ACCUSE JUDGE OF GIVING PLUM TO HIS SON-IN-LAW

Unofficial Information Says Judge Is Charged With Favoritism Toward Relative and Officers of Court

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—That a move is under way which may result in an attempt to impeach Judge Emory Speer, of the United States district court for south Georgia, was learned on good authority today. It is believed probable that when the house meets next Friday a resolution may be introduced requesting the attorney general to submit to the house the report of a recent investigation of Judge Speer by special agents of the department of justice.

Attorney General McReynolds declined to discuss the Speer case in any of its phases when seen this morning. He would neither confirm nor deny that the report of special inspectors had been received and considered by him. It was learned, however, that the report is in, and that President Wilson has been apprised of its contents by the attorney general.

It was impossible to get in communication today with Congressman Henry D. Clayton, chairman of the house judiciary committee, who will initiate the movement in the house if it has been finally determined to proceed against the Georgia jurist.

The report of special inspectors who investigated charges against Judge Emory Speer has been filed with the department of justice, and it was learned unofficially this morning that the attorney general intends to bring the matter to the attention of congress with the consent of President Wilson. Impeachment proceedings may follow.

Charges Are Outgrowth Of Trial of Colonel Huff

(By Associated Press.)
MACON, Ga., Aug. 20.—The charges against Judge Speer were the outcome of the contempt proceedings against Colonel W. A. Huff, an aged citizen of Macon, whose entire property has been in litigation in Judge Speer's court for many years. Colonel Huff wrote a sensational letter to Judge Speer making serious charges against a jurist who has been arrested for contempt.

Fugitive's Attorneys File Application for Writ With Judge of Superior Court Which Hears His Case

MAY POSTPONE HEARING UNTIL DAY NEXT WEEK

In the Meantime Thaw Excludes Everyone From Jail, Smokes Cigars, and Orders Clean Linen and Delicacies

(By Associated Press.)

SHERBROOKE, Quebec, Aug. 20.—Application for a writ of habeas corpus demanding the immediate release of Harry K. Thaw, fugitive slayer of Stanford White, was submitted this afternoon to Judge Globensky in the superior court at Sherbrooke, by Charles D. White, a lawyer retained by the Thaw family.

This move, regarded at first as a formality to bring Thaw into court after his arrest yesterday as a fugitive from Matteawan, was subsequently explained by his counsel as being more significant. They contended that he has been detained illegally and that through habeas corpus he should be set free at once.

Application for a writ of habeas corpus was granted this afternoon by Judge Globensky. The writ will come up for hearing at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Meanwhile Thaw remained a sequestered prisoner in the Sherbrooke jail. Cautions by his family, he refused to discuss his case. Only his lawyers saw him. From the hospital ward of the prison, with two guards watching him, he sent out for cigars, fresh linen and delicacies, but he refused steadfastly to receive interviewers, even barring "old friends" who had reported his murder trials and other court battles.

The supreme court, or as locally designated, "le cour superieur," was well crowded long before the proceedings began. Thaw's new chief counsel, Charles D. White, visited the jail and conferred with Thaw and W. L. Shurtleff, the attorney retained at Coaticook yesterday.

C. G. Green and D. Neville, representing the immigration authorities, arrived this forenoon to follow the case.

"LET HIM GO," SHOUTS CROWD.
Sentiment in Sherbrooke is distinctly in Thaw's favor. A crowd which greeted him at the station when he arrived from Coaticook shouted: "Let him go! Set him free! He hasn't done anything to us! Give him a chance!"

Eighteen women were in the court today. They were well dressed and well mannered.

The trial in the proceedings got on everybody's nerves toward 11 o'clock, but still the judge had not emerged from (Continued on Last Page, Column 1.)

It is said that Hinton claimed to be a half-brother of Claude, kinship which the latter denied. There had been ill feeling between the two families some time, intensified by Claude's dog chasing Hinton's calf, ever which the two fought last night.

BOTH SIDES ARE ANXIOUS TO BEGIN ARGUMENT AND SEND CASE TO THE JURY

A Number of Witnesses, Women and Girls Formerly Employed at the Factory, Swear Frank's Character Is Bad and That His Reputation as to His Relations With Women Is Bad—Defense Objects to This Latter Testimony but Is Overruled

THREE EXPERTS CORROBORATE DR. HARRIS IN HIS CONCLUSIONS ABOUT LITTLE GIRL'S DEATH

Street Car Men Testify That English Avenue Car Frequently Ran Ahead of Schedule and One Witness Says Mary Phagan Was Not on Car After It Left Marietta Street. Two Witnesses Say They Saw Frank Talking to Mary

Introduction of testimony both for and against Leo M. Frank will probably be concluded Wednesday afternoon, and in such an event the arguments of the attorneys will begin Thursday morning. If this program is carried out the case will go to the jury some time Friday morning. Owing to the fact that the defense introduced testimony the state will have the opening and closing arguments.

Attorneys for both the state and the defense have announced their purpose to conclude the introduction of evidence at the Thursday afternoon session of the trial, and they will make every effort to do so. Three features characterized the Wednesday morning session: The first was the state's introduction of several physicians to sustain the testimony of Dr. H. F. Harris; the second was the testimony of a number of young women who swore that Frank's character was bad, and the third was evidence given by a number of street car men to the effect that the English avenue car, manned by Motorman Matthews and Conductor Hollis, frequently arrived at the corner of Marietta and Broad streets ahead of time.

Matthews and Hollis, testifying for the defense, swore that Mary Phagan came into the city on their car on April 26; that the car was on time and that she left the car at the corner of Broad and Hunter streets.

M. Kelly, a motorman, said that he rode on Matthews and Hollis' car on the day of the murder; that it was several minutes ahead of time, and that Mary Phagan was not on it after it turned into Broad street from Marietta.

Two young women witnesses testified that they had seen Frank talk with Mary Phagan at the factory.

WOMEN ATTACK FRANK'S CHARACTER.

Through a number of women witnesses, most of whom were former employes of the National Pencil factory, Solicitor Dorsey attacked Frank's general character, and especially did he direct his attention to the defendant's alleged improper relations with women.

Judge Roan had previously ruled that the state could offer evidence to show that Frank's attitude toward women was bad, if such evidence was offered in rebuttal to the testimony of witnesses for the defense who had sworn that they had never seen the defendant act improperly toward women and had never seen women in his office. The court, in this ruling, however, held that the state could not introduce testimony to point to any specific crime.

Among the witnesses who testified that Frank's character and general reputation were bad were the following: Miss Myrtice Cato, Miss Maggie Griffin, Mrs. R. M. Dunnegan, Mrs. R. H. Johnson, Miss Marie Karst, Miss Nellie Pettis, Mrs. Mary Davis, Mrs. Mary E. Wallace, Miss Estelle Winkle, Miss Carrie Smith and Miss Ruth Robinson, Miss Dewey Howell and Miss Mamie Kitchens. Miss Robinson swore that she had seen Frank talk with Mary Phagan when she worked on the fourth floor of the factory and that in these conversations the defendant was making suggestions to the girl about her work.

Very few questions were asked these witnesses by the attorneys for the defense. None of them were asked why they gave Frank a bad character.

MEDICAL EXPERTS TESTIFY.

Hypothetical questions and expert medical testimony played a prominent part in the trial Wednesday morning. Two prominent Atlanta physicians—Dr. Clarence Johnson, a stomach specialist, and Dr. George M. Niles, a specialist in digestive derangements—agreed with Dr. H. F. Harris, secretary of the state board of health, that Mary Phagan must have met her death within an hour after she had eaten her luncheon of cabbage and bread.

Both of these physicians were asked lengthy hypothetical questions by Solicitor Dorsey, based upon the conditions which Dr. Harris swore he had determined by chemical and other tests, and both of the physicians, assuming that the tests were correctly made and that Mary Phagan possessed a normal healthy stomach, gave it as their opinion that the cabbage taken from her stomach by Dr. Harris would have shown more indications of digestion if it had remained in the stomach longer than an hour.

Dr. John Funke, professor of pathology and bacteriology at the Atlanta Medical college, and specialist in diseases of the tissues, testified that he had been shown sections of some of the dead girl's organs; that blood had invaded the tissues; blood vessels were gorged and were larger than normal.

Dr. Funke was positive that the injury to the tissues was done prior to the girl's death and explained that the blood cannot invade the tissues after death.

James Conley the negro sweeper, was brought from the jail to the court house during the morning. It was at first thought that he would be recalled to the stand by the state to rebut portions of Frank's statement, but later it was learned that he had been sent for in order that certain witnesses might identify him.

When court convened at 9 o'clock, Solicitor Dorsey started his argument. "It is a recognized and uniform practice," said he, "to allow the state to introduce testimony in rebuttal such as we have ready here. As a matter of right, we can first make out a prima facie case, and at any time thereafter go into the whole matter. It is even a matter in the discretion of the court, to reopen the case for further evidence, after both sides have announced closing. These gentlemen of the defense having made a fight on Dr. Harris in the way they have, the state of Georgia possesses the right to fortify itself with the testimony of these other physicians. It is all in your honor's sound discretion." Judge Roan: "If we allow this testimony, Mr. Dorsey, then it seems the defense will claim the right to bring other physicians to testify on their side."

Mr. Dorsey: "The whole matter is in your honor's sound discretion. Of course it would be absurd to continue the case indefinitely. But your honor knows that we have a right to go into this matter."

Mr. Arnold: "Why is it any more absurd for me to bring on more expert testimony than it is for him? He started this phase of the case. We have only

THOUSANDS MARCH "TO PULL MO. OUT OF MUD"

Governor and Laborers Should Shoulder to Shoulder in Good Roads' Campaign

(By Associated Press.) KANSAS CITY, Aug. 20.—Thousands of volunteers marched forth from every county in western Missouri this morning to become a part of Governor Major's army of 25,000, which in response to his proclamation began a two days' campaign today which is expected to add one million dollars in improvements to Missouri's public highways.

This, the first state-wide movement aimed at better roads, was expected to be not only an epoch in the development of Missouri but an example that would be followed by other states.

"This movement will unite the farm and the market," said the road overseers as a message of encouragement to the workers.

"It will bring the city and the country districts closer together," was the reply of the volunteer laborers.

A spirit of rivalry among the counties, each of which wanted to make the best record during the two days, promised much for the general result.

No army ever was better prepared for a campaign than that which went out to "pull Missouri out of the mud." Eight thousand men and women in the state for weeks have been assembling equipment and laying out the work to be done so systematically that every squad of men was put to work without delay or confusion.

Every city, town and hamlet was represented in the movement and in the farming districts nearly every able-bodied man enlisted.

Governor and Mr. Hodges, of Kansas, came to Missouri to give their active support to the work. They were the guests of Governor and Mr. Major. The two governors donned their overalls and setting out from Jefferson City early this morning were among the first to get on the field of action.

Women took an important part in the campaign. The 6,000 members of the Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs throughout the state aided the movement.

Thousands of farmers' wives prepared and served meals.

Local members of the Daughters of the American Revolution took advantage of the occasion to outline the route of the old Santa Fe trail through Kansas City. Trolley poles were marked with red, white and blue stripes to show the route.

In Jasper county a protest of the farmers caused the county court to rescind an order providing that prisoners in the jails participate in the road work.

All Dalton Council Can Do Is Meet and Adjourn and "Cuss"

DALTON, Ga., Aug. 20.—The meeting of city council last night came near resulting in an indignation meeting, when the new charter amendment, as put through by local legislators, came up for discussion.

The city fathers had drafted a charter amendment which would have, if enacted into a law, given that body supervision over the police department, a matter which caused some little friction during the past year.

With the police department and recorder's court refusing to acknowledge that council can manage affairs of those departments, the charter amendment also has taken the management of the public works, turning it over to the board of wear and light commissioners.

For a long time, the school board has conducted the school affairs without worrying council with them.

As one member has expressed it, council can have garbage removed, look after street cleaning, see that the grass is kept cut in the parks and the public buildings swept out daily.

LABOR DEPARTMENT LACKS FEDERAL HOME

Commerce Department Cannot Move to New Home Because of It

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Homeless, except for the charity of its sister department, the "baby" department of labor's plight in providing an embarrassment to the department of commerce, which is forced to postpone moving into its own new, modern building because the building cannot be taken over.

The department of commerce has cared for the new executive division and housed it. Now Secretary Redfield finds he cannot move without turning the "baby" out and there is no room in the new department of commerce building available for it.

Money which will establish the department of labor is included in the urgent deficiency bill, but congress has not yet passed the measure.

In the meantime Secretary Wilson and his force of clerks are cooped up in quarters altogether inadequate for their needs.

The new building for the department of commerce is a handsome structure on Pennsylvania avenue beyond the state, war and navy building. It is the department's occupied rented quarters further downtown.

Fire Commissioner Johnson, of New York, Starts Campaign Against Theater Fires

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—As the first step in the campaign of protection against panics in theaters which will include compulsory fire drills, Fire Commissioner Johnson has ordered the following warning conspicuously displayed upon all the theater programs:

"Fire notice—Look around now and choose the nearest exit in case of fire. Walk out (don't run) of that exit. Don't try to beat your neighbor to the street."

In addition to the largest theaters there are over 300 moving picture show places in New York where this warning will be given and where fire drills will be required of all employees of the theaters, including members of the orchestra, at least once a week.

Separate duties will be assigned to each of the ushers and other employees, a number being stationed at certain posts ready to urge the spectators to make use of the exits nearest at hand instead of bolting, as is usual in panics, for the doors through which they entered.

Another plan under consideration is that of giving to each seat, beside the seat number, another number indicating the emergency exit through which the holder of that seat should make his way in case of fire.

Mr. Johnson is well known and remembered by friends in Atlanta. He is an Atlantan, a former newspaper man of this city.

Uncle Sam's Tars Assured of Cruise In Mediterranean

(By Associated Press.) WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—"If you advertise anything make good," quoth Editor Joseph Daniels, in his official capacity of secretary of the navy, and as a result there is rejoicing today among the men of the navy who were assured a pleasure cruise of a month in the Mediterranean.

Ten big battleships and all the torpedo boat destroyers now attached to the Atlantic fleet will make the trip, departing October 25, and returning to their home ports December 20.

"There was some argument in favor of abandoning the cruise to permit of other work," said the secretary, "but I told the officers and men that they would make good our advertising advertisements that men can learn something and see the world."

The various ships will separate when they pass Gibraltar and each will select its own port. During the month each vessel will swing at anchor and the crew will be given liberal shore leave in which to visit the city or town and the adjacent country.

The secretary unofficially has advised the men to save their money against the day of their outing.

"A muffled roasting furnace," repeated the clerk, scratching his ear with his pen, "why it's—I should say it was—Oh, I'll be hanged if I know."

TO BUILD RAILROAD AUGUSTA TO COLUMBUS

Proposed Line Will Run Through Some of Richest Sections of State

COLUMBUS, Ga., Aug. 20.—A new railroad line across the state, connecting Columbus with Augusta, is now proposed, and those back of the movement are quite enthused over the idea, in view of the fact that the proposed line is to pass through many of the rich counties of the state.

It has just been learned that the trade bodies of Columbus, Augusta, Dalton, Thomaston, Forsyth, Monticello, Eatonton, Greensboro, Washington and other points have been in correspondence regarding the feasibility of constructing such a line, and they have taken up the matter with R. L. Williams, an attorney of Macon, who has been urging the importance of building the new road.

In the letter of Mr. Williams, he gives interesting data regarding the richness of the country through which the new road would pass and calls attention to the fact that the road would not run parallel to any existing railroad in the state.

According to the figures of Mr. Williams, the road would be about 240 miles in length. He calls attention to the fact that the proposed route would cause the railroad to cross the Ocmulgee river at Juliette, where the largest grist mill in the country is located.

This mill has a capacity of 10,000 bushels a day. It is also noted that granite and marble quarries are contemplated at the vast deposits at this point, which, with the railroad, could be developed into one of the largest in the world.

To Stop Scaling of Psoriasis

This Troublesome Skin Disease Promptly Checks by a very Simple Attention. A lady in Lexington, Ky., says that before she began using S. S. S. psoriasis broke out on her face, neck, arms, hands, and feet, where she thought it cured. But by getting her blood under control by the influence of S. S. S., the disease entirely disappeared and there was never again the slightest sign of it.

There is one ingredient in S. S. S. which peculiarly stimulates cellular and glandular activity to select from the blood or from the fine network of blood vessels in the skin, those elements which it requires for regeneration.

Thus pimples, acne, eczema, lupus, or any other blood condition that attacks the skin or seeks an outlet through the skin, is met with the antidotal effect of S. S. S.

This is why skin troubles vanish so readily and why they do not return. You can get S. S. S. in any drug store, but insist upon having it. The great Swift Laboratory in Atlanta, Ga., prepares this famous blood purifier, and you should take no chance by permitting anyone to recommend a substitute. And if your blood condition is such that you would like to consult a specialist freely, address the Medical Dept., The Swift Specific Company, 182 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

DECATUR BOY KILLED; FALLS FROM BICYCLE

William Davis, Son of Elbert Davis, Dies From Concussion of Brain Wednesday

William Davis, aged fifteen years, son of Elbert Davis, a wealthy merchant living at 88 College avenue, Decatur, was killed by falling from his bicycle about 6:30 o'clock Wednesday morning.

He was riding with a friend of his own name, Eugene Hicks, son of a neighbor, in the Parkville near East Lake Drive.

The boys were riding slow, says the Hicks boy, and Eugene was about twenty-five feet in front when he heard William Davis fall.

The Davis boy had fallen off the side of the wheel, the left side of his head striking the ground. He died within three minutes after the fall from concussion of the brain without regaining consciousness.

William Davis was a student at the Atlanta Boys' High school. The father, Elbert Davis, owns the mercantile establishment at Dallas, Ga., and also deals largely in cotton. Mr. Davis went to Dallas early Wednesday morning.

Eugene Hicks gives the following account of the accident: "Will and I went riding for fun and had started back home. I was riding about twenty-five feet in front of him when I heard him fall. I jumped off my wheel and ran back to him and got some water and threw in his face. He died in about three minutes and never said anything."

"I do not know what made him fall. We were going sorter slow and he fell from the side."

Eugene Hicks summoned Dr. J. H. Phillips of Oakhurst, who lives near the place where the accident occurred, but when he arrived the boy had been dead several minutes.

Beside the father the dead boy is survived by his mother, two married sisters, and a younger brother.

Other events of the card are: 440-yard race, 100-yard, 50-yard dashes among men and a 25-yard race for girls. Appropriate cups are offered in all events for men while the winner of the girls' event will receive a cut glass powder jar.

Yancey Backs the Crackers With His Mitts and Is Fined

Boosting the home team coast Captain Goodloe Yancey, secretary of the state prison commission, $5.75 Wednesday morning, when he was arraigned in the recorder's court on the charge of engaging in a fist fight with J. H. Wares in the grand stand at Ponce de Leon during Tuesday's game.

According to the story as it came out in police court, Captain Yancey and Wares mixed it for several minutes because the latter was "knocking" the Crackers' style of play.

Yancey is not ordinarily a beligerent personage, but there is one thing he cannot stand—using the hammer on the Atlanta ball club. So when Wares, who was sitting a few seats in front of the captain at the game, started "ragging" the local players, Captain Yancey entered a protest. The Barons were in the lead and pretty soon they showed over another run. Wares made a few choice remarks at this, whereat Captain Yancey jumped up and slapped Wares on the back.

The scrap followed, but friends intervened before much damage was done. Both sat through the rest of the game with copies of charges in their pockets, a fact which did not dampen the joy of the captain when Atlanta shoved over the winning tally.

Following the hearing before the recorder Wednesday the two men were asked to shake hands with each other, but Captain Yancey refused, declaring that he wouldn't shake hands with anybody that knocked the Crackers.

RABBI M. LEVI IS FORMALLY INSTALLED

Hebrew Minister Will Head Beth Hamidrash Hagadol Anshe Sepharad

Rabbi J. M. Levine was formally installed as rabbi of the congregation Beth Hamidrash Hagadol Anshe Sepharad, whose place of worship is at 222 Woodward avenue, Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. So large a crowd attended the ceremony that it was necessary to hold it in a hall at 36 Central avenue.

Some of the most prominent men of the city were present, among them being Leo Fresh, L. Pfeffer, W. Woods White and D. Zaban. A contribution was presented to the new rabbi by Mr. Zaban from his parishioners.

Rabbi Levine for the past six years has been rabbi of the Congregation Ahavath Achim of this city. He is a highly educated man and is a Russian by birth. He came to this country 20 years ago to take charge of a synagogue at Falls River, Mass., and since has been in charge of some of the largest synagogues in America.

ATLANTA DELEGATES OUT FOR ROTARY MEET

(Special Dispatch to The Journal. BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 20.—Delegates from Atlanta are contesting five cities for next year's convention of international association of Rotary clubs. San Francisco already has been conceded 1915 meeting. Chances favor Houston, Texas, for next session.

Climbs 22,000 Feet

MILAN, Italy, Aug. 20.—Dr. Piacenzi, an Italian explorer, has reached the summit of Mount Munsamuk, 22,000 feet high in the Himalayas according to a telegram received here today.

Deaths and Funerals

EVELYN CATES. Evelyn Cates, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Cates, died at a private sanitarium Tuesday night and the body was taken to Poole's chapel. The funeral arrangements will be announced later.

MRS. CAROLINE WEAVER. Mrs. Caroline Weaver, aged eighty-one, died at the residence of her son, Captain Homer Weaver, at 17 South Wellington avenue, Tuesday night and the body was taken to Doneho's chapel. The funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon from the residence at 5 o'clock, and the body will be sent to Tucker, Ga., for interment Thursday morning.

Mrs. Weaver had spent most of her life in Atlanta and has many friends who mourn her death. She is survived by three sons, Homer, Hollie and Will Weaver, and two daughters, Mrs. Louise Wilson and Mrs. L. C. McMillan.

WILL ZIMMER'S FRIENDS ENJOY GORGEOUS 'CUE

Tables at Kimballville Spread With Tasty Dishes of the Old South

Several hundred friends of Will V. Zimmer enjoyed a real old fashioned barbecue Wednesday at noon at Kimballville. Long tables creaked under whole lambs and shorn barbecued, and all kinds of old-fashioned southern dishes rounded out a most delightful outdoor meal.

Special guests of the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. William H. Haasler, Mrs. Mabel Leys, of Detroit, Mich., and many members of the Atlanta Hotel Men's association.

Steps From Prison; Is Again Arrested

With a two-year sentence served and several months cut off for good behavior, Olney McCormick stepped forth from the federal prison today a free man for about three strides, when he was confronted by Detective McVain of the district attorney's office of Philadelphia and placed under arrest.

This time he is accused of fraud in connection with a mining company. He served time under a conviction of using the United States mails to defraud. The Philadelphia detective bears a requisition from Governor Tenner, and Friday morning will present it to Governor Slaton, asking that it be honored.

SERVICES TWICE DAILY AT GRACE METHODIST

The revival at Grace Methodist church continues to draw overflowing crowds attracted by the rousing sermons of Evangelist Bass. The capacity of the auditorium, galleries and Sunday school rooms are taxed to the utmost, according to Rev. C. O. Jones, the pastor.

Preaching is being held twice each day, in the morning at 10 o'clock and in the evening at 8 o'clock.

Three First Bales

FORSYTH, Ga., Aug. 20.—Monroe's first bale of the 1913 season has been received, or rather, Monroe's first three bales, for on Monday afternoon three of Monroe's successful and enterprising farmers brought cotton of this season's "Vintage" to Forsyth, each in an endeavor to have the honor of marketing the first bale.

Eighteen-Year-Old Wife in Search of Her Missing Mate

Mrs. I. B. Forrester, of Tifton, Ga., writes The Journal asking assistance in finding her husband who disappeared about a year ago.

She says she was living with him at Baconton, Ga., about a year ago when he sent her home to her father in Tifton, Ga., for medical attention, promising to follow her there soon. She received several letters from him at Baconton, the last one dated January 13, stating that he had left Baconton and was on his way to Tifton. This is the last that has been heard of him.

Mrs. Forrester says she is only eighteen year of age and she and her little three-year-old girl are dependent upon her aged father for support. There is a large family besides that the old man must care for and his daily wages are his sole hope of livelihood.

Mrs. Forrester says she does not think her husband dead but believes he deserted her on account of poor health. Her description of him is that he is about forty-five years of age with light complexion, sandy hair, blue eyes, and weighs 145 pounds. He could be identified by a small scar on the left cheek and one hand on which the two fingers between the index and little fingers are mashed to the first joint. He is a machinist by trade.

NEW SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT ALMOST READY

County Will Be Asked to Straighten Peachtree Creek at Once

After an inspection of the work on the city's new $200,000 disposal plant on Peachtree creek, Assistant Construction Chief Hansell, Tuesday afternoon declared the plant would be partially completed by September 1, and be ready to commence operations.

The quarters have been shipping in stone for the construction of the beds faster than was anticipated and now the men in charge of the construction think that three instead of two beds will be completed within two weeks. If the quarries continue shipping the stone as fast as they have been, Engineer Hansell thinks the whole plant will be completed sometime in October.

The city looks for the county commissioners to straighten out the creek at an early date so that the effluent will go straight to the river. With only two other beds in operation the refuse will contain bacteria and unless the creek is straightened a nuisance may be caused.

The matter of straightening the creek will probably come before the commissioners at their weekly meeting Saturday morning.

TWO ON MOTORCYCLE INJURE MAN IN BUGGY

FORSYTH, Ga., Aug. 20.—A. L. Ham of Smarrs, was painfully injured yesterday afternoon when, in a collision between a motorcycle and the buggy that he was driving he was thrown heavily to the ground, landing on his head. The national highway dust was almost impenetrable. It was for this reason that the two men who were on the motorcycle failed to see Mr. Ham.

The buggy was badly damaged; the motorcycle was torn up and Mr. Ham suffered cuts and bruises. They refused to give their names, but were headed towards Macon.

THEATRES

(Criticism of initial performances at the local theaters are written by members of The Journal staff. All other matter appearing in this column is furnished by the theater managements.)

It's a great show at the Forsyth. Any one who has seen it will say so. There are features that are drawing good crowds; that is bigger than usual, for already the standing room notices has commenced to do duty. The bill has been carefully put together. There is not a conflicting point and there is so much variety that one can well figure that the show is all that is claimed for it.

Willie Weston, the character singer, is making good with the real assistance of Howard Winburn, the local pianist, who is extremely clever in his line. Weston sings songs that are new and in a fashion that has made him a headliner all over the circuits. Toots Puka and her company of Hawaiian musicians win one of the big hits of the week. The singing and dancing of the quintet is most interesting and the guitar playing of one of the men is a treat that is worth while.

Grace DeMar, the singing comedienne, has scored a great personal hit. Miss DeMar is pretty, graceful and entertaining. She is singing five new songs, and between the index and little fingers are mashed to the first joint. He is a machinist by trade.

Hundreds of people have seen the motion picture, "Victory" at the Grand this week, and can tell just how the warships of Uncle Sam look in peace and in war. They have also seen the sailors and marines of a navy at work and at play and fighting what looks like a real battle.

The picture was taken in Cuba with the aid of the navy. The great battleship "Oath" takes a prominent part and the officers of the navy play roles that make the picture all the more interesting. The scenes in Cuba are pretty and the story is a wardrobe that is the value of the exhibition. The picture is being produced at daily matinee and evening performances and is attracting great attendance.

Kinacolor—the process that makes a natural color motion picture, the same as was seen at the Forsyth two years ago, for a week, when the coronation of King George was shown—will be the attraction at the Grand all of the coming week.

Jake Wells has secured the southern rights of this wonderful invention and is prepared to present a program each week that will surely be inviting and that will make the Grand more popular than ever before.

The plan of entertainment will be to offer kinacolor in connection with straight first run pictures at popular prices. There will be a change of program every day and the newest first run pictures and the only kinacolor to be seen in Atlanta will be the daily program.

The management of the Bijou announces the opening of the seat sale for Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, when patrons of the house may secure seats for the opening performance and other nights during the week of the 25th. The Jewell Kelley company will present the comedy drama, "The Fatal Shadow."

Jewell Kelley, the leading man of the company, will be assisted by Eddie Black, Richard Mandell, Thomas McDonough, Miss Rose Morris, Miss Grace Webber, Miss Clara Summers, Miss Marie Claire, Earl Higley and others that have been especially selected for the various roles entrusted to them.

Monday night will be ladies' free night. At this performance ladies will

For Four Days Dog Lies Starving at Dead Master's Door

(By Associated Press.) APENA, Mich., Aug. 20.—From Friday night until yesterday afternoon a small water spaniel lay whimpering in front of his master's shanty. Dozens of people noticed the dog's peculiar actions and passed on. Several offered the animal food, but it refused to eat.

Finally it ceased to whine and began to yelp and late yesterday succeeded in inducing neighbors to enter the dilapidated building. There they found the body of Frank Cleveland, a local junk dealer, whose sole companion for years had been the dog.

Cleveland is believed to have died of heart disease. His body was cold when found.

CONDUCTOR'S HEAD IS SEVERED BY OWN TRAIN

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) DALTON, Ga., Aug. 20.—Conductor Ed Salmon, of a northbound Southern local, was instantly killed when run down by his own train near the Daugh street crossing at 11:30 this morning. His head was completely severed from the body, being picked up along side the track. He was supervising placing some cars on a side track when killed. His home was in Rome.

Their Cosy Home

"Oh, Helen!" said Masie, her face all radiant with smiles, when she met her friend on a shopping tour down town, "all our uncertainty and trouble as to where we were going to move after selling our house have been done away with. We have made a perfect discovery."

"Tell me quickly, please do. Where are you going to move?"

"Father was in a quandary and had just about given up all hope, after walking many miles and asking all his friends, when he turned to The Journal Want Ad Columns and there, right before his eyes, was advertised the cutest little furnished flat you can imagine and handy to several car lines. Father says he has changed his mind about the Want Ads. He says they sure are the medium to consult when you want something."

FRANK'S CHARACTER IS SAID TO BE THE STATE'S WIFE'S

on Tuesday afternoon, and to which the dentist objected, precipitating the argument just concluded.

A 500-WORD QUESTION.

The question was some 500 words in length and embodied all the physical features which surrounded Mary Phagan's death. It concluded with the query: "Would you or not base an opinion as to how long after she had eaten this cabbage and bread, this little girl came to her death?"

After studying a moment, he said: "Before I could answer that question and not violate the scientific opinion," he said, "I would have to know whether the stomach was capable, and whether or not reliable methods had been used in the test."

"Assume that, doctor," said the solicitor.

"I can assume that?"

"Yes, sir."

The witness answered in about 250 words, embodying all of the conditions included in the hypothesis. He concluded by saying: "With due consideration of conditions named as possible factors, I would express as my scientific opinion that the digestion of the bread and cabbage was stopped within one hour after they were eaten."

"Dr. Johnson addressed the court: 'I would like to have the stenographer read my answer,' said he. It was read by the stenographer, and the witness occurred in the record of it."

"There is just one other question I would like to ask you, Dr. Johnson. Is your stomach a law unto itself?"

"It is not if it is mentioned in the laws of the stomach," he replied.

Solicitor Dorsey then turned the witness over to the defense for cross-examination.

"POSSIBLE FACTORS." "THOSE FACTORS," Dr. Johnson spoke of some of the other possible factors of a test of this kind. Now, what do you mean by 'other possible factors'?"

"I mean, I mentioned—the stomach, the brain, stragulation, etc."

"How would they operate as factors?"

"Anything that disturbs the circulation of the blood, directly or indirectly, within or without the body, or that hinders the action of the nerves in the stomach, especially the secretions, to prevent the development of characteristic changes of digestion found within one hour after eating."

"You mentioned also the mechanical condition of the stomach. Please explain what you mean by that?"

"I mean if there had been no change in the size of the stomach, no change in the thickness of the stomach, no change in the opening from the stomach into the intestine, no change in the size of the intestine, and no change in their thickness."

"I believe you said that the test must be absolutely correct. Now tell us about the color test in determining degrees of acidity."

"That is one feature of the test. There are other methods."

"VARIOUS TESTS CITED." "Would you consider the color test accurate?"

"If the colors were found to be invariable, then that would be a reliable test."

"What other tests are used besides the visual or color test?"

"Any alkaline will neutralize the acids."

"Then the alkaline test is a better test, isn't it?"

"No, sir, I should not say so."

"You consider the eye test better?"

"Yes, sir."

"In the color test, a man's eyes must be reliable, must they not, in order to make the test accurate?"

"Phrasing his answer very carefully in scientific terms, Dr. Johnson answered in the affirmative."

"This acid in the stomach has an ascending and a descending scale, has it not?"

"Yes, sir."

"What is the height of the normal scale?"

"My experience has been that the degree of acidity varies from 30 to 45 degrees."

"Then it varies according to the stomach of the individual, doesn't it?"

"According to the stomach and what is in the stomach."

milk shown in one of the specimens would not have stayed in a normal stomach three or four hours, as Dr. Hancock on the stand had stated it had stayed in the stomach of the subject upon whom he experimented. Mr. Arnold ended his examination by asking the witness if he had examined Mary Phagan's stomach or taken any part in the autopsy. Dr. Johnson said he had not.

Before the witness left the stand Mr. Dorsey asked this question: "Would 160 cc. of liquid, taken from the stomach nine days after death, be more than the normal amount?"

"It would be a little in excess of what I call normal," said the witness.

DR. GEORGE NILES CALLED. Dr. George M. Niles was the next witness in rebuttal for the state. He testified that he had been practicing for twenty-seven years, and that he has specialized on derangements of digestion. He is a professor at the Atlanta Medical College, gastro-intestinal studies, and is the author of a text book on pediatrics.

"Doctor, is every stomach a law unto itself?" asked the solicitor.

"Every healthy stomach has a definite and orderly relation to every other healthy stomach," replied Dr. Niles.

"What acts upon the pylorus and lets the food out of the stomach?"

Dr. Niles replied that when the acidity in the stomach reaches a certain point, it opens the pylorus, and the food is ejected when the acidity in the lower intestine also reaches a certain degree, it closes the pylorus automatically.

The solicitor then asked the witness the long question which he had put to Dr. Johnson, embodying the various physical features surrounding Mary Phagan's death, and later the examination of her stomach's contents.

"The witness examined the samples of cabbage taken from Mary Phagan's stomach and stated at length the reasons for giving the answer that he did. He said that in the orderly progress of digestion, in the course of an hour, there should be more or less free hydrochloric acid in the stomach; and that had portion of digestion which is not in the stomach been completed, there should have been enough acidity to cause the pylorus to open and release a portion of the food into the small intestines."

CORROBORATES DR. HARRIS. Dr. Niles did not in his answer fix a specific interval between feeding and digestion, as Dr. Harris had done. He would expect to find free hydrochloric acid in the stomach. The test made by Dr. Harris had shown that there was none in Mary Phagan's stomach; therefore, Dr. Niles' conclusion corroborated that of Dr. Harris.

Dr. Niles said further, answering a question by the solicitor, that severe physical exercise of great mental stress tends to retard digestion. He mentioned other technical questions concerning the stomach, and in his answers the witness who had testified for the state.

"What do you say about the wide variation of diseased stomachs?" asked the witness.

"Attorney Arnold cross-examined the witness."

"You have pretty wide variances in the normal stomach, haven't you, Dr. Niles?"

"We have idiosyncrasies and peculiarities, but where they are too marked we would not call that a normal stomach."

"There are any mechanical rule for measuring the digestive power on every kind of food?"

"What do you mean by 'mechanical rule'?"

"Well, is there any rule in any kind, that you can use?"

"Healthy stomachs have a fairly fixed standard of time for digesting foods."

"Why do you take so many thousand cases to get an average?"

"Because that makes our position all the more certain."

"Is there anything about a man more individual than the kinds of food that suit him?"

"I think a man's temperament varies more."

"Healthy stomachs vary, don't they?"

"Under normal circumstances, the process of digestion in a healthy stomach follows a fairly fixed rule."

"What time does it take a healthy stomach to digest cabbage?"

"I can't answer that question."

"Did you ever take cabbage from a stomach?"

"I took cabbage from a cancerous stomach that had been there twenty-four hours."

"I'm not talking about a cancerous stomach, do you mean about a healthy stomach. What is the longest you have ever known cabbage to remain in a healthy stomach?"

"I have found the remains of cabbage in a healthy stomach four or five hours after it was eaten."

"Mastication is one of the important factors in digestion, isn't it?"

"That being the case, what's the use of chewing food at all?"

"Chewing is a very important factor in the proper digestion of food."

"Well, if the saliva juices would be supplied by hunger and the anticipation of eating, why worry about chewing? Why not just put the food in with a tube?"

"There are certain compensatory processes in the body whereby if the function of one organ is neglected, another organ in a large measure supplies the deficiency."

"Then why not work those compensatory processes all the time, and save the teeth?"

WOULD WEAR OUT STOMACH. "In that event you would wear out the stomach by overworking it."

"Then you don't think that cabbage lay in Mary Phagan's stomach four or five hours?"

"No, I think in that time it would have been pulverized."

Attorney Arnold asked Dr. Niles a number of other questions, in an effort to tang the witness; but was not successful.

"What time did you say that this cabbage had been in Mary Phagan's stomach?" asked Mr. Arnold, continuing.

"I said that according to the stomach to be healthy and assuming the test to be correct, it was there less than an hour."

"Did you know that Dr. Harris made this test alone? He kept the result of the test a secret? That he came here with his conclusions unsupported? And that he explained that he made the test because he liked Mr. Dorsey?"

"No, I didn't know that although I had been told something to that effect."

"All right. Come down," said Mr. Arnold.

"Wait a minute," interrupted the solicitor. "Did you ever hear any rule of medical ethics that requires a man, when asked to make a test, to call in Tom, Dick and Harry?"

Before Dr. Niles answer, Attorney Arnold said: "We are not talking about Dick, Tom and Harry."

"No, but I am," said the solicitor. "The doctor who answered that he knew of no such rule of ethics."

VIOLENCE DONE BEFORE DEATH. Dr. John Funke, a physician for twelve years, present professor of pathology and bacteriology at the Atlanta Medical college, was the next witness. He testified that he made special studies of the diseases of the tissues. In answer to the solicitor's question, he said he had shown sections taken from the body of Mary Phagan to the witness, and his examination under a microscope showed that the blood had invaded the tissues; and that the blood vessels were gorged with blood. The vessels were larger than normal, and the blood did not tell in the method of examination he followed, whether or not there was a discoloration. From the condition he found, said he, it was reasonable to suppose there was a swelling there.

Solicitor Dorsey then asked the witness to give a scientific and accurate opinion as to whether or not these tissues were torn before or after death?

"They were injured before death. I know that positively, because I did not invade the tissues after death. It may flow out, but not in."

ANOTHER HYPOTHETICAL QUESTION. The solicitor then asked this hypothetical question: A girl thirteen or fourteen years old, at 11:30 o'clock on Saturday morning, eats a normal meal of cabbage, wheat bread and water. At 3 a. m., the next morning, she is found with a cord around her neck, the tongue is protruded into the flesh, the tongue is out and swollen, and everything indicates that she was strangled. Rigor mortis has set in and progressed from sixteen to twenty hours. She is lying on her back, and gravity has dropped the blood into the lower portions of the body upon the ground. She is embalmed between 10 and 2 o'clock on Sunday, a reasonable amount of time for the body to be in the fluid which is injected into the veins. He body is interred. A week or ten days later it is disinterred. The stomach is normal, there is no mucus. This cabbage is exhibited to the witness, together with granules of undigested starch, the state of the cabbage corresponding with the state of the starch granules. Thirty-two degrees of combined hydrochloric acid is found. The pylorus is unopened. The small intestine for six feet is empty. Supposing these statements to be the facts, and combining them with what you know about the digestion of the organs—would you predicate a scientific opinion as to how long after the meal she met her death, and as to how long before death she received her injuries?"

The witness at first did not want to express an opinion as to the time elapsing between the meal and death, but after Solicitor Dorsey had augmented the hypothesis with scientific terms, he said he was reasonable to assume that the food had been in the stomach about an hour—maybe a little more or a little less.

EMBEDDED TISSUES LAST WEEK. Attorney Arnold cross-examined the witness, and brought out the fact that a week ago last Saturday Dr. Funke was asked by Dr. R. T. Dorsey, a brother of the solicitor, to examine the tissues taken from the organic walls of Mary Phagan's body, and that he went to Dr. Harris' laboratory and examined them there.

Dr. Arnold asked as to the size of the portions of the wall that the doctor had examined, and handing him a piece of paper asked him to tear off a piece of paper of the size of the witness' portion of a small strip of paper, which was measured, and proved to be one-fourth of an inch wide and three-fourths of an inch long.

"Of course, the thicker than the paper," asked Mr. Arnold.

"No, indeed," said the witness. "It was much thinner."

"THINNER THAN TISSUE PAPER." "Yes, it had to be in order for me to study it properly. I wouldn't have had it any other way."

"How many of these strips did you see?"

"Thirty or forty."

"You were not present at the autopsy?"

"No."

"And you were not shown these strips until after this trial had commenced—more than three months after the death of Mary Phagan? And you don't know your own knowledge that they came from Mary Phagan's body?"

"No, I could only swear positively that they were strips from the wall of the organ of a human being. I can keep these strips for any length of time in a proper preservative."

"You are certain that the injury to these strips, which you saw, occurred before death?"

"Yes, I can swear that positively."

FRANK'S TELEGRAM IS READ. A. M. Beatty, local manager for the Postal Telegraph company, was called by Solicitor Dorsey to identify a telegram sent by Frank to Adolph Montas, then in New York, on April 28. The witness identified the telegram.

The solicitor announced that Mr. Beatty was called to the stand because the rules of the company forbade him divulging the nature of any of its patrons' business.

The witness had the telegram when he stepped on the stand, and after he had been sworn surrendered it to the solicitor.

In answer to a question, Mr. Beatty testified to what was dated "Atlanta, Ga., April 28," and addressed, "Mr. Adolph Montas, care Imperial hotel, New York," and read as follows:

"You may have read in Atlanta papers that I was found dead Sunday morning in cellar of pencil factory. Police will eventually solve it. Assure my uncle I am all right in case he asks. Our company has case well in hand. (Signed) Leo M. Frank." WESTERN UNION MANAGER CALLED.

W. G. Peebles, Atlanta manager for the Western Union Telegraph company, was called into court to produce telegrams which he had been subpoenaed to bring with him. He brought with him a copy of the rules of the company relating to the giving out of messages. This was read by Judge Roan.

There was some argument as to the admissibility of the telegrams, and Judge Roan spoke of some process necessary to answer the question. This caused Attorney Rosser to remark:

"When the law directs a man to bring a thing into court he's got to bring it. The Western Union is no better than any other business."

The manager of the company had with him no telegrams signed by Frank.

In answer to a question by Solicitor Dorsey as to whether or not the Western Union had received for transmission any telegram signed by Leo M. Frank, within the dates mentioned in the subpoena served upon him which included the period of time directly after the murder, Mr. Peebles replied that he had none.

Mr. Peebles handed to Solicitor Dorsey a half dozen telegrams which the solicitor perused and then handed to the defense attorneys. While Mr. Dorsey read them, Attorney Arnold informed the court that the would object to the introduction of anything not signed by Leo M. Frank. Solicitor Dorsey declared it was not his intention to attempt the introduction of anything like that. The solicitor said that inasmuch as none of the telegrams produced bore the signature of Leo M. Frank, he did not want to make a point on them. The witness then was excused.

SAYS FRANK'S CHARACTER IS BAD. Miss Myrtle Cato, one of the solicitor's character witnesses against Leo M. Frank, called to the stand.

"Ahe acquainted with the general character of Leo M. Frank, prior to and including April 26, 1913?"

"Was that character good or bad?"

"Bad."

"Did you ever work at the National Pencil factory?"

"Yes."

"When did you stop work there?"

"On April 28."

"How long had you worked there?"

"Three and a half years."

"That floor did you work on?"

"The fourth floor."

"She is with you, gentlemen," said the solicitor, turning to the attorneys for the defense, he having exhausted the questions allowed him by the law.

"Come forward," said Attorney Rosser. The solicitor, it was stated, depended necessarily on cross-questions by the defense to bring out what details, if any, his character witnesses could swear to.

Judge Roan said he would not bring out those details on direct questioning.

ATTACKS FRANK'S CHARACTER. Miss Maggie Griffin was the next witness. She testified in answer to the same questions that she knew the general character of Frank and that it was bad. She said that she worked at the factory for two and a half months and that she worked on the fourth floor.

Solicitor Dorsey paused a moment and Attorney Rosser in a low tone asked the witness: "When did you quit work at the factory?" She answered that she quit in February.

"Wait a minute," said Solicitor Dorsey. "I beg your pardon," said Attorney Rosser. "I thought you had finished."

"Now," said the solicitor, "I am going to ask you a question, and I don't want you to answer it until the judge tells you whether you can answer it or not. The witness, acquainted with the general character of Leo M. Frank as to his relations with women."

Immediately there was an objection from Attorney Rosser.

Solicitor Dorsey replied. Mr. Dorsey contended that the testimony of the defense's witnesses put in issue this specific phase of Frank's character.

JURY SENT OUT. The jury was sent out.

Attorney Rosser insisted, to start on, that the state could not show anything but general character. "I thought," said he, "that your honor had ruled to that effect already."

Solicitor Dorsey replied by saying: "Your honor ruled that we could not show specific instances, and to that ruling we submit. This, however, is a different proposition. The statement by the defendant to the jury that he never had women in his office put that phase of his character directly in issue."

Judge Roan: "Have you got any authority?"

Solicitor Dorsey: "I don't need any authority, your honor."

"I asked you if you had any authority?"

Solicitor Dorsey: "I have none immediately at hand, your honor, but I don't want to be understood as admitting that we don't need any authority."

"Now, your honor," continued the solicitor, "while the jury is out I want to show by this witness that she says that she worked on the fourth floor on the fourth floor with one of the foreladies, and that no one else was in there at the time."

Attorney Rosser objected strenuously.

Solicitor Dorsey continued: "Certainly, your honor, we are entitled to show that one of the very witnesses of the defense, who testified that she knew the defendant and that she had never been guilty of any wrong conduct with him, was seen by this witness to go into the dressing room with him on the fourth floor."

Judge Roan: "Are you offering this testimony in rebuttal to the testimony of the lady you speak of?"

"Yes, sir, that's exactly the way we are offering it."

Attorney Rosser objected on the ground that the testimony of the witness, to wit, the woman who worked at No. 9 Oliver street, was offered in rebuttal to the testimony of James Conley.

COURT ADMITS EVIDENCE. Judge Roan: "I rule, Mr. Dorsey, that if you undertake to show a distinct crime, the testimony will not be admissible. But if you offer the testimony in contradiction to the testimony of one of the witnesses for the defense, I think you can put it in. Also, I am inclined to think you can show the defendant's character as to his relations with women."

Attorney Rosser met the ruling with the demand that before the solicitor could offer the testimony as a contradiction of the defense witness, the defense witness must first be put back on the stand by the solicitor for cross-examination. This demand was based on his contention that the defense witness had testified to conduct in Frank's office.

"All right," said the solicitor. "Bring in Miss Rebecca Carson."

The jury returned to the court room. Miss Griffin continued on the stand.

"Do you know the general character of Leo M. Frank as to his attitude toward women?"

"Yes, I do."

"What is it?"

"Under cross-examination by Attorney Rosser: 'How long did you work at the pencil factory?'"

"Two months."

"On what floor?"

"Fourth."

"Whom did you know there?"

The witness named several young women.

"What did you do when you left the factory?"

"I didn't work for two months, and then I went to the cotton mills, and 'Where do you live?'"

"84 Evans drive, Fort McPherson."

MISS CATO RECALLED. This concluded the cross-examination, and Solicitor Dorsey recalled Miss Myrtle Cato.

The solicitor asked Miss Cato if she knew Frank's general character as to his relations with women, and she replied "No." She was asked by Attorney Rosser where she works now. She replied, "Cone's drug store."

In reply to other questions, she said she lives at 59 Tumlin street, and that she worked in the factory for over three years.

Mrs. R. M. Dunnegan was the next witness. She answered the solicitor's question that she knew Frank's general character and that it was bad. In reply to the question as to whether or not she knew of Frank's relations with women, she said no. The witness stated that she worked at the pencil factory two years ago for two or three weeks. At that time, she said, she was fourteen years old. She was excused without cross-examination.

worked on the fourth floor. The witness when at the factory worked on the fourth floor.

Miss Marie Karst was the next witness. She said that she worked at the factory on the second floor, two years ago. She declared that she knew Frank's general reputation and character, and his attitude toward women, and that they were bad.

Cross examined by Mr. Rosser, the witness stated that she works for the Nunnally-McCrea company, and that she lives at 16 Kelly street.

Miss Nellie Pettis was called. She declared that she knew Frank's general reputation and character and that they were bad. She testified that she knew of his relations with women and that they were bad.

The witness stated that she never had worked at the factory, but had gone there a number of Saturdays to get the money of her sister-in-law, who did work there. Once she saw Frank, she said.

Under cross-examination by Attorney Rosser, the witness testified that her sister-in-law is Mrs. Lillie Mae Pettis, and that her mother is Mrs. E. W. Pettis.

Mrs. C. T. Harrison, Mrs. Pearl Dobson and Tom Blackstock, were called, but none answered.

OTHERS GIVE SIMILAR TESTIMONY. Mrs. Mary Davis was the next witness. She testified that she had worked at the pencil factory, and that she knew Frank's character, and that it was bad. His conduct with women also was bad, she swore.

On cross-examination by Attorney Rosser, she said she had worked at the pencil factory two months. She said she is not employed now. She is living with her husband at 3 Louise alley.

Miss Wallace was called. She testified that she worked at the pencil factory three days in July, 1911. She said that Frank's general character is bad, and his conduct with women is bad. She was excused without cross-examination.

Miss Estella Winkle was called. She worked at the factory one week in March, 1911. She testified that Frank's general character was bad, and his conduct with women was bad. On cross-examination, Attorney Rosser asked: "Where do you work now?"

"Not anywhere," she said. "How long have you been unemployed?"

"About two years."

"Where do you live?"

"In a country about twelve miles from Griffin." She was excused. She testified that formerly she was employed on the fourth floor of the pencil factory, and that she had worked there "off and on" for three years, finally severing her connection with the factory one week after last Christmas. In cross-examination she said she lives at 257 Simpson street; that she is not working at present.

Miss Ruth Robinson was called. "Did you know Mary Phagan?" asked the solicitor.

"Yes."

"Do you know Leo M. Frank?"

"Yes."

SAW FRANK TALK TO PHAGAN GIRL. "Did you ever see Frank talk to Mary Phagan?"

"Yes, sir."

"Tell the jury when, where and in what manner he addressed her."

"Well, when she was at work, I saw him talking to her."

"How often did this occur?"

"No, very often."

"Describe these conversations to the jury."

"Well, he'd just tell her about her work."

"Go ahead and tell all about them."

"Well, that's all. He'd just tell about her work."

"Where did he stand, and what did he do, when he was talking to her?"

May Close State's Testimony Wednesday

briefly by Attorney Rosser. "You say that was in the metal department?" "Yes, sir." "You were not in the metal department long, were you?" "About two weeks." "The other girls were there when Frank was talking to little Mary, weren't they?" "Yes, sir." "You were at work and you were at work, weren't you?" "Yes, sir." "You don't know what he was talking to her about, do you?" "No, sir."

Attorney Rosser, in cross-examining these witnesses, spoke to them in kindly voice, in striking contrast to the tone he used toward other witnesses. MISS CARSON RECALLED. Miss Rebecca Carson was called. She smiled at Frank when she took the stand. Solicitor Dorsey: "Did you ever go into the dressing room on the fourth floor with Leo M. Frank?" "No, sir, I never did," emphatically. "All right," said the solicitor. "Come down."

Miss Myrtle Cato was recalled. "Now don't answer my question until the judge tells you to," admonished Solicitor Dorsey. "Did you ever see Miss Rebecca Carson go into the private dressing room on the fourth floor with Leo M. Frank?" Mr. Rosser was on his feet with an objection, but before he could voice it the witness had answered "Yes."

Then followed a sharp and brief wrangle, with the result that Judge Ragan, holding to his former ruling, let the answer stay in the record. "How often did you see them go in there together?" "AIN'T ALL I KNOW." "I never saw it but twice, and that ain't all I know—"

"Wait a minute!" shouted Mr. Rosser. Then, having stopped the girl in his kindly tone he asked: "When was that?" "Some time this year." "What time of day?" "In the morning." "Were other people there?" "Yes, but I don't think they noticed it."

"We don't want to know what you guess. We want to know what you know. Do you know if they saw it?" "No, sir." Solicitor Dorsey: "How did you happen to see them in the aisle. And that ain't all I saw either—"

"Wait a minute! Stop!" shouted Mr. Rosser again. The solicitor told the witness to come down. MISS MARGIE GRIFFITH was recalled to the stand. Replying to the questions of the solicitor, she testified that she knew Miss Rebecca Carson.

"Did you ever see her go into the dressing room on the fourth floor with Leo M. Frank?" "Yes, sir! Three or four times." "What time was it?" "Sometimes it was in the morning, and sometimes it was in the afternoon." "How long did they stay in there?" "Fifteen to thirty minutes."

The defense objected, and the question and answer were ruled out. Solicitor Dorsey: "Did you see them go in that dressing room?" "Yes." "Did you see them come out?" "Yes." "Mr. Rosser: "Was that during work hours?" "Yes." "Were there any other women about?" "Yes." "Come down."

Solicitor Dorsey called for Miss Kitchens. She did not answer. The solicitor claimed to the court that she was a factory employe and had been subpoenaed several days ago. "Well, what have we got to do with that?" demanded Mr. Rosser. "Nothing," said the solicitor, "but we want her here."

The court dispatched the sheriff to bring her to court. STREET CAR INSPECTOR TESTIFIED. Henry A. Hoffman, an inspector for the Georgia Railway and Power company, was called. He said he knew W. M. Matthews, a motorman, and that on April 26 and on the 27th of this year he was under him for thirty-seven minutes each day, from 11:30 to 12:07 o'clock. He declared that there was no such thing as a 12:07-12 schedule. He said Matthews' car was due at Broad and Marietta streets at 12:07 o'clock. Over the objection of the attorneys for the defense the witness stated that prior to April 26 he had been on Matthews' car when it cut off the Fair street car due at Broad and Marietta at 12:05, and that the Fair street car on that occasion was on time. Over the objection of the defense, the witness stated that several times he had compared watches with Matthews and found a difference of from 20 to 45 seconds, Matthews' watch being fast.

MATTHEWS RAN AHEAD ON TIME. "Have you ever demerited Matthews for running ahead of schedule?" "I called his attention to it twice that I know of." "What is the custom regarding running ahead of schedule at relief time?" "Well, they sometimes come in ahead of schedule at dinner and supper relief periods."

Attorney Rosser cross-examined the witness. "You don't pretend to know whether or not the car was on time that day, do you?" "No, I don't know." "Don't you demerit these street car men every time they are off of schedule?" "No, we talk to them."

Now Well After Using Eckman's Alternative

The makers of Eckman's Alternative, which is doing so much good for Lung Trouble, are continually in receipt of wonderful reports of recoveries brought about solely through the use of this medicine. Investigate the case of this writer, who has been cured of his chronic and today enjoying good health.

421 Second Ave., Aurora, Ill.

"Gentlemen: Pardon me for not writing sooner, but I wanted to see if I would stay cured. I can now truthfully say I am perfectly well. I have no pain, no cough, no night sweats, no hay fever. Since a child of two years I have been ailing with lung trouble, which grew worse as I grew older. At the age of fourteen the doctor said if I could not be sent west I would surely die of Consumption. Brody winter I would be sure to have either Bronchitis, Pleurisy or Pneumonia. I had Typhoid Pneumonia one time. I had catarrh of the stomach and bowels and had Hay Fever for the last few years. I will answer all letters sent to me, asking a history of my case from any suffering with lung trouble."

Eckman's Alternative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious in Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Stomach and Bowel troubles, Pleurisy, Phthisis, and other lung ailments. It is upbuilding the system, does not contain narcotics, poison or habit-forming drugs. For sale by J. C. Eckman, Pharmacist and Dispensary, Philadelphia, Pa. Write the Eckman Laboratories, Philadelphia, Pa. for literature, telling of recoveries and additional evidence.—(Adv.)

"When did you catch Matthews ahead of schedule the last time?" "Some time in March." "What is the longest time you ever caught him ahead of time?" "Three minutes." Attorney Rosser asked several questions on this point. The witness replied that he remembered catching Matthews only twice. He said he had known Matthews ever since he (the witness) had been an inspector. The witness was excused.

CONTRADICTS MATTHEWS AND HOLLIS.

M. Kelly, a motorman employed by the Georgia Railway and Power company, was called to the stand. He contradicted Matthews and Hollis, the conductor of the car which Mary Phagan rode on April 26, regarding Mary Phagan riding with them around to Broad and Hunter streets that day. He testified that on April 26 at 3 minutes after 12 he was at Forsyth and Marietta streets and that he boarded the English Avenue and Cooper street car of which Matthews and Hollis were in charge and rode with them around the corner into Broad with them. He said that the car must have been four minutes ahead of time to arrive then. He saw the motorman and conductor relieved, and got on the car and rode around the corner with them. Mary Phagan was not on that car then, he said, after he got Phagan by sight.

Attorney Rosser cross-examined the witness. Mr. Rosser strove to disconnect the witness by the use of rapid-fire questions. "Do you remember when you looked at your watch yesterday?" he asked. "I looked at it several times." "Do you remember some specific time when you looked at it?" "Yes, when I was coming into the center of town just before noon yesterday."

"Oh, yes, you always look when you are coming into town, don't you? It's your custom?" "Yes." The witness said he could not remember whether he looked at his watch two weeks ago today, nor what time it was then. "Why didn't you report this before?" asked Mr. Rosser. "Well, I didn't want to get into it. You can't remember whom you saw on your car two weeks ago, can you?" "No, sir."

TOLD STARNES TODAY. "When did you tell the detectives about this?" "I told Mr. Starnes this morning." "Did you tell anybody else before that?" "I think I did." "Where had you been before you saw this car that day?" "Well, I stood near Broad and Marietta streets for several minutes, and then I walked up to Forsyth."

"Where did you go on the car?" "I went to Alabama and Broad streets. I wanted to get a car and go out and get my mother and bring her down to the parade." "Do you remember anybody else on the car?" "No, only the relief crew." "Did anybody get on the car when you did?" "Yes, one or two. I waited for them." "Do you remember how they looked, how they were dressed?" "No, I don't." "Did any passengers get off the car?" "I don't know."

"Then you remember four months afterwards, looking at your watch at that day at 3 minutes after 12 o'clock?" "Yes, because I wanted to get the College Park car and go out to my mother's and take her to see the parade." "What is the schedule on the College Park car?" "It runs every ten minutes." The witness was excused.

CAR OFTEN AHEAD OF SCHEDULE. W. J. Owens was the next witness. He is a motorman who has had among other routes, Route No. 8, which is the route from White City to Howell station. He testified that this car is at the corner of Marietta and Broad streets at 12:05 or 2 minutes ahead of the Cooper Street-English Avenue car. He testified that he did not remember seeing the Cooper Street-English Avenue car on April 26, but that he has known it to come into town ahead of his car—sometimes as much as 2 minutes ahead of his car, which would put it in town 4 minutes ahead of its schedule.

Mr. Rosser asked him a couple of unimportant questions, and he was excused. L. F. Ingram, a street car conductor, was the next witness. He testified that he lives in the western part of the city, and comes into town from his home on the Cooper Street-English Avenue car. He testified that he came to town on that car on April 26, but that he does not recall what time it was. He testified that he has seen that car ahead of its schedule sometimes as high as four minutes. He testified that he has also known it to arrive in town behind time.

Attorney Rosser: "You've seen it come in behind time as well as ahead of time, have you?" "Yes, but I've seen it ahead of time more often than I've seen it late." "They punish you for coming in ahead, don't they?" "Yes. They punish you for coming in late, too." "Are you sure they punish you for coming in late?" "Yes, if you can't make a run they take you off of it. That's what I call punishment."

Miss Mamie Kitchens was the next witness. She testified that she works on the fourth floor of the pencil factory and has been working there nearly two years. She testified that she was there on that floor yesterday, and that she had not been put on the stand as a witness for the defense.

Asked whether any other girls on the fourth floor had not been subpoenaed by the defense, she stated that she knows two, and mentioned the names of Miss Eva Jones and Miss Howard. Asked if she was acquainted with the general character of Leo M. Frank prior to April 26, she said she did not believe she could testify; so on this point the solicitor excused her and immediately took up another line of inquiry.

FRANK OPENED DRESSING ROOM. In response to his questions, she testified that she knows Irene Jackson and Miss Mayfield, and that she remembers having been with these two girls in the dressing room on the fourth floor of the pencil factory when Frank came and opened the door without knocking and put his head in.

FRANK GRINNED AT GIRLS. She testified that Miss Jackson was undressed at the time; that Frank grinned and remained alone in the door that Miss Jackson exclaimed, "We're dressing, blame it!" She was cross-examined briefly by Attorney Rosser. "Didn't he ask you girls whether you had any work to do?" "Not that way, he didn't."

"Yes, I know he doesn't talk in the same tone of voice I do. But what I want to know is whether he asked you this question, or something very nearly like it: 'Haven't you girls got any work to do?'" "Yes, sir, he asked us something like that." "What time of day was that?" "I can't say what time of day it was."

"Was it during work hours?" "Yes, it was during work hours, but we weren't at work because there wasn't any work for us to do." "Ain't you mistaken about Miss Jones not having testified?" "I've only got her word for it. That's all I know." "Did Miss Jones work there before April 26?" "Yes, sir." "Now, I'm going to ask you a question that he has asked all of the ladies on the fourth floor who have testified. Did you ever, between July, 1912, and the first Saturday in January, 1913, inclusive, go to Mr. Frank's office for any improper purpose?" "No, I never went there in my life for anything except to get some money on my time."

The witness was excused and court adjourned at 12:50 until 2 o'clock.

Keep Baby Well and Happy

Let him take his daily airing in a comfortable baby carriage.

Babies need fresh air. When they lack it they cry and grow unhappy. The luxury of one of our nicely upholstered, easy-riding baby carriages, could be described by baby himself. His coos of delight when he goes "bye-bye" tell the story. Baby knows what is good for him—plenty of fresh air in a carriage as fine as if he were of the royal blood. The little legs and feet rest and the little spine is scientifically supported. We have baby carriages and go-carts of several makes:

Bloch Reed Pullman—roomy and comfortable—have adjustable cushions, reclining back and adjustable foot wall. Lined with best grade soft plush. Brown or natural finish; 30 styles. $19.75 to $50.

Bloch English Perambulator—aristocrat of baby vehicles—made with reed and wood sides, upholstered with best leather cloth, finished in French gray, blue, green and natural reed; 10 styles. $25 to $50.

Sidway Go-Carts—guaranteed for two years—the little fellows enjoy this cart and the ample hoods afford shelter from the sun's rays or a sudden shower. $15 up.

Go-Carts—Many kinds and many prices. All with hoods and rubber tires. $3.39, $5.00 and an especially fine one, which sold for $13.75, now $8.95.

Collapsible Sulky—Convenient and comfortable. Folds compactly in one motion. Especially adapted to the needs of the toddler, who has not acquired a marathon record. $3.98 to $6.95.

Fulton's Significant Tax Gains.

Whoever is looking for evidences of prosperity and the true tang of business cheer has only to turn to the tax digest of Fulton county.

Mere figures, however large or explicit they may be, are but coldly expressive of the conditions on which they are based; but when we compare the tax gains of Fulton with those of the remainder of the State, we have a keener insight into the significance of this county's record.

The increases in this county, however, are not to be considered from a purely local point of view. They betoken, to be sure, extraordinary development in the immediate territory from which they are derived; but they are also indications of energy and growth throughout the State and the larger public income they assure will redound to the welfare of Georgia in its entirety.

The outlook for the State's treasury is becoming continually brighter. While sixty-seven counties, among those thus reporting, show decreases in tax returns, seventy-one show encouraging gains; and it is expected that the aggregate increase over 1912 will exceed twenty million dollars.

It is getting on to persimmon harvest time. In any event, President Wilson will hardly be called on to settle the Thaw case.

Not even veritas could offer any better operation of government than we now have at Washington.

Hopes for Mexican Peace.

There is at least one hopeful circumstance in the Mexican befuddlement; Huerta is still listening to John Lind's good advice.

Despite the discomfiting reports in the earlier part of the week, negotiations looking to a peaceful settlement of the revolution continue; and so long as diplomacy keeps on its feet there is room for encouragement.

True, every hour's delay makes the situation more serious in some respects, for there is an insistent demand that something definite be done to put an end to Mexican savagery; and there are certain fiery, loquacious gentlemen in Congress who ignore the fact that even delay may lead to constructive results.

But viewed in its entirety, the Mexican affair is more reassuring than it has been for weeks past. For one thing, the Lind mission has proved thoroughly satisfactory so far as it has gone. The wild threats of the Huerta regime to treat the President's special envoy with indignity or at best with cold indifference have faded to nothingness.

Evidently there is friction within the Huerta cabinet; otherwise there would be no such conflict of orders and reports as the past five days have brought forth. Maybe Huerta's own purposes are in conflict.

But the important fact remains that he is still in a receptive, teachable mood. Our Government's efforts for peace have certainly not failed; wherefore they have a chance yet to succeed.

The less account a dog is the more a woman likes it.

Many a girl who thinks she is pretty is unable to prove it.

The Conviction of Tammany.

One of the most remarkable and cheering aspects of the political hubbub in New York State is the fact that the whip of public condemnation falls not upon William Sulzer, the impeached Governor, but upon his accusers, the Tammany pack.

The situation appears all the more extraordinary when one reflects upon the serious charges that are lodged against the Governor, and the seemingly formidable evidence behind them. He is accused of having appropriated campaign funds to his personal use, employing them in Wall Street speculation; a scandal like this, if it bore the faintest tinge of truth, would ordinarily serve to crush any official and to harden the public mind against any impulse of sympathy.

Indeed, the very fact that the Governor has been assailed by Tammany is considered by its credit. This does not show a very discriminating sense of justice in respect to the alleged wrongdoings of Sulzer, but it does reveal an intense and wholesome hatred of the political machine.

It is distinctly to the credit of the public mind that it has gone to the heart of this situation, realizing that, though Sulzer be guilty, the really dangerous criminal is not he, but his hypocritical accuser. Tammany may destroy the Governor, but at the same time it has loosed an avalanche for its own destruction.

Maybe Huerta is trying to be one of those last liners himself. Canada has deported Thaw back into the United States and vaudeville.

Thaw has been made to realize that the way of the affinity killer is hard.

Pure Milk for Georgia.

The plan of State Chemist Stallings to make a comprehensive investigation of the public milk supply in Georgia will enlist widespread and merited approval. There is perhaps no health menace more insidious than that of impure milk.

That there is urgent need for such a movement is shown by the result of the comparatively few tests already made. It seems, according to specialists, that ordinarily the bacterial count in milk should not run higher than a hundred thousand to a third of a teaspoonful, but some of the samples of milk examined by the State department have shown a bacterial count as high as twenty-two million.

In Atlanta and Fulton county well conducted movements to safeguard the milk supply and also to improve the quality of milk have been undertaken, and the results are distinctly gratifying. Indeed, the fact that Atlanta ranked first among all American cities, according to the latest census reports, in the reduction of the death rate among infants is ascribable largely to the city bacteriologist's watchfulness over the production and distribution of milk.

It is particularly gratifying that the State has taken up this task, for it is one that requires activity at once, centralized and far-reaching. The peril of impure milk is a common peril to all the households of Georgia that are dependent upon a public milk supply. The State department of chemistry deserves, and will doubtless receive, the people's hearty cooperation in the great service it plans to perform.

OUR DAILY BREAD VIII—ITS CHEMISTRY By Frederic J. Haskin

The preparation of no other article of food so closely resembles a chemical laboratory experiment as does the mixing, leavening and baking of bread. To make bread is, in point of fact, a most complicated chemical operation, although millions of housewives for hundreds of years have made bread in utter innocence of the existence of the science of chemistry.

The chemist has made a number of discoveries with respect to bread which oppose many time-honored beliefs. In the first place, fine white bread contains the highest amount of nutrition instead of the lowest as has been supposed.

Wheat flour loses a considerable quantity of its caloric value in being baked into bread so that the value of bread as a food amounts to only 2,400 calories at present, which is greater than that of eggs, milk, cheese, beef and several other articles believed to have great value in food nutrition.

The loss of solid matter during the baking process is due to the conversion of part of it into volatile substances, and their evaporation during the baking. In the experiments made at the Minnesota and New Jersey experimental stations it has been decided that 1.5 to 8 per cent of nutrients in the flour are lost in this way.

The chemical composition of the best grade of flour, from which most raised breads are made in this country, and of the bread including the different ingredients usual in its composition, has been analyzed by Prof. Harry Snyder, of the Minnesota State University.

The increase in the proportion of water in bread over the amount in flour is, of course, explained by the water added to the flour in mixing the dough as well as the increase of fat and protein by the addition of lard and milk.

The character and quality of the bread depends largely upon the proportion of gluten in the flour, since that is its most important ingredient. The modern chemist has discovered that gluten itself is not a simple protein compound, but is composed of two other compounds, gliadin and gliorin.

Experiments have been made to show the relation between the composition of the gluten and the quality of the bread. Bread has been baked with flour from which all the gliadin has been removed.

These experiments proved the possibility of blending wheat to produce certain results. The increased caloric economy by using it to blend with the weaker flour. Durum wheat contains more crude gluten and the dough made from it is sticky.

Out of the Mouths of Babes

Teacher—Mabel, in making your "I's" you have omitted something. What is it? Little Mabel—Oh, I forgot to put eyebrows over them.

Mamma—I'm sorry you and your little sister quarrelled over the oranges, and that your cousin James had to interfere. Whose part did he take? Small Tommy—Part, nothing! He took the whole orange.

On Seeing What We See

Observation ought to be a simple process. Here are two good eyes. There is the object. Why should seeing things be so difficult? But it is. Between the retina and its prey all sorts of traps intervene while reality escapes.

It is the mind that chiefly defeats us, cheating the usually honest servants nature has given us in the senses to report upon the world we live in. We never see what we see. We are always seeing what we think.

An amusing illustration of this is given in an article in the London Daily Mail, purporting to describe the American types seen on the streets of London during the season of "invasion."

There cannot, however, be much doubt about that sharp, ascetic, rather shriveled little woman with eyeglasses. She surely must hail from New England. And if you see an American girl with a buoyant freshness and elasticity of face, figure, and movement, you probably will not be far wrong in ascribing her to the south.

Probably the supposed "ascetic" New Englander came from Jackson, Miss., or Salina, Kan.; the buoyant "southerner" from Duluth or Eastport, Me.; the gauche and sprawling Chicagoan from Boston or San Francisco, and the "correct" and "circumspect" New Yorker of "European neutrality" from Keokuk, Iowa, or Peru, Ind.

There are certain regional types in the great territory of the United States, it is, of course, true, but they are not the conventionalities adopted from his reading by this observer, nor are they easy generalities which any one may make and rely upon.

There was a time when no American book was acceptable to English criticism unless it resembled Bret Harte, and all American life was in the image of Buffalo Bill and his wild west. The complexity and variety of American life are now somewhat more generally realized, but the tendency to "see" us through conventionalities such as this observer of the Daily Mail so naively relies upon is as yet strong.

How to Break an Engagement

LONDON.—What kind of letter should a man write in breaking off his engagement in order that the damages, should the case come into court, be not too enormous?

It has been held that the letter to the unsuspecting bride—that is not to be should be so couched that some of the blame, at any rate, for the breaking off of the engagement is put upon the woman.

Here are some model letters, supplied by this barrister, which show how a man can break off an engagement with some chance of avoiding enormous damages.

Such a man could write to the girl who had had his affections: I have been thinking very seriously of my position, and especially my own, lately. There seems no prospect of my being able to provide a home for you for a good many years, and though my affection for you is unchanged I feel it is not fair to you to keep you waiting hopelessly, and that it is better and wiser for us both to consider our understanding at an end.

A favorite excuse is incompatibility, and the model marriage wrecker would then be couched as follows: I think you feel as I do, that the present state of affairs cannot go on. Of late there has been nothing but scenes every time we meet. If it is to be like this in the future, the prospect is an impossible one.

These constant scenes and recriminations have upset me so much that I am driven to the conclusion that we are utterly unsuited for each other, and that it is better to realize our mistake before it is too late. You cannot claim that a great part of this situation does not arise from your own fault.

Again, a man may suggest that his income does not rise and is insufficient to keep the girl in the way to which she is accustomed. Then he would tactfully write: I have been trying to write this letter for some time, but have never been able to.

What can I do? You say I am putting off our marriage and don't love you, but be reasonable. You know I have my mother to keep, and I must live and dress so as to keep up appearances, and it takes all my salary to do this.

You say you are willing to live on a little, but I could never marry until I was able to keep a wife as she should be kept. Things may change for the better soon. I hope and pray they will, but until they do we must go on as we are unless you think it better to end it all.

HOO'S HOO

BY JOHN W. CAREY. Who stuck around that White House burg for years and years and years and never got a mention from its well-known gazetteers? Who one day took a notion he would spring his letter files, and now whose name's a household word for miles and miles and miles? Who holds the belt for having been within a given span acclaimed a liar oftener than any other man?

Who's got old Annals beat and Dr. Cook forsooth (or some of our p. c.'s themselves are toying with the truth)? Who's had the fun of pulling off, at that, a nifty stir among the kings in Washington? Why, Colonel Mulhall, sir.

AISCHROLATREIA

BY DR. FRANK CRANE. (Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)

Aischrolatreia is a word used by Frederic Harrison, and his definition of it is "the worship of the ugly, the nasty and the brutal." The human soul has its laws as fixed as the laws of the human body.

Any emotion is bad, but emotional egotism is poison. The best part of life is feeling, but it is always the best things that are most liable to excess. Beyond a certain point enthusiasm becomes madness, love becomes perversion, and the taste for beauty becomes the taste for the hideous.

The first buds of passion in the soul are the most exquisitely beautiful of all human experience. Give yourself over to the pursuit of passion, however, and your end will be the most horrible torture conceivable. Cubism and Futurism in art are the results of unrestrained love of beauty; they are that hideousness into which egoistic emotional drunkenness leads.

It was because of the cumulative danger of pleasure, when followed solely, that the Puritans sought to prohibit it. But the master word of morality is not prohibition; it is self control. Life needs love, beauty, laughter, and its measure of rational inebriation.

Te law of life is not "Never!" It is "Never too much!" This was the motto of Socrates. A good example of the ruin of over-emotionalism is found in the poet Baudelaire. He gave himself up to feeling and to analyzing the emotions of his inner life.

"One must ever be drunken. Everything is in that; it is the only question. In order not to feel the horrible burden of Time that is breaking your shoulders, bending you earthwards, you must be ceaselessly drunken.

"But with what? With wine, poetry, or virtue, as you will—only intoxicate yourself; and if sometimes, on the steps of a palace, on the greensward of a grave, or in the mournful solitude of your room, you wake or find the intoxication diminished or vanished, ask of the wind, or the wave, or the star, or the bird, or the clock . . . ask what time it is; and the wind, wave, star, bird, and clock will tell you: 'It is time to be drunken.' Lest you should be the martyred slaves of Time, be ceaselessly drunken! With wine, poetry, or virtue, as you will."

The life of Baudelaire went out in the impotence of despair, the agony of self-torture. His beauty worship finished in aischrolatreia. His sterile genius left nothing to mankind.

Compare his sentiment with that of another man who gave as his life-motive: "I must work the works of him that sent me, while it is day; for the night cometh when no man can work." The life of this man has been a fountain of inexhausted passion for a thousand years.

The County Survey of Georgia

(Louisville Courier-Journal.) One of the bulletins recently issued by the United States bureau of education relates to an organization formed at the Georgia State Normal school at Athens for the study of rural sociology.

This organization is known as the Georgia club, and it has been in existence for three years. In that time it has conducted an exhaustive economic and social survey of the state of Georgia as a whole and county by county. Fifty-one of the county surveys have been completed and published. They contained a variety of information which never had been put in print, and which came, in large part, as a revelation to the citizens in general. In many cases they inspired concert of action for better conditions.

The manner in which the Georgia club went about its work was to draw ten-year balance sheets for the counties. These showed in detail the gains and losses during the census decade in population, agriculture, industries and business, wealth and taxation, public roads, public sanitation, schools and churches. As described by the bulletin, a large and significant part of the work is constant correspondence with the affiliated club members in the 146 counties and with the newspapers of the state; addresses to people in the field, at school fairs, school rallies, Sunday school assemblies, home mission conventions, quarterly conferences, church associations, and latterly trips to other schools and colleges in Georgia and other states, organizing upon invitation "Know-Your-Home-State" clubs.

Through this work the Georgia State Normal school is gaining most valuable information, and is directing its efforts accordingly. Bulletins are issued at frequent intervals embracing a discussion of the facts brought out by the painstaking inquiries of the Georgia club. In many ways the work is proving its usefulness, and is helping to solve state problems and accelerate state progress. The systematic investigations made show the value of the county survey as a beginning point for general improvement. To improve itself a county must know its weak spots, and the survey lays them bare. This admits of intelligent remedial action.

August Orientry

Somehow these August dawns, with splendors graded, Before which such triumphant ardors run, Bring back great Memnon crying 'ere the waste, And all the flutes of buried Babylon!

Somehow these August sunsets, rich with flame, Stilling the lyric murmur of the rills, Bring back the palpitating, golden haze Above the silence of the Syrian hills!

Somehow these August sunsets, rich with alms, Where vivid saffron with vermilion vies, Bring back, deep-set within its desert frame, The radiant day-fall in Egyptian skies!

Somehow these August midnights, sown with stars, Swept by the moon-barque with its silver sail, Bring back the bloom of drowsy nuptials, And the rapt passion of the nightingale. —CLINTON SCOLLARD in the New York Times.

Contempt of Court

(Harper's Weekly.) "Now, lemme see," said the rural justice, frowning on the back of an old envelope. "Your bill will come to jest—$47." "Forty-five dollars," echoed Wigglethorpe. "Why, Judge, the fine for overspeeding is only $15." "Ya-as, I know," said the justice. "The thirty-two dollars is fer contempt of court." "But I haven't expressed any contempt for this court," protested Wigglethorpe. "You've just taken the justice, 'but ye will, my friend, ye will before ye git a mile out of town. I've made the fine putty stiff so's t' give ye plenty of room to move round in."

DAIRYING METHODS TO BE TOLD BY EXPERTS

Southern Railway Sends Special "Dairy Instruction Car" to Atlanta

Educational meetings of interest to both dairymen who supply Atlanta people with milk and butter and to Atlanta people who depend on local dairies will be conducted by expert dairymen on the Southern railway's special "dairy instruction car" Thursday and Friday at the Terminal station, where the car will be parked on Southern railway tracks at the end of Mitchell street viaduct at Elliot street.

The car is being sent to Atlanta by the Southern railway for the purpose of bettering dairying methods in this section. It is the same car which toured Georgia last year and which has visited hundreds of communities throughout the southeast. The car is fitted out like a model farm dairy, with all the latest machinery and apparatus necessary to the small farm dairy and will be in charge of Dr. C. M. Morgan, head of the dairy division of the Southern railway, who will be assisted in conducting the lectures and demonstrations by Dr. Peter F. Bahnsen, state veterinarian, and dairy experts from the Georgia College of Agriculture and the state and federal departments of agriculture.

Thursday there will be special meetings from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. and from 2 to 4:30 p. m. for dairymen and farmers, and on Friday the same hours will be devoted to special meetings for consumers of milk. The car is cooled and made comfortable with electric fans and seats are provided for the lectures and demonstrations. Through the advice of these experts and practical demonstrations of the most modern and scientific methods, the Southern railway hopes to stimulate interest in dairying and to be of practical aid to those supplying Atlanta people with dairy products. The meetings Friday will enable consumers to tell the difference between good and bad milk and butter so that they will be in position to demand a higher grade product when the milk man comes around. Atlanta women are especially invited to the meetings.

CUBAN MILLIONAIRE ASKS COURT FOR DELAY
J. E. Barlow Will Seek to Get Custody of Daughter at Later Date

The habeas corpus petition of J. E. Barlow, Cuban millionaire, for the possession of his ten-year-old daughter Madeline, was postponed by Judge Bell of the superior court Wednesday because Mr. Barlow was called to Havana by pressing business matters. The case will be heard as soon as it is convenient for Mr. Barlow to be in Atlanta. At present Madeline Barlow is living with her mother, Mrs. Edith P. Barlow, divorced wife, at 219 West Peachtree. The petition is a step in the bitter legal fight between the two for the possession of the little girl, which has lasted since they were divorced a year and a half ago. The judge who granted the divorce awarded Madeline to Mr. Barlow, but Mrs. Barlow obtained custody of the child early in August by a writ from the Stewart county ordinary court.

PAINT MEN PUSH SOY BEANS' CULTIVATION
Believe Manchuria Product Will Bring Fortune to Atlantic Farmers

In order to show the advantages to be gained by farmers in raising the soy bean, a visit to all the agricultural stations in the United States and Canada is being made by L. P. Nemzek, of the educational bureau of the Paint Manufacturers' association of the United States, an organization having a membership of 700 concerns. Mr. Nemzek visited Atlanta and Experiment station Tuesday. Paint manufacturers are interested in the soy bean because from it can be manufactured a vegetable oil that will take the place of linseed oil in making paints. This the manufacturers have proved by tests. Their reason for wanting a substitute to the flax or linseed oil is that the return from flaxseed is so small that farmers are fast discontinuing its cultivation. Nemzek thinks flaxseed raising will be practically extinct within ten years from this reason. In contrast to the small return from flaxseed, Mr. Nemzek says the soy bean is very productive and sells at a price that justifies its cultivation. Also the soy bean has an all-round effect on ground and makes a good rotary product. Another use of the bean is as cattle feed after the seed has been ground for oil. At present only about 100,000 bushels of this bean is raised in America, Manchuria producing the world's supply. Mr. Nemzek says the coastal plain of Georgia is especially adapted to the cultivation of this bean, although it grows well anywhere.

HOME FOR WAYWARD GIRLS NOW A FACT

This Bill, Together With Many Others, Signed by Governor Tuesday

Many general bills passed by the state legislature in 1913 became laws Tuesday afternoon when the signature of Governor John M. Slaton was affixed to them.

Among the most important were the general appropriations sheet carrying $280,000 in excess of the revenue in sight for the next year, and bills providing for an inheritance tax, for the Georgia Girls' Industrial home, better known as the home for wayward girls under sixteen years of age; for permanent registration; the new medical measure; for the doubling of the occupation tax on foreign and domestic corporations and the "blue sky" bill.

AUTO KNOCKED FIFTY FEET; OWNER UNHURT

Dr. W. M. Dunn Narrowly Escapes Death When Street Car Hits His Machine

To the fact that his automobile remained on its wheels although knocked sideways and pushed fifty feet in a collision with a street car Tuesday night, Dr. W. M. Dunn probably owes his life.

The accident occurred about 9 o'clock in front of the Peachtree Inn and was witnessed by a number of people sitting on the Inn porch, among them several women. The story of the accident as told by eye-witnesses is that Dr. Dunn in passing the street car was forced to take the left side of the street on account of a number of autos parked on the right, and after passing abreast in an attempt to cross back to the right side of the street was struck by the street car.

His automobile was going at an ordinary rate of speed, it is said, when the accident occurred. The car was knocked sideways and pushed fifty feet. Although the auto seemed on the verge of toppling over and pinning the physician beneath it was on its wheels when the motorman succeeded in stopping the street car.

Wilmer L. Moore and O. T. Camp, president of the Retail Grocers and Butchers' association, spoke in favor of the movement and many new names were added to those who had already signified their intention of participating in the exhibit.

The August Outclearing of Laces Gets Under Way At 9 o'Clock Tomorrow

Valenciennes, Linen, Shadow and Venise Laces—huge quantities at huge reductions.

The August outclearing of laces at Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co's. has come to mean for many the time to purchase those dozens and dozens of yards of laces that a woman needs as a new season approaches.

Perhaps at no other time are laces marked at such saving prices. This, because we are discarding one pattern and another, clearing out all odd surpluses, making ready for the new stocks, in short, starting afresh with the new season.

So, in light of the prices below and the fact that there are new dresses and underwear to be made and (not to be overlooked) that the Christmas sewing will doubtless be under way a long while before another such lace sale is announced take the profit of this sale as your own.

Here---

Valenciennes Laces
79c a dozen They were $1.35 to $2.25 doz. 39c a dozen They were 85c to $1.35 doz.

15c a dozen They were 50c to 85c a doz.

These will be sold only by the dozen yards. Edges and insertions, some of them in match sets—hundreds of dozens.

Shadow Laces
79c a yd. They were $1 to $2 yd.; 39c a yd. They were 85c to $1 yd.; 15c a yd. They were 50c to 85c

A splendid variety of these in widths from 3 inches to 9 inches, cream and white edges and insertions; dainty patterns.

Linen Laces
30c to 40c a yd. They were 50c to $1 yd. 5c to 15c a yd. They were 30c to 40c a yd.

Included are edges and insertions of Cluny, Torchon and Smyrna Laces—and they are all linen, sturdy and true, the kinds that make many successful round trips to the laundry.

And gathered into the sale is an odd and comparatively small lot of Venise edges and bands. The price tickets show they were worth up to 35c a yard. Now they are 8c a yard.

A Little Notice of Big Savings In the Wash Goods Department

This is the smallest advertisement that we have published this season on wash fabrics, and it tells of the greatest savings, as those who heed it shall learn. The blue pencil man has gathered together all the oddments of wash fabrics for a quick disposal—we say quick because there are 22c and 29c white checked and striped voiles at 9c a yard, 25c piques at 9c, 45c silk and cotton marquisettes at 11c, 25c white repps at 12 1/2c; again, 29c voiles at 15c, and 65c Swisses at 15c, and other values, very much greater, that we would rather you see in the store than in an advertisement. They would seem incredible here. No, they are not perfectly fresh, they have been handled; the shades are not always the best; but it has been many a day since you were offered such values.

Saving and Investing Ought to Buy Long-Term Securities.

One of the oldest and most widely experienced dealers in bonds in this country made this statement recently: "Over a period of years money safely invested has not produced an average income return anywhere near as high as may be obtained at present."

"It therefore seems logical to advise the investing public to take advantage of these favorable rates for a period of years rather than to seek perhaps slightly higher return for a shorter time."

"Among borrowers there is strong competition just now. In one group you will find corporations, railroads and industrial, offering short-term notes yielding better than 6 per cent. In the other group you are beginning to find corporations (principally railroads) offering big issues of long-term (twenty years and more) bonds on a yield basis of very close to 6 per cent."

"For the investor, who seeks safety along with his reasonably good return, the question remains to decide when to make money by buying the notes which will be paid in from one to five years, or by taking on the long-term bond which yields close to six per cent and is likely to have a considerable increase of price when credit conditions are easier."

"It is put up to him to judge whether or not the market for the long-term issues has reached the bottom. If it has, his decision will be hard to make—he will take the long-term issues. If he thinks that it will take another year, or two, or three, to reach bottom, he can get better pay for his money from the persons of the short-term notes, and when they mature his money can then be shifted."

"Personally, I should look into the long-term bonds."

THE NEWSPAPERMAN TAKES THE CAR ON APRIL 26

State's Witnesses Saw Girl On Forsyth Viaduct Shortly After Noon Day of Tragedy

M. E. McCoy, a Painter, Saw Girl Who Was Afterwards Slain, Pass the Cooledge Paint Store at 12:03—He Remembers Time for He Looked at Watch at Noon. George Kendley, Motorman, Saw Her at Forsyth and Alabama at 12:05

Court adjourned at 5:50 o'clock until 9 o'clock Wednesday. Two of the state's rebuttal witnesses in the Frank trial, put on the stand late Tuesday afternoon, swore that they knew Mary Phagan and had seen her on Forsyth street shortly after 12 o'clock, April 26, walking toward the pencil factory.

These witnesses were M. E. McCoy, a painter and farmer, and George Kendley, a motorman on the College Park line. Their testimony was intended to discredit the evidence given by Motorman Matthews and Conductor Hollis, of the English avenue line, who swore that Mary Phagan came to the city on their car the day of the murder and that she left the car at the corner of Broad and Hunter streets.

McCoy said he was standing in front of Cooledge's paint store, 12 North Forsyth street, about noon of April 26 and while there he saw Mary Phagan pass. Kendley testified that he was at the corner of Alabama and Forsyth streets about 12:05 and saw the little girl pass that point. Attorney Rosser subjected Kendley to a most terrific cross-examination, asking him among other questions, if he had not talked so constantly of his belief in Frank's guilt that he had made himself a general nuisance to passengers on his car, and if he had not said he would help to lynch the defendant. Kendley was badly rattled before Mr. Rosser allowed him to leave the stand.

J. H. Hendricks, a motorman on the Marietta Street-Stockyards line prior to April 26, and J. C. McEwen, a motorman on the Marietta Street-White City line, swore that the car of Matthews and Hollis frequently came into the city ahead of time on their relief trips.

Dr. Clarence Johnson, a stomach specialist, was on the stand when court adjourned. Replying to a request from Solicitor Dorsey for a ruling Judge Roan held that the state might introduce witnesses to testify to Frank's character, but the state could not show by these witnesses specific instances of misconduct on the part of the defendant. This, said the court, could only be brought out by the defense.

Solicitor Dorsey's statement, which brought the ruling from the court, was as follows: "The state wants to prove and is in a position to prove, general bad character on the part of Frank, and we want also to prove specific instances of misconduct. We want to show by this witness (Miss Nellie Wood, a former employee of the pencil factory), that he made an indecent proposal to her in his office."

Just how and under what conditions the city detectives obtained an affidavit from Minola McKnight, the negro cook at the Frank-Selig home, 68 East Georgia avenue, was fully explained by E. H. Pickett, an employee of the Beck & Gregg Hardware Co., who questioned the woman at police headquarters for three hours prior to her making her sworn statement.

Mr. Pickett testified that the negress at first denied everything, but that she later related all that was written into the affidavit. Attorney Rosser objected to Solicitor Dorsey questioning the witness concerning the contents of the affidavit, declaring the document itself was the best evidence.

Thereupon Solicitor Dorsey took Mr. Rosser at his word and offered the affidavit in evidence. Mr. Rosser objected and after some argument Judge Roan ruled that he would admit those portions of the affidavit which were material and relevant.

Rather than submit the affidavit piecemeal, Solicitor Dorsey said he would bring out the contents of the document by questions to the witness. He developed that Minola McKnight had finally sworn that Frank had eaten dinner at home on the day of the murder; that he only remained there a very few minutes; that her husband, Albert McKnight, was present while Frank was at home; that Frank's parents-in-law had requested her to be careful what she had to say; that they raised her wages, and that Mrs. Frank had given her a hat.

To offset the attacks made by Dr. Willis Westmoreland and other Atlanta physicians, ethics of Dr. H. F. Harris, secretary of the state board of health, whose conclusions, based upon the post-mortem which he had performed upon Mary Phagan's body, had been described by the physicians introduced by the defense as "wild guesses," Solicitor Dorsey called Dr. Samuel C. Benedict, dean of the school of pharmacy of the University of Georgia and president of the state board of health, to testify on behalf of the state.

Dr. Benedict testified that he had succeeded Dr. Westmoreland as president of the board of health, and that the latter had resigned because the board, by a unanimous vote had sustained Dr. Harris against the charges of scientific dishonesty brought against him by Dr. Westmoreland.

The minutes of the state board were offered as evidence by the solicitor, and vigorous objection was made to their introduction by Attorney Arnold for the defense. When Judge Roan admitted the minutes Mr. Arnold announced that he would offer a letter written by Dr. Benedict to Dr. Westmoreland. He sent out for the letter, and it was read to the court.

Roy Craven, an employee of the Beck & Gregg Hardware Co., under whom Albert McKnight, husband of Minola McKnight, the negro cook at the Frank-Selig home, works, testified that he and a Mr. Pickett had gone to see the negro woman at the request of her husband; that he later went to the solicitor's office to see her, and that the solicitor referred him to Detectives Starnes and Campbell, stating the woman had been hysterical while at his office and would not talk.

Craven said he was present when Minola McKnight gave her affidavit to the detectives. He and Starnes and Campbell, stenographer George Feubury and George Gordon, attorney for the negress. The witness, upon cross-examination by Mr. Rosser, admitted that he did not request the detectives to release the woman.

Solicitor Dorsey stated as court convened Tuesday afternoon that some of the state's witnesses were out of town temporarily and that, therefore, he would alter his original plan of procedure and would put Dr. Samuel C. Benedict, of Athens, president of the state board of health, first on the stand.

Dr. Benedict was sworn. He is dean of the school of pharmacy in the University of Georgia at Athens. He testified that he has been connected with the university for thirty-two years; that he was chosen as head of the state board after the resignation of Dr. W. F. Westmoreland, of Atlanta.

"We were present, Dr. Benedict, when charges were brought against Dr. Harris," asked the solicitor. Attorney Arnold objected. He argued that it would inject another feature into the case which would only serve to embarrass the state board, and that it was not in rebuttal, inasmuch as the defense merely had asked Dr. Westmoreland his feelings toward Dr. Harris.

Solicitor Dorsey wanted to show, he said, that the state board did not find Dr. Harris guilty of "scientific dishonesty," as asserted by Dr. Westmoreland.

NOT SUBJECT FOR REBUTTAL. Attorney Arnold said that this controversy was a thing for cross-examination and direct examination, but not for rebuttal. If this witness is allowed to testify to these facts, I am going to ask him about a letter he wrote to Dr. Westmoreland," said Mr. Arnold.

"Go ahead and ask him about it," said the solicitor. "We are not going to let such a statement as Dr. Westmoreland made, go unchallenged."

The solicitor directed the witness' attention to the minute book of the state board of health and directed him to turn to the page containing the minutes of the meeting of September 25, 1911, when Dr. Harris was relieved of the charge against him. Judge Roan said that he doubted the legality of going into the past relations of the two men, inasmuch as their relations might have changed since that time.

There followed some argument. Dr. Benedict: "I have no desire to reopen the matter."

"No," said Attorney Arnold. "We know you haven't done it. It's our friend Dorsey."

Solicitor Dorsey: "Yes, sir. I open it up. I take all the responsibility for it." The solicitor asked the witness, "Do you want to know if the charges against Dr. Westmoreland were sustained by the board?" Attorney Arnold objected and said that the minutes of the meeting were the best evidence.

He said that Dr. Westmoreland already had stated this much himself, and that the minutes of the board were not admissible because they would bring another issue into the case. The witness, Judge Roan admitted the minutes, and Solicitor Dorsey then started to read from that portion of the minutes bearing directly on the controversy between Dr. Westmoreland and Dr. Harris. The portion that he read showed that Dr. Harris was retained by the board and that Dr. Westmoreland thereupon tendered his resignation, which was accepted.

ROY CRAVEN CALLED. Roy Craven, of Kirkwood, an employee of the Beck & Gregg Hardware Co., was called to the stand. He stated that Albert McKnight, the husband of Minola, worked under him and that at Albert's request he went to police station one day to try to get her out. The solicitor asked him if he ever had seen Minola before then, and the witness answered yes, that he went out to her house with a Mr. Pickett one day. The solicitor tried to get into the record the statement that the two men had not talked to him or the detectives before they made that trip, but it was ruled out. The solicitor reverted to the scene at police headquarters.

"What did Minola say there?" asked the solicitor. The witness repeated the substance of the affidavit signed by Minola McKnight and introduced in evidence. The witness then asked the solicitor to recede about making any statement, but finally told everything which was in the affidavit as read. Present when the affidavit was made were Detectives Starnes and Campbell, Albert McKnight, colored, and Attorney George Gordon.

Attorney Rosser took up the cross-examination. "Didn't you know she was locked up there because she wouldn't tell the story they wanted her to tell?" "No."

"Were you in Dorsey's office?" "WENT TO SEE DORSEY." "Yes, I went there to see about getting Minola out of jail."

"What did he say to you?" "He told me to go and see Starnes and Campbell."

"Didn't you know that she had already made a statement?" "No."

"Didn't Mr. Dorsey tell you?" "No, he said she was hysterical and wouldn't talk."

"Did you insist on her making a statement at police station?" "Yes."

"Didn't she tell you she didn't know anything?" "Yes."

"Why, then, did you keep on?" "Because I wanted to see whether she or her husband was telling the truth."

"Didn't you tell her, three hours?" "No, I was a little over two."

"You say you went there to get Minola out of jail?" "Yes."

"Did you ask Starnes and Campbell to take her out?" "No."

"Well, whom did you ask to turn her out?" "Nobody."

"Did you leave right after she made that statement?" "Yes."

"Come down." The witness detained the witness. NO ONE ABUSED NEGRESS. "Did anybody curse or abuse the negress?" he asked.

"No," he answered. The witness left the stand. The solicitor Dorsey tendered in evidence the affidavit by Minola McKnight. Attorney Rosser objected. The solicitor argued that during the time which he had been in evidence of what she said and a direct and flat contradiction of what she swore in court. The solicitor did not press his contention, however, but dropped the matter temporarily and called E. H. Pickett to the stand.

Pickett is an employee of the Beck & Gregg Hardware company. As soon as he took the stand, the solicitor Dorsey asked him to read the affidavit, and the witness read it. Pickett then testified that he was present when Minola made the affidavit at police headquarters.

"What time did she make that statement?" "She made this statement."

"Tell the jury, just exactly as well as you can, what she said before she signed the affidavit?" "DENIED ALL AT FIRST."

"Well, at first she denied everything. She was a little hysterical and did not want to talk to the detectives. They repeated and talked to us, though. She then acknowledged a few things. She said that she had received more money than was her ordinary wage, and that she had been cautioned to say nothing about what she had heard. She never admitted during which Judge Roan until she went to make her statement."

"What did she say after the detectives left?" "First, she said the whole thing was a lie. The witness testified that first an attempt was made to take her statement in long hand, but that Stenographer Feubury later was called in and took it in shorthand. The witness said that she did not make all of the disclosures until she was ready to make this last statement."

"Does this affidavit contain anything that she did not state?" "Not a thing."

Solicitor Dorsey started to ask the witness certain questions about what she said. The defense objected on the ground that the witness had been examined previously by the defense was in a different position from the one it occupied that day. On cross-examination, however, the negress admitted that she had been in the kitchen at the time her claims to have overheard conversation in the dining room of the Selig home. The negress stated that the sidewalk on the ground in front of the Selig home had been changed and that the position.

Judge Roan ruled out a number of questions which Mr. Hooper sought to put to the negress, on the ground that it was a repetition of the negress's first testimony.

The court took a five-minute recess. Miss Nellie Wood, a former employee of the pencil factory, was called as the next witness. A witness who followed over her testimony. The argument was not heard by the jury, which had been ordered to retire.

The witness came to the stand while the jury was out, and the argument of the attorneys, and the jury was not brought back until they had thrashed out the question of whether or not she would be able to testify to alleged misconduct on the part of Frank.

Solicitor Dorsey outlined to the court what he expected to prove by the witness. He asked the witness to state that she had seen Frank, mother of the accused, leave the court. Mrs. Leo M. Frank was not in court at the moment.

STATE ATTACKS FRANK'S CHARACTER. Addressing the court, he said: "The state wants to prove and is in a position to prove general bad character on the part of Frank, and we want also to prove specific instances of misconduct. We want to show by this witness that he made an indecent proposal to her in his office. I contend we have the right to bring it out on direct examination. The defense proved Frank's good character on direct examination. It is admissible in rebuttal of numerous witnesses."

Attorney Rosser said: "We asked one question of many witnesses to refute the statement of Conley, whose evidence was entered over our objection. What the solicitor wants to introduce is not in rebuttal to anything."

Solicitor Dorsey replied: "It's got nothing whatever to do with Conley's story. It refutes the testimony of the girls who testified here that they worked on the fourth floor and that they never went into Frank's office for immoral purposes." He turned to Miss Wood. "Which floor did you work on when you were there, Miss Wood?" "I don't remember very well. I only worked there only two days. It was the fourth floor, though, I think."

SOLICITOR CITES RECORD. The solicitor read a question put to Mrs. Small by the defense, which had introduced her as one of its witnesses; asking here if she ever had met Frank in his office for any immoral purpose. It was the same question which had been put to all of the girls who worked on the fourth floor.

"Now, your honor," said the solicitor, "if the defense has the right to show by its witnesses that they never were in Frank's office for any immoral purpose, haven't we the right to prove of this witness that she was in his office and that he made an indecent proposal to her? The state is helpless to come back if they are allowed to develop an issue that she cannot contradict."

Judge Roan: "As I understand it, their evidence (of the defense) came in rebuttal of testimony which was admitted over their objection, and testimony which I think had they objected to it at the time it went in I would have been compelled under the law to rule out."

"In my mind, the testimony of this witness is not admissible."

Solicitor Dorsey exclaimed: "Then I'm shut out—"

"It's the law, Mr. Dorsey," interrupted Judge Roan.

"Now before we bring the jury in, I want you to decide all of this," said the solicitor. "These gentlemen want it all put before the court. I have other witnesses who will follow this young woman. By the way, I want to prove misconduct. Haven't I the right to show by a certain girl who once worked for the Nationalencil company, the position in which she saw Frank once, for example, that she has a right to show what this man did going through the factory, in the way of slapping and pinching girls (USUAL QUESTIONS.)

"Mr. Dorsey, whenever you put women up to show bad character," said Judge Roan, "then the defense can go into it on cross-examination. You will have to take the usual questions. The law is written that way, and it binds us all. The jury was brought in."

"Are you acquainted with the general character of Leo M. Frank?" asked the solicitor of Miss Wood.

"No, sir." The solicitor looked somewhat surprised.

"General character is made up of what people say about a man—that is his reputation in the community where he lives. Now from that explanation do you think you can testify as to whether or not you knew his general character?"

"Not positively," answered the witness. The solicitor then propounded his question, which the witness replied that she had known Frank only two days.

DORSEY SAYS HE WAS MISLED. Thereupon Solicitor Dorsey informed the court that he had been misled by the witness. Attorney Rosser objected to his making that statement. The solicitor undertook to ask the witness more questions, and Attorney Rosser objected again. The judge ruled that the witness could not testify to anything at all, unless she had testified to something contrary to what she had informed the solicitor in a previous conversation, then the solicitor, under the law, has the right to cross-examine her in an effort to impeach her testimony.

Accordingly, Miss Wood was excused from the witness stand.

H. Hendricks was called by the state. He has been a street car motorman since November 20, 1911. He testified that he is now running on the White City and Marietta to Inman yards line, and that on April 26, 1913, he was running on the Marietta-Stockyard line. He testified that the car on which Mary Phagan came to town is due to reach the corner of Broad and Marietta streets at 12:08 o'clock. The solicitor's questions to the witness elicited that the car was described by the witness as follows:

REBUTS STREET CAR MEN. That the Cooper street-English avenue line, a part of the distance travels over the same track through the Marietta-Stockyard line; that it is not unusual for the Cooper street-English avenue line to arrive in town ahead of time; that the Marietta-Stockyard cars are due to arrive at Broad and Marietta street at 12:08; that on several occasions he recalls having reached that corner at that hour, and having found Matthews and Hollis, the conductor and motorman of the Cooper street-English avenue line, already in town, relieved by another crew and waiting to call the car to the left of the corner.

This testimony was in rebuttal of the testimony of Matthews and Hollis, who brought Mary Phagan to town on April 26, to the effect that they never got ahead of time.

J. C. McEwen, a street car motorman, was the next witness. He testified that prior to April 26 the White City trolley car due at Broad and Marietta at 2:05 was sent out by the English avenue car due there at 12:07. He made the statement over objection by attorneys for the defense, Judge Roan allowing the testimony. He testified that cars frequently are ahead of time in reaching a terminus point, especially on relief trips.

On cross-examination, he admitted that premature arrival at terminals is against the rules, and that he and other street car men tried not to come in ahead of time. He also admitted that on several occasions he had known the White City car to be cut off by the English avenue car, the former might have been behind time.

SAW MARY PHAGAN ON FORSYTH. Mr. McEwen testified that he saw Mary Phagan on Forsyth street at 12 o'clock in front of the Cooledge store at 12 Forsyth street, and that she was walking toward Alabama street.

Asked to be more definite about the time, the witness said that they never saw her at that point where you say you saw her at this time?"

"I don't know anything about what she did. I know I saw her."

"Whom did you first tell about this?" "I told Mr. Robinson and Mr. Heard, county policemen, a week ago last Saturday."

"That was the first time you told about it?" "It was the first time I'd told anybody."

"Wasn't it the first time you'd told anybody?" "I don't remember."

"Why didn't you tell about it at first?" "Because I didn't think it amounted to anything."

"Why did you tell the officers then?" "I read the motorman's statement and she got out at Broad and Hunter, and I knew that was wrong."

"Yes, sir, I'm working now." "With the Leo Marcus Construction company."

"Did you look at your watch at noon the day before that?" "Yes."

"And the day before that?" "Yes."

"Well, what time is it now?" "The witness reached for his watch and Mr. Rosser stopped him. The witness declared he couldn't tell without looking at his watch."

"What time was it when you last looked at your watch?" "I don't know."

"How was Mary Phagan dressed?" "In blue."

"Describe her." "She was a low chunky girl."

"Did she have very light hair?" "No."

"I see," said Mr. Rosser: "It was pretty dark was it?"

"I don't know."

"What color eyes?" "I don't know."

"How was she dressed?" "I don't know."

"Didn't you see by the paper that she had a blue hat?" "I don't remember. I don't think I did."

"What were you doing on the corner that day?" "I wasn't working that day and had come in from Buckhead on the 11:50 car and stopped at the corner."

"What were you doing there?" "Talking to some men."

"Who were they?" "I don't remember."

"Who was on the car coming in?" "I don't remember anybody that I know."

A OTHER WITNESS SAW GIRL. George Kendley, a street car motorman, was the next witness. He testified that he had been employed by the company for twelve years. He said that he saw Mary Phagan on April 26 at about noon as she stepped from the Forsyth street viaduct, going toward the pencil factory.

Attorney Rosser cross-examined the witness going after him hard. The attorney made a great effort to discount Kendley's story that he had exerted toward any other witness during the day. "You were on the car at 11:49 o'clock, and you were on the car at 11:50 o'clock. He testified that he was on the Hapeville line, and had been relieved at the corner of Forsyth and Alabama, the terminal of the line, a few moments before 12 o'clock, and that he was on the car at 12:05 o'clock. He testified that he rode down to Mitchell street, and then returned to Alabama and Forsyth. He reached there about 12 o'clock, he said, on the front platform of the passing car, and it was from there that he saw Mary Phagan. On cross-examination, Attorney Rosser asked: "Whom did you tell of this occurrence?"

"I told a lot of folks."

"Pleased for the name of some individual, he gave the name of James Means."

"Who were the motorman and conductor on this car that you rode on when you saw Mary Phagan?" "The conductor was named John Winters and the motorman was named Frank."

In answer to questions by Attorney Rosser, the witness admitted that if the girl caught the car it is alleged she boarded at Lindsay street at 11:50 o'clock, she would have been in town about 10 minutes after 12 o'clock. It couldn't have been earlier than 12:05, he said. He admitted that the time he gave was only an estimate, and might be a few minutes off.

KNEW MARY PHAGAN WELL. Solicitor Dorsey interposed a question: "You are not mistaken about seeing Mary Phagan, are you?" "Yes, sir, I knew her well."

Attorney Rosser: "Whom else did you see on the street?"

Before the witness apparently had time to answer the attorney put another question: "Why did you hide this all this time? Why didn't you go to the coroner's jury with it?"

Solicitor Dorsey objected. Attorney Rosser said that he was waiting for an answer, said: "Isn't it a fact that you've made yourself a nuisance on your car, by vilifying this man Frank?"

"No, sir."

"Yes, you know Mr. Brent?"

"Didn't you tell him that Frank killed Mary Phagan? Didn't you tell him that you knew Frank's guilty, and that you were waiting for an answer, said: "Isn't it a fact that you've made yourself a nuisance on your car, by vilifying this man Frank?"

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

(Copyright, 1913, by J. G. Lloyd.) When Mistah Mocker the Mocking Bird, reached the Green Forest he found Sammy Jay waiting for him.

"Well, what did you find out?" asked Sammy eagerly as soon as Mistah Mocker was within hearing distance.

"Mistah Mocker didn't say a word until he was near enough to whisper: 'I found out all we want to know,' said he, speaking very low and looking this way and that way to make sure that no one but Sammy Jay could hear him.

"Ah found out just which tree the home of Drummer the Woodpecker is in, and Johnny Chuck says that Chatterer the Red Squirrel has visited him in the old orchard every morning lately. Ah guess there isn't any doubt that he is the thief who has stolen Drummer's eggs."

"Doubt!" Sammy Jay's voice was full of scorn. "Doubt! There isn't the least bit in the world! The thing we have got to do now is to prove it so that Drummer the Woodpecker and all his friends put the blame on him instead of laying it on me as they have done."

"Of course that's the thing to do, but Ah don't see just how we are going to manage it," said Mistah Mocker. "Drummer won't believe us if we tell him, and probably he and his friends won't give us a chance to even tell them. I have an idea. Why not get Johnny Chuck to tell them? They'll believe Johnny Chuck."

"What good will that do?" asked Sammy Jay scornfully. "It might stop Chatterer from stealing any more of Drummer's eggs, but it wouldn't punish him for the trouble he has gotten us into by saying that I stole the eggs, would it?"

"No-o, Ah reckon it wouldn't," replied Mistah Mocker, "and Ah certainly would like to have him know how sharp Drummer's bill is. Ah certainly would." Mistah Mocker looked sadly at the places in his coat where Drummer had pulled the feathers out because he thought that Mistah Mocker had been helping Sammy Jay to steal his eggs.

"I've got a plan. We'll set a trap for Chatterer!" said Sammy Jay, and his eyes sparkled wickedly.

"Set a trap!" exclaimed Mistah Mocker, looking puzzled. "What kind of a trap, Brer Jay?"

"Yes, sir, we'll set a trap, and Reddy Fox will help us, although he doesn't know it," replied Sammy. "This is the way we'll do it: Chatterer will be sure to visit the old orchard tomorrow morning, hoping that Drummer and Mrs. Drummer will leave their home unguarded for a few minutes.

"I'll get Reddy Fox to hide behind the old tumbled-down stonewall, and as soon as Chatterer runs across to the old apple tree where Drummer's home is Reddy will sneak after him and wait for him at the foot of the tree. Then smart Mr. Chatterer will be caught!"

"But something dreadful would happen to him if Brer Fox should catch him!" exclaimed Mistah Mocker. "Ah wouldn't want anything so dreadful as that to happen to Brer Chatterer, bad as he is."

"Serve him right!" snapped Sammy Jay, who has no love for Chatterer. "But you needn't worry about that, Mistah Mocker. Chatterer is no fool and he isn't going to come down from that tree with Reddy Fox sitting below."

"That's so," said Mistah Mocker, looking very much relieved. "But how do you know that Drummer and Mrs. Drummer will leave their home?"

Sammy Jay grinned. "We'll hide until we see Chatterer hanging around," he replied. "Then I'll show myself near Drummer's home and he and Mrs. Drummer will leave their friends will chase me just as they did before. Of course Chatterer will think this is just the chance he has been waiting for to steal those eggs and he won't lose any time about it. As soon as he reaches the tree where Drummer's home is you fly over there screaming 'thief' at the top of your lungs. Then I'll lead the others back there, and we'll see some fun."

Mistah Mocker thought the plan over for a few minutes. "Then he chuckled. 'Ah believe it will work,' said he. 'I know it will,' replied Sammy.

Interesting Gossip of Interesting People

Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Taft, of New York, who are now at Aix-les-Bains, were entertained at luncheon last week by Miss Anne Morgan, daughter of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, who is occupying her villa near the famous French watering place.

The former secretary of the navy, Mr. George von L. Meyer, is a member of the house party Mr. Clarence Mackay is entertaining for the shooting at Feterosmo castle, Stonehaven, near Aberdeen, Scotland. Among others in the party are Mr. Mackay's two young daughters, Miss Katherine Mackay and Miss Ellen Mackay; his son, John W. Mackay; Captain Phillip Lydig and Mr. Merton Paton.

Their six weeks' honeymoon over, the Duke and Duchess of Brunswick (Prince and Princess Ernest of Cumberland) have settled down in Rathenow, forty miles from Berlin, where the prince's Hussars are stationed. They have only a small villa of a dozen rooms on the outskirts of the town, which has a population of 24,000, and not only is it one of the ugliest but one of the dustiest places in Germany.

Rathenow will be the royal couple's home for two years, when it is expected that they will go to Hanover as the reigning sovereigns.

King George caused a sensation by formally protesting as commodore of the Royal Yacht squadron against the heavy gambling at Cowes during regatta week. Since the baccarat scandal of King Edward's days, before he ascended the throne, baccarat has been tabooed at Cowes. Poker has been countenanced generally, and baccarat has been in favor.

But gambling got feverish, and the star loser, as reported, was the hereditary grand duke of Mecklenburg-Strelitz (said to be an aspirant for Princess Mary's hand), who dropped $35,000 in one sitting. He went back at game, but was able to retrieve only $3,500 when luck fell his way.

The gambling began with poker, but before long baccarat was taken up, and that was when the heavy losing began. On King George's protest the committee was stirred to great activity, and it now is rigorously investigating to discover and punish the instigator of the infringement of the gaming rules at Cowes.

When Lord Ullingston was asked by his grandmother, Mrs. Bradley Martin, what he would like for his sixteenth birthday, which took place on July 31, he promptly wrote back from Eton, saying, "Enough money to go to Africa to shoot lions and tigers." He is crazy on sport, the passion having been inculcated at Balmaacan, where he is such a pal with the gillies. His mother, Lady Craven, believes he is the cleverest boy in the world, and when they go about together they are always taken by those who do not know them for brother and sister. Although he has been terribly spoiled by everybody, and his grandmother more particularly, he is said to be a nice boy, and not a bit of a prig or snob.

Drummer's home is you fly over there screaming 'thief' at the top of your lungs. Then I'll lead the others back there, and we'll see some fun."

Mistah Mocker thought the plan over for a few minutes. "Then he chuckled. 'Ah believe it will work,' said he. 'I know it will,' replied Sammy.

Why is the soda cracker today such a universal food?

People ate soda crackers in the old days, it is true—but they bought them from a barrel or box and took them home in a paper bag, their crispness and flavor all gone.

Uneeda Biscuit—soda crackers better than any ever made before—made in the greatest bakeries in the world—baked to perfection—packed to perfection—kept to perfection until you take them, oven-fresh and crisp, from their protecting package. Five cents.

PERSONAL MENTION

The Evening Story

The Real Man

The party which has been entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Orton Bishop...

Annette swung lazily in the hammock and looked disapprovingly at Albert Hawkins...

of agriculture and had a glib tongue and trained brain that put the young fellows from the city to shame...

He tried not to squirm.

Albert pretty wheel. His theatre tickets and candy, flowers and the occasional taxicab that he managed to get out of...

Hawkins was lying on the lawn that skirted the big front porch when Annette and Jo passed.

"Isn't it lonesome in the country in the winter?" Annette asked. "Of course, it's lovely this time of year."

The next morning she avoided him. She and Jo went to find ferns for the shady spot under Mrs. Riley's dining room window.

After supper Annette and Jo wandered down to the willow-skirted shore of the small lake. The moon hung overhead in a big silver ball.

The next moment Annette's eyes bulged and Albert's frown changed to an incredulous expression.

Mrs. John Owens will return the day of the week from Morristown, N. J. where she has been the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Edward Hall.

Mr. Gilbert B. Elliott and Mrs. Elliott, who was formerly Miss Flournoy Hopkins, have announced the birth of a daughter.

Mrs. Estelle Garrett Baker has returned from New York, after a trip to Nova Scotia with Mrs. Edward Alston.

Mr. W. W. Memminger has engaged passage for the 27th from France and will be accompanied home by his mother.

Miss Helen Brown entertained the members of her bridge club this morning in honor of Miss Lucy Willis and Julia Toombs Dubose.

Mrs. J. A. Carr, Jr., of Rome, is the guest of her mother, Mrs. W. N. Woodward.

An interesting event of this evening will be the star supper at which Mr. James Floyd will entertain the members of the Atlanta National bank.

Miss Blanche McCollister is in Asheville, N. C., the guest of Mrs. Moutrie Hanes at her home on Merrimon avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. John Mabry, of Jacksonville, Fla., are at the Hotel Signal for a short stay en route to Signal Mountain, Tenn.

Charles Watson West, Jr., of Savannah, is visiting his grandmother, Mrs. W. H. Campbell, and his aunt, Mrs. L. D. Watson.

Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Davis will return Friday from Atlantic City, where they have been for several weeks.

Mrs. Lynn Fort and children have returned from Franklin, N. C. Miss Fort and Miss Georgia Fort returned with Mrs. Fort and are her guests.

Miss Irma Irwin, of Montgomery, will arrive Thursday to be the guest of Mrs. William Jenkins.

Mr. Thomas Eggleston is in Paris. Miss Phebe Kirk, who has been visiting in Allendale, S. C., will return this evening after two weeks' visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles West announce the birth of a daughter, who has been named Helen Rebecca for her two grandmothers.

Mr. William Prescott will return this week from Lake Kanuga, where Mrs. Prescott and their sons are spending the summer.

Mr. Henry Newman left Tuesday evening for Arden, N. C., where Judge and Mrs. Newman and family are spending the summer.

Miss Melie Thomason, who has been visiting Mrs. J. A. Campbell in Decatur, will return Thursday to her home in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Cantell will return home this week after a stay of several weeks in North Georgia and at Indian Springs.

Mr. Erich F. Thrasher, who was taken suddenly ill in New York, has returned home after having undergone an operation.

Mrs. F. J. Cooleidge, Jr., and daughter returned this morning from Sullivan's Island, where they have spent the summer.

Miss Helen Parke, of Washington, D. C., is the guest of Miss Elize Shover and Miss Martha Shover on Highland View.

Mrs. G. Aubrey Fuller and Miss Catherine Riser, of Birmingham, are the guests of Mrs. L. G. Fuller for this week.

Miss Mary Lucy Turner entertained at her home on Ponce de Leon avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. George Dasher Snow and Mrs. H. Y. Walker have returned from Mineral Park Springs, Tenn.

Mrs. Albert Bailey has returned home after a stay of three weeks in St. Louis, Mo., and Dixon Springs, Ill.

Mrs. Walter Coffin and little daughter, Dorothy, are the guests of Mrs. Henry Harwell, in Opelika, Ala.

Mr. C. D. Barber, of Commerce,

Albert pretty wheel. His theatre tickets and candy, flowers and the occasional taxicab that he managed to get out of...

Albert Hawkins was head buyer in the linen department of the same store in which Annette was telephone operator.

Albert agreed quietly that it would be hard to go back to the former boarding house and restaurant cooking, and his eyes said plainly that Annette had better reconsider his proposal to get a four-room flat.

Annette spoke hurriedly before he could voice what his eyes said. "Let's go down to the orchard and see if those early June apples haven't turned red."

The blue overalled figure had turned into a girl in a long, flowing dress, out of the corner of one eye, had noticed. But he rose without demur and accompanied Annette, whistling the long, grass with a willow waiving stick that he had fastened to his belt.

Jo Riley, whose parents owned the farm, was gathering green apples for pies. He looked down with a smile as they approached, and at that moment the lady branch on which he sat creaked warningly. He said to himself, "I guess I'm getting too heavy," he exclaimed ruefully.

Albert Hawkins looked at him with reluctant admiration for his superb physique. He himself had been a stunted, canny boy almost before most boys have a mother's lap. He felt ashamed of the slight figure that indoor work had produced, and he sighed when he looked at Annette.

Before the end of the next day Annette no longer asked Albert to come with her when she saw Jo in the orchard. Instead she strolled off and ignored him.

Albert Hawkins smoked cigars in lonesome solitude, for all the others were paired off and wanted no third person along. While he smoked he thought. Despite his natural jealousy he could not deny the very obvious good looks of young Riley. A tall, broad-shouldered, young farmer, who had graduated from the state college has returned home, after a visit to Mrs. Hubert Pettors.

Miss Emma Bowen and Miss Annie Bowen have returned from a visit to Charlotte, N. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Linton Hopkins are at Lake Lanuga until the first of September.

Mrs. M. B. Hutchins will remain in New York a month or two longer.

Miss Annie Barrows Cable is seriously ill at Dr. Hansell Crenshaw's sanitarium.

Mr. H. A. Snelling, of Baltimore, is the guest of his mother, Mrs. J. M. Snelling.

Miss Lillian Pierce is the guest of Mrs. E. N. Webb, of Columbus, Ohio.

Mr. M. C. Oslin is ill at the home of his parents, 495 Spring street.

Mrs. K. M. Goode and young son have returned to New York.

Mrs. L. D. Watson continues ill at her home in Ansley Park.

Mrs. Julian Jones has returned from a visit to Newnan.

Aunt Sally's Advice to Beauty Seekers

K. C. F. says: "My skin becomes so greasy every summer and this so attracts dirt and dirt that I have an awful time keeping my face clean looking. Can you suggest anything?"

The method mentioned in reply to Eloise will overcome this condition.

D. N. A. writes: "How can I get rid of creases and wrinkles about the mouth corners?"

Eloise says: "My freckles are worse than ever this year, made doubly conspicuous by a pallid complexion. I absorb the affected article, not only will the freckles vanish, but the new and younger skin which appears will have a healthy color. Probably you will need to continue treatment a week or more."

Illustrating a Fashion in Bows

We are in the midst of a fashion for bows. In the illustration a graceful neck bow is shown. The velvet of which it is made is drawn under a white linen collar. The skirt of this frock is made of white voile and the pleated tunic is made of dark blue chiffon.

Barons Wind Up Series and Montgomery Comes for Battles

Big Send Off At Park Today For B. Smith

Atlanta Manager Has a Birthday and Fandom Will Properly Reward Him—Game Will Start at 3:30

Wednesday is Bill Smith's birthday. He admits that it is his birthday, but refuses to divulge just how many years he has been with us.

Though Bill refuses to tell fandom just how old he is, the colony of loyal rosters have planned a royal party at Ponce de Leon for Wednesday afternoon when the Crackerers play the Birmingham Barons.

The Atlanta Crackerers have now won six games in a row from the Birmingham club and you can bet Bill Smith and the boys will be out to get a win on his birthday and make it seven in a row.

The Baron club is slightly crippled, owing to the absence of Trough, the star finger, and it will be up to either Gregory or Ery to work the Wednesday battle.

SOUTHERNERS WHO STARRED

Joe Jackson: Dropped a point off his batting average by only getting one out of three.

Johnston, of Cleveland: Faced Walter Johnson four times and did not register a single.

Tris Speaker: Was up four times, scored one run and got two hits.

Yerkes: Was up as a pinch hitter and failed to deliver.

James Archer: Hit for two bases once in four times up.

Slim Sallee: Pitched one and one-third innings against the Dodgers without allowing a hit.

Zach Wheat: Was up three times and hit safely once.

Jake Daubert: Had an out day, failing to get a hit in three times up.

Red Smith: Was up four times and got one hit.

Bobby Byrne: Could only get one in five.

Forsyth Gets Away With Jackson Club

FORSYTH, Ga., Aug. 19.—Forsyth took the third and concluding game of the present series from Jackson here Saturday afternoon by the score of 3 to 0.

Besides the pitching of Jeffries for Forsyth, who gave up only one hit and struck out eight men in nine innings, the feature of the game was the all-around playing of the local boys, only one error being chalked up against them.

Forsyth started off by hammering out three hits in the first inning against Finley, and touched up Combs, who relieved Finley in the second, for a total of nine hits.

With two men down in the eighth, Banker, Woodworth and Rumble each hammered out a two-base hit. Jeffries had the heavy-hitting Jacksonians completely at his mercy.

He was at no time in danger, not over four men coming to the bat in any inning.

The batteries were: For Forsyth, Jeffries and Bankston; for Jackson, Finley, Combs, Thurston and Bowden.

In the first game of the series Forsyth landed onto J. Bowden for a total of twenty-two hits, safely winning out three hits in the first inning against Finley, and touched up Combs, who relieved Finley in the second, for a total of nine hits.

With two men down in the eighth, Banker, Woodworth and Rumble each hammered out a two-base hit. Jeffries had the heavy-hitting Jacksonians completely at his mercy.

Star Players Win Handily

No Surprises Turned Up During Play in Big Tennis Tournament

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 20.—Out of the field of 118 entrants for the all-america singles championship in the thirty-third annual tournament of the United States National Lawn Tennis association there remained last night about thirty-five contenders for the title.

Under fairly favorable playing conditions the elimination process was both rapid and without sensational upsets.

Among the survivors are N. W. Niles, Alfred S. Dabney, W. M. Washburn, R. Norris Williams second, William M. Johnston, H. V. Voth, M. E. McLaughlin, J. R. Strachan, T. C. Bundy, W. J. Clothier, Dean Mathew, Robert LeRoy, Wallace F. Johnson and Richard Palmer.

The ranking players came through true to form. Champion McLoughlin won from Hoffman Nicholson in straight sets 6-3, 6-1, 6-3.

Clothier quired four sets to dispose of G. M. Church by a score of 6-0, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Bundy, doubles champion with McLoughlin, eliminated the last foreign player from the cup by defeating Nicholson in straight sets 6-3, 6-1, 6-3.

Clothier quired four sets to dispose of G. M. Church by a score of 6-0, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3.

As Foxen Quit Atlanta Won; Smith's Homer

Harry Holland Tied Up Score With Screaming Hit to Left, Hard Hits Off Foxen by the Cracker Stars

Elliott Dent showed more trouble in endeavoring to locate the plate in Tuesday's game than ever before. He walked as many as four batters and most of the rest of the game at critical moments.

In every inning that Dent would walk a batter or so there would come through an error or a hit and then it would be a run or so. In this way he was in a hole until the Crackerers began to pound the pill along about the fifth.

In the sixth inning with the score 2-1 in favor of the Barons, Bisland got to first base and Holland hit one over third base a mile a minute. It was going so fast when it reached McBride that he hopped past him and Holland and Bisland both scored.

McDonald came near pulling a grand play in the fifth when he went up in the air and almost speared Dent's hard drive.

Joe Agler was around there with the willow. He made just three hits out of five times up and they were all scorers.

Bisland continues to be just as good at the fielding game as ever. His scoop of Mayer's hard drive in the eighth was clever work. And it started a double play.

Bill Foxen was in a tight hole all the way and when the Crackerers did get to him he was just cold. This, however, is not unusual.

Placing Track To Autodrome

Work has started on Atlanta's autodrome, and the first step has been to start a spur track which will connect the drop with the street car line.

The Georgia Railway and Electric company have had a squad of men surveying the ground for the car line which is to connect the corner of Peachtree and Collier roads.

Work will be started on the actual erection of the spur track within the next two days.

Over $8,000 has been actually paid into the treasury of the company that is incorporated to conduct the meets at the new track, and in the near future the track will be razed to completion.

Palmetto Plays Tie

PALMETTO, Ga., Aug. 18.—The Palmetto Cotton Mill team went up to Gate City Mill Saturday and played a tie game, the score being 6 and 6.

The features of the game was the pitching of Fattor for Palmetto and Bunyan for Gate City, striking out 12 each.

THEIR PRESENT TO BILL

Dobbs Comes For Four Games

Johnny Dobbs' tumbling Billikens are the next on the Cracker menu. After finishing a series with the Barons on Wednesday afternoon, the Crackerers take on their closest rivals for second place.

The Barons series relegated the Slagpile darlings to fourth place, and will close with the Crackerers two and a half, or a half game behind Montgomery for second place, depending on the result of Wednesday afternoon's game.

The series with Montgomery can therefore be depended on to settle who is who as far as second place is concerned.

Should Atlanta win and Montgomery lose Wednesday, Atlanta would have to win two out of three to oust Montgomery from second place.

Should the series be turned Atlanta would have to take three straight.

The Billies have been losing right along lately, and Smith's men have been going at a pretty good clip ever since their last home stay, so it can be forecasted that the Montgomery series will end with a smaller gap between Atlanta and third place.

The series will open with a double-header on Thursday, and will run through Saturday.

Speed Needed By Infielder

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—"You have to pick men who can run bases fast and intelligently if you ever hope to make a battle in first division, and we have been going with this Maisei," said Husk Chance.

"I know that Zeider, too, has the stuff to aid in making a championship club, and if his bunion helps up he will deliver the goods. I was so much interested in him that I naturally felt pretty sore when Callahan turned him over to me with an O. K."

Zeider will be a star yet, and Callahan will be sorry he let him go. He has made a start with this Maisei, and he has the speed required to hold down an infield job even though he is no great shakes at hitting. The Yankee infield looked better yesterday than at any time since I have had charge of the club.

Peckinugh made a neat play off Chase, robbing him of a Cincinnati hit and killed a fast runner at third.

"You cannot put brains in a ball player, and Peck doesn't need anyone to tell him. He has an idea what to do with the ball when he gets it. Knight is a good man to touch a runner; he can go out or in for them and if he can only keep up his hitting he will be a finished man at second."

"Williams shows up better than any of the new men so far. He is a quiet chap who does a lot of thinking, and he hasn't pulled one 'bone' yet. If this present infield keeps going, I have the foundation on which to build a club. We look so good just now that I expect to break better than even on the series, although I appreciate that it will take a lot of hustling."

COBB VS. JACKSON

The standing of Cobb and Jackson remained practically unchanged during Tuesday's games.

Player G. A. B. R. H. P. Cobb... 112 396 85 155 391

The Athletics took their game from the Tigers by the strenuous efforts of three pitchers. Walter Johnson held Cleveland for ten innings while his teammates beat out a victory, thereby increasing the lead of the Athletics to six and a half games.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Aug. 20.—Nashville and Chattanooga play another double-header today, this being Nashville's last appearance of the season here. Clear and warm.

Renel Starred In Long Race At Motordrome

Injury to Jock McNeil Did Not Keep Racers From Shooting Around Saucer at Rather Lively Clip

George Renel cleaned up in every heat of the Robert Maddox sweepstakes at the 'Drome Tuesday night. He worked his machine to the front at the crack of the starter's gun and kept on the white line to the finish. Only at intervals was he led by any rider during the three heats.

Harry Schwartz ran Renel a fair second in the winning. He took the final heat in the Southern championship race, leading a good field of riders to the white line. He also bested Harry Glenn in their match race. It required riding him to a dead heat the second round.

With the shadow of death hovering over one of their own company from his food being riding it is surprising that the races were as good as they were. The time was not as fast as has been at the track but the last heat made up for a good part of it.

The night's complete results follow: SOUTHERN CHAMPIONSHIP. (Heats, 1 Mile, Final, 2 Miles.) First Heat—Harry Schwartz, first; Morty Graves, second. Time, 43.2-5.

Second Heat—George Renel, first; Ted Richards, second. Time, 43.1-4.

Third Heat—Harry Glenn, first; Henry Lewis, second. Time, 43.1-4.

(Final, 2 Points for First; 15 for Second; 5 for Third.)

Won by Harry Schwartz; Harry Glenn, second; George Renel, third. Time 1:34.5.

First Heat (1 Mile)—Harry Schwartz, first. Time, 43.2-5.

Second Heat (2 Miles)—Dead heat. Time, 1:30.

Third Heat (3 Miles)—Harry Schwartz, first. Time, 2:15.

ROBERT F. MADDOX SWEEPSTAKE (Ten Points to Winner; 6 for Second; 3 for Third.)

First Heat (2 Miles)—George Renel, first; Ted Richards, second; Freddie Leather, third. Time, 43.1-4.

Second Heat (4 Miles)—George Renel, first; Henry Lewis, second; Freddie Leather, third. Time, 2:37.

Third Heat (6 Miles)—George Renel, first; Ted Richards, second; Freddie Leather, third. Time, 4:24.5.

Points—Renel, 60; Richards, 12; Leather, 9; Lewis, 6.

Atlantian at Top in Shoot

CAMP PERRY, Ohio, Aug. 20.—The champion company team match was fired in two stages, the surprise fire and the 600-yard range. Nineteen teams entered.

West Virginia took first place with a total of 380 points. Company C team, Massachusetts cadets, was second with 356 points and company K, District of Columbia, third with 365.

In the marine corps match on the 600-yard and the 1,000-yard ranges, Corporal Charles B. Loring, of the marine corps, and J. W. Hessian, of Connecticut, each had a score of 199. Hessian was declared the winner, having 38 on his last shot, the 1,000-yard fire, while Loring had 4 on his 1,000-yard string.

In the marine corps match the contestants shot against a twenty-five-mile wind. Many rifles were lined up with sights placed from five to seven points into the wind, which would give the bullets a sweeping curve over 200 inches out of line with the target and even at this many bull's eyes were made.

The members of the teams shot on the 600-yard range at slow fire with ten shots for record. At the finish there were 190 shooters tied with a possible of 50 points on one bull's eye. In the shoot off Captain Ward Dabney, sixth United States Infantry, won with Captain Spratt, of the Fifth Infantry of Georgia, second.

Walsh's Arm Is in Shape

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 20.—Ed Walsh, White Sox pitcher, thinks he will be as good as ever next season. He attended the Cleveland-Washington game Tuesday and was in good spirits. He had just finished a six-minute workout, where he was treated by "Bonsett" Reese. His trouble had been caused by a misplaced tendon in his right elbow and shoulder. Reese replaced the tendon in less than five minutes. Walsh was assured, he said, that his arm would become as stout as ever.

"Rest your arm for a week and if it feels sore after that do not attempt to do any more pitching this season," Reese told him.

NEAT TROPHIES OFFERED TO CLUBS BEST SWIMMERS

The watermen of the Atlanta Athletic club are training for the water events which will be pulled off on next Saturday.

Eugene Kelly, the chairman of the water sports committee, has been working hard on the program and has a corking good list of events for the water sports contests.

In addition to the interest in the individual events on the program, there are prizes offered for the winners of the greatest number of points in their respective classes, contestants being required to enter all swimming and diving events in their respective classes. A beautiful silver cup for the best all-around water man has been offered by Mr. Frederick Hoyt, while Mr. Al Doonan has offered a beautiful silver vase for ladies. Silver medals will be given to the second best in both classes, and a bronze medal for the consolation prize for men.

The lists are open to all members of the Atlanta Athletic club, and will be held at their country place, East Lake. The program starts at 4 o'clock on Saturday, August 23, and runs as follows:

THE ABYSS.
 I, being mild, severe and bland,
 Will stand for most things;
 It's very seldom that I've panned
 Or come to roast things.
 I put up with "I-get-you-Steve,"
 Or could ignore it;
 Though "I-should-veorry" made me grieve,
 I grinned and bore it.
 But there are limits to all things,
 And who can doubt it?
 Yea, one that over all else swings,
 I rise to shout it.
 The rest was sad enough, old top,
 To leave one fuming;
 But "whatta-ya-mean" is where I stop
 And commence fuming.

It is reported that Walter Johnson has decided to ask for $12,500 next year. I fa good, first division ball club isn't worth that much it isn't worth anything.

We are only sorry that C. Webb Murphy doesn't own Johnson to see what evidence C. Webb could employ to prove Walter a fifth rate pitcher until the salary adjustment was reached. Then, of course, the Idaho Typhoon would again be the "most wonderful," etc., that ever, etc.

THE BOEHLING MARKET.
 When Bill Peet discovered Joe Boehling he was to get so much kale if the lefthander made good. Bill had a busy time padding out the price each time Boehling slipped one over. He had pushed it into quite a sum when nine straight were reached.
 We hope Bill decided to settle at the end of eleven straight in place of waiting for the full year's count. If he didn't, he may be lucky to break even and not owe Griff by October's returns.

NOTHING LEFT, BUT—
 The Senators carry the leading pitcher in Johnson and the leading base-runner in Cravath.
 Athletics and Giants, despite their desperate efforts, haven't anything at all save a lead for the next world series and what may develop from the gate receipts.

PANNING THE ATHLETE.
 The average thickness of the human hide and the effect that knocking has upon a ballplayer are shown again in the case of Wagner.
 The eminent Teuton, after a bad start at home, was panned to a pulp. He pretended to forget it, but the figures show that for three weeks he was unable to hit two balls on the nose, and for the first time in one and one-half generations he dropped below .300.
 A few days ago he left Pittsburg's pannery for his usual reception in the seat, where they still call him king.

The result was that in his first games he merely gathered in two home runs, two triples, three doubles and five singles, slipping from .288 to .303.

Has a fan the moral right to rise up and peel the hide off a ball player? Several have written in to us claiming that such a procedure is entirely proper. "The ballpayer," writes one, "doesn't hesitate to demand his complete rights, to fight for every cent he has coming, and to hold out though it breaks up his team. Yet it is the fan, not the ball player, who makes the game. If it wasn't for the fan's money there would be no professional baseball. If the fan didn't protect himself and protest against poor playing or managerial stringiness it's quite certain that no one else would take up his case. The fan who pays his money at the gate has a right to see that he gets his money's worth or raise a row about it."

This is true enough in many cases. But if a ball player like Wagner hasn't earned the right to be immune from knock through seven-teen wonderful seasons, what incentive is there toward hard work and consistent brilliancy? What is the game where a man can earn nothing but salary, and only that through the medium of a battleship hide?

By getting a new manager every year and tying him up with certain restrictions, the only reason the Reds won't finish tenth is mainly because they are in an eight-club league. Either Hanlon, Ganzel, Kelley, Griffith, O'Day and Tinker were all cheese managers or the essence of cheese is connected in other parts of the Redland organization. All the onlooker can certify is to the undeniable presence of the cheese.

Ideas On Use Of GOLF Mashie Shots

According to the theory of J. H. Taylor, present upon champion of Great Britain and probably the greatest mashie player in the world, the mashie is not designed for shots over fifty yards. Yet all of us see golfers try to force the mashie to accomplish distances up to, say, 150 yards, and who wonder that they do not get satisfactory results regarding accuracy.

Taylor's deadly work with the mashie has probably played an important part in his enviable record of winning five open championships, and thus equalling the achievements of Harry Vardon and James Braid in scoring five wins of the blue ribbon event of all goldfom. Taylor pitches the ball with his mashie so that it gently breaks to the right and rolls up to him. The mashie is an extremely difficult club to master on account of the deep left of its face. Most beginners think that they must try to assist the club to perform its work, instead of hitting accurately and permitting the left to do what it is there for. The involuntary effort to help the club get the ball up is largely responsible for most bad shots with the mashie.

The best pointer I ever got in regard to playing the mashie was from an old Scotch golfer, who put it thus: "If you finish the mashie shot with the finger nails of the right hand in plain view you will have made a good shot." Try it and see if it does not make the mashie shot much easier. In the stroke itself try to hit the ball

Little Journeys to the Diamond The Ground Keeper

The Ground Keeper is the Rugged Boss of the Ball Yard section. He is personally responsible for every game the town team loses on the Home Lot.

The ground keeper's salary is paid by the club owner, but the athlete's really ought to foot the bill. If it wasn't for the ground keeper they might find it hard to explain certain sad doings of the day.

When the third baseman is all set for a fast bouncer and has a runner decapitated at the plate the ball takes a sudden fancy hop over his observatory. Now, if the ground keeper had worked out that ridge near third the ball would have hopped true and they might be out there playing yet.

With the block system showing all the sidings on the base running track, sparkling with red gloves, the batter hits a fast roller toward short. The man who boots 'em in that particular section of the yard sees a sure double play. But the ball hits a clod and bounds beyond the reach of the fielder. Two runners score before the recalcitrant pill is retrieved. Now if that lazy-loading sun-loathing ground keeper had worked on the infield during the morning instead of sleeping in the shade of the bleachers the clod wouldn't have been there and the home team would have won the ball game.

Be there a dornick on the base lines and the ground keeper it is who bears the blame. Let the base be jarred from its moorings by the ripping spikes of the charging athlete and whose fault is it but the ground keeper's?

Be there a dent in the infield and the husky who covets there has his alibi all ready when a hard hit ball eludes him and darts on to the fence. It doesn't matter that the husky is a web-footed athlete kept only for his hitting and really not expected to field ground balls.

The ground keeper is the hunk of stale cheese who sets the pitcher's slab too high and the home plate too low.

When rain seeps beneath the canvas covering of the infield, leaving the bases lines muddy, the ground keeper is the doctor who gives the damp rim a dressing of sawdust. He may even go as far as to amputate a section of the base lines, grafting in dry dirt and saw-dust. Here again the infielder has a choice alibi when he kicks one. The ball buried itself in the sawdust, and before he could dig it out the runner was anchored on first. And every man on the club will back him up. The ground keeper should have let that particular spot alone. So and so always hits right there.

When the ground keeper should be tilling the soil of the infield or ironing out the kinks of the suburbs he may be found somewhere beneath the shadow of the stands shooting craps with the club house boy.

Queen Mary, of England, is said to be a golf enthusiast and may play at Balmoral this fall.

Germans Study U. S. Athletics

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The German Olympic commission sent by the Imperial government to make a study of American athletics, arrived today, greeted at the port by a special reception committee of the New York Athletic club and the Irish-American Athletic club.

A luncheon to the distinguished guests at the New York Athletic club was planned for the afternoon.

The commission is headed by Carl Diem, general secretary of the Berlin Olympic games and president of the German Amateur Athletic union. It also includes Lieutenant Von Reithenau, representing the German army, and Joseph Waitzer, of Munich, one of the best known athletic trainers in Germany. The commission will remain in the United States for more than two months, visiting New York, Chicago, Boston and other university cities.

Dispatches from Berlin at the time of the commission's departure said that it hoped to secure the services of A. C. Kraenzlein, the famous German-American hurdler, as athletic adviser and trainer for the German track team under preparation for the next Olympic games. If unable to get Kraenzlein the commission will probably engage some other American trainer.

Baseball players' fraternity has nearly 450 members.

PASKERT NOW OUT OF GAME

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 20.—Paskert and Walsh, of the Philadelphia National league club are out of the game for a time with injuries. An X-ray examination today showed that Paskert had broken a finger of his right hand in catching a drive of Schulte's bat yesterday and that Walsh had suffered a broken bone in his foot when hit by a bat during practice.

Shortstop Bridwell, of the Chicago Nationals, was notified here today that he had been suspended for three days for throwing dirt toward Umpire O'Day, following a decision at the home plate in yesterday's game.

No Local Winners

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Aug. 19.—Local tennis cracks failed to remove a single champion in the tournament which closed at the Country club Saturday. In the men's singles W. G. Oehmig, of Cincinnati, successfully defended his title against Eugene Thomasson, of this city, while Whiteside and Guerry retained the title in the doubles. Miss Carter retained the ladies' singles title.

At the banquet in honor of Jean Boutin, the wonderful French distance runner, who holds the world's record for an hour 11 miles and 1,443 yards at Stockholm in a recent trial, the directors of the Societe Generale, promised an annual subscription of $1,000 to the athletic union which is encouraging athletics among the youth of France.

COLLINS TO BUFFALO.
 BOSTON, Aug. 20.—Wilson Collins, a pitcher and outfielder, who has been with the Boston National league team for several months, was sold outright today to the Buffalo club of the International league. Collins formerly played on the baseball and football teams of Vanderbilt university.

of material used, and labor is not as busy as it once was. Contrasted with this opportunity to build more cheaply than for a long time past is the active demand for renting houses. Only a small proportion of building in the past two or three years, with the exception of scores of houses for investment purposes. Consequently the demand for renting houses has gone beyond the supply. It behooves the owner with vacant property, or houses that need repairing, to get busy when he can do so with profit.

SEEK FREEDOM FOR THAW THROUGH WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS

(Continued From Page 1.) his chambers. Thaw's attorneys in the meantime were drawing up their application for the habeas corpus writ. Thaw persistently refused to discuss his movements since his escape. As to the identity of the men with him when arrested, his lips are sealed. The pair were allowed to go when Thaw was detained. It was learned today that they described themselves at the time as "Frank Brizgen" and "Dr. Siss." They had met Thaw by chance, they said. The police here are inclined to believe their story and do not think any of the quietest who engineered the escape accompanied him. A man giving the name of "Mitchell Thompson," and believed to be the Roger Thompson implicated in Harry K. Thaw's escape, was arrested while lingering about the court house this afternoon. Later in the day, it was said, Thaw's counsel would request that the case be put over. The decision in this matter rested with Superior Judge Globensky. He is due to return to Montreal tonight and should be granted adjournment this night might mean a week's recess. No announcement to this effect was made by Charles D. White, chief of the Thaw legal forces, delayed throughout the forenoon in applying for the writ of habeas corpus necessary to produce Thaw in court, and at noon an impatient crowd had gathered waiting for the appearance of Stanford White's lawyer. This jockeying of procedure related solely to the present charge against Thaw, that of being a fugitive from Matteawan. Other proceedings of the immigration authorities were held in obedience. Sheriff Hornbeck, of Dutchess county, is here with the warrant charging Thaw with conspiring with Keeper Barum and five other men to obtain Thaw's release. Hornbeck said he would bide his time. George Luther Carnegie, his brother-in-law, wired during the night that he was hurrying here with Thaw's sister, Margaret, and cautioned Thaw to delay all proceedings if possible pending his arrival. SPECIAL BEDDING FOR HARRY. An army of acquaintances, as it were, newspaper men who reported the Thaw trial in New York, clamored about Thaw's prison cell today. One glance was enough. It was Harry Thaw. Thaw-like, he had demanded special bedding on his cot; he talked of statements he purposed to issue, though for the time he declined to be interviewed. He said he had slept well. The question of insanity was not embodied in the commitment which brings Thaw before the immigration authorities here. He is held merely as a fugitive from the "penitentiary at Matteawan," where he was confined on "a criminal charge," for life. Thaw himself was quick to see the change for fighting deportation on such grounds, for at Matteawan he was charged with nothing, being held as a lunatic acquitted of the White murder. Along such lines it was expected that lawyers would seek to bar deportation to New York state. LOOPHOLE FOR ESCAPE. The immigration officials, it was said, were aware of this loophole in the commitment and were considering the advisability of changing the charge. However, should they deport him simply as an undesirable alien—a lunatic—it might mean his entering the United States via some state other than New York, and this would invoke protracted extradition proceedings within that state, the outcome of which would be doubtful. Since his arrival here Thaw money has poured into Sherbrooke. An alienist has been tentatively engaged. Thaw would welcome any test of his insanity, it was said, as indicated last night in his statement quoting William Travers Jerome, former district attorney of New York, to the effect that he (Thaw) was a sane man. The hospital cell in which Thaw is confined is a roomy apartment. It is carefully protected by barred windows and iron doors and is thirty feet from the ground. Two guards remained with him all night. DEBT OF FOUR STATES. Thaw had only a few cents in his pocket when arrested yesterday and was

COMMITTEE HEARS GRAVE CHARGES BY SPECIAL PROBERS

(Continued From Page 1.) Judge another letter. Judge W. I. Grubb, of Birmingham, was ordered here to try the case. He declared Colonel Huff guilty of contempt of court, but has never yet passed any sentence on him. Shortly after the Huff trial R. C. Lewis and several other agents of the department of justice came to Macon and spent several weeks going over Judge Speer's record, interviewing litigants in the courts and other attorneys. Judge Speer at present is at his summer home in Mount Airy, Ga.

Carnegie Says Battle for Thaw Will Be "Some Fight"

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—George Luther Carnegie, Harry Thaw's brother-in-law, accompanied by Mrs. Carnegie and a New York attorney, left here last night for Sherbrooke, Quebec. They expected to reach their destination at 9 o'clock tonight. Hasty arrangements for the trip were made after Mr. and Mrs. Carnegie had talked over the telephone with Thaw. At the railroad Mr. Carnegie was asked if he was going to Canada to aid his brother-in-law. "You bet I am," was the reply, "and it will be some fight."

"New Hampshire Will Surrender Thaw to New York"

ROCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 20.—New Hampshire does not want Harry K. Thaw within its boundaries. In the event that he re-enters the state through deportation proceedings in Canada and legal justification can be found for the act, he will be surrendered promptly to New York authorities. This declaration was made today by Governor Felker. Attorney General James P. Tuttle, in support of this attitude, said that the master of extradition was wholly in the control of the executive. Governor Felker said he believed that Thaw could be extradited on the charge of conspiracy made by the authorities of the Matteawan insane hospital. The governor made it plain that there would be no legal quibbling if he could prevent it.

Thaw Can Look After Himself, Says Guardian

PITTSBURG, Aug. 20.—"I am not going to Canada," declared Roger Mara, Harry Thaw's guardian, when he arrived at his office today. "Thaw will be given a hearing this afternoon and it will be over long before I can get there. Anyhow, Thaw is perfectly sane, and with the help of his counsel is capable of looking after this matter himself."

Chief and Sheriff Both Claim Reward for Thaw

(By Associated Press.) MATTEAWAN, N. Y., Aug. 20.—There are now two claimants for the reward of $500 offered by Superintendent Krieb of the Matteawan hospital, for the capture of Thaw. The second claim was put in today by John Boudreau, chief of police at Coaticook, Quebec. The first claimant was B. H. Kelson, the New Hampshire sheriff who discovered Thaw's identity. Dr. Krieb today said that he had received a telegram from Chief Boudreau which read: "I claim all rewards for the capture of Thaw and will furnish all law records." The superintendent admitted that he was somewhat in a quandary. Boudreau's claim, he said, probably was based on the fact that the chief of police had made the actual arrest.

Attorney General Agrees With Governor Felker

(By Associated Press.) MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 20.—"New Hampshire has not room" for lunatics or others of the type of Thaw," said Attorney General Tuttle today. "If Thaw is returned to New Hampshire you can rest assured that New Hampshire will see to the limit to get him back into responsible hands." Mr. Tuttle would not discuss the law involved.

CITIZENSHIP DENIED TO RUMANIAN VOLUNTEERS

(By Associated Press.) BERLIN, Aug. 20.—The Rumanian government, which promised to confer citizenship on Jews who served in the army in the recent campaign against Bulgaria, seems bent, according to the Tagerblatt, on restricting its action to the narrowest limit.

MRS. EDNA GOBBEE TO BE TRIED IN A STATE COURT

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 20.—Ignorant to the last of her husband's death, Mrs. Florence R. Godbee died here at 10:35 o'clock Tuesday night, the second victim of the tragedy at the Millen, Ga., postoffice Monday, when Mrs. Edna Perkins Godbee shot and killed her divorced husband, Judge Walter S. Godbee, fatally wounding his wife at the same time. Tuesday afternoon the body of Judge Godbee was laid to rest in the family cemetery at Waynesboro, Ga., with Masonic ceremonies. Mrs. Edna Godbee, confined in the Jenkins county jail at Millen, awaits trial at the convention of the superior court of Jenkins county next month. The mere fact that the postoffice building is leased and not owned by the United States government makes a distinction which will give the state and not the federal courts the duty of deciding Mrs. Godbee's fate. This was made known by a telegram from the department at Washington in answer to one of inquiry sent by the Millen postmaster. Mrs. Godbee's attorneys say that she will waive preliminary trial and that they will not try to secure bail. (Gerald Stanley Lee in Crowd.) The problem of modern industry is not the distribution of the money supply, but the distribution of the man supply. Money follows men. Free money.

Woman Who Slew Divorced Husband and His Wife Not Under Federal Jurisdiction

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 20.—Ignorant to the last of her husband's death, Mrs. Florence R. JURY TO DECIDE FATE OF MAURY DIGGS TODAY

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20.—Maury I. Diggs may know tonight whether he has been held innocent or guilty of violation of the Mann white slave law. The case is expected to be in the hands of the jury tonight. Argument which was begun immediately after the taking of the last testimony had been concluded yesterday afternoon, was resumed this morning with Theodore J. Roche, of the prosecution, demanding that Diggs be adjudged guilty. He talked for thirty minutes and then Robert Devlin opened for the defense. At the afternoon session Nathan Doshien, who has been indispensed, hoped to be able to make the concluding appeal for the defendant. Matt I. Sullivan was scheduled to round off the argument for the government. The case hinges on the purpose for which Diggs went away with Marsha Warrington, in company with F. Drew Carninatti and Lola Norris, from Sacramento to Reno, Nev. If the jury determines that Diggs' purpose was immoral doubtless he will be convicted. If, on the other hand, the jury agrees with the contention of the defense that Diggs fled to Reno, not for the purpose of continuing his relations with the Warrington girl but merely because he was frightened from Sacramento, the defendant may go free. Considerable interest has been aroused over an admonition given the jury late yesterday by Judge Van Fleet. He said: "You will not permit anyone to discuss the case with you. Remember, it is just as bad to permit a woman to converse about the case as to permit a man." Just what the judge had in mind was not revealed.

Watch Your Baby These Summer Days

Little Stomachs Get Out of Order Easily in Hot Weather. During the hot months mothers should look very carefully to the condition of the bowels of babies and young children, and for that matter, it is very important in the lives of people at all ages. Care should be taken that the water is pure, the milk wholesome and the fruit ripe (though not over-ripe), and that not too much of anything is eaten. When trouble results it is usually in the form of constipation or of diarrhoea. If the child loses appetite, is fretful or languid, and complains of headache, you may look for constipation. Give it a small dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at night on retiring, and by morning this pleasant laxative will have acted and the child will be its normal self again. At the first sign of a summer cold also give Syrup Pepsin, as the clearing out of the bowels will usually be sufficient to break the cold. Summer diarrhoea can be stopped in the same way by ridding the bowels of the poisons and germs that cause the trouble. This opinion of the value of Syrup Pepsin is shared by thousands of people like Mrs. Ella Denzel, 124 Nichols Ave., Stratford, Conn., who uses it successfully herself and gives it to her two little boys, and Mrs. C. C. Allen, of New Monterey, Cal., who finds it in every particular just what she and her family need. Avoid giving children cathartics, purgatives, pills or powders, as they are too harsh. Confine yourself to a gentle laxative- tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. You can obtain it of any druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, the latter being the family size. Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it, postpaid, by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 418 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.
