"THE NEW BATTLE OF ATLANTA" FOUGHT IN U. S. A. ASSEMBLY THURSDAY, SAYS WM. T. ELLIS

Dr. Stone, the U. S. A. Moderator, Is a Hard Working Pastor and an Effective Evangelist - Dr. Lyons, the U. S. Moderator, Represents Liberal Wing of Church

By William T. Ellis

DEED- without precedent in Presbyterian history was wrought yesterday in Atlanta, when the dicted and unexpected man was overwhelmingly thrust into the moderator's chair. Rev. John Timothy Stone, of Chicago, is today the highest official of the Presbyterian church in the U. S. A., in vindication of the principle of

and an unpre-

self-government, of wnich he is now as truly a symbol as the gavel which he wields is the symbol of the moderatorial office. Yesterday afternoon's session in the Tabernacle was a dramatic illustration of the truth that popular rule must prevail. What has been happening throughout the country in politics has now been dpulicated in the church from whose form of government republican institutions take their rise.

For long years to come the tale of the spectacular "battle of Atlanta" will be told in Presbyterian circles the world around. Men conversant with general assembly precedents search their memorles in vain for any analogy to yesterday's action. The experience likest to it occurred nine years ago at Buffalo when, while the shrewd campaigners were "jockeying for position" in the nominating speeches, a commissioner arose and moved that the nominations be closed, thus electing Rev. J. Addison Henry, D. D., a veteran Philadelphia pastor. Then, as yesterday, an altogether worthy and distinguished Pittsburg divine was disappointed in his apparently reasonable expectation of becoming moderator. On that occasion also one of yesterday's candidates. Rev. Dr. Howard Agnew Johnston, was in the field.

THE BATTLE OF ATLANTA. The new "battle of Atlanta" deserves chronicling in detail. As all interested Presbyterians knew weeks ago, there were four candidates in the field. About the two leaders various parties, theological and administrative, had grouped themselves. It was apparent that Rev. Dr. Maitland Alexander, of Pittsburg, was the leading candidate. He was recognized as a markedly gifted man, in all respects fit for the office. He bore a historic Presbyterian name. He was a moderate conservative in theology, but a progressive in service, being the pastor of what is probably the most successful downtown church in the country. Besides, he is a scholar and a Christian gentleman, peculiarly qualified to preside with grace over these unusual sessions. The one regrettable feature of yesterday's proceedings was that he, and other fine men, should be caught under the falling roof when the structure of long custom was brought crashing to the ground. His own candidacy was peculiarly free from the discreditable features of some of these pre-arranged candidacies of the past.

The nominating speeches, on the whole, were poor. They had been too long in incubation. They lacked spontaneity and the ring of simple genuineness. The best of the four expected speeches was by a Texan, Rev. A. L. Bishop, but his candidate. Dr. Johnson, was in a hopeless

Then, to the surprise of everybody, a man who proved to be Rev.

W. R. King, of Monmouth, Ill., arose and declared that he wanted to nominate a man who did not expect to be nominated, and who would be the most surprised man in the assembly when he heard his name. Moreover, not a single commissioner, said the speaker, knew whom he was about to nominate; his candidate had no claims upon the assembly, but the assembly had claims on him. The aptest utterance from the platform was Mr. King's revealing statement "my candidate has the tenderness of John, the evangelistic spirit of Timothy, and the strength of Peter"which, since most of the commissioners knew that Peter is Greek for stone, revealed John Timothy Stone. The applause that greeted Mr. King's straightforward speech showed how widespread was the desire for a "dark horse," and how welcome was the opportunity to vote for a man whose name was on

THE REAL ISSUE. Men experienced in public assemblies at once predicted the election of Dr. Stone. It was essential, however, that there should be no misunderstanding or misinterpretation of this event. No room should be left for any ecclesiastic to say that Dr. Stone was elected by caprice, or because of a mischievous spirit of iconoclasm, or because of Dr. Stone's personal popularity. Therefore William T. Ellis arose, and in terms pointed out that the real issue before the assembly was whether government by caucus and prearrangement should be continued. He told the commissioners that they were voting upon the question of ecclesiastical politics rather than upon the name of any individual, and he was careful to exonerate the candidates from culpability. As I recall that speech, it sounded very much like an article in yesterday's Journal. Only two ballots were necessary. Dr. Stone led all the other candidates on the first ballot, and on

An excoriation of the divorce evil and resolutions recommending action by every presbytery in the Northern assembly are embodied in the report of the special committee on Christian life and work, which will be considered by the Northern assembly at the

THE CHURCH'S DUTY. "This matter is pre-eminently the care of the church. It reaches down to the vitals of the church and the state. Your committee has corresponded directly with the authorities in several of our synods and presbyteries and report a desire on the part of many to take advanced steps pertaining to the regulation of marriage and divorce. But it is evident that our ministers and our churches are not grappling with this great evil as they should. They are not keeping themselves informed as to the situation except in a general way. The result is that the movement for reform needs a great new stimulus of thought and ef-"We recommend the following reso-

RINGWORM AROUND EDGE OF HAIR

Itched and Burned. Scratched and Made Sores. Hair Came Out by Combfuls. Cured by Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment.

R. F. D. No. 4, Honea Path, S. C .- "Cuticura Soap and Cintment have done so much for me I would like other sufferers to try them. Last spring I had a very severe case of ringworm. It began in a ring around the edge of my hair. It looked like little pimples, and itched and burned so much and when I scratched it, it made sores. My hair came out by the combfuls. I lost fully one third of it. It kept getting werse so I could scarcely rest at night, it would itch and burn

"I bought a box of Cuticura Ointment and a cake of Cuticura Soap, washed my head good in warm water and Cuticura Soap, rubbed the scalp good with Cuticura Ointment, let it stay on all night and washed it off the next morning. I kept the treatment up for about two weeks and my head was entirely well and I have seen no signs of it since. My face was covered with bolls and I began using Cuticura Soap and they all disappeared. Cuticura Soap and Ointment cured me completely." (Signed) Miss Maude Sharpe, Mar. 25, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment do so much for pimples, blackheads, red, rough skins, Itching, scaly scalps, dandruff, dry, thin and falling hair, chapped hands and shapeless nails, that it is almost criminal not to use them. Surprise Boxes Just Unpacked And When They Were Opened There Was The Daintiest French Hand-Made Lingerie

The daintiest, the charmingest that ever we have seen at these prices!

Indeed, a new standard of value has been set for French Underwear.

The prices are less than what is usually called fair. They are low, very low; which you will better understand once you see the garments.

Nainsooks are so sheer and soft and beautifully woven-they could not have come but from France; and the hand-embroidery, as neat, as regular, as "sweet" and pretty—those who do such work will marvel that garments showing so much of it could possibly be sold at such prices. Indeed, these were surprise boxes!

Gowns

Prices begin at $3.00 for nainsook gowns, chemise cut with dainty scallops and short sleeves. At $3.50 the ribbons appear, run through hand-embroidered ey elets, chemise cut style or buttoning in front. Then at $5.00 are the more elaborately worked gowns, chemise and low neck yokes, open

Corset Covers

A novelty even at $1.75. A corset cover with short sleeves that act as a shield. Also all the fullness of the garment is confined in tucks. Then at $1.98, $2.50, $3.00 and $3.75 are corset covers that grow in beauty as prices mount-and the embroidery is all done with such exquisite neatness and in such novel and attractive patterns that a woman's appreciation of it will be great.

Drawers

Priced at $2.50, $2.75, $3, $3.50 and $3.75. Until now very dainty.

Petticoats

Of straight lines, fitted and all hand-made. And of special value even in this unusual lot are the petticoats at $2.75 and $3.00. They are narrow, with embroidered flat flounce, which shows a row of hand-worked insertion at the top. You will quickly note that in all the seams pearling is used.

Combination Suits

At $5.00, $6.00, $6.95 and $7.50. Corset cover and drawers. Those at $5.00, as well as those at all the other prices, are more elaborately embroidered than any we have ever had at corresponding prices-the ribbon-run beadings at the waist are acknowledge one universal church, the same in all ages, and of which Christ is the head. The church invisible consists of all the redeemed. The church visible is composed of all those throughout the world who profess in Jesus Christ, together with their children and it is the duty of all believers openly to profess their faith by uniting with the church. The church exists to bring to Christ those whom the Father has given him, and to establish the Redeemer's kingdom. The mission of the church is spiritual, and its work is to witness to the truth of God to the ends of the earth, and to preach the gospel to all men in every generation. We believe in the separation of church and state. The scriptural form of church government is by elders or presbyters, chosen by the members of the church; but we do not regard the form of government of a church as essential to its existence. We recognize the validity of the ministry and sacraments of all evangelical churches, and all very good. We invite to the Lord's table all who love Him in sincerity and truth and who are in good and regular standing in evangelical churches XIV.—DEATH AND RESURRECTION.

The souls of believers are at their death made perfect in holiness; and do immediately pass into glory, and their bodies, being still united to Christ, do rest in the grave till the resurrection At the resurrection, believers being raised up in glory, shall be openly acknowledged and acquitted in the day of judgment, and made perfectly blessed in the full enjoyment of God to all eternity; but the wicked shall go away into everlasting punish-last November's vote If ocular demonstration were needed that Dr. Stone did not remotely anticipate the presentation of his name it was given when he was escorted to the platform, for he wore a decidedly unministerial suit of light gray clothes and a blue necktie. From the sartorial standpoint, such a figure never before stood in the moderator's office. But he made a speech of acceptance that warmed all hearts the deep piety of the man overflowing from every sentence. WHO DR. STONE IS.

Dr. Stone represents no party. He is a hard-working pastor, whose special identification has been with evangelistic service and with missionary interests. He has had phenomenal success in attracting strong men to the church and he presents the somewhat unusual spectacle of a deeply spiritual man as the successful pastor of a wealthy city church. Before going to Chicago, Dr. Stone was the pastor of Brown Memorial church, Baltimore, as successor to the late

Dr. Maltbie D. Babcock. A sidelight on the character of Dr. Stone was given by some commissioners this morning, who report that yesterday afternoon, just prior to the meeting of the assembly, Dr. Stone gathered half a dozen friends in his room for a prayer meeting, to pray that the assembly might be guided aright

persons. The gentlemen who fill the cushioned black-leather chairs in the Piedmont hotel are trying happened. They insist that some deep laid plan was successfully worked. Anything else is incredible to them. They openly declare that there must have been politics of a shrewder and subtler sort than their own. They merely look wise over Dr. Stone's protest that he was utterly unaware of what was coming. They flatly refuse to believe the reiterated statement of a minister of the Gospel. Mr. King, that no man was cognizant of his action. The equally unequivocal statement of Mr. Ellis that he never saw or heard of Mr. King until he arose in the assembly, and that he never in anywise communicated with him, is received with skepticism. The suggestion that the whole procedure was the fulfilment of the primary Presbyterian doctrine of government by the spirit through presbyters, is greeted with something like sneers. Such a state of mind as this i worse than any act of ecclesiastical politics or any doctrinal heresies; it denies the spirit of the gospel and threatens to eat into the life of the church like a gangrene. If the ecclesiastics would but forsake one another's company for a while, and talk with the ordinary, obscure commissioners who are guests in Atlanta homes, they would learn that these men still believe in the ability of the general assembly to perform all its functions without preliminary caucusing, campaigning or wire-pulling. The Salary System Law.

The Supreme Court holds in a unanimous decision of that the law placing the officials of Fulton under a salary instead of a fee system is unconstitutional and hence invalid. The measure in question, though passed by a general act, was in effect, says the Court, a special act applying in practice to only one county. "Laws of a general nature shall have uniform opera tion throughout the State and no special law shall be enacted in any case for which provision has been made by an existing general law." This, the Court quotes from the constitution, and adds, "A general law may be repealed or modified by a special or local law."

In these circumstances, it becomes the duty of those who favor the salary as opposed to the fee system, not only in Fulton county but throughout the State, to bestir themselves in behalf of legislation that will stand the test of the constitution and the courts. That there are thousands and tens of thousands who recognize the wisdom and justice of abolishing the fee system, there can be no doubt; and, if they will bring their influence to bear upon their representatives in the General Assembly, a durable and satisfactory law can be secured.

County officials, like all public servants, should be well paid, but they should be paid for the service they render and not according to the fees they can collect. Every dollar above adequate salaries should go into the public treasury and be used for the upbuilding of the common interests. That is good business as well as fair play. The fee system is too crude and antiquated for a progressive State like Georgia. It is too susceptible of abuses to be retained; but it can only be supplanted by united public influence.

Reducing Typhoid

The census bureau reports that the typhoid death rate has been reduced from twenty-three and fivetenths to twenty-one per hundred thousand of the population. This improvement, though appreciable, is far less than that which has been effected in other fields of disease, and leaves America still a long way behind France, Germany and Austria.

Such progress as has been made against typhoid is due largely to perfected and extended methods of canitation and to the educational campaigns of medical societies and boards of health. To be sure, the disease is treated more effectively than it was years ago, but in this, as in all health interests of today, emphasis is laid on preventive rather than curative

Municipal and county governments should see to" it that every possible source of typhoid is removed. Neglect of sewerage facilities or of the water supply or of garbage disposal is nothing short of criminal. Many of the duties and responsibilities of public health, however, must be borne by the individual citizen and household. At the approach of summer it becomes especially important that every home protect itself and its neighborhood against the peril of disease in general and that of typhoid in particular. Clean premises and well screened windows and doors will go far toward putting an end to the fly, which is the bearer of all manner of disease.

Atlanta's climate is naturally healthful at all seasons of the year, and with due vigilance on the part of public authorities, supplemented by watchfulness on the part of individuals, this community's mortality from typhold should be reduced to a minimum.

A Noteworthy Movement For Drainage Enterprises.

The drainage congress which is to be held at Commerce on May the twenty-third betokens the keen interest which Georgia farmers are coming to feel in the matter of reclaiming swamp and overflow lands. In Gwinnett county, the recent progress of such enterprises has been especially marked. The drainage work now being done in the vicinity of Haynes creek has attracted popular notice throughout the surrounding districts because of its economic methods and because of the great benefits it prom ises to yield.

It is said that as a result of this one undertaking organizations have been formed in several neighboring communities and that in the counties round about plans are being made to drain a number of farms which are now subject to overflow from rivers

Indeed, the interest in this cause is so widespread and pronounced that the farmers have decided to assemble at Commerce and to discuss plans for a permanent and inclusive organization through which they may better serve their common welfare in reclamation endeavors. The convention will be notably educational in its effect, for among those who will be present and make addresses are State Geologist McCallie, Mr. J. V. Phillips, representing the federal government; Mr. L. P. Aiken, president of the Georgia Drainage Congress, and Dr. A. M. Souie, president of the State College of Agriculture.

When it is reflected that one-fourteenth of the entire area of Georgia is in swamp or overflow land and that thus a vast amount of soil which might be turned to productive account is lying useless, the importance of the drainage movement becomes evident. It is to be hoped that the progressive example of the farmers of Gwinnett will stimulate other counties to join in this vitally-needed constructive

Conserving the Birds.

President Wilson's executive order setting apart a large tract of government land in Arkansas to be used by the Department of Agriculture as a breeding place for native birds should be of interest not only to Audubon societies and nature clubs but also to the general public. Efforts to protect America's bird life against ruthless destruction long since ceased to be a crusade of sentiment and became a very sober and practical task in behalf of the country's welfare. Common experience as well as science attests the great value of insect-eating birds to the farm and orchard and forest; and there is no field to which the principles of conservation can be applied more seasonably or more profitably than to the due safeguarding and fostering of useful birds.

Many States, Georgia among them, have within recent years enacted better game laws and are seeing to it that these statutes are more thoroughly enforced. The national law providing federal protection for migratory birds is another step in the right direction. It is essential, however, that we have more than merely prohibitive or negative legislation, if our efforts to preserve the birds are suc-

The allotment of a tract of government land for the breeding of birds is especially commendable for the reason that it is a constructive step. It is in line with the far-sighted policy long pursued in Germany and other European countries where insect destroying birds are not only protected but are also encouraged by means of various devices. It is cheering to know that our own government, through the Department of Agriculture, will henceforth take more interest in such enterprises.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE NEWSPAPERS OF AMERICA

BY DE. FRANK CRANE.

(Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)

During the month of May this year there was held in Berne, Switzerland, an international meeting of journalists. There have been international gatherings of all kinds new and again, of missionaries, of doctors, of diplomats and others, but, perhaps, no class need internationalizing more than newspaper men.

"Public Opinion," said "Toussenel, "is the queen of the world, and the Press is her prime minister."

There is no doubt that the greatest power today in America and Europe is that in the hand of the editor. What is needed in all forms of power is an accompanying sense of responsibility. Irresponsible, greedy, selfish power is a devastating curse, whether of kings, soldiers or newspaper men.

They who control newspapers can preserve law and order, punish crime, expose grafters, chase dishonest officials from office, and stimulate and confirm right ideals among the people. Or, on the contrary, they may direct their energies toward fomenting trouble and encouraging false and vicious tendencies, and thus become the most active of nuisances.

The United States is at a crisis at present with Japan which caffs for all our self-restraint, courtesy and common sense.

We don't want war. Under no circumstances should international differences of opinion call for the destruction of human lives and of property in order to arrive at an understanding. It is safe to say that if the press of this country is conscious of its high responsibilities, and of the tremendous consequences of its utterance, and takes the high plane of justice and humanity there can be no

Gentlemen of the press, realize your accountability to this great people and to Almighty God. Think what war means, the horror of it, the medieval ignorance that renders it necessary, the appalling stupidity of resorting to it, and the price, we pay in slaughter and waste!

A visit to Egypt today is a far different undertaking than it was some twenty years ago. The changeless East is still unchanged. But the hand of modernity has wrought some very desirable changes in botel life and in the highly important matter of railway transit. The visitor today finds himself steeped in all the wonderful glamour, the strange calm and mystleism of the East, but he has only to stretch forth a hand to avail himself of the thousand-andone amenities and comforts and facilities of the twentieth century life.

Snap Bean Farm

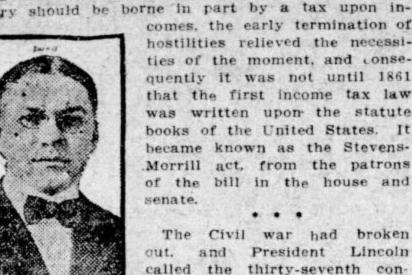

(The Outlook.)

The Outlook recorded with pleasure the fact that the Uncle Remus Memorial association has secured the "Wren's Nest," home of the late Joel Chandler Harris, as a monument to his memory. Few writers have been so deservedly beloved as the spokesman of Br'er Rabbit and Br'er Fox. His death was a loss not only to American letters but to American life as well. The same association is now hoping to add to its present holdings "Snap Bean Farm," a plot of land originally part of the Harris homestead, which received that whimsical title from Uncle Remus himself. Most appropriately, the memorial association intends to use the "farm" as a children's playground, fitting it up with swings, joggling-boards, croquet grounds, and, we hope-though this has not been promisedsand piles for the building of rabbit burrows, fox holes, bear caves, or whatever else happens to appeal to active imaginations and small browned hands. Each spring the "farm" is to be used for the May Day festival, an annual entertainment that brings in some $200 towards the support of the memorial. Maypole dances, a flag drill, ice cream, cakes molded to a speaking likeness of the animals of which-perhaps we should say of whom-Uncle Remus loved to write, are some of the attractive features of this occasion. The fearsome delight of eating up Br'er Fox (preserving his bushy tail for the final bite) must appeal to all children, young and old. Those who feel that they would enjoy such a meal should send a check to the Uncle Remus Memorial Association, 410 Peachtree street, Atlanta, Ga.

THE INCOME TAX

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

While Secretary of the Treasury Dallas suggested. during the War of 1812, that the war burdens of the country should be borne in part by a tax upon in-

The Civil war had broken out, and President Lincoln called the thirty-seventh congress into extraordinary session "on account of the opposition to and obstruction made to the execution of the laws of the United States in certain southern states, by combinations too powerful to be suppressed by the ordinary course of judicial proceedings or by the powers vested in marshals by the law." About to first duty that devolved upon the congress was to provide sufficient revenues to meet the large expenditures the war called for. There was much difference of opinion as to just what ought to be done. Thaddeus Stevens, from the ways and means committee, brought in a tariff bill, which he asked the house to vote upon after one hour's consideration, all amendments to be voted upon without further debate. . . .

The next day Clement Vallandigham, afterward the great Ohio copperhead, offered a substitute repealing the tariff law that had been enacted two days before President Buchanan left the White House. It was refected, but the Stevens bill was so badly crippled by the many amendments that were adopted in committee of the whole, that when it was reported to the house, Stevens offered his original bill as a substitute. When the house voted to pass the measure it contained a number of amendments. When it went to the senate that body did not like it, and amended it by striking out everything but the "Be it enacted" clause, inserting a substitute measure. This was finally amended by the insertion of a clause providing for an income tax of 5 per cent on all incomes in excess of $1,000. with 1 1-2 per cent on income derived from United States securities. The clause made the tax 7 1-2 per cent on the income of Americans residing abroad, with the exception of income from United States securities, and they were to be taxed 2 1-2 per cent on their incomes from these. Upon the statement that this clause followed the rule, practice and law of England for a period of fifty years it was passed even without

While the senate was amending the house bill by complete substitution, the house brought out another bill providing for a direct tax and an income tax. As it finally passed that body it provided for a direct tax of twenty mills on the dollar and an income tax of 5 per.cent on all incomes of $600 or upward. This bill went to the senate and was pigeon-holed. Meanwhile the other bill had been sent to conference. There the conferees drew a new bill, which was a complete substitute for the house measure and a modified substitute for the senate measure. It reduced exempted incomes to $800, and the tax from 5 per cent to 3 per cent. This action finally became the law, but it remained on the statute books for only six months. It was repealed by the act of July 1, 1862, which cut down the exempted income to $600, and fixed the tax rate at 3 per cent on incomes below $10,000, and at 5 per cent alove that point. The tax on income from government bonds was placed at 1 1-2 per cent.

This second income tax law lasted two years. By that time the man who could suggest new items to tax and new methods of increasing revenues from existing laws was regarded as a patriot and hailed as a statesman. During the summer of 1864 the income tax law was somewhat amended, with a view to increasing the revenues, and the day before the second inauguration of President Lincoln it was still further amended. This amendment increased the tax from 3 per cent to 5 per cent on incomes between $600 and $5,000, and fixed the tax on incomes above $5,000 at 10 per cent. This became effective just about the time the war closed, and brought the receipts up to the highest notch in the history of income taxation in America. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1866, the total collections under the income tax law were upward of $60,000,000, and the next year it was but little less.

In 1867 the revenues of the government from the income tax law having exceeded the needs of the federal treasury, it was decided to amend the law by cutting out all discriminatory taxes against large incomes. With this in mind a uniform tax of 5 per cent was levied against all incomes above $1,000. The amended law also contained a provision that it should expire by limitation at the end of the year 1870. . . .

In 1870 an act was passed extending the operation of the law for another year. The extension was made in July, and in December an effort was made to repeal the law. The act providing for its repeal originated in the senate, where it passed, with only one vote to spare. When this action was communicated to the house, Mr. Hooper, of Massachusetts, arose to a question of privilege, and declared that the senate had no right to originate such a measure. Samuel J. Randall denied that the matter involved a question of privlege. Speaker Blaine overruled Randall's contentien, and Hooper's resolution was adopted, sending the act back of the senate with the polite information that the senate had no right to originate such a measure. The senate as politely informed the house that it did have such a right, and requested a conference upon the subject. While the merry little war was being waged back and forth the income tax law died by its pwn limitation, an so it never was repealed. This recalls the fact stated in a previous article that the law of 1894 did not need to be repealed after 1900, since it expired by limitation that year.

Or, Who performs the most heroic act or acts? We should answer Carton. Without the aid of Carton, how could Darnay gotten out of prison? Without the aid of Carton, how could the Mannett family and Darnay made their escape from Paris? To illustrate the fact that without sich a man as Carton the main action could not have gone on, there are many more examples than those above mentioned. But it is not absolutely essential to have such a man as Darnay, i. e., he had no particularly rare characteristics, he was only a man with ordinary characteristics whose place most any man could fill. Of cause, he was strong, and kind, and all that, but he did not have such a noble character as Carton, as was shown by Carton sacrificing his life for parnay, Carton's love for Lucy Mannett was that of a real true friend, and the hero of a romance must always bear this love toward the heron, and must express it by doing some noble deed, and this is where Darnay does not shine so trightly, for though he loves Lucy dearly, he does not perform any heroic act.

Lungs Affected By Rheumatism,

Pneumonia, Bronchitis, Asthma and Anemis Often Directly the Results of Rheu-

Troubles by Using S. S. S.

If you have a persistent, nagging bronchial cough beware of cough remedies. They are merely local in action, and if they do relieve it is the nar-cotics that do it. What you require is a blood purifier, a searching antidote that removes from the circulation the acid poisons that by their reflexes attack all weakened, susceptible spots and thus create local symptoms. The very best remedy known is Swift's Sure Specific. You will find it on sale in any drug store at $1.00 per bottle. It goes straight into the blood, becomes an internal blood bath, wonderfully stimulates the increase of red corpuscles, cures all the local fever spots and irritations, increases appetite, you take on flesh and feel a wonderful sense of renewed strength Hundreds of people worried beyond control at cough, pains in the chest, sore throat and constant expectoration of thick mucus have experienced the most wonderful change after using S. S. S. All doubt and apprehension is gone, those peculiar pains and aches vanish, there follows a period of most intense rejoicing to find that worst fears were based entirely upon a mistaken notion that cough and chest pains come from the lungs. These are rheumatic conditions, and you will quickly realize it after using S. S. S. for a few days. Get a bottle of S. S. S. to-day at the drug store and then say good-bye to all those pains that have Write to Swift Specific Co., 137 Swift

From a Man's Point of View

It used to be said that newspaper advertising held very little interest for men. They were too busy, and were quite willing that their wives and mothers and sisters should read advertisements and attend to the household shopping.

That is all different now. At the clubs, in the hotels-wherever men meet-you hear them chatting about the new hats at So-and-So's, or the smart boots at a popular shop, or the splendid and satisfactory service received at a well-known haberdashery.

Many stores make a special effort to plan their merchandising so that men, busy, particular men, may shop conveniently, quickly, and be sure not only of correct and individual apparel, but of painstaking, intelligent and efficient store service. That is what appeals to a man,

Up-and-doing men find much valuable information in the advertising pages of THE JOURNAL every day.

MODERN MILLER - NGRAIN ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 16.-There are conelt of lack of moisture, but reports do not indicate that the crop has suffered to any etent. In some of the drouth-stricken localities timely rains have fallen and relieved danger of damage almost to harvest time. As a rule, crop continues to make healthy and rapid progress to maturity. Indications are for an early harvest as the plant is heading in the southers part of the wheat country and crop should be auy for harvesting by June 15 to July 1.

NE day, when Mr. Jones returned with what his weekly toil had earned, he found his little wife in tears and mood not suited to her years. It seemed the cook had bade "adieu," likewise the washerwoman, too.

Gold Dust as Strike Breaker

At first within the House of Jones there followed sad despondent moans. No hopeful word could reconcile, no honied kiss inspire a smile. "I never knew before" said she, "how horrid household cares could be."

"Upon my word I'm up at six and working still as midnight ticks. scrub and run and wash and shine to keep the little things in line. and yet around me here and there I see undone another share. I almost feel as if I'd like to join the other ones on Strike. Some morning try it-get a mop; go through from cellar to the top, and I will venture you must see, the greater burdens fall on me."

Now Mr. Jones was passing wise and later, sprang a glad surprise. Through friends who praised the "GOLD DUST WAY." he brought a package home one day.

From tears to sunshine, Wifey now has found the good of "Knowing How" and striking servants fail

What Anne Rittenhouse Says

"W HAT would you suggest as the best evening gown for summer for a woman with a moderate income?" was the question put to a well known "White lace," was the prompt an-

She went on to explain that lace was immensely in fashion; that it had a distinction and therefore gave an air of good judgment and quiet elegance; it was not like a color, which could easily be remembered by one's public; it was cool in summer and yet available for

And this is true of a white lace gown. It takes the place in summer that an all black gown takes for the rest of the year. Every woman wants to wear white when the hot twilight falls and yet she does not wish to go to the extravagance of white chiffon or satin or tulle and spangles for a social affair neither does she wish to indulge in that common economy of wearing ragged winter finery through the less soclally important summer nights.

Far better a home made white batiste or net gown with a colored girdle and a loose lace collar than a soiled gray satin covered with yards of torn tulle from which innumerable gilt spangles have been dropped on the highway of

This is a piece of wisdom in good dressing that should be written in red ink and hung on a woman's wardrobe so that she would be reminded of its truth whenever she attempted to wear the bedraggled glory of a past sea-

While it is true that white net gowns are at the top of fashion, they are not as formal as white lace ones, and women have found out that social gaiety does not die in this country with the passing of frost.

The comfort of a lace frock is that it does not easily soil and wrinkle, and therefore arrives at its journey's end in a condition to be worn. It packs easily and cleans easily, and if one becomes weary of its lack of color there is no lack of variety in the ways in which it can be enlivened.

A brilliant girdle, a single splendid flower, one of those new Callot draperies of colored tulle or chiffon caught at the shoulders with an ornament and hanging down the back with tassels as weights are among the several methods of giving diversity to a colorless gown: What to Line It With.

NATURALLY white lace must have a lining and the choice of it is a bit of a puzzle. If it is of thick satin, durable for long wear as well as whether to mount the lace over white or a color, and some women rather like the idea advanced at the French

These things must be decided by the individual, but there is something exceedingly satisfying about an allwhite lining. It gives one the chance to use it as a background if necessary to other colors, but when one uses a lining in color then the gown is necessarily doomed to remain true to it throughout its life.

If white, and if not satin, then what? Messaline is the first choice of the dressmakers, who sometimes call it by other names. True, it is very thin, but it wears far better than any one thinks who has not handled it. Even the conservative woman would not object to its translucency, because with the lace over it and a fancy petticoat of net under it the effect achieved is

The lace gowns are made with simple drapery, and the empire waist, which is more apparent in evening gowns this season than it has been for three years, is accentuated by a white or color with an ornament high up on the left side. In this ornament is shown much of the skill of the designer. It may be a single satin rose or one o' stuff tulle edged with satin or a buckle of tiny blossoms sewed to soft silk or an empire wreath of gold or silver flowers.

From any one of these ornaments may hang long streamers weighted by tassels, if one likes dangling ornaments in front. The girdle may end at the back instead of at the left front, although the effect is much more unfashionable and the accentuation of the high large walst demanded today is not so marked. It is difficult to reason out why this directoire and empire walkt came in with so much favor for evening gowns at a time when the lowered waist was exaggerated on street suits and onepiece frocks; but whatever the cause behind the effect the latter is exceedingly is becoming to the majority of women, and especially so now that the fashionable silhouette emphasizes the square in many cases in order to supply any deficiency in nature.

The Chiffon Lining F a woman does not wish to have toe dead white effect from shoulder to bright colored eretonne. heel she can use a faint-colored chiffon lining to give color. Turquoise blue, rose pink and canary yellow, also Nile green, are among the tones which are most satisfactory in summer weather. She ean place a ruffle of these on the white satin foundation to break the figure or sne can use a drapery of it beneath the lace to come out at the edges and swiri around the figure.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

BY TWORNTON W. BURGHSS.

(Copyright, 1913, by J. G. Lloyd.) Peter Rabbit had quite lost his appetite. When Peter forgets to eat you may be sure Peter has something very important to think about. At least he has something on his mind that he thinks is important. The fact is Peter had fully made up his mind to change his name. Yes, sir, that is just what Peter Rabbit was planning to do. He thought Peter Rabbit too common a name, but when he tried to think of a better one he found that no name that he could think of really pleased him any more. So he thought and he thought and he thought and he thought. And the more he thought the less ap Once Peter thought of going up to

Jimmy thought it a great joke and he straightway passed the word along among all the little meadow and forest people that Peter Rabbit was going to change his name. Everybody laughed and chuckled over the thought of Peter Rabbit's foolishness and they planned to have a great deal of fun with Peter as soon as he should tell them his new name.

Peter was sitting on the edge of his old briar-patch one morning when Ol' Mistah Buzzard passed, flying low. "Good mo'ning, Br'er Cottontail," said Ol' Mistah Buzzard with a twinkle in

At first Peter din't understand that Ol' Mistah Buzzard was speaking to him, and by the time he did it was too late to reply, for Ol' Mistah Buzzard was way, way up in the blue, blue sky, 'Cottontail, Cottontail," said Peter over and over to himself, and began to smile. Every time he said it he liked

"Cottontail, Peter Cottontail! How much better sounding that is than Peter Rabbit. That sounds as if I really was somebody. Yes, sir, that's the very name I want. Now I must send word to all my friends that hereafter I am no longer Peter Rabbit, but

Peter Cottontail." Peter kicked up his heels in just the funny way he always di when he was pleased. Suddenly he remembeerd that such a fine long high-sounding name as Peter Cottontail demanded dignity. So he stopped kicking up his heels and began to practice putting on airs. But first he called to the Merry Little Breezes and told them about his change | MUSICAL TONE of name and asked them to tell all his backs. One attractive living room set of gray enameled wicker furniture is finished with cretonne cushions of an imported material with a gray linen background, figured in deep blue and touched up with an occasional spot of bright red and yellow.

For the cretonne decorated bedroom here is hardly a single article of furniture which is not fitted with cretonne n some form or other. A door bag for shoes, a wide mouthed laundry bag, a mending bag, a workbox, covers for table, bureau and dressing table, pincushions and curtains and bedspreads, or at least strips on swiss covers and spreads, all find a place in such a room. The ideal wall covering for a room elaborately furnished in figured cretonne or chintz is a plain one. A single toned, rough or smooth plaster, an invisible stripe or two toned stripe or a plain cartridge paper are all good backgrounds for the figures of the chintz.

Wide, heavy Cluny lace is used to edge round table covers of cretonne. The edge of the cretonne is turned under with a raw edge and the lace is whipped on by hand with heavy linen thread. The cretonne of course could be rolled, but this finish is somewhat bulky and ifficult to handle. Table covers made in this way in different sizes can be used throughout the different rooms and so help keep the whole house

To Our Visitors

About every two years your lenses need changing. Wouldn't it be a good idea to take advantage of your visit to Atlanta and have a careful examination of your eyes-made and a new pair of glasses made up? At least, how about having a duplicate pair of lenses fitted in a large, comfortable shell library frame-for solid comfort? Maybe you would like a pair in slight amber tint to protect your eyes when traveling. We've been fitting glasses for 50 years and have some pretty good ideas. Anyway, come in; -we'll be glad to make your acquaintance.

Use Cottolene for cooking

When you shorten or fry your food with butter it is needless extravagance. Butter is too expensive for use anywhere but on your table. If butter were really better, would produce better results in cooking, you would be justified in using it, but it won't. Cottolene is fully the equal of butter for shortening; it is better for frying. It makes food rich, but not greasy, because it heats to a higher temperature than lard or butter, and cooks so quickly that the fat has no chance to "soak in." Cottolene is more healthful than lard, and you only need to use twothirds as much as you would of either butter or lard.

When you stop to consider that the price of Cottolene is no more than the price of lard you can readily figure out what a saving its use in your kitchen

THE BUSH-LEAGUE ANSWERS. I give them up and I watch them go, But never a tear I shed for them; I give them up to the Ruling Show And the giare of Fame that's, ahead for them,

My stalwart sons-my greatest ones-But, waiting, I watch the track again; Until one day they look my way-And then-I gather them back again.

The Pirates," according to a Pittsburg exchange, "will soon get started again." Quite true. Prof. Newton discovered some time ago that the law of gravity prevents one from toppling off into unbounded

Colonel C. Webb Murphy has been badly yanked of late by "conflicting emotions." He has been undecided whether he should stick with the Cubs or hustle back to Chicago to help welcome Frank Chance back among his people. When the recent Yank spurt began Mr. Murphy developed such a frenzy of joy that he came near choking to death on four separate and distinct occasions. It must be a buoyant feeling, at that, to see an old side-kick emerge from the rut and start going again.

O TEMPORA AND SUCH. The spectacle of the Dodgers up around the top with the Pirates dawn around the foot-of the Champion Red Sox struggling deep in the second division as the Braves continue to emit noises like a regular hall club-has long since steered us off this season's dope. Later on we may kick in with a faint, half-hearted prophecy, but now we can only wail with the ancient bard-

As to how one can account for these starding reversals we haven't the slightest inkling. olf any one can explain for us how the White Sox started back in 1986 from seventh place and finished with a world's championship-How the Senators emerged last season from seventh place and headed off the Athletics-two-times conquerers of the universe-

How, in fact, three or fifteen hundred other bizarre events in this national hurly-burly took place upon short notice-Vielding us this information, we may be coaxed into explaining just what assails the Pirates and Red Sox, and just why Brooklyn is now one, two with about the same ball club which finished seventh last year. As we remarked up above, we may be coaxed into some sort of an explanation-and then again we may not.

There is evidently a decided change brooding all along the line. The old days are passing. In addition to the present Standing of the clubs it has been a week now since we have lamped "crucial series" or "couldn't hit him when hits meant runs," Is the ancient reverence for tradition about to fade out and leave us flat?

Pittsburg had the greatest pitching staff ever mobilized up to April 10. Clarke had seven then poised and ready to stand the league upon its beam's end. By May 10 he was out looking for one able to win once a week. Outside of that, etc.

J. Evers has been in the big show for ten years. The same J. Evers is a smart, brainy athlete. Which leads us to this query: How long does It take a smart, brainy athlete to discover what an average boob can pick up in fifteen minutes-viz. that an umpire has yet to lose his first decision after some forty years of oratory and discussion?

It took Frank Chance some few afternoons to discover his surround-INES. At the end of which period opposing teams no longer began to hail the arrival of his ball club with huzzas of delight, to say nothing of three

the Importance of Green Food in the Successful Keeping of Poultry

ture connected with the * profitable keeping of poultry that is of so much importance as an unlimited supply of green food. Not only does this apply to the old fowls and the results obtained from them, but it is of far more importance in the rearing and future usefulness of young chicks. There is no doubt in my mind but that the future usefulness of a young bird or a young animal depends largely on the way that it has been fed and raised just as much as does the breeding behind it. Regardless of what kind of parents they are from and the wonderful records their parents have made it is utterly imposible to get results from a young animal or fowl after they are grown unless they have been properly raised and properly fed while they are maturing a frame and constitution to be used in after years to convert food into marketable products. In other words, chickens that have been raised on a free grass range where they have had an abundance of tender, bulky, green roughage such as can be had on a grass range of alfalfa, clover, blue grass or even Bermuda grass. Chickens that have a range where these materials are supplied in abundance and can be had at all times will convert this feed into a splendid frame and have a constitution and system that will enable them to be useful in their future. A chicken that has been raised in this way has a natural constituon developed according to nature. They will live much longer and will be capable of profitably converting food up until four or five years and much better than one that has been raised in confinement and fed concentrated food. I have seen this tried out thoroughly. several years ago I knew of a bunch of Plymouth Rock hens that had ed exclusively on an alfalfa patch. Of course they had grain lition to this free range on the alfalfa. After this flock of were useful, and even in their third year two of duced over two hundred eggs each, and through the first their lives I am confident neither of these hens produced much less than two hundred and twenty-five eggs each for the entire They were not only large and splendid frame birds, but had seveloped a constitution that made them capable of consuming a large amount of food. They were great eaters and they had a constitution to convert this food into eggs. A large number of other chickens were d from the same parents that these birds were raised from, but under ifferent management while growing, and I am confident the nine that had been raised on the free range laid fully twice as many eggs at the and of three years as any of the best of the others.

This convinced me thoroughly that this is the proper way to raise soung chickens if you expect future results from them. No man can disonte that when he has a hen that will lay two hundred eggs per year that here is anything he can invest in that will pay him a handsomer per than hens of this class, even though he sold his eggs all for And, when we know these things are facts it is one buying poultry, either to breed from or for eggs, to about the way, they have been raised and their ability nto eggs after their have been matured.

I am confident that the wonderful results now being obtained by the ghorns in the National Egg Laying Contest can be traced to the way these chickens have been raised as the breeding behind them, and when their history is given I am confident they were raised in a free green grass range or had plenty green food feed in un-ou to answer for somebody a queson as to what would be the best crop oplant for chickens, and inasmuch as one has asked I would be very rlad to have you advise me. I have several hundred chickens and intend raising every particle of their feed inother year.

Thanking you in advance for your kindness in answering my question, I E. T.

ANSWER.

The most profitable and best crop that you can possibly raise to feed our chickens with is alfalfa. More ons per acre of this can be grown eed that you can possibly grow, Next to this corn, sorghum seed, oat and wheat are the easiest and most ing @ per cent alfalfa, la per cent orn, 15 per cent outs 5 per cent scaps you the best chicken feed that you can possibly get. alt can be grown heaply and when people who raise chickens learn to grow this feed for them they can produce chickens and eggs both at a profit.
