MERIT SYSTEM, PILED UP OF REFORMERS' DREAMS, FOR SCHOOL TEACHERS

Will Introduce Resolutions in Council Monday to Readjust Salaries in General Scheme of Reorganization

WILL WORK TEACHERS 11 MONTHS, INCREASING PAY

Three Months' Vacation Plan Will Be Reduced to One With All Employees Subject to Work During Summer

Resolutions to readjust the pay of teachers in the public school system, placing them upon the merit system, and requiring them to be subject to the action of the board of education for eleven instead of nine months of the year, will be introduced in the city council Monday afternoon and the board of education on Tuesday morning.

The readjustment of salaries is one of the important parts of the general scheme of reorganization and improvement of the school system.

Superintendent John K. Owen will introduce the resolution in the council and several members of the board of education will sign it before it is placed before that body.

While the salary readjustments will result in a saving to the city, placed on the basis of this year's payroll, and there will be a number of increases, and the maximum of pay for work during the summer will be slightly higher than the one that prevails at present.

While only about one-twentieth of the teachers in the schools will be needed for the vacation schools which are now being established, the new system will practically eliminate all cost of the vacation schools.

The regular school buildings will be used for the vacation schools, and the act of the board of education will provide twelve monthly installments instead of six as at present.

All of the teachers will be allowed one month's vacation each year, and most of them will not be assigned to work during the summer months, although they will be subject to the action of the board of education in the summer without cost to the city.

The amount which will be saved on the salaries of the teachers will be determined by the number of teachers who are in the higher groups, but it is certain there will be a saving of $1,000,000.

The lowest salary for a grade teacher is $1,000, and the proposed maximum of $2,000 per year, which is a saving to the city of $2,500,000 on the salary of principals.

ATLANTA GRAYS PLAN BIG REORGANIZATION DINNER

Home-Coming Jubilee Will Be Held at Ansley Hotel June 10

In celebration of the twentieth anniversary of their reorganization as Company K of the Fifth Georgia regiment, the Atlanta Grays will hold a home-coming dinner at the Ansley hotel the evening of June 10.

Some of the military adventures of the Grays, later first lieutenant in service in the Philippines with the United States volunteers and afterwards a captain in the Philippine constabulary, will furnish the principal topics of the occasion. Mr. Pendleton will speak on "All's Present That's Accustomed Fair."

The Grays, organized first as artillery in 1810 by Captain Alex. W. Wallace, were in the Civil War as Company E, Fifth Georgia Infantry, under the command of Captain Thomas L. Cooper. Captain Wallace having resigned to join the Confederate regulars, the company's record throughout the war was brilliantly daring. That only six original members survived to be surrendered at Appomattox. Many of the captains were killed at Atlanta. Out of First War captain Robert Lewis, Tom Hulsey, Sam Love, Thomas Lewis and O. P. Stone, the only survivor to Captain Robert Lewis, who is expected to speak at the dinner on "The Grays in the Civil War."

John W. I. Hayward, who commanded the company after the war in the early eighties, will be present at this time. The Atlanta Grays were reorganized in 1885 as the Atlanta Grays battalion, in which Colonel John S. Candler was elected a captain, Robert Lewis, Tom Hulsey, lieutenant.

With William C. Massey as captain, S. H. Ashby first lieutenant, James E. Murray second lieutenant, Charles M. second sergeant and Charles M. Stokes, the present captain, fifth sergeant, the Atlanta Grays were reorganized in 1885 as Company K of the Fifth Georgia regiment. Since that time the company has been successfully captained by Hugh H. Dorsey, S. H. Howell, E. E. Pomeroy, William M. Smith, Claude C. Smith and Charles A. Stokes.

Among the guests at the dinner will be General W. G. O'Neal and Captain W. J. Kendrick, Seventh United States Cavalry, formerly major in the Fifth Georgia. William C. Massey will be toastmaster and Major Claude C. Smith in chairman of the entertainment committee. All members of the Grays who have not received cards of notification for the dinner are requested to communicate with Captain Stokes, as, unfortunately, many of the rolls have been destroyed.

The following program has been arranged, and will be interspersed with musical music led by former trumpeter William Whitely Hubber: Invocation—Rev. Fritz Rauchenberg. "The Grays in the Civil War"—Captain Robert Lewis, Mr. George Hammond.

"The Grays During Reconstruction, and the nucleus of the Fifth Regiment"—Lieutenant Colonel W. H. Hayward. "Colonel of Two Regiments at Once"—Colonel John S. Candler. "The Birth of Company K"—Captain William J. Kendrick, U. S. A., late major, Fifth Georgia. "The Christening of Company K by the State of Georgia"—General William G. O'Neal. ELECTION OF TEACHERS IS DEFERRED BY BOARD

Principals to Be Consulted by Committee Before Nominations Are Made

The election of public school teachers for the ensuing year will not be held by the board of education Tuesday afternoon, as scheduled, but will be postponed until the principals of the schools have been consulted. The teachers' committee of the board will begin consulting with the principals Monday afternoon. As there are something over forty-five principals, it will take several days to hear them all. As soon as the committee has finished with the principals and made up a report, the board will be called to hear from the committee.

Mr. Landrum, ad interim superintendent, will sit with the teachers' committee in the consultations with the principals, and his recommendations to the committee will be given full consideration. The policy of the teachers' committee is to give the principals practically a controlling voice where teachers now in the system are concerned. For instance, where a principal recommends that his teachers be promoted or continued in the grades they taught last year, the board's policy will be to follow his recommendation.

TWO DOCTORS CHARGED WITH GIVING NARCOTICS

Cases Charging Violation of Harrison Anti-Narcotic Law Before U. S. Court

Cases are now pending against two Atlanta doctors on charges of a violation of the Harrison anti-narcotic law, and these cases promise to be followed by several others which are now being investigated.

Dr. Virgil C. Cooke, one of the doctors, was recently giving to the United States Commissioner Colquhoun Carter, but Judge Carter's decision was held up pending a hearing of similar charges against Dr. W. A. Starnes, proprietor of a sanitarium.

Three women testified that they were addicted to the drug habit and were treated by Dr. Cooke. Their names were not disclosed. The law allows physicians duly registered to prescribe drugs to those addicted to the habit, and, although it specifies that the prescriptions shall not be excessive, it does not say just what amount of drugs should be given. Those in charge of the detection of the case admit the difficulty of putting an exact interpretation on the law.

Dr. Cooke admitted that he had prescribed for women patients, but he said he did so thinking he was complying with the law and in the line of his practice. Dr. Starnes is ill, but is expected to appear within a few days. Dr. C. J. Bibb, another physician, was recently found over on a charge of a violation of the law.

REV. MORRIS CELEBRATES HIS FIRST HIGH MASS

Atlanta Boy Was Ordained a Catholic Priest in New York on May 29

Rev. Joseph A. Morris, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Morris, celebrated his first solemn high mass at the Church of the Immaculate Conception Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. Father Morris was ordained a Catholic priest on May 23 by His Eminence Cardinal Fiala, in St. Patrick's cathedral, New York City. He is a member of the Pauline, an order of the Catholic church chiefly devoted to mission work.

Following the custom of the priesthood, Father Morris returned to his native city to celebrate his first mass. After a visit of several days with his family, he will return to New York and be assigned to some charge of the Paulists.

The sermon Sunday morning was preached by Rev. Lewis J. O'Hern, D. D., C. S. P., of the Catholic university, Washington, D. C., an orator and preacher whose services are in demand throughout the United States. He journeyed to Atlanta for the special purpose of celebrating the solemn at the first mass of Father Morris.

Father O'Hern took as the subject of his sermon the sacrifice of the mass, the principal public act of divine worship in the Catholic church, and explained its origin, meaning and necessity. Father O'Hern showed that Christ had been the first to offer mass when He gathered together His disciples and communed with them.

Congratulations to the parents of Father Morris for contributing a son to the order of Paulists, and congratulations to the parents whose wise guidance nurtured his vocation, and the city of his birth for so worthy a son, were offered by Father O'Hern.

(By Associated Press.) LONDON, June 7.—A general Italian advance is proceeding today across the Isonzo river from Caporetto to the distance of about 40 miles. The movement is one of importance, and hard fighting is taking place at Gradisca.

The Italian authorities are drawing together the screen of secrecy as to the Italian operations. Nevertheless it can be said that masses of Italian troops have been concentrated on roads from Cormons, Palmanova and Cervignano.

The resistance of the Austrians daily is becoming stronger. This, Italian officers declare, has had the effect of making their men more determined.

French Mine Layer Sinks in Aegean and Sinks

(By Associated Press.) PARIS, June 7.—The ministry of marine today gave out the following: "The French mine layer Casca, which has struck a mine at the entrance of a bay in the Aegean sea, has sunk, and another officer and sixty-four sailors were picked up by a British torpedo boat destroyer. It is possible that other survivors were able to reach the coast, where they may have been taken prisoners by the Turks."

Germans Bring Large Forces To the Western Front

(By Associated Press.) LONDON, June 7.—Since the capture of Przemysl the Germans apparently have brought heavy reinforcements into the west and there are distinct signs of a resumption of the German offensive in northern France. Nevertheless, the French report a slow and uninterrupted advance in the sector north of Arras, and important gains north of the Aisne.

A French official announcement says French troops after a very effective bombardment east of Tracy-Le-Mont and north of the river Aisne, carried two successive lines of trenches on a front of one kilometer, together with several German works.

In the east the Austro-German advance is continuing. This move is regarded in London as political, the idea of the Germans and Austrians being to exert an influence upon Rumania.

Petrograd announces a Russian success along the river Pruth, near Kolomea, where the Austro-Germans are said to have been forced back across the river. Petrograd says also that the Russian lines of defense must be readjusted on account of the use of gas in the warfare, become death-dealing when exposed to this new sinister condition.

The fighting along the central sector of the river Isonzo, close to the Austro-Italian frontier, has developed a series of fierce engagements with the Italians finding increasingly stronger opposition, the Austrians being formidably entrenched.

This morning the British public was informed that the British forces had won a brilliant success at a point far from the main lines of battle on the continent. Sir Percy Cox, at the head of a strong naval and military force, has gained a foothold at Amara on the Tigris river, halfway from the head of the Persian gulf to the city of Bagdad.

During the past few days the Anglo-Indian army operating in that field has captured many prisoners as well as guns and ammunition, and have taken a number of steamers and barges. It is said the Turkish army opposed to it is demoralized that it is doubtful if it will be able to offer serious resistance to a further British advance in Mesopotamia.

The only naval activity of the week was the engagement at the entrance of the Gulf of Riga, in the Baltic, which, according to Petrograd, resulted in the sinking of several German transports and another large unarmored auxiliary ship. Details are meager, but it is inferred here that a majority of the German vessels concentrated at Kiel came out into the Baltic. It is quite clear, however, that no battle squadrons were engaged, as the fight was in no wise decisive.

It is expected in London that the Germans will renew their efforts to land troops on the Baltic coast of Russia.

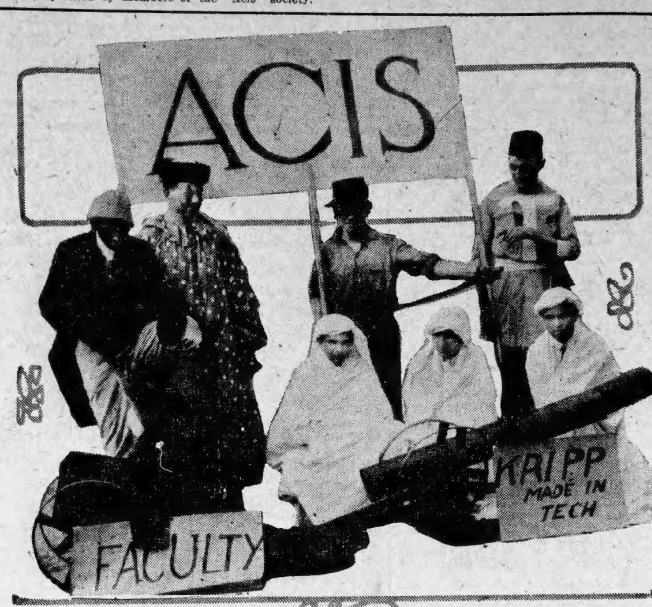

7,000 Russians Captured When Germans Took Przemysl

(By Associated Press.) BERLIN, June 7.—(Via London.)—Special dispatches from army headquarters say the Teutonic allies took 7,000 prisoners, 31 cannon and 50 machine guns when they entered Przemysl.

The Russian garrison had given orders to hold Przemysl to the last man, but they were overwhelmed by the terrific artillery fire.

Everything indicates that the Teutonic allies are beginning the sixth week of their Galician campaign with a promising outlook. The Russians have lost only their line on the San, and they appear also about to lose their position on the Dniester. These same advances indicate further that the Russians east and northeast of Czernowitz already have begun to retreat.

TECH STUDENTS PLANNING FOR IMPOSING PARADE Many Interesting New Features Will Mark Commencement Carnival

If the plans of some 500 Tech students do not go awry, P. T. Barnum will be given a good excuse for turning over in his grave Monday afternoon at 4 p. m., for they have scheduled a street parade, to start at that time which promises to be at least a "remarkable aggregation."

It is a part of the Tech commencement carnival, a new feature of Tech commencements, and there is really no way to tell just how it will look, for the eighth student body has been working on it three months with the view of making it something long to be remembered.

Wooch, Fielder, Tech '15, has been elected field marshal, and according to the program, will ride the largest white horse the street cleaning department can afford at the head of the parade in order to scare off the cats and dogs.

The coronation of Electra, who is Miss Ann Patterson, queen of the carnival, will take place on Grant athletic field at 8 o'clock p. m. Her four maidens of honor will be Miss Margaret Olson, Miss May Orlinton, Miss Wynne Vance and Miss Marion Stearns.

Following the coronation, which will be an elaborate ceremony, will come the "stunts," of which there are half a hundred, varied and original, all burlesque, on a platform before the throng.

After the completion of the carnival stunts, attention will be directed to the site shows, in booths around the platform. Following this will come the Junior promenade.

The parade will begin at 4 o'clock at the Tech campus. It will follow North avenue to Peachtree to Whitehall to Mitchell to Broad to Marietta and back to the campus.

The carnival will begin at 8 o'clock, and admission will be free. The faculty and student body has extended an invitation to the general public to be present at the carnival, and the remainder of the exercises.

The bacchanal feast sermon was delivered by Rev. Plato Durham, D. D., Sunday morning at 11 o'clock at North Avenue Presbyterian church. Tuesday morning a meeting will be held of the board of trustees and a meeting of the alumni.

You've Noticed the Increasing Number of REDS

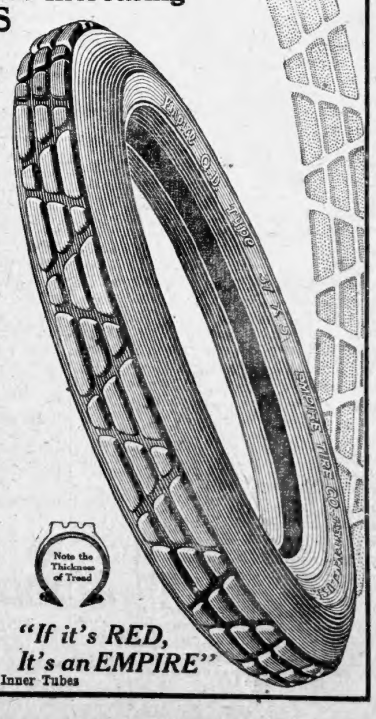

The other fellow, in large numbers, is learning of the extra value in Empire Tires.

They are cured by a different process. They don't give out or blow out—they must be worn out, and they do that mighty slowly. Empire RED Tires can't be made out of old rubber; they are always fresh and lively and our vulcanizing makes them tougher and stronger. The Empire Non-skid Tread of extra thickness piles up enormous mileage.

You will agree this sounds good on paper, but we will give you tangible assurance that it's right. If an Empire Tire fails to run as far as you expect, tote it right back and we will satisfy you. You decide whether you get your money's worth and you must be pleased.

Little Stories for Bedtime

Three Little Possums and Granny Fox

By Thornton W. Burgess

OLD GRANNY FOX was very pleasant to listen to. The three little Possums up in the tree, Bumpy, Grumpy and Frumpy, just had to listen because she told them such wonderful things about the great World that they had started out to see. They know that the little Billy Possum would have said had he been there. He would have told them to stop their ears. They know this for they had been told many times that old Granny Fox would gobble them up the first chance she got. But it is the way with little folks sometimes to think that they know more than their elders, especially when they want to do the things that they have been told not to do.

Old Granny Fox Trotted Down the Lone Little Path.

"I know you don't trust me, my dears," said she. "Probably you have been told terrible stories about me. But you mustn't believe all you hear or you never will get anywhere in the Great World. Use your common sense, my dears. Use your common sense. Be independent and act for yourselves. How do you expect to find the wonderful things in the Great World unless some one who knows where they are shows you the way? Never have I seen such fine, smart Possums at your age, and nothing would please me more than to show you all those things you want to see."

Bumpy looked at Grumpy and Grumpy looked at Frumpy and Frumpy looked at the others. "Shall we?" whispered Bumpy.

"I don't believe she would hurt a flea," said Frumpy.

"I wish she wouldn't smile; her teeth are too long and sharp," grumbled Grumpy.

"It's a splendid chance to see the Great World," whispered Bumpy.

"We'll never find those wonderful things alone," added Frumpy.

"I wish there wasn't such a hungry look in her eyes," grumbled Grumpy.

"I think she is very nice," whispered Bumpy.

"Mother Possum couldn't have really known her at all," said Frumpy.

"I wish she didn't lick her lips so much," grumbled Grumpy.

Meanwhile old Granny Fox waited patiently at the foot of the tree. "I tell you what it is, my dears," said she at last, "I will go off down the lone little path far enough for you to feel perfectly safe in coming down. You are quite right in being careful and cautious, and it does you great credit. Never trust strangers until you have proven that they are to be trusted. When you have come down I will lead the way to those wonderful things and you can follow me at a safe distance." To herself she added, "I will lead them where there are no trees to climb," and she turned her head to smack her lips at the thought.

Then Old Granny Fox deliberately turned her back and trotted down the lone little path until she could just see her rear cloak. Once more the three little Possums looked at each other, and this time even Grumpy hadn't a word to say.

Fashions for Americans

By Lillian E. Young

THE summer styles are especially suited to developments in white serge, and since a white suit is almost a necessity for many occasions, the difficulty of finding an appropriate model across the back and sides with a point under each ear. The edge of the jacket runs a trifle longer in the back than in the front, and shows a straight band-facing some eight inches deep, encircling its width. Button-trimmed straps are set on at either side of the front, and the back with their ends looped under the lower edge, forming a most attractive trimming. Long sleeves show a deep facing to correspond with that on the jacket, and are then finished with turn-back cuffs cut in a point at either side and fastened with a short row of buttons.

The skirt is circular with flat groups of pleats over each hip and directly in front and back. Being circularly cut, the pleats acquire a very graceful "hump" for they are shallow at the top and gain in depth gradually, so that the fulness is all at the bottom and the hips smooth fitting.

While the design is becoming to the general run of figures and assures the approved lines and silhouette, it is nevertheless most suitable to the slender girl. Kindly do not adopt it, Miss Monopoint. For your sake the plain circular skirt and the more lengthy jackets were specially revised and united.

A Popular Scent A lady had a small daughter. One morning this lady felt rather chilly after taking a cold bath, and, fearing a cold, took a tablespoonful of whisky. Small daughter, running in shortly afterward, asked to have her hair-ribbon tied. The lady reached over and tied the ribbon. Small daughter turned round sharply and said: "Why, mother, you've been using father's perfume."

is greatly simplified with such a variety of designs to choose from. Box jackets with pleated or circular skirts are very smart just now when kept quite plain and tailored. A splendid example of this style is depicted in the sketch, and carried out in white serge or gabardine.

The box jacket model, which has a great deal of style as well as individuality, while affecting the simplest lines and certain military embellishments, is not as might be supposed, in any way severe, but expresses rather, decided youthfulness and grace.

The top is made so that it may be fastened closely about the base of the neck or turned back from the throat, by leaving a few buttons undone. The buttons are run from the top to the bust line, and fasten through a set-on strap rounded at its end. The up-standing collar is slightly gathered along the neck and is cut very high

The Evening Story

Smiles in Adversity

(Copyright, 1915, by W. Werners.)

WHEN Jean Kincaid walked out of MacNamara's that afternoon with her last pay envelope in her hand she held her firm white chin as high as ever, but the earth seemed to be rocking under her feet. To be discharged when she was so sure of her position—had even hoped for speedy promotion! She could not believe it yet. And the manager's curt explanation that the times had necessitated the cutting down of the entire store force brought no consolation.

Her footsteps seemed to tap out the word "discharged" as she walked swiftly along toward her boarding place. Her mind began to cool down from its first turmoil, and she crystallized into sane reflection. She owed nothing, she had $12 in her hand, something in the savings bank. She was not so badly off as she felt. And before her money was gone she was certain to find work.

By accident her glance fell upon the window she was passing. It still showed the white blouse which she had looked at that morning and meant to buy tonight, for the girls did not always buy at MacNamara's, although they worked there. This cheap little shop offered many captivating bargains like the white blouse. But now it was as much an impossibility for her as one of MacNamara's French creations. She caught her breath and, hurrying on, ran against a girl who was also hurrying with her head down and her thoughts and eyes manifestly intent upon anything but what she was doing.

"Why, Kitty?" Jean exclaimed, recognizing the girl, who had been in the same department with her and was also of the number of those dismissed. "I didn't mean to bump up against you like that. Why are you looking so queer?" "Oh, Jean," the girl wailed, catching hold of Jean's arm. "I've lost it—here on this street somewhere, and I can't find it, and it was all the money I had in the world."

"You lost what?" Jean eyed her sternly. "My pay envelope. I had it in my bag! I thought it was safe, but this clasp must have given way and when I looked it was open and my envelope was gone!"

Jean glanced at the filmy little bag and saw the broken catch. She drew the frantic girl out of the way of the 8 o'clock rush. "There isn't much use in looking further," she said. "It has been picked up before this." She looked at the two opposing streams of work people wondering where there was any possibility of the finder being honest enough to restore the money to her. "How much did you lose, Kitty?" she asked.

"Eight dollars. Oh, Jean, I never dreamed of being discharged or of this happening," she sobbed. "Don't cry, dear," Jean soothed. She forgot her own trouble in pity of this little creature. "Come, let's walk along. Paop's are starting at us. There's your eye. Take my handkerchief. It's fresher than yours."

"But, Jean," whispered the girl, dabbing at her eyes, "you don't understand! The handkerchief she wouldn't keep me another day if I didn't pay my rent tonight. I owe her $5, for two weeks."

"Dear me!" said Jean. And she thought hard for a few minutes. "Are you going home with me?" the girl asked presently. Jean looked about her. She was in a locality new to her. "She had forgotten herself. Why, yes, I am," she said with a little laugh in her eye. "Kitty Brent's room was up two flights at the back of the shaft house. But it was fairly large and the bed was wide enough for two."

"What you say to me moving in here with you if I pay the rent?" Jean inquired. "I'll tell you, Kitty, I'll look after you until you get work. Then you can pay me back. I have money and you have none, and two can live for the cost of one, she exclaimed joyfully.

Somehow the need of hearing this forlorn child had brought back her own courage. "On Jean, all the money in the world could never pay you back for this kindness," Kitty sobbed and she cuddled against Jean like a lost kitten and cried for gratitude and relief.

So they set up house together that night. Jean paid all the bills and made the

BETTY BROWN TELLS ABOUT Elfish Peter Pan Who Sets Styles For the "Bathing Girl"

Peter Pan has dropped down from the tree tops to sport himself—or rather herself—on the billow waves.

And of all the "bathing girls" who adorn the beach none are more quaintly fascinating than the Peter Pan girl in Peter Pan's own colors, green and yellow, and Peter's perky cap, aussy feather.

A simple affair in spite of its originality is the Peter Pan suit which combines a charming costume for the beach promenade and a practical swimming purchase. But Kitty, despite her lack of foresight and her love of tinsel, had bought a suit of this kind, and she could contrive little meals over the gas jet without arousing Mrs. Callaghan's suspicions. Besides, she was a most loving, tractable little thing, with no closed rooms in her life. She and Jean got along together as amiably as two sisters.

For days they looked vainly for work. The press of midwinter and hard times was upon the city, and there were many idle. At one place Jean got her name entered against a possible vacancy. Heartick thought she often was, she kept on smiling for Kitty's sake. Her money was getting low, and she had nobody to depend upon, and she had not been young and strong and brave she would have found the situation terrifying.

So much walking wore out their shoes until they reached such a thin-soled, run-over stage that Jean realized they must have new ones. She drew half of what remained in the savings bank and bought a sturdy pair. For herself she decided to go without a little longer, as the rent was due again. One day she was caught in a storm, and her inadequately soot feet got wet. The next morning she awoke from a feverish sleep to find herself really ill. Kitty went to the dispensary for medicine. She would have liked to stay with Jean, but Jean sent her out resolutely.

"There's a quarter for lunch and care," she said. "Can you make it do, dear? Don't worry about me. I'm too healthy to get very ill. No, don't kiss me."

But Kitty would kiss her. And then she went off half crying, leaving Jean alone.

For the first time Jean broke down and sobbed into her pillow. Then she prayed. She was becoming desperate and afraid, "suppose she doesn't get work. Suppose I grow worse!" These thoughts haunted her like goblins. This medicine seemed no better than water. She felt herself sinking—sinking. Suppose she should die? "Oh, no! that! Not that!" she cried. And her youth rallied again to defend her.

"The day passed slowly. As the afternoon was waning she felt a strange heaviness creep over her—a stupor set in. She fought against it for a while and then wearily she closed her eyes.

"How shook her into wakefulness. "Kitty shook her. 'It's the medicine. 'Are you better?'" "I do feel a bit up," she rubbed her eyes. "Why, yes, I believe I am," she said, wonderfully. Then everything came crowding back upon her. "Did you find a job?" she asked.

"Yes, I did!" Kitty tore open one of a group of paper parcels on the table and offered it to Jean. "Grapes, Jean. While you're eating some I'll sit right down here to Jean and tell you. I was just desperate with you sick and everything, this morning. I tried two or three places where we'd been, and then I went to Gaylord's. Jean gasped. "Yes, I had your name put on the waiting list. I was so crazy that I ran right out and bought a paper of a poor little half-starved new, and, oh, Jean, almost the first thing I saw was the advertisement of my pay envelope in the 'Lost and Found' column. on Washington street," it said, so I knew that it was mine. I went to the place. The nicest young grocery man found it. And I turned round and bought a lot of stuff of him, grapes and fresh eggs and tarts and lettuce. I thought 'we'd celebrate. Oh, Jean, don't cry. Laugh, dear, laugh!"

But she was crying, too, and they mingled their joyful tears together.

Secret of Looking Young

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

EVERY woman wants to keep young-looking as long as possible. There is nothing wrong in this. But there is a good deal that is wrong in the means many women employ to hide the signs of advancing years.

As often as not the artificial aids to which they resort decrease others into thinking that they are older, not younger, than their first age. Precisely because they make use of such artifices, the natural tendency is to infer that they stand in greater need of them than is actually the case.

Besides which, the attempt to preserve a youthful appearance by artificial means is apt to give the face a hardness of expression that is the reverse of youthful.

No, it is not in cosmetics that the secret of looking young is to be found. It is to be found only in the cultivation of habits and ideas that keep one feeling young. In this, as in everything else, the mind exercises a tremendous influence over the body.

Two merchants, partners in a dry-goods store, stood watching a departing customer. Said one to the other, indicating the customer: "It is a delight to have that young person come into the store. She is like a ray of sunshine."

"Young person!" repeated the other. "What do you mean? Do you know her age?"

"About twenty-five, I suppose."

"You have missed your guess by just ten years."

"No matter," said the other. "She is like a ray of sunshine just the same."

"Exactly," agreed his partner. "That is why she keeps looking young."

To maintain, no matter what the handicap, unflinching cheerfulness of disposition; to be keenly interested in the affairs of everyday life; to avoid dwelling on unpleasant thoughts of any kind—this, added to the avoidance of extremes such as late hours and over-eating, is in truth the best prescription for the retention of youthful appearance.

Physiologists know that every gloomy, harsh, unkind, malicious thought makes an imprint, not merely on the brain but on the features. Banish all discordant thoughts, and you will not have to worry about the coming of the wrinkles.

And, above all, cultivate enthusiasm. Cling to faith in yourself and faith in your fellow-beings, however hard the knocks that experience gives you.

Be courageous, be kind, be ardent.

These are the natural traits of youth, and you who would stay youthful-looking must resolutely maintain them.

Today's Household Affairs

By MARY LEE Intelligent Catering

UNINTELLIGENT catering, objectionable always, is less objectionable in winter than in summer. In winter the appetite is likely to be sharper, and the limited variety of fruits and vegetables tends to accentuate thoughtlessness in the caterer. With the advent of hot weather, however, intelligent preparation of the menu becomes of great importance; rich meals and monotony in meals are to be avoided.

The housewife must remember that the appetite needs to be tempted in warm weather and that, in the interest of health, a meal must be carefully balanced.

The use of fat and starch should be limited. The summer diet should not exclude these important food factors, but it is easy to use too much of the heat-producing materials.

Pork, beans, potatoes, rice, creamed cauliflower, heavy puddings, etc., are not well adapted to hot weather diet. The requisite amount of starch, sugar and fat can be introduced in a more tempting and digestible form. For example, if the day is very warm and your dinner contains meat that is rich in protein and vegetables and a cold soup that is a high oil—a salad with a mayonnaise dressing is tempting even in hot weather—and the starch in some vegetable such as peas or green beans. This will give you a balanced ration that will not appear heavy and will be palatable even in the hottest weather.

Butter, salad oils and creams always can be used on the table without offense even in midsummer, and are a valuable addition to the light foods that are most likely to tempt the appetite.

Mousse, iced coffee with whipped cream, stewed fruits with cream, and cream soups offer pleasant means of introducing cream into the hot weather menu. Oil can be introduced in either French mayonnaise or tartare dressings; and good butter, like good wine, needs no bush.

Fish—If fresh—is an excellent dish for summer. It is rich in protein and is easy of digestion for the average person. The southern Italians, the Greeks and the Turks eat a great deal of fish cooked in oil; and if they did it wholesale as a warm weather diet there is no reason why we should not find it so.

Crackers Begin Four-Game Series With Chicks in Memphis Today

Locals Invade Memphis and Tackle Chicks

Lord's Team Traveling at Top Speed Just Now—Rooted League—Leading Pels in Series Ending Sunday—Perry vs. Roth Is Probable Hurling Program

Having concluded their little brush with the Little Rock Travelers, the Crackers begin today to do business with the Memphis Chicks on the latter's home grounds. This is the first visit of the season to the Bluff City and will complete the Crackers' tour of the league. From Memphis they wind up their road trip in time to get back here to face the home team, the Chicks, beginning Tuesday of next week.

The Crackers are bumping into a tough position in the league. The Chicks just now. Bria Lord has his trip traveling at top speed and at present says they are about the hardest team in the league to down. For the past two weeks they have won twelve games and in compiling this record they trimmed Debbis Pelicans in the finish. The Chicks are hitting well, fielding in good form and getting better than an average grade of pitching. The Crackers, they are pulling together, Bria Lord having shown a faculty of making his fielding in a bunch, whenever they are in physical shape to deliver their best stuff.

Whenever if the Crackers get going right, they have little to fear in tackling the Chickasaws. A combination of their good hitting and good pitching will make them hard for anybody to beat in this league. That the Crackers are going strong there is no denying. The question is therefore strictly up to the locals. There is not likely to be as much variation in the play of the Chicks as there is with the Crackers. The home team has had the main performers of late. When they are going good, they are as good as any pickings for any crew in the league.

Manager Bill Smith will doubtless select Scott Perry to open against the Chicks. Dave Roth will probably face Perry on the slab. The Chicks' pitching for this club Roth beat the locals in the game he faced them in here for the Chicks, but they trimmed him when he worked for the Barons against them. He has therefore gotten an even break against the Crackers to date. No further news has yet reached camp on the deal for Scott Perry. However, it has been announced that Sid will remain with the Crackers for the next few days regardless of whether or not he is sold to the Texas leaguers. He will doubtless hold until such time as a man to take his place on the roster is located, whether the new help be an outfielder or a catcher.

Gotham Thinks Matty Is Done

Great Hurler Has Failed to Regain Winning Form Since Season Opened—No Longer Puzzles Batters

PHILADELPHIA, June 7.—New York leaguers have just about become convinced that the wonderful Mathewson has reached the end of his career and he has but few good games left in that famous pitching arm. Since the middle of the season National league players have contended that Mathewson was through as a star. New York refused to believe it. But the work of the king of pitchers to date leaves room for doubting that his day is past.

Mathewson is on his sixteenth season as a major league pitcher and when he considers the pitcher that has been placed on him many seasons when the pitcher is at his best, he is not likely to be overworked. It is remarkable that he lasted so long. Cy Young pitched longer and was well up to a greater length of time, but it must be remembered that Young was never burdened with the strain of carrying along an entire pitching staff through grueling pennant games. The only pitcher in the world's series as has Mathewson. Young pitched on but one championship team, the Boston club, and took part in it, but one world's series.

In his first appearance here this season the fans were almost unanimous in the opinion that it was not merely an off day with Mathewson, but that he was through. Since that time New Yorkers have looked in vain for the man of form that made him famous, but instead of growing better he has been getting worse.

Like Rucker, the New Yorker will have his good days, when he can beat almost any club, but his reign as the premier pitcher is over. The National league owes to him most of its success in fighting off the American league.

Sally Leaguers Alter Schedule

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 7.—President S. P. Corbin announced last night that the South Atlantic league schedule had been changed, the second half of the season to start June 15, instead of June 19, as originally provided in the schedule. The season will now come to a close July 20, instead of August 23, the date originally set. Corbin said that the schedule had been curtailed for purely business reasons and was thoroughly sound. The clubs will reduce to eleven men each, maintaining the playing of a pitcher in the outfield. The players will be tendered new contracts and given the benefit of striking them or being discharged free agents.

THE MATTY STORY. "In the case of Christy Mathewson, the greatest of them all, is he about through, or is he merely in a brief slump?" Matty, of course, is no longer the old Matty—or, rather, the young Matty—of other days. But it is hard to believe that he has slipped as badly as the records would indicate, if the record is to be used as the main testimony in the case.

Matty's slump began back in July of the year before. From that point on he failed to win half his games—in fact, hardly more than a third of them—into October. That slump was primarily excused by the collapse of his mates. This spring has been the most attempt of many years. It has been a tough season on veteran pitchers, who need all the sunlight and warmth they can get to oil out the ancient flippers. So it may be that with a return of summer weather the Giant veteran may return with a fair portion of his old self, and in that case, however, a correct answer is to wait until the warm weather test arrives.

TIP TO GOLF BALL MAKERS. Sir—I see where they are manufacturing golf balls that one can drive 300 yards with only a fair wallop. This leaves me intensely cold. Why doesn't some concern manufacture a golf ball that you can put 120 feet—into the cup? Here is a chance for an inventor to be the greatest benefactor the human race has ever known. PLATO PETE.

RUBAIYAT OF A DUFFER. Sometimes I think that never loses so small The waiting cup as when I puts the ball. For though I put and putt and putt and putt, The ballly pill will rarely ever fall.

If Jimmy Coffey smashes his hands hitting Jim Finn, what would happen when Mr. Coffey swings his clenched talons upon the Gibraltar dome of Colonel Jess Willard—the dome that even Jack Johnson couldn't dent?

ANOTHER YANK YOLT. Sir—I see where a number of writers are picking the Yanks to finish fourth—ahead of Washington and St. Louis. I don't know about Washington, but they will never beat St. Louis. Branch Rickey has had the toughest luck in either league, has had more men injured and more men sick, but his club is now coming around, and when it does he will have a machine on a par with the first three—Chicago, Detroit and Boston. Watch and see. FROM MISSOURI.

THE RED SOX UPLIFT. The Red Sox appear to have emerged from their trance at last, and with several cripples back in shape Carrigan believes that by the last of June his club will either be first or within a game or two of the top. At the home running of the Sox for some time, and during this period of play they are confident they can yank back both Tigers and White Sox and prove beyond doubt the winter dogs which picked them to win was properly arrayed. The stuff is certainly there to win a pennant if said stuff is properly parleyed and maneuvered.

PRONOUNCED RAISER. There was a young player named Maise, Whose eyes were a beautiful hazel; Although not a Ty Cobb, At the home running he only raised. F. L. F.

If John Franklin Baker is out to bluff Connie Mack into launching a sale or trade he is liable to bid Connie one of the grandest little callers that ever sat in the game. Connie has the peculiar habit of announcing his say and then standing pat though the heavens fall and the seas run dry. Jack Coomb's is additional proof that they can come back who have the heart to get started in the proper direction and go on to the finish. Just almost stumbled over his own grave in the return journey, but the record shows today that only one or two in the game have pitched any better ball.

Yale will make a desperate drive to even up in baseball and crew competition for what Harvard handed her last fall in the presence of some 65,000 folks at New Haven. And this evening-up attempt should be fraught with all the necessary help of both the Elias and the Crimmon, have exceptionally good material in both spots. It is difficult to recall a year where the two old rivals on the diamond and water were more evenly matched—and matched with material of exceptional class.

There have been any number of college stars developed this spring, but Colonel Yost says that Sliser, of Michigan, is the best college player he has ever seen. Mike Ewells is willing to second this motion, which would indicate that Mr. Sliser must carry an abnormal share of merit. All he is good at is pitching, batting, outfielding and base running.

The News BY INNIS BROWN

"To can or not to can" that is the question. Whether it will be more profitable to have a losing regime in the hope that an unfortunate leader will finally get his charges headed the right way, and come from behind with a good deal of a new deal. This is the big query which faces your baseball club owner morning, noon and night in his waking hours, and haunts him in his sleep if his ball club is going to the boys'—and his grateful patrons are turning their attention to golf, fishing, amateur baseball, moving picture shows and a thousand other things that divert them from the turnstiles at his ball park.

Men who have their money invested in baseball are treading on this ice, but a little removed in point of hazard from the gang which stakes money in horsefeed, and spends its dough in feedman's bills, stable rents, and such like instead of players' salaries, railroad transportation and hotel bills. If you have a winner you will draw the crowds, unless you happen to be managing a losing ball club. It is puzzled after the first six weeks of the league race whether to can the boss, install a new regime and explain to fans why the bunch has been going so rotten, or else sit still with about 90 per cent of his state invested in fond hope that the dastardly club will turn about sooner or later, and begin to win some ball games. This year the situation is even more acute than ordinary. No better evidence of the fact need be massed than a record of the number of managers fired off their jobs.

Already this season one big league club has been decorated with the Order of the Can. One Class A skipper has likewise heard the rattle of his fall, and one Federal in Philadelphia has had some where between major league and Class 2 qualification has been decorated as the head of the Cleveland Indians; Jack Hayden is no longer boasting the Louisville Colonels, and Leroy Schlarly has been removed from the helm of the Buffalo Bisons.

In the leagues of lower classification numerous other changes have already been made. For instance Steve Reager has been removed at Charleston in the Sully league, and Dudley has been ousted at Augusta. Other changes have been made in the numerous C and D leagues about the country and doubtless others will follow before the close of the season. Apparently this is going to prove one year when owners will vote for a new deck and a new deal in preference to playing out a losing hand and waiting for an advantage in the draw.

Golfers Begin Tourney Today

Trans-Mississippi Association Attracts Good Field for Qualifying Round at Memphis

MEMPHIS, June 7.—Approximately 300 golfers are carded to tee off here today in the fifteenth annual renewal of the Trans-Mississippi Golf Association's championship tournament. A large number of other prominent players were expected in an early morning train.

Among those already here are Jack Cady, of the Arsenal Golf club of Rock Island, Ill., present holder of the title, and Bryan Heard, the Houston, Tex., veteran who equaled the course record here in play last season. At a late hour of the recent tournament for the honor, and several other prominent players from the Lone Star state had not been received. However, Secretary J. W. Rhea stated that he expected at least two hundred more golfers to show up for the qualifying round today.

The tournament this year promises to show a strong representation for northern cities. Memphis, with the exception of Memphis, has the largest contingent. Oklahoma City, too, is sent along a strong entry, and that city delegates high hope of grabbing off honors in the tournament.

The players will qualify over a thirty-six-hole course. Champion Cady is paired with J. P. Burlington, Cady is paired with the New Orleans crack, who recently defeated Southern Champion Nelson Whitlay for the championship of the United States. The Memphis team is paired with A. Evans, Jr., a strong contender and the best of the Memphis entry to win first honors, is paired with M. Condon.

Many of the players who are here to take part in this tournament expect to enter the Southern championship in Atlanta next week, and several expect to go from here direct to Atlanta.

Women Tennis Stars Compete

PHILADELPHIA, June 7.—The twenty-ninth annual women's lawn tennis tournament for the championship of the United States opens today at the Philadelphia Cricket club with seventy-four entries. Mrs. George Wightman, who as Miss Hazel Horchias held the title in 1905, 1910 and 1911, Mrs. Marshall McLean, the Pennsylvania champion, and Mrs. Benjamin Briggs, nee Dorothy Green, are among the many prominent players entered. Other well known players, including nearly all those who participated in the recent Pennsylvania and eastern states tournament, comprise the list of those anxious to annex the singles championship.

Play in the doubles will begin tomorrow, while on Wednesday the opening matches in the mixed doubles will be played. Miss Mary Browne, the present title holder, is not expected to defend the championship.
