Judge Roan Delays Decision Until Both Sides Can Submit Authorities—Dr. W. S. Kendrick Declares Dr. H. F. Hart Was Guessing in Conclusions He Gave About Mary Phagan's Death—Three School Mate Friends of Frank Tell His Good Character

The character of Leo M. Frank was put in issue Wednesday night by his attorneys during the fifteenth day's session of his trial, the murder of Mary Phagan.

While not unexpected that the defense has thrown down the gauntlet to the state to put a list of witnesses in the courtroom, the young factory superintendent was decidedly the feature of the morning session. Generally the defense in important criminal cases does not put the defendant's character in issue, for few people are ready to take the searching investigation to which the accused is generally subjected by detectives. Since Frank was first indicted in the Phagan murder, there have been constant rumors that the detectives have found witnesses who are ready to attack the character of the accused. These witnesses, if the detectives have found them, could have been used to take the stand and tell the jury of Frank's good character. This action on the part of the defense means that Frank's attorneys are confident that the defendant's life will stand the white light of investigation.

The direct use of the defense is almost finished. When the noon recess was taken Wednesday, Attorney Luther Z. Rosen and Richard Arnold expected to be through with all except character witnesses in less than a day's time.

The defense scored an important point in its attack on the state's case in a factory breakdown which took place in the metal room of the plant on Saturday, April 28, 1932. The state's case against Frank is based on the testimony of Lemmie Quinn, foreman in the metal room, who testified that he saw Frank in his desk writing at 12:20 o'clock, the very minute almost that the state claims Mary Phagan must have been killed.

Dr. W. S. Kendrick, who testified that he examined the body of Mary Phagan, declared that he was guessing in his conclusions that she had been killed. Three school mate friends of Frank told the jury of his good character.

House Impeaches Sulzer While Wife Takes Blame; N. Y. Without a Governor

Mrs. Sulzer Made Desperate Effort to Save Her Husband by Declaring That She Was Responsible for It All

Expected to Refuse to Quit Office Promptly

Question Arises as to Whether Governor Must Vacate Office Pending Final Settlement of Charges

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 12.—William Sulzer, of New York state, was impeached today by the assembly. The action was a vital question, as it raised the possibility of a new election in the state. Mrs. Sulzer made a desperate effort to save her husband by declaring that she was responsible for it all. She expected to refuse to quit office promptly. A question arises as to whether the governor must vacate office pending the final settlement of charges.

Alabama Governor Believed to Have Appointed Clayton Because He Was Afraid of His Legislature

APPOINTEE WILL NOT BE RECOGNIZED BY SENATE

Congressman Clayton Will Be Allowed to Argue Before the Credentials Committee, but Seat Seems Improbable

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 12.—The unexpected action of Governor Edmund O'Neal of Alabama in appointing Clayton to the office of state treasurer has caused a stir in Washington. It is believed that O'Neal's action was motivated by a fear of the legislature. Clayton will not be recognized by the Senate. He will be allowed to argue before the credentials committee, but his seat seems improbable.

Amid Popping of Army Cartridges, Fire Eats Way to Big Company Magazine

With a few feet of 8,000 rounds of ammunition, a slow-burning fire smoldered and blazed for half an hour Wednesday at noon on the top floor of the armory section of the auditorium, at Courtland and Gilmer streets.

At 11:30 a. m. the fire started in the room of Commodore C. D. W. S. Kendrick. The fire spread through the room and into the magazine. The fire was extinguished by the fire department.

It is one thing to make soda crackers that are occasionally good.

It is quite another thing to make them so that they are always better than all other soda crackers, always of unvarying goodness.

The name "Uneeda"—stamped on every biscuit—means that if a million packages of Uneeda Biscuit were placed before you, you could choose any one of them, confident that every soda cracker in that package would be as good as the best Uneeda Biscuit ever baked. Five cents.

Frank's Lawyers Again Threaten Move for Mistrial

Frank's lawyers, who are now in the city, are threatening to move for a mistrial on the ground that the jury was improperly selected.

The lawyers claim that the jury was not properly selected because the names of the jurors were not drawn from the proper list.

The prosecution, however, claims that the jury was properly selected and that the lawyers' motion is a mere tactic to delay the trial.

The judge has denied the motion for a mistrial and the trial will proceed.
