Child Burns to Death
(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
GRIFFIN, Ga., April 14.—A young son of James Sims was burned to death smokehouse in which the little fellow was playing was destroyed by fire.

The father of the child was attending court at Zebulon at the time of the fire. The child was five years of age.

Ga. Postmaster's Shortage Made Up By Mother-in-Law

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
ATLANTA, Ga., April 14.—A jury in the United States court here today found Samuel A. Hall, a former postmaster of the city, guilty of misappropriation of $5,000 of the government's funds and Judge Speer sentenced him to serve two months in the Richmond county jail.
The money which Hall was due the government was supplied by his mother-in-law, which caused some adulatory sentences by Judge Speer, concerning mother-in-law in general. Hall claimed that while he was postmaster the actual work of the office was done by an assistant and it was his assistant who was short, although he himself was the responsible party.

WILL CARRY CALF CASE TO THE HIGHER COURTS Pylant Claims Illegal Sale Was Interrupted and Therefore Not Made

To test the constitutionality of the city ordinance prohibiting the sale of calf carcasses under certain weight, Joe Pylant, a merchant of Buckhead, confessed and fined $25.00 in recorder's court Tuesday for its violation, has engaged attorneys to carry the case to higher courts.

Pylant was arrested for attempting to sell a calf said to be about forty pounds under the minimum weight to the Manhattan market. He admitted killing and dressing the calf in question, but claimed that the sale was interrupted before completion by West Inspector Wagner and was, therefore, no sale, and no violation. City Attorney Maxon prosecuted the case and held that the arrestment and delivery constituted the violation of law.

TO TEST U. S. JUDGES' RIGHTS OF PRACTICE

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 14.—
Whether judges of the United States courts have the power to suspend sentences imposed on defendants in criminal proceedings is to be tested by United States District Attorney Sherman Mc-Mahon as a result of the action of Judge Hollister here yesterday in suspending a six months' prison sentence imposed upon Laura Hodges, a negro of this city, after she had pleaded guilty to a charge of forging a money order.
A report of the suspension of the sentence was made to the department of justice at Washington last night by McMahon, and it is probable that preliminary steps in the matter will be taken within the next week or two.

GERMAN RAIDER MUST PROLONG STAY IN PORT.

Three Weeks at Least Needed to Repair Kronprinz Wilhelm's Boiler Tubes

(By Associated Press.)
NEWPORT NEWS, April 14.—The German merchant raider Kronprinz Wilhelm, it was learned today, is in need of boiler tubes which cannot be supplied at port and must be manufactured elsewhere. To procure and install the tubes, it is said, will require at least three weeks.

Captain Thierfelder, it has been ascertained, made mention of the condition of his boilers in his letter to the Washington authorities asking for time to make temporary repairs and also stated that he could not procure necessary equipment for the purpose here.

Authorities, to take the Wilhelm into dry dock has been given by the Washington government, but Wilhelm must be trimmed before she can be moved, and dry dock space must be cleared. For these reasons, it is probable the ship will not dock before Friday.

Three hundred additional tons of coal were allowed the German raider this morning for port purposes. The coal will be used in trimming the ship that her bow may be lowered and stern raised.
Experts report the ship is taking so much water in the stern as to endanger her rudder and propeller. The coal will be taken on late today or early tomorrow.

STORY OF THE BELLEVUE
Details of the sinking of the British steamship Bellevue, one of the Wilhelm's fourteen victims, were related today by members of the crew, revealing that the British ship was held as a prize for sixteen days before she was sent to the bottom. The Bellevue was bound from Liverpool to South American ports with 4,000 tons of coal, 4,000 cases of whisky and several hundred of men when she was captured by the Wilhelm, December 4 last. For days the Bellevue would be tied up to the Wilhelm and at night the German cruiser would stand by the merchantman, with a prize crew on board. When the Mont April was sighted, the Bellevue was left in charge of the prize crew while the Kronprinz Wilhelm gave chase and finally sank the French ship by ramming.

On December 26, after the Bellevue had been stripped of everything of the least value, all movable parts were securely lashed down that nothing might be left floating to give the British cruisers a clue as to the Wilhelm's whereabouts, and the British merchantman was sunk.

England's Expert Football Players Not Keen for War

LONDON, April 14.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—Only 123 professional football players out of some 1,600 in the league teams have enlisted in the football battalion, which was organized for the express purpose of bringing this class of professional athletes to the colors and of breaking up a sport which is supposed to have a bad effect on the recruiting campaign.

"The lack of football professionals and their following has amounted to almost a public scandal," states Colonel C.
Grantham, commanding the battalion.
"I am aware and have proof that in many cases directors and managers of clubs have not only given no assistance in getting these men to join, but have done their best by their actions to prevent it. I will no longer be a party to shielding the want of patriotism of these men by allowing the public to think they have joined the football battalion."

To Our Fellow Citizens:

At the last election of an Ordinary for Fulton County, a majority of you selected the lamented John R. Wilkinson for that position. We, as his associates in office, also received your approbation, and we feel certain that it was then, and still is, your wish that we should serve for the full term of four years for which the ticket was elected.

The hand of Death has removed Judge Wilkinson, and unless you come to the polls once more, and ratify the trust you have reposed in us, we also will be deprived of the fruits of your generosity and thrown out of our positions nearly two years before the term expires.

We have tried to give you courteous and ef-inspection. We believe there is no man in Fulton County more able or more beloved than Thomas H. Jeffries, who heads our ticket, and we take this means of asking that you remember that a vote for him is not only a tribute to his character and ability, but is also a stamp of approval on our services and a guarantee that we shall be permitted to complete the term for which you elected us.

On account of the increasing volume of busi-

THE WINDOW LOOK IN

It's Mutual

Sounds odd, maybe, but it's the flat truth: you could not live and more do without us than we could do without you.

Ever thought of that? We're dependent mutually—Atlanta and this public service of carfare, light, power, and that dependence is absolute.

Atlanta has grown from village to city with our share of help. We've grown to what we are with Atlanta's share of help.

True, each has accomplished much apart. For instance, we've never lagged in devising, trying and applying new methods; in working to cut the proportionate cost of better and greater service.

But at no time has either been independent of the other. Improvements and extensions by us have been matched in Atlanta's population-growth and expansive progress.

We would have shared misfortune. We do share fortune. You pay us many nickels. We pay them back to you through wages, salaries, purchases, taxes, entertainments, improvements—even through dividends, when there are any. We don't bury a single penny. We couldn't retire one nickel from circulation if we tried.

Further, every dollar we earn means reflex benefit worth many more dollars to the whole community in enhanced property values and increased tax funds.

We win or we lose with you. It's mutual.

POWERFUL ARGUMENT FOR WOMAN SUFFRAGE IS MADE BY DR. SHAW

Five Thousand Persons Hear Great Suffrage Leader at Auditorium on "Votes for Women" and World Peace

"If Dr. Anna Howard Shaw could address the assembled armies of Europe, the war would end within a week," was the comment of one man after hearing the powerful appeal for right government, woman suffrage and world peace made by the great suffrage leader to 5,000 people at the auditorium Tuesday night.

For two hours Dr. Shaw held her audience under a spell; they laughed with her when she chose to use sarcasm, they applauded her when she brought arguments to some striking and dramatic climax, and some cried with her when she pictured the death of some of the thousands of men killed on the battlefields of Europe.

Dr. Shaw spoke under the auspices of the three local suffrage organizations of Atlanta; all who heard her agreed that the address was one of the finest arguments for "votes for women" ever advanced in the state of Georgia.

"The reasons given against woman suffrage by its opponents are like the Kilkenny cats," said Dr. Shaw, "they always come in pairs, and they always kill each other."

"Vox populi, vox dei, the voice of the people is the voice of God," said Dr. Shaw. "This truth, put into two languages by American statesmen to better express the great thought, has been used by statesmen since this nation was born as the highest expression of the true meaning of a republic—the voice of the people has always been a basic note; the real voice of the people should be a dual, with soprano and bass singing together in harmony that would be really divine."

DR. SHAW'S TRIBUTE.

Dr. Shaw, who is president of the National American Woman's Suffrage Association, was introduced by Dr. John E. White as "the foremost of forward-looking American women." She spoke from the stage of the great auditorium, with a huge American flag above her head. On the blue field of this flag black stars represented the states in which woman suffrage does not yet exist; golden stars above them the black ones—these stood for the "free" states. Beside Dr. Shaw sat Anna Howard Shaw, leaders of the three suffrage organizations here: Dr. W. W. McMillen, president of the Georgia Woman's Suffrage Association, president of the G. M. A. band furnished music, and the cadets of the school sat in a line to the right of the speaker.

Looking at these young men, toward the close of her address Dr. Shaw made an appeal for the end of war. After picturing the devotion and care poured out by a mother upon the head of her boy from the time he is born until the first of his youth, she stands before him, from his mother, to face the world alone. Dr. Shaw said:

"A young man strong in his manhood, with a clean body and clean mind, is the finest work of God. To his life is mingled the life of his mother; years of her life have gone from her into him. "A nation calls—in an hour he is marching to the front, soon he is lying dead upon a field filled with others who are also dead. Dead mothers are on that field, too. There never died a man yet that a woman didn't die, too. Yet they ask us, 'What do women know about war?' Why, what do men know about war?"

Dr. Shaw spoke of addressing an open air audience in a Nebraska country town, of a man who sat on a box on the edge of the crowd, "whittling a stick for the good of his country," who called out to another man similarly employed: "Would these women go over and fight the Germans if we let them vote?"

"I turned to him and asked him, 'why should we go over and fight the Germans, sir?' said Dr. Shaw. "He stopped whittling on his stick for a minute, and said: 'Would you fight if the Germans landed an army in America?'"

"No," I told him, "we'd expect our men to fight the German men. But if an army of German women landed, we'd fight—yes, we'd fight them."

Applause from the women in the audience greeted this. "Yes, we'd meet their transports as they landed," said Dr. Shaw. "We American women would meet them; we would say to them, 'Let's talk this thing over; we'd take them up to the Metropolitan opera house, and we would talk it over. And there wouldn't be any war.'"

NO REPUBLICAN YET.

After stating that the United States had changed its form of government five times, each time thinking it was a republic, Dr. Shaw said this country was not a republic yet, and never would be until republicanism by the divine right of sex were overthrown and half the population of the nation were enfranchised.

She spoke of a woman from New Jersey, an anti-suffragist, who advocated woman's place in the home, who left her home for three months to "follow me around the country."

"Should women sit on juries?" she asked. "There are lots of juries that ought to be sat on. And there are many women who would like to sit on anything. Women who stand all day behind a bargain counter, women who stand all day beside a wash-tub—yes, they'd like to sit on juries at $2 a day—they really enjoy it."

"And," cried Dr. Shaw, "there is a certain class of men and women who would rather face Satan himself than a jury of mothers. Men and women who are concerned with the corruption of our young boys and girls—our girls, for instance, in this country every year—their mothers never know where their girls these men and women, if brought to court before a jury of mothers, would then, and not until then, receive the punishment they deserve."

Dr. Shaw advocated women policemen for the prevention of crime, not for sole purposes of "knocking a man over the head and dragging him off to jail," she advocated disarmament as the only means toward lasting peace; she said that "man was not made to stand alone—that all woman now wanted was to take her place at his side and help in the world like she helps him in the home."

Following Dr. Shaw's address, Mrs. Henry Peckham made a short talk, while contributions were taken up for "the cause" in Georgia. Then Mrs. Mary L. McMillen addressed the meeting.

Dr. Shaw caught a late train for Savannah, where she speaks Wednesday night.

BOYS OF BATTERY B RUN DOWN A SUSPECT Rehearsal for Entertainment Interrupted by Exciting Chase and Capture

An exciting and successful chase of a negro pursued by a detective and a corps of artillerymen, ended a lively incident Tuesday night to the artillery rehearsal for the military pageant.

Sergeant Grover McNeill proved the hero of the occasion, outdistancing the negro suspect just as he was about to climb a fence in the rear of the auditorium.

The chase began on the Washington street viaduct, when a negro was pointed out to Detective R. E. Men as a likely suspect. He was followed by the police and the artillerymen, who were holding their rehearsal when the negro and his pursuers appeared. Jumping off their cannon, Sergeant McNeill and several others joined in the chase, and the negro disappeared into the alley running back of the auditorium from Courtland street. It was here that Sergeant McNeill caught him, in the act of climbing the fence.

At the police station the negro gave his name as Richard Richardson, and he was locked up on the blanket charge of "suspicion."

The artillery boys then continued their trip with the cannon to the Atlanta theater and there went through a thorough practice of the military stunts which will be given in Thursday night's program. Combing Won't Rid Hair Of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get out of your hair ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be shiny, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. If it is expensive and never fails to do the work.—(Advt.)

A. & W. P. RAILWAY TAX IS FIXED AT $4,432,309

Comptroller General Wright Rejects Return Placed at $3,007,893

Comptroller General William A. Wright has five written objections to a return filed by President Charles A. Wickham, who has formerly and officially fixed the 1914 tax assessment of the road at $3,007,893.

Several weeks ago the road made its return at $3,007,893, which was rejected by the comptroller general who insisted that the return must at least be $3,053,471. The railroad company desired to raise its figures and notified the comptroller general that it would submit the question of its tax valuation to arbitration.

Upon receipt of this notice General Wright began a careful review of the railroad's franchise and real valuations with the result that the state will ask the arbitration board to fix the assessment at $4,432,309, appraised $1,406,742 for tangible property and $1,256,546 for franchise value.

This assessment would be an increase over the 1914 return of $1,425,476, and an increase over its 1914 returns of $1,425,476.

ILLINOIS FARMERS WANT TO LOCATE IN GEORGIA

Forty Families Ready to Move If They Can Find Location

According to a letter received by the state agricultural department from A. Goldman, 1813 West Thirtieth street, Chicago, he is in touch with 40 families in the northwest who wish to form a farming colony in Georgia.

Mr. Goldman's letter follows in part: "We are about forty families at present, with prospects of increasing to 100 in the near future, who desire to locate in some suitable territory where we can get a good farming. We possess $200 per family but expenses will have to come out of this amount. We would like to settle on the land."

"We desire some private individual or corporation to loan us money at a fair rate of interest with extended time for paying notes, to enable us to buy material for house and barn building, and buy such farm implements and cattle necessary for beginning."

"Many of us are practical farmers but work at various trades when in the city. We are a set of willing workers and will make good should opportunity be given us. Most likely where employment can be secured during the time the land would not occupy our time."

NORTH GEORGIA TO SPEND THOUSANDS ON HIGHWAY

Not Waiting Until Dixie Highway Is Located to Make Improvements

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

DALTON, Ga., April 14.—Thousands of dollars will be spent at once in the work of completing the Johnston-Sherman highway between Atlanta and Chattanooga. While people along the route hope it will be made part of the Dixie highway, they have determined not to wait until the Dixie highway is located before building a first-class road.

A long distance telephone message received here today from Dalton county, Ga., states that the $10,000 wanted to build Dalton county's part was practically secured, the sum now amounting to more than $10,000. This, with other money, will be used in making a first-class road through Dalton. Dalton county's work is practically completed; but a hard surface will be put on the well-graded road. Engineers have surveyed the incomplete section of road in this county, and it will be built immediately. The survey passes around the steep hill in the southern part of the county. Everything will be completed, so the locating committee of the Dixie highway will have a good road to travel when inspecting this route.

If business interferes with baseball, why take bankruptcy.

The Russians seem to have been blocked on two paths of the Carpathians.

This April bids fair to go down in weather history as a rain checkless month.

Unwaveringly Forward.

Atlanta's postal receipts for last September as compared with those for the same month of the preceding year showed a decrease of $2,200, or seven and seven-tenths per cent. But for March, 1915, as compared with March, 1914, there showed a decrease of only $460, or one-third of one per cent.

These figures, furnished The Journal by the postmaster, Mr. Hollis H. Jones, bear cheering witness to the city's business recuperation. Postal receipts are a reliable gauge of commercial activity. They naturally declined under the shock of the European war and the ensuing stagnation of the cotton market. But just as naturally they have responded to improving conditions, and have become virtually normal.

The trend of postal receipts is in keeping with the trend of bank clearings, which have risen steadily from a decrease of thirty-seven per cent last October until they showed a decrease of only twelve per cent in March. In the light of such evidence, the faintest heart would take courage; and as Atlanta is a city whose blood is always red, it will stride unwaveringly forward.

The Army's Eye.

Huerta will at least find the saloons open to him.

All work and no ball game, particularly on opening day, makes Jack a dull boy.

Huerta should consult with Colonel Roosevelt on the art of appearing to be warlike.

The deadly effects of heavy artillery fire in the present war are ascribed chiefly to the aeroplane. It was by means of sky signals that German gunners got their range on the forts of Liege and Antwerp, and by the same means the vessels of the allied fleet at the Dardanelles are hammering defenses which they cannot see. Marshall Morgan, writing to the Nashville Tennessean, gives an interesting account of how this seeming magic is performed:

"The aeroplane goes up. An instrument called the aerostat tells the airman how high he is flying, and the altitude he is to reach has been ascertained. He flies as low as possible to get the enemy—the target. When he finds it he sails over it, but high enough to be out of harm's way, and when over the target he drops signals, colored lights usually. The gunners, watching all the while, with the aid of instruments, can ascertain the distance to the signal lights, or the aeroplane. The height of the machine is already known, having been agreed upon. It therefore remains for the gunners to figure out the other remaining side of the triangle, the distance from gunner to target. This is an easy matter of trigonometry. The distance to the target, being definitely located, the gunners try to shoot. The airman still soaring, notes the line of the fire, whether it be to the right or the left of the proper line, and he signals accordingly. This feature disposed of, the next step is to get the range. Another shot is fired. If it falls short the airman signals. If it overshoots he signals, and in a moment or two the proper range is added to correct line of fire, the target is being hit, and the gunners are signaled 'range'."

Once the aviator has located the target and down exactly over it his most dangerous work is done. After that he can come in closer to his own ground and still be able to give the proper signals with respect to line of fire and range. The aviator always maneuvers so as to avoid getting between his battery and the sun."

Not only in range-finding for long distance artillery fire but in scout service also the aeroplane has proved invaluable. It is said that General Von Kluck's army in France was thus saved from disaster. The French had planned and were executing an enormous flank movement designed to cut off Von Kluck's troops from the main German forces. But watchful birdmen discovered and reported the danger in time for the Germans to fall back to a secure position. The Zeppelin, of which so many boasts were made, has proved ineffectual, but the aeroplane has fulfilled its promise. It is the army's eye, and sometimes the navy's eye—far-seeing and sure.

Huerta is having the effect of causing a reunion of Carranza and Villa forces.

A big growth of population will be noted during the day out Ponce de Leon way.

Some people go through life looking as if they were sorry they had ever started.

President Wilson omitted mention of opening baseball day in Atlanta when he made his proclamation for a national holiday Thursday but he probably feared that baseball day would be observed just the same.

In the Carpathians.

At the crest of the long battle of the Carpathians the Russians are in possession of most valuable points though they are still barred from one or two passes that must be taken before the descent in full force upon Hungary can begin; and those passes are defended with all the strength and valor of which the Austrians and Germans together are capable. No chapter of the war has been more remarkable than this bitter campaign in the mountains. "An eighty-day battle," it has been called. As a matter of fact, it has been in progress, sometimes fiercely and always stubbornly, the winter through.

Both sides have fought under extremely harsh and trying conditions, combating snow and ice and cutting winds as well as each other; and both have shown wonderful fortitude. The Russians have made slow but steady advances. Beaten back at some points and in some engagements, their forces as a whole have pressed forward until now they are almost masters of the situation. It is noteworthy, indeed, that the Russians have been first among the Allies to score anything like a decisive victory.

An invasion of Hungary would have far-reaching influence upon the broad fortunes of the war. Its political effect would be even more important, perhaps, than its immediate military effect. For, if Russia puts her foot on a losing defensive in her own territory, Rumania doubtless will enter the war without further hesitation; other Balkan States probably will follow; and Italy's worn thread of neutrality may be expected to snap.

Realizing the weight of these consequences, the Germans are mustering all their available strength to hold the mountain passes which are yet unoccupied. Dispatches indicate that this defense is under the direction of the German general staff, whose plans the Kaiser himself is supervising. Upon the outcome of this situation a vast deal evidently depends.

In business, as in specie, the way to resume is to resume.

The high cost of war generally follows the high cost of living.

Think well as a neighbor if you would be well thought of by him.

On One Leg.

Savages have a delightful way of finding short cuts out of embarrassing positions. In a certain South African tribe, an explorer relates, it is the unwritten but inviolate law that a public speaker stand on one leg. The moment he touches ground with the other foot his discourse must end; and any orator who is so unmanly as to break this good custom is scorned into silence and forever disgraced. The practice has developed a terse and virile eloquence. Every speaker must plunge straight to the heart of his subject, leaving no essentials behind; for, the law of gravitation itself is tugging at his suspended toes.

What a deal of time and twaddle Americans would be saved if this happy rule were put into their parliamentary law! There would be no more filibusters, no more oceans of words to float a few minnows of thought; our legislatures would become models of business dispatch, political campaigns would be compressed into a week or so, and candidates would have something to say.

Indeed, we might carry the South African plan still further with profit. Suppose, for example, casual office callers were expected, as a matter of etiquette if not compulsion, to state their business while standing on one leg, and to withdraw as soon as the other foot came down. Or suppose the practice were extended to conversation generally. We would find it less difficult to live on twenty-four hours a day.

Why shorten our days by lengthening our nights?

Young man, don't try to act cute if you are more than ten years old.

It's easy to be an optimist so long as the bright side only is visible.

Talk less and think more. This is easy advice to give, but uneasy to take.

Count Okuma's assurance that Japan is not using the present unsettled condition of the nation as an occasion to coerce and exploit China was necessary for those who took the cable reports from Peking seriously. Those dispatches did not represent China thought, but were either manufactured or colored by the agent of another country who sought to embroil Japan with England.

"Japan is merely seeking to settle outstanding troublesome questions in a way looking toward permanent peace and good understanding," Okuma has said to the Independent. And the fact that the wise and venerable count is now at the head of Japanese affairs and fully endorsed by the people in the recent election is a guarantee that the mikado's government will commit no breach of international faith. Count Okuma is the soul of honor, and is trusted by the United States and Great Britain alike.—Public Ledger.

One Day—A Play

We write about the play that God staged—age ago, and which has had the longest continual run of any play.

The earth is the stage. Nature is the stage manager. It is a great play. It repeats every twenty-four hours, and to show us his verities, so much greater than man's, God changes it every day.

It opens with the rising of the sun each morning, setting before us a scene more magnificent than man can imagine or understand, much less produce. From blackest darkness, the stage lights up, until the most modest flower, or the most insignificant insect, is revealed.

Then the actors come forth from the wings—men, women, trees, rivers, lakes, oceans, the grass, the roses, the birds, the wild and tame, wild beasts and all the friends the insects.

Now they go to work. Each knows his part—but some fail to act as the Master planned, and they meet with misfortune.

For those who oppose the Law are doomed surely. But all in all, the actors do well—well for 'tis bred in their hearts, in their beings, that if they would thrive they must go according to the law that is higher than man, and only because blindness to truth leads some few otherwise than in the clear white road.

With each passing moment the scenes change. All the actors are busy, according to their various roles. They play, they labor with body or brain, they sing, they are fearful, they plot, they counterplot—and the plotter are not the happiest actors. It does appear that some actors are particularly happy in their parts assigned, and these are the ones who plot steadily ahead, helping themselves and others to useful accomplishments.

The villains and villainesses? They are unhappy as villains and villainesses always have been and always will be.

There are many love affairs and marriages. There are business transacts, and rumors of war, and war—and only because blindness to truth leads some few otherwise than in the clear white road.

The music, in the grandest of all music. It mingles with the whistles and the wind, and the trees and the brooks and lakes and rivers and heaven's artillery and man's and beast's squeals and fowls' screeches and birds' songs heard in the woods.

Along towards the end of the play, which is to say late in the day, the climax begins, and the scenes are pushed aside with the villains, to make room for healthy and untroubled "live ones."

Then in the last few scenes all relax to enjoy themselves in various ways. Some dance, some sing, some play, some love, some are content to be content.

And finally the darkness of night steals over the stage—and you have seen the greatest play ever produced.

If you have kept your eyes open, you have learned a lesson, many lessons.

You may play your part better on the morrow.

How to Fish

The man who's fond of fishing
But all in all, the actors do well—well for 'tis bred in their hearts, in their beings, that if they would thrive they must go according to the law that is higher than man, and only because blindness to truth leads some few otherwise than in the clear white road.

Enough to fill a trunk.
O'er jointed rods and tackle
And hooks and rubber cork
He makes a joyous catch—
With these he'll fill his boat.

To fish makes people foolish:
Behold the dumber gear
With which in weather coolish
About this time of year.

The fisherman's life is a life of Spoon hooks and landing nets you Can wear with striking looks
With rods and reels and tackle
You may have a lot of fun
While some one goes and cooks you
A codfish ball, well done.

Travellette.

BY MICHAEL.
No. 100—JACKSONVILLE.

Some towns can be killed by fire, others simply have their growth stimulated. Jacksonville, Fla., is the latter sort, and a fire in 1901 which destroyed nearly 300 buildings covering 400 acres and apparently wiped out the town.

The visitor to Jacksonville is first struck by the bustling manner of its citizens, so different from the "drowsy far niente" air he is expected to find in a southern metropolis. On every side are big industrial plants. Jacksonville did a lumber business amounting to over $2,000,000 last year. Most of the lumber is yellow pine, and saw mills and other factories turn a good portion of it into building material right in the city. Turpentine and the kindred oil products are also made here.

Jackieville claims, with California, to have the largest number of oranges in the country. It is only one in the east, at least, and the winter tourist is pretty apt to have his picture taken beside a long necked bird. The bird is a pelican, and the fish is a codfish, and the orchard farm and zoo are at the end of one of the most delightful trolley trips in the country.

Jackieville is a city of contrasts. With the aroma of Indian river oranges, attracts every visitor, and few are able to resist the temptation to send fresh produce to their homes. The fact that the price asked is several times their real market value.

Jackieville loves the tourist, and despite the thriving industries which might render her independent of his largesse, she lays herself out to captivate him, or at least his pocketbook. Each year a greater number of northern people elect to spend the winter there, because a mild, summery climate is combined with the advantages of the sea. The city is in Florida, Florida is in the south, and the tourist's benefit, a never-failing ice supply is assured by five ice companies. The fact that the price asked is several times their real market value.

It took a progressive Yankee to discover that the pleasure Florida made an excellent winter home for fair in mattress making; so several large mattress factories have lately been added to Jacksonville's industries. The city is full of beauty. Generous parks with large palm trees and flowers that bloom throughout the year, stately churches, large modern office buildings, and the fact that the price asked is several times their real market value.

OUR NATIONAL PARKS

By Frederic J. Haskin.
II.—Some of the Less Known Ones.

Crater Lake, in 1914 there were only two temporary rangers allowed during the season, and as one of them was killed by a falling rock, the park was left without a mountain wilderness had to be patrolled by one of the rangers. As a result, some game was killed by poachers on the mountain. The park was largely due to the way in which most of the volcanic co-operate with the administration of the park.

By way of illustrating the variety of natural scenery in the national parks, we turn now to the Oregon Rockies to the far southwest, where the Oregon National park is located in Montana. The park is a small tract of about 160,000 acres, but it is one of the most beautiful in the world. It is a mountain wilderness, and it is largely due to the way in which most of the volcanic co-operate with the administration of the park.

The Mesa Verde is a great level plateau, little more than 2,000 feet above the floor of the Mesa Verde valley. The plateau is cut by numbers of great canyons, in whose overhanging walls of porous lava the Pueblo Indians of prehistoric days built the impregnable fortified villages. Nowhere else in the United States are there such extensive and well preserved relics of life in America before it was discovered by Europeans.

The largest of the Mesa Verde ruins is that of the "great house," which is a structure of 115 rooms built on a shelf in the side of a canyon. Of the ruins, this structure alone possessed, two as still almost intact, the rock and adobe mortar of which the walls were made. Mothers Tell of Mother's Friend

Experience is or should be our best teacher. Women who have observed the highest and noblest of all sacrifices, the struggle for the life of others, should have a better idea of how to relieve the tension of nerves and tendons so apt to provoke or aggravate the most distressing sickness, twinges of the limbs and so on. It is applied externally.

Although, in the nature of things, a woman would use "Mother's Friend" but rarely, yet so effective in relieving the tension of nerves and tendons so apt to provoke or aggravate the most distressing sickness, twinges of the limbs and so on. It is applied externally.

At any time when a prospective grand-mother urges her daughter to do as she did—use "Mother's Friend," there is ample reason to believe it the right kind of advice.

Its purpose is to furnish the muscles, to take away the strain on the joints and ligaments, to relieve the tension of nerves and tendons so apt to provoke or aggravate the most distressing sickness, twinges of the limbs and so on. It is applied externally.

Mr. Burton at the Drama League

Address of George Bernard Shaw, noted author and brilliant playwright, were afforded a keen insight into the character and works of the man when Mr. Richard Burton, president of the National Drama League, lectured Tuesday afternoon at the Georgian theatre to the local members of the league.

Mr. Burton is a keen student of Shaw's works and gave to his hearers a brilliant delineation of the author's versatile personality and pointed out the deep underlying seriousness in his work so frequently disguised with sarcasm.

President Burton is a man of great personal charm and the lecture Tuesday afternoon was one of the most delightful in the history of the Atlanta Drama League. At the close of the meeting the audience was entertained at tea and given an opportunity to meet Mr. Burton.

Gentry-Phelan Wedding

The wedding of Miss Nina Gentry and Mr. Malcolm Graham Phelan will be a beautiful event at the city. The bride will be accompanied at the altar by the attractive cousin of the bride, Mrs. W. T. Gentry, Mrs. East Lake.

Tuesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Gentry entertained at a buffet supper for the bride party and out-of-town guests. The reception rooms were adorned with quantities of spring blossoms and following the wedding rehearsal informal dancing was enjoyed.

To Mrs. Christopher

Mrs. John Christopher, of Jacksonville, Fla., who is a guest in the city during the Southern Supply and Machinery Dealers' convention, will be honored guest at a luncheon given Thursday by Mrs. Charles F. Mothers Tell of Mother's Friend

Experience is or should be our best teacher. Women who have observed the highest and noblest of all sacrifices, the struggle for the life of others, should have a better idea of how to relieve the tension of nerves and tendons so apt to provoke or aggravate the most distressing sickness, twinges of the limbs and so on. Planning for Summer Comfort

Nowadays people of taste pay as much attention to the furnishings of their summer homes as their winter residences; spend much less on them, and get results that are not possible in the sterner season.

Anticipating the demands for practical, pleasing and correct house furnishings which the next few weeks will bring,

Let us say, first of all, we have never in the history of our store, been so well prepared with summer furnishings as now. And with just such things, Rugs of all kinds, draperies, new porch shades, awnings, as experience of years has taught us to make, for the greatest comfort in the home.

Great, new stocks, standard and fine and at very moderate prices.

More Home to the House

This is easily accomplished by the aid of AEROLUX PORCH SHADES.

Half of our diseases are tangible, and they come from a tangible cause, which, happily, we now understand—that is, dead and confined air held within the four walls of a room.

It is only within recent times that we have recognized the necessity for fresh air.

Sleeping out of doors in the open-air sleeping porches will add 20 per cent of efficiency to the life of the individual.

AEROLUX Shades will turn any porch into a most delightful outdoor sleeping room imaginable. They keep out drafts and wind, and you will not be awakened by any flapping of the shades, for this is prevented by the remarkable NO-WHIP ATTACHMENT with which these shades are equipped.

Telephone our Rug and Drapery Department for information, and we will send a man out at once to show you samples and make estimates.

The New Rag Rugs--A Genuine Delight

The woman of today who wants her home to look comfortable and roomy, and at the same time ease of cleaning, has realized the superiority of the rug for every type of decoration. The floor is made more spacious, the general artistic effect intensified, and the sanitation of the home insured 100 per cent.

These Pretty Rag Rugs

with which so many homes are now being adorned—each rug is a work of art in itself. There are various lovely designs, and numerous color tones to select from: Old-time rag effects; chintz effects; there are plain centers with beautiful borders; there are soft cream tints, pinks, grays, delft, Nile, yellows—there are all shades, in fact, to match the dainty cretonnes and windows of milady's boudoir—or any other room in the house.

Best of all, they are quite inexpensive. See them on the floor and price them Thursday.

To Make the Cheery Home Still More Cheerful

It is always well to let the sunlight into the home, but that does not necessarily mean bare windows. There are so many light, bright, beautiful and inexpensive curtain materials this season that it's no trouble to select something that will subdue the glare, while adding to the decorative, summery effect.

Time and time again it has been proven that money is not the chief requisite for making a home harmonious and attractive in its hangings. There is beauty and dignity in well-derived simplicity, and it is part of the vocation of this Drapery Store to demonstrate it.

We want you to see the new Drapery fabrics here. The immense stock of new Curtain nets, in all novelty weaves. The lovely display of serims, both in plain, with hemstitched bands, as well as colored borders.

Correctly Speaking Crex Rugs

The name Crex, as applied to wire-grass floor coverings, has the same meaning as STERLING when stamped on silverware. It means indisputable quality.

Crex Rugs do not hold germs or dust, therefore are absolutely sanitary. They lighten the burden of keeping rooms clean and bright, and have truthfully been called the housekeeper's friend. Durable, easily cleansed, handsome, cool looking, very artistic, inexpensive—with so many strong points to commend them, small wonder they are among the most popular of floor coverings.

Useful for Indoors and Out.

The new Crex Rugs being shown in our Rug and Drapery Section, of all sizes, are of greatest interest, if there are Summer Rugs to buy.

P. S.—See particularly the new Herringbone Crex Rugs—the very finest and best grass Rug made; very heavy and durable.

Only the Best Awnings Are Any Good At All

Hot sun and high wind and beating rain are awning enemies, and it takes the best of material and the strongest of stitching to withstand them. The "John Boyle stripe" is the best made. We use that only in making awnings.

Has your order been placed? Telephone our Rug and Drapery Section—Main 3033. That's all that is necessary. The Awning Expert will do the rest.
