CONLEY'S STORY IS RE-ENACTED BY DEFENSE TO DISPROVE IT

The diagram shows how the defense re-enacted the disposition of Mary Phagan's body as described by Jim Conley to prove that it could not have been done in the time specified. The defense's men had a 107-foot panel representing the body and re-

FRANK NERVOUS, MONTAG ADMITS, 'ANDS, WAS, TOO'

Continued From Page 1. I was," she testified that Conley said when she asked him on the Monday after the crime if he had been in the factory at the time the murder was committed. She also said that Conley had appeared greatly startled when Mrs. Carson, her mother, had said in his presence that she thought they would find the murderer when they found the negro that Mrs. Arthur White saw at the foot of the stairs. Two more character witnesses, Harry E. Lewis, of Brooklyn, former District Attorney of New York, and Herbert Lehner, of St. Paul, N. Y., a classmate of Frank's at Cornell, testified that they knew the defendant well and that they knew his character to be very good. Jim Montag, of Monticello, treasurer of the National Pencil Company, told of his part in the hiring of the Pinks and of Frank's demand the Sunday the body of the girl was found. He testified, in relation of Jim Conley's story about watching at the front door at the direction of Frank, that the first floor on occasions when Conley told was the property of the Clark Wood-wards Company, and that it was used by the pencil company only as an entrance. Montag was asked by Dorsey just before he left the stand if he tried several times to get a horse and buggy the afternoon of April 23 from W. H. Brown, a West End liverman. The witness said he had not. "But you know that Kress' store was closed all of Saturday afternoon, April 23?" "It wasn't closed at the time I went there in the afternoon," she replied. The attorney also sought to show her the crowds were so dense that she thought she could not have been likely to see Frank. "Miss Curran was the first of a long line of wild witnesses for Frank still after he is called to prevent to the jury a second of the defendant's every movement throughout the day so far as I am known. Important Battle Lost by Defense An important battle was lost by the defense in the Frank trial Thursday in the over-ruling of Luther Rosser's motion for the opening of Holliester's questions of the day before relating to Frank alleged acts of immorality. The defeat of Attorney Rosser came immediately after Solicitor Dorsey's motion for the opening of Holliester's mother and wife excluded from the courtroom because of the after woman's scandalous conduct of the afternoon before, when she dramatically denounced the Holliester father charge of sexually impure conduct against her son, the defendant. Judge Horn refused the motion of the Holliester, but said that he would refuse them admission if another outburst of the sort took place. With the preliminary stipulations of the day applied, the defense set out with great minuteness to complete its record of Frank's movements throughout the day of the crime. Miss Helen Curran, No. 149 Ashby street, testified that she saw Frank near Jacob's drug store, Whitehall and Alabama streets, at 1:10 o'clock Saturday afternoon apparently waiting for his car home. Saw Frank Get Off Car. Mrs. Albert P. Levy, No. 69 East Georgia avenue, swore that she saw Frank get off his car on Georgia avenue at about 1:30 o'clock the afternoon of the crime. Mrs. M. C. Michael, of Athens, Ga., testified that she saw Frank at the residence of Mrs. C. Wolfshelm, No. 217 Washington street, three blocks from Georgia avenue, and that Frank came to the steps at about 2 o'clock to speak to her, leaving a moment later to get a Washington street car at Glenn street. Jerome Mitchell, son of the previous witness, testified that he was on the steps at the time and that Frank walked up the street between 1:55 and 2 o'clock. Mrs. Wolfshelm, who lives at No. 217 Washington street, said she saw Frank at that time. Frank took No. 216 Washington street car at 2:10 o'clock. J. Cohen took No. 445 Washington street, told the jury he rode past to town with Frank and that the defendant boarded the Washington street car at about 2 o'clock. Mrs. Rebecca Carson, of factory employer testified to seeing Frank on the street at 2:30 and also at 3:30. Solicitor Dorsey, before the jury was brought in, said he wanted to make a request that the mother and wife of Leo M. Frank be excluded from the court as the witnesses have been because of the outburst of the elder Mrs. Frank Wednesday afternoon. "I appreciate the feeling of the wife and mother," he said; "it is a terrible strain on them. I am sorry for them. But I must have protection and I think they should be excluded even as we are subjected to outbreaks like this yesterday." Attorney Rosser in reply said: "Without criticizing Mrs. Frank, I want to state that the Solicitor's examination of the witness yesterday was far worse than her outburst. He was undertaking to get in evidence in an illegal way. He could not get it in a legal way. He was appealing to the crowd and to the feeling of the jury. Does your honor think that good practice—honorable practice—especially when a man is in trial for his life?" Arnold Calls Dorsey Overzealous. "My friend is zealous—he is a little overzealous, I think, but it is no matter for me to criticize. Your honor, our jury system is very laudable. I was admitted this sort of evidence. They are good men, but simple men. It is hard for them to distinguish between things that condemn a man and things that prove him guilty. I would not say that the conduct of the Solicitor is illegal, but it is a little more culpable than the act of Mrs. Jones. It is a pretty pass if a man's wife and mother are to be heard at the hour of his trial. The evidence of the State was put in to poison the minds of the jury. It was heard to bring a charge of sexually impure conduct shall not occur again. We will do all we can to prevent a recurrence." "Your honor, I am trying to do my duty. I want to protect myself and the court. You have excluded other women. There is no reason why these should be allowed to remain to offend the dignity of the court. An accused man should not be allowed to bankrupt his wife and mother. Mr. Arnold criticizes my act. The courts are not a mere board of men. I am a lawyer to express his opinion on the evidence. Mr. Arnold has branded his evidence as lies before I put these good women on the stand." Judge Horn ruled, after more argument: "You are entirely right, Mr. Dorsey, in saying that they are entitled to protection. One woman was put out because the evidence was of such a nature as to be likely to be heard by them. It is a matter for the discretion of the court to state whether these ladies should be allowed to remain. I will say that if there are any more such outbreaks as there are any such shall be forced to exclude them." Mrs. Frank, the mother, and the father were both in court when the argument was in progress. Girl Says She Saw Frank on Street at 1:10. Miss Helen K. Curran was the first witness called. She is a very attractive-looking girl, about 18 years old. Q. Where do you live?—149 Ashby street. Q. When you took a car to work, did you go to the National

DEFENSE SURFS REBEL BY MAKING CHARACTER OF LEO FRANK AN ISSUE

The defense in the Frank case did the expected thing when it boldly and unambiguously put Frank's character in issue.

It indicated its confidence in the justice of the independent case in doing that, and it met this crisis that it hardly could have successfully overcome otherwise, if it is to be expected that it goes over to it eventually.

Having taken the initiative in the matter of throwing out Frank's character, the State will not be likely to make out an unimpeachable case of bad character against Frank, or to likely that the State's objection of the slither charge against him, in addition to the charge of murder, may operate as a humbling to the State's great hurt finally.

It is not to be wondered at that the defendant's mother, tried and needed in April and prize as she surely must have been, should have let her feelings overcome her for an instant during the course of Wednesday afternoon's hearing.

The vehement protest against the vile things being said and hinted about her boy—true or untrue, though such things always are untrue mother love, I take it—seems to illustrate, however, how very vital to the defense now is the establishing of Frank's good character.

I doubt that anything thus far said to the jury has so profoundly improved it as the unimpeachable thing, the only said of the defendant, that the jury is only human, and it can no more judge impressions than other people can.

Impression Must Be Gained. The defense is up against the heretofore lack of conviction of all that is implied from the mind of the jury—the worse minds of the jury, indeed—for it will not do to leave even a fraction of Conley's story undismembered.

Staunchly, therefore, the defense could not, if it would, keep away altogether from the matter of Frank's character. It found itself necessarily referred to the other attacks of his.

ONE OF THE FIFTY NEW WITNESSES SUMMONED BY THE PROSECUTION

Miss Fannin Atherion, who has been called to aid the State.

It is not to be wondered at that the defendant's mother, tried and needed in April and prize as she surely must have been, should have let her feelings overcome her for an instant during the course of Wednesday afternoon's hearing.

The vehement protest against the vile things being said and hinted about her boy—true or untrue, though such things always are untrue mother love, I take it—seems to illustrate, however, how very vital to the defense now is the establishing of Frank's good character.

I doubt that anything thus far said to the jury has so profoundly improved it as the unimpeachable thing, the only said of the defendant, that the jury is only human, and it can no more judge impressions than other people can.

Frank's Mother Resents Questioning of Dorsey

The calling of four character witnesses Wednesday morning to the stand for the State to aid before the jury all of its accusations against Frank, and was the direct cause of Mrs. Frank's mother's outburst.

It was the first scene created by any of the members of the prisoner's family. Frank's wife and mother were deeply affected when the Solicitor General brought against the defendant.

From the lips of the Solicitor General flowed a stream of implied accusations. He asked about Dorsey's character, and about Dorsey's character, and about Dorsey's character.

The mother of Frank looked at her son with a look of indignation. She was in doubt whether the look of indignation which she had on her face had been intended for her son or for the State.

She was on her feet. The courtroom was agitated. The mother of Frank looked at her son with a look of indignation. She was in doubt whether the look of indignation which she had on her face had been intended for her son or for the State.

CLASSMATES OF FRANK HERE TO TESTIFY HIS CHARACTER IS GOOD

NEGRO DRUNK DAY OF CRIME, MISS CARSON SWEARS HE TOLD HER

National Guard Command to Obey Lieutenant Governor—Executive Told of Impeachment.

Anderson Accused of Having Exceeded His Authority—Rules Committee Also Scored.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 14.—Formal notice was served on Governor William Sulzer today that he had been impeached by the New York State Assembly for "high crimes and misdemeanors," including the alleged use of money contributed to his campaign for reelection in Wall street.

Charging that President Randolph Anderson has usurped power as acting officer of the State Senate, and adding further that the Senate Rules Committee, which is appointed by the President, is a "fraud and a cheat and a swindle on the public," Fred Lee, Senator from the Eleventh District, Thursday declared he would raise a question of personal privilege to stop his charges when the Senate convenes for its final session at 3 o'clock.

R. A. WRIGHT. PHILIP NASH. A. L. LANE.

Miss Helen Curran, a pretty girl of 17 years, provided one of the strongest witnesses Thursday for the defense in establishing what will be claimed as an alibi for Frank M. Frank. She testified that she saw Frank at 11 o'clock the afternoon Mary Phagan was murdered standing by Jacobs' Drug Store, Whitehall and Alabama streets, apparently waiting for his car home.

The State fought hard against the "alibi" witnesses. The defense devoted most of the forenoon session to producing persons who had seen Frank on the day of the tragedy. Miss Curran was probably the most important of these as she was the only one who professed to have seen Frank immediately after the time he has stated he left the factory.

Others were called who saw him as he arrived home at about 1:20 o'clock, or as he was on his way back to the factory later in the afternoon. It was the purpose of Frank's lawyers to show that they could account for every minute of his time during the day.

Appreciating that the case of the State against Frank was a determined effort to confess or break down the young man, but failed to shake her in the least.

The significance of the girl's testimony is apparent in the story of Jim Conley's story. The negro said he and Frank were in the street, he would have had to leave the building at 10:30. That would have left but 15 minutes for the two to disappear into the back and do everything else the negro insisted.

Conley testified that he was in the closet in Frank's office eight minutes. This would have reduced the remaining time to 40 minutes. Part of this was occupied in writing the notes Conley says.

Thirty-two Minutes to Disposal of Body. The negro says he "wrote the four pages in 150 minutes, two minutes would have been left for the disposal of the body. That Harry Ross, Pinkerton detective, said, "Conley took six or seven minutes to write one page, and could have written the shorter note that was easily by the slain girl's hand. The defense contended that this in view of Miss Curran's testimony, puts Conley's story in the realm of the impossible.

Miss Curran (Mrs.) also lived at No. 149 Albany street and that she knew Frank (from 1910 to 1912) in position as stenographer at the factory one time. She said that on the day she saw Frank he had an appointment to meet a girl friend at Jacobs' store at 1:15. She left Jacobs' store at 1:30, she testified, and had been at Jacobs' only a short time when she observed Frank.

Attorney Hoover brought out the fact that her father is employed by Monroe Jones, who also is employed in the pencil factory. He asked her to account for the explanation of the fact that she had seen Frank at the pencil factory at 1:15, and at Jacobs' store at 1:30.

Dr. W. L. Bickard to Preach in Atlanta. Dr. W. L. Bickard, of Savannah, one of the best known preachers in the South, will preach at the First Baptist Church, Leitch and Cain streets, at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. next Sunday. The subject in the morning will be, "The Love of God," and in the evening "Loving the Earth."

First Game Postponed. The baseball game between the Crackers and the Braves, which was scheduled for today, was postponed because of a heavy rain. The game will be played on Saturday.

Mr. Sulzer is Praised. Official notice to quit the duties of Governor was tendered to Governor Sulzer by Patrick H. McCabe, of the Senate. Mrs. Sulzer, who is prostrated over the attack made upon her husband's honesty, was in a serious condition today. Doctors were rushed from New York City to attend her. Accompanied by a bodyguard of strong-arm men, Governor Sulzer walked from the Executive Mansion to the Capitol shortly before noon. Asked for a statement, he said: "Not a word. I am now in the hands of my counsel."

A special detail of policemen also was provided for the Governor's safety.

Awful Ruling of Court. Governor Sulzer told friends he would not relinquish the reins of power until removed by the Court of Impeachment, composed of the Senate and a majority of the Judges of the State Court of Appeals, which will sit September 15.

A number of friends greeted the Governor after he arrived at the Capitol. In answer to inquiries about the condition of Mrs. Sulzer, he said: "The doctor is optimistic. We are greatly concerned. She has been hysterical and during the night was in a state of nervous collapse."

In spite of this pathetic feature of the political enemies of the Governor, it did not lessen their efforts. On the other hand, it seemed that the bitterness had increased. With the details of the actual service of the Governor out of the way, everybody settled back to watch the fight for the possession of the office of Governor.

President Sends No Message to Sulzer. WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—The White House has seen no word either in notice or sympathy to Governor Sulzer on the screen crisis in his career. Rumors that the President was incensed in the situation met a stern denial today.

Hart Appointment Indorsed by House. A resolution indorsing Governor Hinton's appointment of John C. Hart as Tax Commissioner was introduced into the House today morning by Judge Hopkins, of Indiana, and passed unanimously.

The resolution is reported that "it is the opinion of the House that it is more judiciously to appoint a man who has been under the thumb of the people of Georgia upon this most excellent appointment."

War on Misbranded Soft Drinks Opened. WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—In an effort to protect the public from misbranded products the Department of Agriculture has issued certain new foodstuffs.

RICH DECATUR MAN SUICIDE BY POISON

A. J. Grubb, a wealthy contractor and hotelier, living at the old Mill household, No. 158 Dekalb avenue, North Decatur, committed suicide shortly before noon Thursday by taking strychnine. He had been depressed for several days over business affairs and also was in failing health. His favorite sister, Mrs. Sophie Smith, died Tuesday, and this seemed to affect Grubb deeply.

The funeral of Mr. Smith was held Thursday morning, but Grubb said that he did not feel well and would not attend. Harvey Grubb, his 19-year-old son, worrying about his father, also stayed away from the funeral services.

About 10 o'clock Mr. Grubb went to a drug store near his home and purchased a vial of strychnine, stating that he wanted to poison a dog shortly after he returned to the house, his son, Harvey, found the father sitting on the bed. He at once called the nearby hospital and an ambulance made a record run to the Grubb home. It was too late, however, as Mr. Grubb died in the ambulance.

Mr. Grubb was one of the pioneer citizens of North Decatur, and had been a successful business man. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Grubb; one daughter, Mrs. J. Pierce, and four sons, Jack, Harvey, William and Claude Grubb.

Asks Women Be Excluded.

Solicitor Thomas, before the jury was brought in, said he wanted to make a request that the mother and wife of Leo M. Frank be excluded from the court as the witnesses have been because of the outbreak of the older Mrs. Frank Wednesday afternoon.

"I appreciate the feeling of the wife and mother," he said, "it is a terrible strain on them. I am sure for them but I must have protection and I think they should be excluded when we are subjected to outbreaks like that yesterday."

Attorney Arnold in reply said that without excluding Mrs. Frank, I want to state that the Solicitor's examination of the witness yesterday was far worse than her outbreak here in an illegal way. He could not get in to the legal way. He was speaking to the crowd and to the friends of the jury. They you honor this that good practice—honorable practice—especially when a man is on trial for his life.

Arnold Overruling.

DEFENSE SHIFTS BURDEN BY MAKING CHARACTER OF LEO FRANK AN ISSUE

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

The defense in the Frank case did the expected thing when it boldly and unequivocally put Frank's character in issue.

It indicated its confidence in the justice of the defendant's cause in doing that, and it met thus a crisis that it hardly could have successfully overcome otherwise, if it so happen that it does overcome it eventually.

Having taken the initiative in the matter of throwing out Frank's character, the State will now be forced to make out a complete case of bad character against Frank, or it is likely that the State's indictment of the sinister charge against him, in addition to the charge of murder, may prove as a boomerang to the State's great hurt family.

It is not to be wondered at that the defendant's mother, tried and racked to agony and grief as she surely must have been, should have had her feelings overcome her for an instant during the course of Wednesday afternoon's hearing. I do not suppose it is even remotely possible for any person not a mother to understand all she has gone through.

Her vehement protest against the vile things being said and heard about her boy—her own untrue, though such things always are untrue, though mother love, I take it, serves to illustrate, however, how very vital to the defense now is the establishing of Frank's good character.

I doubt that anything thus far said to the jury has so profoundly impressed it as the unexpected thing Conley said of the defendant. The jury is only human, and it can no more doggedly ignore the impressions of other people can.

Impression Must Be Erased. The defense is up against the herculean task of removing all of that impression from the mind of the jury—the twelve minds of the jury, indeed—for it will not do to leave even a fraction of Conley's story undisturbed.

Moreover, therefore, the defense could not, if it could, get away at all together from the matter of Frank's character. It found itself necessarily forced to the other extreme of the situation set up by the State. The State, on the other hand, by reason of the defense's challenging attitude in the matter of forcing the issue of Frank's character, must now corroborate the criminal story of Conley, or I think it may suffer before the jury irreparable harm.

Curiously enough, the burden of proof in the Frank case seems to have been shifted a week ago—that is, the State has taken the burden of proof into its own hands. It is the State's burden to make its case, and it is the State's burden to make its case, and it is the State's burden to make its case.

As the State moved in the beginning of the Frank trial, steadily and consistently to the right, every step made as the witness of the State, to-day the defense is moving, very much as the State, and as a result, the defendant, Leo Frank, is the only one who has been forced to make a statement to the jury, and it is the State's burden to make its case.

The jury alone and finally is made the sole judge of the defendant's credibility on the stand. It is not to be wondered at that the State, in its attempt to make its case, has been forced to the other extreme of the

How the Remedy for Catarrh Was Discovered

THE terrible disease has troubled me for years simply because symptoms have been treated while the cause of the trouble has been left to circulate in the blood, and bring the disease back as fast as local treatments could relieve it.

C. E. Gustus, who experimented for years on a treatment for Catarrh, found that after perfecting a lotion that relieved the nose and throat quickly, he could not prevent the trouble from beginning all over again.

On that case, he could completely remove all signs of Catarrh from nose and throat, but in a few weeks they were back.

Frank's Mother Resents Questioning of Dorsey

The calling of four character witnesses Wednesday opened the door for the State to ask before the jury the most abhorrent charges against Frank and his mother.

It was the first time created by any of the members of the jury's family. Frank's wife and mother were present and the more I reflect upon that observation, the more I am inclined to believe that it was a mistake.

It is unlikely that the public would have been so interested in the trial if it had not been for the fact that the State has been so interested in the trial.

S. Smith Says Coast Route Means Much to South--Senate Indorses American's Plan.

The committee inaugurated by Hearst's Sunday American for an all-Southern highway stretching from Atlanta to San Francisco received another boost Tuesday when Shelby Smith, chairman of the Fulton County Board of Commissioners, declared the project to be an epoch in the history of the South.

"The proposed highway from Atlanta to San Francisco," said Mr. Smith, "is a splendid and most important step toward the development of our South. It will mean a new era of progress and prosperity for our people."

Each State, as well as each town all across the route, is bound to be materially benefited by this mammoth highway. We have many railroads in the United States, but how many roads have we in Georgia? It is our duty to build a road that will connect our people with the rest of the world.

Threatens to Call Out Militia to Prevent Removal as Governor After Impeachment.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 14.--For the first time in history, New York State today has two Governors. Although impeached by the Assembly by a vote of 75 to 48, Governor William Sulzer refuses to give up office and threatens to call out the National Guard to prevent his removal.

Mr. Sulzer told his friends he would send a special message to the Legislature, when it convened on August 19, to test his authority as acting Governor. The foundation of such a test would be the fact that the National Guard was called out to prevent his removal.

Governor Sulzer today began an active preparation of the defense he will make when arraigned before the court of impeachment, which will consist of the Senate and a majority of the judges of the State Court of Appeals.

Mr. Sulzer declared that his intention was to remain in office until the end of his term. He will call out the militia to prevent his removal from office.

MR. HEARST TELLS WHY HE HAS NOT PUT OIL LETTERS BEFORE LOBBY PROBERS

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 13.—The following is a letter from Mr. William Randolph Hearst in reply to a letter sent to him by Congressman Clyde H. Tavenner asking Mr. Hearst to put the Standard Oil letters before the Garrett lobby investigation committee in the house of representatives.

Dear Sir: Did you write me a letter and make the letter public, asking me to submit all the Standard Oil letters that I have in my possession to the House Committee now investigating the charges of lobbying made by a certain Mulhall?

I would be very glad to submit again to the congressional committee or to any responsible body, the Standard Oil letters which I have already submitted many times to the public and to bodies which more or less accurately and 'sincerely' represent the public.

The Mulhall letters and charges were offered to one of my magazines, the one that published the Standard Oil letters, but the editors of the magazine were agreed that we did not want to diminish or discredit the effect of these gossamer letters by the publication of Mulhall's letters which, so far as we are less sincere and sincere.

The Standard Oil letters can not be denied because there always have been additional documents to disprove every item made to confuse and confound every fabricator.

Very sincerely yours, WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

DEFENSE SLIPS ROAD BY PUTTING UP CHARACTER OF LEO FRANK AS ISSUE

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

The defense in the Frank case did the expected thing when it boldly and unequivocally put Frank's character in issue.

It indicated its confidence in the justice of the State's case in doing that, and it met thus a crisis that it hardly could have anticipated, overcoming otherwise, if it so happens that it does succeed in its conviction.

Having taken the initiative in the matter of throwing out Frank's character, the State will now be forced to make out an unimpeachable case of a sane man who committed a crime of which the State's evidence is sufficient to establish the guilt of the defendant.

It is not to be wondered at that the defendant's mother, tried and carried in spirit and pride as the worthy nurse have been, should have had her feelings overcome her for an instant during the course of the hearing. I do not suppose it is even remotely possible for any person to see another in the state of mind that she was in.

Her violent protest against the State's case, and her subsequent outburst for things always an unkind mother love, I take it to be a tribute, however, how very vital to the defense was the establishing of Frank's good character.

I doubt that anything that she said to the jury has so profoundly affected it as the unimpeachable thing she said of the defendant.

The defense is in a position to have the task of convincing all the jurors of the guilt of the defendant, for it will not do to leave even a fraction of Conley's story unimpeached.

Manifestly, therefore, the defense could not, if it would, get away together from the matter of Frank's character. It found itself necessarily forced to the extreme of the situation at the very beginning.

The State, on the other hand, in view of the defendant's character, could not, if it would, get away from the matter of Frank's character. It found itself necessarily forced to the extreme of the situation at the very beginning.

BATTLE TO SPEECH SULZER WON

Defeated by Friends, He Waits Through the Night, Comforted by Wife.

ALBANY, Aug. 13.—The Court of Impeachment will meet at the Capital September 18 at 10 o'clock.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 13.—Governor William Sulzer was impeached by the New York Assembly today by a vote of 73 to 66. The specific charges in the indictment of "high crimes and misdemeanors" was that he used money contributed to his reelection for speculation in Wall street.

The vote was taken at 11:15 o'clock after a night of agonized waiting. Wall street had claimed many victims, both high and low, but few cases have afforded more pathetic spectacle than that of Governor Sulzer.

To prevent violence produced by the pro-seulzer committee, which showed that Governor Sulzer had used money contributed to his reelection for speculation in Wall street.

Friends Make Hard Fight. Governor Sulzer's friends, including Republicans, Democrats and one lone Progressive, made a hard fight, but the antagonists were strong in numbers and logic and were able to prevail.

While the all-night battle raged Governor Sulzer remained calm in the executive mansion. "The people's house" as he called it, refused to see any one or to be seen.

Governor Sulzer will be tried by the Senate and a majority of the judges of the state court of appeals, the evidence being presented against him by managers appointed by the Assembly.

Directly after the vote had been taken in the Assembly, Speaker Smith appointed Assemblymen Van Wert, Cole and Hendley to inform the Senate officially of the impeachment.

Speaker Smith announced also that no time would be taken in preparing articles of impeachment for presentation to the court, but Mr. Sulzer has twenty days in which to prepare his defense.

DEFENSE LETS DOWN ALL BARS FOR ATTACK ON FRANK'S CHARACTER

Mrs. Rae Frank, mother of Leo Frank, caused a dramatic scene in court Wednesday afternoon by rising in her chair and denouncing Solicitor Dorsey as he was making charges of gross improper conduct on the part of Frank with young girls in his factory.

Mrs. Frank stood into hysterics by the accusations against her son, rose, trembling with fury, from her chair, and shrieked: "No, no, you filthy thief!"

She shook her finger at the Solicitor and would have continued had she not been restrained by her husband and counsel. Frank himself sought to calm her, but she young man, Frank joined in the efforts to quiet the older woman.

Other prominent citizens, including Shelby Smith, County Commissioner, have placed their hearty stamp of approval on the project.

It is pointed out that the proposed route has exceeded the federal regulations of the good roads and highway boosters, who are leaving no stone unturned to make the transcontinental path leading thru a success in every particular.

Perhaps the busiest of the boosters is "Whittaker" Ferguson, who will conduct the big campaign. Mr. Ferguson arrived in Atlanta last Saturday and since that time he has gone into every detail of it.

The parade will be one of the largest ever witnessed in Atlanta. Among those who will participate will be the Chief of Police, the P. M. C. Club, various city officials and other prominent citizens.

It is pointed out that the proposed route has exceeded the federal regulations of the good roads and highway boosters, who are leaving no stone unturned to make the transcontinental path leading thru a success in every particular.

The water sprang through the floor and the ceiling over Taft Hall, causing the great fire that has already done the thousands of dollars worth of damage in the storehouse of the army over Taft Hall.

It is pointed out that the proposed route has exceeded the federal regulations of the good roads and highway boosters, who are leaving no stone unturned to make the transcontinental path leading thru a success in every particular.

BOTH SIDES AIM FOR JUSTICE IN THE TRIAL OF FRANK

With Judge, Jury and Conciliators Performing Duty Well, Square Deal Is Assured.

By Jas. B. Nevin. In considering the Frank trial, particularly with respect to the jurors...

As Frank Hooper himself has said, these jurors that he is not more of a question...

The Solicitor General, Hugh M. Dorey, is entitled to full and complete justice for the case...

It must be conceded that he is utterly conscientious and sincere in his endeavor to convict Frank...

The Solicitor has made out a most impressive case against Frank, moreover...

With such circumstances and positive facts as he thinks he possesses...

No man can make me believe that Hugh Dorey would, for an instant, seek to bring upon Leo Frank the awful charge of murder...

In making out his case against Frank Dorey took his time—he employed ten days to establish his contention...

He was right in doing that, it is required, in the matter of justice, that much time, it was clearly in order for Frank's friends...

WOMEN OF FACTORY DECLARE LEO FRANK'S CHARACTER IS GOOD

Mrs. Rao Frank, mother of Leo Frank, was called to the stand late Friday afternoon to testify in behalf of her son, who is on trial for his life.

A letter written by Leo Frank April 26 to his uncle, M. Frank, who was in New York at the time, was produced by Luther Rosser for Mrs. Frank to identify as being read in her presence April 28.

A bitter legal wrangle immediately ensued, Attorney Hooper protesting its admission on the ground that it was self-serving and might have been written for the very purpose of shifting suspicion from himself.

The letter is said to be dated 7 p. m., April 26, and in it Frank is said to have described the Memorial Day parade.

A stir was created when Mrs. Frank took the stand. She was called at 5:30, just at the time an adjournment was expected. She was entirely composed.

Judge Boan, after both sides had argued at length, ruled that the letter was admissible.

Women Workers Defend Frank. Attorney Reuben Arnold announced Friday afternoon that he was going to call Mary on the fourth floor of the National Pencil Factory and many on the other floors to testify to Frank's conduct about the factory and to the nature of his relations with his employees.

Mrs. E. H. Carson was the first woman to be asked in regard to Frank's attitude to her, and Miss Mary Pick the next. Both said Frank had acted as a gentleman. Miss Pick said she accused Conley of the crime, and that he immediately disappeared.

Two weeks before Mary Phagan was killed Leo Frank had her at one side of the factory away from her machine while she was endeavoring to get back to work, according to the intimation carried in a question by Solicitor Dorsey to Miss Pick. The Solicitor asked the witness if she had not known this to occur. Miss Pick said she had never observed it. Dorsey asked if she had not seen Frank frequently call Mary to one side and at other times take liberties with the other girls. She denied all of this.

Tells of Conley's Suspicious Actions. Mrs. Carson, who is the mother of Miss Rebecca Carson, one of Thursday's witnesses, told Friday afternoon of actions of Jim Conley after the murder of Mary Phagan which she regarded as highly suspicious.

She said she saw Conley Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday mornings after the crime, and each time said to him, in a joking way: "Well, they haven't got you yet, Jim."

Mrs. Carson said that on Thursday Conley answered angrily: "No, I ain't do nothing."

"Neither his Mr. Frank, but they've got him," Mrs. Carson replied, and then added: "When they get the real murderer, it will be the negro Mrs. Arthur White saw when she entered the factory Saturday afternoon."

Mrs. Carson said that the negro dropped his broom and that she did not see him again that day. Negro Helper Testifies for Frank. Walter Price, a negro helper at the pencil factory, testified that he had worked many Saturday afternoons at the factory and that he never had seen women in Frank's office at these times, as Jim Conley had testified. Price also swore that he never saw Conley watching at the front door. Conley said on the witness stand that he frequently stayed at the front door to prevent persons going upstairs while Frank had women visitors. Price said he would not believe Conley on oath.

The State's theory of premeditation in the murder of Mary Phagan was vigorously opposed Friday afternoon in the Frank trial by the testimony of Harry Gottlieb, a traveling salesman for Montag Bros. and the National Pencil Factory. Gottlieb testified that he was at Montag Bros. Saturday forenoon, April 28, and that he talked to Frank three shortly after 10 o'clock. The witness said Frank asked him to come over to the pencil factory for a short while. Gottlieb was not certain that

FRANK, WIFE AND MOTHER CALM AS END OF TRIAL NEARS

COURTROOM THROGGED AGAIN AT PROSPECT OF DEFENDANT TESTIFYING

EVERYWHERE YOU GO

By Bert Green

he could get over to the factory during the forenoon and told Frank so.

Well, if you can't get over this forenoon, be sure to come over this afternoon," Frank replied, according to Getthimer.

The defense brought out the salesman's testimony to raise the question in the minds of the jurors if Frank, contemplating an attack on Mary Phagan when she arrived, would ask Getthimer to come to the factory in the afternoon.

Attorney Hooper objected strongly to this line of testimony, characterizing it as self-serving and improper.

Truman McCreary, a negro layman, testified that he frequently was at the factory Saturday afternoons and that he never saw Jim Conley watching at the entrance on the lower floor.

After he had testified to the general good character of Frank, he told Attorney Arnold that he had been at the factory on Saturday afternoon last January, thus when Frank was said to have been in his office.

Attorney Hooper inquired of the witness how he happened to be at the factory on that day and the time in the afternoon when he visited there.

The witness explained that he was at the factory on that day because he had been called by a woman who he said was the wife of the man who had been brought from the home of the Good Shepherd in Cincinnati especially to testify against the young factory superintendent.

Exactly the nature of her testimony was not revealed. Mrs. Mary Hoffstadt, police manager, who returned with the girl Friday noon, said that she had not talked with her charge in regard to the matter.

At the trial, the witness was drawn from many walks of life. He was a business man, a laborer, a politician, a doctor, a lawyer, a clergyman, a student, a soldier, a sailor, a farmer, a mechanic, a carpenter, a painter, a plumber, a bricklayer, a cooper, a blacksmith, a cooper, a cooper, a cooper.

At the defense rests Saturday noon, will finish with its regular Monday night or Tuesday forenoon, it is expected.

As the defense prepared the close of its case, the proximity of the closing of W. H. Minzey disintegrated. Minzey is the insurance solicitor who swore that he had seen Frank on the afternoon of the murder of Mary Phagan.

THEY SAY 'WON'T LEO FRANK; STATE MUST PROVE DEPRAVITY

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

Nothing apparently so plain as observation as character—character—and there is, likewise, nothing so difficult as to know the man who is the "other side" and "but" are the two most notorious scoundrelisms in the universe—"they say" so and so; and he or she is all right, "but" character, which is so much devalued in this world, upon which civilization itself and decency and right are founded, is, nevertheless, the most objective of all things when it comes right down to brass tacks of proving it beyond the shadow of a doubt.

Kind words travel on leaden feet—scrap gallons in seven-league boots! Not at all—just truthfulness, that's all. You stop me to tell me that Jones is the best man you ever knew, that his wife loves him immensely, and that his children and all the neighbors children fairly dote upon him, and I am, naturally, but not rampantly, delighted. I am a pretty good fellow myself, you know, and so are you—who are telling me about Jones? Well, I am glad that Jones is a good fellow—like I am and like you—but I cannot see why I should throw my weight in about it.

That's different. Tell me and tell me Jones is a good fellow, his churchgoing problem, besides, he turns up daily from the bottom of my mind and up my hands in holy awe.

I always DID think SOMETHING out of Jones—and so forth and so on.

When his freight up-landed, I had a little of Jones and his freight on the toboggan.

On the contrary, if the State comes forward with even as few as one respectable and believable witness as to Frank's will character, there will remain in the mind of the jury, I must say, an impression most dangerously unfavorable to the defense.

The State, having been confronted with the issue of Frank's character—challenged in the gate, so to speak—must make brave, categorical, and complete answer, or the State's case necessarily will be weakened markedly, and, perhaps, fatally.

I think it likely there are few scoundrels either way—or at least Frank—who really wish to see him convicted or acquitted, respectively.

Jumping at Conclusions. So the reader will observe that the Atlanta Daily News' deduction of

ATLANTAN DEAD IN WEST POINT ROUTE CRASH

Hugh W. Pennington Is Killed When Freight Train Is Derailed at Hogansville, Ga.

Hugh W. Pennington, No. 165 South Pryor street, was killed when a freight train on the Atlantic and West Point Railroad between Atlanta and Montgomery was derailed at Hogansville, Ga., early Friday morning. According to officials of the road, the wreck was caused by a spreading of the rails. Eleven cars of merchandise and three cars of baggage were derailed, the engine remaining on the track. None of the train crew was injured.

As a result of the wreck passenger trains on the Atlantic and West Point are being detoured over the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic by way of Union City and Ladrange, Ga.

acter to issue. It thereby challenges the State to break it down, if the State can.

If the State can break it down, it should proceed to the breaking with all the vigor it fairly and honorably can command. If Frank is a wolf in sheep's clothing, the public is entitled to know it, and it is the duty of the Solicitor General to make it known, if he can.

A wolf in sheep's clothing is a highly undetectable and dangerous thing to have at large in any peaceful, orderly and law-abiding community.

The defense is seeking to establish Frank's good character by the testimony of many admittedly good citizens. To the best of their knowledge and belief these good people are speaking the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

People generally will be inclined to accept their statements as conclusive, unless the evidence combating the same is overwhelming.

Frank by putting his character in evidence, has gained some ground in public estimation, I believe. At least, this action seems to show that he is willing to risk his all on the contention that the State can find nothing in his life, save in so far as the word of Conley can establish such an allegation.

Conley is not to be corroborated by innuendo, by suggestion, or by roundabout methods.

One Good Witness a Parli. If the State comes forward, after Frank has made his showing as to good character, with the number of witnesses that the defense is able to impeach beyond question, as fast as they are introduced, I do not believe Frank will suffer irreparable injury from the Conley charge, in the long run.

On the contrary, if the State comes forward with even as few as one respectable and believable witness as to Frank's will character, there will remain in the mind of the jury, I must say, an impression most dangerously unfavorable to the defense.

The State, having been confronted with the issue of Frank's character—challenged in the gate, so to speak—must make brave, categorical, and complete answer, or the State's case necessarily will be weakened markedly, and, perhaps, fatally.

I think it likely there are few scoundrels either way—or at least Frank—who really wish to see him convicted or acquitted, respectively.

Jumping at Conclusions. So the reader will observe that the Atlanta Daily News' deduction of tical issue, are not on an bad as they sound. They referred merely to the forming of opinion upon uncompleted and disconnected evidence, brought to light one way or another, in the very beginning of shocking stories.

Evil is, and always has been, in a way more contributing to man than goodness—otherwise, Mother Eve never would have bitten the apple, and so on.

The defense has thrown a mighty challenge to the State in tendering Leo Frank's character as an issue—particularly in that the defense alone could do that.

Unless the State meets that issue fairly and squarely, candidly and without quibble of faltering, Frank must profit immensely by the move.

It is on the other hand, the State does meet the issue successfully and completely, Frank's case is unimpaired, and Frank is lost.

His Sweetheart's Hair

Copyright, 1913, by International News Service.

By Nell Brinkley

HERE is some lover's glorification, the song of his enamored, his "Bonds Men Dominant." In pride of his sweet-heart's hair, I do not even know who wrote it. It was sent to me.
Lovers have always longed and yearned over the strains of silk on the locks of the women they love. Sometimes their hair is short, gypsy-dark, tangled in curls, metallic and crisp.
Sometimes it is brown and fine and long and sleek.
Sometimes it is velvet-black and Indian-straight, shaded as a night cloud and dusty-fine to the touch.

Sometimes it is red, glittering hair by hair in the sun, pleasured, slight to touch, thick and deeply wavy.
Sometimes it is deep-gold, like an autumn leaf, heavy and silky and ripply.
Sometimes it is pale-gold, fine as thistle-down, like a veil of sunlight, springing wide and generous when shaken out, but crushing to nothing in the hands.
Whatever of these sorts it is, some lover twists in its sure snare and sends up his prayerful chant.
Here I think it must have been the deep-gold sort, heavy and silky and ripply, and colored like an autumn leaf. Listen!

SIR braids it in two heavy braids
That reach the crested night,
And winds them crosswise, nape to crown,
And cross again and then come down,
And cross again on high,
I watch with joy that never fails;
'A fortunate man am I.

"She twists it from a silken twirl
Into a coil instead;
Each side rests against her ear;
Its weight is on her collar clear,
Heavy it seems as lead;
A rope thick as her good wrist,
She fastens it to her head.

"To styles not blind,
She can not blind, as other women do,
That scented mass, that smells of when,
And lavender and apples sweet,
She piles the great comb through,
More lovely than all maiden kins,
A woman twenty—"

About Introducing People

By MR. FRANK LEARNED.
Author of "The Etiquette of New York Today."
Judgment must be used in deciding the question of introducing people to one another.
The general rule is to remember to introduce the wife of a man to a woman whom he has just met.
If the man has just met a woman whom he has just met, it is his duty to introduce her to the man.

I heard a young mother talking to her little son about his teeth—telling him how important it is that the teeth be kept clean.

"If you want to be a big, strong boy," she said, "and to be a big, strong man, you must have good teeth. And to keep your teeth good, you must brush them every day with Colgate's Ribbon Dental Cream."

BEHIND CLOSED DOORS BY ANNA KATHARINE GREEN

Copyright, 1913, by Anna Katharine Green.
"TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT"
The Cameron's courtesy had by this time returned. He pushed forward a chair and invited his visitor to sit down.

"I am Julia Matthews. If you do not remember me as your former classmate and fellow-student, my probability will be as one of the leading witnesses in an inquiry which has assumed considerable attention of late."
The Cameron's countenance changed. For reasons that we know, he had taken a great interest in this inquest, at which he had had nothing to do to his wife.

"Fardon me," he replied, "I do not recollect. I read of the death of your affianced wife with the utmost sympathy, but—"
"For she died upon the same night that you were married," broke in Mr. Matthews, completing the other's sentence.

"The Cameron looked at the unaccountable death that had first attracted his attention, and then at the woman who had been given up by the police authorities because she had been seen in the character of an accused man, with the prospect of arrest before her."

"A Memorandum"
"Let me see—" the Cameron stammered, glancing with some embarrassment at the tall and immovable figure of the detective who stood by the door.

"So much the more credit to you," observed Mr. Cameron, nodding as the result and putting it in his pocket.
"Am you will take the case?"
"On the condition that if successful the entire credit shall be yours."
A look faded to follow flashed in the dark eye of Julia Matthews for an instant. It seemed as if he meant to hold out his hand; but he did not do so and an instant's silence fell upon the group.

"There seems to be no further reason for my remaining here," Mr. Matthews said at length. "I have finished my business, and, turning toward the detective, he said at your service."
"Am yet he seemed in no hurry to go."

"As for Mr. Green, he showed no signs of having heard the doctor. His glance had fallen upon a strip of memorandum on Mrs. Cameron's elbow which, as though he were studying a problem, he had been studying a problem."
The detective rose his gaze from the strip of memorandum which had so engaged his attention and followed him. The stern and solemn attitude which they both carried away with them was that of a warrior, tall and rigid from stretched as it were on a cross against a sky, down which were slowly Muttering the first flakes of a coming snow.

"Curiosity or Interest?"
"Am I anything there was a great hall in Washington, and the woman who should have been the most important and received the most honors was your young bride, Olive Cameron. Even her husband, who had been expected to expect everything from her, was amazed. Words in which she was sometimes Jackie came freely from her lip, and the wit which in her case took the place of knowledge, glittered in all the fine sand with just enough keenness to fascinate. Her white hair, made high and conspicuous, and her sparkling eyes, which seemed to have been lit from the bits of scattered feeling which it held in its rays, raised the girl who had not interest in the reader. It was a young professional and had enough technical terms in it to awe me from any attempt to reproduce it. Enough that as they proceeded the Cameron's look of reverence and possibly reverence gave way to one of undogmatic admiration, and he talked without any trace of irony in his voice."

"How did you come by this, Stokes?"
"Let me see—" the Cameron stammered, glancing with some embarrassment at the tall and immovable figure of the detective who stood by the door.

SULZER, IN DEEF, SAYS HE WON'T VACATE

Refuses to Recognize Glynn as Acting Governor and Keeps Seal Under Lock.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Governor William Sulzer, impeached by the State Assembly, absolutely refused to give up the reins of government or recognize Lieutenant Governor Martin H. Glynn as acting Governor, pending the impeachment trial on September 15.

Mr. Glynn delivered his ultimatum to the Governor and insisted on Sulzer vacating the office. His letter was as follows:

Hon. William Sulzer, Albany: Sir—In the performance of the duty which has devolved upon me by article 1, section 1, of the Constitution, I officially demand that you deliver and surrender to me as Acting Governor, during the period of your constitutional disability to act as Governor, the seal, possession and occupancy of the executive chamber and offices, and that I likewise deliver and surrender to you the executive papers and documents in the chamber or offices or elsewhere in my charge, possession or custody, relating to or in any way connected with or pertaining to the executive department.

Respectfully,
MARTIN H. GLYNN,
Governor.

Governor Sulzer to Glynn: To His Excellency, Martin H. Glynn, Lieutenant Governor.

Sir—You are of August 15 demanding that I deliver and surrender to you as Acting Governor the seal, possession and occupancy of the executive chamber and offices, and that I likewise deliver and surrender to you the executive papers and documents in the chamber or offices or elsewhere in my charge, possession or custody, relating to or in any way connected with or pertaining to the executive department.

In response thereto I decline to recognize you as Acting Governor of the State, and decline to deliver to you the seal, possession and occupancy of the executive chamber and offices or in any way connected with or pertaining to the executive department.

I shall continue to exercise and discharge the legal duties of the Governor of the State of New York; first, because I am advised that the Assembly at its present session will not impeach me; secondly, because the Lieutenant Governor of the State is not authorized to act as Governor in case of the impeachment of the Governor unless such impeachment is by the House of Representatives.

Respectfully,
WILLIAM SULZER, Governor.

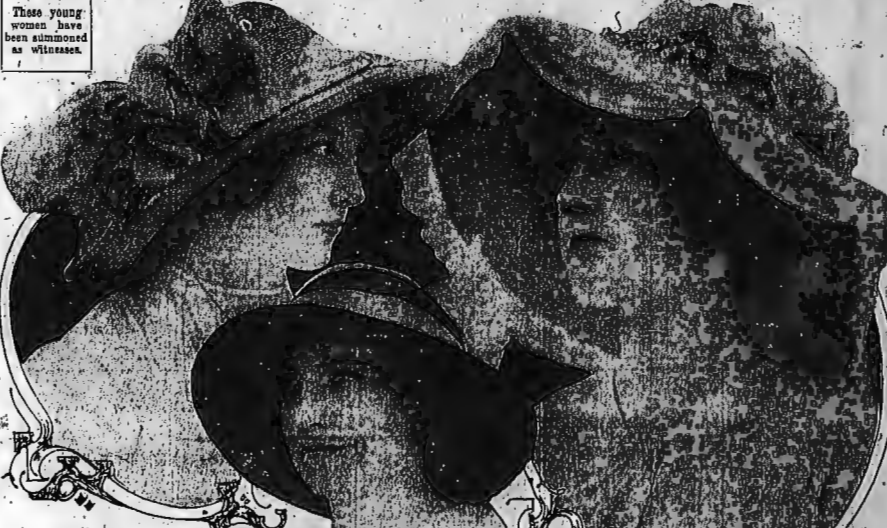

Mr. Glynn's letter was handed to Mr. Sulzer in the Capitol shortly after noon by Glynn's private secretary, who had to run the gauntlet of the guards before he could get to the Governor. This development followed the formal recognition of Mr. Glynn as Acting Governor by Secretary of State Mitchell May.

Mr. Sulzer and his counsel conferred upon the Glynn letter and took great interest in it. Mr. Sulzer's wife, who is next to him in the bitter warfare between the Co-States,

JUDGE ATTACKS 'THIRD DEGREE' IN DECISION

Chief Justice Hill reverses Underwood Liquor Verdict in Favor of Defendant.

Sharply criticising "third degree" methods of extracting testimony from witnesses and rehabilitating them, the law who literally drove out of the persons of their liberty, Chief Justice Hill, of the Court of Appeals of Georgia, Friday handed down a decision, reversing the decision of Underwood against the State.

PRISONER'S NAME IS DEFENDED BY MANY; CLIMAX IN CASE NEAR

One after another in rapid succession men and women went to the stand Friday as character witnesses in the closing stages of the battle for the life of Leo Frank, charged with the murder of Mary Phagan.

Startling disclosures inimical to Frank were promulgated by Solicitor Dorsey in rebuttal of the scores of witnesses called by the defense.

That Dewey Howell, a 16-year-old fellow who had been brought from the Home of the Good Shepherd in Cincinnati to testify against the young factory superintendent, was called by the State's most important witness, was heard Friday after the girl's arrival in Atlanta, where she formerly lived.

Exactly the nature of her testimony was revealed by Mary Bohnefeld, police matron, who testified that she had known him, but that she had not talked with the charge during the matter.

The Solicitor is known to have about twenty other persons whom he may call in the rebuttal.

Friday's witnesses were drawn from many walks of life. Most of them were well known in Atlanta. Some of them were the defendant in a business way, others socially. Some were known to him from their associations with him at the Atlanta factory and its Monday Even. Others formed a picture of his character from knowing him in the work of the factory, which Frank is the president.

Persons Who Knew Him at Home Called. Previous days at Fruit Institute and Cornell University and later at his home in Brooklyn. Friday's witnesses were passed down to those who had known him during the time he had been in Atlanta.

If numbers count for anything, Frank's case is being won by the number and character of people who have been called to the stand to testify for him. The court attaches were kept busy during the afternoon and evening sessions. Few of them were called to the stand. The majority were asked only the formal questions of their acquaintance with Frank and their knowledge of his character, which was exhausted.

Solicitor Dorsey for the first time in the case, asked questions when he should be able to call a witness who would testify against the defendant. He questioned a few of Frank's acquaintances in the afternoon and evening sessions. He asked the first of Frank's acquaintances to testify in defense of his good character, but did not call any of them.

Defense Near End of Case. When court adjourned in the afternoon of Friday, the case was still open. The case will be closed Friday afternoon when he should be able to call a witness who would testify against the defendant. He questioned a few of Frank's acquaintances in the afternoon and evening sessions. He asked the first of Frank's acquaintances to testify in defense of his good character, but did not call any of them.

Girl Witness Closely Guarded. Mr. Howell was formerly president of the Atlanta factory and is to be called by the defense. He is to be called by the defense. He is to be called by the defense. He is to be called by the defense. He is to be called by the defense.

WHAT 'THEY SAY' WON'T COURT ED FRANK STATE MUST 'PROVE' DEPRIVITY

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

There is nothing apparently so plain to outside observation as character—just character—and there is, strange to say, nothing so difficult at times to prove.

"They say" and "but" are the two most numerous exclamations in the universe—"they say" so and so, and he or she is all right, "but!"

Character, upon which so much depends in this world, upon which civilization itself and decency and right is founded, is, nevertheless, the most elusive of all things when it comes right down to brass tacks of proving it beyond the shadow of a doubt.

Human nature, too, for some corrupt and vague reason, seems rather to rebel the downward of character and the undermining of reputation—and that, moreover, the while it is vehemently and rather stoutly asserting itself that it does nothing of the kind!

Kind words travel on laden feet—cooing gallop in seven-league boots! Paraphrase!

Not at all—just truth! That, that! You stop me to tell me that Jones is the best man you ever knew, that his wife loves him immensely and that his children and all the neighborhood children fairly dote upon him, and I am smiling, but not rampantly interested. I am a pretty good fellow myself, you know, and so are you—who are telling me about Jones—and while I am glad that Jones is a fine fellow—like I am and like you are—I can not see why I should care any fits about it.

And I—being the average sort of fellow, really—cannot see to them any fits whatever in re the good Jones.

But—Burdial? That's Different. You stop me and tell me Jones is a grafter, despite his charming Jones civilities, and that, besides, he turns back habitually from the bottom of the deck—and so go my hands in holy horror!

Bakee alive! I always DID think Frank was something out of the way with Jones—and so forth and so on!

And you can bet your sweet little step to listen while you, yourself, as "they say" of Jones, and how he's a good fellow, "but!"

If Jones is pulling his freight up hill, Jones interests me indifferently in a way—but if Jones and his freight are involuntarily on the edge of the highway, and watch the fun and make note of the wreckage at the bottom!

I feel sorry for Jones—just as I used to feel sorry for every poor teacher beneath whom I had depreciously sat up a pin, when said teacher depreciously sat down upon it. And after Jones has gone to smash down the old tubogun, I may expect an attack of remorse for Jones and next Sunday when I go to church it may so happen that I even pray for Jones—after I have prayed, care, fully for myself!

Now think broken observations are all alike, of course—there may be out of order, and all that.

Preface to Character Sketch. They are submitted merely by way of prefacing the citation just here of an ancient quat—something like this:

"There's so much good in the heart of us,
And so much bad in the best of us,
That if hardly heinous our sin,
To talk about the rest of us."

Now, then, having brought ourselves to the point where we can give even such persons as Frank and Conley the benefit of the doubt in an argument adverse to the character of either—you know, good and well, see ALL the double, and some—let us proceed in order to a consideration of the status of the Frank case involved in the character or lack of character in the defendant.

Contemplating the matter of Frank's character as a thing apart from the murder charge against him, the attack upon it that far devils within Conley, and Conley's isolated word.

Conley's charge against Leo Frank has not been corroborated by one witness worthy of belief—and it has a been corroborated even by the one in anything save relatively inconsequential detail.

One just as well believe what "they say" and ask no questions, as to believe anything such persons as Dalton say—and probably better.

I am sure I do not know whether Frank's character is good or bad in respect of a conclusion either way, am "dum miserratus."

My mind is entirely open as to that—and I hope to keep it as until the last verdict has been heard from the "Judge."

Q. Did you understand the Coroner's inquest was to be held there?—A. I heard it was there.
The witness was offered as a character witness and declared that Frank's character was good. He further said that Jim Conley's character was good and that he would not believe the negro under oath.

Judge Hooper—I sustain this man's personal opinion.
Says Conley Mixed Water With Beer.
Judge Hooper—I sustain you under those circumstances.
Q. Did you ever hear anyone say anything about Conley's character?—A. I heard he was in the chain-gang.
Q. Who said that?—A. I saw him myself.
Q. Frank took him back when he came out of the chain-gang didn't he?—A. Don't you know that a negro is much better when he comes out of the chain-gang than he was before?
Q. Well, what did Conley do to you?
—A. I sent him out for 25 cents worth of beer, and when he brought it back I was half water, I said, "Did you put water in here?" and he said, "No, I wouldn't do anything like that."

Q. How big was the room in which the body was?—A. Fifteen by fifteen.
Q. It was a great big room?—A. Not very.
Q. What kind of a room?—A. I

EVERYWHERE YOU GO : : : : : By Bert Green

never noticed it. I just looked at the body and walked out.
Q. How was the door locked?—A. On the right side of the doorway.
Q. How far did you go into this room?—A. Just to the door.
Q. Describe the bruise and the eye was badly discolored. There was a scar on the right of the face. The hair was lightest brown?
Q. Well, go on.—A. I didn't look at close.
Q. Who suggested you going to look at the body?—A. Felix Tanker.
Q. Didn't you say a while ago that you sat there two minutes and got up and looked at the body, and that Frank arrived three minutes later?
A. Yes.
Q. Well, explain that to the jury.
A. I don't know what time it was, or at what time. It might have been twenty minutes.
Q. How long did it take you to get yourself together?
—A. I haven't got myself together yet.
Q. When did Frank go in to view the body?—A. Later.
Q. How much later?—A. It might have been twenty minutes.
Q. How far did you have to go back to see the body?—A. You could stand in the door.
Q. Did the writing of that body have any effect on Frank's appearance?—A. No, he looked just like he does now.
Q. You don't know whether Frank went into that room or not?—A. No.
Went to Morgue To See Brains.
Q. Was there anybody connected with the factory who went back on the undertaking establishment with Frank?—A. No.

GIRLS CALLED TO TESTIFY FOR THE DEFENSE

MISS O. VICKERY.

MISS L. HAYES.

These young women have been summoned as witnesses.

TESTIMONY OF GIRLS HELPS TO LEAD M. FRANK

In the presentation of his alibi for Leo M. Frank, the defense probably accomplished more Thursday than it had in all of previous time since the prosecution rested its case. Frank's lawyers had promised that they would show where Frank was practically every minute on the day the murder of little Mary Phagan was committed and would demonstrate that it would have been impossible for him to be in the room, Jim Conley, described them.

Miss Curran was called to the stand and declared she saw the factory superintendent at 11:15 at Whitehall and Alabama streets apparently waiting for a street car. This made an interval of but eighteen minutes from the time he was seen by the three persons on the fourth floor of the factory, allowing two minutes for him to walk to his car, and an interval of two to three minutes from the time that Conley added they started to carry the body to the basement.

MRS. J. W. WARDLAW.

Following to Mrs. White, Mary DeWitt and Arthur White. This brought the defense down to the time someone saw him after he left the factory. Miss Curran was called to the stand and declared she saw the factory superintendent at 11:15 at Whitehall and Alabama streets apparently waiting for a street car. This made an interval of but eighteen minutes from the time he was seen by the three persons on the fourth floor of the factory, allowing two minutes for him to walk to his car, and an interval of two to three minutes from the time that Conley added they started to carry the body to the basement.

Eight of the twelve minutes were spent by Conley in a close in Frank's office, according to the negro's testimony. Of the remaining four, part were occupied in disposing of the body and part in waiting the notes. Witness White, Helene Beldt Albin, Mrs. Albert F. Levy, Ne. 2 East Georgia avenue, advised she saw Frank get off a car at about 1:20 o'clock and walk to the office, No. 115 East Georgia avenue.

It is at once the most important and the most disheartening of the witnesses who have testified to seeing Frank immediately after the State says the crime was committed. If Frank was at Whitehall and Alabama streets at 1:10 o'clock it would have been almost human possibility for him to have taken part in the disposal of the girl's body, which Conley said was undertaken at 1:24 and finished about 1:29, together with the writing of the notes in Frank's office.

Mr. and Mrs. Bell already had testified he arrived home at 1:20 and at lunch. Jerome Michael, son of the former witness, saw Frank at the same time. Mrs. Whitehair was another witness who saw Frank just before he caught his car. She said he was not nervous and bore no scratches or other marks.

The establishing of the alibi for Frank thus began early in the morning when the testimony of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Selig was practically completed Thursday. Although there were several more witnesses to be called on Friday who had seen him the day of the crime. Thursday's testimony began with the more extensive and more positive testimony of Mrs. Nelson and Forestry artist, Saturday forenoon. Big Montag, one of the most important witnesses, testified that Frank came to his plant about 10 o'clock last about 11. Miss Correllia Hall, Mrs. Emma Freeman, Miss Hattie Hall, Alonso Dean and others had testified to seeing Frank in the factory between 11 o'clock and noon. Lemmie Guiton, motel department foreman, testified that he had seen Frank in his office at 12:10 o'clock. Mrs. Arthur White, a witness for the State, saw him in his office at 12:30. He went to the fourth floor at 12:45, ac-
