

French Capture Trenches In Daring Night Raids

Men Make Their Wills Before Starting on Expeditions, as It Is Likely They Will Never Return.

Mont St. Eloi, Department of Pas de Calais, France, Wednesday, December 31.—(Delayed)—German artillery today again bombarded at long range the double-towered church here, but without doing great damage. The sole method of making an advance in this trenchless war, as all attempts to assault positions by day fall before terrific rifle and machine gun fire.

When night falls the artillery usually ceases fire. Then begins the task of relieving the men in dugouts. Companies and battalions which are ordered to take a turn on the firing line wait in the trenches until the dawn of the new day.

The first platoons make their way through the night, unseen path to a trench out of which soldiers, who have been there in most cases for several hours, emerge covered with mud. Ambulances men follow out the trenches with the wounded borne on their shoulders. Shortly after the operation of relief the German sentries in the trenches are changed. The captured occupants of the trenches start a movement.

A scouting party, generally composed of five or six volunteers, leaves the trench to reconnoiter.

Creeping that they proceed slowly and silently in a direct line toward the German trenches.

The men make their wills before starting on a daring exploit, as it is likely that some will never return.

Scouts often evade the German sentries and out the wire entanglements in front of the German trenches.

The surviving scouts return to the allies' trenches and report the result of their operations. Then a whisperer comes along and makes its way cautiously in an advance. If the company reaches the vicinity of the German position without discovery, the men before the opposing machine guns can be brought into play the men leap into and capture the trench at the point of the bayonet.

Trenches Then Strengthened.

When prisoners are taken by the French they are grouped under a guard at one end of the trench, while the attacking force, with entrenching tools, hurriedly builds up an earthen shelter at the rear of the captured trench and consolidates the position against a possible counter-attack.

The other half of the force opens fire on the Germans in the rear line of trenches. A rain of machine gun fire and sometimes one hundred yards is made in this way during the night.

Young soldiers going for the first time into the trenches declare the work is extremely enervating, but that they soon become accustomed to their surroundings. Their excitement when hearing the trenches to attack the Germans soon resolves itself, they say, into a peculiar calmness. Each soldier, when he sees his opponent's position, selects the man who appears to be making directly for him and takes steady aim with his rifle and if he misses dashes forward and engages him man in personal combat.

Self-Sacrifice of 6 Frenchmen Made Town's Capture Possible

Paris, December 31.—How the self-sacrifice of six French blue jackets made possible the capture of St. George, less than 3 miles from Neuport, is described by the Matin's correspondent in Flanders. He says:

"The attackers had driven the Germans from the advance trenches, but taking refuge in the houses in the village, the Germans soon placed their assaults in a difficult position. The situation of a force of Belgians isolated on a strip of land surrounded by a flood became critical and the artillery alone was able to effect anything against the enemy. The British batteries at Ramscappelle tried, but their shells burst over the French."

"Six blue jackets then hoisted a tank gun on a large post and pointed along the canal behind the village, running the gauntlet of the German rifle fire. As one was hit another took the post and continued until he in turn fell stricken. The sixth man was mortally wounded as, with a last push, he sent the post to the bank where the French advance guard was waiting."

"The gun was quickly landed and a story of 300 yards brought the houses on top of the Germans, who retreated into the arms of a battalion of Belgians. The latter completed the enemy's rout."

"Meanwhile the French column triumphantly took possession of the heap of ruins which was formerly in German hands and before night the engineers had established a bridgehead, enabling the allies' artillery to debouch on the right bank of the Yser."

SERBIANS WILL NOT MARCH ON SARAYEVO

Paris, December 31.—The Serbians will not march on Sarajevo, said Dr. M. R. Vucelja, the Serbian minister to France, according to a statement he made here. "They will not march on Sarajevo," he said, "because Sarajevo is a city of 100,000 people, and it is not possible to march on a city of 100,000 people."

"The invasion of Bosnia and Herzegovina by the Serbians, which was the result of the assassination of the archduke, is a matter of internal security, and it is not possible to march on a city of 100,000 people."

ANNUAL REPORT OF HOLMES INSTITUTE

At the annual meeting of the trustees of Holmes institute, E. R. Holmes, president and founder, made his report for the year 1914, in which he stated: "Holmes institute is purely a charitable organization and depends upon public subscriptions for support. Its purpose is to educate not only negro children of the city who cannot get into the public schools either because of their crowded condition or inability to purchase school supplies, but also to train the mind, body and morally, mentally and industrially."

The aim of the institute is the highest sense of the word to train the mind, body and morally, mentally and industrially. The trustees have petitioned the city council to donate a fund toward the work of the institute and the opening of a night school. The institute now has a permanent organization to raise money for the poor ex-slaves of Atlanta, many of whom are dying in want. The committee found one of these old slaves frozen to death during the holidays.

L. B. Munck, assistant of the Southern Express company's office at Macon, Ga., testified that Dean purchased the order from him a few days ago in Macon for $1.50, giving, he said, the assumed name of M. C. Clark.

An impressive ceremony marked the breaking of ground Thursday afternoon at Peachtree and Sixteenth streets for the new First Presbyterian church, to be built and furnished at a cost of $150,000 and dedicated to be one of the finest church edifices in the south.

The services were participated in by prominent ministers and laymen of the Atlanta Presbytery, and the first spade of dirt was thrown by Captain William Bonal, oldest member and officer of the First church congregation. Dr. J. Sprylye Lyon, pastor of the church, made the following address:

"We are assembled today to inaugurate a work which will lead to the fruition of hopes long cherished; which marks a new epoch in the life of the First Presbyterian church of Atlanta, which involves an important readjustment of the forces of the kingdom of God in this city, by the advance of one of its most effective units to a position of great strategic strength in the growth of the community; and factor, not only in the spiritual life of Atlanta, but also in the extension of Christ's cause throughout the world, and in hastening the great day of His coming again."

"To the realization of the inspiring ideal we do now pledge our joint and loving service. The Supreme architect and Master Builder shall direct our course. His wisdom and strength shall be our sufficiency, and His glory shall be our goal, and as His will be done shall be our reward."

The program was carried out as follows: Dedicatory—"Praise God." Invocation—Dr. A. C. Woodcock. Statement for building committee—Paul L. Fleming.

Change of picture at the Grand theater Thursday attracted large audiences during the afternoon and evening. The attraction is "Sins of the Parents," with the noted Russian actress, Madame Sarah Adler, in the leading role. The play is a powerful one dealing with a big theme and is replete with gripping situations. The realistic cabaret scene and the murder trial in the court room are among two of the best features. Madame Adler is a remarkably clever actress, but in no other motion picture has she put such strong character as in "Sins of the Parents."

An Effort to Revive Life and Traditions Of Old Oglethorpe

With the laying of the cornerstone of the new Oglethorpe university January 31, on the building site near Atlanta, an attempt will be made to revive the life and traditions of the old Oglethorpe, which was destroyed during the civil war.

Dr. Thos. W. Lewis, executive representative of the institution, is at the head of a movement to reorganize the alumni of the old university, of which he thinks about fifty are alive. He already has the names and addresses of twenty-two of these.

The newspaper have been called upon to help in locating the graduates and students who were scattered over the southland by the war.

Around the old university, which was located near Milledgeville, is woven much tradition of Georgia's antebellum life. Sidney Lanier, the poet, was one of the alumni.

It is hoped by Dr. Jacobs that most of the alumni living will be present at the ceremony on January 31.

STRIPLING PLEADS FOR COMPLETE PARDON

His Health Is Given as the Main Ground for His Petition.

A petition was presented to Governor John M. Slaton on Thursday by Attorney C. W. McDaniel, of Columbus, and by relatives of Thomas Edgar Stripling, now serving a life term at the state farm, asking the governor to pardon Stripling.

His attorney stated that he asked for a pardon instead of a parole, because under the law ten years' service of Stripling's life sentence is necessary before the governor can consider an application for parole.

The grounds for application, as presented on Thursday, and that Stripling is suffering from incipient tuberculosis and neurasthenia, that he committed the murder to avenge an insult to his sister and that there were other mitigating circumstances.

Stripling's wife was present at the hearing and implored the governor to pardon her husband.

Stripling killed W. J. Cornett, in Harris county, in 1897. He was sentenced to life imprisonment, but accepted and fourteen years later was discovered by an old acquaintance in Danville, Va., where he had led a moral life and had become chief of police.

Since he was brought back to Georgia and once more sent to the state farm to complete his life sentence there have been numerous petitions for clemency directed toward him.

WANT HELP?

ATLANTA, GA., January 1st, 1915.

TO OUR FRIENDS:

We send best wishes and a very cordial New Year's greeting.

Traveling on through the long pathway of time we have come to this day which completes the fifth month of our fiftieth year of an unbroken record in the wholesale grocery business in Atlanta, our Mr. Oglesby having commenced it in 1865.

We begin our second half century in grateful remembrance of all favors in the past, and with the brightest and most hopeful anticipation of our duties in the future.

In the two score years and ten that are gone we lay no claim to the garner of great glory, but we have the consciousness of an unflinching endeavor to at all times fill our modest place of citizenship in co-operating to promote the welfare of this city and section.

We trust that our constant aim of rectitude and fidelity in all relations throughout the fifty years in building up our business deserves the satisfaction we feel as well as the moderate reward the work of these years has brought to us.

Very truly yours,
OGLESBY GROCERY COMPANY.

Uncle Sam, in Urgent Need of Stenographers and Typists, Is Calling Upon the Sou. Shorthand & Bus. University For Aid

This Extraordinary Announcement, Which Is of Such Great Import to the People of the South, Will Greatly Augment the Enrollment of Pupils for the Winter Term, Which Opens January 4th to 15th, Inclusive.

COMMISSIONERS

President
CHARLES M. GALLOWAY
HERMON W. CRAVEN

UNITED STATES CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION
WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Principal,
Sir:

For some time the Commission has experienced considerable difficulty in supplying a sufficient number of male eligibles for stenographer and typewriter positions to meet the requirements of the Government service, particularly in Washington, D. C. An extra effort is being made to supply this demand.

Inclosed is a poster advertising stenographer and typewriter examinations for men. The Commission requests that the poster be placed upon your bulletin board or in some other prominent location. It may be displayed for an indefinite length of time.

The Commission will be grateful for your cooperation in its endeavor to meet the public need.

By direction of the Commission:

Very respectfully,

President.

To Young People Seeking Employment:

The day of greater opportunities is near at hand; in fact, it is already dawning.

Are you ready to answer to the call?

Can you write shorthand, or keep a set of books?

Can you operate the typewriter skillfully?

Do you know the rudiments of commercial law?

The United States Government is in great need of such employees and cannot be supplied because of the shortage of stock, as shown by the above letter sent to the Southern Shorthand and Business University.

Many graduates of this school have already gone to work for Uncle Sam, among whom may be mentioned Mr. Barlow Mercer, Mr. Graham Dedge, Mr. Earl Williams, Mr. Compton Miller, Mr. J. H. Hall, Mr. F. W. Smith and others, who are in Washington, receiving from $1,800 to $2,400 a year.

Don't remain idle and let the golden opportunities pass. Make preparation now. Start with the New Year and try to qualify for the spring and summer examinations.

Appointments are certain very soon thereafter.

But, do you know that stenographers and bookkeepers are not affected in times of business depression? They belong to one class that is exempt from suspension, because they are a necessity, even when business falls off.

Furthermore, there has been a very good demand for new stenographers and bookkeepers during the past three months, many of the Southern's students having accepted good positions.

Mr. Jno. C. Evans, of Warrenton, has just accepted a position as private secretary to Congressman Carl Vinson, Washington, D. C., after only seven weeks course in Graham Shorthand at the Southern.

With the importance of preparation staring the unemployed in their faces, it behooves every young man and every young woman to enter early in January the SOUTHERN SHORTHAND AND BUSINESS UNIVERSITY, in order to be trained for expert service by a large and expert faculty.

This school is the oldest and largest in the Southeastern States, and is indorsed by all Atlanta. Make inquiry and be convinced.

Call, phone or write at once for information.

PHILIPPINE UPRISING WIDE AND DANGEROUS

Dramatic Measures Needed to Keep It From Spreading, Wire Editor.

Washington, December 31.—A private dispatch from Manila saying the recent disturbances in the Philippines, though dangerous, were insignificant in accomplishment, was laid before the senate committee considering the ultimate Philippine independence bill by Dean C. Worcester, former secretary of interior of the island. The dispatch reached him yesterday from his personal friend, F. G. McLaughlin, editor of a paper in Manila, for whose accuracy Mr. Worcester vouches, it read:

"General commanding Corregidor denying the rumor regarding the burning of Manila in Botanical garden. The rioters were arrested before they could do anything. Arrested twenty before the rioting broke out. Quite well organized. Rioters connected with them. Dramatic measures required to prevent it from spreading. It is generally believed the disturbance is being fanned by widespread idea of government weakness."

"Rebellion not suppressed because a wrong interpretation of promises of administration in circulation by politicians among insurgent masses. For citizens aggressive. Great many have been killed. Insurgents are forbidden to give information. Government will not allow us to see documents seized by army. Uprising insignificant in accomplishment, but dangerous on account of potential agitation of lowest classes. Similar to 1898. Have arrested men in Manila. Main leaders have not been apprehended. Communications secured indicating Americans were to be attacked. Property to be confiscated or destroyed. There is no evidence that property-owning natives are involved. Absolutely no Americans threatened with uprising."

"Mr. Worcester said that the disturbance was what might be expected if independence were granted within the next three or four years."

"He said Philippine politicians, who are to fish in troubled waters, are in favor of immediate independence. That the 'young' leaders are in favor of independence, but the preponderant real sentiment was opposed to it."

"Mr. Worcester was asked for his views as to what would happen if independence were granted within the next three or four years."

"He said that the disturbance was what might be expected if independence were granted within the next three or four years."

OLD YEAR PASSES AND NEW IS BORN

Standard club throughout the night. Hearty and mistletoe were the decorations. There were favors, topical music and much merriment. An informal dance was held at the Georgian. The party was participated in by guests and invited members of the club.

A gay challenge to the New Year was issued by the Capital City club according to the society department by the merry whims that half-fifth-house last night—and this morning. It was one of the happiest entertainments of that festive and festive institution.

Music, dancing, favors and fellowship reigned in the Atlanta club from 9 p. m. until well the paper went to press long before festivities began to wane. There have been fantastic balls, masquerade dances and other amusements held in the Atlanta, but none were so auspicious as last night's merry-making.

Among the various other modes of spending the old year and celebrating the birth of the new Atlanta, gave itself a merry party at the Atlanta theater last night to witness the first performance of the Potash and Perlmutter. You all know the Potash and Perlmutter. It is generally believed that the Atlanta last night to celebrate the New Year was one of the happiest entertainments of that festive and festive institution.

Quite an impressive watchman service was held at midnight at the Western and Atlantic railroad shops, headed by Rev. Thomas H. Jones, pastor of Adams Presbyterian church, of Nashville, Tenn.

Rev. Harrison has held the watchman service at the Atlanta shops for the past four years. He was formerly pastor of the First Baptist church of Nashville and Chattanooga, and belongs to the Leagues of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. He christened his engine 235, naming her after his little son.

Watch Night Services. Watch night services were held at the Free Methodist church, 273 Fifth street, beginning at 10 o'clock and lasting until midnight. Miss Cleo Young, a returned missionary to Africa, made an interesting address and this was followed by speeches, songs and prayers.

One of the most unique services was held at the old Baptist Tabernacle. The speakers were John Lottin, representing the Georgia Electric company, J. H. McGowan, the police, Captain J. C. Davis, the Volunteers of America, S. C. Morris the Glee club, testimonials followed.

All Saints' Episcopal held the first old-fashioned watch night service at 11:30 o'clock. The meeting began at 11:30 o'clock and lasted until midnight. The service was held at the First Methodist church, 273 Fifth street, beginning at 10 o'clock and lasting until midnight.

More Events Today. Last night's celebrations did not end the festivities by any means. Many events have been arranged for today, notably an entertainment at the Young Men's Christian Association, where the annual "open house" will be held, and a big annual New Year's dinner by the Georgia Railway and Power company at its Davis street plant.

More than twenty years ago the custom of these New Year luncheons was originated by H. M. Atkinson. The idea spread then as now in the Davis street plant, that being at the Georgia Electric Light company and Mr. Atkinson being then the president of the company. He is now chairman of the board of directors of its successor, the Georgia Railway and Power company. Mr. Atkinson, President P. S. Arkwright, Vice President J. W. Brice and W. H. Glenn and other officers are expected to attend the feast.

J. P. Morgan Subpoenaed. New York, December 31.—The Federal Commission on Industrial Relations will resume its hearing here on Tuesday and more than fifty witnesses, including J. P.
