Miss Hix Also Testifies That Magnolia Kennedy, Who Worked Near Mary Phagan, Had Hair of the Same Color and Shade-Important Admissions Lay Foundation for Defense's Claim That Murder Was Not Committed in Metal

STATE ENDEAVORS TO SHOW FRANK VERY NERVOUS AND DID NOT LOOK ON FACE OF MURDERED GIRL

Attorney Rosser Directs His Questions to Combat Claim of Nervousness-Witness Declares She Never Saw Any Red Paint in the Metal Room-State Claims New Evidence Will Soon Be Given-Trial Will Run Into Second Week

Four distinct features marked the trial of Leo M. Frank Wednesday. One was an admission from Miss Grace Hix that the girls frequently combed their hair over the machines in the metal room of the factory; another was a strenuous effort on the part of the state to prove that Frank was very nervous on the morning of the discovery of little Mary Phagan's body; still another feature was the attempt of the state to show that Frank was reluctant to look upon the dead girl's face in the undertaking parlors, and the fourth was the state's efforts to prove that red paint never had been seen on the floor of the metal room where the state alleges bloody spots were found.

Around each of these points stiff legal tilts occurred. In developing from Miss Hix's testimony the fact that the girls combed their hair in the metal room, Attorney Rosser laid the foundation for a refutation of the theory that Mary Phagan was murdered there.

The state is expected to introduce as evidence several strands of hair found on the handle of a turning lathe in the metal room, pre sumed to be those of Mary Phagan. Attorney Rosser drew from the Hix girl the admission that Miss Magnolia Kennedy, one of the metal room employees who worked very close to Mary Phagan's machine, had hair almost the same shade as that of the murdered girl.

Evidently as to the nervousness of Frank on the morning of the murder was given by City Detective John Black and W. W. Rogers, who, after the body had been found, called at Frank's home in an automobile to bring him to the pencil factory. Upon cross-examination by Attorney Rosser these witnesses were unable to furnish any specific instances of Frank's conduct indicating nervousness, beyond the fact that he walked rapidly, talked fast, found some difficulty in adjusting his collar and tie, and several times reeferred to his desire for a cup of coffee or someoch of these witnesses swore that when they took Frank to the undertaking establishment they dd not see him look at the dead girl's face. However, neither of them would swear positively that Frank

Apparently Solicitor Dorsey regarded as important the testimony of Grace Hix that the factory paints were kept in the polishing room, which s some distance from the metal room. The girl declared that she had seen a few drops of paint on the floor of the metal room leading from the polishing room to the water cooler, but that she had never observed any red paint on the floor. Attorney Rosser compelled the witness to admit that the floors of the factory were very dirty and badly stained and that on account of the dust and dirt only two or three days would be necessary to elapse to make it impossible to determine the color of a stain of pant which had been dropped upon the floor.

Attorneys in the case are fighting strenuously over every point however insignificant it may seem to the spectators. Despite the battle of three days, however, no testimony not already in the hands of the public has been presented. The prosecution, nevertheless, promises to produce new and startling evidence before much more progress in the case is made.

The report that J. M. Gantt, who was arrested shortly after the murder and later released, would give sensational evidence to the effect that he saw Frank and Conley together about 1:25 on the day of the tragedy was denied by Gantt. Gantt declared he met a friend of his, Rossier Shields, about 1:50 in the afternoon and went to the restaurant opposite the pencil factory, but that he did not see anyone come in or go out of the factory, as he was not noticing.

An effort of the prosecution to develop through the testimony of "Boots" Rogers that Leo M. Frank did not look upon the face of Mary Phagan as she lay in the morgue on the Sunday morning when Frank, accompanied by officers, visited the undertaker's, and an equally determined effort of the defense to show that Rogers did not know whether Frank saw the little girl's face or not, was one of the interesting features of the Wednesday morning session. Solicitor Dorsey, presumably, was endeavering to show that Frank had lost his nerve and that he could not bear the sight of the child's face, and Attorney Rosser combatted his efforts very energetically. The witness was stopped several times by each side as he was dismissed by the other and made to go over his testimony.

Another interesting feature was the line of questions directed at Miss Grace Hix, the friend of Mary Phagan, who was first to identify her body. Solicitor Dorsey asked her in considerable detail about a door on the second floor, leading to the third story. This door was near the point where the defense claims the girl was killed. It has never figured in the case, however, until shown on the solicitor's diagram. The purpose of the solicitor is not yet apparent. Mr. Dorsey also had Miss Dix tell what the natural route would have been from Frank's office to the metal room. The lines on the solicitor's diagram indicate a route which Mr. Frank is supposed to have taken and which apparently was somewhat out of the way.

Before Rogers took the stand the diagram of the pencil factory was again submitted by Solicitor Dorsey, but with all writing removed. After an argument by the attorneys with the jury out of the room Judge Roan admitted the diagram as representing the state's theory.

While lawyers and principals in the Frank trial refuse to estimate the probable length of the big legal battle, those who have been following the case closely now believe that it will run far into next week. Judging from the progress made since the jury was chosen the state will do well if it closes its case by next Saturday.

Everybody is wondering whether or not Conley, if he is called, will stand up under the battery of the defense when he takes the stand against the accused factory superintendent. Conley is expected to be the state's main witness.

Conley is almost certain to take the stand twice during the trial. He will, of course, be a witness in the direct presentation of evidence by the state. And it is more than probable that he will be called in rebuttal to refute the statement that W. H. Mincey, defense witness, is expected to make. Mincey claims that Conley, while intoxicated, confessed to murdering a girl on the day Mary Phagan was killed.

So far the prosecution has presented nothing that has not been told the public weeks ago through the newspapers. Attorney Frank A. Hooper, for the prosecution, promises that evidence heretofore unknown will be brought before the jury this week, however. In conversation with newspapermen Thursday morning he said that the state would present important new evidence before it closes its case.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) DALTON, Ga., July 30 .- Clem Poole, charged with the murder of Policeman Harry Cook, Tuesday afternoon was indicted for murder by the grand jury, the bill being returned shortly after ! o'clock. Three other indictments for murder, against Dan Hatfield, John and Tom Nicodemus, were returned at the same time, and the cases have been set PURER TEA IS COMING for trial Wednesday. Hatfield and the Nicodemus brothers are charged with the murder of Will Parrish, in North Dalton, several weeks ago. Poole, captured in Chattanooga, was brought back Tuesday afternoon at 4:25 o'clock, Police Chief White, Policemen Duckworth and J. P. Elrod going after the prisoner. Several hundred people had gathered, awaiting the arrival of the officers with their prisoner, but Poole was not touched. He was taken to the county fail and confined, Judge G. G. Glenn, his attorney, remaining with him for some time.

The murder cases will be called in the superior court today. The case against Hatfield will be taken up first, and it probably will be Thursday before the Poole case is reached.

Acting under instructions from his attorney, Poole refused to make any kind of a statement. He would not talk of the crime with which he is charged. When questioned, Judge Glenn stated that he was employed Tuesday morning to defend Poole and had been busy throughout the day preparing the defense. "I see no reason now why we should not be ready at least by Thursday," he said, "and I expect an acquittal for my client."

Hatfield, charged with murder, anthat he was unable to employ counsel, and Judge Fite appointed Attorney W. E. Mann to defend him. Mann has been retained to defend the Nicodemus brothers, charged with being implicated in the murder of Will Parrish.

STRANGE BURNING PLANT BLOOMS AT EATONTON

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) EATONTON, Ga., July 30 .- Rather a rare botanical specimen sent by a former resident of this county to relatives here during its full bloom of the past two weeks has attracted considerable attention, not only from lovers of rare plants, but lovers of the curious as well. The plant is known, or called by both of two names, the Bird of Paradise plant, and Moses and the Burning Brush, either of which seems fully appropriate. The bush is about eight feet tall with leaves of leguminous yellow in color with several seemingly elongated pistils extending from within the bloom, bright red and making a very happy harmony of colors. The large clusters over the bush with these red pistils attract attention immediespecially appropriate as a name. Pods citizens have been these as souvenirs.

SUIT FOR LANDS OF SOUTHERN PACIFIC hood.

(By Associated Press.) PORTLAND, Ore., July 30 .- The filing by the government of another suit to forfeit lands held by the Southern Pacific railroad was announced here today. Approximately 100,000 acres are at stake and the names of Collis P. Huntington, Leland Stanford and Charles F. Crocker, who built the Central Pacific railroad, are brought in.

The petition, filed by eleven settlers, charges that the original filers on the land merely were dummies for the company and hence the provisions of the congressional land grant of 1869 were violated. Other frauds are charged and the petition asks that the lands revert to the state and be resold to settlers at $2.50 per acre. An injunction against timber cutting on the lands also is

P. O. Box 378, El Paso, Texas. - "My trouble began December, 1911. It commenced on me by causing a scurf-like skin and my toe joints, finger joints and lips commenced to crack and split open. My finger cracks would bleed all day long; the cracks were very deep and my thumbs seemed to be cracked to the bone. My hands were so bad that I had to sleep with gloves on. The cracks in my lips would bleed often during the day and I used to put adhesive plaster across them to try to keep them closed. My toes would bleed and I would find blood in my socks when the day's work was done. The skin around the cracks was red and inflamed. I wore shoes one size too large on account of my feet being so sore. I used to become frantic with pain at times. My hands and feet used to smart.

"I suffered agony for four months. I saw the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and as a last resort I answered and got samples immediately. After trying them one night the next morning I found relief. I went to town and got some Cuticura Soap and Ointment. From the time I commenced with the Cuticura Soap and Ointment until completely cured was just nineteen days." (Signed) Jack Harrison. Nov. 19, 1912.

Cuticura Soap 25c. and Cuticura Ointment 50c. are sold throughout the world. A single set is often sufficient. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T. Boston." Men who shave and shampoo with Cu-

Booklovers' Bulletin

As a few of The Journal contestants are under the impression that we gave the correct title to picture No. 1 in that story and later in answer to queries stated that the answer was not given, we reproduce the story as published so that all of our readers can see that the title "Their Yesterday" does not appear in this story.

DAILY CAMPAIGN STORY The Lady With the Catalogue Talks Titles

Of the several hundred Booklovers who called at The Journal office yesterday for a catalogue there was one dear old lady with gray hair and a good face, who attracted the Campaign Editor's attention by her enthusiasm in regard to the plan. 'You know," she said, "I was in your last Booklovers' Campaign, and while I did not get one of the Grand Prizes, I did get a prize and learned, too, that if I took your advice all the way through, I would surely get a better prize. Let me explain to you how I so after the correct titles in your catalogue, and if I am not right in my plan. I knew you will set me right. Here is yesterday's picture, No. 1, of the series, and you see it is a devoted old couple, evidently discussing other days, and from the words, evidently good days. I would take this catalogue and go through it alphabetically to get at the right title to that picture. In the G column I find 'Good Old Times,' in the 'H' column 'Happy Days and Happy Hours,' 'I' column, 'In Perfect Peace,' in the 'L' column, 'Left to Themselves,' as I notice they are all alone, the same as myself and my dear old husband. In the 'M' column, The Measure of Our Youth,' and the 'O' column, 'Our Old Home'; 'P' column, 'Peace and Happiness,' 'W' column, 'We Two.' There may be others that apply to that particular picture and when I get bome I will go through it carefully and if there are any I will surely find them. Now, Mr. Editor, have I the right idea, of have you any better plan?"

No, we have no petter plan at present and commend the dear old lady's plan all our old and young booklovers. It means to you a little more work, but it is work that will count hig for you in the wind up of this delightful campaign. So let us take off our hats to the dear old Georgia lady who is going to wir to help all other contestants to win.

TRIAL THUS FAR HAS ONLY ESTABLISHED MURDER OF THE GIRL

of Mary Phagan's Murder

Following in the sequence which it began with the introduction of the first witness, the prosecution of the murder charge against Leo M. Frank progressed Tuesday afternoon to the point at which the city detectives began their investigation of te murder mystery. Beginning with Mrs. J. W. Coleman.

mother of Mary Phagan, who saw her leave home about noon of April 36. the state established in succession her arrival at the corner of Marietta and Forsyth streets, and departure thence for the factory two blocks away-this by the newsboy, George Eppes; the ing of her dead body fifteen hours later, in the pencil factory basement-this by the night watcman, Newt Lee; the arrival of the police and their official survey of the surroundings-this by Sergeant L. S. Dobbs; the beginning of teh detectives' investigation and the arrival of Leo M. Frank in physical person upon the scene-this by Detective J. N. Starnes, who appears formally as the prosecutor of the charge

Thus, therefore, the state has established the very necessary foundation of fact that Mary Phagan was murdered in the pencil factory.

The session Tuesday afternoon was punctuated by objections by the state or the defense to questions put by the opposing side to witnesses on the stand, and by arguments between state and defense over these points.

Sergeant Dobbs and the other officers examined the basement and failed to find any notes or pads except the two notes and the pad found beside the body he said. They failed too to discover any pads on the first floor of the factory. There was no blood on the ground or in the sawdust where the body was

Attorney Rosser asked him if he went carefully into the trash pile in his search. No, he didn't dig it all up, Picking up the hasp which had been found drawn from the back door, Mr. Rosser handed it to the witness and secured his admission that it was slightly bent to one side. Sergeant Dobbs said he could not say how the hasp was removed, but that it must have been drawn straight out from the inside of the basement; that the door apparently had been opened from the inside.

Mr. Rosser read the sergeant's testimony at the coroner's inquest with reference to the dragging trail leading from the elevator to the dust bin, and also with reference to the size of the trap door in the first floor.

Apparently the attorney sought to bring out that the trail did not lead all the way from the front of the elevator, but from somewhere near the corner of it close to the ladder. He also sought to establish the fact from the witness that the trap door hole was not so small that two persons could not pass through it. Witness protested that he got through himself with great diffisulty: that the hole is small.

City Detective J. N. Starnes, who is known in the case as the prosecutor of Leo M. Frank, was next called to the

STARNES' TESTIMONY. . Detective Starnes testified that he went to the pencil factory about o'clock on Sunday, April 27, and made a minute examination of the basement. He testified at length as to the position of the hasp and lock on the basement door. The substance of this testimony was that the stapic could not possibly have been drawn from the outside. He declared that there was a small piece of pipe on the inside. which evidently had been used to pull the staple, as directly beneath, the hasp's position on the woodwork was an indentation which this pipe fitted. The south Georgia representatives declare that both experiment stations are in north Georgia, the second being at Athens, while the needs of south Georgia planters are not similar to those of the northern section of the state. Because of this, the north Georgia stations are not prepared to give equal* service to the southern sections. The bill proposes that the section in which the new station would be established shall donate the lands and buildings, thereby costing the state nothing in effecting the removal from Griffin.

The fight to remove the capitol of Georgia from Atlanta to Macon will again be waged in the Georgia legislature following the introduction Wednesday morning of a bill amending the constitution so that the change may be effected. The Bibb county delegation, Representatives Wimberly, Miller and Fowler, introduced the bill, which also was signed by sixty-five other members

The constitutional amendment will require a two-thirds vote of both the house and senate to be passed, and then must be ratified by a two-thirds vote of the people. It will be necessary, therefore, for 123 members of the house and thirty members of the senate to vote for the bill before it even can be considered by two-thirds vote. That the members from Bibb are thoroughly in earnest is indicated by their action in again presenting the bill, and the signatures of sixty-five members of the house demonstrates that a warm fight will be waged. Agitation to remove the capitol to Macon began three years ago.

Opponents Declare Bill Will Increase the "High Cost of Marriage"

The science of eugenics occupied the attention of the state senate for some time Wednesday morning when the bill introduced at the request of Dr. Embry of Villa Rica by Senator Hixon requiring a civil contract marriage was indefinitely postponed by vote of 19 to 18.

The measure provided that both parties to a marriage present a medical certificate of health signed by their family physicianns.

During the course of the discussion Senattor McNeil took occasion to poke a little fun at "the bachellor senators . who, he said, might be affected by the proposed law. Senator Richardson declared that whetther the senate passed the bill this session or not that it was bounnd to come some day.

One of the objectitons to the bill, as stated by its opponents, was that it would increase "the high cost of marriage" to a disastrous extent. The senate passed Senator Tarver's probation bill and killed a bill of Senator McGregor's which provided that all new county creations should in the future be decided by those citizens in the affected countties. Senator McGregor gave nnotice of reconsiderattion

A Bill for Human Rights.

The bill introduced in the House by Representative John Y. Smith, of Fulton, and Representative Samuel C. Olive, of Richmond, relative to the legal custody of minor children is so obviously just and well advised that it should be enacted without hesitation or delay. This measure is designed to relieve the existing law of its flagrant and really brutal discrimination against the natural rights of motherhood. It asks no more than every right-thinking man must concede to be fair and no less than any civilized State can afford to grant. The changes it would provide are not so far-reaching as others that have been suggested, but they are sufficient to free the present statute from its gross injustice; and their conservatism is distinctly in their favor.

Under the existing Georgia law, the right to the custody and control of minor children in case of a controversy between husband and wife is vested in the father alone. Unless he can be proved to be utterly unfit as a guardian, his prerogative in this respect is legally beyond question. Should he be proved unfit, the court may then consider the "best interests" of the child. But, in the opinion of jurists, nowhere in our laws are the rights of the mother, as such, in the first instance maintainable." Such a statute is contrary to conscience and common sense, contrary to the teachings of human instinct and experience and to those primal laws of nature in which the eternal rights of motherhood are graven.

If the State press in any wise reflects public opinion, there is a widespread and insistent popular demand for a change in this unrighteous statute forthwith, for, since the issue was broached comparatively a few days ago, representative newspapers throughout Georgia have been urging the Legislature to prompt remedial action. Indeed, there can be no difference of opinion as to the right and wrong of this question; the only thing to be considered is the best means to the end desired. The pending bill seems to meet the needs of the situation fairly and prudently. It is earnestly to be hoped that this bill will be reported with the least possible delay and passed as a measure of simple justice and humanity.

A Significant Recommendation.

It is gratifying to note that a sub-committee of the House committee on appropriations has recommended the allowance of thirty thousand dollars to establish a State institution for the guardianship and education of vayward girls. The committee's action is especially significant in that it represents the mature judgment of three Legislators, Messrs. Griffin, Green and Berry, who were detailed to inquire carefully into the merits of this cause and to determine the minimum amount of money required. In making their report they have given due regard to the lean condition of the State's treasury and like their fellow members of the appropriations committee have fully recognized the importance of farsighted economy. But they have also recognized the fact that the State can no longer afford to ignore a problem so vital and so tragic as that which the proposed institution is designed to solve.

ate thought. It should, therefore, be accepted by the Legislature as indicating the only just and advisable course to pursue. The question, as we have said before, is not whether Georgia can afford to establish this institution but whether she can afford not to establish it.

Satan gets so much fun out of his business that he doesn't want a vacation.

Argentina is to have an anti-trust law, showing how the rest of the world is taking to modern things.

The Flying Mars.

The French aviator, Massen, who is aiding the Mexican insurgents in their siege of Guaymas, has furnished interesting evidence of the utility of the aeroplane in warfare. Despite the guns of the federal forces beneath and around him, he circled over the city and the bay, dropped four bombs within a few feet of the gunboat, Tampico, and returned to his camp unscathed.

This is not an entirely new feat, for the Italians in Tripolitan campaigns and the Balkan allies in their attack on Adrianople used flying machines to signal advantage. It is doubtful, however, if a birdman ever before came within so close a range of the enemy's fire and escaped unharmed.

Georgia's Paramount Problem

The Legislature is now face to face with the State's paramount problem, that of fiscal reform. Until this issue is settled, and settled rightly, the treasury will remain impoverished, the school teachers will go unpaid, public institutions will be stinted, urgent enterprises neglected and the interests of every county and every citizen will suffer. Until taxes are made just and uniform, the State's income will continue to fall woefully short of its necessities, the penalties of lax methods will pile higher and higher; and there will come a day in the not distant future when we shall be driven to a heavy tax increase, if we reject the wiser and more temperate remedy of tax equalization that is new avail-

There is little or no dissent from this general principle, for, as everyone must recognize, the entire tendency of equalizing taxes will be toward reducing the average taxpayer's burden; when all men bear their rightful part of the government's expense, every man's portion will be lighter. But when at comes to reducing this principle to practical details, honest differences of opinion arise. There are those, for instance, who heartily favor county boards for tax equalization but who object to a State board for the same purpose.

This particular issue must be approached and determined as a condition not as theory; and thus regarded, a State board appears clearly indispensable to any effective plan of tax equalization. For the same reason that a board of equalizers is needed for each county, a similar board is needed for the State as a whole. The same objections that are urged against a State board might as logically be urged against the county board, for, when boiled to their essence, they amount simply to a contention that everybody should be allowed to pay as little tax as he pleases, leaving the State to be fed by the stray ravens of Providence.

Surely, if it is right and important that inequaliities among individual taxpayers be adjusted, it is equally right and important that the larger inequalities among counties be adjusted. And if that is to be done, a State board that can work intelligently in conjunction with all the county boards must be provided. Let us not be disturbed by imagined ills of undue power in such a board. Its members would be dependent upon the common covnsel of all the county boards. They would not dare deal otherwise than justly with any county in the commonwealth; and certainly, no county could ask more. A State board of this kind would be somewhat similar in its particular sphere of duty to the Supereme court in the field of law; and one might as well protest against the existence of the State's highest court as against the establishment of a State board of tax equalization.

Of this much we may at least be sure: without a State board, the plan of fiscal reform will be but fragmentary and ireffectual, Georgia's tax system will continue largely in its old ways, like a gypsy that dances here and there and then passes the tambourine for contributions. If the Legislature is to deal justly with the school teachers, justly with public institutions and enterprises and justly with the people themselves, it should adopt a measure of tax equalization that will really produce results.

It takes a woman to believe things that are unbelievable.

Problems of Life and Death.

Everyone who appreciates the fundamental importance of public health affairs will applaud the action of the House committee on hygiene and sanitation in reporting favorably the bill providing for the establishment of a State bureau of vital statistics. This measure, it may be said without undue emphasis, is one of the most essential now before the Legislature. Upon its enactment depend Georgia's progress in campaigns against disease and also her recognition in the health reports of the federal government which are read as authoritative throughout the nation and

Now that the bill has been approved by the committee, its passage in the House and the Senate should be effected without difficulty or delay. The appropriation for which it calls is really negligible in view of the far-reaching good it will accomplish. Five thousand dollars, we believe, is the amount asked for. Failure to provide this small sum for a purpose so tremendously important would be unbusi-Their recommendation is the outcome of deliber- nesslike and grieviously unjust to public interests. There are some needed improvements which the State may defer but we dare not put off a problem of human life and death.

In the case of Mrs. Young, who has resigned as superintendent of public schools in Chicago, we verify once more the fatality which attaches to genius, ability and experience in the control of our common schools. These qualities count for much in other walks of life, but in conflict with the egotism, bumptiousness and crookedness of the average political and racial school board they become negligible. There is no question of Mrs. Young's fitness for the place which she abandons. She retires because it is no longer possible for her to co-operate with commissioners holding their positions as political rewards or as testimonials to their eminence as representatives of some European race or nationality. Thus the fruits of fifty years of devoted public. service are lost to the people as a result of the narrow influences that so often choke and dwarf our common schools.-New York World.

THE KEOKUK DAM 1-The Biggest Water Power Plant

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

has been set to do the tasks of men. A dam has been

The Father of Waters, the incomparable Mississippi, thrown athwart its mighty flood, and its power turned into electricity is now running the street cars and the industrial motors of St. Louis, 100 miles away. while other cities soon will be connected also.

The Keokuk dam is the dominating feature of the biggest water plant ever constructed in this or any other country. It will take rank as an engineering feat but second to the Panama canal, and in the whole wide range of the hydro-electric world will stand without a peer.

The dam proper-the actual dam across the river from Keokuk in Iowa to Hamilton in Illinois-is almost a mile in length, but with the power house and sea wall and ice barrier it forms a solid monolith of concrete two and a half miles long. . . .

The dam is built at the Des Moines rapids in the Mississippi, connecting lowa and Illinois, but within hailing distance of Missouri. These rapids from the earliest days of steamboating have formed an obstruction to navigation that has given the government no little trouble. Nearly a century ago it was proposed to blast out a deep channel through the hard rock bottom of the rapids, and work was actually begun, only to be abandoned when the hopelessness of the task became apparent. Then a canal, narrow and with small locks, was built and continued in operation until this dam was built. As a part of the contract with the government. Congress stipulated when the dam was authorized that the company should construct and maintain a ship canal, with proper locks and a dry dock. This has been done, and the lock and dry dock will be operated with power developed at the dam, working a saving to the government of approximately $40,000 a year, not to speak of the actual improvement of the conditions of navigation.

When the work is all completed, including the transmission lines that will deliver the power to cities within a radius of 150 miles, the power plant will have cost approximately $20,000,000 and will be capable of developing over 200,000 horsepower. To dam the Mississippi was an undertaking requiring such great engineering skill and so much capital that twelve years ago, when the grant of authority was given by congress, no one insisted upon the government's retaining the power of regulating rates charged for power; such a retention as is now insisted upon by conservationists in all water power developments of navigable streams. But without going into the question of whether this unlimited grant was proper or not, from the government's viewpoint, it is apparent that the government will be greatly benefited by the direct aid to navigation and the free operation of much better locks than those that formerly cost $40,000 to operate and main-. . .

The plant will deliver power not only to the city of Keokuk, but to St. Louis in Missouri, Quincy in Illinois, Burlington in Iowa, and many other cities in the power zone, a radius of 150 miles practically determining the limits. A contract for 60,000 horsepower annually has already been made with a light and power company in St. Louis, which is more than 100 miles south of the dam. Smaller towns also will benefit, but the policy of the company is to sell power at wholesale only, that is, it will make contracts with one concern in each city that will in turn sell the power at retail. Independently owned transmission lines will be built to the power plat, and the "juice" delivered to them in such quantities as may be desired.

The idea of harnessing the Mississippi river is not new, and many projects have been based on the idea of constructing a dam at this very point. But it is known now that a dam would have been impossible before the dawn of the Age of Concrete, and that even had it been possible it would not have been economically practicable until men had learned how to turn the energy of the water into electricity.

When Robert E. Lee was a lieutenant of engineers in the "old army" ..e made a report to the war department on the great amount of water power in the Des Moines rapids of the Mississippi, and anticipated that in the future some use would be made of it. But he was too good an engineer to think that the time had Joseph Smith was more of a dreamer and less of an engineer, and when he founded the Mormon church it was a part of his scheme of development at Nauvoo that these rapids should be dammed and made to run the machinery of his colony. One man actually did construct several wing dams into the rapids, to operate a mill, and although his first dam was carried away by ice, he built again and again. But all that was in the first half of the nineteenth century.

Then twentieth century saw a greater vision. The dreamer this time was an engineer who has proved by his works a right to stand high in the rank of his profession. His name is Hugh L. Coo; er, and the Keokuk dam always will stand as a monument to his vision. his skill and his intrepid | persistence. Congress granted the right to construct the dam in February, 1901, but Mr. Cooper was long in finding the money wherewith to begin the work. After years of indefatigable work, the capital was found, a Boston company undertaking the construction and the money coming largely from Canada, England, France, Germany and Belgium.

The preliminary work was begun in 1910 and in January of 1911, and the actual construction was begun with the building of a coffer dam in the frozen river. From that day on until now the work has not halted, and it is now practically complete.

Not only the canal, lock and dry dock being built for government use, but every other part of the entire construction from the beginning was under the careful and constant supervision of the chief of engineers of the war department. The plans were all submitted and were worked out in minute uetail by army engineers before the necessary approval was obtained for proceeding with the work. Inspectors were present all the time to see that the army requirements were actually carried out in the construction.

Every part of the work was done by the power company, under the direction of Mr. Cooper, by administration, no part of it was done by contract.

Nearly all of the water power development of the country is to be found on and near the oceans-from the Canadian border down the Atlantic to Georgia with a spur into Tennessee and Alabama, and on the Pacific from Washington to California. The great central part of the country, the mighty valley, has had very little hydro-electric power until this, the greatest of all power plants, was constructed. It is remarkable not only for damming the largest river of the continent, and for opening up a new zone for hydro-electric power, but it also is remarkable in an economic way for it is set down in the middle of the cheapest steam coal area in the country. It is this ability ! with steam under the most unfavorable economic conditions that affords the best demonstration of the essential economy of water-generated electric power.

THE THOUGHT WORLD

BY DR. PRANK CRANE. (Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)

Every mind has its own world. There are as many worlds as there are people.

What the universe really is no one knows; it is a vain question, for nobody will ever find out; the only matter of interest is what the universe is

> So many men, so many worlds. The worlds of the degenerate, slouching along the slums; of a monk in his old-world monastery, where the days slip by with no marking incidents but recurring matins and vespers; of a busy lawyer; of a newspaper reporter; and of a house-wife, occupied with her children, her sewing, and her paking, are as so many

It is idle to speculate about "the end of the world," and whether it will be burnt next Thursday in a grand Day of Judgment or to be frozen to death a million years from now, or be knocked into pi some day by a loose comet; for when it's all over with me, when my consciousness ceases to record, it is all over with me, "the sum of things en-

To be sure there is what William James called "a blooming confusion of consciousness," that is, there is a myriad-multitude of things in e outside world that crowd upon our attentin, but after all we make our world what we will "just as the architect is free to create his building" from all the material he finds. The late Henri Poincare, who received the Bolyal prize from the Hungarian academy as the most eminent mathematician in the world, said:

"What is not thought is nought; since we can think only thoughts, and every word we use in talking about things stands for a thought, to assert there is anything else than thought is a senseless affirmation. and even in this episode thought endures but a moment. Thought is but a flash in the midst of a long night. But that flash is everything." What a fool then am I to think that any outward event can overwhelm me! What all men can do to me is nothing; it only matters what I do to myself. To a soul that knows realities there can be no tragedy, no collapse, no failure. In that moment when the volcano spews upon him, the lightning sears him, or the rage of men burn him or crucify him, he inwardly laughs. They cannot reach his work.

Quips and Quiddities

At a London dinner recently the conversation turned to the various methods of working employed by literary geniuses. Among the examples cited was that of a well known poet, who, it was said, was wont to arouse his wife about 4 o'clock in the morning and exclaim: "Maria, get up; I've thought of a good word!" Whereupon the poet's obedient helpmeet would crawl out of bed and make a note of the thought-of word. About an hour later, as like as not, a new inspiration would seize the bard, whereupon he would again arouse his wife, saying: "Maria, Maria; get up! I've thought of a better word!" The company in general listened to the story with admiration, but a merry-eyed American girl remarked;

"Well, if he'd been my husband I should have replied; 'Alpheus, get up yourself; I've thought of a bad word!" It was the usual custom at Seaweed Farm for Mrs. Giles to wind up all the clocks each Saturday evening. But last Saturday Mrs. Giles was on the sick listnothing more serious than a slightly sprained ankle-and she found it impossible for her to move about the house. So Giles was bidden to undertake the performance of her duties. Now, Giles was short and fat. The kitchen mantel shelf was high. In order, therefore, to reach the clock which stood upon it, Giles was forced to requisition the services of a chair. Laboriously he mounted it, while Mrs. Giles watched the maneuvers in fear and trembling. "John, John," she cried, "do be careful. That chair, you know, is none too strong. I'm sure it won't bear your weight."

Giles turned round and surveyed his spouse calmly. "Ay, ay, my dear," he said, "it's quite all right; I'm only standing on one leg."

The servants were abed, and the doctor answered the bell himself. A colored man stood on the steps

Our Wayward Girl

"The child is not dead, but sleepeth"

--- Mark 5:39

A man came crying:

"My little daughter is at the point of death;

"I pray thee that thou come and lay thy hands on her, that she may be made whole and live."

With him, went Jesus.

On the way, a woman touched Him.

She was healed.

But others came saying to Jairus:

"Thy daughter is dead: why troublest thou the Master any further?"

Jesus said:

"Fear not, only believe."

And in the house He asked:

"Why make you a tumult and weep? The child is not dead, but sleepeth."

"And they laughed Him to scorn."

But when He touched the girl and spoke, she rose and walked.

"She was twelve years old."

Worse than death may come to the daughters of men-even to yours and ours.

And some men and women would laugh in derision at the suggestion of their cure.

But not so with Christ, our Lord.

And, thank God, the centuries of His love have made the majority of mankind pitiful to the fallen: they no longer scorn and stone, if they only know.

Think of this!

Seventy-five girls—not hardened women of the street—but girls under sixteen, are in charge of one Georgia Court. Many more-some even younger—are in the State.

"They are morally dead," say some.

Not so, we answer in Christ's name.

They only sleep.

You could wake the conscience of each one of them-

You could save them, and with them, many others, from worse than death, had Georgia a reformatory for girls, like other states.

They are being lost for the want of this.

Do not pass them by.

TO SAVE ONE MAN'S DAUGHTER FROM RUIN AND SHAME IS WORTH MORE THAN TO SAVE ALL OUR HOGS AND COWS FROM CHOLERA AND THE TICK.

And yet, Tuesday again the Appropriations Committee of the House recommended the appropriation of thousands of dollars for this and that,

WHILE CHAIRMAN CRAWFORD WHEATLEY of Sumter, moved that the Jones and Mills bill establishing a reformatory for girls, be laid on the table until next year.

This would mean the destruction of many a girl—their loss for the want of a place in our state to handle delinquent girls; these cannot be put in the chaingang or with the women of the prison farm.

John Y. Smith of Fulton, with C. F. Hollberg of Coweta, saved the measure by suggesting that it lay over until this coming Thursday.

Chairman Wheatley agreed to this.

It was done.

The Penitentiary Committee has recommended that this bill do pass. The Prison Commission has said that Georgia today cannot take care of her wayward and delinquent girls.

Confidently, we believe that the Committee on Appropriations will recommend the passage of the bill, carrying the appropriation of $30,000.00 ($45,000.00 less than was asked for) to build the reformatory for girls.

The need is urgent—far more so than the sickness of our hogs.

You can and will find a way to provide for these girls, even as you did for our beasts that are sick.

All About a Cunner

Of all sad things of tongue or pen, the saddest of all is the cunner, that skinny, bony little fish that knows how to enter the jaws of hell and carry off its teeth. This measly vermin of the pathless deep is stronger for its size than the lon of the desert r the red ant of tradition. It is quicker than the wit of woman and more elusive than the shadow of Iream. It is bolder than a Bengal tiger and more justly entitled to kingship among the creatures of the sea than Job's leviathan or the creat whale of Scandinavian mythology. Hats off to the cunner. Man is both fearfully and wonderfully made, but in the presence of this superfinny miracle of subaqueous evolution he marigolds edged with staids humble and aghast. It was all so new and amazing to Lavina Freer that her brain still whirled with the wonder of it. Yesterday she had been living, as it were, in the gray twilight of her old age, negative, emotionless, yes, even hopeless. Then she was thrust into the dazzling sunlight, where she was still blinking with unaccustmed eyes.

Lavina Freer sat at the window of the dingy little room she had occupled for four years. There was nothing in it that did not need improvement, from the fly-specked gas jet to the greasy ingrain carpet, where the feet of many boarders before hers had There was little in the room that was her own. She had not gathered much from the weary years she had spent working and earning and there had been others than herself dependent upon her wages. Suddenly incompetency, hastened by old age, had seized her. She could work no more. The little she had saved must go now to keep her until death gave release.

Release, however, had come in quite another way-through a simple letter delivered by the postman. What it contained astonished her so much that she had to put on her things and limped to a lawyer to seek an explanation. The lawyer told her in direct language that she was the recipient of an annuity from some relatives she scarcely remembered, so generous that could have my pink roses, too." for the rest of her life she could go She spoke quietly, yet with heartclad in silk and ride in her own motor breaking pathos. LITTLE STORIES FOR BED TIME By Thornton W. Burgess

(Copyright, 1913, by J. G. Lloyd.) After Peter Rabbit has saved little Miss Fuzzytail from Black Pussy, the cat who belonged way down to Farmer Brown's house and had no business hunting in the Old Pasture, he went with her as near to her home as she would let him. She said that it wasn't necessary that he should go a single step, but Peter indisted that she needed him to see that no more harm came to her. Miss Fuzzytail laughed at that, for she felt quite able to take care of herself. It had been just stupid carelessness on her part that had given Black Pussy the chance to catch her, she said, and she was very sure that she never would be so careless again. What she didn't tell Peter was that she had been so busy peeping at him and admiring him that she had quite forgotten to watch out for danger for herself.

Finally she said that he could go part way with her, but when they were almost within sight of the bullbriar castle of her father, old Jed Thumper, the big gray Rabbit who thought he owned the Old Pasture. "And I was just wondering if I had to she made Peter turn back. Timely Topics

In this mid-summer month of July when all of us are participating in or planning at least some measure of rest or recreation, it is most desirable to move with the minimum amount of effort to obtain the maximum amount of results.

It is of special importance, therefore, that one keep well posted on all of the various shopping opportunities and suggestions set forth in our advertising columns.

Many a perplexing question of what, how, when and where finds a ready answer in the advertisements. In fact the service rendered to our readers by our advertisers is so distinctively helpful that one must be of a particularly improvident disposition to disregard the timely hints and helps printed in The Journal.

Inez Milholland, Rich Suffragette, Weds Rich Dutchman

Miss Ines Milholland, who has been one of the most conspicuous suffragettes in the United States, and who has pretended to soorn the tyrant Man, has gone off and married a rich Dutchman. Eugene Boissevain. Of course a groundwork of mystery which would have done any press agent proud was laid for the wedding. The fair suffragette has had the faculty of getting her name and pic-tures into the newspapers.

In a cable from London it was gravely announced that Miss Milholland had been wooed by Lord Curzon, former vicercy of India, who had married one of the Leiters; Sidney Smith, a New York clubman; John Fox, Jr., author and recently divorced husband of Fritzi Scheff, and Lindon Bates, former assemblyman from New York City in the state legislature. So far as Mr. Bates is concerned the report may be true, for his name was linked with hers two or three years ago.

The Author of "The Rubaiyat" (Tit-Bits.)

Edward Fitzgerald was utterly careless of his fame. He lived to be an old man, yet not one in a million of his fellow countrymen regarded him as a poet, even if they had heard his name mentioned as an old chum of Alfred Tennyson. Yet he wrote "The Rubaiyat of Omar Kahyyam" long years before his death. He kept it "chucking about," apparently not thinking it worth publishing?, and when he did print a few copies nobody took any notice of it. Today "Omar" is one of the most famous poems in the world.

Eight Losses On Road Trip; Win But Three

Team Has Been Going Badly and Must Take a Brace or Drop to a Point in Second Division

It appears as if it is an impossibility to get the Cracker pitchers and hitters working in harmony. First the pitchers will be off and the batters hitting like fiends, and then again the pitching will be good and the batters will slump. But right now both pitching and batting have slumped and there isn't a chance for many wins until come through the present road trip with a creditable record is to take the remaining two games from the Mobile Gulls, and such a performance is extremely doubtful .A two-play win, however, would give the team five wins and eight defeats, which isn't half bad, though not as good as was expected and as should have been turned out.

On the stay in New Orleans the Crackers allowed the taff-end Pel outit to win two, which evened up the series. Then Memphis took two out of three, Montgomery took two in a row and Mobile has taken the only two games played. And this is not the kind of work that pleases fandom.

Team Race Will Be Attempted Wednesday Evening-Events Booked for Tuesday Night to Be Run Off

Jack Prince will endeavor to slip one over on old J. P. Wednesday night and stage his big motorcycle racing events at the big motordrome. The program which was postponed from Tuesday night will be run off.

Tuesday morning the weather looked most ideal for a most pleasant evening when it suddenly clouded up late in the afternoon and just at nightfall showers came and the races were off. Wednesday it is just the opposite. Early in the morning it looked very much like rain and Manager Prince is pulling for it to clear up in the afternoon so the races can be staged.

The big event carded for Wednesday evening is the thirty-minute team races in which all ten riders will participate. The racers will likely go forty miles in grinding around the track for thirty minutes, provided no spills or torn machines deter them. Each rider is to have a partner and they will alternate on the track. No one rider can stay on the track more than twenty minutes in succession, which is sure to necessitate

Besides the big team race there is to be a big motordrome event in which all riders will participate. Five riders will be in each of the two qualifying heats with the five fastest in the final. Freddie Luther and Harry Glenn are booked to stage a special match race to settle an argument as to which is the faster.

Here is the complete program: FIRST EVENT. First heat Motordrome sweepstakes. One mile to qualify and two-mile final.) Starters-Graves, Shields, GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., July 80 .-Although attended by no record-breaking performances, Tuesday's Grand Cir-Batteries: Hawkins and Bone; Roberts and cuit races produced excellent time, the ten heats run off averaging 2:09 1-5. Two events developed keen contests.

The opening race, the 2:09 pace, proved easy for Bill M, highly fancied favorite, who won in stright heats. The Grand Rapids railway purse for 2:20 trotters fell to Uncle Biff in straight heats. In the third heat it appeared to almost every one in the stand that Eulabelle had nosed out the favorite and the judges' announcement that Uncle Biff had won provoked a storm of protests. The best heat was 2:07 1-2. a new mark for the winner. The 2:24 trot was a great three-cornered race between Mundy C. BY AL KAUFMANN.

Whenever a boxer goes 39 rounds to win under the present rules, his opponent is some tough guy, and that's why I pick my scrap with Jimmy Barry, the Chicago heavyweight, as the hardest one I ever took part in. Barry and I fought at Los Angeles

December 30, 1908. The fight ended in the thirty-ninth round, when Barry's manager, Murphy, tossed a towel into the ring to prevent more punishment. I wasn't punished so severely in this fight as I was by Philadelphia Jack O'Brien a few years before, when I was green. What that veteran handed me I'll never forget, but my fight with Barry was a different proposition. It was a battle of endurance, and several times I felt on the edge of Queer street. Not wishing to detract from Barry's showing. I'll state that it was reported he broke both hands punching me and certainly he had me stepping until the thirty-seventh round, when I registered the only knockdown of the fight.

Billy Delaney, the great fight handler, seconded me in this fight and showed more than once a worried expression, especially during the early rounds, when Barry displayed great ability to duck, making me miss like a boob.

The fight started tamely. Several times Barry rushed, ducking my short swings and hooks. I was somewhat discouraged over my failure to hit him, but Delaney kept telling me to stay with him until I landed.

Finally I resorted to the kidney punch and straightened him up. Blood trickled from my mouth and nose in the eighth, when I stopped five straight

JOURNAL WANT AD Horoscope

JULY 31

People born on this date are kind. generous, sympathetic and magnetic. They would give up all their own comforts and even their lives to heal the sick. Their great love and tenderness make them loved by all and gives them a charm and personality which is felt wherever they go.

The weakness of men and women of this birthdate is that they are apt to be quickly prejudiced against others and are apt to jump at conclusions too quickly. They easily acquire wealth and are most successful in large business deals. They are quick tempered, passionate and impatient, and this is their grave fault.

Learning the sublime lesson of self control, there is no height which they cannot reach.

The coming week it is advisable for all trades to be reading The Journal Want Ads for new and larger opportunities. Hotel keepers will advertise to their advantage through The Journal Want Ads for extra help.

Some Want Ads are inserted free n The Journal-see first Want Page. For charge ads, ask that they be sent for, or telephone them to Main 2000 or Atlanta 423.

The Cattle Industry of Georgia

O my way of thinking, the most neglected thing and the most important thing connected with the welfare of this state is the cattle industry of Georgia. Every state in the union when its farmers pay attention to this line of work are prosperous and making money, and then we have so many great advantages in this state for the successful growing of all classes of cattle we are overlooking this most important and most profitable industry. Cattle are so easily raised and probably will stand more neglect and thrive with less attention in greater numbers than anything I know of, and if the people of this state would convert the thousands of acres of waste land that we now have into pastures and provide a variety of grasses to sustain these cattle we would not only have thousands of dollars income from the cattle but would have the fertilizer to enrich our farms. It is a by-product that is worth untold value to every man who is fortunate enough to have a sufficient quantity of this valuable material to use in producing great

With the long seasons that we have in Georgia ensilage can easily be grown at $1.50 per ton, and with an abundance of ensilage, plenty Bermuda pastures and a world of alfalfa and peavine hay, together with shredded corn, thousands of head of cattle could be produced in this state that are now being shipped here. I saw 'the past week an object leason that has more thoroughly convaced me than ever the great possibilities ahead of the people in this country if they would only take advantage of it. During the past week I saw a farmer exchange a splendid little milk cow giving four gallons of milk per day to a city man for a dry cow and the city man paid a difference of $50 between the transaction. The farmer sold the dry cow at the stock yards for $52.65. This cow pracnetted the farmer $102.65. Just think how easy it would be year for a large number of farmers to make such transactions. ten such animals were produced on only a few of the farms in this state every year and converted into cash during the summer months when they are always high it would keep thousands of dollars in this state that are now going away from us and there is no reason on earth why every farmen should not have five to ten cows to market every year similar to the one that I saw sold last week. What a prosperous state of affairs our country would be in if we could see

This same thing applies to hogs and sheep and it is a pity but what the cotton farmers could once get in a habit of raising these things and having them to offer each year. There is probably no state in the Union better suited for such or that the conditions are so near natural for the production of cattle, hogs and sheep as the natural conditions of Georgia present in this line. If men with capital would make it a rule to keep a limited number of cattle on their farms every year, take care of them and raise the feed for them this state of affairs would exist, but it is a hard matter to get them to take any interest in such things and nothing but cotton seems to attract the attention of the

The annual state fairs that were once conducted in Atlanta did more to keep up the interest and breeding of live stock in Georgia than anything that has ever happened. Since these fairs have been abandoned the interest has wained, and we see but few people now breeding livestock that were interested ten or fifteen years ago. It did not appear at that time to be very much noticed and one who has kept track of the effect it had on the state can readily see what has been lost by doing away with these fairs. Thousands and thousands of dollars were kept in Georgia and changed hands among the farmers and helped a large mass of people when these fairs were conducted annually, but since they have been abandoned I can readily see that a big difference exists now

POULTRY FEED

WHAT TO FEED IN ORDER TO SECURE EGGS

If you want eggs during the latter part of the summer and early fall you must feed your hens on a thoroughly balanced ration, in the shape of a dry mash. We claim Aunt Patsy's Poultry Feed to be the best dry mash on the market; from the fact that it is composed of the highest grade of raw material that can possibly be secured. This feed has no filler or adulterated, cheap stuff, whatever, but contains every ingredient of which the egg itself is composed; and if you will only think a moment, you will agree with me that if you put into the hen's craw the ingredients of which the egg is made, you have a right to expect her digestive organs to convert these ingredients into the egg and to secure a greater yield of eggs from your hens than if you fed Ask any successful poultryman what he thinks of Aunt Patsy, and give us a trial order.

Ask Your Dealer for Aunt Patsy's Poultry Feed, the Egg Producer.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., April 29, 1913.

Aunt Patsy Poultry Feed Co., Memphis, Tenn. Gentlemen: Until a few months ago I lived in Atlanta, Ga., and while there I fed my hens and baby chicks Aunt Patsy's Poultry Feed, and had no trouble in raising my young chickens or getting plenty of eggs from my hens. Since moving to Indianapolis I have not been able to get the Aunt Patsy Feed, and have had lots of trouble with my baby chicks, and my hens have not laid well at all; so I am writing to know if you won't ship me 500 pounds of Aunt Patsy at the best price you can delivered. If so, I will appreciate it very much. I've JUST GOT TO HAVE AUNT PATSY or sell my hens, and I don't want to do that. So please let me know if I can expect the feed and oblige.

Cables weer better than due and dry weather was again reported in the western half of the belt. These two features gave the market a steady tone in the early trading, but did not lead to much buying. After the call prices were 2 points over yesterday's close, but the forecast of cloudy and unsettled weather for the western belt brought out moderate selling under which prices fell to a level 2 points under yesterday's last quotations. The report of the first bale of new cotton at ganah increased selling orders from the shorf weakness after the middle of the morning. (By Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, July 30.—Steel was the feature at the opening of today's stock market, a block of 4,000 shares changing hands at 50% and 59%, compared with yesterday's closing price of 58%. Bethlebem Steel rose 1%, and there Pompano, per pound 15c; Spanish mackerel, were minor gains in Lehigh Valley, Reading and Amalgamated Copper, while Erle first pre- $4.00 to $4.50. ferred rose a point. Canadian Pacific was the weakest of the standard stocks, with a point loss, and Illinois Central and Union Pacific also sold below yesterday's close Activity and strength showed at the opening were of brief duration, Steel soon cancelling a considerable part of its rise, with recessions in active stocks. Illinois Central fell 3 points The very irregular tone of today's early stock market, which later became decidedly heavy, that the death of the American future market flakes, 19c; crackers in 5c cartons, 50c dozen; resulted from several highly conflicting developments. They included the excellent quarterly report of the Steel corporation, which was largely neutralized by further news of blistering heat in the corn belt and a reduction in the Illinois Central dividend from 7 to 5 per cent, Steel was heavily bought for London, but le cal traders' dispostion to take profits soon dissi pated the rise. Elsewhere in the active group to its loss, declining to 10514 Such changes as occurred in the final hour were in the direction of beterment, but trading was then at low ebb and reflected little more than a settlement.

Closed heavy. Intermittent selling disclosed little effective support. Bears sold stocks with more freedom than for weeks. Weakening of the market's prolonged advance removed considerable element of strength. The cut in the Illinois Central dividend shocked speculators, who figured that the stock's previous steadiness portended
