The battle is still raging with terrific fury on almost the whole front between the Vipers and the Bug rivers. Furthermore, Petrograd announces the destruction of the Black Sea fleet.

Today's Petrograd official statement says that the German fleet in the Narv river brings some relief to London as the military observers there are largely upon Russia prolonging her resistance until climatic conditions in the Narv river destroy the full realization of the German plan.

Sir Edward Grey Cables Lansing—Not to Publish Recent Note as New One Is Due Next Week

WASHINGTON, July 27.—Sir Edward Grey cabled Secretary Lansing today that the British government has in preparation a note to the United States on the order in council and asked that the note delivered yesterday be withheld from publication pending receipt of the new communication.

The note is courteous language, holds that Great Britain's action is justified by decisions of the United States supreme court in cases arising during the Civil war. And differences with the United States over what is termed the new application of principles are held to be proper for submission to judicial settlement.

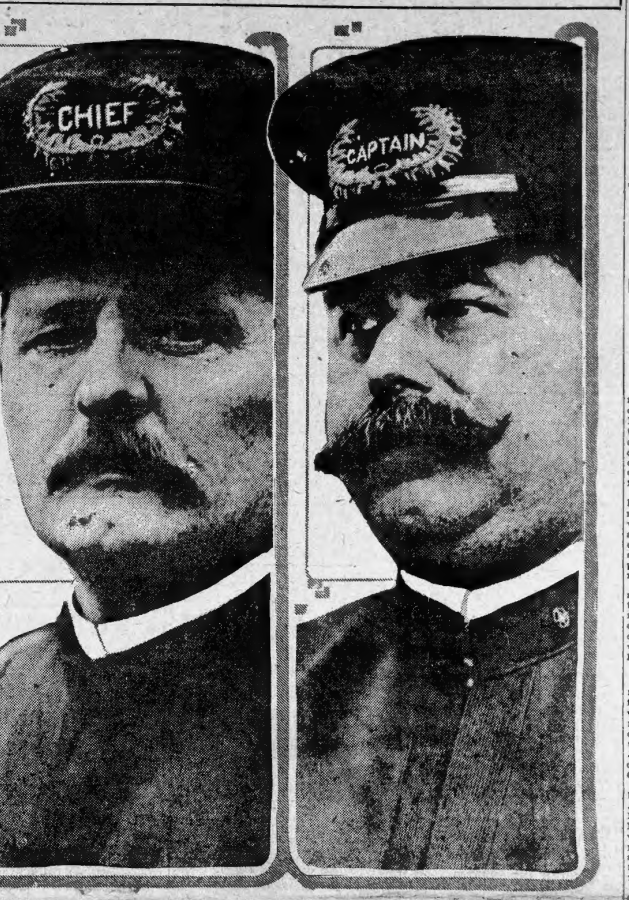

Secretary Lansing announced receipt of the note which was forwarded by President Wilson, Cornish, N. H. It was to be given out here for publication Wednesday.

MOON MEASURE WOULD BAR ALL LOCAL BILLS Bill Offered to Give Georgia $3,000,000 Ship Building Corporation

Aimed at relieving the Georgia legislature of the burden of passing purely local bills, which, it is estimated, now consume three-fourths of the time and only place in the world where Vitaltha is extracted, are being run to meet the demand.

Another bill introduced by Senator Akin, of the Fourth, in the senate Tuesday will bring to Georgia, if passed, a ship building corporation of over $3,000,000.

By vote of 27 to 9, the senate held Tuesday that Senator Stovall's temperance bill had been read for the second time Monday, despite the challenge of Governor Lawrence.

By unanimous consent Senator Dobbs' Western and Atlantic commission bill was read for the second time. Following the introduction of several new bills, the debate on the house bill appropriate to $125,000 for the Third District Agricultural school at Americus began again where it left off Friday.

Amendments by Senators Walker and Ransom to reduce the appropriation to $200,000 and $100,000, respectively, were lost by vote of 11 to 25 and 8 to 20. By vote of 13 to 24, amendments by Senator Moon to reduce the appropriation to $500,000 was also lost.

Considerable debate followed when Senator Dobbs' bill to supply justices of the peace and other court officials with their own books came up for passage.

By Senators Holden, Minter and Gillette—to provide that a money lender who does not forfeit cash to the state, shall be liable for the same.

By Senator Walker, of the Twentieth—to regulate the state board of education, to fix the salary of the secretary and state superintendent.

By Senator Buchanan, of the Ninth—to amend plumbing by creating a board of plumbing examiners.

By Senator Ward, of the Fifth—to amend the charter of Douglas.

By Senator Boykin, of the Seventeenth—to amend the civil code relative to railway companies building cut-off yards.

By Senator Akin, of the Fourth—to repeal certain laws relative to catching and handling of fish and oysters.

By Senator Goolbsy, of the Twenty-ninth—to abolish the office of treasurer of Jasper county.

By Senator Moon, of the Thirty-seventh—to amend the constitution to abolish the passage of local bills and laws, providing for this in another manner.

By Senator Akin, of the Fourth—to amend the charter for ten years plants costing not less than $300,000, erected for building and repairing ships and vessels.

HOUSE BILLS INTRODUCED. To amend charter of Morven, Brooks county.

To create board of Floyd county commissioners.

BOOKKEEPER AT BLAKEY ENDS LIFE WITH PISTOL Tom Sutlive Leaves Note Saying He Had Planned Deed for Years

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) BLAKEY, Ga., July 27.—The body of Tom Sutlive, young bookkeeper of the Blakely Oil and Fertilizer company, was found about 10 o'clock last night lying in a pool of blood on the floor of his room at the Merchants hotel, a bullet hole through his head, just back of his eye, and a revolver still grasped in his right hand. His body was stiff and it was probable that he had fired the shot which took his life shortly after noon. An unaddressed note was found on his dresser containing these words: "This is no new thing. I have contemplated it for two or three years. I fall to see why any one should care to prolong life. Of course, an acrobatic cause relative humiliation, but am tired of it all. Tom G. S., 125 p. m. July 28, 1915." The note was written in a clear legible hand and showed no trace of nervousness. Sutlive's body was carried to Fort Gaines, his former home, this morning for interment.

STATE RAILROAD BILLS RECOMMENDED TO HOUSE The Western and Atlantic railroad committee of the house Monday afternoon voted to recommend for passage the Person's bills, which have already passed the senate, protecting the state road from a parallel line.

The first is a constitutional amendment providing no charter shall ever be issued to any railroad company to build a railroad parallel to the state road, or to any railroad company to build any line that will in any other way injure the value of the state road.

The second is a statute containing practically the same provisions. The purpose of the second is to protect the state road until the constitutional amendment is ratified by the people, which cannot take place until the next general election in November, 1916.

The same committee, at the same meeting referred to a sub-committee the various bills looking to the creation of a commission to dispose of the state road.

STATE FARM NOT GETTING ALL FUNDS COMING TO IT

Revenue From Near-Beer Licenses Not Given Institution as Law Provides

Growing out of efforts to improve conditions at the state prison farm, it developed Monday upon investigation that for the past five years the state authorities have been going contrary to the law in not using the revenue derived from near-beer licenses for the maintenance of the farm.

Governor Harris, Attorney General Clifford Walker, Speaker Burwell, Senator John D. Walker and other members of the legislature conferred Monday afternoon and looked up the records and the law on this point.

These showed that the 1908 legislature passed a law providing that fees derived from near-beer licenses should be paid into the treasury and then applied to the farm appropriation. In 1909 an attempt was made to repeal this act, but the bill which was passed then provided only that the funds derived from the sale of these licenses "may" be applied to the general fund and not specifically to the farm fund. This law, therefore, repealed the 1908 legislation only for the year 1909, and when all laws were codified in 1910, the 1909 law was included and the situation changed.

The appropriation of the funds for the farm the legislature, it appears, has been acting for the past five years on the basis that the law had been repealed; namely, giving a lump sum to the general fund of what the near-beer appropriation was. For the past five years the farm appropriation has aggregated $500,000; while the near-beer revenue has been more than a million. It would appear, therefore, that the appropriation for the farm has been only about half of what it should have been. In this the authorities find some explanation for lack of needed improvements at the farm.

It was stated Tuesday that steps will probably be taken at this session of the legislature to repeal the 1908 law entirely so that it will be legal for the legislature to go ahead and make a farm appropriation out of the general fund without considering the amount of the near-beer tax; and at the same time to create a main penitentiary building and provide such other improvements as are necessary.

CLOTHES ARE LOOT IN TWO BURGLARY CASES

Mrs. J. G. Camp, 321 Gordon street, reported to the police Monday afternoon that burglars had broken into her home and carried off a number of articles, consisting largely of wearing apparel. A similar burglary was reported to have been perpetrated at the home of W. M. Leitch, 23 Park street. The similarity of the two cases led the detectives, who investigated, to the belief that the same burglars did both jobs. Detectives were called also to 184 Cascade avenue Monday to investigate a burglary there. Until an inventory is taken the family say they cannot tell what is missing.

The Georgia mule is going to become a factor in the European war, for the English government has just completed an arrangement with L. N. Ragsdale, of the Ragsdale Mule and Horse company, to furnish 100 mules a day, beginning next Monday and continuing for an indefinite period.

Two representatives of the English government will be sent here to inspect the animals.

A hat rate of $100 apiece will be paid, which means that $10,000 a day, or $480,000 a month, will be put in circulation in this territory. Mr. Ragsdale is paying from $125 to $150 a head for the mules. He says they must pass a rigid inspection and be in good condition. The qualifications of an army mule are that they must be at least 14 hands high, and must be of dark color, without blemishes that would impair their services at the front, which is possible for them to live as long as a week.

As this is the dull season for farmers, many of them are willing to dispose of their stock until the next planting season, thus saving a heavy feed bill for the balance of the year. Most of the mules bought for the English government are coming from southern farmers.

Mr. Ragsdale says that farmers wishing to dispose of their stock may bring them to him for inspection by the inspectors of the English army.

GREEN ASKS GOVERNOR FOR X-RAY EXAMINATION
Frank's Assault Says Broken
Rib Has Affected His Mind

J. W. Green, the life-term convict who cut Leo M. Frank's throat at the state prison farm, made one request of Governor Nat E. Harris during his interview with the governor at the state prison farm last Saturday, it developed today.

"I have one request to make of you, Governor Harris," said Green. "The governor naturally expected Green to ask for clemency. Imagine his surprise when Green said:

"I had several ribs broken years ago, and one of them was not set right. It has pained me ever since. I believe it is the cause of my stroke of paralysis. The constant pain has affected my mind. My request, governor, is that you have an X-ray examination made of me, to find out what the trouble is."

The governor drew a long breath when Green finished. In place of a clemency plea from a man who has killed two men and attempted to kill a third, he received a request for a medical examination. Green offered to perform a very simple and easy service.

"I promised Green to grant his request," the governor says. "and I am going to have the examination made."

Neither

Beckerism

"Many bore false witness against Him."
Mark 14-56

BECKERISM is the protection of criminals in the commission of crime by those whose duty it is to stop crime.

Becker was a captain of police in New York. Today, he is trying, in jail, to escape execution as a murderer.

The white-slaver, the liquor dealer, the gambler looked to Becker for protection.

In the end, he committed murder to prevent exposure.

BEAVERS is chief of police in Atlanta. He closed the red-light district. In the last two weeks he has pulled five locker-clubs.

He has refused to compromise with crime. Today the CHIEF has been suspended.

What think you?

While New York is putting a policeman to death as the result of his trafficking with the underworld, will ATLANTA witness the undoing of HER CHIEF because of his fidelity to his trust?

The power of liquor is frightful.

A few months back, in the city of Newark, Ohio, a mob, led by a negro, lynched an officer, Carl Etherington.

Etherington had done his duty fighting the liquor traffic.

Scarcely will the like happen in Georgia, though a few months back the negro paper in Atlanta joined the pack in the attack on the integrity of Atlanta's force.

Since then policemen have had to shoot more than one negro.

Lawlessness, seeping down from higher levels, is belching back a frightful tide of filth in black.

God pity those who know no better! God open the eyes of men to the shame of the thing that traders in booze and women are trying to put across in the capital of Georgia! God forbid that decent men let themselves be used in this!

James L. Beavers, as an individual, is neither more nor less than any other man to the members of this committee.

BUT THE CHIEF OF POLICE who put an end to PROTECTED VICE in this city—the chief who has maintained the MORALE of the force in the face of efforts to destroy its efficiency, because the chief would not compromise with crime—JAMES L. BEAVERS, the chief, who now has the blind tigers masquerading as LOCKER CLUBS facing certain destruction, unless they succeed in dragging him down—the chief who does these things, not because he likes them, but because it is the law and his duty—

This Chief of Police, in his fearless stand for civic righteousness and decency, embodies principles for which the Church of the Living God will forever stand.

BECAUSE of his courage, BECAUSE of his honesty, he is so deadly efficient that certain ones have determined TO GET RID of him at any cost. And now the day of trial has come.

Nominally, James L. Beavers will be tried. In reality, YOU will be tried.

ATLANTA WILL BE TRIED BEFORE THE WORLD.

YOU must decide. Shall Atlanta crown vice or virtue?

Shall liquor and immorality, or law and morality rule in the capital of Georgia?

Again we plead with our law-makers now in session in Atlanta!

SENATORS AND REPRESENTATIVES! Look at the seemingly endless turmoil which unfolds from the near-beer saloons and locker clubs in the cities of our state.

Will you not end these?

Take from the law-books of Georgia those monstrous hypocrisies known as the near beer saloon and locker club laws!

IF MEN say, as they unquestionably do today, regardless of law, that, so long as the state puts a high tax upon brewers and sellers of so-called near beer and upon locker clubs the state expects public officials and jurors to perjure themselves and permit the liquor trade, we beg you to repeal those laws licensing near beer and locker clubs.

Remove all doubt. Do it clearly, simply, plainly.

The EAKES-FULLBRIGHT substitute fails to touch the law as to near beer and locker clubs.

It is said—

BILLS were drawn and introduced in the senate and house, which, if enacted into laws, would remove all excuse, but these have been side-tracked because of the men who caused them to be introduced—because of some feeling growing out of the race of SPEAKER BURWELL.

We had no part in the speaker's race. But, if we had—if we had fought for or against SPEAKER BURWELL, at this juncture, we would say—"It matters not—In God's name pass the bills which will free Georgia from the shame of the rising tide of lawlessness!"

MEN OF ATLANTA—REPRESENTATIVES AND SENATORS of Georgia—what think you of conditions in the capital of your state?

Must we endure Beckerism in Georgia?

God forbid!

In that trial, nineteen centuries ago, it is written—"There stood up certain and bore false witness."

And ever since, in the war between right and wrong, men have been found to "bear false witness" against the right, but never yet has the onward march of God been stopped.

Right ever conquers in the end.

CHIEF BEAVERS, though suspended, has no cause for fear.

Those who believe in right living and right thinking have no reason to quail.

The heart of Atlanta—the heart of Georgia—is sound.

BECKERISM cannot live in our midst. Neither city nor state will endure compromise with crime.

They will uphold the chief.

Exempt College Endowments. Every member of the Legislature who has the highest interests of Georgia at heart may be depended upon to support the bill providing for the submission of a Constitutional amendment to exempt college endowments from taxation.

This just and righteous measure passed the Senate more than two weeks ago with scarcely a dissenting vote. It is now before the House for conclusive action.

The church colleges and universities of Georgia are dedicated to the service of the Commonwealth as truly as the State's own system of public schools.

More or less heat is to be expected during the open season for barbecue.

Likewise there will come a time when we shall quit exchanging notes with Mexico.

The problem with the Republican party is to find a man who is game enough to stand defeat.

The Tech's Urgent Need. The Legislature should not hesitate a moment to grant the Georgia Tech's appeal for an appropriation sufficient to maintain and operate the new power plant which generous friends of the institution have donated.

A Western & Atlantic Commission.

There can be no thoughtful difference of judgment, or matters of principle at least, as to the timeliness and wisdom of the bill providing for a commission "to ascertain, consider and determine" subject to the Legislature's approval, the terms and conditions upon which the Western and Atlantic railroad shall be re-leased.

This is the object of the bill which was introduced Monday by Mr. Andrews, of Fulton, and Senator Dobbs, of the Thirty-fifth district, who are the chairmen, respectively, of the House and the Senate committee on the Western and Atlantic road.

The amount of the annual rental that should be required and the method of its assessment.

Whether the property in the hands of the lessee should be taxable, and if so, to what extent and in what manner.

What, if any, property is owned by the Western and Atlantic railroad not useful for railroad purposes that could properly and advantageously be disposed of separately from the lease of the road.

What, if any, steps should be taken to assert the right and title of the state to any part of the right of way or properties of the road that may be adversely used or occupied.

Each of these matters, it will be noted, requires sustained and searching inquiry, and each of them must be determined, in the light of broad and accurate knowledge, before well advised plans for a new lease of the State road can be made.

At any rate the tone of the note will probably prevent an endless chain of them.

Russia's gold output is reported as increasing. This seems to be in line with all the European nations, and most of the output is in the direction of the United States.—Chicago Herald.

France.

It is easy and often misleading to personify a nation, to speak of it as if it were a man, to give it a man's attributes, define its character, and predict its actions from that character, as if it were a man.

The folly of generalization must strike those who a few years ago were talking of light-headed, unstable, superficial France. It must strike them as they see the grim, taciturn, unshakable nation that sees so importantly and almost silently about its head.

The losses of France have been more frightful than those of other countries, but no groan escapes her. She has not succumbed to the burning of "dry Jungles and grass, most sudden, high-blazing, and his Teutonic fire, like that of "anthracite coal, difficult to kindle, but once kindled, no known thing can put out" save fire for "roasting eggs the other" or "smelting metals."

It is claimed that over five hundred women are now enrolled under their own names in the Russian army, while the sex of over fifty has been discovered only when they fell. The greatest number of women are in the Siberian regiments.

Women chauffeurs in France are working with the army, carrying messages and officers from point to point. They have proved themselves versatile in the matter of making quick repairs, and in overcoming unexpected difficulties.

Equally strenuous is the work of the German women in the fields, tending the hay to feed the horses of the army. At least three women aviators are riding the allied armies in France. The aviators and chauffeurs are said to be women of wealth and fashion, who desire to give active aid to the government.

It is sleep, plenty of it, that Dr. Grayson believes must, in the main, constitute Woodrow Wilson's vacation.

"Eight hours' sleep is enough," I'll admit for most men, says Dr. Grayson. "But Woodrow Wilson, the president, Mr. Wilson uses up so much vitality, such a tremendous amount of nerves and mental energy, that he has to sleep more than the ordinary amount of sleep for him to get on."

WOMEN WHO DO MEN'S WORK.

W HILE war has caused a lull in the feminist propaganda in England and all other parts of Europe, it has brought to the women the opportunity—often the necessity—of doing the work of men.

A few weeks ago, the Cross of St. George was conferred upon Madame Kokovtseva, now commanding colonel of the 18th Ural Cossack regiment. The honor was awarded for bravery. Colonel Kokovtseva has been thrice wounded in action, but has returned to her regiment each time.

A certain French soldier's wife is known as Corporal Eugénie Buffet, and she carries the musket her wounded husband was obliged to lay down.

A Lithuanian woman named Olga Jehelweiser is an experienced officer, having served under General Rennenkampf in the Japanese war. She is of special value in leading troops, because of her knowledge of the country.

Great barges, 120 feet long, sixteen feet broad and ten feet high have lately been taken up by the authorities of Paris and Rouen for transferring wounded soldiers. The net work of canvas which covers the boats are drawn by men, and women are doing a large part of the work in firing the engines upon these barges.

In England, the number of women who are doing the work which a few months ago occupied men, has increased each day. In the Leeds ball-bearing works are working long hours each turning out the "wheels" of the new infantry rifles.

In the South Kensington hotels nearly untrained girls have replaced the boy pages. At Paddington station women are acting as ticket examiners and also as railway porters. This last work seems beyond any normal physique, but women are acquiring great dexterity in handling heavy baggage.

A unique activity is that of "stretcher bearers" of the "triangular guards." Several companies of British girls have already entered into this activity in the trenches. They will be attached to the field service of the British Cross. A stretcher will be assigned to six or eight according to their physique, and they will go out over the battlefield in advance of the ambulances, placing on the wounded men and conveying them back to the hospital camp.

In England, as well as in France, the post office has now largely supplanted the postman in the delivery of mail. They are taking up the work of the postmen, and are proving their efficiency from every standpoint. Even the heavy mails and bad weather of the Christmas holidays had no effect on the delivery of mail by the service offered by the postal authorities.

The milk wagon is likely to have a woman driver in London, as well as in other cities. This is a task no record has come in of the (contingent being handled by feminine hands, it is doubtless chiefly due to the fact that less ice is delivered in Europe than in America.

It is good to be able to add that, by "suggesting" designed to blot out this painful subconscious memory, the mind is eventually was able to work a complete cure.

Most parents, fortunately, do not expose their children to such extreme conditions. But shocks of this kind intensify—such, for example, as fears engendered by tales of the supernatural—may have fully as disastrous an effect on a sensitive child.

DUBLIN, Ga., July 27.—A big meeting of tourists, accompanied by visitors, was held here Monday afternoon when a number of cars in the city overland run, from Columbus to Savannah, arrived. The visitors were served dinner by the ladies of this city in Stubbs park. Twigg, Laurens, Mustoget, Johnson, Wilkinson, Equanal, Bulloch and Effingham counties, were represented.

W. T. Anderson, of Macon, delivered an address to the commission, giving a short history of the highway proposition, stated that the one route had been chosen by Fort Valley, Americus and Thomasville to Tallahassee, Fla., but another route from Macon to Jacksonville was desired. The selection would depend on the merits of the road.

HOUSE ADOPTS REPORT CLEARING JUDGE RUSSELL

Debate Continues on Bill to Exempt College Endowments From Taxation

By a unanimous rising vote, the house Tuesday morning adopted the report of the special investigating committee, completely exonerating Chief Justice Richard B. Russell, of the state court of appeals, on charges brought against him by W. T. Moyers, his former stenographer, and now an attorney practicing at the Atlanta bar.

The report of the committee, headed by Mr. Connor, of Spalding, stated first, that the charges had been proved groundless by numbers of witnesses of high and unimpeachable character, and recommended also that no further action be taken by the house in the matter.

NEW HOUSE BILLS. The following bills were introduced Tuesday in the house: By Mr. Conger, of Decatur—To provide for handling Decatur county funds.

By Mr. Bullard, of Campbell—To create state warehouse department.

TODAY'S EVENING STORY

THE BIG MAN

(Copyright, 1915, by W. Verden.)

As the door closed sharply behind her Eve English stood on the threshold, unable for the instant to take another step forward. She seemed, indeed, to have come to the end of all things. Mrs. Van Dressen's shrill voice still echoed in her ears. "No, you needn't come for any more washings. You don't do 'em to suit me. After this you can pay the rent or get out." The color came into Eve's pale cheeks. She drew a deep breath that lifted her thin chest. Then resolutely she hurried away from the house and down the street. Four blocks below she turned into old Tannery lane, where a row of tiny, small houses stood with their backs to a steep bank and their faces toward the creek, noisy with spring rains. All of these houses belonged to the woman she had just left and one of them was her home. Before it, upon the crumbling creek wall sat a child hopefully dangling a fish line into the yellow water.

"I got one," he called, "for your supper, mamma."

She smiled. "Now get another for your own or you know I'll have to divide," was the reply.

She went into the house. There were two rooms below and one above, and almost no furniture. Eve took off her worn black hat and coat and sat down in the broken rocking chair. Suddenly she leaned forward and covered her face with her hands. But she did not cry. She was only thinking.

A year before she had had a pretty home and money to burn. The future looked very hopeful. Her husband was earning a thousand dollars a year and had prospects. Then suddenly the blow fell. He was run down by a truck one night in the foggy street and brought home to her, injured. She was seriously injured, it was thought at first, and yet no amount of medical skill seemed able to cure him. He went from hospital to hospital, from doctor to doctor. Their savings lasted until he died. Then Eve found herself with her small son, penniless without friends and with no way of earning her living. She had been carefully and tenderly reared for her head and nothing else. Life she felt had betrayed her.

For six months she tried to get work. In that time she had only two jobs, and those she could not keep. She sold everything of value she had in order to live, and when she had nothing more she took Hugh and got out of the city. She came to Westmore.

She came to Westmore because far back in her girlhood, before ever she met the man she married, she had known a Westmore man. He had been a student at the same educational institution with herself. For a year she had seen a good deal of him. Then he vanished from her life. Before he went, however, he had asked her to marry him and she had refused. "I don't want to marry a mining engineer," she had said, "and I don't love you enough." That last had answered in his quick, intense way. "If you don't love me enough, of course you don't want to marry me. And I don't want you should. But I'll just tell you this, Eve, dear, before we part—there's never going to be any one else like you in my life never." She had wondered since at various times if this was true. But as she had never seen Chris Strong again, or even heard of him, she did not, of course, know.

She had married Hugh because she loved him. There had been a terrible time wooing. They married, the child came. Then in eight years it was all over. She was bereft. And now here she was in Westmore, drawn hither by some strange influence of its name and Chris Strong's life there for which she could not account. For six months, ever since she had moved into the house in Tannery lane, she had paid for rent and fuel and such food as they had by working. But little, delicate Eve, built for grace rather than labor, though she broke her slender back for her exacting patrons, could not do more. One by one the washings fell off until she had only that of Mrs. Van Dressen, her landlady. Now she had lost that, and she knew not what to do. Too proud to appeal for aid, she faced starvation. More than all, she faced it with Hugh. If it were not for Hugh—Well, there were deep holes at freshest time in the rocky creek.

There was a sound of small feet and voices crying, "Mamma! Mamma!" She looked up. Hugh was running toward her with a large chub dancing at the end of his line. His small face was red and not with triumph and joy. "Take it off!" he shouted. "It's yours for your supper, mamma!"

She detached the fish. "Such a beauty, dear!" she exclaimed. "How did you ever pull it out of the water?" "I didn't," Hugh said. "The big man did it."

"The big man!" Eve said. She glanced from the window. Above the wall was visible a tattered gray hat. "That's that!" she muttered, pointing. At that instant the gray hat bobbed and there was a streak of silver through the air. "He's got another!" the boy shrieked and darted away. Half an hour later the gray hat and man disappeared, and Hugh ran in with a dozen fish streaming from a forked stick. "The big man gave me all he caught," the child gushed, "and he'll be back."

"Oh, he shouldn't have done that! you shouldn't have taken them!" Eve reproached. "But he wanted me to have 'em, mamma! He said he did. And he's coming back."

"The fish were very welcome. It was a long time since Eve and her little son had tasted anything so good. She felt heartened after the ample meal and with the prospect of a good breakfast before her. He did not see her. She stood a moment contemplating him. Through the first room she went to the kitchen for it was time to start the fire for their supper. As the door she started back in wild astonishment. For upon the kitchen table stood such an array of eatables as she had not possessed since her happy housekeeping days with Hugh's father. With a gasp she sprang forward and began to undo packages. Flour, vegetables, butter, two plump chickens, a pyramid of canned goods, a batch of bacon, tea, sugar, and fruit. And among them lying in plain sight was a ten dollar bill.

"Who has done this?" she murmured. "Who could have done this?" She turned. Hugh's dejected little figure stood in the doorway. "The big man didn't come. And I couldn't catch a fish—" he began. Then he stared

"Mamma!" he cried in amazement. "Yes, dear," Eve sobbed. The angels have been here—no, I mean some blessed unknown friend has been here. See what a lot of fish the big man is getting. Oh, Hugh, darling, see the food and flour, vegetables, butter, two plump chickens, a pyramid of canned goods, a batch of bacon, tea, sugar, and fruit in comfort. A week passed and Eve had no identity of her benefactor. But she had paid her rent and lived with Hugh in comfort. One morning when Hugh sat on the wall fishing she came to the door but looked at him and saw the old gray hat hiding beneath the wall again. Somehow she had the idea that the old gray hat belonged to an old gray beard who was you." And I didn't even know it was you," she said.

LITTLE BEDTIME STORIES

A Jovous mate, a dowry nest— Could anybody be more blest?

TINY the Warbler didn't think so. It seemed to him his cup of happiness was quite full to overflowing. And yet he discovered...

And the nest it was in was just fitted for such a beautiful thing. It was a dainty nest, for Tiny and Mrs. Tiny are very dainty little people...

When they reached the nest and looked in he had a shock that he quite lost his breath for a minute. Then he gave a funny little cry...

They Hunted Worms in the Old Orchard. They looked and looked and then he shook out his handsome yellow coat and sang over and over again...

peeped into the nest she was even more shocked than Tiny had been. There were TWO eggs instead of one...

"Did you ever hear of such a thing?" cried Tiny. "Yes," replied Mrs. Tiny. "I've heard of such a thing before, but I didn't expect it would happen to me. What are we going to do about it?"

"Next Story—A Scandal in the Old Orchard. She—No, Zack, I fear we could never be happy. You say I always want my own way in everything."

No Stop. She—No, Zack, I fear we could never be happy. You say I always want my own way in everything.

Women Work Too Much; No Rest

By Edna K. Woolley

WOMEN should learn how to 'relax,' said the woman doctor on the front porch, and folded her hands in her lap. "Seems to me that a lot of women do not know how to relax."

That's just what they ought to do, interrupted the woman doctor. "I simply couldn't," quoth the matter. "I'm tired and my nerves are so bad that I can't do anything."

That's just it, declared her guest. "Women always think they have to be getting things done. They're the slaves of their consciences or sense of duty or conventions."

For an hour at least, every day, a woman should rest. She should sit, recline, or lie down, relax completely in mind and body. The best time to do it is in the afternoon after the day's work is done—not lying abed late in the evening.

Do you mean that I should sit at my hands folded, actually doing nothing? "I'm not," she said. "I mean that you should rest your mind and body. It's not a matter of sitting or lying down, but of relaxing completely."

He was startled to find that he had a few weeks ago, by popular demand, received the appointment of assistant city attorney under Curtis Bell. He had felt himself to be settling along splendidly—had started to dream of dreaming of signing, ambitious youth—dreams which in his case were something more than "dreams—dreams that were possibilities, and now things."

Today's Family Affairs

By Mary Lee

I READ somewhere that there is an old Chinese proverb that says 'adversity never walks alone,' but it is not in the dictionary. 'Adversity never walks alone,' said Mrs. Happy Harbinger, smiling.

"What is a whole lot more comforting than our sayings about adversity never coming singly, and things of the nature. It makes of adversity a kind of benign spirit, a stimulus to greater effort."

"We housewives are learning lessons from our heroic sisters across the water. It is not so much the coming of fashion to be so unusual and even the women who are not in the least under obligation to be so. Finding it an exciting pastime to seek finds which are always occurring."

"My dear little old French friend, Mrs. Socrates was having tea with me and she thought was the cause for the reputation of the French housewife for economy."

"Her answer was one word—'Jog.' "She went on in her delicious French English. "Ah! It breaks the habit of going to walk along your avenue and behind you there is—what? Not your path of baroque, our beautiful people. There are always people who eat the carcasses of children."

"And when you hear I say we are wiser, and others talk for the same—'Vivis, so reputation!' "I felt both instructed and rebuked, and for once I had not word to say."

The District Attorney Tells Ellis Mason to Forget About the Gambling Den.

man of big ideas and corresponding ability. On his graduation from college he entered the government service as a clerk in the customs. He had written two books on political economy, had given numerous lectures on "City Government," and had made himself so talked about in the newspapers that he had a few weeks ago, by popular demand, received the appointment of assistant city attorney under Curtis Bell. He had felt himself to be settling along splendidly—had started to dream of dreaming of signing, ambitious youth—dreams which in his case were something more than "dreams—dreams that were possibilities, and now things."

Now, two weeks after his appointment he found himself crowded close to the rail by a chief who was leading the very sort of thing he was elected and had sworn to wipe out. He was cut short in his reflections by an office boy with a message from his chief.

"The district attorney wishes to see you immediately in his office, Mr. Mason. He arose and went to Bell's office. Bell was standing by his desk, and upon entering his office his face thoughtful but good humored as though pleased with some success in his private life. He showed no trace of the resentment of a half hour ago, when he had so abruptly dismissed his assistant with the assurance that "there are no gambling dives running in this city."

He had a few weeks ago, by popular demand, received the appointment of assistant city attorney under Curtis Bell. He had felt himself to be settling along splendidly—had started to dream of dreaming of signing, ambitious youth—dreams which in his case were something more than "dreams—dreams that were possibilities, and now things."

DAINTY CHICKEN DISHES

Chicken in Crock—Chicken makes a delicious summer meal, and one very delicate way to cook it is in a stone crock or casserole. Get a medium-sized bird, singe and draw it, and after the usual thorough cleaning put it whole in the cooking vessel.

Chicken Fricassee—Clean a young fowl as usual, gibbet it and throw the pieces in salt water and salt for ten minutes. Dry them thoroughly on a clean meat towel, salt, pepper and flour them and brown in hot fat.

Successful

She—You were always a fault finder. He—Yes, I found you.

A Way Out

Father—Tommy, no more putting to night. A little boy can't sleep on a full stomach.

Grateful

"Yes, I know old Stinson well. He was a true friend to me when the clouds were lowering and things looked blue."

Out of Danger

Mr. Bacon—When all the tools are dead I don't think that I shall want to be alive.

Hopeless

Optimist—At last! I am at the end of my troubles.

Valer's Dairy Flour
It is tested in our own kitchens right at the mill—that's how we make sure that the finest wheat and the finest methods of milling produce the best baking flour—Valer's Dairy Flour.

Valer's Dairy Flour
It is milled slowly to retain full baking quality of the flour and is free from any admixture. It costs a trifle more by the sack, but always it costs less in use, because it makes more baking.

FALL HATS DID YOU SAY! HERE THEY ARE! FIRST CROP OF THE SEASON

BY BETTY BROWN. Dame Fashion is going to see to it that no one is disappointed in the matter of hats this fall.

Dame Fashion is going to see to it that no one is disappointed in the matter of hats this fall. There are broad trimmed, drooping hats for the girl who likes a picturesque frame for her face; there are peppy little tri-corner turbans for the girl who likes to hat with a saucy tilt to it and there are hats be-trimmed and between in size, and richly trimmed to suit "Everywoman."

The upper hat in the group shown here is a reminder of the "merry widow" of pleasant memory. It is black velvet, simply trimmed with colored porcelain beads and a band of white chiffon lines the drooping brim.

meeting was about to adjourn he took the floor and began to speak. He said: "At the last meeting of this board, resolutions, offered by Mr. Johnson, were unanimously adopted instructing me and the police to be active in strictly enforcing the laws against liquor. I started out and since that time have made cases against four or five."

"On Saturday night one week ago I went to the Atlanta club to see that the law was being enforced. While there the honorable chairman of this board, Mr. Paul, came in with a party of friends and ordered a drink. Paul put down a dollar. The waiter came back in a few minutes with the drink and I left. I made a case against the club."

"That's got nothing to do with this case," interrupted Commissioner Edwin Johnson, addressing the chair. "I can speak for myself, and I am sure I can speak for the board, that the making of cases against liquor clubs has nothing to do with the charges against Chief Beavers. The laws against liquor clubs should be enforced, and I will support Beavers or anyone else in so far as they are concerned."

Beavers interrupted to say the case in hand is ready to be tried as soon as the witnesses will come to court. "You are out of order, chief," declared Chairman Paul, "as a member of that club, and have a right to get a drink there. You are not to be tried, and these remarks have no place here."

Beavers, however, continued to talk. He said: "I have been on the police force twenty-six years, and this is the first time in my career that I have been in a position to be tried as a citizen or an official, let alone as a private citizen. I have never been in a position to be tried as a private citizen under these laws."

Chairman Paul then interrupted, saying: "You are out of order, chief. You are not to be tried as a private citizen. You are a member of that club, and you are to be tried as a member of that club. You are not to be tried as a private citizen. You are not to be tried as a private citizen. You are not to be tried as a private citizen."

moved Thursday night and Captain Mayo elected in his stead. Captain Mayo has been chief of police since Oct. 11, 1911. MAYO HAS HAD LONG SERVICE. Captain W. M. Mayo, the temporary chief of police and who, it is predicted, will succeed Chief Beavers in event the latter is removed, was born in Jasper county June 29, 1870, and received his early training at the home of his father, Indian Springs, Ga. He was educated in the county schools and at the age of seventeen years graduated from the Florida High school.

During his early married life, Captain Mayo worked in the general store of his father and had general supervision of a large farm, showing a fine executive ability in handling his affairs. His father is still in business at Stark, Georgia.

After a number of years as a successful farmer, Captain Mayo moved to Jackson, Ga., and became a member of the police force there. Shortly thereafter he was elected chief and served in that capacity for three years when he came to Atlanta during the expedition in 1895. He at once became a sumptuary on the Atlanta force and in 1897 was elected a regular.

About the year 1904 Patrolman Mayo was elected station sergeant and recognition of his ability, was seven months later named captain.

Chief Beavers is popular with the men of the force and has hundreds of friends throughout the city and state.
