accused Claimed. Thursday, the defense of the three Aldermen was-- Alderman J. W. Madison admitted being sub-contracted with the city, having purchased a letter from City Attorney James L. Maynor stating that his relations were not illegal.

Alderman J. R. Spaulding admitted borrowing money from beer dealers but stated it was before he was elected and that the loans were secured on the basis of friendship and not on account of any influence he might exert in the granting of licenses.

Alderman J. K. McLaughlin's defense was that, while he was a member of the firm of J. N. Lawton & Co. the selling of stock to the city by him was contrary to his instruction. He does not deny that he received money for his services.

THE SUPREMACY OF THE LAW! No Trials by Newspapers-The Courts Will Attend to All Judicial Matters in an Orderly and Legal Way, as Usual.

It should not be necessary to say that THE LAW of the sovereign State of Georgia IS SUPREME, that all branches of the judiciary have their proper functions, and that those presiding over various branches of our courts are honest and capable and will cheerfully safeguard all public interests, and at the same time perform their duties in a legal, time-honored way.

These trite remarks are published that the public may understand that trials by newspapers, by experts, so-called, and by other persons who have no judicial functions are valueless and no cognizance should be taken of them by anybody anywhere.

In its slow way, perhaps, the law may seem tedious to those who are unduly hurried by what may or may not be regarded as of importance, but in the end we all have FAITH IN OUR COURTS, IN OUR JUDGES, IN THE LAW AND THE SANITY OF OUR PEOPLE.

Therefore, let everybody, rich and poor, high and low, of whatever race or creed, look to THE LAW for judgment in a dignified way, and not to newspapers or sensation mongers for legal advice that has no basis whatever in any law book. It is time to recall Browning's beautiful words: "God's in His heaven, all's well with the world."

FRANK TO TEST IF MARY PAGAN GAVE HIM THE POISON

led to an extensive investigation that has never been made. "People have been let go and come at will in various places who should have been locked up and guarded until the investigation was completed. The matter must be fitted to the section, and if it isn't set down soon the State will assume charge and the Grand Jury will be put to work on it."

Features of Testimony. The principal features of the testimony that has been brought out so far are as follows: J. O. SPIKER, of Carterville, Ga., testified— "I first saw a girl and a man standing in front of the pencil factory at 413 Saturday afternoon; that the girl was the same who had been viewed Monday morning at Bloomfield's undertaking establishment. "The girl was identified as the Fourth National Bank, testified— "That the handwriting of the note found by Mary Phagan's body and that of the note written by her father, was the same."

J. M. GANNETT, in the factory about twenty minutes on Saturday night, testified— "That Frank appeared nervous and apprehensive when he saw him at the factory at about 4 o'clock."

NEWBY LARK, the night watchman, testified— "That Frank showed signs of nervousness by rubbing his hands, something he had never done before."

GEORGE W. SPER, JR., 148 Fern Street, testified— "That Mary Phagan had told him once that Leo M. Frank had stood at the factory door when she and he had walked at her and left to find that he rode upstairs with Mary last Saturday; that she left him to get her money at the factory, with an engagement to meet him at 8 o'clock in the afternoon, but never appeared."

EDWARD L. BRITTON, an employee of Kammer's grocery store, testified— "That he saw, without a possibility of a mistake, none other than Mary Phagan walking on Fourth Street, near Hunter, between 11:30 and 12:30 Saturday night, with a man. The man was Mullins, he was almost positive."

J. W. COLEMAN, of the police department, testified— "That it would have been almost impossible to get the body from the point the negro told him he first saw it in."

BERNARD L. S. BISHOP, of the police department, testified— "That he would have been almost impossible to get the body from the point the negro told him he first saw it in."

W. H. ANDERSON, testified— "That he was interviewed by Frank at his residence in phone rack number 45 at 11:30 p. m. on Saturday night."

Miss Frances Hightower The announcement of the approaching marriage of Miss Hightower and Mr. Gustave Beauregard Bissou, to take place Saturday afternoon, May 3, at 3 o'clock, at the Druid Hills home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bedway Hightower, is of great interest to Atlanta society. Only the immediate relatives of both families will witness the ceremony.

You Must Do Your Own Climbing

Steps Are High and Broad, and the Climb is a Long One—to REAL SUCCESS.

This is the country of success and we hear endless talk of it. This newspaper has discussed success often, yet it takes the job up again today...

Certain men whom we call successful, by which we mean that they have got MONEY, have "succeeded" without the quality of industry...

Men of the same stamp have succeeded, even without sobriety industry.

But even such success as theirs demands certain qualities. They must know how to hold themselves back, husband resources, keep themselves in hand until they shall have done the particular object or the particular sum which they set in mind.

To tell a young man that he NEEDS certain qualities in climbing his time and your own—except as you may direct his action TO THE POSSIBILITY OF DEVELOPING IN HIMSELF the essentials of success.

The late Col. P. Huntington, asked to advise a young man, said: "Take ten thousand dollars and go into the business of flag rubber trees."

Mr. Huntington said: "Well, go and get it before you come here for advice."

The great railroad man's attitude is very much like that of the ORDINARY adviser of the young. He says, "Be honest, be industrious, be self-denying, be courageous, patient, sober—"

To make a real success you must have, first of all, INDUSTRY—the faculty for hard work. That quality is greater than others put together.

Map out what you are going to do each day, AND DO IT. Over yourself get into the habit of leaving a thing UNFINISHED.

It is hard, for some it is almost impossible. But if you DO IT, you may make yourself a hard worker eventually. You must do that—the FIRST step to the real success.

SELF-DENIAL is especially a matter of self-education. Instead of putting your mind on the question, "How can I give myself or dress myself?" say to yourself, "WHAT CAN I DO WITHOUT?"

Self-denial is not important simply because it saves your money—it is especially important because IT SAVES YOUR MIND AND YOUR VITALITY.

Industry is of course essential, or at all, if you don't think excessively or at all—you save money and you save vitality. If you don't pay foolish attention to dress—only neatness and common sense are necessary to succeed—you save the time and the thought that many men put on worthless worrying about their personal appearance.

The most important in the line of self-denial perhaps is TO HINK YOURSELF NOT WORRY ABOUT WHAT OTHERS THINK OF YOU. Try to earn the approval of those who are worth while, and dismiss from your mind the opinion of the other that means nothing to you and can do nothing for you.

ENTHUSIASM is one of the great factors in success. It is important especially BECAUSE IT HELPS A MAN TO GET A START.

Unfortunately, enthusiasm is one of the qualities most difficult to cultivate. It is almost a part of a man's own self, like his hair and regular features, or wide shoulders.

Enthusiasm CAN be cultivated, and it should be cultivated. Begin by getting out of your mind the critical, complaining, dissatisfied feelings. That is like pulling the weeds out of a field.

If you can get out of your own brain the foolish feeling of complaint of mortals and vanity, you will be clearing the field for enthusiasm to grow.

Enthusiasm is largely a matter of vitality, health and strength.

Get up in the morning after eight hours' good sleep, and you will be enthusiastic for the day's work. Get up after five hours' sleep and a night foolishly spent, and you will have no strength for enthusiasm.

Honesty has been talked of incessantly ever since the writing of the Ten Commandments and long before. There are many bad reputations, and not a few big fortunes, built ON DISHONESTY.

There are some men who might have been rich if they had not been dishonest, but who are poor now. But be sure that REAL success comes only to the honest man, to the man who keeps and works AND TREATS OTHER MEN HONESTLY.

What you do HAS GOT TO BE DONE ABSOLUTELY BY THE EXERCISE OF YOUR OWN WILL. YOU WILL RECEIVE YOURSELF, BLAMING OTHERS INSTEAD OF YOURSELF. YOU WILL NEVER GET AHEAD. YOU MUST BE YOUR OWN MOST SEVERE JUDGE.

DID YOU EVER KNOW IT TO FAIL?

DOROTHY DIX SAYS: Woman Want to Reform Everybody It Is Born in Them

By DOROTHY DIX. THIS other day a cultured woman, of rather aristocratic tendencies, asked me what I thought was the greatest art in the world. "The art of letting other people alone," I answered, and then I said, "and it's the least understood."

Day Dreams

Rev. John E. White

Writes on Interesting Sinners and Stale Saints

The Problem of Religion is to Sweeten the Saints and Save the Sinners. He Says There Are No Godless Good or Godly Bad.

WRITTEN FOR THE GEORGIAN By REV. DR. JOHN E. WHITE Pastor Second Baptist Church

THE popular expression about "interesting sinners and stale saints" indicates a situation that ought to be looked into. It is a disquieting discrimination with enough sting to it to justify an investigation.

The question, then, of "interesting sinners and stale saints" is a serious inquiry. Why is it that with nine out of ten people you meet the proverbial "sinner" is more engaging than the proverbial "saint"?

Brooks and George. The great movement in our times is not, as some suppose, against the Faith once for all delivered to the saints, but against the saints who have not once for all delivered themselves over to the Faith.

DORSEY TELLS OWN CHIEFS OF TO PHAGAN SLAYING CASE

200 Witnesses To Be Called
When Inquest Into Slaying of Factory Girl Is Resumed Next Monday—Detectives Are Busy.

Coroner Declares Inquiry Will Not Be Made Thoroughly—Every Clue To Be Probed Thoroughly.
Lee and Frank Are in Tower.

Grand Jury Meets, but Considers Only Routine Matters—Was No Truth in Report That Militia
Had Been Ordered to Mobilize.

Sul-livor General Hugh M. Dorsey this afternoon engaged private detective to run down clues which have not yet been fully developed by the men already working on the Phagan case.

The detective was to investigate certain phases of the mystery which have previously received little attention and which he thinks may be of importance.

Mr. Dorsey had conferences today with the detectives with Miss Wattie Brunard, of the Phagans.
The new Grand Jury which meets Monday may consider the Phagan case.

The Grand Jury met this morning and considered only routine matters.
The Phagan case was not taken up at all.

The report that the National Guard had been mobilized originated because of trouble. A few members of the Fifth Regiment were at the Army Club last evening, but all had returned home by midnight.

Coroner Doneho said to a Georgian reporter that the mystery which surrounds the killing of Mary Phagan is by no means solved, and that the investigation will be carried on as long as there is a shred of evidence to be unraveled.

"I would not be holding this jury," said the coroner, "to a solution of the case, or more reasonably certain as to the facts in our possession. A case like this, so deeply wrought in mystery, can be solved in a day, and if there is anybody in Atlanta who is not pleased with the progress being made, and public opinion should make him commendable and lend his assistance. No police officer, certainly, will keep me from taking any reasonable suggestion and following it for all it is worth. It is up to the people to help all they can."

What would the public demand such a result? It requires weeks and sometimes months of labor before a case can be solved, and a clear investigation of the Phagan killing out at the lot house, I presume, will take a few weeks before anything definite was found out. It is only in the meagerest that solutions are forthcoming in a day.

"It is not beyond the bounds of possibility that the body of Mary Phagan may be exhausted for a further examination."

The coroner was informed to-day by a number of clerks who he deems worthy of investigation, and in all probability will subpoena an important witness for the hearing on Monday.

The new clerks which have been a good one," he said. "We are calling every one we can find, and understand. This one may solve the mystery, who knows?"

Navy. The Phagan case in the this addition of The Georgian gives an account of the Phagan case. It is not clear that the Phagan case is not yet ended. It has been adjudged until Monday afternoon and will be held on Monday.

BANKRUPTCY
MILITONARIAN IN TRAIN WIELD-UP

Robber Boards Car in Kansas City
Union Depot—Escapes With
$1,500 Loot.

KANSAS CITY, MO., May 2.—A millionaire and a bank teller were assaulted in a pistol duel on Kansas City Southern train No. 2 early today during a robbery of passengers. The masked bank teller carried $1,500 in cash and jewelry. A trail of blood led to the wounded robber who is expected to lead in his capture.

James S. Short, Jr., a millionaire who is recovering from an injury in a hospital in a serious condition, and it is feared his condition may result fatally.

Following from wounds he received in a pistol shot with Short, the robber left a trail of blood as he fled from the wounded bank teller. The train was still pulling out of the depot when a tall man ran out of the doorway of the railroad yards and climbed up a step of the observation car. He was a bank teller and carried two pistol.

He was a negro porter, who saw him board the train, rushed up the stairs to the observation car.

After the train had proceeded about three miles the robber ordered attention to be given to him through the train. In the middle row of the observation car, a man in a suit, a bow tie, a monocle and a cane, who was a millionaire, was sitting.

When the train was about to start, the robber rushed to the observation car. He was a negro porter, who saw him board the train, rushed up the stairs to the observation car.

Transparent, Tight
And Short Skirts
Critiqued by Blease

South Carolina Governor, Being Evil Influence on Modern Fashion Urges.

COLUMBIA, S. C., May 2.—The transparent, tight or abbreviated skirt of present-day fashions affected by the craze for the slimmer figure, outlining the figure of the wearer is scored as a "minister, persuasive, irritating evil influence" by Governor Blease who today gave a signed interview to a Charleston press.

He fears that the modern fashion will have a deteriorating effect on the young men of the South by "lowering the high regard for the virtues and purity and sanctity of our womanhood which has been characteristic especially of the fair men of the South."

The young women of the South, says Governor Blease, should stand before a sign and have the police or some new woman relative inspect her clothing before going out in public. "If no clothes were to wear, he says, they are fit to wear, but if not, the girl should put on more clothes before appearing in public."

The president declared he has done everything possible. He now puts the responsibility upon the Senate, announcing that that body, by making treaties and in further negotiations, must attend to what he has called to attention.

Great activity is evident at the War and Navy departments. Diplomatic assurances are made that such activity is without reference to the Senate's action on the tariff.

The armored cruiser South Dakota, at the suggestion of the State Department, has been ordered North from Acapulco, Mexico. The armored cruiser Colorado was ordered from the West Coast to the Pacific.

General Denton Rucker, of the West Coast, is expected to be promoted to major general in the regular army.

A sudden attack by the West Coast against the federal government is in the air. It is reported that a letter from the West Coast to the State Department is in the air.

Mr. Wilson only says: "I have nothing to say. I can not be expected to comment upon a situation so delicate." It is conceded at the White House that Mr. Bryan's mission to California has been a complete failure.

Mormon Church Big Trust, Dubois Says

Former Senator Sees Young Followers for Their High Protection Ideas.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—That the Mormon Church is in a spirit of optimism is the opinion of former Senator Fred T. Dubois. He declared the church is a dominating influence in agriculture, mining, politics and business.

"The President of the Church is a good man, but the Mormons are high protectionists. The church is a partner of the Sugar Trust and the President of the Church is ex-officio president of a dozen or more big sugar factors."

"The Democrats never will get the Mormon vote while they favor putting the sugar trust upon the tariff. The Mormons are high protectionists. The church is a partner of the Sugar Trust and the President of the Church is ex-officio president of a dozen or more big sugar factors."

Mrs. Lucy Bloomer is Denied a Divorce. Common-Law Husband, Whom She Charged Kept Her Drunk All the Time, Wins.

Mrs. Lucy Bloomer, 408 Chestnut Street, before Judge Miller this morning, had her second petition for a divorce from her common-law husband, Jacob Bloomer, of Louisville, Ky., refused by a jury.

Mrs. Bloomer alleged that she began living with Bloomer in 1917. In that she left him in Louisville, came to Atlanta and in a few months filed suit for divorce. She asserts she kept her drunk all the time. She was granted a final decree in 1920, and in 1921 Bloomer had the divorce proceedings annulled through legal chicanery.

In his court petition, filed today, Bloomer alleged that his wife drank a good deal and that when she came to Atlanta in 1920 she came with another man.

GEORGIA POSSE CAPTURES SOUTH CAROLINA SUSPECT. AUDAETA, Ga., May 2.—A negro, believed to be Henry Austin, who killed two and wounded four white men near Allendale, in South Carolina, was captured today at Bryanville, Ga., at the home of Austin's father. The sheriff of Horne County and a number of citizens made the capture. The negro had been shot in the back. It is held closely in the description of Austin.

RED-HOT ATTACK

To Print 10,000 Copies of Pamphlet Giving His Side of the Bankruptcy Case.

MACON, Ga., May 2.—In a statement to the public today, Colonel W. A. Huff, whose $135,000 estate has been pending in the bankruptcy court for fourteen years, and in which an important decision was made yesterday by Judge Emory Speer, announced that just as soon as the papers can be printed he will distribute to the public another letter addressed to Judge Speer, in which he will attack that jurist as a man and as an official. He says:

"I beg to assure the public that unless the printing press in Atlanta and Macon are all broken down during the next ten days there will be something doing here a little outside of the usual."

Quiet Near Fourteen Years. "In this connection I beg to call attention to the fact that for nearly fourteen years the newspapers, the lawyers and the federal court officials of Macon have bought themselves, keeping the Huff case well advertised and that during all these years nothing has ever been written for publication by attorneys or myself—except the two communications sent by me last July to Judge Speer. One was in the form of a personal letter of commendation to him and the other a communication addressed 'To Whom It May Concern'."

"It is also proper for me to state that only a portion of my letter to the judge was published by the papers at the time. The balance of the letter, together with all other communications, whether it placed before the public or not, is published in this pamphlet form, 'My Time Has Arrived.'"

"My time to be heard from has expired. That I will undertake to do my full duty by the subject in hand my friends may rest assured."

For sending the letter to Judge Speer last year Colonel Huff is now under an amount of court charges. That he will undertake to do a statement of Judge Speer as a man and as a judge. For several months Colonel Huff has been busy collecting evidence which he says he intends to use in impeachment proceedings against Judge Speer.

"Practically all my charges will be embodied in this pamphlet, 19,000 of which of which will be printed."

Cottolene
is 100 per cent shortening.
When you buy butter for cooking purposes you are paying for 25 per cent water and salt; you get but 75 per cent real shortening value. In Cottolene you get 100 per cent shortening.
Cottolene costs much less than good butter, and gives just as good results in shortening and frying. Cottolene is cheaper and whiter than lard—gives better results and is absolutely healthful, which is more than can be said of lard.
Cottolene is economical, because one third less is required than butter.

The Wash Skirts Make Their Bow
The first of the wash skirts—a splendid array—have arrived. Hard to imagine a more attractive and interesting display. Perhaps the most attractive and interesting by association—wash skirts through the fine bright days of summertime—but perhaps they are attractive and interesting because of the newness of the materials and the fashioning this season.
Ratine in white and colors is very prominent, and wide welt piguetto and the linens, worlds of them, plain French linen, heavy basket weave linen, linen chaser and striped linen.
Usually they are fashioned along plain, straight lines with an occasional one with tiny tucks caught under the belt and at the back, or another with a cut-in pocket and trimmed with clear pearl buttons.
They are priced at $2.45, $2.08, $3.50 to $5.75, and the just arrived.
New Woolen Skirts
Priced at $5.00, $5.75, $8.98, $7.50 and $10.00 are not to be overlooked. They show many smart touches that the woman who appreciates "just a shirtwaist and skirt" will like.
The materials are serges, poplins and granite weaves in greys, tans, navy, black and milans. Plain straight lines—sometimes a few ticks on plaits and button—high waist line.
These in regular and extra sizes.

WOL. XI. NO. 232... WEATHER: FAIR... SOLICITOR General Dorsey Engages Private Sleuths to Run Down Claws Not As Yet Fully Developed—Grand Jury May Consider Mystery.

Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey this afternoon engaged private detectives to run down claws which have not as yet been fully developed by the men already working on the Phagan case.

The Grand Jury met this morning and considered only routine matters. The Phagan case was not taken up at all.

The report that the National Guard had been mobilized originated from the Atlanta-Atlanta News. It is reported that some of the officers of the 28th Regiment of the National Guard, to be with call in the city to discuss the Phagan case.

Francis Duncanson said to a Georgian reporter that the mystery which surrounds the killing of Mary Phagan is by no means solved, and that the investigation would be carried on as long as there is a threat of evidence to be unmasked.

It is up to the people to help it. Following Every Claw. "And why should the public demand great haste?" it requires weeks and sometimes months before some of these mysteries can be solved.

The Phagan case was referred to a committee of the Georgia bar to investigate and, in all probability, will be brought up again in a few days.

It is reported that the Georgia bar is now in the hands of the Georgia bar association, which has been organized to investigate the Phagan case.

POLICE STILL PLAGUED BY MYSTERY OF PHAGAN CASE

200 Witnesses To Be Called When Inquest Into Slaying of Factory Girl is Resumed Next Monday--Detectives Are Busy.

Coroner Declares Inquiry Will Not Be Made Hastily--Every Clue To Be Probed Thoroughly, Lee and Frank Are in Tower.

Grand Jury Meets, but Considers Only Routine Matters--Was No Truth in Report That Militia Had Been Ordered to Mobilize.

There were no developments of importance in the Phagan case to-day. This does not mean that the detective and police forces are not hard at work on the mystery. They are not. Many so-called "clues" are being investigated, but scores of them have been followed up by detectives and found valueless.

The Grand Jury met this morning and considered the routine matters of the Phagan case was not taken up at all.

The report that the National Guard had been mobilized originated because Adjutant-General Neah requested some of the officers of the 5th Regiment to be available in case of trouble. A few members of the 5th Regiment were at the Arsenal last evening, but all had returned home by midnight.

Inquest To Be Thorough. Coroner Dineen said to a Georgian reporter that the mystery which surrounds the killing of Mary Phagan by an unknown soldier, and that the investigation would be carried on as long as there is a shred of evidence to be harvested.

Man of Mystery Now Made Clear; Big Story Coming

This picture is old. Turning for three days in The Georgian without any comment, it has caused endless discussion as to who it is and what it is. The Georgian has been besieged with telephone calls and letters from its readers asking for an explanation. We do not wonder that you had some doubt as to who it is here. This is the answer:

The Georgian has purchased a serial story, more interesting than any Atlanta has had in years. This picture typifies the story.

Based on the picture, what is your judgment is the title of or the plot of the story? Five dollars in gold will be paid to each of the five best literary judgments received.

WASHINGTON, May 2.--Whether the President will take advantage of the opportunity to mobilize a great fleet of war vessels on the Pacific coast, especially under peaceful auspices but in reality to be prepared for a Japanese invasion, is being considered by Navy Department officials who have been instructed by Paul T. Carroll, director of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, has requested the President to mobilize such a fleet to participate in the Pacific fleet at the Golden Gate October 31 to 26 next, marking the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of the Pacific by Balboa.

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES. WASHINGTON, May 2.--The shadow of silence is thick upon the White House. The President has been depressed and gloomy. A stenographic report of all Bryan conferences with the Governor and Legislature of California, with questions and answers have been laid before the President. Mr. Wilson only says: "I have no opinion, but I cannot be expected to comment upon a situation so delicate."

It is conceded at the White House that Mr. Bryan's mission to California has been a complete failure. The President declares he has done everything possible. He now puts the responsibility upon the Senate, announcing that the body, by making treaties and at further negotiations, must attempt to do what he has failed to accomplish.

Atlanta Banks Pay $10,000 in New Tax

U. S. Deposits Have Average Half Million--Banking Approve Government Scheme.

When the banks of Atlanta begin paying 7 per cent interest on Government deposits, the United States Treasury will be $10,000 a year richer. It is estimated that Government deposits in Atlanta are about $800,000. The figure varies little day after day. When the deposits in any one bank, not an active depositor, go over a stipulated figure, a remittance must be made immediately to the treasury. In the case of bank-handling active United States accounts of $10,000 or more, the rate is 7 per cent.

200,000 DEMONSTRATORS, LED BY SISTER MARY TERESA WILKE THROUGH HEART OF GOTHAM

Mrs. Richard Burleson Heads Great "Votes for Women" Army Up Fifth Avenue--While Zouaves Dance--Police Keep Perfect Order.

NEW YORK, May 3.--With the precision of soldiers 30,000 women suffragists and men sympathizers marched through the heart of New York city this afternoon in the most wonderful and brilliant "votes for women" demonstration ever held in North America.

Between 7,500 and 100,000 persons were massed along Fifth Avenue and a thronger of cheers greeted the marchers all along the line. There was no disorder. Twelve hundred foot and mounted police lined the route, and those who attempted to interfere with the procession met instant forceful resistance.

The new suffrage bill, costing 12 cents, 3 cents more than last year, trimmed only with ribbon and colored buttons and buttons, was a feature. It was described by Mrs. K. Livingston Light, chairman of the march, as "a beautiful and small road hat, after the early man's fashion, with a slight roll of the brim on one side."

Leading the parade were delegates from each of the nine states where women suffrage is in effect. They were followed by a band carrying an American flag. Following them came the Women's Political Union dressed in white, with purple, green and white regalia, led by station workers, including Miss Alice Hill, national secretary of the union, who carried a little green box to be used as a program from which to deliver convincing arguments in favor of the new law.

Zouaves Dance on Avenue. The Political Equality Association was led by Mrs. M. E. Belmont. Included in this section was a group of young women called the "White Zouaves," dressed in dazzling white costumes. During the halt in the parade the Zouaves regaled the spectators with the benefit of the Zouave dance, who lined the sidewalks.

Light night, as a sort of preparation for the day's activities, a sufficient program was given in the Metropolitan Opera House. Three hundred of the most distinguished women who constitute the charge of the parade were seated in the various balconies and specified the dance.

PARADE UP FIFTH AVENUE

White Zouaves Dance Before Throng—42-Cent Hats Are Much in Evidence.

NEW YORK, May 7. With the precision of soldiers, 30,000 women suffragists, headed by Richard Barlowen, marched through the heart of New York city yesterday in the most wonderful and brilliant "votes for women" demonstration ever held in North America.

Between 7:30 and 8:00 o'clock a parade of 30,000 women suffragists, headed by Richard Barlowen, marched through the heart of New York city yesterday in the most wonderful and brilliant "votes for women" demonstration ever held in North America.

The parade, which started at 7:30 o'clock from the corner of Broadway and Wall street, proceeded northward along Broadway, then turned left onto Fifth avenue and finally onto Central park west. The parade was headed by Richard Barlowen, who carried a large banner which bore the slogan "Votes for Women".

The parade was headed by Richard Barlowen, who carried a large banner which bore the slogan "Votes for Women". The parade was a triumph for the women's cause, and it was a great success for the National Woman's Party.

Vicious Dog Attacks Child in "Tag" Game

Little Olga Peters, of 218 South Peach Street, is Severely Bitten Before Rescued.

Olga Peters, ten years old, is in a serious condition at her home, 218 South Peach Street, as a result of a vicious attack of "tag" which she and other children of the neighborhood played.

A bulldog belonging to C. E. Walters, 225 West Avenue, became excited when it saw the children running about the street, and lunged upon the little girl, who was severely bitten about the head and arm.

The Peters family notified the police, and an officer was sent to kill the dog. Walters, however, refused to allow the animal to be shot.

Why Are We Really Dead? THE SUNDAY AMERICAN EXPLAINS A GREAT MYSTERY

HEALTH BOARD WILL BRING Muzzling Law

Three Hundred Cases of Rabies Treated Already This Year Presented as Argument.

By JAMES B. NEVIN.
The State Board of Health will urge upon the incoming Legislature, as directly as it may, the great desirability of a dog-muzzling law in Georgia.

The board is believing that it is somewhat difficult to enact any sort of legislation having to do with dogs in this State and to make that legislation effective after it has been enacted. Still, when the people are made to understand, if they can be made to understand, that an enforced dog-muzzling law would in three years save Georgia from all danger of rabies, and that already this year the department has treated of the rabid well over three hundred cases of this dreadful disease, the board believes the Legislature may be brought to see the very great desirability of such a law.

A dog-muzzling law will be offered in the Legislature, and it will be vigorously backed, not only by health boards and doctors throughout the State, but by several important members. The State Board of Health feels that the mere muzzling of dogs, entailing some possible discomfort to them, as it may, still is infinitely preferable to an ever-increasing list of patients to be treated for rabies.

The dog has always had been unpopular in Georgia, and those who have been possessed never has been so. The dog is a pest to the friends of the State, and the State Board of Health has been successful in showing conclusively to the Legislature that it is more profitable to the people, and more profitable to children, for they constitute by far the greater portion of the rabies treated, than the muzzling of dogs. Some effective legislation may be expected during the forthcoming legislative session.

And, anyway, the board has every intention of putting the matter up to the General Assembly, fairly and squarely.

A member-lect of the incoming Legislature has prepared a number of companion bills for the general Assembly's early consideration, both of which are of far-reaching consequence and assured of strong support.

The bill will provide for a general code of execution for the State, and the other will provide for the substitution of the electric chair for the gallows.

DRAWNS NEW STANLAWS GIRL INCUPT'S LOTTERY

The "Stanlaw's Girl" is known the world over for her beauty and has been pronounced by many critics as the ideal portrayal of the true American girl. The above is a copy of the drawing made by Stanlaw.

NEW YORK, May 1.—(Special) Stanley Adams, the artist, whose creations of feminine beauty have won him fame both in this country and abroad, has drawn another "Stanlaw's Girl." This time, though, the drawing wasn't with crayon, but in Dan Cupid's lottery.

In other words, Mr. Adams, who is better known as Pennryn Stanlaw, has married, having found his ideal in Miss Jean Pughley, daughter of Lester P. Bennett, of New York and Paris, in whom he was married in the presence of a representative gathering from the social and artistic world. There will be no honeymoon, as the wedding will take place on May 10th.

It was about a dozen years ago that the "Stanlaw's Girl" first made her appearance. Adams, at that time was an undergraduate of Princeton and one of the editors of the university's monthly periodical. His work attracted widespread attention, and his services were in great demand. His smiling face beamed from the pages of books and the covers of magazines. He is now married to Miss Jean Pughley, daughter of Lester P. Bennett, of New York and Paris, in whom he was married in the presence of a representative gathering from the social and artistic world.

KAISER EAGER TO WAVE PRIZE

Is Restraining Austria So as to Complete Twenty-five Years of Warless Reign.

BERLIN, May 3.—The Kaiser is on the last stretch of the last lap in the race for the coveted twenty-five years reign of peace. Will he win the golden jubilee prize? No one knows, but it is certain that he is restraining every nerve to reach the wire before the storm breaks. If it does break, the Kaiser's hand has wrapped itself in a mantle of silence in regard to the most delicate treaty between Austria and Serbia, but the foregoing is the way a military officer leaked up the present situation.

Well-informed men express the opinion that the Kaiser's hand has restrained Austria and prevented the Vienna to wait before taking action in the hope that something may develop which will avert what is feared here, namely, the bursting of a war into which Germany will be dragged against her will and in which she has no direct interest.

While the national and imperial newspapers urge Germany to support Austria and uphold the decision of the latter country to act, one gets the impression in talking with officials and financiers that Germany is still looking for some solution of the trouble other than the warlike one proposed by Austria.

A member-lect of the incoming Legislature has prepared a number of companion bills for the general Assembly's early consideration, both of which are of far-reaching consequence and assured of strong support.

ROUND-ABOUT-TOWN STORES

The Question That Always Head Him. Boil.

After standing by for fifteen minutes listening to the strains of Sousa's 22d Avenue, the policeman at the corner the woman said: "Don't you get a lady kind of answering all these fool questions that are put before me? 'Well, I've got so used to it that there is only one of the lot that makes me actually boil.'"

"Which one is that?" she inquired. "Don't I get awfully tired of answering the fool questions that other folks ask?"

20,000 JOIN EGG SEARCH AT PARK

Atlanta Children Will Contest For Prizes This Afternoon in Annual "Easter" Hunt.

When a man with a trombone added the first notes of "Dixie" out of his horn at 2 o'clock this afternoon 20,000 Atlanta children will spread over Grant Park like bees over a flower, searching for 200,000 candy eggs in the weeds and grass. For today is the day of the annual Easter egg hunt of the Atlanta Park Board, an event children have been looking forward to for months.

All morning 10 to 20 men have been scattering the vast number of eggs, and as the children line up on the boundary lines and impatiently await the signal, Grant Park looks like an old-fashioned "wacky quilt."

The egg hunt is a very popular event in Atlanta, and is held annually in Grant Park. The eggs are hidden in various places throughout the park, and children are given a set of directions to help them find their way.

Airships Made Safer by Aid of Gyroscope

Elmer Sperry Tells Engineers of a Stabilizer Perfected by Naval Aviators.

NEW YORK, May 3.—By means of a specially constructed apparatus aviation accidents have been reduced to a minimum, through the control being taken out of the hands of the aviator at critical moments in the flight.

This was the substance of an address delivered before the New York Electrical Society by Elmer A. Sperry, inventor of the gyroscopic stabilizer for ships.

The apparatus has practically been developed within the last few months, and has been perfected during experiments with balloons in Spain, Spain's Navy Department at San Diego, California.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 3.—By locating a record at two places, which he found in his room, Howard Davidson, a Yale senior, hurried them thinking not he had a pistol and held them until the police arrived. In the Wicked Marriage Market of Ancient Babylon

"The Marriage Market at Babylon," the Great Painting by Edwin Lowy. R. A. Which Shows the Babylonian Fathers Selling Their Daughters.

The Cut Very Far Deep and Small Holes in the Wall of the Palace of King Nebuchadnezzar, the Marriage Market of Babylon, the Great City of the East.

Showing the Type of Life of the Babylonians in the Time of the Marriage Market.

THE VERY SPOT WHERE THE BEAUTIFUL DAUGHTERS OF BABYLON WERE PUT UP ON THE AUCTION BLOCK UNCOVERED BY THE GERMAN EXPEDITION WHICH IS DIGGING UP THE GREATEST CITY OF THE PAST.

THE site of ancient Babylon's marriage market, the peculiar auction at which the old Assyrians put up their daughters for the highest bidder has just been uncovered by the German Oriental Society, which is digging the ruins of the city out of its 600-foot sand. The marriage market is one of the traditions of the splendid and sinful metropolis which has stuck in the memory of mankind for ages. Herodotus, that fearless and gadding old Greek, who has been called the "Father of History," speaks of it, and the phrase is hard work in the newspaper and fictionist vocabularies of the present day.

The "Oriental Society," cutting down forty feet to the pavement of ancient Babylon, ran a shaft along the Royal Quarters, where the palaces of Nebuchadnezzar and Belshazzar stood. In doing so they stumbled across the ruins of the marriage market. They found still intact the carved rostrum on which the auctioneers stood and looked down the benches of Babylon. The market itself occupied a rectangle of 150 by 100 feet. It was open to the air on all four sides, but most probably shielded from the sun by rich silken awnings stretched to shelter the women and to bring out their charms. The block upon which the daughters of Babylon stood while being bid for was in the center of the spectators, and is richly carved with Keraba, who worship and protect the Babylonian Tree of Life. Inscriptions discovered here so clear that this was the actual marriage market of Babylon.

While the marriage market has been called a wicked custom, and has served for countless sermons as a warning, it had some very excellent points. The daughters were not sold into slavery, but into honorable widowhood. Of course, they had no choice, and the element of bidding is probably repugnant to many women of today, but the customs of the time were different, and it is extremely likely that the Babylonian girls looked forward with much delight to the day when they would be auctioned off to some one who cared enough for them to pay large sums for them.

Besides that the sale of the beautiful daughters enabled the ugly ones to get married, and this in a very odd way. The money that was paid for the beauties was given as dowries for the ugly ones.

Herodotus says once a year the maidens of age to marry in Babylon were collected at the marriage market "while the men stood around them in a circle." The herald called up the damsel one by one and offered them for sale.

"He began," continues Herodotus, "with the most beautiful. When she was sold for no small sum of money he offered for sale the one who came next to her in beauty. All of them were to be sold as wives. The richest of the Babylonians who wished to wed bid against each other for the loveliest maidens, while the humbler wife seekers, who were indifferent about beauty, took the more homely damsels with marriage portions.

"For the custom was that when the herald had gone through the whole number of the beautiful damsels he should then call up the ugliest—a cripple if there chanced to be one—and offer her to the men, asking who would agree to take her with the smallest marriage portion. And the man who offered to take the smallest sum had her assigned to him. The marriage portions were furnished by the money paid for the beautiful damsels, and thus the fairer maidens portioned out the uglier. No one was allowed to give his daughter to the man of his choice; nor might any one carry away the damsel he had purchased without facing her really and truly to make her his wife. If, however, it was found that they did not agree the money might be paid back. All who liked might come even from distant villages and bid for the women."

Herodotus also says that this was a general custom throughout ancient Babylon. "The Babylonians had another unique philanthropic habit.

If a man were taken ill in the street every passerby had to stop and ask him what was the matter with him. Being told, it was incumbent upon the passerby, if he had ever had the same ailment, or if he had known any one who had the ailment, to tell the sufferer what had cured him or what had cured another.

"The tradition does not tell us what was the result of this wholesome prescription, but if a sufferer could prove that a man or woman had "passed him without giving him the benefit of their knowledge, he could collect heavy damages."

The Most Famous and Successful Criminal of Modern Times, Who Made a Million Dollars in Her Early Criminal Career and Lost It at Monte Carlo, and Has Now Accumulated Half a Million Dollars in Honorable Business Enterprises

Written by Sophie Lyons

FROM the moment when he commits his first crime, the professional criminal never knows that it is to enjoy real peace of mind. His crimes hang over him like the sword of Damocles, and unless he reforms he can never be free from the fear of some day being found out and sent away to prison for a long term.

And arrest is not the only thing he has to fear—he is continually face to face with the danger of serious injury or death. Whatever the crime he undertakes he must run the most desperate risks—he has to stake not only his liberty but his life itself on the narrowest of margins.

The powerful explosive he is using to blow open a safe may go off prematurely, as it did one night when George Mason and I were robbing a bank in Illinois, and leave the robber half dead.

Perhaps an indignation mob may decide to take justice into its own hands by lynching in crime, as happened to what happened to one of my comrades in Kentucky. They had the moon shined on his neck and were all ready to hang up on a gallows.

At the time of this thrilling adventure the police wanted us so badly for our share in several famous robberies that Ned and I did not dare to undertake any operations in the large cities which usually formed our most profitable fields.

At the time of this thrilling adventure the police wanted us so badly for our share in several famous robberies that Ned and I did not dare to undertake any operations in the large cities which usually formed our most profitable fields.

All this made a traffic more than four hundred dollars for our night's work, but pitifully small sum compared with what some of our bank robberies brought us, but enough to tempt us and we could plan some more ambitious undertaking.

"George and I will jump on this train," said my husband, giving me a hurried kiss. "It's safer than for the three of us to stick together. Good-by—and take care of yourself. We'll meet you in South Windham, Conn., late tonight or early tomorrow."

Was I bedraggled and so tired that I could have fallen asleep standing up, I groped my way to the railroad station and curled myself up on a bench to snatch what rest I could get before daybreak.

My Husband Is Shot

I reached home late in the afternoon and went straight to the postoffice. This was always the accepted rendezvous for professional criminals when no other place had been agreed upon.

"Did and George were there to see me, for they had heard vague rumors of a woman having been arrested on suspicion that she knew something about the Palmer robberies."

The best opportunity this needy little town afforded seemed to be a general store run by a man named Johnson. I dropped in there late one evening and, on the pretext of buying a crocheted top, saw for the first time the "day's receipts" a respectable bundle of money—in a ramshackle safe which offered about as much security as the door to a tenement.

We got everything in readiness to break into the store the following night. It was a bright moon—and we were hungry for money, and one more good haul would give us the cash to get going on the road.

"I'll be right back," I said to help the men, but I could not bear to be left behind. Just after midnight I stole out of the railroad station, where I had been waiting anxiously for the night train to New York, and hid myself in the doorway of a livery stable, where I had a good view of the street.

Just as the men were getting to work, a woman came cautiously down the main street from behind a building. She held a package under a window of the store on the side which was in the dark shadow of a tree.

"This robbery was so well planned above the ground that my husband had to climb up over George Mason's shoulders to reach it. It could hear the gas pipes rattling as it worked against the fastenings."

At last he raised the ash gourd and stepped in the window. Then he leaned far out across the sill and stretched his brawny arms down toward his companion. A second man, who had been waiting to assist him, and with the agility of a circus performer, swung himself up into the window.

"There goes the burglar now!" some one shouted, and just then I saw my husband shot and fall into the street. The other two men, who were directly above the door of the store, saw the shot and fled in confusion. Sophie Lyons—the "Queen of the Burglars" no more to obey. Instead, he only ran all the faster, smashing his head down between his shoulders and staggering back and forth across the road as if to make his bulky form a less favorable target.

The old farmer raised his rifle as deliberately as if he had been aiming at a squirrel instead of a fellow man. Three shots blazed out in rapid succession.

"We've got him!" the crowd shouted with wild screams to me. He fell back with a quivering, bloody head, his body lay in a pool of blood.

I supposed he was dead, but whether dead or alive I knew there was nothing I could do to aid him. Nervous and trembling at the awful sight I had seen, I slipped out of town unnoted.

What Game of Our Crimes

I saw nothing of George Mason and for months afterward did not know how he had fared. With better judgment than my husband showed, he had remained quietly in the store after the outcry started. He saw the shooting, and in the confusion which followed he found little difficulty in getting out of town.

Friends of mine in New London aided me to return to the hospital in Hartford, where Ned had been taken after the shooting. His recovery was slow, for there was a bullet lodged in his chest, deep in his back which the surgeons were unable to remove. As soon as he was able to stand, he was sentenced to three years in State prison, and when he had completed this term he was given three years in Massachusetts for the robbery at Palmer.

"This was the result of our crimes. Now I have to serve six long years in prison. Can you wonder why I have learned the lesson that crime does not pay?"

But, to my sorrow, I did not learn the lesson then—no, not for many years after that. With my husband in prison, the support of my little ones fell wholly on my shoulders, and I promptly turned to bank robbery as the nearest way I knew of making a living.

"I was amazed at the bold ingenuity of this plan and the matter-of-factly way in which he presented it to me. This was the first I had ever heard of a bank being robbed by request of one of its officials."

Later I came to know that it is not an uncommon thing for dishonest presidents and cashiers to conceal their thefts by hiring robbers to break into their banks.

The difference between what is actually done in one of these robberies by request and what the police and the newspapers say is taken covers the amount which the embezzling official has lost in Wall Street or some other speculation.

"The whole idea was so new to me that all sorts of suspicions crowded into my mind. Probably it was trap for me, I thought, and I positively declined to have anything to do with it."

But the old banker would not take no for an answer. He urged me to think it over, and a week later he called again. By this time the fear of the disgrace which threatened him and his family had made him a nervous wreck. He begged me pityingly for me to help him make this last try, and he promised me that I should get the better of me, and I finally consented.

All my feeling for him, however, did not quite wipe my mind of the fear that the whole affair might be a trap, and I determined to protect myself and the robbers who would assist me with all the advantages I could.

"We must have a written agreement," I said at the very start. The banker objected to this, fearing, I suppose, that I might use the paper against him later for blackmail. But I insisted that we should not do a thing until I had it.

According to the contract which I prepared, the banker paid five thousand dollars down and was to pay me an equal amount as soon as I had completed my arrangements, and not the date for the robbery. He further agreed that there should be at least $50,000 in cash in the bank vault on the night of our raid.

It was further provided that the banker should co-operate with me and my fellow robbers in every possible way, and that he should do nothing to get me into arrest or conviction for the crime, which, as was expressly stated, was committed at his request and not ours. Now, in case the robbery was interrupted before we could get inside the vault the banker was to pay me $25,000 in cash in addition to the $10,000 already advanced.

I agreed to leave no stone unturned to carry out the robbery and promised to return the agreement to the banker as soon as all its provisions had been fulfilled. This I set down in a paper in as unbusinesslike way as I know how. It was a document which would have made the poor old banker feel that he was getting the best of the deal.

"My advice and help!" I exclaimed, thinking the man must be out of his head. "That's exactly what I want," he replied. "I want your advice and help. I can have my bank robbed, and, if possible, I want you to take charge of the robbery yourselves."

As he explained, he was more than $100,000 short in his accounts. He had taken this amount from the bank while the past year and lost every dollar of it in speculation. He could not return this money and it was only a matter of a few weeks before his embezzlement would be discovered.

Being a man of prominence in his community—a deacon in the church, his wife a society leader, his children in college—running away was out of the question. For months he had been mulling his brain for some way of averting the ruin which he had brought upon himself.

"I was the first to arrive. I went to the leading hotel, announced my plan to add a certain number of men to my party, and my industries and began to look around for a suitable location for my enterprise. As I believe I mentioned in a previous chapter, this man had a patent medicine store which was one I had borrowed from my friend, Harry Raymond—he had used it to splendor in his bank robbery of the Boston Bank in Boston.

Of course, it was a part of my preparation to visit the bank before I contacted with the two men who were to act as president—cautiously to carry out my role of the cautious business woman and partly to study the construction of the building where we could best bore our way into it.

Among the articles of furniture we moved in was an unusually large oak wardrobe. We were ready to work in the room and placed it over the exact spot in the floor where we planned to dig our opening into the vault.

"Then, while one of the men and I ostentatiously sealed labels on endless bottles of Golden Bitters, the other two crawled into the wardrobe where no chance visitor could see them and day after day continued the work of removing the layers of brick and timber which separated us from the vault. We stored the tools we had in a large bag and carried it away every night."

"I was a long, job and a hard one. The two men were seasoned old hands, and my partner was a nervous wreck. He begged me pityingly for me to help him make this last try, and he promised me that I should get the better of me, and I finally consented."

regularly in a setting of mortar and brick. This made our task tough, but we had expected this. Late one afternoon George cleared away a space which was a thin layer of lath and plaster work and the inside of the vault.

"There was too much danger of being discovered," said the bank's watchman when he was asked to delay. We made our arrangements, and the bank that very night.

While the rest of the town was to bed we worked until five o'clock in the morning. We had to get late enough for us to lay our hands on the $50,000 which I had arranged to believe was waiting below a layer of lath and plaster. Luckily the bank's watchman was asleep and we got in without being disturbed. We returned until the moon was small and he had prevented the necessity of our going on guard outside.

Shortly after midnight we took our lamps and lighted our dark faces and peered out of the window—the watchman was sleeping. George Mason took a small step out of the room and with one tremendous blow opened up the hole in the wall. He was strong enough to admit his body, and he was followed by the other two men and I lowered him down into the vault.

My Comrade's Narrow Escape

To the best of my knowledge the relief the cash which had been stored would be found right on the shelves of the vault, and all George would do would be to start it into his pocket and climb back up to the roof again.

But, whether through intent or oversight on the president's part, that was not the case. For several minutes we breathlessly listened to George's tales around the vault by the light of the lantern. Then we heard his hoarse whisper:

"Sophie, it's just as I was afraid. I've got the cash which had been stored in the small steel safe. I'll have some more on the way. It's the custom in big banks to have a small and separate steel safe to put the actual cash into. Loads of men's account books and promissory notes and stock certificates are kept in the vault, but money and things of real value are usually locked up in the small steel compartment."

"With some difficulty we had him back up. From his bag he pulled a bottle poured out what seemed to me an extra generous quantity of ketchup powder."

"Be careful and not use too much of that stuff," I called as he disappeared again through the hole. "And we said that was your worst falling. 'Don't you worry, Sophie,' he replied; 'I'll take a good bite to open this safe.'"

For several minutes we sat there in silence, waiting for the safe to be opened.

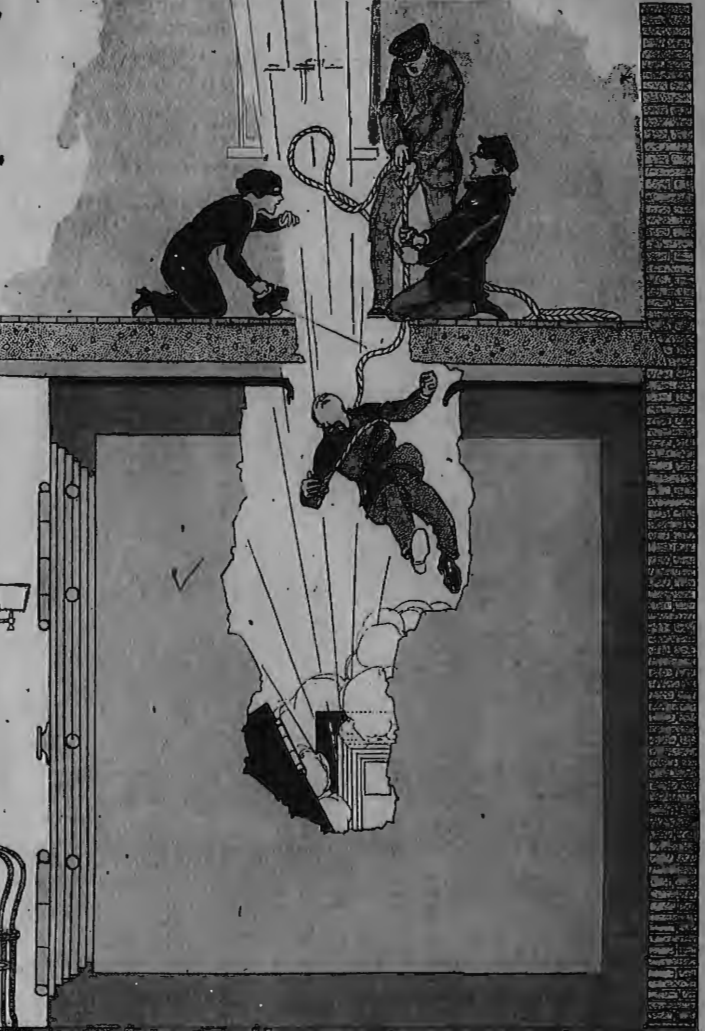

"Our Exciting Adventure"

"As I entered the square could see a form looming above the head of the man who was surrounded by my party. It was an oak tree, which stood in front of the house. I shall never forget how I looked at him, his feet with ropes, his eyes bleeding. He was bareheaded, and I saw his coat and collar in order to catch the moonlight on his neck.

I shuddered to think that not a foot of solid iron would be between me and the man who had just been hanging before my eyes. I summoned every atom of courage I possessed and my wife came on frantically. 'That man is my nephew! Don't please don't touch him!'

ing to the rasping of his drills against the door of the safe. Just as we felt the tug on the rope which was the signal he had lit his pipe, we saw the flare of his lighted match and heard the sputter of the fuse.

We pulled on the rope for all we were worth but before George's body was within two feet of the hole in the floor there came a blinding flash, followed by an explosion that shook the building.

Although dazed by the shock and half blinded by the cloud of dust and smoke, our faces which poured up through the hole, we managed to keep our hold on the rope and haul our hapless comrades out of the death trap in which the premature explosion had caught him.

"George!" I called as we lifted the rope from under his arms. But he never answered and I thought it was only a corpse that we laid gently on the floor. His hair and eyebrows were completely turned off, his face and hands were as black as coal and he was bleeding from an ugly wound in the bottom of his head.

We forgot the money we were after—the danger of being caught, in our anxiety for our wounded friend. One by one the men brought water with them to force a drink of brandy down his throat. It seemed an age before he came to his senses, his eyes were open and he roughly pushed me aside.

"It went off too quick for me," he said; "but don't be foolish—I'll be all right in a minute. Lock and see if the noise has rebounded the door."

I looked out—there was not a soul in sight. The bank's thick walls are the fact that it stood at some distance from any other building had evidently prevented the explosion being heard outside.

We Get the Bank's Money

Although suffering intense pain, George insisted on going back to get the money. It was no easy task for the vault was full of suffocating smoke. There was no chance to lose, as the watchman might return at any minute.

"After a few minutes we hauled him up for the third time.

"That charge blew the safe door to splinters, but he's every dollar it contained," he said, handing me several packages of bills.

I counted the money and had hard work to conceal my surprise when I found there was only $30,000. But, as Mason thought himself lucky to escape with his life and as the other two men seemed well satisfied with the amount, I said nothing.

We started at once for Chicago, where a few days later we divided the spoils. As I had expected, the bank's loss was placed by the newspapers at $200,000. A reward was offered for the capture of the robbers. I was pleased to note that the president's story of the amount "possible" he had secured was in which the affair was shrouded seemed to be generally accepted.

After the excitement had died down the bank robbery came to Detroit to see me. Worry over the possibility of his crime being discovered had shaken him, and he said he was such a poor broken specimen of an old man that I did not have the heart to demand the additional $20,000 which he had promised us. As I tore up our agreement and handed him the pieces, he said:

Facing a Lynching Mob

"My criminal folly has ruined my peace of mind. Thanks to your help, I have saved my family from disgrace, but the worries and nervous strain of my delinquency and the bank robbery have killed me. My doctors say I have heart disease, and have but a few months to live. I wish I had known two years ago what I have since learned—that crime does not pay."

The desperate risks every criminal has to run often come through no crime of his own, but through his association with other criminals. Two of the most exciting events in my varied career happened to me through my loyal effort to save the life of my friend, Tom Bigelow, a well-known bank snook and burglar.

It was in Mount Sterling, Kentucky, that all this happened. I was there on a perfectly legitimate errand and had no idea that any of my criminal friends were in the vicinity.

There was a circus in town that day, and the long main street was crowded with sightseers. I had been watching the parade with the rest and was on my way to the hotel for dinner when I heard someone call my name.

"Looking around in surprise I saw Johnny Mooney, a young bank snook, whom I knew well, pressing his way through the crowd toward me. He was all out of breath and in the greatest agitation.

"'Sophie,' he whispered in my ear, 'they've just caught Tom Bigelow with the bank's money on him and they're going to lynch him.'

There was no time to ask him more—the last word was fairly out of his mouth he had disappeared in the crowd.

As I afterward learned, Tom and Johnny had taken advantage of the excitement created by the circus parade to rob the Mount Sterling bank. While the cashier was standing upon the counter to see the passing parade, Johnny had crawled under his legs and taken a bundle of money out of the vault.

He got safely out with his plunder and was just handing it to Tom, who had been waiting in a buggy outside, when the cashier discovered his loss and raised a great outcry. Before Tom had time to stir out of his tracks a bundle of willing hands in the crowd had made him a prisoner—then some one started the cry "lynch the bank robber!" and some one else brought a rope.

In the excitement nimble Johnny managed to get away and to escape. As he dashed down the street he had caught a catch sight of me and had passed us the word of our friend's peril.

The crowd was already burying in the direction of the square in the centre of the town where the court house stood. I followed as fast as my legs could carry me.

As I entered the square I could see Tom's familiar form looming above the heads of the yelling mob which surrounded him. He was mounted on a soap box under an oak tree which stood in front of the court house.

I shall never forget how he looked—pale as a sheet, his feet tied with rope, his arms securely bound behind him. He was bareheaded and they had removed his coat and collar in order to adjust the noose which hung around his neck.

Quite plainly, if there was anything I could do to save my friend, it must be done quickly. The mob was loudly clamoring for his life. Already a young man was climbing up the tree in search of a convenient limb over which to throw the end of the rope.

I hesitated to think that unless I could devise some plan of action, Tom Bigelow's lifeless body would soon be dangling before my eyes.

Summoning every ounce of the nervous energy I possessed, I pressed my way through the crowd, screaming frantically: "That's all this is my sweetest! Don't lynch him—oh, please don't lynch him!" My action took the crowd by surprise—they made a lane for me and pushed me along until I finally stood right at Tom's feet.

How I Saved Tom's Life

I climbed up on the box beside Tom. I threw my arms around his neck, although the feel of that ugly noose against my flesh made me shudder.

"My man is innocent—he is my sweetest heart," I kept shouting. "Tom must let him go."

I hugged Tom Bigelow. I kissed him. I wept over him—I did everything I could imagine a woman doing when the man she loves is about to be hung before her eyes.

"If you hang him, you'll have to hang me, too," I screamed between my heartrending sobs.

The crowd was amazed. Lynchings had become so common an occurrence in that region, but nothing like this had ever happened before.

The cool heads in the crowd began to have their say. "Take that noose off his neck and lock them both up," some one called out.

The sheriff put handcuffs on us and led us away. My rescue had succeeded. Tom Bigelow's life was saved.

Tom and I were lodged in jail, indicted by the Grand Jury and held without bail for trial. Of course, I was innocent of any part of the robbery, but as the authorities believed my story that I was Tom's sweetheart, they thought I might as well be tried and sentenced.

It was while we were confined in the jail at Mount Sterling that I had an opportunity to see Tom. He had come to face a desperate lynching mob. That was one of the most horrid nightmares I ever experienced.

One of our fellow inmates in the jail was a man named Murphy Logan, who was being tried for the murder of his father. He was a sulky, weak-minded fellow, who had several killings to his credit, but the general opinion was that he belonged in an insane asylum.

In another neighboring cell was a young man named Charlie Steele, who was exceedingly popular in the community. His worst fault was love of liquor and he was in jail for some other offense which he had committed on one of his sprees. The other prisoners shunned Logan on account of his disagreeable ways, but Charlie and I were fast friends and they often played cards together.

In this all the prisoners were allowed the freedom of the long corridor on which the cells opened. One afternoon Tom Bigelow and I were sitting on the bench trying to devise some way to regain our liberty. Down at the other end of the corridor Charlie Steele was sitting and some were enjoying their usual game of cards.

Suddenly we were startled by a piercing scream. I jumped to my feet and looked around to see poor Steele lying on the floor with a bloody wound in his head and a long wound in his breast. Over him glared like the madman he was, stood Murphy Logan, brandishing in one hand a pocket knife of which he had fastened into a crude sort of dagger.

"Forgiveful of my own danger, I rushed up and called Logan's name. Just as he was about to plunge the weapon into Steele's body again, he turned on me and said: 'I'll have to come up to the top of the tower with me until Tom and some of the other prisoners came to my assistance.'

Charlie lived only a few hours. The sheriff placed the murderer in solitary confinement and chained him to the floor of his cell. His ravings were so terrifying to bear. He continually threatened vengeance on any of his fellow prisoners who would tell how he had slain his friend.

After waiting to these threats all night we were in terror of our lives and long when the inquest was held next day to get some rest myself when I heard the warden say that he would admit that he had seen the killing.

"That's all right," I said to myself. "I'll have to come up to the top of the tower with me until Tom and some of the other prisoners came to my assistance."

There was too much danger of the gaping hole we had dug under the window being discovered by any further delay. We quickly completed our arrangements to rob the bank that very night.

Steele came to my cell and I felt that I ought to face the big vault, but I lighted our dark lanterns. I opened out of the window the streets were deserted.

"Sophie, be just as I was afraid it would be. Every cent of the money is locked up in the small steel safe. I'll have to come up and get my tools."

About an hour later I heard a small and separate steel safe to have a small amount of money, documents, account books and sometimes bonds and stock certificates are kept in the big vault, but money and things of special value are usually locked up in the inside steel compartment.

With some difficulty we hauled him back up. From his bag he selected the drills he thought he would need and from a bottle poured out what seemed to me an extra generous quantity of powder.

"Be careful and not use too much of that stuff," I called as he disappeared again through the hole. "I've always said that was your worst failing."

"Don't you worry Sophie," he replied. "It will take a good big dose to open this safe."

For several minutes we sat there listening to the rasping of his drills against the door of the safe. Just as we felt the quick tug on the rope, which was the signal to haul him up, we saw the flare of his lighted match and heard the sputter of the fuse.

We pulled on the rope for all we were worth, but before George's body was within two feet of the hole in the floor there came a blinding flash, followed by an explosion that shook the building.

Although dazed by the shock and half blinded by the cloud of dust and poisonous fumes which poured up through the hole, we managed to keep our hold on the rope and haul our hapless comrades out of the death trap in which the premature explosion had caught him.

"George!" I called as we lifted the rope from under his arms. But he never answered, and I thought it only a corpse that we laid gently on the floor. His hair and eyebrows were completely turned off, his face and hands were as black as coal and he was bleeding from an ugly wound in his head.

Then for the first time it dawned on me that perhaps I was not going to be hanged after all. I told the warden what had happened and he permitted me to go up to Tom's cell and tell him of my good fortune. Before day broke I was on a train for Detroit.

These are only a few of the desperate risks which my husband, my friends and I were continually facing during the years when I was getting in on the ground floor of the big game of the underworld.

If every business man and merchant faced prison, bullets or a lynching as a necessary risk of trade, would anybody regard business life as attractive?

The few incidents from my own experience recounted on this page are one more illuminating reason why I maintain that CRIME DOES NOT PAY.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Now that Secretary Bryan's mission to California has failed, and the California Legislature has passed the alien bill, the President is inclined to test in the Supreme Court by some action instituted or backed by the Government the right of California to pass anti-Jap legislation held to be in violation of existing treaties.

Two Conditions.
First, that in order to be consistent with the inflated demands made by her Ambassador at Washington must see her friends made ultimatum to our Government.

GOV. BROWN ON THE PHAGAN CASE

Let the Law Take Its Course, He Says 'Guilty Will Be Punished, Innocent Freed'

I desire to commend, with all the emphasis at my command, the Hearst newspapers' timely suggestion to the people of Atlanta and Georgia that they remember the sanctity and majesty of the law of the land, and the sure operation of justice through the courts, in contemplating a recent horrible and unspokeable murder in our midst. I desire to offer the Hearst newspapers a word of praise in that they—leading newspapers of the South—while being brave enough to print the news as it developed from day to day, still were brave enough to caution their constituency that it was, after all, merely the news of the day, and not evidence that might be considered competent in a court of law.—GOVERNOR JOSEPH M. BROWN.

Georgia's Executive Gives High Praise to Hearst Newspapers for Their Stand for Law and Order and Fair Trial for Accused.

Joseph M. Brown, Governor of Georgia, last night gave to Hearst's Sunday American the following ringing and significant interview, in respect of the Phagan murder mystery.

By GOVERNOR JOSEPH M. BROWN.

I DESIRE to commend, with all the emphasis at my command to the people of Atlanta and Georgia that they remember the sanctity and majesty of the law of the land, and the sure operation of justice through the courts, in contemplating a recent horrible and unspokeable crime committed in our midst.

I commend all newspapers, and persons, and influences, and things that hold fast to the law in times of anxious suspense, and when wild and irresponsible rumors run riot in a community.

We must hold ever in mind that the people have established the progress of law, and that those progress work through the courts, with judges and juries.

Trials of criminals must not be conducted in the newspapers, nor the street corners, in the cafes, nor even in the homes.

Trials must be conducted in the authorized temples of justice, and not elsewhere. They must not be based upon suspicion or hearsay, but upon competent evidence, sworn to by the mouths of credible witnesses, or established upon such combinations of circumstances as legally prove the guilt or innocence of the accused.

No elements of class favoritism or race prejudice should operate either for or against a defendant or suspect.

The law requires, and justly, the conviction of a criminal beyond a reasonable doubt, and neither disconcerted nor fragmentary evidence will do in cases involving the life and liberty of persons charged with infractions of the law.

A recent dreadful crime in Atlanta has shocked the entire State beyond expression.

It is known that a young girl, fresh in the flower of youth, has been foully murdered. That fact, and the place and some of the primary circumstances of the crime are settled, beyond dispute—but no more.

Certain suspects are in jail—within the State's custody, safe and secure. As yet no one has been indicted by a Grand Jury.

CASE OF THE SECOND WEEK SOLVED

course of the conference into which... examined by Dr. J. W. Hurt, County Physician, and M. B. Darby, General Foreman of the pencil factory... Mary Phagan also had been supposed.

These girls, and probably others, will be witnesses before the Grand Jury after it is convened... Young women who were intimate with the slain girl at the factory also will be called. Lee is expected to get up on the coroner's jury then has been made public, and Frank probably will be heard.

Old Police Reporter Analyzes Mystery Phagan Case Solution Far Off, He Says

Problem of Slaying in Pencil Factory One That Never May Be Cleared, Declares Crime Expert.

BY AN OLD POLICE REPORTER.

One week ago today a pretty fourteen-year-old girl, Mary Phagan, was found dead in the basement of the National Pencil Company, at 39 South Forsyth Street... In the week that has elapsed, little, if anything, has been discovered to show who committed the crime... I say—this without reserve, but without knowing what information the detectives and police force may have that has not yet been made public.

Perhaps as many of the great murder mysteries of history have been solved through the efforts of police reporters—men assigned by newspapers to “cover” criminal cases—as have been solved by detectives.

At any rate the police will always admit that police reporters have had a large part in unravelling the knotty problems. In a case of this sort the police reporter's analysis is particularly good, for he is simply seeking the truth... It is not held responsible for the production of the criminal, and therefore whatever line of thought he pursues is solely in the interests of clearing up a baffling mystery.

Perhaps as many of the great murder mysteries of history have been solved through the efforts of police reporters—men assigned by newspapers to “cover” criminal cases—as have been solved by detectives. At any rate the police will always admit that police reporters have had a large part in unravelling the knotty problems.

It is perfectly clear on Sunday and Monday last that the public was willing to put the extraordinary air in the category known as “negro crimes,” and the sentiment of the streets was that Lee was guilty or knew the guilty man.

POLICE WORK IN A CIRCLE.

The police and detectives have acted just as police and detectives always act in criminal cases. They have arrested and held the persons last seen or known to be on the premises; have held them pending an investigation and sifting of testimony by the coroner's jury.

EVIDENCE NOT AT HAND.

At present, on the evidence now before the public, there is little or nothing to lead to the belief that the mystery has been solved. It will never be solved. If my own guess is that it will not. Please remember that I am setting forth my own views and they may be utterly valueless, and I may be entirely mistaken.

DR. JOHN E. WHITE Writes on the Phagan Case Draws a Lesson From the Shocking Occurrence of a Week Ago, and Urges Confidence in the Courage of the Law.

By DR. JOHN E. WHITE, Pastor of the Second Baptist Church of Atlanta.

The proper study of mankind is man, but the conditions for the study of man are not equally favorable. Dressed up in his every-day clothes, thinking his ordinary thoughts, and his human impulses suppressed by the restraints of conventional life, a man throws very little light on the problems of humanity. And what individual mankind utters at its best is not its own, but that which the designer has put into it.

The interest in the extraordinary incident of public attention upon the horrible occurrence of the past week in Atlanta is a strange looking thing, a hundred thousand eyes looking at one poor, unfortunated being, whose tongue questioned upon one issue—there is a spectacle worth contending to see.

Who are the “unhappy civilized races” of the world? It is the man who meets on the street the man who is a criminal, it is willing to say, without any further thought, that the man who is a criminal is the man who is a criminal.

THE FEAR OF THE MURDER

The presence of such numbers of man in Southern communities is a sad thing. It is a thing which is a sad thing, and it is a thing which is a sad thing.

Slayer of Mary Phagan Still May Be at Large

The mystery of the death of that girl Mary Phagan enters upon its second week today with the police authorities admitting that they are still without a complete solution.

The detention of a building about 1 o'clock in the afternoon, returning about 11. From this time on, the building was searched for the body of the girl. The body was taken from the basement of the building.

The Jap and the Negro; Why the South Should Understand the Racial Problem of the West

By JAMES B. NEVIN

If California has the right to look for respectful sympathy and tolerant patience in any direction, now, when the question of race definitely the status of a foreign and abnoxious race upon her soil so acutely has presented itself, surely it is in the direction of the South.

The South, of all the sections, should understand and gravely appreciate the problem that California has to solve, and the tremendous responsibility attaching to it in the light of reason and common sense, and while yet it is relatively young.

In many ways the Japanese are as objectionable to the people of the Pacific Coast, it seems, as were the negroes in reconstruction days to the people of the Gulf Coast.

The white population of California no more will tolerate a negro on terms of racial, political or business equality than a Georgian will tolerate a negro. The customs and manners of the Orientals are very distasteful to the white population of California. The way they live, the things they do, the habits they have, and themselves in the peculiar and unattractive traits of their dress and habits—these things may be all right in their own country, but in a neighboring folk are a kind of insult. California, however, they are out of place.

Old Dr. Disraeli.

Whatever the ancient misunderstandings between the sections may have been, however, and despite the mistakes that may have been made, the disposition of the nation today is to turn the negro problem over to the South. The South is to be held responsible for settling a problem which has become a national one, and which knows no sectional boundaries.

California knows more about the Japanese residing in the West than Georgia knows about them. It is more possible to ram a Japanese into the South than to ram the threat of California to the South. It is possible to ram an obnoxious negro citizenship down the throat of Southern States, but it is not possible to ram a Japanese into the South.

It is the duty of the present State's House to investigate. It is the duty of the present State's House to investigate. It is the duty of the present State's House to investigate. It is the duty of the present State's House to investigate.

The negro—poor, ignorant, helpless—was brought here against his inclination and desire, an involuntary factor in a money-making scheme. He was a subject of no world power—he had no choice between remaining at home, where lived his kindred and he was not admitted to citizenship. The negro's case involved much of the same as that of the Japanese in California. It involves nothing of the same as "disobeying Japan."

My humble way of thinking that is as nothing compared with talk of disabusing California—one of the sovereign States of the Union, whose white star shines as brightly and as beautifully in Old Glory's galaxy as the white star of any other State, and a thousand times more radiantly than the sun, or the moon, or whatever it is, of Japan.

I know very little of my own knowledge about California and the Japanese, and that is why I turn this so heartily to let California come into contact and testify as to the truth of the matter. California does not know, California does not know, California does not know, California does not know.

There are two ways in which the church of today is more remote than in its previous history. The child is much more stunted against the higher standards, and looking down into the world is questioning. A DREAM OF MEN AND WOMEN

THE TIDE.
 O, hark to the stern protesting
 Of winds, when the tide runs
 And vainly the deep waves
 Call out to the waves speed by Thy, deaf to the clamor of the ocean.
 To the threat of the loud wind
 They rush when the hour is come
 To break reef and bar, to shores afar,
 And in a dream of the world's Women.

Oh, ever has man been leader,
 'Til lately his woman's guide,
 And takes her place at his side,
 For only from greater man
 Through life's long quest they should
 As was meant by the primal plan, Ourselves a dream of the world's Women.

And always I dream of men, leaders,
 Rulers, masters, craxers,
 Always I dream of women, compeers,
 Sympathizers, mates, military Friends, keepers of the home and Masters of the race.

In this Dream World I see no woman
 In the office, or anywhere outside the home, save where chatting mingled, to the bedside of the sufferer or to the school, teaching the children of the world the lessons of self-reliance and charity.

I see women (these Dream Men) reclaiming the immense domain which is theirs by nature, and desiring all their magnificent resources.
 And I see men (these Dream Women) peopling the world with a new humanity, and making it their duty to be strong in mind and body, and to be true to their own place.

In a world we are yet to see.

FUTILITY OF SELF - By Constance May

I SUPPOSE you think a great deal of and about yourself. Why? Do you realize what a big world this is, and how many, many millions of human beings there are on the earth?

Suppose you were lifted up on an eagle's wing higher than the tops of the highest mountains, and looking down, could see the multitude of our fellow creatures gathered together in the sands of the sea—then, supposing that you were to take a single grain of sand from among them, would you understand anything of the meaning of your grain of sand on an infinite shore?

But when you are alone, you are a grain of sand on an infinite shore. You are a grain of sand on an infinite shore. You are a grain of sand on an infinite shore.

And when you are alone, you are a grain of sand on an infinite shore. You are a grain of sand on an infinite shore. You are a grain of sand on an infinite shore.

SAW DEAD MAN'S SOUL FLY AWAY LIKE BUTTERFLY

Mrs. D. H. Baldwin Describes Remarkable Scene at Beside of Father-in-Law.

NO HALLUCINATION, SHE SAYS Shadowy Form About One Foot High Arose From Lips as He Breathed His Last.

NEW YORK, May 2.—Mrs. David H. Baldwin declares reverently that she saw the soul of her father-in-law, Nathaniel H. Baldwin, take its flight from its tenement of clay.

As the aged man exhaled his last sigh, Mrs. Baldwin says, there issued from his lips a shadowy, diaphanous form, shaped like the wings of a butterfly and translucent as their own angles. These ethereal wings, each about a foot in length, appeared nothing as they rose.

As the form mounted, Mrs. Baldwin made an involuntary motion as if to grasp the wings. At the same moment, she perceived that the form was dead and she turned to look at him.

Clashed with 84 years old when he died on April 10 last in his son's home, 21 Westchester street, Manhattan, N. Y., a long ailing contractor, he had retired from business because of his advanced age.

Mrs. Baldwin is a woman of affairs and her conversation, her intimate friends say, she is unobtrusive; she is not a religious fanatic, she is not a materialist, she believes the scientific method that she has meditated upon, she is not a Theosophist, she has never studied the occult, her interest is herself in psychology. Mrs. Baldwin was very alarmed when she discovered Mr. Baldwin's last words, but she did not think he was in danger of death.

TO 'DRINK CUP OF HAPPINESS'

'But No One Is Going To Be Shocked at What I Do,' Says New Millionaire.

DENIES STORIES OF PLANS Has Four Autos and Now Is Building 'Finest in World,' to Cost $30,000.

NEW YORK, May 2.—"I am going to drink every drop in this cup of happiness that life can offer me, and I am not going to be shocked by what I do or how I do it," said William Ziegler, Jr., the thirty-million-dollar boy, recently attained the net income of the immense fortune left him by his father, the banking power magnate.

"I wish to deny the statement that I intend building a $100,000 garage and a $100,000 mansion on my estate at Great Island, near Narragansett," he continued. "I never heard of such a plan until I read it in the paper."

"There has been a garage on the estate at Great Island for years and any four cars are now there. I have planned to build a larger stable for the horses, but that is all."

When pressed for details he referred his interviewer to his secretary, Mr. L'Harmon, who said:

"Mr. Ziegler now owns four cars, and he is having another built that will be the finest in the world and cost $10,000. His yacht, which is being built in Boston, will be finished in June, but there have been no plans made as yet for a cruise around the world."

Coroner Conditionally Accepts That Earl of Cottenham's Story That Wife's Death Was Accident.

RECALLS DIVORCE SCANDAL Married English Nobelman Following Suit in Which He Was Named as Co-respondent.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian, HENLEY, ENGLAND, May 2.—Deep mystery surrounds the violent death of the Countess of Cottenham, wife of (Thomas R. P. Kenning, Earl of Cottenham, whose name was found in a ticket near George, who had been shot to death. The case was supposed to be one of murder, although the authorities said that the Countess might have shot herself.

The murder man named in the Countess of Cottenham was Lady Rose Abernethy, daughter of the Marquis of Abernethy, who was married to the Earl of Cottenham in 1879. They had three children.

Absence Leads to Suspicion. The protracted absence of the Countess from her home led to a search and the body, pierced with a bullet, was found in a clump of underbrush in the thicket.

There was some delay in calling the authorities into the case but the police began their inquiry. A theory was advanced that the Countess had either been lured to the lonely spot or else in a fit of despondency had run away from her home.

There was no evidence of a struggle at the scene of death, but the ground was so soft that a crater around the body would require extreme exertion to dig up the turf.

Family Denies Guilt. Members of the family denied there had been any ill-feeling of late between the Countess and her husband. The Earl of Cottenham was the Countess's second husband. Her first husband was John Herbert Lamb, a rich landowner. Mr. Blundell accepted a divorce in 1899. Within a few months Mrs. Blundell became the Countess of Cottenham.

"Any Self-Respecting People Should Be Ashamed to Accept Charity From Them."

WASHINGTON, May 5.—In a speech before the Senate in which he attacked the Sherman Anti-Trust law as a failure, Senator Works of California, bitterly criticized the methods of Andrew Carnegie and John D. Rockefeller in acquiring great fortunes.

Senator Works advocated the passage of measures providing for the criminal punishment of specific acts in restraint of trade and clothing the Interstate Commerce Commission with power to investigate any corporation or corporation charged with or suspected of controlling, combining, conspiring or monopolizing in restraint of trade, and to dissolve the combination and place the offending corporations in the hands of a receiver, whose duty it shall be to close up the business of such corporations. It is not enough to classify the combination. The corporations themselves should be dissolved and their business wound up.

High Dorsey, Solicitor General, on left, and Judge W. D. Ellis. The former is hard at work on the Phagan case. The latter has charged the Grand Jury to probe the slaying thoroughly.

Coroner's Jury Likely to Hold Both Prisoners

In the following story will be found the developments in the Phagan case up to the time the inquest was resumed Monday afternoon.
It is said that without authority, that a request of very important evidence has been accumulated, but that it will not be presented at the coroner's inquest. Instead, it will go directly into the hands of the coroner's jury, who are the chief prosecuting officer of Fulton County. The inquest will be turned over to Solicitor Dorsey, who will study it carefully and make his own investigation as he may deem necessary, using the detective force of the county.
Judge Ellis of the Superior Court on Monday instructed the Grand Jury to investigate the matter in its own way, but the Grand Jury will take up the case on Monday morning of presenting evidence on which indictments may be found. The Grand Jury will also be asked to make a report on the case to the coroner's jury.
The intention of Solicitor Dorsey is to keep secret all evidence in his possession until the matter has been passed upon by the Grand Jury. Indictments found and the case brought to trial.
Everything depends upon what the coroner's jury will do. Frank's testimony may be necessary to an inquest, but his inquest, and Lawyer Rosser, his counsel, doubt that there is any case to be made against him with the case.
In addition to Ellis and Frank, the coroner's jury will include a member of the police and one of the firemen. They have been interrogated since the case was first reported. The coroner's jury will also include a member of the police and one of the firemen. They have been interrogated since the case was first reported.

MARY PHAGAN'S BODY EXHUMED; HURT LOOKS FOR SIGNS OF 'DOPE'

Coroner and County Physician Will Have Girl's Stomach Examined

The reason for the delay in beginning the coroner's inquest was that the body of Mary Phagan was exhumed by direction of the coroner who went to Marietta for the purpose. An examination of the contents of the stomach will be made for the purpose of determining whether the girl had taken "dope" before she was attacked on the day of her death.

It will probably be several days before the examination can be completed. The exhumation was done very quietly, and few people in Marietta knew anything about it.

With the coroner were Dr. J. W. Harris, of the State Board of Health, being under the direction of Solicitor Dorsey.

It is understood that the analysis of the stomach's contents will be made by Dr. Harris at the laboratory of the State Board of Health at the capital.

Frank's father-in-law summoned as witnesses at the inquest made a thorough examination of the girl's body.

Frank's father-in-law summoned to testify. Frank's father-in-law and mother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. E. Selig, at 324 Georgia Avenue were summoned as witnesses at the inquest.

Another re-examination of the body of Mary Phagan was held at the factory. The girl was held for a half hour with some work.

Factory girls called as witnesses were excused at 5:30 o'clock, indicating that the inquest would be adjourned with the conclusion of Frank's testimony or the testimony of the Seligs who follow him.

INQUEST OPENING DELAYED.

The coroner's inquest into the Phagan mystery did not really begin until 3 o'clock on Monday afternoon, instead of 2 o'clock, the hour set for the hearing.

Lo M. Frank and Nest Lee left the jail in charge of Chief of Police Deavers, Detectives Lanford and Starnes and entered the patrol wagon for the trip to police headquarters.

A curious crowd waited around the jail doorway to get a look at the two prisoners.

Both men appeared nervous. Frank walked with a quick step between Deavers and Lanford. He was freshly shaved, wore a dark suit and a derby hat. Starnes followed with Lee. Neither man was handcuffed.

LEMMING IN FACTORY DAY

Phagan Inquest, Started Monday Afternoon, At 200 Girls and Women As Witnesses, at Police

Leo M. Frank, Superintendent of the factory, was a witness late Monday afternoon in the death of Mary Phagan.

There was a sensation when it was learned that the life of Frank that another man was to be put to rest.

Frank was cool and collected. He answered the questions of the coroner without hesitation and his distinct. He seemed absolutely sure of himself.

Solicitor Dorsey and Luther Z. Hesser, attorney who occupied prominent place, but Solicitor Dorsey did not ask any questions during the early part of the inquest.

Frank's father-in-law questioned by the coroner. Frank's father-in-law questioned by the coroner.

This given strength to the report that another girl actually accompanied Mary to the factory.

Where is this girl now? The detectives have reported nothing of the discovery of the girl who is said to have walked at the factory door for Mary.

The coroner's inquest into the Phagan mystery did not really begin until 3 o'clock on Monday afternoon, instead of 2 o'clock, the hour set for the hearing.

High Dorsey, Solicitor General, on left, and Judge W. D. Ellis. The former is hard at work on the Phagan case. The latter has charged the Grand Jury to probe the slaying thoroughly.

Coroner's Jury Likely to Hold Both Prisoners

In the following story will be found the developments in the Phagan case up to the time the inquest was held. It is said, but without authority, that a great deal of important evidence has been accumulated, but that it will not be presented at the coroner's inquest. Instead, it will be brought out at the grand jury. Mr. Dorsey, who is the chief prosecuting officer of the county, is expected to appear at the coroner's inquest. It is also expected that the coroner's jury will hold both prisoners. Mr. Dorsey is expected to appear at the coroner's inquest. It is also expected that the coroner's jury will hold both prisoners. CHARGES GRAND JURY TO PROBE PHAGAN SLAYING

Judge W. D. Ellis, of the Superior Court, delivered the following address to the new Grand Jury, and touched upon the Phagan case. "Under our system of judicial procedure, we have in the Superior Court a body of men who are to be selected annually. Grand Jurors are drawn and impaneled at each term, but the duty of making investigations into matters of a general nature, such as the inspection of the office, the books, papers and records of the Clerk of the Superior Court, of the Ordinary and of the County Treasurer, and of the examination of public buildings and their condition, the examination of the lists of voters, the examination of the records of the courts, the inspection of the jail and such other matters concerning the public welfare, the peace and good order of the county at large, are required at the March and September terms.

MONTEGREGINS A Garden Tragedy

Embassadorial Court, Convening for Decisive Session; Hears the Little Kingdom Has Yielded.

NICHOLAS' CABINET RESIGNS Crisis Results From Ministers' Demands That Balkan State Fight Europe for Rights.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian. LONDON, May 4.—Unhappily with the assembling of the Ambassadorial Court here today, reports were received that Montenegro has yielded to the demands of the powers and either is evacuating territory or preparing to do so.

A telegram from Cetinje said that a ministerial crisis has been precipitated by the attitude of the Montenegrin Government toward Austria and that the resignation of King Nicholas' cabinet had been given and accepted.

Austria Agrees to Wait. A communication was received from the Austrian Government making renewed demands that the powers act upon for the repulsion of Montenegro from Scutari unless King Nicholas give a definite promise to give up the city. It was also announced that the question of giving Montenegro territorial recompense for the relinquishment of Scutari would be considered.

ALIEN AND MCT TO BE PUT UP TO REFORM

Move Is Begun to Put Japanese Question to a Vote in State of California.

CALL PRESENT BILL WEAK People Also Fear Prospects of Great Panama Fair Will Be Injured Seriously.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—The anti-alien bill, as soon as it becomes a law, will be attacked by referendum. Word came from New York that California is present in that city, consulting their partners business representatives, had taken an urgent appeal which will be telegraphed to the state, chairman of the Panama-Pacific Exposition board, asking that immediate steps be taken to petition for a referendum on the issue, so that it may be put squarely up to the people of the State.

At the same time Assemblyman Shover, of San Diego, in Sacramento, said that the referendum movement now in use, the so-called petition that the Senate bill, although in the committee, did not fit the requirements of the State as regards aliens, and especially the Japanese, and that it would be made necessary.

Governor Brown on Phagan Case Let Law Take Its Course, He Says 'Guilty Will Pay, Innocent Escape'

From The Sunday American. Joseph M. Brown, Governor of Georgia, on Saturday night gave to Hearst a Sunday American the following ringing and significant interview in respect of the Phagan murder mystery:

By JOSEPH M. BROWN, Governor of Georgia. I DESIRE to commend, with all the emphasis at my command (The Hearst newspapers' suggestion to the people of Atlanta and Georgia that they remember the sanctity and majesty of the law of the land, and the sure operation of justice through the courts, in contemplating a recent horrible and unspeakable crime committed in our midst.

I commend all newspapers, and persons, and influences, and things that hold fast to the law in times of anxious suspense, and when wild and irresponsible rumors run riot in a community. We must hold ever in mind that the people have established the process of law, and that those processes work through the courts, with judges and juries.

Trials of criminals must not be conducted in the newspapers, on the street corners, in the reformer even in the home. We must hold ever in mind that the people have established the process of law, and that those processes work through the courts, with judges and juries.

INQUEST IN PHAGAN CASE THE GREAT STEDY

Nearly 100 Witnesses To Be Called. Evidence to Save Its Most Important for Grand Jury if Possible—New Information Startling.

The inquest into the death of Mary Phagan will be resumed in police headquarters this afternoon. If several new and important witnesses give the testimony that is expected of them the investigation, an fact as the coroner's jury is concerned, will terminate by 6 o'clock.

Coroner Dejeuho will hold a conference with Chief of Detectives Lanford and Sellinger to-day before the inquest is to be resumed. It is expected that the testimony of several witnesses will be asked to testify.

Several significant statements made by New York, the night watchman at the National Penitentiary, it is regarded as probable that he will be recalled to the stand for a more rigid questioning than he received last Wednesday when he told the story of his movements on the night that Mary Phagan was slain.

It is expected also that Leo M. Frank, superintendent of the factory, will give the story to the coroner. The distinctly stated that all of these witnesses have been interviewed since the inquest on Thursday, except that of the night watchman.

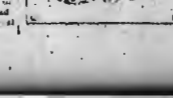

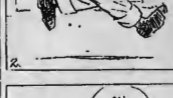

Nearly 100 witnesses that testify all of which employees of the penitentiary will be of the inquest this afternoon, ready to testify if called upon.

With the employees of the penitentiary, Mrs. Phagan's work before she went to the penitentiary, the witness will testify nearly 100.

BY HOUSTON, TEX., POLICE INVESTIGATION REVEALS WIDENED RANGE OF FORNERS

Continued From Page 1. Last night, shortly after midnight, an officer went to the place, where he secured a key to the room door, and then, after a search, he found the man who had been arrested at Houston.

Steady Denies Crime. Officers called to him for some time at the police station, but Houston steadily denied any knowledge of the killing of the young girl, and continued to show amazement, though, and frequently inquired of the detective why he should be treated in the way they were being treated.

Houston was taken from the rooming house to the police station and was placed in a cell across the hall from the other of the officers. He slept but little and did not understand to him. This morning he looked very nervous.

Houston complained of being hungry. He declared that he had not eaten anything for several days. He said that he had not eaten anything for several days. He said that he had not eaten anything for several days.

REFERENDUM PANAMA CANAL LAW IS LIKELY

Move Is Begun to Put Japanese Question to a Vote in State of California.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—The anti-alien bill, as soon as it becomes a law, will be attacked by referendum. Word came from New York that Californians at present in that city, consulting their Eastern business representatives, had joined in an urgent appeal which was telegraphed to C. C. Moore, chairman of the Panama-Pacific Exposition Board, asking that immediate steps be taken to petition for a referendum on the issue, so that it may be put squarely up to the people of the State.

The signers of this message, it is reported, assert that Mr. Moore's theory that the legislature will act through the State Legislature will be assented to by the proposition of California's next winter's session.

At the same time Assemblyman Wheeler, of Los Norte, in Sacramento, said that the referendum movement now is on. He asserted yesterday that the Senate bill as referred in the Assembly, did not meet the requirements of the state as regards alienage, and especially the Japanese, and that a recall would be made necessary.

California to Hear From Washington Again.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Pending the return of Secretary of State Bryan to the Capital, no action will be taken by President Wilson or the State Department with reference to the California-Japanese situation. LEARNER QUINN IN FACTORY ON DAY OF DEATH

Phagan Inquest, Starting Late Monday Afternoon, Attracts Through 200 Girls and Women Summoned As Witnesses, at Police Station.

Leo M. Frank, Superintendent of the National Pencil Factory, was a witness late Monday afternoon in the coroner's inquest into the death of Mary Phagan.

There was a sensation when it was learned for the first time from the lips of Frank that another man was in the factory aside from those already known after Mary Phagan drew her pay, shortly after noon on the Saturday she met her death.

Frank was cool and collected. He answered the questions asked at him by the Coroner without hesitation and his utterance was distinct. He seemed absolutely sure of himself.

The detectives have reported nothing of the discovery of the girl who is said to have waited at the factory door for Mary to come out and finally left when some one from the factory told her that Mary would be detained for a half hour with some work.

Both men appeared nervous. Frank walked with a quick step between Beavers and Lanford. He was freshly shaved, wore a dark suit and a derby hat. Starnes followed with Lee. Neither man was handcuffed.

It was necessary for the officers to cut a passageway through the jam of humanity. Into this narrow lane Frank, with Chief Lanford's hand on his arm, entered, looking neither to the right nor the left. He walked with a hurried step and appeared to be relieved when the room, where the inquest is being held, was reached.

Lee seemed less concerned and walked carelessly along from the rear door, up the stairs and through the packed corridors. BAR MERELY CURIOUS FROM ROOM. The inquest room was closed to all but those who could prove that they had actual business inside.

Before the first witness, Leo Frank was called, the CHARGES GRAND JURY TO PROBE PHOENIX KILLING

Hugh Dorsey, Solicitor General, on left, and Judge W. D. Ellis. The former is hard at work on the Phagan case. The latter has charged the Grand Jury to probe the slaying thoroughly.

Judge W. D. Ellis, of the Superior Court, delivered the following address to the new Grand Jury, and touched upon the Phagan case:

The grand jury system of judicial procedure, we have in the Superior Court of this county six terms each year. Grand Jurors are drawn and impaneled at each term, but the duties of making investigations into matters of a general nature, such as the inspection of the office, the books, papers and records of the clerk of the Superior Court, of the Ordinary and of the County Treasurer, the day of examination of public buildings and their condition, the examinations of the lists of voters, and the examination of convict cases, the inspection of the mail and such other matters concerning public welfare, the peace and good order of the county at large, are required of the March and September terms.

While such matters are looked after by the grand jury, it is the duty of the grand jury to inquire into the facts and circumstances of the case named, yet you are not prohibited from inquiring into such matters if you deem it necessary. It is brought to your attention by the court of the Solicitor General.

MOONSHINEERS LEAD RAZERS TO MOUNTAINS

PIKEVILLE, Ky., May 6.—The story of how a 15-year-old girl in an effort to end the moonshining career of her two brothers, causing two deaths and the serious wounding of another man, was told in official dispatches to the Government authorities to-day.

The girl, Ardella Hill, went to Deputy United States Marshal Mark Porter, in Pikeville, Ky., and told him where her brothers were running a moonshine whisky still at the Noich, in the mountains, and offered to lead a party of officers to the spot.

Porter went in with a party of officers, together with the United States Marshal, and they proceeded to the Noich. They found a party of officers to the spot. Coroner's Jury Likely to Hold Both Prisoners

In the following story will be found the developments in the Phagan case up to the time the inquest was resumed Monday afternoon:

It is said, but without authority, that a great deal of very important evidence has been accumulated, but that it will not be presented at the Coroner's inquest, at least. It will go directly into the hands of the prosecuting officer of Fulton County, in charge of the case now pending, although it has never been the duty of a prosecuting officer to interfere with the functions of the Coroner.

DOWN STAIRS HELD BY HOUSTON POLICE IN THE PHAGAN CASE

Atlanta Police Do Not Believe He is Implicated in Tragedy--Letters From Women and 50 Photographs of Girls Found in Prisoners Trunk.

The Atlanta police and State officials say they place little importance in the arrest of Paul P. Bowen, the former Atlanta youth who is being held by the Houston authorities.

Bowen's trunk was found a mass of slippings telling of the Phagan killing, and at least 50 photographs of girls and young women. Several times while he was being questioned, Bowen is said to have contradicted himself.

Houston stoutly maintains his innocence. Relatives and friends of his in Atlanta say his arrest is preposterous.

Atlanta detectives have investigated thoroughly Bowen's history in Atlanta and declared Tuesday afternoon that they have virtually established an alibi for him. Having satisfied themselves of the probability of Bowen's innocence, they are continuing on their original line of investigation and have abandoned the theory that Bowen could have been involved.

The local authorities have asked, however, that Bowen be held until a more complete investigation can be made. They think he will be able to prove his innocence and say that they have letters in their possession which practically establish that Bowen could not have been in Atlanta on the date of the crime.

One letter, addressed to Chief Dowry, of the Southern Railway after, was postmarked April 23 at Lufkin, Texas, and did not reach Atlanta until April 27, the day after the killing in the National Phagan Factory basement.

Another letter, which is in the possession of Solicitor Dowry, was written by Bowen to an Atlanta friend and was mailed at Tyler, Texas, April 20 as Bowen was on his way to Texarkana, Ark. These letters led the local authorities to believe that Bowen can not, reasonably be supposed to have come the hundreds of miles just in time to commit the crime and then immediately jump a train to return Westward.

Algebra in Grant and Pleasant Parks at least four times a week through the summer is the plan actively urged by park officials and a number of Councilmen.

Councilman Ashley said that with an additional fund from the Georgia Railway and Power Company it would be possible to have music in both parks every evening and Sunday afternoon.

The Park Board is heartily in favor of Councilman Ashley's plan, said J. O. Cochran, president. Dan Gray, General Manager of Parks, is a strong advocate of park music.

Phagan Case and the Solicitor General's Power Under Law--Dorsey Hasn't Encroached on Coroner.

By a GEORGIA LAWYER. It is argued to-day, as on some past days, that the power of the Solicitor General Dorsey is not so far removed from the hands of the Coroner.

It would be equally sensible to say that the commanding general in a battle had "laid in" on a captain's business, when, as the battle progressed, the general gave orders to one unit and another to the captain as to his conduct.

POLICE HAVE NEW LEAD STARTING EVIDENCE NOT YET MADE PUBLIC

Body of Mary Phagan Exhumed, Bloodstains on Clothing Analyzed and Every Effort Made to Uncover Additional Clues in the Mystery.

Solicitor General Dorsey, Chief of Detectives Lanford, Chief of Police Heavers, and all men working under them in the Phagan case seem thoroughly satisfied with the progress they are making in the great mystery. They are actively engaged in many unknown directions, as they say, "piling up evidence to strengthen the case."

What evidence the officials have other than that which has already been made public they refuse to divulge. Solicitor Dorsey declines to make public his case in the newspapers. He is investigating every phase of the matter through trusted men working under his own direction.

It is perfectly proper for the chief prosecuting officer to withhold any and all evidence until such time as he may present his case to the Grand Jury.

That there is new and startling evidence seems true, but just what it indicates, the officials refuse to say, and the newspaper reporters, therefore, are merely guessing at what may be, or may not be, the actual facts.

Solicitor Dorsey was reluctant about the future of the most recent discovery, but his guarded statements indicated that he considered the discovery which has been made as the basis of a new line of investigation, working under his direction as having a most important bearing on the solution of the crime.

Mr. Dorsey issued this statement in an interview he granted to the Quin that I asked him if he was not laid up counsel for Frank to protect Frank.

This statement, so far as it is concerned, is absolutely false. Although my name with him, I did not mention the name of counsel nor did I intimate that counsel had been guilty of any such conduct.

It is known that it is more thorough and a more complete examination of every detail of every article having any connection with the case, and that the body of Mary Phagan is being exhumed in the first step of the investigation.

Chief of Detectives Lanford, Chief of Police Heavers, and all men working under them in the Phagan case seem thoroughly satisfied with the progress they are making in the great mystery.

They are actively engaged in many unknown directions, as they say, "piling up evidence to strengthen the case."

MAN TAKEN BY THE POLICE OF HOUSTON STILL IS BEING HELD

Youth Arrested in Connection With Phagan Mystery Protests Innocence, Woman Says He Moaned, "Why Did I Do It?"—Local News Skeptical.

Chief of Detectives George Peyton, of Houston, Texas, sent the following telegram to Chief of Police Heavers, of Atlanta, Tuesday:

"Am still holding Bowen as per your wire this morning. He did slip at 185 Ivy Street. He denies everything. The evidence here is very strong against him. Mr. A. Blanchard, formerly of Atlanta, first to suspect, gave first information about him. Answer soon."

HOUSTON, TEXAS, May 6.—Paul P. Bowen, arrested because of the suspicion of the local authorities that he was connected with the murder of Mary Phagan in Atlanta, denied Tuesday all knowledge of the girl and the crime except as it read of it in the newspapers.

A score of slippings telling the story of the little girl's death were found in the young man's room. His only explanation was that Atlanta was his home town, and he was particularly interested in the crime because of that.

The police here regard as more significant than the slippings the stories of Bowen's actions in his room at the St. Jean Hotel, and later at a gambling house. Slippings in adjoining rooms are said to have been disturbed by his moans and wailings and by his constant pacing of the floor.

"Why did I do it? Why did I do it?" he is declared to have muttered to himself. Inconsistently, a complaint was first made to the local authorities and later the police were notified.

Bowen was arrested last night by Chief of Police Peyton, chief of Detectives Peyton and Detective Sullivan at 185 IVosa Avenue.

A sign of concern of an officer later it led to the attention of the police. Monday night in room 214 at the St. Jean Hotel, the young man paced the floor and moaned. Persons in adjoining rooms were unable to sleep and reported to the management that something was wrong in the room.

An investigation disclosed slippings in adjoining rooms and newspaper accounts of the murder and crime all over the city.

"Why did I do it? Why did I do it?" he is declared to have muttered to himself. Inconsistently, a complaint was first made to the local authorities and later the police were notified.

Bowen was arrested last night by Chief of Police Peyton, chief of Detectives Peyton and Detective Sullivan at 185 IVosa Avenue.

SURPRISING NEW WARD OF THE HUMAN ORG

Belief Now That No Outrage Was Committed Before Killing—Authorities Refuse to Discuss New Information—Inquest to Go on Thursday

The latest development in the search for the slayer of 14-year-old Mary Phagan came Wednesday afternoon in the surprising information that the authorities ordered a second examination of the body to confirm the statement of an expert physician that the crime, which was taken for granted by all to have preceded the actual killing of the girl, was not accomplished.

ROBBER AND GUN FIGHT IN DARK

Officer is Seriously Injured in Fall as He Drives Negro From Grocery Store.

Dr. J. W. Hurt, county physician, as understood to all here said that he was not satisfied with the point.

The circumstances of the murder as far as to leave the killing without any understandable motive if this unproven crime was not accomplished. For this reason the reports of the outrage were accepted by everyone as true, and the authorities themselves have been working on this theory.

Solicitor General Dossay ordered that the body be examined a second time so that the opinion of the expert physician might be either positively established or disproved beyond doubt.

The order for the second examination was given by Solicitor Dossay, but it had not been made up to 1 o'clock on Wednesday.

Solicitor Dossay admitted that however order had been given, it would not be carried out. He would make no further statement.

The body was examined by Dr. J. W. Hurt, county physician, and the body was found to be in a state of decomposition.

It is understood the intention of the authorities is to examine the body again.

Very properly Solicitor Dossay is not making public every move that the prosecution is engaged in, nor is he giving to the public such evidence as may be secured to obtain.

It would seem probably that the examination will be made, if left on Wednesday, at least some 48 hours; for the ballist is growing that there still may be some things that may be discovered.

Parents Object to Examination. Solicitor Dossay instructed Captain Dossay to order the body examined on Thursday afternoon that the father of the dead girl, J. W. Coleman, was very much opposed to the body being examined.

The body had been taken from the grave in Marietta.

Through one of the officials wordly a statement to that effect, it is probable that the opposition which existed over the body's examination was the result of the fact that the body had been taken from the grave in Marietta.

It was reported that the father present on the body was so angry that he had threatened to shoot the doctor and the body was so angry that he had threatened to shoot the doctor.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The question as to whether it is constitutionally proper for a railroad to furnish copies of its tariffs to shippers and deny them to another carrier is before the Supreme Court today.

DORSEY REVEALS BODY EXPOSED IN RAGAN CASE

As prepared by medical experts involved in the trial, Dorsey is believed to have been in the vicinity of the body when it was discovered. Dorsey declared Wednesday afternoon that it was not for the purpose of obtaining a record of the disinterment, one of the principal purposes of the action, he said, was to get a record of the first burial in order to compare it with the body found on the fishing machine in the floating department at the factory. It was at this point that the detectives discovered blood spots on the coat and other evidence of a struggle.

"I cannot talk in regard to the body," he said. "The body was returned, it is true, at my request, but to reveal further plot would be hurtful."

Thinks He Didn't Leave Factory. The collector is in entire accord with the theory that Mary Thagun never left the factory after her arrest on May Saturday noon. He declared that if any search was being made for the man seen with a girl, Saturday, it was at the station of the Terminal station. It was not being conducted under the direction.

The results of the chemical analysis in the laboratory of Dr. Harris in the state capital have not yet been made public. Harris would not admit Wednesday that traces of drugs had been found, bearing out the belief that the girl was drugged and released before she was slain in the factory.

As to the remaining evidence in the case still presented when the coroner's inquest resumes Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

It is the purpose of Coroner Thurston to limit testimony to the points that are material to the case. The hearing may be continued by Thursday night.

Two Hundred Names. The coroner and the collector have the names of about 200 persons of whom they may call for testimony. These include girls and women employed at the power factory. More than a few of the girls will be placed on the witness stand, but will be held in custody until they are called on Monday afternoon when the roll-call room was filled with witnesses.

So far as the line of testimony can be anticipated from the information given out by the authorities, the most important will come from the physician and chemist who have been at work on the mystery under the direction of Coroner Thurston and Collector Harris.

Dr. J. P. Harris, director of the state board of health, will submit a report on his chemical analysis of the contents of Mary Thagun's stomach. Dr. Smith is expected to submit a report on his chemical analysis of the body and will report on this to the jury.

Dr. J. W. Hunt, county physician, made the first examination of the body and will report on his examination of the body and will report on this to the jury.

EMPLOYEE OF LICH STAND NEAR PENCIL FACTORY IS TRAILED TO ALABAMA

Detectives Figure Strangling Was a Typical Mediterranean Crime--Solicitor Dorsey Grills Watchman Lee in Effort to Get New Points.

LEE IS QUIZZED BY DORSEY FOR NEW EVIDENCE

Important Light in Crown on Case Also By Girl Companion of Mary Plagan.

A new and sensational interpretation was given the Pinkerton mystery Wednesday afternoon when it was revealed that Pinkerton detectives are trailing a Greek boy because he was employed in a restaurant near the National Penitentiary before the crime was committed.

The reason why the city detective give up the adoption of the boy theory is:

The straying of Mary Plagan was not a negro crime, as the negro who has been connected with the case, Harry Lee, would have fled from the score.

The notes which were left with the evidence contained a warning message from the actual criminal who was the author of the crime.

Strangulation, the method by which Mary Plagan was killed, is a very rare crime. It is a crime which is typical of the Mediterranean countries.

Watchman Lee, who was employed in the National Penitentiary before the crime, was the author of the crime.

position of the body before he made his escape out the rear door. Trained to Amsterdam. The fishermen have pulled the creek into Alabama and is believed to be in Alabama, from where news of his arrest is expected shortly.

The detective says that the new theory explains away all of the discrepancies which hitherto have puzzled those working on the case.

The circumstances of the murder were such as to leave the killing without any understandable motive if the premeditated crime was not accomplished. For this reason the reports which have been accepted by everyone as true, and the authorities themselves have been working on this account.

Suffice to say that the second examination of the body by the expert physician to the detectives will have been in fixing a motive for the murder.

Coroner Duncanson admitted that "Dorsey's" order had been given, but said it had not been carried out. The report published in an early edition of the Georgian that the body had been examined was made on statements by officials, and that it was for the purpose of giving a microscopic examination of every wound of the body for finger prints and other marks.

Sheriff Dangerously, If Not Fatally, Wounded in Attempting to Arrest Slayer.

VIENNA, GA., May 7.—Two men are dead and another is dangerously, if not fatally, wounded as the result of trouble between two neighbors of Dutch County, near here, Tuesday afternoon.

The dead are P. F. Mangler and Oscar Hov, prominent farmers. The wounded man is Edward U. Houston.

It is reported that the finger prints on the body were in the photograph, and compared with the finger prints of persons under suspicion.

It is said that a complete chart will be prepared by medical experts to show the location of the bullet, showing every wound and mark.

Notwithstanding these speculations as to the perpetrator of the crime, Coroner Duncanson declared Wednesday forenoon that it was not for the purpose of obtaining a record of the crime.

It was at this point that the detective discovered blood spots on the floor and other evidence of a struggle.

It is said that the body was examined a second time so that the opinion of the expert physician to the detectives will have been in fixing a motive for the murder.

Coroner Duncanson admitted that "Dorsey's" order had been given, but said it had not been carried out. The report published in an early edition of the Georgian that the body had been examined was made on statements by officials, and that it was for the purpose of giving a microscopic examination of every wound of the body for finger prints and other marks.

POUCHEMARTIN AND BLACK BURGLAR IN GUN BATTLE

Officer Is Seriously Injured in Fall as He Drives Negro From Grocery Store.

In a running pistol battle with a negro burglar who was discovered in the store of the Duke Grocery Company, at Richardson Street, early Wednesday morning, Call Officer Watson suffered injuries which probably will keep him from the duties for several days.

The negro, when he saw Watson fall, cut through the fence and fled into an alley leading into Whitehall Terrace.

Since the defeat in the House of Commons last night of the female suffrage bill by a vote of 266 against 211, the militants have been arrested to a pitch of frenzy heretofore not seen in their campaign for the vote.

Leaders of the militants are threatening to demolish by the use of dynamite the cathedrals in England.

Another threat is made to kill every man, woman and child in the streets of Westminster Abbey, for the women are threatening to burn it to the ground.

Never before in history has Scotland Yard been so active. Special squads, to deal with suffragettes are being formed to patrol the city.

From Trinidad to St. Paul's, the bombs have been exploded in 117 places. It was found that in addition to the few bombs that had an electrical apparatus to cause an explosion, the others were of the ordinary kind.

White Men Warned Against the Tropics

Appreciation in Health Offsets the Financial Gain, Says Man From Porto Rico. NEW YORK, May 7.—"If you travel far you will find strange shores," said P. C. Vivas, from Porto Rico, at the Knickerbocker when there was a newspaper clipping saying that J. K. Hutchens, a Scotch capitalist, made $2,000,000 in three years in Bolivia.

"All these weird stories about getting rich quick in South and Central America should be taken with grains of salt. If you have any kind of a decent job at home hold on to it and stay here. The tropics were not made for white men. There is danger there, but how much are you going to put on the ledger every year for depreciation of your physical condition?"

Third Time Unfortunate Victim's Remains Have Been Exhumed--Dorsey Says Officials Are Not Looking for Finger Prints, but Other Cues.

The body of Mary Phagan was exhumed early Wednesday for the second time in two days. The unofficial explanation is that the examination is made for the purpose of making a microscopic and minute examination of every wound on the body for finger prints and other clues as well.

Solicitor Dorsey let it be known that the police are not working on the idea that the finger prints would be helpful in solving the mystery, if indeed there are any finger prints to be found, as the body has been embalmed and has been handled by many persons since it was first discovered in the basement of the pencil factory.

Nevertheless, it may be safely said that a microscopic examination will be made of every mark on the body. It was reported before the departure was made for Georgia that a forensic expert had been engaged and that if any finger prints were found, photographs would be taken and the marks carefully preserved for the purpose of comparison.

Will Compare Finger Marks. With these records in their possession, the authorities will be able to compare them with the finger prints of all the men who work in that factory, and see if any of them are a suspect that are taken later.

Notwithstanding these speculations as to the purpose of the exhumation, Solicitor Dorsey declared Wednesday forenoon that it was not for the purpose of obtaining a record of the fingerprints. One of the principal reasons for the action, he said, was to get a record of the state of the body to compare it with the body found on the lathing machine in the tipping room at the factory. It was at this point that the detectives discovered blood spots on the floor near the entrance of a street.

Hollester Dorsey, on whose order the body was exhumed on both occasions, refused to say further the reasons for the action. "I cannot talk in regard to the matter," he said. "The body was exhumed. It is true, as I request, but to reveal further plans would be harmful. Do not know it."

THINKS SHE DIDN'T LEAVE FACTORY. The Solicitor in an effort to recall what Mary had said when she never left the factory after she was released for Saturday noon. He declared that if any body was taken into the factory after she was released for the man with a girl Saturday, April 28, by a detective of the Criminal Station, it was not conducted under his direction.

Mr. Harris will make a more thorough check on the factory. He has been told that if any body was taken into the factory after she was released for the man with a girl Saturday, April 28, by a detective of the Criminal Station, it was not conducted under his direction.

Her Fifth Suit for Divorce Is Failure. Mrs. Lagravet Again Loses Her Case—Both She and Husband 73 Years Old.

NEW YORK, May 7.—For the fifth time, twice in Massachusetts and twice in New York, Mrs. Louis M. Lagravet has met defeat in her attempt to divorce her husband, Louis M. Lagravet, a prominent attorney whom she has made about every accusation recognized by the laws of both States as ground for divorce.

Extreme cruelty, desertion, inebriety and non-support have been pleaded in her complaints, but defeat has been the result from a technical attempt. Both parties to the action are 73 years of age.

SPANISH GUARD WALLS GUARD SPANISH RULER IN PARIS. Through Cheers King Alfonso From Behind Forest of Guns. Anarchistic Plots Feared.

Special Case to the Atlanta Georgian. PARIS, May 7.—Heavily guarded by Government agents, police and soldiers, King Alfonso, of Spain, accompanied by Conde Alvaro De Romanones, the Spanish Premier, and a large suite, arrived here to-day to pay a state visit of two days to the city of Paris.

Rumors of anarchistic plots against the life of the Spanish monarch led to unusual precautions. Before the arrival of the King several arrests had been made here.

Plots were feared at the railway station by an official delegation representing the French Government and was escorted to his hotel, where special precautions had been set aside. The route was lined with troops, three deep.

An enthusiastic reception was accorded King Alfonso, in spite of the fact that speculators could not get near the royal party, the Spanish King was steadily cheered from the railway station. At the hotel, the warmth of the greeting was very pleasing to Alfonso.

Congress appropriated $25,000 for the entertainment of the Spanish ruler. An enthusiastic reception was accorded King Alfonso, in spite of the fact that speculators could not get near the royal party, the Spanish King was steadily cheered from the railway station.

"Assassination Bureau" Disclosed, Ten Jailed. LYONS, FRANCE, May 7.—Ten anarchists were arrested here to-day in connection with a plot to assassinate King Alfonso while in France.

The anarchists discovered a letter showing that the plot to kill the King was hatched in Brussels weeks ago and that a regular assassination bureau had been established, with branches in this city, Bordeaux, Montpellier and other cities.

Beauty Denied Crime.
Officers talked to him for more than an hour at the police station. Bowen steadily denied any knowledge of the killing of the young girl. He continued to show nervousness, though and frequently insisted of the detective why he should be treated the way they were doing him.

It is believed that no effort was made to bring Bowen out of the jail until he had been taken to the place where he had worked. Bowen said he had been working in the place containing accounts of the murder. He said he had been working in the place where he had worked. FRANK'S TESTIMONY FALLS Factory Superintendent's Statements on the Witness Stand Considered Distinctly Favorable to Him.

Joe M. Frank's testimony before the Coroner's inquest threw no new light upon the Phagan case. Indeed, if it did anything it strengthened the belief in the minds of many persons that the mystery is far from solved. Frank's testimony was distinctly favorable to him. He was on the witness stand for several hours. He answered every question in a straightforward manner. He was not more nervous than any other man in the room. He never halted for a word to make reply. The impression made upon those present was good.

GRAND JURY TO SIFT THE EVIDENCE IN THE PHAGAN CASE WITHIN THE NEXT FEW DAYS

AT THIS afternoon the police and detectives engaged on the Phagan case said they were satisfied with the progress being made before the Coroner's Jury. Apparently all other clews have been abandoned, and the present line of police activity would seem to center around Lee and Frank. Whatever evidence the police have they refuse to disclose. The entire mystery will be taken up by the Grand Jury within the next few days.

Frank of Nervous Nature; Says Superintendent

The inquest was resumed at 2:30. Only a small crowd was present. Miss Little Hill, stenographer for the Pencil Company, was called. She said she had last been contacted with the company since December 4. From a pile of papers taken from the factory on the 11th day of the trial, she called up the name of a man who she said was the one who was killed. She said she did not know how long Frank was in the factory. She said she had written a letter to him and she did not know how long it took her to write the letter. She said she had looked at the book and she had found the name of the man who was killed. She said she had been in the factory on the 11th day of the trial and she had seen Frank there.

Testimony at Early Session of Phagan

Rogers Tells What Police Found at the

Frank's Stenographer and Girl
Employee of Pencil Company
Also on Stand.

Following is the testimony of the early witnesses at the Phagan inquest today:

W. W. Rogers was the first witness. He lives at 104 McDonough Road, and operates an automobile for himself. He said he took a party of officers to the National Pencil plant at five minutes past 3 o'clock Monday morning, April 17.

No corroborated statements of officers regarding the finding of Mary Phagan's body and the manner in which it was found.

Q. Who telephoned Frank of the murder?—A. Starnes called him and asked him to come to the factory.

Q. How long were you in front of the plant before you were let in?—A. Two or three minutes.

Q. Did you hear him coming?—A. We saw him coming down the steps with a suitcase.

Q. What did he say?—A. She's in the basement, while following.

Q. Was he excited?—A. No, he answered questions coolly.

Q. What did he say when you went downstairs?—A. He thought at first it was something the boys had placed there to frighten him.

Q. How did he say he found the body?—A. On her face.

Q. How did you find it?—A. On her face.

Q. Do you remember any other questions asked him?—A. Yes, but he talked in a stammering way.

Q. Who went back upstairs with Lee and Anderson after Lee had been unseated under arrest?—A. No one else.

Q. Where did they go?—A. Into office, where Anderson attempted to get Frank over the shoulder.

Q. Was Lee excited then?—A. Yes.

Q. What else did you find?—A. No, but I did not have a flashlight.

Q. Did you see anything else there later?—A. Yes, a parson.

Q. Did you make a close inspection when Frank went into the basement?—A. No, we just took a casual look around.

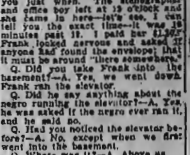

Q. When did you see parson, and about what time?—A. I did not see him until nearly 7 o'clock. The officers had been upstairs.

Q. Did you see parson again?—A. Yes, and Chief Lanford and Frank with several officers went to the other floors and left the negro with me.

Q. Did Frank come back into the office?—A. Yes, he came in twice while I was there with the negro. He spoke to Lee once, shook his head and said "Too bad."

Q. Did you notice the clock?—A. Yes, Frank and Darley were out there by the clock and Frank said "I guess I had better change the clock." He opened it, took out the slip and changed it by the clock while he stood there by the clock and Frank said "I guess I had better change the clock."

Q. What was done with the slip?—A. I took it into his office.

"Boots" Rogers, former county policeman, who drove the police to the Pencil Factory when the first news of the Phagan slaying reached headquarters.

Q. What date did he put on the slip?—A. I think it was April 16, I'm not sure.

Q. Rogers said he looked at the slip and the first space was at 4:10 and last at 1:30. There were no initials.

Q. Where was the slip taken?—A. Frank took it into the office and put it on the clock Lanford took it away.

Q. Did Darley and Frank have any conversation while on the way to the station house after that?—A. Not that I remember. I was driving the car and Frank was seated in Darley's back.

Q. Were Frank still nervous?—A. Yes, he still wanted a cup of coffee. He had been anxious all morning to get a cup of coffee. Several times he had asked Chief Lanford if he could spare him to go and get a cup of coffee.

Q. Frank wrote nervously.

Q. Did Frank look nervous?—A. No, he was writing what they told him.

Q. Did they look nervous?—A. Yes, his hand was shaking and I saw the officers were having some trouble with the slip.

Quinn, Foreman Over Slain Girl, Tells of Seeing Frank

In A. Quinn, foreman of the department of the pencil factory in which Mary Phagan worked, testified as follows:

Q. What is your business?—A. Inspector.

Q. Where did you know Mary Phagan?—A. At the department.

Q. What department was she in?—A. B. Rank.

Q. When did you see Mary Phagan last?—A. The Monday before the murder.

Q. Do you know her associates?—A. I know some who talked with her.

Q. Any boys in that department?—A. Harry Smith and John Hamey.

Q. Were they thrown together?—A. All were working in the same room.

Q. When did you return?—A. Monday morning.

Q. What time did you arise Saturday morning?—A. 7 a. m.

Q. What time was it when you went to the factory?—A. About 11:15.

Q. How long were you at the meal?—A. About ten minutes.

Q. What part of the factory did you go to?—A. To the office.

Q. Who was there?—A. Mr. Frank, Q. Anyone else?—A. No.
