THE vanguard of the most representative American gather-I ing that has ever met within Atlanta's hospitable gates has already reached the city, and wearers of red, white or blue ribbons may be seen in all parts of Atlanta.

The city has undertaken the immense task of extending hospitality to some 1,500 commissioners, representing the three leading Presbyterian denominations of the land, together with a commission of the Associate Reformed Presbyterian

The man of the street, who does not take things churchly into his everyday thinking, may be surprised to know that this convention is far more representative and intrinsically important than that of any secret order or commercial organization. The actual membership of the three bodies is about 2,000,000, which gives a constituency in the United States of more than 10,000,-000 persons directly affiliated with the Presbyterian churches. The ubiquity of this organization is as significant as its size. Wherever one goes in the United States, from coast to coast, border to border, he finds Presbyterian churches. There are a number of delegates from mission fields. The constituency is made up of thoughtful, influential folk, who are among the leaders of their separate commu-

COMMISSIONERS ARE INFLUEN-

TIAL MEN. These men now in Atlanta represent the most enlightened citizenship of America, for the political revolution of a year ago was wrought primarily by the church folk, who have been thinking and talking earnestly about the practical problems of citizenship and government. Almost every man in Atlanta today wearing the blue ribbon which designates the Presbyterian church in the U.S. A., or the white ribbon which is the insignia of the United Presbyterian church, is some sort of a teacher of the people, either as a minister or a Bible class teacher. A large percentage of professional men may be found among the commissioners. This is not a crowd that will be easily stampeded, and it will not be notable for any spectacular activities. PUTTING P'S INTO ONE POD. The ordinary newspaper reader is going to have his difficulties in distinguishing one of these "split P's" from anther. The nomenclature employed in these days is symptomatic of the new spirit of raternity and courtesy which is embodied in Atlanta's handling of what ten years ago would have been a delicate situation. It was the Civil war that divided the Presbyterian church into "the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., and "the Presbyterian Church in the U. s." If one wants to know which is which, he must watch for that last "A." These names are technical and official, but are employed to do away with the suggestion of sectional division which is conveyed in the terms "Northern" and "Southern."

Nor does "United Presbyterian" mean the whole aggregation in one union. That is the technical name of the sturdy Psalm singers in whose honor the three simultaneous assemblies are singing only psalms during the present sessions.

By William T. Ellis Both the United Presbyterians and the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. are very conservative in their theology and in their methods. These two bodies have propositions for organic union confronting them. The sentiment on both sides is favorable to union. It is altogether probable that the negotiations will proceed to a successful issue, but they will not be consummated this

Both are rather afraid of their big brother, the Presbyterian Church in the U. S.A., and all talk of union with it is entirely tabooed at this session. It was quite understood when the invitation was extended for a pan-Presbyterian love feast in Atlanta that the subject of union between the Presbyterian Church in the U.S. A. and the Presbyterian Church in the U. S., should not be broached. The Presbyterians down this way are afraid of what they term the "theological laxity" of the larger organization. They do not like these heresy trials, or the thinking of which they are symptomatic. Moreover ey are afraid of the "ecclesiasticisr" of the largest of the Presbyterian A GLIMPSE OF CHURCH POLIpaper, The Continent, has been vigorously agitating against these preelection campaigns, it is altogether possible that the assembly may rebuke the friends of these candidates by electing some man whose name has not yet been mentioned for the moderatorship. One regrettable feature of such a proceeding would be the implied reflection upon the present candidates, who are altogether men of standing and ability, and personally above political maneuvering.

The fact that neither the United Presbyterian assembly nor the assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S., has any of this "candidating" is expected to exert a wholesome influence upon the largest of the three bodies.

SOME LIVE ISSUES. A great many important subjects are to be up in both assemblies. The question of the home board and its functions is the most acute in the Presbyterian Courch in the U. S. A. Action upon the "Elect Infant" clause in the Westminster Confession of Faith, and upon the question of continuing relations with the Federal Council of Churches in America, because of the latter's alleged theological laxity, are serious subjects which will receive the attention of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S.

Today in the pre-assembly conferences upon foreign missions.

THE Journal publishes today the names of all the com-I missioners to the various Presbyterian assemblies, and the names of their hosts and their addresses. If you want to know who the commissioners are, what assembly they represent and where they can be found during the Presbyterian gathering, look them up in The Journal of this issue. They will be found on pages 9, 10 and 11.

U. S. A. This is illustrated by the "campaigns" that are afoot for the election of a moderator. There are four candidates in the fieldtwo of them formidable and representative, to a greater or lesser degree, of the "liberal" and conservative wings in the church.

Rev. Dr. Maitland Alexander, distinguished scion of a famous Presbyterian family, himself the pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Pittsburg, Pa., one of the leading congregations in the denomination, is being urged for the moderatorship by his Pittsburg associates, and his support seems to be most outspoken among the "conservative" commissioners.

Running side by side with him in all discussions is the Rev. Dr. S. S. Palmer, pastor of the First Presbyterlan church of Columbus, Ohio, long a notable figure in general Presbyterian affairs, although still a young man. Dr. Paimer is said to be the favorite of the more "liberal" element in the general assem-

Because this is an insurgent season in religion as well as in politics, and because the leading church evangelism, education, theological seminaries and the laymen's movement, the delegates who have come in early will consider questions of practical service, rather than doctrine or administration. The idea of a joint meeting of these long separated Presbyterian bodies has appealed to the imagination of the churches of America. It was a happy Atlanta inspiration. At present no man may forecast the consequences. Certainly it will result in closer relationship and greater efficiency. It is a safe prediction that for many years the name of Atlanta will be advertised in religious circles as identified with an epochal event in the history of pan-Presbyterianism.

the Presbyterian church, U. S. A., will organize in the Baptist Tabernacle; and that of the Presbyterian church, U. S., will organize in the North Avenu Presbyterian church.

Each of the assemblies has it own "docket," or program of business. The dockets show the official business that will be transacted in each assembly. It is for that official business that the 1,500 commissioners have gathered.

There are being held, Wednesday, preassembly conferences, which are unofficial, but are quite interesting because of the subjects in which they are concerned, and there will be hed popualr gatherings, in the city auditorium, each The twenty-five commissioners of the Associate Reformed Presbyterian church may hold an adjourned synod meeting during the week. The foregoing condenses as briefly as possible the story of the great Presbyterian gathering of which Atlanta now is the hostess for a week. MUCH IMPORTANT WORK. Important discussions almost without number will be heard in the conferences and the assemblies and the popular meetings. Nothing except what is important will be discussed, in fact. But there stands out from the whole general program one subject in which church membership-the subject of organic union between the United Presbyterians and the Southern Presbyterians (U. S.). A joint committee named last year has held several meetings and now is holding other sessions in advance of these assemblies, and its report will come up in the course of business before both of them. It will not be a report recommending or discouraging union, but a report of the basis upon which union can be attained. No one of the authorities expect the union to be perfected now. The report the first official expression on the subject, will become a matter for sober and eliberate thought among the leaders during the months to come; and the future alone can tell what result will attend it.

THE U. S. A. ASSEMBLY. The greatest of the assemblies now gathering here-that of the northern chu.ch (Presbyterian U. S. A.)-is not concerned in this question of union; nor is the smallest of the gatheringsthat of the Associate Reformed synod. It is said that in the U.S. A. assembly the topics of graded lessons, of home mission policies, and of the doctrinal order of the Union Theological seminary in New York, will be among the most important that are considered. In addition, the reports of the several special committees on these and other subjects (work in Europe, federal council of churches of Christ in America, evangelistic work, Sabbath observance, brotherhood, etc.) will cotnain much of interest and may lead to important discussions. The reports of the boards, too, are big with possibilities. The docket of the U. S. A. church shows much work ahead, from the convening at 10:30 Thursday morning to the con-have been waiting so anxiously for one. And no wonder the Contestants were anxious for it.

Because it gives them the right to ten answers with each picture and they only need one of each picture to submit those ten answers. The answer book is arranged so that it is not only convenient for contestants to submit answers, but it is also the most economical way to exercise your right

Under the old plan you would need 750 pictures and coupons to submit that many answers, and they would cost you $15. The Answer Book will only cost you Soc at The Journal Office or 90c by mall, and all you will need is one of each picture, or 75 in all, yet you will have the right to ten answers on each prize picture. Sleuths Hunt Spy Who Stole Plans likely clews which may lead to arrests. Nothing so far has developed, it is said, to directly connect any foreign nation with the suspects.

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, May 14.—Detectives investigating the theft of plans for the electrical wiring of the dreadnaught Pennsylvania declared today that publication of the "leak" probably would hamper their work.

The fact that the ordnance and steam engineering bureaus of the navy department have been missing plans and documents relating to American vessels and their armament has created alarm among officials, and will undoubtedly cause the military authorities to surround the war secrets of the United States with greater safeguards.

None of the missing papers, officials reiterated today, was important or contained secrets of advantage to foreign nations. Some officials were inclined to believe the losses probably were the result of clerk's carelessness.

The second set of plans of the new dreadnaught Pennsylvania to be stolen from the bureau of steam engineering were taken between the evening of Saturday, March 22, and the following Monday. The plans were duplicated of those stolen March 4. Secretary Daniels today reiterated that they would be of no particular value to any one seeking naval information not generally made public as they contained no military secrets.

An Elegant Exposition of the New Fashions in Summer Dresses

In which all the New Fabrics and all the New Styles come in for proper appreciation

We might, and very properly, term this an opening. It shows all the credentials of such an event. It holds a greater number of interesting features than any formal opening Atlanta has ever been invited to at this season, chiefly because there have been evolved this season more interesting fashions and then because our dress buyer, just returned from New York, has outdone himself. He chose with a free hand, lavishly, in a way that, now that the dresses are here, insures every woman a dress to her liking. As he very forcibly puts it "This is the greatest line ever brought to Atlanta" and the confident way he emphasizes it is very impressive; but you shall decide that.

In this display are

Simple Morning Dresses, More Elaborate Afternoon and Party Dresses, and Still More Elaborate Evening Dresses

But they are not the dresses that former summers have brought!

The materials are different, the styles are different, and, we warrant, to your pleasure.

The cry is for novelties. Even the least expensive little frocks have the appearance of exclusiveness. It may be a matter of a bit of colorful embroidery, or the use of net forming a yoke, or the drape of a skirt or the way a sleeve is set in, or it may be due to the fact that the waist is in some dark shade and the skirt white.

For morning and street wear there are beautiful dresses of crepes, of linens, of ratines, of voiles. And each of these is divided into many kinds---plain and figured crepes, ramie and French linens, striped checked and plain ratines and the like in seemingly endless variety.

Among evening dresses, wherein the Paris touches become more numerous, the voiles and cotton crepes claim first attention. They are plain, they are embroidered, they are in stripes and checks and "snowflakes". And among these you will find the handmade tucks, the hand embroidery and the wonderful shadow, cluny, macrame and Venetian laces that women delight in.

But reading of these things will not suffice the woman whose summer wardrobe is first in her thoughts. See!

We would but emphasize here the elaborate way we have gone at the dress question this summer.

There are more and prettier dresses to choose from than you have grown accustomed to expect.

Prices Go Very Gradually from $5 Through $7.50 and Up and Up to $25, $30 ard $35

And there will be many a surprise in store for you, too, after you have admired a dress to note the price ticket. Dresses look to be worth more than their price. But again we say---See!

A Fine Buy Brings $25 Dresses at $18.50

The material is crepe that holds a high place among the materials fashionable this season.

You will see at once that they are $25.00 values. Dainty, altogether charming!

One style is of white crepe with a wide band of Dresden crepe-several colors-at the bottom of the skirt, outlined with a fold of solid color to match in with the Dresden coloring; the same colors show in the collar and cuffs and the little vest and the satin belt, which is set off with a pearl buckle.

Not enough of these to make delays safe, just a little lot very fortunately bought.

New Spring Coats and Wraps

For afternoon and evening wear with light dresses, the high novelty right now, and an inexpensive novelty, is the Terry Cloth Coat.

These are in plain shades-usually lightand in two-toned effects. You will like them.

They are short, "blousy" affairs priced at $8.75 to $15.00.

Then come the richer and more luxurious moire and charmeuse wraps in white, black and colors and the ratines in colors and the white serges in splendid variety of trimmings and lengths.

These from $15.00 to $35.00.

And the automobilist and traveler will enjoy the preparations made for them.

Splendid linen coats at $3.95 and $4.95. Mohair, pongee and rajah coats at $7.50, $10.00 to $18.50.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET WEAK IN LATE TRADING

(By Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, May 14.—Stocks reacted slightly in the first dealings today from the higher level reached yesterday, all of the speculative favorites opened lower, although losses in most Instances were only small fractions. Canadian Goo Pacific, with a decline of 1% and Virginia-Carolina Chemical with a loss if a point were the heavlest. None of the energy displayed in the marking up of prices in the final trading yesterday was visible in speculation during the morning. Profit taking offset the slight stimulus derived from the rise in foreign markets, but prices raffled when offerings were withdrawn. Bull traders were inclined to buy on recessions. There was no sustaining inqury, however, and movements were so small that the market could scarcely be said to have dereloped a definite tone.

Bonds steady. Some low priced stocks seemed to be affected by the decline in the Wabashes to new low records. Missouri Pacific reacted a point and other southern and southwestern shares were less firmly held. Speculation was at a standstill in other quarters. Stocks had a manifestly easier tone in the

Some men find it as easy to climb a greased pole as to keep in the straight and narrow path.

A poor man is always saying he would like to be rich because of the great amount of good he could do with the money.

Start out with the intention of calling everything by its right name and you will change your mind before you have gone a block.

Our Presbyterian Guests.

Atlanta is singularly honored and fortunate in being host this week to the largest Presbyterian convention the world has known. For the first time in history all three of the important American branches of this great church are holding their annual general assemblies at the same time and in the same city. Their business sessions will be conducted individually, but each evening they will come together at the Auditorium for common counsel on the broad interests that concern them all alike; so that the three assemblies, though distinct in administrative matters, are one in spirit and generous purpose.

It is doubtful that a more widely representative convention was ever held in the United States. The official delegates, or commissioners, number some fifteen hundred men who have come from every quarter of the Union. About half of them are ministers; the others are laymen who are leaders not only in the church life, but also in the social and economic affairs of their home communities. Atlanta is thus in human touch with the highest character and impulse of the entire nation-the North the East and the West, as well as the South. Besides the commissioners, the assemblies will be attended by hundreds of unofficial visitors, attracted by the importance of the occasion and the convenient railway schedules and rates that have been offered from all points of the country. The rank and file of visitors for the week will range between four and five thousand persons.

The city's traditional hospitality awaits everyone of these guests. All the churches of the community have joined with the local Presbyterians in extending a cordial welcome and hundreds of homes have been thrown open for the entertainment of the official delegates. The Journal voices the sentiment of all Atlanta in greeting these distinguished visitors most heartily and in wishing them a convention that will be abundantly fruitful for the great cause they repre sent.

True Conservation. In discussing the more liberal and constructive spirit that is now infusing the conservation movement, the Norfolk, Va., Pilot aptly remarks: "It isn't enough to prevent our water courses from passing into the hands of private and special interests, to be exploited for their particular and immediate advantage without thought or concern for the public's rights and needs. Some means must be found for rendering this source of natural wealth available for the promotion of enterprise and for the development of fresh opportunities, without incurring the risk of wanton waste or the danger of monopolistic control.'

What is true in this respect of water powers is equally true of all the stores of natural treasure. Conservation, when rightly interpreted and applied, means vastly more than mere preservation. It was to be expected that the first aim of this important movement would be the protection of streams and forests and mines against private greed and waste. Its first note was logically one of protest, for a time had come when resources that belonged to all the people and should by held unimpaired for the needs of future generations were being sacrificed for the fortunes of a few men and were being monopolized by special interests.

But conservation cannot end at this point, if its true mission is to be fulfilled. America's natural treasure must be utilized for the public's practical good, not indefinitely locked up like a miser's hoard. It must be saved from selfish or unscientific exploitation, but at the same time, in so far as is consistent with the laws of science and economy, it must be turned to fruitful account for the good of the people of today.

Let the Courts Decide.

Japan's present attitude toward the California anti-alien land bill appears to be one of prudence and restraint. Its ambassador at Washington, dispatches say, will make no further protest until Governor Johnson acts upon the measure; if he signs it, as is likely, Japan will not then proceed on its own account to test the constitutionality of the law, but "will wait a reasonable length of time to see what the federal administration intends to do," and will look to our own government to determine through an appeal to the courts whether or not the California bill involves a treaty violation.

That seems to be the most satisfactory course this vexed issue could take, unless California herself, yielding to a sober second thought, should withdraw or suspend the measure that has brought the discussion to pass. It would have been far better had the settlement of these questions been left to diplomacy, instead of being seized upon pellmell by the Legislature of a single State. Since a national treaty was involved, the matter of alien land ownership should have dealt with directly between Washington and

But if the bill is to become a law, it must stand or fall by the decision of the courts. If it is adjudged to be in violation of the treaty between the United States and Japan, it will be void, for international treaties are supreme law which no single State can contravene. If, on the contrary, it involves no such violation, Japan has no ground for protest in so far as this particular bill is concerned.

In either event, a judicial test of the law is the direct and logical way out of the present difficulty.

King Alfonso's visit to Paris is being used as a peg on which to hang all manner of gossip concerning a Franco-Spanish alliance. The young monarch, we are told, has been in conference with President Poincare; farreaching designs are afoot whereby France, actively supported by her Iberian neighbor, will play a bolder hand in European affairs and whereby Spain, in return, will receive assistance in bettering her finances and in developing her natural

Spain's military strength counts for comparatively little, if considered within itself alone, but as an adjunct to that of France it would become important-In commenting on this aspect of the rumored alliance, the Washington Post points out that "Spain s not confronted by menacing neighbors, like her new ally; and in the event of trouble, her contribution to the mutual activities would be employed within French territory. No concealment of that feature of the arrangement is attempted, the French press favorably commenting on the prospect that two hundred thousand fine soldiers would thus become available for the defense of the country."

Never within recent years has the equilibrium of the Triple Alliance and the Triple Entente been so unsteady as withi the past few seasons. Germany and Austria are suspiciously watching every shadow of France and England and Russia. Especially marked just now is the distruct between Germany and France. The mere hint of a Franco-Spanish alliance is, thereore, enough to set Europe tiptoe with expectancy.

The demand of the Senate Republicans for new hearings on the Underwood tariff bill is obviously a bit of political strategy intended to delay and entangle this all-important measure.

For six weeks or more, the ways and means committee of the House was engaged in hearing the claims and protests of every interest that was concerned in tariff revision. The reports of those proceedings would fill a volume of several thousand pages. The committee began holding sessions before the new Congress assembled and granted a full and free hearing to all who wished to present their

It would, therefore, be merely a repetition of this work to reopen the hearings before the Senate finance committee. There is no desire for precipitate or ill-considered action on tariff revision, but the country has waited decades for a sorely needed reform in this field of its economic affairs. In this eleventh hour, when a bill that is fair and that is acceptable to the public has passed the House, reactionary efforts should not be countenanced.

Behind me, bearing me on, is Power. This Power energizes me, it is within me. It throbs like a locomotive, it hums like a high-powered motor, it roars dull and deep as a blast-furnace. The Phoenicians were absorbed in trade. They were great merchants. They carried their commerce to the ends of the known world. But they were unscrupulous in their dealings and acquired a bad name among the peoples with whom they had to do. Art and literature never interested them. They developed no public spirit, no civic virtues. All that they cared for was to make money. So, lacking ideals, they finally perished from the earth leaving nothing but their name, having made no contribution to civilization except, perhaps, the alphabet.

Side by side with Phoenicia grew up another civilization, absorbed in everything the "practical" man detests. Education, art, literature, science, philosophy, flourished wonderfully in Greece. True, the Greek peoples finally degenerated and lost their su-

THE INCOME TAX

VII.-Exempting Small Incomes. BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

The first problem in passing an income tax is to determine what limit shall be fixed below which incomes shall not be taxed. It is always recognized that people have a right to an income large enough to maintain themselves under decent standards of living, free from taxation. To deny them this right is practically to force them upon the charity of others or the alms of the state. The exemption is generally known to economists as the "minimum of existence," and, of course it varies with the many standards of living in the several countries. What would be low exemption in the United States would be a rather high one in England and a very high one in Germany. There is a tendency in England and its colonies in favor of high exemptions, since there is a desire to shield from undue burden the people whose incomes but little more than suffice for the needs of their families.

On the continent, on the other hand, the tendency is to tax everybody, but to make the rates for the people of small income so low that their taxes are only large enough to teach them a proper interest in the government and a proper appreciation of its powers. In some countries there is a system of abatements which lowers the tax rate as the ability to pay grows less in the individual.

There is usually a limit, however, below which any country will not go in taxing incomes. This not only arises from the fact that money taken from people who have no margin of profit above the most pressing needs and peremptory requirements may have to be refunded to them in the form of charity, but more so from the fact that the cost of collecting and keeping the record of very small sums is greater than the amount collected. As no government cares to pay out more than it gets in for the mere purpose of getting it in, there is a limit beyond which reasons other than consideration for the taxpayer prompt the taxing

. . . On the other hand, when exemptions are raised to a point too far up the scale it throws the burden upon such a comparatively few people that it comes to be dangerous class legislation. In a republic such a policy so restricts the number of taxpayers that the masses never feel the tax, and often it leads them to unjust discrimination against the well-to-do. When the majority, and especially an overwhelming majority of the voters, are not affected by an income tax law, it is but natural that they should, in the beginning, look with equanimity upon heavy taxes against the minority, and finally come to be dissatisfied with anything but the heaviest burdens for the shoulders of the rich, in order that the burden may be taken off their own.

There are two methods of making exemptions under various income tax laws. Under the one method the law says that incomes below a certain sum shall be exempt, while all incomes above that amount shall be taxed at their full amount. Under the other method the exemption applies to all incomes, no matter what their amount. Under the former plan, where there was an exemption of $1,000 and incomes above that were taxed at 2 per cent, an income of $999 might pay nothing, while an income of $1,001 would pay $20.02. Wherever the income exceeded the exemption the entire income would be assessed at the regular rate. Under the latter plan, where there is an exemption of $1,000 and a man's income is $2,000, the man would have to pay his 2 per cent on the second 1,000 only. There are many cases where the laws have been entirely ambiguous upon the subject, and judicial construction had to be obtained. In the United States it has been the practice to exempt everybody from the payment of a tax upon the portion of their income below the point of exemption. In other words, if there be an exemption of $4,000, as there was under the last income tax law. and a man have an income of $5,000, he would have to pay his tax only upon the difference between his total income and the legal exemption, or, in this case, upon only $1,000.

. . . Exemptions from the payment of taxes extended to people of small means are by no means a new development. As far back as 1708 France began to exempt first individuals and then whole classes. These exemptions became so numerous that after awhile it almost wholly undermined the existing system of taxation. In 1803 England established a scheme of exemptions that not only exempted all incomes below $300, but which also, allowed a sliding scale of further exemptions for all children in the home above two. Forty years later Great Britain increased the exemption to $750 and made it apply to all incomes, instead of to personal exertion incomes as had been the practice.

Exemptions; even when very low, absolve the great majority of the people from the payment of income taxes. If the United States should decide to exempt all incomes of $4,000 and less, the number of people who would have to pay the tax would be very small indeed, when compared with the total population. The government service affords a criterion of what might be expected under such an exemption. There are some 400,000 civilian workers in the employ of Uncle Sam. Yet, when one goes to count those who have incomes of more than 4,000 he finds them few and far between. Considering their salaries alone-and few government employes ever get a chance to save enough to enjoy much other income-one might assume that the number of people who enjoy incomes of $4,000 a year from their work for Uncle Sam is certainly not more than 4,000. There are a large number of presidential appointees whose incomes do not amount to $4,000 a year, and there are some who are not presidential appointees who get more than $4,000, but they probably approximately balance and, therefore, we are justified in assuming that the workers for Uncle Sam in the $4,000 class approximately equal and certainly do not exceed the number of presidential appointees outside of the second and third-class postoffices.

As will be explained more fully in a subsequent article, when the constitutionality of the law of 1894 was attacked, it was more upon the ground that the exemption of $4,000 was too high, so high as to destroy all the claim it might have to being uniform within the meaning of that word as used in the constitution. Page after page of argument was brought forward to prove that the tax was levied upon such a small number of people as to put it without the pale of constitutionality, and the lawyers who attacked the act predicated their main fight against it upon that idea. It so happened, however, that the court did not pay much attention to their arguments on that score, but finally declared that the $4,000 exemption was not a valid constitutional objection against the law.

If the United States should adopt a $4,000 exemption it will declare to the world that its living standard is higher than that of any other nation, for no other nation that levies an income tax makes such a wholesale exemption. Not many countries fail to tax incomes that are only a fourth as large, and some of them go much farther down the line. To say that $4,000 is the "minimum of existence" in the United States would be to fly in the face of fact, for certainly nineteen out of twenty families in the United States live and grow up with much smaller incomes than that. When congress fixes the exemption it will probably have a twofold aim in mind-to make it high enough so that all question of the burdensomeness of the tax can be eliminated, and yet low enough that sufficient incomes are reached to make the tax yield enough revenue to insure the treasury against a deficit.

Very Few People Know That Pacific Coast Star Is Brother of Claude Derrick, Now With New York

Let us introduce Mr. Fred Derrick tar first baseman of the Portland Seavers, a native of Georgia, a college fraternity man and a good fellow. Derrick is one of the youngest sea soned ball players in the Coast league this being his fourth year at the game If he continues to show the improvement that has been apparent since he has been with the Beavers, it will not be long before he is a big tent regular in the American association last year e was regarded as one of the greatest fielders that ever worked around the nitial sack. He was regarded as the qual of Ed Konetchy, star right handed irst baseman of the St. Louis Nationils, and nearly as good as Jake Daubert and Hal Chase, but, of course, did not ait in their class. All that he needs to to is to hit the ball around the .275 mark and it is a cinch that he will be taken up there. From present appearance he is going to have a good season with the stick, as he has been knocking the ball around the lot in great style. Allen, Curtis and Miller; Fromme, Betts and In addition, Derrick is one of the fastest men in the league and when the base running record is compiled at the Perdue and Whaling and Raridan; Griner and end of the season he will be found right among the top notchers.

Heretofore Derrick has been handi capped by a touch of malaria and an attack of boils, which have interfered with his work, but he is getting over both of them. Fred was born at Berton, Ga., ten ATHENS, Ga., May 14.-The fans of Athens are pulling for Georgia to get whic his to be played between Georgia and Tech this week. Both teams are on edge, and from the games in Athens last week it seems that the team which gets the jump will win.

Early in the first game the Tech nine took the lead, and by reason of their steady game retained it. Cunningham is working his men endeavoring make them hit their hitting stride appeared that they were a wonderful aggregation of hitters but weak in pitchers. In the games with Tech, however, the pitchers, Morris and Corley, with the battery mate Hutchens, played Georgia's best game, and the hitters were outshone by the Tech aggregation. In other words, the hitters were in their prime earlier in the season and have had a reversal of form, while the pitchers who have been coming stronger all the while are now going their best gait.

Cunningham states that Corley, whe is in better shape just now than Morris, may work both the Atlanta games This lad is capable of doing this stunt, as he is big and strong, and is in the pink of condition just now. With the headwork of big Hutchens behind the bat, Corley is a puzzle to opposing

In this case he will be the second man on the batting list, Harrison, who has been patting second, going to sixth place. April Report of National Egg=Laying Contest

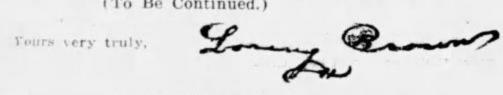

P until May first the hens had averaged fifteen more eggs than last year for the same period. The English pen of White Leghorns is still making a steady gain. Some suggestions as to why the English pen is in the lead. It now begins to look like most of the pens in the National Laying Contest at Mountain Grove. Mo., are going to make really creditable records. No records are being broken. However, every hen in the contest but nine has laid, and they all seem to be doing their best. No individual or pen record is extremely high, but up to May first, the hens had averaged fifteen eggs each more than for the same period last year. The English pen is still gaining a little each month over the American pens. Some suggestions as to the reason for their record and their lead over the American pens are discussed in the latter part of this report. A Buff Wyandotte hen, No. 600, from Maryville, Mo., holds the record for April by laying an egg every day during the month. The hens are eating more feed than last year, especially is this true of the dry mash. Pen No. 26, Buff Wyandotte. laid 240 eggs during the month, an average of twenty-four eggs per hen for the thirty days, and won the silver cup for this month. Twentyfour pens laid over 200 eggs each during the month of April- Three hundred and sixty-seven hens laid more than twenty eggs each during the month. Out of the 700 hens, over half of them laid more than twenty eggs each in thirty days in spite of the fact that 195 hens had to be broken from broodiness. The ten leading pens have made the following record for the first five Pon No. 2-S C White Leborns, England

QUESTIONS ASKED AND ANSWERED.

QUESTION.

Atlanta, Ga. I find I have a Rhode Island Red hen now laving that opens her lying to force some object up, and also have two Khode Island Red hens that have a little water runhing from one eye. Would you tindly advise me what to do for M. B.

Some time when chickens are onfined they form a habit of shaking their head, especially after nd undertake to shake the water off. This especially is the case during winter. I have often noced chickens that do not have ienty exercise and much to do orm a habit of this. It does not affect them and you should not rive yourself any uneasiness about t However, your hen may have been choked or she may have a case of roup. It would be impossible for me to tell just what the trouble is unless I could see her. Vaseline for any throat trouble is usually the best thing that can be given. Sometimes they will get something in their throat and it will become irritated, and in a case of this kind a treatment of vaseline is the best thing that can be given.

The hens that have water running from their eyes probably have roup, as it affects them this way. By the free use of Conkey's Roupe remedies this can be avoided or cured if, taken in time. You should also see that they do not roost in a draught or in a damp place.

QUESTION. Atlanta, Ga. Will you kindly publish this answer in The Journal. I have a Buff Orpington rooster, and he has the blind staggers, I think. He will try to walk and falls over on his right side and can't get up. His side seems to be paralyzed and he has no control over his body

Thanking you for all favors and wishing you success, I am, A. H. B.

ANSWER. When a bird gets in the fix yours is in the best remedy for him is the hatchet. It does not pay to doctor sick birds and when they become paralyzed they seldom ever recover

BRONCHITIS SUFFERER

Takes Druggist's Advice With Splendid Result.

If any one should know the worth of a medicine, it is the retail druggist who sells it over his counter every day in the week, and is in a position to know what remedy gives the best satisfaction. Mrs. Frank H. Uline of West Sand

Lak, N. Y., says: "For a number of years I was a great sufferer from bronchitis. Last July I had an attack which was more severe than any and my friends thought I could not recover from it. Then I was advised by my druggist to try Vinol, which I did with wonderful results. My cough has left me; I have gained in weight and appetite and I am as strong as ever I was. I advise all who have bronchitis, chronic coughs, or who are run-down to try Vinol." It is the combined action of the medicinal curative elements of the cod's liver, without oil, aided by the blood-making and strength-creating properties of tonic iron that makes Vinol so efficient in such cases, Remember, we guarantee Vinol to do just what we say-we pay back your money if it does not.
