

DR. BROUGHTON, ILL., MAY BE BROUGHT TO ATLANTA

Illness Caused by Worry and Anxiety Incident to European War

Dr. Len G. Broughton, founder of the Baptist Tabernacle and its pastor until three years ago when he accepted a call to Christ church, London, England, may be brought back to Atlanta on account of a serious illness with which he was recently stricken.

This was stated by Dr. Joseph Broughton, of Atlanta, Tabernacle, who has been in close touch with his brother's illness. Dr. Broughton at once wrote to Mrs. Len Broughton in England asking her if it would not be best to bring her husband back to America until he recovers. No reply has yet been received.

The Tabernacle, which much to his chagrin culminated recently in a fainting spell on the street, was rushed to a London hospital, and has been there ever since.

His illness has prevented Dr. Broughton from returning to Atlanta, and he is still detained in the First Baptist church of Knoxville. In Joe Broughton's statement, he said that Dr. Broughton will be brought back to America or Mrs. Broughton in the near future.

COUPLE SURPRISE FRIENDS BY ANNOUNCING WEDDING

Miss Myrtle Moore Became Mrs. C. E. Singleton Wednesday Evening

Stealing away with madly's suitcase, she obtained a wedding license in a downpour of rain, and then, after a hurried church, but in reality in the afternoon, and then calling up her home to tell the folks she won't be back any more because she's married now—these were the exciting incidents which occurred when Miss Myrtle Moore became Mrs. C. E. Singleton Wednesday evening.

"And the astonishing point is that there wasn't any reason for it at all. They just wanted to make it a surprise wedding, and they did, surprisingly well, I might add, and Miss Myrtle Moore, of Chamblee, Ga., will have ainking what her daughter's marriage until they read today's Journal."

The wedding had been planned since Christmas by the young people. All that was lacking was the opportunity and the moment.

Opportunity came when Mr. Jones arrived Tuesday evening, when Mrs. Singleton had just come home from a walk with her residence, 172 Crumley street, quieted by the young lady's father, a member of the family, with the excuse that Mrs. Moore herself, were blissfully unaware of the secret.

Opportunity came when Mr. Jones, who had braved the rain that morning to get the license, called again on Miss Moore, and when she told him she was going to prayer meeting at the Second Baptist church, which they are both members of.

They did go to church, but they arrived there just fifteen minutes before the service began, and were quieted by the Rev. Dr. E. White. And, instead of returning to Crumley street, they followed the route of the bus to the $2 Crumley street, and from there telephoned the news of the marriage to Miss Moore.

On the same day both Mr. and Mrs. Singleton are receiving the warmest congratulations from all sides.

RECORDER'S COURT IS NO BOND COLLECTING AGENCY

Judge Johnson Refuses to Return to Bondsman $10 Forfeited

That the recorder's court is no collecting agency for bondsmen, was the assertion of Judge George E. Johnson.

When a negro, who had engaged a professional bondsman, tried to get the court to refund the amount of the bond he had paid, the judge said after Clark had recaptured the fugitive.

The case was one of disorderly conduct and was tried in Court Daniel, on October 28. Clark went to the bond for $10 and the negro failed to appear.

When the negro was captured and turned him over to the police, he was tried Thursday morning before the recorder.

He was given a $10 bond, and the sum which had already been forfeited in the case, decided $7.75 additional should be imposed.

Clark protested that his forfeited bond should be returned to him, and the court refused to give the $1.25 from the negro. The court refused.

NEGRO DRIVER IS HELD FOR ROBBING THE MAIL

Literally caught with the goods, Ollie Saxon, negro driver, was found in a London, England, post office, and was Thursday committed to jail in default of $300 bail by United States Commissioner W. Colquitt.

Inspectors found a large quantity of stolen goods at the post office, and was unable to find where Saxon committed to have pawned. Among the stolen articles were an Elgin watch, with silver case upon which was engraved "1914," a meerschaum pipe, women's clothes and shoes, and a contrivance which Saxon claimed was used to score cards in a crooked game. He protested, however, that this contrivance was not stolen.

GERMANS DENY REPORT OF ARREST OF CARDINAL

Rumor Doubted at Vatican, but Pope Benedict Makes Inquiry

LONDON, Jan. 7.—The German military attaché of the British legation, the Cardinal Marcellar, the Belgian member of the Sacred college, has been arrested by the secret police.

Cardinal Marcellar was reported unaccountably to have been arrested on account of his secret service, which he was said to have advised Belgian officials to recognize the authority of the German secret police.

The secret service was organized by the German government in 1914, and its chief, the General of the secret police, was given the rank of major general.

The idea of protecting to the German secret police, according to Rome dispatches, should be reported as verified.

ENGLAND'S FOREIGN TRADE IS HARD HIT BY WAR

LONDON, Jan. 7.—The war's effect on England's foreign trade was shown in the yearly returns of the Board of Trade announced today. Exports in 1914 amounted to $1,000,000,000, as compared with the preceding year.

Imports decreased more than $25,000,000.

Signs of business betterment are reflected in the condition of postoffice business, according to Postmaster General.

The results for January up to Wednesday night were ahead of the corresponding month last year, he added that another indication was the mailing of advertising matter, which increased 10 per cent in January over December.

He concluded that the business of the postoffice last January was exceptionally good, the increase this year all the more gratifying, said Mr. Jones.

Businessmen are again sending advertising matter through the mails, which until December, 1914, had been suspended for five months, is another indication of betterment in business.

Mr. Jones added that from what he could gather from banks and business concerns the night before, the conditions were a great improvement in the employment situation.

It is expected to see an improvement along the lines of business.

Mr. Jones said, "nor is it showing itself a month earlier than I had expected."

As to Tax Values.

Figures showing an increase of more than two million dollars in the tax values of Atlanta and of nearly a million in those of Fulton county for the year 1914 seem impressive. But do they indicate an actual gain in property values or merely an advance in tax assessments?

The question merits sober consideration by tax payers and tax officials alike. No good citizen is unwilling to bear his rightful part in the cost of efficient government and no pains to see that this cost is equitably distributed should be spared. But the officials charged with such duties should remember at all times, especially times like the present, that taxes were made for the people, not the people for taxes.

If tax assessments become so high as to discourage enterprise and investment, the community's growth is checked and all its interests suffer. Atlanta and Fulton county want as much new capital and as many new buildings as they possibly can get. They want new factories, new office structures, new homes, and continual development. But they cannot hope to attract capital or to promote building if their tax burdens leave the investor no fair margin of profit.

This is true of all years and of all places, but particularly is it true of Southern cities today. Owing to the recent depression, much property is either vacant or is yielding the owners a minimum return. No one doubts that these communities will regain their wonted vigor, but it is very important that nothing be done to delay the process of recovery. Certainly, the return of prosperity should not be hampered by excessive taxation.

The hard part about a job is the getting thereof.

Every time you wrong a neighbor you harm yourself.

Many a great man is never heard of twenty miles from home.

Prosperity has its thorns, and adversity likewise has its roses.

The New Highway.

The Hoosierland-to-Dixie highway is one of the most interesting and admirable enterprises of the kind ever conceived. A chain of good roads from Illinois to Florida will develop new forces of friendship and trade, to the lasting enrichment of every community along the route. To the Southeast, it will be especially valuable as an inducement to tourist travel and also as a means of bringing the resources of this region into broader and more definite notice. The benefits to Georgia will be so numerous and far-reaching that every influence at the State's command should be exerted to make the proposed highway a reality.

Chattanooga and Indianapolis have taken the initiative in this splendid project and are receiving hearty support from Florida towns and cities. The movement appeals particularly to automobile clubs, good roads organizations, chambers of commerce and kindred agencies. Its scope is so wide, however, and its results will be so diffused that it should enlist the general public's aid. Agriculture, industry and all fields of business will profit substantially if the plans for this highway are carried duly into effect.

These will be held at Chattanooga early in April in a conference of the Governors of the States directly concerned—Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia and Florida. It will be the object of this meeting to perfect a plan in which the interests of each State may co-operate for their common advantage. Georgia should be represented by delegations from its towns and cities as well as by the Governor. So great an enterprise as this cannot be accomplished in a few months or a year, but once well under way, its success will be assured.

Cultivate patience. You will need it when a self-made man begins to tell you the story of his life.

The things women do because they have no reason for doing them usually turn out better than the things men do because they have several reasons.

Show a man who has accomplished anything worth while, and we will show you a man who makes a specialty of attending to his own business.

Ignorant and Snobbish.

Here is a man who considers his low or country the hub of the universe, and abilities all other places as mere specks on the rim of civilization. He is provincial, you rightly say. Here is another man who admires all that is foreign, and regards the things close at home as necessarily inferior. He is equally narrow-minded. Between the two, however, the man who is prejudiced in favor of his own community is the more wholesome minded and sensible. Time and travel may broaden him; but for the poor dunderhead who must import all his likes and ideas, there is no hope.

A Pennsylvania manufacturer refused to place an exhibit in the "Made-in-America" exhibition, which was to have been held at Pittsburgh, because, he said, he did not wish the fact spread abroad that his products were made in this country, there being a popular impression that European manufacturers were superior. Evidently, many other manufacturers were of the same mind, for the entries offered were so few that the intended exhibition had to be cancelled.

If the opinion of these dealers is correct, it is a sad commentary upon the breadth and intelligence of American consumers. If popular prejudice in favor of imported goods is so great as to make it impolitic for manufacturers to advertise their products as home-made, there is a vast deal of snobbery and ignorance to be overcome before American enterprise can get its deserts.

Whatever may be the case in Pennsylvania, Georgia is coming to recognize more and more keenly the advantage of patronizing home industries. Georgia Products' Day, inaugurated several seasons ago by the State Chamber of Commerce, has awakened our people to the broad variety and the sound value of home-made goods. As this idea grows, the state will prosper.

What do you counts for a great deal more than what you say.

Our Food Production and Demand.

While Canada produces twenty-three per cent more food than it consumes, and Argentina forty-eight per cent more, the United States has comparatively a small surplus after meeting its own demands. True, the unparalleled wheat harvest of 1914 now makes possible enormous exports, and, of some other commodities there is, for the present, an unusually plenteous store. Our food staples as a whole, however, are less than conditions require and far less than the country's resources should yield.

Our production of foodstuffs is relatively behind the increase in population, and in some cases, notably in that of meats, there has been an absolute decrease. Between 1899 and 1909, the number of cattle in the United States dropped from fifty million to forty-one million head, the number of sheep from sixty-one million to fifty-two million, the number of hogs from sixty-three million to fifty-eight million. "Since 1909 the tendency has continued downward," says the national Department of Agriculture, "and yet during the period since 1899 the population has increased more than twenty million. This situation exists, not in a crowded country, but in one which still, in a measure, is being pioneered; in which with nine hundred and thirty-five million acres of arable land, has only four hundred million, or forty-five per cent, under cultivation."

These conditions are of peculiar concern to the South at a time when the cultivation of the cotton acreage, and the extension of food crops are urged. The farmer who produces foodstuffs is dealing in something for which the world's demand is extraordinarily large and of which this country has an appreciable surplus. America must now supply not only its own needs but also those of millions upon millions of people in distant lands. In these circumstances, a steady market and good prices for all food staples are assured. The wise farmer will plant accordingly.

Editorial Echoes

The dog in war should not be neglected by the chroniclers when they write the history of the struggle in Europe. What would the ambulance corps be without trained dogs? The Belgians make great use of them. The Germans, it is said, employ their keen-witted sheepdogs for scouting and for guards in the trenches. There are all kinds of dogs on the firing line, and their intelligence and fidelity are often helpful. Andrew Carnegie's terrier Miquette, which summoned aid when his master, with the rest of an outfit, was buried by a "box shell," deserved to be decorated. —"New York Sun."

An English friend writes from a great hospital where Belgian soldiers are being nursed back to fighting condition, that they tell her of a hostile column advancing against them, screened by their own women! Once within hearing distance, the women called out: "Fire, soldiers; don't mind us; we are brave, too!" I say these Flemish peasant women outrank the Roman matrons of Cornelia's type—Bresbyer Ignatius in the Living Cornellia.

Belgian people have told the following story how in San Francisco a gentleman once gave a boy a nickel for a shave.

"I beg your pardon," said the boy,

"The price is 10 cents."

"What?" exclaimed the gentleman, "we pay only 5 cents in Boston."

"Or be you from Boston?" came the quick reply.

"Then consider yourself my guest."

Shakespeare Says--

May, 'twixt two the hours are I have a done that very fact. I have received no proportion to thee the prodigious son, and am going with Sir Proteus to the Imperial's court. I think Crab, my dog, be the sourest-natured dog that lives:
My mother weeping, my father wailing, my sister crying, our maid howling, our cat wringing her hands, and all our house in great perplexity; yet, did not this cruel-hearded cur shed one tear. He is a stone, a very pibblestone, and has no more pity in him than a dog.
Why, my grandam, having no eye, look you, wept herself blind at my paring.—Launce in
"The Gentlemen of Verona."

PILGRIMAGE

I will tread on the golden grass of my bright field,
When thee the passion-star has, pale, led me to thee.

I will tread on the golden grass of my bright field,
In the glow of the early day when the east is red,

In my bright field a broken beach-tree lies.

And a giant boulder stands by a black-burned wood;

And a rough-bolted, yalling wall and a rotting door.

Seas, like a star, the spot where a house once stood.

My eyes are shut on the white edge of the dawn.

My feet fall swift, and bare upon the way.

The great wild woods, unfold, the high trees away.

The worn road stretches thin, and the low hedge stings.

And a strong big bough looms frai' o'er a ghostly stream.

And a white-tower turns and breathes, and turns again.

Does it live? as I live? Does it wake, as I waked from a dream?

(How merciless is the dawn! how poignant the hush of my soul!

How changeless, the changing sky! how fearful that will bird's cage!

I hear the quick, sharp noise of his wing, the puls of his breath as he is gone!

How swift is an eon of time! how endless, beginnings, all!

I tread on the golden grass of my bright field;

The sun's on a hundred hills; the night has fled;

I tread on the golden grass of my bright field.

In the glow of the early day and the east is red.

Statesmen, Real and Near

BY FRED C. KELLY.

(Copyright, 1914, by Fred C. Kelly.)

WASHINGTON.—Senators Lewis and Sherman, as everybody knows, differ from one another even as the moth differs from the butterfly. Lewis is our most expensive-looking senator. He gives the impression of having been his mother's selected for him by committee of managers, adroitly selected by Sherman on the other hand follows the Biblical injunction to take no thought what ye shall wear. Sherman is as well as gartorial, Lewis is a Democrat, the other a Republican, and when you get right down to it, they are as different as you can possibly imagine, regardless of any other considerations. But everybody doesn't dance, contrary to the dictum of a late popular song, and as a matter of fact, more people are dancing in tea rooms than are dancing in the lobbies of the particular barroom of the particular senator.

Five years ago, a man would leave his office at four-thirty and deliberately go to a tea room and drink tea and eat lady-like sandwiches with lettuce garnishments, without the least regard for the time, cut-rate, regardless of any other considerations. But now it is the dancing that goes with the tea. He cares for it—it is the dancing that goes with the tea. But everybody doesn't dance, contrary to the dictum of a late popular song, and as a matter of fact, more people are dancing in tea rooms than are dancing in the lobbies of the particular barroom of the particular senator.

But now the same man leaves his office at four-thirty and deliberately goes to a tea room and drink tea and eat lady-like sandwiches with lettuce garnishments, without the least regard for the time, cut-rate, regardless of any other considerations. But now it is the dancing that goes with the tea. He cares for it—it is the dancing that goes with the tea. But everybody doesn't dance, contrary to the dictum of a late popular song, and as a matter of fact, more people are dancing in tea rooms than are dancing in the lobbies of the particular barroom of the particular senator.

The insidious growth of the cult of the cup that cheers but not exhilarates is to be traced through the great offices of business of the east and west. In London, tea and coffee are the tea and coffee of the time, cut-rate, regardless of any other considerations. But it is only since electric cooking utensils came in and the tea dancon became popular that American office men have had the courage to make and drink tea at four-thirty in their offices.

Safe Home Treatment for Objectionable Hairs

Bouquet Secrets

The electric currents required for the removal of hairs, for use with the use of plain deodorants the most suitable is the following: Take a small amount of paste made with water and a little of the powder, then spread over the hair to be removed, and when it is rubbed off and the skin washed. This simple treatment not only removes the hair, but it also removes the objectionable hairs. Be sure you get genuine deodorants. (Adv.)

Surprise Party

Miss March Day and Miss Louise Spalding gave a surprise party for Mrs. E. C. Clegg, of Atlanta, on Saturday evening.

These ladies met the house guest, Mrs. Ruby Steele, Miss Frances Brown, Miss Helen Mann, Mr. Martin Ward, Mr. Walde Pickett and Mr. John J. Hunter.

French Alliance to Give Reception

Miss Louise Spalding, of Atlanta, will give a beautiful burlap dance party which will begin promptly at half past three and admission will be 10 cents.

Dancing Party

A dancing party of Wednesday evening was the affair of Mrs. George Gentry, of Franklin street.

The bride, who entered with her father, was a picture of girlish beauty, wearing a white satin gown with draperies of tulip embroidery in pearl seed. The bodice was fastened with a lace belt and the envelope tulle veil was adjusted to the hair with a chapter of lace.

The wedding attendants included Miss Ethel Gandy, maid of honor; Miss Emily Cassin, bridesmaid; Miss Helen Dunn and Miss Elizabeth Blanton, of Atlanta; Mr. and Mrs. John E. Barnwell, of South Carolina, best man, and Mr. Robert Barnwell and Mr. Julian Welsh.

The bridesmaids were gowned in dainty models of pale blue crepe material, and the maid of honor in a white gown of pink roses tied with blue tulle shawl.

After the ceremony and reception which followed a string orchestra played and the bride and groom were served in the dining room.

The bride's table had a centerpiece of pink roses and carnations and a French basket. Streamers of pink tulle radiated from a large bow caught under the tulle veil.

B. Smith Signs New Infielder

Hal Irelan Obtained From the Phillies—Bill Expected to Reach Atlanta Saturday

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio, Jan. 7.—Manager Bill Smith, of the Atlanta baseball team, has announced the addition of another candidate for his team next year. The new member is Hal Irelan, of Dayton, who was with the Philadelphia Nationals. Irelan is an infielder, and made a good record in the National League last season, for his first year in fast company. He fielded well as second base, and his work in the field games, though not with the skill of a veteran, certainly put him in a position to continue his career for another year's season. According to reports made to Manager Smith by men who have seen him, Irelan should make a very valuable player for Smith's club, and Bill is pleased with his addition.

According to his plan at present, Bill expects to leave for Atlanta Friday. His mother, Mrs. Irelan, and his wife, after several weeks has recovered somewhat, and Bill in minutes will get back to Atlanta, and will be ready to start his material up for next spring. Since coming here after the minor leagues interest him, he will be a valuable addition to three players, a young catcher, Nedercorn, Bill Hippo, a third baseman, and Irelan, will top the roster in Cincinnati for two days, and will reach Atlanta Monday.

The information that Manager Smith has obtained a deal for the new player to President Callahan of the Phillies, has been denied by the team. The team informed him of the latest acquisition, and Bill has agreed to sign with the team. The new player, however, was not named, but it was stated that he had had some correspondence with the Phillies, and had been asked to come to the city, in order to place Irelan on some good minor league for another season, but that he did not know that Bill had closed for him.

Since the information has been received from Manager Smith direct that he has signed up another youngster, the team has been asked to wait for the arrival of the new player, and will not be able to name him until he arrives. The new player, however, is a good youngster, as he is only thirty-one years old, and for 1914 in twenty-six games. He is apparently a speedster, as he has only thirty-one bases the first year, and is only one base short of the record for the year. He has been signed to a thorough trial.

We notice where Old Ring Lardner, in arranging his records for the year, has put in a line for the new player, and has given him a place in the line.

As deeply as it pains me to call a fellow historian of sport, we do not know that the facts are always above any man's feelings. Mr. Lardner would be the first to admit that he has made mistakes, but he didn't.

The last we saw of him was at the fourth game, when he left the field.

We left him, not in any rate, but because the dust and dirt he brought with him were too much for us to bear.

RENEWED HEAVY PRESSURE CAUSED BREAK IN COTTON

Market in New York Closed 6 to 13 Points Down From Previous Close

Associated Press
NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Cotton showed renewed importance in New York, and prices advanced 6 to 13 points. Cotton was lower than due and the market was quiet. The market was quiet, but the steady rising of the southern market has caused a general increase in the market, resulting from the early trading on the part of the New York market. The market was up, and a little demand from Wall Street, with active months showing 4 to 7 points.

After selling about 4,700 bales at higher prices, the market was quiet. The market was up about last night's closing, and trading was active. The market was quiet, but the market was reporting about clearing to Vladivostok and Japan.

Notwithstanding the bad export report for the day, the market was quiet, but the market was quiet, owing to continued reflected and general pressure with active months showing 4 to 7 points.
