MYSTERY IN THAW FEARS FATAL RAIL CRASH

One Dead, Scores in Peril in Unexplained Wreck on Georgia Road--Atlanta Hurt.

The exact cause of the wreck on the Georgia Railroad near Decatur early Sunday morning in which one negro was killed, two white women were seriously injured and a score or more passengers were shaken up, was still a mystery Monday.

According to reports at St. Joseph hospital Monday morning, Mrs. George Matheson of Peachtree Road, Atlanta, and Mrs. R. T. Cross of Charlotte, N. C., who were seriously injured, are resting well and will recover.

The dead negro is Max Smith, of Lithonia. Smith's death appears to be the only one.

The wreck occurred just as the passenger train was pulling out of Atlanta, where the regular stop is made.

The impact of the freight train, which heavily loaded cars, resulted in the demolition of the Pullman car, the engine plowing itself in under the Pullman car.

THAW FEARS KIDNAPING SCHEME

Instructs Lawyers to Have Special Guard--Expects To Be Back in United States This Week.

SIERRHROCKS, QUE., Aug. 25--"Harry K. Thaw will be back upon United States soil before the week is out."

This declaration was made here today by E. Blake Robinson, Assistant Superintendent of Immigration in Canada, who is in charge of the immigration activities in the Thaw case.

Lawyers on both sides agreed this week likely would see an end of Canadian participation in Thaw's fight against going back to Matthew.

Thaw told reporters he had instructed his eight lawyers to bespice special guards for him while he is outside the jail and court house.

"It has come up in my case that the New York authorities will try to kidnap me if I am released on habeas corpus proceedings, will I fully expect to be," said Thaw.

Thaw decided to fight his habeas corpus proceedings to a finish after his lawyers had put the question of dropping them up to their client.

New York State representatives are making elaborate precautions to combat any attempt by Thaw's friends to carry him off.

It is expected that Thaw will be released Wednesday morning by Judge Clegg in the Superior Court.

Thaw undoubtedly will be deported into the little Vermont village of Norton Mills, which incidentally will become the scene of a big legal fight.

William A. Baker, former District Attorney of Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, who arrived here with former Governor William Stone, of Pennsylvania, to help Thaw in his fight, compiled the fugitive not to talk any more to the newspaper.

DEFENSE ATTORNEYS VIGOROUSLY PROTEST AGAINST INTIMATIONS

Reuben R. Arnold at the conclusion of Solicitor Dorsey's argument at 12 o'clock, arose and made a motion for a mistrial.

Solicitor Dorsey finished his speech at twelve o'clock and Judge Roan prepared to charge the jury. A brief recess was taken.

With frequent clashes over intimated reflections of the motives of the counsel for the defense in introducing certain witnesses, the trial of Leo M. Frank, accused of slaying Mary Phagan, drew to a close Monday as Solicitor Hugh M. Dorsey continued his arraignment of the prisoner.

Mr. Dorsey was unopposed and vigorous as ever, although his voice showed traces of the terrific ordeal to which he put it in his sensational speech Saturday.

It was problematical whether recess would be taken before Judge Roan's charge to the jury, but all the indications were that Frank's fate would be in the hands of the "twelve good men and true" before mid-afternoon.

The Solicitor made capital out of the prisoner's persistent refusal to face Jim Conley when he was in the Tower. He declared that it was the first time in history that a man with Anglo-Saxon blood Mr. Dorsey said Anglo-Saxon had failed to take an advantage to make a statement by a negro which he protested was a lie.

Declares Nervousness Proof of Guilt.

The claim was made again that Frank's nervousness in the morning of his arrest and the morning he saw Mary Phagan's body at the morgue was an infallible sign of his guilt.

Mr. Dorsey declared that Frank's claim that it was due to the effect of the frigid air corresponded to that of Duran in the famous California murder case on which the State dwelt at length Saturday.

Dorsey was Mr. Dorsey's reply to Luther Rosser's statement that he did not seriously consider the evidence of the State's medical experts on the time Mary Phagan died as indicated by the condition of the cabbage she ate.

Mr. Dorsey said this assertion was believed by the number of witnesses the defense had introduced in opposition.

Discussing these witnesses he gave it as his opinion that some of them were introduced in the hope that they might be family favorites of some of the jurors.

Mr. Dorsey also laid particular stress on Frank's claim that the haskoline which covered the alleged blood spots on the second floor would have been pink instead of white if the blood had been fresh.

Mr. Dorsey asked why the defense had not brought in a reputable chemist to prove this assertion.

Mr. Dorsey insisted that a summer of fact did blood spots were in the condition they were because the haskoline had been spread over them.

After a while was cast on the testimony of the defendant's brother, Jim Conley, had committed the crime, and through the body through the south door on the first floor.

Mr. Dorsey received another motion just before noon Monday morning. A Hugh Cooper, a former member of the Georgia bar and clerk in the Solicitor General's office, had written from London the previous night and requested that Judge Roan be asked to order the removal of the defendant, announced that he would lead the court on a tour of the...

DEFENSE ATTORNEYS VIGOROUSLY PROTEST AGAINST INTIMATIONS

At 12:45 Judge Roan finished his charge to the jury and the fate of Leo M. Frank, accused of the murder of Mary Phagan, was put in the hands of the twelve men who have been listening to testimony for and against him for four weeks.

Judge Roan overruled the motion for a new trial. Reuben R. Arnold at the conclusion of Solicitor Dorsey's argument at 12 o'clock, arose and made a motion for a mistrial.

Your honor, at the beginning of this trial," said Arnold, "I am going to make a motion for a new trial and we are prepared to prove each of the instances upon which we base our request, unless your Honor is willing to admit that they are true.

"First when the court refused to rule out the evidence of Frank's relations with other women as given by Jim Conley that there was an affair in the courtroom.

"Second, on Friday, August 22, when the trial was on, and had just recessed for lunch, and when the jury was within 200 feet of the courthouse, the crowd gathered around and in plain hearing of the jury yelled: 'Hurrah for Dorsey.'

"Third, that on Saturday, August 23, while the trial was still in process, and had just adjourned, that a large crowd gathered in front of the courthouse and as the Solicitor General left the courthouse yelled: 'Hurrah for Dorsey.'

"Fourth, on August 26, while the jury was in a room within 20 feet of the courtroom, that as the Solicitor General entered the courtroom, the crowd in the courtroom arose and applauded him, and that your Honor admonished the crowd that if it happened again he would clear the courtroom.

"And that all of this applause has tended to coerce and unduly influence the jury. The conduct was most disrespectful and the defendant has not been given a fair show at any time during the trial, from the start to the finish.

JUDGE REFUSES NEW TRIAL TO DEFENSE AS STATE CLOSES PLEA

The fate of Leo M. Frank, National Penitentiary superintendent accused of the slaying of Mary Phagan, is in the hands of the jury.

After four weeks of the greatest legal battle in the history of the South the case was given Monday at 12:40 to the twelve men who have been silent, attentive listeners to the evidence for and against. The jury returned from dinner formally to begin its deliberations.

Atlanta and the State, and thousands in other States, awaited the verdict with a tenseness not equaled in any other criminal case in Dixie's annals. Those who believed that Solicitor Hugh M. Dorsey, whose work has been the sensation of the trial, had won his fight saw a good omen in the move of the defense for a retrial.

The motion for a new trial was made by Attorney Reuben Arnold on the grounds that the evidence of perjury contained in Jim Conley's statement had been illegally allowed to stand on the records and that the jury had been subjected to improper influence in the hearing of the crowd's cheering of Dorsey on the street near the courtroom.

Judge Roan denied the motion after Solicitor Dorsey in a brief but vigorous address branded the grounds as trifling.

The conclusion of the great trial attracted by far the greatest crowd since the opening and thousands failed to gain entrance to the hearing of the legal combat. Special police, including a corps of mounted men, were at the scene trying to scatter the mass of humanity with but poor success.

Frank Hears Assaults Without Quiver.

The silent prisoner in the most remarkable of tragic dramas seemed as much the stolid as any day of the ordeal. He listened to Solicitor Dorsey's renewed assaults, made impassionately and unsparringly, without a trace of fear or quailing-showing on his face. He heard Judge Roan tell the jury that if the evidence convinced it, he could be sentenced "to hang by the neck till dead," without a flicker of an eyelash. He surveyed the obviously hostile crowd in the courtroom coolly. He looked somewhat all-over on previous days, but his nerves was as remarkable as ever.

When the case was delivered into the hands of the jury, Frank was taken back to the Tower to the cell he has occupied since the closing days of April.

The jury before formally taking up its momentous task of arriving at a verdict went to lunch at the German Cafe on Pryor street. Court, however, formally reconvened at 1 o'clock for the consideration of what evidence should be allowed to go before the jury. Judge Roan heard arguments by the lawyers for both sides. The Solicitor's final decision was made over the plea of Solicitor Dorsey ruling that all of Jim Conley's statements should be put before the jury.

The argument over the documentary evidence to be submitted to the jury was long and heated. The fight was particularly keen at the hands of E. M. Holloway made to Dorsey and that of Milton McKnight, cook in the Frank home, made to the police and the statement, Frank made at the police station the day of his arrest.

The Solicitor finally admitted that he had made the plea of Solicitor Dorsey ruling that all of Jim Conley's statements should be put before the jury.

Dorsey and Hooper Loudly Cheered.

When Solicitor Dorsey and Attorney Hooper left the courtroom they were vociferously cheered by a tremendous crowd who insisted on thronging about the courtroom.

Solicitor Dorsey finished his speech at 12 o'clock and forty minutes the lawyers closed over the defense's plea for retrial with the 5 o'clock adjournment.

Judge Roan had finished by giving his charge at 12:30. The judge's charge made no effort to review the evidence, way and did not attempt, of course, to explicitly state any reasonable doubt except that it must be more than a mere possibility.

The judge said the records could bring in with a verdict if recommended that the prisoner be sent to the penitentiary.

The pig's owner, a firm here, who had insured the pig, has been paid $500.

FRANK PHAGAN ON FIRST BALL

EXTRA THE ATLANTA GEORGIAN. FINAL

VOL. XII. NO. 19. ATLANTA, GA., MONDAY, AUGUST 25, 1913. 2 CENTS. 'DAY'

NO RECOMMENDATION TO COURT FOR MERCY CONTAINED IN VERDICT

Leo M. Frank was found guilty of the murder of Mary Phagan by a jury in Judge Roan's court at 4:56 Monday afternoon and a minute later a howling crowd was cheering its approval.

According to what appears to be reliable authority, the jury was unanimous in its verdict on the first ballot formally taken one hour and a half after the jury returned from its dinner.

All doors to the courtroom were locked as the verdict came in. No recommendation for mercy was made by the twelve men who listened to four long weeks of exhaustive evidence.

Thirty-five hundred people outside the courthouse yelled themselves hoarse as the verdict was announced. Jury Winburn, the foreman, escorted by a deputy, led the jury into the room. All twelve men seemed pale and nervous, oppressed by weight of their momentous task.

Frank's presence in the courtroom has been waived, according to an announcement made at 4:15, when it was reported that the jury had reached a verdict. The courtroom was to be cleared for the jury to make its announcement.

Jury Nervous and Pale. The jury was very nervous and pale as it entered the courtroom headed by Deputy Plennie Miner. For a time it hesitated before the twelve men entered the jury box. Only the order of Judge Roan: "Gentlemen, take your accustomed seats," caused the reticence to give way.

"Gentlemen, have you reached a verdict?" said Judge Roan, when the jury had become seated. Foreman Winburn arose and said: "We have, your honor." The foreman then opened the piece of paper upon which the verdict was written and read:

"We have found the defendant guilty," the verdict read. "Is that your verdict?" and in each case the response was "Yes." Judge Roan then announced to the Sheriff that he would pass sentence upon Frank to-morrow.

Judge Roan then thanked the jury, saying: "Gentlemen, I want to thank you for your services. This is the longest criminal case I have ever known of in my life." The jury arose as if to leave the courtroom, but resumed their seats.

Dorsey was the first to leave the courtroom. He received an ovation from the throngs which packed the streets. He was lifted from his feet upon the shoulders of the enthusiasts and carried several hundred feet. Dorsey took his hat from his head and bowed to the acclamations of the crowd.

through which they had gone. After a short time the jurymen left the courtroom. As they were recognized by the crowds outside, the courthouse, they were wildly cheered. Probably no demonstration of this magnitude has ever been seen before in Georgia at a criminal trial.

Judge Roan left the courtroom at 5:15. He also was applauded. The jurist made no response, but slipped quietly into an automobile and was whisked away.

$1,700,000 TO MOVE GEORGIA CROPS

Atlanta Gets $800,000 of United States Deposits—Asked for Larger Amount.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—Georgia has been allotted $1,700,000 of the $48,000,000 which Secretary Alagoz will deposit in the banks of the South and West to assist in moving the crops.

Atlanta banks are eligible to receive these deposits under the rule laid down by the secretary that any bank no favored must have a circulation equal to 49 per cent of its capital stock. It is expected that the money will be deposited within the next few days, and will be withdrawn gradually, some $100,000 at a time, over a period extending through February, 1914, so as not to create any disturbance of credit.

These funds are not loans in any sense of the word. They are deposits. The only difference between them and the deposits of any other bank is that the Georgia banks are required to give collateral of 10 per cent in Government bonds and 90 per cent in commercial paper at 45 per cent valuation, or surplus of 50 per cent bonds at 75 per cent valuation. The banks must pay 3 per cent interest.

Banks Here Regret Amount Is Parred. Disappointment is expressed by local bank bankers that Secretary Bryan's action has been seen fit to reduce the Atlanta appropriation from $1,000,000 to $800,000. The Georgia Bank Association had been advised of this fact, however, on Friday, three days before Monday's public announcement.

The committee necessary to speak on the local commercial paper offered as collateral for the deposits had been appointed and consists of C. E. Currier, president of the Atlanta National Bank, chairman; T. H. Hedges, vice president of the South National Bank; and J. P. Peck, president of the American Bank and Trust Co. of Atlanta. J. H. Hawkins, president of the Third National Bank and Charles H. Hedges, cashier of the South National Bank, are also members.

Six of the Atlanta national banks now are eligible to receive the money. The Atlanta National Bank, the American Bank and Trust Co., the Georgia Bank, the Georgia National Bank, the Georgia State Bank, and the Georgia Trust Co. are the banks which have recently received the outstanding bank notes to the sum required amount.
