ARTIST'S SKETCH OF FRANK AND HIS WIFE IN THE COURTROOM

The prisoner and his wife are the center of all eyes. Mrs. Frank is at her husband's side throughout every session.

They are unmindful of the gaze of the curious, and converse frequently with satisfaction on the case.

Mrs. Frank at times turns a withering glance toward the prosecutor's table.

BILL HITS BANKS TRYING TO STIR PANIC FEAR

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Senator Davis introduced a resolution in the Senate today authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to withdraw government deposits from all banks which he believes are in a conspiracy to intimidate Congress and terrorize the citizens of the United States through inciting fear of a panic and which have failed to deposit securities of the United States and directed the bonds of the United States Government.

The Secretary is further authorized to suspend all the privileges enjoyed by said banks and to withdraw their charters.

Senator Stone charged the Republicans with attempting to create a scandal in the country by sensationalizing in the Senate which was circulated throughout the country and had the effect of making people feel that their lives were in danger.

Senator Clark, of Wyoming, and Senator McNamara, of Iowa, vigorously denied Stone's charge and said the trouble was due to the effects of President Wilson's Secretary of Commerce Red Bank and Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo to force a new economic policy on the country which the country was not ready for.

Frank sits calmly with his arms akimbo, seldom changing his position as the hours pass.

John D.'s Son-in-Law Speeds 29 Miles to Office in Flying Boat

CHICAGO, July 30.—Herald P. McCormick, millionaire sportsman and son-in-law of John D. Rockefeller, made a successful flight in his flying boat today from his home in Lakewood to Grand Park.

Mr. McCormick announced he would fly from his suburban home to his office every morning if the weather permitted. On the trip today he was accompanied by Aviator Charles C. Witmer.

Starting at McCormick's private harbor, the machine was driven several hundred feet into the air about 300 yards from the shore. McCormick maintained a speed of about 70 miles an hour, covering the 2 1/2 miles to Grand Park in 18 minutes. He made a perfect landing and walked half a block to his office.

FRANK LAUGHS FOR FIRST TIME DURING TRIAL WHEN MOORE INCIDENT IS TOLD

...in the opinion of horror at his death, was in a better state of mind when he was taken to the morgue for the purpose of identifying him.

The Solicitor drew from the two other circumstances of the crime after the crime, which he obviously proposes to interpret as significant of Frank's guilt, but he avoided passing the burden and colored features of the murdered factory girl.

Black and Rogers testified that they appeared nervous all the morning after they were held at his home at 83 East Georgia avenue, and took him to the morgue and later to the factory.

Black said he was nervous when he took Frank to the morgue and later to the factory. He said he was nervous when he took Frank to the morgue and later to the factory.

Factory Diagram Changed.

Court opened Wednesday with a discussion of the administration of the diagram of the pencil factory drawn by Bert Greck, a Georgian staff artist. The key to the diagram and all objectionable words had been removed.

Attorney Arnold still objected to the lines which he claimed outlined the floor of the prosecution.

Attorney Arnold said he did not know that he was familiar with them. The most important points in the testimony of "Boots" Rogers in the re-examination were:

That he heard Detective Higgins make no mention of what had happened at the factory when Starnes called Frank Sunday morning.

That Frank, although the Starnes was calling him and the arrival of Rogers' car at Frank's home was only five or six minutes, was dressed for the street, except for collar, tie, coat and hat.

Bay Frank Was Nervous. Black and Rogers testified that they appeared nervous all the morning after they were held at his home at 83 East Georgia avenue, and took him to the morgue and later to the factory.

Q. Yes, with the exception of collar and coat.

Q. Can you tell exactly what he had on? A. A pair of shoes, blue trousers, white pleated shirt and suspenders.

Q. What was the observation on the way to the factory? A. Black on my mind.

Q. What else did he say? A. He asked, "Did the night watchman telephone you anything had happened at the factory?"

ROSSER'S PLAN; LEE JUST TO START; HOPED TO START TRIAL

By JAMES B. NEVIN

If Mr. Luther Z. Rosser's big trial is as dangerous as the crowd undoubtedly is disconcerting and awe-inspiring, there will be little else about it but the glare of the searchlight and the glare of the prosecution.

Rosser's examination of Newt Lee was one of the most nerve-racking and interesting I ever listened to.

It reminded me of a big game of hide-and-seek, and I must have been a child when I played it, for I was so sure that I would find the boy who hid himself in the bushes.

Always, the terrible Rosser was there—and not every little bit, but he would fall back into the witness chair, with an audible sigh, and say, "I am so sorry, but I have nothing to say."

Somehow Rosser's method of examining witnesses and the way he handles the case is a new thing in the history of the law.

It is a pity that Rosser is not a lawyer, for he would make a great one.

Frank and Wife Perfect in Poise; Mother Pitiful Figure

By L. F. WOODRUFF

Arms akimbo, glasses firmly set, Mrs. Frank stood in the witness chair, her face as calm as a lake. Her husband stood beside her, his hands clasped in front of him, his eyes fixed on the floor.

The mother, Mrs. Phagan, sat in the witness chair, her face a picture of grief. Her hands were clasped in her lap, and her eyes were fixed on the floor.

The trial was a masterpiece of poise and dignity. The mother, Mrs. Phagan, was a pitiful figure, her face a picture of grief.

The father, Mr. Frank, was a man of great strength and courage. He stood in the witness chair, his face as calm as a lake.

The trial was a masterpiece of poise and dignity. The mother, Mrs. Phagan, was a pitiful figure, her face a picture of grief.

ON STAND SWEARS FRANK KNEW GIRL

Discharged Pencil Factory Employee Says Accused Mentioned Her to Him.

"You seem to know Mary Phagan pretty well."

"Q. Who had you talking to—A. Mary Phagan."

"Q. What time was she there—A. Some time after Christmas. I don't remember exactly."

"Q. What was the relation of your family to the Phagan family—A. My family and theirs were acquainted."

"Q. How many times did you go back to the factory after you were discharged—A. Two."

"Q. Did you see Frank—A. Yes, both times."

"Q. Did he make any allusion to your cousin—A. No."

"Q. How about any girl getting the key of another place—A. I could be misled by the content of Frank's letter."

"Q. Do you know about the punch clock—A. Yes."

"Q. Do you know how long it would take a man who understands the clock to make a mark—A. About five minutes."

"Q. Who took your place—A. I don't know."

"Q. Just previous to your being discharged had Frank said anything about your services—A. Yes, he had said ever since."

"Q. Could Frank sit at his desk and see the employees register at the time Frank—A. No, he could not see the employees register."

"Q. Could he stand up and see with the door open—A. Yes."

"Q. Did you see Frank Saturday, April 24—A. Yes, about 10 o'clock."

"Q. Tell what happened—A. I was talking to New Lee about getting some shoes made Monday. When Lee said I couldn't get it, I told him I would come back Monday. About that time Mr. Frank came down the steps and when he got within about 10 feet of me he hesitated and started to go back. Then he saw I was looking at him and he came on. When he got right at me he kind of jumped back. I told him I wanted to get a pair of shoes if he had them. He said he thought he saw a negro sweeping them out—A. Yes, I saw that. I told him I had some black ones too. He told New Lee to go on up with me, and we found both of them."

"Q. What was Frank's attitude—A. He seemed nervous."

"Q. Did he look at you as he passed—A. No, he hung his head."

"Q. Did you see him again—A. Yes, here Rosser took the witness on cross-examination."

"Q. Your recollection was fresher than that of New Lee—A. Yes, because I was concerned at the time."

"Q. Was not this question asked by Frank with the girl and you answered—A. Yes."

"Q. You never heard the little girl say anything about being mistaken—A. No."

"Q. When Matt was called down to stand the course of the trial was interrupted for a moment with the consent of both sides to permit a lawyer to sign a non-suam policy. He was Moore B. Woodruff, both Court then adjourned until 10 o'clock Monday morning."

"Attorneys by the report that the trial ended by adjourning at the most important witnesses during the day, they were admitted on the first two days of the trial because of the time taken Wednesday morning as the time for the resumption of the Frank trial."

Caminetti and Diggs Trials Start Monday

SAN FRANCISCO, July 30.—Drew Caminetti and Maury I. Diggs, accused of robbing the white slave law by taking Lola Norris and Marie Warrington from the State to Menlo Park, were called in Federal Court here today to plead to the charges. The trial will be started Monday, according to expectations of attorneys on both sides.

Dream Tango and Horse Trot Make Others Look Slow

NEW YORK, July 30.—Two dances, the dream tango and the horse trot, soon will make the appearance of the "boy" dancing partner, to the "four hundred" who, advised from Europe today, says the new dances will make the lango, the turkey trot, bunny hug, banana reel glide and the others look like an old straw bonnet. He is going to teach the summer dandy at Newport the new ways to glide. "The horse trot, he said, is a modified turkey trot, the dancer hitting over the waxed surface like a prancing steed, instead of wobbling all over the floor."

He declined to tell what his new tango is like.

TAL TAL EQUALIZERS BODDY RAISES HOUSE FIGHT

Section of Lipscomb Bill Giving State Power Fought at First Afternoon Session.

For the first time since the present Legislature convened, the House held an afternoon session Wednesday, for the further consideration of the Lipscomb tax reform bill, which gives the State and county boards of tax assessors the vote on the motion to hold an afternoon session, offered by the House, of 71 to 5.

The fight over the tax reform bill was more strenuous at today's session than at any time since the bill was introduced. While fifteen assessors of the bill were adopted Monday, the whole of Wednesday morning was taken up with the discussion of the bill, the vote on the motion to hold an afternoon session, offered by the House, of 71 to 5.

Section 10 of the bill defines the duties of and confers certain powers upon the proposed State board of equalization. It provides that the State board shall have supervision over the county boards of assessors. It also provides that the State board shall have the right to appoint and remove assessors.

READY AT FRANK TRIAL FOR BITTER BATTLE OVER NEGRO CONLEY'S STORY

Colick the Monday morning after the crime, he now was not sure that it was not 10 or 10:30.

Rosser, seeking to discredit black's previous testimony and his memory, drew the black to admit that he could not remember any of the details of Frank's attire the morning that Black visited the Frank home, and that he was not sure at all that Frank could not have seen the face of the Phagan girl when he visited the morgue Sunday morning.

Shaky Testimony. Black swore when Dorsey was questioned him that Frank put on his collar, tie and coat on the first floor of his home, but when Rosser got hold of him he was willing to admit that it might have been in the collar or on the roof, and the remainder of his testimony became shaky to the same extent.

Taking up a number of the details of Black's testimony on direct examination, Rosser made the striking detective admit that he was not certain of a single one of them. None of them, he said, assured under the friendly interrogation of the Solicitor General, Black instantly became belligerent and continued when Rosser let loose with his fire of disconcerting questions.

Black's features flushed crimson. He mopped his face which was running with perspiration. Then he had his handkerchief, up by two corners to drape it over his forehead in an effort to dry the sweat from his eyes. Before he could accomplish this, it must be applied to his forehead.

The "Plant" Story. The climax came when Solicitor Dorsey came out with his declaration that the bloody shirt found at the home of Mrs. Phagan was "planted" and that it was inspired by Frank or persons interested in Frank. He said that he intended to show that Black had gone to Lee's home to make a search only after Frank had informed him that several punches were missing from the time taken out of the register book, and that Lee would have had time to go home between punches. The Solicitor added that he proposed to show that the only interpretation of the "plant" demand for a search of Phagan's house was in Lee's house to the way for a search of Lee's house by the detective.

He took only a few moments to demonstrate that the Solicitor was making on a broken record. Black quickly and passed through the ordeal in more than an hour's sitting by Dorsey and Dorsey had him in the re-direct. Black gave only a half-hearted and half-certain assent to Dorsey's inquiry if these circumstances did not transpire before the search of Lee's house.

But when Rosser charged at him again with the fragment of memory and assurance had departed from him.

"Don't you know, Black, that as a matter of fact, that shirt was found, before Frank ever said anything to you about the crime in his time laps?" Rosser belittled at the red-faced, willing detective.

Black opened his mouth, but no answer came forth.

"Don't you know it?" persisted the lawyer.

Rosser drew his watch from his pocket and held it to the witness. Six minutes he waited and no answer came forth.

"Give him time to answer, your honor," interrupted Rosser grimly, still holding the watch.

"I don't remember," finally came from the lips of the witness.

A moment later Black gave up. "I'm all crossed up," he said. "I don't know where I am."

Rosser laughed.

"Come down," he said, the Solicitor.

James Down, reared the Solicitor, J. M. Gantt, discharged employee of the pencil factory, followed Black on the stand. Gantt's most important piece of testimony was in the stark contrast to the representations he made the morning after the murder, knew Mary Phagan by name.

He knew this, he said, because one day when he had been talking with the Phagan girl Frank called to him: "You seem to know Mary pretty well, Gantt."

Rosser brought out in his cross-examination of Gantt that the young man had failed to tell of this alleged acquaintance with Mary before the coroner's jury when he was asked if Frank knew the girl.

Bay Frank Was Nervous. The point of the State's evidence Wednesday was only for the purpose of showing that Frank was nervous, trembling and pale on the afternoon of the tragedy, and when he was taken to the morgue and to the factory by the detective, Gantt testified that Frank seemed nervous and apprehensive Saturday night at 7 o'clock when Gantt went to the factory to get some shoes he had left there when discharged. "Boots" Rogers and Detective Barnes and Black testified that Frank acted in a nervous and agitated manner the next morning. Rogers and Black declared that Frank would not look on the face of the dead girl when they took him to the undertaking room.

NARAGANSETT, PIER, R. I., July 31.—Jewel robbers here, in which there have occurred $150,000 worth of gems, were the work of servants organized into a band of thieves by a Brown University graduate, is the opinion of Frank Lambert, head of the Western Detective Agency of Providence.

State Balloon Soars When Dorsey, Roiled, Cries 'Plant'

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

Prof. John Black, with the unwitting assistance of the Solicitor General and the assistance of Luther Rosser, by furnishing all the "punch" there was in Wednesday's story of the Frank trial, has blacked every eye, underlined to tell the truth, and was unwilling to tell more or less than the truth but that didn't help matters much for the State was outraged.

When Solicitor Dorsey exclaimed "plant," which means nothing more than "made" or "framed" up, evidence for the benefit of the defense, I saw precisely what I expected to see—a momentary flicker of a smile about the lips and eyes of the man, an almost immediate tightening of the lips and narrowing of the eyes, and then a quick return of the habitual ferocious frown.

I knew Dorsey had put his foot in it—but it didn't stay up over the axle, and I also knew that getting that foot back to solid ground again was going to be an unendurable task, pregnant with extreme difficulty and danger.

State Balloon Goes Up. The Solicitor was treated when he exclaimed "plant," thereby accusing the defense of nearly uttering an unconfutable falsehood of state in the Frank's innocence.

And right then and there, up went the State's balloon, and it hasn't come down yet.

If there is one thing, in all the world Luther Rosser knows better than anybody else he knows of it is an adversary in the courtroom who holds a "plant," and things like that, particularly when said adversary is dead.

When Mr. Dorsey on Wednesday, in a moment of forgetfulness and vexation, exclaimed "plant," it was meat and bread and pie and eggs and beef and apples to Luther Rosser!

Right then I would much have preferred being a high private in the ranks of the Bulgarian army than John Black!

The Solicitor handed Mr. Rosser the way club Mr. Rosser was Jay, Jay, Jay, and wherever the said Mr. Rosser proceeded to sound upon the offending John Black to unsharpened teeth, he was completely at Mr. Black's disposal, justifying the Solicitor's passionate outburst.

Witness Goes Far Adrift. In the contrary it is alleged to be and said he had the witness, to send him far at sea.

After that he contradicted himself, failed to remember, became hazy and evidently worried and dazed, and he had been shot mortally from an unexpected quarter, and he soon realized that Luther Z. Rosser was determined to finish the job—and finish he did.

As for the rest of the day and the beginning of the day—

Court officials have settled themselves down for full expectation of a long stay in the Frank trial.

So far the progress of the case has been, in the main, commonplace in the extreme, and bewildering only when spectators have considered the review and one question asked, and the always inevitable interposition of objection.

The thing the average person in the audience does not understand, however, is that in all that seemingly interminable, objection, and wrangling there is, at least upon the part of the defense, a far-reaching purpose, the mere mention of which will serve to illustrate its importance.

Effect of One Little Error. In murder cases the defense has the right, in the event the battle goes against it, to move for a new trial upon assignment of judicial error in the first trial. If a new trial be granted by the trial judge, the defense may appeal to the highest court of review in the State, and that court may order to have been committed on the trial of the case. It will remain the entire proceeding back to the court of original jurisdiction for correction of the error, which means, of course, for another trial.

Then the case will begin all over again, exactly as if it never had been tried at all.

The State on the other hand, has no such right as that. If it loses its first trial, it loses it for all time. Frank says of his own motion, never can he plead a second day for the killing of little Mary Phagan.

The more rulings the defense, therefore, calls upon the trial judge to make the more chances there are that error may creep in—and one little assignment of error sustained by the court of review would serve to re-plant the case back for another trial.

State Must Judge and Bear. It is hardly that the trial judge had strictly within his legal rights, which a trial judge never can be absolutely sure of doing, the defense throws an anchor to windward in case of defeat—and the State can do nothing but cry "grin" and "bear it."

The big battle Wednesday to get the diagram of the pencil factory, containing all the facts, red-lined indication of the State's theory of the crime, before the jury had, as we will readily be seen, a tremendous significance—and although Judge Ross set it to go in, it went in over the bitter and curiously respected protest of the defense, and in case Frank should lose his fight now, the admission of that diagram doubtless will be assigned an error on original trial.

The State, of course, can not take advantage of its own error, but Dorsey can hope to obtain nothing more than present advantage by combing them—hence the defense may cut in in all sorts of directions, with the burden of proof on the State and the presumption of innocence always with the defendant in bar, and the State may whistle for compensation.

It makes the trial rather unprofitable for the State, therefore, however much one may think it otherwise.

If Dorsey wins a point, it may give him something on the present trial, but it will get him nothing eventually, in case he is forced to go to the highest court. The Solicitor has one long straight shot for victory—and up goes the balloon.

The defense, on the contrary, is not nearly so whipped if it loses its present fight.

Defense Seems to Have Advantage. If there has been any advantage gained by either side thus far, it is the defense's gain.

Nothing necessarily damaging has yet been set up against Frank. Indeed, much of the evidence drawn out seems almost childish in its insignificance.

Rosser testified that Frank was "nervous" when the State saw him Sunday morning, April 27, and that he continued "nervous" for some time thereafter—although Rosser never saw him before, and had no way of ascertaining his conduct then with any general doubt.

But if Frank was "nervous" does the State seek to establish the presumption against him therefore that the "nervousness" was occasioned by the thought of little Mary Phagan's dead body there in the cell, and the responsibility for it?

So, too, Rosser had the appearance of sincerity—and what he said, whether significant or of small importance, apparently concerned him not at all.

Therefore since the State seemingly made no little or other of these witnesses, although they were offered as the State's witnesses and not the defense's, prompt me to say that the advantage falling to either side because of their introduction but really to the defense.

What Has the State Shown? That Mary Phagan is dead, that she probably was murdered, that the place of the murder was Fulton County and the date of it April 27, 1915.

As a matter of fact, nothing much has been developed that has not been public property for weeks—some of it for months.

There is a feeling growing more and more every day, I think, that the State, if it hopes to win, must set up something more than it has yet made public.

If the State has some big cards up its sleeve, it is prepared to stir up the defense, and many people think it has the first and will be the second time the case yet in its infancy and the real cards against Frank still to be made out.

If the State has an unproved offense and is NOT prepared to strike the defense, and many people think it has the first and will be the second time the case yet in its infancy and the real cards against Frank still to be made out.

This very pretty young girl answered the questions given her in a straightforward way—sincerely she was seeking to speak only the truth.

Crimson Trail Leads Crowd To Courtroom Sidewalk

By L. F. WOODBURY.

The sun that is broiling, No man can stand it without suffering. And still men stand, not one man, but scores of them, on a blistered pavement gazing on a red brick building as ungloriously as a gorgon's head and look at nature by the hour.

They are led there by a trail of crimson, and they are held there by the same charm that makes Cain committed his deed of fratricide—has made murder the deed that the law most savagely punishes, and yet made it the act that most interests man.

Go to Terror and Hunter streets. You'll find a study here. Leo Frank is being tried for the murder of Mary Phagan in the courtroom of a building on the northeast corner of the building housing Atlanta's most famous criminal trial.

The trial is progressing in a quiet, orderly manner. Sheriff Langham is attending to that. Few boys are not vitally interested in the case are permitted in the courtroom. Outsiders are not even allowed on the same side of the street that abuts on the building housing Atlanta's most famous criminal trial.

But these "revelations" fail to dampen the interest Atlanta feels in the case.

Dickens was never wrong in his study of human frailties and human emotions. Do you remember when Mr. Dickwick was arrested for trespassing and when asked "Do you remember when he was placed in the pound the size of Old's Hill and how the village populace gazed at nothing through the cracks in the fence of that enclosure?"

— Old Bones Re-created. The same thing that Dickens wrote of a half-century ago is being re-enacted in Atlanta in this good year of '15. Hundreds of Atlantians are instinctively looking through the cracks of the pound fence and seeing nothing.

They are standing on that sidewalk pavement in the porch of a building that has become a gallery for the people because in the four walls of that structure a man is fabricating for the eyes of a crowd of people a man accused of ending the life of a little girl, they never saw, they never heard of, until she was dead, they were found and she was unscarred, they were added to the criminal list.

For hours they gaze. They cannot possibly learn more of the progress of the trial, they cannot see the jury than they could at their homes or their places of business. But they they stand, the hundreds of the vast throng with the tragedy enthralls them.

When this crowd is viewed with strange fascination of the old Roman man for the arena in which gladiators, the allotment of the crowd day by day, in which man after man is not so strange. A peculiar habit in nature has made man love to witness the tribulation of his fellows.

Inside the courtroom the crowd demands that the be a provider, a guardian, a counselor, then others are trying to blacken his character, to besmirch, declare unfit to State the life of a man and honorable men.

Attorneys and Their Fight. The attorneys are there to fight a case, to establish a record, to be struggling to establish a record that the country of Fulton will hold the law, that the defendant is as wealthy and as powerful as the chief of the greatest trial. Little bones and teeth, and there is a man's reputation as well as a man's life at stake.

Mary Phagan's mother and sister are there because the call of the blood tells them that the death of their child is a tragedy that should be avenged.

There are scores of spectators, young lawyers, who wish to witness the struggle between those master minds of their profession engaged in the case. Their interest in the case is not so much in the fact that a man accused of ending the life of a little girl, they never saw, they never heard of, until she was dead, they were found and she was unscarred, they were added to the criminal list.

The attorneys are there to fight a case, to establish a record, to be struggling to establish a record that the country of Fulton will hold the law, that the defendant is as wealthy and as powerful as the chief of the greatest trial. Little bones and teeth, and there is a man's reputation as well as a man's life at stake.

Mary Phagan's mother and sister are there because the call of the blood tells them that the death of their child is a tragedy that should be avenged.

There are scores of spectators, young lawyers, who wish to witness the struggle between those master minds of their profession engaged in the case. Their interest in the case is not so much in the fact that a man accused of ending the life of a little girl, they never saw, they never heard of, until she was dead, they were found and she was unscarred, they were added to the criminal list.

Appropriations Committee Thursday afternoon.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—(Press) Senator Thorton, as he boarded an elevator at the Capitol today.

"You're pulling the runner, but I see you are going the limit in trying to be comfortable."

"That's what I inquired the Senator, with an angry tremor in his voice.

The runner silently pointed at the Senator's neck, and Mr. Thorton rubbed it with both hands.

"There was nothing there but neck," the Senator protested, putting on collar and necktie, and the last minute because of the excessive heat, and then turned toward the door.

"(Shouting 'Princess') exclaimed the Senator, 'and I have been out making department calls. I just left Postmaster General Burleson.'

Convict Freed of New Theft Charges

SAVANNAH, July 31.—W. O. Brown, already under conviction and serving a sentence for embezzlement of funds from the Southern Cotton Oil Company, of which he was formerly manager of the seed and fertilizer department, was acquitted today in Chatham Superior Court of additional charges of misappropriation of money while connected with that company.

Brown was brought from State prison to face the additional charges.

He had been sentenced to two years in State prison for a similar offense Tuesday afternoon, when he was appearing in court on a charge of larceny.

Moultree Feudist Is Goulier; Brother Tried

MOULTREE, July 31.—After delinquenting many hours the jury trying the case of James Hart, charged with the murder of M. H. Hargrave, returned a verdict today of voluntary manslaughter.

Jerry Hart, a brother of James Hart, is on trial today for the murder of Horace Hargrave, the charge growing out of the same affray for which his brother was tried.

The trouble between the Hargraves and the Harts took place May 10 on a roadway near Berlin and Milledgeville.

China Rebels Slay Helpless Thousands

Special Cable to The Georgian.

VIADIVODSK, July 31.—Dispatches received here today tell of wholesale massacres in China by the rebels.

The rebels swept through Tibet, killing thousands of men, women and children. It is reported that many who could not flee to safety committed suicide in preference to falling into the hands of the Chinese.

Murderer of Dallas Typist Expected to Seek Last Look at Victim—Teeth Pritts Clew.

DALLAS, Tex., July 31.—Love left a letter written to Miss Frances Brown, a new Miss of Investigation today in the most puzzling murder in the history of the section. The letter was guarded by the police, and the contents of the letter and the identity of the girl's admirer was not revealed.

The body of the murdered stenographer was buried today. A half holiday was declared in most of the stores in Dallas. Chief of Police Price detailed every officer that could be spared for duty at the funeral.

He expected the murderer to be there.

"If the man capable of such a heinous murder," said the chief, "the attraction of the church would be so great that he could not resist, if he was within a reasonable distance."

It is believed that the murderer will stay in Dallas until the funeral, which will take place at 10 o'clock today. The slippers of the body that which he drove the life.

Prisoners were made to guard against any attempt by the murderer of the stenographer is captured at the funeral. It was reported that thousands would be in the vicinity of the Brown home and the church.

The men of Dallas County have discussed what they believe should be done to prevent the case of the young stenographer, who had scores of friends and no enemies.

Father Watches by Body.

Today in the home of the Brown family the mutilated body of the slain girl is the only quiet room. The house was besieged by hundreds of curious on-lookers.

The girl's father, Policeman Brown, was in the office of the real estate firm in the morning.

When the murder was reported to the police, he was in the office.

Missing Tooth a Clew.

The man who is convicted of the murder of the girl will have one more than a normal number of teeth. Impressions of the marks on Miss Brown's arms showed they were made by teeth set in the crown of a shoe.

Great faith was placed in the newly discovered love letters by the detectives on the case. They believe the man who wrote the message of love to the girl on Monday hid the letters in his pocket.

Slayer Convicted By Circumstances Faces the Gallows

DALTON, July 31.—The jury in the Dan Hatfield murder case today returned a verdict of guilty of murder without recommendation, the verdict meaning a death sentence for the defendant. The jurors went out fifteen hours. It being understood that the question of a recommendation was what had been.

Hatfield was convicted of the murder of Will Parrish. He was arraigned before Judge Fin. Whelan's morning when court opened, and the entire day was consumed in the hearing.

The evidence introduced by the State virtually was an of circumstantial character. The defense had two alleged eyewitnesses to killing of Parrish, who swore that Hatfield shot in self-defense while Parrish was advancing on him with an ax.

John and Tom Nicodemus, were however jointly indicted with Hatfield as accessories to the crime.

Mulhall, Lobbyist, Once Was Policeman

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The cross-examination of Colonel M. J. Mulhall, by lawyers for the National Association of Manufacturers, the activities of which he revealed in 1909, was continued today before the Senate Lobby Inquiry Committee today.

Mr. Mulhall, who was a lobbyist for the American Cigar Company, was asked whether he had ever been a police officer.

FOUND PART OF PAY-ENVELOPE AND RED SPOTS ON OIL FLOOR

B. F. Barrett, a machinist on the second floor of the Penick factory, gave unexpected and important evidence for the State Thursday at the trial of Leo M. Frank. He told the jury that he found a part of a pay envelope and red spots on the oil floor.

Barrett is the factory employee who made the discovery of the spots resembling blood near the lath machine and the ladies' dressing room on the second floor and the red spots on the oil floor.

The witness repeated his story of the finding of the supposed blood spots and the hair. He made probably the best witness of the State called during the forenoon to strengthen the theory that the murderer was committed on the second floor of the factory.

"I know it was blood," was the repeated assertion of Barrett when Attorney Rosser, Frank's lawyer, tried to force him to admit that the determination of whether it was blood was made by a skilled chemist.

Henry Scott, Pinkerton detective, Monte E. Hoyer, a lawyer-old factory employee, and Mel Stanford, another employee at the factory, were the forensic witnesses.

Scott refused to be coaxed by the testimony of Barrett. He testified that he had seen the blood spots on the second floor of the factory.

Rosser asked Barrett whether he had seen the blood spots on the second floor of the factory.

Barrett answered that he had seen the blood spots on the second floor of the factory.

RED SPOTS ON FACTORY FLOOR SMEARED OVER, SAYS SCOTT Swears Frank's Lawyer, Haas, Called for Report Before Police Saw It

MACHINIST TELLS JURY OF FINDING OF PAY ENVELOPE

I says I went to answer you to find the envelope.

What said he was envelope?

It was a red spot on the floor. He said he had just come from the police station and that the police, including Detective Haas, asked to see it.

What was it? He related his experience on the day of the murder. He said that he had the red spot on the floor and that when he got to the factory at about 3 o'clock, he saw a light shining on a box at the foot of the staircase. Frank told him to get the envelope at 110 o'clock and what time he took it.

How long did it take you to find the envelope?

It took me about 15 minutes.

MACHINIST'S UNEXPECTED TESTIMONY AT TRIAL OF LEON FRANK

"I found the strands of hair on the handle of the lathing machine in the National Pencil Factory Monday morning. I also found the blood spots on the second floor by the water cooler at the ladies' dressing room. I know they were blood. The same day that I found the spots of blood, I found the pay envelope under the machine at which Mary Phagan worked. The lathe on which I found the hair was about 20 feet away from the pay envelope. The hair was not there Friday, for I worked on the lathe up to 5:30 o'clock, quitting time. The factory was closed Saturday. The spots were not there Friday. Testimony of a machinist at the pencil factory.

GIRL DIDN'T SEE FRANK IN HIS OFFICE

Monteen Stover, Who Was at the Factory on Day of Slaying, Testifies at Trial.

Q. How far was it from where you found the blood spots to where you found the hair?—A. About 15 feet.

Q. How do you know that hair was not on that machine Friday?—A. I worked at the machine until 5 o'clock Friday afternoon.

Q. Did any girls work there Saturday?—A. No.

Q. How far was it from where you found the blood spots to where you found the hair?—A. About 15 feet.

Q. Pay Envelope Also.

Q. Did you find anything around Mary Phagan's machine?—A. Yes, I found a part of a pay envelope.

Q. Describe how you found it.—A. The latter part of the week I was standing about 15 feet from her machine when I saw a paper under her machine and I went over and picked it up. It was a part of a pay envelope with the letter "E" or "F" on it.

Q. What day and date was that?—A. The same day I found the spot of blood between the 28 and 30.

Q. What did you find under the machine?—A. Nothing but shavings.

Q. What did you do with the pay envelope?—A. Turned it over to that man (pointing out a deputy). Solicitor Dorsey here had the witness identify the paper and it was then shown to the attorneys for the defense.

Q. Examined Factory Closely.

Q. Did you examine the factory?—A. Yes, very closely.

Q. Did you find anything like a baseball bat around the first floor?—A. No.

TAX SUPERVISOR PRISON REFORM PROVIDED BY NEW BILL

Three Reform Measures Now Before House With Sheppard's Having Best Prospects.

The fight between advocates of the Sheppard bill, creating a state board of tax equalizers, and the Sheppard substitute, creating county boards only, took an unexpected turn in the House of Representatives Thursday morning, when Representative Harry Wright of Floyd county, offered a substitute to both the Sheppard and Sheppard measures.

Mr. Wright's measure creates neither a State nor county board, it establishes the office of Deputy Comptroller General, who shall be ex-officio State Commissioner at a salary of $1,000 a year and have general supervision of the case of the State. He shall appoint in his discretion tax agents, or assessors to visit the various counties.

The purpose of his substitute, Mr. Wright explained, is to ferret out and end the illegal property of the State, which he claims runs up into the millions of dollars. He declared that the provisions of his bill will not increase the tax burden on any one, but will save the State from the loss of property at a fair valuation, but will save the State from the loss of property at a fair valuation, but will save the State from the loss of property at a fair valuation.

The measure was made by the opponents of the revision to kill Mr. Wright's bill, before the members of the House should become familiar with it.

The introduction of the Wright substitute, which is a tax reform bill before the House, Thursday morning, was a surprise, as the committee amendments, Thursday morning, were made by Mr. Sheppard, and the House had been given the Sheppard bill, Thursday morning, by amendments offered by Mr. Sheppard, and the House had been given the Sheppard bill, Thursday morning, by amendments offered by Mr. Sheppard, and the House had been given the Sheppard bill, Thursday morning, by amendments offered by Mr. Sheppard.

PRISON REFORM BILL PASSED BY SENATE

Provides Indeterminate Sentences for Felony Cases—Eugenics Marriage Bill Restructured.

The Senate Thursday morning, by a vote of 57 to 31, passed Senator Foster's bill providing for the indeterminate sentences in felony cases and agreed to recast the bill as drafted Wednesday, providing for an eugenics marriage law, and the constitutional amendment, restricting the creation of new counties.

Under the indeterminate sentence passed by the Men and Religion Committee, persons convicted of felony will receive a maximum and minimum sentence rather than a definite fixed term. In addition, the waste of convict stripes is excluded to persons charged as of the lowest grade. The bill was introduced by the State Prison Board.

Placed for Eugenics Bill.

Senator Allen of the Twentieth, in making his motion for a reconsideration of the eugenics bill, was declared that the authors were more than willing to eliminate the alleged drastic provisions of the bill in order to get it through. The bill has the support of a number of members of the Senate.

The Senate also passed the Bush bill, providing for the regulation and control of insurance companies, including foreign and domestic corporations and national organizations. Senator Burke's bill, revising jury listing, also received the unanimous vote of the Senate.

Acts on Duskdown Row.

The Senate also passed a resolution giving the Governor authority and power to look to the difference between certain cities of Georgia and the Tennessee Copper Company, a controversy which has been pending for several years.

November also passed the State Senator McGee's bill, revising the Vanderhill road race in Savannah, which was introduced by the State Senator McGee, of the Nineteenth.

Two things more we especially stress in this August Sale:

1st. All the Furniture in this Sale is Sound

Sound furniture means no putted-up knock-holes, no defects no slovenly work with varnish, no "green" woods, no shoddy cabinet work, no imitations of any kind masquerading as genuine. When the day comes that we can not offer genuinely sound furniture at genuine economies in a Furniture Sale or any other, we shall not hold such a sale.

Knowing these truths about good furniture, you may be sure we allow no other kind of furniture. The August Sale prices would mean nothing if the furniture were not in most instances remarkably fine and beautiful, and in every instance thoroughly good.

All Reductions Are Plainly Marked—Savings Evident at a Glance

Every piece of furniture retains its former price ticket, and the new August Sale price is prominently and easily compared—The savings are evident at a glance.

H. B.—Customers wishing to profit by these special August prices, and to secure more than the usual 30 days' credit, can arrange to mail orders and receive

RED SPOTS ON FACTORY FLOOR SMEARED OVER SAYS SCOTT Swears Frank's Lawyer, Haas, Called for Report Before Police Saw It

MACHINIST TELLS JURY OF FINDING OF PAY ENVELOPE

DETECTIVES FIGURING PROMINENTLY IN PHAGAN CASE AND FRANK TRIAL

J. N. STARNES. HARRY SCOTT. JOHN BLACK.

him that J. M. Gantt, a discharged factory employee, knew Harry Phagan well and was familiar and intimate with her the Solicitor by this evidence seeking to show a disposition on the part of Frank to throw suspicion on someone else.

The detective described Frank's demeanor as extremely nervous at the interview Tuesday night, April 29, between Frank and Leo Scott and that Frank hung his head, crossed and recrossed his legs, rubbed his face and lips with one hand and then the other, and seemed not to know where to put his hands.

Rosser Objected. Scott.

Rosser cross-examined Scott. He made the detective admit that he had not told of these circumstances before the coroner's inquest and had not stated any of the conversation between Lee and Frank which he had just told to the Solicitor. Gantt, further, he forced Scott to admit that he had heard none of the conversation.

Scott told Dorsey that he had made a thorough search of the first floor of the factory soon after his services were engaged, and that he had found no ribbon, purse, pay envelope or bloody stick, which later was said to have been found near where Jim Conroy was hiding, by Pinkerton operatives.

Scott said that he had looked for blood spots, but that most of the evidence of this sort had been chipped up, before he entered the case.

Rosser and E. off "engaged in a heated argument when Dorsey called attention to the fact that the detective had not mentioned at the coroner's inquest Frank's alleged remark in regard to Gantt's intimacy with the Phagan girl.

Scott gave as his excuse that it was an oversight, or that he possibly had not been questioned on that matter by the coroner.

"I am not fool enough to give away the whole case in detail at a preliminary hearing, anyway," added Scott.

R. P. Barrett, the machinist at the factory, who discovered the strand of hair on a lathe machine and spots resembling blood on the floor, was called to the stand at the conclusion of Monton Stover's testimony.

Dorsey Quizzed Scott.

Solicitor Dorsey started his questioning of Harry Scott with the query:

Q. What is your business?—A. Pinkerton detective.

Q. Do you know Leo Frank?—A. Yes.

Q. When did you first see Frank?—A. Monday, April 24, at 1 p. m.

Q. Where was that?—A. In Frank's private office.

Q. What was Frank's attitude?—A. He was composed.

Dorsey said:

"Your honor, I want to refresh his memory. I was maintained as to what the witness would testify."

Attorney Rosser objected.

"I am surprised at the evidence,"

said the Solicitor of the witness regarding Frank's attitude."

Noted Attorney Rosser.

"What about his breathing?" asked the Solicitor.—A. Well, between sentences, occasionally he took a deep breath.

Q. What about the expression of the eyes?—A. I had never seen him before. The expression of his eyes was about as they are now.

Frank sitting a few feet away, wore the same cool expression he has had since the beginning, his face utterly devoid of emotion. The expression of his unusual eyes was calm. Dorsey resumed his questioning.

Q. What did he say?—A. "I suppose you have heard of the horrible murder in this factory. The directors and I have decided to employ you to find the murderer."

Frank said: "He was surprised."

Q. What else did he say?—A. He said he had just come from the police station and that the police, particularly Detective Black, seemed to suspect him.

Q. What else?—A. He related his movements on the day of the murder. He said that he had had this right on that day and that when she left, he heard voices on the stairs. He said that later he let Mrs. White go to the factory at about 11 o'clock. She saw a negro sitting on a box at the foot of the stairs. Frank said he left the factory at 11:10 o'clock and went home for lunch. He said he returned from lunch at about 12 o'clock and went to his office.

Scott testified as readily as though he were reading a narrative.

Q. Give the jury a description of how Frank acted.—A. He acted perfectly naturally.

Rosser interrupted.

Q. How do you know it was natural if you never saw him before?—A. He just thought it was natural.

Rosser Objected Again.

Dorsey took up the questioning again.

Q. How were his eyes?—A. Large and piercing.

Q. How was his breathing?—A. Very deep.

Q. Did he say to me—

Rosser interrupted.

Dorsey replied: "I don't know whether this witness has recognized me or not. I have it written down."

Rosser: "I have no doubt you have written down from detective relations, but this witness has already written down from detective relations. The objection to the question was sustained."

Dorsey: Q. How did he give you the narrative?—A. Very rapidly and specifically as to time.

Q. How did the defendant wait the time when Mary Phagan entered the factory?—A. He said about 12:15.

Q. What did Frank say, if anything, about hearing voices before she came?—A. I don't recall.

Dorsey addressed Judge Roan: "I want to refresh the memory of the witness with the note he took on the case."

Q. Mr. Scott, did you furnish a report of this case to the defendant?—A. Yes.

Q. To whom?—A. To S. Monton, Herbert Haas and L. Z. Rosser.

Q. Did you furnish the State a readable copy like you did the defendant?—A. I don't know. I read your complaint.

Rosser objected: "It is object to anything like this, Your Honor. It is absolutely immaterial here how whether he furnished the defendant with the report."

"Not Seeking to Testimony?"

Dorsey: "I hold, Your Honor, that this witness is not sticking to his previous testimony and I have the right to refer to these reports to refresh his memory."

Judge Roan: "Put your question, Mr. Dorsey."

Q. Was it before or after 11 o'clock that Frank said he heard voices?—A. (Scott read from his notes)—Frank told me that before 11 o'clock he heard voices outside his office.

Rosser objected: "I object to his testimony. He is not sticking to his previous testimony and I have the right to refer to these reports to refresh his memory."

Judge Roan: "Put your question, Mr. Dorsey."

Q. Where?—A. On the second floor.

Dorsey asked: "Mr. Asst. State?"

Q. What did Frank say he did at home when he went home at 11:10 o'clock?—A. He said he went home for lunch.

Q. What, if anything, did Frank say in reference to Gantt?—A. He said J. M. Gantt knew Mary Phagan very well and was intimate with her.

Q. What, if anything, did Frank say about Gantt's attention to Mary Phagan?—A. Nothing.

"Your honor," said Dorsey, "I admit that this witness has already written down from detective relations. The objection to the question was sustained."

CRAMSON BEINGS BOUNDED BY BISTERED COURTROOM SIDEWALK

By L. F. WOODRUFF

The sun's heat is broiling. No man can stand it without suffering. And still men stand, not one man but scores of them, on a blistered pavement gazing on a red brick building as unhealthily as a porcupine's head and look at nothing by the hour.

They are led there by a trail of crimson, and they are held there by the crimson charm that crimson alone has committed his dead of fratricide—has made murder the deed that the law most severely punishes and has made it the act that most interests the mob.

Go to Pryor and Hunter streets. You'll find a crowd there. Leo Frank is being tried for the murder of Mary Phagan in the courtroom on a building on the northeast corner.

The trial is progressing in a quiet, orderly manner. Sheriff Mangum's force is attending to that. Few persons not vitally interested in the case are permitted in the courtroom. Outside are not even allowed on the same side of the street that abuts on the building housing Atlanta's most famous criminal trial.

But these regulations fail to dampen the interest Atlanta feels in the case.

Dickens was never wrong in his study of human frailties and human emotions. He was famous for it. Mr. Pickwick was arrested for trespassing and when asked as to his identity replied "and punch." Do you remember when he was placed in the pound the song of God's Hill told how the village populace gazed at gibing through the bars in the fence of that inclosure?

Old Sober re-acted.

The same thing is now being re-enacted in Atlanta in this good year of 1915. Hundreds of people are gazing at the trial from the cracks of the pound fence and seeing nothing.

They are standing on that sear-burnt pavement gazing on a building that because of the four walls of that structure a man is fighting for his life, just because a white throated man accused of killing the life of a little girl they never heard of, until her dead body was found, and the inquiring mind was applied to the case and the history of Georgia's capital.

For hours they gaze. They can not possibly learn more of the trial than they could at the trial there across the street than they could at their homes or their places of business. But they stand. The intensity of the location with the tragedy enthralled.

When this crowd is viewed, the strange fascination of the old Romans for the arena is not far from the mind. The attention of the present day prize ring in which man wrestles with a bear is not far from the mind. In nature has made man love to witness the exhibition of his fellows.

It is the common link holds all of these people. Those inside and those out. It is the common link holds all of these people. Those inside and those out. It is the common link holds all of these people. Those inside and those out.

When the same and the same is considered. Boys run in long trousers and in the same way. They are all in for a while. They are not seeking information. They are not seeking information. They are not seeking information.

With the unwritten assistance of the Solicitor General and the assistance of Luther Rogers, he defended all the "punch" there was in Wednesday's story of the Frank trial.

Black obviously was underestimating the truth, and was unwilling to tell more or less than the truth but that didn't help matters much so as the State was concerned.

When Solicitor Dorsey explained "black"—which means nothing more than "black"—he "framed up" evidence for the benefit of the defense—framed up evidence for the benefit of the defense—framed up evidence for the benefit of the defense.

I saw precisely what I expected to see—a monetary nickel of a smile about the lips and eyes of the man in an almost immediate tightening of the lips and narrowing of the eyes and then a quick return to the habitual frown.

I knew Dorsey had put his foot in it—but it right in, away up the ankle, and I also knew that nothing that foot back to solid ground again was going to be an undertaking without a great deal of difficulty.

As a result of the same impulse that leads them to spend their spare nickels for a recital of the deeds of heroes, they are spending their spare nickels for a recital of the deeds of heroes.

Do you man, hardly a man either for his face was youthful, his hair was dark and his eyes were blue. He was a man of the type that is never heard of, until her dead body was found, and the inquiring mind was applied to the case and the history of Georgia's capital.

ENGLISH HIGH TO MOVE TO CREW ST.

Episcopal Property Ordered Vacated—New School To Be Completed in 1914.

The English Commercial High School on August 1 will vacate the property of the Episcopal Diocese on Washington street and occupy the old crew street schoolhouse pending the construction of a new $150,000 structure in 1914.

This is the decision of the Board of Education following the report of the committee composed of Walter H. Daley, W. M. Shain, L. M. Landrum, D. M. Green and Marcellus Anderson.

The new school will cost $150,000 in five years if the new school is not completed at that time, said President Daley. The change will also mean that the board will be able to take care of all the students enrolled here.

Under the old lease of the Episcopal Diocese building, which expires Friday, the board agreed with Bishop Nelson to pay a rental of $125 per month. Several months ago Superintendent Bixby informed the board of Education that there would be an increase of 75 students next year which would bring the attendance up to 202 instead of 115.

To provide for this increase it is thought that the church property could be enlarged on an annual contract basis. If the property was enlarged the rental would be increased to $140 in the first year and $150 in the second year.

It is making an estimate. Construction of the new school will cost $150,000. This building will be completed in 1914. The old crew street building could be renovated and made desirable for $15,000.

Increased rental and improvements would cost $150,000. This building will be completed in 1914. The old crew street building could be renovated and made desirable for $15,000.

DEPT. HIT BY LIGHTNING; PANIC

Terminal Struck Again in Frank Storm Which Sweeps Only Downtown Section of City.

In a severe thunderstorm and electrical disturbance Thursday afternoon lightning knocked the remaining tower of the Terminal Station of the Southern Railway. There were formerly two towers, but one was demolished by lightning two weeks ago.

No one was injured by the stroke, though many people in the station were slightly hurt, and there was a panic in the big shed.

A peculiar coincidence was that Dr. W. A. Mann, whose office is in the Rhodes Building, on Marietta street, saw the first tower knocked off two weeks ago and from the same window saw the second one destroyed.

The storm was severe in the heart of the city, but at the ball park there was no rain.

The lightning played a peculiar havoc in the neighborhood of the Atlanta University, wrecking a score of dwellings and killing Florence Green, a negro girl, at 24 Moultrie street. The girl was sitting in the front room of her home, and Dr. Frank Starbuck, who was called, was unable to find her alive. She lived for twenty minutes after being struck. Her sister and A. O. Hicks, also a negro, were badly hurt.

REPORTS ON FACTORY FLOOR SMEARED OVER, SAYS SCOTT Swears Frank's Lawyer, Haas, Called for Report Before Police Saw It

him that J. M. Gantt, a dischargee factory employee, knew Mary Phagan well and was familiar and intimate with her, the Solicitor by the evidence seeking to show a disposition on the part of Frank to throw suspicion on someone else.

The detective described Frank's demeanor as extremely nervous at the interview Tuesday night, April 24, between Frank and L. A. Scott said that Frank hung his head, crossed and recrossed his legs, rubbed his face and his with one hand and then the other, and seemed not to know where to put his hands.

Rosser Griffin Scott.

Rosser, cross-examining Scott, made the detective admit that he had not told of these circumstances before the coroner's inquest and had not stated any of the conversation between Lee and Frank which he had just told to the Solicitor. Going further, he forced Scott to admit that he had said at the inquest that he had heard none of the conversation.

Scott told Dorsey that he had made a thorough search of the first floor of the factory soon after his services were engaged, and that he had found no ribbons, purses, pay envelopes or bloody stick which later was said to have been found near where Jim Conley was hiding, by Pinkerton operatives.

Scott said that he had looked for blood spots, but that most of the evidence of this sort had been chipped up before he entered the case.

Rosser and E. G. suggested a heated argument when Rosser called attention to the fact that the detective had not mentioned at the coroner's inquest Frank's alleged remark to regard to Gantt's intimacy with the Phagan girl.

Scott gave as his excuse that it was an oversight, or that he possibly had not been questioned on that matter by the coroner.

"I am not fool enough to give away the whole case in detail at a preliminary hearing, sir," added Scott, to R. F. Barrett, the machinist at the factory, who discovered the strand of hair on a lathe machine and spots resembling blood on the floor, was called to the stand at the conclusion of Monteen Stover's testimony.

Dorsey Quilness Scott.

Solicitor Dorsey started his questioning of Harry Scott with the

the narrative. "A very rapidly and...
"Noted Nothing Unusual."
"What about his breathing?" asked the Solicitor. "Well, between sentences, occasionally he took a deep breath."
"What about the expression of his eyes?" "I had never seen him before. The expression of his eyes was about as they are now."
"Frank, sitting a few feet away, wore the same cool expression he has had since the beginning. His face literally devoid of emotion. The expression of his unusual eyes was calm. Dorsey resumed his questioning."
"What else did he say?" "I suppose you have heard of the horrible murder in this factory. The directors and I have decided to employ you to find the murderer."
"Frank said he was surprised."
"What else did he say?" "He said he had just come from the police station and that the police, particularly Detective Hines, would be disappointed if he did not find the murderer."
"What else?" "He related his movements on the day of the murder. He said that he had the little girl lead 'Volney' on the state. He said that later he let Mrs. White out the factory at about 11 o'clock. She saw a negro sitting on a box at the foot of the stairway. Frank said he left the factory at 11:05 o'clock and went home for lunch. He said he returned from lunch at about 1:05 o'clock and went up to his office."
"Scott testified as readily as though he were reading a narrative."
"Give the jury a description of how Frank acted." "He acted perfectly natural."
"Rosser interrupted."
"Q. How do you know it was natural if you never saw him before?" "A. Just thought it was natural."
"Dorsey took up the questioning again."
"Q. How were his eyes?" "A. Large and piercing."
"Q. How was his breathing?" "A. Very deep."
"Q. Didn't you state to me—"
"Rosser interrupted."
"Q. What was Frank's attitude?" "A. He was composed."
"Dorsey said:
"Your honor, I want to refresh his memory. I was misinformed as to what the witness would testify."
"Attorney Rosser objected. "I am surprised at the evidence,"

the narrative. "A very rapidly and...
"How did the defendant state the time when Mary Phagan entered the factory?" "A. He said about 11:05 o'clock."
"What did Frank say if anything about hearing voices before she came?" "A. I don't recall."
"Dorsey addressed Judge (Robert) A. Lee."
"Q. Mr. Scott, did you furnish a report of this case to the defendant?" "A. Yes."
"Q. To whom?" "A. To R. Monteen, Herbert Haas and L. G. Rosser."
"Q. Did you furnish the State a readable copy like you did the defendant?" "A. I don't know. I read your exemplar."
"Rosser objected. "I object to anything like this, Your Honor. It is absolutely immaterial here. I object whether he furnished the defendant with the report."
"Not thinking of 'Tallmory'?" "Dorsey. "I beg, Your Honor, that this witness is not picking to his previous testimony and I have the right to refer to these reports to refresh his memory."
"Judge Haas. "Full your question, Mr. Dorsey."
"Q. Was it before or after 11 o'clock that Frank said he heard voices?" "A. (Scott read from his notes.) Frank told me that before 11 o'clock he heard voices outside his office."
"Rosser objected. "I object to his testimony."
"Mr. Scott, you can only refresh your memory from the notes," said the court.
"Scott refreshed his memory from his notes and said:
"I now state that Mr. Frank told me he heard those voices before 11 o'clock."
"Dorsey asked, "Before Mary Phagan came or not?" "A. Before."
"Q. Where?" "A. On the second floor."
"Dorsey asked, "How aware?" "Q. What did Frank say he did at home when he went home at 11:05 o'clock?" "A. He said he went home for lunch."
"Q. What if anything did Frank say in reference to Gantt?" "A. He said I, N. Gantt knew Mary Phagan very well and was intimate with her."
"Q. What if anything did Frank say about Gantt's attention to Mary Phagan?" "A. Nothing."
"Your honor," said Dorsey, "I suggest that if anything of these sorts of questions fall on me like a false note on the piano."
"Your honor," said Dorsey, "I

The reputations of Alfred Benjamin & Co.'s "Correct Clothes for Men," Hanan Shoes, and Manhattan and Gotham Shirts are too well established to need comment here. These and other celebrated lines will be put on sale to-morrow; and when our doors open there will be some choice picking. So come in early and get your share.

Hanan's and Other Fine Shoes for Men and Women

Every man and woman in Atlanta with taste enough to distinguish between the exceptional and the commonplace knows the enviable reputation enjoyed by Hanan Shoes. And those who have worn Hanan Shoes can attest their perfect comfort and splendid wearing qualities; for upon these two features, as much as on their exclusive stylishness, rests the popular favor accorded this dependable footwear. Hanan's and other popular makes will be included in the following offerings.

INTEREST AT RIVAL CENTERS ON WOMEN

PROBABLE TO BE SEEN IN COURTROOM SIDEWALK

By L. F. WOODRUFF

The men's hat is a brooding, no man can stand it without cursing. And still men stand, not one man, but scores of them on a blistered pavement gazing on a red brick building as unashamedly as a gorgon's head and look at nothing by the hour.

The mother of Leo Frank, who is at her son's side constantly

Go to Fryor and Hunter streets. You'll find a lady there. Leo Frank is being tried for the murder of Mary Phagan in the courtroom in a building on the northeast corner. The trial is progressing in a quiet, orderly manner. Sheriff Mangum's force is attending to that. Few persons not directly interested in the case are permitted in the courtroom. Outside are not even allowed on the same side of the street that angles on the building housing Atlanta's most famous criminal trial.

Old Scene Revisited

The same thing that Dickens wrote of a half century ago is being re-enacted in Atlanta in this courtroom of 1913. Hundreds of Atlantans are nervously looking toward the crack of the sound fence and seeing nothing. They are standing on that sun-burnt pavement gazing on a building just because in the four walls of that structure a man is fighting for his life, just because a fellow threatens a man accused of ending the life of a little girl they never saw, they never heard of, until her dead body was found, and the incriminated mystery was added to the criminal history of Georgia capital.

State Balloon Soars When Dorsey Cries 'Plaint'

By JAMES B. HEVLY

Poor John Black! With the unwitting assistance of the Bolinger general and the assistance of Father Rosser, he has found all the punch there was in Wednesday's story of the Frank trial.

In a murder case the defense has the right in the order of the battle goes against it to move for a new trial upon assignment of judicial error in the trial. The law is a narrow one and it is not to be construed liberally.

But if Frank was "nervous" does the State seek to establish the presumption against him therefore that his "nervousness" was occasioned by the thought of little Mary Phagan's death? They are in the gallery and Frank responded for it.

Does the State intend to establish the presumption here that Frank was not witness of the weight of guilt upon his soul, was dispirited and debilitated in his testimony, as indicated by the killing of little Mary Phagan?

What is the State's purpose? Why not that presumption as a matter of course? Why then does the State intend the jury shall believe from Rosser's evidence that Frank was not witness of the weight of guilt upon his soul?

3 Weather Officials, Moore's Aides, Out

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Secretary of Agriculture Houston today announced the dismissal of Daniel F. Carroll, chief clerk Executive Assistant Henry E. Steinhilber, professor of entomology at the Washington office of the weather bureau, and Rowland H. Pollock, section director at the weather bureau at Dayton, N. Y., because they had failed to respond to charges of impropriety.

Collapse of Testimony of Black Great Aid to Dorsey

Atlanta, July 31.—The collapse of the testimony of John Black, the witness who testified that he saw Mary Phagan's body, is a great aid to Dorsey's case.

Black's testimony was the only one that supported the State's case. His collapse is a great aid to Dorsey's case.

DR. ROSE FOUND ON TOP OF FACTORY FLOOR

was brought to my office by detective. I examined it thoroughly and particularly under the amplit. There was no odor as there would have been if it had been ever seen. The blood seemed to be smeared on. It was not on my shoe and not on the floor. It didn't look through the floor. Some spots were on the floor and some on the outside. The color had not faded and I had every appearance of having just been washed and not worn since.

Don't think a negro ever wore it. He is a negro with an objection. He is not competent to qualify as to the peculiar odor of a negro. I know about as much about that as the doctor. He said that the doctor had not sustained the objection. I told Dr. Smith to just state the facts. Dr. Rose gave the witness over to the doctor.

Dr. Rose Gives With Witness. Q. You said that down at the tail it seemed to be smeared from the inside? Couldn't the shirt be turned up and smeared on the inside from the outside? Of course. Q. Now if he had the odor of blood strong when you first saw it, didn't it have a strong odor? Q. Couldn't the odor have been so strong as to have killed the smell of a negro? A. No. Q. Wouldn't it depend on whose nose was smelling? A. Yes. Q. Couldn't a negro have put on that shirt and have taken it off quick without leaving any odor? A. I have known. I have seen a negro smell more negroes than I have.

Q. I have a question. I have smelled many a negro. I have smelled them and smelled them before you were born. Found Blood on Chimp. Q. I was that said Dr. Smith. Q. You say you found blood on one of the shirts? A. Yes. Q. Which one? A. I don't remember. I worked with them all together. Q. If there had been any blood on the shirt you would have found it? A. I don't know that I would. Q. How long will it take for blood to stain a shirt? A. It could stain.

Q. Your best estimate, then? A. Why, I have kept blood in my laboratory for years. Q. You say you found blood on the shirt of one of the men? Q. Can you count those corpuscles as they you can apply? A. No. Q. You can count them? A. Yes. I don't know. I don't try to count them.

Thunder Interrupts Court. Q. Give us your best estimate? A. I am not a doctor. I am a specialist. Q. You are a forensic expert? Q. How soon did you find the blood? Q. I observed it, I haven't seen it. I was on the case of death. I began as soon after death as the next day. Q. How long after death did you find the blood? A. I was somewhere about 10 or 15 hours after death. But it depends on so many things.

Thunder drowned out Mr. Rose's question several times. The rain poured down and the procedure was interrupted for a moment when court attendants pulled down the window. It was hard to keep order during Mr. Rose's comments about the negro's odor and the corporation of blood corpuscles to apples. Frank and his mother both smiled at these remarks and Mrs. Frank was quite amused.

Mr. Rose's father asked Dr. Smith to explain why the blood could not have been on the inside of the shirt as Mr. Rose suggested. It might have. He illustrated his point before the jury. Chief of Detectives Newport. A. Linton stepped up to see clearly. It was above the waistline about six inches from the armpit on the back of the shirt.

Rose Gives Demonstration. Q. Could it have been on the inside of this shirt? A. No. Mr. Rose again took up the question. Q. Doctor, if I had had blood on the front of this shirt and had taken the shirt on and doubled it up, couldn't you get the blood on the inside of the back? Mr. Rose had the shirt in both hands. He walked toward the jury. You have been given some strange opinions. Now I want you to give me some. I will be forced if I couldn't have it. A. Let me explain.

Dr. Smith got down out of the witness chair and walked toward Mr. Rose. "I don't want you to explain," returned Rose. "I want you to answer my question." A. The way the shirt came to me, the blood was melted on in such a way that that could not have been done. Q. Couldn't it have been folded like this and blood got on the inside? A. I am not an expert on folding, but I don't think it could.

Rose is sarcastic. "You are not an expert," said Rose. "The way you were educated, theory about this folding, I thought you were better. An expert would have my opinion that you do not know more about it than some of these jurors." A. No, perhaps I don't know as

Copper Strikers Ask 'Mother' Jones' Help

CALUMET, Mich., July 31.—A telegram was sent to the headquarters of the United Mine Workers of America asking that "Mother" Jones, the leader of a dozen mine strikes, be sent to the Calumet copper region, where 14,000 union miners are idle. She is working among the miners at the Point Creek and Cabin Creek districts.

metal room?—A. He surely was. He was familiar with every part of the building. Dr. Rose began the re-direct examination. Q. How far from the elevator did Denham and White work?—A. About thirty feet. Q. Didn't I ask you if you looked the elevator Sunday?—A. I don't know. Q. How is it that the stenographer got it down that you said you did and you signed it?—A. I don't remember then that I did any sawing for White and Denham.

Q. Didn't you say you put the key in the office?—A. I don't remember any sawing I don't remember any sawing. I haven't asked you anything about the key on May 11 that you swore before me on May 11 that you put the key in the office in the regular place? Why didn't you leave the key in the elevator so it would be in the room?—A. Had forgot about the sawing. Q. You say these cords were all about over the building?—A. Yes. Q. What was the use of them in the basement?—A. None except to hang the clothes in the wash.

Here Attorney Arnold took the witness. Q. Was the lock on the elevator a key lock?—A. Yes. Q. Was the lock on the elevator a key lock?—A. Yes. Q. Was the lock on the elevator a key lock?—A. Yes. Q. Was the lock on the elevator a key lock?—A. Yes.

Ruling on Affidavit. Solicitor Dorsey said he wanted to tender in the records the signed statement of Holloway. Attorney Arnold objected, claiming the statement had been admitted by Holloway in his testimony on the stand. The judge looks like a chamber pot, said Mr. Rose. Judge Jones ruled that if Holloway admitted signing the affidavit it was admissible. If not, then let the stand but was dismissed. Dr. Rose asked him if that was his signature to the affidavit. "That's my signature," answered Holloway. "You said you looked the elevator?" "There isn't nothing about no sawing in there," Holloway replied. Deputy Sheriff Miner was forced to rap loudly to stop the laughter. Attorney for the defense asked Dr. Rose to stop the laughter. "I guess I did."

Judge Jones ruled that the single portion of the affidavit could be admitted. Attorney for the defense asked the jury if they were being cared for in a reasonable way. "Have you any complaint to make," Juror Winburn replied that he had a slight complaint to make about their rooms but that the sheriff had adjusted it. adjourned.

NEW AUTO PATROL IS BOUGHT BY CITY

First of Two Extra Cars Authorized Will Be Put in Use September 1.

September officers against Atlanta's ordinances will have the pleasure of journeying to the station house in a new automobile, the sub-committee of the Police Commission having purchased one Thursday morning. One of the auto patrols now in use, plus $2,100, was traded in for the new machine. The new machine is a White gasoline car and the local agency has 30 days in which to deliver it.

Commissioner King, Garner, McEachern and Colcock with Chief Beavers, made the selection of the new wagon. The car will be put into service Tuesday. The sub-committee of the Commission's faculty approved that it might be appropriate to give "September Men" the first ride. The purchase of two auto patrols has been authorized by the Atlanta City Council, but owing to the lack of funds the second one will not be purchased at once. The next one will be a cheaper and smaller car.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 31.—Memphis appeared the center of a Southern heat wave today that threatened to reach the highest record for 1918. At 8 o'clock a record thermometer registered 103. The police found an unidentified white man suffering from heat prostration early in the day. He was sent to City Hospital and died later. It was the first prostration from heat since 1912.
