

FINANCIERS OF WESTERN HEMISPHERE TO CONFER

Stronger Financial and Commercial Relations Will Be Discussed May 10

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, March 8.—Treasury officials were going ahead today with plans for the forthcoming conference of Pan-American financiers in Washington, which will be held May 10-12, for strengthening the financial and commercial relations between the nations of the western hemisphere.

The date having been chosen by President Wilson, an appropriation of $50,000 was made.

An elaborate program is being prepared for what promises to be one of the most important financial conferences ever held in the United States for the promotion of the fiscal and trade relations between the Central and South American countries.

Central and South American nations have indicated an intention to participate in the conference, and leading bankers to confer with American financiers and treasury officials.

In addition to sending formal invitations to foreign ministers, American cabinet officers, diplomats from the Central and South American countries here and the American Reserve board will be invited to participate.

Secretary Bryan, in a statement, said the main purpose of the conference in connection with the conference was the failure of congress to pass the administration purchase bill, which would have adopted a plan of financial cooperation among the South American countries.

He declared the full benefits of the conference could not be realized until the bill was adopted, adding that the conference would make it more evident than ever the need of such a measure.

BARRATT'S STATEMENT.

Director General of the Pan-American Institute, in a statement on the coming conference.

"The conference will be the most important and probably the most important in the United States since the first Pan-American Conference Secretary of State James G. Blaine called in 1888."

It is the hope of the Pan-American Institute and all the governments of Central and South America, he said, that the gathering will afford the first great opportunity for the Pan-American peoples to get together financial and commercial relationship among the twenty-one nations forming the Pan-American union.

"It will be a constructive and receptive conference which should, at the beginning of a new epoch in the great business interests of the nations concerned, bring the Americas, from the tip of Latin America just as much as the United States.

MAN REPORTED MISSING DENIES "SUICIDE" STORY

Chappell Says Taking Own Life Has Never Entered His Mind

Grover C. Chappell, the young man who was reported to have mysteriously disappeared, has appeared at the Journal office Monday morning and asked that a correction of the story be published.

Mr. Chappell declared that he had not engaged in conversation with a friend, the Rev. Dr. Broad and Maitland, on Tuesday night, and also Monday night. He believes that the whole story is the work of a newspaper reporter who tried to injure his business. He said he had been at work, on a job, on Ponce de Leon Avenue, since the time that the suicide note was never entered into his mail.

Mr. Chappell said he had been to see Jim, the boy, Tuesday night, and to have said he was Chappell Tuesday night.

He declares that Mr. Allen said he had an idea that he was a story.

Mr. Chappell, according to himself, had known nothing about the affair.

Portugal Prepares to Enter New Government

(By Associated Press.)

BRASILIA, March 8.—(UPI)—The Diario do Bradesio, published at Brasilia on the Portuguese frontier, announced today that the government has sent the cruiser Admirante to Opero as a measure of precaution.

"Do not go in, my master, the attendant said to the emperor, "he came to the field hospitals."

"Inside the fort, the emperor said, "I am still strong, but I am a dying man."

"The forces of those engaged in the hospital were sent for, those there still had a chance to save the Kaiser."

VICTIM AT BRUNSWICK

Ernest McDonald Dead and Three Others Are in Critical Condition

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

BRUNSWICK, March 8.—The seventh victim of the city's tragedy was claimed Sunday in the Exchange, the capital of Ernest McDonald. This young man was among those severely wounded by Monroe Phillips, the maniac who followed the killing of L. C. Padgett, G. W. Asbell, R. M. Beaver, L. C. Padgett and George W. Asbell, who had come down stairs from H. E. Dunwoody's office, where the latter had been killed, shouting at his death.

He was found by Dr. J. W. McDonald until the last, but at 10 o'clock Sunday morning he died. He had been in a coma since he had recovered from a more severe case of pneumonia, during which his life was despaired of for many days. Together with the other men he had been engaged in the butcher business.

He leaves a young widow and two small children. He may be interred tomorrow afternoon.

Definite action on the ordinance which is to be made before it reaches the court, is expected to appear at the first meeting of the committees.

At Monday's meeting, however, the officers and officials of the Georgia Railway and Power company are expected to appear to oppose the ordinance.

ATLANTA WOMAN'S SISTER ABOARD BURNING VESSEL

Miss Mabel Parsons' Suspense
Relieved by News That All Are Safe

Atlantaans downtown Saturday morning were interested and held at attention by the first press dispatches telling that the French liner La Touraine was afire in mid-Atlantic, and that Miss Parsons was proceeding to her aid. The news was told under big headlines. It indicated another life boat had disappeared.

But there was at least one exception among all those who read the story with impatent interest and then put the news aside. That exception was Miss Mabel H. Parsons, a Canadian, member of the faculty of Spelman seminary in Atlanta.

Miss Parsons was just leaving the postoffice when she heard the newscasts telling of the liner's trouble. One man ran past her and she caught the two words, "lives afire," in the headlines.

"It must have been intuition that made me run to the news," she stated. "I said to myself, 'I have to know what is happening to my friend confirmed at one glance. I saw her name 'La Touraine'! It was the boat and sailing on the ocean."

The first report of the news dazed her a moment. She was brought back to a realization of her surroundings by a telephone call from a man in a doublet, hat off, smiling. His automobile was at the curb.

"What is it?" she said. "Take me to the telegraph office. I'll explain on the way."

In the Journal building she addressed a nearly frantic inquiry to Miss Jordan, superintendent of the French hospital, New York. She wanted to know all that she could about the liner, the passengers, and particularly about Miss Nellie Burdette Parsons, her sister, one of the faculty of the Flanagan foundation in New York.

Less than three hours later she received the reply: "Just heard. All safe."

Miss Parsons was awaiting Monday further particulars.

She explained that her sister, her only sister, was one of the party of ten graduate nurses and several physicians who started recently from New York for France, and opened a new hospital for French soldiers in the neighborhood of Paris. This hospital is to be equipped and maintained in a famous old chateau in the Picardy country, which was endowed recently by Mrs. Fitzgerald, a wealthy New York woman, who is the widow of a former associate nurse of the French hospital in New York, which is the headquarters in this country for the Fitzgerald foundation.

MANY GEORGIANS WILL NOT GET 1915 PENSIONS

Certificates Held Up by Ordinaries
naries Reach Commissioner Day Late

Between 75 and 100 Georgians who are expecting to draw pensions from the state this year will be disappointed because the state has delayed in mailing their names on the 1915 rolls.

Now, however, those whose names have previously been enrolled with the pension commissioners are affected. Each year a number of new names are added to the rolls, and the state has delayed the pension act of 1910. Section 3 of that act provides that only those persons whose certificates have been mailed by the state pension commissioner by November 1 of the previous year may draw pensions.

Last year November 1 fell on Sunday and the lists of several ordinaries did not reach the pension office of the commissioners until Monday, November 2. Commissioner J. W. Lindsay consulted Attorney General Warren Grice and the latter told him that the law provided that the certificates must be filed by November 1, and that since only excepting one day, the state cannot pay the pensions of those whose certificates did not reach the office on time.

It is understood that some of the ordinaries had some of those certificates in hand before November 1, but waited until they got them to the pension office before they mailed them to the pension commissioner. These letters, to the pension commissioner, read:

"The 'Brookline' committee, Attached to the 75th Regt., E. C. V., begs to inform you that the certificates of the men who enlisted in the Regt. before November 1, 1914, were not delivered at the office of the pension commissioner until Monday,
Nov. 2, 1915."

Through the inadvertence of the ordinaries between 75 and 100 persons will have to wait until next year to get pensions.

STATE TRAINING SCHOOL FOR GIRLS TO HAVE HANDSOME NEW BUILDING

RAILROADS WIN FIGHT AGAINST REDUCED RATES

North Dakota Coal Rate and
W. Va. Passenger Rate
Law Held Confiscatory

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The supreme court, in annulling as confiscatory the North Dakota coal rate law and the West Virginia passenger rate law as applied to particular roads, today laid down the far-reaching principle that railroads cannot reduce the return from special commodities by business to practically nominal profits on the theory that adequate returns may be provided on other articles or activities.

The school is located on a hundred-acre tract of land on Baker's Ferry road, twelve miles south of Atlanta. The acreage, two frame buildings and a considerable amount of cash was given by the community to the have the institution located here.

Although the old frame building can only accommodate fifteen girls comfortably, the new building, which is brick with basement, construction, with commodious basement and two stories, will provide accommodations for twice as many. The building is thoroughly modern in every respect.

"The state has broad powers over railroads, but it makes no difference if they are used or not," said the attorney general, "but the presumption is that they are."

"It is presumed—but the presumption is not established—that the rates which the state fixes for intrastate traffic are reasonable and just. When the presumption is established, the burden of the intrastate business as a whole under a general scheme of rates, of the property to public purposes, is on the railroads," he said.

Director Personally Looks
After Census of Georgia
Manufacturers

For the first time since President Wilson appointed him a member of the important federal trade board, William J. Harris, director of the Georgia state census, has come to Atlanta. Mr. Harris is being warmly congratulated on his being honored which have come to him, and he is looking forward to his return to Washington Wednesday.

He is to give up the office of director of the census, which he will enter upon his new duties.

Mr. Harris came to Atlanta at this time to personally look over the work of the census takers.

He is to inspect the work of the census takers, and then return to Atlanta to inspect the work of the manufacturers.

Baugh Is Choice Of Local Club

Birmingham Man Favored for Presidency of League to Successor Judge Kavanagh

Robert H. Baugh of Birmingham for the presidency of the southern league to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Kavanagh. This is the tip he has given to the Atlanta club, who are in a position to know the inside information. Just how definite the tip is, and how well it has been received, can not be learned, but it is definitely known that the wires have been tickling on the press wire, and a definite plan has been worked out.

President Frank Callahan of the local club is the only one who is known. The club owners of the league will meet this day to hold the election. Baugh has been a member of the league, and is formally and actively placed in the running as a candidate, but it is known that he has not been invited to accept if the position is offered him. The local club favors him, and the tip has been given to the Atlanta club, and the others beside the Birmingham club are also favorable to his candidacy.

The Atlanta club will be chosen for the place. The local club is therefore free to use its influence to get Baugh elected for any of the men who are being urged for the place. However, the locals have announced that they propose to urge Baugh before the meeting, and a plan is to put in Secretary A. B. Parker of the local club as secretary of the league, and the other members in baseball matters, and there are few men in the south better informed in baseball than Parker. Furthermore, he is an excellent business man, and there is no doubt but what he would make an admirable president.

Under President Kavanagh's administration, the Atlanta and Birmingham clubs were combined. However, it is likely that the two offices may be separated now, and the Atlanta club will be chosen for a period of one year only. President Kavanagh was chosen for a period of five years at the last election, and it is believed here that the term will be cut to one year in the coming election.

Former Auburn Fullback Slain

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 8.—WILL H. Christopher, Jr., of the city, member of the chamber of commerce of the Atlantic Polytechnic Institute, was shot and killed early Sunday night. Beach, near here, John Flynn, a champion and popular boxer, having caused his death. According to the police, Christopher and another man, John McNamee, were engaged in a fistfight and Flynn interfered. Flynn, who was admitted firing the shot, said that he tried to shoot into the air to frighten the combatants and end the fight.

Local fans will recall Christopher as one of Coach Miss Donovan's greatest finds in 1913. However, Christopher, like all the other players, composed the bunch of human ramms that tore its way through the season on the gridiron that season. Christopher did not return to Auburn last fall.

Cardinals Want Outfielder Bescher

MAHLIN, Tex., March 8.—The St. Louis National, champion of the "Big" Bescher, New York National, outfielder, in exchange for W. D. "Poli" Perritt, pitcher, it was said, on word authority here, by Peter Miller, general manager of the St. Louis team, and John McDowell, leader of the New York club, that Bescher had accepted the deal. It was said St. Louis probably would get a recruit in addition to Bescher.

Bescher recently returned to organized baseball, after Federal league officials announced he had signed with them.

Bill James Starts For Braves' Camp

CHICAGO, March 8.—"Bill" James, pitcher for the Boston Nationals, left here last night for Atlanta, Ga., with the intent of working out the two years his contract with Manager Stallings calls for. He signed with the Atlanta club, Charles Willard, president of the Chicago Federals, and sought to sign a contract with the Federals, but failed to reach an agreement, but was not eligible because of his contract with Boston.

Murch Chosen to Lead Thomasville

THOMASVILLE, Ga., March 8.—R. J. Murch, third baseman for the locals last season, has been chosen to manage the club during the 1915 campaign. He has been a member of the staff of the directors here yesterday. Murch succeeds Dudley, who handled the team for the two years who has gone to take charge of the Atlanta team in the South Atlantic league.

O "Land of Might Have Been," we turn—

With aching hearts to where you wait;

Where crimson and of red burn—

And laurel crowns the guarding gate:

The sightless skulls that knew their woes—

The broken spears—the shattered shields—

That "might have been" as truly so.

"Of all sad words of tongue or pen—

Some words were written in pain—

The saddest are—'It might have been.'

And world-wide runs the dull refrain—

The saddest? Yes—but in the jar—

This thoughts brings to me with its curse,

I sometimes think the gladdest are—

"It might have been a blighted sight worse."

"Kaiser had deep sympathy for Belgium." Another member of the "Like Kaiser" Did club.

"England plans heavy revenge against Germany." But how can England get close enough to blow up the报复者?

EXPLAINING IT.

Dear Sir: Will you please explain to me the reason for all this sympathy or alleged sympathy for the veteran ball player who loses out? As a rule he is still in possession of his health and is generally about forty. I'll admit such sympathy is all beyond me. D. L. J.

The average veteran who drops out isn't a star and never was. As a rule, he has given his career to baseball and he has made only enough money to support his family. As a rule he is through at thirty-five, supposed to be the prime of life. At that age he has given his best years to a profession that leaves him trained for no other job.

But there is something beyond all this. Baseball brings the player beneath the spotlight. As a big leaguer his name and his record are known to all. He is a rock, a symbol of strength, a grown accumulation to the old hip-hip and the jubilee. He has been favored with the admiration of thousands. And then, almost without warning, he drops into the night.

THE CASE OF WALSH.

It is hard to see how any sport loving citizen could refrain from sympathizing with Ed Walsh. With him it isn't a matter of salary lost to any great extent. But here is a great pitcher who had grown accustomed to game after game to swing in, amid the cheers of the enraptured fans, and then, with a single blow, has been cast down, his career hanging in the balance. And then, while still a young giant in the best of health, something cracks in the shoulder blade—the old rubber wear-out or the mainspring snaps—and Walsh is a spectator and the old huzza is hushed.

Sympathy doesn't always involve finance, even in this commercial age. It often sinks quite a trifle deeper.

WITH APOLOGIES TO MAUDE.

Frank Baker, on a summer's day, Raked the meadow sweet with hay.

Beneath his old cap glowed an eye

That used to hit 'em far and high.

And as he grappled with the bean

He pondered on the Old, Machine;

The Good Old Days when long ago

He waved a bat—and not a hoe.

And as he raked among the rocks

He thought of Marquard in the box;

He seemed to hear a crashing clout—

And then a mighty cheer and shout.

Frank Baker on a summer's day

Arouse and beat it from the hay.

Arise and sent this wire to Mack—

"Please can I have the old job back?"

"Mack arrives with a club at Jacksonville." But he left a lot of bushels behind at Trappe, Md.

Jack Warlop is deeply interested in Bill Donovan's run-getting tactics. Last season Jack won 1-0 games, all finely pitched, and he would like to repeat his 1-0 win if Bill can develop an offence that will at least net an average of one run to each start.

"No civilized country," says a exchange, "will stage any John-son-Willard fight." This may be true enough. In fact, it sounds quite reasonable. But it still leaves a wide range and a great many contestants for the title. Johnson and Willard to meet in Boston.

No civilized country would stage what Europe is putting over, either, but that has nothing to do with closing out the war.

"I see where the Irish are supposed to be disappearing from baseball," comments F. L. Trappe. "Aren't there still more great Irish players than any other nationality?"

An all-star club would have for catchers: Archer, Irish, and Schan-German; for pitchers: Rudolph, German, for the infield: McInnis, Irish; Col-lingwood, Irish; Marcelline, Irish; Baker, an English monstrosity. The out-field would consist of: Cobb, Spokane, Crawford, being neither Irish nor German. Just the plain old American name, minus the hyphen, rules the game by a wide margin still.

Crackers Begin Work Wed'sday

Manager Smith Will Send All Who Are Here at That Time to Regular Daily Practice

Wednesday of this week is the day chosen by Manager Billy Smith to start in such of the Crackers as are on hand. The manager has been in touch with the club in serving notice on the boys to report, Billy asked that they arrive here some time between the 10th and 13th. Don Flynn tired of waiting, and is expected in several days, and it is expected that several others will be here Wednesday. The manager is expected to get in later in arriving, but all are expected to be here by the last of the week.

Jack Morris, pitcher, and Flynn, Frank Brownling, Pitcher Williams, Ed Coffey and Tamm are here now, and this morning the manager sent word to several other arrivals between now and Wednesday. A good percentage of the boys are here, and the manager is writing to all the others to get them in.

Down at Dallas, Texas, there isn't much to do at any time, and especially after the sun disappears, and ball players can no longer engage in the earnest pursuit of baseball. The manager is in condition for a hard campaign through the long summer months. This fact is even more apparent now, as the weather changes with the seasons. The weather happens to be bad, and the boys must stay indoors practically day and night. The manager is writing to all the others to get them in.

If all the seasons are favorable during the current week, Manager Smith expects to get the park in good shape. There is quite a lot of work to be done, and the manager is going to have the boys work on the park when the exhibition season begins, but as the first games are some 12 weeks away, there should be little difficulty in completing the job by that time.

Now that dancing has broken officially into baseball, that makes it about unattractive to the boys. The manager has declined to let Jim Bluejacket, the Federal pitcher, and at least a good percent are here now, to the sun.

Nap Lajoie may be an old dogged fighter, but the same Athletics at Jacksonville have yet to learn of the fact from personal observation.

In a practice game a few days ago, Larry decided he would be a uniformed manager.

These are progressive times, whether whist at the shortstopping job.

Manager Smith is a man born and bred to the game. What do you suppose he did when he first got the plate? Blister, right on the nose, of course.

In a practice game a day or so ago, the Atlanta team played against the White Sox. The Atlanta team won, and Alvin Cowles, regarded as the most famous player in the country, was moved by the White Sox to the plate. The Atlanta team did more to beat the White Sox, while an actual member of the team, while the Atlanta team was a strong contender last year, and may displace the winner in this contest.

Jonathan Dobbs is putting in all of his spare time just now in scanning the horizon for a good left-hand finger for his team.

For the first time in his life, the manager is in a position to be a good manager.

These men, however, are offered prizes for the winner and others who finish well up, and it is expected that a large number of the starters will be the ones to receive the prizes.
