MAYFIELD GIRL REPUDIATES TESTIMONY GIVEN ABOUT FRANK LOOKING INTO DRESSING ROOM

Solicitor Dorsey by Questions Suggests That He Will Try to Prove That Frank Went to Hapeville With a Young Girl One Week Before Murder - Many Girls Employed at the Pencil Factory Testify to Frank's Good Character

Leo M. Frank, superintendent of the National Pencil factory, accused of the murder of little Mary Phagan on April 26, mounted the witness stand in his own behalf at 2:06 o'clock Monday afternoon. When court reconvened after the recess for lunch, all other defense testimony had practically been completed, and the stage was set for Frank to face the jury and tell his own story of where he was and what he did on the day of the tragedy. Talking in a firm, clear voice that carred to all parts of the court room, Frank asserted hs nnocence of the crime with which he is charged and denounced the story told by Jim Conley, the negro sweeper, as a tissue of infamous lies. Frank was rather pale on the stand, and was calm. He sat with his hands clasped and later put them on his knees. A murmur ran through the audience when Frank sat coory down in

Judge Roan read the law regarding the testimony of a defendant in a murder case.

"The jury may believe it in preference to sworn testimony," said the judge, "or can dispegard it, as they see fit."

Concluding, Judge Roan turned to Frank and read: "The defendant does not have to answer any questions that are put to him unless he so desires."

STORY OF HIS LIFE.

"I was born in Paris, Tex.," began Frank. "Three months later my parents moved to New York and took me with them. That remained my residence until I moved to the south. "I attended the public schools in Brooklyn and prepared there for college. In the fall of 1902 I entered Cornell university. I took a course in mechanical engineering. I remained there until the fall of 1906, when I graduated. I then accepted a position with the B. F. Sturdivant company, of Hicoff, Mass.

The morning session was taken up by character witnesses who estified to the good character of he defendan and by the introduction by the defense of documentary evidence. Among the documentary evidence admitted s evidence ws the model of the pencil fctory, the cbbge brought into court by Dr. T. H. Hncock, Conley's four affdayts, the fnancal sheets sad to have been made out by Frank and Frank's letter to hs uncle when was wrtten on April 26.

Miss Emily Mayfield, one of the employes at the pencil factory, and the one mentioned in the testimony by Miss Irene Jackson, took the stand Monday and emphatically denied Miss Jackson's story that Frank came to the girls' dressing rooms at the factory while she was in one of them. She further stated that she never heard of Frank looking in the dressing rooms while other girls were occupying them.

Mrs. J. G. Wardlow, nee Miss Lula McDonnell, a former employe at the factory, denied questions asked her by Solicitor Dorsey as to whether she had heard that Frank and a little girl were on the Hapeville car on the Saturday prior to the murder of Mary Phagan and that Frank tried to persuade the girl to leave the car with him at several points on the trip. When the solicitor announced his intention of asking these questions, Mrs. Rae Frank, mother of the accused. left the court

Twenty-four factory girls took the witness chair Monday and told the jury of their belief in their superintendent's good character. One of them, Mrs. Mattie Thompson declared that she knew that the girls frequently flirted through the windows of the dressing rooms at the factory with boys on the outside and had made a complaint to Frank and Darley. Another witness, Mrs. M. E. Fleming, admitted under the cross examination by the solicitor that she knew Frank worked on the financial sheet on Saturday mornings while she was in his employ as his stenographer from April to December, 1911.

That the defense of Leo M. Frank would close its case Monday was indicated before the court convened Monday morning by statements of attorneys for the accused man. The rebuttal evidence by the state will begin immediately after

Frank concludes his statement to the jury. The detense will nave its turn again with rebuttal. And after that, perhaps by Wednesday or Thursday, the lawyers for both sides will begin their arguments. BRANCH RESUMES TESTIMONY.

CASTRO STHONGHOLD IS CAPTURED BY FEDERALS

Revolution in Venezuela Ended and Colombia Establishes Friendly Relations

(By Associated Press.) WILLEMSTAD, Cyracoa, Aug. 18. where revolutionary followers of Cipriano Castro struck their first blow in an attempt to overthrow President Gomez, has been recaptured by government troops after a fierce battle, according to advices brought here today.

The revolutionary leaders, General Lazaro Gonzales and General Urbina, were killed in the fight. A small force of government troops is reported to have been defeated at Cinamaica by rebels. Notwithstanding new uprisings which have broken out at various points in Venezuelan territory it has not been considered necessary to send expedition from the army of President Gomez, now camped at Maracay, to suppress them. The government of Colombia today notified Venezuela that Emeanulo Lizza has been appointed Colombian minister at Caracas in succession of Dr. J. C. Borda, and the hope was expressed that the friendly relations now existing between the two countries would continue.

The appointment of Senor Lizza and the expression of friendliness from Coiombia is looked upon as descrediting the reports of serious friction between the two governments over the aid which Augstin Berni and other Colombians residing at Cucuta, a town on the Venezuelan frontier, are said to have given to Castro's followers.

STRANGE WORM INFESTS CAROLINA COTTON BOLLS

Worm Is Similar to Boll Weevil and Is Creating Havoc in Certain Sections

(Special Dispatch to The Journal) GREENVILLE, S. C., Aug. 18 .- From Dunklin township in this county come alarming reports of the invasion in that section of a small worm which is said to be playing havor by devouring cotton bolls. Large fields of cotton, it is said, are infested with the worm, and the farmers are greatly exercised over it They are unable to account for the presence of the worms, and they say they are the first of the kind ever seen in this section. The worms are rapidly spreading over the lower section of the county, and it is feared that unless something is quickly done to stop the ravages of the pest the crop in that section will be seriously damaged.

The worms subsist on the cotton lint, it seems, boring their way into the boll, in much the same manner as the boll weevil. After the insect enters the boil the fruitage turns black and later rots. After the boll is pulled apart a small insect will fly out, having been transformed from the original worm. The matter has reen reported to the agricultural department, and it is expected that an expert will be sent here to make an examination.

DIGGS TRIAL ENTERS ON ITS THIRD WEEK

Defendant May Take the Stand to Show He Did Not Violate Mann Act

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 18 .- The third week of the trial of Maury I. Diggs, charged with white slavery under the Mann law, will begin tomorrow. Diggs is expected to take the stand in support of the defense's contention that the purpose which impelled Diggs and F. Drew Camminetti to run away with Marsha Warrington and Lola Norris from Sacramento to Reno was solely to escape trouble threatening them. The defense also will seek to show that the girls were not transported within the meaning of the act.

I. P. Diggs, father of the defendant, already has testified that he had threatened the four with arrest in the hope of severing his son's relations with the Warrington girl, and the owner of the building in which Diggs had an office related that he had warned Diggs that juvenile officers would be after him for taking young girls to his office.

By showing that troubles were accumulating about the young architect, the defense will try to convince the jury that he was afraid to remain in Sacramento and that if he had not gone to Reno he would have fled to some point in California, where he would have not been under the jurisdiction of the Mann law.

McMichael, former chief page of the house, planning to shake his story that McDermott got $7,500 from Washington pawnbrokers trying to beat the federal loan shark bill.

McMichael, referred to in the lobby exposure of Martin M. Mulhall as "chief spy" upon congressmen for the National Association of Manufacturers, testified he had not seen any money given to Mc-Dermott and had only McDermott's own word about the alleged transaction with the loan sharks.

McMichael swore that in an effort to have him "keep his mouth shut," Mc-Dermott's brother-in-law had promised him a municipal job here. McMichael said he was to get the job through Attorney Ralston, counsel for the American Federation of Labor and a former partner of District Commissioner Siddons. Ralston denied that he or the federation was concerned in the alleged

A screen of mystery arising from an indiscriminate use of aliases by the dead man renders it hard to trace his actions during the past few months, and utterly impossible to make the identification positive. In the note he left he stated he was taking his own life because he feared a return of insanity.

McMullen disappeared from Brooklyn on October 1, 1912, and a short time later the man who committed suicide here appeared in Tallulah Falls. He secured work there under the name of W. I. Miller with S. F. Condon, a contractor. He then went from Tallulah Falls to Cornelia and there deposited a sum of money in a bank, using the name of W. F. McMullin.

He appeared in Atlanta five weeks ago and went to work at the Kimball hotel as assistant engineer, using the name of A. S. Brown. He worked there until about ten days before his death. At different places in Atlanta he is said to have used these aliases, J. W. Miller, A. W. Mullens, R. W. White and A. S.

THREE NEGROES KILLED IN SUNDAY CRIME WAVE

Craps and Blind Tigers Cause Record Number of Arrests for Sabbath

Craps and blind tigers levied among the negro population of Atlanta Sunday a tribute of three men murdered, one seriously wounded and more than twenty arrested for participating in various cutting scrapes. A record for crime is thought to have been established for Sunday. In all. 88 arrests were made, which officers state is the largest number made on Sunday in the history of Atlanta.

The first of the three killings occurred at 11:30 o'clock Sunday morning at 282 Butler street. Munch Harris was stabbed and killed by Poney Johnson, a negro desperado. The negro had not been captured shortly before noon Monday The police do not know the cause of the killing.

B. C. Smith stabbed and instantly killea John Henry Wilkerson, at 80 Decatur street, at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Smith refused to surender and was captured after a hard chase by Officers Davis and Felder. Peter Jackson was shot and killed by Ed Smith, alias Ed Campbell, at 72 James street about 4:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Smith resisted arested and Call Officer Palmer shot him through the hand. The trouble is said to have started over a crap game.

Several alleged blind tigers were raided where free-for-all cutting rows were in progress. More than twenty negroes were arrested in these places, and a quantity of beer and whisky seized.

Constitutionalists Meet

Defeat in 3-Day Battle EAGLES PASS, Mexico, Aug. 18 .- The onstitutionalists were defeated in their three days' battle last week near Abasolo, about 100 miles south of here, in Coahuila. They retreated Saturday and yesterday, declaring they had not sufficient ammunition to reply to the federal fire. About seven thousand men were engaged on both sides in this campaign. No estimate of killed and wounded has reached here, although several wounded constitutionalists have been brought to Pedrias Negras. Jesus Carranza, brother of the consti-utionalist leader, has gone to the front with reinforcements today. . Meanwhile the result of the federal success seems to be the driving of a wedge northward almost to the center of Carranza's stronghold, and this wedge seems deigned to separate him from his miliary capital at Piedras Negras.

Public Sentiment Backs The Smoke Ordinance.

The earnest and logical appeal of Chairman R. M. Harwell, of the City Smoke Board, for public cooperation in the enforcement of the anti-smoke ordinance should win every good citizen's cordial response. That the people as a whole are zealously in favor of this protective law and of its thoroughgoing application, there can be no loubt. Indeed, the measure was passed as the result of an insistent popular demand, the community realizing that its health as well as its civic reputation was seriously imperiled. Most of the interests directly concerned have shown a commendable willingness to follow the suggestions of the Board and the inspector in abating the smoke nuisance; but in some instances, it seems, there has thus far been a selfish indifference to all official warnings and requests. This attitude is un-Atlantalike; it is unpatriotic and shortsighted; if persisted in, it will bring its own condemnation and punishment.

"We are experiencing some difficulty," says Chairman Harwell, "with apartment house owners about the regulation of their furnaces. We let the matter go by last winter, but this year we must see that smoky furnaces receive attention. We wish to give the owners every opportunity to remedy conditions and all possible assistance; we hope the cuners will co-cperate with us."

This word should be sufficient to the wise. It is desirable that every law be .. dministered co-operatively, if it can be; but if not by means of reason and persuasion, then force must be blought to bear. The anti-smoke ordinance was enacted for the people's vital interest. Those who continue to violate it and who show no disposition to observe 'ts fair requirements become enemies of the community and should be dealt with accordingly. The officials charged with carrying this law into effect may feel assured that public judgment is squarely behind them, urging them to do their full duty.

State Aid for Public Health.

There is much significance in the fact that of the forty-one State legis.atures which have been in session this year, thirty have enacted laws dealing with the prevention of tuberculosis. It is reckoned that some five million dollars has been appropriated to this end, most of which is for the maintenance of State institutions. The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis announces that there are now thirty-nine State sanitariums in thirty-one different states; Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Connecticut each has more than one such sanitarium. Indiana has carried the campaign to the extent of providing for the establishment of county hospitals, while Minnesota and Wisconsin have inaugurated a plan of state subsidies to local hospitals. In addition to the five million dollars appropriated directly by the state governments, it is expected that Congress will set aside a million dollars for the federal public health service which is concerned largely with antituberculosis work.

These facts betoken an earnest, nationwide interest not only in the campaign against tuberculosis, but also in general activities in behalf of public health. It was comparatively a few years ago that the urgent need and the value of government aid and supervision in this matter were realized. Health was hitherto regarded as being mostly an individual problem; now it is regarded pre-emirently as a public problem. The alert citizen realizes that tax money can be put to no better or more businesslike use than the prevention of disease, whether it betuberculosis, typhoid, malaria or any other malady. This idea is developing itself in the form of carefully planned systems as well as liberal appropriations. Of the five million dollars alloted to anti-tuberculosis work, a considerable portion no doubt will be used for administrative purposes and for research. That sum is but a fragment of all that has been appropriated for State boards of health, which direct enterprises covering the entire field of sanitation and the prevention of disease.

This is cheering evidence, indeed, for, it indicates an awakening of the popular mind to the all-important truth that disease is a serious economic and social problem and that its solution demands society's organized resitance.

Our ex-presidents probably wonder how Wilson turns the trick so easily.

While the congressmen are ordering their fall clothes, they might as well include a winter overcoat.

The Business Depression of War.

The cost of war would be dire enough, were it limited to the season of actual conflict, but not until the tumult and the shouting die does a nation begin to feel the full burden of its debt. The months of struggle are nothing beside the years of depression that ensue. The sacrifice of money and life on the battlefield is followed by a scarcity of labor, and a stringency of credit long after peace returns; and the pains of recuperation, even for the victor, are beyond reckoning. The New York Commercial cites, in this connection, a particularly striking example, that of Italy, which is now wrestling with all manner of industrial problems entailed by its brief campaign in northern Africa:

"Italy wrested Tripoli from Turkey at comparatively little expense in lives and treasure, but the disturbance of industries in northern Italy, the most prosperous and progressive part of the kingdom, has resulted in so much misery that strikes and riots have assumed dangerous proportions. Agriculture was neglected during the war, and the cost of living has risen, while manufacturers find trade depressed and claim to be unable to pay higher wages though the demands of the united workers amount to only half a cent an hour of added pay. Taxes are higher all round and the trouble has been rendered more acute by keeping conscripts with the colors through fear of general war arising out of the Balkan struggle, and the dismemberment of Turkey, which Italy virtually began."

Italy will doubtless emerge from these embarrassments unweakened but how soon that will be is beyond prediction. If she retains her conquered territory, it will prove a rich asset in decades to come; but today her manufacturers, as we are told, find it hard to finance their business operations on account of the general scarcity of money and the high rates of interest; they have stocks of unsold goods on hand and the people are without means to buy. In like manner, all Europe is feeling the economic burden of the Balkan war. Money that might have gone into productive channels has been withdrawn to increase and maintain vast armaments; and the uncertainties of the peninsula conflict have kept the business of the entire continent in suspense.

It is such evidence as this that leads the majority of the American people to approve the wise policy of our government in its dealings with the Mexican situation, and to condemn the jingoes who would needlessly plunge the country into a long-drawn and wofully burdensome war. Should national honor make it necessary to send a United States army across the Rio Grande, the cost of such a step would no longer be open for debate. But until that moment comes, imperatively and unavoidably, the interests of the nation demand that we move with the utmost prudence and restraint.

Present indications all point to a peaceful solution of this problem. The president's special envoy, John Lind, far from being expelled from Mexico or treated with indignity, as was predicted, has been received in a friendly manner; and he is today in practical, if not official, communication with the provisional government. He has already conveyed the preliminaries of the plan he was commissioned to present and within the next few days, it is expected, he will have completed his task.

Besides this, there is reassuring evidence in the attitude of England, Japan and other foreign powers toward the Mexican policy of the United States. These nations have expressed tacit sympathy with our efforts to bring about a quiet settlement of Mexico's turbulent conditions.

There is thus every reason for confidence in the administration's program and no reason whatsoever for doubt or opposition. Certainly, until all peaceful means have proved futile, there should be no insistence upon measures of force that would lead to

is due largely to the fact that it deserves what it wants. Thus in its present effort to secure a new postoffice building, this thiriving town has only to point to the record of its postal receipts to show that its appeal is timely and fair.

For several seasons past these receipts have exceeded ten thousand dollars annually. Under the rule adopted by the House committee on public buildings and grounds that record places Decatur in the class of communities entitled to a government building. Congressman Howard has accordingly introduced a bill appropriating a hundred thousand dollars for this purpose. Not only Decatur but DeKalb county as well merits this recognition of growth and importance. It is to be hoped the new building will be provided.

OUR DAILY BREAD

VI.-THE BAKERY AND THE WOMAN. By Frederic J. Haskin

The average housewife in most parts of the country s becoming more interested in her local bakery than in any other food producing establishment. According to a careful estimate made last year nearly half the bread used in the country comes from the bakery instead of the home kitchen. The bakers would be glad to bake all the bread and the average woman would be more than willing to have them do so if she had satisfactory assurance that the bakery product was as clean, nutritious and satisfactory as the loaf she herserr could bake.

Many reasons exist for the preference being given to baker's bread. The chief one is economic. It costs practically three times as much to bake bread at home as in the bakery. The relative value or the fuel alone consumed in the baking of a small quantity of bread for a single family is much greater in proportion than that used to bake the same quantity in the large output of a big bakery. The woman who lives in town and bakes bread in a gas range can reckon this even more readily than the woman who depends upon coal or wood for fuel, but the fuel value actually has to be taken into consideration in most households. The cost of flour and other ingredients when purchased at retail by the housewife is greater than when purchased in large quantities by the baker.

The baker is often able to make a better and more wholesome loaf of bread than can be furnished in the home because his equipment is so much better. He takes no chances, makes no guesses at the relative quantities of his ingredients. Everything is weighed with scientific care and in most bakeries the mixing and kneading is now done by machinery, rendering the process far more thorough than the most patient hand labor can insure. One of the greatest drawbacks to the home baked bread is the uncertainty of the average kitchen range. There is no means of accurately gauging its temperature. The oven of a bakery is equipped with a register of its temperature and a means of keeping it uniform during the baking process. . . .

The housewife of today really has little advantage over the methods her mother employed when it comes to bread baking. The baker upon the other hand, has taken advantage of every branch of science to nelp him to produce a loaf of bread which will most nearly approach perfection. In recognition of this no less an authority than Dr. Harvey W. Wiley says: "The baking of bread is an art most successfully practiced by professionals and the American method of nome bread baking is not to be too highly commended."

The modern woman agrees with the theory that baker's bread ought to be best for her family providing it is baked under proper conditions. Too often she finds that this is not the case and she is compelled to organize a crusade against dirt and insanitary methods before the bakery product comes up to her high ideal of purity and wholesomeness. At first the bakers were disposed deeply to resent this feminine invasion of their territory. Much opposition was offered to the first reforms suggested. In most towns now, however, a different attitude is apparent. The master bakers, through their organizations, are recognizing the value of securing the good will of the women they desire for customers, and feel that it is worth while to come up to their requirements.

The Housewives' league of New York has been giving special attention to the bakeries of that city since the first of January and issued a special "bakers' number" of the magazine which they publish monthly as the organ of the league. Mrs. Julian Heath, the president of the league, has appeared before the board of health of New York several times in the interest of clean bakeries and is receiving the hearty co-operation of the bakers themselves, who in most cases are anxious to raise the standards of their own calling Mrs. Heath takes the stand that "the commercialized home industries are still home industries," and urges upon every member of the league the duty of being her own inspector, and of reporting upon the conditions of the bakery from which her daily bread is served.

. . . In some towns the bakers are rising to the occasion by inviting the women to visit their bakeries. In one city a large bakery recently placed a placard in the window reading: "Five hundred dollars reward will be paid to the treasury of the Housewives' league if any bakery in this city can be found in a more sanitary condition than ours. The inspection of each housewife is cordially invited."

In a western town, one of the large bakery plants extended a personal invitation to the members of leading women's clubs to inspect their work and each detail was carefully explained. . . .

While in some towns the work of the women has brought about almost ideal conditions in the bakeries much is left to be accomplished. Bakeries still exist in which flies are found in profusion. A Long Island woman recently reported finding a fly in the middle of a loaf of bread. When she told the baker of the matter he good-naturedly replied: "Well, when it happens again. I will give you another loaf of bread." It did not happen again so far as that woman was concerned, since she promptly turned her patronage to a cleaner shop, and not only her own but the patronage of as many friends as she could influence by telling the story.

In Chicago one of the members of the pure food club was invited to address the bakers' organization and her remarks have been widely circulated in trade Decatur's good fortune in getting what it wants journals and commented upon with favor by many master bakers. She summed up the qualities to be desired in the products of a bakery under three heads: Good and wholesome qualities of materials used in the products; cleanliness throughout, including materials, surroundings and handling; reasonable cost. Another woman invited to address a bakers' organization added to these three requisites that of attractive appearance and flavor. She cited the fact that in some large bakeries visited where the sanitary conditions were all that could be desired and the quality of the materials undeniably the best, the flavor of the bread was not equal to that produced in the home oven. In order to gratify the palates of their families the women are demanding that the bakers give them bread which has the so-called home-made flavor, and that the cakes and pies also have the real taste produced by the home cook. This is sometimes lost in the bakery by the large quantity of material handled and to regain it is one of the problems presented by the woman in her demands of the taker.

> . . . The Consumers' league of Massachusetts has taken up the conditions of bakeries in a rigid investigation. As a result it has compiled a "white list" of bakeries similar to the list the league has provided for stores and factories. To be placed upon the "white list" a bakery must comply with all the requirements of the league, which are the same as those adopted by the National Association of Master Bakers at its annual convention last September. These requirements include proper lighting and ventilating; freedom from all kinds of vermin; floors, walls and ceilings of impervious material with smooth surface easily kept clean; adequate plumbing; sufficient supply of pure water; health certificates for the employes showing freedom from skin diseases, tuberculosis and other contagious diseases; the enforcement of a regulation requiring the employes to be properly and cleanly clothed in addition to a guaranteed quality of all materials used in the baking products.

DISCARDED THINGS

BY DR. FRANK CRANE.

(Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)

The secret of health is the elimination of waste.

The first thing the physician prescribes usually is a physic. No matter what ails the patient it hardly ever can be a mistake to see that the body is well rid of its waste. Ir the organs of excretion go on a strike it is fatal. The same law holds in affairs, Every business man knows what pains he must take to keep his desk clean, and how papers will accumulate on the table and get choked into pigeonholes and obstipate letter files and pile up in drawers and cases. There are so many things we are not quite ready to do today, and tomorrow finds us still indecisive, and so the documents drift into forgotten holes and before long the desk is a jungle of undone matters. It-takes moral courage to use the waste basket vigorously.

Some men can work in litter, with papers on their desk like snowdrift, papers stuffed bulging full into boxes, papers on the floor about them, "thick as autumnal leaves that strew the vale of Vallombrosa," but I don't understand how they do it. An unanswered letter haunts me like the ghost of Banquo. An unpigeonholed receipt on my table irritates me like a fly. The art of life is to discard.

Progress is clogged by the persistent remnants of the outworn past.

Clogged! clogged! clogged! That is the story of the Church, the School, the State.

Clogged with moth-eaten ideas, with traditional passions, with antiquated ideals, with petty moralities: The past makes the present; the bracts protect the flower, but if the bracts persist and the blossom cannot throw them off they become throttling instruments of death.

The curse and weakness of the law is precedent, of which it boasts.

All unjust privilege is but the constipation of life. When justice refuses to flow, is dammed up by custom, and will not tollow in the new charnels of reason, there we find the iniquitous, stagnant pools of privilege, full of poison, parasitic lives.

What a world it would be if we could swing forward unhampered by the past!

. The past is to teach us, not to bind us. It is a bane and not a blessing if it does not invigorate us to go on. The world keeps sweet and sound, young and green, because plants die and rot, and the waters flow forever by, and institutions crumble, and old ideas fade, and Nature is strong enough to throw away continually her waste, bring up every spring new flowers, and every autumn new fruits.

Teach the Chi d Its Importance

(Annie F. McClelland in the Mothers' Magazine.) Last year a home congress was held in Brussels. Delegates from all over the world gathered to discuss. the welfare of the child and the home.

Every delegate agreed that two demoralizing features in the lives of boys and girls are: Failure in the home life to make any effort to give them a productive occupation, and arbitrary effort in the home to impose vocations unfitted in the physical or mental temperaments of the children. One delegate said:

"It is an utter impossibility for any parent to dictate absolutely what a child's future vocation shall be. To attempt it is a crime against all that is natural. In selecting a vocation for a child so that its heart and physical spirit will enter it at their highest key of enthusiasm years of study must be given to the nature of the child. The child also must be consulted. True judgments on its part must be recognized and accepted and faulty ones corrected through diplomtic proced-

"The impression must never be removed from the child's mind that it is a free agent and that the parent is acting solely in the position of an experienced and loving counselor and guide. "Home unity and the highest average of working productiveness is impossible in anything where the children are directly or indirectly taught that they are dependent and not independent. To produce the highest degree of usefulness in children they must be educated from babyhood to the idea that in their particular place they are just as important to the home as is the father in his place or the mother in hers. No successful home unity is possible where part of the members of the family work and part are idle. An unfair division of labor is created and the sense of cohesiveness is lost."

Sir: My name's Cyril, I send you many contributions, but you didn't use any, and I wondered. Now I notice almost every night you have a line in your column which says, "Whom are you, Cyril?" D'ye mean y'wanta know whom I am? CYRIL.

Our Own Travelogues.

Just returned from Cleveland, Ohio, where Three-Cent Fare is Tom L. Johnson's monument. And it's some Obelisk.

Sir: In Cleveland they have pay-enter cars, where you enter at the back door and leave either back or front, and others which you can leave only at the front, If you carelessly fight your way through a crowded aisle to the back door of one of the latter the conductor says "Naughty, Naughty," and makes you fight your way back again all the way through the car to the front door.

They have pay-leave cars, which you enter at the front door and leave at the rear. That is, going uptown. Going downtown, these are pay-enter cars, and you get on at the back and off at the front.

The reason for this is that these cars run beyond the city limits, where the fare is five cents, and they have to collect from the nickel guys when they get on, going into town, and when they get off, going home-

All right when once you know about it. Then there's one more kind of car. It has no enddoors, only a side door, and the seats run all around the car. So did I. I got on and sat down in the rest half of the car. Observing the conductor standing at his fare box, I got up and politely put my nickel in-Then I sat down again where I had been sitting. The conductor motioned me to take a seat in the other end of the car. I obediently did so, and ventured to ask

"The front end of the car is pay-enter," quoth he, "the back end is pay-leave."

Gosh! When you want a transfer you buy one of the conductor, paying one cent cash, and when you turn in your transfer on the subsequent line the conductor gives you a cent for it.

A man got off a pay-leave car one day without-giving the conductor anything, and the conductor chased him two blocks into a cigar store. After he had lighted his cigar the man dug up a transfer and collected his cent from the conductor.

I can't swear to this last story. A man told it to me. If it isn't true, it ought to be. All the rest I can swear to, or about, as the case may be.

But the case also is that three cents is two cents less than five cents, and Cleveland's comedy system dresn't alter that important fact in the least.

Brass and Iron Beds At "Blue Tag" Prices

The "Blue Tag" Furniture Sale is a big, broad-gauged affair, bringing savings on all the furniture (except contract price furniture) in this big five-floor furniture store.

Today's news is of brass and iron beds.

The list below serves only as a guide to what you may expect—it is by no means complete. Not one of these beds is a specially bought sale bed, but rather, of that dependable soundness and worth that characterize all Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose merchandise at regular prices, and "blue tagged" regardless.

It is worthy of note that the lacquering on even the most inexpensive brass bed that we carry is the best.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME BY TWORNTON W. BURGESS.

When Sammy Jay and Mistah Mocker the Mockingbird put their heads together it didn't take them very long to decide that some one was at the bottom of all the trouble they had had in the old orchard. When Sammy told Mistah Mocker that he hadn't stolen the eggs of Drummer the Woodpecker, of course, Mistah Mocker believed him. You see, he had overheard Sammy saying this very thing to himself, and people usually tell the truth to them-"Have you got any enemies?" asked

The Lone Survivor

(San Francisco Chronicle.) The vessel fought in the last half bour as it had fought all day-gamely, but without bope. Those who watched from the seashere, saw the wheelhouse, like a smashed match box; saw the razed, demented movements in the cauldron, drifting here and there, but always, terribly shoreward. Sea followed sea in wild confusion, to great jungle of mad monsters, feaming whitel at the mouth, roaring, snarling, snapping with vicious teeth. It was nearer now. Only a few minutes to live. A great, shaggy brute, bigger and wilder than the rest, charged it, caught it as it were on its tusks and threw it high' to where it struck, beaten at last, with its nose on the outer rocks,

The first rocket was true, but as the line fell across the deck a great green monster sprang forward and downward. Only two men remained where there had been seven. The second line fell clear, but the third landed, and the survivors made it fast to the winch. The chair was naif way out to them when the next cruel charge came. It beat one of them, for, when the saining cataracts rolled from the deck it was a solitary figure that clung with arms and legs to the slippery metal. The buoy was walting for him, but he dared not move. He chose his chance well, toppled across the perilous deck and got himself into the seat. Blinded and stung he gripped the rope and was dragged through the welter of waters. His look was the look of a drowned man and his chilled hands held the rope with what seemed a death grip. It was only by force that the rescuer could unloosen the stiffened fingers and carry him to the station.

He lay there with blank eyes, his mouth half open, his jaw loose, no look of comprehension on his face. Not a word did he speak until, outside in the shed, the station mascet set to barking at the wind.

ago you could not induce any live wire manager into the belief that youngsters were what it took to build a successful baseball outfit. Since then times have changed, and the managers who bucked for the old-time players have lost out, and the men who believe in taking crude, though natural, talent and building it up are just in their prime. Veteran players in their place are all right, but too many veteran will spoil any club, a mixture of vets and youngsters, with the latter is the majority, being the battle cry of every manage rwho is meeting with success in the game. Often these young players will fail to deliver when first started in the great diamond game, and this gives a manager an opportunity to show his real worth.

SHOULD HAVE PATIENCE.

One of the greatest assets of any successful manager is patience and ability to judge baseball material when in the crude. Any old minor league leader can pick out a young player who has all his life been a star, but it takes a real leader to hold to the youngsters when they are not handing out firstclass ball and yet have the making of a grand ball player. You have got to judge the player properly and then have the nerve to hold to him against the bellowing of fandom.

No star ball player was made in a day, or maybe not in a season-They have to grow up properly and have plenty of training before they become accustomed to getting away with the kind of ball that makes a hit with the fans and shows the wisdom of the manager. Some managers too often go against their better judgment in releasing players. and all because fandom is against them. It is the manager who wins games that is popular with the fans, and whenever one has a good player under his care it will in the long run pay him to hold to him, even though the fans clamor for his release.

. SHOULD SEARCH BUSHES. Billy Smith and the local association have most certainly adopted the proper policy in the search for players for next season. Already the mogul is on the hunt for youngsters, collegians and bush leaguers both He wants to fill in the vacancies on his club by adding four or five young players who show signs of hitting and inside baseball. They may not be used next season, and the following year be stars. In fact, the proper way to develop the youngster is to get your hands on him and then farm him to some good class B or C club and let him be developed.

The Atlanta club right now has quite a bunch of young material on the string, and all will work out for places next year. The young list includes Holland. Keating, Reynolds, Calvo, Thompson, Voss and Conzelman. These are all real young players, while in Bisland, Chapman, Long and Welchonce the club has material which is far from being in the veteran class, and yet they have been at the game long enough to know basball and put up a crack article.

And the best part of the work of the Atlanta club is that other youngsters are to be picked up shortly. They will come in for use on some farm next season, and the following year will be ready to step up and take the places of the stars who go higher.

HANK WAS GOING TO HAVE FUN WITH RUBE---BUT!

---BY FARREN

HE SPORTLIGHT BY GRANTLAND RICE

The Giants have been reported as being in a heavy slump, torn asunder by dissension. As their record for the last three weeks shows fourteen victories against six defeats, for a general average of .700, it is easy to understand how keenly the Reds, Cardinals and Dodgers might enjoy life if they too could only strike such a spasm of rickety play.

THE CRUELTY OF TRADES.

"Baseball," remarked a fanatic recently, "is the most cruel and inhuman of all games. Think of a veteran like Otis Crandall being traded at this stage from a leader to a tail-ender-from New York to St. Louis.

There is a vast amount of truth in this remark. But at the same moment along comes old Doc Emerson's theory of compensation. "How about the cruel and unusual punishment inflicted upon Larry McLean, who was traded from a tail-ender to a leader-from St. Louis to New York? It was tough on Crandall, but no one has yet heard Long Larry threatening to commit suicide or inveighing against the inhuman cruelty of the trad-

ATHLETICS AND NAPS.

C. Mack's free swinging, mauling aggregation hasn't become dismantled as, yet, but there is an absence of that once deadly punch which came through whenever needed.

At the mid-August turn Mack's club has a smaller American league margin than McGraw enjoys in the National. For the first time there was a faint, dim suspicion that something might happen after all to prevent F. Baker closing out a world series with his accustomed pomp. This suspicion is trengthened by the way Cleveland continues to pike along. If it was early May there would be no uprising in the dope. But this is waning August, with the odor of burning leaves just beyond the threshold. And in place of its usual detonation the Nap machine is bounding along at a faster clip than ever, making a game fight against a great club, whether said fight will achieve the almost impossible or not.

QUITE TECHNICAL.

Which brings up a technical question. Just how much will Giant pitchers gain in case F. Baker and Eddle Collins are forced to give way o N. Lajoie and J. Jackson?

The Athletics carry all the best of the dope. But not enough to cheer over should Mack bump into hard luck with the fortunes of war imparting an extra push to the Naps.

When Cicero exclaimed, "O tempora, O mores," the old boy knew something. Undoubtedly he had in mind the spectacle of Pirates and Cubs battling at the closing turn for third place, 18 games behind the crest. If this isn't a case of O tempora it at least verges close enough upon the O mores to be considered in line.

VICE VERSA, ETC.

J. Boehling peeled off 11 straight, and now, headed in the other direction, he is still traveling at the same terrific speed

He has only had four chances to make 11 straight the other way back, but he has accepted them all with astounding celerity and eclat.

Before the Naps start to claiming any pennant they might as well remember that Connie's team still has 6 or 7 games left with the Yanks. Any time the Mackmen begin to falter they stumble upon the Yanks and watch their percentage grow again.

AMONG THE TWISTS.

Which recalls another peculiar twist to the national pastime. The Yanks, tailenders, have been helpless in the east, but have acted as roaring lions against the west. The Mackmen have devoured the east alive, but have been buckled up time after time against tribes from the haunts of the setting sun. The answer? There isn't any. There never is to baseball dope. It is reported that while over in this country an effort will be made to have Harry Vardon, the English golfer, bat against Walter Johnson. If the engagement comes off Vardon might as well save the price of caddy fare in advance. The services of a caddy are not needed to extract the ball from the catcher's glove.

Griff is reported to have offered $100,000 for Ty Cobb. And only two weeks ago we offered Andy Carnegie $8,000,000 for his Steel bonds, but he turned us down. When Owner Navin sells Cobb for $100,000 he might as well spend $10,000 of the amount buying guncotton with which to blow up his plant.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET WAS FIRM AND HIGHER

Union Pacific, Copper, Steel, Canadian Pacific and St. Paul Led Advance

(By Associated Press.) NEW YORW, Aug. 18 .- The movement of orices was generally upward at the opening. Reading and New Haven were slightly lower but otherwise the list showed small gains. Texas company rose 2 points and Westinghouse, United States, Realty, Colorado Fuel and St. Paul preferred, a point each. Speculation became active and broader and there was an increasing disposition to take the long side for a turn. Shorts were impressed by the qualities of buying for some of the leaders and bought back stocks sold in the closing days of last week. Gains exceeding a point were established in Steel, Union Pacific, Lehigh and Amalgamated. Reports of rain in drought states were largely responsible for the market's better tone this morning. Grain and cotton prices dropped and quotations for stocks automatically moved higher. Improvement in crop prospects had a good effect on commission house business, and foreign orders also came in more freely. Pool operations, which were abandoned when the supply of stocks became too plentiful, were Elue Rodge, 171/2c; Stonewall, '25c; AAAA, resumed. Early gains were well held through the morning trading, and in some instances were increased. Wells-Fargo Express slumped nearly 10 points to 90, a new low record. Bonds firm.

> As soon as speceulators began to show a disinclination to follow up the rise short selling became effective and prices eased off frantical There was no pressure of stock, however, the list fluctuating in narrow fashion. Southern Pacific, which had scarcely benefited during the forenoon advance, developed weakness and fell half a point below Saturday's close. Advances in the grangers were surrendered before the profit taking sales were completed. Traders let go their stocks when corn rallied 11/2c. Estimates by a reliable authority of a further considerable shrinkage in the probable yield encouraged some bear selling. Specialties were well maintained, partcularly Steel and

JOURNAL WANTAD Horoscope

AUGUST 19.

This is one of the best signs in the Zodiac to be born under. It is Leo, which is the sign for all birthdates from July 22 to August 22.

Leo people are kind-hearted, generous, sympathetic and strongly magnetic. They are the people who would give up all comfort and even their lives to care for and nurse the sick. The finest surgeons and physicians the world has known have been born under this sign.

They also have intuitive natures and possess so much magnetism that their presence is felt wherever they go. Famous women of this sign are Julia Marlowe, Mary Mannering, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps Famous men, Benjamin Franklin, Russell Sage, Horace Fletcher and Frank Munsey. Office work is well favored by planetary conditions for changes.

How to Get Your Fowls to Molt

hE best method to get birds molting early, and most of them at a uniform stage, is to give them their liberty and free range, and feed only a limited amount of food that is not fattening, such as wheat pran made into a stiff wet mash, together with boiled oats. They should not be fed enough to satisfy their appetites, making them reduce some in flesh. This should be practiced for several weeks, but do not allow the birds to get too poor or weak. Usuall" three or four weeks of treatment of this kind will be sufficient, especially where the birds are in fair condition. They should be confined in a yard with limited space after going through this method, then gradually increase their feed until their appetites are satisfied, getting them to consume just as much as possible.' You will find that they will begin to take on a new coat just as soon as they begin to take on new flesh,

It is a good idea to keep Aunt Patsy's, Park and Pollard, Red Comb Cerella, or any other good, dry mash feed continually before them in self-feeding hoppers. Twice each day they should be given a heavy feed of grain with some whole wheat or whole grain corn added to the ordinary scratch feed. A wet mash twice each week will be very beneficial and much enjoyed. This should be composed of boiled oats, alfalfa meal, and meat scraps, to which should be added equal parts of bran, corn meal and shorts.

While they are molting or taking on a new coat of feathers, it is a good idea to add a limited amount of cotton seed meal or flaxseed meal either to a dry mash or to the wet mash, say ten pounds to one hundred pounds is sufficient. This should only be fed during the time they are molting. Is is very rich, and will add color to the plumage, making it

Birds that you wish to molt early and quickly should by all means be kept cool, or in shaded places. The molt will be prolonged for some time if they are not kept cool. Therefore, this is very important. This system is best for a large flock, but one of the quickest ways to get a single bird to molt after it has been reduced in flesh, is to confine it in a cool, dark coop or building and feed heavily just what it will eat up clean, at least three times a day. You can ordinarily make a bird molt and grow a new coat in six weeks after it has become thin and you attempt to put on

In addition to the regular grain mash feed, they should be fed an abundance of green food of some kind regularly every day. It helps to keep their digestive organs in good fix, and they get the benefit of the daily food when this is done. Tender rape, alfalfa, Swiss chard, oats or green food of any kind is the proper thing to give. Any abundant tender growth that can be cut every day will answer for this purpose.

When this method is first begun all chickens should be thoroughly dipped to see that they are free from insects. The flouse should be thoroughly cleaned with disinfectant, and the roosts thoroughly inspected to see that no mites are on the premises. If more attention was paid to this particular thing, thousands of fowls would molt out early and begin laying early in the fall. Of course, there is a difference in fowls. Some varieties are inclined to get very fat, and are much harder to reduce than others. Old birds are more inclined to get fat than young ones. There fore, in a case of this kind the flock should be separated. You will have to be governed in this by personal handling of the birds and see what

ANSWER. If you will read The Weekly Atlanta Journal of this week you will see how to treat sorehead. By using the raw linseed oil, one pint to which has been added two ounces of carbolic acid, and giving the Epson salts once a week and sulphur once a week you can keep in check this dreaded disease. The article in this week's Weekly Journal will tell you just how to treat them. It was also in Daily Journal Monday, August 4. If southern breeders would use these remedies every year and if taken in time they would never have

CLOSE-IN MANUFAC-TURING SITES

One of the biggest assets to any business is the right location.

Small manufacturing concerns, especially those just starting a business, find it extremely hard to get a location convenient to both the wholesale and retail districts.

The high prices of close-in properties, especially corners, bandicaps a good concern to a large extent. You invest a good part of your capital in a small piece of well located property, in a few years you have outgrown your location, you look around and the town has grown in every direction and the prices are naturally much higher than when you started. This is the situation that confronts many concern today. On the corner of Washington and Fair streets we offer one of the largest close-in vacant corners in town. This land fronts 192 feet on Washington street, having a depth of 226 feet on one line and 156 feet on the other . This corner is only a few blocks from the retail section, and only three blocks from the Georgia railrroad. The Washington street viaduct affords the easiest access to the whole northern part of the city. This corner affords all the favorable opportunities that could be wished by any concern either large or small, Price $30,000.00. Very reasonable terms.

Linwood Avenue Residence Changes Hands - Seasonable | side of Highland View, 515 feet west of High Demand for Homes Has Also Set in, With Contractors Beginning Plans for New Houses-Work on Big Buildings Started Last Year Almost Completed Now-List of Lot

The Burdett Realty company has sold | tional Bank of Atlanta, No. 88 Lucile avenue, for Mrs. M. A. Whitten to Mrs. Marie I. Benson No. 166 Linwood avenue, a residence property, for $6,300.

This is an eight-room house on a lot beginning 160 feet south of Ponce de Leon avenue.

DEMAND FOR HOMES. Agents are kept busy these days sat-i isfying the demand for homes, which is always keen during the renting sea-

A good many builders who specialize on bungalows and medium-priced larger houses are beginning to operate again, being influenced by the improved supply of money and easier money rates.

Vacant lots inside the city are becoming a starcity, and this accounts for the large amount of suburban subdivision development. Much as the city limits were extended at the time of the last census, the new territory is rapidly being filled with houses. This condition is particularly true where the city has made improvements, such as sewer and water

There is considerable demand also for investment property-the more rent the better, and more negro porperty has been sold the past few months than for a long time previous.

In fact, butlers and developers seem to have neglected the smaller class of investment properties, and the result is that the demand for them is better than the present supply.

BIG BUILDING WORK. Most of the big buildings which were started last year, making the year a record breaker on bullding value, are now practically completed.

mtgzJ etaoinemf schmfwCMFWetaoin Only a few more touches remain to be put on the Ponce de Leon apartments. Tenants will begin to move in the Hurt building on September 1, and the Hotel Winecoff is almost completed. As far as the exterior is concerned, the new county court house is almost completed, and the Healey building will be ready for occupancy by January 1 next. These various buildings will mean a large increase of population and thus a great incentive to retail business in their respective localities.

An office building, for instance, houses a population as large as some prominent towns. Property around it is bound to feel the effect of this sudden access of new population.
