LEADERS IN NORTHERN MISSIONS UPHELD

Board Criticised as Exceeding its Authority--Is Comended by the Assembly.

DR. THOMPSON'S LONG SERVICE IS APPLAUSED

Southern Church Will Meet Next Year in Kansas City, Mo., "Rout Devil There."

Information was given the Home Mission Board by the adoption of the report of the standing committee on home missions by the Northern Presbyterian Assembly Wednesday forenoon.

The report paid high commendation to the policies and the work of the board. It is practically unanimous adoption was somewhat of a surprise, in view of the criticism which had been directed at the board before the session of the assembly began.

Opposed in the report was resolution calling upon President Wilson to forbid the wearing of a badge or uniform distinctive of any religious denomination in the schools in the public school system. The resolution was added upon motion of Dr. C. A. Janvier of Philadelphia.

Constituted of ten members, open to all on the ground that it would mean the driving from many of the schools of the Roman Catholic Sisters who are doing a good work. The resolution was identical with that adopted by the United Presbyterian Tuesday. To Reconsider a Vote.

Practically all of the members agreed to give up the right of the committee on home missions and it was announced just before recess was taken that a motion for reconsideration of the vote would be voted on. The motion was received Tuesday afternoon.

A prominent official said to-day:

"The Japanese people feel that their nation has been slighted. We think our present question will be solved peacefully, but what is needed is a sacrifice of future friendship."

Mrs. Wilson Wars on Washington Slums

WASHINGTON, May 21.—They oughtly resign in the conditions of poverty, filth and disease that she found in the Washington alleys, slums and tenements of the National Capital, during her recent long trip, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, today called a meeting of the National Civic Federation at the Playhouse.

"I am an Ultimatum." The work can be done, she declared, but no one can do it except "the other" must be shown done, plucked or allowed to continue under the present policy. You can tell me that I am wrong. Tell me to my face. Nor am I dependent on the church for employment."

"Those who oppose this ultimatum are not in the majority," declared Mrs. Wilson. "They either must be shown done, plucked or allowed to continue under the present policy. You can tell me that I am wrong. Tell me to my face. Nor am I dependent on the church for employment."

"They have no right to interfere with us in the country. I have no stone of them has killed a boy in five years. The country has been a great help to us in the other direction, the church. The department is working for rural parishes and rural evangelism without rural parishes religion works in the country more languidly. It is an opportunity to show that we are still strong in the great work."

All of the members of the Home Mission Board of the Northern Presbyterians were anent on the topic, addressed by Rev. Dr. C. A. Janvier, president of the board. Dr. Charles E. Thompson of Webster, Indiana, a member of the Assembly, Charged of misrepresentation in offering the resignation of his son, the Rev. Dr. M. B. Smith, who had been associated with the board, with the exception of Rev. Dr. G. Nichols, responded. His place was temporarily filled.

Five Points Crowds See Girl Near Death In Fall Under Car

Hundreds of persons, many of them women and children, witnessed the narrow escape of Charlotte Taylor, 12 years old, of 805 Piedmont Avenue, from death when she fell from a moving car on a moving street east at Five Points.

Only the quick action of the motorman in charge of the car saved the girl from being killed. She gripped several cuts on her arms and legs and was severely bruised by the whirling.

The girl was carried into the houses across the street, Mrs. Peaches Green, where her injuries were attended to by Dr. Simon Katzen. She was then taken to her home.

Cobbler Confesses Slaying to Wilson

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Antonio Milano, known as "Tony the Shoemaker," an Italian who is under sentence to be hanged June 6 for killing Harry Lee, 16, of Atlanta, Ga., told President Wilson, "I did it."

"I am sorry he is here," said President Wilson. He says:

"Now make a complete statement as to how he did it." Ed Smith, who killed Lee while sitting in a chair working, and while so engaged the boy rushed in. He did not ask for change, but rushed up toward him. They state that his vitality may prolong his life for several days, but that he can not flee from his bed.

Wilson said: "I hope you will be safe."

More than half of the time Mr. Walker is in a half stupor. He has not spoken since yesterday at noon.

The story concerning Mr. Walker, the Italian shoemaker, who was condemned to die for the killing of Miss Emily Hough, was copied from The New York Herald of Sunday last.

The friends of Mr. Walker have taken umbrage at the New York Herald's article and have written to the managing editor of the newspaper.

The boy, Lee, was condemned to die in three hours after his trial.

In excitement a fellow struck him with the hammer or threw the hammer at him."

House Aligned With Wilson on Civil Bill

WASHINGTON, May 21.—A dozen prominent House Democrats, including several members of the Ways and Means Committee, declared to-day that if the President vetoes the bill, they will support the resolution cutting upon President Wilson to prohibit the wearing of a badge or uniform distinctive of any religious denomination in the schools in the public school system.

The resolution was introduced by Rep.

W. J. Bryan of Missouri.

A Good Picture and a Good Idea--
By Cartoonist Tad

It is a Very Old Idea, as Tad Says, But It Needs Repeating.
Think It Over. Hand It to Somebody Who Needs the Picture.
(Copyright, 1912.)

We invited Tad, our distinguished cartoonist, to write his own editorial about his picture on this page, but he said: "I can draw pictures, but I can't write about them."

This picture doesn't need very much "writing about it." It tells you quite simply that the young man who spends his life, or a good deal of it, pushing a bell for the man who brings drinks will also probably spend his life answering a bell that somebody else pushes.

For your own sake, remember one thing always—

The best man can succeed only IF HE USES HIS BEST ABILITY.

The thing most important in this world and most often lacking is real concentrated effort.

There are around you thousands of men not a bit abler than you are, men of your own age, who will be very successful a few years from now.

It is for you to decide whether or not you will be envying them their success, or sharing it with them.

They have no better chance than you have now. But if they are in bed, resting and getting strength for work next day, while you sit as in this picture, pushing a button, ordering the waiter, THE SLEEPER WILL BE PUSHING THE BUTTON LATER AND YOU WILL BE ANSWERING THE BELL.

There are a good many young men who need this picture, and their fathers and mothers are requested to put it where the young men will see it.

Common Sense of Battleships

The question of an "ample navy" is, now before the people in a new light.

Apathy and ignorance no longer cloud the issue. The necessity, for which the Hearst newspaper have earnestly and persistently fought,

It is not a question at this moment of war with Japan or any other nation. It is a question of being prepared for any emergency in our national life.

No people with intelligence and patriotism can fail to demand this preparedness. No representations of integrity and loyalty can fail to answer this demand.

It has been brought home to every American that our country is a part of the great world.

That it is subject to the jealousies, the competitions, the wars of nations.

If we compose our trouble with Japan to-day it may break out to-morrow or next year. If Japan retires as a contestant for the mastery of the Pacific Ocean, there are others to compete. In the fierce activity of overcrowded nations for room to colonize their surplus people, there is perpetual unrest.

In the almost arrogant exclusiveness of our Monroe Doctrine there is a perpetual challenge to freedom of movement among other nations. In the possession and power of the Panama Canal there is a challenge to the cupidity and commercial self-preservation of all great commercial countries.

We know this now. We have been brought face to face with war. We know that we are no more or less than other nations in our exemption from war. We know that the only nation immune from war is England. We also know why England has been safe so long.

And so in plain, natural common sense our Congressmen must come to realize that we must have a greater navy. We must have battleships. Not for aggressive war, but for effective defense. As long as other nations build, we must outbuild other nations, because we are better able to build, and need more to build.

When other nations make plain that they are willing for universal peace, we are willing to lead all nations in the movement for disarmament and arbitration.

But it is the first plain patriotic duty of the Sixty-third Congress to provide for the national defense in battleships that will give us our safe and proper place among nations.

Nationalizing a Great Reform

The woman suffrage movement can prevail and accomplish its purpose without an amendment to the Federal Constitution. Nevertheless it is good news that the Senate Committee on Woman Suffrage has decided to report favorably on Senator Chamberlain's resolution.

A joint resolution of the two houses of Congress—submitting to the States the question whether the political equality of women with men ought not to be an article of the organic law of the land—will give the reform a national character and prominence that it can not so readily acquire by any other means. THEREFORE IT WILL BE IMPOSSIBLE FOR ANY POLITICAL PARTY TO IGNORE THE ISSUE—WHETHER IN STATE OR NATIONAL ELECTIONS.

The case is parallel with that of the election of United States Senators by the people. That movement also in process of time have prevailed everywhere without an amendment to the Federal Constitution. But the movement was immensely accelerated by the agitation for the amendment.

Woman suffrage is not a local issue. It is broadly human and fundamentally democratic.

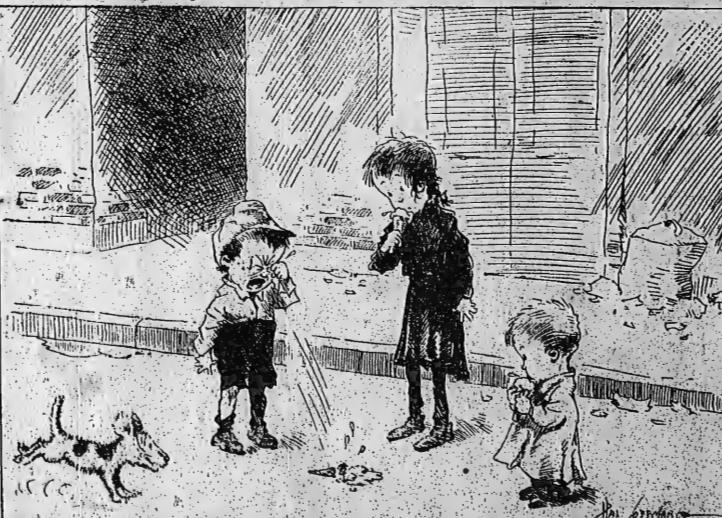

THERE IS NO GOOD REASON WHY SENATORS, AND REPRESENTATIVES—EVEN THOSE OPPOSED TO THE REFORM—SHOULD NOT SUPPORT THE PROPOSED JOINT RESOLUTION AND SO GIVE THE CONSCIENCE AND INTELLIGENCE OF THE WHOLE COUNTRY A FAIR CHANCE TO PAIN OVER THE SUBJECT.

Two Men

Every man is his own ancestor; he asserts. We are preparing for the days that come, and we are what we are to-day on account of what has gone before.

CAME to the stage entrance the other day a man and intended for me. So I went to the door and found that he had lost in the alley. There was a family, foolish, given up his face.

"Don't you know me, Bert?" he said. And I knew him, although I hadn't seen him for full 40 years.

When I saw him last he was a totally different individual from this man who stood smirking, leaning at me out of watery eyes.

His mouth was wobbly, his teeth all gone, save two lone sentinels one above and one below. His face was streaked with tobacco. It was bowed, rheumatic, undone.

I just looked at him. I forgot everything until he aroused me with a second interrogation. "Don't you know me, Bert?"

"Yes, I know you," I answered, and I mentioned his name.

As Old School Mate.

He was a brilliant fellow; at least, we used to think so. He made a great impression on the girls in our school, and we used to gather until we were 16, when our parents would call us together. We attended the same classes in the little country school, wrestled each other's clothes off, played "I Spy" and anti-over.

Mathematics, to me, at school, was a bugaboo. But there was a man who knew the arithmetic from cover to cover and he could work any example in it right in his head and do it instantly.

He could divide sixteen thousand and two hundred and one by seven and eight-tenths and do it as fast as he could pull down the answers. You could write down columns of figures, and when you divided them across the bottom, he would write down the total.

Hold on Primal Virtues.

This man's name was Christian Ropp. So there he was, white of beard, but clear of eye, intelligent, smiling, appreciative.

Christian Ropp has used his brain.

He is a Mennonite. And the Mennonites are people who work with head, hand and heart. Ropp has held on the primal virtues—industry, economy, good health, right brain.

And so, as I talked, I signaled in wireless that he should come around to the stage entrance after the show was over. This ready brain came off there he was—in his shirt-sleeves and his undershirt.

In mathematics we have worked from the complex to the simple. All of the theories in the old-time school books for working out mathematical problems were simple enough, but the examples difficult, faulty. The business of Christian Ropp has been to comprehend the miracle of numbers. To him it is supremely simple. He loves his work, he loves to use his brain, his heart is young.

His Own Ancestors.

And the moral of all this seems to be that every man is his own ancestor, preparing for the days that come, and that we are to-day on account of what has gone before.

He who puts an enemy in his mouth to stave away his brains, will eventually find that the enemy will do the grand larceny, and the end is as sure as the laws of mathematics.

Nature designed that when we die, our spirit dies with us, and the brain should be the last organ to abdicate. It should sit secure and watch every faculty disinterested, curious, wondering, hunting for knowledge.

All life is pleasurable if we live the life of activity tempered by moderation, the life lived by the heart, the heart bronzed of callousness, the hand strengthened, the mind maturing, the brain to let us use our thinking brain to let them what to do.

"Truth and God keep your powder dry," said Cromwell. That is what the Germans did. And the French did not. The Germans knew exactly what they wanted to accomplish, and were thoroughly prepared; the French knew nothing, and were prepared for nothing.

Another illustration of the fact that war is a science, and that its victories are largely won by the direction of the leadership of the few, is the battle of Frankfort.

It was an awful humiliation that Frankfort Treaty with its dimensions, that the soldiers of France, numbering millions of men, had taught France and the world the lesson that war is a science, and that the few, directed by the wise, can win.

It was a wise lesson, that Frankfort Treaty with its dimensions, that the soldiers of France, numbering millions of men, had taught France and the world the lesson that war is a science, and that the few, directed by the wise, can win.

The Treaty of Frankfort

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY

THE Franco-Prussian war, in many respects the most remarkable in history, came to a close 12 years ago with the peace of Paris.

Never was there another such case of official foolishness as that which precipitated this war, and never was official foolishness so promptly and so fearfully punished.

The bloody drama, from its start on August 1, at Saarbrück, moved on with the speed of tempest. Metz was taken, and Mars-la-Tour, and Wörth, and Spicheren, and Gravelotte and Sedan—and the campaign of the Empire. Meanwhile, like the Cat of Juggernaut, went the remorseless German advance.

Paris was interested in nothing but the safety of its citizens, and expeditiously, and with the greatest energy, the city was practically over.

As brave a people as ever lived were the Parisians, in order that they might not be captured, and by their personal valour, in addition, there was an extraordinary display of military skill.

It was an awful humiliation that Frankfort Treaty with its dimensions, that the soldiers of France, numbering millions of men, had taught France and the world the lesson that war is a science, and that the few, directed by the wise, can win.

Still insisting that he will not live with her, Augustus J. Clark, the Lawrence undertaker, who alledgedly had been converted to Christianity in the span of a week, was testifed to yesterday in the trial of William M. Wool, head of the American Woolen Co., for the murder of his wife, Fredreka A. Altemus, one of the defendants had hired him to plant explosives in the building occupied by the competing textile firm.

After the witness said he gave him $500 before the dynamite was placed, and noted the second payment of $200 more, he was asked if he had been placed in prison under Protection Officer Conner.

An effort is being made by attorney Conner to effect a reconciliation between Clark and his wife, but the husband declared this will never be. The protection officer, however, said he had hopes of amicably adjusting the matter.
