GRIZZLED GRADUATES OF OLD OGLETHORPE PRAISE NEW SCHOOL

Message From President Wilson and Presence of Members of First Alumni Features of Cornerstone Laying

DR. JAS. VANCE MAKES THE PRINCIPAL ADDRESS

Opening Exercises at North Avenue Presbyterian Church Concluded With Interesting Services on Varsity Campus

The exercises in connection with the laying of the cornerstone of Oglethorpe university were held Thursday morning at the North Avenue Presbyterian church on Peachtree street, Atlanta, before an audience that filled the seating capacity of the church and crowded the auditorium.

Eighty-white-haired men, alumni of old Oglethorpe university, which was destroyed in the Civil War and of which the present university is the continuation, attended the exercises and made short addresses which were the most interesting features of the meeting.

Distinguished ministers, educators and laymen of Atlanta and the south were in seats on the rostrum and took part in the exercises.

A letter was read from President Andrew Wilson expressing his regret that he could not be present, but his pride in the refounding of the institution, attended the exercises and made short addresses which were the most interesting features of the meeting.

POEMS TO OGLETHORPE.

Poems written by southern poets in honor of the occasion were read the first time, and the singing of hymns composed to Oglethorpe was an interesting feature of the exercises.

After the exercises the professors of the university and the honor guests of the day, including Dr. J. E. McElroy, at Silver Lake, north of Atlanta, and there the cornerstone of the first university building was set in place.

The exercises began at 10 o'clock. The directors of the university, the speakers and the professors, all of whom were in the church, were in the church, wearing caps and gowns.

The psalmody was sung with the audience standing. An invention was made by Dr. A. H. Brown, pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Atlanta, Ga., and moderator of the Presbyterian synod of Georgia. A scripture lesson was read by Dr. J. E. McElroy, and Dr. J. E. McElroy, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Oglethorpe, Ga.

The first speaker, W. A. Brown, president of Davidson college and moderator of the general assembly of the Southern Presbyterian church, was introduced. Dr. J. E. McElroy, moderator of the Central Presbyterian church of Atlanta, followed.

TRIBUTE TO PRESIDENT.

Dr. Martin expressed his great and profound pleasure in attending the exercises, and in the name of the Woodrow Wilson, praised the enterprise of Atlanta in raising money to rebuild Oglethorpe, and congratulated Dr. Thompson.

"This is a very substantial reduction in the discount rates and the members of the reserve bank and especially the large banks, after a long time, did not believe the discount rate enough to give the full measure of relief, which the situation demanded, which was to round up the reserve bank," he said.

It is the belief of Washington, however, that the provisions of the apportionment sheet will prove a great help to the people of the south, and that it will enable the member banks of the system to round up the reserve bank and to merchants, farmers and industrial enterprises.

RESERVE BANK BOARD ORDERS ANOTHER CUT IN DISCOUNT RATE

Efforts of Senators Hoke Smith and Hardwick to Improve Conditions Throughout South Are Rewarded

60 AND 90 DAY PAPER
AT 4 AND 4 1/2 CENTS

Reduction Which Will Go Into Effect Immediately Will Bring Needed Relief to All Cotton States

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 21.—The federal reserve board last night authorized a reduction in the discount rate, on commercial paper to the following basis: Maturities up to sixty days, 4 per cent; maturities of sixty days and above, 4 1/2 per cent.

The reduction will become effective as soon as the directors of the reserve banks at Atlanta and elsewhere shall themselves of the authority thus conferred.

The reduction was authorized by the board following a prolonged conference of its members. Senator Hoke Smith was instrumental in securing the necessary for the reduction and due credit to the board "the relief that was given to the south," he said.

The authorization of the reduction marks the end of a long and difficult process by Mr. Smith and his colleague, Senator Hardwick, for a further reduction in the discount rate.

Twice previously the federal reserve board had voted to increase the discount rate, but the increase was not enough to give the full measure of relief, which the situation demanded, which was to round up the reserve bank and to help the southern economy.

To relieve the southern situation somewhat, Mr. Smith and others interested in the south had recommended a system of "rounding up" the discount rate, to make it easy to round up whatever needed goods to choose to call contraband and to meet the suspicion of ultimate enemy destination.

"Considering the situation, I am by no means satisfied that we have had a sufficient reduction to give a decided factor in the war," he said. "We understand that if the south finally gets Germany to buy its cotton, the south will be in a position to demand a still further reduction in the discount rate.

"All things considered," he said, "we may hold the British government responsible for the reduction, as there were restraint on international trade.

At home it imposes most searching restrictions on the cotton market. At sea it holds up whatever neutral goods to choose to call contraband and to meet the suspicion of ultimate enemy destination."

With the new rates will go into effect the 1st of February, the members of the reserve bank and especially the large banks, after a long time, did not believe the discount rate enough to give the full measure of relief, which the situation demanded, which was to round up the reserve bank and to merchants, farmers and industrial enterprises.

Atlanta Reserve Bank

Welcomes New Rates

J. B. Pike, cashier of the federal reserve bank in Atlanta, welcoming the reduction in the discount rate, said, "McGraw, governor of the bank, who is in Washington, said to the Atlanta Journal: 'This is a very substantial reduction in the discount rates and the members of the reserve bank and especially the large banks, after a long time, did not believe the discount rate enough to give the full measure of relief, which the situation demanded, which was to round up the reserve bank and to merchants, farmers and industrial enterprises.'

Overnight the demand among councilmen for minor changes in the 1915 apportionment sheet has grown instant and the committee developed that a new and unsatisfied caucus by whatever means necessary to get the changes made on neutral states to bar them from enemy territory, though all these masters may be compelled to round up the reserve bank by effective blockading, her ports, as they have already far overhanded the coast of the United States.

As the allies do not besiege Germany, they cannot lawfully enforce the blockade, and the British government can do no better for themselves, winter neutral goods shall be excluded.

THE OLD DAYS.

Recalling his memories of the old university, Major Varnedoe, in his 80th year, said, "When Lanier was a student and a boy in his teens, he was a boy, too, and when he left the heart of the school, the call of the students who were seniors when he was a freshman."

New York Delegate Tells Foreign Trade Convention at Meeting in St. Louis Britain's Policy Is Unjust

CONSIDERING PROBLEMS OF INTERNATIONAL LAW

Secretary Redfield and John Bassett Moore, former counsellor of State Department, Among Number of Speakers

By Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 21.—A large number of delegates, representing leading commercial organizations of the United States, attended the first session of the second national foreign trade convention here today. After speeches of welcome were heard, the address was delivered by Senator Redfield.

Permanent organization was effected, then the convention began considering problems of international law as they affect American commerce in the war.

The address was made by John Bassett Moore, former counsellor of the state department.

Among those who discussed raised in Prof. Moore's address was Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission.

WILL TAKE RELIGIOUS CENSUS OF ATLANTA

Pocket Testament League Will Also Be Organized During Revival

Two important features in connection with the Chapman-Patterson revival meetings that will be held in Atlanta during the four weeks beginning February 14 will be the religious census of the city to be taken on the afternoon of February 8 and the organization of a Pocket Testament League, with an approximate membership of 20,000 persons in Atlanta.

It is planned to take the census in ten hours. Workers from the various churches and Sunday schools and the many church societies will visit every home and office in Atlanta and will make a record of the names, ages and religious affiliations of each member of the household. They will be urged to attend the evangelistic meetings, and after the revival the records will be turned over to the various ministers so that the work begun at the meetings may be permanently continued.

The executive committee in charge of the revivals will place the records of each policeman and every motorman and conductor, a pocket testament containing the Gospel of St. John, and some other religious tracts in their cars. They will be asked to read a chapter of the testament each day and to always carry the tract in their cars. It will later be a general distribution of thousands of these pocket testaments and records to the police and motormen who affiliate themselves with the League.

THEATERS

Gus Edward's "Matines Girls" headed by the "Ginger" vaudevillians this week are meeting with success. Among the acts securing the biggest box office are the "Ginger" girls, and Arline Eley in a brisk song, partner and dancer trained dancer, the Male Patti, and a trained dancer.

Next week's bill looks promising.

Emma Caruso, the Broadway musical comedienne, will be a feature of the show.

Undoubtedly one of the very best comedians in the country, will topline.

Franklin, the "Ginger" girl, will be a feature of the show.

"The Beauties" will be the card.

Bayard Valley's smashing melodrama of modern conditions in New York life, "Within the Law," will be again presented at the Grand Theatre on Friday and Saturday with a Saturday matinee. For an entire season of twelve months, the play has been a success at the theater in New York City, receiving the most extraordinary praise. Clara Bow will again be seen as Mary Fawn.

The executive committee in charge of the revivals will place the records of each policeman and every motorman and conductor, a pocket testament containing the Gospel of St. John, and some other religious tracts in their cars.

They will be asked to read a chapter of the testament each day and to always carry the tract in their cars. It will later be a general distribution of thousands of these pocket testaments and records to the police and motormen who affiliate themselves with the League.

S. A. AKERS GIVES BOND TO APPEAR FOR TRIAL

Fraudulent Use of Mail in Lumber Dealer Charged By Government

Simon A. Akers, who was recently indicted by the federal grand jury for fraudulent use of the mail in connection with lumber sales, gave bond the federal court yesterday.

The government charged Akers formed a company known as the Atlantic Lumber Co. which was not a bona fide lumber company.

He wrote to John Compton, W. E. Hobson, S. J. McLendon and the A. F. Windham Lumber company, all out of town and in Atlanta, and asked them to furnish him lumber and building materials.

It was shown for the first time at the Grand on January 12, and its success has attracted large audiences.

WINS COURT FIGHT FOR 391 PINTS OF WHISKY

Police Return Part of Quantity They Took From W. P. Hall

Three hundred and ninety-one pints of whisky were returned Wednesday afternoon by the Atlanta police to W. P. Hall, who said he possessed a possessory warrant for 391 pints of whisky, and Chief Executive and Newson, Law enforcement officers.

The transfer was made in Judge Thomas' division of the municipal court following a hearing on the possessory warrant. Chief Lawford and Chief James were present. Chief Attorney L. Mayson represented the defense; Attorney C. G. Battle represented the police.

Hall claimed 845 pints of whisky were taken from him by the police in a raid on his home after a standing trial in the recorder's court and a hearing before the police, drawing a fine of $200, he wants the 391 pints back.

He said the officers were willing to give it to him, but that it wasn't all the 391 pints were missing. He didn't allege he had been drunk.

Complications entered the case when Miss Ellen Bryant also claimed the whisky was in her possession when she was in Hall's possession. W. Hall swore out the possessory warrant.

Miss Bryant, who is a widow, said her rights over the liquor, and Hall agreed to be satisfied with $81 instead of his $200 fine, and to take supply of whisky away from the court house in a wagon.

The Passing of a Pioneer.

There has passed in the death of Mr. Calvin W. Hennicutt one of the most stalwart and engaging figures in Atlanta's remarkable history. Born eighty-seven years ago in Mecklenburg county, North Carolina, he journeyed to Georgia as a lad of eleven, and in company with his parents found lodgings at Whitehall Inn, a wayside hostelry on the site of what is now the foremost city of the Southeast. Setting with his family on a farm near Howell's Ferry, the boy grew up in the sturdiness of country life and with the best traditions of a Southern freestate. At the same time, some miles away, a village was springing to the pretensions of a township, and thither the young farmer came, still in his teens.

From that day forward, save for short periods of residence in other parts of Georgia, and during his services to the Confederacy, Mr. Hennicutt was a citizen and a builder of Atlanta. He was a pioneer in the bravest and noblest sense of the word. His energy and talent, with all the fortune they earned him, were devoted to the community's advancement. It was in the hearts of men like him that what we call the Atlanta spirit quickened long ago. To his fore-sight and generous labor, and that of his comrades of old, are due very largely the achievement and the fame which Atlanta today enjoys.

For his workmanly patriotism, his steadfast service through eras of darkness and cheer alike, his integrity in business, his stanchness in friendship, his courage and strength to all that makes manhood worth while, Atlanta honors his life and ever will revere his memory.

Europe could hardly afford to go to war with us as long as we have the lending ability.

Where there is so much talk of prosperity there is bound to be at least some prosperity.

The Last Days of Pompeii as a spectacular will have to make way for the up-to-date war of 1914-15.

After a man gets on the shady side of life he regards his sins and his bank balance as nobody's business but his own.

Bring This Mob to Justice.

The resolutions adopted by a mass meeting of the citizens of Monticello and Jasper county on the recent lynching in that community find earnest response in the mind of every Georgian who values his State's good name or who has any sense of justice and humanity. Savage lawlessness seldom grows so monstrous as it did in the mob which hanged two negro prisoners, two of them women, charged with running a "blind tiger" and with assaulting the officers who came to arrest them. That was murder, cold-blooded and cowardly and so should it be dealt with, to the limit of the State's legal resources.

To the honor of Jasper county, its representative people condemn this crime and pledge themselves to do all within their power to bring the criminals duly to justice. At a call from the Mayor of Monticello, two hundred or more business men and farmers assembled at the county court house and adopted the resolutions referred to. Reluctantly their action, comes a letter to the Governor from the sheriff, who likewise denounces the mob and urges that a reward for the arrest and conviction of its members be offered. Further, the solicitor general and the judge of the circuit are investigating the case, and doubtless will take such measures as their duty requires.

These facts are worth the common country's notice, for they witness Georgia's prevailing sentiment. In every State there are thugs and anarchists, but in no State is the true citizen more earnest in condemning mob brutality. That is the thought of this Commonwealth, the thought that now should be pressed to unflinching consequence is punishing a peculiarly outrageous crime.

A hypocrite is a man who acts differently when he knows some one is watching him.

Cole Blease is reported to have literary aspirations. They were doubtless wished on him by some of his political enemies.

Nature will probably have something to say about the size of the 1915 cotton crop. As a rule she deserves two big harvests in succession.

Down in Mexico there is a proposal to the various presidents to stop fighting long enough to consider peace. Maybe the movement will become contagious.

The Cornerstone of Oglethorpe.

January the twenty-first, 1915, in a day worthy to be set in the high tides of Atlanta's calendar, for it marks the refounding of Oglethorpe University and gives local habitation to a splendid ideal. The cornerstone laid this day is a milestone in the South's upward march. It points forward to widening achievement and opportunity, and it points backward to cherished traditions.

What a gracious part the old Oglethorpe played in the ante-bellum life of the South! What memories cling to the institution that rose at Midway and became the fostering mother of statesmen and scholars and poets, among them Sidney Lanier! Of the Oglethorpe university that is born today, may be said what Wordsworth wrote of the human soul—

"Not in entire forgetfulness, nor in utter nakedness;

But trusting clouds of glory, does it come.

Its great mission has begun anew; may it speed and prosper through all the years to come.

The man who does things can afford to let his wife do all the talking.

As the twig is bent the small boy is inclined to make a quick disappearance.

Do What?

If evils could be remedied as briskly as they are said, this would be a far better, though much less interesting, planet. The Mexican hubbub wears on, apparently as hopeless as ever—a scramble of swart adventurers for booty or ambition. The forces of freedom, once united against a corrupt Dictatorship, have split into snarling clans; the dogs of war have turned to foes; what aspired to be a glorious revolution has lapsed into petty anarchy. This is all very lamentable for Mexico and very annoying, at times painfully so, to the United States; wherefore, the learned Senator Lodge, the bustling Mr. Mann, and the temerarious Colonel Roosevelt, together with odds and ends of jingalistic persons throughout the country, insist that our Government do something.

Do what? There's the rub. It is easy to pick flaws in the Administration's Mexican policy, but of who the critics has pointed out a wiser course than that pursued? Between watchful waiting and forceful intervention, most Americans certainly prefer the former. If the Mexicans cannot or will not settle their differences except by fighting them out, the United States, regretting the situation as it may, had better let them fight one another than drive them to a transient truce for fighting us. The Philadelphia Public Ledger, a stanch Republican in politics, frankly declares on this issue:

"Granted that the policy of the Government is a failure, who will produce an alternative policy under guarantee of success? Granted that the people will not stand for a reign of anarchy across the border, how shall we stop it? The moment we meddle with the situation all the disunited and fractious factions of Mexico will fuse into a solid army of opposition against us. Then, from four to ten years of guerrilla warfare, a hundred thousand American graves beyond the Rio Grande, a national debt of $100,000,000, and another big pension budget for half a century to come! Finally, Mexico will be subdued. And then what should we do with it? We do not need it, we do not want it. Annexation would be more obnoxious than the present reign of anarchy. A suzerainty is possible, but if we accept Mexico as a ward it must be for a period sufficiently long for us to educate the people, develop a capacity for self-government and transform the very constitution of the Latin American nature."

From four to ten years of guerrilla warfare, thousands of American graves beyond the Rio Grande, a national debt of a billion dollars—are these things better than watchful waiting? Are they better either for Mexico or for the United States? If not, it would be more sensible in the Administration's critics to leave the Mexican problem a while and devote their energies to improving the weather.

Japan's idea of war seems to be to remain in the background.

It sometimes costs more to neglect a duty than it does to perform it.

Shakespeare Says--

Sometimes he angers me.
With telling me of the moldyward and the ant
Of the dreamer Merlin and his prophecies,
And of a dragon and a fiendish feb,
A clip-winged griffin and a moulting raven,
A couching lion and a ramping cat,
And such a deal of skimble-scramble stuff
As puts me from my faith. I tell you what,
He held me last night at least nine hours
In reckoning up the several devils' names
That were his lackeys: I cried "huzz" and
"well," "go to!"

But mark'd him not a word, O, he is as tedious
As a tired horse, a railing wife;
Worse than a monkey's tail, and rather live
With cheese and garlic in the sunhill, far.
With feed on rats and have him talk to me
In any summer-house in Christendom.

—Hotspur in Henry the Fourth.

ON LEARNING

(From the hitherto unpublished letters of Thomas Wren, Esq.)

My Dear Robey:—

It is not such an awesome thing to be learned. Perhaps you have listened to a brilliant lecturer in a seminary room or even in a well-filled audience hall. At the close of the hour you went away oppressed by feeling that you had been overwhelmed in an avalanche of cut diamonds. Much learning had made the professor mad, you fancied, and how tamely some were you yourself! But you have not yet discovered how easy it is to learn when you are not compelled to do the same thing yourself! Flaws you never-look yourself in earnestness over them before a sympathetic audience—especially one that you know knew less than you about the matter in hand? You probably gave your hearers that awesome smile, too. Similarly, though in this instance the students are not quite so ignorant as the professor, the teacher is still a wise old man.

How the world improves! The old man, who was the greatest sage of the ancient world, had his eyes closed in his grave, but the world is still open to him. He was for seven years, his courage as well as his vision failing him, a student of the blind. He was blind at the age of twenty-seven years. He was lame for seven years, his courage as well as his vision failing him.

The old man, who was the greatest sage of the ancient world, had his eyes closed in his grave, but the world is still open to him. He was for seven years, his courage as well as his vision failing him.

The Massachusetts commission maintains a number of industrial shops in several towns exclusively for the employment of blind adults. It is the policy of the commission whenever feasible to have the men board in the families of sober workers and to live as near the place of work as possible.

The blind men, however, are not entirely self-supporting.

They are not entirely self-supporting.

NURSES IN THE WAR
What the Women Are Doing

The women of the warring nations are nursing, cheering and comforting the soldiers. The women of the United States are not so much bandaged and bound up, but they tend the farms, dig coal, carry burdens and do the work of the men now under arms. Every male fighter, however, has a woman at home. In the South, the high courage and determination that are a nation's strength are inherited from the mother.

Young mothers who preserve the charms of fire and flesh in spite of an increasing number of the care of their children are always to be pitied. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription gives the strength and health upon which human motherhood depends. It practically eliminates the fear of maternities. It enables the mother to care for the infant life depending on her, and enjoy the hourly happiness of watching the development of a perfectly healthy child.

Thousands of women who are now married with robust health cannot understand why thousands of other women continue to worry and suffer from all peculiarities to women when they can obtain for a trifling sum Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which will quickly banish all pain, distress and misery and restore the womanly functions to perfect health.

IMPORTANT SPECIAL OFFER
TO READERS OF THIS PAPER

Any person desiring a copy of the People's Common Sense Medical Adviser please address Dr. Pierce, 100 Peachtree Street, and this notice together with 20 cents in stamps to Dr. Pierce, Invalids Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., and a copy will be sent to return mail, all charges prepaid.

the trustees, and when he has to respond to his name he is not afraid and shucks hands with Major Varnado.

"It is the first time I have seen such a boy," he said. "You are a boy that is of neither here nor there, and I am not longer."

Continuing, Mr. Green said: "I graduated from old Oglethorpe with the class of 1906, and members of that class are living today in all walks of life, including myself, are ministers of the gospel. The other three could not be there, though, because they are not here. They are much happier, and I read you the names which they have written and sent to me."

"When I was in school at old Oglethorpe we had a little baby boy at the university, and he was very proud of it. He was a pretty baby, but he did not grow to be a pretty boy, nor a man, and a great man. But he was his honor. His name is Woodrow Wilson, and he is now the President of the United States. We said he would someday be moderator of our general assembly. I have no doubt he would, if he had not into the ministry."

Wilson, William, is now a rear admiral in the U. S. Navy, and is reported to be in the service of the French.

"Tommy Wilson was a fine baby, as I say, and we used to predict great things for him. But he did not succeed in recapturing the position we vacated three days ago. In that village, our troops captured him and he was captured by the Germans. Fighting will continue for the remainder of the last trench."

"French attacks on our positions south of St. Mihiel were repelled, and the telephone company, to succeed A. B. Conklin, recently resigned. Mr. McConnell has already arrived in Atlanta and is assuming active charge of the telephone company's affairs. He has selected a director in the company.

Mr. McConnell was formerly vice president and general manager of the Peoples Home Telephone company in Birmingham. He has been in the telephone business, having been in the employ of the Central Union (281) Telephone company for about eighteen years before he went to Birmingham. Mr. McConnell is well known in Atlanta about the first of February."

The telephone company also announces the opening of its new exchange at the opening of the new year, when an exchange building has been erected with a switchboard that has a capacity for accommodate 1,000 lines. The new exchange will serve the section comprising Drift Hills, Inman Park, East Atlanta, Kirkwood and Edgewood.

"Why didn't you recognize your old father?" said Mr. Green. "We used to know each other well back yonder." In his response, he remarked that he is eighty years old. "But I feel young yet," said he. "I feel that I have more than I have felt in many a long day."

Thus went on the roll call and the questions, while the audience sat still and quiet, the many eyes filled with tears.

"The White House, Nov. 3, 1914.

"MY DEAR FRIEND:

"Feeling of deep regret that I cannot respond to your letter at this time, the conversation of the new Oglethorpe University. Dr. Thompson, president of that university as well as an official disappointment to me that I cannot be present and express my personal the deep interest and concern of the individuality which deserves to be cherished by all who are interested in the higher education."

"Cordially yours, W. G. Wilson."

(Signed) W. G. WOODBROW WILSON.

Court to Hear Terms Offered in Peace Parley

Hearing on Injunction Suit Filed Against Organized Ball by Federals Will Bring Out Details of Negotiations for a Compromise Between Two Forces a Short Time Since

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—Details of peace negotiations between the Federal league and the men who organized baseball, who were suddenly summoned to court, will be revealed in the United States district court today when John D. Addington, attorney for the Federal league, resumed his argument in support of the Federals' claim that the National league is operating in violation of antitrust laws.

Attorney Addington, it was expected, will present the affidavits of James A. Gilmore, president of the Federal league, in regard to the peace negotiations, in the sworn statement of Gilmore, which was filed in the suit. Charles H. Weller, president of the Chicago Federals, and President Robertson, of the Buffalo team, were present in the courtroom with August Hermann, chairman of the national baseball commission, and the three men came at least four conditions for peace.

First, the afflilate seis force, was the recognition of the national organization as a major league; second, representation by the Federals in the national commission; third, the recognition of the national ball players and umpires that had gone to the Federal league from organized baseball; fourth, the recognition of the Federals in the series for the world's baseball championships.

In the first, the afflilate says, the affidavit says, the Federal league at no time considered joining forces with organized baseball, but the Federals are willing to accept the so-called national agreement unless it could be modified to become legal.

The peace negotiations, the affidavit says, will be one of the chief points of defense for organized baseball, as its attorney in the contest is interested in the notion of the Federals that they sought recognition from the national commission rather than the national baseball commission, which is operating in restraint of trade.

Attorney Addington finished his argument around 12 o'clock yesterday morning. George Wharrie Peper, of Philadelphia, chief of counsel for organized baseball, will present the argument for defense.

Indications were today that it will require many more points, more than a week, to complete the trial.

Field Trials Were Begun Wednesday

ATLANTA, Jan. 21.—The National Championship Field Trials, postponed from Monday because of weather, were opened yesterday at Westview over the Robert Ames preserve near Grand Junctions. One brace was won by the Atlanta team, which A. G. was owned by Dr. C. G. Donnelly, of New London, Conn., and Billonville, a portion of the city of Atlanta. The team, tired before the end of the three hours heat over a soggy field, was forced to give up. The Atlanta team, while Billonville found only one and is charged with three unproductive points.

No more the masque flicks the ball
Along the ancient green.
No more the broom's sweeping clow
Revolves in the air.
But caddies for the player Death
Amid the shots that fly,
The only divots they replace
Are where the dead men lie.

Deep-burkeed in the crimson trench,
Implanted with iron.
The field of iron leapt to meet
The cannon belching "Fors!"
And where the shrapnel's gung approach,
Copper and iron through the strife.
The only par they dream of now

Is there anything more interesting?" asks B. L. T., "than winter baseball gossip?" he adds, "a seed catalogue?" More interesting? It is romance in comparison.

W. ORSE THAN T. URRIBLE

Sir—Here's one as funny and almost as original as everybody getting knocked down by a squinting nose in the movies—
"WH! DON'T put Ping in!"

If he is a big advantage over Mr. Mullin in the Yank's pursuit of first base in the war of a monicker. The only serious rival, Mr. Ping has the redoubtable Ping. What untold possibilities if he had only entered the Yank fold as Ping Pipp.

(But Don't Tell Another Soul)

Sir—One day last spring you tipped the Yanks to finish with a percentage of 452. They finished with one of .457. That isn't perfect, but it's close enough, all things considered. What percentage are you allotting them for 1915?

ANOTHER OLD TIMER.

With a goodly portion of the high explosives lifted from the Atlantic line, the American league has this season given promise of a return to old times when four teams were to look on first place.

For the last four years the Mackinaw shadow has clouded the Red Sox through '92. But know this race is more of an open affair. The Red Sox predominate in the dope, but nothing to the extent of the Mackinaw since '910.

Five clubs at least have a shot at the title—Boston, Philadelphia, Detroit, Chicago and Washington.

Sir—New York and Cleveland still have some distance to travel before taking their place in polite baseball society. Unless the esteemed pastime is dyanmited, fizzled, decapitated and dismembered by the Fed with the intent of peace, it will present the argument for organized baseball.

Indications were today that it will require many more points, more than a week, to complete the trial.

DOUMET'S CHANCE.

It is interesting to see that the grand old dame of the game, Mrs. Jane M. Reynolds, of Croton Lake, is 29 years old and still healthy because she has never worried a day in her life. But Mrs. Jane M. Reynolds, of Croton Lake, never managed the Yankees or Reds or topped a mastiff shot into a yawning bunker.

Europe still has this big edge over America—she will be 27,000 miles away from the Johnson-Wilfrid fight.

OFF-SIDE PLAYS.

The grandest little defense ever framed is an open exit only two jumps away. The champion knackers in any game are exultant from the outclass.

Colonel Franklin P. Adams has decided not to enter the British Cycling corps at once. His plan now is to wait until Italy has busted in and has called him what the feeling is.

Europe still has this big edge over America—she will be 27,000 miles further away from the Johnson-Wilfrid fight.

THE SPORTING ACCENT.

The colors that should have shrunk—
Of mighty shots from bunkers—
With the accent on the you know.

Mrs. Jane M. Reynolds, of Croton Lake, is 29 years old and still healthy because she has never worried a day in her life. But Mrs. Jane M. Reynolds, of Croton Lake, never managed the Yankees or Reds or topped a mastiff shot into a yawning bunker.

Golf clubs in England, France and Belgium are now lined with deep trenches. But they will have little on the Havana Country club when John McGraw shanks his first few jants around the course.

Eggers should have a slight edge, still.

However, he is a game, wins by weight and will be a good boxer after his debut.
