Morning Session Enlivened by Clashes Between Attorneys. Every Point Is Bitterly Contested-Frank Keeps Serene and Untroubled Throughout Session - Full Story of Testimony Given by Witnesses During the Morning

After a luncheon recess of an hour and a half Tuesday the trial of Leo M. Frank was resumed at 2 p. m. with Police Sergeant L. S. Dobbs still on the witness stand The morning session was given over to the continued examination of Newt Lee, the negro night watchman, and the direct and cross examination of Sergeant Dobbs There were frequent clashes between the attorneys for the defense and the solicitor during the morning. Every point was bitterly contested, and once the jury was sent from the room while the lawyers argued the fine points of the law. It was evident that the case was to be fought at every point.

The most significant feature of the morning session was an intimation by Attorneys Rosser and Arnold, counsel for Frank, that they might seek to connect the negro night watchman with the murder. It was during a colloquy between the lawyers for the defense and the state relative to the admissibility of the negro's testimony as to what was said to him by the police officers about the contents of the notes found beside Mary Phagan's body.

Solicitor Dorsey made the point that the notes had not yet been introduced as evidence and unless the defense was seeking to impeach the witness or to connect him with the crime it was not proper for him to be questioned concerning the contents of the notes.

Then Attorney Rosser declared: "We've got to commence somewhere and at some time to show the negro is a criminal and we might as well begin here as anywhere else.' Attorney Arnold made the point that the negro's comment on the contents of the notes immediately after they were read to him indicated a previous knowledge of them. No further effort, however, was made to connect Lee with the murder. The negro was on the stand altogether just four hours and forty-five minutes. The tedious and detailed examination of this witness indicated that every point in the case would be hard fought by both sides. He was led back and forth over the same ground, it being

Secretary Bryan Is Chased by Accident Insurance Agents

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 29 .- Secretary Bryan today faced a problem even more complicated and subtle than the Japanese and Mexican questions, when he discovered he was the quarry sought by accident insurance solicitors, as the result of two narrow escapes from disaster yesterday. Mr. Bryan's driver whipped up the Steamer "City of Atlanta horses, only to get directly in the path of an electric bus, which also stopped so suddenly that the passengers were tossed about. Throughout the experience the secretary's well known smile did not fail him. His placidity was in striking contrast to the agitation of the driver and seemed to be suffering. The secretary now is bringing his diplomacy and subtlety to bear in out-

Booklovers' Bulletin

As a few of The Journal contestants are under the impression that we gave the correct title to picture No. 1 in that story and later in answer to queries stated that the answer was not given, we reproduce the story as published so that all of our readers can see that the title "Their Yesterday" does not appear in this story.

DAILY CAMPAIGN STORY The Lady With the Catalogue Talks Titles

Of the several hundred Booklovers who called at The Journal office yesterday for a catalogue there was one dear old lady with gray hair and a good face, who attracted the Campaign Editor's attention by her enthusiasm in regard to the plan-"You know," she said, "I was in your last Booklovers' Campaign, and while did not get one of the Grand Prizes, I did get a prize and learned, too, that if I took your advice all the way through, I would surely get a better prize. Let me explain to you how I so after the correct titles in your catalogue, and if I am not ight in my plan. I knew you will set me right. Here is yesterday's picture, No No. 1, of the series, and you see it is a devoted old couple, evidently discussing other days, and from the words, evidently good days. I would take this catalogue and go through it alphabetically to get at the right title to that picture. In the 6 column I find 'Good Old Times,' in the 'H' column 'Happy Days and Happy Hours, I' column. 'In Perfect Peace,' in the 'L' column, 'Left to Themselves,' as I notice they are all alone, the same as myself and my dear old husband. In the 'M' column 'The Measure of Our Youth,' and the 'O' column, 'Our Old Home'; 'Peace and Happiness.' 'W' column, 'We Two.' There may be others that apply that particular picture and when I get home I will go through it carefully and if there are any I will surely find them. Now, Mr. Editor, have I the right idea, or all our old and young booklovers. It means to you a little more work, but it is work that will count hig for you in the wind up of this delightful campaign. So let us all take off our hats to the dear old Georgia lady who is going to win and is willing to help all other contestants to win.

STATE HOME FOR GIRLS MAY BE BUILT THIS YEAR

It is Favorably Recommended by Committee of the House

The Georgia Industrial Home for Girls the ensuing year if the recommendation sanitarium. of a sub-committee of the appropriations committee of the house is approved by the general assembly.

The sub-committee was given full power to act, and it was decided to ask for an appropriation of $30,000 for the home. Of this sum $20,000 was designated as the proper amount to be expended on a building, and it is proposed to use the remaining $10,000 as a maintenance fund.

The resolution expressly states that the home must be built either on property already owned by the state, or on property donated for this purpose. In this way, the committeemen felt, much youths. of the expense would be obviated.

AMBASSADOR'S REMOVAL. Ambasador Wilson talked for an hour with President Wilson and Secretary Bryan yesterday, submitting chiefly a recommendation that the United States use its influence to stabilize the Huerta regime.

No policy was evolved-at least none was announced-but it became known that the president's ideas and those of Ambassador Wilson's as to the course to be pursued are so radically different that administration officials interpreted the day's developments as forecasting the acceptance of Ambassador Wilson' resignation.

Chaingangs in Georgia You Will Write "HOPE" Into Our Laws

It is not a doll in her arms. The child-mother is nursing her fatherless baby.

What have we done to her? You said in your laws:

"She can sell herself if she is ten years old." But she must be twenty-one before she can trade a cow or hog.

You appropriated thousands of dollars to save cattle from the tick-Thousands to make hog cholera serum-

And thousands to study hogs that are sick.

--- Proverbs 31:9

A boy of seventeen stole a ride on a train.

You arrested him for this.

He did not have the money to pay his fine.

For this lack of funds we clothed him in stripes and put him in our chaingang for eight months.

If our laws had provided for probation, our Judge could have released the boy on good behavior.

He could have given the boy a chance.

Twenty-five other states allow their Judges to help instead of destroying moneyless first offenders.

By writing Probation into our laws you would not compel-

Judges and the Prison Commission-

And the Judiciary Committees of both Houses have approved it.

You will.

"For we are saved by hope."

---Romans 8:24

If the Indeterminate Sentence were the law in Georgia, a Judge, in sentencing a man, would say:

"Not less than ----, not more than ---years." Within the limits named, the man's stay in the penitentiary would depend upon himself. Hope of liberty, instead of fear of the lash, would make him obey.

He would win release by showing himself fit to be free.

His incentive for not committing crime again would be this: caught a second time, he might be sentenced as an habitual criminal for the greatest number of years prescribed for that particular crime.

In Illinois, in the twelve years before the indeterminate sentence became the law, one Judge sentenced either three or four different times the same one hundred criminals.

In the twelve years since it was made the law only four have had to be resentenced by him.

Commitments to the penitentiary have been forty per cent less, despite the great increase in population, in that state in the ten years since the indeterminate sentence became part of its law.

Twenty-two states have adopted it.

The Prison Commission and the Penitentiary Committees of the House and Senate approve the bill of Senator Foster and Representative Loyd that will make it the law of Georgia.

You, like them, would rather save than destroy the fallen.

You will help make this the aim of Georgia.

DALTON POLICE FEAR MOB WHEN POOLE IS CAUGHT

Coroner's Verdict Charges Murder-Case Goes to Grand Jury at Once

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) DALTON, Ga., July 29 .- Fearing that a mob would form to take their prisoner from them, local officers decided, upon receipt of a telegram from Police Chief Hill, of Chattanooga, notifying them of the capture of Clem back to Dalton.

The grand jury, summoned by Judge Fite Monday, will convene today, While the jury was called for the purpose of investigating the killing of Will Parrish by Dan Hatfield in north Dalton. the death of Policeman Cook, killed by Clem Poole, will also be a part of their investigations. The coroner's verdic charged Poole with murder.

That the officers have acted wisely in refusing to bring Poole back here Monday night is the consensus of opinion, for throughout Monday posses scoured the surrounding section, and doubt was expressed of his being brought safely back to Dalton in the Hundreds of New Suits Have Arrived, That the Women of Atlanta May See and Know the Fashions for Fall.

The woman whose vacation will take her to the cool mountains or northern resorts, will find in these new fall models the weight and style of suit that will serve her best. They are not too heavy and yet they are, in line in material, in trimmings, the style that will be best for fall.

There are literally hundreds of new suits now lined up in the big crystal cases, bringing their message of new styles, new fabrics, new colors, new fashion-turns.

We emphasize the quantity merely to impress that the announcement is based upon the fact that the display is worthy of the attention of every woman who would off with the old and on with the new.

The suits are ready!

And they are novel and interesting.

Novel and interesting from many viewpoints. There are draped cutaway coats, there are cutaway coats that button close up to the neck, and there are others that have the semblance of a blouse---all different from styles we have known. And coats are to be longer this fall; they measure 38 to 42 inches.

Many of the skirts are slashed, many are draped in one way and another.

Materials show the new scheme of things. Soft finished fabrics are prominent, velour cloths self-striped, crepons, ratine striped fabrics and bayadere poplins, trimmings often take a contrasting shade and again the use of embroidered velvet is pronounced on collars, cuffs and skirts.

What are the colors? See with your own eyes! Naming the mahogany, cinnamon prune, amethyst, Copenhagen and navy shades is but poor apology for their richness and beauty.

This is a worthy display of the new suit fashions, one that a woman may approach with the confidence that the suit she selects will be an authentic style. Agents for Butterick Patterns and Publications

Crowded Out.

The City Board of Education faces the very difficult, if not hopeless, task of providing room for all the girls who wish to enter the English-Commercial High school in September. It now seems that unless a miracle can be wrought one hundred or more applicants must be turned away. Approximately three hundred students are already enrolled for the autumn term, and scores of others are waiting anxiously to hear whether they shall be granted or denied the education which it is the city's duty to give them.

The trouble, as every one knows, arises from the fact that the present quarters of the school are inadequate both in respect to space and equipment. The school building consists of two houses constructed many years ago as dwellings for families of the average size. They are of wood; they are without modern conveniences; they are without the safeguards which every public institution should have; they are no more suited for a school than a nutshell would be for a kingdom. Yet, so efficient and inspiring has been the school's administration on the educational side that it has grown by leaps and bounds and has rendered service that is truly magnificent

Is it not a shame that such an institution should be denied the bare necessities of its material existence? There is even less excuse for the present situation in view of the fact that this condition of affairs is in no wise new, but has been developing for several years past. Time and again Council has been reminded that the English-Commercial High school had outgrown its quarters, and has been urged to appropriate funds for a new building. But because of one circumstance, no relief has been granted. The city owns a suitable site for such a building, but not a penny for the building itself has been provided.

It would be fruitless to go into the whys and wherefores of this lamentable situation, and fruitless to try to fix the responsibility. The fact is, under our present manner of government, nobody can be held responsible for anything that happens. All that Council can do, all that the public can do, is to admit 'that this good city, despite all its wealth, its native vigor and its prestige, is caught in a dilemma that even a Muggleton or a Dingley Dell could have escaped under a businesslike plan of government.

In August the thoughts of the vacation taker return to work.

President Wilson is sufficiently far seeing to get a pretty good line on the Mexican situation.

The Longevity of Animals.

A charming front-porch philosopher recently advanced the distinctive theory that the biggest creatures are the longest lived and, by way of proof, witnessed on the one hand the elephant, which attains two hundred years, and, on the other, the garden moth, which is born and aged and lightly sepulchered all in a summer's afternoon. Other front-porch philosophers hastened to challenge this suggestion with examples of frogs that have been found imbedded, but blinking, in strata which geologists declared could be not less than a hundred thousand years old; and there were also learned citations of wizened cats that would outlive generations of corpulent, greasy cooks.

Now comes a savant in the Farm and Home Magazine who contends that the relationships between size and longevity are singularly variable. Two such opposites as the crocodile and the carp, we are told, each live three hundred years. The rhinoceros is lucky to reach sixty, but many a goose celebrates her fiftieth birthday. A bull is considered venerable at thirty, yet a lobster will sometimes live to be twenty. Among birds, it seems, the falcon leads with an age limit of one hundred and fifty years; the parrot and the eagle have each an expectancy of a hundred years. The lion's span is sixty, the camers thirty, the horse's twenty-five, the ass' thirty, that of the peacock from twenty-three to twenty-five, the lion, bear, cow, pigeon, dog, deer and wolf about twenty. A rabbit lives eight years; a cricket ten.

It remains for some other scientist to discover the secret of these strangely varying ages. We can easily understand why most pullets die young and also why there are so many Methusalehs among the frogs of the earth's hidden caverns, but why, prithec, should a goose live longer than an ass?

Chauncey Depew thinks President Wilson has too much power, but then Chauncey ought to be so far out of the race-that-it shouldn't concern him one way or the other.

Peachtree Creek.

A little well-planned work would transform Peachtree creek from its unsightly and unwholesome condition into a stream of beauty and service. The bed of the creek is now clogged with fallen trees and rubbish, so that after a slight rainfall it overflows its banks, leaving pools that soon grow stagnant and breed swarms of mosquitoes. The creek is also used as a dumping trough for the refuse of manufacturing plants, with the result that it frequently gives off offensive odors as it flows near residence districts. These two evils can easily be remedied, the one by dredging the creek's channel and the other simply by enforcing existing statutes. This is a matter that merits the prompt attention of the Fulton County commissioners, for it concerns the vital interests of thousands of citizens and the welfare of the entire community.

It is important, as Captain Clayton, chief of the city's construction department, has pointed out, that this work be undertaken with the least possible delay. Overflows such as now often occur will hinder the efficient operation of the city's new Peachtree sewage disposal plant. The bed of the creek should be cleared before that plant is ready for use. Furthermore, since much of this work will have to be done in the water, it should be carried forward during the summer months. The part of the creek requiring attention is that between Peachtree bridge and a point just below Howell Mill road, a distance of only about two and a half miles. A force of county laborers could perform this task in comparatively a short time and with little expense, while the benefit to the public would be beyond reckoning.

Peachtree creek is naturally a beautiful stream, just such a stream, indeed, as Burns' "bonnie Doon," or Wordsworth's "sylvan Wye," that "wanderer through the woods." It needs only to be cleansed and relieved of its encumbrances to become an element of value and charm instead of an eyesore and a menace to health.

This weather is almost cool enough to ripen per

No Recognition for Huerta.

Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson, summoned to Washington for a conference on conditions in Mexico, has failed to convince the President that the United States should exert its influence to strengthen and sustain the Huerta regime. Ambassador Wilson, viewing the situation from a "purely practical standpoint" and with an eye to the immediate future, thinks our Government would do well to overlook the crooked steps by which Huerta rose to his precarious power and drive the best political bargain we can with him and his supporters.

The President, on the contrary, perceives a distinctly moral element in the situation, an element which the United States may not ignore and remain consistent with its own standards of rightful government and its policy toward Latin-America. The fact that Huerta became provisional president through the betrayal of Madero, who had been chosen president by constitutional means, and that his dishonestly won position was fortified by the murder of innocent officials cannot be winked at. Should our nation establish a precedent of recognizing governments thus set up, it would forfeit the confidence of its neighboring republics.

Besides this, it is evident that the Huerta regime has no moral and little physical support among the rank and file of the Mexican people. Its military influence extends but a little way beyond the environs of the capital. It has made no headway in suppressing the revolutionists. The recognition of the United States would not suffice to establish a government which even now is tottering to its fall.

The wisest course the United States can pursue is to remain unentangled with the existing factions in Mexico:

Dispatches indicate that a movement looking to the peaceful retirement of Huerta is now hopefully under way. Prominent Mexicans are said to be interested in the plan and to have informed Secretary Bryan "that if the United States will refrain from any decisive action, at least for the present, they will be able to bring about an understanding between the warring forces and reach a quiet solution of the political differences." Provisional President Huerta, it is thought, may be induced to resign in favor of a successor acceptable to all factions. That accomplished, an election will be held as soon as practicable, and a new president chosen by constitutional means. A government established in this manner would merit and would undenbtedly receive the recognition of the United States.

Sulphur has been added to the long list of things portance was that it placed the United States in the lead among the sulphur producing countries of the world. Instead of depending upon Sicily and other foreign countries for the supply of sulphur needed in the great industries of this nation, the country is not only able to provide for its own needs but soon will be able to materially add to the sulphur supply of the world. The great bulk of American sulphur is now more sulphur than it imported.

The trade balance in favor of produced from the mines in Louisiana where it is secured by a process the results of which are as marvelous as a fairy tale. This process was discovered by Herman Frasch, the president of the company operating the mine. Mr. Frasch has recently been presented with the Perkin medal by the Associated Chemical and Electrochemical societies of America for the distinguished service he has rendered to the world by this discovery.

The great mine is located near the town of Sulphur in Calcasieu parish. The sulphur deposit was discovered nearly half a century ago while borings were being made for oil. As it was covered with quicksands the sulphur was not available for use until the Frasch process made the mining of it possible. This process consists of melting the sulphur by the introduction of heat. Wells are sunk through the quicksands and superheated water introduced. The sulphur is melted and pumped out in liquid form and run out into great bins about 150 by 250 feet in size. These bins are first formed by driving stakes into the ground at the four corners and connecting them with planks. The melted sulphur is run out into the center of the bin and allowed to cool in layers about an inch thick. A separate bin is kept for each well in order that an accurate daily record may be kept of the output.

. . . As the bed of sulphur in the bin grows in thickness, by additional layers being poured in, the sides of the bins are raised by additional planks until they sometimes reach a height of sixty feet. When one bin is filled another is built alongside of it so that continlous blocks of sulphur may be formed several hundred feet in length, 150 feet in width and 50 or 60 feet in height. Blocks of sulphur have thus been formed which contain as much as 150,000 tons.

The liquid sulphur, as it flows into the bins like a golden stream, is so pure that the company in charge of it is able to guarantee a sulphur content of 99 1-2 per cent, while the average purity is considerably above that figure. For this reason the American sulphur is now recognized as the highest grade ever produced in the world. For the shipment of this sulphur a spur of track is run along one side of a sulphur bin. The boards from this side are removed and the sulphur broken by blasts so that it can be loaded on to cars standing upon the track. Shipments from this mine have, within the past two years, frequently averaged 1,000 tons a day for thirty consective days.

The most elaborate and intricate machinery is required for this high grade mining efficiency. To superheat the water used for melting the sulphur requires the operation of 150 boilers ranging from 150 to 300 horsepower. These boilers are arranged in eight batteries containing from fifteen to twenty boilers each. Each battery is capable of operating a well and usually two are placed in a group so that one foreman can operate both. Three men, two firemen and a water tender, are required upon each shift to care for each battery. In consideration of the enormous quantity of sulphur being produced under this arrangement, the small amount of labor required seems unbelievable.

The consumption of fuel oil in this great sulphur mining plant amounts to 700 barrels a day for each battery. When all are operating to their full capacity the oil consumption amounts to more than a million barrels annually. The water consumption amounts to 7,000,000 gallons daily. The problem of heating this enormous quantity of water to a sufficiently high temperature was one of the greatest difficulties encountered in the development of the Frasch process and one that required the greatest ingenuity to surmount. It is now arranged, the pipes and superheaters are placed in the rear of each battery. The superheaters are cylindrical receptacles about four feet in diameter and sixteen high, containing a series of shallow trays over which the water pours. It is thus brought into direct contact with the live steam from the great boilers. The total boiler caracity is more than 25,000

To supply the enormous quantity of water required for operating the mining plant a pumping station has been erected on the Houston river about six miles away. This station contains a centrifugal pump having a capacity of 12,000,000 gallons a day. This water is carried to the mine by a private canal. To provide against a possible breakdown in the pumping station, as well as to supplement its output, an enormous reservoir covering 150 acres has been built.

It seems rather strange that so enormous an industry as this great sulphur plant can operate and attract so little attention in the community in which it is locaed. Less is known about it by the people living in the communty than about any other industry. In the opinion of most of the residents of the parish, the lumber trade is far more important. One reason is that the sulphur mining is carried on almost secretly. The number of people employed is comparatively small and they are kept, under more or less stringent rules, closely upon the grounds of the sulphur plant. All of the supplies are brought from New York and the sulphur workers have little occasion to go outside of their own little colony.

. . . The location of this plant is most romantic, being only a few miles removed from the place where Evangeline died and was buried. When driven from Grand Pre the Arcadians settled in this part of Louisiana and that territory was then under French rule. Many of the descendants of these settlers still live here. A few of them are employed in the sulphur industry, although most of the laborers are imported Italians with a few skilled men as foremen. Jean LaFitte, the famous pirate and smuggler, whose adventures rivalled those of Morgan on the Spanish Main, also had his headquarters in this region, and the hulk of one of LaFitte's old vessels is still visible in Contraband bay, near the town of Sulphur.

The High Cost of Intervention

(The Pittsburgh Gazette-Times.) Cost of intervention in Mexico is something that American statesmen need to consider now. That was a consideration with the Taft administration and it is no less so with the present one. "Intervention means a terrible toll of American lives." That statement which appears in a current news report is followed with another sentence saying that "there is no question of this in the minds of President Wilson and his advisers." Neither was there any question of it in the minds of President Taft and his advisers. The cost in money would be tremendous. As Senator Bacon, chairman of the senate committee on foreign relay tions said one day recently in debate with Senator Fall, of New Mexico, it would be immeasurably cheaper for the United States to pay all the losses of Americans in Mexico than to intervene for protection of their property rights. But the larger and more important consideration is the toll of lives. It is not merely the loss of lives of an army of intervention that must be taken account of. There are yet in Mexico thousands of Americans whose lives might pay. That prospect more than any other halted American troops on this side of the Rio Grande when the so-called manoeuvre army was assembled in Texas by order of President Taft. There has been a considerable exodus of Americans since then, under urgent advice of our government, but large numbers did not leave, many because unable to do so. The present administration like its predecessor must have regard for them. That it is regardful there is abundant evidence. It is considering what might happen to them in counting the cost of intervention. And it sees that "intervention means a terrible toll of American lives."

Some day we are going to see what a great opportunity we have missed in not utilizing the public school system of the country to make good and honorable men and women.

There has been too much made out of the bugaboo of "religion" in the public schools. We have confounded it with morality-and we have used the word "religion" when we meant sectarianism. Nobody objects to simple religion, except a few atheists, and everybedy in his right mind and not degenerate is in favor of morality, even though he may have his own

The teaching of morals is held up as a high pedagogical ideal, but it is usually followed afar off. We are too busy training brain and hand, and now trying to build up good physical constitutions as well to give much attention to character. The result is that a vast number of perfectly good boys and girls are being worse than wasted every year, and a lot of excellent citizens of both sexes utterly spoiled in the making because nobody has been responsible for their characters. . It is a long time off, but it is possible to have the schools so organized and manned with conscientious and able teachers that every pupil will have individual attention and will be brought up to be good and decent. There are teachers here and there who take this broad and sympathetic view of their work but they are comparatively few and they have little encouragement. It takes all their time to keep the youngsters up to passing grades while morals go glimmering It used to be regarded as the duty of the parents to train up children in the way they should go. There is a greater laxit, here every year. Some day it will be recognized that the State must in self-protection undertake the moral training of its children, or its citizenship will deteriorate below the line of safety. It is more important to make citizens than scholars and artisans.

Quips and Quiddities

Not long ago I gave an Irishman a box of pills and cautioned him carefully with regard to adhering to the instructions on the box cover. These instructions read: "Take one pill three times a day."

Next day the man came in and placed the pills of my desk, and when I asked him what was the matter

"I couldn't carry out the instructions." "What's the reason?" I asked.

"I took the first pill all right," was his reply, "but couldn't get it up to take it the other two times."

The New Mid-Season Silk Dresses

This is the time when fall fashions are being whispered about. They naturally get into the new summer silks being just now brought out. We've a new lot to exhibit tomorrow. Come in and look them over. They're the ideal thing to wear during the hot season. They're cooler than many wash fabrics. They're always ready; and they're more economical in the long run. Especially when they may be bought at these mid-summer prices:

$12.50, $17.75 and $35

The Evening Dress shown in the picture is in blue crepe with shadow lace flounces and bodice, or black charmuese with shadow lace $12.50 bodice

Street model at the same price is of silk crepe in black, navy and Copenhagen blue, bottle green, brown and raisin. Made with drapery, buttoned to hem, or buttoned tunic. Lace collar, pretty girdle

The third model at $17.75 is of crepe de chine accordion pleated, or double fold pleats, tunic style, buttoned in back, most attractive, finished at neck and hands with lace. $17.75

The very handsome dress at $35 is the newest silk model shown this season. It is coat effect with long loose back, short 3-button front. High black satin girdle, embroidered chiffon vest and collar. Skirt draped in decidedly new way at sides. Coat and skirt button trimmed.

Who Gives You the Poorest Service?

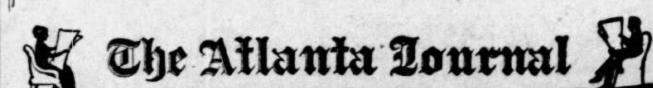

Is it the merchant who has the brightest store, the most attractive things to sell you, a polite and intelligent sales force to serve you and an all-round, genial, home-like, welcome atmosphere awaiting you in his shop—and then tells you about it in his advertising?

Is it from that kind of merchant that you receive poor service? It is not probable.

The chances are ten to one that the poorest service and the least satisfaction come from the shops where business is done under antiquated conditions; where the merchandise is badly chosen and badly displayed; where salespeople are not well informed and courteous and obliging, and where the merchant either has nothing much of interest to advertise or else "doesn't believe in advertising."

There MAY be exceptions, but, if so, they indicate the rule. The best service comes from the business that has so much confidence in its methods and its merchandise that it is a part of its splendid service to tell you about it.

Faithful JOURNAL ad readers seldom go to the wrong store.

PREMATURE GRAYNESS CAN BE AVERTED

THE hair turns gray because it has lost vitality, due to sickness, nervous strain, deficient nutrition and sometimes hereditary causes. To pull out the hairs when they begin to turn white is simply to enlarge the cells, coarsen the hair and cause it to whiten more quickly than if left alone.

The best and only satisfactory treatment for premature grayness is a pure, reliable hair restorative, such as Robinmaire Hair Dye. This resorative is pre-Pared in our own laboratory, a scientific formula, and we guarantee it to be non-Injurious. It is not to bleach or change the original color, but is to restore faded lost vitality. Its tonic effect makes lost vitality. Its tonic effect makes the hair soft. lustrous and beautiful.

He had wandered here and wandered there looking footprints very often she always managed to keep out of his sight. You see she knew the Old Pasture so much better than he did, and all the little paths in it, that she had very little trouble in keeping out of his way. Then, too, she was very busy. You see it was she who was keeping her cross old father, old Jed Thumper, away from Peter because she was so sorry for him. But Peter didn't know that. If he had I am afraid that he would have been more in love than ever.

The harder she was to find the more Peter wanted to find her. Public Spirit and Crackers

When you help your town, you help yourself--you make it a better place to live.

¶ You can help Atlanta best by using Atlantamade goods.

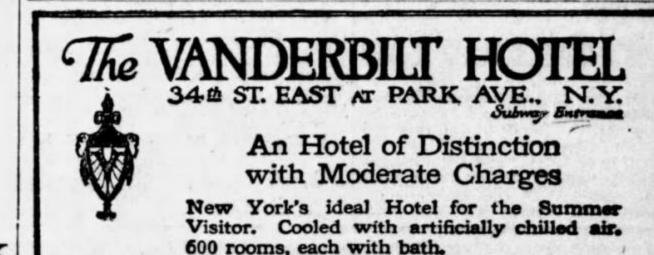

¶ You can show a deal of first-class public spirit in the buying of crackers and biscuits, for instance.

If you could get a better cracker or biscuit by buying one that's made over seas, or a thousand miles from home, of course there would be a reason for patronizing faraway folks.

But, you can't do it. BLOCK'S Atlanta-made are the equal of the best that ever crossed a grocer's counter.

We believe in public spirit. But, we believe in Quality just as much. When you can combine the two, why not do it?

Union Pacific and Can were down half a point $4.75 to $5.25. Wells-Fargo Express rose 9 points. The market became reactionary in the first hour, such prominent issues as Union Pacific, Reading, Lehigh Valley, Canadian Pacific and Can declining a point or more. The few gains were confined to specialties or stocks of little speculative importance. For the first time in over a week today's early stock market bore signs of having reached the limits of its rise, temporary at least. After an irregular opening the list soon manifested a heavy tendency. The decline was accelerated by renewal of bearish operations in several of the leaders. There were gains extending to 2 points in the inactive class but that movement excited little interest. Crop news was not altegether reassuring and the statement of the treasury department relative to the decline in government 2's was depreciated in banking cir-

Some of the forenoon's decline was retrieved when selling orders were withdrawn. The recovery was not of much importance. Fluctuations in stocks were unusually narrow most of the afternoon. Traders seemed to be waiting for some new impulse. Saving and Investing YOUR MONEY. BY JOHN M OSKISON

Perhaps one cent out of every dollar which investors send to Wall street to buy securities with is spent in trying to "get a line on" forthcoming legislation at Washington and (sometimes) at Albany.

Go on a tour of brokers' offices and intimate that you are looking for a chance to make an investment which will yield quick profits, and in about half of the northern 91@92%c; No. 2 northern 90@91c; offices you will hear something like this, spoken "in strictest confidence:" "Our Mr. Blank has just come back from Washington, and he tells us that congress is certain to start an investigation of the A. B. & C. company. He has it from a man very close to the administration that the attorney general has an air-tight case against the company, and that suit is sure to be brought. You can see for yourself what effect that is going to have on the A. B. & C. company's common stock!"

And, as a matter of fact, their Mr.

Blank has actually spent considerable time, and a lot of money, in Washington getting what he thinks is advance information as to what the government is going to do in that particular case. Dave Lamar, when he recklessly promised to secure the support of Speaker Clark, of Senator Stone, of Representative Palmer, and others to any program which he and his friend Ed-

York, was only exaggerating a fairly common attitude of mind. There is a deep-seated belief in Wall street that all legislation concerning finance can be directed if only enough money is used and if the right people are "seen."

Lobbyists and agents of the Lamar sort deceive both the wise men of Wall street and those representatives of the government at Washington who consent to listen to them, and the result is a mutual distrust and misunderstanding. Legitimate investments are hurt, constructive legislation is hard to get, and genuine financial and currency reforms tend to know what is going on 'inside."

How to Swat The Horsehide

To sacrifice, let the ball hit the bat. To slug, let the bat hit the ball.

ALWAYS stand facing the pitcher.

DON'T hit the ball straight to some To knock the ball safe, knock it on a line BETWEEN the nelders, or else clam it over their heads. NEVER allow a pitcher to strike you out, or force you to knock it in the air.

Treat all pitchers alike. Hit any kind of a ball they serve, and hit it SQUARE-Follow these directions carefully, and

"Hand-Shaking" Baseball Decried by Scrappy Leader of Old Cleveland Spider Baseball Club

BY PATSY TEBEAU.

Manager of Famous Cleveland Spiders. you a team that is after the pennant. Show me a ball club out there fighting every inch of the way and I'll show This having players going through the parlor busines of shaking hands every time they meet is foolish. It gives the fans the wrong impresion. You've got to get that old fighting spirit to win. Keep 'em hustling. We never thought of greeting our opponents. Our idea was to get out there and lick 'em, and lick 'em good and quick. I can see some guy sliding back to first with me playing the bag and getting his head bumped with the ball. Think I'd apologize? Not Patsy Tebeau. "Get your nutt out of the way and you won't get hurt," would be more

I haven't seen many games this year, but those I have seen were a lot different from the ones we played. The tactics were different. About a year ago I saw a fellow steal second. He came up all dust, and what do you think happened? Why, the second baseman helped him dust his uniform.

And that team finished last in the race. That isn't my brand of baseball. From what I've heard from Cleveland friends, Joe Birmingham is playing the same system the old "Spiders" used. That's why the Naps are winning. That's the real stuff! Rush the other guys off their feet. Make 'em think you're tough. Scare 'em to death and you got them licked.

We used to sit on the bench and file our spikes. They had to be sharp to give when they cut into the ground and at the same time the other team Birmingham 101 220 0-6 4 1 knew we wouldn't give an inch in a pinch.

One day I was sharpening my spikes when I heard a guy on the other team say, "When Tebeau slides into me you bet I'm going to get out of the way.' I had him bluffed, see?

ALL KICKING C. FRANK; TURN ABOUT FAIR PLAY Be Purchased

In Years Gone by, Frank Aided All Weak Teams-Now His Team Is in Bad, but He Gets Not a Bit of Help

"Do unto others as you would have hem do unto you," is a saying which Charley Frank wishes would be adhered to by the seven other Southern league

Time was when different Southern league clubs were in trouble and Frank came to their aid, but now that the Frank team is in a bad way, not one mogul offers to send him a player or so to aid in pulling through a most trying period. Many were willing enough in past seasons to accept aid from the genial Dutchman, but now they have forgotten these good turns and when Frank is in trouble they do not offer to help him in the least.

Until the present campaign Cholly Frank has always been right in the running for high honors, but this season he is somewhat down and out, his New Orfeans club appearing hopelessly out of the running. When he was turning out crack clubs for the Pels he usually had two or three good players he was not using and was always willing to let a rival team have them as a loan. He saw there was no use in paying them fat salaries to sit on the bench when he did not need them and did a good turn for the rival club and league and let them go where they would be use-

Now the worm has turned. Frank this season is somewhat all in, down and out. His team is playing bad ball, Bill Schwartz, of Nashville-has offered to help the Dutchman. The boss of the Pels seems to be in bad and the rumor that he is to leave the league with the end of the present season is daily gaining strength. The other managers seem to have it in for him. But Cholly is not asking any quarter from any one of the bunch. He is going merrily ahead and buying new players that he hopes will put him in the running. And maybe he will get out of last place before the end of the season.

They are all willing to kick you when down and out, but when you are up in the running and can give out a little aid here and there you are the candy

Pitching and not hitting is what is winning games for the New York Giants and keeping the McGraw ago and has directed since. It was outfit in the lead in the fight for the 1913 National league flag. Neither is the fielding of the Giants anything Marvin's idea that, if through constant to brag upon yet the team plays jam-up defensive ball when it is needed and serve to keep away many a run tournament play great accuracy could just through the work of the hurlers and infielders. In the American league it is hitting that is turning the trick. The Mackmen always go out and get a bunch of hits. Connie Mack fully realizes that he hasn't the very best pitching staff in the world and realizing this the batters are pounding the ball and making each hit count for its full value. In Marquard, Tesreau, Mathewson and Demaree the New York club has four most dependable pitchers and from the way things now look the work of this quartet of pitchers will be pitted against the hard hitting of their averages a good boost in the game fists and they've earned their own keep. McInnis, Collins, Baker and Oldring in the big world's series. Mack depends largely upon the hitting of his club with the Gulls Monday. Here is how and that of their sister, too."

while with McGraw it is the pitching end which helps him most. Both teams have great defensive strength and are able to outgeneral many of the tribes they go up against. During the past week, when five games were played, the Giants made 20 runs on 35 hits, winning 4 games and losing but 1. On the other hand in 6 games the Phillies made 62 hits and 35 runs and yet won but making but few tallies. McGraw's bunch rarely makes many tallies and it takes good hurling to keep club ahead in the run line.

Outfielder to For Crackers

Manush Will Remain at Third Base for Rest of Season. Bailey Out of Game With Broken Ribs-New Players

A hard hitting outfielder to take the place of Bill Bailey in left field is the man the Atlanta club is now seeking, it being Bill Smith's idea to keep Smith at second and Manush at third and get added batting strength by adding a good outfielder instead of purchasing a new second baseman to take Alperman's place.

Since Whitey Alperman, the popular Cracker captain and second baseman, was put out of commission for the remainder of the season by an appendi citis operation, the club has purchased Outfielder Holtz and Pitcher Love from the Selma club of the Cotton States league and these men are expected to join the club during Tuesday. Until Alperman is suspended, which will doubt. less be done during the day, Holtz cannot be signed, but in case President Kavanaugh grants the right to suspend Alperman it is likely that Holtz will be in Tuesday's game.

Already President Kavanaugh has give en his sanction to suspend Alpermon with pay for the remainder of the season, and it is not expected that any of the other clubs will hold up the deal. Telegrams requesting this right were sent out Monday night and favorable answers are expected during the day. Alperman was taken ill while working for the best interests of the club and it would be wrong to suspend him for the remainder of the season without CHANT OF THE SECOND DIVISION BUG. Come on, you Grand Old Winter League; Raus mitt this fagging summer season; These clammy days of deep fatigue Are enough to sap a fellow's reason, Beyond the borders of the Rose O, bring again the Old Stove's inning, When valiantly across the snows Our gallant ball club starts to winning.

Come on, famed season the dope; Of "slagging find" and "all-star flinger"; Where once again eternal hope Springs in the baseball breast to linger. To linger through the days of chill, Where every player is a hummer, Through March and April, on until We hit the chutes again next summer.

Come on. O merry Winter Time; When "Mogul Jones predicts a pennant"-When from the cellarette we climb And first place finds us there a tenant. A tenant on the topmost hill. . Where every club becomes a hummer, Through autumn, winter, spring-until We hit the cuhtes again next summer.

Latin, they say, is a dead language. I, isn't any deader than some sections of the English verbiage. As for example, that once popular phrase 'Crucial Series," as applied to the two big leagues.

If any one cares to start an argument with Jack Miller, of Pittsburg, can begin quickly by suggesting that Hans Wagner is all in. Jack and ans are old time pals, and the younger player has seen the veteran kick with too much stuff to believe that he will ever finish. "Honus will be in," says Miller, "when he can't drag his glove into the diamond or when he is unable to push one of his hands in the general direction of the ball. You can play it for a pipe bet that he will be one of Pittsburg's stars for 1914 unless he loses both mitts in a sawmill."

THE ULTIMATE FRENZY.

We refuse to become keyed up over the White Hope situation or the world series this far ahead. But one must have one's thrill, so the only remaining frenzy in sight is whether or not the British golfing pros' will clean up the American contingent. Otherwise what is one to do unless Giants or Athletics decide to subsist exclusively upon a bichloride of mercury diet for the next ten days?

The Davis cup is all in-the pennant races are all in-and the white opes have never been out. So those who don't care whether Harry Vardon uses a niblick or a toothpick are in for quite a yawn before the decision is finally made as to whether Bender will start against Mathewson or Marquard will open against Plank.

On the other hand there's the case of Gunboat Smith vs. J. Flynn and Jess Willard vs. A. Pelkey. This should lead to something, but for the life of us we don't see mto be able to put enough energy into the research to find out what it is.

JOURNAL WANT AD oroscope

JULY 30.

This is the birthdate of Thomas

Grey, the poet, who was born July 30, 1771, and his fine poetic nature shows the best characteristics of the Leo born. The governing planet of this birthdate is the Sun. The sign of the Zodiac of this birthdate is Leo, meaning lion, and giving courage and endurance. Many of the most noted philosophers, poets, novelists and musicians were born on this date. It is one of the best signs of the Zodiac to be born in, because it is surrounded by solar fluids which will draw great success vibrations and which make orators of this birthdate glow with inspiration, wielding great power over multitudes of people. When favorably placed in a nativity the Sun promotes a fortunate and honored life. Women of this birthdate make excellent wives and mothers, and men of this birthdate are generous providers.

Another famous writer and lecturer who was born on this date.

was Jones Burdette, humorist and made by every fair association in the country to encourage the growing of more poultry and live stock, they have been liberal in offering large premiums and making splendid provision in the shape of good barns and poultry buildings for these departments. The management of the different fair associations are beginning to realize that our people must diversify their farming operations, and through no other channel or line of work can the farmer be gotten at in a better way to see these things han through the exhibits at differen fairs. With the liberal premiums that are offered, and nearly every fair having secured experienced men to place the awards, the educational work that will be done this season at the different fairs over the south in this line will be worth millions of dollars to the south. The effects of the past few years is now being seen in nearly every community. There are probably more good colts in the state of Georgia today than was known before. The cause of this is largely the agitation of the raising of these colts, offering small premiums to induce people to take more interest than ever, and it certainly is bearing fruit. Georgia can produce as good colts and horses as anywhere in the world, and when this is done, millions of dollars will be kept in Georgia that have gone out of the state heretofore.

S special efforts are being

This same thing can be said of hogs. Of course, the hog industry got a bad backset last year on account of so much hog cholera, but, s this dreaded disease is so easily avoided, and nothing but laziness being the excuse for a man having this trouble hereafter the hog business in the south will boom from now on. There will be many exhibits of hogs at the different fairs this fall, and it certainly is the place to distribute this class of thoroughbred stock. Cattle is one thing that should be paid more attention to, but that will gradually come. Poultry has already been on the boom for the past two years, but not onehalf as much interest is worked up as there will eventually be. The distribution of good cotton, corn and other seed is being made by the work that is being done at the fairs. The farmers can see the difference in this work with their own eyes, and, naturally, year by year, by encouraging and showing them things that they thought before were never possible, it is getting them to study and pay more attention to the selection of good seed, live stock and poultry than ever before, and the work that is being done in each of the southern states through the little county fairs and the state fairs is of untold value. No estimation in dollars and cents can be placed on this work as it grows from year to year, and when the right men are behind these fairs they have a telling effect on every community for years to come.

Nearly every little town of any size in the state of Georgia this year will hold its county fair, and it brings together the people in a more friendly way than any other work that can be done; and the beauty of it all is that thousands of dollars' worth of live stock and poultry and seed are exchanged and much money put in circulation that would never be circulated if it were not for these fairs. And those who are encouraged to want to learn and be benefited by these public exhibitions certainly have an opportunity to better their financial condition for a small investment and a small amount of time through the sudy and knowledge that they gain at these fairs than can be had by any other method. It is surprising the good they are doing. Many good farm implements are exhibited and put in use in different parts of the country that are saving lots of labor that would never be used or known of if the implement concerns did not exhibit them and let the farmer see of how much value they are. On every western fair ground can be seen acres of farming implements-engines, machinery, etc., of all kinds-and the farmers who are compelled by scarcity of labor in these sections to use these implements have an opportunity to select just what they want from these public exhibitions. This same thing can be said of all kinds of poultry and live stock, and it is gradually coming in all parts of the work of the little county fairs today probably to a greater extent than any other line of work that is being done, Every farmer and all of his employes should by all means exhibit something off their farms at the fairs this fall, or spend a day inspecting the exhibits that others are making. You can certainly learn something, and it would be the best time and money you could possibly spend. No one realizes the importance of this more than I, as I have, during the past thirty years, visited hundreds of fairs in different parts of the country, and have seen the good they are doing; but it is certainly discouraging to visit our small county fairs and see how far we are behind compared to the eastern and western fairs, that have been forced from necessity to take up this work many years ahead of us. However, we have so many advantages over them that we will eventually take these things into consideration, and I hope some day to see the value of this work as much as our eastern and western neople have south. Strong competition and scarcity of labor are forcing the south-em planters to see things, and they are being benefited through the
