CONLEY, PUT ON GRILL, STICKS STOVE

Police Resume Questioning of the Negro Sweeper Who Accuses Leo Frank.

Placed by several of the statements of Jim Conley in regard to his part in the happening the day that Mary Phagan was killed, the police have resumed the questioning from which the negro had been freed since he was taken to the police station by the detectives.

One point that has not been cleared up is why Conley as a negro one time went into or left the factory and yet failed to see Mary Phagan.

Conley, on Sunday, was confronted by Monteen Stover. He identified her as the girl he saw enter the factory shortly after 11 o'clock on the day of the crime. Yet he still maintains that he did not see Mary Phagan, although Mary must have entered the factory either just before or just after the Stover girl was in the building.

Conley has been asked to explain this apparently improbable circumstance. He said at first that he had seen Lemmie Quinn in the factory on the Saturday of the murder. Later he said that he had seen Quinn in the factory on the day of the murder.

Another point which has been questioned is how Conley could have left his home at the time he has testified that he was in the factory. He has said that he had left his home at 11:15 o'clock, according to a conservative estimate.

He also has been questioned on other points in his testimony which appear at variance with the facts, but he has stuck rigidly to the story told in his last affidavit.

PAULINE WELCH, actress bride of "Bud" Fisher, famous creator of "Mutt and Jeff," who narrowly escaped death when she gashed her throat by falling upon the jagged edge of a broken water pitcher in an unlighted Piedmont Hotel bath room. She was rendered unconscious, and has been forced to cancel her vaudeville engagements.

'BUD' FISHER'S BRIDE HAS NARROW ESCAPE

That Mrs. Bud Fisher, who is better known to Atlanta as Pauline Welch, narrowly escaped death last Sunday night because known to-day as "Mutt and Jeff" in her apartment at the Piedmont Hotel with a gash five inches long in her throat as the result of an accident which only good fortune prevented from being fatal.

Mrs. Fisher, whose clever singing won great applause at the Forsyth theater last week, retired about midnight Sunday night. About an hour later she arose and started into the bath room to fill a pitcher, containing some hot water. The lights were not turned on in the apartment, and as Mrs. Fisher entered the bath room she stumbled and fell against the bath tub.

The pitcher she held in her hand crashed against the tub, and she fell against the jagged edge of the glass, cutting a deep gash in the throat. She screamed and fainted, and Mr. Fisher picked her up and carried her to a bed.

Twenty stitches in great deal of blood. There was considerable delay in getting medical assistance, and when Dr. Worth E. Yankey and C. L. Houghton arrived an hour later she was unconscious. The flow of blood was stopped and 50 stitches were taken in the wound, nine aluminum clamps being necessary to hold the severed flesh in place during the operation.

A third physician was called into consultation, and the doctors remained with Mrs. Fisher during the remainder of the night. For several hours it was feared that she would not recover from the shock and loss of blood, but early Tuesday morning she regained consciousness and rallied rapidly.

Must Remain in Atlanta.

Mr. Fisher states Wednesday morning that it will be impossible to move Mrs. Fisher for a week or ten days. They have canceled a vaudeville engagement at Bristolan Beach for week after next and intend to remain in Atlanta until Mrs. Fisher is completely recovered.

The attending physicians declare that Mrs. Fisher had a miraculous escape from death.

CONLEY PUT ON GRILL STICKS TO STORY

Purged by several of the statements of Jim Conley in regard to his part in the happening the day that Mary Phagan was killed, the police have resumed the questioning from which the negro had been free more he was taken to the police station by the detective.

One point that has not been cleared up is why Conley saw every one else that went into or left the factory and yet failed to see any Phagan.

Conley, on Monday, was confronted by Detective Hoke. He identified her as the girl he saw enter the factory shortly after 11 o'clock on the day of the happening. Yet he would not admit that he did not see Mary Phagan, although Mary Hoke had been seen by the detective just before the girl was taken to the police station by the detective.

The usual mark, 81 degrees, was the maximum temperature Wednesday. The thermometer reached 91 at 10 o'clock and 92 at 11 o'clock.

It is remarkable how the same kind of weather prevails over the entire South. The Atlanta Georgian, in its issue of Wednesday, says that the mercury in Atlanta was 91 at 10 o'clock, and the same heavy showers were seen. Although it seems pretty warm here, Atlanta is no hotter than other places.

Conditions fair, with possible showers late in the afternoon, is the forecast for Thursday.

Both Branches of the Legislature Get Down to Real Work--Flood of Bills Begins in Upper and Lower Houses Soon After Lawmakers Convene.

With the reading of a sensational message by Governor Brown flaying the labor unions, the election of J. Randolph Anderson, of the First District, to the Presidency of the Senate, the election of William H. Burwell, of Hancock, to the Speakership of the House and the introduction of the preliminary grid of bills, the Georgia Legislature began its session Wednesday.

Fledges made by Senator Anderson had added the hostility of the "dry" throughout the State and quieted the opposition to his candidacy. He was elected to the Presidency by a unanimous vote of the members, Judge Allen's name being withdrawn.

Representative Burwell, in accepting his unanimous election to the Speakership, spoke of the need of tax reform in the State and expressed the hope that bills would be passed which would remedy the present inequitable features of the system.

As soon as the House got down to work, the introduction of bills was begun. They had a wide range of subjects, and the indications from the first day of the session were that 50 days would be crowded with legislation.

Labour leaders issued a bitter reply to the charges made in the Governor's message.

LABOR LEADERS SCORE MESSAGE LEADERS NAMED WITHOUT FIGHT

Both branches of the Legislature for 1913-14 was organized in both branches Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

Senator J. Randolph Anderson, of the First District, was elected President of the Senate, and Representative William H. Burwell, of Hancock, was named Speaker of the House.

Neither man had any opposition in the balloting, and both were elected unanimously.

The rather unexpected termination of the heretofore uncertain and strenuous fight for the presidency of the Senate undoubtedly surprised the packed galleries and galleries.

Allen, Whiteford His Name.

Senator Higgins, who was expected to nominate Judge Allen, arose immediately after the Senate had been called to order by Secretary Northrup, and instead of nominating his man, withdrew his name.

In doing this he delivered a fine and friendly little speech, praised his own man and his opponent, and said that, while Judge Allen had 18 votes ready to stand by him, it was not his intention to oppose him. He was elected by the Twenty-first Judges Allen, preferred to do the graceful thing and withdraw his name.

When Senator Higgins sat down Senator Burwell arose and nominated Mr. Anderson in a speech very bit as good natured as the one preceding it.

Rival Votes for Anderson.

When the roll was called, Allen's name came first, and when he started the balloting in favor of his victorious rival, he was generously applauded by his colleagues.

On assuming the chair, President Anderson delivered a brief address, particularly calling attention to the much necessary legislation that the new General Assembly likely would have to undertake.

He got his good laugh when, in a letter in their criticism, Jerome Jones, editor of The Journal, called Atlanta Chamber of Commerce's work on what is called "baldpate" and "rot," and characterized the Governor as a dissembler and a person seeking the confidence of labor under the guise of reform.

Jerome Jones' criticism Brown.

Governor Jones can see only with a narrowly circumscribed view," said Jerome Jones, editor of The Journal of Labor, in bitter attacking Governor Brown's attack on labor. "Either he has no knowledge of the conditions of labor and the rights of those who work, or he deliberately is closing his eyes to the truth."

Labour that he says in his farewell message he has said before. He would have the Governor and his work the absolute chattel of the master—the employer. The day of such conditions rapidly is passing, and he is foolish who would restore the conditions of a half century ago.

His suggestions might be carried out in some of the European countries.

'BUD' FISHER'S BRIDE HAS NARROW ESCAPE

That Mrs. Bud Fisher, who is better known to Atlanta as Pauline Welch, narrowly escaped death late Sunday night became known to the wife of the famous creator of "Mutt and Jeff" lies in her apartment at the Piedmont Hotel with a gash five inches long in her throat as the result of an accident which only great good fortune prevented from being fatal.

Mrs. Fisher, whose clever singing won great applause at the Forsyth Theater last week, retired about midnight Sunday night. CONLEY PUT ON GRILL STICKS TO STORY

Puzzled by several of the statements of Jim Conley in regard to his part in the happening the day that Mary Phagan was killed, the police have resumed the questioning from which the negro had been free since he was taken to the police station by the detectives.

One point that has not been cleared up is why Conley saw every one else that went into or left the factory and yet failed to see Mary Phagan.

Conley, on Sunday, was confronted by Monroe Shover. He identified her as the girl he saw enter the factory shortly after 12 o'clock on the day of the crime. Yet he still claims that he did not see Mary Phagan, although Mary must have entered the factory shortly before 12 o'clock if the Shover girl was in the building. The evidence in the possession of the State shows that there could hardly have been more than three to five minutes intervening between the times that the two girls were in the factory.

Want Clear Statement.

Conley has been asked to explain this apparently impossible circumstance. Conley at first denied that he had seen Lemmie Quinn in the factory on the Saturday of the murder. Later he said he had seen the fellow by the name of Quinn in the factory before. Which statement is correct has not yet been determined. What explanation is made by the negro for lying in regard to the matter is a conjecture.

Mary Phagan left her home on April 24 at about 11:30 o'clock. Living in Bellwood, she is regarded as unlikely that she reached the factory in less than 35 minutes, or at 12:15. Montealegre was testified that she entered the factory at about 12:10, which would be just before Mary Phagan had entered the factory, and the time testified to be correct.

Conley, on this account, has been asked if he saw the girl in the factory on the Saturday of the murder. Conley has not yet answered this question.

Sticks to His Story.

Another point on which he has been questioned is as to how he could have left his home at the time he has testified and visit all the saloons of which he has told and still meet Frank at Nelson and Forsyth Streets as Frank was on his way to Montealegre's home. Frank, according to the statements of members of the Montag arm, was in their building at 12 o'clock. Yet the times which Conley has testified to going would have taken him until considerably after 12 o'clock, according to a conservative estimate.

He also has been questioned on other points in his testimony, which has been made to the fact, but he has stuck steadfastly to the story told in his last affidavit. Solicitor Dorsey has not yet been able to bring the negro in any important particulars.

Attorney Hoke Smith Story.

Attorney Luther Z. Rosser, chief counsel for Frank, made strenuous denial Wednesday that any effort had been made to connect Senator Hoke Smith with the case. A similar denial was made by Herbert Haas, associate counsel for Mr. Rosser in the department.

Neither was able to say how the rumor had started.

Frank A. Hooper, who is assisting Solicitor Dorsey in the prosecution, said that the State would be prepared Monday to fight the subpoena duces tecum issued by the lawyers for the defense. It is regarded as improbable, however, that the defense will bring the matter to an issue until the trial begins July 25.

Convict Offers to Sell His Body to The Highest Bidder

Thomas A. McCallough, a convict in the Monroe County camp, wants to sell his own body. He expresses that desire in a letter dated June 22, sent for insertion Wednesday in the Atlanta Georgian.

The usual mark, 91 degrees, was maintained through Wednesday. It was attained shortly before 10 o'clock and 81 at noon.

"It is remarkable how the same kind of weather prevails over the entire country," said G. P. Yoninger, meteorologist, "the 90 or thereabouts in Atlanta today after day, and the same nearly everywhere else. Although it seems pretty warm here, Atlanta is no hotter than other places."

"Continued fair, with possibly showers late in the afternoon," is the forecast for Thursday.

Randolph Anderson, of the First District, to the Presidency of the Senate, the election of William H. Burwell, of Hancock, to the Speakership of the House and the introduction of the preliminary gist of bills, the Georgia Legislature began its session Wednesday.

Pledges made by Senator Anderson had appeased the hostility of the "dry" throughout the State and quieted the opposition to his candidacy. He was elected to the Presidency by a unanimous vote of the members, Judge Allen's name being withdrawn.

Representative Burwell, in accepting his unanimous election to the Speakership, spoke of the need of tax reforms in the State and expressed the hope that bills would be passed which would remedy the present inequitable features of the system.

As soon as the House got down to work, the introduction of bills was begun. They had a wide range of subjects, and the indications from the first day of the session were that 50 days would be crowded with legislation.

Labor leaders issued a bitter reply to the charges made in the Governor's message.

Mercury Reaches 91; Showers May Abate Heat This Evening

The usual mark, 91 degrees, was maintained through Wednesday. It was attained shortly before 10 o'clock and 81 at noon.

"It is remarkable how the same kind of weather prevails over the entire country," said G. P. Yoninger, meteorologist, "the 90 or thereabouts in Atlanta today after day, and the same nearly everywhere else. Although it seems pretty warm here, Atlanta is no hotter than other places."

"Continued fair, with possibly showers late in the afternoon," is the forecast for Thursday.

Switchman Values His Foot at $40,000

A. L. Kirby, a former Southern Railway switchman, filed a suit for $40,000 against the company Wednesday for the loss of his foot, which he says he lost when he was caught between two cars.

Kirby said that he was standing between two tracks on which the clearance was only twelve inches when cars backing into one of the tracks damaged his leg and crushed his other track, and that he fell under the moving cars.

LABOR LEADERS SCORE MESSAGE

Representative Burwell, in accepting his unanimous election to the Speakership, spoke of the need of tax reforms in the State and expressed the hope that bills would be passed which would remedy the present inequitable features of the system.

As soon as the House got down to work, the introduction of bills was begun. They had a wide range of subjects, and the indications from the first day of the session were that 50 days would be crowded with legislation.

Labor leaders issued a bitter reply to the charges made in the Governor's message.

LEADERS NAMED WITHOUT FIGHT

The Georgia Legislature for 1913-14 was organized in both branches Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

Senator J. Randolph Anderson, of the First District, was elected President of the Senate, and Representative William H. Burwell, of Hancock County, was named Speaker of the House.

Neither man had any opposition in the balloting, and both were elected unanimously.

The rather unexpected termination of the contest for the Speakership of the House undoubtedly surprised the packed galleries and lookers-on.

Senator Spinks, who was expected to nominate Judge Allen, arose immediately after the Senate had been called to order by Secretary Northen, and instead of nominating his man, withdrew his name.

In doing this he delivered a fine and friendly little speech, praised his own man, made his opponent's name, while Judge Allen had 16 votes ready to stand by him, it was not sufficient to elect, and the Senator from the Twentieth—Judge Allen—preferred to do the graceful thing and withdraw his name.

When Senator Spinks sat down Senator Spinks arose and nominated Mr. Anderson in a speech, every bit as good as that of the one preceding it.

Rival Votes for Anderson.

When the roll was called, Allen's name came first, and when he started the balloting in favor of his vic-torious rival, he was generally applauded by his colleagues.

On assuming the chair, President Anderson delivered a brief address, particularly calling attention to the much necessary legislation that the new General Assembly likely would have to undertake.

He got a good laugh when, in a facetious manner, he referred to the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce's work on behalf of the Western and Atlantic Railroad, the State's property. He said "it evidently would not be the Legislature's work to say what should be done with that property, as the Atlanta trade body seemingly proposed taking care of that matter itself."

Senate Happy Over Outcome.

The feeling in the Senate, after the settlement of the Allen-Anderson fight was very happy. The way in which that issue was solved evidently brought a heavy load of many a Senatorial mind, and Judge Allen's fraternal attitude won many friends.

Mr. Anderson, in accepting the Presidency, said a eloquent tribute to the ability and integrity of his late opponent.

The efforts of the prohibition leaders to get into the game at the last minute seems to have been entirely futile, so far as results were concerned.

Both Senators Anderson and Allen

GOBLEY PUT ON GOLF STICKS TO STORY

Police Try in Vain to Get Him to Add Materially to His Important Affidavit.

Pursued by several of the statements of Jim Goble in regard to his part in the happenings of the day that Mary Phagan was killed, the police have resumed the questioning from which the negro has been free since he was taken to the police station by the detectives.

One point that has not been cleared up is why Conley saw every one else that went into or left the factory and yet failed to see Mary Phagan.

Conley, on Sunday, was confronted by Monteen Stover. He identified her as the girl he saw enter the factory shortly after 11 o'clock on the day of the crime. Yet he still maintains that he did not see Mary Phagan, although Mary must have entered the factory either just before or just after the Stover girl was in the building.

Conley has been unable to explain the apparently improbable circumstance. Conley at first denied that he had seen Lemmie Quinn in the factory on the Saturday of the murder. Later he said he had seen Quinn for some time before the murder, but he is not known.

What explanation is made by the negro for his failure to see the girl who is believed to be the Stover girl? The matter also is conjectural.

Mary Phagan left her home on April 18 at about 10 o'clock. It is regarded as unlikely that she reached the factory in less than 15 minutes, or at 12:15. Stover has testified that she visited the factory at about 12:10, which would be just before the murder had entered the factory. If the times testified to are correct, Conley, on this account, has been asked if he saw, from his vantage point behind the boxes, Monteen Stover enter the factory at 12:10 o'clock and Lemmie Quinn at 12:20 o'clock, and she entered in the interval between the visits of the Stover girl and Lemmie Quinn.

Stokes to His Story. Another point on which he has been questioned is as to how he could have testified at the time he has been testifying and visit all the saloons of which he has told and which he has visited at the time he has testified. Frank was on his way to Monteen Stover's factory. Frank, according to the statements of members of the building, was in their building by 10 o'clock. Yet the things that Conley has testified to doing would have taken him until considerably after 10 o'clock, according to a conservative estimate.

He also has been quizzed on other points in his testimony which appear at variance with the facts, but he has stuck to his story to the end of the trial. Solicitor Dorsey has said that he has been unable to shake the negro in any important particular.

Deny He Had Stover. Attorney Luther Z. Ross, chief counsel for Frank, made strenuous denial Wednesday that any effort had been made to connect Senator Hoke Smith with the Stover case. The denial was made by Herbert Haas, associated with Mr. Ross in the defense. Neither was able to say who the punter had started.

Frank A. Hooper, who is assisting Solicitor Dorsey in the prosecution, would be subpoenaed to start the subpoena for the defense. It is regarded as improbable, however, that the defense will bring the matter to any issue until the trial begins July 5.

50-DAY BATTLE TO BOLSHEVIZE CHANGING OPINED

Men and Religion Movement Unites With Churches and Penal Reformers in Fight.

Marion M. Jackson, of the Men and Religion Forward Movement, explained Wednesday the meaning of the "changing battle" in Tuesday's newspapers as the first gun in a 50-day warfare on a penal system "unfit to be tolerated in a free society." It was fired as the members of the Legislature were gathering for the opening of the session, and the campaign will be continued determinedly and unrelentingly until the last bill is introduced and the last vote taken.

No such plan of battle ever has been mapped out against Georgia's notorious changeables. Its strength is due to an alliance between the forces of the Men and Religion Forward Movement, which represents all of the evangelical churches of Atlanta, and the Prison Association of Georgia, which has Philip Wetner as its secretary and moving spirit.

Every church and every penal reform organization in the State will be enlisted in the fight. Sunday, July 6, will be set apart in the churches throughout Georgia for sermons and addresses to acquaint people with the conditions which are described by those who have investigated them as a disgraceful commentary on the civilization and humanity of the South's foremost Commonwealth.

And this year Mr. Wetner and Mr. Jackson will be the leading speakers of victory. They are confident that the great wave of horror that will sweep over the State at the shocking revelations will force the legislature to submit to the unmitigated sentiment of their constituents. If, indeed, they do not inaugurate a movement for reform on their own account.

A dark picture of the environment of Georgia's citizens was painted by Mr. Jackson in his opening bulletin. He said Wednesday that he has visited the State Prison, the horrors and demoralizing features. He declared that the conditions were a shame and a disgrace to any civilized State.

Brands System as Rotten. "Outside the actual physical suffering of the men and women, the mental and insupportable conditions in which they are forced to live, the whole system is rotten and demoralizing," said Mr. Jackson. "If a man goes into the changings with any manhood and goodness in his makeup he will likely be the victim of these qualities by the time he has passed through his dark-age imprisonment. Boys and first offenders, many of whom are not really bad, but who have made a mistake, a slip, are chained to the hardest criminals, and by the time they are released they have received an effective schooling in all forms of vice and crime."

"One has only to go to the changings in some of the counties to see the most vicious and heinous of crimes. Such an outrageous system is bound to bring about a revolution, which has exactly the opposite effect. The State is thus thwarting its own purpose."

Provision for Women. "Neither has Georgia made any adequate provision for its women wrongdoers and its delinquent girls. The stockade is the only place that Fulton County has to send its female offenders, and no one will attempt to say that this is a proper place to imprison a girl or a woman. "The Prison Association of Georgia, uniting the support of the Men and Religion Forward Movement, proposes to change these conditions at this session of the Legislature if possible. I am confident that which will be the case."

ANDERSON'S NUMBERS SEEN TO OPEN

Legislature Starts Its Two Month Grind--Sensational Fight by Drys Appears a Failure.

The Georgia Legislature for 1913-14 met in both branches at 10 o'clock this morning, the entire membership of the Senate and the House being present.

It was evident before the Senate was called to order that Senator J. Randolph Anderson, of the First District, likely had won his fight for the Presidency.

Up to last night this race remained very much in doubt, but this morning the impression was fixed in the minds of practically all the Senators that Anderson had "put it over" on his distinguished opponent.

The two Houses were called to order by Secretary of the Senate Charles B. Northen and Clerk of the House Charles C. Smith, of the Ninth District, looks like a winner President Pro Tem of the Senate. He is a new member of the Legislature, and within the past few days has achieved immense popularity among his colleagues. He generally is looked upon as a man for the position to which he was named.

Representative E. H. McChesney, of Marion, seems to be slated for Speaker or Pro Tem. He is an old member and appears to have won his fight handsomely.

Following the custom, Governor Queen Alexandra drove through the city.

BROWN ASKS ASSEMBLY FOR VITAL REFORMS

Governor, in Farwell Message to Legislature, Frankly Cites Needs of the State.

Governor Joseph M. Brown sent in his farewell message to the General Assembly of Georgia immediately after its organization.

The message is written in the Governor's characteristically vigorous and straightforward style, and is almost mentioned in its frankness in part, particularly in dealing with the question of union labor.

The Governor brought untimely labor up for a strong arraignment. He cited two labor strikes of recent occurrence--that of the employees of the street car company in Augusta and that of Georgia Railroad employees. Both, he declared, were wholly unjust and precipitated directly in opposition to the State laws. He set forth the union labor charges in more authority than he has ever made in any other address to the Great Seal of the Commonwealth.

The Governor declared that by the tactics it pursued in forcing wage scales up and restricting competition from non-union men, organized labor had received itself into the most widespread and aggressive striking trust in America, getting labor as whatever price it chose and using the money which assumed an anarchistic nature.

Highway Commission Urged. The Governor, after touching briefly upon several other matters, called attention to the General Assembly's attention in previous message, takes up the question of public highways, double tracking railroads, inheritance taxes, bank examiners, utility statistics and the Trucking company mine, in which the State has direct interest.

PIRANIC DEFENSE CALLS STATE'S LEADERS

Frank's Counsel Subpenas Dorsey, Beavers and Lanford. "Trick," Says Hooper.

His case has been practically complete for days. The defense has said that all of its vital witnesses have been found. There has been no intimation that a continuance will be asked unless it be for some contingency as the illness of Frank or of an important witness.

The defense has been non-committal. The attorneys have not said that they would ask for a postponement. They also have refused to say that they would not seek a delay.

Rosser Heitman, Luther Z. Rosser, Frank's attorney, has carefully avoided answering the direct question whether he would be ready for trial on that day. He has evaded a statement as to whether he would consent for the trial to begin next week.

Solicitor Hugh M. Dorsey is making his preparations for the trial on the supposition that the defense will be ready, and he will urge before the court that the case be tried on the date set. He summoned the first witnesses Monday and Tuesday, and he has the corridors filled with persons who will testify against Frank.

Both the prosecution and the defense will have last twelve witnesses attend the trial, unless by death or removal from the jurisdiction of the state the trial necessitates a continuance until this witness could attend the trial.

Attorney Arnold openly admitted that he was not able to appear in Frank's behalf when the case was called on, and would move for a continuance and would not consider going to trial on the chance of the witness appearing later.

M. Grant, one of the first to be arrested as a suspect, will be one of the most important witnesses called at the trial.

Developments since he testified at the coroner's inquest. It is understood he made his evidence of the utmost importance. He was one of the few witnesses to go before the grand jury Monday afternoon, and he was closely questioned by the grand jury in the examinations before the coroner and was made to be considered of no value.
