A Boy's Wit

"Say, Papa," said J. D. the other day, "how you can get me that bicycle I have been begging you for. I have found out a dandy way to do it. Tom tells me his father gave him one for almost nothing by answering a Journal Want Ad, put in the paper by a boy who had a new bicycle and wanted to sell his old one. So I've watched the Journal Want Columns every day now for three days, and here is a Want Ad just like the one Tom told me about. Won't you go and see the man that put this Ad in, or write him to come and see you?"
