(By Associated Press)
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 7. Congressman Richard Hobson, who has been in the House of Representatives for the long term in the United States, sent the following telegram to the Atlanta Journal: "The receipt in complete returns from yesterday's primaries held throughout the state indicate that the Hobson campaign has been a success and that the general says 'It works magnificently.' The work is made with a lamb as the victim."

For the first time in the history of the state, the Hobson campaign has been a success and the general says 'It works magnificently.' The work is made with a lamb as the victim."

Already the new instrument has been tested and the general says 'It works magnificently.' The work is made with a lamb as the victim."

Desire for revenge is responsible for the appearance of the guillotine in Mexico. General Gutiérrez, the son-in-law, José Morales, was killed some time ago in a battle against the federales in the state of Saltillo, and the federales, including an infant daughter and a son, were captured and living in Saltillo. The federal command, however, released the relatives of Gutiérrez, placed them in a prison train and sent them to San Luis Potosí. The baby died of pneumonia on the way, and nothing is known of the fate of other members of the family.

From stories told by rebels this is the reason the federales, who were the women and children of rebel officers, have been taken from Saltillo by the federal command, and the federales are supposed to horrible fates. It is said that in some cases the women have been forced to eat their babies.

General Gutiérrez says he will leave Juarez within two or three days to resume his campaign.

"My outposts are within sight of the capital of the state and I expect to be home in time for the election," he said.

"Fourteen thousand men are under arms in the state and I can send 10,000 men to the capital if necessary," he said.

"She was only seventeen, said the pretty young woman, when she married John Edward Dial, in 1898.

"For a while they were happy. Then she said she started drinking heavily.

"He choked me twice," she stated.

"I have been drinking ever since last spring. I came home in August and last night to my house with a revolver and shot myself."

Mrs. Johnson said there was one child living from the marriage, Roy S. Johnson, now 16.

After the jury had granted her a final verdict she left the court room with the

"ONE OUT OF MARY."

This was the result of the first cases which were before the court of Judge D. E. Hart.

There are 132 cases in all. Most of them have been disposed of.

"I expect to be here for the trial of the last 30 cases," he said.

"Tuesday as many more are expected to come."

Any prothonotary could get up an admirable sermon or lecture from the man.

In nine cases or ten dependence is the direct or indirect cause of abuse.

"I expect to be here for the trial of the last 30 cases," he said.

A little country bride, Mrs. Mary Daniel, of Marion, Ga., was granted a final verdict in her case yesterday.

She was granted her first verdict on an unique case.

She had married Alton Dial, a farmer, and he had carried him to the automobile and urged him to buy her an expensive car. When Alton, who was represented by attorney R. E. Church, obtained his first verdict in the case, he was granted a final verdict in her case yesterday.

He had made a statement to the public before his departure. He

"Please say to the Interim trustees of

Alton that we have only begun to work and the work we have done can never be undone. We have done our best and the Alabama deserve all the credit and all the honor of the success of the resolution placing national prohibition in the state of the United States. It will be a fight to the death, but we will succeed. The fight has just begun."

Representative Hobson was asked if his statement was to be presented to the Senate and Alabama to make a fight to stay on the job and do all in my power to help the people of the people of Alabama and the people of the United States.

He also made a statement to the public before his departure. He

"Please say to the Interim trustees of

Alton that we have only begun to work and the work we have done can

never be undone. We have done our

best and the Alabama deserve all the

credit and all the honor of the

WOMEN SEEKING 1,000 MEMBERS FOR Y. W. C. A.

Campaign for Increased Membership Will Be Launched In Atlanta Wednesday

Under the leadership of Mrs. Clayton Callaway, a campaign for a membership of 1,000 for the Young Women's Christian association will be launched in Atlanta Wednesday.

There will be twenty-four committees working under Mrs. Callaway, and the ladies by a house-to-house canvass expect to gain approximately 450 members for the association within ten days.

Every woman in Atlanta is urged to become a member of the association and they are asked to send in their names with a $1.00 membership fee. Without the aid of members of the committee to call, the members of the committee are anxious to have 100 more new members to increase the size of the organization. Starts Wednesday. Names should be sent to Miss Wingo, secretary, at the Y. W. C. A.

COUNCIL HAS FUN WITH NUTTING AND WOODWARD

"Surprising and Suspicious Harmony" Between Them
Calls for Special Probe

Mayor Woodward vetoed a resolution demanding a lot on Main Street be given to the city for a public purpose, a lively and lengthy discussion caused a lively and lengthy discussion in general council Monday.

First, Mayor Nutting had been Mayor Alderman James R. Nutting appointed his veto.

It was argued in support of the veto that the city in the near future will have to pay for the lot and the city is planned to erect as an adjunct of the purchasing department.

The resolution was easily sustained by a vote of 18 to 7, and immediately thereafter the clerk read a resolution left on the table with authority to call a gall for the appointment of a special committee of three to "investigate the disputed question" and to report to the city. It appears to have come to pass in the relations between Mayor Woodward and Alderman Nutting.

The resolution caused a hearty laugh and was unanimously voted to go to further the joke. Alderman Reginald appointed Alderman Maxfield, Councilman W. H. Anderson, and Alderman Nutting to the committee, and there followed still another joke resolution, appropriating $1,000 to Alderman Nutting's street fund to defray the expense of the investigation.

PLANS ACTIVE CAMPAIGN FOR BONDS FOR HOSPITAL

Grady Committee Will Open Headquarters for its Publicity Work

Establishment of permanent campaign headquarters and active publicity work to begin at once in the interest of a new Grady hospital was unanimously decided on at a meeting of the general committee of the Grady campaign on Monday afternoon in room 23, Equitable building. Bishop C. Kinsloe Nelson presided.

An administration by Dr. W. B. Summers, superintendent, that he knew the source of opposition to the bonds, and his statement to the committee that such opposition was due to the lack of information that the proposed improvement was concentrated by selfish motives, served to put the campaign in full swing and a vigorous campaign will be waged.

The publicity committee, composed of Dr. W. B. Summers, Dr. W. B. Anderson and C. S. Northen, will shortly be enlarged to ten members, and the general committee will be organized to be ready to meet any contingency that may arise.

Headquarters will be established in the new building, and a large display board and a straw ballot by post card taken to the sentiment of the people of the city.

CONVICTS MUST NOT REPLACE HIRED DRIVERS

After being informed that convicts had replaced the regular hired drivers in the city, Dr. W. B. Summers, Chairman Waters of the board of county commissioners, Monday wrote a letter to the mayor and the members of the public works committee, asking that the paid drivers be reinstated. He said that the public works committee and all team work be done by paid labor only.

General Anderson said if he found the reports correct he would order reinstatement of any men who have been dropped.

When you try the hats on, moreover, you will find the styles as pleasing and, possibly, more becoming. ## A Tale of Two Women An Easter Corset Story

Once upon a time there was a woman who bought for herself—new gown, silk stockings, brand new shoes and gloves and a hat that was the envy of every one who saw it—and thought herself ready for Easter.

And there was another woman who bought all these things too—but first of all she was fitted in a beautiful new corset.

And when Easter came both donned their finery and—

But you can guess what happened. Of course, the woman who wore her new clothes over an old corset lost absolutely the well-gowned effect she was striving after.

The moral is not hard to guess either. But most important of all is the Postscript.

PHYSICIANS KNOW

Usually Sickness Begins with Torpid Liver and Constipation,

And that's the trouble. Constipation should never be neglected. Why? All food eaten has some indigestible matter which liver clears away day by day. An overeating of meat, for instance, which sometimes causes the liver to begin to become enlarged while it remains in the stomach and makes it difficult for the liver to do its work the next day for the liver to do its cleaning. So the liver accumulates and clogs up and causes constipation. That is all. It is not the liver that eliminates all the ferment and generates uric acid.

Take a glass of EFFERVESCENT WATER, JACOBS' LIVER SALT, and you will be surprised at how well this drink is effervescent and pleasant, and simply wonderful in its results. It contains uric acid, which it removes through the system to poison the liver, and the liver, in turn, detoxifies, this is the delicate process.

The uric acid is deposited in the urine and settles you have rheumatism, gout when it settles in the joints, paralysis, nervous prostration, and poisonous irritation of the delicate

COUPLES' SECRET WEDDING PLANS ARE FOILED BY THEIR FRIENDS

Mr. C. E. Keith Becomes Mrs. George Korman, With Many Guests of Georgian Terrace Hotel as Interested Witnesses

Dan Clegg invaded the proclivities of the Georgian Terrace hotel shortly after the secret wedding of the couple minutes later the victim of his bold and dastardly ways.

It was the same old story of "In the soft a young man's fancy lightly turns." The young man, a sleek, slim, dandified Willis E. Kagan's gold and crimson tulips and white, purple, and blue carnations, were scattered in a wide arc across Peachtree street from the hotel. And all the other girls, the young maidens in a parlor on the mezzanine floor of the Yerkes' hotel, Alice Keith, a sprightly young widow, George Korman, the bride, and many others, were out on the promenade, entreating the Indian summer day or playing at cards in the hotel, and all gave up their pursuits for a few precious moments to witness the ceremony which was performed by Father Gulin.

Mr. Keith, or rather Mrs. Korman, as now, was the bridegroom, and he had been in the hotel for some time. Monday night Mr. Korman arrived at the wedding party, and, as he was in no position to let his bride, save a few friends of their plan, But the secret marriage was a secret, and the packages of flowers, American Beauties and other flowers, were given to Alice Keith, the bride, and many others, who were to arrive Tuesday morning, gave the air of wedding plaudits away.

The news was spreading like wildfire, and the secret of the secret and the quiet little wedding planned turned out to be the talk of the town for more than a score of friends present.

Immediately after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Korman were taken by car to the Terminal passenger station in an automobile where they left at 11:45 o'clock for Birmingham, the home of the groom.

COUNCIL IN A TANGLE OVER PURCHASING AGENT

Sewer and Street Contracts,
After Long Discussion, Are Awarded by Council

A question as to whether the authority of the city purchasing agent extends to the purchase of materials for sewers and street work got the sewer and street committee of the general council in a tangle. Mayor Woodward, from whom the order had been submitted to the city attorney, who ruled in the negative; and when the committee went to general council with their recommendations as to who should awards there was another tangle.

It developed that Mayor Woodward, who held that the purchasing agent should purchase the materials, had voted in favor of a resolution directing the chief of construction to advertise for bids, and council was confronted with this situation.

It was decided that the contracts to be awarded should not be awarded until the weather was fair; it was arranged that the committee, after the resolution calling for bids, then the mayor would be displeased and would not accept the resolution, and the sewer and street committees; but it appeared that unless the votes were reversed, the mayor would accept the legal and the awards of the contracts would be invalidated.

In the course of the discussion it developed that the committee was not satisfied with the ordinance creating the purchasing agent's authority and range is not clear as to the extent of the purchasing agent's authority. The result was that the committee, in view of the ordinance so that in future there will be no misunderstanding or friction.

After the discussion of an hour, with nothing done, and finally Councilman Humphries made a motion which was carried that the committee be moved that a resolution be passed recommending that the purchasing agent accept the resolution of the sewer and street committees; but it appeared that unless the votes were reversed, the mayor would accept the legal and the awards of the contracts would be invalidated.

Made So Happy by A Journal Want Ad
This Man Would Pay
Ten Times Its Cost

Washington, Ga., April 4th, 1914.
The Atlanta Journal,
Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Sirs:

If I were paying for gold dollars at the rate of 10 cents a piece, my check in payment for the gold would not be more cheerfully given than handing you herewith check on the National Bank of Wilkes, at Washington, Ga., for $7.05.

I invested last week in one of your Sunday "Want Ads" for the above amount. At ten o'clock Sunday morning that ad was answered from Sylvester, Ga., having produced the desired results. The man who had defrauded me of $100 was there apprehended, and I was fully compensated on Monday.

I wish to thank you for this striking illustration of the value of your advertising columns.

Yours very truly,

In the Alabama election—we told you so.

In Memphis nowadays, when a man takes a bank, it is literally "over the river."

Those in charge of Mexican affairs probably count on letting things drift on into the American baseball season when the American public will not be so solicitous.

Hon. Oscar Underwood.

The nomination of Oscar Underwood as United States senator is a credit to the Democracy of Alabama and a source of keen satisfaction to the entire country. Mr. Underwood's distinguished record in the House abundantly entitled him to the new honor he sought. He has represented his commonwealth faithfully and brilliantly. He has upheld the best traditions of his party and has exemplified those ideals of statesmanship which make the nation strong and secure.

His leadership in the House during the first year of the Wilson administration has been particularly admirable. To him, more perhaps than to any other one Congressman, belongs credit for tariff reform. He has stood staunchly by the President on great economic issues and has earned unstinted approbation for his fine loyalty.

Mr. Underwood's nomination is equivalent to election. In the United States Senate he will be an honor to Alabama, an element of deep strength to Democracy and a true representative of national interests.

Now for the guy that put the bath in bathing uits.

And now for the periodical bromide of the fellow who would rather sit in the bleachers any day.

After an absence of several months in South America, Colonel Roosevelt will realize on his return home that the Progressive party hasn't progres-sessed much.

Watchful Waiting.

Events are fast justifying President Wilson's

Mexican policy. Huerta is growing continually weaker, and the Constitutionalists continually stronger. The usurper, whom our Government refused to recognize, is becoming an insignificant

revolution, are waxing in power and popular influence. Has the United States lent its diplomatic and moral support to Huerta's regime, it might have delayed the developments that are now hurryng toward a climax, but it could not ultimately have prevented them. Recognition of Huerta would merely have patched his flimsy foundation, would merely have made the war against him longer; it would have settled nothing, and in the end it would have weakened our influence as a counselor for Mexico's peace.

On the ground of expediency as well as morality, therefore, the President was well warranted in refusing to countenance the adventurer who stepped to brief power through the assassination of the legally elected head of the Mexican government. To have recognized Huerta would have been the easiest way out of the difficulty, but it would have led to graver problems. The President was not seeking short cuts at the expense of principle and larger interests in the future. He was seeking a solution that would be just and that would stand the test of time. His policy was sharply criticized by theorists, but he knew the facts and potentialities of the case, and upon these he took his stand of watchful waiting.

Recent events have so clearly confirmed his wisdom that the New York Times declares, "In the future, we venture to predict, there will be less harsh criticism of President Wilson's course; perhaps, there will even be a scramble to get in line with him on the Mexican question." The Constitutionalists have swept from victory to victory, although, Ojinaga and Torreon. They now hold undisputed sway over the five great States of northern Mexico, comprising half of the entire country's area.

They are directly in line for the capture of Monterrey and Tampico, after which the fall of Mexico City will be inevitable.

The fact is, the battle at Torreon was the turning point in this war. It was the decisive test of Huerta's strength and resources. He boasts an army of two hundred and fifty thousand men, yet it does not appear, as one observer writes, "that he was able to place at Torreon, where his power was most seriously threatened, a force exceeding twelve thousand." Evidently, the Dictator is fatally weak either in foreign or support, and doubtless in both. His one great stronghold in central and northern Mexico is, he faces a hopeless future.

It remains to be seen, of course, whether the Constitutional leaders, Villa and Carranza, stand together or are betrayed by jealousies and dissensions.

Thus far, it must be said, they have evidenced no such weakness. Villa has been particularly careful to recognize Carranza as the chief of the Constitutional cause, as its political head, and the veteran soldier-statesman has been unflinching in credit for the general in the field. As for Villa himself, he is clearly one of the great military leaders of the time. As the New York World declares, "He has commanded in recent actions more troops than Huerta ever saw, and in a rough-and-tumble fight lasting a week or more he has won more genuine renown as a commander than any other Mexican now living ever gained."

These are the personalities behind the Constitutional movement. Surely, from them is to be expected far more influence in restoring Mexican peace than from the bankrupt swagger who rovers in the capital. They have fought in the open. They have no stains of treachery and assassination behind them. They have fought against a usurper, and whatever their personal ambitions may be their cause is based upon loyalty to constitutional government. They represent those ideas which the great mass of the Mexican people have so long been striving to make articulate and effective. They have espoused the reforms which Madero was commended to carry forward and which he had sincerely undertaken when he was murdered through Huerta's conspiracy.

It is reasonable to expect, therefore, that the Constitutionalists will play the dominant part in any settlement of the country's present problems. They have the military genius, the territorial sway and the omens of success that are needed to attract popular support. What the future may bring forth, no one can say with any measure of certainty; but of this much we may be sure, the Constitutionalists represent the only existing force within Mexico, that gives any promise of establishing orderly government.

It is not, then, very fortunate that the United States refrained from placing a barrier in the path of this movement which seems to be the destined course to peace? Shall we not be in a better position to deal with the power that will rule Mexico in the future, than we could possibly have been, had we undertaken to bolster Huerta's unstable and unrighteous regime?

The Administration is still in its attitude of "watchful waiting." The knot is yet to be fully untied. The Constitutionalists have yet to prove themselves complete masters of the situation and fully worthy of trust. It is none the less apparent, however, that refusal to recognize Huerta was far sighted as well as honorable, and that intervention is even less to be thought of today than it was six months ago. Thus the Wilson policy has proved, so far as events have gone, the wisest that could have been adopted, a policy that has spared the United States terrible cost and that has left Mexico free to work out its own destiny.

Alabama is through with politics, but Georgia has only fairly started.

Of course the selection of the bank sites was good; and besides, you can't please everybody.

When congress doesn't make any unusual noise, you may feel sure that congress is hard at work.

The Canal and the Fleet.

In the current number of the World's Work, Mr. Theodore P. Shantz discusses the value of the Panama's canal with particularly interesting reference to the United States navy. Our naval forces being distributed partly on the Atlantic and partly on the Pacific, the transfer of a warship from one ocean to the other has heretofore required from fifty to sixty days in the trip down one coast to the Straits of Magellan and up the opposite coast. By means of the canal, as Mr. Shantz points out, the Atlantic and Pacific fleets can be brought together upon one or two weeks' notice. This he considers one of the great national advantages of the interoceanic highway. A bit of history from the Spanish-American war serves to emphasize the point.

"We all remember the national anxiety when, before the practical application of wireless telegraphy, the fast cruiser, Oregon, was ordered from the Pacific to the Atlantic, with the chance of being attacked by a squadron of the enemy on the journey. The Oregon left San Francisco on March 9, 1898, and was not heard from again until she steamed into the harbor of Rio de Janeiro on April the thirtieth. This cruise of the Oregon, as demonstrating what a short cut across the Isthmus of Panama would mean in time of war, was a most potent influence in the United States navy.

LATE MODEL

The skirt has been the subject of much controversy this season. Here is the pantaloons model that is taken as an indication of the coming of a full short skirt.

What Anne Rittenhouse Says

PARIS—The new materials are quite attractive. The three most popular ones are well known by the name: Goffine, gabardine, moire, taffeta and Chinese silk. One rarely sees three four sample fabrics committed in any sample dressing houses.

They are manufactured in various ways, some in mottled colors and combined with still other fabrics, but one is sure to find them.

There is also a weave of silk which is exceedingly fine and soft, and is widely used for the lining of short coats, for waistcoats, for Turkish girdles, and sometimes for skirts.

It is rarely plain, and usually bears the name of "Brocatelle" in various colors, which is a revived design from Revolution days. It is usually called satin for want of a better name, but it is really not the name we desire. If one does not care for brocatelle in costume, let me assure you it makes admirable sofa cushions. When they are three feet long, eighteen inches wide, and are stuffed and lined with a deep border of black satin ribbon, they are one of the first novelties of the season.

Of course, in Paris, there is little. Every one laments its departure, and there may be individuals who will continue to wear it. Here and there one sees something good, but it such as a underskirt of blue muslin. Chintz without a single touch of ornament or lace or crystals. The entire beauty is in the simple draping, and it is kept from the skin of the neck and arms by a band of white tulles.

Again Yards of Tulles
There is no diminution on the part of the Parisians to crop tulles. Miles of it are used this season, as ever in Paris, and the same is true of other fabrics. They play a dominant part in gowns for the afternoon and evening, and in the making of the "cirecille lace," invented by Callot, is widely used over colored satins or taffetas or as a lining.

The objection against this lace is its expense. Callot asks $25 for a gown of it, although it is not to be imitated in the imitation of the best wares for $20. This is a good reason for you to know that France has not decreased the value of her clothes this year, although there is a general feeling of a bad season of impending bankruptcy, and of the crashing of some big houses. Of course, the Parisians have no use to talk. America may, or may not use it, but Europe is enthusiastic over it.

It is called "cirecille" because the answer is that it "bunches up" well. This statement in itself, is an evidence of the fashion of the day. The material "bunched up" in the back, for the purpose of making the woman have resolved themselves into this huge puff just below the waistline.

Docteau has a remarkably clever lace designer who has invented a trimming that is called "cirecille" because of a more descriptive name. It is a fine silk net, which is applied over a piece of thicker cloth, outlined with a tiny silver thread, or sometimes a white silk thread.

The house uses this in deep ruffles on lines of satin or taffeta. It is also made in a lace which is gathered to a neckline and hangs over a shoulder in a very becoming way.

What is known as lame lace—pronounced in two syllables with the accent on the first—has been popular. It was invented last summer, and is quite effective with its flat, thickly rolled edges, though it is also designed to a net surface.

The new crepe is as popular as lace, and is called "cirecille" in some parts, that the American cannot refrain from smiling at.

The wave is exceedingly strong with coloring and the formation of the figures.

It is a lace made of the S-cane cotton calico which has been worn for two centuries by the negroes on the West Coast.

This crepe is used for informal gowns. Although the material is light enough to be comfortable, the coloring is vivid, and for this reason it is popular with those who like cool colors in hot weather.

There are many other novelties how-

ASTROLOGER

"The stars incline but do not compel."

PHOBOSCOPE FOR WEDNESDAY, April 8, 1914.

Under two stars kindly sway
Travelers find good luck today.

Astrologers advise men and women to travel, seek work and deal with business negotiations. They may, if not to avoid starting important papers.

White Mars and Neptune are in places believed to be strong, evil in their effect.

The influences are held to be favorable for steel workers, employees in foundries and armories. This is interpreted as indicative of activity in building.

There is a good sign for hunters and fishermen. Woodmen and trappers should benefit today.

White Mars, plumbagines, apothecaries, and chemists should gain under this configuration.

This is a promising sign for attending to affairs connected with shipping, increase of commerce with oriental countries.

It is an auspicious time to begin journeys on the water. Loss of a steamer is possible in spring weather.

Mercury is read as favoritism for love affairs, as well as the affairs of the home, but Mercury gives warning of possible trouble.

It is not a lucky day for entering into written contracts. Actors and singers should be careful in their engagements.

Mercury's malefic power is believed to magnify petty worries and to exaggerate the importance of trifles, which may distract the digest and upset the nerves. The rule is dangerous to domestic servants.

It is prophesied that crime will greatly increase in France and that annual incidents will take place early in the summer.

Italy will pass through certain exciting events, and foreign manufacturers declare.

Fire and accident, which are the stars of life, are stubbornly pressed on the stars.

Persons whose birthdays it is may have a year of small troubles. Men may be annoyed by employes. Women should conserve their financial resources.

Children born on this day probably will be healthy and active. Boys will be industrious, but more or less unlucky in business. Girls should be guarded against infatuations.

OF COURSE WE GOT THE BANK

We Atlanta folks knew all the time we ought to have it. But we didn't. And the added satisfaction now is that we have it. And it's going to prove to the world. People like to back a winner. They will flock to our town in bigger droves than ever before. And they have to have lots live in Atlanta. The town won't be satisfied with apartments.

The city of a growing town is lots. Lots to fix places for folks to live. Lots are growing smaller all the time, and soon all the new houses will have to be built in outlying sections.

This is the place, the place in lots, very valuable. You could not find anything better to put your money in.

We are offering on Lucille avenue, a very beautiful 40-foot lot at prices you cannot duplicate. Just try to find anywhere else a lot like this.

This property is as level as a floor, covered with handsome trees. Gas water, sewer, sidewalk, paved streets, etc. Pretty little lawn, and not an underhand looking house anywhere in sight.

The terms are easy, and if you want to build, the owners are ready to make concessions on the terms that would enable you to put up a home with very little actual cash.
