Final Ending of Negotiations
Today When President Wilson Reads His Special Mexican Message to Congress.

CAPITAL OF MEXICO

Accompanied by Many Americans, Lind Goes to Vera Cruz to Sail for Home. Mexicans Anxious.

Mexico City, August 26.—President Wilson's personal representative, John Lind, and Frederico Gamboa, Mexican minister of foreign affairs, again are exchanging notes on the subject of the relations between the respective governments, notwithstanding Mr. Lind already has left the capital and that President Wilson's other agent, William Bayard Hale, has planned to leave tomorrow.

Senator Gamboa's note, which he says is in reply to one he received from the American envoy, was sent to Mr. Lind at Vera Cruz tonight. The Mexican foreign minister is reticent as to the character of the exchanges, but unofficially it is said they will not alter the situation.

Mr. Lind made the trip to Vera Cruz in an ordinary day coach, in the absence from the train of the private car which had been proffered by President Huerta.

Senator Gamboa was told that the officials at Washington appeared to believe that Mr. Lind's return to the Mexican capital was not improbable. "Mr. Lind will be entirely welcomed in Mexico, should he wish to return," replied the minister.

Though somewhat reassured by the press dispatches from Washington, indicating that the administration still is strongly opposed to intervention, there still prevails here intense anxiety on the part of the foreign residents as well as Mexicans. Trains for Vera Cruz today carried away many Americans, and many more have planned to go tomorrow.

Statement by Foreign Office.

The following statement was issued at the foreign office tonight: "In order to calm the natural anxiety of the public, occasioned by the negotiations which have been carried on with Mr. Lind, the confidential agent of President Wilson, Senator Gamboa declares that up to the present there is no reason for alarm.

"Since the beginning Mexico has tried to maintain a conciliatory attitude, although at the same time, a dignified one, and if the president of the United States considers it opportune to submit to congress the status of the negotiations, then Mexico is relieved from the fact agreement and from the customs observed in negotiations of this class not to give premature publicity, and will hasten then, and only then, to make public in their entirety all the documents which have been received or which may be received at that date.

"The situation is far from being desperate. It can be only called serious, and for this reason, it is desirable that the public should be discreet and reserved, since this is the best manner in which they can aid the government." The governors and chiefs of police have been instructed by the minister of interior, Dr. Urrutia, to organize and drill all able bodied men and to report to the capital the number of organizations and the condition of the men. It is explained that the reason for the order is to have these men participate in parades to be held in all the cities of Mexico on September 16, the anniversary of independence.

Lind Reaches Vera Cruz.
Vera Cruz, August 26.—Attended by 21 secret service men, Mr. Lind, President Wilson's envoy, arrived here from the Mexican capital at 7:30 o'clock this evening. He is accompanied by Mrs. Lind.

Rear Admiral Frank K. Fletcher, commanding the second division of the United States Atlantic fleet, and a representative of the American consulate met him at the terminal station. It is expected that after a brief rest Mr. Lind will go aboard the battleship Louisiana and get into communication with Washington by wireless. He declined tonight to make any statement.

It is believed here that Mr. Lind's mission is ended and that General Trevino's sudden call to Mexico City.

Alleged "Slaver" and His Victim

DREW CAMINETTI

LOLA NORRIS

Drew Caminetti, son of United States commissioner of Immigration Caminetti, is on trial at Sacramento, Cal., on a charge of white slavery. It is thought likely Caminetti's trial will not last as long as that of his companion, Maury I. Diggs, who was recently found guilty of violating the Mann white slave act in taking Marsha Warrington to Reno, Nev., from Sacramento at the same time that Caminetti

CAMINETTI AT BAR
AS "WHITE SLAVER"

Companion of Diggs on Trial.
Six Jurors Secured—The Government Wants Married Men to Try Case.

San Francisco, August 26.—Six men have been chosen to sit on the jury that will try P. Drew Caminetti on the indictment charging him with violation of the federal white slave act. Counsel believe the jury will be completed tomorrow.

Three of the jurors are men who were rejected at the trial of Mauri I. Diggs, friend and companion of Caminetti, who was convicted last Wednesday in the same court on a similar charge. Four of them are men of wealth, one being Francis J. Carolan, society leader of Burlington and Newport, a polo player and millionaire.

It is believed the case will be submitted by Thursday or Friday of next week. Caminetti is being tried on four charges of an indictment which charges that he transported Marsha Warrington and Lola Norris, two Sacramento girls, to Reno, Nev., March 10, for immoral purposes.

Diggs Sits by Caminetti.
Attorney Charles B. Harris, of Sacramento, under a charge of subornation of perjury in behalf of Diggs, sat at the counsel table today and in the afternoon Caminetti was joined by Diggs, who is at liberty on bail awaiting sentence to be pronounced Thursday.

The same witnesses who testified at the trial of Diggs last week appeared at the federal building and, struggling through the crowd that had gathered about the courtroom, shielded their way into the building, shielding themselves as well as they could from the battery of clicking cameras trained upon them by newspaper photographers and representatives of moving picture concerns that are making capital of the plight of the youthful defendants and their girl victims.

Seats at a Premium.
Hours before 9 o'clock when the case was called, the corridors outside of the courtroom began to fill and then the crowd overflowed to the steps of the building and to the street. The first forty-eight places were held at a premium, for it was known that by edict of the court only that number would be admitted. Despite the fact that it was well understood that no testimony would be introduced today, as the time will be given over to prospective jurors, the crowd stayed on and, among the forty-eight at the head of the line many were offered inducements of various sorts to yield the coveted places.

Government Wants Married Jurors.
The same method that was pursued in the examination of the talesmen at the Diggs trial was pursued today. It was important both to the defense and to the government to learn whether talesmen under examination were married, single men and whether they were men of family. The government, as was the case at the Diggs trial, showed by the questions asked that it sought to try the case before a jury of men married and with families.

Marsha Warrington and Lola Norris were not in the courtroom, but remained in an office nearby, ready to appear should their presence be desired. Heinberg Held as "Slaver."
Pensacola, Fla., August 26.—Ben J. C. Heinberg, aged 29 years, a member of a prominent Pensacola family, was arrested here today by federal authorities on a white slavery charge. He was released on bond of $2,000. The authorities charge that Heinberg paid for the transportation of a 15-year-old girl to Birmingham for immoral purposes. It is said Heinberg and the girl returned here yesterday after an absence of two weeks.

MERCHANTS BEHIND
ATTENDANCE MOVE

Field Day Today to Stimulate Interest—Prizes by Local Merchants—Half-Holiday for the Grocers.

Birmingham has questioned Atlanta's right to her claim as the "best ball town in the Southern league." And the Magic City will substantiate her challenge, unless there is a concerted effort on the part of every true fan in the city.

The team eliminated Birmingham from the race for the Southern league pennant by taking seven straight games. It's now up to the fans to eliminate the Magic City again by pouring out to the ball games for the remainder of the season. The way the fans of a city support the ball club is evidence of that city's standing as a ball town. And the support is known only by the attendance record.

At present Birmingham leads Atlanta in attendance by a small majority. Concerted effort will be needed to pass the Barons and grab off the attendance honors as well as the ball playing honors. The team rose to the occasion when Birmingham challenged their standing ranking. What are you fans going to do about this attendance proposition?

Field Day Today.
Today being a half holiday for the grocers and butchers of the city, a gala and festive program has been arranged for their amusement at the ball park.

A field day consisting of five events common to all ball field days have been arranged and the players of the Memphis and Atlanta clubs will contest for prizes offered by the local merchants who are lining up behind the movement.

These events will start promptly at 3 o'clock and will be concluded in time for the ball game which will start promptly at 3:30. If you've never seen a baseball field day, you do not want to miss it. It's great sport.

Here are the list of events and the prizes that will be given to the winners and by whom they are offered: 100-yard dash: Hat; Law Brothers. 50-yard sack race: $5. Circling the bases: Pair of shoes; Byck Brothers.

Pango hitting: Two silk shirts. Parks-Chambers-Hardwick company. Long distance throwing: Silk umbrella; George Muse Clothing company.

The sporting editors of the three local papers will act as judges.

To Close Shops.
Several of the largest business houses of the city have given their promise to the local baseball association that they will give as many of their employees as is practicable with the continuance of their business permission to attend the games for the remainder of the season. A complete list of those who have agreed to this is not obtainable, but here is a partial list: W. A. Chapin Insurance company, Royal Insurance company, Georgia Railway and Power company, Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company, Third National bank, V. H. Krieger & Son, Lowry National bank and others.

"Birmingham must be beaten" is the slogan of the local club, merchants and fans. The attendance for the remainder of the season should be immense. The Atlanta spirit is working splendidly.

MACHINERY MOVES
FOR IMPEACHMENT
OF U. S. JUDGE SPEER

Resolution Providing for Inquiry Into Charges Temporarily Blocked by Opposition of Republican Leader.

CHARGES MOST GRAVE,
ACCORDING TO BARTLETT

Chairman Clayton, of Judiciary Committee, Says if the Charges Are True Speer Should Be Removed.

EVIDENCE IN SPEER CASE
WILL BE TAKEN IN GEORGIA

Washington, August 26.—(Special.)—Judge Speer has advised the Judiciary committee that he is now at his Mount Airy home suffering from hay fever. His convenience will be consulted by the committee as far as possible in any investigation it may be directed to make. The committee, or sub-committee, will probably go to Macon to take testimony before the conclusion of the present session of congress. Judge Speer will be present at this examination. Even if the committee reports articles of impeachment and the house approves, it is not probable that the senate will try the case until next session.

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, August 26.—Machinery for the impeachment of Judge Emory Speer, of the southern district of Georgia, for high crimes and misdemeanors, was put in motion in the house of representatives today, when Representative Henry D. Clayton, of Alabama, chairman of the Judiciary committee, offered a formal resolution of inquiry. The committee had become convinced, he said, that the charges against Judge Speer, supported by the report of a special investigator of the department of justice and by letters and affidavits, merited full investigation.

"We are of opinion that if these charges are true, the judge ought to be removed from office as being unfit for his judicial office," said Mr. Clayton. He, therefore, asked authority from the house to probe the charges, subpoena witnesses and conduct a thorough investigation in Macon and Washington. The house must grant special permission and make an appropriation for this purpose.

Objections offered by Representatives James R. Mann, of Illinois, the republican leader, caused the resolution to go over until tomorrow, when it will be called up immediately following the president's message on Mexico.

Amendment May Be Added.
Should partisan opposition develop to its further consideration, the resolution will be amended by adding to the resolution an investigation into the charges to bring in articles of impeachment provided the charges are sustained. This will make it of the highest priority, and not subject to a point of order.

The question of whether any members of the Georgia delegation should rise and move the impeachment of Judge Speer was discussed. The delegation anticipated what afterwards developed, that objection would be made that the house did not know the details of the charges against Judge Speer laid before the Judiciary committee by the department of justice.

In the case of Judge Charles Swaine, of Florida, who was tried on impeachment charges, such a motion was made by Representative W. B. Lamar. When Representative Mann made the point in the house of lack of information, Representative Clayton said that, but if true, Judge Speer should be removed from office.

"Will the gentleman object to unanimous consent to take this matter up tomorrow, following the reading of the president's message?" asked Mr. Clayton. "I cannot say at this time," replied Mr. Mann.

Speer Alleges Conspiracy.
Judge Speer has written several members of congress about the charges and it is reported he has declared the attack on him is the result of a political conspiracy. Another factor entering into it is the recent controversy between Representative Mann, the republican leader, and Attorney General McReynolds over the Diggs-Caminetti case, in which Mr. Diggs severely accused the action of the department of justice in postponing that trial.

Representative Bartlett, who represents the Macon, Ga., district, made an impassioned speech saying that it was the duty of the department of justice to choose trial either at once or before the king's bench in October.

The news spread quickly through the hotel corridors. Sheriff Hornbeck, of Dutchess county, who is particularly anxious to get home, expressed his great disgust. The handcuffs and leg irons he brought with him have proved only a burden, and he has been roaming about town for a week waiting for something to turn up.

Withdraw Habeas Corpus Writ and Decide to Let Client Stay in Jail—Move Creates Enigma.

Sherbrooke, Quebec, August 27.—(Wednesday)—The New York state forces and associated counsel fighting for the return of Harry K. Thaw to Matteawan, announced early today that, in their opinion, the move of the defense to abandon the writ of habeas corpus could not be done without formal permission of the court, and that, in any event, Thaw would be forced into court, even if the commitment on which he is held, had to be quashed.

The announcement was made by Franklin Kennedy, deputy attorney general, who returned from Ottawa and Montreal late last night. If the state forces can make good their threat, Thaw may be discharged today and turned over to the immigration authorities for deportation before night.

Sherbrooke, Quebec, August 26.—Harry K. Thaw's Canadian attorneys late today withdrew the writ of habeas corpus obtained last week in his behalf and the fugitive from Matteawan will not be arraigned in the superior court tomorrow morning, as had been expected. The withdrawal of the writ may prolong the proceedings indefinitely.

The next move in the Thaw case is now distinctly up to those desiring his deportation. Under the present commitment he might remain in the Sherbrooke jail indefinitely, electing to have a hearing before a district magistrate, or demanding a jury trial before the king's bench, criminal side, which does not sit until October. Briefly, Thaw's lawyers have decided to let him pass his cell, meanwhile perfecting plans to defeat attempts to put him across the Canadian border.

It's Beyond Jerome.
"It's beyond me," said William Travers Jerome. "The fine points of Canadian law involved are such that I would not feel justified in even guessing at the outcome. We hope to get him in the end, but this tangle must be straightened out first."

Hector Verret, K. C., representing New York state, said tonight that he regarded the withdrawal of the writ on Thaw's behalf as tacit admission by his lawyers that the commitment was legal, and did contain a charge on which Thaw could be brought into court.

"Then we might get put another commitment charging some other offense," he added. "We could bring him into court on that surety. There would still remain, however, Thaw's right to choose trial either at once or before the king's bench in October."

The news spread quickly through the hotel corridors. Sheriff Hornbeck, of Dutchess county, who is particularly anxious to get home, expressed his great disgust. The handcuffs and leg irons he brought with him have proved only a burden, and he has been roaming about town for a week waiting for something to turn up.

FRANK SENTENCED
ON MURDER CHARGE
TO HANG OCT. 10

Motion for New Trial Made and Hearing Set for October 4, Thus Making It Certain Prisoner Will Get Delay.

NEWT LEE IS RELEASED
BY ORDER OF THE COURT

Leo Frank Tells Judge That He Is Innocent, but That His Case Is in the Hands of Counsel.

Leo M. Frank is sentenced to be hanged on October 10. This was the date set yesterday morning by Judge L. S. Roan, when the man convicted of the murder of little Mary Phagan was brought before him to be sentenced. The fact that the man's attorneys immediately made motion for a new trial and that Judge Roan set this hearing for October 4 makes it certain that Frank will not hang on the date set.

Should Judge Roan, after a hearing, grant a new trial, the execution would be postponed; should he refuse it, the execution would be postponed while the matter went through the higher courts.

With the sentencing of Frank came a court order, secured by Attorneys Graham and Chappell, giving freedom to Newt Lee, negro night watchman for the National Pencil factory, of which Leo Frank was superintendent. The negro had been in custody since 3 o'clock on the morning of April 27 when officers came at his call and found the dead girl's body in the factory basement.

Conley Still in Tower.

James Conley, the negro sweeper, who testified that he aided Frank in disposing of the body and whose story the jury believed, is still in jail, an accessory after the fact by his own confession. The maximum punishment for Conley is three years and it is expected that he will be indicted in short order and enter a formal plea of guilty. It is believed that he will be given less than the maximum, as is often done where a person turns state's witness.

When Frank was called upon Tuesday morning by the sentencing judge for any reason why sentence of death should not be pronounced upon him, he reaffirmed his statement of innocence. "Your honor, I say now, as I have always said, that I am innocent; further than that my case is in the hands of counsel." These were the words the man spoke and he looked directly at the judge as he spoke.

Very few persons were present when the sentence was passed. Judge Roan sat in his regular courtroom in the Thawer building. Instead of in the civil division of the courthouse, where the trial was held, and not over 50 people were present as spectators.

Mrs. Frank Not Present.
Not even the convicted man's wife was present. She had heard of the fact that sentence was to be pronounced and was rushing to the courthouse when the words were pronounced by the judge.

As the prisoner in the custody of Deputy Sheriff John H. Owen, George Brodnax and T. A. Burdette was being taken back to the Tower Mrs. Frank, the wife, came up in an automobile. The two met in front of the Thawer building. The wife greeted her husband with a smile and then followed him to the jail, where she threw her arms around him and kissed him repeatedly.

Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey was not present at the sentencing, and neither was Frank A. scoper, special attorney who aided him in the trial. The state was represented by E. A., assistant to the solicitor. All three of the defendant's attorneys were present and had a conference with Judge Roan in his chambers shortly before the sentencing. It was then that the judge was given informal notice of the motion for a new trial.

Attorneys Luther Z. Rosser, Reuben R. Arnold and Herbert Haas are all confident that Frank will get a new trial.

Statutory Grounds Given.
In making their motion for a new trial, attorneys for Leo Frank set forth statutory grounds and at an early date will file the real motion as an amendment to the present one.

The motion as filed Tuesday sets forth that the verdict of guilty was contrary to the evidence; that the verdict was contrary to the law; that it was contrary to the weight of the evidence; that the court, after overruling and setting aside the verdict, allowed certain testimony, which was relative to other crimes not mentioned in the bill of indictment.

The last mentioned part of the motion will be the principal one on which the amended motion will be made. It refers to the testimony of Conley in which he charged perjury on the part of the young superintendent and also declared that on many previous occasions he had acted as "lookout" for him at the factory.

Leo Frank's cell was a mecca for visitors yesterday. Friends came to the jail in crowds, appearing as early as daybreak and as late as 10 o'clock at night. Even when he went to the courthouse to receive the sentence of death, he was accompanied by friends and neighbors who left with them. Frank was sent back to his cage and locked in. He occupies an entire cell block in ward 3.

Statement by Defense.
Reuben Arnold and family left the Ford Springs, where they go to spend a month's vacation.

Shortly before leaving the city, Mr. Arnold conferred with Attorney Luther Rosser. The result was a short statement given out to the newspapers in which the counsel for the defense declared it would have taken a jury of Stoics to have given Frank a fair and impartial trial.

The statement was:
"We deem it not amiss to make a short statement as to the attorneys of Leo M. Frank to the public:

"The trial which has just occurred and which has resulted in Mr. Frank's conviction was a farce and not in any way a trial. In saying this we do not make the least criticism of Judge Roan, who presided. Judge Roan is one of the best men in Georgia and is an able and conscientious judge.

"The temper of the public mind was such that it invaded the courtroom and invaded the streets and made it self manifest at every turn the jury made and it was just as impossible for this jury to escape the effects of this public feeling as if they had been turned loose and had been permitted to mingle with the people.

"In doing this we are making no criticism of the jury. They were only men and unconsciously this prejudice rendered any other verdict impossible.

"It would have required a jury of Stoics, a jury of Spartans, to have withstood this situation.

"The time ought to come when this man will get a fair trial and we profoundly believe it will.

"The final judgment of the American people is a fair one. It is sometimes delayed in coming, but it comes.

"We entered into this case with the profound conviction of Mr. Frank's innocence. Every step of the trial has justified and fortified our profound conviction of his innocence.

Hugh Dorsey's Great Speech Feature of the Frank Trial

By Sidney Ormond.

The Frank trial a matter of history, Solicitor Hugh Dorsey and his wonderful speech, which brought the case to a close, form the subject matter for countless discussions among all classes of folk in all sorts of places—on the street corners, in clubs, newspaper offices, at the courthouse and wherever two lawyers chance to get together for an exchange of words.

Beyond all doubt, Hugh Dorsey is the most talked-of man in the state of Georgia today. The widespread interest in the Frank case caused all eyes from Rabun Gap to Tybee Light to be centered on this young man, who, up to a few months ago, was little heard of outside of the county of Fulton.

The Frank case has been to Atlanta and the state—in fact, several adjacent states—what the Becker case was to New York and the country-at-large.

Made Thorough Probe.

When Rosenthal was killed by a gang of gunmen at the Hotel Metropolitan, District Attorney Whitman was unheard of outside of New York. Today he is a national figure. The same thing holds true of Hugh Dorsey in a lesser degree.

Incidentally, there is another point of comparison. When Rosenthal was murdered, Whitman plunged into the case and personally directed the investigation which led up to the arrest and subsequent conviction of the murderers. No one criticized him for his activity in the case. Hugh Dorsey did the same thing. The Frank case was one of far too much importance to be bungled. It was worthy of the best efforts of every court official sworn to uphold the enforcement of the law.

The city was in a state of mental stress. Lines were closely drawn. It was no time for mistakes of judgment. Dorsey knew this. He felt the responsibility of his position and he entered into the work of clearing up the awful mystery with but one end in view—that justice should prevail. Unlike Whitman, he met criticism in some quarters—a criticism which was unmerited. He did what he felt to be his duty, and that nothing more; and it is certain that, had he felt Frank innocent, he never would have sought his indictment by the grand jury.

During the progress of the Frank trial a close friend of the unfortunate young man said, in a tone that expressed some surprise:
"I actually believe Hugh Dorsey thinks Frank guilty."

Thought Him Guilty.

And he was right. Anyone who knows Hugh Dorsey has never for one instant doubted that all along he has been firmly convinced of Frank's guilt. Hugh Dorsey is no head-hunter—no savage thirsting for the blood of innocent men. He is human, with human sympathies—tender as a woman at times, but stern as a Spartan when duty calls.

It was the call of duty that caused him to probe the murder of little Mary Phagan; it was the same call which caused him to prosecute the man he thought guilty of the murder.

Don't think for one instant that Hugh Dorsey did not suffer during the progress of the trial. He suffered as seldom a man is called upon to suffer. It is hard enough to call upon a jury to convict a man of murder; it is doubly hard to do so in the presence of the man's wife and mother. During the last half hour of his speech it was nothing short of torture for him to face these faithful, devoted women and ask that the law which condemns men to death be invoked.

When he said afterward that he felt for the wife and mother he meant every word. He is not a man given to the parade of emotion—men who feel deeply seldom are.

But back to the trial of the case. If it is given to one to view the case without prejudice—and there are many such in Atlanta—the heroic task which Hugh Dorsey had before him is apparent.

First, Luther Rosser was employed. Then Rube Arnold entered the lists for the defense. No more formidable array of legal counsel could have been found in the south. Extremes in method, manner and temperament, equally well versed in the law and experienced in its practice, they formed a bulwark that few men would care to attack.

The knowing ones said:
"Well, Hugh Dorsey will get his. They'll chew him up and spit him out!"

Did they? Not so you could notice it. For once Luther Rosser met his match. For once Rube Arnold crossed swords with a man who caused him to break ground.

Fought Them Every Step.

They tried all sorts of tactics. They used sarcasm; they interrupted; they hammered and they hauled, but it was to no purpose. Dorsey met them at every turn, countering them, slamming heads there. He fought them any fashion they pleased to try.

But his speech was the thing that proved him master. It was a masterpiece. No such speech has ever been heard in the Fulton county courthouse, and the words are measured as they are written. It was, as Burton Smith expressed it, worthy of Bob Toombs in the first flush of vigorous manhood. It was clean-cut, convincing, forceful. It carried conviction with every sentence. It proved, if proof were needed, that Hugh Dorsey is a lawyer of whom any man need have fear. The speech will live long in the memory of those who heard it, no matter what opinion may be entertained of the guilt or innocence of Leo M. Frank.

Frank Jurors Did Not Even Know KEPT UP WITH THE BASEBALL SCORES General Assembly Had Adjourned

FOREMAN OF JURY

FRED WINBURN.

"Say, what's the legislature doing these days?" a member of the Frank jury asked a friend yesterday. The juror, who had been locked up from communication with the outside world, could hardly realize it when he was told that the legislative session of 1913 was history.

"Well, I wonder what's going on in Washington; what has happened in Mexico and, oh, well, I'm going to get the back copies of the paper for a month and find out what has happened," he concluded.

The twelve men who, after listening for twenty-nine days to testimony and argument in the trial of Leo M. Frank for the murder of little Mary Phagan, knew almost nothing of what was going on in the world around them.

Heard Report About Thaw.
They heard one of the bailiffs say that Harry K. Thaw had escaped from Mattawan asylum, but not until they began to discuss things in general Tuesday did any of them know that the slayer of Stanford White had been captured in Canada.

There was one feature of the news that went daily to the men and that was the results in the Southern league. Each evening a deputy sheriff informed himself upon the outcome of the baseball games and also the standing of the Atlanta team and told this to the jurors.

Of other news the men knew almost nothing. They wrote to their wives and they made certain arrangements for their business from day to day, but a deputy had to read even these letters, and as an example of the strictness with which even this mail was censored was when one of the jurors wrote his wife two weeks ago that he would probably be locked up a week or ten days longer.

The deputy made him rewrite the letter and leave out all reference to the length of time he thought the case would continue.

Oath of Silence Taken.
What happened in the jury room from the time that the twelve men came in from lunch Monday and started to deliberate with a man's life as the subject of their verdict will never be known, according to the jurors.

A solemn oath never to reveal what transpired was taken by each of the jurors before the deliberation started. At that time it was not known how long they would stay out, nor what arguments and persuasion might be needed before a verdict was reached.

The only thing that was given out, and that came not in a direct statement, was that the verdict was reached on the first ballot and that each man was rather surprised at the unanimity of the twelve.

Friendships that will last through life and that are expected to result in reunions from time to time sprang up in the course of the case. The jurors learned to call one another not by surname or given name, but by nickname, and the list of these nicknames would cause laughter anywhere.

Nicknames of Jurymen.

Nowhere but among his closest friends would, for instance, M. John-ling consent to be called "Daisy Hopkins," A. H. Henslee, "Big Newt," but these were their nicknames and by them they were also called.

The others were called as follows: Foreman F. E. Winburn, "John Black" after the city detective whom Attorney Luther Rosser grilled so fiercely; W. F. Medcalf, "Albert McKnight" after the disowned husband of Minola, cook for the Selig family; J. F. Hixson, "Luther Rosser" from the redoubtable attorney in the case; W. M. Jeffries, two nicknames which were used interchangeably, "Judge Roan" and "Holloway," the latter after the witness whom the solicitor accused of "trapping" him; C. J. Basshardt, "Burtus Dalton," after the state's witness who described Daisy Hopkins as a peach; J. T. Osburn, "Christopher Columbus Barrett" after the discoverer of the blood spots; Frederick Van L. Smith, "Rabbi," after Dr. David Marx, character witness and staunch friend to the defendant; Deder Townsend, "Jesse" since he had been married only four months; A. L. Wisbey, "John Starnes," after the city detective; M. S. Woodward, "Little Newt," as he was running mate and close friend to "Big Newt" Henslee.

Job, Provisions and Clothes Asked for Old Man Newt Lee

Old man Newt Lee, discoverer of Mary Phagan's body, and a leading witness in the Frank trial, sniffed the air of freedom yesterday for the first time in months when he was liberated from the Tower shortly after noon.

He went first to police station, then to his home. The house was empty. His wife had gone. The chickens were absent and his household effects had departed with the fowls and his deserting spouse.

Newt's clothes were missing. He wore the same garments he had worn for the past four months. He went directly to the office of his attorneys, Graham and Chappell.

They have made an appeal for the old nightwatchman, asking for clothes and provisions and for a job. Newt is a good workman and is conscientious. In all the testimony with which the defense sought to attack him, there wasn't the slightest evidence that he had been unfaithful to his employers.

His attorneys have asked that anyone who can give the aged Newt a job, clothing or provisions, communicate with them over telephone Main 5182.

FATHER IS CONFIDENT OF FRANK'S INNOCENCE

"Prisoner Being Railroaded," Declares New York Attorney for the Family.

New York, August 26.—(Special.)—Rudolph M. Frank, father of Leo M. Frank, who was convicted yesterday in Atlanta after a trial of over four weeks of the murder of 14-year-old Mary Phagan, an employee of the National Pencil company, of that city, today expressed, through his daughter and his attorney, complete confidence in his son's innocence.

Mr. Frank, who is an elderly man, is prostrated at his home, 152 Underhill avenue, at the unexpected outcome of the trial, which has kept him at a nervous tension since its beginning on July 28. When he received news this afternoon that his son had been sentenced to death on October 10, he broke down completely.

"Mr. Frank, and everyone who knows his son, has absolute confidence in the boy's innocence," said Harry Lewis, attorney for the Frank family, who is at 215 Montague street today. "The boy is simply being railroaded on the uncorroborated evidence of a negro who has been already convicted of crime seven times."

When inquiry was made at the Frank home in Underhill avenue today, reporters were not allowed to see Mr. Frank.

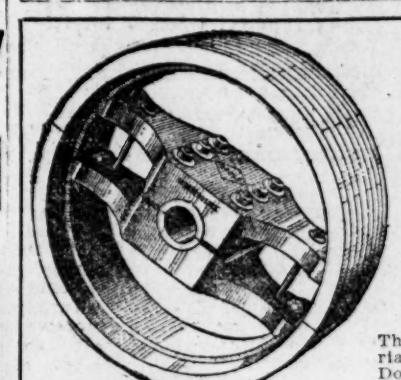

Leo Frank's sister and brother-in-law were seen and they both also expressed confidence in his innocence. The brother-in-law said that the father had not been told of the verdict yesterday, as they feared for the effects. When he was told this morning he collapsed and is at present under the care of physicians.

DODGE

For 30 Years the Keystone of Power Transmission

Thirty years ago the Dodge Manufacturing Company produced the first wood-split pulley.

Today Dodge is still the standard of the world.

They are unequalled in quality of material—workmanship and finish. Dodge Independence Wood Split Pulleys are fully guaranteed for any line of regular leather belts are used.

or counter shaft service in which Wood Split Pulleys cost less than steel or iron and in a great majority of cases they are far better.

The Dodge Independence is known as the "balanced pulley"—because of the care and study which is given to produce absolute accuracy in their manufacture.

Dodge Interchangeable Bushings enable you to fit any pulley to any shaft.

Dodge Bushings give 100 per cent clamping surface.

Dodge Wood Pulleys are guaranteed to transmit from 25 per cent to 60 per cent more power with the same belt than any iron pulley made, with equal tension of belt.

You should investigate the Dodge Wood Split Pulley. You will probably find it will save you more money in your plant than any other piece of transmission machinery. Write to "Dodge-Atlanta" and ask them to send you copy of our booklet, "From Lox to Line Shaft," or get it from your local dealer.

Street Car Conductors Growing Enthusiastic About Constitution's Prize Contest

No. 122 says the $100 in gold shall be his. Is already winning subscriptions. Enrollments steadily increasing, as the men in blue realize the money they can make. Rivalry will be keen.

"I'm after that $100 in gold, silver or paper. It doesn't matter which, so long as I win it," said Conductor No. 122, whose run is from Inman Park to the city hall.

"It certainly would come in handy, what with the repairs I'm making in the home and the things I'll be needing this fall. The overcoat and the full uniform look good to me, too. But if I don't win any prize, I'll at least make my Christmas money."

"How are the men taking the contest?" Oh, they're waking up to the realization that they can make a pretty penny or two out of it, if they hustle a bit. Some of the boys told me they'll give me a good run for the big prize. They're already picking rival runners, and we'll surely show how well we stand with the general public before October 4."

An Unusual Plan.
The Constitution wants to know who is the most popular conductor in Atlanta? So this contest is for the benefit of conductors only, and every one has a chance to win something.

The conductors are nominated by citizens of Atlanta, and are paid for every subscription they turn in at the Constitution office to the daily and Sunday paper. Each three months' subscription gives them a thousand votes and each six months' subscription gives them a thousand votes. The men who don't win a prize will receive 25c for every three months' subscription and 50c for every six months' subscription. A committee of disinterested business men will decide who are the winners after the contest closes October 4.

$100 in gold will be given to the conductor polling the greatest number of votes; a solid gold railroad watch will be given to the next man; the third man will get a tailor-made conductor's overcoat; the fourth man a complete uniform, and the last man a twenty-six piece silver set guaranteed for twenty-five years.

Public Is With Them.
"Certainly I'll help the conductors," said a local retail merchant. "Why shouldn't I? They're a good, hard-working lot of men and deserve my co-operation."

That's the spirit of the public as reported to the Constitution man. "Sure they're with us," said several conductors. "And this contest is a good thing for every one concerned. The people will learn to know us better and that means better service from us men; they'll learn to know how good a paper The Constitution is. The Constitution will get new subscribers, and we'll get either prizes or cash."

Just then one of them saw a man, he knew. "I'll get his signature to a subscription blank now," he said. "So long."

PASSING BAD CHECK CHARGED TO WELLS

Real Estate Man Wanted in a Number of Cities, According to the Police.

L. W. Wells, of the Jones-Wells company, real estate dealers with offices in the Third National bank building, was arrested Tuesday night about 8 o'clock in the Aragon hotel, just as he was packing a hand satchel, apparently with the intention of taking leave of Atlanta, and charged with passing a worthless check.

Wells gave a check drawn on the Atlanta National bank for $5 to a North Broad shoe store on last Wednesday. In payment for a pair of shoes priced at $1.95, receiving $3.05 in cash. He had previously been notified by the bank. It is stated that his account was overdrawn and that no checks with his signature would be honored until he made a deposit covering his overdraft. Detective Harper located Wells Tuesday night.

When searched at headquarters after being arrested by Call Officer Gorman, there were found among his effects a number of bank books showing deposits in various banks throughout the south, the aggregate total of which is considerably more than $100,000, one pass-book alone showing a balance of $48,000. According to the police, these deposits are forgeries.

It is charged that Wells is wanted for the same offense in a number of cities in Tennessee, North Carolina, Alabama, Georgia and Florida. He admits that he has passed worthless checks in other cities than Atlanta, but declares that they were all merely overdrafts, and only such as any business man is compelled to give at times when money is tight.

He stated that the $14,000 account shown with a Marion, N. C. bank is one representing deposits that had been actually made in his name, but later admitted that his account with this bank was closed more than two years ago.

WIRELESS WAVES START RACE AGAINST DEATH

Washington, August 26.—Wireless waves sputtering out over the Behring sea today are calling a revenue cutter to start on a 2,000 mile race against death. Somewhere out of the Arctic circle, a ship will be found to get Fred M. Chamberlain, a government naturalist at St. Paul Island, and rush him down to Seattle in time, it is hoped, to save his life.

Chamberlain, a bridegroom of a year, went to St. Paul to take the last census for the department of commerce.

WHITMAN IS PLACED ON TAMMANY TICKET

"Boss" Murphy Indorses Republican District Attorney for Re-Election.

New York, August 26.—Tammany Hall tonight placed District Attorney Charles S. Whitman, republican, on its ticket for re-election. Before the prosecutor was designated by the democratic committee, Charles F. Murphy said no assurance had been received that Mr. Whitman would accept. The district attorney, when informed of Tammany's action, declared he was not ready to say whether he would accept the designation, but would make his decision known within two or three days.

Mr. Whitman's acceptance of the Tammany endorsement would place his name on all the tickets that have so far been nominated. The fusionists, the republicans the progressives and the Independence league have named him for re-election.

"I am much gratified at the compliment paid me by all the political parties of this county in the unanimous nomination for re-election to the office of district attorney," said Mr. Whitman tonight. "I can certainly regard this action of my fellow citizens as a great tribute to the work of the office and to my loyal and able assistants, as well as to myself."

Before Mr. Whitman returned to his home in Bretonwoods, N. H., a telegram was dispatched to him by Seth Low, republican, former mayor, and one of the leaders in many fusion movements, urging Mr. Whitman to refuse the Tammy designation, and "keep the anti-Tammy issue clear and unmistakable."

BANKERS' SECRETARY WILL VISIT ATLANTA

Fred E. Farnsworth, general secretary of the American Bankers' association, will visit Atlanta within ten days to inspect the hotel facilities and report upon them in case the American Bankers' association should decide upon Atlanta for their convention city in 1914.

When here Mr. Farnsworth will be entertained at a sumptuous dinner given by the Atlanta Hotel Men's association, at which distinguished men of the city and state, leading business and professional men, and members of the press will be invited.

This convention would bring fully 3,000 delegates to the city, and Mr. Houser announced Tuesday that 1,791 hotel rooms were ready for the visitors should Atlanta be chosen.

Famous Kimballville Farm Gains New Boss by Marriage of Owner; Will V. Zimmer and Bride Start Their Honeymoon With Auto Trip

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hazler, of Detroit; Mrs. Will V. Zimmer, Will Zimmer, Jr., and "Farmer Bill" Zimmer enjoying some of Kimballville's famous barbecue.

There was a big stir around Kimballville Farm Tuesday afternoon when it became known that Will V. Zimmer, more intimately known as "Farmer Bill," had given his friends the slip and quietly joined the ranks of the benedicts. The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. J. B. Robins, pastor of Trinity Methodist church, at the parsonage.

The future Mrs. Zimmer, the new boss of Kimballville ranch, was until 7 o'clock last night Miss Mabel L. Lays, of Detroit. The bride is a beautiful and accomplished young woman.

The romance which ended Tuesday evening had its beginning fifteen years ago when "Billy" first met the now Mrs. Zimmer.

"Didn't Tell His Friends." Billy didn't tell even his most intimate friends in on the glad event, and had it not been for an inquisitive and alert newspaper reporter who happened to be around the Piedmont hotel, the rumormongers probably be a secret to this good hour.

After the wedding ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Zimmer, accompanied by the bride party, drove over to the Piedmont for the wedding supper, for it seems that Mr. Zimmer is long on sentiment.

He selected the Piedmont because he was the first manager of that splendid hostelry twelve years ago. It was there, in room No. 123, that Will V. Zimmer, Jr., the "Prince of Piedmont," was born just twelve years ago. Will V., junior, by the way, was the first baby born in the hotel. It was natural, therefore, for Billy to seek out the place in which he passed many of the happiest days of his life, the place where he extended the glad hand and the warm heart to thousands of weary travelers.

Wedding Supper at Piedmont. The wedding supper, it is said, even rivaled Kimballville's most sumptuous feasts. That's going some. In the wedding party were Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hazler, of Detroit; Lee Jordan, Will V. Zimmer, Jr. and Mrs. T. S. Chancellor, Clarendon Chancellor, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hill, Mrs. Ella Hutchinson, Jesse Mercer, and E. R. Tucker. Mrs. Chancellor is Mr. Zimmer's sister, and a friend of the bride and her family.

The bride was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Hazler.

After the wedding supper the bridal party started on an automobile tour from Atlanta to Savannah and Tybee. Mr. and Mrs. Zimmer will be at home at Kimballville in about ten days.

JAPAN'S LATEST NOTE DELIVERED TO BRYAN

Washington, August 26.—Ambassador Chinda late today delivered to Secretary Bryan Japan's latest note in the California anti-alien land controversy.

Secretary Bryan and Ambassador Chinda agreed to continue their understanding of making public nothing contained in the diplomatic exchanges on the question and upon that all information that was contained in the Tokyo government's latest communication was withheld from publication.

It may be said, however, that the latest Japanese note contains nothing in the nature of an ultimatum or which might bring the negotiations to a finality. On the other hand, it is couched in a vein to carry the negotiations along and preserve the issue without making any determination of the contentions of either government. Its general tone is said to indicate

SHALL R. R. COMMISSION ACCEPT FREE PASSES?

The railroad commission, which inaugurated the no pass system in Georgia, is up against a serious proposition. Shall its own members accept a pass?

Several members of the railroad commission are in receipt of annual passes to the Panama-California exposition to be held at San Diego throughout the year, 1915. Of course, the exposition is not regulated by the railroad commission of any state, but the question is being freely debated among the members, whether that body which has said that nobody shall accept free passes of any kind shall take them from the San Diego exposition authorities.

Judge George Hillier, it is understood, has decided to return his pass. That the negotiations may continue for months, Secretary Bryan soon will prepare a reply.

WOMAN AND HER NIECE ARE FOULY MURDERED

Nashville, Tenn., August 26.—A coroner's jury this afternoon investigated the deaths of Mrs. William Cook and Miss Lucy Stanford, whose bodies were found early this morning at the home of the former near Smyrna, Tenn., both evidently having been murdered. The jury did not conclude its investigation, which will be renewed Friday.

The principal witness examined was William Cook, husband of one of the dead women, who stated that he returned from church and retired, and on waking the following morning missed his wife and began a search, which resulted in finding the bodies in the blood-soaked room. Rutherford county officers stated tonight that arrests would probably be made tomorrow.

Cook said he slept last night in the room adjoining that in which the two women had occupied, and in which he found Miss Stanford's body. The body of Mrs. Cook lay on a pillow. Last night Mr. Cook attended a revival service at Smyrna, returning home about 10:30 o'clock. Mrs. Cook was not in her room, but thinking she was in her niece's room, he retired. When he awoke this morning he saw no signs of his wife having retired, but going out on the back porch he found her dead body covered with blood. In the niece's room was the latter's dead body. The wife's body had apparently been dragged from the girl's room.

Cook gave the alarm at once, a neighbor telephoning to the sheriff of Rutherford county, at Murfreesboro, who went to the scene with bloodhounds.

B. SIMMS HEARD DIES IN ATLANTA SANITARIUM

The funeral of B. Simms Heard, of Macon, who died suddenly Monday night at a local sanitarium, will be held at 10 o'clock today at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Heard, in Covington.

The death of the popular young man came as a decided shock to his many friends throughout the state. He was apparently in perfect health until Thursday last when he was taken ill while visiting his parents. He was brought to Atlanta for treatment and was on the train which was wrecked Sunday morning on the Georgia railroad. It was stated that the effects of the accident did not cause his death, but that he died from the attack which came on at his home.

Mr. Heard at the time of his death was assistant cashier of the Macon National bank, and was popular in the Central City. He graduated at Emory college in 1908, and was a member of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity. Following his graduation he became assistant cashier of the First National bank of Covington, and later held the position of cashier in the Bank of Jonesboro. When the Macon National bank was organized last summer he was chosen as assistant cashier there, and his friends had predicted a splendid future for him in the banking business.

ASKED LUNCH OF CHEESE AT POINT OF PISTOL

Rome, Ga., August 26.—(Special.)—Because he refused to credit a drunken stranger for a lunch of cheese, crackers and sardines, demanded at 3 a. m., J. L. Anderson, an aged merchant of North Lindale, and his seven-year-old wife were threatened with death. They have sworn out warrants charging Claud Clinton, a prominent young resident of Lindale, with assault with intent to murder.

Anderson keeps a small store and sleeps in the rear. He was awakened before dawn by Clinton, he says, who ordered a substantial lunch. When the merchant asked for payment, Clinton, he claims, drew a pistol, and told him to "charge it." Mrs. Anderson intervened to assist her husband and claims to have received similar rough treatment.

SWIMS TO HIS DEATH IN TALLULAH LAKE

Tallulah Falls, Ga., August 26.—(Special.)—Somewhere in the depths of Tallulah Falls, whose waters swirl over the rocky bottom in some places 80 or even 90 feet, lies the body of Veatchy Coffee, a 15-year-old boy, the first to fall a victim to the waters of the newly-formed lake above the dam.

For many hours today a rescue party dragged the lake in vain for the boy's body. He is the son of George Coffee, a resident of Tallulah Falls.

Young Coffee was not drowned in the deepest part of the lake, but near the upper end. He went in swimming yesterday afternoon fully half a mile above the dam. His clothes were found on the bank near the upper end of the lake, and several people had seen him in the water.

This is the first death by drowning reported at the falls this year, the last having been a young engineer with the power company, who plunged to his death in "Devil's Jail," in August, 1912.

SCOTT IS RELIEVED AS GENERAL MANAGER

Augusta, Ga., August 26.—Colonel T. K. Scott, having asked to be relieved temporarily of the office of general manager of the Georgia railroad on account of ill health, announcement is made today that J. H. Ellis, secretary of the Louisville and Nashville, will succeed him.

Vice President Hapothorpe, of the Louisville and Nashville, which is one of the lessens of the Georgia, in making the announcement, said Colonel Scott will reassume the office so soon as his health permits.

C. P. MATTHEWS DIES FROM POISON TAKEN SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Augusta, Ga., August 26.—(Special.)—A large quantity of poison, taken on suicide intent by C. P. Matthews Sunday afternoon, resulted in his sudden death at the city hospital today about noon. His condition was considered good by his physician, who visited him just a few minutes before his death, but a heart action and within a few moments death resulted.

Worry over serious financial reverses which he had suffered during the past two years prompted his husband to destroy himself, says Mrs. Matthews. He lost his rather valuable farm in Burke county about two years ago, which was followed by other serious financial losses. Since his removal here, following the loss of his farm, Mr. Matthews had been more or less despondent.

BAILIFF'S UNHAPPY LOT TO TRAIL OWN KINSMAN

Rome, Ga., August 26.—(Special.)—Continual pursuit of his close kinsmen is the unhappy lot of Bailiff A. P. Duncan, of the Lindale militia district. He was today handed a warrant charging his son with drunkenness at the home of another and obscenity in the presence of females, the prosecutor being Mrs. Clara Wright. The son is named Clifford Duncan and the father says he will bring him into court as soon as he shows up at home.

A short time ago the bailiff had to arrest his own brother on a similar charge. No one knew where the brother was, but the faithful officer brought him into court. The judge was so pleased at his fidelity to duty that he presented Duncan with a new hat. Duncan says it is unpleasant to arrest your kinsfolk, but that the law must be obeyed.

THE MEXICAN SITUATION.

The status of our relations toward Mexico will probably assume more definite shape today, and it is highly significant that the Mexican government requested President Wilson to withhold until today his message to congress on the subject. This indicates that Mexico may be coming to its sense, and that it is preparing to make some kind of an answer to the president's suggestions that may point the way to a satisfactory adjustment of the whole affair.

Senator Elihu Root, of New York, upon his return from Europe, joins his colleagues in testifying to the soundness of President Wilson's course of non-intervention in Mexico.

It is reassuring to have the word of so well-balanced and able a statesman in this grave national situation. Mr. Root understands diplomacy; he understands the Latin-American temperament, from close association with the representatives of those countries while secretary of state and later.

No thought of any narrow, partisan advantage will restrain his expressions of approval, and it is a good thing for the country that his counsel will again aid the senate foreign relations committee in their deliberations in the Mexican crisis.

Doubt has spread over the country as to the wisdom of the latest move of the administration in permitting arms and ammunition to be shipped to the Huerta government and denying the same privilege to the constitutionalists.

If the embargo on arms is to be raised both sides should be permitted to purchase all the munitions of war they want—and can pay for. At present Huerta is reported to be in serious financial straits; his credit is gone; his soldiers are mutinous from being long unpaid, and his rule is crumbling.

What the next move will be is a matter of serious concern. In this connection it is held by many that the Monroe doctrine, which has been urged as an argument against a concerted movement of foreign powers against Mexico, as was done in Peking during the Boxer uprising.

The Monroe doctrine was designed to notice to Europe that the United States would not stand for further colonization by them on the western hemisphere. England readily agreed to this decision. One reason was that England already had all the territory she wanted or needed and was well satisfied to have the United States stand off the other powers.

But there is serious doubt as to whether that doctrine forbids an invitation to the other powers to refrain from joining with the United States in protecting their own people, who are in peril, if invited to do so.

Something of this sort may yet come to pass. A small expedition could restore temporary order in Mexico, with probably little resistance. The problem of policing the country and permanent, maintaining order, would be the serious difficulty.

An invitation to foreign powers to join us would be a notice to all Mexico that our purpose is not one of territorial aggrandizement. It would, therefore, not do what Mr. Huerta confidently hopes for—unite all Mexico behind him as against the invader.

THE COTTON MOVEMENT.

A correspondent makes a valuable suggestion in a communication published elsewhere in The Constitution today, urging the state department of agriculture to establish a system of cotton marketing in Georgia by which the movement of the crop on its way to market shall be recorded each week.

The Constitution published yesterday a tabulated statement of the receipts from south Georgia towns, making a comparison with the receipts in these same towns for the same date last year and the year before.

This statement was read with intense interest, and furnishes valuable data showing that the crop is moving very much faster and more abundantly than the crop of last year, while up to the present time it is not up to the crop of the year before.

The department of agriculture should prepare at once to get this information from every cotton receiving town in Georgia, publishing the same each week with the comparative statement for the same period for each year for several years past.

Such a statement would be of great benefit not only to the farmers, but to business men generally throughout the state.

AGRICULTURAL CO-OPERATION.

Recently two commissions on agriculture have returned from a tour of four months, in which they carefully studied agricultural methods in almost every country in Europe, including Italy, Hungary, Austria, Germany, France, England and Ireland. The American commission consists of seventy-five members, appointed by the governors, agricultural colleges and farmers' associations of thirty states. The United States commission, appointed by President Wilson, consists of seven experts who have assisted the larger commission in its work of research and compilation.

These commissions have sent all their testimony and other records to the department at Washington, and it is now being classified for a report that will be ready for distribution early this winter.

President Kenyon L. Butterfield, of the Massachusetts Agricultural college, who is executive head of the United States Commission of Agricultural Co-operation, and vice president of the American commission, while desiring not to anticipate the report to be issued by the government, gives an interesting statement of his trip—reproduced on this page today.

Agricultural co-operation, when fully understood and properly carried out, will mean a great deal to the American farmer.

Here is an example of lack of co-operation that shows the need of it. It is not a supposed case. It actually occurred. A Georgia farmer was selling eggs at two-thirds their market value. He happened to get hold of the market reports in The Constitution. The next time he carried eggs to town he informed himself as to the market price of eggs for that day and charged that price.

The farmer sold his eggs elsewhere at the market price, and the man who declined to pay his former egg purveyor at the market price went elsewhere and paid the market price for them. This may be called compulsory co-operation.

But co-operation in any form will pay the farmer.

THE PISTOL TOTOR AGAIN.

A young newspaper man, residing in a sister state, applying to The Constitution for the position of correspondent for his locality, makes this significant and alarming statement:

"This is a pretty rough section, full of fighting men, and I could supply you with a number of interesting cases of murder and shooting."

Unconsciously this young man has written in a very few words a severe condemnation of our section. His community "is full of fighting men" because toting pistols makes fighting men, and because fighting men tote pistols. Murder and shootings are frequent because of the pistol toter?

The situation would not be so distressing if that young man's statement applied only to his circumscribed locality. What he says applies, in a greater or less degree, to every community that has its pistol toters. Scarcely a day passes that the newspaper is not called upon to tell of some horrible crime that is directly chargeable to the pistol toter.

Just the other day a young Atlanta lady visiting in Cedartown, Ga., was shot by a duelist. The so-called civilized men, in a brutal manner, undertook to settle, publicly, a private grievance, on a crowded street. An innocent, happy girl was shot down on a crowded thoroughfare of a prosperous and otherwise highly civilized Georgia town in which she was a visitor. Pistol toting was the cause of that deplorable accident.

We have too many "fighting men," too much murder; too many shootings. The pistol toter must go. He is a relic of barbarism. He has no place in a civilized community. Public sentiment is the sentiment of every individual making up a community or a commonwealth. Public sentiment must put an end to pistol toting by the enforcement of the laws punishing the pistol toter.

Our whole section has been indicted long enough by the barbarians.

For the summer resorter—short days and dollars now.

They are talking of "Mr. Bryan's policies," but the news is that they are pretty well "edited."

Governor Sulzer might have retired gracefully by announcing that he had taken a much-needed vacation on full pay.

If Castro continues to finance revolutions he'll come to the lecture platform in his old age.

Even when congress adjourns the fences that need fixing will put "rest" out of the question.

Just From Georgia

By FRANK L. STANTON

And They Can't Swim Out.

From forty thousand stamps—and more—the tariff they "explained." And votes in forty thousand lots in campaigns big they gained;

And the voters, as they listened, said: "They know what they're about;" But now they're in the deep sea, and they can't swim out!

They took the tariff, piece by piece, and scattered it around; 'Twas just as plain as preaching as it littered all the ground;

And we sent 'em up to congress with a halleluia shout, But now they're in the ocean, and they can't swim out!

III.
We stay for them, pray for them to angels in the sky; We'd toss 'em life-preservers—if they didn't come too high; They'd best redeem that promise of the tariff, honeycomb, Or take a swim on Schedule K, and hit the rails for home.

Returned on Time.
"Yes," said the camp meeting brother, "that new singer lifted me clear to the skies!"

"I notice," said a good old sister, as the brother reached for a third helping of fried chicken, "that you didn't rise too high to hear the dinner-horn!"

Try'n' to explain the tariff game—craps in the grass, an' the boss gone lame; try'n' to figure what congress 'll do 'em 'bout kerkummed as the rest of you! Oh, I reckon they ain't no use to wait—swingin' wild on a tariff-kate—lawin' an' jawin' from state to state; so I'll sell my hoss an' I'll emigrate!

IV.
The Dream-Train.
Going on, unknown, Of the trouble and the strife, Soon you'll leave the Dream-Train—Change cars for Life!

Now the flowers seem To brighten every dream, But soon you'll leave the gardens On which the dewdrops gleam.

Comes a spleen feeling—Flowers with thorns are rife When the Dream-Conductor Says: "Change cars for Life!"

But still may flowers flame, And Love your dear heart claim And in Life's deathless illies Still may you read Love's name!

V.
Heard on the Highway.
Dare's men who gits what dey wants by takin' de word by surprise an' askin' fer it. Ef you wuz ter give sich a man a seegar he wouldn't hesitate ter ask de devil fer a match.

Don't lose faith in yo' human kind be- kaze when you let de Col' Win' in ter warm its hands it blowed yo' fire out.

A politician who happens ter slip into heaven an' falls ter tell de folks dar how ter run it couldn't 'a' been much of a politician in dis world.

Ef a cow had any idee of de funny side o' life she'd 'tun' 'roun' an' laugh ter see you cryin' kaze she kicked de milk over.

VI.
The Life-Chance.
This is one of the little rhymes of life, by L. A. N. Gainesville, Ga.

"If I should chance to live to be, The last green leaf upon the tree In the autumn time;

If I should chance to linger on, And reach the time where I forlorn, Am far beyond my prime;

If Old Time then should whisper me, And twist and curl and turn, And toss me down beneath the tree—

I would not care, or turn a hair, If I were sure that you were there."

VII.
A Patriot for the Love of It.
"Folks who ain't good acquainted with politics in this here ballroom," said the ancient officeholder, "wonder how it is I've been a holdin' of the same office nigh on to 40 years; but the reason ain't fur to seek, my son: The salary of the office is most too small to see with a magnifyin' glass, an' nobody else wants it; hence, I'm a livin' in 'his' state because he has to, still in hopes of his final, Providential release!"

VIII.
Changed Conditions.
Recalling his school days in the misty past Colonel George Bailey says:

"In the old days, the teacher frailed the fractious kid with a hickory sapling, and as soon as the little devil went home paw would land some hefty swat with a leather strap. Now the double play is barred."

IX.
Short on Rest.
"The other night," says a Georgia editor, "a good brother rose in meeting and said he'd 'like to rest a million years in heaven'; but we'd like to add that if it's like what they say it is we wouldn't mind resting there a million and a half!"

X.
President Wilson has trouble to burn, but his business seems to be that of fighting fire.

XI.
No more beer for the kaiser. Even a king may go back on his raising.

XII.
The prophecy is, Huerta may die in his boots, but he'll never resign in his office.

XIII.
The chaplain's prayers for congress may have some effect. If the angels know anything about it they are needing a rest themselves.

A Story of the Moment

By WALT MASON,
The Famous Fosse Poet

NURSING TROUBLES.

"I'm sorry to see you with your face in a sling, my dear Mrs. Jiggers," said the star boarder, sympathetically.

"I've been having a terrible time with neuralgia for three days," replied the landlady. "I never before realized how much a human being can suffer and still live."

"I have no doubt that the story of your sufferings, if published in book form, would make a five-foot shelf, Mrs. Jiggers, and my heart bleeds for you. Yet, I can't help wondering why you don't go to the painless dentist and have the tooth pulled and be done with it. Of course, you will say that it isn't plain, plebeian toothache. You will insist that it is neuralgia, and that the painless dentist has nothing to do with it."

"Most people yield to this form of vanity. The good old-fashioned toothache, which made our ancestors' lives one round of pleasure has been suppressed by the elite. It will do well enough for laborers who earn a dollar a day and eat out of a tin pail, but people who hope to mingle with our best society must steer clear of cheap diseases with vulgar names. So toothache has been abolished in our set, and we have neuralgia instead. Yet if I were you, Mrs. Jiggers, I'd waive all trifling distinctions and go to the dentist and have that tooth pulled. If you like I'll escort you to his studio and let him remove my bosom while he uses his implements."

"It beats all how much unnecessary suffering there is in the world. I am not one of those who insist that all suffering is unnecessary, that we can relieve ourselves of pain by merely insisting that pain is a pipe dream; but I do hold that at least half our mortal anguish is superfluous. You may call your toothache neuralgia, or scarlet fever, or the itch, or whatever you please, Mrs. Jiggers, but the truth is that it is just old-fashioned toothache, and in half an hour you might be rid of it, and once again be a well-spring of pleasure in this house, but you'd rather suffer by day and night for a week than admit this vital truth. You want to make a parade of your agony, and have your boarders, who are expected to pay in advance, express their sympathy for you. There is much human nature in you, surprising as it may seem."

"In the cigar store where I buy my alfalfa there is a young man, a clerk, who has as the appearance of possessing human intelligence. Often as he moves about behind the counter he groans and grits his teeth and a pink perspiration stands out upon his brow. He suffers from corns, Mrs. Jiggers. Unfortunately, no polite name for corns has been invented for the benefit of our upper classes, and these unseemly pedal excrescences are obliged to sail under their true colors, if you will pardon the metaphor. I have pointed out to this clerk upon diverse occasions that he might find relief by wearing shoes large enough for his feet, but this simple remedy does not appeal to him. He has an idea that small feet are necessary if one would attract the favorable attention of the ladies, and so he wears shoes too small for his little stumpy feet, and when he has those shoes on is always dopping his corns with healing unguents which do not heal."

"Our melancholy friend across the table is always torturing himself by wearing high collars with sharp edges. It is painful to watch him wringing his head round as though he were being lynched, trying to find relief from the edge of that collar. He has the absurd idea that a high collar gives him a certain social standing and increases his dignity, whereas it makes him look ridiculous and makes his life a weariness. If I were a low, comfortable collar, with a necktie that fastens on by a wire hook, people would think more of him, and his stand off at the clothing store would be just as good."

"Thus we see, Mrs. Jiggers, that a great deal of human suffering is due to idle vanity, and once more I will urge you to take your face to the dentist and let him show you how much science has progressed since you were a little girl, and had your teeth extracted by the village blacksmith."

Agricultural Conditions as Viewed Abroad

(Interview with President Butterfield, of Massachusetts Agricultural college, on trip abroad, as member agricultural commission.)

The first impression I got was one of surprise at the virility of European nations, especially on the continent. The members of the commission will not call Europe progressive hereafter. Northern Italy, Germany and even France show wonderful examples of virility and progress. We saw more human derelicts in the streets of English, Scottish and Irish cities than in any of the cities on the continent. The impression of the virility of the governments and the splendid agriculture of every nation of the world is used and their use of it is scientific. The Germans raise 30 bushels of wheat to an acre, where we raise 15, and the best of their farmers can produce 45, although the annual rainfall is only 20 inches.

I was struck with the marvelous way their co-operative idea works out. European farmers co-operate in securing mortgage credit, personal credit, short-time loans; they co-operate in getting farm and home supplies, in manufacturing, in dairying, in storage, in selling, in insurance, in their ordinary farming work. Especially in breeding, the benefits of co-operative farming may be realized. No phase of their social or economic life is untouched by their co-operative spirit. Another notable thing is the attitude of the governments and private interests toward agriculture. For example, we were interested to see how loyally the bankers help the farmers. The same encouraging spirit prevails all along the line, why I cannot tell, but the fact is a tremendously impressive one. Child labor there is not carried on any more than in this country. People in the United States who fear we cannot feed our people in the future must change their attitude. Germany, smaller than Texas in area, is very nearly supplying its 66,000,000 people. Their methods of intensive cultivation are ones which we want American farmers to understand.

I was naturally interested in the agricultural education of those countries. I am satisfied after seeing the schools that our country has the most complete system of agricultural education in the world. It is true, nevertheless, that Europe can still give us valuable lessons in managing our system. In research work they are far more thorough, and often men devote their whole lives to the study of a single branch of agriculture. Extension work is not largely done by the colleges, as it might better be, but by co-operative societies and state agricultural societies. Their work in that respect is efficient. I was impressed by the self-respecting spirit of the farmers, who are now largely owning their own farms. They show also a spirit of discipline, which the military system often strengthens.

We believe that this commission came into being at the psychological moment. The country life movement in America is taking form rapidly, especially that phase which deals with finance and marketing. In these two small but particularly hard branches of Europe. The one great lesson which we learned was this: Co-operation is the key to agricultural success; co-operation will enable the farmer to get more from the land and feed the nation better.

The World's Mysteries

WHAT BECAME OF JEAN LAFITTE?

The name Jean Lafitte is more or less unfamiliar no doubt to the average reader, and this is due principally to the mystery that surrounded the man, for no one knew from whence he came or what became of him. Lafitte was the founder of Galveston, Tex., and when the government captured that place in 1830 he sailed away with a well-loaded treasure ship and no one ever heard of him thereafter.

As his name would indicate, Lafitte was a Frenchman, and was well known in the extreme south for a dozen years during the first part of the last century. He first attracted attention when he and his brother Pierre opened a blacksmith shop in New Orleans. This was more or less of a blind, for neither of them looked the part of the blacksmith. They prospered, however, for they got several colored men to do the hard work of the business, while they looted about and connived bigger enterprises.

It was not long, however, until Jean's real occupation became known. He was a pirate who would frequently sail forth under cover into the Gulf of Mexico, and return in no ways empty handed. The authorities began to look upon him with suspicion, but unfortunately for him the war with England broke out and he returned his good resources to valuable account with advantage to the United States.

History is slightly contradictory regarding the two brothers, for some say that it was Pierre Lafitte who sailed into the unknown, and that Jean ended his days in luxury in Yucatan, but most of them are sure that it was Jean who disappeared so mysteriously.

At any rate, historians agree that the brothers made their vast wealth by slave smuggling; or to be more explicit, by a slave trade between Africa and America. During the first years of the last century Louisiana was a vast territory of rich unsettled land, to which the pioneer hastened to find his Eldorado. Thousands of slaves were needed to work these plantations, and the Lafitte brothers were just clever enough to know how to get them and make a vast profit. It was possible to purchase a colored man in Africa for ninety dollars, and he could easily be disposed of to the Louisiana planter for $1,000 on the New Orleans market. By the time the United States became fully cognizant of the illegal practice and made laws to prevent it, Jean and Pierre Lafitte had accumulated a vast fortune for those days.

But the Lafittes were not to be thwarted by any laws, so realizing that it would be unsafe for them to export slaves, they hit upon a new idea. It would be economy for them to seize the Spanish slave ships off the Cuban coast and take the slaves, thereby getting them without cost.

Jean did not go himself after such a piratical work, for he was a "business man," but instead he gathered about him 1,000 men, whom he had in his employ, and instead of making his headquarters, he stayed home, acting the gentleman, while this small army of employees worked out the seizures he had planned.

In order to successfully carry on the work he had a fortified town and harbor of his own at Barataria, and it was here he made his headquarters. He was a man of a peculiar temperament. He held himself aloof from all his men and rarely spoke to them. The pirates disliked him to the extent that behind his back they called him "the old man," but to his face he was "Boss," a word which literally meant "prominence," and it was the origin of our English word "Boss."

The government finally became cognizant of the illegitimate business Jean Lafitte was conducting, but here again he was clever, for by judicious bribes he managed for a long time to keep out of the hands of the law.

When the British, in 1812, undertook the capture of New Orleans, they offered Jean Lafitte a large sum of money for his assistance and the British men, but instead of accepting he turned around and informed the United States of the British plan and offered them his service. Andrew Jackson accepted his offer and the pirate fought bravely for America, and the British, in revenge, destroyed his Barataria plantation and seized his ships.

The United States government, in appreciation of his assistance, pardoned him for all the crimes he had committed, and when the war was over he went back again to his old pursuits, settling on the land now occupied by the city of Galveston, Tex. Finally he became so audacious, however, that the government was compelled to capture his camp, but Lafitte escaped, and nothing was ever heard of him afterwards, but several of his followers were hanged to break up the legitimate practices.

SUDDEN THOUGHTS.

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

Some of our best as well as our most useful thoughts are those that come to us suddenly. And the pity is that they so often as suddenly leave us. Just like the money we earn—but a small part is saved by a very few. But those few make up the substantial lot of human progressors.

Thrill in thought is a kind of saving that even time can not waste away, for no really great thought is ever lost or eradicated—I force myself to write your part is this—hold strongly to the Sudden Thoughts if they seem good. Write them down. Get the most that you possibly can from them yourself. Then express them openly and freely.

One of the habits of Lord Bacon was to keep constant "tab" on his Sudden Thoughts, committing them to paper; while Voltaire kept pen and ink and paper every ready in all parts of his house when the Sudden Thoughts came.

What triumphs strong men and woman and successful business owe to inspired ideas and thoughts that sprang upon them suddenly!

Heed your Sudden Thoughts. Everything in this world works out through evolution. From the Sudden Thought or series of Thoughts comes the completed work. Be ready for them—to grasp and harness them for service when they come.

Suggests Weekly Record of Cotton Movement

Editor Constitution: I have read with exceeding interest the comparative statement of the movement of this year's cotton crop in the Georgia zone where cotton is now being marketed.

This table contains exceedingly valuable information and it seems to me that the importance of keeping a careful record of this movement from year to year should commend itself to our state department of agriculture.

During the movement of the cotton crop there should be at least a weekly record of the receipts in every cotton-buying center in Georgia, and it would be a very simple thing for the department of agriculture to obtain these statistics at least once a week. This is done in other states, and I do not see why Georgia should not get busy along the same line, so that at least once a week everybody may know just how the movement stands for the year itself, and by comparison with previous years.

Paris Financial Genius.

(From The Indianapolis News.)

Paris is now in the throes of the greatest financial crash it has known since the notorious Humbert case. Monsieur Deperdussin, silk merchant, aeroplane builder and the owner of four theaters, secured large advances of money on supposed enormous stocks of silks, and his total indebtedness, chiefly to Paris bankers, amounts to $8,000,000. He owned an aeroplane factory in Paris, owned newspapers, owned flying grounds at Etampes and Villacoublay, workshops for building motor boats and hydroaeroplanes, and three magnificent country seats. Before he launched out in his silk schemes he was a cabaret singer. According to the Paris press, when he became wealthy he was wont to make up merry parties of four or five young women and have them at dinner. When they unfolded their napkins each of the girls would find a thousand franc note—$200—in her napkin. M. Deperdussin is in prison.

CONAN DOYLE'S MASTERPIECE,

"THE POISON BELT"

IN SUNDAY CONSTITUTION SEPTEMBER 7

Ordinarily the spectacle of the man rushing another down the street by the collar of his coat and the seat of his trousers would be calculated to stir up some excitement, but in this particular instance it happened to be Professor Challenger who was doing the propelling and young Alec Simpson, a reporter for The Courier, who was being hustled along faster than he cared to go, and that made it all the more important, for Professor Challenger has climbed to a high pinnacle of fame via the pen of Sir A. Conan Doyle.

Professor Challenger is quite as quaint a character as Sherlock Holmes, and in his own particular line just as great. The reason for his tackling of young Simpson is fully explained in the opening paragraph of Sir Conan Doyle's latest and greatest story, "The Poison Belt," which will begin in The Sunday Constitution, September 7, and continue in generous installments until it reaches its dramatic conclusion.

"The Poison Belt" is heralded as the most entrancing mystery that this gifted writer has ever produced, and lovers of fiction are to be congratulated on their opportunity of securing it in their favorite Sunday paper. Start with the first instalment. Remember, Sunday, September 7.

WHOLESALE SECTION AN ASSURED FACT

Southern Railway Begins Work on Spur Tracks in Walker Street.

A wholesale district on the west side of the railroad is now no longer a promoter's dream or a mere speculation, for work of laying the spur tracks into the Walker street section purchased last year for this purpose began on Tuesday.

The Southern railway, from whose tracks the spur tracks will be projected, is doing the work. A steam shovel and a couple of work trains are excavating the roadbed and removing the dirt.

The work will be pushed with all speed possible and in a short time it is expected that the tracks will be laid and ready for the construction of warehouses alongside of them.

Leaving the main line at Peters street viaduct, just below the Terminal station, four spur tracks will be projected through a small block of property owned by the A. B. & A. railroad, and thence through a part of the Stocks coal yard property to Mangum street.

Only two tracks will cross Mangum street, but on the other side of this street the tracks will again branch into four lines and extend to Haynes street.

This will allow for warehouses for a distance of two long blocks on either side of the tracks, with a truckway between two pairs of tracks.

A number of substantial business men are behind the project and it promises to be one of the most successful real estate and business enterprises of some years.

HICKS BADLY INJURED AS DYNAMITE EXPLODES

Ed S. Hicks, a plumber, living at 21 Reservoir street, was severely cut and bruised by an explosion of dynamite about 8 o'clock Tuesday morning, while working in a vacant house at 22 Tattnall street.

Picking up a small package wrapped in a newspaper which he found in a dark corner, Hicks carelessly struck the bundle a sharp blow with a steel chisel, the explosion resulting. His right hand was so badly torn that it was necessary to amputate the index finger. Several other workmen in the house were severely jarred by the explosion.

The house where the accident occurred is the one formerly occupied by Howard Burns, the negro who killed his wife and committed suicide about a month ago, and has been vacant since that time. Several days ago, neighbors found a quantity of dynamite concealed in the house, but it was thought that all of the explosive had been removed.

ARMY OFFICER FOR RIVERSIDE ACADEMY

Word has been received at the office of the adjutant general at the state capital that the United States war department has approved the recommendation that an army officer be detailed for service at Riverside military academy at Gainesville, Ga., and such detail will be announced from Washington in a few days.

This detail will carry with it not only the presence of an army officer at Riverside in charge of the cadet corps but in addition complete equipment of modern rifles, dress and service accoutrements as used by the United States army and also artillery and cavalry equipment for dismounted service. The uniforms of Riverside cadets are identical with those used at West Point.

The action of the United States war department follows closely upon the splendid recommendation made in a special report by Major B. F. Hardaway, of the Seventeenth infantry, who was given a special detail in July to make this investigation and report.

Benjamin Bentz, a 15-year-old messenger boy, living at 34 Woodward avenue, was knocked down and severely injured and cut about the head when an automobile driven by R. C. Bone, 7 East Ontario avenue, ran into his bicycle at the corner of Whitehall and Mitchell streets Tuesday night about 8 o'clock.

The boy was picked up and placed in the car by Bone and taken to the Grady hospital for treatment. He sustained a bad cut over the right eye, and a number of bruises and other cuts. Bone was arrested and will be tried in the recorder's court this afternoon on a charge of reckless driving.

Refuses to Leave Hospital Where Brother Is Patient

Harry and Charlie McAfee on the bottom row. The two boys on the top row are friends.

The old adage which says twins hate one another is disproven by an incident at Grady hospital. Sunday afternoon Charlie McAfee, 12-year-old son of Mrs. C. M. McAfee, of 73 Capitol avenue, was run over by an auto on Peachtree near Baker street, and taken to Grady in a serious condition.

His twin brother, Harry, rushed to the bedside of Charlie when he heard of the latter's injuries, and refused to leave when visiting time was up.

Pleading, coaxing, and even threats were of no avail. "He's my brother, and he's hurt. You're his brother, but you gotta let me before you take me away from my brother," said little Harry to the hospital officials.

And so they were forced to allow him to remain. "I'm going to stay right here until he gets well, you just watch me," he said. And evidently he is, too. It is thought that the injured boy will recover.

MASSEY TO RETURN SUM BROTHER-IN-LAW STOLE

Provided Mrs. J. T. Shepherd, His Sister, Has Nothing Further to Do With Husband.

Macon, Ga., August 26.—(Special.)—J. Turner Shepherd, for three years bookkeeper for the J. N. Neel Clothing company, of Macon, has disappeared, leaving a shortage in his accounts of $2,500, besides a wife and two children.

The shortage dates back to 1910 and various amounts had been taken from then up to the present time. Some time ago Mr. Shepherd confessed to Mr. Neel that he was short in his accounts and advised Mr. Neel to call in an auditor and have the exact amount determined with a view of settling up. Shepherd aided the auditor in his work and had been promised immunity from prosecution if he made the amount good. Apparently, "found he could not do so, and Saturday night he disappeared and has not been heard from since.

It is said that while employed previously by H. F. Haley, Shepherd was also short in his accounts to the amount of $700, but secured the money and made the amount good. Today W. H. Massey, brother-in-law of Shepherd, told Mrs. Shepherd, his sister, that he would make the amount good if she would agree to have nothing to do with her husband. She consented. Mrs. Shepherd was formerly Miss Pearl Massey.

Shepherd received a salary of $1,500 from the Neel company, while his wife averaged $50 a month as a music teacher. The money he stole from the firm is said to have been dissipated in being a "good fellow."

SIX MACON MILKMEN ARRAIGNED IN COURT

Macon, Ga., August 26.—(Special.)—Six local dairymen were arraigned before the recorder this morning on the charge of selling impure milk. Samples of the milk had been taken from the dairy wagons by Food Inspector Keller and turned over to the city's bacteriologist, the test proving that each sample of the milk contained more than 200,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter.

When he appeared before the recorder the bacteriologist explained that the bacteria could be kept down only by using clean vessels and keeping the temperature at a low degree.

The dairymen complained that the inspector is not equipped with an ice vessel in which he may place the samples of milk, but is forced to carry it around in a wire basket and it soon becomes the same temperature as the outside atmosphere. Therefore, when the test is made, the bacteria have greatly increased.

GRAND JURY SCORES BUTTS TAX DODGERS

Jackson, Ga., August 26.—(Special.)—The grand jury that has just adjourned made some pertinent recommendations as to tax defaulters and the continued decrease in the acreage of land.

It was shown that since 1878, when about 124,000 acres of land was returned, there has been a decrease until now the total number of acres returned for taxation is about 112,000. This year's digest shows an increase over the number of acres returned last year, however, and the nice gain in tax values in Butts this year was the subject of comment by the grand jury. The grand jury suggested that land be returned to the tax receiver by lot number.

ROWS IN PARK BOARD AVOIDED BY NEW RULE

Following the row in the park board over the letting of a $325 contract by General Manager Dan Carey for the underground lighting system in Piedmont park, the board's rules committee has adopted a complete new set of regulations obviously for the purpose of preventing other conflicts in the future over the giving of park contracts.

The new rules were introduced by President J. O. Cochran at the last meeting of the board and referred to the rules committee of which Commissioner William Van Houten is chairman. Under these new regulations, the board only has power to execute contracts and pay for work. Likewise, General Manager Carey alone has the power to carry out the contracts.

The rules prohibit the board from interfering or giving orders to employees, and the general manager is not allowed to spend any money or begin a new improvement without the consent of the board. Requisitions on the comptroller must state that a certain portion of the expenditure was given by the board.

Although the city finance committee has not provided the funds to disburse the bills under the contract which Manager Carey let out, it is understood that the matter will be amicably settled.

BRINSON ROAD ASKS TO ISSUE MORE BONDS

The Brinson Railway company on yesterday asked the railroad commission for permission to issue $2,563,500 of refunding bonds. The officials of the company admit that they do not hope to be able to place that sum in bonds on the market, but they do hope to be able to use half the issue as security for $1,280,000 worth of two-year bonds at the rate of 6 per cent. The bonds, if allowed, are to be for thirty years and to bear 6 per cent interest.

The Brinson railroad runs from Savannah to Waynesboro. It is the hope of the promoters to continue the road on to Athens, but so far it has been built only to Stephens crossing about twelve miles from Waynesboro. Imbray & Co., of Baltimore, are owners of the existing bonds. These bondsmen have taken over control of the road.

POWELL'S ASSAILANTS ARE HELD UNDER BOND

Cordele, Ga., August 26.—(Special.)—Harley Blanchard and John Warren, charged with assault with intent to murder in connection with the cutting of Ambros Powell in Crisp county several weeks ago, waived preliminary trial at a hearing given them yesterday and were bound over to superior court by Judge J. B. Smith, of the justice court, under bond of $500. It is alleged that Powell made remarks reflecting on the character of Warren's wife, who is a sister of Blanchard, and that the two young men waylaid him near his home. It is said that Blanchard did the cutting, dangerously wounding Powell.

AUTOMOBILE THIEF FOILED BY ACCIDENT

Cordele, Ga., August 26.—(Special.)—Probably a bolder attempt at robbery has never been made in Cordele than that made by a stranger yesterday when he attempted to beat Frank Teuber, a well-known citizen, out of an automobile. Claiming to be a tourist, he intended to start an automobile back line, the stranger, who gave his name differently to several persons, induced him to let him try out a touring car belonging to Mr. Teuber and which he expected to sell. The stranger man was evidently on his way to "Paris unknown" when the machine had an accident near Tifton and he placed it in a garage there and skipped out.

21 PERSONS INJURED IN RAILROAD WRECK

Lynchburg, Va., August 26.—Twenty-one people were injured in a wreck of a mixed train on the Buckingham branch of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad, near Brems, early this afternoon, one of them, Conductor J. C. Dowell, of New Canton, Va., being internally hurt and will probably die.

The train was derailed by spreading rails and the passenger coach and three freight cars loaded with lumber rolled over a 29-foot embankment. Miss Helen Page, of Lynchburg, who had a miraculous escape, was a heroine in the rescue, for she worked faithfully with the male passengers in their efforts to rescue those under the debris. The more seriously injured were taken to a hospital in Richmond.

BLEASE GIVES ADVICE TO GOVERNOR SULZER

Columbia, S. C., August 26.—In a letter today Governor Blease recognized William Sulzer as governor of New York and secured Lieutenant Governor Glynn for his conduct in attempting to assume the duties of the office. Governor Blease states that he, too, felt the sting of persecution though impeachment was not attempted, reference being to the action of the investigating committee of last summer. "Trust in God and the white people and you will always be a winner," is the South Carolina governor's advice to the impeached governor of New York.

14 MURDER CASES CONFRONT DORSEY

Solicitor Will Have No Chance to Get a Vacation for Some Time to Come.

Fourteen more murder trials confront the solicitor general who has just won Georgia's greatest criminal victory. They have accumulated from police and justice courts during the four weeks that were occupied by the famous Frank trial.

Work will begin on them immediately. Most of the numbers have been bound over from police court and are negroes. Almost all will be tried before Judge L. S. Roan, who presided over the Frank case.

It was the solicitor himself who declared that more homicides had appeared during the past month than at any time during its history. Fourteen murder trials to face at a moment's notice is a task, indeed.

Solicitor Dorsey did not appear at his office through the day Tuesday. He remained at his home on sixteenth street. The telephone rang incessantly at all hours, bringing congratulations and praise. His office was swamped with telegrams from all portions of the state.

Someone asked if he would take a vacation. "No," he answered. "I'm going to rest at home a little and then I've got to go back to the office for a livelihood."

The solicitor is sorely worried over the loss of his bunch of keys, which dropped from his pocket Monday afternoon when he was being tumbled over the heads of the jubilant mob that surrounded the courthouse when the verdict was returned. His every key is on the lost ring, and many private boxes and vaults will have to remain unlocked until they are recovered.

He does not seem perturbed any whatever over the prospect of 104 cases which he faces after the Frank trial, and which number was committed to his charge by police and justice courts. A majority of these cases are for felonies, while a number are for smaller crimes.

The train carried R. L. O'Donnell, general superintendent of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, and other officials who were making an inspection trip.

Rowan, his wife and child, a year old, were killed instantly. A second child and Rowan's sister-in-law died two hours after the accident.

Tan, Red or Freckled Skin Is Easily Shed

To free your summer-solled skin of its oiliness, muddiness, freckles, blotches or tan, the best thing to do is to free yourself of the skin itself. This is easily accomplished by the use of ordinary mercurized wax, which can be had at any drug store. Use at night as you use cold cream, washing it off in the morning. Immediately the offending surface skin begins to come off in fine powder-like particles. Gradually the entire cuticle is absorbed, without pain or inconvenience. The second layer of skin now in evidence presents a spotless whiteness and sparkling beauty obtainable in no other way I've ever heard of.

If the heat tends to loosen and wrinkle your skin, there's an effective and harmless remedy you can readily make at home. Just let an ounce of powdered sassafras dissolve in a half-pint witch-hazel and bathe your face in the liquid. This at once tightens the skin and smooths out the lines, making you look years younger.

LIMIT OF INCOME TAX REMAINS UNCHANGED

Attempts to Increase Rates on Larger Incomes Fail in the Senate.

Washington, August 26.—Attempts to increase the limit of the proposed income tax on the larger incomes, failed in the senate today, when Senators Borah, Bristow and Cummings led an effort to amend the income tax section of the democratic tariff bill.

Senator Borah offered an amendment increasing the graduated tax on larger incomes until it would have reached 5 per cent on those above $100,000 a year. The democrats, aided by ten republicans, defeated the amendment 47 to 17.

A more radical provision, with a maximum tax of 10 per cent on incomes of $100,000 or more, will be submitted by Senator Bristow when the debate is resumed tomorrow.

In the pending bill the rates on larger incomes are:

One per cent on incomes from $20,000 to $50,000; 2 per cent from $50,000 to $100,000; and 3 per cent above $100,000.

Borah proposed to increase the "additional tax" as follows:

One per cent on income from $10,000 to $30,000; 2 per cent from $30,000 to $50,000; 3 per cent from $50,000 to $100,000; 4 per cent from $100,000 to $200,000; and 5 per cent above $200,000.

The democrats voted solidly against the increase and were joined by Senators Clarke (Wyoming), Gallinger, Lippitt, Lodge, Oliver, Penrose, Root, Smoot, Warren and Weeks from the republican side.

The senate reached the income tax section of the tariff unexpectedly late in the afternoon, after finishing the first reading of all the tariff schedules in the bill. The debate is expected to continue a day or two.

The demand for an increase of the tax on big incomes was accompanied by the declaration that men with large incomes would escape their just share of the tax, under the bill.

"The man with the small income always pays his tax more completely," said Senator Borah, "than does the man with the larger income. It is much easier to find all the $5,000 incomes than to find all the $50,000 incomes. A tax of 4 or 5 per cent on the man with $100,000 will not inconvenience him more than the 1 per cent tax will inconvenience the man with $5,000."

Compelled to Go Slowly.

Senator Williams, who had charge of the income tax provisions for the democratic side, insisted that the committee had been compelled to go slowly and cautiously in inaugurating the new form of direct taxation.

"We thought it well now to establish the tax upon simple grounds," he said. "Experience alone will show how it works and the changes that may be necessary in it. In future the American people will have representatives here who will revise and perfect it."

Senator Root said the plan to tax undivided "gains and profits" of all corporations or partnerships would be impossible of administration. He insisted that these undivided profits were part of a stockholder's capital, and not his income.

Senator Williams said this section

SCENE IN MELODRAMA PUTS NEGRO IN A FIT

Tampa, Fla., August 26.—During an intense scene in a melodrama at a local theater Willard Dudley, a negro, had an epileptic fit in the gallery and plunged, headfirst, into the pit.

The negro's head struck the brass rail around a tier of boxes and bounced off onto the head of a 10-year-old girl, Marie Rodriguez. Both were taken from the theater unconscious. A bucket of water dashed into the negro's face revived him. He was unhurt. The girl was hurried to a hospital, but she, too, was found to have escaped serious injury.

When the negro took his flight to the pit the villain in the play was preparing to shoot the hero. In the excitement he swerved and one of the women members of the company was badly burned about the cheeks from the explosion.

DEATH CALLS COMPOSER OF THE "HOLY CITY"

Buxton, England, August 26.—Michael Maybrick, English composer, who, under the name of "Stephen Adams" wrote some of the most popular songs in the English language, among them "Nancy Lee," "The Warrior's Song," and "The Holy City," died here today, aged 69.

He was a native of Liverpool but had lived for many years in the Isle of Wight, where he devoted himself to municipal politics.

Michael Maybrick was a younger brother of James Maybrick, whose wife, Florence Maybrick, was sentenced to death in Liverpool in 1883 on a charge of poisoning him with arsenic. The trial caused an immense sensation throughout the world, opinion being sharply divided on the question of her guilt or innocence.

Her sentence was commuted to penal servitude for life. She served 15 years in prison and was released in 1905 after which she went to the United States.

Her brother-in-law, Michael Maybrick, took charge of her two children, whom she never saw after her release from prison.

Liberty E. Holden Dead.

Cleveland, Ohio, August 26.—Liberty E. Holden, publisher of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, and interested in many business enterprises, died today. He was 86 years old.

would be gone over again in the committee, in an effort to make its meaning clearer. It was devised, he said, to prevent evasions of the tax.

Over 100 Paragraphs Remain.

When the senate adjourned tonight it had 100 or more paragraphs covering tariff revates still to dispose of. These are scattered throughout the various schedules of the bill. Senator Simmons, the tariff leader, announced that he expected to conclude the income and administrative features of the measure before returning to the tariff rates still in dispute. In the meantime democratic members of the finance committee will attempt to settle all points at issue by Saturday of Monday.

An attempt today by Senator Brandegee to increase the proposed duty on hats from 45 to 50 per cent was defeated. An amendment by Senator Page to increase the duty on calf skins and fancy leather from 10 to 15 per cent was defeated by a vote of 46 to 22.

Pope, who was stricken with paralysis early Sunday morning at his home in this city, is in a critical condition and little hope is entertained for his recovery. APPROVED

By U. S. WAR DEPARTMENT

THE RECORD

By special order of the Secretary of War an officer of the United States Army is to be detailed for service at Riverside Military Academy.

The approval for this detail follows speedily the recommendation of Major B. F. Hardaway, Seventeenth Infantry, stationed at Fort McPherson, who made the inspection by special order of the War Department early in July.

This detail carries with it the complete equipment of modern rifles, dress and service accouterments, haversacks, canteens and mess equipment as used by the United States Army.

Also artillery and cavalry equipment for dismounted service.

The uniforms of the Riverside cadets are identical with those of the West Point cadets, and are fitted to the figure of each cadet by military tailors at Riverside Military Academy. In this respect, Riverside stands alone among the Southern preparatory schools.

THE RECOMMENDATION

In July of this year a request was made upon the War Department for an army officer to be detailed for service with the Riverside cadets.

Copies of the current catalogue and a complete description of the campus, location, surroundings, physical equipment and faculty were furnished.

This so impressed the War Department that, notwithstanding the annual inspection of academies and schools applying for such recognition is made only in April, a SPECIAL INSPECTION was ordered immediately, and Major Hardaway was detailed for this service.

He was so impressed with the location of Riverside, two miles out of Gainesville—connected by trolley—in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains, on the banks of the Chattahoochee River, with Lake Warner on its 2,000-acre campus, that he wrote in strong praise of its magnificent natural advantages and wonderful possibilities.

He was greatly impressed with the opportunities afforded for indoor gallery practice, long range sharpshooting adjacent to the school, the maneuvering grounds, bridge building, pontoon work, swimming, boating and other arts of modern warfare, all on or at the campus.

The physical equipment, with its well-lighted, perfectly ventilated and modernly equipped barracks, mess hall, class rooms and gymnasium, so enthused him that his comments on these features in his report caused the War Department to take immediate action and announce the approval and detail.

THE REASON

Riverside possesses all the requisites of an ideal military school. In addition to the superior advantages named, Riverside has:

1. An Accomplished Faculty—An instructor of successful experience for every twelve boys. No cadet's room more than three doors from teacher.

2. Wholesome Atmosphere—Two miles out in the hills, with ideal quietude for study; yet enjoying the cultured influences of the refined and intellectual city of Gainesville.

3. Superior Athletics—Only best coaches and trainers employed. Every boy given opportunity to participate. Three and four teams in each sport, coached by members of faculty.

4. Individual Instruction—All the courses offered by any preparatory school and taught thoroughly.

5. Inspection Invited—The most complete boys' school in the South. Parents and prospective patrons urged to visit academy.

GEORGIA

EDITED BY Dick Jamison

The Crackers had on their hitting clothes yesterday. They hit timely and savagely. Even Thompson got a hit.

WHIFFS
Not First Time.

THE SPORTING department received so many inquiries last night regarding the double-header Tuesday, as to whether it was the first double-header the Crackers had won this season, that for the benefit of others, the desire to know, the Crackers won a double-header from Nashville when the Vols played here the first part of the month.

Atlanta Making Good.

WILTON REID, an Atlanta boy, is making good in the big leagues. Secured from the Davenport I. I. I. league team, he has been made good. The Philadelphia papers have several complimentary stories about him, with large action cuts of him. Yesterday Milton was put in by Doolin to hit in the pinch for Pitcher Seaton in the ninth inning. He singled, sending in the tying run and a moment later tallied with the winning run. Doolin passed very complimentary of his latest infield acquisition.

First of Year.

THE CRACKERS accomplished something Tuesday afternoon that they have been trying to do all season, win a game after a rain or on a muddy field. The victory, the second game played on a muddy field, was the first victory for the locals this season either at home or abroad under those conditions.

Breaks Streak.

CARL THOMPSON got a hit in the fifth inning of the second game, thus breaking his streak. It was the first hit that Carl had been able to get since he came to the Crackers from the Barons. Congratulations from here's hoping you'll get several more before the season ends.

Two Favorites.

TOMMY LOWE and Harry Chapman are our favorites in two of the field day events this afternoon at Ponce de Leon. We favor Tommy in the 100-yard dash and we like Chapman's chances in the long distance throwing. In the other events we have no pick to offer.

The Issue.

LOYALTY to Atlanta and a wish to place Birmingham in the Atlanta club are the reasons that Atlanta fans should flock to the ball game the remainder of the season. The Crackers are playing baseball and, slim as it is, they have a look-in at the pennant. Are you going to let Birmingham continue to say, "The Crackers got the best ball town in the league," without branding it an untruth. But to date they have the edge, slight as it is, in the attendance. Rally round the flag boys, Atlanta's superiority is threatened.

No Cause.

A STORY from Chattanooga is to the effect that Harry Coveleskie is peeved at Atlanta. He says that he is not worthy to save his pitching average, dodged both series with the Crackers. Let that word "both" be said not dodged either. He pitched in one and Carl Thompson beat him. Illness of his favorite sister prevented his pitching in Atlanta. If the allegations were true we would not blame "The Pole" for being sore, but as they are not, we do not hesitate to call him in our opinion it is a case of the pot and the kettle. The same insinuations were thrown at the Pole recently by Birmingham. He is just retaliating, we guess.

Tough Luck.

PUG CAVETT's future as a ball player is probably ended. The lanky southpaw gave every evidence of being one of the really great southpaws in the game. But the Memphis players bring the news to Atlanta that he has lost the use of it. He says he will have to be removed to save the other one. Pretty tough on a youngster with as much promise as the little fellow. Grieve with the Mobile fans and fans.

Did Just Right.

C. FRANK, the boss of the New Orleans Pelicans, has suspended Shortstop Clancy and Outfielder Kyle for the remainder of the season. The Pelican chief caught them returning to the hotel at 4 a. m. and promptly issued the suspensions. Had he done this with some of the other players in the season the Pelicans might have been considerably higher in the standings.

Two More Go.

THE PASSING of veterans from the big league is always attended with considerable regret. The old players are usually very popular and the fans hate to see them pass out, but new and young blood is always wanted and the old-timers have to pass. Arthur Devlin and Joe Lake are the latest to depart from the big league. Their journey that will in the near future mean oblivion. They will slip even further down as the batting dims, the base steals drop, and the old limbs fail to stoop quick enough for a ground ball. Baseball is not a game of sentiment, sometimes.

Rare Sport.

SOME ONE suggested Monday at the ball park that in the 100-yard dash this afternoon that "Speedy" Seabough and "Lightning" Dunn meet in the 100-yard dash. Both Joe and Doc have humor enough to see the joke in this without getting peeved, and they are urged enough we feel certain that the "event of the day" will be staged.

Worthy Cause.

FRIDAY night all the proceeds from the motorcycle race meet at the local motorcycle will be for the benefit of Jock McNeill's mother. Atlanta speed fans will have an opportunity to show their appreciation of the splendid support the little Scotchman showed them and we hope that the attendance will be the best that has witnessed the race since the track was built. No passes will be honored.

Win Double Battle—Field Day Today
Heavy Batting Wins Both; Crackers' Rain Jinx Broken; Price and Thompson in Form

By Dick Jamison.

The Crackers won both ends of a double-header from the Turtles Tuesday afternoon before a large ladies' day crowd, the first game 12 to 2 and the second 8 to 0.

Neither game was ever in doubt. The Crackers had on their hitting clothes, and pounded out an easy victory in both contests.

In the first game they got 21 hits, in the second 11, a total of 32 for 38 bases during the games. Maybe the horseshoe Parsons had tied to him the early part of the first game had something to do with their slugging. They got mad when line drives began sailing into waiting hands and proceeded to "hit 'em where they ain't."

Parsons and Newton were the twisters that received the hard lacing. Neither apparently had a thing, and the Crackers fattened their batting averages accordingly.

Atlanta's "Right."
Gil Price tied the first game for the locals and led the Turtles to 5 hits. He pitched careful, steady ball all the while, and with the locals piling up run after run, he never had to worry.

Carl Thompson worked the second game, and in the six rounds that the contest lasted the Turtles were only able to get one hit off his delivery—a single by Baerwald in the opening session.

The Crackers broke their rain hoodoo Tuesday to Saturday the Crackers had not won a game on a muddy field or on a rainy day either on the road or at Ponce. A hard shower just after the close of the first game made the field muddy, but the Crackers routed the old rain jinx and walked off with the battle right in the first inning.

Outside of a one-handed catch of a line drive by Jack Love, there were no features from the Memphis standpoint. To enumerate those of the Crackers would take reams of paper and use up our trusty typewriter. Everyone had a field day. That expresses it about as briefly as you can put it.

There was a play in the fourth inning of the first game that has never been seen at Ponce de Leon before. With Smith on third, Blaisdell stole second on a bunt. Bill made a nice play on the ball and came down the line to tag Blizzy.

Abstein was watching third base all the time and Blaisdell, who had apparently given up, waited until Abstein got right to him, then fell on the ground, scrambled to his feet and reached first safely. His strategy earned him a hit. It could not be scored anything else.

First Game.
The Turtles counted one run in the opening inning of the first game. Love walked, Abstein sacrificed to second, and Smith counted. Parsons, counting when Holland threw Baerwald's tap over Agler's head, Rudy went out trying to steal third. At least the umpire said so, but he looked safe a block. He was chased for kicking.

In the ninth a double by Schweitzer and a single by Abstein scored their other run.

The first Cracker run came in the second. Nixon beat out a hit to second and stole. Chapman hit a slow roller, short which he beat out. Shanley pulled Abstein off the bag for the throw and Nixon counted.

After lacing a long fly to the fence in the first inning which Schweitzer caught, Wallop pitched and over his caught. Wallop pitched and over his caught. Wallop pitched and over his caught.

Blaisdell got the break hit above mentioned.

Holland fanned and Nixon forced Blaisdell at second. Smith scored when Chapman hit, he went to second. Nixon counting. Price beat out a bunt. Agler singled, scoring Chapman. Long singled, scoring Price.

Smith was hit to start the fifth. Holland went out, no advance. Nixon hit to Love, who got Smith at the plate. Nixon stole and Blaisdell counted on the double steal. Chapman singled, scoring Nixon.

Blaisdell doubled. Holland singled, so did Nixon. Chapman and Price. Agler got a life on Shauley's error, and Love and Welchone singled, sending in runners. Holland threw out at first.

Long at long at the plate during the mix-up.

M'LOUGHLIN WINS OVER WILLIAMS
Tennis Champion Retains the Title in Brilliant Match at Newport—Opponent Made Him Extend Himself.

Newport, R. I., August 26.—The lawn tennis championship record for 1913 was practically completed on the California Grand court today when Maurice McLaughlin, of San Francisco, successfully defended his own title in singles and maintained the Pacific coast supremacy by defeating R. Norris Williams, second, of Philadelphia, in the finals of the all-comers tournament in a well-fought four-set match. The scores 6-4, 5-7, 6-3, 6-1.

As McLaughlin and T. C. Bundy, of Los Angeles, won their second championship in doubles last week and Miss Mary Browne, of Los Angeles, is still the best women's player in the world, California in the principal departments of tennis is assured for another year.

Williams gave McLaughlin the hardest fought match since he landed from their successful quest for the Davis' cup, because Williams knew the Californian's game from three months of almost constant practice.

Champion Extended.
No one of McLaughlin's six antagonists in the preceding rounds of the tournament handled the champions slugging service so confidently and successfully as Williams. For two sets and a part of a third the young Harvard sophomore held his own against the champion's overhead smashes and the most scintillating drives to the side and base lines.

And when there was a lull in the second set, Williams, through the short ends of the numerous two to one and three to one bets thought they had glimpsed the end of the champion's career.

The loss of the second set spoiled McLaughlin's straight set record for tournament, but he came back strong, and through the third set was practically the climax of the contest.

It was in the third game of this set that McLaughlin seemed to have regained his mastery of the situation. Every one of the five points in the game was gained with a decision and brilliancy that left little doubt regarding the ultimate outcome.

Williams stood up courageously under the bombardment and in the eighth game came across with a few place shots of his own manufacture. At times he seemed to even out-general the champion in slugging the play.

McLaughlin Number One.
In the estimation of the experts, the match in the finals today not only was the greatest since the American tennis, but it placed Williams at number two.

Williams' tournament this year was marked by surprisingly few reversals in form, and with the exception of Dabney and Gardner, all the other players were defeated in matches that were necessary to uncover the champion. McLaughlin was the only one to win a match of young talent, and old followers of the game watched his progress as well as his Pacific coast companions, with almost satiated conviction that the game was secure for many years in such hands.

McLaughlin clinched his second championship title in singles by a telling drive down the side lines today, he closed three months of the most strenuous tennis in his eventful career. He left home in May and will return next Thursday after the Davis' cup match at Newport.

Senators 5, White Sox 2.
Chicago, August 26.—Washington got the jump on Chicago in the first game of the double-header today, leading the locals over a five-run victory. The score was 5 to 2. Manager Callahan gave his latest pitching assignment to George Suggs, who pitched a great game, winning by a score of 5 to 2. One of the locals' two hits was a long triple by Merkle in the eighth inning. Suggs followed, permitting Merkle to score the only run of the game.

Detroit, Mich., August 26.—Backed by miserable support and a victim of one batting rally, Ralph Comstock pitched a "32,000 beauty" pitched a heart-breaking game against Boston today and lost. The score was 7 to 0. Comstock's major league debut was far more impressive than the score would indicate. Man after man—eight in all—struck vainly at his elusive spitball. In the first four innings he struck out six men after his team-mates mislaidly failed to place runners on the bases.

Slow, Uninteresting Races At Motordrome Last Night

The races at the motordrome last night were slow and uninteresting and were witnessed by the poorest crowd that has attended the races since the track was opened.

Something will have to be done if the motorcycle racing game in Atlanta is to continue. Either new riders must be imported, some unique events will have to be put on or the riders at present here will have to show more ambition than they have been showing of late.

Wilmer Richards was the only rider who seemed to care whether school kept or not. He won his heat in the southern championship, the final in the same event and all three heats in the Peet sweepstakes. The only reason he did not win any more was that he was not entered in them.

Colonel Peel, who was to have started the three heats in the sweepstakes that bore his name, sent his regrets to the officials, saying he was suffering from an illness in his family.

There was just about as much excitement at the races Tuesday night as there would be at a funeral and the crowds will grow smaller and smaller unless the management or the riders do something to furnish better sport than they have put on the last two race meets.

SOUTHERN CHAMPIONSHIP.
(1 mile heats; 2 miles final; 25 points for first; 15 points for second and 5 for third.)
First heat: Henry Lewis, first; Harry Glenn, second. Time, 44.2-5.

Second heat: Wilmer Richards, first; Freddie Luther, second. Time, 42.1-5. Final: Wilmer Richards, first; Freddie Luther, second; Henry Lewis, third. Time, 1:28.

SPECIAL MATCH RACE.
(Three heats, 1 and 2 and 3 miles, heat 2 out of 3 heats.)
First heat (1 mile): Won by George Reed, Time, 44.

Second heat (4 miles): Won by Morty Graves, Time, 1:25.
Third heat (3 miles): Won by Morty Graves, Time, 2:11.2-5.

W. L. PEEL SWEEPSTAKES.
(French point system; 10 for first; 6 for second; 3 for third; three heats, 3, 4 and 5 miles.)
First heat (3 miles): Wilmer Richards, first; Freddie Luther, second; Harry Glenn, third. Time, 2:08.3-5.

Second heat (4 miles): Wilmer Richards, first; Freddie Luther, second; Henry Lewis, third. Time, 2:55.
Third heat (5 miles): Wilmer Richards, first; Freddie Luther, second; Harry Glenn, third. Time, 3:43.

Points: Richards, 30; Luther, 18; Glenn, 8; Lewis, 5.

It is, despotism, tyranny and oppression."

Judge Speer and Colonel Huff.

Judge Bartlett said in part: "I merely want to call the attention of the gentleman to the fact that so far as I can ascertain this investigation grew out of the fact that in the trial of a case in the United States court in Macon, a suit was brought to the judge in which he made certain allegations of improper conduct, not only in that case, but in many other cases. That case became celebrated by reason of the fact that the judge had the suit arranged before him for contempt, and that contempt case was tried and those charges by the judge against the suit were sustained with reference to that case, but numbers of other cases, became a part of the records of this court, and of course a matter of which the department of justice had cognizance."

"The department of justice was compelled to take action, and another district attorney to try the case. In that way these matters became known not only to the press and to the public, but spread upon the records of the court. An investigation was made by the department of justice through the aid of special examiners, and that examiner has reported to the department of justice concerning those matters, the report being accompanied by numerous statements of lawyers and prominent citizens."

"Whether those charges should be sustained or not sustained I am not here today to say."

"The charges are most serious."

"They affect the judge in every way."

"They affect his capacity to try cases temperately, they affect his administration of justice in the court."

"Favoritism and Tyranny."

"They charge favoritism, despotism, tyranny and oppression."

"I do not know from the testimony or in any other way whether the charges are true or not, but I want to say to my friend from Illinois (Mr. Mann) that he could do this judge no greater harm by attempting to stop an investigation to ascertain the truth or falsity of these charges."

"It is not for me now to determine or even to express an opinion as to whether the charges are sustained or not, but these things have reached a condition where justice to the people of that district and above all justice to the judge against whom these charges are made, requires and demands an investigation at the hands of this house."

"It should not be necessary for any member of the judiciary or any other member of the house to be compelled to rise in his place and proceed to make a measure or to proceed to impeach the judge in order to have an investigation of the truth or falsity of these charges, because the judge should not be impeached until it shall be at least reasonably certain that he has violated the law and been guilty of some misdemeanor or conduct justifying impeachment."

"But, I repeat that any friend of the judge does him no harm, but does him harm, by standing in the way of permitting the broad, clear light of publicity to shine upon the judge's actions and his decisions from the time he entered upon this honorable office down to the present day."

People Restless About Judges.

"The people have become restless about judges and there is but one way in which we can preserve the honor and integrity and the supremacy of the law, and that is by compelling judges like all other officials to stand with their actions open to the broad, white light of investigation. (Applause.)"

"If you do not want to see judges recalled, if you do not want the socialistic disposition of the time to demand that decisions shall be subject to the test of a popular vote, then you ought to be careful, you ought to be sure that the public opinion made by reputable citizens against the conduct of those who wear the ermine to be investigated."

"No judge does himself justice, no judge conserves the honor of the bench who would, by an appeal to any friend or acquaintance, stay the fullest investigation of his conduct from the day he donned the ermine until this good hour."

Inquiry Is Necessary.

Representative Clayton, in urging the house to authorize the committee to make a full investigation of the charges, said the committee's preliminary investigation convinced it that an inquiry was necessary. On the other hand, he said no member of the committee was willing to introduce an impeachment resolution before examining the witnesses who made the charges.

Representative Murdock, progressive, of Kansas, asked for more detailed information. He recalled that in the impeachment case involving Judge Swayne of Florida, Representative Lamar, of that state, had offered the resolution. A resolution setting forth charges against Judge Archibald were also introduced, he said, as a preliminary to the investigation.

"Judge Lamar's action in the Swayne case followed the receipt of a testimonial from the state legislature of Florida," explained Mr. Clayton. "The Archibald impeachment arose out of a case pending before the interstate commerce commission."

"Several members of the judiciary committee expressed the hope that Judge Speer was not guilty of these charges, but we felt that public confidence in him would be well nigh destroyed unless the house was prepared to vindicate him of these charges."

Probers May Come South.

Savannah, Ga., August 26.—(Special.) If there is a formal investigation of the charges against Judge Emory Speer, a congressional committee probably will visit Savannah and other cities in his district for the purpose of taking testimony.

This has been the procedure in cases of this kind in the past. When Judge Archibald was impeached the congressional committee went to Pennsylvania to take testimony, and when Judge Hanford, of the state of Washington, was under charges an investigation was carried on by a committee of congressmen out there. When Judge Swayne, of Florida, was threatened with impeachment, a committee went to Florida to look into the charges.

Therefore, it is expected that a committee will come from Washington to hold hearings in Savannah, August 28, Macon and other cities where Judge Speer has jurisdiction.

THAW'S LAWYERS SPRING A SURPRISE

the apparent enigma they have created for the opposition.

Thaw himself could not be seen in view of a new rule of the sheriff barring interviewers, except when accompanied by one of Thaw's counsel; but that he was consulted before any action was taken was attested by the fact that his signature, with that of his attorney of record, W. L. Shurtliff, was signed to the application. It was a mere formality with Thaw, though, for the greater part of his day he spent in working out more details of his publicity campaign. His ambition may be nipped to some extent by the curtailment of interviews, but he can still send out statements.

Though declining to express an opinion on what will happen in the Thaw case, next Mr. Jerome took the hint in the proceedings philosophically. He was asked if he had anything of particular interest to say to Americans with reference to the Thaw case, now that he was on the ground and had witnessed something of the Canadian attitude toward White's slayer.

Why New York Wants Thaw.

"No, but I have something I'd like to say to the people of Canada," he exclaimed. "They seem to regard this man as a martyr. No one is persecuting him; no one wants him."

"New York state is trying to get Thaw back, not because New York wants Thaw, but because of the bad effect his freedom would have on the people. Thaw was allowed to go to Canada, free, everyone would say. 'Ha, the Thaw millions freed him.' Already they are saying the Thaw millions got him out of Matteawan and, generally, we hear the remark: 'A rich man can do anything, but what chance has a poor man got?'"

"Thaw's being allowed to go free would have a demoralizing effect on the whole country. Thaw free, would be a menace. That is why New York state wants Thaw."

"I have with me documents which show that he is one of two things—either an insane man and so undesirable, or a sane man of a type even more undesirable."

"What does New York state want with such a man? Canada might keep him and welcome, were it not for the fact that it is New York's duty to get him back. The doors of Matteawan would have been thrown open to Thaw long since had New York the ethical right to do that. There would have been no pursuit of him. But he must be taken back."

Questions of treaty violations and future contingencies suggested should Thaw be deported faded into the background when the news went abroad that tomorrow's court hearing was off.

BIG STILL DESTROYED ON KINCAID MOUNTAIN

Rome, Ga., August 26.—(Special.)—The biggest illicit distillery in the North Georgia mountains was destroyed yesterday by revenue officers, who found it in full blast, in a hollow of the hills of Chattooga county, on Kincaid mountain. Only one gallon of whiskey had been distilled when the officers arrived, but nine fermenters full of mash showed that the moonshiners were preparing for a big run. No arrests were made, as the place was deserted, but evidence was obtained that will doubtless result in the arrest of half a dozen men, for whom search is being made.

FARMERS URGED TO GET TOGETHER

Conclusions of Commission Read Before Conference of Governors — European Methods Must Be Adopted.

Colorado Springs, Col., August 26.—Farmers of the United States speedily must come to an understanding of the organization and union of forces in producing and selling farm crops and in the financing of agricultural operations in this country, to keep pace with the developments of European nations, was the message from the American commission on rural credits in a report given by Senator Duncan Fletcher, of Florida, read today before the annual conference of governors in session here by Gordon James of Denver.

This was the first general report of the extensive investigation made in Europe by the American commission under joint authority of congress, the governments of twenty-nine states and the southern commercial congress, with a view of extension of rural credits, and co-operative farming enterprises.

Rural Organization Wanted. "The commission is deeply impressed with the vital importance of a thoroughly organized and united rural population," said Senator Fletcher in an authorized statement from the commission which he included in his report.

"In this respect the countries of Europe offer a lesson which may not long be disregarded in America without serious consequences. The agricultural nations of most European countries visited by the commission are organized along one of the more of the following lines: credit, production, distribution and social organization for the betterment of country life."

President Wilson's recent statement that "a distinct system of banking must be provided for if rural credits are to be successfully and adequately supplied" was referred to by Senator Fletcher as a promise that federal legislation will soon be taken up, with a view to relieving the financial handicaps under which American farming is carried on.

"These European credit systems," he added, "are not systems of credit providing personal, short time credit for operating purposes, and those providing long time credit for the purchase of land, but systems of credit providing permanent development and purchase."

All the Farmers Together. "The more highly developed short time credit systems, said the report, bring all the farmers together in an organization where they assume personal liability for the society's debts. The society pays interest on deposits and loans to its members at 5 or 6 per cent, and gives to each hand of farmers the money with which it can finance co-operative selling, buying and producing organizations."

The other kind of credit is found in mortgage-bond societies which hold long time mortgages bearing a moderate interest and automatically discharging part of their principal each year.

"This form of mortgage credit would mean more money for machinery, more for purchasing land and for developing poor land," said Senator Fletcher in his report. "It means fewer tenants and more owners. It means better rural life conditions."

The preliminary statement prepared by the rural credits commission and contained in Senator Fletcher's report said in part:

"The organization for the provision of personal credit facilities are as highly developed as are the systems of commercial banking. The prevailing rate of interest paid by the farmers for short time loans is from 4 to 5-1/2 per cent. The terms of the loans are generally better designed to meet the peculiar requirements of agriculturists than are the terms obtainable today by the American farmers."

Personal Credit Organizations. The "personal credit" organizations, it added, are usually co-operative societies.

These short time credit societies furnish cheap, safe and elastic credit to their members by reason of their control by farmers and are organizations exclusively in the interest of farmers who operate them at nominal cost and without seeking a dividend profit to such societies," said the statement.

"It is the opinion of many leaders of this movement in Europe that the question of rural credit ought not to be divorced from co-operation for business purposes and the general organization of community life in rural districts. The studies of the commission emphasize the necessity of defining the functions on the one hand of the government and on the other of voluntary organizations in promoting the development of country life."

MARCHMAN'S SLAYER CONFESSES HIS GUILT

Negro Who Killed Farmer Is Brought Here After Mob Lynches One Suspect.

Walter Brewster, the negro who shot and killed L. C. Marchman, a prominent farmer of Meriwether county, last Wednesday, was captured in the northern part of Heard county early Tuesday morning by J. M. Wingo, a farmer of that section. Brewster was brought to Atlanta Tuesday afternoon by Sheriff J. B. Jerrell, of Meriwether county, and lodged in the Atlanta police station.

Mr. Marchman was 42 years of age, and resided at Greenville his entire life. He was a wealthy man, and had been at times prominent in county affairs and in all work for agricultural advancement. He leaves a wife and five children.

Another Negro Lynched. It was learned last night that Virgil Swanson, a negro suspected of having been lynched Monday night by the indignant farmers about Greenville before the officers, who had a warrant for him, could locate him and place him under arrest. His body was found lying in a large clump of trees about three miles out of Greenville, and a coroner's inquest, held over the body Tuesday afternoon, brought a verdict by the coroner's jury to the effect that Swanson met his death by strangulation at the hands of a mob of unknown men.

Judge Freeman, of the Coweta circuit, who is now presiding in Greenville, telegraphed to Sheriff Jerrell Tuesday evening asking that Brewster be kept in the Fulton county jail for safety.

The murderer had walked more than fifty miles from the scene of his crime and came to the farm of his captor, J. M. Wingo, late Monday night and applied to some negro farm hands for a night's lodging. Mr. Wingo put him under arrest the next day.

Negro Tells of Killing. The negro tells his story of the killing in the following manner:

"I had trouble with Mr. Marchman before. Wednesday morning we got to arguing and I drew a gun on him, but it failed to shoot. Mr. Marchman knocked me down and put me in a rig to take me to Greenville and turn me over to Mr. Jerrell for tryin' to shoot him. We had to go by my house to get to town, and when we got right by I jumped out, and run in this house. Mr. Marchman got out and run after me, and just when he got to the door I got hold of my shotgun and pumped it into him. The first barrel hit him in the right hip and when he turned round I shot again and hit him in the back of the head. Then I run and I reckon I would be runnin' yet if Mr. Wingo hadn't got me."

At the instance of Sheriff Jerrell, Governor Station authorized a reward of $250 for the capture of Brewster, and this sum will be paid to Mr. Wingo.

Swanson Is Lynched. Greenville, Ga., August 26.—The bullet-riddled body of Virgil Swanson, a negro, was found hanging from a limb in a lonely spot near here late yesterday, the local coroner learned today.

A verdict of death at the hands of unknown parties was the result of the coroner's investigation. It was said the body had evidently been hanging from the tree several hours before being discovered.

The lynching is supposed to have resulted from the killing of L. C. Marchman, a farmer, by Walter Brewster, a negro, about a week ago. Brewster was captured today, after a long search by the sheriff and a posse, and is in jail. It is understood that Swanson was charged with having aided Brewster to hide from the officers.

HUERTA MUST GO, SAYS UNITED STATES

means that he will soon assume the presidency, General Huerta taking command in the field against the rebels.

MESSAGE ON MEXICO TO CONGRESS TODAY

Washington, August 26.—The dilatory attitude of the Huerta government today gave administration officials hope that some concessions might be made to the American proposals for peace in Mexico, but indications pointed to a final ending of the negotiations tomorrow when President Wilson is scheduled to read his message to both houses of congress, defining the policy which he thinks the United States should pursue toward its southern neighbor.

A 24-hour postponement of the presentation of the message which was to have been read today was agreed to after a joint request from Federico Gamboa, Mexican foreign minister, and John Lind, President Wilson's personal representative to Mexico. It followed reported efforts on the part of the Huerta officials to have the reading of the document deferred indefinitely.

Mr. Lind left the Mexican capital early today for Vera Cruz, however, with the understanding that the United States would announce its policy tomorrow unless the Huerta government receded.

American Proposals to Huerta. Mr. Lind had made certain suggestions and pumped it into him. The first barrel hit him in the right hip and when he turned round I shot again and hit him in the back of the head. Then I run and I reckon I would be runnin' yet if Mr. Wingo hadn't got me."

At the instance of Sheriff Jerrell, Governor Station authorized a reward of $250 for the capture of Brewster, and this sum will be paid to Mr. Wingo.

mentary suggestions to Senor Gamboa, the nature of which was not divulged, but administration officials declared these constituted no departure from the fundamentals of the American note. The original proposals were officially announced as follows:

1. Cessation of hostilities and a definite armistice.
2. An early and free election.
3. Huerta to bind himself not to be a candidate.

Agreement by all parties to abide by the results of the election.

Mr. Lind informed Senor Gamboa that he would stop in Vera Cruz and could be reached there in case there should be any reply to his last suggestions. For several days Gamboa and Lind have been fencing the former attempting to secure a new basis of negotiations and the latter steadfastly declaring that under no circumstances would the United States yield any of its points or agree to any undesirable prolongation of the negotiations unless Huerta withdrew his note of reply to the American proposals.

Time Limit for Huerta. Officials disclaimed that Mr. Lind had gone to Vera Cruz to avoid any embarrassment in the Mexican capital following the publication of the President Wilson's message. It was said that Mr. Lind, having virtually concluded his mission, went to Vera Cruz chiefly to impress the Mexican administration that tomorrow noon positively the last moment the United States would wait before proclaiming to the world the position it has taken toward the Huerta government and the course which it is ready to pursue for years, if necessary, to uphold the principle of the orderly and constitutional government in Latin America.

With the nature of the four proposals of the United States admitted officially, discussion centered chiefly on the absence of any demand for the immediate retirement of Huerta, which generally had been supposed as part of the American note. It was suggested by officials, however, that this government could not logically call upon Huerta to resign a post which he never recognized him as legally holding.

So far as the United States is concerned, Huerta is not the constitutionally chosen provisional president of Mexico, because of the regularities of the Mexican constitution. Not only was there no quorum in the Mexican congress when Madero's resignation was presented, according to official reports here, but the resignation was accomplished by duress.

Huerta Must Eliminate Himself. The Washington government's insistence that Huerta eliminate himself from the presidential race if an election is held is based on his own promise contained in official report that he would not be a candidate. It is not conceived by officials here that a fair election could be held in Mexico with Huerta in control of the electoral machinery and underlying the American proposals has been the intimation that the Mexican congress, by its constitutional right, should soon designate a provisional president to conduct a free election.

Officials were not sanguine tonight that the Huerta government would withdraw its rejection of the American note, and preparations were being made for the delivery of the special message by the president. Both houses had passed a resolution to meet in joint session at 1 o'clock tomorrow.

Huerta's Early Fall Expected. While administration officials regret they were unsuccessful in bringing things to a definite point through the negotiations, officials are emphatic, however, in declaring they will insist on proper protection of foreigners and their interests.

This was a day of keen and unusual tension in official circles. The postponement of the message reading, with the possibility that eleven-hour concessions might be made, developed a general feeling of anxiety for news from the Mexican capital. The only messages from Mr. Lind received up to a late hour tonight, however, merely reported his departure from Mexico City for Vera Cruz.
