

THREE WITNESSES DESCRIBE FINDING MARY PHAGAN'S BODY

BY SECTIONS TAX REFORM BILL IS ARGUED IN HOUSE

Test Vote May Come Today on Effort to Expunge From the Measure Section Sixteen.

SENATE INTERESTED IN PROGRESS OF BILL

That Body, Decisively for Revision, May Reject Appropriations Measure, Should It Fail.

With both sides lined up for the sharpest parliamentary contest of the legislature, the house took up the consideration of the tax equalization bill, reported by the committee on ways and means, yesterday morning.

Both sides—namely, those who favor and those who oppose a state board of equalizers—were distinctly on their mettle, and each sparring for the advantage, but no vote taken during the day could be regarded as a test or an indication of what the final outcome may be.

Whatever the house may do, it is almost certain that the senate will pass a strong equalization measure. The sentiment in that body is said to be overwhelmingly in favor of a substantial measure of tax reform.

Feeling in Senate.

So acute has the feeling become on the subject that the senate will hardly act on the general appropriation bill passed by the house before it learns what the house will do in the matter of tax revision, and the provision of sufficient revenue to pay the items of that bill.

A leading member of the senate committee on appropriations has gone so far even as to state that, unless the house passes an equalization measure the senate will not accept an appropriation bill which the governor has shown to be $280,000 in excess of the estimated revenue of the state, but will return it to the house for reductions that will bring it clearly within the estimated revenue.

Appropriations Jeopardized.

It will be seen then that every item of the general appropriation bill may be jeopardized by the adverse action of the house on the tax equalization measure. Members of the house who are interested in the various items of the appropriation bill will doubtless take note of this fact and govern their actions accordingly.

If a cut in appropriations is found to be necessary, it is not unlikely that the senate will insist upon a proportional reduction all along the line, affecting the common school fund and the pensions as well as the various state institutions.

Lipscomb Bill Up.

Meanwhile, the house is going over the Lipscomb bill section by section with a view to perfecting it. With the following slight changes the bill was adopted by the house yesterday, incorporating in it the various amendments of the ways and means committee, down to section 16. The changes are:

Section 1, amended on the suggestion of Representative Moon, of Troun, so as to provide for the appointment of one member of the state board of equalizers from north Georgia, the second from middle Georgia, and the third from south Georgia.

Section 12, amended by Representative

The Defense Center of the Trial of Leo M. Frank

NEW LEE STICKS TO ORIGINAL STORY DESPITE ATTEMPTS TO CONFUSE NEGRO

Striking Feature of Day's Proceedings Was the Evident Effort on Part of Luther Rosser to Connect Watchman With Crime, or Show He Knew More Than He Has Told.

DORSEY SAYS DEFENSE IS TRYING TO IMPEACH TESTIMONY OF STARNES

Mr. Rosser Declared, However, That All He Was Trying to Do Was to Test the Memory of Detective Who Was Among First to Investigate the Murder of Mary Phagan in Factory.

During the second day's proceedings of the Leo M. Frank trial the sensation for which the morbidly curious have been craning their necks failed to materialize.

Nothing that has not been printed in the papers was brought out.

The striking feature of the day's proceedings was the evident effort on the part of Luther Rosser to connect Newt Lee with the commission of the crime, or to show that he knew more about the death of Mary Phagan than he has thus far told. As on the previous day, Lee stuck to his original story, and through hours of what would have been acute torture to a man of refined sensibilities he was stolid in reiterating the details of how he had found the body, and of Leo M. Frank's words and actions on Memorial day, when the murder of Mary Phagan was committed.

Efforts Fail

To Confuse Negro.

Seasoned courthouse officials and old reporters marveled at the way the negro held out against the crossfire of questions, all aimed to confuse him.

When at a loss to understand a question, he would have it repeated to him sometimes half a dozen times, and then he would illustrate his actions and the actions of Frank by graphic pantomime.

A drawing depicting a cross section of the National Pencil factory played an important part in the day's proceedings. Lee was made to point out on this drawing just what he had done and where he had been in the building the night of the murder. The drawing was difficult for an illiterate person to decipher, but Lee was not confused to any extent, and then only for the moment.

Trial Progresses Slowly.

Only three witnesses were placed on the stand Tuesday—Newt Lee, who was testifying when adjournment came Monday, Sergeant Dobbs, of the police force, who went to the pencil factory the morning the body

FINLEY TO BE HEAD OF HARRIMAN LINE

Extensive Changes to Take Place in Southern Railway on September 1, According to Report.

Macon, Ga., July 29.—(Special)—Extensive changes in the management of the Southern railway and its allied lines are to become effective on September 1, says an "underground" report which comes from an authoritative source. W. W. Finley, president of the Southern, is said to be slated for the presidency of the Harriman line, either the Southern Pacific or Union Pacific, and will be succeeded as president of the Southern railway by E. H. Coapman, now vice president and general manager, and J. M. Culp will succeed Mr. Coapman.

John R. Munson, vice president and general manager of the Georgia Southern and Florida railway, and receiver for the Macon and Birmingham railway, according to the report, will become vice president and general manager of the Mobile and Ohio, considered one of the best properties of the Southern.

From this point on the report is not so definite, but it is stated W. F. Kuderly, now general superintendent of the G. S. & F., will succeed Mr. Munson as vice president and general manager of that road. With the promotion of Mr. Munson to the Mobile and Ohio, R. V. Taylor, now vice president and general manager of that road, it is said, will become vice president and general manager of the Queen and Crescent system, with headquarters at Cincinnati. Horace Baker, now holding that position, is said to be slated for the vice presidency of the Southern railway, with headquarters at Washington.

In addition to these it is said to be planned to have a general shifting of all the vice presidents of all the allied lines of the Southern railway, including the Alabama Great Southern, New Orleans and Northeastern, Vicksburg, Shreveport and Pacific. All of these changes were at first slated for the end of the current year, which was July 1, but have been delayed.

NEWT LEE MAY GET HIS FREEDOM TODAY

Solicitor Dorsey Will Probably Take the Matter Up With Judge L. S. Roan.

Now that Newt Lee, who has been held since the morning of April 27, when he telephoned the police of the presence of Mary Phagan's dead body in the pencil factory basement, has finished his testimony, the question has arisen in the minds of many as to what will be done with him.

When an attempt was made recently to secure Lee's freedom upon a habeas corpus Solicitor Hugh Dorsey declared that he had no case against Lee and did not intend to ask his indictment, but that he regarded him as too valuable a witness to be turned loose.

It is expected that the solicitor will take up with Judge L. S. Roan today the question of giving Lee his freedom and that before the day is over the night watchman will see his first day of freedom since the morning when the murder was discovered.

What will become of Lee is not known. If the darkey had his choice he would probably be set down in a watermelon patch, where the melons grow eternal and where the little curlicues on the ends of the luscious fruit sprouted forth ample quids of "bacca."

It was for a melon that Newt pined while in jail, and it was for a "chaw of bacca" that he pleaded when Attorney Luther Rosser finished his grueling cross-examination Tuesday.

NAFF KILLS EX-WIFE AND SHOTS HIMSELF

Birmingham, Ala., July 29.—At 8 o'clock this morning Henry J. Naff, son of an old and respectable family of Birmingham, shot and killed his former wife, Marie Naff, and then turned the revolver on himself and inflicted a fatal wound.

Six months ago the pair were separated, but have been living next door to one another. Mrs. Naff was sitting on the front porch when her former husband came along and shot her, then turned the weapon on himself. The woman died on the way to the hospital. Naff was hurried to an infirmary where an operation was performed, but his condition is very dangerous.

MULHALL IS A LIAR AND BLACKMAILER, SAYS UNDERWOOD

Democratic Leader of House Appears Before the Lobby Probers and Denounces the Star Witness.

Washington, July 29.—Martin M. Mulhall practically finished today his identification of letters he wrote and received in the ten years he claims to have been the lobbyist for the National Association of Manufacturers. Tomorrow the senate investigation committee will turn its attention to examination of Mulhall, and attorneys for the association and for the American Federation of Labor, also involved in the correspondence, will begin cross-examination of Mulhall.

Robert McCarter, counsel for the association has about 250 questions he wishes to ask the witness, Attorney Jackson H. Ralston, for the American Federation of Labor, has prepared about 100 more and no one knows how many separate questions members of the committee will submit to Mulhall before he is allowed to quit the witness chair in the senate wing of the capitol, and face the special house committee that is eagerly waiting his appearance across the rotunda.

Underwood denounced Mulhall. Mulhall's last day as an identifier of letters proved the most exciting of his two weeks on the stand. He was called a "liar" and a "blackmailer" by Majority Leader Underwood of the house and he swore he had tried to get Chairman Wilson of the labor committee interested in the story he is now telling and that Speaker Clark and Minority Leader Mann, of the house, had turned down an opportunity to conduct an investigation of his activities. The speaker and Mr. Mann, he said, had been approached on this subject by Representative James T. McDermodt, of Illinois.

"Neither Mr. McDermodt nor anybody else ever showed me the Mulhall letters and papers," said Speaker

BIRDMAN DROPS BOMBS AROUND MEXIC WARSHIP

Opponents of General Huerta Use Aeroplane at the Siege of Guaymas.

At the front above Guaymas, Mexico, July 29.—Didier Massen, from his big biplane, dropped bombs Monday afternoon around the gunboat Tampico, lying in Guaymas harbor.

Four bombs were dropped, one striking within a few feet of the federal gunboat. This probably gave rise to the report that the boat had been struck.

The French aviator operated under heavy fire as he circled over the town and bay, but returned unharmed. The Southern Pacific of Mexico railway is being operated by the insurgents as far as San Blas.

MEDICAL PRACTICE MEASURE PASSED

With Two Amendments the Bill Is Adopted by the Upper House by a Vote of 36 to 4.

After two hours of debate the medical practice bill, creating a composite board of medical examiners in this state and providing for the regulation of the practice of medicine in Georgia, was yesterday passed by the state senate by a vote of 36 to 4. Those voting against the bill were Senators Bush, Huie, Dickey and Tarver. Senator Dickey asked unanimous consent that he be allowed to change his vote, but Senator Tarver objected.

The bill was passed with an amendment offered by Senator McNeill, allowing an appeal to the superior court for doctors who have had their licenses revoked by the state board. An amendment offered by Senator Stark requiring that all examinations for admission to practice in Georgia be held in writing was also passed.

Many other amendments were offered, but all were voted down by practically unanimous votes, except the one of Senator Watts, which allowed mental and spiritual doctors to charge fees for their services. This was lost by a vote of 16 to 13.

Those speaking for the bill were Senators Richardson, Miller, Allen, McNeill, Brown, Stark and Anderson. No senator spoke outright against the measure, although many spoke for and against the numerous amendments.

Tuesday afternoon the appropriation committee of the senate started work on the general appropriation bill which recently passed the house and many speakers were heard asking for appropriations.

Those speaking were Chancellor Barrow, in behalf of the state colleges and the College of Agriculture; Jere M. Pound, for the State Normal school at Athens; Dr. W. F. Harris and R. F. Maddox, in behalf of the state board of health for an appropriation of $10,000 for the free distribution of typhoid fever vaccine; and J. T. Brantley and L. M. Jones, for the state sanitarium at Milledgeville.

was discovered, and John Starnes, of the Atlanta detective department, who called up Leo Frank, April 26, and informed him of the murder. When adjournment was had Starnes was still on the stand.

A sharp clash took place between Solicitor General Dorsey and Luther Rosser during the time Starnes was testifying. Mr. Rosser sought to make Starnes recall his exact words while testifying before the coroner's inquest.

The crowd Tuesday was considerably larger than that of Monday, and during the afternoon session scores were standing.

Frank maintained the outward calm of the day previous, and the time Leo Newt Lee's testimony he laughed out loud at some sally of Luther Rosser's.

Lee Sticks To Story. During the four hours and forty minutes that Newt Lee, negro night watchman at the National Pencil factory, was on the stand in the trial of Leo M. Frank for the murder, on April 25, of little Mary Phagan, the negro, although apparently so ignorant and dull that his interrogators had to put their questions in simplest form, and frequently repeat them, standing literally by word for word, to his statements before the coroner's jury and to officials.

In one or two cases the darkey declared that certain portions of the stenographic report of the coroner's hearing was incorrect, and, despite the grumbling and tantalizing cross-fire of Luther Rosser, he hung out for what he declared to be the correct version of his statement.

That there must have been some discrepancies in the record was also brought out by Police Sergeant L. S. Dobbs, who went on the stand Tuesday day to tell of answering the negro's call to the station house, also declared that his testimony before the coroner had been taken down incorrectly in part.

Childishly Particular. In some instances the negro made corrections of which only the childish mind of an African would have thought. One of these occasions was when he positively swore time and again that that was whenever he got a chance that Leo Frank had never used the words, "Go out and have some fun, Newt."

"Nor, sir, Mr. Frank he said, 'Go out and have er good time, Newt,' the darkey corrected.

Again he swore that the murder notes to him and reached the word, "night," that he interrupted with "They's tryin' er lay hit on me," and not "That means me, boss," as reported.

In brief, the story which the darkey told, and hung on to like a loan shark to his victim, was that he reported for duty at the pencil factory on April 25 at 4 o'clock, and that he had been ordered, on account of the holiday, to do.

He said Frank was there, and told him to go out and have "er good time," and come back later, and that he had done so, but that he wanted to lie down and sleep.

Frank Frightened by Gantt. Lee said he came back about 5 o'clock and found Mr. Frank there, and soon aided him in the difficult task of refilling the time-clock with a tape. After that he declared he was near the front door, when Frank came out and almost ran into J. M. Gantt, and appeared frightened.

Lee said he thought little of the fear at that time, as the superintendent and Gantt had enquired in a row previous to Gantt's, and that he thought Frank was afraid Gantt had come there to whip him.

Lee then told of going with Gantt to get the latter's shoes, at Frank's orders, and of being left alone in the building. He said Frank had called him up at about 7 o'clock and asked if everything was all right, and that this procedure was unusual.

He declared he had punched the clock regularly until he had reached the basement about 3 o'clock, and saw the body, and after finding it to be a real body, and not a dummy placed there to fool him, how he went to the office and called police station, and then tried in vain to call Mr. Frank.

Sergeant L. S. Dobbs, who led the party of officers to the pencil factory on the Sunday morning that Newt Lee gave the alarm about the murder of Mary Phagan, was placed upon the stand following Lee. He told of his actions from the time that he started out on the call until he had locked the door and had conducted Frank to the basement.

The police officer declared that when he reached the place that Lee was not apparently laboring under excitement, but that he took him in charge at once and made him carry them to the body.

back of her head and with a cord tied so tightly around her neck as to cut into the flesh and that there was also a piece of underclothing tied loosely around the neck.

The finding of the murder notes, and reading of them to Lee, were next described and then the sergeant told of his finding the girl's missing shoe and hat and of finding an apparent trace where a body had been dragged from the elevator shaft to the spot where it was found.

The reading of the murder notes to the negro was next described in detail, as well as the later developments, the officers who examined the body. Sergeant Dobbs also identified the cord and underclothing found around the child's neck and told of the torn condition of her underclothes and of a black bruise on her left knee and also of bruises on her face.

Detective Starnes On Stand. Detective J. N. Starnes was the third witness to be placed upon the stand since the trial began. He was called upon Tuesday afternoon and made to tell of the various events from the time he accompanied Sergeant Dobbs to the factory until his testimony at the coroner's inquest.

Detective Starnes told of finding the body and to a great extent his testimony was corroborated by the police officer had told.

It was his testimony in regard to the telephone Superintendent Frank's declaration that he was nervous when he arrived at the factory that brought down upon him the gunfire of the defense.

So fierce was the cross-fire here that Solicitor Dorsey accused the defense of trying to impeach him. This Attorney Rosser declared he had no intention of doing, however.

Starnes was made to go into detail about the finding of the body, the physical appearance of the basement and of the demeanor of Lee, as well as of the superintendent.

After Starnes was dismissed from the stand there came an argument over the admission of the chart of the pencil factory as evidence, ending with the judge deciding it could be admitted, if all lettering was removed, and court adjourned at 5:07 o'clock.

The controversy took place between witness and somebody else, said Mr. Dorsey. "Lee was asked if somebody else did not read the notes to him. It is not admissible to go into the contents of a document through the witness, when the document is in evidence. The question is secondary evidence."

"Unless they propose to connect this man with the crime," added Attorney Hooper, "it is inadmissible. This ruling has been made time and again before. If they undertake to put the crime on the witness's head, they will have to train every dog and cat on the street besides the defendant before it will be admissible."

"Your honor," said Mr. Rosser, "there are a good many suspicious circumstances about this case."

Testimony Is Admitted. "What Lee said about anything does not tend to show he interpreted the notes," ruled Judge Roan, "and if you want to show that when the letter was read to the witness he was acquainted with it, I think it will be admissible, and I so hold it."

The jury was then called back into the room and the questioning proceeded. "Newt," said Mr. Rosser, "when you and the police went to the basement, didn't they pretend to read from a paper something like this, 'A tall, black man, negro, and he will try to lay on the night?'"

Solicitor Dorsey interrupted, declaring that they ought to show whether or not there was something on the paper which they were reading. "I gave Mr. Rosser a copy of the notes found there, and that would be the best evidence," said the solicitor.

"Well, then, Newt, when the officer stopped at the word 'night,' didn't you say, 'That's me, boss?'"

"No, sir; I said, 'Dey mus' be tryin' ter put hit off on me,'" replied Lee.

Argue Over Exact Words. Again the attorney and the witness had a row over the exact words which were used, and Lee stuck to his original statement, getting sometimes slightly confused and worried, but always coming back to the original statement.

Mr. Rosser objected to the manner in which the interrogation was being carried out, but was overruled.

Mr. Rosser then questioned him in detail about Lee's actions in the basement that night and finally announced that he was through with him.

The solicitor again took up examining Lee. "Over knew he said, 'I don't know how far it was.'"

Then ensued much talk as the lawyer tried to get the witness to tell the approximate distance from the closet to the body, but Lee never would tell "zactly" how far it was, and finally agreed that it might have been something like thirty feet.

"Ah stood there and looked at that body till er made hit out and then ah lit er rack," said Lee, shading his eyes with his hand in a typical darkey fashion.

"You know it was a white girl and how?"

"Ah seed her frizzy hair and some white spots on her."

"Later you went back with the police?"

"Nor, sir, ah didn't go wif dem; dey chased me down dere, an' one er dem mens sez, 'She's ges er chile, an' she's been here two or three days, an'—'"

"Ah went er back, an' ah rambled off into what some other had remarked about the body."

Then Lee was made to describe how the body lay when he first saw it, and after being repeatedly cross-examined, he said: "Cunnel, you see er sittin' here; well jes ez shore ez I'ze er sittin' here dat lady's body wuz lyin' dere like ah doan told you."

Tells of Meeting Frank. Then Attorney Rosser made Lee go over in detail about how he had come to the factory and been told by Frank not to punch the clock, as men were working upstairs and later how he and the superintendent had inserted the tape in it.

"Ah when Mr. Frank come out an' saw Mr. Gantt, he said, 'Gantt, he dis,' said Lee, and bounced back into his chair.

"You didn't tell the coroner that was about Mr. Frank's jumping back?"

"Nor, sir, ah don't know what he understood widout mah havin' ter jump diserway an' show 'em," replied Lee.

Mr. Rosser then read the stenographic report of Lee's coroner's hearing and asked Lee if it was a bad report.

"Dunno," said Lee, "reckon dey jes put down what was told 'em ter put down, but ah do know what ah said."

Solicitor Interrupts. Then the solicitor interrupted with objections to Mr. Rosser's manner of interrogating Lee, and if it was a cross-questioner was trying to impeach Lee's testimony that he ought to go about it in the prescribed form.

"My brother is old enough to lecture me, I reckon," Rosser fired back at him.

"I'm talking to his honor, not to you," Dorsey flung back.

"This witness can testify as to whether or not he had seen the things that are in the report," ruled the judge.

Mr. Rosser then reread the part of Lee's testimony to the coroner in reference to Lee's arrival when he met Gantt. He had to read it over three times, because as Lee explained he could understand Mr. Rosser when he was talking, but not when he was reading what he had to read.

Then Mr. Hooper made the point that the Frank defense must show the exact time upon which Lee made the first or second time he appeared before the coroner.

Sticks to Statement. Lee continued to stick to his statement that Frank had jumped when he saw Gantt, and that this was what he had told the coroner.

The questioning reverted to the finding of the body by Lee and then there was a wrangle over Lee's description of how Frank and he inserted the tape in the clock.

"You didn't pay close attention, did you?"

"Nor sir, not special."

"How do you know then about the time?"

"Well, cunnel, the darkey flashed back er while er go you took off your specs, and I wisn't paying no special attention, but ah know you did, jes the same."

"Now you are paying close attention to me, aren't you?" said the lawyer.

"Ah got er right ter, ain't ah?" asked Lee in a perfectly respectful tone, that nevertheless brought a ripple of laughter.

Then Mr. Rosser went off on Lee's domestic life and tried to make him admit a multiplicity of wives and affinities, but Lee swore he never had had but one wife.

Another Objection by Dorsey. The cross-examiner then returned to the finding of the notes and asked Lee if he were present and what was read. Mr. Dorsey objected.

"We are trying to find out who committed this crime," said Mr. Rosser, "and when 'night-witch' was read in that note, Newt promptly said, 'that's me, boss.'"

The documents are here and they are self-explanatory," objected the solicitor and he was sustained by the judge.

"Suppose Lee had made incriminating admissions in connection with the crime," interrupted Attorney Rosser, "though he has hitherto been sitting still and occasionally prompting his colleague, Rosser."

Suppose Lee had admitted having seen the body moved or the crime committed?

At Mr. Dorsey's request the jury was sent out while this was discussed.

Believes Lee Saw Notes. "Any fact pertaining to show he is incriminating is admissible," said Rosser, referring to Lee. "He says that, though he was the night watchman, he had no knowledge of the tragedy; we expect to show that the notes were very obscure and doubtful, and we expect these notes which the officers were trying to read them."

Clash Comes Over Evidence Of Detective John Starnes

When Sergeant Dobbs was called from the stand, Detective J. M. Starnes, prosecutor of Frank and a detective attached to police headquarters, was called in. He has been associated with the solicitor general throughout the Phagan investigation.

The defense and prosecution clashed in perhaps their most spectacular battle over an attempt of Attorney Rosser to force the detective into recalling the exact words of a portion of his testimony at the coroner's inquest.

An argument was advanced by both Attorneys Dorsey and Hooper and each member of Frank's counsel, Attorney Arnold and Rosser.

The apparent motive of the defense was to discredit certain portions of Starnes' story relative to his telephonic conversation with the accused superintendent when he notified him of the tragedy at daybreak Sunday morning.

The result was a rule by Judge Roan to allow the defense to remain the witness of the exact statement he was wished to recall, the exact date and circumstances. It was followed by an amendment, the question finally going unasked.

An Effort to Impeach. During the course of the detective's testimony the solicitor general accused the defense of endeavoring to impeach Starnes. Starnes was told, however, by Attorney Rosser that no effort was being made along this line.

Starnes answered: "I hope not, because I'm trying to tell the truth."

"When did you first reach the pencil factory?" the solicitor questioned.

"About 6 o'clock on the morning of April 27," he answered.

"What happened?"

"I saw Sergeant Dobbs and he carried me into the basement. We looked around and I found a girl's hat. We inspected the broken staple in the rear door."

"Was the body there at that time?"

"No."

"How was the rear door supposed to open?"

"It slid south."

"What did you do later in the day?"

"I went to police headquarters and with Chief Lanford, Detective Black, took Newt Lee back to the pencil factory. We went into the basement and later I called Superintendent Frank over the telephone."

"How long did it require to get him?"

"Only a short while. He answered the phone himself."

"Were there any other specimens of this cord on the second floor?"

"Cords in the Basement. 'I didn't see any. There were many things in the basement.' 'Did you find anything near the dressing room on the second floor?'"

"On the following Monday I saw near the door on the northwest corner a number of spots that resembled blood like the blood spots we found in the dressing room No. 7."

"How far were these spots from the end of the dressing room?"

"About two feet."

"What did you do upon this discovery?"

"Got a hammer and chisel and chipped out the wood containing the spots."

"How large were the chips?"

"About the size of the palm of the hand."

"Find anything else besides blood?"

"Some white stuff like white wash that had apparently been spread to conceal the spots."

"Were there means of locking the doorway to the rear stairs?"

"Yes."

Blood Found on Nail. "With the shutters closed on the north side of the building, is the metal door dark or light?"

"About half and half."

"Did you find blood anywhere else?"

"Several spots on a nail I found in the metal room."

"Were there any spots on the floor where this nail was found?"

"Yes, in spots for a small area."

"You took charge of Newt Lee, didn't you?" Mr. Rosser continued.

"Yes; Black and I."

"You kept him in the office, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"Boots Rogers was in the office with you, eh?"

"I don't remember."

"Did not correct Rogers. 'Did you hear Rogers testify at the inquest?'"

"Yes."

"If he made a mistake in his testimony, you didn't correct him, did you?"

"It wasn't my business to correct him."

"Do you mean to say that you, who represent truth, shouldn't correct an error that concerns you or your work?"

Mr. Dorsey objected to this. He accused the counsel for the defense of attempting to impeach the detective and of striving to impeach Rogers before the latter had entered the case.

Mr. Rosser declared that Starnes had stood idly by and watched a witness for the state give erroneous testimony. The solicitor contended that it was inadmissible to impeach Rogers, which it was apparent the defense was endeavoring to do, before Rogers had come into the case.

The solicitor was overruled. Mr. Rosser continued with his examination.

"You heard him state at the inquest about being in the office, did you not?"

"I think so."

Attorneys Clash. "Do you profess to give the words of your conversation with Frank over the telephone the morning of the discovery after three months have elapsed?"

"I will as near as I can."

"Then, if your memory is so good, give me the exact words you spoke at the coroner's inquest."

Lee, Dull and Ignorant, Calm Under Gruelling Cross Fire

Newt Lee, the negro night watchman of the pencil factory, who telephoned police headquarters of the finding of Mary Phagan's body at the pencil factory, was again placed upon the stand when court convened Tuesday for the second day's session.

Attorney Luther Z. Rosser renewed his cross-fire of questions by which he sought to confuse the negro and secure new admissions or change valuable points in his testimony and thus expose a vulnerable point for a concentrated attack upon his entire statement.

Mr. Rosser took up practically where he had left off the afternoon before.

"Newt, when you raised your lantern you walked forward a few feet. How far did you have to go before finding out what the object that attracted you was?" he began.

"I don't know how far it was."

"You said so to the coroner?"

"Now, sir, Cunnel, I shore didn't."

"Well, say so now. Give your best estimate; was it two, four, six, eight or ten feet?"

"Can't tell 'zactly."

"How close to the body did you get?"

"I wuz jes pretty far away when I saw hit; I could jes barely make hit out."

"How far?"

"I don't know how far it was, but you from you to that gentleman over there," pointing to Attorney E. A. Stephens.

"Hit mout er been," replied Lee.

"How long is a fence rail, Newt?"

"How far?"

"A fence rail is ten feet long."

"Well, hit must er been 'bout ten feet."

Why He Went to the Basement. "What made you go in that direction?"

"Which direction?" asked the negro. Then ensued a long explanation and argument in which the attorneys tried to get the negro's mind back to the factory basement so that he could tell clearly what and how he had done, but before it was over the learned white man was almost exasperated and the dull black was coolly fanning himself, worried because he could not grasp the idea, but not fretting about it.

"I had wanted to go that way to see if there wuz anything in that part er the basement," Lee finally answered when he understood what he was being asked about.

Ever see anything there before that frightened you?"

"No, sir."

"Hadn't you been told to look into the dust bin and to watch out for fire there?"

"Yes, sir; Mr. Frank, he told me that."

"Why did you not go sooner instead of lingering a few minutes?"

"Ah wisn't ez shore ez ah could."

"How far did you go?"

"Ah didn't have ter go no further than to that gemman there," said Lee, making a wave with his palmetto fan.

"Ah could see the dust bin no further than that ter see hit," he continued.

"To see the dust bin, didn't you have to go as far to your right as the ladder wuz to your left?"

CLASH OVER EVIDENCE OF DETECTIVE STARNES

Following which, Mr. Arnblid again said: "We don't want to impeach Starnes. We want to sift him, to determine him—we have a right to. If he remembers one thing perfectly, he can surely remember another. We only want to test his memory—that's all."

"You can pick out anything to which he testified in this trial," said Judge Roan. "That is my ruling."

Attorney Rosser insisted upon his question. However, Mr. Dorsey arose, exclaiming:

"I disclaim any disposition to impeach Officer Starnes."

An amendment was made to the judge's decision which permitted the attorney to ask this question:

"Can you recall your exact words at the inquest?"

"I may be able to do so, and I may not."

Testimony is important. "Then, your telephone talk with Frank, as unimportant as you considered it—"

Mr. Dorsey objected, but was overruled.

"Was it an important message—did you consider it so?" Rosser resumed.

"Yes."

"Why? Also, how did you recollect it so well?"

"I had witnesses—Boots Rogers and I think, Detective Black."

"Aren't you mistaken?"

The witness paused, after which he said:

"Maybe so—I believe I am."

"Some splashes of blood are still on the second floor, aren't they?"

"I suppose so."

"It was Monday you found the spots?"

"Yes."

"There was no way of telling how long they had been there, was there?"

"No."

Says Floor is Dirty. "Isn't that floor the dirtiest you ever saw?"

"Not the dirtiest, although it's pretty dirty."

"Don't think I'm trying to impeach you, Starnes."

"I hope not—I'm trying to tell the truth."

"Do you know whether or not the back doors were open on the day of the tragedy?"

"I do not."

"Didn't you find all over the factory strings like this one you have here—the kind of cord found about the girl's throat?"

"I can't say it was exactly alike or even made in similar shape."

"As a matter of fact, there was plenty of cord in all parts of the factory?"

"There generally were pieces of cord in all parts of the building."

"You are testifying now of facts as you know them, are you not?"

"Yes."

"Did you ever look for Mary Phagan's purse?"

"Yes."

"Ever look for the artificial flowers and ribbon she wore on her hat?"

"No."

"Did you find either?"

"No."

The solicitor took up the question:

"Do you know, of your own knowledge, whether or not she had a purse with her when she was slain?"

"No."

"When you talked to Frank over the telephone that morning, were you guarded in what you said?"

"Yes, I was guarded," admitted the detective.

Counsel for Defense Object. Counsel for the defense objected to this question. Judge Roan ruled that the solicitor could ask the witness only what he had said to the defendant.

"Yes, I was guarded," admitted the detective.

Rosser took charge of the witness.

"What did you mean when you told a short time ago that your conversation with Frank was casual?"

"A talk between two gentlemen over the telephone."

"Do you recognize these chips of wood as the pieces you chiseled from the second floor of the pencil factory—the ones containing the blood spots?"

Witness identified the chip specimens.

At this point, the clothing worn by Mary Phagan when her body was discovered was submitted as evidence. Every piece, including a bloody handkerchief discovered near her body, was admitted without protest.

"Did you see Frank at police headquarters," questioned Rosser.

"Yes—everyday he was there."

"Were you there Monday when he was summoned?"

"I believe so."

Starnes was dismissed from the stand.

The solicitor asked that the chart of the pencil factory, to which he had made frequent reference during all examinations of the day, be admitted as

"I believe so."

Starnes was dismissed from the stand.

The solicitor asked that the chart of the pencil factory, to which he had made frequent reference during all examinations of the day, be admitted as Attorney Rosser asked first that he be allowed to inspect it.

Protest Against Drawing. He protested vigorously, saying that the drawing was inadmissible, it had once been used as a newspaper illustration to a story of the Phagan crime. He read from the key words inscribed at the bottom of the chart.

"Black dotted lines indicate course taken by the accused. Cross indicates where the girl was murdered on the second floor."

He turned to face the solicitor.

"I didn't think Mr. Dorsey or Mr. Hooper would undertake to put such a thing over on me."

Dorsey replied:

"I realized that the plat was inadmissible."

Drawing Will Be Changed. "The whole drawing is an argumentative picture of the state's theory," said Mr. Arnold. "Pictures convey the strongest kind of argument. The dotted lines on this picture are as eloquent as words. A plat that is fair should be nothing but a bare representation of facts."

The solicitor agreed to remove the key words and lines from the chart.

"A naked plat," said Judge Roan, "is admissible, but if it contains anything argumentative, it is inadmissible."

The chart will be changed.

As the clock hands reached 5:07, the judge asked the solicitor if he had a "short witness" which he could place on the stand.

Upon being informed that none was available, the session was adjourned until 9 o'clock this morning.

body through the scuttle hole in the first floor?"

"I hardly think so. It is difficult for a man to get through it alone."

"Were there signs of a body having been dragged in the basement in front of the elevator shaft?"

"Yes."

"How did the staple in the back door appear to have been extracted?"

"Pulled straight out."

Body Cold and Rigid. "Any indication that it had been forced out by pressure from outside the door?"

"No."

"Was the girl's body warm or cold?"

"Cold and rigid."

"Describe its condition."

"The hands were folded across the breast, and it lay stretched out, head toward the scuttle hole."

"Did you search the first floor for scratch pads or clues?"

"Yes."

"Find any?"

"No."

The defense resumed the interrogation.

"Do you know how the staple was extracted?"

"No—I have only an idea."

"Wouldn't it be possible for a man to drop a body through the scuttle hole?"

"Yes, if he dropped it through head-first."

It was clearly evident from the nature of questions put by Mr. Rosser that the defense would attempt to show that Mary Phagan's body had been lowered through the scuttle hole and not carried down upon the elevator as argued by the prosecution.

Sergeant Dobbs was then excused the roots of the hair where I put my hands?"

"Was it a damp or dry place where you found the body?"

"Well, rather damp."

Identifies Murder Notes. Dobbs then identified the murder notes and also the scratchpad which he found near the body, one note at the foot and another near the girl's head.

"Did you know who this girl was?"

"No; but I learned later she was Mary Phagan."

He then was made to go into detail about the position of the body and of how he poked around in the sawdust with his cane in search of some evidence.

Then the officer told of sending Lee to jail and declared that Lee was not excited but was cool. Solicitor Dorsey then had the officer go into detail about the drawing, and Mr. Rosser made strenuous objections to this, but Dorsey won his point and Sergeant Dobbs finally declared that the drawing was perfect as far as he knew.

Mr. Rosser then took up the cross-examination and asked a number of questions about the picture, making the officer look away from it while answering. The attorney seemed to be doing his best to discredit the drawing.

"Was Lee excited?" he suddenly queried.

"No."

"Could you tell if the girl was white or black right at once?"

"No, I could not."

"Didn't you have to turn the body

Sergeant Dobbs Resumes Stand At Tuesday Afternoon Session

Sergeant L. S. Dobbs took the stand again at the afternoon session.

"Did you help take the girl's body from the basement?" Attorney Rosser questioned.

"I was there when the undertakers came," answered the sergeant.

"Who cleaned the girl's face?"

"Sergeant Brown, I believe."

"How?"

"With a piece of paper."

"How was the body removed?"

"In a corpse basket."

Here the examination was taken up by the solicitor general.

"What is the distance from the ladder to the spot where the body was found?"

"About 150 feet."

Found Slipper and Hat. "Did you discover anything on a trash pile in the basement?"

"I found a slipper and saw a blue hat."

"Is this the hat?"

(The wide blue straw hat worn by Mary Phagan was held before the witness.)

"Yes—that's it."

"Did you make any experiments in the basement?"

"About 10 o'clock that night I went to the basement in company with other policemen. We found a bundle in the spot on which the body was found, and, with a lantern similar to the watchman's, were able to see it from the point at which Lee said he had first seen the body."

"Were you satisfied that Newt could see the body from the point which he had described?"

(An objection made by the defense to this question was sustained.)

"Could an ordinary man carry a body through the scuttle hole in the first floor?"

"I hardly think so. It is difficult for a man to get through it alone."

"Were there signs of a body having been dragged in the basement in front of the elevator shaft?"

"Yes."

Mother and Daughter in Tears As Clothing of Mary Phagan Is Exhibited in Courtroom

Solicitor Dorsey stood before Detective Starnes at the witness box yesterday afternoon and held to view a lavender frock with a bit of pink ribbon at each shoulder. In the hand that was lowered at his side he held a wee slipper.

"Do you recognize this dress?" he put to the witness.

"I do."

"To whom did it belong?"

"To Mary Phagan, the girl who was killed in the National Pencil factory."

Mother and Daughter Sob.

A moist-eyed woman, gray beginning to fleck her hair and betray her fifty years looked sadly upon the articles in the solicitor's hands. Her daughter beside her strove bravely to check her tears, but bowed her head in a sobbing fit she could not restrain.

They were Mrs. J. W. Coleman, Mary Phagan's mother, and Mary's sister, Ollie. Ollie could not remain in the courtroom and her mother lowered her head in tears as the lawyer displayed, piece by piece, every article of the slain child's garments.

The solicitor held each bit of the girl's apparel in view of the entire courtroom for identification from the witness. As Starnes would signify that he recognized the articles before him the solicitor would say:

"This is such and such an article identified as having been worn by Mary Phagan on the day of her death. Is it admissible as evidence?"

Counsel for the defense would group their heads together at their table, nod consent, and Judge Roan, upon the bench, would say:

"Admitted as evidence."

It was a cruel proceeding, no doubt thought the mother and sister, but one made necessary by law. Many of the pieces they recognized, recalling with a tear the days they worked with thread and needle to fit Mary in the best their talents and home could afford.

Proud of Her Work.

And Mary, herself, had been a competent seamstress. She had always been making something and, whether it was doll clothing or her own dresses, she was always proud of it.

There the lawyer held in his hand the pink frock which had gladdened the little girl's heart and which she had intended wearing to Marietta the next Monday. He had one of her shoes—the pair she, herself, had selected and contributed a dollar of her wages toward the purchase—and was waiting to display when the dress was admitted.

Mrs. Coleman was crying softly—what mother, who had lost a loving daughter could have held back her tears! It was the first time she had ever been in a courtroom—she had always striven to avoid them.

People stared at them all the while. The mother and daughter sat conspicuously, as the only seats they could find were two selected for them on the rostrum. Everywhere they looked eyes would be focussed upon them.

But, even the gaze of the morbid—the sensation-seeking court auditor whom you will find at every tragedy—melted into a warming look of sympathy as his eyes met those of the sorrowing mother and sister.

Garbed in Black.

They were garbed in black—black from head to foot with no relief. Heavy, dark veils fell over their faces, and they lifted them only to dab a handkerchief to filling eyes. Mrs. Coleman has said to reporters—and so has Ollie—that they would not be at the trial were they not subpoenaed as witnesses. It is as hard for them to bear as the tragedy itself, for every phase of the proceedings brings memory of that bleak and unforgettable day when the little girl next door ran away at daybreak and said to the home-folks of Mary's:

"Oh, Mrs. Coleman—Mary's been killed at the pencil factory!"

Monday morning Mrs. Coleman was the first witness called to the stand. She walked weakly and had to be assisted into the box. She whispered replies and choked back the catches in her throat. When the solicitor held the clothing of Mary before her eyes, asked her if they had been worn by the child, she tried to answer.

Breaks Down in Tears.

A sob was in her throat and a tear welled into her eye. She drew the handkerchief to her face and broke into weeping. The solicitor, as though his task were fully as distasteful as it looked, dropped the arguments to his table and began new questions.

Even Attorney Rosser, whose cross-examination is feared by the strongest witnesses, put his questions to the sobbing mother in a tone in which his sympathy was most evident. He asked barely a half dozen questions, then said:

"You may come down, Mrs. Coleman," without giving the state a chance for examination in rebuttal, knowing that even such a relentless thing as the state would not wish to further persecute the bereaved parent.

of the pickets before two mighty armies come together.

Thus far the interest, while to a certain extent centered on the maneuvering, has been mostly of the future tense. Every one is looking forward to what is to come. A fierce skirmish that almost engaged the two sides in real and earnest conflict came over the cross-examination of New Lee, and in it the state won. It was rather through the rare character of the negro testifying and his unbreakable spirit that the state won its first skirmish than through the efforts of its lawyers.

Much Depends Upon Conley.

It is the amount of weight to be placed upon James Conley's affidavit, that if believed would convict Frank and if held false would turn the charge upon the maker, that the public waits.

What will Dr. J. M. Hurt, the coroner's physician, testify? This is a question that has been frequently asked. Dr. Hurt delivered his testimony only before the executive session of the grand jury, and not a word of his evidence has been made public.

What will become of the Mincey affidavit is something that is puzzling spectators who are closely following the developments from day to day. Mincey's affidavit, if believed, would hang Conley, as sure as Conley's would hang Frank, should it be believed.

There are other witnesses who will be produced, it is said, whose names have never been called, and one of these is said to be a physician who will be put upon the stand by the state in an attack upon Frank. While the evidence he will give is not known, it is asserted that his testimony is intended to establish a link in the state's chain of evidence.

What Defense May Do.

The probability that the defense will introduce no witnesses at all is something that has caused much speculation and many attorneys believe that they will not.

Then there is a strong chance that the defense has a witness whom they are saving and whose testimony will come like a sudden discharge of Maxims upon an advancing army and wither up the state's attacking forces as they seek to establish their position.

Certain it is that a terrific fight will be made by the defense to batter down the negro Conley's testimony and that the grueling under which New Lee stood up Tuesday will be nothing to the assaults upon Conley.

Mincey may expect the same treatment from the state and it is known that every effort will be made to attack his testimony and to show him unworthy of belief.

Dr. Hurt's Testimony.

That one of the great gifts to be made by the defense will be upon Dr. Hurt's testimony is one of the later developments in the case. The public generally does not know what the physician will testify about the condition of the Phagan child's body and about a score of other details, but it is known that the defense has obtained at least an inkling of its import and is making every preparation to batter it down and to discredit it.

That the big fight will be made upon the statements of Dr. Hurt, W. H. Mincey, the negro Conley, the unknown physician and possible unknown witnesses, does not indicate that each point will not be contested to the very last and that each witness will be strained to the final ounce of his strength before he is ready to leave the stand.

From the fight made on the first two days and the frequent references to the minutes of the coroner's hearing it appears that the case will last through another week and will be marked by the wonderful amount of detail in it.

Chaingangs in Georgia You Will Write "HOPE" Into Our Laws

"The way of a man with a maid."
---Proverbs 30:19

It is not a doll in her arms. The child-mother is nursing her fatherless baby. What have we done to her? You said in your laws: "She can sell herself if she is ten years old." But she must be twenty-one before she can trade a cow or hog. You appropriated thousands of dollars to save cattle from the tick— Thousands to make hog cholera serum— And thousands to study hogs that are sick. You gave nothing for these pitiable girls. Georgia has no place for them. For want of it, seventy-five known to us—they are only children—they are being lost today. Only God knows how many more! Forty-four other states have reformatories for such as these. The bill introduced by Jones of Coweta and Mills of Butts provides a reformatory for girls in Georgia. The Prison Commission approves it. The Penitentiary Committee has unanimously recommended that it pass. The Committee on Appropriations referred it to a subcommittee of Judge W. H. Griffin, chairman; S. E. Berry, C. F. Holberg, A. B. Greene and J. L. Lane. They have recommended that thirty thousand dollars be appropriated and the bill be made the law. Father, grant that this be done. No man in Georgia values a cow or hog more than he does a girl. We had not seen the bitter need. You can and will provide for these.

"Judge righteously and plead the cause of the poor."
---Proverbs 31:9

A boy of seventeen stole a ride on a train. You arrested him for this. He did not have the money to pay his fine. For this lack of funds we clothed him in stripes and put him in our chaingang for eight months. If our laws had provided for probation, our Judge could have released the boy on good behavior. He could have given the boy a chance. Twenty-five other states allow their Judges to help instead of destroying moneyless first offenders. By writing Probation into our laws you would not compel— But you would give your Judge the right to save a boy or girl. A bill, introduced by Senator Tarver and Representatives Myrick and Gower, making this the law, is pending in the Legislature. Judges and the Prison Commission— And the Judiciary Committees of both Houses have approved it. You will.

"For we are saved by hope."
---Romans 8:24

If the Indeterminate Sentence were the law in Georgia, a Judge, in sentencing a man, would say: "Not less than —, not more than — years." Within the limits named, the man's stay in the penitentiary would depend upon himself. Hope of liberty, instead of fear of the lash, would make him obey. He would win release by showing himself fit to be free. His incentive for not committing crime again would be this: Caught a second time, he might be sentenced as an habitual criminal for the greatest number of years prescribed for that particular crime. In Illinois, in the twelve years before the indeterminate sentence became the law, one Judge sentenced either three or four different times the same one hundred criminals. In the twelve years since it was made the law only four have had to be resented by him. Commitments to the penitentiary have been forty per cent less, despite the great increase in population, in that state in the ten years since the indeterminate sentence became part of its law. Twenty-two states have adopted it. The Prison Commission and the Penitentiary Committees of the House and Senate approve the bill of Senator Foster and Representative Loyd that will make it the law of Georgia. You, like them, would rather save than destroy the fallen. You will help make this the aim of Georgia.

Hot Political Debate in House Over the California White Slave Case.

Washington, July 29.—Vigorous criticism and determined defense of the attitude of Attorney General McReynolds and the administration in the Caminetti-Diggs white slave cases marked five hours of political debate in the house today.

Representative Kahn, of California, declared that "insidious political influence" had something to do with the postponement of the cases in California, and Chairman Clayton, of the house judiciary committee, in a spirited defense of the attorney general, said the attacks growing out of the Caminetti case were a part of a general "conspiracy of the special interests to discredit an honest public official."

Chairman Clayton declared the "special interests" were instigating the attacks on the attorney general because of his "fearless prosecution of all offenders, high and low." As an instance of these attacks he put into the record a newspaper article which set forth that the attorney general had issued instructions to United States attorneys not to proceed under the Mann white slave act except in cases where the offenders profited commercially from the transactions.

The debate, forced by the republican filibuster which tied up all business in the house throughout last week, followed the presentation of a report from the judiciary committee recommending that a resolution of Representative Kahn, calling on the attorney general for a telegram relating to the cases be laid upon the table, as the data asked for had been furnished.

When the house adjourned tonight the five hours' debate on the resolution had not been exhausted and the discussion will be renewed when the house meets Friday.

W. O. BROWN AGAIN FACES EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGE

Savannah, Ga., July 29.—(Special.)—Sentenced to a year imprisonment on the 19th of last October, W. O. Brown, former manager of the seed and fertilizer department of the Southern Cotton Oil company, appeared in court today to answer additional charges of embezzlement and larceny after trust brought against him since his imprisonment. He was brought in from the felony farm near Pooler to appear at this his second trial.

The original charges to which Mr. Brown pleaded guilty last October were larceny after trust and embezzlement to the amount of about $2,000. This sum was the total of sums contained in seventeen counts against him to which he plead guilty taking them all together in an omnibus plea. The trial was continued at a night session of court.

JURY RETURNS VERDICT AGAINST JIM CANTRELL

Alleged He Plotted Death of Affinity's Husband and Made Brother Commit Deed.

Gainesville, Ga., July 29.—(Special.)—The trial of Jim Cantrell, Silvia Hawkins and Bartow Cantrell for the murder of Arthur Hawkins on the night of the 27th of May are in progress. Bartow Cantrell, the 16-year-old confessed murderer, pleaded guilty and is now the state's chief witness against his brother, Jim, who, he said, made him kill Hawkins.

The jury returned a verdict of guilty in the case of Jim Cantrell, and unless some compromise is reached he will hang. The trial of Silvia Hawkins has not yet come off. No sentences have as yet been passed. It is rumored that Bartow Cantrell will withdraw his plea of guilty and trust to a trial.

The wife of Arthur Hawkins, Silvia Hawkins, is said to be the cause of the shooting because of her relations with Jim Cantrell. Bartow Cantrell, so he says, waylaid Hawkins and killed him at the command of Jim Cantrell. When seen at the jail none of the parties wished to make statements.

GOD OF LIGHTNING IN HUMOROUS MOOD. Columbus, Ga., July 29.—(Special.)—Various freaks were played by lightning during a thunder storm in Phenix City, Ala., today. A horse was standing hitched in the street and lightning struck the cross-bar of the shafts and reduced it to splinters, the animal not being injured in the slightest.

Mrs. G. H. Clardy was lifting the lid from a rice boiler when lightning came along and rendered assistance, knocking it from her hand. Her arm was numb for some time, but her injury was not serious. Various people were shocked, but not seriously hurt.

SUFFRAGE DEBATERS LOSE AT GAINESVILLE

Gainesville, Ga., July 29.—(Special.)—Gainesville's representatives, E. B. Dunlap and Hammond Johnson, were the unanimous decision for the negative in the woman suffrage debate here last night. No suffrage association was founded in Gainesville, though some preliminary steps were taken. The speeches were good. Miss Ella Powell's address was magnificent, but Gainesville was not wheeled into the suffrage parade.

WOMAN CAUSED TRAGEDY ATLANTA POLICE STATE

Partee Is Bound Over by Recorder Broyles for Killing Jackson.

W. D. Partee, aged 32, an engineer on the Georgia railroad, who shot and killed Sam Jackson, another engineer. In the local roundhouse of the Georgia railroad Monday afternoon, waived preliminary hearing before Recorder Broyles Tuesday morning and was held to the superior court without bond on a charge of murder.

The shooting took place shortly after 3 o'clock Monday afternoon in the roundhouse of the Georgia railroad, just after Partee had alighted from his engine at the end of his run.

Although Partee and his friends refused to tell the cause of the shooting, investigation by the police, however, made through Detectives Sturdivant and Davis, uncovered the fact that Partee had made charges that Jackson had been intimate with the wife of another engineer on the Georgia railroad.

Some days ago the story reached the ear of the husband, according to the detectives, and he immediately came to Jackson and demanded an explanation. Jackson denied the charge and expressed his willingness to refute same to Partee in the husband's presence. Accordingly, the two men were waiting for Partee Monday afternoon to demand an explanation. They followed Partee into the roundhouse and Jackson called to him, say the police. As Jackson spoke, Partee turned, drawing his weapon as he did so, and fired once, without speaking.

Partee claims that friends have come to him several times within the past week repeating the story made against him by Jackson and that he shot in self-defense. He states that when he saw Jackson advancing on him, with his coat thrown over his arm, he concluded the weapon was concealed beneath the coat, and called upon Jackson several times to stop before he fired his revolver.

Attorney John W. Moore, has been retained by Partee to conduct his defense. Funeral arrangements have not been made, pending the arrival of relatives.

JEWELS WORTH $70,000 SECURED BY BURGLARS

New York, July 29.—Gems valued at $70,000, including a rope of pearls worth $60,000 were stolen from the home of C. C. Rumsey at Narragansett Pier during the twenty-four hours ending Sunday night. Mrs. Rumsey was a daughter of the late E. H. Harriman. The theft was made known today.

The rope of pearls was given to Mrs. Rumsey by her mother and had a sentimental value far in excess of its intrinsic worth. Other jewels stolen included the following: Ruby and pearl pendant. Gold pin set with magnificent ruby solitaire. Diamond brooch. Gold mesh bag.

Mrs. Rumsey's home was entered some time between 8 o'clock Saturday night and the same hour Sunday. The theft had not been reported to the police this afternoon and Mr. Tegetoff, secretary to the late E. H. Harriman, who made the announcement, said that private detectives were working on the case and probably would handle it independently of the police.

"Seventy thousand dollars is a conservative estimate of the value of the jewels which were stolen," Tegetoff said. Rumsey Wanted Secrecy. Narragansett Pier, R. I., July 29.—The jewel robbery at the summer home of C. C. Rumsey, a member of the Cooperstown polo team, was reported to the local police last Sunday, but, on the solicitation of Mr. Rumsey, it was kept quiet, and no one went to the house to investigate until last night. Mr. Rumsey refused to have a police officer visit his house Sunday evening, but yesterday consented, and B. Ahrens, a constable, remained on watch all night. The police as well as private detectives have been at work on the case.

It is the belief of Mr. Rumsey and Chief Caswell that the robber entered by the front door and stole the gems last Saturday night while Mr. and Mrs. Rumsey were at the casino. They left about 8 o'clock and returned at 11, finding all the servants asleep. No one in the household could remember having heard any suspicious sounds during the period the robbery must have been committed. In the room adjoining that from which the jewels were taken slept the nurse and child. They were not disturbed.

Private detectives working on the theft believe that an organ grinder who loitered about the house during the morning and afternoon preceding the robbery may have been laying plans for the robbery. Mrs. Rumsey kept her jewels in an unlocked drawer of her bureau, and the doors and windows of the house usually were left unfastened day and night. The jewels were in their accustomed place when Mrs. Rumsey dressed for dinner Saturday evening, and were not there the next night.

The rope of pearls contained 130 graduated gems, the largest weighing 21 grains. The local police have long believed that a gang of expert robbers was systematically "working" this place, disposing of their booty through a "fence" in Boston.

MASONS WILL HOLD MEETING IN CONYERS

The Masons in the fifth congressional district are preparing to hold their annual convention in Conyers, Ga., on Thursday, the 14th of August.

The grand master, Robert L. Colding, of Savannah, is expected, and other prominent Masons will lend their presence. The various Masonic degrees will be exemplified by special degree teams from the various Atlanta lodges.

The Masons of Conyers have promised a warm welcome and plenty of good things to eat and a general all-round good time. It is expected that a large number of Masons will be in attendance. A special train is being arranged for to carry the Masons from Atlanta and the nearby towns.

NO AGREEMENT YET ABOUT MACON DEPOT

Macon, Ga., July 29.—(Special.)—The Central of Georgia railway, through Vice President W. A. Winburn, has written that the road is willing to submit to arbitration the claims of the property owners below Fifth street who allege they will be damaged by the closing of Cherry street for the new union passenger station to be erected here.

The Central makes the condition, however, that the limit to be paid by that road be $15,000, whereas the figures already given by the property owners as the amount they will be damaged already reaches a quarter of a million dollars. The property owners will not submit to arbitration with any restrictions. A conference will be held in Atlanta Thursday between Mayor Moore, President Stetson, of the Macon Chamber of Commerce, and Attorney R. L. Berner, representing the city of Macon; Chairman Candler, of the railroad commission, and Vice President Winburn, of the Central, for a discussion of the matter. Mayor Moore said this afternoon that the city of Macon has done everything that it can and intends to do, and if the Central does not get busy and do something, the bill now pending before the legislature, giving the Central certain valuable grants, will be withdrawn and instead of ordinary means, extraordinary means will be invoked to bring the Central to terms.

TWENTY MEN IN CRASH AND NONE IS INJURED

Athens, Ga., July 29.—(Special.)—Tuesday afternoon about 4 o'clock the entire framed roof of a livery stable fell in without warning with twenty mechanics on the timbers, and six or seven workmen and one of the owners underneath, and not a man of them was hurt beyond a mere scratch on the hand and a splinter on the cheek of one helper. A negro boy who was asleep in the corner which was improvised into an office never woke up, though the entire roof and timbers supporting it, an area of lumber and roofing containing nearly 10,000 square feet, crashed down about his ears. The place, a sales and livery stable, with brick walls, was recently burned and was being rebuilt. It is owned by Coroner C. N. Weatherly and his brother.

LEACH CROSS GIVEN DECISION OVER BALDWIN

DR. FARRIS, OF ATLANTA, CALLED BY ROME CHURCH

Rome, Ga., July 29.—(Special.)—Dr. J. R. Farris, of Atlanta, Sunday school evangelist of the Christian church, has been called to the pastorate of the First Christian church of Rome. Dr. Farris has the call under consideration, but has not yet announced his decision.

The pulpit of the First Christian church is now vacant, owing to the resignation of Rev. Dr. George F. Guthrell, who will leave on August 14 for Brownwood, Texas, where he has accepted the pastorate of the First Christian church. He has been in Rome for the past five years, and leaves because the health of Mrs. Guthrell demands a western residence.

"UNCLE JOE" CANNON TUMBLES INTO LAKE

Former Speaker Gets Wetting When Auto Takes Header. Had to Wade Out.

Danville, Ill., July 29.—Former Speaker Joseph G. Cannon's automobile plunged down a steep bank and alighted rightside up in a small lake in Spring Hill cemetery this evening. "Uncle Joe" was riding with his daughter, Mrs. E. X. LeSeure. At a sharp bend in the roadway along the lake bank his chauffeur missed the brake with his foot and the car leaped off the ten foot bank. The water was shallow, and the passengers easily waded to the shore. Neither Mr. Cannon nor his daughter were hurt.

A famous scientist condemns the light bottle

We reprint herewith an extract from an opinion rendered by a famous scientist showing that beer in light bottles can not remain pure.

"Beer bottles should be manufactured from reddish-brown glass, inasmuch as same will to a much higher degree than any other kind of glass, minimize the influence of the rays of light on the quality of beer, and will protect the latter against acquiring the disagreeable taste (Sonnengeschmack) due to the chemical action of light. "In white and green glass bottles the beer is most affected by the action of the light. Such bottles are, therefore, absolutely inappropriate and should never be employed by brewers."

THE SHADOW OF REPUDIATION.
Repudiation was one of the principal nightmares of the carpetbag regime in Georgia.

Here is how near the menace of repudiation approaches Georgia at this particular moment:

Here are figures from the treasurer's report to the governor. The preceding legislature appropriated in excess of current revenue for the year 1912 $427,000; for the year 1913, $349,000. That makes a total of outgo exceeding current income for just one legislature of $776,000. The house of representatives of the present legislature has already passed an appropriation bill appropriating for 1914 and 1915 sums exceeding income by $280,000.

These appropriations, therefore, commit the state to the expenditure of $1,056,000 more than current income. And that does not take into reckoning the fact that the tax returns for 1913 now coming in indicate infallibly that this year's surplus of expenditure is going to be faced by a shrinking revenue, since county returns are already lower than those of last year.

All this would be at any time a disgraceful and precarious financial showing for a rich state to offer. Here is how that showing approaches tragedy:

Next year there begins to mature approximately $3,500,000 of Georgia's bonded indebtedness. Arrangements must be made to sell refunding bonds against this amount. The basis of all borrowing is credit. When the governor or the fiscal representative of the state opens negotiations with financiers for the floating of this loan, these are a few of the leading questions that may be asked him:

"Didn't your state once repudiate its bonded indebtedness?"

"Yes," the governor would answer, "but the bonds repudiated were those fastened upon her not by her citizens, but by a horde of negro thieves and harpies temporarily in power and bent on looting the treasury. The purchasers knew the circumstances underlying the issue of these alleged bonds."

The financiers will concede this incident, since they long ago testified to Georgia's rehabilitated credit by listing her among the first southern states as a sound debtor. Then they will further question:

"Is it true that your state has, for many years, been appropriating much more than its income?"

"Yes," will be the reply the governor must make.

"Is it true that this practice has piled up in four years a difference between expenditure and current income of more than a million dollars?"

"Yes," will be the only answer possible.

"Is it true that your legislature knows of this condition and is steadily aggravating it?"

"Yes."

"Is it true that no steps are being taken to correct this insane policy?"

"It is true," the governor must reply, if nothing is done between now and then,

"hat up to this time no action has been taken to remove this condition."

"Can any one who holds your bonds sue your state for an honest debt?"

And the governor must answer that no commonwealth can be sued without its own consent.

And then the financiers must reply, naturally and inevitably:

"Excuse us! You're spending more than you receive, a sign of bankruptcy; you show no indication of relieving that condition, which, in addition to being childish inefficiency, is outright dishonesty; you show us magnificent collateral in your state road and other resources; but your debt isn't protected by process of law, because we can't invoke the courts; the only things we can bank on are your reputation and your past performances!"

What will be the end, then, unless this present legislature relieves the situation? Simply that Georgia will have no way under the sun to begin the retiring of her $3,500,000 outstanding bonds and that, in turn, means the inevitable beginning of repudiation.

The chain of reasoning is flawless; the conclusion, inexorable. Unless this present legislature remedies the situation what we have described may in all probability happen:

What is the remedy?

TAX EQUALIZATION

The other alternative is—repudiation. We cannot conceive how, in this act of honor that faces Georgia, any legislator can vote against or obstruct tax equalization. For—

While the legislator who thus votes may do so with the purest of motives—

In effect he is voting, with his eyes open, for the old carpetbag method of repudiation, and this time of the honest debts of his state, not the fraudulent debts of a negro government.

There is no other possible interpretation of the crisis that rings a challenge upon the conscience of the most laggard patriot!

TO SAFEGUARD REPRESENTATION.

Governor Hatten has called the attention of the general assembly to a danger under the new constitutional amendment providing direct elections of senators which should at once be obviated. There is no provision at present for the governor to fill by appointment and until an election can be called any senatorial vacancy that may transpire from death or disability. Should either of Georgia's two senators be removed by any cause, the state's senatorial representation would be impaired until a special election could be called.

As the governor indicates, this threat can be removed by the enactment of a law giving the governor the power to make ad interim appointments. The new amendment places the machinery of election and designation entirely in the hands of the states and a simple statute will cover this particular point. The law is a necessary, but perfunctory, formality, such as was the recent special election of Senator Bacon. The legislature will, of course, lose no time in complying with the needs of the situation.

THE COTTON OPTION BILL.

Vastly more important than the action of the New York Cotton Exchange is the protest of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange against the proposed tax of 50 cents a bale on future transactions in cotton. In all the charges of gambling and manipulating brought against cotton markets, the one in Louisiana has figured much less unrighteously than the others. Situated in the heart of the cotton belt, the exchange conforms more accurately to the truth than its New York counterpart, and it has been the scene of far fewer scandals. What it has to say on the subject of an options tax, therefore, due unusual consideration by congress.

In an officially signed statement recently given out, the New Orleans institution claims that the passage of the bill may impose a loss of from $100,000,000 to $400,000,000 on the coming cotton crop. This will be due, it is set forth, to the abolition of the system of "hedging," which is claimed to have stabilized the market during preceding years. It may well be that the figures here given bear the inevitable exaggeration of the partisan, but they are sufficiently impressive to challenge attention.

Unbiased experts have testified that the projected tax would not break up gambling and uncertainty, its avowed purpose, but would entail many serious and complicated circumstances. House and senate should by all means observe unusual deliberation before placing this law on the statute books. In any event if an experiment that has proven disastrous in Germany is to be tried here, cotton should not be made the "goat." Let all other commodities, and stocks themselves, be included in the process.

GABBY DIPLOMACY.

What sort of plague of tongues has fallen on American diplomacy? We are reminded of the craze for speech that seems to afflict our foreign representatives by the irruption of Ambassador Wilson, of Mexico. The ambassador was summoned home to report upon grave and delicate matters of foreign policy. The situation as regards Mexico is critical. Yet we find him landing in New York and distributing interviews with the gibberish that a ward politician displays in handing out Pittsburg stogies. He was discreet enough to withhold a few things for the eager ear of Brother Bryan, but in many salient respects he has obviously been manufacturing sentiment for Huerta with all his might since he first touched the pier.

There is Brother Bryan himself, no slouch at all when it comes to exuding language, though it must in justice to him be admitted that he confines himself to harmless subjects, or at least that most of the sentences he parses have grape juice for their subjects and universal, or is it eternal, peace for their predicates. But the point is that no diplomat, and especially they who sit in the seats of the mighty, ought to be too free with his tongue on any subject. Especially is this true of those whose official attribute is assumed to be a judicious reticence.

Nor is this forgetting the lamented Brother Crane, who, a few years ago, started off as ambassador to the Orient, and who was sharply recalled before he reached the Golden Gate because of an exuberant vocabulary. Two or three other of our more important diplomats have developed the trait of talking not wisely but too well. In their anxiety to "make copy" for the newspaper boys they seem sometimes to forget that restraint that should hedge a state department man.

All of which is regrettable. Certainly this characteristic shows us up in a sad light as compared with the foreign diplomats. These latter gentlemen have the gift of speech, to a marked degree, but they have also the gift of silence. When one of them makes a serious break the event is so unusual that his colleagues mark history by it.

A Story of the Moment
BY WALT MASON.
The Famous Prose Poet

AN EYE TO NUMBER ONE.

"There is nothing selfish in a woman's love," remarked the school superintendent. "A man usually is looking out for number one, but a woman is in love she will make any sacrifice."

"I don't know about that," commented the village patriarch. "I have proposed to tons of women in my time, and have married a good many representatives of the sex, but I always found them pretty wickwade to their own interests. I think the poets are responsible for the idea that a woman doesn't care three whoops for material advantages where her love is concerned. The poets are notoriously unreliable, and a sensible man doesn't pay any attention to them."

"After my third wife eloped with a sewing machine agent, and the divorce court had got its work, I began investigating the wealth of my affection upon Julia Chowder, who was one of the most attractive women in town. She returned my affection with compound interest, and seemed to think that I was the only desirable citizen. She was quite romantic, and used to tell me, as we went buggy riding on the beautiful moonlight nights, that she would die of a broken heart if my love ever cooled down; and, having died, she'd haunt me and make it impossible for me to forget the gentle heart I had rended asunder, or words to that effect. She used to quote poetry to the effect that while love is to man a thing apart, it's woman's work, I began to think that she was right along that line that I really began to think she would make her bluff good if my love for her happened to slide down a few degrees."

"Well, about that time a new merchant prince came to town. He bought three or four stores and consolidated them, and lived at the hotel, and in the evenings he went teetering around behind a gorgeous span of bay horses, and he cut such a wondrous sight that the whole town sat up and stared. I had to go away on a hay buying trip, and when I got back I went to see Julia the first thing, and she seemed uncomfortable and embarrassed. I told her that I was to arrange for a wedding, as our engagement had been hanging fire long enough, and then she burst into tears and wrung her hands, and said she couldn't marry me at all. She had misread her heart, it seemed. She imagined that she loved me, and then she saw that merchant prince, and she knew that she was the victim of a pipe dream."

"So she married her merchant prince, and I went to the wedding and stood where the bride could see me, wearing a frozen smile that made her shriek in the middle of the ceremony. Look afterwards she told a friend that I was the only man she ever really loved, and that friend told his wife, and his wife told her washerwoman, and her washerwoman told her husband, and her husband told me. So you see I got it straight, and I believe it to be true. She married that man for his bank account and his team of bay horses and the swath he was cutting, and six months after the marriage he went broke, with a crash that jarred the commercial agencies, and after another six months he was peddling soap that was guaranteed to take the grease stains out of old hats, and his wife was doing plain and fancy sewing to help buy a meal ticket."

"Had that woman been true to the love she talked about so much she might have been my wife at this writing, and I don't know of anything more satisfactory to a normal woman than being my wife. I like the kind we see in the story books, more's the pity. Let a stranger come into this town, fairly clanking with gold and silver and precious stones, and if the news gets out that he's unmarried, you'll see anywhere from ten to a hundred women on his trail, and it makes no difference how homely or disagreeable he is. Young men of sterling worth will find their girls growing restive so long as the plutocrat is on the market. Yet most of these women are fond of sentimental poetry, and really believe, under ordinary conditions, that love is the only thing worth while. The modern woman wants to be assured that her young man is solvent before she marries, and she is wise in that, but she shouldn't pretend that hearts are all she thinks of."

The Fate of Genius.

"The fate of genius," said a writer the other day, "is a sad one."

"No other poem been declined?"

"Oh, no—not that, though that happens frequently; I'm talking about my environments—the distractions of every-day domestic life."

"Yesterday," he continued, "in the exacting crisis of a sonnet my wife handed me the gas bill! Think of it—a gas bill to a man who was in the clouds and didn't need it!"

"Well, that was bad enough; but later when I was writing a sublime ode, she came to tell me that the stove-wood was out, and that the last mackerel I brought home was too salt, and that she knew where we could get salmon and molasses three cents cheaper than I had been getting them!"

"Well, a man's got to live, you know!"

"Yes," moaned the author, "but the trouble is, he's got to write enough while he's living to deserve a monument when he's dead. And he doesn't want a monument of thirty-day notes and pawn tickets!"

Cost of Lighting Great White Way.

(New York Letter to The Pittsburg Post.)

Two millions of dollars is burned up every year for electric signs along the Gay White Way. That is the approximate income that the New York Edison Electric company receives for its electric signs. The company gets most of its profit from the smaller signs, which use so little current that they do not obtain the wholesale rate. The large, spectacular and flashing signs get the wholesale rate and give the electric company an average of $5,000 or less gross revenue per annum. "The Chariot Race" provides the largest single item of sign operating revenue—about $4,000 per year.

Sparrow's Nest a Century Old.

While cutting up an ash tree at a sawmill at Embleton, Cumberland, England, the sawyers observed a dark object in the center of the trunk. It was found to be a sparrow's nest containing the feathers and egg shells were exceedingly well preserved, but in the attempt to extricate them some were broken, and it was found that their contents had been exsiccated. It is assumed that the bird built its nest in a hollow of the tree, and died while sitting on the eggs, the whole becoming sealed up as the tree grew. The nest had probably been built a century ago, the tree being more than 100 years old.

The World's Mysteries
THE MYSTERIES OF COLUMBUS.

There are a great many mysteries about Columbus. There is the mystery as to his birth, the mystery as to his death; where is he buried? And what did he start out to do when he sailed away from Spain with his three little vessels in 1492? Regarding his birth, Columbus has left us such history regarding his early life, but he never seemed willing to establish the year of his birth. His descendant, the Duke of Veragua, believed that he was a native of Genoa and that his birth occurred about the year 1449, possibly as late as 1440. By a document that was recently discovered it would appear that the year was 1451, and that Columbus was a much younger man than was generally supposed when he was trying to convince foreign courts of a westward passage to India. He may have purposely given an earlier year in order to deceive them, for they would hardly have trusted a man as young as he was, for he was apparently only 23 years of age when he first conceived the idea of the voyage.

He pretended to them that he had been to sea for a great many years, and to be an experienced seaman. In truth he had hardly ever sailed. His life had been insignificant until a clew that he had received—not originated—it would seem, gave him a purpose and that purpose gave Spain a valuable island in the Atlantic.

Where did Columbus find his clew? "From an unknown pilot" is the answer of documents that have recently been discovered. Las Casas says it was "a certain pilot." Who was he? What had he seen? Where had he been? Why did he disappear? Why did he claim nothing? This is impossible to explain. This is one of the Columbus mysteries as to who gave him the idea that he so successfully carried out.

And another mystery is, what did Columbus expect to discover? The accepted idea is, according to Washington Irving and other writers, that he started across the Atlantic with the idea of reaching Asia. It is doubtful if he had any such idea. He sailed to discover the west Indies, but he actually reached. This is shown by those who have carefully studied his writings. Most authors have followed the biography of Columbus by his son—who presented things as he wanted them to be known. He, himself, however, originated the story that his plan was not to discover America, but to go to Asia. Why? To give himself more of a romantic aspect; to prove himself to be an original thinker; indeed he was obliged to do it.

Should he have admitted sailing to discover America he would have to tell where he got the information. And that is something that Columbus never told. The plain facts are that he had sure clews as to the existence of the Antilles. He went to find them, and he succeeded.

And yet another mystery. Where did Columbus die? The encyclopedia may tell you at No. 2 Calle Ancha de la Magdalena, Valladolid, Spain, on Ascension day, May 20, 1506, in the small apartment of a modest house. A small tablet on the front of the two-story stone building, some 600 years old, briefly states, "Here died Columbus." There seem to be no mention made by Irving of Columbus having left Seville after his interview with Ferdinand for Valladolid. Where do the ashes of Columbus rest to-day? After his remains were deposited at Valladolid, they were later removed to Seville. In 1896 they were taken with great pomp to Santo Domingo, West Indies, and interred in the cathedral. In 1796 what were supposed to be his ashes were again removed to the cathedral, but it is believed by many authorities that the remains conveyed there were not those of Columbus, but those of his son, Diego. On this point and in answer to the statement that Columbus was a native of Genoa in Corsica, the Duke of Veragua said in a letter: "I do not think any of the historians or writers have been successful in their attempts to determine the honor of being the birth-place of Columbus or in taking from Havana the glory of possessing his ashes." What great man is surrounded by more mystery than the Discoverer of America?

THE "OTHER SIDE" OF THE COTTON TAX BILL

Editor Constitution: The Clarke amendment imposes a tax of one-tenth of a cent a pound on all cotton future contracts. This is equivalent to 50 cents per bale, or $50 per contract of 100 bales, which is prohibitive, would destroy the cotton markets of New York and New Orleans cotton exchanges and practically close them up, and transfer the making of a cotton market to foreign countries, where two-thirds of America's cotton crop is consumed, and the price of our staple would be made at Liverpool, England, and Bremen, Germany.

The Clarke amendment prohibits hedging or placing cotton future orders even in foreign markets without the use of a through contract, leaving the Americans at a disadvantage of a disadvantage under their foreign competitors.

Many people throughout the south who understand what a hardship the passage of such a law would mean on the south and its greatest industry have protested to the senators of their respective states in Washington.

Our honorable senators and representatives in Washington should realize that the cotton markets and cotton exchanges are not used as a rule for hedging by the planter except where he is a very large producer, but the market for the cotton exchanges afford a basis of price from hour to hour and day to day, which is a benefit for the small as well as the large producer alike, and without this basis of price the small farmer could not sell respectively his three, five, ten or twenty bales of cotton except at the arbitrary price of the local buyer in the small town or the large city.

The planter who raises the small number of bales each year has no need for a market except for him to gauge the value of his staple and to help him know what the general price is over the country, and what his neighbors are selling for and what the value of his own production is at the time. But the cotton exchanges of America have very valuable functions and play an important part as a basis of protection and insurance to those who are buying the cotton for use in the aggregate of the day's purchases, in a busy season, will reach 100 or 500 or probably 1,000 bales.

The small merchant, the cotton buyer or the exporter who accumulates his cotton in this way is able to sell contracts on the New York or New Orleans exchanges against his holdings of spot cotton until he is able to effect a sale, and the American spinner who uses on an average about one-third of our crop or to the foreign spinner who uses about two-thirds of the American crop.

If this local cotton merchant or factor could not protect himself against the spot cotton which he is buying, when he did not have an order for that cotton, he would be obliged to offer lower prices to the farmer than he could afford to pay when he knows he can get effective insurance against loss by hedging with contracts.

The same thing applies to the farmer who makes contracts ahead for the output of his mill. He sells a bill of goods here and another bill elsewhere; he has not got the cotton to fill these orders, but he insures himself by buying contracts on the different exchanges until he can secure the grades of cotton necessary with which to fill his orders. When he secures this cotton he sells out the contracts which he has bought. The market has protected him, thus the exchanges are used largely for the legitimate protection against natural loss, and serves as an insurance.

While, of course, there is some speculation, it is this speculation which broadens and makes the ready market at all times. The speculator is the skirmish line of battle which rather feels and fixes the price. The speculator will not take orders from a man handling the actual commodity who hesitates to take, therefore the broadness of the market is helped by the speculator so that large amounts of transactions, in the shape of hedges, can not be done without the speculator, but if this speculation is entirely eliminated the fluctuations must necessarily be very wide; therefore, while some say the protest should come from the planter, the planter is not the man who directly uses the market, though he benefits by it in a general way more than any one interested in the American cotton industry, and he should realize that the cotton exchanges are his friends.

The adoption of the Clarke amendment would destroy all usefulness of the American cotton exchanges and transfer the cotton markets of the world to foreign countries.

The tax of 50 cents per bale, or $50 per contract, reduces the value of cotton as an asset and as a collateral with the bank because protection in all lines of business has become a necessity. Bank recognizing the functions of the exchanges for hedging as capital is timid it is the first to recognize any safeguard that can be put about it.

If the needs and officials of the Farmer's union could realize what this legislation, unopposed, means and would try to look at purely from a business standpoint, we feature they would oppose the Clarke amendment and try to introduce some bill that would perpetuate the exchanges, and encourage competition that makes a broader protecting market for cotton. There speculation in every commodity, security and class of business which is recognized throughout the world, but speculation is not gambling.

Germany abolished cotton future trading some years ago, but finding that her people in this particular industry were at a great disadvantage by having no local market she have recently re-established cotton future trading in Bremen, where the exchange has been opened.

Faded Ink.

(From The New York Sun.)

A London cable to The Sun reported the sale on Monday of an old inkstand. The price paid was $7,010. A good deal of money for an inkstand, but it would be worth a sum not to be estimated in figures but in fancies could the owner know whose quills have been dipped into it and what thoughts have come out of it, as inks came out of an oven in an old fairy tale. It must be a wonderful inkstand, as these words show:

"It is formed as an equestrian group of Marcus Aurelius, with an inkwell and sand box by his side, mounted on hexagonal plinth, with foliage border and claw feet."

"When the sand was fresh and clean in that little box Henry VIII was a boy playing tennis. We know how he lost his temper over one game and broke his racket. Did the inkwell tell what a fine healthy youth Henry was really noble? So elaborate an inkstand must have belonged to persons "in the know" as we say today, and they wrote of intrigues until the ink went dry many times before the character of Henry became fiendish.

With fresh ink and new quills and as other hands dipped toward that well there must have come a time when words like these came out: "I saw a new play this afternoon, called 'Hamlet.' I forgat the playwright's name." And how the quill must have shaken and the sand blurred the page when the head of Charles fell off the block. What an awful news story that would be today, but letter-writers wear the only reporters then. What strange, stray rumors they penned each other about a land across the Atlantic! The sand on the paper turned to rubles and diamonds wasted on Indians. A sweep of history, scandal, love, parental duty, lies and truth, they have all come out of that old inkwell.

Once a man lost his health and went to Colorado to regain it. When he returned to New York friends asked if he had been mining. "Yes," said he, "in an inkwell." Who knows what gold still lies in the inkwell that has stood long at the side of Marcus Aurelius?

LINE OF TYPE DROPPED FROM JUDGE FITE'S CARD

In the two column communication Judge A. W. Fite, published yesterday, an inadvertent elimination of a line of type which was not caught by the proof reader presented the sentence in a slightly different way from the text as written by Judge Fite. As it appears the sentence read:

"Then the mayor and Aldermen promptly elected the said relatives of the mayor teachers in the school, etc."

The sentence as written was:

"Then the mayor and Aldermen promptly elected the present school board and they then the present school relatives of the mayor teachers in the school, which the people had said at the ballot box should not be done, and they also elected a relative of the chairman of the board, which is in violation of the law itself, and which it seems to me, proper, should be prohibited."

The Constitution takes pleasure in making this correction. It frequently happens in the rush of the "make up" that a line of type may become misplaced, and that what happened in this instance.

The Great Essential of Advertising

By HENRY W. GRADY

Some of the best thought of modern times is being given to advertising.

The great question of today is not, "shall I advertise," but "how shall I advertise."

From the chaotic methodless way of merely getting before the public, regardless of what they said, or how they said it, the advertisers of today have been forced to the realization that the mere act of getting before the public does not always sell goods.

There has been an awakening to the fact that the public demands a certain standard in advertising just as it demands certain standards in literature, in art, in politics, in sports and in fact everything in which it takes an interest.

There was a time in the days of P. T. Barnum when the public liked to be fooled and when the ad writer capable of writing the greatest exaggerations was the past master of his craft.

That day has past.

The age of Truth has arrived and the merest novice in the ad writing game now recognizes the two great basic principles—TRUTH and BREVITY.

That seer of the American Newspapers, Herbert Kauffman, in a recent article on "How to Write Retail Advertising Copy," lays down the following principles:

"Advertising must be simple. The buying public is interested in facts. People read advertisements to find out what you have to sell. The advertiser who can fire the most facts in the shortest space gets the most returns. Indefinite talk wastes space. It often creates false impressions.

Truth, absolute truth, every word of it, but Mr. Kauffman overlooks the one great essential Truth of advertising, and that is ILLUSTRATING.

Descriptions may be misleading. The public may not understand them or interpret them in different ways. There can be no misunderstanding about a good illustration. A faithful reproduction is TRUTH itself.

To the man who pays for the advertising, space becomes a matter of importance.

Mr. Kauffman says: "Space is a comparative matter after all. It is not so much a case of how much is used, as how it is used." EXACTLY!

The advertiser's first aim is to attract the greatest amount of attention with the least amount of space and then to SHOW the thing he has to sell. Once the public has seen what it wants it is an easy matter to tell about it.

Does the real estate man stop to describe a piece of property to the prospective buyer? He does not. With all the dispatch possible he takes the customer out to SEE that piece of property. If he can not do that he does the next best thing and shows the customer a picture. Does the clerk in the store stop to describe a dress to the woman who wants to buy? He does not. He shows it to her just as quick as he can.

The wise merchants realize that they can not bring all of the public to see their goods so they do the next best thing and take their goods to the public in high-class illustrations. They know then that the public knows that it is getting the TRUTH.

They know that the proper ILLUSTRATIONS will attract more attention than long-winded descriptions, and cost them much less.

They know that the buying public has to be shown.

It matters not whether the advertisement is in a newspaper, catalog, booklet, street car, on a billboard or whatnot, they know that the important thing is to get, not a description of the thing advertised before the public, but the thing itself.

The proper writing of your advertisement is not half so important as the proper ILLUSTRATING.

Showing in an attractive and truthful way actual pictures of the thing you have to sell will attract attention and bring results where you have failed before.

We are expert advertising illustrators. We will advise with you about what pictures to use and how to use them. We will design your illustrations, engrave and print them and save you both trouble and money.

Won't you let us submit ideas and estimates?

the firm of A. Cruikshank Clear company. The bride is a woman of charming personality and has many friends in Atlanta.

Spend-the-Day Party.

A delightful event of the past week was the spend-the-day party given by Misses Maud and Eleanor Duffee at their country home, "Hillcrest" in honor of their guests, Miss Eula Duffee, of Lancaster, S. C., and Miss Belle Pounds, of Maysville, Ga. Those invited were Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Pierpont, of Atlanta; Misses Eula Duffee, Belle Pounds, Maud and Eleanor Duffee, Messrs. B. L. Hancock, P. W. Reid, Fred Austin, W. M. Rivers, Frank Duffee and Mr. K. P. Pierce, of Atlanta.

Meeting of "Ten" Club.

The members of the "Ten" club were delightfully entertained Saturday, July 26, by Mr. Walter G. Cooper at the Brookhaven Country club. Three members were unavoidably absent, Mr. Samuel D. Jones, Mr. Hubert M. Willet and Mr. M. L. Brittain, all being out of the city.

Special guests of the evening were Judge J. Henry Lumpkin and Mr. George H. Aubrey, of Cartersville, Ga. The paper on "Free Trade and Protection" was ably discussed by Judge Beverly D. Evans and Mr. William W. Orr.

Judge J. H. Lumpkin was unanimously elected a member of the club. Mr. Orr and Mr. Paxon were appointed a committee as to time and place, it being decided that a meeting should be called at such a date as would enable the club to entertain Dr. W. W. Landrum. Judge Lumpkin stated he would be glad to act as host.

Mr. Orr and Mrs. Cooper were appointed a committee on program for the next meeting.

Mr. Orr was appointed a committee of one on music. In the absence of Czar Brittain the scribe designated Judge Lumpkin as presiding czar.

For Miss Hunt.

Mrs. Tom Goodwin entertained at her home on Highland avenue Saturday afternoon in honor of Miss Bessie Hunt whose marriage to Mr. Roy Sewell will be a pretty event of July 30, taking place at the home of the bride. The house was artistically decorated with ferns and flowers and a color scheme of pink and white was carried out in all details.

Invited to meet the guest of honor were Miss Sarah Banketon, Miss Ethel Foster, Miss Hattie Herby, Miss Nellie Hampton, Miss Garland Kee, Mrs. C. F. L. Tanner, Mrs. Carrie Veal, Mrs. C. A. Lanford, Mrs. G. S. Radford, Mrs. George Taylor, Mrs. Charlie Hampton.

Mrs. Allan's Tea.

Mrs. J. P. B. Allan entertained at a pretty tea yesterday afternoon in compliment to her guests, Miss Margaret Bransford, of Nashville, and Miss Robbins, of Birmingham, and Miss Margaret Buckner, of Roanoke, Va., the guest of Miss Helen Jones.

The apartments were artistically decorated with palms and ferns and aster.

Marie Antoinette basket filled with pink gladiol and pink asters formed the centerpiece of the tea table in the dining room and all decorative details of the pretty table were pink and white.

Punch was served in the library. Misses Leonora Maddox, Jeannette Lowndes and Louise Riley presiding at the punch table. Mrs. Allan was gowned in white crepe de chine; Miss Robbins wore blue brocade with draperies of embroidered chiffon; Miss Bransford's gown was pink charmeuse draped with embroidered chiffon and Miss Buckner wore white crepe combined with blue satin.

Assisting Mrs. Allan in entertaining were: Miss Helen Jones, Miss Nellie Kiser Stewart, Miss Clifford West, Miss Margaret Ashford, Miss Fannie Neal Anderson, of Athens, Miss Louise Riley, Miss Jeannette Lowndes, Miss Leonora Maddox, Mrs. W. W. Ruskon, Mrs. Victor R. Smith, Mrs. Julian Prade, Mrs. Charles Dowman, Jr., Mrs. W. C. Warfield, Mrs. W. L. Maddox.

Denton-Heard.

Mrs. Camille Heard and Mr. Charles B. Denton were married at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Sentell, 198 Setwatt avenue, on Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock, Rev. F. B. Rickett officiating.

Dinner at Driving Club.

Colonel and Mrs. Lowry entertained twenty guests at a beautiful dinner at the Piedmont Driving Club last evening in compliment of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Howell.

The circular table around which the guests were seated had decorations in gladiol, in the graduating rose shades, roses and lilies.

In the center was a plateau, the gladiol set low in a base of fern. At intervals on the table were baskets of roses and lilies, the handles tied with bows of sky blue lisse. Butterflies, which had in their wings the tints of the flowers, were placed among the flowers, and the place cards ornate with the same brightwinged ornaments. Souvenirs for the ladies were French fans in the shades of rose and blue. The candlesticks had their lighted tapers unshaded and the detail decorations were in the light tinted flower colors.

Mrs. Lowry wore a dinner gown in shadow lace and chiffon, the corsage of lace was trimmed in roses. Mrs. Howell wore an embroidered linen gown of sheerest quality trimmed with lace and draped over white satin. The girde finishing it was of American Beauty color, and her hat was trimmed in plumes that color.

BILL GIVES MOTHER CONTROL OF CHILDREN

Representative J. Y. Smith, of Fulton, introduces measure in the Lower House.

Representative John Y. Smith, of Fulton county, on Tuesday introduced in the house a bill providing that the custody and control of minor children shall be given to the mother instead of the father in cases of divorce or separation.

Representative Sam Olive, of Richmond county, joined with Mr. Smith as sponsor of the bill. There is much interest in the bill about the state and considerable support in the house.

The bill provides that the right of custody of minor female children of any age and of male children not more than 14 years of age shall be in the mother.

The right of custody of male children over 14 years of age shall rest either with the father or the mother as in the discretion of the judges shall be better for the welfare and happiness of such children.

The law lays the father liable for the support of his children, but provides that the earnings of such children as are given to the mother shall be claimed by the mother.

Under this law any order of the court relative to the custody of children is subject to change should such an order prove adverse to the welfare of the children affected.

CALLER KING will be on the job for both games today at Mobile. The final game starts promptly at 2:15 o'clock.

ALPERMANN'S loss to the Crackers is felt most in that big stick of his. Any time you take a player off a team who is hitting .250 in the pinches...

STORIES have been circulated around the country about the wonderful scoring ability to the Athletics and the large number of runs that the members of the team have been driving in.

THE MENTAL effect Alpermann's loss will have on the team is another angle that must be considered.

FOUR Southern league players are to receive checks on August 3 for being the normal against one of the best out-puts that stand in all fields in organized baseball.

LETTY LEIFIELD, the veteran left-ender, who refused to report to the Crackers, has not quit baseball, as has his announced intention.

BOB HEDGES, owner of the St. Louis Browns, is quoted as saying that he is not at all a liability, not an asset, and that he has passed up a proposition to buy the franchise.

HEDGES is further quoted in an article in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch regarding Johnny Dobbis as probable manager of the Browns to succeed St. Louis.

Where They Play Today Southern League. Atlanta in Mobile. Chattanooga in Birmingham.

National League. Detroit in Washington. St. Louis in Philadelphia. Chicago in New York. Cleveland in Boston.

Empire State League. Buffalo in New York. Albany in New York. Syracuse in New York.

Mobile, Ala., July 29.—(Special.)—A cloudburst, just about half an hour before game time, prevented the scheduled game between the Crackers and the Gulls this afternoon.

Weather permitting, the teams will be up in a double-header tomorrow afternoon, Berger opposing Clarke in the first game, and Price or Love against Robertson in the second.

Whites Improves. The condition of Captain Whitey Alpermann, of the Atlanta team is very much improved; so much so that he was allowed several visitors, including Manager Smith.

Lookouts 2, Billikens 2. Montgomery, Ala., July 29.—Montgomery and the Crackers played the only game played of a scheduled double-header today, each club having scored two runs when the game called for the end of the sixth inning on account of rain.

Score by innings: R. H. E. Montgomery... 000 000-2. Crackers... 010 010-2.

Just how far the teams will travel in half-hour races is more guesswork, but when you figure that they traveled twenty-six miles in nineteen minutes.

The sprint races, with five men in each heat and five men in the final heat, will be the feature of the track over twenty consecutive minutes.

Thomasville 4, Cordele 2. Thomasville, Ga., July 29.—(Special.)—In a game replete with kicking the visitors defeated Cordele this afternoon 4 to 2.

Doves 9, Cubs 1. Chicago, July 29.—Chicago showed a reversal of form today behind Dickson's fine pitching and thus evened up the series with the Cubs.

Crackers' Wallop Smith. Cracker's Wallop Smith announces the arrival of a nine-pound pup at his St. Louis home Tuesday.

QUERIES ANSWERED Under this head the sports editor will endeavor to answer all questions pertaining to all branches of sports.

SOUTH ATLANTIC Athletics 8, Tigers 6. Philadelphia, July 29.—Philadelphia shut out Detroit 8 to 0 in the first game of a scheduled double-header this afternoon.

Naps Win Two. New York, July 29.—Cleveland won the series from New York, three games to one, the visitors taking both sections of a double-header today.

Senators 2, Browns 1. Washington, July 29.—Washington made it three out of four by winning from St. Louis today 2 to 1.

Red Sox Win Two. Boston, July 29.—Boston made a clean sweep of the four-game series with Chicago by winning a double-header from the visitors today.

WESTERN TENNIS. Texas Star Defeats the Favorite. Champions to Default Titles. Chicago, July 29.—John C. Neely, of the Wanderers' club, one of the favorites in the western tennis tournament, was defeated today by Robert Shelton, of Texas.

CRACKERS HAVE A NEW CAPTAIN

"Wallop" Smith, Jr., Weighing Nine Pounds, in Charge on Tuesday—Jinx Now Broken, Say Teammates.

The new field captain will have charge of the Atlanta team in the double-header against the Mobile Gulls this afternoon. He was appointed Tuesday afternoon.

His name is Smith, and he answers to the name of Wallop Junior. He arrived Tuesday afternoon. The young infielder weighs nine pounds. Mother and child are doing nicely.

The following wire from Manager Smith is self explanatory: "Dick Jemison, Sporting Editor, The Constitution: Wallie Smith is strutting around the lobby of the Cawthron hotel tonight the happiest man in Mobile. Just received wire from St. Louis stating that he was father of 9-pound boy. Mrs. Smith doing nicely. Boys are as happy as Wallie. Believe youngster will break the jinx."

"BILL SMITH." A moment later Barney Sheridan, Jr., sporting editor of The Register, confirmed Manager Smith's wire, adding: "Smith took cigars for his home-run hit of yesterday and gave them among teammates in celebration of event. His teammates ran him through the gauntlet."

MAKES TENNIS STARS. Sidney Marvin Developed McLaughlin, Johnston, Strachan.

San Francisco, July 29.—Developing tennis champions is the favorite pastime of Sidney R. Marvin, of this city, a man of means who devotes his spare hours to the promotion of juvenile athletics.

His success is measured by the progress of Maurice E. McLaughlin, United States champion; William M. Johnston, now in the finals for the Longwood cup at Boston; and John Strachan, winner of the national clay court championship at Omaha.

DAVIS CUP "ALIBI" FURNISHED BY BRITONS London, July 30.—An anonymous letter appearing in The Standard today declares that the English competitors in the Davis cup tennis matches were the better all-round players, but that the Americans won the trophy because McLaughlin had mastered and concentrated his play on a smashing service, in which any number of English players could have equally perfected themselves.

"Thus the cup was won," the letter continues, "by a trick, though a perfectly legitimate trick within the rules, which does not further the best interests of lawn tennis, and unless this swash service is barred, like the spot strike in billiards, tennis is within measurable distance of death."

HEAVY FINES INFLICTED ON SOUTHERN GROCERS

U. S. Judge Grubb Holds the Contempt Charges Have Been Sustained.

Birmingham, Ala., July 29.—Federal Judge Grubb today fined the Southern Wholesale Grocers' association $2,500 for contempt of court in violating a decree issued in 1911, commanding the organization to abide by federal anti-trust laws.

H. Lacey Hunt, of Wilmington, N. C., and L. A. Melchers, of Charleston, S. C., were fined $1,000 each and the costs were assessed against the corporation and the three individual defendants according to costs of their respective witnesses.

Trial was resumed this morning after a recess since Saturday District Attorney Street completed his argument for the government in rebuttal.

Judge Grubb immediately announced his decision. Walker Percy, of counsel for the defense, announced his decision had been reached, but appeal probably would be taken to the supreme court.

The decree of 1911 prohibited any violations of the anti-trust law. A suit was filed this year against the Southern Wholesale Grocers' association, its president and officers, and many members, but after the trial was on a few days all defendants were expurgated except those named in the decision by Judge Grubb.

Judge Grubb is deciding the contempt case held that President McLaurin in issuing a circular in October, 1911, that the decree of the court would not affect practices of the association, had committed a violation. That President McLaurin had attempted to coerce manufacturers of food products the court did not believe it had been clearly shown.

As to H. Lacey Hunt, his letter to a manufacturer and signed as director in the association, advising not to sell to a retailer, was a violation and the same charge was made against L. A. Melchers.

Officials of the department of justice today declined to comment upon the action of Judge Grubb in imposing fines in the contempt case against the Southern Wholesale Grocers' association. This was the first contempt of court proceeding for a violation of a civil decree under the Sherman law. It was within the province of the court to impose jail sentences.

GO BACK TO RICHMOND.

Helpless Couple Come Here to Escape Poorhouse.

Penalties and clothes in rags, William Smith and wife arrived in Atlanta Monday night from Rome, Ga. Smith and his wife are at least 80 years old and are entirely helpless and dependent on others.

Their trip south has a double object. They seek to escape the poor farm of their home county in Illinois, and they are in search of a certain "Spencer" which is the only name they know him by, who is, according to their story, a very rich planter living somewhere in the south. They do not even know the state in which he lives, and are sure he will give them a home if he can be found.

They were sent back last night to Richmond, Ky., the first place they were seen after leaving Illinois. Their transportation was furnished by the city.

FAVOR EXAMINATION OF NURSES OF GEORGIA

The nurses' examination bill was recommended to pass by substitute in the state sanitarian committee Tuesday afternoon.

Several of the requirements in the original bill were objected to by the nurses, a large number of whom were present at the committee, and a compromise bill was effected.

The committee decided that, on account of the urgent business before the house, it could not make its inspection of the state institution during the session, but will do so in the vacation period. A resolution to this end will be introduced in the house.

FOR WEATHER PROPHET WILSON TAKES MARVIN

Chief of Instrument Division Is to Succeed Willis L. Moore.

Washington, July 29.—Professor Charles F. Marvin has been selected for chief of weather bureau to succeed Willis L. Moore, recently removed. Professor Marvin is now chief of the instrument division. He was appointed to the old signal service in 1884 from Ohio. President Wilson sent his nomination to the senate today.

Professor Marvin was born at Columbus, Ohio, and was educated in the public schools there and at the Ohio State university. He became head of the instrument division of the bureau in 1888.

Under the new chief more attention will be paid to weather reports and forecasts as they affect or are likely to affect agriculture and general farming conditions throughout the country.

Professor Marvin is the inventor of many instruments used by the bureau. He has represented the department of agriculture at a number of important meteorological congresses, and has written extensively on the subject of weather investigations. He has conducted experiments upon which are based the tables used by the weather bureau for determining the amount of moisture in the air, has studied the measurement of wind velocities and pressures, and also on the use of kites for ascertaining meteorological conditions.

Under the new chief, the new chief of the bureau, was recommended for the place by the National Academy of Sciences. President Wilson was requested by the executive committee of this body to delay the appointment of this body to Willis L. Moore until it had canvassed the field and recommended a man. The first choice was Professor Marvin.

BY SECTIONS TAX REFORM BILL IS ARGUED

Fullbright, of Burke, and Fowler, of Bibb, so as to make the comptroller-general an ex-officio member of the state board to advise with them without the right to vote, and also to give the board authority to employ a secretary at a salary not exceeding $500 per year.

Section 13, amended by Representative Culpepper, of Meriwether, so as to give the county boards authority to contract for the payment of fees for the service of summons, subpoenas, etc., the same not to exceed fifty cents for each paper served. Several other small changes were made, but they were of a clerical nature and of negligible importance.

First Over Section 16. The first real fight, which may reveal the strength of the respective sides, came near the close of the session, when section 16 of the bill was reached, which section Representative Stovall, of Elbert, sought to amend by striking out altogether.

As this is the section which defines the powers of the state board in its dealings with the various county boards, friends of equalization and of the state board principle feel that to give it up would be practically to abandon all that they are contending for.

There will undoubtedly be a sharp contest on the retention in the bill of this section when the house meets this morning, and the vote may show the relative strength of those who favor and those who oppose a state board.

Special Order Reached. When the special order of the day was reached, house bill No. 6 together with the amendments of the ways and means committee was read by the clerk. Then the substitute for the bill, which was offered by Representative Shepard, of Sumter, eliminating the state board feature, was also read.

A motion of Mr. Blackburn, of Fulton, that the house go into committee of the whole, for the purpose of considering the bill with a view to amending it, was lost by a vote of 22 to 97. A motion of Mr. Miller, of Bibb, that the house consider the bill, section by section, was then carried. In reply to an inquiry, the speaker announced that first the bill would be considered section by section, for the purpose of perfecting it and of adopting the committee amendments of amending the ways and means committee would be treated in the same way. After that, the house would have an opportunity of voting on the substitute first and then the bill, and of passing or rejecting either of them as a whole.

Speaker Decides Tie. The only really close vote of the day was on the adoption of the first section, which provides for the creation of a state board. Here the vote on the adoption of the section as proposed was 57 to 57, and the tie was broken in favor of a state board by the deciding vote of the speaker.

Except for some questions put by Representative Holtzlaw, of Houston, in order that he and the house might have a clearer understanding of the bill in so far as it affects the return of property for taxation, these questions having been answered by Messrs. Akin, of Glynn, and Swift, of Muscogee, to the effect that the present law governing tax returns would not be changed, there was little further discussion until Section 12, making the comptroller general secretary of the board, was reached.

At this point a flood of amendments were offered by Representatives Gower, of Crisp; Wimberly, of Miller; Representative Holtzlaw, of Houston, and others.

Wimberly Lauds Comptroller. Mr. Wimberly paid a fine tribute to the comptroller general, declaring him to be the best informed man on matters of taxation that there is in Georgia, and resenting as a needless degradation of that veteran official, making him secretary of a board, which would be much beneath him both in rank and in knowledge.

Mr. Akin explained that there had been no intent on the part of the committee to degrade the comptroller general, but the purpose of the committee amendment was to save the salary of a secretary and to give the board the benefit of Comptroller-General Wright's knowledge and experience.

Mr. Gower, of Crisp, said that the result of the committee amendment would be that the comptroller-general would do the work, while the members of the board would cook their feet up on desks in his office and have nothing to do.

The outcome of the discussion was the adoption of the amendments offered by Representatives Fullbright and Fowler, giving the comptroller general authority to employ a secretary at a salary not to exceed $500 per year and making the comptroller general a member of the board ex-officio without voting power. The other amendments were withdrawn.

No Afternoon Session. At about this point in the discussion Mr. Hardeman, of Jefferson, made a motion that the house, when it adjourned at 1 o'clock, meet again in the afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock for further consideration of the measure. The motion was opposed by Messrs. Shepard, of Sumter; Blackburn, of Fulton; Mills of Butts and others on the ground that there were important committee meetings set for that afternoon with people coming from a distance to appear at hearings and that there would be great inconvenience if these committee meetings were interrupted.

Mr. Blackburn added that, with a measure of so great importance under consideration, it was specially desirable that there be a full attendance of the house and that he feared that it would be difficult to get more than a quorum at an afternoon session.

The motion to have an afternoon session was accordingly lost with 35 ayes and 106 nays.

Stovall Opposes State Board. It was nearing the hour of adjournment when section 16 of the bill was reached, which Dr. Stovall, of Elbert, moved to eliminate entirely. He made a spirited attack upon the measure, sought to be conferred on the state board by this section, stating that the people would not tolerate a state board which had power to go into counties and reverse their returns.

At ten minutes to 1 o'clock, when Dr. Stovall had concluded his speech, a motion to adjourn was made by Mr. Shepard and carried.

STATION IN SOUTH GEORGIA IS FAVORED

Senate Committee Would Remove Experiment Station From Griffin.

The bill which Representative Ellis, of Tift, and several others introduced in the house, and which Senator Sweat and others introduced in the senate, moving the state experiment station from Griffin to a point to be selected in south Georgia, was reported favorably by the senate committee on general agriculture yesterday afternoon.

The advocates of the measure propose to have the land and buildings necessary donated by the people of the community which gets the station. They claim that, in that way, it will not cost the state anything to move it.

The intent is to have an experiment station in south Georgia, and also the experiment farm at the state agricultural college at Athens, which, it is claimed, is now the best-equipped experiment station in the south, both of them to be under the direction and control of the board of trustees of the state college.

What Ellis Says. In this connection, Representative Ellis, who drafted the bill, said:

"The soil of south Georgia is of an entirely different kind from that of north Georgia. The climate, also, is different. As it is now, both the experiment station and the experiment farm are in north Georgia, located on the same kind of soil. They are not in a position to be of much benefit to our farmers in south Georgia."

"We need a station on south Georgia soil, where experiments may be made with the products peculiar to our section. We grow different varieties of cotton, corn and wheat from those grown in north Georgia, and there are other products, such as sugarcane and certain fruits, grown in south Georgia which cannot be grown in north Georgia at all."

"To be of any benefit to south Georgia, the largest farming section of the state, and the most rapidly developing, it is necessary to have an experiment station located on our soil."

While in Church Death Comes to Prof. Scamp

The death of Professor H. A. Scamp at his home in Parkville, Ky., which has just been received in Atlanta, will come as a source of widespread grief throughout Georgia.

The death of Professor Scamp was sudden, occurring last Sunday at church. He was buried in Bellvue cemetery, Danville, Ky.

For eighteen years this eminent scholar was professor of Greek in Emory college, and his pupils by the hundred are found throughout the state. While distinguished for his scholarly attainments, he was also among the leading pioneers of the temperance cause in Georgia.

His book "King Alcohol in the Realm of King-Cotton," has had a wide circulation throughout the country.

During recent years Professor Scamp had been engaged in special work for the Smithsonian institute compiling a dictionary of the Indian tongues.

TRIP TO MILLEDGEVILLE. Penitentiary Committee Makes Trip Next Friday.

The penitentiary committee of the house on Tuesday afternoon decided to go to Milledgeville to inspect the state prison next Friday afternoon.

This was the only action of any importance taken by the committee. The committee will leave Atlanta Friday afternoon at 3:25 o'clock over the Georgia road and return the following morning.

KINDERGARTEN BILL MEETS WITH DEFEAT

Despite Pleas of Leading Club Women, Committee Votes Against Measure.

The kindergarten bill was killed in the house committee on education Tuesday afternoon by a vote of 9 to 3. When the bill came up for the final consideration of the committee Tuesday afternoon, a delegation of some twenty-five leading club women of the state were on hand to urge a recommendation that the bill do pass.

J. J. Baldwin, of Savannah, who is personally interested in kindergartens work there, advocated the bill before the committee. Other gentlemen and some of the ladies also spoke.

New Marshal Here. Howard Thompson, of Gainesville, United States marshal appointed for the northern district of Georgia, succeeded Walter H. Johnson, sixteen years incumbent, was in Atlanta for a few hours yesterday morning in conference with Marshal Johnson. Mr. Thompson has been officially advised of his appointment, as has the incumbent Marshal Johnson, and has made the requisite bond effective Friday morning, August 1. Mr. Thompson and Mr. Johnson were together but a short time, as the official transfer will be at a place Friday.

No More Headaches Coffee drinking induces headache, indigestion, nervousness heart trouble, and many other ills. This because coffee contains the poisonous drug, caffeine. A prominent business man of Memphis, Tenn., writes under date of April 21, 1913, of his experience in quitting coffee. He says: "For a number of years I had been a great sufferer from headaches and indigestion. About January first of this year I left off coffee and began the use of Instant Postum. Since getting under the influence of coffee, headaches have ceased. I can eat anything I want to, and have no indigestion. In addition to this I have gained in weight. I attribute it all to the stopping of coffee and the use of Postum. I write this letter simply to add my testimony to the many you already have, and to induce some fellow sufferer to get relief by quitting coffee and turning to Instant Postum as a morning beverage." (Name given on request.) INSTANT POSTUM is a pure food-drink, made only of clean, roasted whole wheat and a small quantity of molasses. It contains no drug whatever, but does contain the vital phosphates of the grain which are essential for the upbuilding of brain and nerve and muscle tissue. If something interferes with your comfort, suppose you try leaving off coffee and use Instant Postum. Postum comes in two forms. Regular Postum (must be boiled). Instant Postum doesn't require boiling, but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in an ordinary cup of hot water and adding cream and sugar to taste. A level teaspoonful makes it right for most people. Some use a heaping teaspoonful and temper it with plenty of cream, and it has a delightfully snappy flavor that is wonderfully pleasing. Find out how you like it and always have it served that way. "There's a Reason" for POSTUM
