He posed for this picture at the court house Thursday morning before his trial began.

The witnesses in the trial of Leo M. Frank undoubtedly have had the hardest time of it to date. If they testify they must run the gamut of Luther Rosser's sledge-hammer cross-examination or Solicitor Dorsey's boring-in tactics; if they don't testify they must wait, and the waiting is the hardest

BARRETT'S EVIDENCE MOST IMPORTANT YET TOWARD PROVING CRIME WAS COMMITTED IN METAL ROOM

Mell Stanford and Harry Scott Also Tell of Finding Blood Spots, but Scott's Testimony Is Not Entirely Satisfactory to Either State or Defense - Monteen Stover on the Stand. Will Conley Testify in Rebuttal Only?

New and sensational testimony for the state was given by R. P. Barrett, a machinist at the National Pencil factory where Mary Phagan was murdered on April 26, when Barrett Thursday afternoon declared from the witness stand that he had discovered early Monday morning following the tragedy a large blood spot, surrounded by a number of smaller spots, at the water cooler near the dressing room on the second floor of the factory. Barrett testified further that he had found a broom nearby which from its appearance evidently had been used to smear the large blood spot over with a white substance.

Barrett testified further that on the same morning he had found strands of hair on the lathe of the machine used by him and that he had called this discovery to the attention of Magnolia Kennedy, Mell Stanford and Lemmie Quinn, and that Quinn had notified Darley. The solicitor developed through Barrett's testimeny that no girls had been at the factory since Friday afternoon before the crime, his purpose evidently being to show that the hair must have been that of Mary Phagan. In addition to this testimony, Barrett swore that a few days after the murder he had found in the area near Mary Phagan's machine. a portion of a pay envelope. There was nothing on the envelope to positively identify it as having belonged to Mary Phagan.

The fact that blood spots were found in the metal room on the second floor was also established by the state through the testimony of Harry Scott: the Pinkerton detective, and Mell Stanford, an employe

Barrett's testimony was decidedly the most important that the state has thus far managed to get before the jury, and no doubt will be stressed by the solicitor in support of the state's theory that Mary Phagan met her death in the metal room on the second floor of the

By both Pinkerton Detectives Harry Scott and Barrett the state showed that careful searches had been made of the first floor shortly after the tragedy and that neither a pay envelope, a purse, a bludgeon or stick, had been found there. The prediction has been frequently made that the defense would introduce evidence to show that both Mary Phagan's pay envelope and a bloody bludgeon were found on the first floor by Pinkerton detectives.

NOT THE SAME ENVELOPE. Whether the defense will introduce the piece of envelope found by the Pinkertons on the first floor of the factory is not known. In the event they do so two pay envelopes will be in evidence. These two pieces are not from the same envelope. This fact was demonstrated by Attorney Frank A. Hooper, who is assisting in the prosecution. After the state can contend that the envelopes are separate and distinct. Mary Phagan's machine, Mr. Hooper took it and endeavored to fit it with the piece of envelope held by the defense. It did not fit, thus the state can contend that the envelopes are sparate and distinct.

It is quite evident that the state will insis that the envelope and bludgeon found by Pinkeron detectives and turned over to the defense are nothing more than "plants." Monteen Stover, a twelve-wear-old girl employed at the factory, stated that she had gone to the factory on the Saturday of the murder, arriving at 12:05 and leaving at 12:10. She swore that she had gone into the offices and that she did not see nor hear anyone in the building. She had gone for her pay. Scott swore that Frank had told him that he was in his office and did not leave it from 12 to 12:30. Solicitor Dorsey has begun to weave the chain of circumstantial evidence with which the state expects to convict Frank with the murder. The remainder of the week will most likely be taken up by the state in the introduction of witnesses. WILL CONLEY BE CALLED?

James Conley, the negro sweeper, who swore that he helped Frank carry the girl's body into the basement and wrote the notes found beside it at Frank's suggestion, may or may not be introduced as a principal witness. The state may hold him back as a rebuttal witness, and there is a slight possibility that he may not be put upon the

Throughout the Thursday session of the trial Frank remained as impassive as he has been heretofore. He took a keen interest in the proceedings, but did not display the slightest trace of emotion.

The testimony of Detective Scott was not satisfactory to either the state o rthe defense. He engaged in frequent clashes with Mr. Rosser while the latter was cross-examining him, but unlike Detective John Black, he never once lost his head, ANOTHER YEAR'S SENTENCE MANAGEMENT Stamps, Money Orders, etc., at Postal Sub-Station, in Famous Center Aisle. M. RICH & BROS. CO.

Beginning Tomorrow Rich's Offer Their Entire Stock of High-Grade Furniture at Price-Reductions of 10 to 50 Per Cent

Special Purchases Made by Our Buyer on His Recent Trip Are Also Offered at Savings of an Average Third THERE in a nutshell is Rich's August Furniture Sale—all the furniture that we own, or have recently acquired by special purchase, is offered at savings of 10% to 50%. Please remember that these savings come but twice a year—once in February and again in August.

1st-Because our own furniture is marked at such a close margin of profit that we cannot afford to take a mark-down more than once in six months.

2nd-Because we can advantageously acquire special purchases from the manufacturers only for February and August.

Two things more we especially stress in this August Sale:

1st. All the Furniture in this Sale is Sound

Sound furniture means no puttied-up knotholes, no defects glossed over with varnish, no "green" woods, no slovenly cabinet work, no imitations of any kind masquerading as genuine. When the day comes that we cannot offer genuinely sound furniture at genuine economies in a Furniture Sale or any other, we shall not hold such a sale.

2nd. All the Furniture is in Good Taste

Furniture, to be in good taste, must be both useful and beautiful. To be useful it must be well constructed and comfortable. To be beautiful it must be of proper proportion and harmonious throughout. It may be simple or highly ornamental, but it must have harmony of proportion and of design, and it must always be useful and comfortable.

Knowing these truths about good furniture, you may be sure we allow no other kind on our floors. The August Sale prices would mean nothing if the furniture were not in most instances remarkably fine and beautiful, and in every instance thoroughly good.

All Reductions Are Plainly Marked---Savings Evident at a Glance

Every piece of furniture retains its former price ticket and the new August Sale price ticket. Former and present prices are easily compared—the savings are evident at a glance.

N. B.—Customers wishing to profit by these special August prices, and desiring more than the usual 30 days' credit, can arrange terms to suit through our office. MARAAAAAAAAAAAAAAA M. RICH & BROS. CO. AAAAAAAAAAAAAA AMAMMAAAAA M. RICH & BROS. CO. AAAAAAAAAAAAAAA

Detective John Black "Goes to over all; the solicitor; the attorneys for Attorney at Afternoon Ses- room. She didn't know much about the Action characterized the Wednesday room did her face brighten. She graspafternoon session of the Frank trial, and ed her escort's arm. Fit was the first time the tedious proceedings had taken on life enough to attract more than passing interest.

This action came in the fierce and merciless cross-examination of Detective John Black by Attorney Rosser, leading counsel for the defense. Black has taken a prominent part in the investigation of the Phagan murder, and it was expected that he would prove one of the state's principal witnesses, but before Mr. Rosser had finished with him he went all to pieces and admitted that he was hopelessly confused.

There were only two witnesses at the afternoon session-Detective Black and J. M. Gantt, the former shipping clerk at the pencil factory. Gantt was on the stand but about twenty minutes and the only two important points in his testimony were assertions that Frank knew Mary Phagan and that Frank seemed to be frightened and very nervous when the witness saw nim at the pencil factory door on the evening of the murder.

DORSEY'S CHARGE

There was a considerable colloquy be tween Solicitor Dorsey and Attorney Rosser as to the propriety of the questions framed by the solicitor. During this colloquy Mr. Dorsey, addresing the judge, declared: "I propose to show, your honor, that this bloody shirt was a plant, and that it was through suggestions made by the defendant that the detectives were induced to search Newt Lee's house.

The question was finally put and the witness rather hesitatingly replied that it was on Tuesday that the shirt had been found and that it was on Monday morning that Frank had suggested that the officers search his own house, and that it was also on Monday that the defendant had announced that there were skips in the time clock slips.

Court re-convened at 2 o'clock. SECOND VISIT TO FRANK'S

Detective Black also told of going to Frank's home again Monday morning at 7 o'clock with Detective Haslett to ask him to come down to the police station to talk the murder over. Black said that he and Haslett had to wait on the porch while Frank ate breakfast, and when Frank finished his meal they accompanied him to headquarters. They arrived about 8 o'clock or 8:30.

Shortly after they got there he noticed Attorney Rosser and Herbert Haas. At 11:30 o'cleck Monday morning Haas insisted to Chief Lanford that a search be made of Frank's house by officers, Frank accompanying them. Solicitor Dorsey asked the witness just what Haas said to Lanford: Black replied that Haas stated he was Frank's lawyer and that in that capacity he would insist that nothing should be left undone to clear up the matter so far as Frank was concerned.

Solicitor Dorsey then asked the witnes if on that morning Frank had consulted with Rosser and Arnold. He said he didn't know about Mr. Arnold, but that Frank had consulted with Rosser and Haas at police headquarters.

The witness was asked what conversation he had had with Newt Lee. He and Pinkerton Detective Scott suggested to Frank, replied the witness, that he take Newt Lee into a room and see if he could get anything out of him that would throw light on the murder.

"General way, ch?" "I was not such a fool as to go in with a fine-tooth comb at a prieiminary hearing," added Scott.

Mr. Rosser called the court's attention to the manner in which the witness was replying to his questions. Before he tad nnisned, Solicitor Dorsey was on his feet, making the point that the witness repeatedly had explained to Mr. Rosser why he had not testified everything at the inquest. He had stated that he was not accustomed to give out everything at preliminary hearings, and that he was not asked as to certain facts. ROSSER CHANGES TACTICS.

Mr. Rosser changed abruptly his line of questioning. He asked the witness if Darley and others were not present when he walked with Frank in Frank's office. They were, answered the withess. They saw and heard all that was

Solicitor Dorsey took up the re-direct examination "Did your agency report the finding of any ribbons, pay envelopes or sticks, to the police?" "I don't know. I was out of town part of the time."

Solicitor Dorsey referred to the Pinkertons' relations to the city police, asking what the Pinkertons did when the facts did not harmonize with the theories of the police.

"We fight it out then and there. Scott answered. "Did you carry a lantern with you when you went around through the factory?"

"Yes, I held one in my hand." The solicitor asked Scott to describe his route through the factory on the diagram. Before Scott left the stand, Attorney Rosser asked this question: "Did you notice any stairway from the basement to the first floor?"

"Yes." The witness pointed to a spot on the diagram, which was not marked. near the boiler in the basement. Solicitor Dorsey asked him to describe that. The witness did, saying it was nailed up when he saw it and was covered with dust and cobwebs.

MONTEEN STOVER ON STAND, Scott was excused from the stand. Miss Monteen Stover was called as the pext witness.

Miss Stover testified that she is not working anywhere now, but until the Monday preceding the murder of Mary Phagan she worked at the National Pencil factory. On the day of the murder she was in the factory building from 12:05 o'clock until 12:10 o'clock, and

The defense made its fight on the self-defense basis, having two eye-witnesses to the tragedy in John and Tom and is the author of several studies of Nicodemus. These two were, however, jointly indicted with Hatfield as being accessories to the crime.

The state made out a strong circumstantial case. The row which the defense alleged occurred prior to the shooting of Parrish was not heard by people living in the immediate vicinity. Dr. W. E. Wood swore that Parrish could not have been advancing on Hatfield with an axe, as the defense's witnesses had sworn, as the bullet passed through the upper lip and first struck the teeth of the lower jaw. The body was found near an overturned chair, according to evidence introduced. Clem Poole, charged with the murder of Policeman Harry Cooke, will be ar-

One Hundred Women May Own a New and Beautiful Lingerie Dress at a Tremendous Saving===

By Virtue of a Rather Remarkable Purchase and the Clearing Out of Our Own Stocks Sixty fresh and dainty lingerie dresses have just come in as "surprise boxes" from New York, with these we have put forty from our own stock. Result---one of the rarest and finest opportunities that the Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Company Ready-to-Wear Section has boasted this season---one that could not have been possible earlier---it's an odd day when a maker lets go such dresses at these prices.

But they are here!

Call the occasion a supreme moment, a wind-fall, a climax, whatever you will---one hundred women are going to find one hundred dresses of surpassing beauty and style at prices they will know do not measure the cost of materials. See them! See what these prices stand for!

For $21.75 to $29.75 Dresses

There are but twenty-five of these in all—no more than one or two of any one style. Crepes, voiles and marquisettes are the materials. One model will have a wide band of white macrame lace down the skirt, and a wide, flat collar to match; another a dainty frilling of shadow lace points around the bottom of the skirt. Another will be adorned with rich linen laces; another with exquisite French Valenciennes laces; many will show crushed girdles of satin-in colors and white. No question of what women will think of them at this price.

For $12.50 to $21.75 Dresses

There are seventy-four of these to choose from.

A dozen different models. The average worth of these is near $16.75.

Crepes, pain white, white with invisible selfstripes, waite with black stripes, voiles and marquisettes-and one model that is all lace and net.

The charm of color is added to one model by the touch of green, green buttons, green collar and tie; another is a coat effect dress, the skirt is white crepe, the little coat, of black and white crepe. But many of the daintiest are voiles and marquisettes touched with fine laces and embroideries!

With these we have put some sixty linen dresses from our own stocks that were $5.75 to $6.98 for $3.75. There are blues, tans, lavenders and white. French and ramie linens, trimmed too variously to attempt descriptions --- with crystal buttons, laces, bands and pipings. One point you will not be long in noting is their neat lines --- they fit superbly.

HOUSE PROBABLY WILL ACCEPT SHEPPARD BILL

Passage of Substitute Tax Equalization Measure Indicated-To Compromise

Discussion of the Sheppard substitute for the tax equalization bill was taken up by the house this morning. and all indications point to the passage of the Sheppard bill after a practical compromise between the minority and majority is effected by amendments. The Stovall amendment striking section 16, providing for a state board of tax equalizers to have charge of the county boards, from the Lipscomb bill was passed by a vote of 105 to 68 Wednesday afternoon, and the Sheppard substitute was offered immediately. The Sheppard bill provides for county boards of equalizers headed by the comptroller keneral of the state, who shall have supervisory powers over the boards. . Two amendments which, it is believed, will strengthen the Sheppard bill were offered. One, introduced by Representative Green, of Houston, provides for an additional $1,500 clerk for the comptroller general in the equalization work. The other, introduced by Reprementative McMichael, of Marion, prolvides for the appointment of each county board of tax discoverers, who shall Inquire into the returns to ascertain whether they have been made too low and also to seek property which has not been returned. AIG PROPERTY DAMAGE BY WASHINGTON STORM

Hurricane in National Capital Plays Many Curious Pranks. Litter Covers City

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 31 .- The nationa capital awakened today to begin a eivic house cleaning and citizens and city employes alike joined hands in an effort to clean up the litter and debris in the streets, left in the wake of the eyclonic storm of yesterday.

No accurate estimate of the monetary damage done by the tempest is yet obtainable, the greatest havoc having consistence through the breaking and the leveling of many of the finest trees which cannot be replaced. Late reports of outlying districts disclosed damage to property greater than was at first suspected.

The storm played many curious A heavy moving van, waiting a the rear of a fashionable apartment house, was caught by the wind and turned on end, the three horses attached to it being suspended in the air by their collars and being nearly strangled ground. It struck a house in Anacrostia, a suburb, passed through three bed rooms and in each room the only damage done was the breaking of the looking glasses in the bureaus.

A number of similar queer exhibitions was given by the bolts. Search is being made on both the Maryland and Virginia shores of the Potomac river for countless launches and small craft which were scattered from their moorings like chaff. It is feared a number of them have been sunk although so far as known at present no loss of life was entailed.

Utilizing the Prisoners'

Human Nature.

As a famous horse-trading philosopher was wont to remark, there's as much human nature in one of us as another-and sometimes a little more." If the State will apply this shrewd truth in dealing with prisoners, its laws will be more fruitful of good and its problems of crime will grow simpler.

For instance: the man serving a sentence in convict camp is, after all, a man whether he happens to have landed there through a slip of impulse, the misfortune of circumstance or as a result of what the old theologians were pleased to term "total depravity." He thinks and feels; he is uplifted by hope or crushed and made sullen by despair; he resents apparent injustice and for the most part he is keen to appreciate a chance for freedom. He has as much human nature as any of us, and, perhaps, a little more.

If, then, this convict's release should be made partly dependent upon his good conduct, his obedience to rules, his faithfulness in work, if he should be given a measure of opportunity to earn his liberty instead of being bound by an iron sentence hard and fast, would be not make a better prisoner? Would he not do steadier and more efficient work? Would he not come forth at the end of his term a better man?

Herein lies the virtue of what is called "the indeterminate sentence," that is to say, a sentence fixed by the court at a maximum and a minimum period, to be served in its entirety or in part according to the individual prisoner's conduct. Thus in certain cases, a judge might sentence an offender to a maximum term of five years and a minimum term of three years and it would depend upon the prisoner's record whether he served the longer or the shorter term; the punishment would be shaped not merely to the offense but to the man himself. The differences among men in a convict camp are as marked as those among children in a school room; and until we take due account of these human differences, we shall obtain only negative results from our penal system.

The indeterminate sentence has been adopted in a number of States where it has proved to be thoroughly practicable and efficacious. It is not a plan of setiment but of reason and experience. It is good not only for the individual but also for the community. It is designed to be applied not loosely but within limits well considered and well-defined. It is a distinctly practical plan.

A bill providing for the indeterminate sentence in Georgia, with due restrictions of course, is now before the Legislature. It has been favorably reported by the committee to which it was referred both in the House and the Senate. Chairman Davison, of the State Prison Commission, forcefully presented the merits of this measure when, in urging its recommendation by the Senate committee, he said:

"The Prison Commission is cordially in favor of the indeterminate sentence. We have had practical experience concerning the operation of such a law in the Boys' Reformatory; it has worked well. We have found that it makes better boys. It gives them the incentive to work for their release, and yet we are enabled to keep an eye on them and keep them under our supervision after they have been paroled. They know that their only chance to get out before serving their full term is to make good in deportment.

"If the convicts are given indeterminate sentences I believe the same condition will prevail. Instead of increasing their evil tendencies and making them as sneaking and idle as they dare to be they will have an incentive to behave themselves and do good, steady work. They will be given the power to redeem themselves. We have discussed the measure thoroughly, and we are satisfied that with safeguards thrown around it as they are, it is a good and practical one."

By passing this bill, the Legislature will make Georgia's penal system more efficient and, in the truest sense, more economical.

"Went to sleep in box car in Atlanta; awoke in Chattanooga." Some mistake in that headline. He didn't go to sleep in Atlanta.

If an old soluier's story doesn't line up with history he blames it on the historian, who probably wasn't there.

Castro.

Cipriano Castro, with more lives than a conjurer's cat and more stings than a gadfly, has burst from oblivion to vex again the peace of Central America. So at least run the tidings from Venezuela which relate that the banished tyrant has secretly landed and is being joined by many of his old partisans, preparatory to a revolution against the established government. If it be true that Castro is home again, we may look for another merry war, the like of which Mexico with all its peppery insurgents could never produce.

Castro was born beyond his time. Had he but lived in the late. Middle Ages his name would doubtless have gone down in tradition as one of the great emperors or paladins, for, in that turbulent, misty era, there were no hard distinctions between robber and knight, provided the robber wore glistening armor, rode with a flourish, spoke eloquently, fought lustily and was shrewd enough to hold his retainers together. All these picturesque virtues, or picturesque vices if you will, Castro possesses. But he had the misfortune to happen upon a particularly practical century when the majority of folk have little patience with brigandage, if it be elemental enough for them to recognize it as such, and little sympathy with the chap who cuts a throat one moment and the next falls to discoursing upon the rights of man. Born and bred in rebellion, Castro kept Venezuela and a considerable part of neighboring Central American in a ferment so long as he remained in that country. He captured the presidency in 1899, swiftly turned it into a dictatorship to which he had himself "elected" three years later and then proceeded to make trouble for the nations in general and the United States in particular. He annulled important concessions that had been granted to foreign residents, cooly refused even to consider international claims, hotly defied the whole world to bring him to terms, confiscated the property of any of his own countrymen who refused him allegiance in the slightest detail, persecuted citizens from other countries and created a tumult that addled the brains of almost every cabinet on earth.

International action at length led to the deposition of Castro. He was in effect exiled and sent packing to Europe where he has remained more or less in mystery for the past five years. But he has evidently kept a wary eye on Venezuelan politics. Within recent months, it became known that he had sailed from the Canary Islands and shortly after he turned up at the port of New York, seeking admission to the United States. That was during the last weeks of the Taft administration. There was much ado, it will be remembered, over the question of whether he should be permitted to enter, or remain in this country, the Washington officials having ruled that he should be excluded. While his case was pending in the courts, Castro slipped away and it was vaguely reported that he had gone to Cuba.

What the next step in this remarkable adventurer's course will be is a guess rather than a prediction. But if it be true that he is in Venezuela, he will certainly make all the trouble he can not only for the existing government of that country, but for the United States and for all other nations with which he may deal. It may be that another international blockade of Venezuela's ports may be

On With the Tariff Bill.

As regularly as Republican amendments to the tariff bill now before the Senate are offered, they are promptly voted down. The Democrats are standing, indeed, like a stone wall against every attack. Naturally, the enemy's camp is losing spirit. The passage of the bill has come to be accepted as predestinate and whatever objection the Republicans offer are merely perfunctory.

This condition of affairs indicates that the bill will be enacted earlier than was at first expected. The business world is prepared for its operation; the sooner it comes, the better for all interests concerned.

The cynical business man may scorn the back to the farm movement, but he is mightily interested in the harvest just the same.

China, however, will probably calmn down in time to supply the Christmas fireworks trade.

A Just Demand.

The thinking people of Georgia are alert today to questions of social right and social wrong. They recognize the vital need of a State institution where delinquent girls may be given an opportunity equal to that afforded wayward boys. They are watching with keen interest the progress of a bill to this end which is now before the House committee on appropriations.

The bill is indorsed by experienced judges. It is urged by the State prison commission and by the penitentiary committee of the House. A subcommittee of the appropriations committee has recommended that thirty thousand dollars be allowed as the minimum amount necessary to carry the provisions of this measure into effect. That recommenda-

THE KEOKUK DAM

II.-THE ENGINEERING FEAT. BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

The big central fact about the greatest water power plant, in the world is the dam itself, the colossal barrier of concrete that halts the Mississippi on its course to the gulf and diverts its waters through a power house where their energy may be used to make electric power.

No such dam ever was built before, no such river ever was halted before, there were no precedents and no guides to follow. It was an engineering problem as difficult in its way as that at Panama, and one the solution of which can stand only second to that of the great canal.

Here at Keokuk is the foot of the Des Moines rapids, a place where nature had already done much to help the work. A glacier once dammed the wider course of the river to the west and then this channel was cut through in a valley much narrower so that the bluffs on both sides of the river are quite close together. In the twelve miles above Keokuk the water falls twentythree feet, and it is these rapids that have always obstructed navigation in the upper Mississippi. To dam these rapids, practically a mile wide from shore to shore, and to dam them in a climate varying from 109 degrees above to 27 degrees below zero, to dam them under conditions where a winter bombardment of ice was to be expected and to be feared but little more than a spring deluge, admittedly was a difficult undertaking.

. . . The power house was to be on the Iowa side. The dam was started from the Illinois side, keyed into the limestone bluff and built out into the river under the protection of an advance coffer dam. Another coffer dam unwatered the bed of the river on the power house site. Including the abutments the dam is a mile long, but the dam itself, the 119 concrete spans, measure 4,278 feet, or over four-fifths of a mile. Each pler is six feet thick, the distance between the pier-the inside measurement of the spans-is thirty feet. The viaduct that tops the dam structure is twenty-nine feet wide and the dam at the bottom of the river is fortytwo feet wide.

When these piers were finished the dam had the appearance of a many-spanned bridge, for there was nothing between the piers and they offered comparatively little obstruction to the river flow. The spillways between the piers were built in later. On the upper side they have a vertical face, but on the down stream side they are so curved down and out that their surface is just the shape of the under side of the water as it falls over the top of the spillway. These spillways were built gradually so as to offer the minimum resistance to the flow of the river. The work was done by building slowly from one side of the river to the other, and also by building slowly from the bottom up. Five feet of concrete was laid at first between two piers, the only obstruction then being one thirty-foot coffer dam in the whole stream. Span at a time was filled in in this way, until the bottom layer was finished. Then another five-foot layer was built all across, span at a time, and so on until the last layer brought the top of the spillway sections to thirty-two feet above the river bed.

On the up-river side of each span slots were let into the sides, and into the top of the spillway, in which slots slide 119 steel gates. These can be let down so as to form a complete obstruction to the river. These gates are eleven by thirty-two feet in dimension and will be raised and lowered by electric power, each being operated singly from an electric traveling crane on top of the viaduct. These gates will keep the water above the dam at a constant level, never varying. In high water they will all be open and the surplus will flow through. In low water a sufficent number of them will be closed to maintain the desired level.

Concrete is a mixture of sand, crushed rock, cement and water. This is the biggest concrete-structure in the world and, therefore, the nature of this part of the work was of great importance. A bed of ideal sand was found on the Illinois side only two miles below the dam, and no less than 200,000 cubic yards of it were used. Loaded on wagons all at one time this would mean a procession of sand carts that would reach from New York through Denver to the western boundary of Colorado. Stone for the crushers was taken from the bluffs at both ends of the dam, largely stone that had to be excavated anyhow. The cement came up the river from Hannibal, sixty miles below.

. . . On account of the great range of temperature at this point nice calculations had to be made of the probable effect on the cement structure. Expansion joints were set in the top of the dam, sheets of tar paper being suspended vertically across the structure inside the steel molds when the concrete was poured in. When this paper rots out there will be a narrow fissure which will pull apart in hot weather and close up in cold. Careful experiments showed that these expansion joints were necessary only for the surface work, as the concrete under water would be but little affected by the change in temperature.

The actual work of construction was most difficult. The coffer dam built ahead of the dam sections was of cribs of logs, filled in with rock and faced with a seal of puddled clay. The log work was done by timber-jacks from Canada, men who were trained in the handling of heavy logs in swift water. A raft the size of the crib would be made and floated out to the place where the crib was to be sunk. Then careful measurements were made of the bottom of the river at that place and the bottom set of logs cut to fti. Then the logs were built up criss-cross, like a log house, and filled in. These dams leaked but little and made the use of the concrete comparatively easy,

The first span was built from the Illinois shore and then each succeeding span worked out from that end. As the last few were always too soft to work on, a huge traveling crane of the cantilever type was employed, a monster with an arm 150 feet long, from which it poured the concrete in the forms. When built it was the largest traveling crane in the world, and of itself was one of the chief items in the more than $1,000,000 worth of tools used in the work on the power

The dam was built, of coures, to create power, but as the Mississippi is a navigable river it must be kept so. Therefore, the power company agreed in consideration of permission to build the dam to keep open nav= igation and to substitute for the old government canal that skirted the rapids on the Iowa side a new canal, lock and dry dock. This part of the work alone cost over $2,000,000. But as it assures a deep water stage for more than sixty miles above the dam, its beneftis will represent the earnings on a capitalization of perhaps $10,000,000-going directly to the navigators of the river.

The lock here is larger even than those at Panama. being of equal width-110 feet-and of greater height. The lock chamber is much shorter, being only 400 feet inside measurement, since the steamboats on the river do require such a length of water space. The gates at Keokuk, built exactly as are those at Panama, are higher, the lift here being forty feet, as against thirtytwo feet and twenty-eight feet in the Panama locks. The total lift is greater at Panama, but there the locks are built in stairs of three flights. The lower gate of this lock is just like those at Panama, 'except that it is higher. The upper gate at Keokuk is of an entirely new type of lock gate, being raised and lowered in a vertical runway by hydraulic power. Over the top of this gate when lowered runs the railroad track that will convey supplies to the power house in the river.

BY DE. FRANK CRANE. (Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane)

America has added to the world's supply of good things for the palate the tomato, tobacco, the potato, the turkey and corn. The greatest of these is corn. It is the peculiar prize of the United States. The richest agricultural region of the earth is the land extending from the Alleghanies to eastern Nebraska, and from lower Minnesota to southern Illinois. No territory so inexhaustibly fruitful as this exists on the globe. From it, all the inhabitants of earth could be fed. Chicago, the metropolis of this district, is destined to become the chief city of the world. About this season of the year the traveler through Iowa and adjacent states may witness a spectacle which is one of the world's wonders. It is the vast fields of growing corn. Out of the car window he may see a boundless ocean of dark, lush green, a vision of life, joy and strength, the like of which was never beheld before the nineteenth century. It drinks up the liberal rains with a healthy appetite. It thrusts its hungry roots down into a soil that for centuries has been prepared for it. Its broad leaves rustle like the garments of Ceres touched by the winds; whisper like the blessing of Jove breathed upon the land. It rejoices in the hot sun and grows lustily under its most ardent embrace. And no vision of ghostly plenty is equal to its huge billows reaching far out every way to the dim'horizon, glittering in soft and sombre maiesty under the full moon. Surely the generous Deity "hath not dealt so with any nation." The gift of corn is a gift to all,

Its juicy stalks and leaves are loved by the cattle. the swine, the horses. Its grain eaten when young and succulent and full of milk are a delicacy more choice than any plants of the Old World produce. There probably cannot be found a score of human beings who do not like "corn on the cob."

Its dried fruitage ground into meal is richer than wheat flour or oatmeal.

It is food for the fancy of the poet as well as for the muscle of the ox and of the human laborer. For far above the grape exalted by Anacreon, and the olive, and the palm that have nourished the East, and all fruits and vegetables that have translated the lifeforce of mother earth into blood and brain and brawn for her children, is the glorious, fecund and beautiful dowry of the New World Corn.

A Shameful Law

(Augusta Herald.)

The glaring fact that a mother has no right whatever to her children under Georgia law has been made very clear in Judge Hammond's decision, and this preposterous injustice should be done away with right now by the passage of a joint guardianship law.

When such realizations flash upon us we cannot wonder that this clamoring for a part in government and politics has come from the women. Nor can we avoid admitting that the failure to keep our laws in regard to women in harmony with our state of civilization is due entirely to the fact that woman herself has had no voice in the making and the altering of them. This is what always happens when any class or set of people are denied the right to struggle for their own rights. It is an undemocratic method of governing, and no matter how high-minded and full of true purpose those who speak for others may be, they cannot avoid an unbalanced and an unjust condition of

The astonishing thing is that the innate chivalry of man has so far overcome his disposition to act with a single view to his own interests. Women receive more justice and consideration than the laws allow them, but this is no excuse for permitting these old and

barbaric laws to disgrace the state. 100 00 10

Only a moment's reflection will bring to mind various and widely differing points at which this failure of the law is bound to act with shocking injustice. It may not frequently act with such striking and sensational cruelty as to separate the mother from the children who are as more than a part of her heart and soul, but in the fact that it can sometimes act in this way should be enough. Besides, there are questions in the rearing of children throughout their whole lives which concern the mothers too deeply and vitally to be entrusted wholly to the male parent.

In a word, a preposterous condition of injustice exists and may be promptly and easily recuiled. Should there be any hesitation? The Savannah Press urged the passage of a joint guardianship law for parents a year ago. We return to the charge, urgently convinced that delay means only a multiplication of suffering and injustice and we beg that our Chatham representatives will do what they can to get this condition of things changed before the present session ends. It surely cannot take through both houses.

(Lewiston Journal.)

Paying for a home by picking wild berries is the feat performed by Mrs. Seth Davis, of Skowhegan, who for the last twenty-three years has been engaged in this industry very successfully. Her major berry is the raspberry and she averages about fifteen bushels of these in a year. She picks about eight bushels of the field strawberries in the year and many bushels of wild blackberries. Besides picking these she peddles them out in Skowhegan. She now owns a fine farm on the Canaan road and she remarked that she had paid for it by picking berries. She not only picks berries, but she assists her husband in many ways about the farm. In the winter time she will take a load of wood with a pair of horses, come to Skowhegan, and find a market for it, unloading it herself. Mrs. Davis is one of the most frequent patrons of the public library. But she believes that life is worth more to her by outdoor air and work than it could be otherwise.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET WAS IRREGULAR AT CLOSE

Canadian Pacific, Mexican Petroleum and Southern Pacific Off-Others Steady

NEW YORK, July 31,—Nominal changes were the rule at the opening of today's stock market. Illinois Central sold down to 105, a new low record and Canadian Pacific yielded a point. New Haven gained a substantial fraction and some strength was shown by the coppers. Prices stiffened perceptibly before the end of the first hour, steel, in which trading was very extensive, touching its best price since the early part of the year. Demand for Union Pacific, Reading, Amalgamated and Eric first preferred and other speculative favorites also resulted in marked advances for those issues. The profesional character of the market again was demonstrated in today's early session. Initial dealings soon gave way to general 81/4c; animals 10c; jumbles, 10c; fig bars, 13c; strength particularly in the leaders. cartwheels, 9c; raisin cookies, 9c; Schlesinger's Before noon, however, all the rise was lost flakes, 19e; crackers in 5c cartons, 50c dozen; as a result in part of profit taking and renewed bear pressure upon certain issues of acknowledged weakness. Illinois Central achieved a new low record at 104%.

General bonds, irregular; government bonds, unchanged. Sufficient buying power developed after while to check the decline, but rallies were feeble and the market became stagnant. St. Louis and San Francisco isues were active on a declining scale. Inactivity continued to be the chief feature of the late afternoon. Prices made further recovery from their low level, Southern Pacific responding to its favorable June statement, and ern special, 36s, 10c size, $2.80; 24s, 15c size, the belief that the threatened strike on the system is likely o be speedily adjusted. Slight recovery from forenoon prices was soon effaced when traders agin attacked weak features. Canadian Pacific declined rather easily and Amalgamated and Union Pacific also showed a renewed tendency to sag.

There are no milliners among them, for each woman makes her own hat, a simple matter, since no feathers or other ornamentation is allowed, while the wearing of jewelry is strictly forbidden. However, the Dunker women are seldom wanting in comeliness. Their faces are nearly arways sweet and gentle, while an air of almost saintly simplicity is given them by the clear, starched cap, the handkerchief crossed on the breast, the white apron and the plain gray or drab stuff of their dresses. The Dunkers live in peace one with another, and never have recourse to law to redress an injury done to them. Disputes among themselves are settled by the elders, whose decision is final, and only in exthe people of the world. They are averse to accepting public office, and rarely, if ever, exercise the right of franchise. However, the Dunker ideal of personal conduct is a high one. They are temperate to abstemiousness, industrious and economical and Carlyle's gospel

DIAMOND GOODS REDUCED 20 PER CENT FROM THE ORIGINAL PRICE

Until we occupy our new store at 49 Whitehall street we are making what is perhaps an unprecedented reduction on practically everything in our establishment. Every line is going at what are bargain prices. The greatest bargains, however, are to be found in our diamond department. They have advanced about 10% since our present stock was purchased, which, when taken into consideration with the reduction we are making on them, makes them bargains in the extreme.

If you do not find it convenient to visit our store, we will be glad, upon receipt of references, to send selection packages from which to choose. Terms of sale cash.

Jim happened to be the one to go to the rescue. Girlish Margaret was sweetly, breathlessly grateful when he brought her ashore, little the worse for her impromptu bath, and disdainfully silent when Billy approached. Little Journeys

This is the time of year when nearly everyone is planning some kind of trip. Usually the longer the trip the pleasanter the anticipation of it.

But there are certain kinds of journeys that are not classed as "pleasure trips" when the weather is hot. These journeys are the necessary shopping excursions.

Two women were overheard talking in the shopping district early one morning of this past week. One of them said, "I wish I could have stayed at home today. I have a list of ten things I must buy, and I know it is going to take me until closing time to get them all."

"I have a list of fourteen articles," the other replied, "but I expect to be home by noon."

"How can you manage it?" said the

"Easily enough. I looked over THE JOURNAL, and by going through the advertisements carefully I was able to plan a regular route for my trip. I know just what stores I am going to, and what I shall buy in each one."

This wise woman by her intelligent forethought made her shopping trip a pleasant "little journey." No one can afford not to follow her example in reading thoroughly the advertisements in THE JOURNAL when so much time and nerve-fag can be saved by doing so.

Crackers Back Home After Hard Trip Through Southern End

But Four Wins In Games With Rival Outfits

Crackers Took Two in Pelicanville, One in Memphis, None in Montgomery, and but One in Mobile

The road record of the Atlanta club, which was completed when Welchonce Mobile game, is nothing to boast over, the team having dropped nine games and won but four, while it is not and won but four. While it is not expected that a club should win all the wames on the road the Crackers should have secured something nearer an even break than nine losses and four wins.

Many of the games dropped on the road were of the hard luck variety, being taken by one run. The team became shot to pieces through the illness of Captain Whitey Alperman and the injury to Bill Bailey and this to a large extent served to take the ginker from the other players and cause them to play ragged ball. The hitting too has been a bit off and this has proven a large handicap.

The fielding and pitching on the trip was good, while the hitting was poor. To play five games in three days with the Nashville club the Atlanta Crackers arrived home Thursday morning, after a rather harmful jaunt around the southern end of the circuit. The one game bill will be played Thursday, double-headers being left for Friday and Saturday, incidentally the present trip of the Vols being the last to be made here this season. The Thursday afternoon game will start as usual at 3:45 o'clock and will see either Dent or Price hurling for the Crackers with Forest More doubtless Give Holland occupying the hill for the visiting delegation. Thirty-Minute Team Race Kept Crowd Puzzled as to Which Would Win-One Team is Disqualified

Wednesday night's card at the bis drome was a good one. The program itself read mighty well, but the racing looked even better. A narrow escape from a nasty spill, Morty Graves' riding at an eighty-eight-mile clip and the half-hour novelty race certainly furnishing a good round of pleasant reilef from the day's toils. The big crowd was wild and gave the riders a rousing cheer in every race.

The feature race, with the five teams fairly burning the old boards in the track up, made a hit from the start Harry Lewis did some nice riding in this race, making a good getaway and keeping a killing pace for thirteen minutes. Schwartz and Lochner covered the greatest distance in the half-hour of grinding, but were disqualified by the judges, as both were on the track at the same time. The distance they did was thirty-eight miles and some laps. Tex Richards, with Shields as his partner, was announced as the winner, their distance was not given. Graves and Schwartz were second and Lewis and Luther third. Glenn and Renel also tute or two can be carried. Right now no team has more than one substitute and a second string catcher and when two men get injured there is nothing to do but play a catcher in the outfield or infield and work one of your catchers to death. And this won't win many pennants.

In the major leagues it does not hurt, so much when one or two good players are put down and out for a short time. The player limits are so large that a sufficient number of substitutes can be carried to fill in all the gaps. When a good player gets hurt the manager has only to stick in a well trained substitute and go merrily on his way. Football Will Go Unchanged

Technical Changes, Kicker Can Stand at Any Point He Wishes

NEW YORK, July 31 .- The intercollegiate football rules as promulgated: by the football rules committee show a few changes in the gridiron code for the season of 1913. The majority of the alterations are technical and will have little effect upon the game. The, most important change is the rule which permits the kicker to stand at any distance from the line of scrimmage when kicking, instead of at least; five yards behind the scrimmage line. Under the new regulations it is expected that quick kicking from directly behind the forwards will be a play-

Walter Camp in outlining the work of the rules committee states:

"One alteration was brought about by the fact that a player could not be returned to the game after he had once been taken out, except at the beginning of a period. JOURNAL WANT AD Horoscope

AUGUST 1.

All persons born on any date between July 22 and August 22 are born under the sign of Leo. This is the middle sign of the Fire Triplicity and is symbolized by the lion.

A man born on this date is very kind-hearted, generous, sympathetic and would make a successful physician or surgeon.

A Leo person has an emotional nature, is very intuitive and their judgment is based on a sort of a sixth sense which rarely fails them in its accuracy. Women of this birthdate are good companions, with a fund of good nature and their company is much sought by the opposite sex. A woman of this birthdate will be inclined to quick temper and impatience without much cause, She should marry a man whose birthdate falls between March 21 and April 19. This date favors the seeking through a Journal Want Ad of new positions in offices; stores will do favor all real estate transactions. Some Want Ads are inserted free in The Journal-see first Want Page. For charge ads, ask that they be sent for, or telephone them to Main 2000

The Cattle Industry of Georgia

touch the more thickly setand better sections of the state for this work that Atlanta did. Therefore, the entire section of north Georgia has to a certain extent lost interest in the live-stock industry. Ten years ago there were hundreds of poultry. hogs, cattle, horses and sheep all over north Georgia that were raised off of practically speaking the surplus or waste of the farm, and converted much of this waste into dollars and helped the owners. But now this state of affairs does not exist except in very small numbers anywhere in north Georgla. Eight or ten years ago it was possible to buy good milch cows in unlimited numbers at $30 to $35 each. Now the same grade of cattle are scarce and it is almost impossible to get them at $50 to $75. They seemed to have banished from the earth and there are not enough good milch cows in this state to produce onefourth of the butter that is consumed by the citizens of the state of Georgia. The Georgia farmers will regret some day not paying more attention to their cattle, and if there ever was a time when an opportunity was right to get a big per cent of profit out of cattle that state of affairs now exists and will forever continue to be offered to the man who will take up this

Just so long as beef of ordinary quality will bring five cents to six cents per pound on foot and good milch cows sell for $50 to $100

each no line of farm industry on earth offers the opportunity for a big per cent of profit as does the cattle industry. Tennessee is shipping a great many cattle into Georgia every day, and the supply of hogs that are used in the packing houses in Georgia are supplied almost exclusivey by the Tennessee breeders. The same thing can be said of poultry and eggs. In other words we are pouring thousands of dollars into our neighbor state's pockets for these products when we should produce

I suppose one of the things that has kept this state from producing more of these things heretofore is on account of the scarcity of feed. with a big crop of every kind practically assured this year in this state we should not hesitate a moment longer to take up the breeding of live stock with more enthsuiasm than ever and continue to produce more food products than we are even doing this year. As I fore ensilage can be grown so cheaply in this state and hay and when these feeds are combined with cotton seed meal we have right at our door we have a fortune right here are not taking advantage of. The great demand for every one of our cities and even in the small country eastern and western breeders to Georgia. There is hardly in Georgia today but what is making money, even on ought feed, and the opportunities that present themselves here for a profit in all lines of livestock industry are such as do not exist possibly

One of the main things a person has to be careful about in entering this work is to use judgment in selecting good thoroughbred animals for his foundation the kind that will always sell at the top parket, and take care of them after he has secured them. With derful Bermuda grass and white clover thousands of acres of land in this state could be so easily converted into profitable During rainy days when no other kind of work can be accomplished on the farm hundreds of acres could be sowed to Bermuda white clover that would make an abundance of feed that bring thousands of dollars to this state if we could once urned in this direction and see the possibilities that are With the scarcity of feed of all kinds growing carcer every year and greater demand coming every year feed the people on we should not neglect these opporlonger but take advantage of them and put ourselves in a our cattle and hogs will do the work that will convert our farms into more cash than anything we can postibly pay attention to. It is gradually being forced on us and why we reglect it longer and put it off from day to day has always been a mystery to me and unless a big change is, made we will continue to lose millions of dollars that we should be get-Yours very truly.

MAN LEADING A DOUBLE LIFE BETRAYED BY HIS SUIT CASE

Albert Driscoll - Cammayer, Fifth Relative Comes When Caught With $900 Worth of Stamps, Charged With Blowing Postoffice Safe at Green Cone, Fla.

AUSTER LITZ

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 31 .-- Until Albert Driscoll Cammayer was arrested of blowing open the safe of the Green Cove, Fla., postoffice, he was leading a double life-that of safe blower and re- disease that has baffled the physicians. ligious worker-according to postoffice inspectors who came to Montgomery yesterday to get information about Cammayer's career in Alabama.

Cammayer-known in Alabama as Driscoll-had been recognized for several months as one of the best citizens of clared that she could not survive a society. He had formed the acquaintance of a Green Cove girl. They became engaged and preparations were made for the wedding.

One night the postoffice safe was broken open, and stamps and some money stolen. Cammayer-then going under that name-was not suspected. No trace the safe blower could be found. Then Cammayer went to Chattanooga as a representative of the Jefferson Powder company, of Birmingham.

BETRAYED BY SUITCASE. Luck went against him. He lost his duplicate check and the railroad refused to give him his suitcase. Cammayer declared that he could identify articles in the case and he mentioned a suit of clothes, a comb and brush and other articles. But he said nothing about $900 worth of stamps which were hidden in the bottom of the ultease

Then Cammayer decided he ought to make a more thorough search for the check. He went to this hotel and found the lost slip. But, in the meantime, mon stock of the road and it is authori- railroad officials made a thorough search of the suitcase and found the stamps. Cammayer produced the check and demanded the suitcase. Detectives were called and Cammayer was arrested. Postoffice inspectors could not find a postoffice in the Chattanooga district that had ben robbed recently and other divisions were notified. Green Cove's office had been robbed a few weeks before and investigations showed that teresting hearing will be held before the the numbers of the stamps in Cammayer's possession corresponded with those stolen from the Florida postoffice. Cammayer denied that he had robbed FIANCEE LOYAL.

News of Cammayer's arrest went to Grene Cove, where he was regarded as an upright citizen. People there refused to believe he was interested in the believed him a gentleman and she is still large plant in Florida, but postoffice inspectors have refused to make pub-
