Remnant Day
In the Dress Goods and Silks
The Selling Starts at 9 o'clock

A remnant sale of woolens in late August is worth two in February. With children starting to school within a few weeks, with the fall season peeping around the corner of the month and all the needs for woolen dress goods that will bring, the skirts, the suits, the coats—this remnant sale immediately takes on the appearance of a fine opportunity. We have sifted stocks for this sale. Nothing that was in a length from one to five yards escaped and the result is a fine selection and a broad one, and a great saving on every yard.

Included are:

- Serges
- Herringbone Stripes
- Voiles
- Basket Weaves
- Whipcords
- Diagonals
- Challis
- Checked Worsteds
- Eoliennes
- Chevits
- Batistes
- Broadcloths

Many colors and combinations of colors and black.

One-Third, One-Half and More

The Silks

Surprising quantities have accumulated within the last few weeks. They must be disposed of. There is no room for them in this big store, particularly now that so much new merchandise is coming in, and what worthy kinds these remnants are.

- Poplins
- Foulards
- Crepe Metears
- Kimono Silks
- Messallines
- Crepe de Chines
- Marquissettes
- Wash Silks
- Satins
- Taffetas
- Chiffons

Lengths from one-half yard to nine yards.

Regular Prices Are Reduced
One-Third, One-Half and More

None sent C. O. D. or on approval. None will be exchanged.

An added attraction to the Silk Remnants is $1.00 Wash Silks at 69c a yard, 33 inches wide, and you may choose from white with black, blue, gray or lilac stripes. No question about how they will look after a tubbing.

LINK BY LINK, FRANK DEFENDER HEWS AWAY AT STATE'S THEORIES

In a cold, cutting arraignment of the methods used to build up a case against Leo M. Frank, accused of the murder of Mary Phagan, Reuben Arnold, of the accused man's defense, Thursday afternoon unsurprisingly fayed Jim Conley as a perjurer and willing tool in the hands of men determined to convict an innocent man.

Arnold's attack mined no words. It bristles with scathing denunciation and bitter ridicule. Its impassioned appeal was interperred with arid humor that made a hostile court room laugh. But its humor was only in flashes. Otherwise it fairly rang with accusation and denunciation.

Arnold charged that the state had deliberately perverted every innocent action into a circumstance pointing to guilt. Link by link, he hewed away at the prosecution's chain.

He ridiculed the theory of a premeditated attack, declaring that none but God could have known that Mary Phagan was to call for her pay on Saturday—a holiday. He said the State's attempt to prove premeditation was but an instance of its many "wild guesses."

From time to time Arnold centered his attack on Conley. He said that he had never heard of a witness who was so thoroughly convicted of lying being put forward as one to be believed.

His address followed a scathing arraignment of Frank by Frank A. Hooper, who opened the argument for the State and demanded the conviction of the defendant on the plea that the evidence presented left no other conclusion than of Frank's guilt.

Charges Efforts To Make Time Agree.

Directing his remarks as much to the counsel for the State as to the twelve men in the jury box, Arnold charged that in order to place Frank's life in jeopardy, Solicitor Dorsey and his colleagues, Hooper, had gone to the extreme length of assuming on the one hand that the street car on which Mary Phagan came to town was several minutes ahead of time and on the other, that the clock at the factory was five or ten minutes behind time.

They had established by their own witness, George Epps, he said, that Mary arrived in town at 12:07 o'clock and then forthwith had started out to destroy Epps' testimony and arouse the assumption that she got in town at 12:02 or 12:03.

Arnold was only well started on his address when recess came at 12:30. He began a review of all of the circumstances preceding and following the crime as soon as court opened in the afternoon.

Through all the day Frank's mother and wife sat by him. The younger Mrs. Frank sat much of the time with her arm linked with that of her husband. Very little change in the appearance of the three persons was observable. Frank smiled slightly when Hooper satirically was describing Frank's actions at the Selig home Saturday night when he is said to have interrupted a card game which was in progress by the relation of a funny story he had read in a magazine.

Hooper Emphasizes Gant's Trip to Factory.

Mr. Hooper emphasized various features of the State's case that had not been clearly brought out before, dwelling particularly on the incident of J. M. Gant's visit to the factory on the afternoon of the tragedy and how Frank had at first refused to let him enter, and how the accused man had called up Newt Lee, the watchman, later, (after, said Hooper, that Gant had discovered something.

After Hooper had finished his argument he began presenting authorities to the judge to guide him in making his charge to the jury. He declared that the jury should not be charged that direct evidence was superior to circumstantial evidence.

Before Thursday's session began Frank had expressed himself as an entirely confident of his outcome.

"I am certain that I will be acquitted and set right before the world," he said. "It has been a terrible ordeal, but I await the outcome with the utmost confidence."

"May it please your honor and brethren of the jury," began Mr. Hooper, "the object of this trial, as of all other cases, is the ascertaining of truth and the attainment of justice. I want to distinctly impress upon you the correctness of our position. We want it distinctly understood that we are not seeking a verdict of guilty unless this man is guilty."

2 DEAD IN FIGHT WITH KILLERS AT CHURCH

As a result of a knife battle fought within a few yards of the doors of the New Hope Church, in Cobb County, three miles out of Atlanta, after prayer meeting Wednesday night, two men are dead, one is probably fatally wounded and a fourth is held by a coroner's verdict on a charge of murder.

The dead are Fred Lemmings and John Harper. John Harper has wounds in a shoulder and leg and is in a hospital in Atlanta.

Fred Harper is held by the coroner's jury charged with killing Lemmings.

The trouble between the Harpers and the Lemmings dates back to the last year, at the Cobb County Superior Court, when Charles Lemmings, a brother of Fred Lemmings, was sentenced to the chain gang on a charge of corrupting women.

The Lemmings clan asserted that he was not guilty, but had been railroaded to the chain gang through false testimony.

Wednesday night the warring clans met at the doors of New Hope Church, the warring families met almost 12:30. Hooper, who presided, declared the benediction and the congregation filed slowly out of the little church, the warring families met almost 12:30. and found something. They found the body of little Mary Phagan usually murdered, the cold body lying on the ground where it had been left by Jim Conley to burn.

"Jim had taken his man, though, and had not come back. The policeman took the body to the undertaker establishment, and all day long they started to get up Frank's case. And when they got him he was anxious to know if there had been a fire, and reflections, aside from the conversation that took place, every officer and every man who was with him that morning, will tell you that he was nervous; that he was shaking like a leaf; that he rubbed his hands and was completely flustered with nervousness.

"But, gentlemen, he is a wonderful man. Though he is a good man, and quivered that Sunday night, not one of you can say that during this trial you have seen him quiver once. He is as calm and cool as any man in the courthouse, to all intents and purposes.

"That the morning after the crime he was as weak as a cat. He was nervous; he was trembling like a leaf. The people in the audience on the way to the undertaking establishment for him tremble.

Slide Up Time
Slip to Jury.
"What was his conduct when he got down there to the morgue? He did not look on his victim on whom he had had joyful eyes for weeks. He felt; he could not pay the proper respect to a dead body. He went behind a curtain, a place where he had no business to go. He rushed out and waited for the next man.

"Did he identify her? No; he said he thought it was the girl he had paid off the day before. He had to go back to the records; he had to look up and see what her name was. Still he had seen her every day as he passed the machine where she worked.

"It was the same girl the called Mary; it was the same girl he tried to engage in conversation; it was the same girl on whose shoulder he placed the blame.

"What did he do with the time slip that was put in the next before? He said, after looking at it, that it was properly punched. Others looking over his shoulder agreed to it. Darcy himself agreed to the error."

"At this point Attorney Hooper produced the time slip which he held up before the jury.

"There weren't any marks on it then," he concluded. "Frank said it was perfect. It told the night watchman: 'If you didn't do it, West? But he found that he was getting himself in trouble.

Bloody Shirt
Also Exhibited.
"He asked himself why he had not anything about the slip until he had had time to fix it up.

"The next day comes Holloway, his right hand man, says that he had the slip, and that it had two missons on it. Frank made some remarks about West's case.

"John Black, suspecting that the negro might know something about the crime, went out to New Lee's house and in a trash barrel he found this.

"The bloody shirt was held up by Hooper before the jury.
"Somebody had to plant a shirt out at New Lee's somebody did plant a shirt out at New Lee's.

"Did you notice how minutely Frank described his movements all day Sunday and all his Sunday night? That struck me as very suspicious.

"New Lee said that in a machine made shirt it is not mine, and if it is a home-made shirt it is mine. And behold! it was a home-made shirt.

"These remarkable discoveries were made in the shirt was found. You will find that the blood is on both sides of the shirt. And not in corresponding places.

"There is only one explanation: It was used to wipe up a pool of blood. It did not have the distinctive negro odor; it had not been washed. The buttons holes and had not been opened up since it came from the laundry.

'Willing and Anxious To Sacrifice Negro.'
"Remember please that that morning this defendant had brought up a time slip with some showing that New Lee had not made all the buttons. Gentlemen, he was willing and anxious to have that negro's life sacrificed to save himself.

"The Bible says: 'What will a man not give for his life?' He was willing to give up Conley, but never a word he said against Conley. Conley was his friend and associate. That poor negro got arrested for wearing a shirt to go to Frank's trial.

"Frank never accused him until the New Lee returns and the other scenes had fallen through. As a result the defense has thrown his whole attack on Conley.

"There is one other thing I want to mention—that big stick and the little piece of paper found by the above smart Pinkerton detectives who can find anything, even an elephant, on it. These were found by the numerous searches, weeks after the murder.

"Unfortunately they showed the slip of paper to Mr. and Mrs. Coleman, but there was a figure '9' on this slip of paper found by the above part of Mary Phagan's pay envelope.

"When they came on the stand with that evidence, the figure '9' had been conveniently removed. It fitted the amount Mary Phagan drew that week. Hooper says the wound on Mary Phagan's head could not have been made with a stick like they exhibited. No scientific tests for blood were made on it. Yet the defense introduced it as the possible weapon that caused her death.

'Where Is Mincey?'
Hooper Asks.
"An inquiry has been made about a man named Mincey. Conley went on the stand and was asked if he did not make certain statements to Mincey about killing a girl. The only purpose of these questions was to introduce Mincey to clear up this whole affair.

"My recollection was he was brought into the courtroom and sworn with the other witnesses.
"Hooper: 'You are mistaken.'
"Hooper: 'I may be, but where is Mincey? It is the whole fight was to about him. Frank was to be cleared, Conley convicted. But there had not been one word from him.

DAUGHTER OF JUROR WAITING TO SEE 'PAPA'

Mrs. Louise Wishey, whose father is on the Frank Trial Jury.

GEORGE'S GREATEST PROBLEM IS TO KEEP HIS EYES CLOSE

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

The evidence in the Frank case all has been delivered; the last word has been spoken, both for and against the defendant, so far as the witnesses are concerned.

It only remains for the lawyers to argue the matter to the jury—and then, after the court has given the jury the law in charge, they will remain only the verdict to record.

The most complex, intricate and mysterious murder case in the entire criminal history of Georgia is now in the hands of the jury.

It is doubtful whether any of us ever shall see the like of the Frank trial again.

Lawyers give it as their opinion that it has been in a dozen or more ways, the most extraordinary proceeding ever coming under their observation—and certainly the newspapers of the state never have been called upon to handle a story so amazingly strange in its varied and confusing ramifications.

The Phagan case as a such it will go down in history rather than the Frank case, which combined within itself all that goes to make for intense and instant heart interest in a case.

It has revealed about a sweet little working girl, tragically and cruelly and brutally killed—murdered in the first flush of youth and promising womanhood, who probably never saw and whose name still not come propounding, why that awful fate should have come upon her so suddenly and so unaccountably.

It has involved the honor and the home happiness of a young business man, the character of unblemished integrity and standing in one of the most prominent citizens of the city who has stormed about two households, and who has been accused of murdering a girl.

It has concerned itself with the habits and the life of a wife and has brought into view the life of the man who has been accused of murdering a girl.

problem of the jury which and how they would be simplified mentally.

But to expect the jury to separate its mind from the case, to say that Frank is an answer for it is almost to expect of it the impossible—the supernatural.

Jury but a Part of the Public.
The big case played against Frank was the same as that which is open to the public to do that—and, after that, to say that the jury is not a portion of the public, made more careful in forming its verdict than the rest of the public, is to say that it has taken, but merely a portion of the great public which is open to the case.

Upon his astonishing story turns the trial, and it is to be expected that the jury will be called upon to make a charge of murder, and Conley it was that first spoke the word of judgment, who has made Frank's case a case of the most extraordinary character.

Arnold Opens Argument Charging Persecution

When Attorney Arnold arose to speak he asked for the paper model of the pencil factory. The model was brought in and placed before the jury.

"Settlement of the jury" Arnold began. "We are to be congratulated that this case is drawing to a close. We have all suffered at trying a case requiring so much effort, time and concentration as such had never. We have suffered for lack of adequate quarters, and from the waters from the street.

"A man's physical surroundings has a good deal to do with how he can do his work. I never could do good work when I was uncomfortable. And it has been especially hard for you jury men, what if you are, but that has always been so. You are set upon a hill, as it were, where the wind of the multitude does not reach you, away from the gay things men do and think and feel.

"The jury system has been in use a long time. It is not a new thing in the country of Europe, adopted from the English system. In the old days trained judges tried cases; they heard all the facts and were supposed to be able to tell when a man was not doing his work. I never could do good work when I was uncomfortable. And it has been especially hard for you jury men, what if you are, but that has always been so. You are set upon a hill, as it were, where the wind of the multitude does not reach you, away from the gay things men do and think and feel.

2 KILLED IN KNIFE WAR AT CHURCH

Fight With Knives Near Marietta
Fatal to Fred Lemmings and John Elroy.

As a result of a knife battle fought within a few yards of the doors of the New Hope Church in Cobb County, three lives out of Marietta, Ga., were lost Wednesday night. Fred Lemmings, 27, and John Elroy, 24, were probably fatally wounded and a fourth is held by a coroner's verdict on a charge of murder.

The dead are Fred Lemmings and John Elroy. John Harper, has wounds in a shoulder and lung and is in a serious condition.

Fred Harper is held by the coroner's jury charged with killing Lemmings.

Witnesses who attended the church service and the coroner's jury, the Lemmings dates back to the fact that the Cobb County Sheriff, Fred Harper, when Charles Lemmings, a brother of Fred Lemmings, was sentenced to the penitentiary for a charge of carrying a dangerous weapon.

Wednesday night the warring clan met at the doors of New Hope Church. When the pastor pronounced the benediction and the congregation filed slowly out of the little church, the warring families met almost directly in front of the doors. The words were exchanged. Knives flashed and the battle began amid the screams of the women and children and the shrieks of male members of the congregation.

Fred Lemmings received a fatal wound within a few minutes after the fight began, and then the battle raged about his dead body. John Elroy, who was taken in custody when officers overtook Harper and an innocent over Lemmings had been convicted. McElroy died this morning.

DIGGS OULTS THAT'S HIS HOPE AS S. AVER; LES IN R.R. FIGHTS ON

Convicted on Four Counts and Facing a Twenty-Year Term,
Californian Plans Appeal.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 21.—Marry L. Diggs, state architect at 35 and now but 31 years of age, convicted on a charge of violating the Mann white slave act for transporting Sarah Warrington from one state to another for immoral purposes, will be sentenced September 3. His attorney announced today that they will appeal the case.

It was the unanimous opinion of the twelve jurors before whom he was tried that he was guilty on each of the six counts in the indictment. Under the law the maximum penalty is five years in the penitentiary, $1,000 fine, or both, on each count.

Next Tuesday P. Drew Cammilleri, chief of United States Commissioner of Immigration Camp, will go on trial in the same court-room as Diggs. He is charged with luring Diggs to Reno, Nev.

Child sleeps in court. While Diggs was facing conviction his little daughter Evelyn slept peacefully in the courtroom, in which she had propped through the day. His young wife sat her lips and tried to look brave. His father and mother bowed their heads and wept to see in their seats as the minutes of the jury's deliberation dragged.

On the other two counts there was a long wrangle and finally disagreement. These were: That Diggs induced, persuaded and advised Sarah Warrington to go with him to Reno for immoral purposes; and that he induced, persuaded and advised Lela Norris to go to Reno with P. Drew Cammilleri for immoral purposes.

Prosecutor Hoche, following the return of the verdict, said that the United States Supreme Court has held that a person is technically guilty of violating the Mann white slave act if he transports a woman to go to another state, even to take a dance hall contending that this woman is now under sentence to the penitentiary.

DAUGHTER OF JUROR WAITING TO SEE 'PAPA'

Margaret Louise Wisbey, whose father is on the Frank Trial Jury.

After a restless night, Thaw was a hearty breakfast and made an elaborate toilet. With the self-consciousness which always has characterized his actions, he took extreme care with his dress, knowing that he would see the gazette of thousands of eyes on the racket-rite held from the courtroom to the courtroom.

Chafes at Daley. Thaw, who has three lawyers, Colonel H. D. Fraser, W. L. Shurtleff and C. D. White, took the stand that they were running the defense, and told Thaw that he was to consent to their own opinion. Thaw chafed under delay, but finally admitted that it would be better to be guided by legal talent more fully acquainted with Canadian law than he.

The third count alleged that he purchased a ticket for Sarah Warrington, and the fourth that he purchased a ticket for Lela Norris. Unable to Agree on Two Counts. On the other two counts there was a long wrangle and finally disagreement.

Investigate Through Ticket. District Attorney E. A. Conroy, Dutchess County, New York, which Matthews is located, was unable to see Thaw until today, although Sheriff Hornbeck, also of Dutchess County, who arrived here with Mr. Conroy, was able to get to the prisoner. Hornbeck has in his pocket a warrant charging Thaw with conspiring against the peace and dignity of the State of New York to escape from the State asylum at Matteawan.

PRISONER STOOGLY CALMS AS STATE ASKS FOR DEATH PENALTY

A vigorous plea to the jury for the conviction of Leo M. Frank, accused of the murder of Mary Phagan, was begun today morning by Frank A. Hooper, associated with Solicitor General, who is the State's greatest criminal trial.

Frank never flinched under the attack. He looked unshakably at Hooper as the State's attorney asked for his life. He was as cool as ever—once again the state prisoner.

Before Thursday's session began Frank had expressed himself as entirely confident of the outcome.

"I am certain that I will be acquitted and set right before the world," he said. "It has been a terrible ordeal, but I await the outcome with the utmost confidence."

"I am sure you will have no objection to my being set free," he said. "I am sure you will have no objection to my being set free."

CLAYTON BAR TO CREEK BREEDING Will Make Official Request to County Board So Peachtree Work May Be Taken Up

Denial that Captain Robert M. Clayton, chief of construction, has made official request that the County Board of Commissioners rush the opening of the new sewage disposal plant has been made by Commissioner Thomas Wain.

The members of the board have read in the newspapers interviews from Clayton in which he urged the work, said Commissioner Wain, but we have never been notified officially.

It is personal conversation with every member of the board, he said, to have urged the importance of the work and personally went before the board emphasizing the fact that the removal of the accumulated driftwood from the bed of Peachtree Creek is necessary to the successful operation of the new sewage plant.

However, in order to remove all doubt and get the work started as soon as possible, I will call a meeting of the board of the necessity of the work, and invite the co-operation. I also will take the matter up with the Board of Commissioners.

Chairman Quillian of the City and County Board of Commissioners said that the meeting of the commission at once and the formal action on the matter will be taken up at the next meeting of the Board of Commissioners.

GEORGIA'S GREATEST MURDER TRIALS ITS FAIRER CLOSE

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

The evidence in the Frank case all has been delivered; the last word has been spoken, both for and against the defendant, so far as the witnesses are concerned.

It only remains for the lawyers to state the matter to the jury—and then, after the court has given the jury the law in charge, there will remain only the verdict to record.

The most complex, difficult, elusive and mysterious murder case in the entire criminal history of Georgia is nearing its end.

It is doubtful whether any of us ever shall see the like of the Frank trial again.

Lawyers give it as their opinion that it has been in its details as many ways, the most extraordinary proceeding ever coming under their observation—and certainly the most papers of the State never have been called upon to handle a story so amazingly strange in varied and sometimes astonishing ramifications.

The Phagan case—for as such it will go down in history, rather than as the Frank case—has combined within itself all that goes to make for intense and indelible heart-interest.

It has revolved about a sweet little, smiling girl, tragically, cruelly and brutally killed—murdered in the first flush of youth and promising greatness, who probably would have been a woman of the first rank, and it knowing, still not comprehending, why that awful fate should have come upon her so suddenly and so unaccountably.

It has involved the honor and the home happiness of a young business man, destroyer of unblemished integrity and standing in one of the most cultured cities in the world.

It has concerned two households equally unenvying within their selves; it has concerned the wife and the love of two mothers, and it has made to bleed the heart of a wife and has brought sorrow unexpressed to the minds of hundreds of loving friends, both of the accused man and the dead girl.

Sleeping prejudice aroused. It has, with acrid emphasis, suppressed but unmistakable, made manifest, deep-seated prejudices and distinctions—gathered as it swept along many things foreign to the real point of issue, until the one big stake the cards must settle presently has, all lines, been completely lost sight of, and even now is not easy to locate with certainty.

The Phagan case has run the entire scale of human emotions—there is little by way of elation or grim appeal that has not been, somehow and somehow, injected into it.

But, after all is said and done, perhaps the matter has been thrashed out thus far in the light of the best intelligence that might have been applied to it.

At times, fate has seemed all too kind to the defendant; at times the State has seemed unduly reticent from proceeding as it thought it had a right to proceed.

Undoubtedly things have been said and done by both sides to the Frank trial that are not easy to forget.

FORMER EMPLOYEES WHO ATTACK FRANK MISS MYRTICE CATO.

MISS MYRTICE CATO.

It is that as strict matters of law and justice, never should have been said or done.

Frank has had to answer not to the charge of murder alone—as the judgment contemplated be should—but to two charges.

The one matter, ignominious death if sustained, the other means a worse than ignominious life thereafter in the penitentiary.

In a measure too, the charge of murder has been allowed up and obscured by the other monstrous charge—and yet one can hardly see wherein the defense may complain of that, in that the second charge got into the record with the consent of the defense, if not by its invitation.

State Held With Even Hand. Judge Ross—and in this, at least, I think the public is agreed, has tried the level best to hold the balance even. If there be error in his rulings, they have been errors of the head and not of the heart. I take it, and error or no, he has maintained an impartiality of legal fact, so to speak. And he will continue through unswayed and unswayed.

What effect upon the jury the evidence will have is a highly speculative and problematical.

If the jury were not composed of human beings and could condemn itself to those things alone it has been legally held to, the pathway to acquittal of Frank might seem brighter.

But the trial has been so long drawn out, so full of perplexing details, so wearying and tiring to simple analysis, so mixed as to issue, and so disconcerting in sequence of testimony, that one is at a loss to imagine just what the jury MUST think of it all now.

In strict legal aspect, the case against Leo Frank, while wonderful, will hold together and set forth by the Solicitor General, still is not such a case as would prompt one to predict sure conviction.

Not, however, is the defendant born of a nature warranting a prediction of sure acquittal.

If the technical legal case could be differentiated in the mind of the jury from the probational case—the grounds could be combined strictly to the primary tale, murder, and not in any manner confused with the other unmitigated issues brought into the case—the probable finding of the jury would be rather to acquit and to forward.

If Frank might have been tried for murder, pure and simple, NOW, and LAYTER, tried for the other thing, the problem of the jury might, and doubtless would be simplified immensely.

But to expect the jury to separate in its mind entirely the two things Frank is answerer for is almost, if not quite, the impossible—the superhuman!

Copy but a Part of the Public. It has been seemingly impossible for the public to do that, and, after all is said and done, the jury is but a portion of the public, whose careful in forming its opinions, to be sure, by the solemn oath it has never knowing exactly what to think there is but one thing human beings of normal minds and poles can do.

They must await the verdict with minds prepared to accept it as the truth—the very best human ingenuity and the forms of law can establish by way of justice and right.

Either an acquittal or a conviction—the one final, and the other a matter to be reviewed—would be the finish of this trial most satisfactory to the public.

And that any man SHOULD desire, indeed, that any honest man CAN desire—is that the truth be recorded in the Frank case, in the light of reason, common sense and justice, as man is given the light to see.

Only the defendant and the State have much at stake—the one has his life and his liberty, the other has the majority of the law, which in the protection of the lives and liberties of all, that aim of commission and aim of omission marked the progress of the trial from both sides.

But that, and none of that, gets away from the fact that the trial has been a fair and square one, might have been expected—and whatever the verdict, no man will have the right to say that undue favor has been shown.

The verdict of the jury—twelve good men and true—that the public should be prepared to accept, loyally and sincerely, as the TRUTH of the Phagan murder, in so far as Leo Frank is concerned therein.

Rancher Buried Alive By Mexican Rebels

HAN FRANCISCO, CAL., Aug. 31.—Another ill-fated arrival from Mexico is Sydney M. Sutherland, from Mexico City. He said:

"I made my daily commutes in Mexico which it would be difficult to credit in this country. The so-called revolutionists, who are nothing but outlaws, have done things to their own countrymen and to foreigners which Americans can scarcely believe possible in this age."

He told of seeing an aged ranch owner buried alive by revolutionists.

U.S. EXPORTS TO CANADA GAIN 200 MILLION

Remarkable Increase in Trade Is Cited as Proof of Need For Reciprocity.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—The need of reciprocity with Canada was strikingly shown in a report issued today by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

The report sets forth that despite the high tariff wall between the United States and the Dominion that territory during the fiscal year just ended was the world's largest purchaser in the market of the United States.

The total value of United States exports for 1913 was $115,000,000 against $111,000,000 in 1912.

"Manufactures," says the report, "form about two-thirds of the American merchandise exported to Canada, and were the chief factor in the remarkable rate by which trade has practically doubled in three years."

Under the broad reciprocity agreement entered by Mr. Wilson three years ago, tariffs on the mutual exchange of the commodities of the United States and Canada have been reduced to such an extent that the Dominion imports would have far exceeded the exports of the United States.

A Closing Argument. Steps were taken to-night to bring the report to the attention of the Congress as the most convincing argument yet advanced for the enactment of a law of reciprocity between the United States and Canada.

It was pointed out that inasmuch as the tariff reductions in the United States and Canada would have been increased to such an extent that the Dominion imports would have far exceeded the exports of the United States, it was suggested that the United States should have been granted reciprocity with the Dominion.

Through the drastic reductions in the present tariff wall, Canada has virtually got all the advantages proposed by reciprocity, without making return to the United States.

She will be able to purchase more from the United States, while the American consumer will be able to get Canadian goods at a lower price than those imported from the Dominion.

Passenger and freight cars imported from the United States to Canada increased in value from $40,000,000 in 1912 to $100,000,000 in 1913. The export of automobiles to the Dominion was $1,000,000 in 1912, increasing to $12,000,000 in 1913.

Other items of value exported to Canada, such as iron and steel, increased from less than $1,000,000 in 1912 to $10,000,000 in 1913. The export of iron and steel to the Dominion was $1,000,000 in 1912, increasing to $10,000,000 in 1913.

The gain in raw materials and manufactures was less pronounced. The actual gain in exports from the Dominion to the United States for the fiscal year 1913 was $10,000,000, as compared with $8,000,000 in 1912. The gain in imports from the United States to the Dominion for the fiscal year 1913 was $100,000,000, as compared with $110,000,000 in 1912.

According to Canadian figures, the United States supplied 43 per cent of the imports of Canada in 1913 against 34 per cent in 1912.

The growth in the import trade with Canada is less striking, the total being $100,000,000, as compared with only $110,000,000 in 1912.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian, LONDON, Aug. 31.—A committee of the exclusive Marlborough Club decided recently to have a ladies night once a week, on which members might bring ladies to dinner, with a quiet little game of cards afterward.

A resolution was submitted to King George, who has absolute authority in all such matters, as the club was founded by King Edward, and he approved it.

Last week, however, the King notified the club that on second thought he withdrew his approval.

It is said Queen Mary caused the King to change his mind.

FRANK DENIES CLOSE IN FRANK TRIAL Prisoner On Stand Again; Case Nears Jury

LEAD MADE RECALL DEFI

Fans at Ball Game Fight Over When And How to 'Root'

Goodies Yancy, secretary of the State Prison Commission, and widely known throughout the State, was fined $1.50 by Recorder Two Tom Preston Wednesday as the result of an outbreak of enthusiasm at the ball game Tuesday, which culminated in a fight in the grandstand between Yancy and J. W. Warr, an agent for a drug sundries house, who lives at the Imperial Hotel.

In court Mr. Yancy, who is well along in years, declared that Warr had cast reflections on his ability to root.

Warr, who was sitting two rows down in front of Yancy, said that the Commissioner had struck him first.

According to Policeman King, who separated the two, the difficulty arose when Warr declared that the Atlanta team should be placed in the cellar.

"Knacker!" shouted the loyal Commissioner.

"You are too old to root," answered Warr, "so way back and at it was."

Yancy struck Warr and was attacked by the agent.

The two were served with charges and allowed to see the game through.

DORSEY SNAPPED IN ACTION IN HOT CLASH AT TRIAL

SOLICITOR HUGH DORSEY.

FRANK DENIES THAT HE KNEW DEAD GIRL; DEFENDS EMPLOYEE

The end of the trial of Leo M. Frank, except for the arguments, came at 5:14 Wednesday afternoon. The State closed its case at 4:10, and as soon as certain pieces of documentary evidence had been submitted by Solicitor Dorsey the defense began its brief rebuttal.

The arguments will begin at 9 o'clock Thursday morning. Judge Ross said that he did not propose to cut the attorneys in the length of their speeches. So much evidence has been submitted that the judge did not think the attorneys should be bound.

U. S. Envoy Went to President's Room at Midnight and Forced Retraction.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian, ATLANTA, Aug. 20.—The action of how President Huerta sent an ultimatum to the United States Embassy Monday night demanding the immediate recognition of Mexico by the United States was told today for the first time.

President Huerta, in replying to the note from President Wilson, directing suspension of the recognition of Mexico, rejected all President Wilson's proposals and declared that the Mexican regime must be recognized by the United States within twelve hours.

The Mexican Ministers knew the contents of the note, having had a hand in its formation. Acting Mexican Minister Gamboa objected to the aggressive tone, but War Minister Blanes Irigoyen thought that the tone of the note was no stronger than the occasion demanded.

Accordingly this note, which had all the qualifications of an international ultimatum, was transmitted to the United States Embassy, Mr. O'Shaughnessy, and John Lind, the special envoy from President Wilson, took no time in breaking the news to the United States.

The note was transmitted to the United States recognized Mexico.

"I must see President Huerta at once," declared Mr. Lind.

Word was sent to President Huerta.

Despite the fact that the special envoy had not been invited to the National Palace, because of the fact that the hour was nearly midnight, Mr. Lind and Mr. O'Shaughnessy jumped into an automobile and sped to the National Palace.

Lights were blazing in the presidential suite so the bold visitors knew that Huerta was at home, but was he at home? That was the important question.

Mr. O'Shaughnessy was recognized by the sentries at the gate, but they turned questioning eyes upon Mr. Lind who stood impatiently awaiting entrance.

"Is official business?" he asked, and the President's declared the Charge d'Affaires.

After a slight delay the men were permitted to enter the visitor's chamber. Almost immediately Huerta appeared. The President had discarded his military uniform and was dressed in civilian attire.

Take plainly to Huerta.

In spite of the infringement on diplomatic usage, Mr. Lind proceeded bravely to enter upon his diplomatic mission. He told Huerta of the disastrous consequences which must necessarily follow the transmission of the ultimatum to Washington.

"Be forcefully did he talk that the hard lines of determination in the old soldier's face relaxed and he listened patiently with few interruptions. Huerta got up and paced up and down the room as he replied. He said that he believed the course of the United States would wreck the Mexican Government, but that he did not want to give his already impoverished country into the hands of the Wilson note, although no means of recognition could induce that.

The President, rendered unconvinced, did not move for hours until a series of convulsions started, resulting in his death.

M'NAUGHTON IS GIVEN RESPIRE OF MONTH

Dr. W. J. McNaughton, convicted of murdering Fred Pianders in Savannah three years ago, and sentenced to the State Prison, today was granted a respite of one month by Governor Slaton Wednesday morning.

The respite was granted because the Governor will be away during the next ten days and will therefore not have sufficient time to consider the case before the date set for the execution of the condemned man.

All evidence and papers in the case have been in the hands of the State Prison Commission for several weeks, but no action will be taken now.

All of September probably will be devoted to considering the case and the Governor will probably not return until the first of October.

The respite will be granted until the first of October.

DEPRIVED USE OF JAIL

ANNISTON, Aug. 20.—The first sale of 1913 cotton was held today by Dr. W. J. McNaughton.

The sale brought a total of $12,078.

Frank took the stand just before adjournment, and made a statement in rebuttal of several of the charges of improper conduct that had been made against him in the State's rebuttal. He made positive denial that he ever had gone into the dressing room on the fourth floor with Miss Rebecca Carson, a foreigner, defending her character, and asserted again that he did not know Mary Phagan by name.

"The statement of that Turner boy is false," he declared. "The testimony of two young women that they heard me call Mary Phagan by her first name is a mistake. I did not know her name, and could not have called her either 'Mary' or 'Miss Phagan.'"

"I may have spoken to her. I speak to most of the employees."

"The statement that I entered the dressing room with Miss Rebecca Carson is utterly false. It is untrue to the young lady. I never saw her. I never saw her. I never saw her."

The strong probability Wednesday night was that Frank's fate would be in the hands of the jurors late Thursday or some time during Friday's session.

The close of the State's case was marked by a severe grilling of Detective J. V. Starnes by Attorney Rosser. The lawyer tried to make it appear that Starnes had kept Minnie McKnight locked up and had given her the third degree until she finally had released the amiable incriminating Frank in order to obtain her release.

Dorsey put in evidence statements of Miss Hattie Hall, Wade Campbell, Minnie McKnight and other of the defense's witnesses, who had sworn differently to the stand than they had at the Coroner's inquest on the body.

Dorsey put in evidence statements of Miss Hattie Hall, Wade Campbell, Minnie McKnight and other of the defense's witnesses, who had sworn differently to the stand than they had at the Coroner's inquest on the body.

Dr. W. J. McNaughton, convicted of murdering Fred Pianders in Savannah three years ago, and sentenced to the State Prison, today was granted a respite of one month by Governor Slaton Wednesday morning.

The respite was granted because the Governor will be away during the next ten days and will therefore not have sufficient time to consider the case before the date set for the execution of the condemned man.

DORSEY FIGHTS TO BOLSTER UP R. HARRIS EVIDENCE

Ends His Case With Hard Assault On Defense; Leo Frank Testifies Again

covered three or four times to her knowledge.

Mrs. Carson was called by the prosecutor and indignantly denied that she had seen anyone over the road place.

Saw Frank Lay Hand

On Mary's Shoulder.

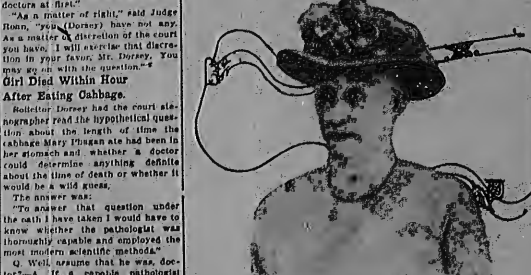

Of even greater importance, however, was the testimony of Miss Dewey Howell, who swore that Frank was in the habit of taking freely to Mary Phagan that he called her by name, and that she stood close to her and held his hand familiarly on her shoulder. She was not able to relate the subject of the conversation which she was cross-examined, she did not know that Frank might have been talking about his work.

Miss Ruth Johnson corroborated the Howell girl in her testimony. Miss Howell was brought from the home of the Good Shepherd in Cincinnati to testify against Frank. Neither was able to say that Frank had been anything improper.

LEO FRANK'S MOTHER ON HER WAY TO COURT

business with you—A. I could not say.

Q. Did Frank send a telegram through your company on April 11?—A. I have one dated April 11.

Q. "I made a mistake," said Dorsey, "on April 11. I just put him up because he said he could not bring anything except in court." The witness was excused.

Q. G. Peoples, of the Western Union Telegraph Company, was called.

Q. Did the Western Union Telegraph Company have any telegrams sent by Leo Frank on April 11?—A. Yes.

Q. Did your company have any telegrams sent by Leo Frank on April 11?—A. Yes.

Q. Let us have these telegrams.

Dorsey looked at the telegrams and said:

"Your honor, these are not signed by Frank and I don't care to introduce them."

Q. Did you have any other telegrams?

Q. What are some of the other possible factors?—A. It is my theory that if a man has a stomach ailment, it is very common for him to have a headache.

Q. What did they say, then?—A. I said there were probable factors in the cut of the head or irregularity.

Q. Well, how would that affect digestion?—A. It would affect the circulation of the blood of the digestive tract.

Q. What did you mean by mechanical conditions?—A. The thickness of the stomach, the size and the general appearance.

Q. Do you consider the color test reliable?—A. Yes.

Q. It depends entirely on the eye of the man?—A. Not exactly.

Q. If a man were color blind would it affect the test?—A. Why, of course.

Endless Process

Seem by Arnold.

"It is to be allowed," said Arnold, "it will mean that it is to be simply an endless process. I never knew of a man who had a stomach ailment who was not arrested to call all the medical experts he wishes to bolster up the testimony of the experts he had called in."

The argument that the testimony of Dr. Harris was not admissible because it was not given in the presence of the jury was also made.

Dr. Harris was called to the stand and testified that he had been present at the trial of Leo Frank.
