Lower House Strikes Vital Section From Lipscomb Bill, Changing Measure

ization Have Not Abandoned the Fight by Any Means.

TAX REFORMERS NOW HAVE HOPEFUL EYES ON SENATE TO SAVE DAY

Surprise in Way Some Members From Counties Expected to Favor the Measure Cast Their Votes.

By a vote of 105 to 68, the house yesterday afternoon passed the Stovall amendment striking section 16 from the ways and means committee tax equalization bill, otherwise known as the Lipscomb bill amended.

This is taken to mean that the house is opposed to a tax reform measure which provides for equalization among counties and for a state board of equalizers. It means that the ways and means committee bill cannot pass the house

On the other hand, however, the advocates of a state board have not given up the fight. Many of them had rather see their bill pass even in its changed form than to abandon the principle of equalization among counties altogether.

Still, the chances of the passage of the Sheppard substitute by the house today are considered as favorable. Advocates of tax reform feel that even that will be better than nothing

No provision will be made in that bill for a state board of equalizers or for equalization among counties, furthan a possible slight extension of the advisory functions to be imposed upon Comptroller General Wright, powers which he has repeatedly declared should not be added to duties and which he does not

Tax Reformers Now Look to Senate. When the house passes the Sheppard substitute, as it probably will, other branch of the general assembly and friends of state-wide equalization which is generally regarded as the only way to bring about an honest system of taxation in Georgia, will have their eyes on the senate from

That body, it is believed, will not his club up and down the city. give its approval to a tax revision measure which does not provide for state equalization and for the machinery necessary to carry it into

Before the Sheppard substitute is acted upon, two important amendments will be offered with a view to strengthening the bill, which may be accepted by the author.

Probable Amendments. They are an amendment by Repre-sentative Greene, of Houston, giving the comptroller general an additional $1,500 clerk to help him along in his capacity as counsellor to the country boards, and probably a provision for state property inspectors.

sentative McMichael, of Marion, providing for the appointment by the county boards in each county of tax discoverers, who shall inquire into the returns to ascertain whether they have been made too low and also to seek out and find property which has not been returned. These discoverers are to be paid a fee of 50 cents for every $100 worth of property so raised and discovered, the same to be assessed as a penalty upon the property so brought upon the digest

Many Buildings Wrecked. Capitol and White House Damaged - Workmen Are Caught on Capitol Dome.

Washington, July 30 .- Like a giant flail, a cyclonic storm of wind, rain and hail whipped back and forth across the nation's capital today, leaving death and ruin in its wake. Three dead, scores injured and hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of property destroyed was the toll recorded in the hurried canvass made when the city aroused itself from half an hour of helplessness in the grasp of the elements. Out of a blazing sky, under which the city was sweltering with the temperature at 100 degrees, came the storm, roaring from the north, driving a mass of clouds that cast a mantle of darkness over the city.

The gale, reaching a velocity of almost seventy miles an hour, swept the streets clear, unroofed houses, tore detached small structures from their foundations, wrecked one office building, overturned wagons and carriages in the streets and swept Washington's hundred parks, tearing huge branches from trees and even uproot ing sturdy old elms, landmarks of century.

Streets Full of Debris.

Tonight Washington's well-kept streets with their wealth of trees. were littered with broken foliage, roofs, debris and dead birds, as if a playful giant had carelessly swished

As the wind wreaked its havoc, the rain came, and in five minutes the temperature dropped from the hunthe rain turned to hail and hailstone battered on roofs and crashed through skylights and windows. For half an hour the city, covered, paralyzed, under the beating of the storm, every activity suspended. Trollev cars, street traffic and telephone partments suspended operations. The vind wrecked a three-story building occupied by Saul company, real estate dealers, and fifteen persons were carried down in

W. E. Hilton, vice president of the identified man who entered the building to try to rescue those caught in the wreck, were taken from the ruins dead. The neatly-kept lawns of the white were devastated. Three huge elm trees, uprooted by the wind, were thrown bodily across the lawn and up to the very portico of the building, blocking the drives. President Wilson was seated in the executive offices when the wind crashed through several windows in the white house proper. When Wednesday's session of the Leo M. Frank trial had come to a close, the friends of the accused were filled with high hopes for his acquittal. They were nothing short of jubilant, and on all sides expressions of satisfaction were heard.

This feeling was based on the fact that the testimony of John Black, member of the Atlanta detective department, who worked up a large share of the evidence against Frank, fell to the ground, in a large measure, under the merciless cross-questioning of Luther Rosser.

Time and again Black contradicted himself as to time; time and again he confessed that he did not remember. Just before he left the stand he confessed to Mr. Rosser that he was "mixed up," and that he could not recall what he had testified a moment before.

BLACK TELLS OF VISIT TO FRANK.

John Black, third witness on the stand, testified that he was called to the pencil factory at 4 o'clock on the morning of the 26th. He told of havng gone with "Boots" Rogers to the name of Leo Frank to bring him to the plant building in Rogers' car and of Frank's apparent nervousness. Black told, also, of searching the ome of Newt Lee and discovering the cloody shirt, which Solicitor Dorsey charges is a plant. He also told of hearing Attorney Herbert Haas, as-sociate counsel for the defense, demand of Chief Lanford that detecives search Frank's home on a day before the accused man was put under arrest. Black told of Frank's visit to the undertaking establishment shortly after daybreak on the day of the dis overy, and of hearing the conversaover the telephone when Detec tive Starnes summoned Frank to the pencil plant.

Attorney Rosser and his colleague Reuben Arnold, declared that the dotted lines which shows the state's theory of how the girl's body was carried from the second floor to the basement were not part of the building and hence were not admissible.

Mr. Dorsey cited rulings of the supreme court to show that he had a right to leave this line in the picture and Judge L. S. Roan allowed it to remain in, later explaining to the jury | Rogers. that the drawing was admitted with the dotted lines under the express agreement that the dotted lines represented merely the state's theory and were not conclusive unless backed by argument to carry out that theory,

IF TAX REFORM FAILS.

The duty of tax equalization is a duty of honor and it affects all Georgia. In the tace of stern principle The Constitution is unwilling to admit that the general assembly may not prove equal to the situation. We believe that patriotism predominates in the assembly, and that before the end of the session Georgia will be granted such relief as will lift the blot now resting on the state's reputation

The movement for a state board of tax equalization has received a check for the present in the house, though it seems that provision will be made for county boards of equalization. This will be good as far as it goes, but it does not go far enough to meet conditions in Georgia.

of tax equalization should fail ultimately in the house, the senate will be justified In precipitating a crisis such as the sentiment of that body seems to foreshadow. There is talk to the effect that if the house appropriates money in excess of current income without at the same time providing means to make good the deficiency, the senate will protect tself and its conception of Georgia's honor-

By turning the appropriation bill back to the house for its revision to a basis of the

The senate would be thoroughly justified In such a course. Under the constitution It cannot primarily handle legislation pertaining to expenditure or revenue. Opinion in the senate is said to be almost unitedly In favor of tax revision. Believing as it does that Georgia should not spend more than she receives, the senate would in consistency have no recourse other than to tie up an appropriation which violated its interpretation of duty and statesmanship.

The situation is not to be met, as The Constitution has many times emphasized, by further reductions in the appropriation bill. That would be like trying to cure a disease by chopping off what is left of the patient. The appropriation bill as it now stands represents only a proportion of the urgent needs of the state's institutions, and that for actual maintenance. The inevitable growth of the state and its institutions would, if properly met, run the $280,-000 increase to perhaps twice those propor-

The one businesslike and logical procedure is NOT TO REDUCE APPROPRIA-TIONS, but to INCREASE REVENUE.

And if the house does not meet the crisis the senate cannot be blamed for turning down the appropriation bill; and the gov ernor could not be blamed, unless the knife is used or additional revenue provided, for vetoing the whole measure.

Such is the situation that confronts Georgia. Upon the patriotism of the general assembly depends whether it will be solved in an honorable and satisfactory way or develop into endless complications and embarrassment

A GOOD PENAL REFORM.

Both senate and house penitentiary committees will report unanimously in favor of the introduction of the indeterminate sentence into the penal procedure of Georgia. Chairman Davison, of the prison commission, who should be an authority on the subject, recently appeared before the senate committee and enthusiastically recommended the change. The bill, as amended, abolishes the rigid maximum sentences now imposed under the Georgia law. It empowers the court, in passing sentence for felony or offense of any nature coming under its provisions, itself to fix a minimum and maximum suiting the special case. In other words, the court may sentence a convicted burglar to, for illustration, not less than six months or a year and not more than five, contingent on good behavior. If at the end of the minimum fixed by the judge the prisoner gives evidence of having reformed he can be released at the discretion of the proper authorities. At the end of the maximum period fixed by the court he is discharged automatically. The present law allows no such latitude. The judge must fix a rigid maximum, regardless of the prisoner's chances of reformation before the expiration of that time, and the only intervention is by executive commutation or pardon.

Obviously the present system is too in flexible for either justice or efficiency. Each criminal case is a separate one and cannot be judged by rule of thumb. The indeterminate sentence allows each one to be handled on its particular merits. It has worked well with juveniles here and elsewhere, and with adults in many places There is no reason why it may not with profit be made applicable to adults in Georgia, and in treatment of the more serious offenses.

A HIGHWAY LESSON.

Hillsborough county, Florida, of which Tampa is the county seat, has just voted $1,000,000 in bonds to build Hillsborough's quota of the brick highway which is to extend from Jacksonville to Tampa, a distance of 230 miles. The highway is now assured, since all the intervening counties have acted and Hillsborough puts on the finishing touch. The Associated Press notes significantly that "this is the largest bond issue for county roads in the south." The point is this: All the counties between Jacksonville and Tampa were induced to go into the project because the route was the one logical southeastern terminus of all national highways.

The highway between Macon, a city of approximately 60,000 population, and Atlanta, a city of approximately 200,000 population, is less than one hundred miles. It is the one indispensable link in all highways not only north and south, but east and west as well. Interstate or intrastate highway traffic cannot well traverse Georgia from border to border without using this Macon and Atlanta stretch.

One would assume that, under these conditions, the counties intervening between these two places would be sufficiently awake to their interest to make this maintraveled boulevard as smooth as a floor. Certainly, if one Florida county could af-If in any unhappy event, the proper sort | ford to spend a million dollars on the terminus of a national highway, the several Georgia counties involved in the Macon-Atlanta link could afford to spend, collectively, a less sum to put it in passable

Yet, what are the facts? These counties. with the command of free convict labor, an advantage denied to Florida, have, with the exception of Bibb and Fulton, spent practically nothing in bond issues on this highway. The highway itself, as testified uniformly by tourists, is disreputable. They report that after traveling the smooth highways of adjoining states and the splendid roads of south Georgia this one is most disappointing.

The action of Hillsborough and the other Florida counties ought to act as an incentive to the counties lying between Bibb and Fulton in Georgia. For a total expenditure of much less than a million dollars they could provide a highway surpassed by none in the country. As it is, the counties now neglecting this matter are securing undesirable advertising upon their lack of enterprise and community spirit all over the country. Remedying the condition would mean prestige almost priceless, and, locally, an increase of property values that would within a short time wipe out and retire the highway bond issue.

WOMEN POLICE.

Chicago has set an example which the large cities of the country will sooner or later follow in the adding of women to its police force. The council of that city has just authorized such a step and the chief is preparing to employ ten patrolwomen as a beginning, detailing them to beaches, dance halls and other places where women may work in concert with men, or even be more effective than men in handling delicate situ-

Chief Beavers has the same idea for Atlanta, and it is likely that sooner or later the Atlanta police force will be augmented by women members. Women have long been used successfully in probation and detention work in Atlanta. There is no reason why they should not be used with equal success in actual police duty, provided they are given the protection which emergencies may demand in certain cases.

UNPLEASANT ERRANDS

"I wish you'd call at Spigler's grocery on cur way down town," said Mrs. Turnover, and tell him that if he doesn't send us better goods we'll quit trading with him. The potatoes he sent this morning were a disgrace. And you might see Mr. Which the butcher, and tell him that when we order meat we want meat and not bone.
And if you see the iceman you might tell him that his man delivers short weight.

That will do for one day, my dear," said Turnover. "I see you are determined to increase my popularity in this town by every possible means, so that if happily I should ever be a candidate for sidewalk inspector, or any other office of honor and responsibility, I'll encounter a triumphant defeat. I'm truly sorry to hear the wife of my bosom offering such suggestions. like to have friends wherever I go, and I hate to find fault with people. If you really are not satisfied with Mr. Spigler, if you believe him guilty of conduct unbecoming an officer and a grocer, transfer your trade to some other establishment, by all means, but don't send the unfortunate man a sage that will cause him to crawl under the counter and weep. "You are a poor judge of human nature, my beloved, if you imagine that such drastic messages would induce the grocer, the butcher or the iceman to reform. If I went into the grocery at all, for the purpose of commenting on past business transactions, I'd say: 'Mr. Spigler, I feel it'my duty to tell you how much I appreciated the incomparable boneless codfish you sent to our ouse three weeks ago next Michaelmas. never saw such admirable boneless codfish. have been buying boneless codfish at grocery stores for many years, Mr. and always found it too bony for consumption. The codfish you sold me renewed my youth and brought the bloom of youth to my faded cheeks and started a new growth hair on my bald spot.' Then the face of Spigler, the grocer, would light up as though somebody had lighted a lantern inside, and the next time I bought a pound of prunes he would throw in an extra handful for good measure, and perhaps set up one of his hand tooled cigars. And he'd feel better all day, my dear, and would be more generous to everybody, hoping to receive another bunch of compliments, and thus all his customers would profit by my little commendation.

"Whereas, if I entered his palace of trace with such a message as you wish me to convey, the amiable Spigler would at once acquire a grouch, and probably would tell me to go somewhere else if I didn't like the way he was doing business, and that would be humiliating to me. Nothing is more annoying than to call upon a merchant prince, full of virtuous indignation, and begin to call him down, only to have him intimate that he'll feel considerably relieved if you buy your goods somewhere else. You go out of the store feeling like a pewter nickel, and the ironic laughter of the feeble minded clerks rings in your ears for a long time. Your complaint will make the merchant feel that it's no use trying to please people, and he'll be sore all day, when some poor widow sends her little girl for a quart of molasses he'll put it in a jug that formerly held coal oil.

"It may be that the butcher sends us meat containing more bone than we have any real use for, but we must remember, my beloved, that he doesn't buy boneless steers. He has to buy his cattle as they were created, and I have been led to believe that every cow or steer contains a certain quantity of bones. Of course it would be etter if it were celluloid or gutta percha, for we could use such substances to some advantage, but since cattle have bones, we must accept them, and not blame the cept them, and not blame the And you should also remember that the butcher is a large, passionate man, and if I found fault with his meat he might-

Fears of Mexico.

(Translated from the City of Mexico Independiente.) Messrs. Revolutionists! Reflect that by your ambitions or idealisms you are paving he way for an easy and quick invasion Reflect that you will derive no advantage from your triumphs; that they are tremendous defeats for civilization and for our country. Reflect that you are slaying brothers, that you are shedding Mexican blood, which is needed to spring to our cheeks in shame and rage on receiving the supreme affront.

It is time to analyze men's conduct and to weigh their responsibilities. The revolu-tion should cast aside its arms in order not to be accursed by history. Above all the disputes of faction is the flag or our country; above all party passions is the serene love for the land of our fathers. Let the dead speak, seeing that there is no disposition to listen to the voice of the living. Let the revolution seek inspiration in the vast necropolis of the men who have given their lives for the country's salvation. The government should demonstrate with unmistak-able facts, not with enthusiastic afterdinner toasts, its inflexible resolution to abridge as far as possible the ad interim term and to hold genuine and free elections in which all political groups may take part, all whose only aim is not to storm the posts of power with fire and sword. Any other course would be both unlawful and dishonest. What strength shall we have to resist the invasion if we have wasted it all in an internecine strife? With what patriotism shall we be able to rise in opposition to intervention, if, like fools, we permit with thanks the future interventionists to put into our hands the projectiles with which we are blowing one another to preces?

Women Officeholders

(From The Philadelphia Ledger.) Since women began to take part in politics and hold office they have shown ability in campaigning and administration. Especially marked has been the aggressive hon Espe esty of the woman in office; she has fought graft of all kinds and put the service on a higher lane. But in woman's merits in politics is found her most serious defect. She cannot stand hardships of the role. She gives under attack. She flies from abuse. She goes to pieces amid the plots and counter-This is natural-it is instinctive plots. it is in her favor, but it prevents her from olding on as men would do.

There are scores of recent instances in which women retired from offices because they could not endure the contentions and criticisms. Such an unusual woman as Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, who received $10,000 a year as superintendent of public schools in Chicago, has resigned because of a lack of harmony with the board of education.

Fancy a Chicago man giving up a $10,000 place because it was not as harmonious as he wished! The mayor of a California city appointed an advisory board of five women. One by one all have withdrawn, and the rea-son for the withdrawals seems to have been that they were tired of being criticised for

The World's Mysteries

It is not many years ago that the rooster was used as the emblem of victory following a national or state campaign, and it was pretty generally adopted by the rural newspaper in a local campaign. Every wellregulated newspaper office had many cuts of this fowl always on hand ready for use. They were of all sizes, from the little one-column red-top to a rooster large enough to cover a page of the biggest news-The advancement in journalism has somewhat relegated the rooster into oblivion, but the fowl still is a favorite with some old-fashioned newspapers throughout the country.

As a general thing the bird is of demo cratic extraction, but it has been used for he same purpose by both parties. No one seems to know just when it came into use, which paper first printed it and who suggested it. There was a time that, without a rooster or two on a banner at a demoratic gathering, the omission would have been vital. It was so popular a bird at one time that it was printed on the party ballots, and was put in the same class in campaigns with the American eagle. The rooster as a party emblem has been raced as far back as the "Tippecanoe and Tyler Too" campaign of 1840. In fact, that seems to have been the campaign for the origination of many novel ideas in politics and for the boosting of a party. And dur ing that campaign roosters were not only used in the newspapers and on the ballots, but live fowls-the largest in captivitywere brought out upon parade and the party men tried to outdo one another in seeing who could get the largest live rooster to carry in a parade.

As late as the campaign of 1880, when the democratic candidate was Hancock, of Pennsylvania, and James A. Garfield, of Ohio, was the republican candidate, at the democratic convention at Cincinnati, July 22, of that year, the rooster was adopted by clubs all over the country as an emblem. On the banners appeared a crowing cooster with a hand pointing to it, the cooster and the hand being a sort of puzzle picture spelling "Hancock."

There are probably very few democrats their own idea about their party emblem for so many years. One of these, who is a walking encyclopaedia about everything connected with the democratic party is Champ Clark, speaker of the national house of representatives. This is his story of the origin of the rooster: "Back in 1840 there lived in Indiana an enthusiastic democrat named Joseph Chapman. He lived at Greenfield. He enjoyed considerable local fame through the fact that at every meeting of the democrats he crowed like a rooster until he finally was known throughout his section as 'Crowing Joe Chapman.' So faithfully and realistically did he crow that the Indiana democrats regarded it as a presage of victory.

"In 1842, after the democrats had carried an election in Indiana, Chapman received a letter in which the writer urged him to crow. 'Crow, Chapman, crow!' came a political by-word in Indiana, and from there it spread to other parts of the country. Coincident with its spread came the adoption of the rooster as an emblem of the democratic party."

If this statement is to be relied upon, it is likely the rooster was first adopted nationally as an emblem at the convention held in Baltimore in 1844, where James K. Polk, of Tennessee, and George M. Dallas, of Pennsylvania, were nominated and Martin Van Buren started to bolt. So popular had it grown that it came to be known as the sign of democracy in every part of the country. In time the rooster was printed on the ballots in the days when the party emblem adorned them. In many campaigns it took the place of the "Jackson and Liberty" emblem, with the hickory tree, the portrait of Jackson and the harp. It is thought the first paper to print the rooster in connection with democratic politics was "The Indiana State Sentinel." its issue of July 21, 1841. Chapman died in 1847 while fighting in the Mexican war, and he sleeps today in an unmarked grave on a neglected, battlefield. A little band of comrades laid him to rest and sent back his message to his home: "Crowing Joe Chapman fell today in his last campaign." There may be an earlier date for the birth of the democratic rooster, but if so no record of it of national prominence today who have not has been found.

A Shark of '62.

(Martin Hoyt, in The New York Sun.) In the summer of 1862 I was serving on board the U. S. S. Kearsarge and we were at Algeciras, Spain, near Gibraltar, where the confederate steamer Sumter lay under the guns of the fortress. It was our mission to watch the Sumter night and day to prevent her from getting out on the high sea.

One hot Sunday afternoon all our boats but one were ashore with a goodly number of officers and men who had gone ashore to witness a bullfight. Shortly after they had left the ship the quartermaster, Charles Butts, an old whaleman, reported what he thought might be a sunfish or shark lazily disporting itself in the waters near the ship. Suddenly the old whaling instruct came to him and he got permission to take our only remaining cutter with a volunteer crew and shark irons, and they were soon away from the ship in pursuit of the big fish.

About this time some of the men wished to take a plunge in the sea, and after get-ting permission from Deck Officer Danforth the port swinging boom was lowered away, and some twenty men jumped overboard. One of the first men to jump into the sea was Jacob Barth, of East Boston. An expert swimmer and diver, he jumped into the sea from the starboard cathead, making a great splash and commotion in the water. oat was now several hundred yards from the ship. Suddenly a great cry of "A shark!" went water, and they all struggled as hard as they could to get to was pursued and caught by the fish and was pursued and caught by the issue and carried out of sight toward the bottom. The water there is very clear and one can see down to a great depth, but not to the bot-tom. I should say the fish was 16 feet long, of a bluish tint. I saw him seize the man. and to do so he must have bitten him. The man's white body ranged alongside of the dark body of the fish going toward the botom at an angle of about 45 degrees, striking with his first at the shark and when last seen was perhaps thirty or forty feet from the surface, a sight one will not soon forget. The men and officers of the Kearsarge considered this big fish to be a man-eating and so also did the natives of that locality.

Fable of the Vegetable Lamb.

(From The London Chronicle.) When cotton first came to Europe to make its principal center in Lancashire it was the subject of the quaint and wonderful fable of the "Vegetable Lamb." The fluffy white fibres of the bursting cotton pod so resembled sheep's wool that travelers reported that in Tartary there grew a shrub fruit or boll of which contained withinne a lyttle Beaste in Flesche, in Bone and Bloode, as though it were a lyttle Lambe with outer wool." After the lamb had been eaten the wool was made into cloth, continued this story, which is the earliest European account of the manufacture of cotton.

Complaint of Citizens.

The complaints of the citizens of Fannin and adjoining counties, as set forth in the resolution, are that the Tennessee Copper company and the Ducktown Sulphur, Copper and Iron company, Ltd., have for many years operated green ore and sulphur plants just across the Georgia-Tennessee line, from which fumes have been borne by air currents across the farms of these citizens, killing their crops, fruit trees and timber. The resolution shows that the supreme court of the United States in May, 1907, delivered an opinion allowing the copper and sulphur concerns reasonable length of time in which to erect structures and make further efforts to stop the fumes. The companies were also placed under contract with the state to limit the operations of the green ore and sulphur plants during the crop seasons.

The contention in the resolution is that the companies have had a reasonable length of time to comply with content of time to comply with content of time to comply with content of the companies have had a reasonable length of time to comply with content of the companies have had a reasonable length of time to comply with content of the companies have had a reasonable length of time to comply with content of the companies have had a reasonable length of time to comply with content of the companies have had a reasonable length of time to comply with content of the companies have had a reasonable length of time to comply with content of the companies have had a reasonable length of time to comply with content of the companies have had a reasonable length of time to comply with content of the companies have had a reasonable length of time to comply with content of the companies have had a reasonable length of time to comply with content of the complex of t Complaint of Citizens.

CUSTIS NOTTINGHAM GIVEN MACON OFFICE

Senator Bacon's Choice Is Nominated to Succeed Harry Edwards.

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, July 30.—(Special.)— Custis Nottingham, of Macon, was today nominated by the president for postmaster at that city. He will succeed Harry Stillwell Edwards, who has refused to resign, despite demand of the postoffice department for his resignation.

There were several unusual factors in connection with this appointment, contrary to the long established and invariable custom, which permits a senator to name the postmaster in his home town. Representative Bartlett put forward William T. Morgan as a candidate against Mr. Nottingham.

Senator Smith declined to interfere in violation of senatorial custom, and Representative Bartlett asserted that ne did not seek to have him do so. Why he put up a friend merely to be slaughtered he did not explain.

Mr. Edwards, in a public statement, said that Senator Bacon had nominated Mr. Nottingham because the latter had charge of the senator's dairy interests, and admitted that he was a good dairyman. Mr. Nottingham is a lawyer, and has handled much legal

Our Wayward Girl

"The child is not dead, but sleepeth"

A man came crying:

"My little daughter is at the point of death;

"I pray thee that thou come and lay thy hands on her, that she may be made whole and live."

With him, went Jesus.

On the way, a woman touched Him.

She was healed.

But others came saying to Jairus:

"Thy daughter is dead: why troublest thou the Master any further?"

Jesus said:

"Fear not, only believe."

And in the house He asked:

"Why make you a tumult and weep? The child is not dead, but

And they laughed Him to scorn.

But when He touched the girl and spoke, she rose and walked.

"She was twelve years old."

Worse than death may come to the daughters of men—even to yours and ours.

And some men and women would laugh in derision at the suggestion of their cure.

But not so with Christ, our Lord.

And, thank God, the centuries of His love have made the majority of mankind pitiful to the fallen: they no longer scorn and stone, if they only know.

Think of this!

Seventy-five girls—not hardened women of the street—but girls under sixteen, are in charge of one Georgia court. Many more—some even younger-are in the State.

"They are morally dead," say some.

Not so, we answer in Christ's name.

They only sleep.

You could wake the conscience of each one of them-

You could save them, and with them, many others, from worse than death, had Georgia a reformatory for girls, like other states.

They are being lost for the want of this.

Do not pass them by.

TO SAVE ONE MAN'S DAUGHTER FROM RUIN AND SHAME IS WORTH MORE THAN TO SAVE ALL OUR HOGS AND COWS FROM CHOLERA AND THE TICK.

And yet, Tuesday again the Appropriations Committee of the House recommended the appropriation of thousands of dollars for this and that.

WHILE CHAIRMAN CRAWFORD WHEATLEY, of Sumter, moved that the Jones and Mills bill establishing a reformatory for girls, be laid on the table until next year.

This would mean the destruction of, many a girl—their loss for the want of a place in our state to handle delinquent girls; these cannot be put in the chaingang or with the women of the prison farm.

John Y. Smith, of Fulton, with C. F. Hollberg, of Coweta, saved the measure by suggesting that it lay over until this coming Thursday.

Chairman Wheatley agreed to this.

of her wayward and delinquent girls.

It was done.

The Penitentiary Committee has recommended that this bill do pass. The Prison Commission has said that Georgia today cannot take care

Confidently, we believe that the Committee on Appropriations will recommend the passage of the bill, carrying the appropriation of $30,000.00 ($45,000.00 less than was asked for) to build the reformatory for

The need is urgent-far more so than the sickness of our hogs.

did for our beasts that are sick.

Eat This Food During Summer

Be careful what you eat during hot weather. What you need is food that nourishes but does not heat the body.

Faust Spaghetti fits right into that class. It is a high gluten food—a bone, muscle and flesh former-but contains practically no fat, therefore cannot heat the body.

> FAUST SPAGHETTI

FAUST makes a savory, appetizing dish. It can be served in a great many ways that appeal to the palate. It is easily prepared—it makes a nutritious, non-heating meal during the summer. Write for free recipe book, "Spaghetti and Its Uses." Faust Spaghetti put up in air-tight, moisture-proof packages.

MIKRENT BADLY HURT IN AUTO BEACH RACES

Galveston, Texas, July 30.—Joseph Mikrent, of Los Angeles, Cal., a contestant in the Galveston beach automobile races, was seriously injured late today when his car plunged through a wire fence and was wrecked. His injuries consist principally of deep cuts, inflicted when he came in contact with the wire fence and parts of his demolished car. Mikrent raced without a mechancian.

The team lost several hard-fought games, playing good ball, but being outlucked in several close contests. A continuance of the class of ball they have been playing and the other fellow won't continue to get the breaks as they have.

Schwartz and Luther Win

The crippled Crackers are back home today, after an absence of fourteen days, on a road trip, that was the most disastrous that the team has made this season.

But the team played good ball in the majority of the games on the trip. They played even better ball than they pulled on the previous trip, when they won six and lost four.

But with the other fellow getting the "breaks," the team's field captain and second baseman out for the season, following an operation for appendicitis, and the team's left fielder also out for the remainder of the playing days with some busted ribs, it's a wonder that they kept up their spirit and played the class of ball that they did.

Errorless Ball.

The team played seven errorless games on the trip, and in no game did the errors figure materially in the scoring of runs by the opposition, which were the majority of the contests went to the other side.

The team lost several hard-fought games, playing good ball, but being outlucked in several close contests. A Long, If.

For the past two seasons the "Thirty-Six" has been acknowledged the best four-cylinder value on the market. Ten thousand cars of this model in daily service have built up its reputation for endurance, easy riding, mechanical smoothness, convenience, luxury, and economy.

The 1914 "Thirty-Six" is more than ever before a wonderful value. Fine new features have been added; there have been material improvements in design—yet the price is only $1775.

Molded Full Oval Fenders

Fenders of an entirely new molded oval design -very popular abroad—are a feature of the "Thirty-Six." They not only add to the graceful appearance of the car, but afford greater protection from dust and mud. These beautiful fenders are a distinctive 1914 improvement which you will be unable to get on any other car at the price.

Gas Tank and Tires in Rear

The entire car has been made more clean-cut and snappy in appearance. The gasoline tank and the spare tires are now carried at the rear, giving that muchdesired appearance of length, clean running boards, and better riding qualities.

The new car is designed for utmost strength and safety. Axles are of nickel-steel; the double drop frame is unusually heavy. Steering connections are all drop forgings. Brakes are of maximum strength and power, 25 times as strong, in proportion, as the brakes of a locomotive.

Full Equipment Included

The 1914 "Thirty-Six" at $1,775 is fully equipped with Chalmers mohair top, genuine rain-vision windshield, Chalmers patented self-starter, 36x4-inch tires, Continental demountable rims (one extra), Warner speedometer, Gray & Davis full electric lighting system, with special new dash light and provision for inspection lamp, new design non-rattling tire carrier, power tire inflater, horn, pump, jack, full set of tools and tire repair

Although no advices have been received at the federal prison from the attorney general at Washington authorizing the release of either Julia Hawthorne or Dr. William J. Mortor it is believed their freedom is near a and. The Atlanta federal peniten tiary parole board at its last session held here a month ago recommended parole for both Hawthorne and Mor luct while awaiting trial in the supe rior court on a charge of lercen Henry Shelton, a giant negro, made desperate attempt to escape from the city stockade Wednesday mornin about 10 o'clock. After a long pur-suit Shelton was cornered in an alle where he stood at bay with an ax. He was finally cowed by the officers' re volvers. He was brought before Recorder Broyles Wednesday afternoon and fined $25.75 in two cases.

Escaped Negro Recaptured. Serving a term for disorderly co

JULY COTTON OFF; OTHER MONTHS UP

Pressure From Houses With Western Connections Main Factor in Decline of July. Fluctuations Wild at Times.

New York, July 30 .- Comparatively little net change was recorded in to-day's cotton market, although fluctua-tions were wide at times, July for instance, selling down 19 points under yesterday's close, as a result of heavy Allispressure from houses with western American nnection and notices aggregating The opening was steady at 1 to 3 points advance, reflecting better Liverpool cables than due and a dry weather

map. Gradually priced worked off, however, to a level about 8 to 10 points
under last night on new crop positions, contact the contact of the contact o due to selling for Liverpool account, bearish advices from all parts of the belt except central and eastern Texas, and the unexpected pressure on July. There was also some selling at mid-day on local predictions that western barometer lines and the official forecast pointed towards a change in southwest weather conditions and that showers were possible in Oklahoma and West Texas, perhaps extending later into the drouth districts of the eastern part of Texas. This depression conpart of Texas. This depression continued until well along into the afternoon, when private condition figures of $2.7 made its appearance, compared with $5.5 by the same house last month. It was considered bullish and started an active line of covering, which rapidly advanced prices to the highest point of the day on new crops, the close on which was unchanged to 4 points higher, against 10 points net decline on July.

Of the five private conditions reports thus far issued, the average is 82.1, against the government figure early this month of 81.8. As several more private reports will be received tomorrow, the trade was rather nervous at the close and inclined to anticipate a bullish figure on Friday, although the latter widd hardly reflect the latest unfavorable conditions in Texas.

Depositing Money

THIS IS A SERIOUS PROBLEM and one that needs careful investigation, not only because of the fear of losing the deposit by careless or inefficient bank administration, but because of what the depositor might miss in the matter of prompt and careful service, and such legitimate courtesies as make a good, strong bank of infinite value to the business man. The smoothness with which all business of the ATLANTA NATIONAL BANK is conducted is the best evidence that all relations between this bank and its depositors are mutually satisfactory.

Letter From Husband's "Doll" Causes Divorce Suit.

"Well, dear boy, it made me feel good to have you call me doll."

Mrs. Rena Gossett recited yesterday in her petition for a divorce from her husband, Robert A. Gossett, city oil salesman, that the above was an extract from a letter which "some woman" named Flora wrote to her husband.

This is the second fling Mrs. Gossett has taken at her husband in the superior court. On April 14 she brought a suit for a divorce, but withdrew it. She alleges in her petition that she accepted her husband's promise to "do better." The Gossetts were married in 1910. Mrs. Gossett is living with her brother in Suwanee county, Florida, Her husband, she says, is a salesman for the Texas Oil company.

WE NEED MORE HOUSES TO RENT

While we have a goodly number of houses on our list to rent, we are unable to supply the demand. If you have a house that is vacant or is going to be vacant, list it with us; we will rent it for you. We have a big advantage over our competitors, for the fact that we move tenants free. We get the first chance with almost every one loo king for a house.
