

UNCLE SAM IN ROLE OF MEXIC MEDIATOR IS LATEST PROPOSAL

Discussion at Washington Takes Turn of Popular Elections and Establishment of Constitutional Government

THIS SOLUTION, HOWEVER,
NOT FAVORED BY REBELS

And Unless Both Factions
Request It, United States Cannot Act—President Disapproves Further Discussion

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, July 24.—The discussion of the Mexican situation today turned toward proposals that the United States act as a mediator while elections are held and a constitutional government established.

Although such suggestions have at various times been made to President Wilson, Secretary Bryan and members of congress by persons in this country and Mexico, the proposition never has reached the stage of serious consideration because of the insistent attitude of the constitutionalists that they would not entertain mediation under any circumstances.

NOT FAVORED BY REBELS.
"Who will guarantee the honesty of an election? The only guarantee we can have is to take possession of the government by arms, put in a provisional president, and hold elections when the country is pacified. Elections with most of the country up in arms will be impossible."

This was the answer of the constitutionalist representatives in Washington today to the reports that mediation was about to be undertaken through the offices of the United States.

The constitutionalists profess to see in such a proposal an effort on the part of the Huerta government to secure a suspension of hostilities during which it would take retaliatory measures to suppress the constitutionalist cause.

The constitutionalists point out that the same kind of proposals repeatedly were made in the declining days of the big administration.

SENATOR BACON'S VIEWS.
"I had many letters," said Senator Bacon, as he left the White House, and there has been much talk among senators about the possibility of mediation, but we recognize that it all depends on the attitude of the factions in Mexico. We would have to be invited to mediate, we could not exercise any authority. I don't know how baptical it would be.

"Perhaps the best thing would be if both sides could get together without mediation by any one else and name a provisional president who would be satisfactory to both, and hold an election. But the chief point about all the discussion is that it shows how anxious the American people are for a speedy solution of the trouble in Mexico, and that we are not thinking of anything like intervention. The value of these suggestions is that we test public opinion both in this country and in Mexico."

NO ACTION AS YET.
Senator Bacon said that so far as he knew, no formal recommendation for mediation was being considered by the president, and that the matter had reached only the stage of discussion.

A number of senators, in discussing the Mexican situation with President Wilson today, learned that he was hopeful that the senate would refrain from debate about Mexico at this time, or at any rate until after Ambassador Wilson returned and a definite policy was formulated. It was said the president wanted out that expression of opinion might arouse ill feeling in Mexico.

COMMITTEE TO HEAR WILSON.
When Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson has finished his conference with the president he will be asked to give the senate foreign relations committee first hand information of the situation in Mexico. Some of the members have not conferred with the president directly upon the rapidly changing situation.

The ambassador is expected here Saturday. Secretary Bryan also probably will be asked to give the senate affairs committee with the senate committee.

Proposals for mediation, repeal of the restrictions against the shipment of arms, and President Wilson's alternate plan for enforcement of neutrality were discussed among senators today but no definite plan of action received approval.

Members of the foreign relations committee consider mediation impossible because of the many factions in Mexico, and the difficulties that would attend any effort to supervise elections.

Neither Mexican Faction
To Get American Arms
(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 24.—President Wilson determined late Wednesday afternoon that no action in the present Mexican revolution shall obtain arms or ammunition from the United States and that neutrality must be observed in the strictest sense. This was the interpretation of the neutrality laws decided by the president after conferences with Senator Bacon and Representative Hood, chairman of the two congressional committees on foreign relations.

While the Mexican rebels have been settling no arms heretofore, Wednesday's developments mean that the Huerta government and that the United States will treat all sides alike in the present dispute.

The situation was precipitated by the repeated complaints of constitutionalists and their sympathizers in this country that if the United States did not refrain from selling its munitions government would be aiding the Huerta government. The constitutionalist representa-

COUNTY OF BARROW REJECTED BY VOTES OF STATE SENATORS

Seventeen Votes Were Cast
Against the Constitutional Amendment, When Only 15
Were Needed to Kill It

VOTES OF 25 SENATORS
CAST FOR NEW COUNTY

Upper House Extended Time to Finish Debate, With Resolution to Stick to Matter Until It Was Settled

Barrow county failed to receive the constitutional majority of two-thirds vote in the senate Thursday afternoon and was killed. The vote stood at 15 for and 17 against the new county. But fifteen votes were necessary to defeat the constitutional amendment for the creation of the new county with Winder as the county seat.

When the result was announced, a great cheer broke out in the chamber.
Senator DuBose immediately announced that at the proper time he would move for a reconsideration.

The entire morning session of the senate Thursday was occupied in debate upon the first of the so-called
"new county" propositions to come before that body for decision—the proposition to create Barrow county, passed by the house, and rejected favorably by the senate committee with a minority committee report against it.

Hot arguments for and against the measure were passed. Everything else was sidetracked for the day—measures of general interest, important measures of local interest—in order that the senate might get an earful of talk on both sides of the question as to whether or not Barrow county should become a fact.

Senators DuBose, Sweat, McNeil and Elkins spoke in favor of the measure.
Senators Longino, Burtz, McGee and Porter spoke against it. The chairman of the committee majority, and the chairman of the committee minority each was to be allowed twenty minutes more of argument. The senate extended its session until 1 o'clock, when it terminated automatically at 1 o'clock, to last until the bill had been voted upon.

The galleries and anterooms of the senate chamber were crowded with interested citizens from the neighborhood of the proposed new county. The senate rules were enforced, prohibiting all unofficial visitors from entering the hall. This was done in order that the senators might not be overwhelmed by lobbyists for or against the proposed new county.

The vote on the bill follows:
Ayes—Allen, Bullock, Bush, Chen-nault, Converse, Dickey, DuBose, Elkins, Ford, Irwin, Jones of the Twenty-first, Jones of the Thirty-third, Kea, Kelly, McNeil, Miller, Moore, Risher, Seawell, Smith, Sweat, Tarver, Taylor,
Turner and Watts—25.

Nays—Brown, Burtz, Foster, Harrell, Hixon, Hule, Johnson, Longino, Mc-Gee, Off, Parrish, Perry, Peyton, Pope, Spinks, Stark and Tyson—17.

SOLDIER KILLS SELF AT FORT M'PHERSON

Private Thomas P. Fahey
Shoots Self in Mouth
With Rifle

Thomas P. Fahey, a private in company G, Seventeenth infantry, committed suicide early Thursday morning on the front porch of the company bar-acks at Fort McPherson, by shooting himself in the mouth with his army rifle.

No reason can be assigned for the deed. Fahey is said by his comrades and officers to have been one of the most steady men in the company and to have possessed an unusually cheerful disposition.

It was about 5:40 o'clock Thursday morning that the men in the barracks heard a rifle shot. Rushing out they found Fahey lying on the front porch.
He had placed the muzzle of the rifle
in his mouth and blown a great hole through the top of his head.

Comrades who had been talking with him a few minutes before he suicided declared that Fahey was apparently in a happy frame of mind and that his actions did not indicate that he con-
no note of explanation.

Fahey was 39 years of age. He had been in the service for fifteen years.
His home is at Mingo Junction, Ohio, where his mother, Mrs. Mandy A. Fa-hey, resides. Telegrams have been sent to the mother and no funeral arrangements will be made until she can be heard from.

ARMY OFFICER TRIES TO FORCE OWN PROMOTION

Major Ray Applies for Injunction Against Secretary of War Garrison

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, July 24.—Major
Beecher B. Ray, of the army pay corps, today applied to the district supreme court to enjoin Secretary of War Garrison from certifying to the president for promotion any other officer who thus would be jumped over him.

Attorney General McReynolds recently held that the president is not compelled to promote Ray, although he is in line under the seniority rule. A committee of the last congress investigated charges of Ray's alleged political activities and as an incident disclosed a domestic scandal.

$50,000 ADDITIONAL VOTED TO TEACHERS BY HOUSE MEMBERS

House as a Committee of the Whole Increases Appropriation From $2,500,000 to $2,550,000

RESOLUTION AUTHORIZES
BORROWING HALF MILLION

Representative Slater Introduces Resolution Authorizing Governor to Borrow Funds to Pay Teachers

Further provision for the payment of the school teachers' salaries was made in the house Thursday morning when the body as a committee on the whole voted to increase the appropriation for their payment from $2,500,000
as set forth in the general appropriations bill, to $2,550,000 per year. The vote in favor of the amendment which was introduced by Dr. Stovall, of Elbert, was 80 to 45.

In accordance with this action on the part of the committee of the house the paragraph in section five of the budget is amended and stands as follows:

"For the support and maintenance of the common schools of the state, the sum of $2,550,000 for each of the years 1914 and 1915; said sum including poll tax, one-half of the rental of the Western and Atlantic railroad, show taxes, dividends from the Georgia railroad, stocks and funds realized from the taxation of dogs and other funds set aside
by law to the common school fund."

A resolution which would authorize Governor Slater to borrow $500,000 for the purpose of paying the state's school teachers their overdue salaries, was introduced in the house Thursday morning by Representative Slater, of Bryan county.

This resolution would put to a practical application the opinion rendered to the governor the other day by Attorney General T. S. Felder. The attorney general construed the recent constitutional amendment to mean that the governor can borrow as much as $500,000 to cover temporary deficits occasioned by delay in the collection of the state's revenues.

The resolution will need the concurrence of the senate, if the house passes it.

Other resolutions of a similar nature, to empower the governor to borrow to meet other obligations, have been referred in the legislature and now are pending before committees.

But six sections of the appropriation bill have been read up to the appropriation of the house Thursday at 1 p. m., and it is a noteworthy fact that but one other item in the budget has received an increase. That was the soldiers' home in Atlanta, which was given $30,000, or $5,000 more than allowed in the bill.

It was seen at the outset, however,
that the house was determined to come to the rescue of Georgia's teachers and despite arguments that the state was too much in debt to make such an advance a big majority in favor of the increasing amendment was shown in the count.

The expected fight on the appropriation of $100,000 to the State Agricultural college from Mr. Comer of Spalding, came when he introduced an amendment providing that the amount be cut to $91,000. There was less debate on this question than any other, and no division was necessary. The vote was 80 to 45, which was almost unanimous against the proposed cut.

With adjournment in sight at this juncture the committee reported progress and asked leave to sit again for further consideration of the bill on Friday.

The house adjourned at 1 o'clock to meet again Friday at 9 a. m.

HIS CHEEK IS LAID OPEN BY ONE-ARMED MAN'S KNIFE

M. B. Ware Cuts Burnet Goodman on Peachtree Street.
Both Traveling Men

M. B. Ware, a one armed man, cut Burnet Goodman with a pocket knife at 10:30 o'clock Thursday morning on Peachtree street, near the junction of Pryor and Forsyth, then with knife in hand chased him two blocks down Peachtree toward Five Points.

Patrolman W. H. Bostwick pursued them and overtook Ware in front of the Alcazar theater. Ware surrendered immediately, closed his long-bladed knife, delivered it to the policeman, and answered the officer's question, "Why did you do it?" with the reason, "Because I wanted to." Further than that he would not talk. Goodman, with a four-inch gash along one jaw, was carried into the Crawford drug store adjoining the Piedmont hotel on Peachtree, and his wound was dressed there, a Grady hospital ambulance taking him away later.

Ware is a traveling salesman, aged forty-one, married, with residence at 30 Highland avenue. Goodman is unmarried and lives at 36 Moore street.
He is the manager of the Di-Gesto Gum company.

The wounded man is said to be not seriously hurt. The police could not learn the cause of the fight.

Goodman was removed to police headquarters shortly before noon, and there furnished a bond of $25.75 to answer the charge of disorderly conduct entered against him. He declined to talk further than to say that he did not know even the name of the man who attacked him. Ware, however, knew Goodman's name.

STILL DRIFTING

CITY NOT IN DANGER OF A WATER FAMINE

Repairs on Big Pump Progress Rapidly and Should Be Finished in Two Weeks

Contrary to statements that have been published, the city reservoirs now hold approximately twenty-eight feet of water, and while the slow work on the wrecked pump at the waterworks causes a slight uneasiness, there is no danger of a water famine, according to General Manager Smith, of the waterworks department, and Captain R. M. Clayton, city chief of construction.

The water is only about two feet lower than usual, and though not all of the twenty-eight feet of water is available for drinking purposes, it would be available in case of fire, and at least ten or twelve feet is available for filtering and drinking.

But if either of the two other pumps should go out of commission the situation would be considerably graver, and that is why work on the broken pump is being hurried as much as possible.
While there is nothing to indicate that either of the other pumps might stop, they are in such constant use since the third broke down that they are being closely watched.

Should anything happen to another of the pumps, the water station would be able to supply the city with only half the amount of filtered water it now uses though partially clarified water would be obtainable.

The work on the broken pump progresses slowly on account of the heaviness of the new parts. The big fly wheel, which had to be jacked up, alone weighs forty-seven tons, and the other parts of the pump are of proportionate weight. Four sections had to be taken out and four new pieces installed.
They have to be rolled into place with the utmost care, for the breaking of one part would mean weeks of continued delay. At that, however, the men are working a week ahead of the time scheduled and if nothing goes wrong, the pump will be ready for use within two weeks.

A new electric pump is on the way and will be installed as soon as it arrives. It will be tried out to see if it is more satisfactory than the steam pump, and if the experiment is satisfactory, more electric pumps will be installed.

Those now in use have been serving the city for twenty years, and their efficiency is decreased by reason of their age.

SUFF MAKES ATTACK ON PREMIER ASQUITH

Police Prevent Injury to Premier When Suffragette Springs at His Auto

(By Associated Press.)
DONCASTER, England, July 24.—An attempt by a militant suffragette to assault Premier Asquith while he was on his way today to the town hall of Morley, Yorkshire, to receive the freedom of the city was frustrated by the police.

Miss Key-Jones, suffragette sprang to the step of the premier's automobile, shouting, "Stop torturing women, you scoundrel!" and tried to pull Mr. Asquith from his seat but the police dragged her away.

Rattlesnake Kills Three Children; While Mother Looks for Them Her Fourth, an Infant, Drowns

Within a Few Minutes the Home of Mr. and Mrs. John Cooper, Near Townsend, Tenn., Is Desolated by Four Horrible Deaths

(By Associated Press.)
KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 24.—Three children of Mr. and Mrs. John Cooper, near Townsend, Tenn., were fatally bitten by rattlesnakes and were found dead yesterday afternoon. While the mother was searching for this trio, her eight-teen-month-old infant fell into a stream, on the banks of which she had left it, and was drowned.

The three children had been sent to a barn for hen eggs. The mother was near the river washing clothes. The long absence of the children caused motherly anxiety and she went in search of the children, leaving her infant near the river bank. The four tragedies were soon revealed.

STEPS TO REMOVE M'KEE DEFERRED THREE WEEKS

No Action Will Be Taken
Pending Roper's Return
From Western Trip

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 24.—First Assistant Postmaster General Roper leaves Washington today on a three-week trip to Denver and other western points, and pending his return the postoffice department is not expected to take any further action with reference to the postmaster at Atlanta, Savannah and Macon. This means that the incumbents will continue to serve for the present.

As has been indicated in these dispatches, adverse reports have been made by inspectors upon the postmasters at Atlanta, Savannah and Macon. Harry S. Edwards, postmaster at Macon, has been asked to resign, and has declined to do so. The department has taken no action on the report concerning Postmaster McKee at Atlanta and Postmaster Baker at Savannah.

It is understood that the removal of McKee and Assistant Postmaster Cole of Atlanta, has been recommended to the department, and it is confidently expected that when the matter is taken up finally each of these officers will be requested to resign.

Failing to comply with this request,
the department will, it is believed, take the customary steps to displace them by sending in the names of their successors.

LET UNCLE SAM REGULATE MARRIAGES AND DIVORCE

WASHINGTON, July 24.—A constitutional amendment to empower congress to regulate marriage and divorce was proposed in a joint resolution today by Representative Edmunds of Pennsylvania.

The resolution would amend the constitution to provide:
"Congress shall have the power to establish uniform laws on the subject of marriage and divorce for the United States and to provide penalties for violation thereof."

FRANK'S TRIAL MAY BE POSTPONED UNTIL EARLY IN THE FALL

Judge L. S. Roan, Who Will Preside at the Trial, Returns to Atlanta Thursday Afternoon and Is Ill

SOLICITOR SAYS STATE
WITNESSES ARE READY

Reuben Arnold, One of Frank's Attorneys, Returns After Conference in Covington
With Judge Roan

Judge L. S. Roan, who will preside at the trial of Leo M. Frank, who is arraigned for the murder of Mary Phagan, returned from Covington
Thursday afternoon quite ill and went immediately to his home. He will be unable to go to the court house during the afternoon, but announces that the venue will be drawn by Judge John T.
Pendleton, at his request.

Reuben R. Arnold, associate attorney in the defense of Mr. Frank, returned from Covington on the same train with Judge Roan. He declined to make any statement in reference to his visit to Covington. It could not be learned from him whether he had discussed the possibility of a postponement with Judge Roan or whether the defense would make formal application for postponement.

The impression prevails, however,
that the defense will seek a postponement and there is said to be a strong probability that the case will not go to trial before early fall.

Should Judge Roan continue ill, it is not likely that the trial would be entered upon. Although the other superior court judges have concurrent jurisdiction, it is not considered likely that either Judge Pendleton or Judge Ellis would preside over the case, but instead the trial would be delayed until Judge Roan has recovered. Judge Roan's illness is said not to be serious, however,
and he will probably be in his court again before Monday, the day set for the trial.

WITNESSES SERVED.
Solicitor Hugh M. Dorsey announced Monday afternoon that the state's witnesses had all been served, that they were all in the city and that the state was ready for trial. It is known that the solicitor will fight any request for a postponement.

DRAW 144 MEN
A venire of 12 panels, 144 men, will be drawn from the jury box, and if there is any way of reaching a definite decision or agreement about the date of the trial, it will probably be taken as the serving of the 144 veniremen with subpoenas would be an unnecessary expense to the state if the trial is not going to commence Monday, and in addition it would unnecessarily take many business men away from their work.

It is generally known that the defense is loath to enter into the trial during the hot summer months, and if a continuing case because of the weather is going to be requested at all, it is not improbable that the question will be put to the court, before the venire is drawn.
Then Solicitor Dorsey will be present and will be given an opportunity to state his position.

The solicitor has already announced that he is ready for trial, and he is certain to insist that the case go to trial Monday.

A solicitor made an effort to prevent a postponement when the Frank case was first called on June 20, and is certain to make a vigorous fight against any further delay.

James Conley, the negro sweeper, who has confessed complicity in the Mary Phagan murder, was sweated for several hours Wednesday afternoon by Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey, and will be given an opportunity to state his position.

For some unknown reason the sweating took place in the county jail instead of at police headquarters, where Conley has been held.

Detectives Starnes and Campbell, who are working directly under the solicitor, slipped the negro from his cell at headquarters early in the afternoon, and without even the officials at headquarters knowing their destination, rushed him to the Tower.

He was carried up stairs, where he confronted New Lee, the negro night watchman at the pencil factory, who

GOV. SLATON PLEADS FOR PAYMENT OF TEACHERS

Appeals to Editors of Georgia Weekly Newspapers for Help in Matters of State

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
LAGRANGE, Ga., July 24.—Governor Slaton's address to the members of the Georgia Weekly Press association, at their annual banquet here Wednesday evening was the more of a plea for the assistance of the editors in obtaining and encouraging legislation to correct the state's financial ills.

"To you I appeal as Georgians—more powerful by far than the feeble warriors of ancient days—to lend your aid in meeting the difficulties which confront us in matters of state," said Governor Slaton.

"The official report of the treasurer, submitted to me on July 1, declares that $427,000 more than the revenue was appropriated in 1912 and $349,000 more than the revenue was appropriated in 1913. All the money in the treasury available for use on July 19 was $101,000 from which the legislature must be paid. The teachers have not been paid one dollar for the year 1913. For the first time in a generation the state must refund over one-half its entire indebtedness, and when purchasers buy bonds at low rates, it is only with the assistance of certain payment by a reliable borrower. What must we do about it?"

"We may differ about economic questions. We may disagree about matters of policy. We cannot have two opinions on the proposition that an expenditure in excess of income must mean dishonor."

OPPOSES BOND ISSUE.
The governor disapproved of a special bond issue to pay the overdue salaries of the teachers. He declared that "this would be an unwise policy and a dreadful precedent, and would especially hamper at the refunding of our bonded indebtedness."

"I have recommended," said the governor, "a levy—an extra tax for 1915—of one mill, and one-half mill in 1916, as the brave way to do it."
The legislative committee has recommended an equalization of taxes. The measure is not harsh. It is not burdensome. Its purpose is simply to see that every man bears his proportionate part of the load. It does not favor one dollar being raised more than is necessary for the economical management of the government. The taxpayer can use it better than the state. But it will not do to starve our institutions, nor lessen their efficiency. Their only purpose is to serve the people—to educate their sons and daughters—to reveal to the farmers the scientific truths that will safeguard their prosperity—against pestilence and disease. These institutions mean that we need not go to other states for trained intellects or skilled hands.

"Is not equalization just that requires all to pay the same percentage? Is it right that one man or one county pay 16 per cent of the value of her property when another pays 40? An equalization of 20 per cent by simply equalizing the burden, not increasing that of him who is bearing his part, would produce an abundance for every legitimate purpose."

EASY TO CRITICIZE.
"But gentlemen, you know the facts. It is easy to criticize those who would raise revenue and praise those who would spend it. But he who has many other stern duties of life, lies a bright side of the question. When we measure it aright—when we view it with a clear vision that penetrates the fogs of prejudice—when we find out the wisdom in those of our fathers, who realized the horrors of public debt and wrote in our constitution lessons learned from fallen nations—that public debt threatens the life of the state."

OFFICERS ELECTED.
At the closing session of the Press association, officers were elected as follows: President, W. C. McCutcheon, Franklin, Ga.; vice president, J. C. McAuliffe, Milledgeville, Ga.; second vice president, J. A. Perry, LaGrange, Ga.; corresponding secretary, H. M. Stanley, Dublin, Ga.; recording secretary, J. E. Hennis, Butler, Ga.; treasurer, J. J. Howell, Cuthbert, Ga.

BARELY MISSES WRECK IN BURNING TREBLE

Engineer on Tallulah Falls Road Saw the Danger Just in Time

CLAYTON, Ga., July 24.—A wreck on the Tallulah Falls railroad, two miles above here, was narrowly averted yesterday when the engineer of southbound passenger train No. 23 discovered a trestle afire in two places.

The trestle, which crosses a creek near Mountain City station, is fifty feet high. The engineer caught sight of the fire just in time to stop, coming to a standstill on the very edge of the burning structure.

It is thought the fire started from a pine torch carried by someone crossing the trestle during the night.

Authorities Plan to Strengthen It by Reinforcing and Widening the Base

PISA, Italy, July 24.—Arrangements were made today by the authorities to strengthen the famous leaning tower of Pisa. The tower is inclining more out of the perpendicular every year and its condition is becoming dangerous.

It has been decided to drain the foundations into which water from the river Arno has penetrated. The base also is to be widened and filled up to the level of the square.

Two Men Defy Death At Niagara Falls to Save Drowning Dog

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., July 24.—Two men risked going over the American falls, that they might save a small dog which was clinging to some rocks only a short distance above the cataract late last evening.

The animal had been running along the river bank and slipped into the water about 100 feet above the falls. It was quickly swept down the river but finally managed to get a slight foothold and cling for his life.

Park Constable Alexander and Frank Glassbrook went to the rescue. Glassbrook grasped Alexander's hand and waded out into the swift current. He reached the dog and brought it safely to shore.

A woman who saw the rescue asked for the dog as a souvenir and it was given to her.

SOUTHERN SENATORS GET TIPS ON BOLL WEEVILS

They Confer With Experts on Best Methods of Fighting Cotton's Enemy

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., July 24.—A number of senators and representatives from the cotton belt conferred this morning with Secretary of Agriculture Houston concerning a plan of campaign to combat the spread of the boll weevil. Among the senators attending the conference were Hoke Smith, Williams and Vandaman, of Mississippi; Ransdell, of Louisiana; Shepard, of Texas; Gore, of Oklahoma, and Smith, of South Carolina.

Secretary Houston called into the conference a number of experts in the department, who outlined a comprehensive campaign against the weevil, which is expected to invade Georgia next year. The government now provides $300,000 annually to fight the weevil. As a result of the conference today, congress will extend further aid to the department of agriculture.

Senator Ransdell, in opening the discussion, declared there was urgent need for an immediate more aggressive fight against the boll weevil instead of the indirect methods now employed by the department. In reply it was pointed out that these methods thus far had proven effective and that they could be made more so through the extension of the work.

E. F. Evans, an expert of the department, declared that there was only a small section in Mississippi and Louisiana where the boll weevil could not be checked through proper agricultural methods. He said there were not enough men in the work to reach the vast territory involved and urged that the demonstration work be extended.

Senate Orders Printing Of Hoke Smith's Speech Delivered in Georgia

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, July 24.—The United States senate has ordered the printing as a senate document of Senator Hoke Smith's speech before the legislature of Georgia, made July 18, in which the Georgia senator reviewed legislation before the senate during the past two years.

The speech was presented in typewritten form by Senator Hoke Smith, of Florida, with the request that it be published as a senate document. The order was entered unanimously.

MEADOW LARKS WILL DESTROY BOLL WEEVIL

Birds Found to Be Natural Enemy of Cotton Pest and Other Insects

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, July 24.—Protect and encourage the meadow lark, for its principal diet consists of cotton boll and alfalfa weevils, grasshoppers and predaceous ground beetles, advises the department of agriculture. While the bird, it is acknowledged, does some damage to sprouting grain, its value as a destroyer of injurious insects is shown to be far greater.

Furthermore, the department calls attention to the fact that the birds go most vigorously to the insects which are most abundant, thereby increasing their efficiency at the time of an insect outbreak.

GEORGIA ODD FELLOWS IN CAMP AT ATHENS

Two Hundred Representatives in Attendance, With George O. Hook Presiding

ATHENS, Ga., July 24.—The grand encampment of the Odd Fellows is in session here today at Odd Fellows' hall on Jackson street. Welcome addresses were made by Judge C. T. Young, mayor protem, and C. A. Vonderhuth, grand secretary. There are about 110 encampments to be represented, with something like 200 representatives.

George O. Hook, of Alpharetta, is the grand patriarch and presiding officer. He made the response to the welcome addresses. Officers will be elected and other business transacted this afternoon.

Certainly He's Dazed; The Surprising Fact Is That He Is Alive

WASHINGTON, July 24.—When Henry M. Rose, assistant secretary of the senate, arrived at his office today he wore a harassed, hunted look. His mood was not lifted when Senator Gallinger entered with a hearty "good morning" and an apparently radiant smile. Mr. Rose gritted his teeth and showed symptoms of apoplexy. This was the reason:

Secretary Rose, acting as reading clerk, was struggling through the first pages of the tariff bill yesterday when Senator Gallinger arose. "We have now reached paragraph 24," said the senator gravely. "While the hope he will read this clearly and distinctly."

"Coal tar products known as anilin oil and salts and various other articles," began Mr. Rose, blandly, and halted. "I protest," said Senator Gallinger. "he is not reading the complete paragraph."

Mr. Rose appealed to Vice President Marshall, but the latter was obdurate. Pitching his voice so it reached far outside the senate chamber and with an agonized expression on his face Mr. Rose called out the various items. "Toluidine, xylidine, cumidine, binitrochloride, he chanted, 'binitrobenzol, benadidine, tolidine, dianisidine, naphthylamine, diphenylamine, benzaldehyde, benzyl chloride, nitrobenzol and nitrotoleol, naphthylamine sulfonate.'"

At this point the gravity of the senate gave way and members joined the galleries in a burst of laughter. Secretary Rose refused to be stopped. Mr. Rose called out the various items.

SENATE ROAD MAY BE BUILT SOON
Former Senator J. A. J. Henderson Backs Work—Predicts Fine Crops

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
WAYNESBORO, Ga., July 24.—That the arrival of fall will see renewed activity in the construction of Former Senator J. A. J. Henderson's railroad from Atlanta and Nashville toward Waycross and the Atlantic is believed certain in view of a statement made in this city last night by Mr. Henderson.

He said he was still looking forward to an extension that would put his railroad in this city, and intimated that during the early fall work with this in view might begin.

Mr. Henderson is very enthusiastic over crop conditions around his home, Ocala, and stated that farmers were certainly going to have great yields this year, especially in corn.

News from his bedside today is to the effect that he is seriously ill from effects of the attack and subsequent operation.

Police Are Baffled by Woman Who Has Lost Her Memory Completely

DENVER, July 24.—An envelope addressed to Mrs. George Stern, 479 Rutland road, without name of city or state, and a signet ring bearing the initials G. L. L., practically are the only clues to the identity of a well-dressed woman who apparently is suffering from complete loss of memory. She registered at one of the leading hotels Monday night under the name of Mrs. Grace L. Irving, of New York.

Tuesday morning, while shopping, she appealed to the police to help her recall her identity. Members of a Burlington passenger train crew remember the woman as having come from Chicago on a train that arrived here Monday night. She is expensively dressed, apparently well educated and has no baggage except a satchel. She professes entire lack of knowledge of her name, her connections or her residence. The police, after thirty-six hours' investigation, are completely mystified.

DABNEY DOUGHERTY HELD ON EMBEZZLING CHARGE

Rome Young Man Charged With Misapplying Portion of Father's Estate

ROME, Ga., July 24.—Dabney Dougherty, a well known young man, and one of the heirs of a big estate, has been located in Atlanta and brought here to answer to a charge of embezzling funds of the estate.

For awhile Dougherty was the administrator of the affairs of his father, the late A. Dougherty, one of Rome's wealthy pioneer residents. It is alleged that he misappropriated some funds during this period, and he was indicted by the Floyd county grand jury, but left town before he could be arrested. The charge against him is being pushed by a bonding company.

LENOX, GA., FIRE SWEEP; DAMAGE TOTALS $25,000

TIFTON, Ga., July 24.—Lenox, fourteen miles south of Tifton, on the Georgia Southern and Florida railway, was visited by a $25,000 fire early Tuesday morning, the town being almost wiped off the map by the flames, which were first discovered in the Lenox Drug company's store. The drug store, with the store of Lott Allen & Co., on the north, and that of the Farmers Supply company, on the south, was destroyed by the fire.

The Lenox Drug company estimates its loss on stock and fixtures at $12,000, with $7,000 insurance. Lott Allen & Co., $4,000, with $2,000 insurance. The Farmers Supply company's loss was several thousand, which was partially covered by insurance.

All the buildings destroyed were of brick and were three of a row of five buildings on the east side of the railroad.

CREW OF LIFE-SAVERS IS GIVEN HIGHEST PRAISE

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Guy E. Davis of Ypsilanti, Mich., today gave high praise to the Sturgeon Point, Mich., life-saving crew for their timely efforts in saving the motor boat Arbutus and her crew and passengers. The launch, wallowing helplessly in the trough of the sea, was reached just in time by the life savers headed by Captain Henderson.

"They saved our lives," wrote Mr. Davis to the treasury department. "To me the life-saving service has a different look than it ever had before."

28 BODIES RECOVERED; ONLY THREE IDENTIFIED

Determined Investigation of Big Binghamton Factory Fire Now Under Way

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 24.—State and local authorities today began an investigation of the circumstances surrounding the fire in the factory of the Binghamton Clothing company, in which at least fifty persons, mostly women and girls, lost their lives. Representatives of the department of labor, the state fire marshal, the state factory investigation commission and the committee of safety of New York were present at today's inquest which was conducted by Coroner R. A. Seymour.

Search of the ruins of the factory building was continued today. Of the twenty-eight bodies thus far recovered only three have been identified. The others are burned beyond possibility of recognition and will be buried in a plot set apart by the city for the unidentified dead. A public funeral is planned for Sunday.

The task of compiling a list of the victims of the disaster is progressing slowly. Of those in the hospital four are so badly injured that their recovery is not expected.

Besides the seven known dead, thirty-four have been reported missing and probably are dead. Fifty-four survivors have been accounted for.

Not until the office safe has been opened can a complete list of the employees of the clothing company, dead, living and missing be made. The safe was uncovered late yesterday but it was so hot that no attempt was made to open it.

Blood on Murphy's Hands, Declares Governor Sulzer

ALBANY, N. Y., July 24.—Governor Sulzer, after characterizing the Binghamton fire as a "terrible catastrophe," declared in a statement today that the people of the state "will hold Mr. Murphy, of Tammany hall, responsible."

CLAIMS DISCOVERY OF PERPETUAL MOTION

TURIN, Italy, July 24.—Tests have been made before scientists here of a machine invented by a mechanic named Florio, by which it is claimed perpetual motion is demonstrated. The basic principle underlying the method employed is the contraction and expansion of gas.

The machine collects the caloric energy of the air and transforms it into mechanical energy. The air is supplied automatically and the apparatus is in continuous motion by reason of the passage of the gas from the warmer to the cooler atmosphere.

Hooray! Baby To Rule the House

No Longer Do Women Fear the Great-est of All Human Blessings.

It is a comfort to know that those much-talked-of pains that are said to precede child-bearing may easily be avoided. No woman need fear the slightest discomfort if she will fortify herself with the well-known and time-honored remedy, "Mother's Friend."

This is a penetrating external application that at once softens and makes pliant the abdominal muscles and ligaments. They naturally expand without the slightest strain, and thus not only banish all tendency to nervous twitches, but there is an entire freedom from nausea, discomfort, sleeplessness and dread that so often leave their impress upon the babe.

The occasion is, therefore, one of unbounded, joyful anticipation, and too much stress cannot be laid upon the remarkable influence which a mother's happy, pre-natal disposition has upon the health and fortunes of the generation to come.

You will find it on sale at all drug stores at $1.00 a bottle. Write to-day to the Bradford Regulator Co., 230 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for an instructive book.

Booklovers' Bulletin

We know our big family of Booklovers are anxious, and want news of the campaign.

Since the middle of last week the Campaign Editor and his force have been busy receiving, stamping and stacking away answers. As the last of the answers were in by 10 a. m. Tuesday, a meeting of the Judges was called and Hon. M. L. Brittain, Major R. J. Guinn and Howard S. Cole responded and organized by electing Hon. M. L. Brittain chairman. After explaining to them the system of special stamping each set of answers as they were received, and examining those so stamped, it was decided to add one more safeguard to the sets, and it was ordered that all sets be listed and renumbered, and The Journal's private seal stamped over the number. Then the original stamp with which all the sets were stamped was destroyed in the presence of the Judges. The listing and renumbering of the sets will take several days, and then the Judges will have another meeting, examine the work, and the Chairman will receive a duplicate list of all contestants' names and addresses, with their numbers. This will be a guarantee to the contestants that no set of answers can be slipped in or counted in any way after the checking of answers has begun. As soon as this work is completed and the checking is started, we will publish two pictures a day with the correct titles. Watch The Journal for particulars, as we will keep you posted right along.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING INDORSED BY MERCHANTS

J. W. S. Hardy, of Waycross,
New President of Ga. Retail Merchants' Association

J. W. S. Hardy, of Waycross, was elected president of the Retail Merchants' association, of Georgia, Wednesday afternoon in the executive session which concluded the annual convention of the association in Atlanta.

Before adjourning the association adopted resolutions endorsing strongly the local newspaper as an advertising medium and recommending a more general use of its advertising columns by every merchant.

A number of the members of the association remained in Atlanta and will stay in the city until Monday afternoon, when they will appear before the general judiciary committee of the house to urge the passage of one of the new laws which the association indorses.

At least twenty-five counties of the state will be represented in that delegation, it is said, by from one to three or four merchants.

The committee will meet at 2 o'clock to consider the new establishment law indorsed by the association. Under that law $1 a day of every man's earnings, wages or income, will be exempt from garnishment, whatever his occupation; and 50 per cent of his earnings in excess of $1 will be subject to garnishment.

The other officers elected Wednesday afternoon for the ensuing year are J. A. Goode, of Griffin, first vice president; W. P. Grantham, of Thomasville, second vice president; and John Bratton, of Atlanta, secretary and treasurer.

Mr. Bratton has been filling the office of secretary of the organization heretofore.

A large attendance followed all the deliberations of the association during its sessions in Atlanta.

Following were the resolutions adopted commending local newspapers to the use of the merchants of the state for advertising purposes.

"Whereas, the aims and objects of this organization are to be helpful and educational to the merchants of the state generally, and

"Whereas, it is and has always been the policy of this association to advise and urge its members to refrain from patronizing any and all manner of questionable or illegitimate advertising propositions or schemes constantly being urged upon them; and

"Whereas, the local newspaper has always been a large factor in the building up of the commercial interests, general growth and prosperity of its sections; therefore,

Resolved, That we recommend a more general use of its advertising columns; be it further

Resolved, That we thank the press of the state for the support they have given us in our work and bespeak a continuance of the same for our mutual good; be it further

Resolved, That we especially thank The Atlanta Journal and the Atlanta Constitution for their initiative, liberal and most cordial support of our cause—that of promoting the mercantile interests of Georgia."

SING SING CONVICTS
Blaze in Clothing Shops Is Put Out and Prisoners Quieted

OSSENING, N. Y., July 24.—Another fire at Sing Sing prison today gave the mutinous convicts a chance for more riotous demonstration. The blaze started in the clothing shop and the prison fire brigade extinguished it after a hard fight without outside aid.

It was the second fire in the prison buildings this week, notwithstanding the fact that the guards had been doubtful since $150,000 worth of property was burned up there two days ago.

Although it is generally believed that the fire was started by convicts, the warden has been unable to place the blame.

When the fire broke out today in the clothing shop every precaution was taken to guard against the escape of convicts.

While the guards and "trusties" were attacking the flames, more than 1,000 prisoners, locked in their cells, raised a chorus of yells that sounded high above the noise of the alarm.

The men at work in the building were marched out in good order and the blaze was extinguished.

Warden Chaney attributes the recent disturbances among the convicts to an order for the transfer of some of them to Auburn.

MORE PLEASANT WEATHER
PREDICTED FOR ATLANTA
Showers Thursday Night or Friday on the Program

Showers Thursday night or Friday, are predicted for Atlanta, and a temperature about the same as Thursday. The thermometer stood at 82 during the middle of the day, an advance of two degrees over Wednesday.

The breeze and the suggestion of rain in the air tempered the heat, and the weather man says that it is apt to remain pleasant in temperature for several days.

There was rain Thursday through the eastern section of the cotton region and along the Atlantic coast. According to the forecaster, the rain in the cotton section will prove beneficial.

Two Kinds of Truth
(Charles Lamb.)
The custom of resorting to an oath in extreme cases, sanctified as it is by all religious antiquity, is apt to introduce into the laxer sort of mind the notion of two kinds of truth; the one applicable to the solemn affairs of justice and the other to the common proceedings of daily intercourse.

As truth bound upon the conscience by an oath can be but truth, as in the common affirmations of the shop and the market place a latitude is expected and conceded upon questions wanting this solemn covenant. Something less than truth satisfies.

GEORGIA AND HER POLITICS

Judge Byrd Writes Rhyme on Need for Tax Reform Laws.

A rhymed appeal for corrective legislation has been addressed to the general assembly by Judge A. F. Byrd, ordinary of Appling county, who says that he has been a tax receiver himself and knows a few things about needed reform in matters of taxation. It follows:

Gentlemen of the legislature, we know
You have human nature,
And want to do something while You're there;

So give us tax reform, if you don't, as Sure's you're born,
Your chance for re-election won't be Fair.

The session's about half over, while You're revelling in clover,
And nothing very important have you Done.

But the people are tax-ridden, and they Ask you to take notice,
And for once go slow on your fun.

While fixing appropriations, please Knock out arbitrations,
Which play the wild with everything
In sight;

Bring the tax dodgers across, and make Them give it in,
Even if it does bring on a fight.

You know it's a well-known fact, that Receivers get about half Of the taxable property values in the State;

The people are watching you, to see
What you're going to do
To remedy this evil, which is great.

When at three dollars per acre, a fine
Farm is returned,
And sells for twenty dollars at private Sale;

There ought to be something doing in
The legislative halls,
Won't you give us a remedy, without Fail?

Our tax system's antiquated, and rotten
To the core,
And you know it just as well as we;
And there's none, so blind, the good Book says,

As the fellow who will not see.

We'll overlook your failings, for the Present at least,
If you'll fix this matter while you're There;

In spite of those new counties, come to Our relief,
And at this session treat the people
Fair.

Chairman L. R. Akin to Dine Ways and Means Committee.

L. R. Akin, of Glynn, chairman of the house ways and means committee, has issued invitations for a dinner at the Capital City club Friday evening in honor of the members of his committee.

Aside from those who have served with him in executive session, Mr. Akin has asked the governor, the president of the senate and the speaker of the house to be present. The affair will be strictly informal.

Dr. Soule Georgia Assets Representative Henderson Says.

Representative J. A. Henderson, of Jones county, deprecates the attack which was made in the house Wednesday upon Dr. A. M. Soule, president of the State College of Agriculture, at Athens.

Dr. Soule, he says, is one of the state's best assets and has done more toward stimulating a proper development of agriculture than any dozen other men.

"I know of my own personal knowledge," writes Mr. Henderson, "that Dr. Soule is one of the greatest authorities on agriculture in the United States."

"He knows what the Georgia farmer needs and he is able to impart this information in a convincing way."

"There are many well-to-do and successful farmers in my county who owe their success to Dr. Soule. They have followed his teachings and advice with the result that they are now independent."

"It would be impossible to compute the great benefits which have accrued to Georgia and its agricultural classes as a result of the work done by Dr. Soule."

Boileufillet May Make Race
For Congress in the Sixth

Considerable interest has been aroused throughout the state in the announcement that John T. Boileufillet, clerk of the Georgia house of representatives and secretary to Senator A. O. Bacon, will probably be a candidate for congress to succeed Judge Charles L. Bartlett, of the Sixth district.

The primary election does not occur until the fall of next year, but a number of Mr. Boileufillet's friends in the Sixth district have urged him to become a candidate. He is quoted as saying:

"I am considering making the race for congress. Many of my friends have pledged me their support in person and I have received a number of letters from friends throughout the district who have written me asking that I become a candidate. I am very busy now with my duties as clerk of the house, but when the legislature has adjourned I will probably make a definite announcement one way or the other."

Both Judge Bartlett and Mr. Boileufillet reside in Macon.

Senator W. D. McNeill Addresses
Senators as "Gentlemen of the Jury."

"Frequently in the excitement of debate the lawyer members of the general assembly—most especially the new lawyer members—address their colleagues as 'gentlemen of the jury.'"

These lawyers are accustomed to making their arguments to juries, and they often forget that they are not arguing a case in court. Senator W. D. McNeill, of the Twenty-second district, who is one of the ablest and most eloquent lawyers in the senate, every now and again experiences this slip of the tongue.

During his speech on the Hixon-Searcy anti-liquor shipment bill Wednesday he addressed the senators half a dozen times as "gentlemen of the jury."

Representative Fowler is Just "Biding" His Time.

Some of these days when the house allows itself to get tangled up in debate as it is wont to do at times and there doesn't seem to be any way out of the tangle, Representative Ben J. Fowler, of the Bibb delegation, who has the reputation of being one of the quietest of solons, is going to arise and when he does he will say something worth while and to the point.

Mr. Fowler's seat is well up towards the front and it is a noticeable fact that his attention ever is riveted on what is going on about him. He watches every bill, not only at its introduction but on the second reading and he can tell you what is in every one of any importance.

So far he has kept out of most debate, spending his time listening to what others have to say and forming his own conclusions. He is level-headed and above all sincere. He doesn't believe in time being killed by quibbling, and when the general assembly goes off on a pleasure jaunt he stands pat for "dies non" because the house has a mission and should tack on another day when one is wasted.

No man in the house is more popular with his colleagues than Mr. Fowler. He is a young man, but able, conservative and effective.

Some of these days, as has been said, he will be heard.

Romance of 40 Years
Ends in Marriage

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
VALDOSTA, Ga., July 24.—A romance with many sides to it and continuing from childhood, culminated here last night in the marriage of Mrs. Sleeper, of Buffalo, N. Y., to Dr. E. E. Wire, of Rays Mill.

The bride came in the north by a previous appointment to meet Mr. Wire here, and the marriage ceremony was performed by Dr. A. L. Johnstone, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Murray.

The couple were sweethearts when they were children together nearly forty years ago, but they drifted apart, each of them marrying later in life. The bride's husband died some time ago, while the groom's wife died in San Francisco, where his mother was killed in the earthquake and he lost a small fortune, which he had invested in business.

He came to this section about a year ago and was in business at Rays Mill.

MANUFACTURERS WILL DISCUSS BIG EXHIBIT

A committee of manufacturers in the city will meet Thursday afternoon at the chamber of commerce to discuss a permanent exhibition at the chamber of commerce building.

During his speech on the Hixon-Searcy anti-liquor shipment bill Wednesday he addressed the senators half a dozen times as "gentlemen of the jury."

hills showing the articles made in Atlanta will be agreed upon and will be installed later when the chamber of commerce takes the possession of its building, which is the old Y. M. C. A. building.

BOMBS KEEP POLICE ACTIVE IN NEW YORK

"Cheese" and "Meat" Bombs Baffle Bureau of Com-bustibles

NEW YORK, July 24.—The study of bombs is proving exciting to the New York police and amusing to many on-lookers. Patrolman John Welsenreider, hearing a mysterious explosion in front of a boarding house on the East Side early today ran to the place and picked up a package covered with black silk. It had been partly torn open by a small explosion and the officer and a detective ventured to rip off the cover.

"It's corned beef," they exclaimed when they saw what looked like two thick slices of meat, between which lay a powerful fire cracker. They recalled the recent "cheese bomb" sent to Andrew Carnegie which had deceived at first even the experts at the bureau of combustibles. Welsenreider and the detective were making a still closer examination of the supposed corned beef when Inspector Egan of the bureau of combustibles arrived. He declared with a certainty that the two pieces of meat-like substance were two sticks of dynamite softened by some process.

Howard Elliott, president of the Northern Pacific, has been in town since yesterday, and Wall Street believed that he would be the man selected.

If the place does not go to Mr. Elliott, the belief in railroad circles was that Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio, or Vice President Edward E. Loomis, of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, would be the man.

NEW NICARAGUAN OPPOSED BY SALVADOR

President Melendez Says It Would Make Impossible Central American Union

(By Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, July 24.—The proposed treaty between the United States and Nicaragua would make impossible the projected union of Central American republics, according to President Melendez, of Salvador. In reply to inquiry from two New York newspapers, which are sounding the opinions of the presidents of the Central American states, President Melendez expresses his disapproval of the proposed Nicaraguan treaty.

"It would make impossible the realization of the proposed Central American union, the great ideal of these countries," he says, and adds that Salvador would reject the protectorate idea.

"National opinion would undoubtedly refuse the ratification of treaties of whatever sort, which would impair our sovereignty," he declares.

MAY SELECT MELLEN'S SUCCESSOR THURSDAY

Sub-Committee of New Haven Directors Meet to Name
New President

NEW YORK, July 24.—The next president of the New Haven railroad may be chosen today by the sub-committee of directors appointed for this purpose when the board accepted the resignation of President Mellen.

This committee has power only to recommend, and the name of the new head of the New Haven may not be announced until the committee's choice is ratified by the directors at their meeting tomorrow.

Howard Elliott, president of the Northern Pacific, has been in town since yesterday, and Wall Street believed that he would be the man selected.

If the place does not go to Mr. Elliott, the belief in railroad circles was that Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio, or Vice President Edward E. Loomis, of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, would be the man.

ATLANTA NOW HAS NEW SOUTHERN EXPRESS AGENT

W. T. Elder Transferred From Jacksonville, Fla., Agent to Succeed J. E. Skaggs

Since July 5 Atlanta has had a new Southern Express agent without much being said about it in the public prints, which shows that sometimes news is not printed as soon as it happens.

W. T. Elder is the name of the new agent in Atlanta. He was transferred here from the agency in Jacksonville on July 5, and since that time has been in charge of the Atlanta office. He succeeded J. E. Skaggs, who succeeded R. M. Smith some time previously, when Mr. Smith was made superintendent of the division, with headquarters at Charlotte, N. C., effective August 1, succeeding O. M. Sadler, one of the long-time superintendents of the company, in the service for a number of years. Mr. Sadler was given the newly created position of superintendent of claims, with headquarters at Richmond, R. H. May, formerly route agent at Augusta, Ga., has gone to succeed Mr. Elder as agent at Jacksonville.

BIG MEETING THURSDAY AT RAILROAD Y. M. C. A.

Prizes Will Be Awarded to Winners in Lively 30-Day Membership Campaign

A very interesting membership campaign comes to a final closing at the Railroad Young Men's Christian association rooms Thursday night. In a recent thirty-day campaign 404 names were enrolled and on this night the prizes are to be awarded to the men who secured the largest number.

A fine program has been arranged and refreshments will be served. The whole affair is free and open to members and their families. At 10 o'clock the gavel will fall and the report will be made as to who are winners and awards will be made.

The first prize is a gold watch, railroad standard, the other two are a gold fob and a gold signet ring. The two men in the lead at this time are J. W. Whitaker, yardmaster, Southern railway, and L. M. Hunter, traveling fireman W. and A. railroad. Several individuals are pressing hard for the other prizes and a lively time is expected.

Following is the program:
Overture—Association orchestra.
Solo—Mr. Rees Waits, Miss Fajnie Belle Waits, accompanist.
Piano Solo—Miss Rosa Nash.
Harmonicle—Mr. J. T. Waits.
Reading—Miss Willie Ott.
Piano Solo—Miss Irene Landen.
Musical Trio—Messrs. Waits and Pritchett brothers.

ASK ADDITIONAL JUDGE FOR ATLANTA CIRCUIT

At a meeting of the general judiciary committee of the number of bills were considered, two local bills being reported favorably and four general bills being reported unfavorably to the senate Thursday morning.

Of the local bills which the committee favored one was a measure which adds another judge to the superior court of the Atlanta circuit and regulates the manner in which the judges of that circuit shall dispose of the business thereof.

The unfavorably reported bills were a bill to make the sessions of the general assembly of Georgia biennial, with minority report; a bill to provide a permanent registration for voters who have qualified and who have been legally registered, with minority report; a bill to provide that defendants in criminal cases shall be subject to cross-examination, with minority report; a bill to provide that defendant in criminal cases shall make no statement, but may be sworn in his defense, with minority report.

ALDERMEN PROBABLY WILL OVERRIDE MAYOR

The aldermanic board probably will override Mayor Woodward's veto on Thursday afternoon on the resolution appropriating $5 to buy an option on the Destructor company to add an electric generating plant to the crematory within twelve months.

Council, voting separately on the resolution last Monday, overrode the mayor by a very large majority, and the aldermanic board is likely to follow suit.

Council members say there can be

FORSYTH—Vandeville.
GRAND—Motion Pictures.
BIJOU—Tabloid Musical Comedy.

The Forsyth is making an attendance record this week that will stand for a long time. The seating capacity has been sold out at all performances and hundreds have been stifled to stand. The bill is clever from the opening number to the pictures.

John F. Conroy and his diving models present a splendid feature. Their stage setting is the handsomest that has been placed on any local stage. The act opens with beautiful poses, then Conroy shows a perfect physical development, and the diving exhibition follows. The water stunts are all new and wonderful.

Deiro, the piano-accompanied, has scored a personal hit, as has Lester, the best of all ventriloquists.

The acts selected for next week are of the usual Forsyth standard. The headliners will be Joe Welch, the famous character comedian; Robert L. Daily and company in the playlet, "Our Bob," and the rip-roaring comedy bicycle stunts of the Welling-Levering company.

"Good Morning Judge," or a musical burlesque on a court room scene, is proving the biggest drawing card of the season at the Bijou this week. The cast is exceedingly clever, and the chorus extremely pretty, graceful and well costumed.

For next week the management announces Norman Friedewald's hilarious musical farce "The Girl from Dublin."

COMMITTEE KILLS "PURE SHOE" BILL

J. K. Orr Makes Leading Speech Against Labeling Shoes Not Leather

General judiciary committee No. 2, in executive session Wednesday afternoon, killed all pending so-called "pure shoe" bills. Three were considered, one of which was withdrawn by the author, and the remaining two reported "not pass" with the accent on the "not."

Large delegations of shoe dealers from all parts of the state and representatives from Missouri concerns filled the committee room and offered their reasons why the bills should or should not go to the house with a favorable recommendation. The provisions of the measures that came up for consideration were all practically the same—that all shoes manufactured of material other than leather should be so labeled in order that the consumer would know what he was getting.

J. K. Orr, president of the J. K. Orr Shoe company, appearing against the enactment of such a law, sounded the rallying note for Georgia shoe dealers when he declared that there are six kinds of leather that can be used in the manufacture of shoes. "These different varieties," said Mr. Orr, "are good, better, best, bad, worse and still worse. Leather is leather, no matter what grade, and I would like to know if a manufacturer would not come within the proposed law with shoes made from, or containing some of the most inferior grade? There is nothing to hinder the manufacturer from using any grade of leather, and thus be exempt from labeling his goods, when as a matter of fact the best substitutes used in the cheaper shoes, make them stronger and more durable than the grade of leather that would be used in other shoes at the same retail price."

"A combination of foreign concerns, using all leather no doubt, (but what kind of leather?) are behind these laws, which have been killed in twenty-three states, and now they come to Georgia in an attempt to secure such legislation."

The hearing lasted fully two hours; the executive session no more than five minutes.

no possible risk or harm to the city in taking the option, since the city is not bound to exercise the option, whereas, the Destructor company is bound to erect the plant if the city wants it.

FEE QUESTION PUT TO STATE HOUSE OFFICERS

Rep. Wohlwender Wants to Know Whether Any Get More Than Salary

A resolution by Representative Wohlwender, of Muscogee, that would require the attorney general, the secretary of state, the comptroller general and the insurance commissioner to report in writing five days after its passage whether or not they are receiving or allowed any fees or perquisites of office in addition to their respective salaries, was introduced in the house Thursday morning and referred to general judiciary committee No. 1.

The resolution declares it is the disposition of the people of Georgia to abolish fees of all state and county officers and that the legislature is desirous of information whether any of the state house officials are receiving fees.

Mr. Wohlwender further specifies that each of the officials named file with their report to the house a copy of the same report they or each of them filed with the comptroller general under the act of August 17, 1912.

Chaingangs in Georgia

Fined Forty-Five Dollars, The Man Could Not Pay. He Had to Die in Georgia

Bridge at half cent a point.

Cold hands.

Penny-ante.

Jack-pots.

Stud.

Straight poker.

DID YOU ever play one or all of them?

Ever play a game for money?

THIS MAN DID.

Detected, he was arrested.

Convicted in your court, he heard this sentence:

"Forty-five dollars or eight months in the chaingang."

Speaking for you, your judge said in effect:

"Oh, moneyless man!

"You may go free if you pay forty-five dollars.

"You cannot? You are poor?

"And yet, charged with gaming, you dare to stand in a Court of Justice?

"If you have not forty-five dollars—

"A ring of steel shall be riveted on your leg,

"A zebra suit upon your back shall proclaim your infamy.

"For eight months, a striped thing of horror to women and children, you shall go publicly to and from your work, shackled to other men.

"Since you do not pay—

"You shall work in chains.

"While others rest, when you try to sleep, you shall be chained in your bed to creatures as wretched and moneyless as yourself.

"Your fetters shall gall your skin night after night.

"And beware the guard! if you displease him, our lash is ready for your back.

"POOR FOOL, PAY—

"Forty-five dollars for the coffers of the great State of Georgia.

"Miserable, moneyless man.

"Because of your poverty—

"Suffer.

"God may pity you.

"We will not since you have no money."

The man is dead.

Stripes and chains were put upon him.

In the quarry of the forty-nine pound hammers you drive him in the frightful heat.

There he fell.

HE DIED THAT DAY.

Remember—

His offense was only this: he played a game for money.

Nothing more.

You condemned him.

You demanded that he pay.

He could not.

You killed him; you did not intend it.

But ignorance is no excuse.

Paul wrote for you:

"Thou art inexcusable, oh man."

And Jesus said:

"With what judgment you judge, you shall be judged.

"And with what measure you mete, it shall be measured to you again."

God wake you.

Men, women and children are being destroyed in the name of law in Georgia.

The guilt is yours and ours.

An Unfair and Disastrous Tax.

In a timely and cogent communication reproduced elsewhere on this page, Mr. M. S. Chipley, a member of the spot cotton firm of J. S. Chipley and Company, of Greenwood, S. C., points out the disastrous consequences involved in the proposed tax on contracts for future delivery of cotton. Mr. Chipley writes from the viewpoint and with the experience of those dealers who, as he says, are perhaps closer than any other group of men to a real knowledge of the legitimate and necessary functions a cotton exchange performs. He writes in the interest of thousands of Southern merchants and manufacturers and farmers whose welfare would be imperiled almost to the point of destruction, should the Clark
"rider" to the pending tariff bill go into effect.

Future contracts are indispensable to every department of the cotton business: directly so to the merchant and indirectly to the grower and the spinner. A cotton firm in Georgia, for instance, may sell to American or European spinners cotton to the amount of a hundred thousand bales subject to delivery through the year in monthly allotments sufficient to supply the consumption of the purchasing mills. Now, fluctuations in the price of cotton are, as everyone knows, greater than in that of any other commodity. Hence no firm could possibly enter into contracts involving so large an amount of money and so exposed to frequent and violent changes in the market price without some means of protecting itself against such fluctuations. This necessary safeguard is now afforded in the cotton exchange through which dealers can buy contracts against their sales with a sufficient margin established between the two to fix a definite profit on their transactions. No stable dealer could incur the heavy and constant risk involved in the handling of any considerable amount of cotton without this means of insuring himself against losses that would prove ruinous.

It is evident, therefore, that the cotton future contract is an absolute necessity to the orderly and profitable conduct of legitimate cotton business; indeed, it is the very foundation of this vast field of commercial, industrial and agricultural enterprise, for, without freedom and safety in the buying and selling of cotton, the producer of cotton cannot receive his due.

The purpose of the rider which Senator Clark, of Arkansas, has persuaded the Democratic caucus to attach to the tariff bill, is to restrict, if not destroy,
the possibility of contracts for future delivery of cotton. It proposes to tax all such contracts at the rate of one-tenth of one cent per pound; which is equivalent to fifty dollars per hundred bales; and that amount is said by one authority to be "as much as cotton merchants now expect to make as net profit on any of their transaction and certainly more than any cotton merchant or firm of cotton merchants in the country has averaged to make over a period of years." Such a tax would thus be virtually destructive of the right to secure protective future contracts, so far as the average dealer is concerned; and it would, therefore be destructive of the security and the very life of the nation's cotton business.

Mr. Chipley, to whose communication we have referred, well says in this connection:

"The buyer with moderate or small resources,
no longer having open to him the hedge protection furnished by the exchanges, will not offer sufficient safety to the mind of the manufacturer against violent fluctuations in price, and consequently the farmer will be deprived of a large body of buyers of his product. In the hands of a few large buyers, it takes no profound thinker to conclude that the price of cotton will not be raised."

This point is emphatically well taken. The effect of such a tax as the Senate is asked to impose would inevitably drive out of business a large number of dealers, thereby concentrating the buying of cotton in the hands of a few, a condition which, it is easy to see, would soon develop a powerful monopoly whose every nod and beck the farmer would have to obey. What a travesty it would be upon a Democratic Congress that is pledged to the removal of barriers in the path of free enterprise and individual initiative, should it enact a measure which would produce a directly opposite result!

This consideration aside, it is evident that such dealers as remained in the cotton business would, if denied the right to protect themselves by means of future contracts, discount the price they heretofore have paid to the farmer and at the farmer's expense insure themselves against losses. Thus in any event, the producer of cotton would suffer; and it is truth universally recognized that whatever retards or injures agricultural interests retards and injures our economic life as a whole.

There is still another phase of this subject to which Mr. Chipley calls merited attention, a phase in which the American manufacturer is directly concerned.

"The privilege of contracting with reliable merchants for the future delivery of cotton," he says, "is extension of the mill's power to produce. All the capital heretofore occupied in carrying the actual cotton, preparatory to being spun into cloth, may now be released and turned in other directions. There should be as small a storage charge on cloth as possible in order to keep down the price of clothing to humanity.
This item of expense cannot be avoided unless the privilege to contract for the future delivery of cloth is open to the spinner. With the imposition of the proposed tax, the spinner in this country will be placed at a serious disadvantage with his competitor across the water. For, he must either continue to compete with him in the customary way which has heretofore involved the future-trading practice, or be content to accept whatever business the foreigner sees fit to decline."

The fact is the severe restriction or abolishment of the future contract, as proposed by the Clark
"rider," would be a staggering blow to every part of that vast field of legitimate interests comprised in the production, the merchandizing and manufacture of cotton. Upon the entire country, it would fall grievously; but upon the South and the Southern farmer, it would fall disastrously. It behooves the people of the South to bestir themselves while there yet is time and bring to bear upon the Senate every rightful means at their command to defeat this ill-advised and really outrageous tax that is proposed.

Considering that part of Mexico is without arms,
they succeed admirably in keeping up a row.

The State's Simple Duty
In School Book Prices.

There is evidently a strong and praiseworthy sentiment in the Legislature for the adoption of some plan whereby the prices of common-school books in Georgia may be made as low as a reasonable cost of production will warrant. The issue involves no attack on publishing interests, either as individuals or as a group; it is simply a question of the State protecting the public's interests at a point where the public is dependent upon the State for the prices it must pay. The texts used in our common school are largely, and necessarily, prescribed by the State's educational authorities; pupils and patrons must buy the books specified in the official list. How important it is, therefore, that the State give the people the best and fairest possible deal in the prices of such books!

A resolution and a bill to this end have been introduced by Representative McCrory, of Schley, and both have been favorably reported by the House committee on education. The one calls for the appointment of a joint commission from the House and the Senate to investigate thoroughly the present cost of school books in Georgia; the other provides that the State shall prepare and have published on its own account certain text books to be sold to the pupils practically at cost. There can be no unprejudiced objection to the proposed investigation. It is admittedly true that the people of Georgia pay anywhere from a hundred and fifty to two hundred per cent more for a number of school books than the people of Ontario pay. This is a fact which certainly demands the Legislature's earnest inquiry and consideration.

The proposal that the State prepare and print by competitive bids certain elementary texts is entitled a fair test. This plan has worked satisfactorily in Ontario and until the contrary has been proved we may assume that it will work equally as well in Georgia, where the cost of material and labor are not appreciably higher than in the Canadian province.

It is a matter of record that a school primer which costs twenty-five cents in Georgia costs only four cents in Ontario, that a First reader which costs twenty cents in Georgia costs but six cents in Ontario, that a Second reader costing twenty-four cents in Georgia is bought in Ontario for nine cents, that a Third reader for which the people of this State pay thirty cents is sold to those of Ontario for fourteen cents, that a Fourth reader costing thirty-five cents in this State costs only sixteen cents in the Canadian schools; and that an arithmetic for which our people are charged forty cents can be bought under the Ontario plan of government publication for only ten cents.

These discrepancies are too glaring to be ignored.
The series of texts we have mentioned costs a Geo-gian a dollar and seventy-five cents, and the Canadian only fifty-nine cents. If the State can wipe out or considerably reduce this difference of a dollar and sixteen cents, it should certainly do so as a matter of good business and square dealing with its citizens, for, as we have shown, the people are dependent upon the State in regard to the prices they pay for school books. The State cannot be true to its duties or responsibilities and suffer its citizens to pay more for school books than is necessary.

If the State can prepare and publish these books
more cheaply than private interests, it should unhesitatingly do so. It will be recalled in this connection that comparatively a few years ago when the code of Georgia was published under private auspices, it cost ten dollars, whereas today when published by the State it costs only two dollars. In like manner, the price of Georgia reports have been reduced from six or seven dollars to a dollar and a half a volume.
If a similar plan will effect a proportionate reduction in the cost of our common-school books—and there is as yet no evidence to the contrary—why not adopt it? It should at least be given a trial, as the McCrory bill provides. In the meanwhile, the State should not enter into another five-year contract for school books until this question has been completely investigated.

Most Vital Interests

Editor The Journal:
Being very much interested in the proposed legislation against future trading in cotton, and observing the sensible lines that have appeared in your editorial columns against this ill-advised Clarke amendment to the tariff bill, I am taking the liberty of addressing this communication to you, that you may know the disfavor in which it is held among the men who are closer perhaps than any other to a real knowledge of what functions a cotton exchange consists. Being a member of the spot firm of J. S. Chipley & Co., at Greenwood, S. C., and having no official connection whatever with any cotton exchange, these views, if they contain any truths, should meet with consideration at the hands of those who would tear down an institution which renders so much real service to the business world. There is scarcely a spot dealer in the whole south who does not hold similar views.

It would be superfluous to dwell upon the wisdom of that economy which, in the light of future needs, quickness and expands production of today. No intelligent mind will dispute that it is wholly desirable that commerce be granted every facility for ascertaining the requirements of the future in order to prepare wisely for its coming. But in spite of these accepted principles, the commercial world is astonished to hear the highest legislative body in these United States seriously discussing the passage of a law designed to impede and hamper these very forces of supply and demand.
The cotton exchanges, where from the four corners of the globe gather the agents of supply and demand, are to the producers and consumers of cotton what a bureau of information is to the stranger in a great city.
It is here that a buyer, perhaps in a distant corner of the eastern hemisphere, makes known his desire to purchase cotton by an order to his broker. And quickly comes the news to every part of the cotton producing section. Where the keen eye of the farmer and buyer is ever on the alert to detect the least sign of an advance in the future market or for encouragement to hold tighter in the former's case and to bid higher in the latter's. No matter how distant from the cotton fields or inaccessible the buyer, if he be within reach of telegraph or telephone, he is in effect brought to the very door of the cotton grower through the modern method of future trading.

With the elimination of future trading the manufacturer will turn to a few of the largest cotton houses for their supply of cotton. The buyer of moderate or small resources, no longer having open to him the hedge protection furnished by the exchanges, will not offer sufficient safety in the mind of the manufacturer against violent fluctuations in price and consequently the farmer will have been deprived of a large body of buyers of his product. In the hands of a few large buyers it takes no profound thinker to conclude that it will not result in raising the price of cotton.

Those senators who are defending the Clarke amendment advance the argument that fully one hundred and forty million bales are traded in upon the exchanges annually, and that of these only about fourteen million are contracts of that character known as "hedge" trading. And that if all other trading is driven away by this tax the government would still receive the substantial sum of seven million into its treasury. And the boldness of their argument is the more surprising when it is considered upon whose shoulders the burden will fall. To any one who is familiar with the modern method of distributing the cotton crop there can be no doubt as to whose lot the payment of this tax will fall. The cotton merchant, having upon his books no orders for the immediate delivery of all the grades he is compelled to buy from the plantations, seeks safety from a decline in price by selling the number of bales corresponding to that on hand to some one through the exchanges who is willing to assume the risk of a decline. But since to do so is to become indebted to the government by the amount of the tax,
he very naturally will deduct this tax from his purchase price to the farmer. It is either this or he must resort to the protection afforded in discounting
in price, at the time of purchase, both the tax as well as any probable decline before the cotton can be sold to the mill. It is just as well to note here that the European spinner, being aware of the tax imposed upon his American competitor, will reduce his offers for cotton a point just above the equivalent in price to this tax and it seems fairly certain that less money on each bale sold would reach the producer as a result.

The manufacturer receiving an offer for the future delivery of cloth, discovers that he is unable to avoid the payment of this tax on such contracts, since the cotton merchant to whom he turns to secure raw material in the quantity corresponding to his sale of cloth, will be compelled to add to his price for cotton a sufficient amount to cover this kind of trade. Thus we have two great industries of the southern states singled out as objects of an unwise and unjust tax amounting to what its advocates admit as seven million of dollars.

But there are many other phases of the cotton industry which will be affected if this amendment is enacted into law. To tax and thus dissuade the agents of supply and demand as they meet upon the exchanges for the purpose of adjusting and keeping in the highest state of efficiency the machinery of commerce, is little short of suicidal. To do so is to lessen the demand for both cotton and cloth. The privilege of contracting with reliable merchants for the future delivery of cotton is in effect the extension of that mill's power to produce. All the capital heretofore occupied in carrying the actual cotton preparatory to being spun into cloth may now be released and devoted in other directions. There should be as small a storage charge on cloth as possible before leaving the mill in order to keep down the price of clothing for humanity. This item of expense cannot be avoided unless the privilege to contract for the future delivery of cloth is open to the spinner. But when in this manner the machinery of cotton distribution is in a highly efficient condition, humanity is served in the most economical way.

With the imposition of this tax the spinner of this country will be placed at a serious disadvantage with his competitor across the water. For he must either continue to compete with him in the customary way which has heretofore involved the future trading principle, or be content to accept whatever business the foreigner sees fit to decline.
There has been much abuse directed at the speculator, but there is no denying that he is of much value to the farmer at times. All cotton students know that the spinner has great respect for the intelligent speculator. And it is upon this gentleman that they keep a wary eye. He is their natural enemy and constantly acts as a lash to an otherwise reluctant willingness to buy. Without him the farmer would be at the mercy of the spinner. It is oftentimes argued that the speculator uses the exchanges as a weapon in beating down the price of cotton. The speculator does only what he observes the planter doing and the refusal of the planter to part with his cotton meets with the immediate assistance of the speculator in forcing the spinner to pay more. Yours very respectfully,
M. S. CHIPLEY.

THE NEW RURAL SCHOOL

III.—ALL IN A DAY'S FUN.
BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

If, when you were a little boy or a little girl, your father and mother had sent you to a school where you had nothing to do all day long but play, wouldn't you have thought them a little kind? Probably you would have thought them a little kind. For long, silent hours on a hard bench, longing to be out of doors, and yet trying to master a multiplication table that was absurdly silly; or else having to pretend to patience while some grim old fellow of a teacher pounded into your ears the foolish theory that fairy tales were, after all, nothing but "discourses" made up of nouns and verbs and adjectives and adverbs. Did the teacher make you "parse" a line from Hawthorne? Now all that sort of thing is done away with in the experimental rural school at Rock Hill, S. C., as has been explained in the two articles preceding this one.
In the Rock Hill school the children learn not only the multiplication table and the rules of grammar, but they learn a great many things in botany and zoology and chemistry from the very first day in school. Of course, the teacher is too kind ever to make use of the word "grammar" or "chemistry," for she is helping all the children to have a good time, and it would spoil the game to make work of any little thing. At Rock Hill an education comes naturally—it's all in a day's fun.

The very second week of the school's life the kitchen began to be a center of activity. The children made an inventory of all the utensils and dishes, the little ones counting aloud as well as they were able,
the older ones making lists. The spelling in the lists was corrected and the best one pasted up in the cupboard door. Sometimes kitchen work is dirty, so the towels had to be provided. The boys and girls hemmed the towels, and then the girls and boys saw that there must be some way to hang them up. So off to the carpenter's shop to cut some moulding for the towels—it was too rainy to work in the garden.

Again the teacher makes a discovery. Being conventional, she and the men who planned the school had devised a conventional separation of the sexes in occupational activity—they believed the boys would delight in the carpenter shop and the girls in the kitchen. The first thing was that the girls insisted on doing the carpenter work, and then the boys refused to be shut out of the cooking and the sewing.

But one day the towels must be washed. The teacher asks all the children about washing clothes and discovers various methods in use in as many homes. But the school decides that the school towels will be washed in soap, boiled in soapy water, washed again without soap and then rinsed twice. The teacher writes the orders on the blackboard:
Pins—Paul and Jack.
Tub—Silas.
Ladle—Lonnie and Marion.
Water—Bennie, Clarence, McIver and Estelle.
Towels—Bruce.
Clothes Pins—Margaret.
Soap and Washboard—Sara.

By this time even tiny Nell has learned to read her own orders. (The school is now entered on its fifth week). The materials all provided, each child washes his own towel, and puts it in to boil. Then all of them take the "cut out" letters and make on the table
such words as rub, tub, water, soap, towels, wash, etc.
Then they read a real reading lesson: "Rub, rub, rub! See my tub. This is washing day. I like to wash. Do you like to wash?" etc. When the towels are being washed through other waters they all sing
"The Mulberry Bush"—"This is the way we wash our clothes, wash our clothes," etc. And when they were dried they were ironed to the same songful accompaniment. Parenthetically it may be said that nothing is of more importance on the farm than wash day, and that nothing is so badly done on the average farm.

When the washing was done everybody went to the garden and found that the turnip and squash leaves were curled up in the heat. What went with the water that was in the towels when they were first hung out on the line? Does the water leave the turnip leaves in the same way? And if we had rolled up a towel would it have taken longer to dry out? That is why the leaves curl on a hot day, so that they won't dry out so quickly, the teacher tells them. And they know it is true, but they don't know they have had an elementary lesson in hydraulics.

Not that the children are in the least afraid of big words, or that the teacher scatters them from polysyllabic terms. For instance, in the study of the bean, where each child minutely marked every stage of the germination and development of the plant, one of the children asked what was the name of the two fleshy
"seed leaves," and the teacher told them that they were cotyledons.

Now the teacher had never said a word about grammar, but without saying anything, in writing down new words to be learned one had always arranged them in columns, the names of things in the left column, words describing them in the middle, and words of action in the third. The children naturally grouped nouns, adjectives and verbs in this order. The soaked beans were exhibited and discussed, pictures of them were drawn, and then the children copied from the blackboard the title, "The soaked bean." Under that they wrote what they pleased, but followed Mrs. Browne's columnar habit of arranging words. McIver Coker, being but six years old and never having written anything in his life before, indeed only a day or two earlier for the first time he had proudly refused help in reading orders from the board. McIver wrote about the beans. He put down only three words, and put them all in the first column. The three were: "see,"
"coat" and "cotyledon," and they were all spelled correctly.

Nine-year-old Estelle Collins found out so much about the soaked bean that it required two pieces of paper to hold it all. In the first column she had bean, seed, coat, cotyledons, plant, radicle, stem, plumule, scar, spot. In the second column: tough, soft, thick, white, tender, little, hard, smooth, oblong, round, rough and white a second time. In the third column she had three words: swelled, softened and feeds. But really this was not so remarkable for a school where a seven-year-old girl sewing up a gingham bean bag believed it quite necessary for her first to draw a plan of the bag, and then to calculate the perimeter of the finished product. It's all in the day's fun at Rock Hill.

The Eternal Feminine

Inez Milholland was "just a girl" after all.
Miss Milholland proves that the female of the species is not changed in nature by manly training. She may ride astride, study law, be admitted to the bar, lead strikes, figure as an agitator for the extension of all masculine rights, duties and privileges to her sex and remain as romantic as the girl with no other thought than that inspired by 20-cent literature and the 30-cent matinee.
Inez Milholland, pride of the domestic suffragists and, honored by the foreign militants, fell in love at first sight, flew away with her adored and was wedded in a manner that amounted to elopement. This strong-minded young woman entered matrimony in the style of which school girls dream.
Wherefore, we may conclude that women are all alike and unchangeable. They will continue the same despite new conditions and even their own efforts to make something else and other of themselves.—Buffalo Enquirer.

An Open Letter
To Vincent Astor

By
Dr. Frank
Crane

At the beginning I apologize for using your name.
I do not like personalities. Your name appears at the head of this article for two reasons. First, the family to which you belong has become well known on account of its persistent policy in real estate, and I have a real estate suggestion to make.

Second, you have recently come into the control of large wealth, and in a measure every wealthy man is a public official, with duties toward the people, duties which, from all I hear, you are disposed to acknowledge frankly and discharge to the best of your ability.

This is my suggestion to you:
There are two normal, who some things a Rich man can do with his money: First, use it to make the greatest possible number of human beings healthy, prosperous, and happy; and, second, to perpetuate and distinguish his own name and personality to succeeding generations.

My suggestion is that you accomplish both these ends by establishing GARDEN SUBURBS.

If you look into the matter I am sure you will find such experiments as those in England, at Letch-worth, Bourneville, Gidea Park, Ruislip Manor, Knebworth, Port Sunlight and Hampstead, and at many towns in Germany, full of inspiration.

It needs no argument to convince you that a major part of the misery of our country comes from the overcrowding of cities, and that the people would be healthier and happier if they could be lured far enough into the country to have their own homes.

All around your own city of New York there is plenty of average property that could be bought up and sold to people of small means.

This would help people to help themselves, which is the truest charity.

It would encourage early marriage and large families. It is difficult to bring up children in dark and cramped city flats.

All around the crowded metropolis you could erect another metropolis of happy homes.

Such GARDEN SUBURBS could be so managed that the title to the land and the government of the community should rest in the people themselves, while providing the promoter with reasonable profits.

Suburbs are already growing, but the better class of people are only for the well-to-do or the upper middle grade of people. It is the wage-workers who most need homes of beauty, need to own their homes, and take a pride in citizenship.

I am sure that if you created a circle of beautiful home towns all around New York your example would be followed in other cities, and the name of Astor would be identified with one of the most magnificent movements of the twentieth century.

William Morris wrote in 1881:

"As I sit at my work at home, which is at Hammersmith, close to the river, I often hear some of that ruffianism go past the window of which a good deal has been said in the papers of late. As I hear the yells and shrieks and all the degradation cast on the glorious tongue of Shakespeare and Milton as I see the brutal, reckless faces and figures go past me,
it rouses the recklessness and brutality in me also,
and fierce wrath takes possession of me, till I remember that it was my good luck only of being born respectable and rich that has put me on this side of the window among delightful books and lovely works of art, and not on the other side, in the empty street,
the drink-steeped liquor shops, the foul and degraded lodgings. I know by my own feelings and desires what these men want, what would have saved them from this lowest depth of savagery: employment which would foster their self-respect and win the praise and sympathy of their fellows, and dwellings which they could come to with pleasure, surroundings which would soothe and elevate them; reasonable labor, reasonable rest."

What Would You Do?

(International Magazine.)

Some time ago a man was "knocking" Andrew Carnegie for "the crazy idea of putting up all those libraries," and finally for lack of something else to say, I asked him casually: "Well, what would you do if you had 200 millions dumped into your lap?"

He gulped once or twice, went into a sort of trance, and finally said: "Why, I'd—I'd—why, blamed 'f I knew"—and then we talked about something else.

Since then the subject has crossed my mind many times, and I am not sure that the proper solution is any nearer. If you ask the question of ten of your friends, you will at first get a funny answer from each of them:

"Buy me a yacht and travel all the time"—"Build the finest home in the country"—"Buy all the pork and beans in the world and throw them to the fishes," etc., these being a few of the actual answers given me. Afterward, on reflection, each one will really try to say what he would do, but the human mind finds it difficult to comprehend such an amount, or even the interest on it, which at 5 per cent would be 15 million dollars yearly.

GETTING ACQUAINTED.

I have watched them folks next door
For a week or maybe more.
Kinder hopin' that they'd speak
An' my folks' acquaintance seek.

They seem human sort o' folks,
For I hear 'em makin' jokes
And sometimes they scold and fuss,
Then make up ag'in—like us!

But they're city raised, I guess,
Skeered o' strangers, and—well, yes,
We are kinder skittish, too—
Can't tell what strange folks will do!

Back in Pomanville, where we Used to live, we'd always be Mighty glad if new folks would Move into our neighborhood.

We'd all borry—yes, and lend;
Every feller wuz a friend;
Soon the gates would lose their use—
We'd knock a back fence pain' loose!

Wish I knew them folks next door!
I won't hesitate no more.
Where you from, friend? Camel Hill?
Why, that's close to Pomanville!

The Connecticut "Blue Laws"

These statutes were enacted by the people of the "Dominion of New Haven," and being printed on blue paper, came to be generally known as Blue Laws. No one shall run on the Sabbath day, or walk in his garden, or elsewhere, except reverently to and from meeting.

No food or lodgings shall be offered to Quaker,
Adamite or heretic.

No one shall travel, cook victuals, make beds, sweep houses, cut hair or shave on the Sabbath day.

No one shall kiss her children on Sabbath or fasting days.

No one shall read common prayer books, keep Christmas, or set days, eat mince pie, dance, play cards or play on any instrument of music except the drum, trumpet and Jew's harp.

Married persons must live together, or be imprisoned.—Kansas City Star.

ARKANSAS IS SWEEP BY DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATES

George W. Hays Probably Will Have Plurality of 34,000 for Governor

(By Associated Press.)
LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 24.—With scattering returns in from all sections of the state and approximately two-thirds of the vote at yesterday's election accounted for, indications today are that George W. Hays, Democratic candidate for governor will have a plurality of about 34,000 votes. Meyers, Republican; Murphy, Progressive, and Deber, Socialist, ran in the order named.
The Socialists cast only 2,100 votes.
The Democratic vote was lighter than expected.

Senate Bills

The following house bills were passed by the Georgia senate Thursday:
By Mr. Parrish of the Seventeenth —To amend an act creating a board of commissioners of roads and revenues for Bulloch county.
By Mr. Clark of Dougherty—To authorize the commissioner of roads and revenues of Dougherty county to contribute from the treasury to the hospital fund.
By Mr. Cook of Chattahoochee—To create a board of commissioners of roads and revenues for Chattahoochee county.
By Mr. Grimes of Miller—To amend an act creating the city court of Miller
county.
By Mr. Atwood of McIntosh—To amend an act creating commissioners of McIntosh county.
By Mr. Grimes of Miller—To amend
an act creating a board of commissioners of roads and revenues of Miller
county.
By Messrs. Field and Smith of De-Kalb—To create a new charter for the city of Lithonia.
By Messrs. Jones and Stolberg of Columbia—To create a new charter for the town of Sharpsburg.
By Mr. Adams of Pike—To incorporate the town of Meansville.
By Mr. Miller of Bibb—To repeal an act authorizing the board of county commissioners of Bibb county to issue and sell county bonds.
By Mr. Ragland of Talbot—To incorporate the town of Box Springs.
By Mr. Shadburn of Gwinnett—To authorize the county commissioners of Gwinnett county to pay out county funds for certain purposes.
By Mr. Thompson of Madison—To repeal an act incorporating the town of Comer.
By Mr. Atwood of McIntosh—To amend the charter of the city of Dar-len.
By Mr. Clements of Irwin—To repeal
an act creating a board of commissioners of roads and revenue for Irwin county.
By Mr. Clements of Irwin—To cre-

HELLO GIRLS GET SUPPER FOR BURGLARS' CAPTURE

Because they frightened away a burglar from his store at the corner of Ivy street and Edgewood avenue Wednesday morning, Michael Koloff, the owner of the store, will give a supper Thursday evening to the operators of the Atlanta
Telephone company.
A letter of thanks has already been sent to the girls by Mr. Koloff and they have also received one from Night Chief Jett. The supper will be sent to the telephone exchange shortly after midnight.

Boys' Wash Suits $1.00

Given the materials, would you make a boy's suit for $1.00? Once you've tried it, you'll hardly believe a suit can be sold for that price, especially a good suit, such as we show you.

Here they are:

COMMITTEE TALKS OF NEW INTERURBAN LINE

Encouragement Given Proposed Construction of Line From Anderson, S. C., to Atlanta

Encouragement to the construction of the interurban line, known as the Duke line, from Anderson, S. C., to Atlanta, is promised as the result of a meeting at the Capital City club of the chamber of commerce committee on interurban railways.
The committee also will gather statistics and information relative to interurban railways in Indiana and other western states with a view to presenting the advantages which Atlanta will gather from their construction.
The members of the committee present were Chairman Hollins N. Rail-dolph, Preston S. Arkwright, Frederic J. Paxton and Secretary Fred Lewis.

HOUSE BILL TO REMOVE EXPERIMENT STATION

Wilkes County Representatives
Would Make It Part of Farm
College at Athens

In accordance with an exclusive forecast made in The Journal over a week ago, an effort has been started to move the Georgia experiment station, from Griffin to Athens and make it a part of the State Agricultural college.
The first material indication came Thursday morning, when Representatives Greene and Booker, of Wilkes county, introduced a bill in the house providing for the removal of the station to Athens.
It is provided in the bill that should it become a law, the station would be known as the Agricultural experiment station, and at once become an integral part of the State College of Agriculture and mechanic arts as prescribed by the federal acts appropriating funds for the maintenance of such stations.

STATE OF GEORGIA—County of Fulton.
Personally appeared before the undersigned Hugh M. Willet, who, being duly sworn, deposes and says that he is a member of the firm of Bagley & Willet, general agents of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company, and that the foregoing statement is correct and true.

HUGH M. WILLET.
Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 23d day of July, 1913.
Notary Public, Fulton County, Georgia.
My commission expires September 15, 1915.

The Penn Mutual Life has approximately $30,000,000 of insurance in force in Georgia, which amount is greater than is carried by any other company.
The Penn Mutual Life has $7,000,000 invested in Georgia. Its investments in this state are being increased at the rate of about $1,000,000 per annum, which is a sum considerably in excess of that which it receives for premiums and holds as reserve.
The Penn Mutual Life has served its policyholders faithfully and successfully for 86 years.
We invite inquiry. No obligation.

LIBERAL SELLING OF OLD CROPS CAUSED DECLINE

Market in New York Closed 5 to 27 Pts. Down From the Previous Close

(By Associated Press.) NEW YORK, July 24.—After liberal selling of old crop months, foreign trade caused an opening decline of 8 to 8 points in those positions. While new cotton was unaffected, the decline in the old crop was due to the fact that the market was not in a position to absorb the large quantity of old crop months offered for sale. The market was not in a position to absorb the large quantity of old crop months offered for sale. The market was not in a position to absorb the large quantity of old crop months offered for sale.

After declining 30 points on August and 5 to 6 points on new crop the market steadied up on new crop on the idea that after its recent severe decline the market was entitled to some support.

Estimated receipts today 2,000 bales. Increased activity and decided weakness observed after the close of yesterday's session. Selling off 21 to 31 points under yesterday's new crop showed a net decline of fully 27 points. The market was not in a position to absorb the large quantity of old crop months offered for sale.

A Visitor and a Voice

The mystery of the telephone and wonder at its power has been lost in everyday usage especially in Atlanta where patience and long suffering regarding a system which could and should be so much better has become anything but a virtue. But every now and then wonder at the telephone comes as a big moving thrill and electricity seems up like a great pagan god to whom altars should be erected and sacrifices made.

Sometimes the thrill comes with the sound of a voice hundreds of miles distant, clear and distinct, as if a few feet away, sometimes it is a voice which eliminates space and brings one face to face with the speaker and then the telephone is invested with a feeling as well as a hearing quality and it becomes a new and fresh marvel which neither time nor "Central" can destroy.

Thanks to the telephone the voice of a distinguished visitor so visualized the speaker that her presence was not only felt but seen. But then it is not given to everyone to have the voice of Mrs. Cora Harris nor the personality behind the telephone and projects its power to the listener at the other end of the line.

It is a full voice, a voice that one would expect the talking voice of a contralto to be and it has nice shadings, the kind of a voice which goes with a colorful personality. Most of all it is a voice one would like to hear telling a story in which joy and sorrow fight a duel, a story of brave deeds and daring, told in words as brave and beautiful as the deeds themselves.

The telephone talk was not a story of stirring deeds but a laughing little bit of the short visit which has been filled with the interesting discussion of the plans which will make more habitable the log cabin which Mrs. Harris will make her home near Pine Lake, and of the series of informal little affairs at which her Atlanta friends have entertained.

Mrs. Harris is as modest and retiring as if fame had never crowned her at the appearance of her first book and gone on giving her laurels to those succeeding it.

The cabin Mrs. Harris says is one of the two left standing, built by the Cherokee Indians in 1820.

"I always thought," she said, "that Indians lived in wigwams but it seems the Cherokees were builders of houses. It is very interesting to have one of them and I have invited several thousand of my friends to come and see this one whenever they are so inclined."

Mrs. Harris will leave for her delectable hills, leaving behind her the hands of her friends in the fact that she has come back to Georgia to make her home.

Capital City Country Club
A number of dinner parties will be given at the dinner dance at the Capital City and Country club, which will be a pleasant event of this evening.

Among those entertaining parties will be Mr. and Mrs. William A. Speer and Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Woodside, who will have as their special guest Miss Margaret Gause.

To Visitors

Mrs. Fred Houser and Miss Alma Nance were hostesses at a bridge luncheon Thursday morning at the home of Mrs. Houser on Peachtree street, in compliment to Miss Viola Wade, of Palmetto, Fla., who is the guest of Miss Alma Nance.

The prize for top score was correspondence cards, and the guest of honor was presented a late novel.

The apartment was attractively decorated with garden flowers and growing plants, and at the close of the game a luncheon was served which carried out in its minor details a color scheme of pink and white.

The guests included Miss Wade, Miss Nance, Miss Malnor Hardin, Mrs. Hatton Rogers, Mrs. Ben Wade, of Palmetto, Fla.; Mrs. B. C. Broyles, Mrs. Albert Barnes, Mrs. Grover McGhee, Mrs. J. C. Bell, Mrs. T. J. Nance.

To Miss Robson's Guests

Mrs. Nat Winslow entertained informally this afternoon at a pretty porch party in honor of Miss Julia Robson and her guests, Miss Kirby Willingham, of Atlanta; Miss Kirby Burr, of Atlanta; Miss Sarah Hodge, of Henderson. Forty-two was played in the cool porch and was most attractive with many palms, ferns and vases of dwarf sun flowers. A lovely blue bird pin was awarded for the highest score.

The Look of Youth

It depends more upon the condition of the hair than upon the features of a woman's face. That is why any woman can keep young looking, because, no matter what the condition of her hair, thin, faded or gray, it can be restored to its natural color and beautiful softness and luster with

Robinnair Hair Dye

This wonderful preparation keeps the hair in a beautiful condition, restores the original color to faded or gray hair, and does not stain the scalp or make the hair sticky. Prepared for light, medium and dark brown and black hair.

Myself and Me
I'm the best pal that I ever had,
I like to be with me,
I like to sit and tell myself
Things confidentially.

I often sit and ask me
If I shouldn't or I should,
And I find that my advice to me
Is always pretty good.

I never got acquainted with Myself till here of late,
And I find myself a bully chum,
I treat me simply great.

I talk with me and walk with me
And show me right and wrong,
I never knew how well myself
And me could get along.

I never try and cheat me,
I'm as truthful as can be;
No matter what may come or go,
I'm on the square with me.

It's great to know yourself and have
A pal that's all your own;
To be such company for yourself
You're never left alone.

You'll try and dodge the masses,
And you'll find a crowd a joke
If you only treat yourself as well
As you treat other folk.

Youthful, Wrinkleless Skin Easy to Have

(Elberta Reid in Woman's Tribune.)
You who desire to regain a youthful appearance will do well to make the acquaintance of the two simple, but valuable, prescriptions here given.
To make an effective wrinkle-remover, mix an ounce of powdered saxolite and a half-pint witch hazel. Bathe the face in the solution—immediately every wrinkle is affected. It acts wonderfully on sagging facial muscles, also, the lotion possessing remarkable astringent and tonic properties.
To get rid of an aged, faded, freckled or discolored complexion, buy an ounce of common mercerized wax at any drug store and apply nightly as you would cold cream, erasing this morning's with soap and water. This will slowly absorb the undesirable surface skin, revealing the younger, brighter, healthier skin underneath. I know of nothing to equal this treatment as a facial rejuvenator. (Advt.)

A famous skin specialist's own soap

Learn what it will do for you

John H. Woodbury devoted his entire life to a study of the skin and its needs. From his experience with thousands of cases of skin troubles, he developed the formula of the now famous Woodbury's Facial Soap.

In the 12-page wrapper around every cake of this soap the causes for all common skin troubles are given—conspicuous nose pores, sallowness, blackheads, etc.—and the proper treatments to relieve them.

If there is any condition of your skin you want to improve, get a cake of Woodbury's today and follow carefully the directions given in this wrapper. In ten days or two weeks your skin will show a marked improvement—a promise of that lovelier complexion which the steady use of Woodbury's always brings.

Woodbury's Facial Soap costs 25c a cake. No one hesitates at the price after their first cake.

BACKACHE A SYMPTOM

Of More Serious Illness Approaching. Mrs. Bender's Case.

Backache is a symptom of organic weakness or derangement. If you have backache do not neglect it. To get permanent relief you must reach the root of the trouble. Read about Mrs. Bender's experience.

St. James, Mo.—"About a year ago I was irregular, had cramps every month, headache and constant backache. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used the Sanative Wash and I am relieved of all my troubles and am in perfect health. I shall recommend your medicine to all my friends and you may publish this testimonial for the benefit of other suffering women."—Miss ANNA BENDER, St. James, Missouri.

Another Case.
Dixon, Iowa.—"I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for some time and it has done me much good. My back troubled me very much. It seemed weak. I had much pain and I was not as regular as I should have been. The Compound has cured these troubles and I recommend it to all my friends."—Mrs. BERTHA DIERCKSEN, Box 102, Dixon, Iowa.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

What Anne Rittenhouse Says

Young women at the seashore are making splashing pictures of themselves against the white sand and the blue sea, by adopting a rakish, colorful costume that consists of a short white skirt, a brilliant cotton coat, and a careless beret made of velvet.

There is no need to say that the skirt was tight and the coat short and loose and the hat indefinite in outline with its full crown pulled out far over one ear and up. As for the rest, there were white shoes to match the skirt, vivid stockings to match the coat and the hat was black. You can easily sketch out the picture for yourself and see its attractiveness there.

There is no reason to criticize this costume on the beach. There it belongs. It is when such costumes are brought into city streets and paraded in the public places that they are objectionable. When Americans learn where to wear the clothes they buy, then they will have reached the top notch of good dressing. They have acquired all the lessons now and one, and it is basic. Without this knowledge the most beautiful clothes in the world become caricatures.

The Black Velvet Beret.
The adoption of velvet for summer wear is exceedingly new and it shows how quickly America gets the latest French idea. No sooner had the papers published the news that the French women were wearing black velvet hats at the races, than the American shops at once offered them and the hot weather of July saw them in full fashion on the brilliant American beaches.

So far, no color has been attempted in these hats. They are always black and without a touch of trimming. And the American girl who wants to take up this fashion without having seen it should be warned against sticking a rose, or a quill, or a feather in the careless turban of the Latin quarter which for centuries has been the headgear of the student.

The best kind of black velvet is used in its making. The thick, heavy weave more comfortable to wear in the heat which must wear it in July and August, but there are very thin velvets on the market and the lining is a mere wisp of black chiffon cloth or net or China silk.

The only part about the hat that must fit the head is the one-inch band that seems to be tied about the head; it is quite tight enough to keep the hat in place, and better than that, it protects the hair from blowing in high winds. The woman who wears a veil with it is changing the entire personality of the hat, and there is no need for her to do this when she only wears a veil to keep her hair from blowing in her eyes.

Excellent Summer Hats
The woman who is going abroad would delight in such a hat for the decks of a liner, and she need not be going to Europe to find it useful. There are so many hundreds of trips by water that vacationists are taking, that one does not have to be a globe trotter in order to want a summer hat costume.

The beret of velvet has enough weight to withstand the wind and can be pulled into shape as many times a day as it is necessary. A touch of the hand and there you are! You can swirl the full crown at any angle you wish, to make it becoming. And if you are rising early and cannot take the time to do your hair as it should be done, the beret, like charity, covers many defects!

The Evening Story

(Copyright, 1913, by W. W. W. W. W.)

Springtime

It was the first warm day. The pavement felt hot beneath the worn soles of Juliet's shabby shoes as she stood beside the huckster's wagon contemplating its freight of wilted vegetables. These things reminded Juliet that it was spring and that she was too poor to buy.

The other women of the tenement

After they had walked a mile or so they sat down.

bought and wrangled over the price. Their voices were shrill, producing raucous discords. In all the hard years of her city experience Juliet had never learned to beat down even a street huckster. She drew back diffidently into the shadow of the gaunt building wherein she found shelter. A woman passed carrying a bunch of onions under her arm, her hands full of lettuce. She was a big red faced Irish woman who had a brood of children to work for her. Suddenly she turned and came back holding out some lettuce.

"Take it," she said. "I'll never miss it."

The color sprang to Juliet's white face.

"No!" she said, proudly. Then she thought of Jacob and she reached for the gift, though she knew it to be made in charity. "Thank you," she murmured, meekly.

She ran up three flights of dirty stairs and entered a room which held for her all she loved and possessed in the world. It held a tiny stove, a bed, two chairs, a table, and a cupboard. At the one window stood a man with his hands in his pockets. He turned almost eagerly. Juliet put on her best smile and waved the lettuce.

"Why not? We're not so poor, I hope, that we can't afford a bit of lettuce on our first spring day," Juliet's tone was inspiring. "With the salad you'll not mind a cold lunch today, dear?"

"Mind? Well, hardly. In fact, I don't need any lunch, Juliet, or deserve it. Work if you want to eat, I don't work. Wherefore should I eat?" Juliet laughed gaily. "Oh, my dear! You'd work if there was anything for you to do," she said. "You always have worked. There'll be an opening presently. In the meantime, we aren't going to starve."

For six weeks Jacob had been out of work. It had begun by his falling ill. When he went back his place was filled. He had tried everything after that, and while he was gone Juliet had tried, and it was even more difficult for the woman than for the man to get work, she found. At one or two places where work was offered her at something more than a starvation wage she had shrunk from accepting it.

Thank heaven, it was spring at last, and they could save the expense of a fire. But later they must have ice. And all the time the rent would be going on. How much longer would she be able to pay for even this Juliet could not tell. Still she sang as she prepared the humble meal. And then, before she went to her place at the table, she kissed Jacob.

"Dear me!" she exclaimed. "The butter's out."

"We don't need butter with this lettuce," Jacob said. "How good it is! It carries me back to my country days."

He was silent a moment. "Do you know, Juliet, I've been thinking a lot about the country lately? It's on account of the spring weather, I guess. I hanker after green grass and dandelion blossoms. I was a man when I came to the city. I brought a good deal to the city—youth and hope and a determination to win out. I didn't know what I had got myself into. I know now. And it sort of disheartens me."

"I was a child when I came," Juliet recalled, sadly. "My parents brought me. The city worried them. I took up the fight. Then I found you." Her face glowed with joy. "You're radiant, radiant; my eyes sought and held his. Across the bare little table their hands clasped strong. 'You remember, dear? You came into the store to buy darning cotton and I sold it to you. You confided to me that you didn't like to darn your own socks with us. Let's go find it, Juliet.'"

"And I thought that I shouldn't mind darning them for you if you were to ask me some time."

They laughed together softly over the tender remembrance.

"I was drawing $15 per then," Jacob went on. "It seemed enough to keep a wife. And it was the way you managed. But I got turned out of the job after a while because of my cough. Then we began going down hill. We're pretty near to the bottom of it now, it seems."

"Oh, no! Juliet shook her head. 'Not a bit of it. We'll turn round presently and start for the top again.'"

"Or the country. How I want the country! If we could be set down, Juliet, today in some of the places I knew with a little patch of land and a few dollars we could make paradise out of it."

"We could make home out of it, dear. But then to me home's anywhere where you are."

At her words a new look of life and hope flashed into his face.

or else jubilant over his next building and his new wife. They had had little breakfast, and the only lunch they carried was a loaf of bread and a piece of cheese. But they were getting hungry for that.

"Well, find some nice shady spot and sit down to eat," Jacob cried.

He looked boyishly happy as he led Juliet away from the station up the road that seemed to beckon them forward into the very heart of the fields. After they had walked a mile or so they sat down by the roadside and enjoyed the bread and cheese. There was a tiny stream of icy water near by and Jacob, recalling his country lore, made a leaf cup to drink from.

It was very still, very warm, and very fragrant. Juliet looked at the clouds and felt an unwonted content creep into her heart. Since yesterday much had happened. They had turned their few sticks of furniture into money, had packed their scanty stock of clothing, and taken a long farewell of the city and set out upon their great adventure. Where they should sleep that night or what the future held in store they did not know. Juliet did not care. If all that remained for her now was to take Jacob's hand in hers and lie down beside him to die she would not have murmured. Even that were better than life as they had lived it of late.

The slow rumble of wheels sounded beyond the bend of the road and presently a wagon came in sight. It was driven by a big, whiskered countryman. He looked at Jacob and Juliet, and then he stopped his team.

"Hello!" he said. "Out on a tramp, eh?"

"Yes, sir," replied Jacob.

"Come far?" Jacob told him.

The man was plainly curious. "Looking for work?" he asked.

"Why, yes."

"What have you been doing?"

"Keeping books. I got sick and lost my job."

The man shook his head. "You don't look like you could do much, even if you knew how. Jump in and I'll take you a ways if you're going my direction. You better ask along if you want work," he said. "Somebody's certain sure to give you a job."

Jacob and Juliet set forth again on foot when the countryman saw them down. "I can breathe here," Jacob said. "Juliet, I feel as if I should get rid of that cough after all."

The sunset was forming in the west when suddenly Juliet looked toward the nearby horizon. "Look!" she whispered. Her face was transfigured with awe, expectation and hope.

Jacob looked. He saw a little gray house, through the uncertain windows of which the sunset flared like hearth fires. There was a great lilac tree leaning over the roof. A trail of ruined stone steps led up to the weather-beaten door.

"Jacob," Juliet said, "I've been seeing

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

(Copyright, 1913, by J. G. Lloyd.)

"Little Miss Fuzzytail!" Peter Rabbit said it over and over again as he sat on the sunny bank in the far corner of the Old Pasture where Tommy Tit the Chickadee had left him. "It's a pretty name," said Peter. "Yes, sir; it's a pretty name. It's the prettiest name I've ever heard. I wonder if she is just as pretty. I—I think she must be. Yes, I am quite sure she must be." Peter was thinking of the soft, gentle eyes he had seen peeping at him from behind the fern, and of the dainty little footprint he had found there afterward. So he sat on the sunny bank dreaming pleasant dreams and wondering if he could find little Miss Fuzzytail if he should go back for her.

Now all the time, although Peter didn't know it, little Miss Fuzzytail was very close by. She was right back in her old hiding place behind the big fern, shyly peeping out at him from under a great leaf where she was sure he wouldn't see her. She saw the long tears in Peter's coat, made by the cruel claws of Hooty the Owl, and she saw the places where her father, old Jed Thumper, had pulled the hair out with his teeth. She saw how thin and miserable Peter looked, and tears of pity filled the soft, gentle eyes of little Miss Fuzzytail, for, you see, she had a very tender heart.

"He's got a very nice face," thought Miss Fuzzytail, "and he certainly was very polite when he spoke to me yesterday. Yes, indeed, he certainly was very polite, and I do love good manners. And Peter is such a nice sounding name! It sounds so honest and good and true. Poor fellow! Poor Peter Rabbit!" Here little Miss Fuzzytail wiped her eyes. "He looks so miserable I do wish I could do something for him. I—I—oh, dear, I do believe he is coming right over here! I guess I better be going. How he limps!"

One more the tears filled her soft, gentle eyes as she stole away, making not the least little sound. When she was sure that she was far enough away to hurry without attracting Peter's attention she began to run. "I saw him talking to my old friend Tommy Tit the Chickadee, and I just know that Tommy will tell me all about him," she thought as she scampered along certain private little paths of her own toward a certain old birch stub on the edge of a certain swamp.

Just as she expected she found Tommy Tit and his anxious little wife, Phoebe, very busy hunting for food for six little babies snugly hidden in a hollow near the top of the old birch stub. Tommy was too busy to talk then, so she waited a moment and then she washed her face and brushed her coat until it fairly shone. You see, not in all the Old Pasture or the Green Forest was there so slim and trim and neat and dainty a Rabbit as little Miss Fuzzytail, and she was very particular about her appearance.

By and by Tommy Tit stopped to rest. He looked down at Miss Fuzzytail and "crinkled a snaky black eye. Miss Fuzzytail winked back. Then both laughed, for they were very good friends.

"Tell me, Tommy Tit, all about Peter Rabbit," commanded little Miss Fuzzytail. And Tommy did.

A Word to the Wives Is Sufficient

After everything has been said that can be said on the subject of women's rights, all true women feel, no matter what their political ideas may be, that their first and most important duty is the thrifty and business-like management of their households.

The question of pure foods is very much before the public at the present time, and every housekeeper is desirous of having on her table foodstuffs that are as nutritious and as little adulterated as it is possible to procure.

There has been a campaign of public education on this subject, and the woman who has kept up with the times knows what to avoid in buying her provisions.

A good housekeeper can not spend her time more wisely than in informing herself on these points by reading the advertisements in The Journal, where she is sure to find quality and prices to her liking.

Two Hurlers After Marks And Two Fail

Boehling Breaks Season's Winning Mark, While Hamilton and Thompson Have Their Streaks Set Back

Eventful baseball incidents came thick and fast on Wednesday, four hurlers, three of them in the majors, either added to their long winning streaks or losing out after making a neat run of victories. Lefty Boehling, of Washington, and Southpaw Rube Marquard, of the New York Giants, were the hurlers to boost their averages, while Lefty Hamilton, of the St. Louis Browns, and Carl Thompson, of the Atlanta Crackers, had their records smashed.

Boehling, by winning his game over the Chicago White Sox, made it eleven in a row, his percentage for the season being perfect. He passed the season's pitching streak of ten straight wins, held jointly by Walter Johnson, of Washington, and Cy Falkenberg, of Cleveland. This hurler is nothing but a youngster and his record is remarkable. He was sent up from the Southern league last season.

Rube Marquard appears to be off on another long winning streak. When he downed the Pittsburgh Pirates in a shut-out battle Wednesday he got credit for his eighth consecutive win. And Rube won Wednesday's battle because he pitched most jam-up ball.

While Marquard and Boehling were setting records, Lefty Hamilton, of St. Louis, was losing after winning six in a row. With a tail-end team his winning mark of six in a row is good. It took the Athletics to swamp his streak.

Carl Thompson, the young collegian, met his first Waterloo since he joined the Atlanta club when he ran afoul of the Memphis sluggers. He had won four straight games when he was pitched out of the mound.

Especially seeing two pitching marks advanced and two lowered, Wednesday also saw the start of the ending of the pennant hopes of the Pittsburgh Pirates. The Giants just finished winning three in a row from the Pirates and this has about taken the heart from the Clarke tribe. For a short time it looked as if this bunch would be right in the running, but the Giants did the stopping work in jam-up style.

MARQUARD IS REAL STAR

RUBE MARQUARD.

Sailing along in front of the National league, with the pennant in sight--barring an earthquake--the Giants are in better condition now than they were a year ago.

At this time last season Marquard, with a long string of victories, was faltering. This year the great left-hander, after slowly rounding into shape, is steaming along at a 40-knot clip, winning game after game and improving with each effort.

Having gained the lead after an uphill climb, the Giants are sailing along easily and McGraw is not forced to work his stars overtime. Instead, the clever little leader is taking advantage of the situation, giving his youngsters a chance whenever opportunity offers and permitting the veterans to take things easy that they may be in better condition when called upon for heavy work.

And generalship in a canning trip through New England rivers. Dave has plenty of time to ponder in the solitudes over plays for the coming season. He is dependent upon his daily catch of fish for his food, and will doubtless be trained lean when he arrives.

Bright McConnell: Is a promising aspirant for a tackle position in the Kansas wheat fields.

"Pink" Malone is summing in Monticello: as a pastime he buys watermelons and sells them in carload lots. He is becoming so prosperous that he doesn't know whether to return or to stick to his last.

Steve Crump: Is walking, swimming and chopping wood in his home in Macon.

Ed Broyles: Is at home in Atlanta golfing and swimming.

Bob McWhorter: Is working in the legislature.

Ed Dorsey: According to reports from Athens is growing.

Dave Paddock: Is nursing his speed on the onslaught of opposing backfists by patiently guiding "Beck" through the rows of cotton and corn.

Pitcher Can't Win Forever; Atlanta Lost

Carl Thompson, After Winning Four in a Row, Got His First Beating Since Joining the Bill Smith Bunch

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 24.—After putting up a beautiful fight for six innings and playing one to one game up to that time, Atlanta, through the weakening of Thompson, suffered from the effects of a landslide, score 11 to 2.

In these last two rounds Thompson's stuff seemed to be gone and where the Turtles had only touched his delivery three times up to this period, they started in and registered ten hits and as many runs in their last two frames.

These two innings went as follows: After Thompson had struck out Ward for the third straight time as a starter for the seventh, Schweitzer beat out a slow roller to Smith. Abstein followed with a clean double, sending Schweitzer to third. Shanley singled, scoring Schweitzer and Abstein and then pilfered second.

Snell was safe on a grounder to Bisland, who tried to catch Shanley at third, but was a moment late. Harrell singled and Shanley scored, while Snell took third. Snell was caught at the plate trying to count on Love's grounder. Merritt ended the found by flying out to Welchence.

TEN MEN FACE CARL. Ten men faced Thompson in the eighth inning, when six hits were made, including a home run by Love and a double by Shanley.

Baerwald opened with a single. Ward sacrificed. Schweitzer scored. Baerwald with a single. Schweitzer went to second and Abstein was safe at first when Alperman dropped Smith's throw of Abstein's grounder. Shanley doubled, scoring Schweitzer and sending Abstein to third. Welchence made a desperate run for Shanley's liner, but only tipped the ball with the fingers of his glove.

Snell and Shanley then scored on Snell's single. Harrell followed with a single and he and Snell scored on Love's home run into the darktown bleachers. Merritt flew out to Welchence and Baerwald, up for his second time, popped to Smith.

Atlanta's runs were few and far between, one coming in the third and one in the ninth. Harrell was steady in the pinches and held the would-be pinch hitters in check.

EAST LAKE GOLFERS MEET; BROOKHAVEN PLANS TOURNEY

First Big Tournament of Season Over Course at Capital City Country Club

The first real big golf tournament held over the excellent nine-hole course of the Capital City Country club at Brookhaven will be started with the qualifying round on August 2. During the past year several small tournaments have been held over the course, but it is now possible to play real championship golf on these links, careful attention having placed them in the best of shape.

In the past three months golf has taken hold in leaps and bounds at the Brookhaven links and now the course is thronged each afternoon. It is estimated that fifty new pupils have taken up the game within the past month and more are daily buying clubs and starting lessons. The Brookhaven course has grown popular with the extra care being shown in keeping the course in good shape.

The tournament at Brookhaven is for the club championship with the qualifying round on August 2. The first round will then be finished by August 5, the second round by August 7, the third round by August 9 and the finals by August 11. This will give the golf lovers a week of play that should turn up some good scores.

A handsome cup has been offered the winner of the first flight with trophies for the winners in each of the other flights. It is believed that three flights will fill, practically every golfer at the club having announced his intention of entering.

Other matches in the third round of the doubles resulted:

R. Harte and G. C. Caner, Philadelphia, defeated J. Norwell and N. P. Halliwell, 3-6, 6-3, 3-6, 6-1, 6-2.

G. F. Toucand and W. M. Washburn, New York, defeated Oakes Ames and Gardner Beals, Boston, 6-3, 6-3, 6-4.

N. W. Niles and S. Dabney, Boston, defeated F. J. Sullivan and C. P. Gardner, 6-4, 6-1, 6-2, 6-3, 6-2.

In the fourth round of singles for the Longwood cup, W. J. Clothier, Philadelphia, defeated F. C. Imman, New York, 6-1, 6-2, 6-3, 6-4.

Joe Jackson: Scored two runs and out of four times up he hit safely three times.

Crackers Meet Montgomery in Warm Fight

For the Second Time Within Three Weeks Contenders for First Place Honors Clash in Hot Series

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 24.—The Atlanta baseball club arrived at noon today to play a farewell engagement in Montgomery, this being the second time within the last three weeks that these aspirants for the leadership of the Southern league have met.

Atlanta is now three and one-half games behind the Billikens and in this place, with the Mobile club two and one-half games ahead of them, and one game behind Montgomery.

The Crackers, therefore, will have some fight on their hands, as during the Montgomery series, the Billikens will be fighting to keep their hold on the skylight while the Crackers are as hard as a squirrel to keep on the ground.

Following the series with the league leaders, the Atlanta club journeys to Mobile for a four-game series before returning to their home for five contests to be played in three days with Nashville. This four-game series with Mobile is also a repetition of what has happened within the last two weeks.

The Atlanta team, in good shape, and with Price and Conners back in form, they should climb at a greater rate than they have done when they come off their temporary hitting slump.

In today's game Clark and Conners will probably be on the mound for Atlanta, with Chapman doing the rough work, while Elmer Brown, one of the league's best will be ohmy Dobbs' selection. Donahue will catch for the home team.

The weather is cool and a little cloudy.

Big Series With Montgomery Opens With Thursday's Game

HANK LOOKS FOR THE MONEY--BUT!

---BY FARREN

THE SPORTLIGHT BY GRANTLAND RICE

JOSEPH BOEHLING.
Who's out there leading the league today?
Johnson or Walsh or Wood?
Who's out there pitching the winning way,
Something better than good?
Walter the Wizard, or Smokey Joe,
Or Plank with the records rolling?
The answer comes with a sudden blow--
"A bloke by the name of Boehling."

You never heard of the cove before,
His cap had a bush league ring;
He was never a part of the winning score
When the bunch lined up this spring;
Aye, he was a dub and a One Worst Bet
When the clan first started coaling;
But today, who's out there leading the set?
A bloke by the name of Boehling.

HOW THEY MOVE ALONG.

Two years ago a Washington scribe saw young Boehling work, tipped him off to Griff and last season he was looked over and sent to Worcester in the New England league. There he won fourteen and lost eight games. Griff needed a left-hander worse than a million dollars and decided to take another chance on the green southpaw. He figured it a long shot but decided to continue nursing his youngster this spring. One day he stuck Boehling in and Boehling won. He was tried again and won again. Then he beat the Red Sox and tore on a couple from the mauling Mackmen. A youngster good enough to throttle the Mackmen twice was good enough for Griff. He sent him along in his turn and up through Sunday the southpaw in his first year out had won the season's record of consecutive wins. Late July found him without a defeat where even the redoubtable Johnson had been set down on five occasions.

Such is baseball. Last spring Griff mourned the fact that left-handers were disappearing off the earth. "There are none left," wept the old Fox. And there at his elbow was a youngster poised and waiting to tie a record which Johnson, Plank, Falkenberg, Gregg, Mathewson, Seaton, Alexander and Walsh had been unable to beat.

If Boehling pans out as per promise--if he develops as he should, it takes no wonderful imagination to figure where the Senators will be in 1914 with a companion piece de southpaw to the greatest arm in the profession.

THE KRAUSE CASE.

Boehling's case is almost identical with that of Southpaw Krause, who broke in with the Athletics some years ago and peeled off ten straight his first season out. That was about Mr. Krause's last stand beneath the spotlight, but Boehling looks to have the stuff. The youngster has speed and a fine curve ball, the courage and the elements of control. All he needs--well, what does a man need good enough to go unbeaten the first three months?

The Giants have established a conservative lead with Larry Doyle, their leading slugogonist in a three months' slump. When Larry begins hitting.

THE CASE OF COBB.

It has been no great secret that Ty Cobb was anxious to break away from the Tiger fold. Ty has been a member of the Detroit colony for eight years and the sudden shift in his club's fortunes has soured him on his environment.

Ty was a member of three pennant winning clubs in Tigertown and two others that were contenders a part of the time. Then the old clan was dismantled; Shaefer, O'Leary, Delehanty, Mullin, Donovan and others passed out and the situation veered from a crimson to an indigo tint.

Ty is an athlete teeming with temperament. Temperament has gotten into a good bit of trouble but it has also been one of his main assets. He has been in the game for the love of it as much as for the pay and it isn't hard to understand just why he should desire a change of scene. Just as Case showed remarkable improvement when shifted, Cobb would probably take on a new lease of life if placed in another town. Any number of stars have worn the edge off in one spot, only to revive and get going again when shifted.

And it wouldn't be a bad thing for the game if Cobb could display his wares in another city with Detroit provided an equal exchange.

Cobb in many quarters has been regarded as a trouble maker, but a wonderful outfielder who can bat .400 or more and steal from sixty to eighty bases still has his use. And we have never believed that Cobb, correctly handled, would be a bad man for a club.

REBUILDING VOL BUNCH

President Hirsig stated that he intended leaving for Detroit tonight for a conference with President Frank Navin, of the Detroit Tigers, in regard to Frank Hirsig, the local's fast little receiver, who is the property of the Tigers and can be recalled at any time, and as he has been going so good with the club, it is the earnest desire of the local to secure the receiver for the 1914 season. It is understood that several clubs are anxious for Gibby, but it is believed that Nashville has the best claim and will be successful in retaining him for next season. Gibby is the big show in the Southern circuit and is recognized practically all over the league, as the best in the lot. While in Detroit, President Hirsig will look out for new material for next season, determined to have a winning club coming year. He may be able to pick up some more classy artists like Gibson, while in the Tigers' lair--Nashville Banner.

Journal Wins Double Bill

The Journal came through with both games of their double-header with Kampers in grand style. Each game was won by a one-run margin and some good baseball was witnessed. The winning of these games puts The Journal at the top of the ladder in the Grocers' league, tied with Jones and the Producers, with .667 per cent.

Johnson, for The Journal, twirled a good game in the first of the double-header. He fanned eleven in seven innings and did not walk a man. Simmons and Laird featured with the stick and run-getting. In the sixth Simmons smashed a triple to left and stole home, tying the score. Laird scored the winning run. He hit safe, stole second and went to third and then home on wild pitches.

Laird started with the stick in the second game also, lashing safe two times out of three tries. Counts, for The Journal, pitched good ball, but gave way to Simmons in the seventh. Simmons stopped Kampers' rally when they had two on and nobody down.

Plains Disputes Claim Of Buena Vista Club

Plains, Ga., July 24, 1913.
Sporting Editor The Journal:
We notice in your issue of Tuesday morning, July 22, article from Buena Vista claiming the amateur championship of the state, also that they had not been defeated in a series this year.

At the time that was written Plains had taken two out of three games from Buena Vista. Since then Buena Vista has evened up the series, winning from the home team Monday by the score of 2 to 1. Carpenter, for the home team, in this game gave up one sacrifice hit, an outfielder misjudging a ball.

We have other games scheduled with Buena Vista.

Yours truly,
PLAINS BASEBALL TEAM,
D. T. Jennings, Manager.

Swedes to Honor Indian Jim Thorpe The World's Champion Athlete

JIM T HORPE.

Advices received from Sweden indicate that Jim Thorpe, the great all-round athlete, who is now a member of Manager McGraw's party of National league champions, will yet come into the possession of a Swedish Olympic trophy. A few weeks ago, on the day that King Gustav V presented the Decathlon trophy, that Thorpe was obliged to relinquish, to Weislander, his rightful winner, the Swedish papers came forward with the suggestion that sportsmen throughout Sweden should contribute to a fund for the purpose of sending Thorpe a consolation trophy as a reminder of his great victories at Stockholm a year ago.

The suggestion "took" instantly with sportsmen in Sweden and the scheme to give the American Indian a consolation prize is now favored by one of the very biggest men in Swedish amateur sports. If the carrying out of the desire of the Swedes meets with no disfavor on the part of the American Olympic committee Thorpe will get a handsome trophy from the northmen within a few weeks.

WALLACE AFTER RECORD FOR CONTINUOUS SERVICE

Peppery Little Shortstop of St. Louis Browns Going Good as Ever

J. ABEL HAS QUIT RING

ST. LOUIS, July 24.—When the count of ten is tolled on Rhoderick Wallace as a major league player, then baseball will lose one of its greatest stars. But from present indications Bob Wallace is going to establish a record for perpetual service in the big arena.

When this season opened the Scot started out on his eighteenth consecutive year. As has been the custom for the past few years, the high boss of the Browns has been trying to find a youthful successor for Wallace. A kid of more speed, a better swatter, a better fielder and a better player all around has been sought.

But this spring has been the same as the others. The recruits have arrived and the recruits have gone, and Bob Wallace remains a member of the Browns, playing the same snappy and sensational infield that he did when he was in his prime.

In the last three games at Sportsman's park fans have seen Wallace operate at third base. There's the spot where the veteran really became a star when he was with the old Cleveland Spiders, and when he came to St. Louis, when the franchises of Cleveland and St. Louis were transferred in 1899.

Suffering with a pair of bad legs and a sore right hip, Wallace has played as spectacularly as any third baseman who has been in the big circle.

The play de luxe executed by Wallace was in Saturday's conflict with the Yanks. It happened in the fifth inning. Fisher was on second, with two out, when Walter bounded to Lavan. The shortstop made a high peg to Wallace trying for Fisher.

No third baseman in the game would have completed the out. Wallace, stretching out, grabbed the high throw with his glove and, with a quick swing, tagged Fisher as he slid into the bag.

Wallace didn't leap for the wild peg. Had he jumped he never could have made the swing to tag Fisher as he slid into the bag. It was a play that nobody but Wallace could have completed.

Wallace started to slow up a few seasons ago. President Hedges, realizing this, instructed scouts to buy all the promising infielders. They did. Within the last few seasons Roy Hall, Zell, Eddie Hallinan, Mike Balenti, Har-

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 24.—Jake Abel, the local lightweight and the south's most promising representative in that division, following the downfall of Joe Mandoli, the French market wizard, has practically decided to retire from the ring following his defeat at the hands of Charley White, of Chicago, last Friday, in Atlanta.

White knocked Abel out cold in the second round and the local boy is somewhat discouraged. Abel's defeat was predicted, however, by his backers as he attempted to make too low a weight limit for his opponent. Jake was merely weak and stated after the mill that the blow did not hurt him in the least but simply put him to sleep in his weakened condition.

ry Shanley, Eddie Daley, Derrill Pratt, Dee Walsh and now Johnny Lavan have been on the job.

There's a collection of eight trying to push Wallace back into the minors. Hallinan, Daley, Shanley, Walsh, Balenti, Pratt and Hartzell failed. The first four are in the minors, while judgment upon Lavan will be delayed a bit until the rah-rah recruit gets more time to show that he can hit.

Bob Wallace isn't the same spry kid that he was a dozen years ago, still fans at Sportsman's park or even Robinson field have yet to see the athlete who compared with the Scot when he was in his prime.

Wallace isn't ready to quit or go to the minors now. He isn't a regular with the Browns now, but several major league owners have put in bids to Hedges for the marvel of marvels.

JOURNAL WANT AD Horoscope
People having this birthdate are noted for their wisdom and power, when fully developed. The greatest of South American patriots, Simon Bolivar, was born on July 25, 1783, and the story of his life will help others who have similar birthdates. Another famous soldier and the secretary of war under Washington was General Henry Knox who was born on this date in 1750.

These men in their activities show strongly what the Leo person may achieve if persistent and alive to his opportunities. Many great financiers have this birthdate as well as lawyers, diplomats and men holding high public positions.

These people have a powerful will and having once set their mind upon the accomplishment of their purpose it is of little use to try to turn them aside.

A Journal Want Ad will bring good results when used by merchants, druggists or manufacturers to find capable employees. Farming interests will be well sold through a Journal Want Ad.

Some Want Ads are inserted free. For chart, ask that they be sent for, or telephone them to Main 2000 or Atlanta 423.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Definite Announcement Expected Soon of Twelve-Story Office Building on Peachtree Street Near Harris—Retail Concern Downtown to Locate on Peachtree North of Baker. Auto Lease—Statistics Show Gain—Small Sales

It is probable that Mrs. J. B. Whitehead will soon have a definite announcement of her building plans for the site of the former Elkin home, which adjoins 227 Peachtree street on the north, and is just south of Harris street.

The old dwelling there has been razed. In a general way the plans call for a twelve-story office building, to be fireproof and devoted to a special class of tenants—probably a professional building.

No details have been settled as yet, but this proposition has been figured on in a general way. One of two other large building propositions are rumored for this section of Peachtree street, but no definite information has been made known about them as yet.

PEACHTREE LEASE.

During the week announcements expected of a lease on Peachtree street north of Baker.

A retail concern now in a central location has leased a building there, the lease being for ten years and calling for an addition to the present structure.

This concern went further out for more space at the same rental, and it is the beginning of the northward trend of diversified retail business, again justifying earlier front foot prices. Peachtree street has been following the trend of main streets in other cities where automobile concerns, going far

WEBB NOMINATED FOR POSTMASTER AT CANTON

Announcement That McAfee Would Be Named Was Clerical Error

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The Congressional Record today shows that William J. Webb, and not Joseph M. McAfee, was nominated yesterday by President Wilson for postmaster at Canton, Cherokee county, vice William T. Edwards, whose term expired last January. Judge Webb's nomination was recommended by Senator Hoke Smith, while Captain McAfee was supported by Congressman Thomas M. Bell. The accuracy of the Congressional Record with reference to the nomination is supported by the original list of nominations sent to the senate by the president and bearing his name.

The publication of McAfee's name as the nominee at Canton was due to an honest and unavoidable mistake on part of the newspaper correspondents. It appears that the "flimsies" of the nominations, which were distributed for the information of the correspondents, bore the name of McAfee, while the original list of nominations contained the name of Webb. The correspondents accepted the "flimsies" as correct, and based their stories of the nomination on this misinformation.

Senator Smith will urge the confirmation of Judge Webb, whose nomination is now pending in the postoffice committee, of which the senator is a member. Mr. Webb is Mr. McAfee's son-in-law.

Dalton Comes Near Losing Its Firemen

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) DALTON, Ga., July 24.—Dalton came within an inch of being without a fire department today for the first time in its history. The firemen, who were on strike, seemed bent on resigning in a body when city council failed to approve a voucher for an appropriation to defray expenses of an outing for the firemen.

Aside from the drivers, the department is a volunteer one and the members were "peevish" at city council's action. Chief Perry stating, in the heat of the moment, that the council could look around for another fire department. He refused, however, to tender the department's resignation before consulting with the members of the council.

Last night the department held a call meeting. It was found that citizens had contributed liberally to the fund for the outing, and after an argument that the council could look around for another fire department, the department decided to stick.

SAVANNAH MAIL CLERK CHARGED WITH ROBBERY

Says He Pilfered Letters Because of Poverty and Illness in His Family

(By Associated Press.) SAVANNAH, Ga., July 24.—Albert V. Custin, a clerk in the Savannah postoffice, was today given a hearing before a United States commissioner on the charge of robbing the mails.

He was held under a $500 bond to answer the charge of the United States court.

Custin admits pilfering letters containing money passing through his hands and pleads poverty and illness in his family as an excuse.

PALESTINE AND AFRICA SEND CALLS FOR HELP

(By Associated Press.) WASHINGTON, July 24.—Two far-reaching appeals for help have come from Palestine and British East Africa, respectively.

One is from an agricultural colony near the ancient city of Joppa, which desires to plant trees that will bind the drifting desert sand. The forest service wrote to the colony, calling attention to the reclamation work at Landes, France, where a wealth-producing forest of maritime pine, the source of the French turpentine, has checked the shifting dunes.

The request from British East Africa was for parasites for the green fly, which was doing much harm in the wheat fields. The parasites have been shipped, and, if they arrive safely, it is believed will hold the wheat pest in check.

There had protested to the state department that inasmuch as the Huerta government had not been recognized, it ought not to obtain arms. This construction of the case found favor in official circles, and while the repeal of the resolution of March 14, 1912, was considered by administration officials as one way of equalizing conditions, it was decided that the same purpose could be observed by denying ammunition to all factions.

SOME FAVOR ARMS.

There nevertheless is a firm feeling in congress in favor of lifting the embargo on arms and giving both sides an equal opportunity to equip themselves. This sentiment finds favor especially among those who believe that the Carranza rebels have public opinion behind them in Mexico, and if given the arms with which to supply their large untrained forces, the revolution would end speedily in their favor.

For the present, however, the administration will issue orders to its agents everywhere to keep arms from entering the rebellion-torn country. This will interfere materially with the plans of the Carranza forces, since orders for large supplies of arms and ammunition are said to have been placed recently with firms in the United States.

Although the constitutionalists held no reports of consequence, they have demoralized the railroad systems, and it would be difficult for the federalists to get munitions transported into the interior after importing them from Europe.

Tribes of Indians Lost in Mexico

DOUGLAS, ARIZ., July 24.—United States government agents who returned today from the Kickapoo Indian reservation in Sonora, reported that one tribe of the former residents of Oklahoma had been lost. Members of two remaining tribes reported that the missing group had gone into Coahuila to visit relatives and had been restrained from returning by authorities of the Mexican state.

The stray Indians were said to be suffering from want of food, ten having died of disease and starvation. Each, however, is due to receive $200 as a semi-annual allowance from the United States government, derived from their lands in the former Indian Territory.

Report Another Victory For Rebels in Mexico

HERMOSILLO, SONORA, July 24.—Constitutionalists of Sonora defeated a column of federalists at Bamoa, according to reports received here. The federal loss was given as thirty killed. Many horses and much ammunition were said to have been captured.

Bamoa is on the Southern Pacific of Mexico, twenty miles south of San Blas.

Thus far, however, the British minister has not reported Englishmen in danger.

Rebels Capture Large Federal Force, Says Report

EAGLE PASS, TEX., July 24.—Official announcement was made today by constitutional headquarters at Piedras Negras of the capture of Torreon, Mex., by constitutionalists. Fifteen hundred prisoners, twenty cannon and large supplies of ammunition fell into their hands, the constitutionalists claim.

VATICAN TORN BY OPEN DEFIANCE OF THE GUARDS

They Sing "Marseillaise" and Cry "Viva Garibaldi" at Vatican Gates

(By Associated Press.) ROME, July 24.—A further detachment of the mutinous Swiss guards left the vatican this morning. Some of them threatened to make unpleasant revelations.

The commander of the guardsmen promised the pope today that the entire corps would be re-established.

Throughout yesterday the vatican was in a veritable state of siege, the outcome of mutiny of Swiss guards, whose demands, in form of a memorial relating their grievances and setting forth the conditions on which they would remain in the service, were rejected today.

Three leaders in the movement were expelled from the vatican. Four others left last night and twelve have requested leave to depart for their homes in October.

Those who left were accompanied to the gates of the vatican by their comrades. At the vatican they cried: "Viva Garibaldi!"

"Some of them joined in singing the 'Marseillaise.' Never before was such a scene presented in front of the vatican."

BACON STANDS FIRM IN BARROW MATTER

Senior Georgia Senator to Insist on Barrow Being Collector

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Senator Bacon is standing firmly by his purpose to insist upon the nomination of David C. Barrow as collector of the port at Savannah, vice W. H. Leaken, notwithstanding the objections from certain civic and political organizations in the city of Savannah.

"Mr. Barrow will be appointed upon the expiration of Collector Leaken's term next month," said Senator Bacon today, when asked concerning the report that he might make Mr. Barrow assistant district attorney for south Georgia, in the interest of peace and harmony. He added that he had no idea of abandoning Mr. Barrow or reconsidering his original solution of the collectorship problem.

Last week a delegation of Savannah citizens, headed by City Attorney John Rouke, came to Washington to protest against the appointment of Barrow as collector at Savannah.

They saw Senators Bacon and Smith and Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, to whom they voiced their desire that the position be given to a business man, and not a lawyer.

Sell Burns' Manuscripts

LONDON, July 24.—The sale of the Grenville manuscripts of Robert Burns has aroused protest against the Liverpool Athenaeum, which authorized the sale. The manuscripts were sold to a London dealer at a price said to be not less than $25,000, and the report that the dealer was acting in behalf of an unnamed American minister has prompted a widespread outcry against the loss of the manuscripts. It is recalled that in 1902 the Athenaeum received an offer of $25,000 for the manuscripts from J. P. Morgan, but refused it.

has been incarcerated since the Mary Phagan murder. The two negroes were together about five minutes and were questioned by the attorneys. Conley and Lee did not know each other and so stated to the officials. It will be noted that one worked at night and the other during the day.

With the officials at the meeting of the negroes was J. M. Gant, one time bookkeeper at the pencil factory. Gant had nothing to say during the examination of the negroes and soon left the tower.

Conley was then taken to the hospital ward of the tower on the fifth floor, where he was sweated for more than two hours.

When Chief of Police Beavers found that the negro was absent from his cell at headquarters he inaugurated an investigation, and finally went personally to the tower where he waited until the solicitor and the detectives came down with the prisoner.

"Did you tell them that you killed the girl?" a reporter called to the negro.

Conley made no answer and the expression on his face did not change as he went out of the jail door between the two officers.

Lanford Makes Another Statement About Stick

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) VALDOSTA, Ga., July 24.—The family and friends of two of the oldest and most highly respected citizens of Lowndes county are rejoicing over their reconciliation, which has just followed an estrangement of about thirty years. They fell out over some trivial matter, and have not spoken to each other in the past thirty years and have avoided each other as much as possible.

Recently, however, one of them happened to an accident which was regarded as serious and the other was afraid that he would die. Not caring for the estrangement to exist beyond the grave, the old man went to the home of the other for the purpose of forgiving and being forgiven. Both of the men are old white-haired citizens, and it is said that their reconciliation was very affecting.

PARCEL POST WEIGHT MAY REACH 100 POUNDS

Representative Lewis, in Supporting Burleson, Says Maximum Limit to Be Extended

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Supporting Postmaster General Burleson in his proposed extension of parcel post service, Representative Lewis, one of the authors of the parcel post law today declared that sooner or later the government must take over transportation of all parcels up to 100 pounds.

Representative Lewis contended that under the law the postmaster general has complete authority to increase the weight limit on parcel post business, and he assails the railroads for their support of the express companies in opposing Postmaster General Burleson's order.
