PAROLE IS ASKED
BY BOARD FOR HAWTHORNE

Paroles for Julian Hawthorne and Dr. William J. Morton, ex-Treasurer of the United States, who have been serving sentences in the Federal Penitentiary for misuse of the mails in a stock scheme, were recommended on Thursday in a report submitted by the Federal Pardon Board to Attorney General McReynolds.

The recommendation in respect to Hawthorne and Morton had been agreed upon by the Pardon Board since their meetings at the Federal prison some time ago, but they have withheld their report, as is the custom, until the prisoners named are eligible to parole.

The indorsement of the Attorney General is regarded as a formality and it is expected that the two will receive their freedom by Saturday. A telegram will be sent at the direction of the Attorney General and this will be followed by a letter containing the formal notice of the paroles.

Big Cotton Carnival
Opens at Galveston

GALVESTON, July 24.—The fifth annual cotton carnival opened to-day with thousands of visitors here for the eleven days' festivities.

Ponce DeLeon Would Certainly Have Believed Their Loveliness Immortal.

If Ponce DeLeon were upon the earth to-day and should come to Atlanta in search of the fountain of youth he certainly would think he had found it in the galaxy of beauty in the booster button contest. A look through the photographs of the beauties who have been nominated would almost convince one that the loveliness is immortal.

Miss Helen Irving, of No. 385 Cherokee avenue, is the newest entrant. She is fair skinned, with dark hair, sea-blue eyes and a cameo profile. And it is predicted that she will get many votes in the remaining days of the contest.

Votes for the favorites are flowing in. The nominations have by no means ceased, but the contest has gone far enough for there to be favorites.

Do you remember the slogan for the "500,000 club" booster buttons that is to go under the picture of the girl voted the fairest? It is: "Watch Atlanta—She'll Get You Yet, 500,000 by 1920."

Clip the coupon and nominate whom you think is Atlanta's prettiest girl, or vote for your favorite if she already has been nominated.

Charlton Dying Is Verdict of Doctors

JERSEY CITY, N. J., July 24.—Porter Charlton, who is in jail here awaiting extradition to Italy for trial for the murder of his bride at Lake Como, three years ago, is so ill he never will reach Italy alive, according to a statement by his physicians. He is a victim of pulmonary tuberculosis.

Two members of the Italian consular are expected to arrive in this country this week to take Charlton to Milan.

Ask Mayor to Light
New Crematory Fire

It was announced Thursday that the new $250,000 crematory would be put into operation Friday, and to make assurance doubly sure that the row over this plant between Mayor Woodward and the Council has ended, Mayor Woodward was invited to light the fire.

Mayor Woodward was uncertain Thursday whether he would accept the invitation. He has never been down to look over the plant, which is located just back of Terminal Station.

To Test Alimony Law
In High State Court

MACON, July 24.—W. M. Herring, an engineer, whose father was buried yesterday, was arrested to-day by the sheriff, upon affidavit made by his divorced wife that alimony had not been paid.

Since the divorce both Herring and his former wife have married again, and it is for that reason that he refuses to pay her alimony, notwithstanding the order of the court. His case is going to the Supreme Court for decision.

POLICE WAR
BREAKS OUT
AFRESH

Jacksonville Mayor to File Charges Against Captain Who Recognized Deposed Chief.

JACKSONVILLE, July 24.—After two days of comparative quiet in the war between Mayor Can C. Swearingen and the board of bond trustees relative to the control of the police department has broken out afresh.

Last night the Mayor sent an order to the department addressed to Captain Harry Hall. As Captain Hall recognizes Fred Roach, deposed as chief by the Mayor, as of the department he thought the order should have come through his superior officer. Uncertain as to what course to pursue, he took the matter up with W. M. Bostwick, Jr., chairman of the bond trustees. He was advised to refer the order to Chief Roach, which he did.

The Mayor to-day heard that Captain Hall had refused to ignore Roach and he announced that he would prefer charges against the Captain for disobedience to orders.

Mayor Swearingen stated to-day that he was preparing his charges against Chief Roach and that he would have them ready to file with the board within the next few days. He will probably file charges against Captain Hall at the same time.

Currency Reform
Not Likely to Pass

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Passage of a currency reform bill at this session of Congress was considered most doubtful to-day unless President Wilson brings peace between the warring factions of the House Banking and Currency Committee.

Chairman Glass to-day presented to the committee a draft of an amendment to his bill providing for a prohibition of interlocking directorates. Mr. Glass is against such a proposal by the committee by a vote of 7 to 5, forced him to draw up the amendment.

Negro Lynched by Mob at Haines City

TAMPA, July 24.—John Bell, a negro charged with an attempt to attack a white woman near Haines City ten days ago, was captured near the scene of his crime yesterday and last night while a deputy sheriff was bringing him here from Bartow a mob took the prisoner and hanged him to a tree.

The negro talked freely about the crime. He said he was angry because the woman had threatened to set her dog on him.

Real Estate Men Go
To National Meeting

JACKSONVILLE, July 24.—Eighteen real estate dealers left here to-night for Winnipeg, Canada, to attend the national convention of real estate dealers. The party has chartered a special car and will make a number of stops en route to the Canadian city.

Parties from other points of Florida joined the Jacksonville people here for the trip to the North.

Rich Man Held For Arson Freed on Bond

TAMPA, July 24.—Curry Hutchinson, a wealthy citizen who was jailed in connection with the Hillsborough Dry Goods Company fire Monday night, has been released on bail of $5,000, signed by Banker Trice and Former Mayor Frecker.

Hutchinson declares he is innocent of any wrong but will make no explanation of some of the circumstances of the fire. Though the other four men arrested in connection with the affair are still in jail their attorney declares he will have bail this afternoon.

Insurance men say the charge of arson will be pushed.

One of Three Whites
Negro Wounded Dies

TAMPA, July 24.—T. B. Austin, one of the three white men shot by Columbus Hawkins, a negro, at Port Tampa yesterday, is dead and Ernest Chaney is near death.

Hawkins has three shot wounds to show for his share of the fight. He claims the white men came to his house at 1 o'clock in the morning to collect a debt from Charles Hall, a roomer, and that they began to shoot when he protested.

Marshall Walker hurried Hawkins and Hall to this city to escape a lynching.

Headless Body of Girl Found at Sea

BOSTON, July 24.—The finding of the headless body of an apparently well-to-do young woman at sea, 35 miles east of the Georges Bank by Captain Charles White, of the Gloucester fishing schooner Jennie H. Gilbert, is believed to reveal a death by violence at sea, possibly on a trans-Atlantic liner.

The body was found ten miles south of the southerly track of trans-Atlantic steamers, about 170 miles out from Boston. Corsets of apparently expensive make, a black shirtwaist, portions of a dark green silk skirt and high button boots were on the body.

Back From Liberia
To Die in the South

NEW YORK, July 24.—Pauline Woodson, a 69-year-old negroess, was permitted yesterday to land in this country on the assurance of her son-in-law, David Robertson, that he would care for her in his home at Charleston, S. C.

Fifteen years ago Pauline, her husband and daughter went to Liberia and built a hut in the woods. They thought the life of a semi-civilized African superior to the drudgery of their Southern home. Her husband and daughter died in Liberia, and she came back to die in South Carolina.

Eugenic Restaurant
To Save Babies' Lives

NEW YORK, July 24.—Thousands of children are brought into the world handicapped for life because their mothers were ill-nourished before they were born.

Miss Mabel A. Parker thus tersely explains why she has embarked on one of the most novel eugenic experiments that has yet been made in this country—a prenatal restaurant.

This restaurant, which will be conducted solely for women who are expected to give birth to a child within six months, will be opened in two weeks.

Love Affair Drives
Mme. Curie from Paris

WARSAW, July 24.—Mme. Curie, discoverer, with her husband, of radium, will return to her home here soon to remain permanently. She will have charge of a radiological laboratory.

Another reason for her return is the gossip connecting her name with that of Prof. Langevin, of the College of France, whose wife sued him for separation. Letters between Mme. Curie and Prof. Langevin became public.

PRESIDENT IS BRANDED AS DICTATOR

Works Charges Executive With Usurping Legislative Power.
Scores Tariff 'Influence.'

WASHINGTON, July 24.—On the floor of the Senate to-day Senator Works, of California, denounced President Wilson for influencing tariff legislation in the summing up of a speech on the tariff bill pending before the Senate.

"The tendency of latter-day politics is to exalt the executive at the expense of the legislative and judicial power of the Government, and make the President the master and ruler of them all, and the master and not the servant of the whole people," said the Senator.

"It is an unwarranted and dangerous tendency. Every public official, however exalted, is only the servant of the people, and should at all times be subject to their control and subservient to their will in conformity to the Constitution and laws of the country, and each department of the Government, if its institutions are to be preserved, must be kept within the limitations of its powers as fixed by the Constitution."

He Charges Tariff Coercion.

"If this bill is passed, it will not be by the willing and voluntary consent of a majority of this body. It will be the result, in part, of outside influence that should never enter into the deliberations or acts of Congress. The Constitution provides:

All legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives."

"The President is also made Commander-in-Chief of the army and navy. That instrument further provides that 'the executive power shall be vested in the President of the United States of America.' It is further provided: 'He shall from time to time give to the Congress information of the state of the Union and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient.'"

"This is the only power vested in the President in respect of the making of laws. There is no warrant in the Constitution for his participation in the formation or passage of laws or the exercise of any influence on legislation beyond that of recommending to the consideration of the lawmaking power such measures as he shall judge necessary or expedient."

Here the Senator said that his views coincided with those injected into the Democratic platform of 1904 and he quoted from the declaration of principles drawn by the Democratic party at that time.

In concluding his speech, Senator Works said:

"I have approached this subject with reluctance and purely from a sense of duty. I expressed similar views during the last administration. I have the greatest respect and esteem for the incumbent of the great office of President of the United States, as I had also for his predecessor."

Explains Causes of Alarm.

"I believe in the integrity and sincerity of his purpose to serve the people and the country to their very best interests. But, sir, this can not deter me from expressing my views on a question so serious and far-reaching in its consequences."

"It makes the situation only the more alarming that one of such high ideals and patriotic purposes should do anything that can reasonably be construed to be a usurpation of power or an infringement of the Constitution that may some time be appealed to as a precedent by one less conscientious and patriotic."

BRIDE 20, BRIDEGROOM 74.

GADSDEN, July 24.—Daniel B. Fleming, aged 74, and Miss Jennie Rayburn, aged 20, were married at Guntersville, county seat of Marshall County, to-day. They will live on a farm.

Lightning 'Scrubs'
Tower at Terminal

One of the most freakish stunts ever performed by lightning in Atlanta was discovered Thursday as a result of the striking of one of the towers of the Terminal Station. The brick and fancy work on both towers had been stained black by smoke, but the lightning cleared one as perfectly as though it had been scrubbed. The other, still black, presents a striking contrast.

The shock of the stroke was felt in the waiting room and almost caused a panic. Little damage was done to the tower, but electrical and chemical experts still are unable to solve the mystery of its magic cleaning.

Fan Market Slumps;
More Rain Forecast

A dealer in electrical supplies was offering regular 19 electric fans for $2.50, Thursday morning, but found no buyers even at that price. Atlantans evidently believe the weather man's prediction that the remainder of the summer will be cool and pleasant.

At 8 o'clock Thursday morning the official thermometer registered 72 degrees, and the mercury had only climbed 10 degrees higher at 1 o'clock.

Showers Thursday night or Friday is the forecast for Atlanta and vicinity.

Mann Stops Work of House by Filibuster

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Representative Mann again prevented the House from transacting any business to-day. Employing the same tactics he used yesterday—a point of no quorum—Mann demanded a roll call. Adjournment finally was ordered by a vote of 154 to 58.

The Mann filibuster is occasioned by the action of the Democrats in preventing a discussion last week of the Caminetti-Diggs white slave cases.

Georgia Rhodes Man
Calls Oxford 'Grind'

BOSTON, July 24.—Being a student at Oxford is strenuous work, according to the verdict of five Rhodes scholars who returned to-day on the White Star liner Arabic.

The five were Frank B. Bristow, son of Senator Bristow, of Kansas; Walter S. Bryan, of Georgia; C. B. Grosland, of Alabama; W. Lloyd Williams, of North Dakota, and W. A. Zeigler, of Iowa. The five have completed the four years' course at Oxford.

BOSTON, July 24.—Members of the Women's Homestead Association here carry canes and whistles as protection against mashers. The whistles are to attract attention.

Let the Frank Trial Go On

Leo Frank should be placed on trial Monday for the murder of Mary Phagan.

The crime was committed April 26; Frank was arrested April 28; he was indicted May 23 and his trial set for June 30.

At the suggestion of the judge in whose court the trial is to take place, a postponement was agreed on, and the date of the trial moved up to July 28.

Now attempts are being made to secure another postponement. The only reason given to the public is that the weather is hot and it would be disagreeable to hold the trial in the summer.

Of course it is hot, but it isn't any hotter in the court room than it is in jail.

Both the prosecution and the defense have had ample time to prepare their cases. If Frank is guilty, the State can prove his guilt as well now as later on; if he is innocent, the defense can prove his innocence as well in summer as in winter.

The public has taken a keen interest in the Phagan case and it would demand that the man who killed her be punished, whether that man is Frank or someone else. Furthermore, it is tired of delays.

Public sentiment is where it was on the date first set for Frank's trial and it will be at the same place if the trial is delayed for a year.

Atlantans are awaiting the trial with open minds. They are not holding themselves up as judges. They know the law is supreme and they want it to take its course. But they want that course taken without seemingly endless delays.

was not drawn this morning as Judge Roan stated it would be done. "The State assuredly will be ready Monday unless something entirely unforeseen happens, and will ask trial of this man at that time."

Jury Not Drawn.

Superior Judge John T. Pendleton declined to draw a jury for the Frank trial Thursday morning until he heard definitely from Judge L. S. Roan whether the case would be opened next Monday. Judge Pendleton announced he would know definitely by 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon whether the case would be called Monday, and he would draw the jury at that time if necessary.

Deputy Sheriff Plinnie Miner had instructions from Judge Roan to have one of the other judges draw the jury Thursday unless he was notified to the contrary. Miner heard nothing from Judge Roan and carried the jury box to Judge Pendleton to have the twelve panels drawn. He notified the attorneys for the State and the prosecution in ample time for them to be at the court. Solicitor Hugh M. Dorsey and his assistant were the only attorneys to put in an appearance.

It developed Thursday morning that there were two rather ruffled chiefs at the police department the previous afternoon when Jim Conley was sneaked from his cell in the station over to the Tower without their permission and without their knowledge.

Chief Lanford said: "This will never happen again."

Chief Beavers would not talk of the incident, but it is understood to have told the two detectives, Starnes and Campbell, that if the negro were taken from the police station again he (Beavers) proposed to be in on it.

There was a commotion at police headquarters Wednesday afternoon, when it was found that Conley had been spirited away to confront Newt Lee in the Tower. Chief Lanford knew nothing of the circumstance until he was informed by The Georgian. Even then he insisted that Conley was in his cell.

Then Detectives Explain.

He went to Chief Beavers' office to see if permission had been given there for Conley's removal. Beavers said he did not know Conley was gone. Station Sergeant Holcomb was appealed to. He said he had not been notified that the prisoner was to be taken away. Turnkey Bayne, the last resort, was asked to explain the mysterious disappearance of Conley. He informed Chief Beavers that Detectives Starnes and Campbell had taken him about a half hour before.

The Chief, to satisfy himself that Conley was still in custody, made a personal visit to the jail.

When Starnes and Campbell later were in conference with the Chief they told him that they had said nothing about their intention because neither Chief Beavers nor Chief Lanford was in the station at the time.

Firemen Plan Strike When Denied Outing

DALTON, July 24.—Cooler heads among members of the Dalton Fire Department saved the city from being without fire fighters when the department debated at length whether or not to resign.

The trouble arose over the City Council's failure to make an appropriation for the firemen's annual outing. Citizens have made up a fund for the outing, and the firemen will leave here on August 9 for St. Simons Island.

"I Don't Like It," He Says, "But I Must Get Used to Being In the Air."

Robert Pettit, 4-year-old son of Mrs. Frances Pettit, of Denver, spends from six to eight hours every day

"I got a bank with 4 pennies and a dime. That ought to buy a good machine," he says.

In the elevator of Hotel Ansley, because he wants to be an aviator.

Robert figures it this way: There isn't much use in buying and running an airplane if you are going to get sick every time you get a few feet up in the air; the thing to do, therefore, is to get used to being off the ground—and then buy your airplane.

"I don't like to ride in elevators," he says, "but I've got to. I'm going to be an airplane flyer when I grow up, and I've got to get used to being off the ground. It is working fine, too. I can go up to the twelfth floor now without getting dizzy. I'll make a dandy aviator, I'll bet!"

The youngster has become a familiar figure to attaches and guests of the hotel. Every morning, as soon as he can slip away from Mrs. Pettit and his nurse, he drags his little chair into the elevator and sits solemnly behind the operator. He manifests great interest in the operation of the lift, and his greatest joy comes when he is allowed to hold the levers and make believe he is operating the car. Robert says he is going to have an airplane as soon as he is sure he can fly without getting sick. "I've got a bank at home with four pennies and a dime in it," he said. "I guess that'll get a pretty good airplane. If it ain't enough, Mama will give me as much more as I need."

SENATE DEFEATS NEW COUNTY MEASURE

Barrow Advocates Lose in Upper House After Long and Strenuous Fight.

The bill creating Barrow County, with Winder as the county seat, was defeated in the Senate Thursday afternoon after a long and strenuous fight. Advocates of the new county declared a strong effort would be made to reconsider the action.

A large number of people were down from Winder to witness the action of the Senate. The House had already acted favorably on the bill. Senator DuBose, of the Thirtieth District, led the fight for the new county.

While this bill passed the House with the indorsement of three of the six Representatives from the district affected, it is known that only one of the Senators of the three from the counties concerned to-day will vote for the bill. The other two, it is said, will actively oppose the bill when it comes up for passage.

Either the defeat or the passage of the Barrow County bill, it was argued by some, will mean an end of the consideration of new counties by the present Legislature. Others, however, claim the Legislature will go on unabated, regardless of the verdict of the Senate, for strong delegations from the counties affected are on hand to wage their fight, and will not give up until the last card has been played.

Among the new counties which are to be voted on are Warner, Candler and Milledge. Lamar, Hansell and Norwood Counties will be considered by the House committee Thursday afternoon.

Foreign Colony in Shanghai in Peril

Special Cable to The Georgian.

SHANGHAI, July 24.—Foreign residents of this city are in grave danger as a result of the fighting between the loyal troops and the southern insurgents. A foreign naval brigade from the warships in the harbor is being held in readiness to land at a moment's notice should the situation become more acute.

The Government officials are charging that Japan is aiding the revolt and is lending all its strength to the citizens of the southern countries in the hope that the Republic may be disintegrated.

Factory Supplants Farm as Exporter

WASHINGTON, July 24.—How the United States is changing from great exporter in foodstuffs to manufacturer is shown in every report issued nowadays by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

The bureau's latest figures show a growth in exports of manufactures from $448,000,000 in 1903 to $1,200,000,000 in the fiscal year just closed and in manufacturers' materials from $499,000,000 to $740,000,000, while the exports of foodstuffs remained at a standstill, $510,000,000 having been the value of the exports in that line both in 1913 and 1915.

Missing Expressman Accused of Forgery

CORDELE, July 24.—Detectives in the employ of the Southern Express Company seeking S. J. Smith, missing agent of the company at Warwick, have gained no clue as to his present whereabouts.

It is alleged that on the same night that it is charged Smith misappropriated all of the funds on hand, including the receipts of the office for several days, he forged two express money orders amounting to $60. A book of $100 blank orders is missing from the office.

Antique Inkstand Brings $7,010 at Sale

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.
LONDON, July 24.—At a sale of objects of art and porcelain at Christie's a bronze inkstand of the first half of the sixteenth century sold for $7,010. It is formed as an equestrian figure of Marcus Aurelius, with an inkwell and sand box by his side, mounted on hexagonal plinth, with foliage border and claw feet. Three old Worcester hexagonal vases and covers brought $850. A bronze group of St. George and the dragon was sold for $1,110.

Dr. Starnes to Play Great Symphony as Farewell to Atlanta

The whole of Tschalkowsky's "Symphonie Pathétique," regarded by many as the greatest piece of instrumental music ever composed, will be played at a free organ concert Thursday evening at the Auditorium-Armory under the Music Festival Association's auspices.

The presentation of such a work complete in one program is something new in the annals of music in the South. This concert will be somewhat in the nature of a farewell from Dr. Starnes, who will terminate his Atlanta engagement in the early fall. The playing of the "Symphonie Pathétique" is a monumental undertaking for one man.

Dr. Starnes said: "In arranging this work I had no idea that its presentation by means of a concert organ should be as ideal as by an orchestra of 150 pieces, but not one person in 200 ever will have the opportunity to hear the symphony by a great orchestra."

The program also includes a short Bach fugue and Liszt's "Dream of Love."

$10,000,000 Offered To Fight Boll Weevil

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Secretary of Agriculture Houston to-day told Southern Senators and Representatives at a conference that his department was doing everything possible to wipe out the boll weevil. Senator Vardaman, of Mississippi, said Congress would appropriate $10,000,000 a year to fight the weevil if the department could show that this was necessary.

SENATOR WOULD ANNEX NORTH MEXICO

Hitchcock of Nebraska Also Favors Dividing Remainder of Country Into Small Nations.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The annexation of States in Northern Mexico by the United States and a division of the remainder of the country into separate governments was suggested to-day by Senator Hitchcock, of Nebraska, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, as a possible way of bringing about peace in that country.

"The cession of a portion of Northern Mexico to the United States in payment for the enormous indemnity which must be asked of that country for damage to American life and property seems to me to be a feasible way of settling these claims," said Hitchcock. "It will be impossible for Mexico to meet the demands of the United States in cash."

"These States also would serve as a buffer between the United States and the Mexican nations farther south. He pointed out that it was by no means certain that the Huerta government would not soon be overthrown, the uncertainty being so grave that it could scarcely be reckoned a sound de facto power, to say nothing of its de jure authority. Under the circumstances President Wilson is acting wisely, the cardinal believes, in the course he has thus far pursued."

Praise for Elder Diaz.

Referring to the uncomfortable conditions American citizens on the Mexican border are enduring, the Cardinal said there was a possibility that this border might be pushed farther south for their relief. He alluded to the extreme discontent of the Mexican people in the State of Sonora and opposite El Paso, Tex., as giving rise to the impression of such a possibility. They simply embody my own views on the subject."

President Wilson has not formulated a definite plan for dealing with the Mexican situation, he has not selected any of the alternatives suggested to him for escaping from the present tangle, nor will he do so before his conference with Ambassador Wilson at the White House scheduled for Saturday. This statement was made at the White House to-day and is understood to emanate directly from the President.

The proposal that the President should take the initiative in suggesting mediation to the warring factions south of the border is scouted at the White House.

Offer Sure To Be Rejected. In the first place, it is unlikely that either side would consent to the United States acting as a peacemaker; secondly, the administration does not feel that it should offer its services when it is almost certain they would be declined with little ceremony.

Following a conference with President Wilson, Senator Bacon, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said that the United States, acting as mediator in Mexico, had been considered merely tentatively by the President.

"I do not believe that a policy of mediation will be adopted," said Senator Bacon. "The United States would have to be invited to act as a peacemaker and this, I think, will not occur."

Bacon Denies Intervention. "The suggestion is only one of many now being considered by the President, who intends to take no active step until after he has had an opportunity to confer with Ambassador Wilson."

Senator Bacon said that all the energies of the United States Government would be devoted to settling the Mexican trouble without intervention, because the seriousness of this step is appreciated by all officials in Washington.

The Senator from Georgia also said that he could not conceive of any immediate developments which would force armed intervention and added that the protection of Americans and other foreigners in Mexico necessarily must devolve on the consuls and other Government agents now in the republic.

Senator Bacon refused to deny or confirm the rumor that Secretary of State Bryan was to head the Mexican commission of mediation and conciliation.

"As far as I know," said Bacon, "no man's name has been mentioned for this place."

Bryan Hurrying to Capital for Conference. CHICAGO, July 24.—Secretary of State Bryan was in Chicago thirty minutes to-day. He arrived from Iowa, where he had been delivering chautauque lectures, and left at 12:40 o'clock for Washington. The only official who met him at the train was William L. O'Connell, Governor Dunne's political representative.

"I shall leave Washington again as soon as I feel I properly can," said Mr. Bryan. "I have several chautauque engagements to fill during the summer."

Secretary Bryan declined to discuss his coming conference with Henry Lane Wilson, United States Ambassador to Mexico, who is on his way to Washington to meet President Wilson and the State Department chief.

Cardinal Gibbons Lauds Wilson's Mexico Policy.

WESTMINSTER, MD., July 24.—That Cardinal Gibbons is in sympathy with the Wilson administration's refusal to recognize the Huerta Government was clearly shown when, in an interview, the aged prelate said he thought the present Mexican Government is not well enough established to give it permanence, and, therefore, should not be recognized by the United States.

He said he sympathized with President Wilson in the delicate questions confronting him in the Mexican matter and thought he is doing his duty conscientiously in withholding recognition of the Huerta regime. He thought that, while European nations were urging upon this country some action for the protection of their citizens and their property on Mexican soil, the consequences of American interference were of too serious character to justify hasty action.

He pointed out that it was by no means certain that the Huerta government would not soon be overthrown, the uncertainty being so grave that it could scarcely be reckoned a sound de facto power, to say nothing of its de jure authority. Under the circumstances President Wilson is acting wisely, the cardinal believes, in the course he has thus far pursued."

The great mistake of the Mexican people, he said, was in their repudiation of Porfirio Diaz, who had given them a firm government, maintained peace, and had done more than any other man to develop the resources of the country and advance its prosperity.

Request for Rangers To Cross Border Denied. WASHINGTON, July 24.—The War Department to-day formally denied the request of Representative Smith, of Texas, that a company of Texas Rangers be allowed to cross the border to rescue the Americans said to be in peril at Madera.

The department officials take the stand that no expeditionary movement of this kind could possibly be countenanced by the Government. Private raids engineered by filibusters would have no standing in the eyes of the world and the United States could not legally take steps to protect such rangers if they were surrounded by federalist troops in Mexico and slaughtered.

England Ready to Send Battleship to Mexico. LONDON, July 24.—Great Britain is keeping a watchful eye on the situation in Mexico. In the House of Commons to-day Foreign Minister Grey, replying to a member's question, stated that the Government knew there was serious disturbance in various parts of Mexico and that British subjects were in danger. He declared that not only had citizens of the empire suffered, but that other foreigners had also suffered indignities at the hands of the Mexicans.

The Foreign Secretary stated that he was in communication with the Admiralty and in case it was decided advisable a British warship would be dispatched to Mexico.

HOUSE VOTES TO GIVE SCHOOLS $2,600,000

Appropriation Made After Four-Hour Debate—One of Forty Amendments Passes.

After a four-hour debate the House Thursday morning, sitting as a Committee of the Whole, acted favorably on section 5 of the general appropriations bill, covering appropriations to colleges and the public school fund.

Despite the fact that more than 40 amendments were offered on it, but one change was made. This was an increase of $100,000 in the public school fund, making the total $2,600,000. The Appropriations Committee had recommended that $2,500,000 be appropriated, this being the exact amount paid out during the past year.

Scores of Speeches Made. The amendment adopted was offered by Representative Stovall, and was carried by a vote of 80 to 45. The entire section was productive of debate, half a hundred speeches being made. The Stovall amendment came in the way of a compromise, a strenuous effort being made to make the appropriation $2,750,000.

It is believed the House will complete its work on the appropriations bill this week. Two days have already been consumed in it and if the House passes it this week a new record will have been set for expediency.

Quick Action Seems Sure.

It will be taken up by the Senate immediately and everything looks favorable for the sending of it to the Governor ten days before the expiration of the session. Governor Slaton has threatened to call an extra session unless the bill reaches him by this time.

An effort to limit the time of the consideration of the bill by the House as a Committee of the Whole to an hour for each section except the fifth caused an hour's hot debate. The resolution provided for an extra session unless the bill reaches him by this time.

Asks Receiver After Tilt With Partner.

George O. Speir, stockholder in the A. A. Smith Cotton Products Company in the Grant building, has filed a petition in the Superior Court asking for a receiver for the company on the grounds that disagreements between him and A. A. Smith have made it impossible for them to continue to do business together.

He declares that up to 30 days ago the company was earning $20,000 a year.

Loaded With Meals, He Defies the World

CHICAGO, July 24.—Impelled by five meals at once, Julius Johnson to-day scaled the walls of a three-story flat building, armed himself with bricks pulled from the chimney and defied the world.

At the station Johnson's relatives came for him. They said he had purchased a 21-meal ticket at a restaurant and just before his escape had eaten five meals, one after the other.

CONVICTS RIOT IN SING SING; SET PRISON AFIRE

Mutiny Follows Removal of Warden Liked by the Prisoners. Further Outbreak Feared.

OSSENING, N. Y., July 24.—Mutinous convicts, in open rebellion against their keepers, to-day made an attempt to destroy the entire Sing Sing prison property by fire.

They set fire to the clothing manufacturing building, in which all the shoes, clothing and like articles are made. The fire was extinguished by the prison fire department after it had swept the shoeshop.

The entire penal population is being kept under lock in fear of further outbreaks.

Fire Laid to Trustees.

The attempt to burn the prison building came early to-day after a night of wild excitement in the prison.

When the warden, James H. Clancy, was told of the threats, he directed that no prisoners, excepting the trustees, should be allowed out of their cells. It is believed that some of the trustees, acting under orders of their imprisoned fellows, applied the match to the clothing factory building.

As the fire raged the criminals behind locked doors set up a terrific din. They shouted "fire," called vile names, beat their doors and made the prison hideous with noise.

"We want Kennedy," came the constant chant above the din.

Protest Warden's Removal.

This protest against the removal of the former warden, who was indicted by the Westchester County Grand Jury, was the keynote of the entire rebellion that for 36 hours has had the State's largest penal institution in a state of mutiny.

All night long the convicts kept up their riotous demonstration. They made the food the first basis of complaint. They contemptuously tossed away bits of food and went to their cells surly and disobedient.

Guards are on duty to-day all along the prison walls, the officers fearing that the sullen convicts may make a concerted effort to escape.

Seeking to relieve the perilous situation at the prison, Warden Clancy this afternoon made arrangements with the railroad to take 200 second and third tier prisoners to Auburn to-morrow. With these riotous prisoners out of the way, the warden believes he can restore order in the institution.

CAMP LIFE INCREASES HELLO GIRLS' ABILITY

Here's Elsie

Erd, a fair camper, at a little task that helps to break the monotony.

Swimming, Rambles in Woods, Auto Rides and Sleeping Outdoors Give New Lease on Life.

If you do not believe the simple life is conducive to better work, ask some of the heads of departments of the Bell Telephone Company. They'll tell you that since the establishment of Camp Wyanoke at Lakewood Heights, where the young women employees of the company spend their vacations and their week-ends, the work of the "hello girls," the stenographers and the other young women who work in the big building at Mitchell and Pryor streets, has greatly improved.

"The idea we had in mind when Camp Wyanoke was established," Miss Katherine Tatum, who is in charge of the camp, said, Thursday morning, "is working out splendidly.

The girls come back to Atlanta after a few days or a week's stay at the camp invigorated and almost with a new lease on life. They have breathed pure, fresh air; they have worked about the camp, and they return to their work with a vim and a determination that is usually lacking during the hot summer months."

Simple Life Throughout.

The simple life is lived in all its phases at Camp Wyanoke. With the exception of the harder and unfamiliar work of cooking all the work is done by the girls. They wash dishes, wash their own clothing—or most of it—keep house, sew and do a hundred and one other tasks.

When work is done they go swimming and wading, or take long rides in the automobiles the company sends out to them several times a week.

Every Wednesday and Saturday nights there are dances and games of various kinds.

The practice of sleeping in the open air is considered by Miss Tatum one of the best features of the camp. It gives many girls who heretofore have been cooped up in tiny city rooms a chance to recuperate.

Every girl employed by the company is given a chance to taste the joys of camp life. Those who had taken their vacations before the camp was installed have been given a leave of absence of three or four days, that they might visit the camp. Others spend their entire vacation there.

There are always about twenty girls at the camp, and on Saturday and Sunday this number is sometimes swelled to a hundred, by the girls who come out to spend Sunday. Sunday school is held in the open air under the trees, and is usually attended by about a hundred young women.

Sewage Plant To Be Finished by Sept. 1

W. A. Hansel, assistant chief of construction, has announced that the Peachtree Creek sewage disposal plant will be ready for operation by September 1. With the completion of this plant Peachtree Creek, about which there has been much complaint, immediately will be purified.

The main part of the plant practically is complete, but the city has not yet been able to get sufficient stone for the filter beds.

MILAN, ITALY, July 24.—Damage is being inflicted throughout the entire Italian lake district, which is being swept by terrific hurricanes.

Lamar Indicted to Reach 'Higher Ups'

NEW YORK, July 24.—The Government's real object in secretly indicting David Lamar after his revelations before the Senate Lobby Investigating Committee was to frighten the "Wolf of Wall Street" into giving information in contemplated action against the men higher up in Lamar's imperfections. Men high in political and financial life are believed to have profited through Lamar's operations.

AGED MEN INJURED.

ELBERTON, July 24.—Martin Crawford, 62 years old, and James Bond, aged 60, came near losing their lives when Crawford's mule team backed off the bridge over Coldwater Creek. Two of Crawford's ribs and his breast bone were broken. Bond also had two ribs broken.

U. S. TO DIVORCE TRUSTS FROM RAILROADS

Government Plans End to Rebate Extortions Costing Lines $42,000,000 a Year.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The answer of the Interstate Commerce Commission to the application of the railroads east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio and Potomac Rivers for permission to make a general increase of 5 per cent in freight rates, will be as follows:

1. The application will be denied.
2. All railroads will be ordered to discontinue making "allowances" to certain favored big industrial combinations.

This will save the general public from paying the additional $42,000,000 a year which the railroads are asking for and deprive certain big industrial corporations of a sum ranging between $50,000,000 and $100,000,000 annually.

The Commission during the past few months has secretly made an investigation to determine just the extent to which the practice of making "allowances" to industrial short line railroads, owned by manufacturing concerns, is prevalent.

It is now in possession of the names of the concerns which receive these "allowances" or rebates, or discriminatory rates—and in addition it has the names of the railroads which pay them, the amounts received by the favored industrial corporations and something of the extent to which the practice injures the competing manufacturers, who are not in a position to enter into such arrangements.

In a large number of instances, it is claimed, the practice amounts to extortion. The railroads are compelled by the demands of competition to make allowances to the manufacturer for transferring his product over his own insignificant truckage to the junction where the regular railroad takes up his cars. Where several railroads are bidding for such a manufacturer's business the one which makes the most liberal allowance usually gets the freight.

To End the Extortion. In view of this fact it is expected that the answer which the commission will give the railroads will meet with their approval and co-operation, and will do away with the most important of existing improper practices without the necessity of prosecution.

The railroads are asking for the five per cent increase on the ground that they must have increased revenue to pay their large operating expenses, and particularly, to pay the higher wages demanded by their employees.

The recent demands for higher wages would take $17,000,000.

Can Pay Wage Advance. Under the order which the Interstate Commerce Commission will issue the railroads will get more than $42,000,000 by simply cutting off an improper expense, and correspondingly, the favored trusts and combinations which have been mulcting them of the amount will be deprived of it.

The railroads will be placed in a position to pay their employees the living wage they demand, the danger of a huge strike will be avoided, and the whole thing will be accomplished without the shippers—and through them the general public—being required to pay more for the transportation of the necessities of life.

Board at Work to End Strike Deadlock

NEW YORK, July 24.—Hoping to end the deadlock and avoid the threatened strike of the 100,000 trainmen on the Eastern railroads, the Federal Board of Mediators to-day went into consultation with the men's representatives. Later the mediators will meet the railway managers.

The deadlock is the result of the insistence of the employers that their grievances also be arbitrated at the same time the men's demands are taken up.

Settlement Sought Of $14,000,000 Debt

WASHINGTON, July 24.—A debt of $14,000,000, probably the largest dispute of a financial nature in the United States, will be the subject of a conference in this city to-morrow. Virginia is trying to collect that amount from West Virginia and commissions representing the Legislatures of both States will meet here to-morrow and try to reach an agreement.

Champ Clark Won't Let His Wife Fly

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The yearning of Mrs. Champ Clark, wife of the Speaker of the House, to engage in an aviation flight, while visiting Representative and Mrs. Baker, at Wildwood, N. J., received a setback when the Speaker flatly refused to let her go.

"I never talk back to Champ," she said. He is master of his own house and so I guess I won't fly just now."

TEXTILE MAKERS SCORE COTTON TARIFF CUTS

Petition to Congress Asserts Democrats Forget Pledges and Industry Will Suffer.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—A petition signed by more than 60 leading cotton manufacturing and distributing firms in the United States, protesting against the cotton tariff rates in the bill now under consideration in the Senate, has been presented to both Houses of Congress. The petition reads as follows:

We herewith voice our protest against the enactment into law of the unequal provisions covering cotton textiles, as disclosed by the various proposed rates published July 11, 1913, embodied in the bill passed by the House of Representatives and amended by the Senate majority (Democratic) caucus.

The Democratic platform declared and promised: "We recognize that our system of tariff taxation is intimately connected with the business of the country, and we favor the ultimate attainment of the principles we advocate by legislation that will not injure or destroy legitimate industry."

Say Business Will Suffer. First. We cannot reconcile this with the low rates now proposed, which in many instances must injure legitimate industry. Second. We point out that we fairly represent the primary and other distributors of cotton textiles, handling productions of both North and South which go to every city, town and village in the United States.

Third. The rates generally are below what they should be. The amendments made are inadequate to fix competitive rates in accordance with the promises of the Democratic platform. Fourth. As we understand it, the purposes of the tariff revision generally were to reduce duties, but not to disturb or injure legitimate industry, and there has been no demand to overdo the reduction, especially in cotton textiles, as in many instances in the case of other goods. Fifth. Some illustrations: Failure to provide higher adequate rates for cotton textiles made of combed yarns than if made of ordinary yarns, or higher adequate rates for finished plain woven or figured cloths than for grey; putting rates for jacquards on same basis as for ordinary cloths, and actually counting jacquards in Senate amendments, etc., etc.

Offered Non-Destructive Rates. Sixth. We endorse the effort of the Independent Manufacturers of New England, who have willingly accepted great reductions, but asked that consistent and non-destructive rates, if on a competitive basis, should prevail. We believe that they have pointed out the lowest possible competitive rates which in operation would be consistent and fair to the different branches of the industry—North and South. We do not comprehend why their recommendations have not been received in the spirit given.

Seventh. We point out that it is better to err on the side of safety than to subject the industry at this time to the proposed rates more especially on productions of medium to better grades of goods.

We deplore the discrimination that subjects the cotton textile trade to these needless hardships.

Hardy Elected Head Of Retail Merchants

At the meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association of Georgia, held Wednesday evening, the following were elected officers: J. W. S. Hardy, Waycross, president; W. P. Grantham, Thomasville, vice president; John Barten, Atlanta, re-elected secretary. The association is fighting for garnishment and fraudulent check laws.

The time and meeting place of the next convention was referred to the executive committee.

RESINOL CURED AWFUL PIMPLES

Whole Face Covered, Now Clear. Brooklyn, N. Y.—"I was troubled with two or three pimples coming out on my chin. In a day or so my whole face was covered with them. Friends advised me to use different lotions and salves. I tried them, but they did me little good, if any. I finally washed the pimples with Resinol Soap and applied Resinol Ointment before going to bed. In the morning I found the swelling going down, and the inflammation gone from the pimples. I tried this treatment for about a week, and found that most of the pimples had disappeared. I kept the treatment up for about a month, and then my face was clear of all pimples. I have used Resinol Soap since, and find that the pimples do not come back." (Signed) Walter A. Stenstrom, 54 Wiltoughby Ave., Oct. 9, 1912.

Resinol positively stops itching instantly and speedily heals eczema and other skin humors, dandruff, sores, burns and piles. Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap are sold by every druggist. Trial free. Dept. 11-P, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

EDITORS OFF FOR SEASHORE OUTING

Leave LaGrange Discussing Governor's Arraignment of Georgia's Antiquated Tax System.

LA GRANGE, July 24.—Members of the Georgia Weekly Press Association left LaGrange this morning for Brunswick, still discussing Governor John Marshall Slaton's scathing arraignment of Georgia's tax system at the annual banquet of the association Wednesday night. The Governor appealed to the editors for aid in what he declared to be the most serious financial crisis in the history of the State. He said that Georgia's tax system and reckless spending by the Legislature have brought about present conditions, when the State finds itself unable to pay its school-teachers.

"We must admit it is indefensible to maintain a system that pays its teachers a year after their work has been performed," Governor Slaton said. "It is pleasant to spend money and hard to make it. We love to appropriate, yet shrink from the tax levy. In two years, the Treasurer says, we have spent nearly three-quarters of a million more than our income. The teachers—patient and hard-working—teaching during the day and working examinations at night—molding the characters and training the minds of those upon whom our civilization depends—under our system find no ray of hope from the injustice they suffer."

Recommend Special Taxes. "While unpleasant to do, I have recommended a levy—an extra tax of 1 mill for 1915, and 1-2 mill in 1916, as the brave way to get relief. The taxpayer will find it the best trade he can make. It would prevent the imposition of drastic taxing laws, the deficit in the treasury would be satisfied, the State could say to purchasers of her bonds that she is on a solid financial basis, her teachers would be paid, and the killing policy, which is opposed to all sound principle, would be abolished."

Governor Slaton emphatically declared himself in favor of the plan of equalization of taxes that has been recommended by the Legislature.

Favors Tax Equalization. "Is not equalization just that percentage to pay the same rate?" he asked. "Is it right that many pay on 16 per cent of the value of their property when other pay on 40? An increase of 20 per cent, by simply equalizing the burden, not increasing that of him who is already bearing his part, would produce an increase of revenue for every legitimate purpose."

The editors will arrive at Brunswick this afternoon and enjoy an outing of several days in that city and at St. Simons Island, where the Second Georgia Infantry is in camp.

Boys Calmly Admit Killing a Policeman

CHICAGO, July 24.—Declaring he was not afraid to go to the gallows, Walter Novak, 19, to-day repeated his confession that he signaled for the shooting of Policeman Samuel Sowers, who was dying from a bullet wound. Bruno Klonowski, 18, who fired the shot, said: "I just felt like killing a cop. That's all. I should worry."

The two prisoners told the police to-day that they had been close friends of the four youths who were hanged in February, 1912, for slaying a gardener.

Plans To Be Made For 11 County Fairs

MACON, July 24.—The secretary-managers of eleven Georgia county fairs will meet in Macon next Thursday and outline plans for their exhibitions during the coming fall. They will be the guests while here of the officials of the Georgia State Fair Association.

Representatives will be here from Columbus, Dublin, Tifton, Carrollton, Griffin, Eatonton, Washington, Oglethorpe, Valdosta, Cartersville and Calhoun.

Capital Matrons Vie As Queens of Beauty

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Who is to be the beauty of the new administration is the much-discussed question here. Here are the leading aspirants:

Mrs. John E. Osborne, wife of the Second Assistant Secretary of State, dark eyes and hair, clear-cut features and a graceful, slender figure.

Mrs. Dudley Field Malone, wife of the Third Assistant Secretary of State, Irish type, black hair, blue eyes, sparkling with mirth.

Mrs. Timothy Ansberry, golden hair, oval contour, large blue eyes and superb figure.

Mother's Lips Keep Baby Alive 10 Days

LOS ANGELES, CAL., July 24.—Determined that her baby boy should live, though three physicians declared he would die in 48 hours, Mrs. J. H. Spaulding, of Oklahoma City, kept the spark of life aglow ten days. It is considered the most remarkable case of artificial respiration on record.

Soon after birth the baby was seized with an affection of the heart. The mother placed her lips over the mouth of the child, exhausted the air in its lungs and allowed fresh air to pour back. The baby revived.

The mother repeated the operation on two more occasions. Then the baby was taken to the hospital and died soon afterward.

Macon Will Invite Veterans Next Year

MACON, July 24.—It is very likely that Macon will invite the Confederate veterans of Georgia to hold their 1914 reunion here. There was no invitation extended at the recent reunion in Brunswick, and this fact has prompted the local veterans to arouse an interest in the matter.

A meeting of Camp R. A. Smith will be held next week for the purpose of formally preparing an invitation.

Sons to Seek Pardon For Aged Wife Slayer

MACON, July 24.—Sons of Roger McCall, a 75-year-old Macon man, who shot and killed his wife two years ago while intoxicated, and who is now serving a life sentence at the State Farm, will apply shortly to the Prison Commission for a recommendation for a pardon.

A petition is now being circulated in this city.

SENTENCE GUYTON MERCHANT.

GUYTON.—Convicted of violation of the prohibition law, H. W. Orvine, a Guyton merchant, was sentenced to twelve months on the county chain-gang or pay a fine of $1,000 in City Court at Springfield. He is under bond in a similar case in Superior Court.

STREET CROWDS SEE STABBING AFFRAY

Real Estate Operator Accused of Knife Attack After Dispute Over a Bet.

While hundreds of pedestrians, many of them women and children, looked on, two men engaged in a stabbing affray on Peachtree street across from the Candier Building Thursday morning. One of the men received serious injuries.

The wounded man gave his name as Burnett Goodman. He said he was manager of a gum company and lived at No. 36 Moore street. His assailant gave his name as M. B. Ware, 41 years old, a real estate operator living at No. 30 Highland avenue. Ware is a one-armed man. He was released on bond of $100.

Goodman was slashed about the right side of the face and neck. He was taken to the Grady Hospital. After his injuries were attended to he was removed to the police station, where a charge of disorderly conduct was lodged against him.

Refuses to Explain Attack. Ware, who voluntarily surrendered to Policemen Bostwick, declared that "he cut him because he wanted to cut him." Other than that, he refused to give an explanation of his action.

Ware used a pocket knife as his weapon. According to Goodman, Ware attacked him without provocation.

"I was walking down the street with a friend, when Ware came up to me and without a word began striking at me with a knife. I dodged his blows as well as I could and tried to run, but the knife caught me twice across the face. Then I got away and ran, but Ware followed me. If it had not been for someone stopping him he would have killed me, I believe."

Bet Given as Cause of Fight. The affair is said to have been the result of an argument over a "book" on a baseball game. According to information given the police, Ware on Wednesday made a bet with Goodman of $125 on the game-played that afternoon.

It was said that Goodman was accustomed to making "books" on baseball games, and that Ware, in lieu of the cash to put up, posted a $20 forfeit to cover his bet.

According to the report, Ware failed to put up the remaining $105 before the game was played, and when the cash to put up was demanded, Ware refused to give it. Thursday morning, however, when they met, the stabbing ensued.

$3.50 Recipe Free, For Weak Men

Send Name and Address To-day—You Can Have It Free and Be Strong and Vigorous.

We have in our possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakened manhood, failing memory and lame back, brought on by excesses, unnatural drains, or the follies of youth that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that we think every man who wishes to regain his manly power and virility, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So we have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope, to any man who will write us for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men, and we are convinced it is the surest-acting combination for the cure of deficient manhood and vigor failure ever put together.

We think we owe it to our fellow-men to send them a copy in confidence so that any man anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop dragging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what we believe is the quickest acting restorative, upbuild the SPOT-TOUCHING remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quietly and quickly. Just drop us a line like this: Interstate Remedy Co., 4276 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and we will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain, ordinary envelope free of charge. A great many doctors would charge $3.00 to $5.00 for merely writing out a prescription like this—but we send it entirely free.

CAROLINA YOUTH RICHEST TAR IN NAVY SLAIN

Anderson, S. C., Boy, Recently Heir to $250,000, Killed in Philadelphia Tenderloin.

PHILADELPHIA, July 24.—Wilbur Martin, the young sailor from Anderson, S. C., who was killed here recently in a tenderloin saloon, was worth more than $250,000 in his own right, according to information received here to-day. He was the richest enlisted man in the navy.

The fascination that the sea held for him and the adventures of a naval career led him to give up the enjoyment of his fortune to become a common seaman on the battleship Connecticut.

He inherited this fortune when his mother died last March. His relatives at once began to plead with him to give up his adventurous life and settle down in Anderson. The lure of the sea was too great, however, and he disregarded their pleadings and advice. In despair, his relatives appealed to Washington, but this last hope was without avail.

The mysterious circumstances surrounding the death of Martin are thought to have been explained by the discovery to-day of a bottle of heroin, which is supposed to have belonged to him.

Hospital physicians say drugs caused his death and it is believed he was the victim of "knockout drops."

Metropolitan Gets Abbey's 'King Lear'

NEW YORK, July 24.—The Metropolitan Museum of Art has come into possession of "King Lear," one of the most beautiful and noted of the paintings of Edwin A. Abbey. The picture formerly was a part of the collection of the late George McCulloch, which was sold in London this spring. It was bought by Knoedler for $25,200 and sold to George A. Hearn, who presented it to the museum.

THE CHAPTER IN PHAGAN MYSTERY

Arrests of Suspects in the Factory Slaying. Sensation as Leo Frank, Manager Was Taken Into Custody.

CHAPTER III.

Everything that occurred, trivial or important, during those first few days after the body of little Mary Phagan was discovered in the pencil factory basement took on a dramatic aspect. The people were lured to so high a pitch by the revolting crime that for a time it seemed to require only a spark to fire them to violent deeds.

Let a strange person so much as appear at the police station to confer with Chief of Detectives Lanford and wild rumors spread about the whole city like magic. Let one of the detectives drop a careless remark as in a flash everyone mysteriously understood that a complete confession had been made to the police by the murderer.

So it was a sinister reception that the first catch in the detectives' dragnet received from the group of angry men when he was hurried to police headquarters Sunday night of the day after the factory girl had been slain. All through the day crowds had hung about the police station, some of them merely morbidly curious, others having the mistaken impression that they were going to help the authorities in some manner. Since Newt Lee had been taken into custody in the morning, there had been no arrest, but now with the end of the day came the intelligence that the murderer of Mary Phagan had been captured and was being brought to a cell at the police station.

Smiles Defiant at Crowd. Eagerly the crowd awaited to learn the man's identity. On each side of the doors they lined themselves as he was walked, defiantly, toward them between two detectives. A smile curled his lips when he heard their sullen mutterings.

"I know that guy; it's Art Mullinax," came in a hoarse whisper from a roughly dressed youth.

The group of men and boys closed in behind the detectives and their captive, but officers barred their entrance to the police station. To Chief Lanford, Mullinax repeated his denial of the crime which he had made previously to the detectives when they placed him under arrest.

"It's a horrible mistake," he cried, dropping the bravado he had displayed before the crowd. "I don't even know Mary Phagan, except by sight, and the only time I can remember of seeing her was at a Christmas entertainment."

Despite his protestations of innocence, he was placed in solitary confinement and instructions were given that no one be permitted to see him or communicate with him. Sentell, the grocery clerk, insisted that Mullinax was the man he saw with Mary Phagan Saturday night at midnight, and he was so positive in his identification that there appeared to be little doubt of the circumstance.

Sentell Was Positive. Sentell declared that he had known Mullinax for some time by sight and had met him frequently at the car barns, where both of them had worked at one time. He was certain he could not be mistaken. If it were possible, he was even more positive in his identification of Mary, for he had spoken to her, calling her by name, and she had replied, calling him Ed.

Monday's dawn found the detectives working feverishly on the hundred-and-one clues that had been presented to them. They had Mullinax in a cell, but they were confused by a maze of rumors which confronted them and which pointed the finger of suspicion at other persons as strongly as at Mullinax.

Early in the morning two of the detectives left the station. Chief Lanford was silent and no one else could be persuaded to tell of their mission. The newspaper men, however, jumped to an immediate conclusion and the next editions carried a story that search was being made for a discharged employee of the factory who was known to have been acquainted with the murdered girl.

A little later Chief Lanford admitted that it was J. M. Gantt, Mary's childhood playmate in Marietta and until three weeks before timekeeper at the pencil factory, who was the object of the search. He was known to have been at the factory the night before. His sister Mrs. C. C. Terrell, of No. 24 East Linden avenue, gave a strangely inaccurate account of his recent whereabouts.

Another Arrest Made. She declared to the detectives and to Georgian reporters that Gantt had not been home for three weeks and that she understood he was on his way to California, when it was known that such was not the case. Adding to the suspicion against him, he made the unfortunate move of leaving town at the very time the search was started for him, giving the impression that he was taking to flight. As it happened, he went only to Marietta and he was arrested as he stepped from a car there. He indignantly denied that he had any idea of flight. He did not have any idea that the officers were after him, he declared.

His story was that he went to Marietta to buy a crop and that he had notified his mother several days before that he was coming over Monday morning. A warrant charging that he was suspected of the murder of Mary Phagan was lodged against him and he was returned to Atlanta to be placed in a cell.

To add to the confusion and doubt and mystery of the crime, just at the moment when the detectives were positive that they had the criminal in Mullinax or Gantt, local handwriting experts came out with the declaration that the writing of the notes found by the boss of the Phagan girl unmistakably was that of the negro Newt Lee.

One of them qualified as an expert of more than twenty years' experience. He said that he was in the banking business and had made a special study of handwriting. After a careful examination of the notes and a comparison with the handwriting of Lee, he was as positive as he could be that the notes and the test writing were by the same hand.

Suspect Turns to Another. Tuesday started with the detectives and the public divided in opinion as to whether Lee, Gantt or Mullinax was the guilty man. It was not long before they were allowed to conjecture as to a fourth suspect. The day's developments came thick and fast, crowding on each other's heels. While the excited public was condemning each of the three prisoners

TWO EARLY FIGURES IN PHAGAN MYSTERY

to the gallows, the most startling rumor of all was taking form. It was that a high official of the National Pencil Company was suspected of the brutal crime and that an arrest would take place within a short time. Through mysterious sources it became known that the police did not place much dependence on the seemingly positive identifications that had been made of both Gantt and Mullinax.

It was learned at the same time that the theory that the little girl had been lured to the factory at night was being abandoned and that in its place the detectives were adopting the theory that she never left the factory after she entered it at noon to get her pay. They did not believe any of the stories that Mary Phagan had been seen on the street Saturday night.

This threw the suspicion on some one inside the factory. Shortly before noon Tuesday an automobile containing Detective Harry Scott, of the Pinkerton agency, which had been engaged by the pencil company, and Detective John Black, shot away from the police station and up to the pencil factory. Within ten minutes it had returned. With Scott and Black was Leo M. Frank.

Arrest Creates Sensation. It was given out at first that Frank was not under arrest, but from that time to this he has not known an instant of actual freedom. This move of the detectives created a sensation. Public indignation, ready to vent itself on the newest object at hand, mounted to menacing heights even though nothing was known against Frank except that he freely admitted being in the factory at the time the Phagan girl came for her o'clock and desired to enter the factory.

Actions Were Unusual. He called Newt Lee in the evening, something he never had done before during Lee's employment. There was no answer when Lee called his house early Sunday morning after finding the body and calling the police.

There was no answer when Call Officer Anderson attempted to get him on the telephone when the four policemen were in the factory early that morning.

He acted in a highly suspicious manner when the officers came to his house Sunday morning to take him to the police station for questioning. All the time that the storm of accusation and bitterness was rising against the young factory superintendent, his attorney, Luther Z. Rosser, kept silence, except to say that Frank in the end would be found entirely innocent. Convinced of his client's innocence, Rosser worked quietly and faithfully in his behalf. Only once in the early days of the tragedy was he provoked to a show of his bulldog fighting qualities. This was when he reached the police station after Frank's arrest and was refused the privilege of seeing Frank.

"We'll see whether they can stop me from conferring with my own client," he shouted. A few minutes later he was in conversation with Frank.

From Frank's arrest until the next day, when the inquest was to begin, a dozen detectives were searching the factory rigidly from top to bottom for evidence. Practically every employee of the plant was quizzed and detectives went about the city running down fresh leads that came in to the possession of the department.

On the eve of the inquest came the tragic funeral services of the rounded the grave and saw the body lowered into the earth. As the casket disappeared from sight the grief-stricken mother wailed.

The whole gruesome story of the finding of the body was repeated at the inquest, which began next day, but nothing was told which would throw any further light on the identity of the guilty person. Newt Lee told in his ignorant fashion of every move he had made during the fatal day and of his movements in the factory that night.

His story had every appearance of truthfulness. Coroner Donehoo was not able to trip him or catch him in any misstatements. He declared that he had no knowledge that the body was in the building until he went into the dark basement shortly before 3 o'clock that morning and saw the huddled form in the dim light of his lantern.

The officers who visited the factory that morning told their stories. Several of them were of the opinion that Lee knew much more than he had told and their testimony reflected this opinion, but the inquisition of the negro failed to elicit any admissions.

Conley Enters the Case. Interest was centered in the testimony of Frank, which, it was thought, would be given when the jury resumed its session Thursday. The jurors, however, met and immediately adjourned until the following Monday, and another event took place which was thought to be of little consequence at the time, but which later assumed a vital bearing on the case.

E. F. Holloway, day watchman at the factory, walking through the building early Thursday afternoon, came upon the negro sweeper, Jim Conley. Conley was washing a shirt and appeared strangely embarrassed when caught in the act by Holloway. The negro explained that he was washing the shirt in preparation for the inquest to which he had been summoned. Holloway notified the detectives of the suspicious circumstance and Conley was placed under arrest. That night the first formal charge was lodged against Frank and Lee. They were transferred from the police station to the Tower under commitments in which it was stated that they were suspected of the murder of Mary Phagan.

Apparently unafraid of the terrible charge that had been made against him, Frank appeared at the resumption of the inquest the next Monday seemingly the most unconcerned person in the whole assemblage. Only when he was forced to pass through visit to the factory. He recalled giving her the pay envelope. He said that she left his office and that he heard her talking with another girl, he thought, and then heard her footsteps dying away. He denied that he sent her to the rear of the factory to see if an expected shipment of metal had come.

No Incriminating Admission. Every person in the crowded and stuffy little room hung on to each word of his testimony as it came clearly from his lips, but if anyone was expecting an incriminating admission he was disappointed, for it did not come.

Instead, the witness-defendant told a most remarkable and impressive story of his actions on the day of the crime, a story which since has been most strongly corroborated by the testimony of other persons.

Startling incidents followed in close succession until the next inquest hearing on Thursday of the same week. Paul P. Bowen, a former Atlanta boy, was arrested in Houston, Tex., on the suspicion of having fled there after the crime, and a day later the Pinkertons were trailing a Greek from Atlanta to Anniston, Ala., where he was supposed to have taken refuge after killing the girl.

Bowen was arrested on the strength of a story that a woman had heard him muttering wildly in his room in a Houston hotel.

"Why did I do it? Why did I do it?" she declared she heard him cry. Clippings telling of the murder were found in his trunk, but it was found that he had not been in Atlanta for a year. The clew in Anniston was discovered to be as worthless and the Pinkertons abandoned their theory that a Greek had anything to do with the crime.

STANDING SHOWS PONY CONTEST PAGE IS HOT

District No. 7 Only One Lagging.
Positions May Change Quickly.
Last Bonus On.

Standing of the contestants in The Georgian and American pony contest is published Thursday, and again it is possible to see what remarkable gains have been made by the busy contestants.

District No. 7, it seems, must "speed up" if it is to get anything except the last choice of the ponies, for George Melton, with 110,125 votes, is leading, and A. Morrison, with 106,000, is second.

On the other hand, Herbert Chapman in District No. 4 has rolled up 206,000 votes, and Fannie Mae Cook and Florence Greenoe, with 204,000 and 202,000, are close behind, pursued at no great interval by Eleanor Raoul, Nathaniel Kay and Oscar Eugene Cook.

Between these extremes are the leaders of the various other districts. In district No. 1 the leader, George Rosser, has 205,000 votes, and Helen Brantley is close behind with 201,000 votes. A field is closely bunched behind them.

Standing Can Change Quickly. The city carriers and newsboys have been the most active, and Rose Greer has 208,000 votes, with Raymond Wilkinson, at 205,000, pushing him hard. In this race there are nine boys above the 100,000 mark.

Ben Steinberg, of Cartersville, is leading the Georgia boys and girls' race with 126,000 votes. Clifford Henry, of Carrollton, has 124,000 votes. Three more are within two years' subscription to The Georgian of the leader, which shows how quickly the relative standing of these contestants may change.

Lena Mae Smith, of Knoxville, Tenn., leads the race for the school-boys and schoolgirls outside of Georgia, with 130,000 votes, but Fats E. Webb, Jr., of Piedmont, Ala., McGee Hunt, of Westminster, S. C.; Robert Hyatt Brown and Elmer Cooper, of Greenville, all are in the running, and a little work will change the standings greatly.

Leaders All Bunched. And so it goes through all the other districts—the four or five leaders bunched close together. A few dollars spent for subscriptions to The Georgian or Sunday American by their friends will juggle the standings all around.

Subscriptions to The Sunday American make even more difference, for the Red Letter Banners are in effect until Tuesday night, giving liberal amounts of extra votes for subscriptions to the Sunday paper.

One week from Thursday night the contest ends, and a Sunday inter-venues. The time is short. Speed counts now.

Tipsy Monkey Kills Dog, Maims Master

SMITHERS, W. VA., July 24.—A drunken monk, belonging to George Smith, went on a rampage and after killing a bulldog, so severely chewed up Smith's hand that he was forced to have it amputated.

Smith gave a party and the monkey had come in for his share of refreshments. After the guests departed the monkey evinced a desire for another drink. Smith refused. The bulldog then sprang at the Simian, but the latter jumped on the dog's back and with his claws soon blinded him, then sank his teeth into the neck, killing him.

Smith suffered his injuries in his efforts to subdue his pet.

Be Made to Further Anderson-
Atlanta Project.

Encouragement to the construction of the interurban line known as the Duke Line, from Anderson, S. C., to Atlanta, is promised as the result of a meeting at the Capital City Club of the Chamber of Commerce committee on interurban railways.

This committee, appointed by President Wilmer L. Moore to further interurban lines radiating from Atlanta, decided it would be best to deal with one project at a time, and as this one is most talked of, it is proposed by the committee to investigate to ascertain just what will be necessary to bring about its extension to Atlanta. The committee will make a report to the directors of the Chamber of Commerce with such recommendations as the situation appears to justify.

The committee will gather statistics and information relative to interurban railways, with a view to presenting the advantages which Atlanta will gather from their construction.

The members of the committee present were Chairman Hollins N. Preston, of Atlanta; Dr. C. W. Lewis, of Atlanta; and Secretary Fred Lewis.

Western Pacific to Extend Its Tap Lines

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.—The Gould lines will be extended into territory covered by competitors' lines within the next few months, according to definite plans announced by B. F. Bush, the new president of the Western Pacific.

The Western Pacific will push its lines from Niles to San Jose, 18 miles; from Orville to Chico; from Stockton down the San Joaquin valley, paralleling the Southern Pacific into the Bakersfield oil district, and a line from the main road to Reno, Nev.

Job Hunter Pushes Baby Cab to Gotham

NEW YORK, July 24.—Mr. and Mrs. Lockwood, trundling a baby carriage in which lay their two-year-old daughter, limped into this city hungry and penniless. Lockwood said a stranger induced him to leave his home in Bangor, Pa., promising him a job and a home.

The stranger secured Lockwood's baggage and disappeared. The Salvation Army took care of the couple.

LEGISLATOR CONVICTED. WEBSTER SPRINGS, W. VA., July 24.—A verdict of guilty was returned against Dr. H. F. Asbury, the Putnam County legislator charged with bribery, late last night. The case of S. U. G. Rhodes will be taken up next.

MEN AND RELIGION BULLETIN NO. 66 CHAINGANGS IN GEORGIA

Fined Forty-Five Dollars.
The Man Could Not Pay.
He Had to Die in Georgia.

Bridge at half cent a point.

Cold hands.

Penny-ante.

Jackpots.

Stud.

Straight poker.

DID YOU ever play one or all of them?

Ever play a game for money?

THIS MAN DID.

Detected, he was arrested.

Convicted in your Court, he heard this sentence:

"Forty-five dollars or eight months in the chaingang."

Speaking for you, your judge said in effect:

"Oh, moneyless man!

"You may go free if you pay forty-five dollars.

"You can not? You are poor?

"And yet, charged with gaming, you dare to stand in a Court of Justice?

"If you have not forty-five dollars—

"A ring of steel shall be riveted on your leg.

"A zebra suit upon your back shall proclaim your infamy.

"For eight months, a striped thing of horror to women and children, you shall go publicly to and from your work, shackled to other men.

"Since you do not pay—

"You shall work in chains.

"While others rest, when you try to sleep, you shall be chained in your bed to creatures as wretched and moneyless as yourself.

"Your fetters shall gall your skin night after night.

"And beware the guard! If you displease him, our lash is ready for your back.

"POOR FOOL, PAY—

"Forty-five dollars for the coffers of the great State of Georgia.

"Miserable, moneyless, man.

"Because of your poverty—

"Suffer.

"God may pity you.

"We will not, since you have no money."

The man is dead.

Stripes and chains were put upon him.

In the quarry of the forty-nine-pound hammers you drove him in the frightful heat.

There he fell.

HE DIED THAT DAY.

Remember—

His offense was only this: he played a game for money.

Nothing more.

You condemned him.

You demanded that he pay.

He could not.

You killed him; you did not intend it.

But ignorance is no excuse.

Paul wrote for you:

"Thou art inexcusable, oh, man."

And Jesus said:

"With what judgment you judge, you shall be judged,

"And with what measure you mete, it shall be measured to you again."

God wake you.

Men, women and children are being destroyed in the name of law in Georgia.

The guilt is yours and ours.

WANT AD RAGE STARTS WITH REAL VIM

Contestants Begin Work Thursday and Hustle to Win That Automobile or Other Prize.

Enthusiastic young men and women started out early Thursday to win those prizes in The American and Georgian's big Want Ad Contest. They began to meet success from the very start, for the want ads came rolling in.

"It's going to be easy," said one youngster after his first hour's work. "I got three ads from the first four houses I visited. I'm going to win a motorcycle, at least."

Contestants were not simply turned loose with a pencil and paper and told to get busy. An experienced district manager, one who knows through long training how to suggest want ad possibilities, accompanied each contestant for a while, called with him at a number of homes and started him on the right track. The boys and girls were enthusiastic over their first morning's work.

Help Your Young Friends. Atlanta folk or others who have a boy or girl friend in the contest are urged to either give their want ads to him or her, or else send the ads to the office with a request that they be credited to this contestant. A full list of the entrants in the race will be published Friday.

Contestants gathered early in the day at the four district offices and there met their respective managers. The districts are:

District No. 1—North of Marietta street and west of Peachtree, Taylor Bros. drug store, 121 West Peachtree street. District No. 2—North of Decatur street and east of Peachtree, including Kirkwood, Decatur and eastern suburbs; Ponce DeLeon Pharmacy, corner Ponce DeLeon and North Boulevard.

District No. 3—South of Decatur street and east of Whitehall, Paragon Pharmacy, Capitol avenue and Georgia avenue.

District No. 4—South of Marietta street and west of Whitehall, including West End, College Park, East Point and Battle Hill; Medlock's Pharmacy, Gordon and Lee streets.

Not Too Late to Enter. It isn't too late to enter the Want Ad Contest and win one of the big prizes. You might get a fine automobile, a piano, a trip to California. You might land a motorcycle, a bicycle, a watch or diamond. The prizes are well worth trying for.

There is a nomination blank in the full-page advertisement on another page of this issue. Clip it out, take it to the headquarters of the district in which you live and get a good start. The contest will give you 1,000 votes, and ten votes will be given you for every cent turned in for paid want ads. You'll find the work a real practical course in salesmanship, too.

Girl Outwits Cupid; Wins Her Own Rival

WHEELING, W. VA., July 24.—War, or Sherman's equivalent for it, "hath no fury like a woman scorned," Harry Pendleton mournfully confides to his friends.

Pendleton had been engaged to Des-sie McIntyre for two years, when he met Henrietta Aiken, a Bridgeport, Ohio, belle. He fell a willing conquest and Miss McIntyre was peeved, but not without hope. She went cupid one better by going to Bridgeport, cutting her hair short, donning the clothes of a modern Beau Brummel and "cutting out" Pendleton in masterly fashion. Then she doffed her masquerade.

Pendleton refuses to say whether or not Miss Aiken has permitted him to resume his courtship.

THE PLAY THIS WEEK

Bijou Show Pleases. "Good Morning, Judge" as presented at the Bijou this week, seems to have struck a popular chord, as at each performance since the opening matinee the attendance has been unusually large. "Good Morning, Judge" is an ideal hot weather entertainment interspersed throughout are a number of clever vaudeville specialties which alone would be sufficient to furnish an evening's entertainment.

"Les Miserables." Great interest has evidenced itself in the presentation of "Les Miserables" at the Grand. Attendance since the introduction of the picture on Monday has grown wonderfully and many who have witnessed the two and a half hour exhibition of Victor Hugo's novel declare the photoplay to be superior to any that has been presented in Atlanta. The exhibition is in four complete acts. There are nine reels of more than 12,000 feet of the finest film, and the characters are played by the greatest actors of France.

Next week the Carnegie Museum Alaska-Siberian pictures will be exhibited, together with first-run motion pictures of the better quality.

Divers a Real Hit. The standing room record continues at the Foreyth. The busy theater has been sold out at eight performances this week and the demand for seats for the rest of the week is great. John F. Conroy, the famous life-saver, who with his diving medals is the star act of the program, presents the best novelty that has ever been seen on a local stage. He is a wonder in physical culture and as a diver. For next week the headline feature will be Joe Welch, the character comedian, in his life study of the Hebrew. Mr. Welch has appeared here before and won a great hit. Robert L. Dally and company, in "Our Bob" will make his first local appearance.

SIDELIGHTS on GEORGIA POLITICS.

By JAMES B. NEVIN

Senator Bacon's inability to attend a sitting of the Georgia Legislature just now for the purpose of accepting an invitation to address that honorable body in joint session, generally is regretted among the members, and many have expressed themselves accordingly.

Senator Bacon's failure to see his way clear to leaving Washington just now seems to be thoroughly appreciated, however, and the fact that he declined the General Assembly's invitation to come down is understood and appreciated.

Senator Hoke Smith's recent address was greatly enjoyed by the General Assembly. He went very thoroughly into many things upon which the Legislature was not fully informed, and undoubtedly held his audience's profound interest and attention through the entire joint session.

Fortunately for the Legislature, Senator Smith's invitation came at a time when it was convenient for him to accept, and without in any way neglecting his duties in Washington.

Both Senators Bacon and Smith are eloquent and forceful speakers, although of late years Senator Bacon has spent very little of his time in Georgia and has been heard but infrequently, on the stump or otherwise. Whatever the relations between these two Senators may be, whether they be cordial or not, the Georgia Legislature was impartial in extending its invitations to them, as both joint resolutions passed by a unanimous vote of each House.

Editor F. H. Sills, of The Metter Advertiser, whose heart strings are wrapped tight around the bill to create Candler County, was distressed, but not dismayed, that his bill failed of passage this year.

Sills, who has led a clean, manly and fair fight for his pet project, believes that Candler yet will be created.

$55 SAVED ON FULL BUSINESS SCHOLARSHIPS

The Extraordinary Offer Made by The Southern Business College Will Soon Close.

L. W. ARNOLD,
Vice President Southern Shorthand and Business University.

The opportunity of securing the $55 complete shorthand course, both combined, for the price of one course, at the well-known Southern Shorthand and Business University, 10 West Mitchell street, is rapidly passing away.

Only fifty scholarships were put on sale at this remarkably low rate and the number is diminishing rapidly.

"Reserve one of the special scholarships for my son," said a gentleman yesterday, as he was passing through the city from the North to his home in South Georgia, "and I will mail you a check for same as soon as I get home."

Another came from a distance and secured a scholarship for his son; several mail applicants and a large number of city callers obtained scholarships for immediate and future entrance.

A club of six in one locality bought scholarships and clubs in other sections are now organizing.

Orders for scholarships came in today from Florida, South Carolina and Tennessee.

While the two $55 courses are being sold for the price of one course—$55—either course alone is offered for $40.

"This is the first time in three years that we have put on sale our scholarships at reduced rate," said Mr. L. W. Arnold, the vice president, to-day, "and we are doing this merely as a midsummer advertising proposition to invade new territory, the plan being to secure a large list of names of prospective pupils from those who obtain this low-priced scholarship. From this list we hope to secure many pupils at the regular rates, which will be in effect by August 1, and thus be reimbursed for the loss we are now sustaining by this advertising offer."

"The demand for stenographers and bookkeepers is very heavy just now; we have received a dozen calls since Tuesday and placed several pupils."

Secure scholarship at once. Call, phone or write A. C. Briscoe, President, or L. W. Arnold, Vice President, Atlanta, Ga. Professor Thomas L. Bryan, Lecturer and Representative. (Adv.)

In the House and one of its strongest men. He is not at all showy, and seldom indulges in debate on the floor. In the committee rooms, however, when most of the real constructive work of the General Assembly is accomplished, he long ago came to be recognized as safe and sane and well worth following.

This is Mr. Culpepper's first term in the House of Representatives, but it is doubtful whether Meriwether, although it has sent to Atlanta many of the ablest and most forceful men in General Assemblies of the past, ever sent a stronger man than Culpepper.

It is evident enough that there is to be a bitter and perhaps prolonged fight in the House on the proposition to establish a State Board of Tax Equalizers.

It is but the truth to state that many of the smaller counties now getting back from the State through the common school fund and the pensions much more money than they pay into the State than they are progressively averse to having themselves equalized, or anything like equalized.

Some of the counties pay into the State Treasury a tax on as little as 16 per cent of the valuation of their lands as set forth by the United States Government. Other counties pay as high as 300 per cent.

Manifestly, here is a situation that needs equalizing, at least partially. If any person doubts the truth of the assertion herein made, he has but to apply to the United States Census Department to have the figures verified.

Between the two extremes of 16 per cent and 300, the various counties run from 20 to 250. The impression is that 65 per cent of the national valuation of real estate in Georgia would be little enough for the taxpayers to have assessed against them—but it may be set down as a dead sure thing that those counties now fattening at the expense of the others are going to balk at having a State board set up to equalize them.

The proposed rate board is not to be given power to equalize individuals—it merely will undertake to equalize counties.

Will the board be created? Not if the get-more-than-we-pay-in counties can help it!

Representative N. F. Culpepper of Meriwether is one of the best lawyers

McKEE SILENT ON RESIGNATION RUMORS

Postmastership in Doubt as Present Holder Confers in Capital With His Chiefs.

Speculation is rife in regard to the exact status of the postmastership in Atlanta pending the return of Postmaster Hugh McKee from Washington. Mr. McKee left Atlanta for the National Capital last week, after obtaining a leave of absence for ten days to lay certain questions before the Postoffice Department at Washington. It is claimed.

Dispatches from Washington indicate that conferences between the Atlanta postmaster and Third Assistant Postmaster General Roper have been held. These conferences, Mr. McKee's personal representatives say, were entirely satisfactory and had nothing whatever to do with a resignation.

Nevertheless guesses continue to be made and there are those who say that the bomb may drop at any time. Thus far, no intimation has been given by Mr. McKee as to the alleged request for his resignation.

Mr. McKee, accompanied by his daughter, probably will reach Atlanta by the end of this week. They are now in Atlantic City, according to latest information received in Atlanta.

BREAKFAST SENT THOMAS CAT BY POST

Mistress, in Atlanta on Visit, Can Not Trust Feline Aristocrat to Butcher Shop Diet.

Bricks and eggs and live stock have become common enough as mail matter within the past few months, but never until Miss Bessie Butler came to Atlanta had Uncle Sam's parcel post served as a dumb waiter for a cat!

Down at Madison, Ga., a big aristocratic Thomas cat—by name, "McCurry"—gets his breakfast every day by parcel post, all the way from 613 Peachtree street, where Miss Butler is visiting Mrs. A. Cunningham.

"McCurry" is Miss Butler's most priceless possession, and when she came to Atlanta she left instructions that the cat must be fed large, man-size pork chops each day. She gave this order to a butcher, with the inevitable result.

Poor "McCurry's" chops soon took on the appearance of a large piece of bone surrounded by a meaty atmosphere, and the cat got dyspepsia and developed a crabbed disposition. He lost his zest in life—all nine of him—and was peevish and poor company.

The sad news of "McCurry's" condition was written to Miss Butler by a friend. It seemed that unless something was done at once the cat would die—it was feared he would break all his teeth trying to eat the bones the butcher said were chops. So Miss Butler has invoked the aid of Uncle Sam. She gathers up all the scraps of meat that are left when the Cunningham meal is over, and each night she packs them into a shoe box and forwards them to her friend in Madison, who feeds them to the cat the next morning.

The unique method of feeding her pet has been going on for several days now—and latest advices from the front are that the cat is doing well and taking on weight.

Better News of Laces Than We Have Told So Far This Season

The Selling Starts at Nine o'Clock

Take this as a matter of information---the laces below are wanted kinds, fashion-favored right now; the new prices are made arbitrarily, in spite of their worth---and be guided in your purchases accordingly.

The average woman's "love" of pretty laces is strong, stronger perhaps than the average woman's sense of thrift, especially when that sense of thrift would interfere with her possession of pretty laces.

But to-morrow—

A woman's "love" of pretty laces and her sense of thrift urge her to attend this sale of laces.

Here are laces wanted right now, that will be wanted when the new dresses for fall are started, at prices that average a great deal less than half.

It is one of those events that happen but once-in-a-while.

Share its savings!

Here briefly is what you will find—

At 19c 35c to 85c a yd. Laces

Shadow and Venise bands and edges in cream, white and black. They are 3 to 5 inches wide.

At 59c $1 to $2 a yd. Laces

Shadow and Venise bands and edges in cream, white and black. These are 4 to 9 inches wide.

At 98c $2 to $3.50 a yd. Laces

Shadow and Venise edges, bands and medallions. The edges, some of them, are 18 inches wide.

Some twenty embroidered dress patterns---voiles and crepes---that were originally $12 to $18 each are now $6.75, because the clearance of them must be complete, despite the fact that all but these went in a recent sale at $9.50. Richly, beautifully embroidered, in light blue, pink, navy and lavender on white---many designs.

ONE WEEK FROM TO-NIGHT PONY CONTEST ENDS

No One Is Certain of Victory and the Lowest Candidate To-day May Be a Leader Tomorrow—Only Seven More Days to Claim Prizes—Will You Be Among the Winners?—Success Is Within Your Grasp If You Will Only Realize the Fact and Prove Your Right to the Prizes By Your Efforts Now—"Dark Horses" Will Probably Come Fast During Last Days and Crowd Out the Too Certain Ones.

We have now entered the thick of the fight, the battle is on and when the smoke clears away on July 31, WHO WILL STAND FORTH AS VICTORS? Who knows? Victory is as liable to perch on the banner of one candidate as another and probably the candidate who is now hovering near the cellar championship, as the base-ballists say, may be the one who will come so fast during the last few days that there will be no stopping him—he will sweep all before him and march triumphantly to his goal. This statement should be considered well by all candidates and especially those who may feel that there is no need for them to exert themselves during this time, as they are certain of victory. No one is certain of victory, and no one will be until all is over. You may be in the lead now and be reasonably sure in your own mind that no one can defeat you for the prize you want, but you do not know what efforts will be put forth before the close and while you rest apparently secure in the prospect of winning, your very nearest competitor will probably be working so energetically that the gap between you now will be closed up to allow victory snatched from your grasp when a little real effort during these seven days will win for you and any other candidate who fails to do his very best is liable to be without the charmed circle of winners on July 31, no matter how far in front he may be at present.

Present standings are not indicative of final results by a long way. Real effort NOW is going to swing the pendulum of victory or defeat and if you really desire one of those pony outfits or a pretty watch, now is your opportunity to win your selection.

Have you ever witnessed a horserace, where the favorite started out in front, passed the quarter and half poles away in front and then fell down during the last quarter, while the "rank outsider," now considered as a last place possibility, romped in ahead of the favorite? This illustrates perfectly what is just as liable as not to happen in the contest during these last few days. We don't say that it will happen, but such things have happened so often—the candidate is not given a chance to win by the "wise" ones—finally defeating all his rivals—that a similar occurrence in The American-Georgian campaign would not be surprising. Hence, we want to impress upon every candidate the necessity of doing his best before the finish overtakes you.

FIVE MORE DAYS OF THE RED LETTER BALLOTS.

Just five more days and the Red Letter Ballot, which is the last special vote offer of the contest, will draw to a close. The work being done by the great majority of candidates proves that they appreciate their opportunities and are going to die hard. Those who have as yet done but little on this offer should lose no time in getting started. There is still time to secure its advantages and every vote secured is a step nearer success. Tuesday night at 10 o'clock this offer will close and those who have failed to take advantage of this offer and these will be but few, will have missed a chance that may mean final defeat. Votes are the only things that will win for you and without these necessary things you cannot hope to win. Hence every one is worth securing and essential to success.

THE ATLANTA GEORGIAN AND NEWS

The dinner-dance at the Capital City Country Club Thursday evening will assemble 100 club members and their friends, many of whom will motor out early in the afternoon for swimming, rowing, tennis or golf. Dinner will be served on the piazza. One of the largest parties of the evening will be that given by Mr. and Mrs. John J. Woodside, Jr., in honor of their young cousin, Miss Margaret Gause, who has just returned home after an extended absence in North Carolina. The other guests will include Misses Louise Riley, Jeanette Lowndes, Helen Hobbs, Messrs. Philip L. Engle, Eugene Kelly, Henry Lyons, Robin Adair and Edward Gay. Mr. and Mrs. Rutherford Lipscomb will entertain a party of eight, their guests to be Mrs. Frieleau Ellis of Springfield, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lipscomb of Athens, Mr. and Mrs. George M. Brown and Mr. George Forrester. Mr. and Mrs. George C. Speir will entertain a party in honor of their guest, Miss Nancy Reed, the other guests to be Misses Estelle Fort, Louise Bradbury, Mary Carl Huet, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Huet, Messrs. Stewart Bell, Eugene Haynes and F. L. Ayers of Boston.

Others who will entertain small parties are Mr. and Mrs. William A. Speer, Messrs. J. S. Watson, J. F. Douglas, J. C. Holditch, Charlie Seale, A. W. Alfriend, Kenneth McRae and Mr. Baskerville.

For Miss Jones. Miss Harriet McCullough gave an informal tea at the Piedmont Club Wednesday afternoon for her guest, Miss Dorothy Jones, of Newnan. Six girls were guests.

Thursday afternoon Miss Frances Broyles gave a swimming party, followed by tea at the Capital City Country Club for Miss Jones, and Miss Madeline McCullough will entertain at a matinee party Friday afternoon at the Forsyth for her.

Seving Club Meets. Mrs. Julian Prade entertained the sewing club of which she is a member at her home on West Peachtree street Thursday morning. The house was decorated with garden flowers. The members of this club are Misses Mary Blalock, Helen Thorne, Grace Thorne, Martha Ryder, Mary Lou Turner, Katie Sturdivant, Annie Lou Paggett, Lillian Sturdivant, Edith Dunson, Elizabeth Dunson, Emmie Willingham, Van McKinnon and Laura Kooper.

For Miss Robbins. Miss Laura Maddox entertained at an informal tea at the Piedmont Club Thursday afternoon in compliment to Miss Dorothy Robbins, of Birmingham, the guest of Mrs. J. P. C. Allan.

For Mrs. Lipscomb. Mrs. Frank Lipscomb, of Athens, who, with her husband, is spending the summer with Mr. and Mrs. Rutherford Lipscomb, was the central figure in a motor party, followed by tea at the Capital City Club, on Wednesday afternoon, when Mrs. Ben Watkins invited four friends to meet Mrs. Lipscomb. Mrs. Lipscomb will remain in Atlanta during the session of the General Assembly, of which her husband is a member, and she is being entertained informally during her visit.

Lawn Fete. The Ladies' Aid Society of Westminster Presbyterian Church will give a lawn fete Friday evening, July 25, in the afternoon and evening on the manse lawn. Everybody is invited. Homemade cake and candy will be on sale.

For Mrs. Harris. Mrs. Cora Harris, who is spending a few days at the Georgian Terrace before returning to the mountains of North Georgia, was the honor guest at a delightful dinner party given Wednesday evening by Colonel and Mrs. Robert J. Lowry. The dinner was given at the Piedmont Driving Club and covers were laid for fourteen at a table having a novel and charming decoration of gladioli, dahlias and maidenhair ferns, arranged in a large central basket, with two smaller baskets holding zinnias shading from pink to deep rose. As favors from each plate there were min-

ECZEMA DISFIGURED FACE BADLY

Also on Hands. Broke Out in Pimples. Itched Badly. Spread All Over Body. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

Hampton Springs, Fla.—"I had had eczema on my face and hands for about three years. My face was badly disfigured. The eczema broke out in pimples and itched so very badly I would scratch it all the time. It was the most irritating disease I have ever had. It started on my face and hands and it spread all over my body. I had great large sores all over me, caused from the eczema. It bothered me day and night so that I could not rest at all. "I used three remedies for skin disease, and they didn't give relief at all. I was almost terrified until a friend recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment to me. They helped me from the time I started to use them. I used the Cuticura Soap and warm water as a wash and then put the Cuticura Ointment on the sore places. I only used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and was cured." (Signed) Mrs. E. C. Parker, Dec. 7, 1912. When you buy a fine toilet soap think of the advantages Cuticura Soap possesses over the most expensive toilet soap ever made. In addition to being absolutely pure and refreshingly fragrant, it is delicately yet effectively medicated, giving you two soaps in one, a toilet and a skin soap at one price. Sold throughout the world. Sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

circle. Mrs. Howard McFall will entertain her embroidery club Friday afternoon in honor of Miss Pike.

Miss Margaret Bransford, of Nashville, will arrive Monday to be the guest of Mrs. J. P. B. Allan. She will share honors with Miss Dorothy Robbins and Miss Margaret Buckner at the tea Mrs. Allan will give Tuesday afternoon.

Dr. B. G. Swanson will return from Cumberland Island the last of the week. Mrs. B. G. Swanson, Jr., and her young son, James Banks, after spending a month in Anniston, Ala., with her mother, Mrs. C. B. Ridley, will return to the city the last of the week.

Mrs. William Donovan will leave Atlanta Thursday night with Captain and Mrs. John R. Sharpe, of Bainbridge, to spend a month or six weeks visiting Takoway, Asheville, Brevard and other points in North Carolina. Captain and Mrs. Sharpe have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Sheehy for a few days.

Defense in Deaton Feudist Case Opens

WINCHESTER, KY., July 24.—The Commonwealth closed its evidence in the trial of Fletcher Deaton, charged with conspiracy to kill Ed Callahan, and the defense began its evidence. Sweeping denials to all charges against "Uncle Fletcher," as he is known in the mountains, were made. The Commonwealth sprang a surprise when a deputy sheriff of Breathitt County testified that Deaton told him shortly before the killing that he would have to have Callahan killed.

TALK OF RITCHIE'S NEXT FIGHT IN LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, July 24.—While Ritchie, lightweight champion, is in Los Angeles after an automobile trip from San Francisco, Ritchie probably will meet Promoter Tom Carey to-day and talk over the possibility of a match for either Labor Day or September 9. There is a possibility of a match being arranged between the champion and either Joe Rivers or the winner of the Cross-Baldwin match next Tuesday night. Ritchie and McCarey have been in correspondence for some time, and the two may get together on the matter of terms for a bout within the next few days.

Poultry Gossip

By JUDGE F. J. MARSHALL.

Is there a difference between roup and sorehead? My neighbor tells me they are the same thing, only roup is sorehead in the fall and winter, and what we usually call sorehead is the same disease in hot weather. I would like to have your views upon the subject.—Mrs. J. R. C. Lullas, Ga.

These are two entirely different diseases, and come from different causes. Both are diseases of the blood, though the effect is quite different. When at times the two troubles are found in the same specimen.

For example, a fowl having the sorehead and all broken out with the sores or bumps on its comb and head, will, by roosting in a hot, damp place, contract the roup. This will cause the air passages to become inflamed and fill with mucus, causing the fowl to breathe through its mouth.

Results in Loss of Eyes. The breathing passage to the nostrils being stopped the inflamed matter will be forced out through the eye duct, filling the space around the eye, causing it to water and swell. If it is not relieved the matter will harden and finally the eye will go blind and peck out.

While this is going on the sorehead trouble will wrinkle up the comb and if not checked will form a solid seal upon the head and comb and will so affect the general health of the specimen as to cause death in many cases. It is only in rare cases, however, that the two are combined, and the one is sufficient in itself to cause enough trouble to do a world of damage to the otherwise thrifty flock. The sorehead comes on as a result of infection introduced by the stings of the mosquito. When once established in a flock it is transmitted from one to the other, without the aid of the mosquito, by personal contact.

Coops Should be Netted. Mosquitoes rarely bother them during the day, so that where a person will take the trouble to make his poultry coops mosquito proof with netting they will have but little trouble from sorehead. Where this is not done, a great preventive measure is the giving of Epsom salts freely in the drinking water during July and August. It must not be omitted for any length of time or the system allowed to get out of the influence of it or the sores will make their appearance.

When the sores do come up, it is a good plan to take any affected ones from the flock and treat them individually by dipping a feather in oil of tar and touching the sores. Another good remedy is a stick of caustic touched to soft water and then to the sores. Either one of these will have a tendency to kill the germs and dry the system, so that the sores should also be given. Everything should be spick and span about the premises.

A Bachelor's Diary

By MAX.

He and Manette See the Suffragette Again, but Neither of Them Notices Her.

JULY 3.—It occurred to me, when Manette and I were tramping home that evening, after a brilliant suffragette had tried to hold me up that there was a warning in the incident. I look like a tramp, as she said, and Manette, in spite of her clothes, looks like a princess.

What it is I can not define, but one of her sex can never disguise the fact that she was born to purple and fine linen. She may outlive every natural grace and may be reduced to rags, but there is always an indefinable something that tells of better things in the past. I looked at Manette critically as she trudged ahead of me in the footpath, and this is what I saw: A little bare head with a shock of curls just reaching to her shoulder, for we had had her hair cut short before we left town, and the growth was all new and untamed.

She wore a blue gingham with half the buttons on the back. There were rents in it, and through one rent I caught a glimpse of an exquisitely trimmed petticoat, for Richards had refused to let her darling wear the coarse muslin garments that were best fitted for the occasion. She wore half shoes, with tan soles from which her toes protruded, and her little fat legs were scratched by them and brambles.

But one could tell by a glimpse that she was not an ordinary child, and I wondered if it was because of the proud little way in which she carried her head, or because of her total unconsciousness of self. "A born aristocrat," I murmured.

Her Beauty.

She looked up at me in laughter at some prank of the pup, and I was struck more forcibly than ever with her most unusual beauty. It wasn't altogether her hair and her eyes, her perfect features and her exquisite coloring; there was a look of her soul shining through, and that is as near as I can express it. If you could see her, Diary, you would understand why I never look at the child without some apprehension. With her beauty and her money, sometimes I wonder if there are enough guardian angels in heaven to keep all the evil-hearted away.

The children that die young belong to us always. Nothing, and no one, may ever estrange them from us. They are ours forever, and that, alas, is something no one can say of the child that lives to grow up.

There is comfort in the thought, and it is not the only comfort, for we learn as we grow older that the child, that is gone is spared much, and is SAFE. I know life would be dreary and almost impossible without Manette, but every day I grow more reconciled to the loss of Elizabeth. She was happy all her life. The little girl trudging along in the path ahead of me is happy now, but I will not always be with her.

I suppose it was this constant apprehension that led me to call Mrs. Allen to the porch after supper and tell her that I am not the poor clerk she imagines, resting from overwork, but one of the detested millionaire class, resting from excessive luxury.

I told her my name and she laughed. She said she had guessed it the second day. No one, she said, could look at Manette and think for a moment that she had been brought up in denial. She could not explain it, except that the child was always so unconscious of her clothes.

"She rises above them," she said, and it made me very proud.

I have always had the theory—I wonder how it will evolve—that if Manette

Keep Young As Long As You Can

Robinnair Hair Dye

Is a wonderful scientific formula. It is a color restorer. Not a dangerous dye to bleach or change the original color of the hair, but a restorer which brings back to the hair its original color and beautiful sheen and softness. For a quarter of a century it has been used by women and men practically all over the world, and we have hundreds of unsolicited letters proving its merit. It does not stain the scalp nor make the hair sticky, and its use can not be detected. Prepared for light, medium and dark brown and black hair; for sale by leading druggists and toilet goods departments. If you can not get it, sent by parcel post, 80c. If you will send with your order your druggist's name and address, we will send you FREE samples of the famous Robinnair Face Powder and Rose Cold Cream.

Jacobs' Pharmacy Co. Atlanta, Ga.

is accustomed to the best as a child, she will never start like a peacock when she is grown. She will always be unconscious of her price marks.

To the Manner Born.

She will never build conversation on the price of her gown, nor attempt to erect pride and station on the cost of a hat. She will never, and of that I am sure, remember that her clothes cost more than the clothes of her associates and show it in her manner. I said something to this effect to Mrs. Allen, and her reply gave me a new viewpoint.

"She won't remember what things cost," she said, somewhat dryly, "because she has never had to earn the price. The girl who attires herself in necessities for a month that she may afford a $20 gown will never forget to the day of her death what the gown cost. Unconsciousness of clothes is a good trait, but Manette's unconsciousness will be largely due to ignorance. When one pays the price, one remembers."

I did not seem to make her quite understand what I meant, and neither did I understand her. I wanted, I explained, for the child to grow up with a soul above ribbons.

"And yet," she replied, "whoever has charge of her wardrobe takes care that she has more ribbons than any child her age should have."

I agreed to that with a sigh. When a little girl is transformed by her years into a peacock, instead of a thinking, helpful woman, it is her mother who is to blame, never her father. Manette has no mother, but her nurse and her Aunt Sallie make her attire the joy of their existence.

I who take the place of a father to her, would prefer that she never hear the subject of her dress, but those who take the place of her mother make her attire the first consideration. That, Diary, is a fond weakness of all mothers.

I gave Mrs. Allen Mrs. Spencer's address and also that of Richards. "It has occurred to me," I said, "that if anything happened to me, either address will be useful to you."

She found considerable amusement in the thought of what an exodus to the woods there would be of young women if it were known that such a wealthy unattached bachelor were spending his summer there. "They would chase you harder," she said, "than the pup chases the rabbits."

She Sympathizes.

She laughed so heartily I asked if she would enjoy the sight, and she replied that she wouldn't.

"I feel sorry for any unmarried man these days," with some spirit. "Either the women are the mercenary kind, hunting him down for his money, or they are the suffragette kind, hunting him down like a policeman hunts criminals. I often tell my husband it is good he got me thirty years ago, for there isn't much choice of women these days."

"From one of their own sex! Had I said it I would be mobbed."

July 6.—I have not heard the last of that woman who thought I was a kidnaper of children. She came riding to our picnic spot again to-day, and this time she rode alone.

Manette and I were sitting on a log fishing. At least I was fishing. She had her shoes and stockings off, her skirts tucked up, and was paddling around at the water's edge, digging up soft black mud, which she carried to the shore and made into mud pies, a big log serving her as kneading board, or mixing board. I don't really know if pies are mixed or kneaded.

The suffragette tied her horse to a sapling and came to where we were thus occupied. I did not turn my head, and Manette, obeying whispered instructions from me, went on with her culinary work without heeding her.

Meg (five years old, was overjoyed over the recent addition to the family and rushed out of the house to tell the news to a passing neighbor.

"Oh, you don't know what we've got in our house to-day?"

"What is it?"

"It's a new baby brother!"

"You don't say so. Is he going to stay?"

"I think so"—very thoughtfully.

"He's got his things off."

A farmer while loading hay in his field was attacked by his neighbor's bulldog. The man defended himself with a pitchfork and sent the dog yelping home. The neighbor rebuked him, and asked why he didn't use the blunt end of the fork first.

"I would have," replied the farmer. "If your dog had come at me blunt end first."

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"What's that?" he muttered, in an undertone. "There it is again."

He blew out the lantern and stepped to the entrance of the corridor that led to the armory.

"Sh—h—! Listen! There's a light, Rusty. It's coming this way! It's coming, Rusty! Remember the high sign—and don't sneeze!"

He sprang back into the hall and concealed himself in the angle by the picture of the old Don. Presently the faint swinging beams of a lantern were thrown down the corridor and there was the sound of soft footsteps and low voices. Jarvis raised his cocked pistol and covered the doorway as the shadows told him the invaders were about to appear in view. Three figures appeared in the doorway and a girl's voice, familiar to his ears, said:

"There is no one here, either, Your Highness."

The Princess and Dolores, with Maxim as their guide and light-bearer, came down the broad stairs into the hall.

"We must go on, Dolores!" exclaimed the Princess in a strained voice. "We must find him before it's too late! Oh, I will never forgive myself for sending him to this dreadful place!"

"But there's a fire!" cried the veteran. "They've been in this room!"

"Perhaps"—the Princess shuddered—"they have already been killed."

Her Brother Safe.

Jarvis, ashamed for having listened too long and his heart beating with what he had heard, stepped forward into the light of the lantern.

"Your Highness!" he exclaimed. The girl made a sound that was half a cry of alarm and half a prayer of thanksgiving, and held out both hands to him.

"Mr. Warren!" Mr. Warren! Thank God, you are still alive!"

"Your Highness," he protested, still holding her hands. "It's madness for you to come to this place! How did you get here?"

"Heaven only knows!" She shivered as if with the memory of her experiences. "We have been wandering through this dreadful place for hours—calling to you—trying to find you before it was too late."

"Too late! What do you mean?"

"My brother is safe—thank God!"

"Where is he?" demanded Warren, quickly.

"On his way to get help from the King."

"Right here in this castle, a prisoner—since the day he entered."

"A prisoner?"

"Yes. He succeeded in making his escape to-night and has gone straight to the King for help."

"But how did you learn all this?" he inquired, bewildered.

"From Robledo, senior," answered Dolores, as the Princess did not reply at once. "The girl's voice was low and trembled slightly. 'Your brother went straight, senior. He is dying. He has confessed to the Holy Father. I promised to be with him at the end.'"

She turned her face away and Jarvis saw that she was weeping.

"The end?" he echoed vaguely—and then he understood. He walked over to her, stood beside her awkwardly, trying to think of something to say. He found it difficult to apologize to a girl for killing her lover, especially when the lover happened to need killing a lot.

"Then—you—" he stammered, "I—I—didn't know—I might have—I'm sorry."

Better So.

The girl raised her tear-stained face and met his gaze bravely.

"It is better so, senior," she said.

"Oh, Dolores—my poor child!"

The Princess put her arms around the girl and she sobbed on her lady's shoulder. "Maximo, take her back to the inn as quietly as possible."

When they were gone the Princess urged Jarvis to follow.

"Oh, Mr. Warren, let us leave this dreadful place!"

"Not me, Your Highness," was the grim and inelegant reply. "You go with them and wait for me at the inn."

The Princess shook her head determinedly, though her face was pale and there were lines to tell of the long strain.

"You can not persuade me again, Mr. Warren. I will remain."

"Please!" he begged, getting possession of her hands once more, and without a struggle.

"Return with us then."

"Your Highness," he said gravely, "I promised to solve the mystery of this castle and to find the treasure. My task is an easy one now."

"Then," she rejoined quickly, "I will share it with you."

He laughed silently at the neat manner of the trap in which he was caught, but he looked down at her with something more than amazement in his eyes.

CAUGHT AT LAST

"MR. WARREN!"

"DON'T MOVE! YOUR HIGHNESS!" HE CRIED, RAISING THE WEAPON AND LEVELING IT AT THE OLD GRANDDEE. "I'VE GOT YOUR GHOST AT LAST!" HE RAISED HIS VOICE. "THERE IS SOMEONE BEHIND THAT PICTURE! COME OUT!—OR I'LL SHOOT YOU FULL OF HOLES!"

FOR A MOMENT THERE WAS INTENSE SILENCE.

THEN:

"DON'T SHOOT!" THE VOICE, A FAMILIAR ONE CAME FROM THE WALL—THE PICTURE SWUNG OUT IN ITS FRAME AND HIS EXALTED HIGHNESS THE DUKE OF ALVA STEPPED DOWN ON TO THE FLOOR.

that was somewhat like a far-off tree falling in the wind.

"What was that?" exclaimed the girl with a start.

"Oh, that! That was Rusty," he smiled.

"That would frighten any one."

"I figured that I might need a ghost," he explained, pointing to the armored servant, "but Rusty disobeyed orders. Rusty, I told you not to sneeze!"

"Dat was somebody else, Massa Warren," was the solemn and unexpected protest. "I swears to goodness I didn't sneeze."

Warren's revolver was in his hand and a wild light of triumph in his eyes.

"Mr. Warren!"

"Don't move! Your Highness," he cried, raising the weapon and leveling it at the old grandde, "I've got your ghost at last!" He raised his voice.

"There is some one behind that picture! Come out!—or I'll shoot you full of holes!"

Caught!

For a moment there was intense silence. Then:

"Don't shoot!"

The voice, a familiar one, came from the wall—the picture swung out in its frame and his Exalted Highness, the Duke of Alva, stepped down on to the floor.

The Princess smothered a cry of amazement and Jarvis smiled grimly.

"Your Excellency, you are a long way from Madrid."

The Duke eyed him with contempt.

"Madrid! You fool, you have fallen right into my trap!" He turned to the Princess with all the assurance of a protecting friend.

"What I have done has been for your sake, Maria. I purposely deceived him so that I might get here ahead of him and watch. See," he pointed to the mantel, "there are his tools and you yourself interrupted him at his work."

The consummate insolence and assurance of his enemy almost daunted the young man. And in the next breath he half lost the battle by permitting himself to argue.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

THEY ALWAYS TELL.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Some time ago I was introduced to a young man whom I rather like. I have gone out to different places of amusement with him.

Now, he has often wanted to kiss me, but I wouldn't allow him to. He is going out of town for some time and says he wants to kiss me before going. Shall I allow him to?

L. M.

No man should kiss and tell, but so many do that one little farewell kiss, given in the name of friendship, is sure to be misunderstood and told of. Do you not know, my dear, that the kiss that is refused is always the sweetest? Refuse him and he will always want that kiss, and seek to win your love that he may have it.

DON'T TRY.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young girl of 19 and have a brother who takes me to dances and the theater. I have no chance to find a lover, because the men all think my brother is my sweetheart. What would you advise me to do to make them understand?

L. M.

My dear, if these men were attracted by you, the sight of a man as your escort would not keep them away. On the contrary, it would serve as an incentive to them to make your acquaintance.

Instead of regarding your brother as an obstacle, be glad that you have a brother as devoted and kind. And don't worry about that belated lover, for I am sure he is on his way.

WAIT A FEW YEARS.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young man of 27 and am in love with a young lady of 17, but she does not seem to care for me. What can I do to gain her love?

P. B.

She is too young to be troubled by love. Prove your love is unselfish, and for her best good, by keeping it a secret to yourself until she has grown up.

Things Worth Remembering

An electric voting machine is to be tried in the Austrian Chamber of Deputies. Each member will have two electric buttons on his desk. On the wall opposite the President's chair an indicator is fixed, consisting of 516 glass tablets. When a vote is recorded they show either a white or a red light, and members can check the accuracy of their votes. Names are shown on the tablets if required.

Ants can stand extremes of heat and cold. Forty-eight hours' exposure to frost will not kill them, and one sort has been observed to build its nest in chinks in a blacksmith's forge.
